

MUSIKK
AUDUN VINGER

Neste uke fyller Englands mest snodige nasjonalskatt Robert Wyatt 70 år. Snodig mest fordi han til nasjonalskatt å være aldri har vært spesielt populær, ikke selger plater og aldri holder konserter. Musikere elsker ham, fra David Gilmour til Paul Weller til Björk.

Wyatts karriere går helt tilbake til midten av sekstitallet, da han som syngende trommeslager og sexsymbol i The Soft Machine var en viktig brikke i Londons swingende psykedelia/prog-miljø. Med sin solokarriere har han derimot innredet sitt helt eget rom, der jazz, pop, samtidsmusikk og et åpent verdenssyn har gitt hans spinkle stemme enorm kraft. Inspirert av Alfred Jarrys patafysikk, Edward Lears nonsens-vers, Marx' skrifter og Monks piano. Hans musikk er totalt unik, umiddelbart gjenkjennbar, politisk ladet og dypt rørende.

I morgen formiddag skal hans biograf Marcus O'Dair holde et foredrag om mannen, som en del av heldagsseminaret Off The Page på Kunstnernes Hus i Oslo, der også størrelser som Arto Lindsay, Maja Ratkje og Savage Pencil skal snakke om musikk og kunst. Arrangørene kunne like

Bok
Marcus O'Dair
«Different Every Time – the authorized biography of Robert Wyatt» (Serpents Tail)

Cd
Robert Wyatt
«Different Every Time – Benign dictatorships» (Domino Records)

gjerne viet en hel dag til Wyatts liv og virke, hans musikalske kunstnerskap, livsfilosofi og personlige historie er nemlig blant de mest fascinerende fra britisk rockhistorie.

Det blir ytterligere tydelig i O'Dairs bok «Different Every Time» som ble utgitt før jul, parallelt med to retrospektive musikksamlinger under samme tittel. Boken er lettlest og informativ, og selv om det er merkbart at forfatter og objekt er blitt godt kjent de siste årene (Wyatt har sunget med Ninja Tune-duoen Grasscut som O'Dair er en del av) har den heller ikke karakter av hagiografi. Forfatteren er ikke redd for å avfeie deler av Soft Machines musikk med Wyatt totalt til fordel for hans musikk på egenhånd, og vil i likhet med Wyatt selv dempe betydningen av hele «Canterbury-sounden» som bandet sammen med blant annet Caravan er beryktet for. Det viktigste kom etterpå.

Wyatt hadde riktignok en fabelaktig bohemoppvekst blant kunstnere og poeter, hørte på Cecil Taylor, møtte Georges Braque, og var oppkalt etter familievennen og mentoren, poeten Robert Graves. Og hans musikalske ungdomsvennskap med Daevid Allen (senere Gong) og Kevin Ayers (senere flotte soloalbum) kan han jo takke omstendighetene for.

Sammen med Pink Floyd var Soft Machine de fremste lydleggerne av psykedeliadelen av the swinging sixties, og Wyatt var noe av en villmann bak trommene – den første nakne trommeslager? I alle fall var han ekstremt populær blant kvinner han møtte på sin vei. At han var gift og hadde barn hadde ikke tidsånden noen problemer med.

Bandet delte management med den nyankomne Jimi Hendrix og turnerte sammen med ham, men musikken tok kjapt en annen, mer støvete retning.

Han fikk noen år senere sparken fra sitt eget band, i frustrasjon startet han det strålende prosjektet Matching Mole (en referanse til den franske oversettelsen av soft machine), før alt med ett forandret seg. Han var dypt alkoholisert, tidvis deprimert, og musikalsk uforløst, så han er snar om å kalle ulykken, da han i kraftigere festform enn ellers falt ut av et vindu i fjerde etasje, en ny start. De nye begrensningene ga ham muligheter til å skape. Det er likevel ikke få eksempler på veltede rullestoler, brekte ben, fyllekuler, prestasjonsangst og skrivesperrer i boken. Utrolig nok har han kun avholdt én hel

54 Etterbørs

Norskamerikaner

Norske blinkskudd

Familieformat

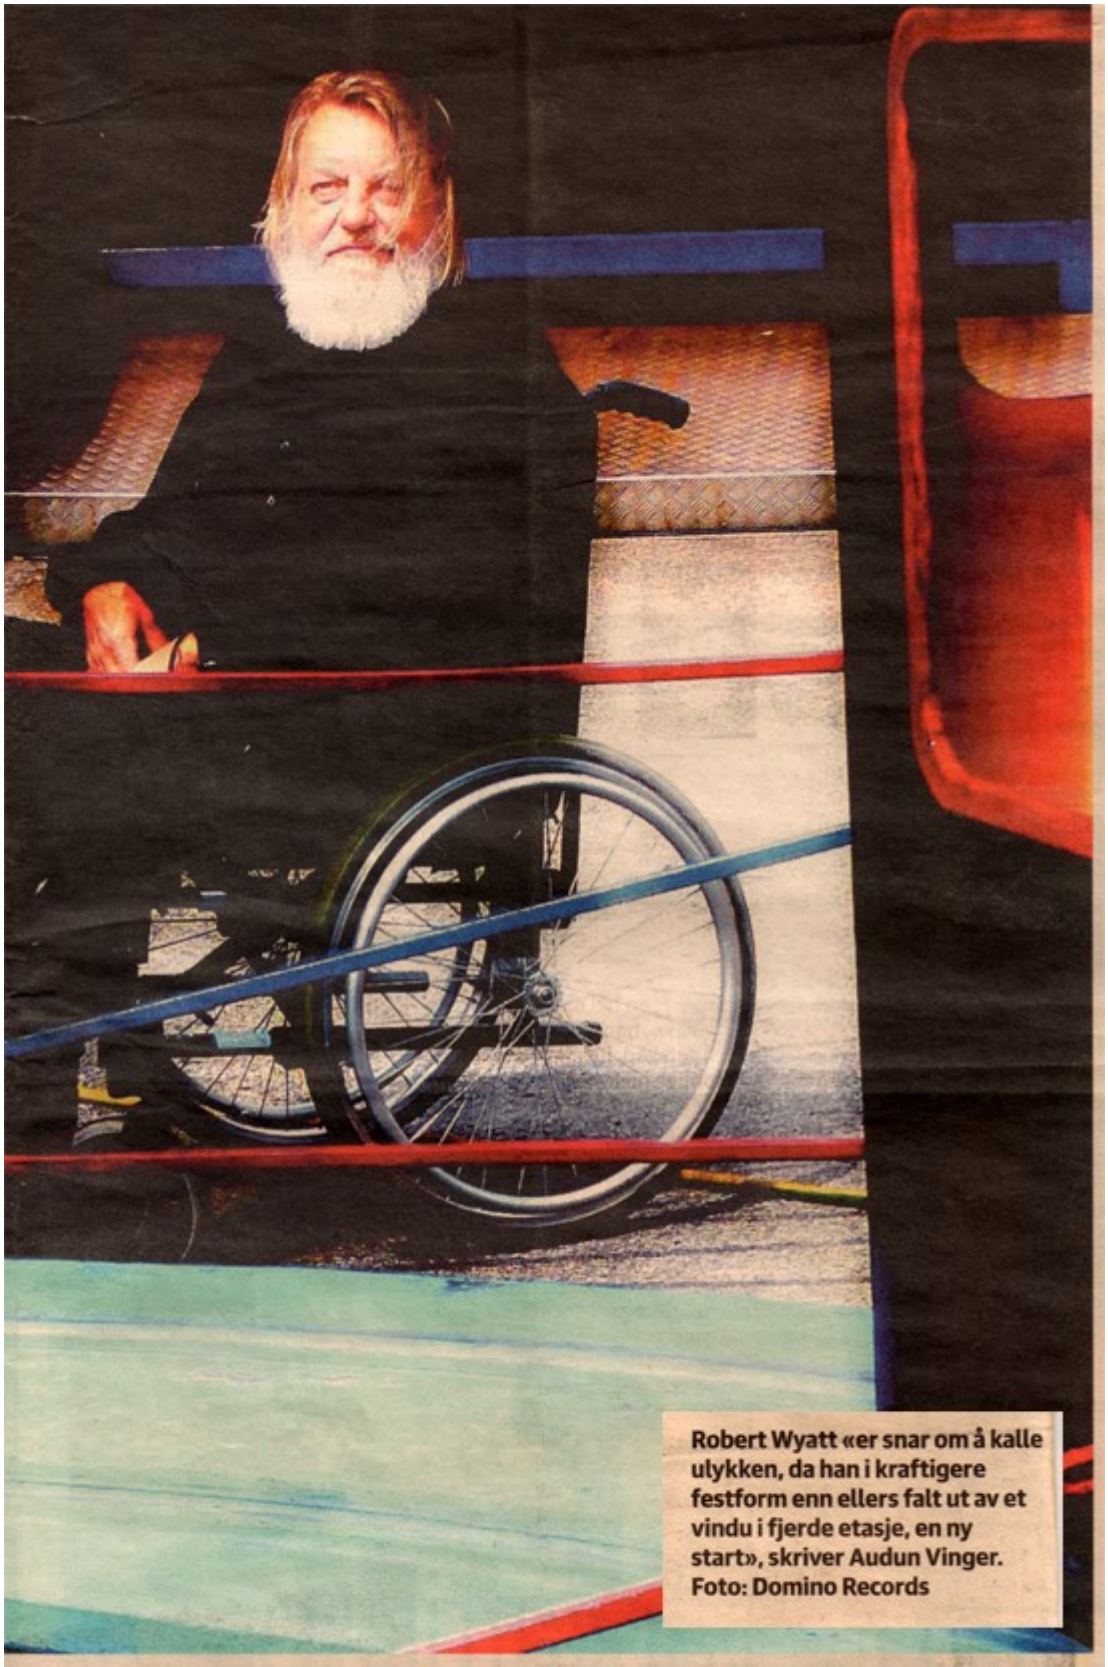
For 50 år siden

Omsider fri

Det var da Robert Wyatt fikk ut av et vindu og ble lam fra livet ned at han endelig kunne begynne å lage sin vidunderlige musikk.

Hans musikk er totalt unik, umiddelbart gjenkjennelig, politisk ladet og dypt rørende

MUSIKK AUDUN VINGER



55 Etterbørs

På nettbordet

Vebjørn Selbekk

DN Dagens Næringsliv

Sentralbord 22 00 10 00 Kundeservice 815 11 815 Annonse 22 00 40 75

Robert Wyatt «er snar om å kalle ulykken, da han i kraftigere festform enn ellers falt ut av et vindu i fjerde etasje, en ny start», skriver Audun Vinger. Foto: Domino Records konsert, på Drury Lane-teateret sammen med flere musikalske storheter. Men det er over 40 år siden. Heldigvis ble det tatt opp og utgitt flere tiår senere.

Den mest betydningsfulle personen i hans liv, er utvilsomt hans kone siden 1974, Alfreda «Alfie» Benge, en kunstner, filmarbeider og it-girl som har tatt vare på ham, vært hans muse, vært hans manager, hans politisk aktivist-kamerat, laget alle plateomslag og i senere år tillegg skrevet tekster for ham. Denne boken er i tillegg en styggvakker kjærlighetshistorie om dem.

Av de to samlingene som er kommet, er helt klart volum to, med undertittelen «Benign Dictatorships» mest interessant (den første er også veldig god, men det er smakebiter fra utgivelser man uansett burde skaffe seg). Her har Wyatt samlet sine personlige isfjelltopper fra de oppsiktsvekkende mange gjesteopptredenene han har med andre artister. Jeg var rett og slett ikke klar over at han har gjort så mye ved siden av, med kjente og ukjente artister i et vidt spekter, og at det gjennomgående holder slikt høyt nivå. Det er nettopp slike opptredener, skjult på andres utgivelser, som gjør samleplater til et verdig format. Her finner vi nordiske popartister som Anja Garbarek, Jeanette Lindstrom og Björk, britiske kjemper som Phil Manzanera, Brian Eno og Nick Mason, jazzkomponistene Carla Bley og Michael Mantler, og mye mer. Det er, heldigvis for artistene, ikke alltid slik at Wyatt stjeler showet, det er mer slik at de har fått et ekstra fantastisk instrument med i besetningen - hans eiendommelig skjønne stemme og musikalske hender. Det Wyatt derimot er flink til å stjele, er det mentale eierskapet til andres låter. Mye av det beste han har gjort er skrevet av andre. Selvfølgelig Elvis Costellos bittersøte hit «Shipbuilding», som da også opprinnelig er skrevet til Wyatt, en av mange sanger om krigføringens og maktens konsekvenser i Wyatts katalog.

En gripende versjon av Monkees-låten «I'm a believer» ble hans første single for Richard Bransons nystartede og den gang svært alternative plateselskap Virgin, men hans aller fremste bedrift og min personlige favoritt er den intense tolkingen han gjør av discobandet Chics ballade «At last I am free». Som han synger: «I can hardly see in front of me». Gratulerer med dagen!

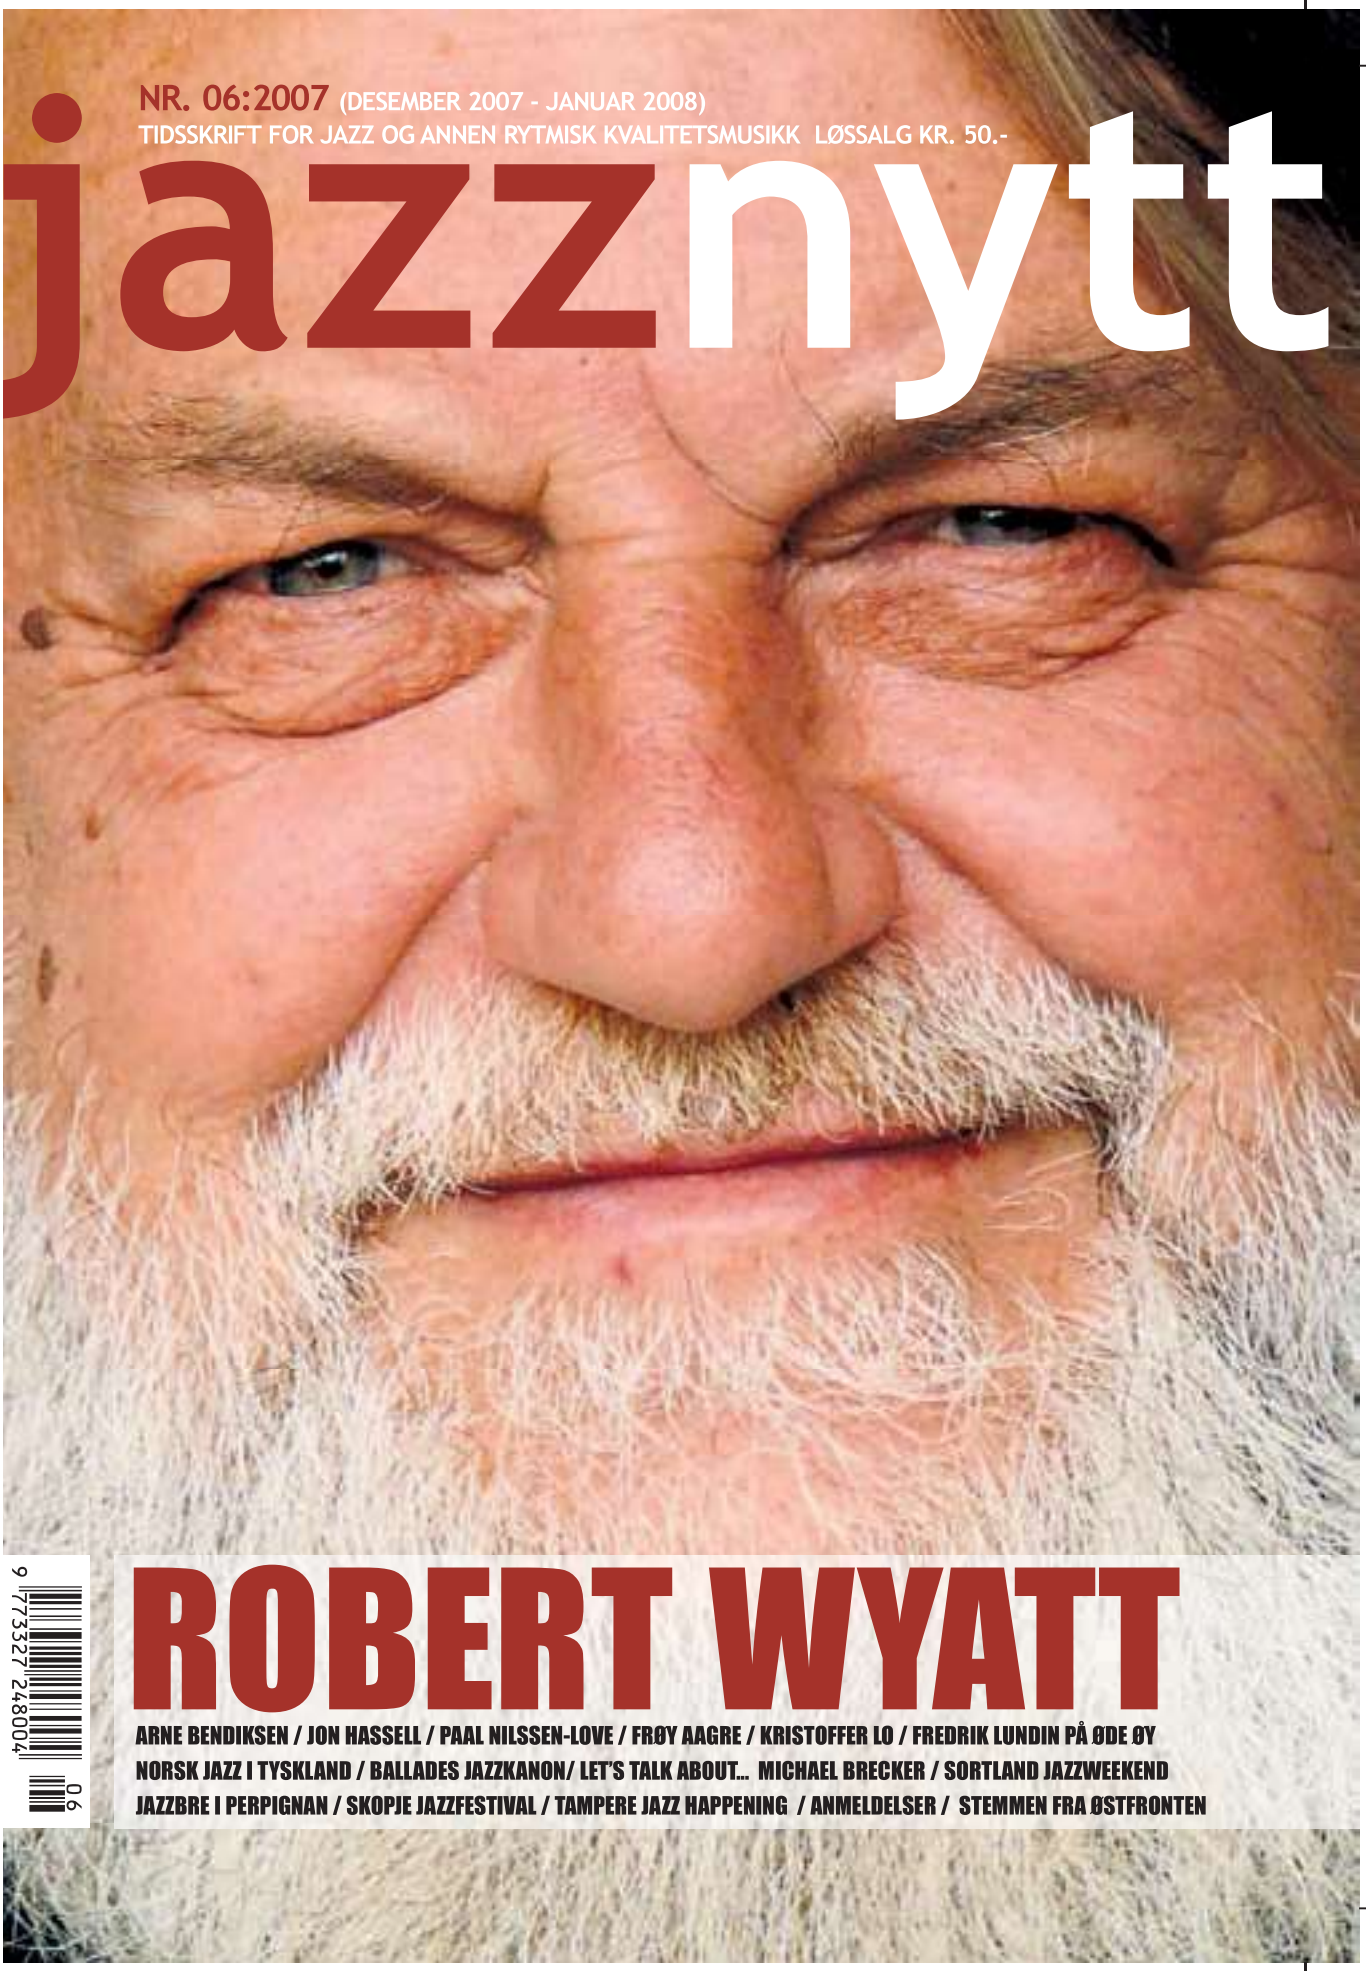
Audun Vinger skriver om musikk og bøker i Dagens Næringsliv

Audun Vinger

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list



ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

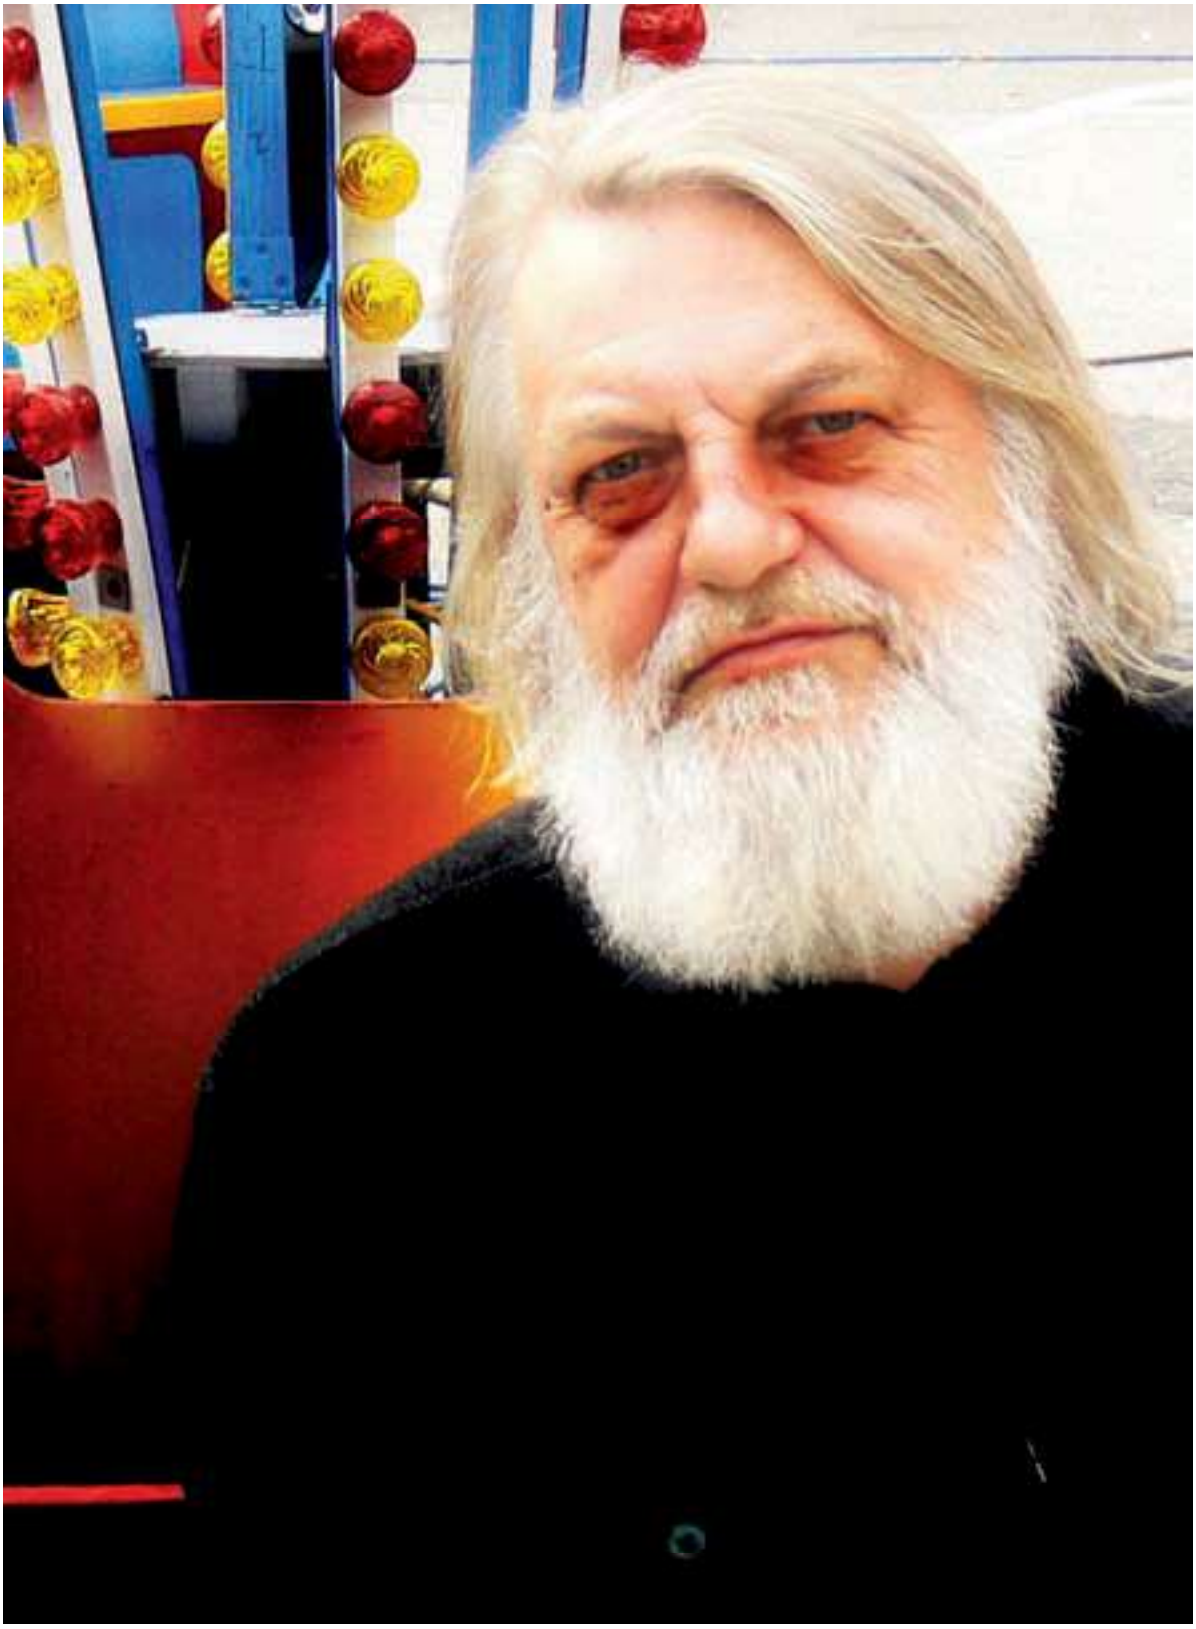
HOME

NR. 06:2007 (DESEMBER 2007 - JANUAR 2008)
TIDSSKRIFT FOR JAZZ OG ANNEN RYTMISK KVALITETSMUSIKK LØSSALG KR. 50.-

jazznytt

ROBERT WYATT

ARNE BENDIKSEN / JON HASSELL / PAAL NILSSEN-LOVE / FRØY AAGRE / KRISTOFFER LO / FREDRIK LUNDIN PÅ ØDE ØY
NORSK JAZZ I TYSKLAND / BALLADES JAZZKANON/ LET'S TALK ABOUT... MICHAEL BRECKER / SORTLAND JAZZWEEKEND
JAZZBRE I PERPIGNAN / SKOPJE JAZZFESTIVAL / TAMPERE JAZZ HAPPENING / ANMELDELSER / STEMMEN FRA ØSTFRONTEN



9 771337 248004 06

STEMMEN FRA RULLESTOLEN

Namnet Robert Wyatt er uløyseleg knytt til Soft Machine - eit avantgardistisk psykadelikaband som prega den britiske rockescenen på 1960 og 70-talet. Han deltok på dei første utgjevingane til bandet, inkludert «Soft Machine Three», sett på av dei fleste som den beste utgjevinga deira. Her syng og spelar Wyatt trommer på «Moon in June». I 1973 drakk han seg sanselaus full på fest og fall ut av eit vindauge i 3. høgda. Etter det blei han lenka til rullestolen.

TEKST: STUART NICHOLSON OMSETJING: LARS MOSSEFINN
FOTO: ALFIE WYATT

Til venstre: Soft Machine anno 1970. Robert Wyatt i midten. Under: The Peel Session 1974

I ettertid har Wyatt helde fast ved den konstante eksperimenteringa som medverkande på innspelingar med alt frå Pink Floyd til Mike Oldfield og Bjørk. Heile tida har han vore politisk medviten. I 1983 kom han inn på Top 40 for første og einaste gong i karrieren med antikrigsballaden «Shipsbuilding», ført i pennen av Elvis Costello. Som venstreorientert, antirasist og anti-imperialist kjem politiske tema ofte til overflata i Wyatts eigen musikk.

Sjølv etter å ha passert 60 held den kreative raptusen fram med uforminska styrke. I 2004 var han nominert til ein «Mercury Prize», den gjevaste popprisen på dei britiske øyar, saman med namn som The Streets, Basement Jaxx og Amy Winehouse for albumet «Cuckooland». Det blei ikkje nokon pris på det avangardistiske albumet, men som Wyatt ironisk slo fast fekk dette tilstrekkeleg fart i platesalet «til å betala for eit sårt tiltrengt handikappbad».

Musikken hans, ofte med brilliante og hardtslåande tekstar, blir ikkje kalla, men er jazz. Han følgjer ivrig med og kjøper mange jazz-CDar i månaden hjå den lokale plateforhandlaren i Louth i Lincolnshire der han bur saman med kona Alfreda «Alfie» Benge. Han er ofte tilstades på konsertar og er ven med mange av dei fremste jazzmusikarane på øyriket. Fleire av desse har bidrege på eit eller fleire av dei 12 albuma han har gjeve ut i eige namn.

Domino

Etter å ha kome på kant med plateselskapet sitt i kjølvatnet av «Cuckoland», blei han signert av «Domino Records». Ikkje akkurat eit annonymt indie-selskap med listetoppar som Artic Monkey og Franz Ferdinand i stallen. «Domino»s grunnleggjar Laurence Bell byrja med å lisensiera obskure amerikanske utgjevingar for den britiske marknaden frå husveret sitt i Putney i London. Den enorme internasjonale suksessen til Artic Monkey forandra alt, og gav Bell fridom til å signera dei han ynskte. At valet fall på ein 62 åring som spelte inn musikken sin på soverommet sitt gode 30 mil frå London, er eit klart teikn på at Wyatt framleis betyr noko som den monomane «singersongwriter» han er.

- Korleis blei du knytt til «Domino»?

- Heldigvis for oss var der ein forleggjar som jobba for «Ryko Disc», ein svært samvitsfull forleggjar, og han gjekk frå «Ryko» til «Domino» då «Ryko» blei raida av ukjende amerikanske spekulantar. Me hadde ein stad å flykta til, sa han, og spurde meg om eg ikkje kunne ta ein prat med «Domino». Med min kjennskap til selskapet fann eg det usannsynleg at dei ville ha ein på etiketten som var tre gonger så gamal som alle dei som var på etiketten frå før. Me kom godt overeins og dei redda meg. Eg er svært takksam!

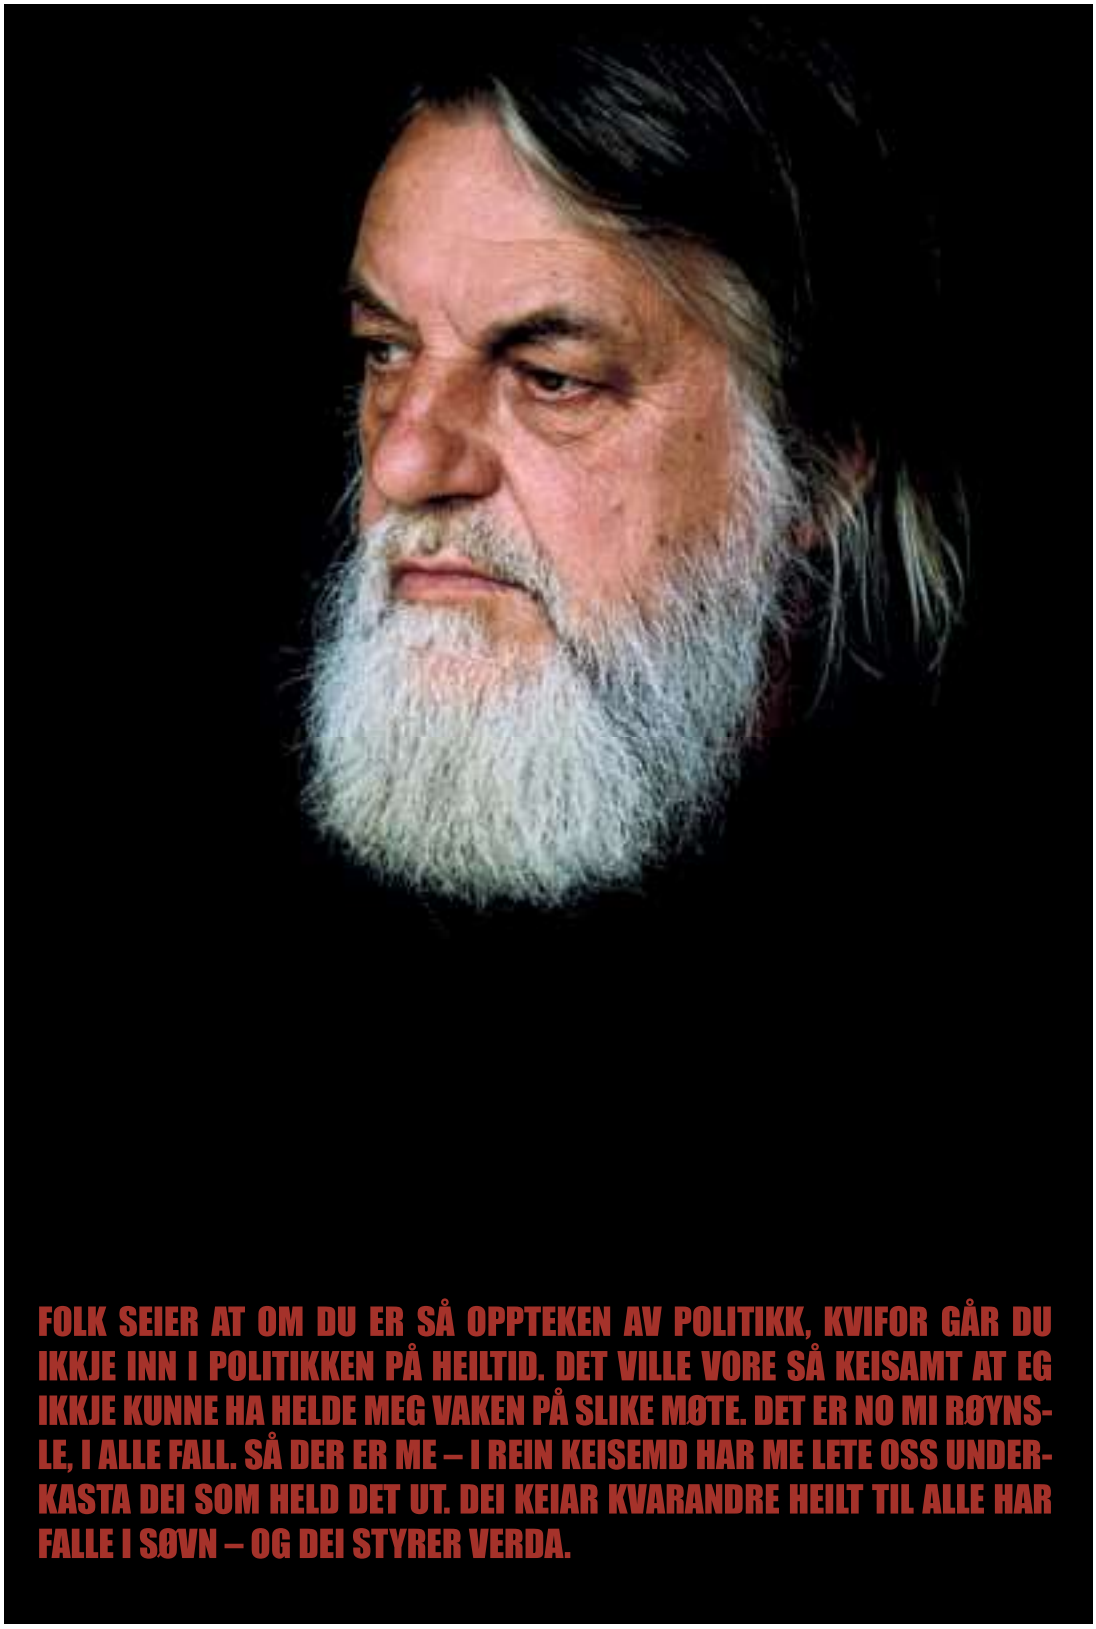
«Comic Opera»

- Korleis blei «Comic Opera» til? Blei kvar enkelt song til først og så sette du dei inn i tre suitar?

- Ja, nett slik. Det er tenkt å vera ei reise i lyd, men så mykje sagt, må det leggjast til at enkelte tema refererer til musikken og teksten. «Comic Opera» er delt inn i tre akter. Første akt heiter «Lost in Noise» og handlar om eit par som sklir frå kvarandre, ulike måtar relasjonar kan gå i oppløysing. Første songen, Anja Garbarek-songen «Stay Tunes», er litt tvetydig. Den andre, Alfies song, «Just As You Are» handlar om svik, og den tredje «You You» handlar om å drøyma om nokon når ein vaknar. Den fjerde «A.W.O.L» dreiar seg om smerteleg tap - å sjå for seg nokon med Alzheimer som har mista minnet. For nokon som er på feil side av dei seksti, på feil side i høve til perspektivet frå ungdomskulturen er dette eit tema med stadig skarpare brodd. Eg skal ikkje ta for meg heile albumet på denne måten, men eg kjem i hug ei rekkje hendingar i andre akt som heiter «The Here And Now»: Her er det ein fyr som er ute på ei pilgrimsreise og ser etter ein plass å slå seg ned. Han ser seg om i England, denne rare og litt gamaldagse plassen - ein plass ein kan få fnatt av, kanskje, men så hugsar han at landet er i krig og drep tusenvis, torturerer dei og Gud veit kva anna. Han blir så deprimert. I tredje akt, «Away with The Fairies» gjev han det engelske på båten og blir borgar av ein imaginær dimensjon der andre moglegheiter blir ein realitet.

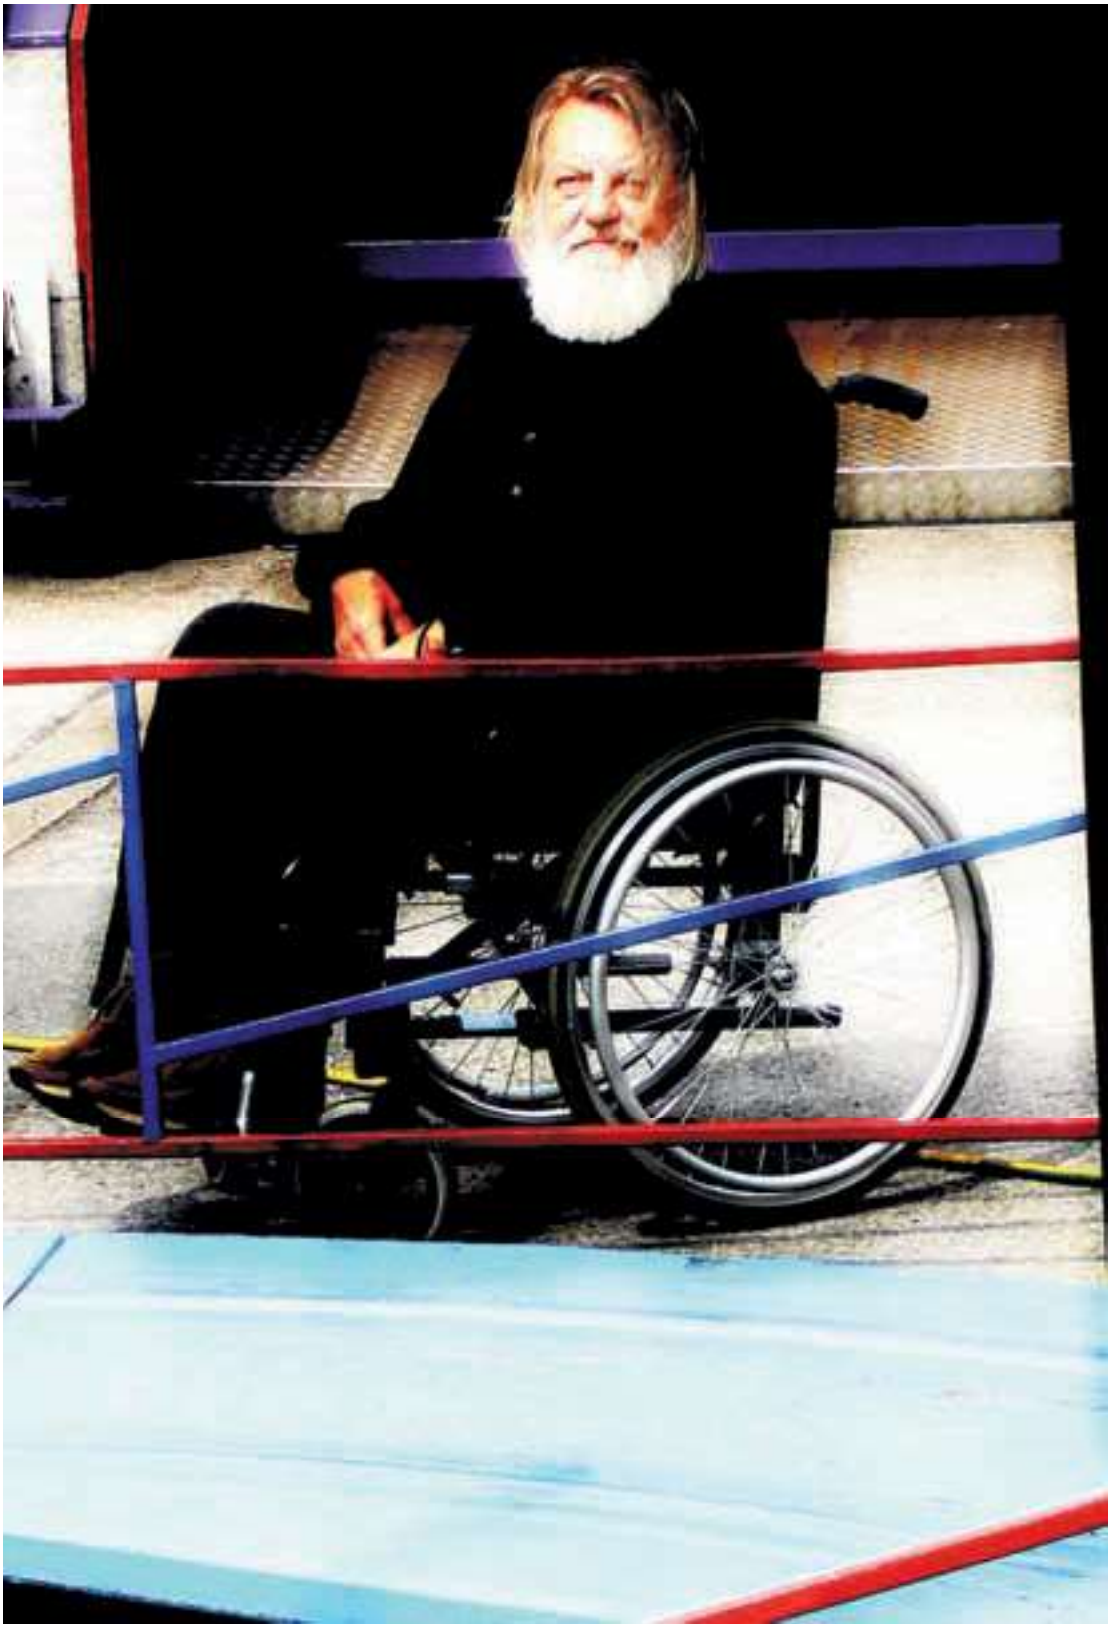
- Eg lurte på grunnen til at han gav det engelske på båten! Tilbake til første akt og komposisjonen «Just As You Are». Eg elskar trompetsoloen din der og lurer på kva bakgrunn du har som trompetar?

- Litt pussig det der. Som tenåring gjorde eg det forferdeleg dårleg på skulen, men eg var med på ein del valfagsaktivitetar som innebar at eg prøvde meg på fiolin. Det var ikkje instrumentet som sådann som plaga meg, men musikken, tolkinga av musikken gjorde meg deprimert. Til far min si store fortviling droppa eg det og bytte fiolinen mot ein trompet. Eg må med skam vedgå at eg ikkje fekk fatt i det av just same grunn. Eg likte å spela instrumentet, men fiksa ikkje å lesa 'blekkene', så eg slutta, men eg bar i meg gode minne om faktisk å laga lydane. I ungdommen brukte eg i mange år å ha eit trompetmunnstykke i jakkelomma. For ti år sidan fann Alfie ein gamal trompet i baggasjerommet på ein bil, trur eg, og ho spurde om eg ikkje ville prøva meg på denne. Ho likar å finna ting som eg kan spela på. Eg fann slik glede i å spela at eg tok bryet med å utvikla min eigen teknikk, kva tonar som var kor. Så stor glede har eg hatt av å spela instrumentet at eg har spelt på dei siste platene mine frå og med «Sleep» i 1997. Hobbyen min no er å spela Sarah Vaughan-plater og læra n minera på den politiske arena på forferdelegaste vis, blir dette for meg ei present og sterk uro.



- Og «Mob Rule» handlar om det absurde i å gå til krig?

- Ja, eg er glad du la merke til det. Den tek utgangspunkt i å gå inn i demokratiske prosessar ved å gå på lokalpolitiske møte. Det er som mangt eg skriv - det byrjar med noko spesifikt lokalt, men eg inkluderer det berre i den grad det resonnerer utover det private. Ein eller annan skreiv om makt at ein nøkkelfaktor i er å få folk til å kjeda seg til underkasting. Har du nokon gong vore på eit lokalpolitisk møte forstår du at dette er ei treffande beskriving av korleis dette fungerer. D.v.s. - etter ei stund sluttar du å gå på slike møte. Folk seier at om du er så oppteken av politikk, kvifor går du ikkje inn i politikken på heiltid. Det ville vore så keisamt at eg ikkje kunne ha helde meg vaken på slike møte. Det er no mi røynsle, i alle fall. Så der er me – i rein keisemd har me lete oss underkasta dei som held det ut. Dei keiar kvarandre heilt til alle har falle i søvn – og dei styrer verda.



Komposisjonsprosessen

- Kan du seia noko om den kreative prosessen når du skriv ein song. Dei framstår alle som komplette musikalske skapningar, så detaljrike. Høyrer du dei for deg slik når du komponerer, eller utviklar du dei i studio til det kjennest rett?

- Du har rett i det første. Eg kjenner det på meg når eg har noko. Om det ligg i teksten, melodien eller i ein akkord, eller vonleg i ein kombinasjon av desse, har eg noko levande, noko reelt eksisterande, eit verkeleg såkorn. Om det hadde blitt sådd, hadde det blitt ein plante av det. I den forstand er det fastlagt. Eg tek ikkje ikkje tak i noko i vona om... Oi! Det var ein fin akkord. Kanskje eg kan bruka han til noko. Det må vera meir enn det. Når eg skriv heime, veit eg at det er noko der. Det må berre avdekkjast. Eg har ikkje prosedyrar utover det. Eg skulle ynskt eg hadde, for då hadde eg laga mange fleire plater. Nokre av desse ideane må hengja saman i ein slik grad at eg er trygg nok til å ta dei med til studio og få hjelp av andre musikantar. Har eg ein låt, men ikkje finn heilt ut av det, trør Alfie støttande til med tekst som me testar ut, og plutseleg har me ein song. Av og til har eg ein lapp med tekst som Alfie har skribla ned i dagboka si. Eg låner dette, og spør: «Har du noko i mot at eg nyttar dette som grunnlag for ein song?» Så rutinar fins ikkje. Det liknar meir på å samla rekved enn å komponera, ærleg talt.

FOLK SEIER AT OM DU ER SÅ OPPTEKEN AV POLITIKK, KVIFOR GÅR DU IKKJE INN I POLITIKKEN PÅ HEILTID. DET VILLE VORE SÅ KEISAMT AT EG IKKJE KUNNE HA HELDE MEG VAKEN PÅ SLIKE MØTE. DET ER NO MI RØYNSLE, I ALLE FALL. SÅ DER ER ME – I REIN KEISEMD HAR ME LETE OSS UNDERKASTA DEI SOM HELD DET UT. DEI KEIAR KVARANDRE HEILT TIL ALLE HAR FALLE I SØVN – OG DEI STYRER VERDA.

Coveret på Wyatts seneste CD «Comic Opera»

På Top of the pop på BBC 2

- «On Town Square» spelar Gilad Atzmon saksofon. Kan du seia noko om korleis dette samarbeidet kom i stand?

- Eg blei varsla om Gilad - Eg trur det er rette måten å seia det på! Varsla av jazzkritikaren i «The Morning Star», ei lita, men perfekt utforma avis på venstresida. Han sa: «Har du høyrt Gilad? Har du høyrt han spela? Har du høyrt han snakka? Har du lese det han skriv? Han er ein ekstraordinær mann». Eg høyrde han på konsert og lytta til eit par CDar, og - fantastisk! I byrjinga tenkte eg at han måtte vera ein slags «Don Quixote»-karakter. Kva er det som skjer? Ein heilt annan angrepsvinkel. Me er vane med komikarar som går laus på politikken. Dei er ofte meir seriøse enn politikarane, og politikarane er ofte heilt ufrivillig meir morosame enn komikarane. Først og fremst blei eg som musikar slått av klarinettspelet hans. Han hadde ein spesiell autoritet frå Levanten i spelet sitt. Han hadde tydlegvis lytta til arabisk eller det me kallar musikk frå Midtausten. Samstundes kunne han som det mest naturlege servera ein Benny Goodman-solo, noko som er ganske uvanleg, for ikkje å seia heilt unikt. Eg høyrde han live, og han hadde verkeleg lete seg utfordra av det kvitglødande i ein Coltrane-solo også. For å setja kruna på verket er han svært morosam på eit modig vis. Ikkje på Ronnie Scotts måte. Meir likt Mort Sahl eller ein av desse komikarane som presenterte svart humor på 1950 og 60-talet, Lenny Bruce, slike typar. I staden for å snakka om Amerika, snakka han om Israel, heimlandet sitt, noko som gjev han haugevis med fiendar. Når eg spurde om han kunne gjera noko for meg, svara han: «Å arbeida med meg, kan skaffa deg ein masse problem». Eg svara Gilad: «Du kjenner ikkje meg. Eg var med i komunistpartiet i 10 år. Eg kjenner bråk! La oss skapa ein allianse av utstøytte, og kom og hjelp meg å laga nokre plater». Noko han gjorde til gagns. Han er ein fryd å arbeida med. Han elskar å spela. Eg har nettopp fått den siste CDen hans «Refuge». Det er ei heilt nydeleg plate med kvartetten hans, eit meisterverk. I ei rettvis verd burde denne mannen ha vore j.... berømt. Herregud! Gilad angrip eigentleg tredje verdskrigen. Gudane skal vita at han har ting på gang.

Folkelege element

- Eg la merke til at du i eit intervju sitert Mingus, som sa at om musikken mista røtene sine i song og dans, så var den ikkje viktig lenger. Kan du utdjupa dette?

- Eg er glad du tok opp dette. Når eg tenkjer meg om, så får alle slike forbodsutsegner det til å skurra i meg. Eg er samd med Charlie Parker, reglar fins ikkje i det heile. Eg er overraska over at eg sa det. Det eg kan seia er at eg personleg får pustevanskar om eg ikkje finn noko som relaterer seg til song og dans i eit musikkstykke. Det er det heile. Til sjuande og sist er det folkelege elementet avgjerande for ein som kom inn i musikken via rockegrupper og ikkje via konservatorium eller intellektuelle sirklar. Eg må høyra det, og det gjer eg - i Stravinskij's «Vårofferet». Ein fagott innleier - tydlegvis med ein russisk folkemelodi. Det er byrjinga av «Vårofferet». Der har du folkemusikk. Det næraste me kjem dette no er i popmusikken, som faktisk talar til folk. Folk som er skrudd saman på ein måte som MacDonald's ville ha beundra. Mi meining er no at dei som brukar folkemusikken, spelar verkeleg musikk. Og i høve til dansemusikken er det ikkje mogleg å svara på. Om nokon spelar og lokalet er fullt av dansande, så er det eit vakkert syn og noko ein ikkje kan argumentera imot. Musikk kan vera så mykje anna når eg tenkjer etter. Fjernt i slekt på ein måte, men om du som døme ser på transen i Sufi-tradisjonen, der dei virvlande dervish'ane er ein kitsch måte å fortelja kva det går ut på , så når dei ein slags ekstase, og det fenomenet er i mange typar musikk jorda rundt - Afrika, Det fjerne austen og James Brown. Den mest seriøst Sufi-inspirerte musikaren eg kjenner, er Evan Parker. Parker spelar til dømes ikkje noko du ville forbinda med ein låt, og ikkje kan du dansa til det, men det er utan tvil sterkt og viktig det han held på med. Så dette er mitt høve til å modifisera det sitatet frå meg som du refererte. Det næraste eg kjem dette i mine ting er å få Orphy Robinson til å spela duett med seg sjølv på kuttet «Pastafari» (på «Comic Opera») og eg la på eit rytmespor i 7/4. Det er ein takt og eit tonalt senter der, men som med Eric Dolphy, som smett inn og ut av det rytmiske og harmoniske, det er der heile tida ein eller annan stad.

Reisa vidare

- Dette er det 12. albumet ditt – ei musikalsk reise – men kor frå og kor går reisa?

- Det var eit hyggeleg spørsmål, merkeleg nok ganske introspektivt. Dette vil berre halda fram. Du veit, ungar har kjemisett. Kva skjer om ein har sennep og appelsinjus i ein bolle med svovelsyre. Det held eg på med - å blanda ting som normalt sett ikkje ville blitt blanda. Kva skjer om ein får Orphy Robinson på oljefat og Gilad på tenor? Korleis ville det bli om eg prøvde å syngja på eit språk eg ikkje kan, italiensk til dømes? Kva skjer om eg får ei ung, kinesisk jente frå Manchester til å syngja som ein teremin på Anja Garbareks song? Kva skjer med Paul Weller om du tek vekk den rocka rytmeseksjonen. Det er berre spanande å sjå kva som skjer. Det er ikkje ein freistnad på å skapa nyhende eller skapa noko av ingenting. Det er berre å sjå kva som skjer når ein set dette saman med noko anna.

- Er du overraska over at det er blitt 12 album?

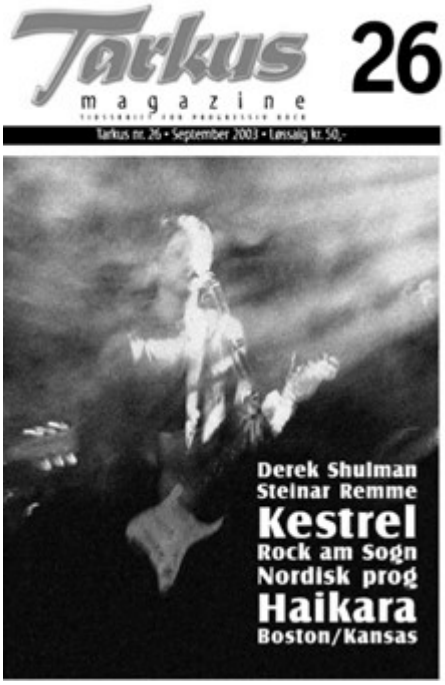
- Det visste eg ikkje. Eg er overraska over å ha levd så lenge, så – ja!

- Kor vil musikken ta vegen i framtida?

- Det var noko som slo meg med folkemusikk. Eg har alltid skydd den. Eg har sett på det som eit lett bedragersk omgrep, men eg vart skaka og rørt av Rachel Uthank og plata «The Bairns», eit album av ei folkemusikkgruppe frå Northumberland. Eg høyrde på den fordi dei gjer ein av mine låtar, men hovudsakleg spelar dei folkemusikk både frå by og land. Eg har verkeleg tenkt på dette. Eg har møtt Billy Bragg for grunnleggjande å forstå ulike lands folkemusikk og den djupare meininga med den. Den har autoritet og er ein del av historien, men eg veit ikkje heilt kva eg vil med det. Eg tenkjer seint. Eg køyrer alltid turistvegen for å koma frå A til B.

- Det er eit stort potensiale å grava fram. Eg tenkte på Jan Garbarek som inkorporerer joik i si frasering.

- Det stemmer, og eg beundrar han mykje. Det er eit hyggeleg samantreff at eg jobbar med ein av songane til dotra hans på «Comic Opera». Eg møtte Jan på ein jazzfestival i London, og eg nemnde at eg nyss hadde lytta på noko frå Anja Garbareks plate. Eg fortalde at ho hadde sendt meg plata, og låtane var heilt fantastiske, og at eg hadde lyst å gjera ein av dei på mi neste plate. «Gjer det!» sa han. Så eg tenkte, greit, Jan Garbarek har sagt at eg skal gjera det så det held for meg. Som sagt så gjort, og den var så passande at eg plasserte den først for den slår an tonen mykje betre enn noko eg kunne ha skrive sjølv!



- Ein del jazzmusikarar har sagt at dei nyttar element frå sin eigen folkemusikk for ikkje å høyra amarikansk ut.

- Det plagar ikkje meg. Tidlegare song eg som ein amerikanar. Vel, ikkje som ein amerikanar, men som ein som syng som amerikanarar, slik som Van Morrison eller fyren frå Small Faces (Rod Stewart), men eg svitsja til cockney etter ei stund! Som Ray Davies og hans like. Eg kan ikkje syngja med annan aksent enn den eg snakka på skulen i East Kent blanda med mor mi sin BBC-variant av engelsk. Eg likar også Noel Coward, ein skikkeleg overklasse engelskmann. Så temaet kvernar i hovudet mitt. Eg var aldri særleg interessert i song. Det var ein grunn for å sleppa å læra seg å spela eit instrument, men no er eg interessert i det som eit instrument i seg sjølv. Så eg lyttar songarar. Folkemusikken har kome øvst på saklista.

- Me avventar med interesse utviklinga.

- Eg seier berre at eg for augneblinken er interessert. Har ikkje idé om kva det vil føra til, men det opptek meg.

Soft Machine - Tarkus - nr. 26 - September 2003

Soft Machine

Soft Machine regnes av mange for å være kanskje det definitive Canterburybandet. Sammen med Caravan vokste det ut av psykedeliapopbandet The Wilde Flowers, og sammen mer Pink Floyd, var de et av de mest populære bandene på den store undergrunnsscenen i London på slutten av sekstitallet. De gjennomgikk en hel rekke personellbytter, noe som også satte sitt preg på plateproduksjonen.

De tidlige tider

Bandets tidlige musikk kan vel best beskrives som improvisasjoner som avbrytes av sanger som henter like mye fra jazz og engelsk music hall-humor som det er rock. Dette tidlige bandet besto av Kevin Ayers på gitar, Robert Wyatt på trommer, Mike Ratledge på orgel og etterhvert Hugh Hopper på bass.

På debutalbumet Volume One (1968) viser de et band som er i ferd med å ta et steg langt unna det de fleste andre engelske band syslet med. Sangene bindes sammen med improviserte passasjer og en haug med lydeffekter som i våre dager helst kan karakteriseres som flaue, eller til nød sjarmerende. Spillingen er av høy kvalitet, og særlig Ratledges orgel og Wyatts trommer plasserer dette i en helt annen divisjon enn det meste annet som var å oppdrive på den engelske undergrunnsscenen. Skiva ble forsøkt produsert av Chas Chandler (mannen som oppdaget Jimi Hendrix), men det påstås at bandet gjorde mesteparten mens han satt i telefonen.

Det neste albumet, Volume 2 (1969), inkluderte et nytt medlem, bassisten Hugh Hopper, som før hadde vært bandets roadie. Hans massive fuzzbass ga bandet et helt unikt sound, og de ble godt mottatt av rockepublikummet. Dette resulterte bl.a. i at de kunne turnere sammen med Jimi Hendrix. På denne skiva fjerner de seg litt fra debutens galskap og putter inn lengre og mer komplekse komposisjoner der de gjør bruk av bl.a. en blåserrekke. Etter denne skiva slutter Ayers, og bandet var nå en trio av Hopper, Ratledge og Wyatt.

Volume One

Third (1970) er vel kanskje det mest klassiske albumet med den tidlige besetningen. På denne skiva var blåserne enda mer en del av gruppas sound, og komposisjonene varierte mellom komplekse, nedskrevne komposisjoner og krevende improvisasjoner. Men oppe i det hele var det fortsatt en plass for det lyriske og melodiske, og Robert Wyatts vokal på Moon In June er et av den tidlig progens mer spesielle øyeblikk. Skiva var et dobbeltalbum med fire låter, og viste at bandet var helt i forkant av både prog og det som etter hvert skulle bli fusion.

Hvileløs vandring

Men med Third var det akkurat som om de gikk litt tomme for den piffen som ga dem det særegne soundet deres. Fourth (1970) gled over i mer pregløs fusion, og med Fifth hadde Robert Wyatt forlatt skuta. Selv om skiva kan oppleves litt langdryg til tider, så mener jeg at Fifth (1972) har flere høydepunkter enn Fourth. Låtene har fortsatt mye preg av improvisasjon, og særlig Elton Deans sax står i fokus i skivas flytende, nesten Pink Floyd-aktige stemninger. Mike Ratledges orgel og el.pianospill setter fortsatt særpreg på musikken, men den umiddelbare varmen og sjarmen er på vei ut.

Third

Før Seven (1973) forlot Hopper bandet, og inn på bass kom Roy Babbington, en mer typisk jazzbassist, inn. Dette albumet er det siste som har en rest av den gamle sjarmen, humoren og uforutsigbarheten. Med bandet merkes av at saksofonisten Karl Jenkins begynner å få litt vel mye å si, og noen av låtene er pregløs syttitallsfusion som bare er skrevet for å kunne putte inn mest mulig soloer.

På oppfølgeren Bundles (1975) ble Ratledges tilstedeværelse enda mer marginalisert gjennom inntreden av den unge og fremadstormende gitaristen Alan Holdsworth, som på dette albumet gjør en bemerkelsesverdig god jobb. Jenkins spiller også mer synth enn sax, og soundet på denne skiva låter faktisk friskere og mer inspirert enn på lenge. Fortsatt er det mer typisk fusion enn prog, men skiva viser så absolutt at bandet fortsatt kunne litt hvis de bare ville.

Men Ratledge gikk lei, og forlot bandet. Med det siste originalmedlemmet ute, ble det full plass til Jenkins og hans lite varierende komposisjoner. Alan Wakeman, fetter til Rick, kom inn på gitar, men skiva Softs (1976) er i manges ører en ganske platt og kjedelig affære uten mål og mening. Omtrent like meningsløst var livealbumet Alive and Well in Paris, som viste et band som levde men ikke akkurat kunne sies å føle seg vel...

Bundles

På Land of Cockayne (1981), er det lite eller ingenting som minner noe som helst om det gamle Soft Machine, og skiva er vel i gavnet et soloalbum for Jenkins komposisjoner med musikere som Alan Holdsworth på gitar og Jack Bruce på bass. Et orkester hjelper også til, men særlig inspirerende er det ikke. Etter dette gikk bandet fullstendig i oppløsning.

I ettertid har mange av musikerne fra bandet gjort seg gjeldene i en rekke musikalske sammenhenger. John Marshall og Karl Jenkins er ettertraktede jazzmusikere, Alan Holdsworth er en legendarisk gitarist, Mike Ratledge har gjort suksess innen reklamefilmmusikken, Hugh Hopper holder fortsatt koken innenfor den mer typiske Canterbury-proggen og Robert Wyatt har gitt ut en rekke perler av noen soloalbum.

Anbefalte skiver

Volume 1
Galskap satt i noe som kan minne om et system.

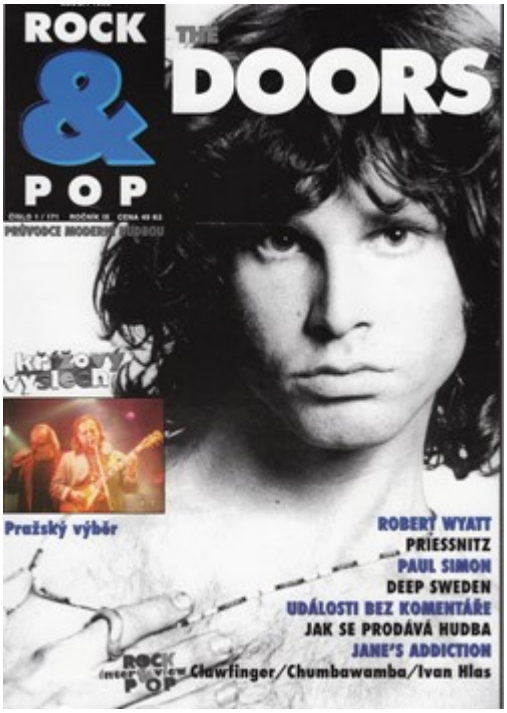
Third
En god start for å få tak i det mer jazzete soundet til bandet.

Bundles
Tung, tøff og rett så vellykket gitarbasert fusion.

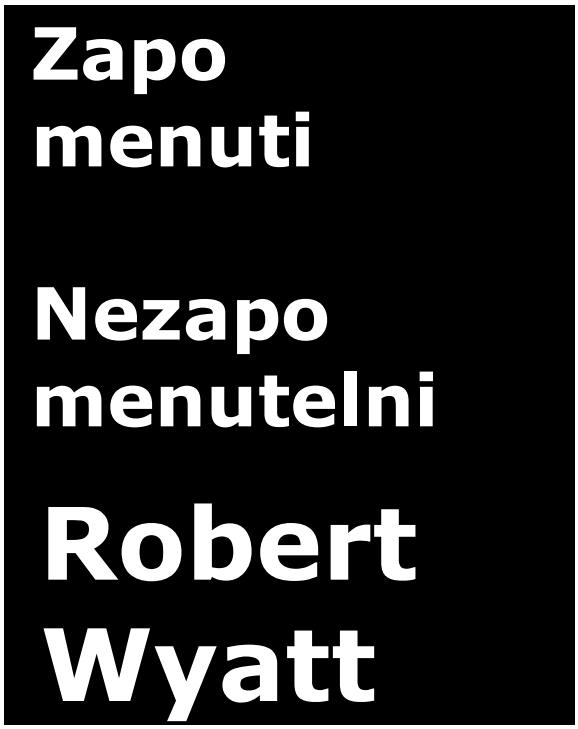
I etterkant har det kommet en rekke utgivelser av typen live og arkivinnspillinger. Sjekk ut hjemmesiden til cuneiformrecords.com og se hva du finner der.

Previous article

Next article



Back to the list



ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

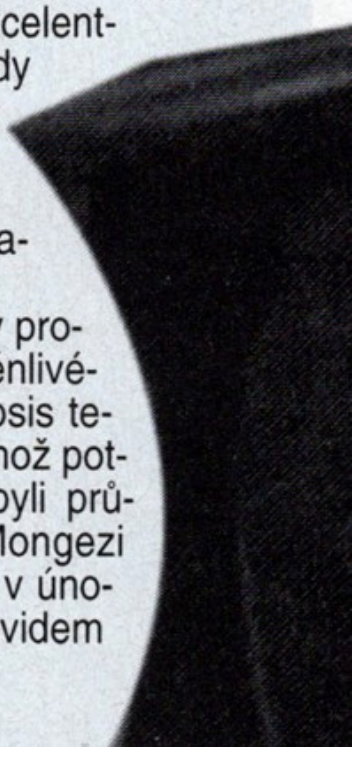
Zapomenuti Nezapomenutelni - Rock & Pop - Leden 1998

zapomenutí nezapomenutelní

Miloš Latislav / foto archiv

ROBERT WYATT

Robert Wyatt je nezapomenutelný, ale rozhodně ne zapomenutý. Už třeba jen proto, že loni v září vydal fantastické nové album. Jenže místa v časopise je málo a navíc Wyattova story logicky navazuje na loňský seriál o Canterburské scéně, takže protentokrát neberte název rubriky tak úplně vážně. Na světové hudební scéně není moc takových umělců, jako je Wyatt. Tenhle inteligentní a mnohostranný zpěvák, bubeník a hráč na řadu dalších nástrojů získal už v raném stadiu své kariéry statut vyloženě kultovní postavy, který si díky vyrovnanosti své produkce udržel dodnes. Jeho hudba a názory měly značný vliv na hnutí Rock In Opposition i pozdější indie scénu 80. let.



DOBA HLEDÁNÍ

Narodil se 28. ledna 1945 v anglickém Bristolu jako Robert Wyatt Ellidge. Do dvaceti používal celé jméno nebo jeho druhou část po otci, psychologu Georgi Ellidgeovi, později už vystupoval takřka výhradně pod příjmením své matky, učitelky a novinářky Honor Wyattové. V prvním roce Robertova věku rodina přesídlila do Londýna, roku 1955 pak do Lyddenu, deset mil jižně od Canterbury

v hrabství Kent. Rodinné prostředí bylo velmi otevřené a liberální a hudba v něm měla své nezastupitelné místo, i když to byla především klasika. Starší bratr Mark Ellidge však Roberta už někdy v jedenácti seznámil s moderním jazzem a tak není divu, že vedle houslí a trubky začal vnímavý mladík brzy hrát také na bicí. Jazz zajímal i řadu Robertových spolužáků z canterburské Simon Langton School, například bratry Hugha a Briana Hopperovy, Mikea Ratledge a Davida Sinclaira. Spousta pozoruhodných věcí se koncem padesátých a začátkem šedesátých let děla ve starém gregoriánském domě Wyattových rodičů, zvlášť když se tu objevil australský beatnik Daevid Allen. Následující události, vznik víceméně rhythm & bluesových Wilde Flowers a poté experimentujících Soft Machine, to vše bylo popsáno v první části seriálu o Canterburské scéně v sedmém čísle loňského ročníku, takže jen několik připomenutí. Robertovo působení ve Wilde Flowers je zachyceno na CD The Wilde Flowers (Voiceprint 1994), obsahujícím většinu demonahrávek skupiny, z toho asi polovinu s jeho sólovým zpěvem. Dalším dokumentem Wyattova rodícího se pěveckého stylu i raných autorských pokusů jsou nahrávky původní sestavy Soft Machine (tedy ještě s Allenem) ze sedmašedesátého, vydané pod několika názvy (nejspolehlivěji k mání na CD Jet Propelled firem Charly nebo Spalax) a samozřejmě první dvě alba skupiny. Na dvojalbum Third z roku 1970 umístil Wyatt svou zásadní skladbu Moon In June, ta však byla jeho posledním příspěvkem do repertoáru Soft Machine, kteří směřovali k čistě instrumentálnímu fusion stylu. Vztahy v kapele se zhoršovaly, a ač se Robert k odchodu zatím nerozhodl, začal se poohlížet i po jiných příležitostech k vyžití. Nejdřív se na pár koncertů přidal k jazzově improvizačnímu Amazing Bandu trumpetisty Mala Deana a v červnu '70 s ním natočil LP Roar (vyšlo však teprve loni na CD firmy FMR). Poté začal vystupovat s kapelou ex-kolegy Kevina Ayerse The Whole World (předtím se interpretačně podílel i na obou dosavadních Ayersových albech) a v létě se odhodlal k natočení své první sólovky The End Of An Ear. Wyattovou původní ideou bylo udělat improvizovanou nahrávku s jihoafrickým trumpetistou Mongezim Fezou a dalšími členy big bandu Brotherhood Of Breath Chrise McGregora. Ti však nebyli tou dobou v Anglii a tak se spokojil s kolegou ze Soft Machine Eltonem Deanem (altsaxofon, saxello), členy jeho vedlejší kapely Just Us Markem Charigem (kornet) a Nevillem Whiteheadem (kontrabas), Davidem Sinclairem z Caravan (varhany) a bratrem Markem na piano. Album se na první poslech jeví veskze šíleným (leccos napovídá už slovní hříčka v názvu), ale při bližším ohledání lze narazit na řadu postupů, rozvinutých v pozdější Wyattově tvorbě, především hypnotické opakování jednoduchých podkladových motivů a bezeslovný scatový zpěv. Vzápětí po vzniku sólové desky si všestranný Wyatt zahrál jako jeden ze tří bubeníků na druhé LP The Keith Tippett Group Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening (Vertigo 1971). V listopadu se ocitl ve stejné pozici v avantgardním padesátičlenném orchestru Centipede, v němž se sešli hudebníci z Tippett Group, King Crimson, Nucleus, Blossom Toes a dalších kapel. Zkrácená verze Tippettovy dvouhodinové suity pro dvojalbum Septober Energy (RCA 1971) však byla natočena po sérii koncertů až v červnu následujícího roku.

Mezitím stihli Soft Machine v nejsilnější sestavě Wyatt, Ratledge, Hopper, Dean zhusta koncertovat a během podzimu '70 stvořit své nejjazzovější LP Fourth. Album i koncertní záznamy z následujícho období (jeden obzvlášť zdařilý právě vydává pod názvem Virtually americká firma Cuneiform) jasně ukazují, jak excelentním a osobitým bubeníkem tehdy Wyatt byl, ač o sobě v tomto směru neměl valné mínění. V květnu '71 byl dokonce vyhlášen hráčem měsíce v britském magazínu Beat Instrumental.

Hektické období kulminovalo: v prosinci '70 se Robert přidal k proměnlivému freejazzovému tělesu Symbiosis tenorsaxofonisty Garyho Winda, jehož potkal v Centipede (dalšími hráči byli průběžně Tippett, Nick Evans, Mongezi Feza, Roy Babbington a další) a v únoru příštího roku natočil s Daevidem Allenem jeho LP Banana Moon.

Po mimořádně úspěšném americkém turné Soft Machine v červenci Wyatt skupinu konečně opustil. Příčinou byly přetrvávající rozdílné představy o dalším hudebním směřování.

NA VLASTNÍCH NOHOU (A KOLECH)

V srpnu se Wyatt potkal s australským pianistou Davem MacRaem, kterého shledal ideálním pro založení nové kapely. Jeho studiové závazky to však zatím znemožnily a tak se členy Matching Mole (šlo o hříčku s francouzským překladem jména Soft Machine) na podzim '71 stali Dave Sinclair, kytarista Phil Miller a basista Bill MacCormick. Zatímco skupina nacvičovala repertoár pro chystané album, kapelník ještě do konce roku příležitostně koncertoval se Symbiosis, Centipede či dalšími přáteli. Nedlouhá existence Matching Mole už byla v této rubrice také popsána (R&P 11/97), takže jen pro doplnění: Na debutu Matching Mole, navzdory očekávání obsahujícím minimum předem připravených a zpívaných písní, si Wyatt, podobně jako na své sólové desce, zaexperimentoval s klávesami, především s mellotronem. Název i obal (se stylizovanou kresbou kapely, inspirovanou pohlednicí z Čínské lidové republiky) dvojky Little Red Record poprvé upozorňují na Wyattovo pozdější politické zaměření. Po rozpadu Matching Mole na podzim '72 si Robert párkrát zahrál s klávesistou Francisem Monkmanem z Curved Air a pohostinsky vystoupil s novou kapelou Phila Millera Hatfield And The North. První dva měsíce nového roku strávil se svou přítelkyní, výtvarnicí Alfredou Benge v Itálii a po návratu začal na MacCormickovo naléhání uvažovat o sestavení nových Matching Mole, v nichž měli figurovat ještě Monkman a Windo. Dřív se však rozjel víceméně improvizační projekt WMWM s Windem, MacRaem a kontrabasistou Ronem Mathewsonem.

1. června, těsně před zahájením zkoušek nových Matching Mole, došlo k osudnému úrazu, když Robert při jednom večírku vypadl v opilosti z okna ve čtvrtém patře. Byla z toho zlomená noha a fraktura obratle s následkem ochrnutí spodní část těla, pro bubeníka samozřejmě tragédie. Wyatt ale naštěstí neztratil chuť do života ani hudby. „Z bubeníka, který trochu zpívá, jsem se stal zpěvákem, který trochu bubnuje“, okomentoval to později. Ještě před propuštěním z nemocnice v listopadu '73 nazpíval píseň Calyx na debut Hatfield And The North. Staří přátelé Pink Floyd a Soft Machine uspořádali dva koncerty v londýnském divadle Rainbow, jejichž výtěžek pomohl Robertovu znovuzapojení do života.

V únoru a březnu '74 pak vzniklo v produkci bubeníka Pink Floyd Nicka Masona Wyattovo životní dílo, album Rock Bottom. Hrají na něm hlavně basisté Hugh Hopper a Richard Sinclair a bubeník Laurie Allan, svou troškou přispěli i Mongezi Feza, Gary Windo, Mike Oldfield (kytara), Fred Frith (viola), Ivor Cutler (recitace) a Alfreda Benge (hlas). Wyatt sám kromě zpěvu hraje na perkuse, klávesy, kytaru, vinné sklenky a další drobnosti. Deska odráží nejen v abstarktních, pocitových textech jeho silný vztah k Alfredě Benge, s níž se přesně v den vydání desky, tedy 26. července 1974 oženil. „Alfie měla skutečný vliv přímo na hudbu samotnou, protože byla nespokojena s mými staršími věcmi, připadaly jí příliš zhuštěné, přeplněné. Řekla mi: 'Proč si tam nenecháš trochu víc prostoru, nech tomu volnější průběh, jako Van Morrison a tihle lidi'. A to byl pro mě velmi dobrý podnět.“

V květnu Robert párkrát vystoupil s Hatfield And The North (pro tuto příležitost napsal k původně bezeslovné skladbě Calyx text), jako perkusista si zahrál na koncertě Kevina Ayerse s přáteli v divadle Rainbow (viz album June 1, 1974), se Slapp Happy v pořadu BBC Top Gear a společně s Windem na koncertní poctě zesnulému Malu Deanovi. V srpnu natočil na podnět Simona Drapera z Virgin singl s coververzí skladby Monkees I'm A Believer, který se dostal do britské Top 30. 8. září se konal v Londýnském divadle Drury Lane velkolepý koncert na oslavu Robertova návratu na scénu, při němž doprovodnou kapelu vytvořila rozšířená sestava z Rock Bottom. O dva dny později zahrál Wyatt sólově v BBC Top Gear (zachyceno na EP Peel Sessions), velký ohlas mělo i jeho vystoupení v televizním programu Top Of The Pops s písní I'm A Believer, v níž ho doprovázeli Frith, MacRae, Mason, Richard Sinclair a Andy Summers. V září Robert ještě stihl natočit perkuse a doprovodné vokály na debut Briana Ena Taking Tiger Mountain (By Strategy) (Island 1975). V anketě Melody Makeru za rok 1974 skončil na druhém místě v kategorii britských i mezinárodních zpěváků a ve Francii dostalo LP Rock Bottom cenu Grand Prix Charles Cros jako rockové album roku - čtyřiasedmdesátý byl tedy pro Wyatta, nanávratně upoutaného na kolečkové křeslo, rokem triumfů.

V maximálním nasazení pokračoval Robert i v dalším roce. V lednu nazpíval skladbu Frontera na sólový debut kytaristy Phila Manzanery Diamond Head (Island 1975) a v březnu začal natáčet své další album Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard. Pojal ho jako částečný návrat ke svým jazzovým kořenům, pročež se tu objevil například Song For Che jeho favorita Charlieho Hadena nebo Sonia Mongeziho Fezy v jihoafrickém stylu kwela. Druhá strana desky obsahuje několik vokálních duetů s pianem Freda Fritha, pocházejících z jejich rozsáhlejšího společného projektu, bohužel však nerealizovaného. Na nahrávání se vedle většiny hudebníků z předchozího alba podíleli ještě Bill MacCormick, Brian Eno, basista John Greaves a saxofonista Nisar Ahmad Khan. Přestože jde opět o excelentní dílo, nebyl Wyatt s výsledkem tak docela spokojen - jeho původní představy totiž nebyly pro finanční náročnost studiové práce zcela naplněny a tak 'Ruth' znamenala na dlouhou dobu konec jeho sólových aktivit. Společné koncerty s Frithovou kapelou Henry Cow v květnu a červnu (zachyceno na dvojalbu Henry Cow Concerts, Virgin 1976) pak byly na mnoho let posledním Robertovým vystoupením na pódiu.

Na podzim ho oslovili Michael Mantler a Carla Bley, aby nazpíval Mantlerovo album The Hapless Child (Watt 1976), založené na příbězích spisovatele Edwarda Goreye. „Robert má originální hlas, poznáte ho v každé notě, kterou zazpívá a to je velmi vzácné. A taky umí intonovat“, zdůvodnila tuto volbu Carla Bley. Po kratším váhání Wyatt nabídku přijal, protože Bleyová, Mantler i další hudebnící na desce (Steve Swallow, Jack DeJohnette) patřili k jeho dlouholetým favoritům. Výsledek je pozoruhodný a znamenal začátek dodnes trvající spolupráce, jejímž dalším plodem bylo následujícího roku LP Silence (na němž zpívá ještě Kevin Coyne). Mezitím však zemřel v jedné londýnské nemocnici následkem nedostatečné péče Mongezi Feza. Wyatt je dodnes přesvědčen, že by k tomu nedošlo, kdyby byl Mongezi bílý. Smrt přítele jen uspíšila jeho příklon k levicové a protirasistické politice.

HUDEBNÍK? POLITIK? UMĚLEC!

Začátkem šestasedmdesátého ještě Wyatt hostoval na albech Garyho Winda (Steam Radio Tapes, nevydáno), Jana Steelea a Johna Cage (Voices

And Instruments, Obscure 1976) a projektu General Strike (Will Of The People, nedokončeno), v letech 1977 a 1978 už to byly jen drobnosti na Enových deskách Before And After Science (Island 1977) a Ambient 1: Music For Airports (EG 1979). Rok 1978 byl ve znamení Robertova zájmu o vysílání krátkovlnných rádií a filmovou produkci východní Evropy i třetího světa, o rok později se stal členem britské komunistické strany.

Díky Carle Bley se tehdy Wyatt naštěstí vrátil také k soustavnější práci na hudebním poli. Nazpíval vynikající album Nick Mason's Fictitious Sports (Harvest 1981), které je autorskou záležitostí Bleyové, hraje na něm její kapela (včetně Garyho Winda) a producent Nick Mason, pod jehož jménem deska vyšla, tu pouze bubnuje. Během svých politických aktivit se Robert seznámil se šéfem firmy Rough Trade, který mu nabídl možnost dalšího nahrávání. Myslel si tehdy, že není schopen pro sebe napsat dost kvalitních písní, ale pak mu došlo, že „Elvis a Sinatra nenapsali v životě jedinou píseň, tak proč bych si s tím měl dělat hlavu?" Od ledna 1980 začal za pomoci rozličných hudebníků s natáčením singlů s písněmi, které ho zaujaly z hudebních i politických důvodů: kubánskými Arauco a Caimanera (původně neoficiální kubánská hymna Guantanamera), At Last I Am Free od pop kapely Chic, Stalin Wasn't Stallin (americký patriotický song z období druhé světové války) a tak dále. Skladby ze čtyř singlů s dalšími dvěma písněmi pak vyšly v březnu '82 na LP Nothing Can Stop Us. Pozdější reedice obsahují navíc ještě nádhernou skladbu Shipbuilding, kterou pro Wyatta napsal Elvis Costello.

Od roku 1980 začaly zase houstnout vokální i instrumentální příspěvky na albech kolegů: Kevina Coynea (Sanity Stomp), dívčí kapely Raincoats (Odyshape), s níž si koncem jedenaosmdesátého opět zazpíval živě, pozdějšího člena Everything But The Girl Bena Watta (Summer Into Winter) a dalších. EP The Animals Film, soundtrack k filmu Victora Schonfelda o právech zvířat, je čistě Wyattovou prací, stejně jako další EP s převzatými skladbami (mj. Gabrielův Biko) Work In Progress. Na podzim 1984 nazpíval Wyatt i dvě písně na EP The Last Nightingale, zosnované Chrisem Cutlerem na podporu stávky britských horníků a v létě následujícího roku konečně dodělal další album s původním materiálem, nazvané Old Rottenhat. V převážně pomalých, smutných písních se doprovází jen na klávesy a perkuse.

V druhé půli osmdesátých let postupně polevovaly Wyattovy politické aktivity, až nakonec rozčarován vystoupil z komunistické strany. Z jeho tehdejších prací je nejpodstatnější pěvecká účast na albech Letters Home (ReR 1986) souboru News From Babel a Many Have No Speech (Watt 1988) Michaela Mantlera. Roku 1991 se dočkali Robertovi stále velmi početní obdivovatelé jeho šestého alba Dondestan, pokračujícího v linii předchozí desky, o rok později přibylo ještě doma natočené mini CD A Short Break. V posledních letech je Wyattův hlas k zaslechnutí na albu britské dvojice Ultramarine United Kingdoms (Blanco Y Negro 1993), na excelentní kolekci Johna Greavese Songs (recenze v R&P 11/97) a v jedné skladbě nového Mantlerova projektu School Of Understanding (ECM 1997). A samozřejmě na nejnovějším albu Shleep, jehož recenzi najdete v tomto čísle.

Diskografie:

The End Of An Ear (CBS 1970)
Rock Bottom (Virgin 1974)
Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard (Virgin 1975)
Nothing Can Stop Us (Rough Trade 1982)
The Animals Film (EP, Rough Trade 1984)
Work In Progress (EP, Rough Trade 1984)
Old Rottenhat (Rough Trade 1985)
The Peel Sessions (EP, Strange Fruit 1987)
Dondestan (Rough Trade 1991)
A Short Break (mini CD, Voiceprint 1992)
Mid-Eighties (Rough Trade 1993, obsahuje EP Work In Progress, LP Old Rottenhat a několik dalších nahrávek)
Going Back A Bit: A Little History Of Robert Wyatt (2 CD Virgin 1994, kompilace, obsahující několik raritních a nevydaných nahrávek)
Flotsam Jetsam (Rough Trade 1994, raritní a dříve nevydané nahrávky)
Shleep (Hannibal 1997) ◆

Milos Latislav

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Rock Bottom, al habla con la directora María Trenor - Ruta 66 - 19 diciembre, 2024

Rock Bottom, al habla con la directora María Trenor

María Trénor está en boca de todo amante de la música y de las películas de animación gracias a Rock Bottom, película recién estrenada que está cosechando magnificas criticas y acaba de ser nominada a los Premios Goya.

Es la primera pieza larga de cine de animación para María Trenor, licenciada en Bellas Artes por la Facultad de San Carlos de la U.P.V. de Valencia. ¿Con qué la lavaré?, en 2003, consiguió quince premios de diferentes festivales nacionales e internacionales; desde el Festival de Berlín al Festival de Cine Independiente de Lisboa, pasando por Cinema Jove, Animadrid, Medina del Campo, etc. La película también transitó por festivales como Sundance, Festival de Cine de Guadalajara-México o Versión Española, y se programó en varios de los Institutos Cervantes que hay repartidos por el mundo.

Con el corto de animación Exlibris, de 2009, fue nominada a los Premios Goya y obtuvo el Trofeo Caja Madrid a la mejor Dirección Artística en ALCINE 2010. A ese premio le siguió otro, el TELSON a la película española con los mejores efectos audiovisuales en la Semana de Cine Experimental de Madrid dirigida por José Luís Borau.

Como os hemos comentado antes, ahora ha estrenado Rock Bottom, película de animación sobre ese músico tan extraordinario que es Robert Wyatt. Rock Bottom es también el título de una de las obras maestras de Robert. Entrevisté a María en relación a todo esto y más. Que disfruten la charla.

Una película de animaciónpara adultos sobre Robert Wyatt suena a ejercicio muy arriesgado.

(Foto: Estrella Jover)

¿Por qué Robert Wyatt?

Primero, su valor como músico es indiscutible. Wyatt ha sido una figura clave en la música desde los años 60, comenzando con su trabajo más notable con el grupo Soft Machine y años más tarde desarrollando una carrera en solitario que ha influido a innumerables artistas. Su estilo único, que combina el rock, el jazz y la música experimental, ha dejado una huella profunda en la escena musical.

En segundo lugar, su historia personal es igualmente inspiradora. Después de un trágico accidente que lo dejó en silla de ruedas, Wyatt continuó creando música transformando su adversidad en arte. Su resiliencia y su capacidad para reinventarse son lecciones de superación. Porque Robert Wyatt no solo es un músico influyente, sino también un ser humano con una historia conmovedora. Su vida y obra ofrecen un buen material para hacer una película. ¿Por qué de animación? Porque la animación no tiene límites de representación y es el medio perfecto para representar la psicodelia de aquella época y transformar las imágenes sonoras en visuales.

¿Cómo fue conocerlo en persona y cómo reaccionó a tu propuesta?

Nunca sabes con lo que te vas a encontrar cuando se trata de un autor de culto, un genio. Te preguntas si será un ser inalcanzable subido a un pedestal. Pero, nada más lejos de la realidad. Robert Wyatt es un ser humano maravilloso, tierno, cercano y generoso. Él y su mujer Alfreda Benge nos dieron una cálida bienvenida en su casa de Louth. Mientras le hacían una entrevista, le hice un retrato y luego me atreví a cantarles mientras nos comíamos una ensaimada que les trajimos de Mallorca. En ese ambiente tan cercano me atreví a hacerle la propuesta de la película a lo que él respondió enseguida que sí. Una vez de vuelta a España, le mandé varias ilustraciones que representaban escenas de la película y le gustaron mucho.

Alfreda Benge, la esposa de Wyatt, es ilustradora. ¿Opinó sobre tu trabajo? ¿Aportó ideas o te dio consejos? ¿Te dejó carta blanca?

Alfreda Benge es una fantástica artista visual que ha ilustrado varias portadas de los discos de Robert Wyatt. El correo electrónico al que envié los bocetos es de ambos, así que también tuve la bendición de Alfreda. No obstante, tuve carta blanca para proceder con libertad.

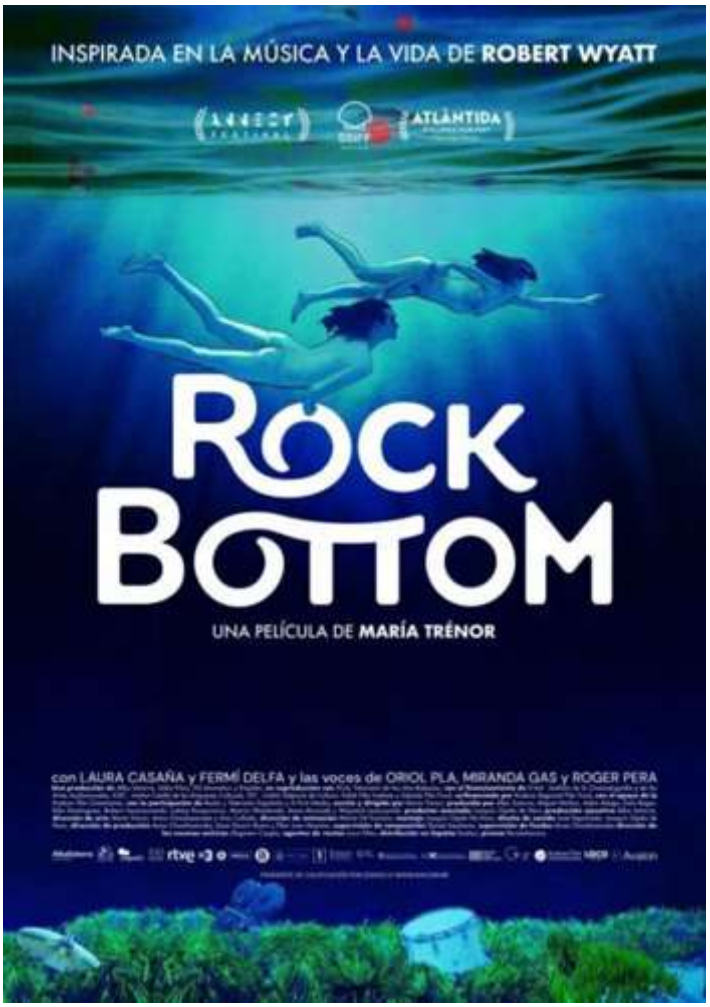
La película ha tenido una acogida muy buena, tanto dentro como fuera de nuestras fronteras. ¿Te esperabas tantos elogios de la prensa y de los fans de Wyatt?

Cuando acabas una película y estás inmersa en ella durante tanto tiempo, creo que pierdes perspectiva y necesitas tiempo y reposo para juzgarla desde fuera, desde una posición más objetiva. Sabía que nos habíamos dejado la piel haciendo esta película pero no ha habido mayor sorpresa y recompensa que la respuesta tanto de la prensa como de los fans de Robert Wyatt. Ha sido emocionante ver llorar a fans viendo la película y leer el feedback de la prensa valorando positivamente una película arriesgada y diferente.

Rock Bottom - Trailer

¿Robert y Alfreda han podido ver la película?

Desafortunadamente, no. Hemos querido ir a Inglaterra para compartir ese momento con ellos pero no ha sido posible porque la salud de ambos no es buena. Están muy delicados y ya no reciben visitas. Me da mucha pena pero entiendo que en esas condiciones prefieran mantener su intimidad. Les hemos enviado un DVD. A ver si tienen la oportunidad de verla y nosotros de saber qué les ha parecido.



¿Cuál es la diferencia de este proyecto respecto a ¿Con qué la lavaré? y Exlibris?

Del cortometraje al largometraje hay mucha diferencia. Significa pasar de trabajar con 4 ó 5 personas de tu confianza a un equipo con cientos de personas. El proceso de producción y el presupuesto en juego no tienen nada que ver. Es un salto abismal en todos los sentidos. Muchas veces da vértigo. Pero, ver tu película acabada y que se pueda ver en cines comerciales es muy gratificante. No obstante, considero a los directores de cortometrajes tan artistas y creativos como los directores de largos.

¿Han sido influencia para ti películas como Planeta Salvaje de René Laloux en donde la música de Alain Goraguer jugaba un enorme papel? ¿O las ilustraciones de Mati Klarwein o el mismo Marc Chagall?

La cinta de René Laloux ha sido una referencia y ya me encantaría que Rock Bottom se convirtiera en una película de culto como Planeta Salvaje. La banda sonora de Goraguer complementa perfectamente la narrativa visual, utilizando una mezcla de sonidos orquestales y elementos electrónicos que refuerzan la sensación de extrañeza de la película. La música siempre ayuda a establecer el tono emocional de las escenas.

En cuanto al artista plástico Mati Klarwein, conocido por su estilo único que fusiona elementos del surrealismo, el simbolismo y la cultura pop, es una influencia fundamental, ya que representa la época en la que se sitúa Rock Bottom y él mismo formó parte ese importante círculo artístico en Deiá (Mallorca) y fue el creador de muchas de las portadas de vinilos tan conocidos como el Abraxas de Santana.

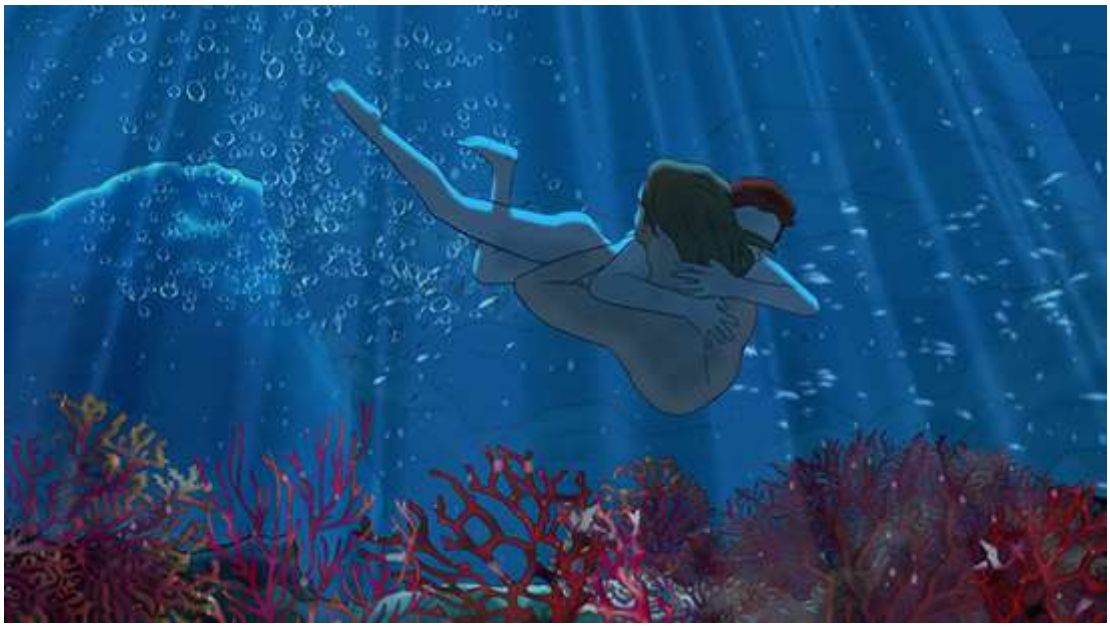
Estoy muy emocionada porque en breve voy a conocer personalmente a su hija Seraphine, que ha sabido de la película y también quiere conocernos. Por último, aunque no haya sido consciente, es probable que Marc Chagall me haya influenciado. Procedo del mundo de las Bellas Artes más que del audiovisual y la mayoría de mis referencias son pictóricas.

¿Qué discos han influenciado en tu visión del mundo?

Mi madre es muy cinéfila y cuando yo era pequeña en mi casa siempre había discos de bandas sonoras de películas musicales como West Side Story u Oliver Twist. Asimismo, había muchos discos de música clásica. La mayoría de los conciertos a los que he asistido son de música clásica, música antigua (barroca y renacentista), música contemporánea y electroacústica. Considero que los sonidos de los objetos también son música. De ahí que me atraiga tanto la parte experimental de la música de Rock Bottom.

Como es lógico, los discos que más me han influenciado son El Cancionero del Duc de Calabria del siglo XVI, una música muy potente que ha atravesado los siglos y que fue el elemento fundamental de mi primer cortometraje ¿Con Qué La Lavaré? y, por supuesto, Rock Bottom, motivo principal de mi primer largometraje.

¿Tienes en mente volver a crear algo similar con algún otro artista de sensibilidad tan profunda como la de Robert Wyatt?



Hay biografías de músicos que merecen ser llevadas a la pantalla, como la de Nick Drake, que ya me sugirió usted muy acertadamente en otra entrevista.

¿Te gustaría diseñar alguna portada para un disco?

La verdad es que me encantaría que me lo propusieran y me parecería divertido ilustrar cualquier estilo musical. La portada es la primera impresión que los oyentes tienen del álbum, así que sería todo un reto crear algo que capture la atención y transmita el espíritu que hay detrás de la música.

La película también describe la importancia de la mujer en el papel no solo de musa o de simple pareja del artista, sino que Alfreda tiene el mismo protagonismo que Robert o quizás más.

Al principio, el protagonista masculino tenía mucha más importancia y fue Alba Sotorra, la productora, la que sugirió que equilibráramos los roles de los dos en la película y, realmente, la historia mejoró. La película refleja la falacia de la revolución sexual de la mujer en la era hippie, donde las mujeres seguían realizando las tareas del hogar en las comunas, tal y como lo habían hecho sus madres y abuelas en sus casas. Con respecto a la historia concreta de Robert Wyatt y Alfreda Benge, ellos mismos se consideran una sola persona. Creo que no es fácil encontrar una historia de amor tan potente como la suya.

¿Podrías plantearte publicar la historia en formato comic? Creo que muchos amantes de la música también lo son de los comics y tendría buena acogida.

Me encantaría sacar un cómic de la película, creo que funcionaría muy bien. A ver si conseguimos animar a la productora Domino Records para que saque una reedición especial del disco con el cómic. Sería un recuerdo precioso del 50 aniversario del disco.

Me ha encantado como muestras la permisividad de las fuerzas del orden con los extranjeros en una época en donde el español de a pie prácticamente solo tenía derecho a callarse.

(Hay que recordar que Robert ha vivido en España en diferentes etapas de su vida)

Durante los años de la dictadura, Franco quería dar una imagen de país abierto y tolerante para atraer el turismo extranjero, de ahí la diferencia de trato que tenían las fuerzas del orden entre los nacionales con respecto a los foráneos del norte.

La película es prácticamente un viaje lisérgico y hace hincapié en la utilización de las drogas como algo rutinario. ¿Crees que el empleo de sustancias alucinógenas ayudaron a la creación de muchas obras de arte, ya sean del cine, de la música o de la pintura? ¿Y si el precio que pagaron muchos de ellos valió la pena?

El uso de drogas y alcohol entre artistas es un tema complejo que ha sido objeto de debate durante décadas. Muchos artistas, desde músicos hasta pintores y escritores, han explorado el uso de sustancias como una forma de inspiración, liberación creativa o escape de la presión que conlleva la vida pública y la búsqueda de la perfección en su arte. En mi caso, no me hace falta. Me coloco directamente escuchando la música de Rock Bottom.

Rock Bottom* significa estar "al nivel más bajo posible". ¿Lo que sucedió con el disco fue un renacer para Robert Wyatt? ¿Su vida se estabilizó para bien tanto sentimentalmente como artísticamente?

(Recordemos que Robert quedó parapléjico antes de la grabación del disco, tras una caída accidental desde una ventana)

Rock Bottom significa, efectivamente, tocar fondo. Sin embargo, el mismo Robert Wyatt reconoce que perder las piernas (teniendo en cuenta que él las necesitaba para tocar la batería) le hizo tener otro tipo de libertad.

Yo creo que el accidente supuso un punto de inflexión brutal en su vida, llevándolo a reinventarse como artista y a profundizar en su expresión musical. A pesar de todas las dificultades, logró convertir su experiencia en la obra maestra que es Rock Bottom.

Texto: Laurent Berger

Fotos cedidas por María Trénor

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt. Maestro de maestros - Heraldo de Aragon - 1 de Junio de 2024

HERALDO
DE ARAGON

Junts dice tras la ley de amnistía que dejará caer a Sánchez si no hace presidente a Puigdemont

Trump acusa a la Casa Blanca de organizar el juicio: «Vivimos en un Estado fascista»

0-2 España da otro paso adelante y gana con claridad a Dinamarca

Irene Vallejo: «Aragón es un territorio de mestizaje y frontera»

ROBERT WYATT MAESTRO DE MAESTROS

Se nos va. Es una pena pero se nos va. Robert Wyatt (Bristol, 1945) ya no reconoce a la gente que le cuida y es incapaz de mantener una conversación. A ver si consigo mantener su atención cinco minutos. Este hombre con otros majaretas fue el creador de lo se dio en llamar Canterbury Sound, un disparate colorido, mezcla de jazz pop y folk con otras piezas como Kevin Ayers o Daevid Allen para que los encerraran a todos. Pero eran buenos, créame y su música también.

Se montó en una locura sonora con los mencionados que se llamó Soft Machine y maravilló a parte de la raza humana, preferentemente sajona. El nombre del grupo debía traducirse por «Máquina blanda» y ésta no era otra cosa que el cuerpo humano.

Wyatt tocaba (y muy bien) la batería. Se apañaba con los teclados y cantaba. Esa voz mezcla de niño enfadado y abuelete bonachón. La vida misma reunida en sus vibratos. Distinto pero molón. A los 28 vio que sus Soft Machine ya no estaban por la labor y lo echaron del grupo. Tras una ingesta descomunal del alcohol en una fiesta de músicos de la época se tiró por la ventana. Cuatro pisos. Espalda rota. Parálisis permanente de sus piernas. Pero salió vivo, no es poco.

Robert Wyatt tiene en su haber uno de los discos más estremecedores de la historia de la música. Se llama 'Rock Bottom' (1974) y la mayor parte de su material se compuso o arregló en su silla de ruedas con la ayuda de Alfie, su compañera eterna.

ARS SONORA / JUANJO BLASCO 'PANAMÁ'

Robert Wyatt. Maestro de maestros

Se nos va. Es una pena pero se nos va. Robert Wyatt (Bristol, 1945) ya no reconoce a la gente que le cuida y es incapaz de mantener una conversación. A ver si conmigo mantener su atención cinco minutos. Este hombre con otros majaretas fue el creador de lo se dio en llamar Canterbury Sound, un disparate colorido, mezcla de jazz pop y folk con otras piezas como Kevin Ayers o Daevid Allen para que los encerraran a todos. Pero eran buenos, créame y su música también.

Se montó en una locura sonora con los mencionados que se llamó Soft Machine y maravilló a parte de la raza humana, preferentemente sajona. El nombre del grupo debía traducirse por «Máquina blanda» y ésta no era otra cosa que el cuerpo humano.

Wyatt tocaba (y muy bien) la batería. Se apañaba con los teclados y cantaba. Esa voz mezcla de niño enfadado y abuelete bonachón. La vida misma reunida en sus vibratos. Distinto pero molón. A los 28 vio que sus Soft Machine ya no estaban por la labor y lo echaron del grupo. Tras una ingesta descomunal del alcohol en una fiesta de músicos de la época se tiró por la ventana. Cuatro pisos. Espalda rota. Parálisis permanente de sus piernas. Pero salió vivo, no es poco.

Robert Wyatt.

Robert Wyatt tiene en su haber uno de los discos más estremecedores de la historia de la música. Se llama 'Rock Bottom' (1974) y la mayor parte de su material se compuso o arregló en su silla de ruedas con la ayuda de Alfie, su compañera eterna. El disco que ahora se reedita en diferentes formatos es de una belleza estremecedora. Una joya. Cuidadito que aquí hay poca broma. Como Wyatt narra su proceso de recuperación y superación estremece. Esa voz de niño/abuelo doliente que no se queja, que asume que su dolor será eterno y se burla de sí mismo comparándose con Caperucita Roja en el disco o usando de coro la maquina de la respiración ('Alibi') o esa música tremebunda que anticipa en mucho la escena de la misa masónica de 'Eyes wide shout' del maestro Kubrick en su epílogo. Lo dicho, una barbaridad.

El maestro ha editado 15 discos más, recomendables todos. Dese el gusto de escuchar 'Dondestan' o 'Nothing can stop us' con su versión de 'Guantanamera' (aquí 'Caimanera') bella hasta la lágrima. Pero, en fin, Robert Wyatt se nos va. La Soft Machine , la máquina blanda, su cuerpo, no resiste más. Su música nunca fue fàcil pero aproveche y acérquese a este fenómeno de la naturaleza. Es oírlo para creerlo. Una voz y composición de otro mundo.

El disco que ahora se reedita en diferentes formatos es de una belleza estremecedora. Una joya. Cuidadito que aquí hay poca broma. Como Wyatt narra su proceso de recuperación y superación estremece. Esa voz de niño/abuelo doliente que no se queja, que asume que su dolor será eterno y se burla de sí mismo comparándose con Caperucita Roja en el disco o usando de coro la maquina de la respiración 'Alibi') o esa música tremebunda que anticipa en mucho la escena de la misa masónica de 'Eyes wide shout' del maestro Kubrick en su epílogo. Lo dicho, una barbaridad.

El maestro ha editado 15 discos más, recomendables todos. Dese el gusto de escuchar 'Dondestan' o 'Nothing can stop us' con su versión de 'Guantanamera' (aquí 'Caimanera') bella hasta la lágrima. Pero, en fin, Robert Wyatt se nos va. La Soft Machine , la máquina blanda, su cuerpo, no resiste más. Su música nunca fue fàcil pero aproveche y acérquese a este fenómeno de la naturaleza. Es oírlo para creerlo. Una voz y composición de otro mundo.

Juanjo Blasco 'Panama'

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Entrevista A María Trenor - rockthebestmusic.com - 14/11/2022

ENTREVISTA A MARÍA TRENOR

Hay un gran número de delicatessen que nos rodean y que pasan por nuestra vera sin poder accederse a ellas por justamente esa falta de criterio y de difusión. Pocas son las revistas que realmente sorprenden cada mes con su contenido, mojándose y arriesgando al comunicar lo que necesita ser comunicado…The Wire, Wax Poetics, Pitchfork, The Quietus apuestan por divulgar muchos palos, extendiendo la cultura ya sea heavy, Jazz, Rap, cine, etc…

Por ello esta entrevista es en mi opinión merecedora de nuestra atención; es lo que me gustaría leer en algún medio. Una persona que se implica en crear algo sobre un artista que prácticamente está en el olvido para muchos —sobre todo en este país— que ha sido influencia de cientos de grupos, desde Bjork a Elbow. Un hombre que es más grande que muchos que van pavoneándose de su trayectoria y que el al contrario, siempre buscó la humildad y la discreción.

Este proyecto —que ha sido realizado por una española, más concretamente una valenciana— seguramente tendrá mucha más repercusión en el extranjero que aquí.

María Trenor es Licenciada en Bellas Artes por la Facultad de San Carlos de la U.P.V. de Valencia. Su primera pieza de cine de animación como directora fun, "Con qué lavaré" en 2003, con el que consiguió quince premios de diferentes festivales nacionales e internacionales, desde el Festival de Berlín, al Festival de Cine Independiente de Lisboa, pasando por, Cinema Jove, Animadrid, Medina del Campo, etc. También participa en los festivales como Sundance, Festival de Cine de Guadalajara-México, Versión Española y se programa en varios de los Institutos Cervantes repartidos por el mundo.

Con Exlibris que lanza en 2009 es nominada a los 25 Premios Goya y obtiene el Trofeo Caja Madrid a la mejor Dirección Artística en ALCINE 2010, el premio TELSON a la película española con los mejores efectos audiovisuales en la Semana de Cine Experimental de Madrid dirigida por José Luís Borau, y destaca por su participación en ANIMADRID 2010 entre 56 cortos internacionales y 8 nacionales.

Becada por la AECID (Agencia española de cooperación y desarrollo del Ministerio de Asuntos Exteriores) desarrolla el proyecto cinematográfico de sensibilización contra la violencia de género ¿Dónde estabas tú? en España, Filipinas y Mozambique.

María Trenor ahora mismo prepara su próximo y más ambicioso proyecto, un largometraje musical de animación titulado "Rock Bottom", sobre la figura del músico británico Robert Wyatt. En inglés, Rock Bottom, hace referencia a esa profundidad abisal del estado de ánimo en la que no penetra luz alguna.

Robert Wyatt-Ellidge, batería, cantante y compositor británico, es uno de los músicos más importantes de la escena musical de Canterbury como baterista de Soft Machine y Matching Mole. Tras un accidente que le dejó postrado en una silla de ruedas de por vida, su carrera se enfocó en crear una serie de discos que tuvieron y siguen teniendo una influencia mayor en gran cantidad de músicos que van desde Bjork a Tears for Fears pasando por David Sylvian o Radiohead.

Wyatt siempre estuvo abierto a participar con músicos de diferentes estilos, aunque sus discos son siempre piezas de orfebrería, donde se mezclan muchos matices únicos que resaltan con su particular tono de voz. Destacando su obra maestra "Rock Bottom" premiada con el galardón Charles Cros de l´Académie Française, es uno de los discos más importantes de la historia del rock.

Enfundado en una portada creada por su mujer Alfie Benge, que se ocupará de ilustrar todas sus portadas a partir de ese momento, ha compartido junto a ella una vida llena de amor, arte y dificultades hasta ahora en donde María Trenor se atreve con esta fresca animación a reavivar la importancia de este músico.

> Zoom

ENTREVISTA A MARÍA TRENOR.

Lo primero que tengo que decir es que Robert es un ángel, una de las personas más especiales y carismáticas que he conocido. No soy nada mitómana y no me impresiona la gente famosa, aunque respete y admire su trabajo. Pero Robert y Alfie son dos seres especiales que, a pesar de su experiencia vital, genialidad artística, cultura y capacidad intelectual, guardan una sensibilidad y frescura muy difíciles de encontrar hoy en día.

¿Por qué una película de animación sobre Robert Wyatt?

Rock Bottom es un largometraje musical de animación basado en las canciones del álbum e inspirada en la vida del músico británico de culto Robert Wyatt y su pareja la letrista y artista visual Alfreda Benge. No obstante, no se trata de una biopic. Rock Bottom dibuja algunas pinceladas sobre su vida, pero la pareja protagonista es mayoritariamente la recreación de una generación de artistas nordeuropeos que a finales de los años 60 y principios de los 70, buscaron el paraíso de la libertad en las costas de España (Ibiza, Mallorca, Cadaqués, Almería…) que, curiosamente, vivían en plena dictadura militar.

Rock Bottom se desarrolla casi en su totalidad en el entorno de Deià (Mallorca), y nos muestra una vida recluida en un mundo casi deshabitado, que quiere dar la espalda al primer boom turístico que experimentaba el resto de la isla, como una demostración de las nuevas formas vitales y heterodoxas que se experimentaron a principios de la década de los setenta, pasado ya, el tiempo de las comunas hippys.

Vivían casi de la providencia y querían sentirse en completa conexión con la naturaleza, sin horarios, sin prisas, tranquilos, viendo abrirse y cerrarse las flores cada día, viendo las olas o disfrutando de la luna, para después plasmarlo en sus creaciones.

¿Por qué una película de animación?

Para mí, es la única manera de poder ilustrar la poesía y las sensaciones complejas y abstractas que uno siente al escuchar la música y las letras del álbum. La animación permite representar la fantasía, los sueños y las alucinaciones de una manera ilimitada. Hubo gente que me preguntó que por qué no hacía una biopic de Robert Wyatt y Alfreda Benge en "live action" de Rock Bottom, y seguramente no lo puedan entender hasta que escuchen el álbum.

¿Como surge la idea?

La idea surgió de una manera bastante casual, cuando acompañé en 2013 a unas amigas periodistas de Mallorca a realizar una entrevista a Wyatt a Inglaterra. Ya era fan del álbum Rock Bottom y había fantaseado con hacer una animación, pero lo que realmente me impulsó a querer hacer una película fue conocerlos en persona y quedar impresionada por su carisma y calidad humana.

¿Cómo fue conocerlo en persona y cómo reaccionó a su propuesta, a sus bocetos?

Conocerlo fue una de las experiencias más bonitas de los últimos años. Fueron tan abiertos y acogedores desde el principio que fue muy fácil conectar con ellos. Así que esto me facilitó mucho las cosas a la hora de sentirme lo suficientemente cómoda como para proponerle hacer una película basada en Rock Bottom; a lo que él respondió en seguida que, por supuesto, que le encantaba la idea.

Alfreda, siendo ilustradora igualmente, ¿cómo vio su trabajo? ¿aportó algunas ideas, consejos, o le dejo carta blanca?

Soy admiradora del trabajo artístico Alfreda Benge. Me parece genial tanto en su faceta como ilustradora como letrista. Creo que es una artista integral. En realidad, la gestación y desarrollo visual de la película es bastante reciente, y las circunstancias no han sido nada propicias para volvernos a ver. Teníamos planeado visitar a Robert y Alfie en Inglaterra con la productora de la película, Alba Sotorra. Por desgracia, entre la pandemia y que ambos han pasado por un proceso de salud muy delicado no ha sido posible. No obstante, he mantenido el contacto con Robert vía email y me consta que está entusiasmado con la idea de la película. Espero tener el placer de volvernos a encontrar presencialmente y mostrarles de primera mano cómo va la producción.

Ha ganado muchos premios anteriormente por sus trabajos. ¿Qué ha significado este proyecto a diferencia de "Con qué la lavaré" o "Exlibris", con el que obtuvo una nominación al Goya?

Este es mi primer largometraje, pero en mis cortometrajes anteriores siempre he construido visualmente partiendo de la música; como ha sido el caso de Rock Bottom. Para mí, el sonido supone más del 70% en importancia de una película. Procedo del mundo de las Bellas Artes, pero también tuve algo de formación musical (por desgracia, empecé tarde) y confieso que nada me ha llenado en mi vida tanto como cuando estudiaba música. Así que encuentro en el cine de animación el espacio perfecto donde se encuentran las Artes Visuales y la música. ¿Qué más puedo pedir?

He podido constatar en las redes sociales que muchos fans de Robert y/o de Soft Machine no tenían ni idea de esta película. ¿Se va a poder ver con facilidad en cine? ¿Va a tener el apoyo de alguna plataforma o poder comprarse en formato DVD? ¿Se va a sacar algún disco con la BSO?

Queremos estrenar la película en el 2024 coincidiendo con el 50 aniversario del álbum Rock Bottom. Estamos planeando una campaña junto con Domino Records para llegar a todos los fans de Robert Wyatt.

Esperamos estrenar en un festival de Clase A, como ha sido con mis anteriores películas. De esta forma, tendremos una buena plataforma para promocionar la película internacionalmente para llegar no solo a los fans de Robert Wyatt, sino a un público mucho más amplio. Luego seguiremos el recorrido por festivales internacionales.

En España estrenamos en cines y haremos campaña para los Goya. Estuve nominada con mi anterior corto, a ver si con el largo lo ganamos.

Sobre ventas a plataforma, a nivel nacional, de momento, por nuestra estrategia de financiación, estamos priorizando la televisión pública.

Lo de las ventas a televisiones y plataformas internacionales vendrá después. Si la película tiene éxito en festivales, seguro que las plataformas la querrán. ¡Crucemos los dedos!

¿Cómo cree que van a reaccionar los seguidores del que fuera el batería de Soft Machine?

Los fans de Robert Wyatt son a los que más me importa que les guste la película, no decepcionarlos y estar a la altura para ellos; después de Robert y Alfie.

¿Cómo le gustaría que vean su trabajo? ¿Bajo qué prisma?

Espero que gocen de nuevo el álbum con el valor añadido de los dibujos y la historia, que son el hilo conductor que entrelaza las canciones del álbum. Espero que disfruten con las imágenes y la historia que he imaginado escuchando Rock Bottom.

Sus dibujos son muy personales, con un estilo propio, algo que me encanta. Veo algo de ilustradores como Mati Klarwein. ¿Qué opina sobre el trabajo que desarrolló en tantas portadas míticas de la música?

Mati Klarwein marcó toda una estética en las portadas de la época y, sin duda, es una fuente de inspiración para la imagen visual de Rock Bottom.

¿Han sido influencia para usted películas como el "Planeta Salvaje" de René Laloux; en donde la música de Alain Goraguer jugaba un enorme papel?

Por supuesto. ¡Ya me gustaría que la película Rock Bottom se convirtiera en un filme de culto y ganara en Cannes, como "el "Planeta Salvaje"!

Todavía me asombra la originalidad y derroche de imaginación del diseño de los personajes y los escenarios. La música es fundamental para crear esa atmósfera fantástica, opresiva y surrealista. Con otra música hubiera sido algo totalmente diferente. Pero creo, si no me equivoco, que Alain Goraguer la compuso ex profeso para la película, y, en mi caso, tanto la historia como las imágenes parten de la música.

¿Cómo empezó en el mundo de la ilustración? Los dibujantes valencianos siempre han tenido un papel importante en España, como puede ser Paco Roca. ¿Han sido en algún momento referente en su trabajo o en su pasión por la ilustración? ¿Este último u otros artistas?

Guardo el dibujo con el que gané mi primer premio a los cuatro años en un concurso de un periódico regional, me gusta dibujar desde muy pequeña. España ha sido un referente en el mundo del cómic y, efectivamente, Paco Roca es un artista del que siempre se puede tomar como referente actual porque es extraordinario. En mi caso, me siento muy atraída por el cómic underground. Me gusta mucho Nazario y por supuesto, Robert Crumb y su discípulo Peter Bagge, Alison Bechdel y los ilustradores Tom de Finlandia y Jean Cocteau en su faceta como dibujante.

¿Qué protagonismo tiene en su vida personal la música, ahora y a lo largo de su vida?

Creo que te he respondido anteriormente: nada me ha llenado más que cuando estudiaba música.

¿Qué discos han influenciado su visión del mundo y sus trabajos?

Crecí cantando todas las bandas sonoras clásicas: Oliver Twist, West Side Story, Grease, etc. En la universidad iba a un club de Jazz y a muchos conciertos de música clásica, concretamente, me gustaba la música antigua (Tomás Luis de Victoria, Juan de la Enzina) y fue entonces cuando descubrí un CD de Jordi Savall "El cancionero del Duque de Calabria" que es música valenciana del Renacimiento, que contiene la bellísima pieza musical "Con qué la lavaré" que inspiró el cortometraje del mismo nombre que cambió mi vida profesional y artística.

Al mismo tiempo, descubrí la música electroacústica que me impulsó a realizar mi siguiente cortometraje "Exlibris".

Y, finalmente, conocí el álbum Rock Bottom a través de un amigo fan de la música de Robert Wyatt, que ha sido mi fuente de inspiración artística. No concibo de ninguna manera la creación sin la música.

Tras este trabajo, ¿tiene en mente volver a crear algo similar con algún otro artista de sensibilidad tan profunda como por ejemplo Nick Drake, Bill Fay, o Fred Neil por poner algunos ejemplos?

Adoro tanto la música como el personaje de Nick Drake y merecería un largometraje musical. ¡Me acabas de dar una idea!

¿Conoces la revisión de Rock Bottom por la North Sea Radio Orchestra junto a John Greaves y la cantante italiana Annie Barbazza?

Sí, la conozco. A raíz del proceso de investigación necesaria para la realización de la película Rock Bottom, he llegado a descubrimientos sorprendentes. Y esta adaptación orquestal me parece una propuesta muy interesante.

¿Conoces el trabajo en muchas portadas de discos del ilustrador belga Jean Michel Folon?

Es gracioso porque conocía la portada del disco de Keith Jarrett pero no sabía que era de Michel Folon, muchas gracias por dármelo a conocer. Resulta curioso que sus ilustraciones hayan sido utilizadas como portadas de discos porque me parece que, al igual que las pinturas de René Magritte, no tienen sonido. Desde Kandinsky pasando por el fotógrafo Koldo Chamorro que ha teorizado sobre la relación entre la imagen visual y el sonido; pero creo que soy especialmente sensible a ello.

¿Te gustaría diseñar alguna portada para un disco?

Por supuesto.

¿Y para qué artistas estarías dispuesta?

Cualquiera supondría un reto excitante; aunque no me guste su música.

Laurent Berger

>> L'interview sur le site de Rock The Best Music

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt, en búsqueda del 'cinturón rojo' - El Periodico - 22 agosto 2020

Robert Wyatt, en búsqueda del 'cinturón rojo'

elPeriódico

Jordi Bianciotto

'

El músico británico, miembro fundador del grupo Soft Machine, pasó dos inviernos de los años 80 en Castelldefels, en un apartamento frente a la playa Grabó un documental del programa 'Arsenal' (TV3), compuso temas para el álbum 'Dondestan' y disfrutó de la peña flamenca de Gavà y de Radio Tele-Taxi.

Bien mirado, puede haber un punto de confluencia entre las marejadas oníricas de las canciones de Robert Wyatt y el estado de trance que desprende el cante más jondo. Pero lo que de verdad fascinó del flamenco al músico inglés fue la expresión de periferia, obrerista, de resistencia antiglobalizadora, transmitida como valor familiar genuino en entornos como la peña de Gavà, que visitó en los años 80 durante sus dos estancias en Castelldefels.

¿Cómo fue a parar Wyatt, el cofundador del grupo del rock de vanguardia Soft Machine, a aquel apartamento de la calle Estrella de Mar, frente a la playa, que luce en la portada del álbum 'Dondestan' (1991)? No era tan extraño que eligiera estas latitudes: ya había pasado fragmentos de su juventud en Deià (Mallorca), donde se afincaron sus padres en los años 30. Su madre, Honor Wyatt, periodista, formó parte del círculo de Robert Graves, y sin buscarlo, el club de expatriados británicos acabaría derivando, en los 60, en la comunidad hippie de creadores pop como Daevid Allen, Kevin Ayers y el mismo Robert.

Una terraza con luz

En 1982, la esposa de Wyatt, Alfreda Benge, Alfie, tenía un trabajo como ilustradora de un libro infantil. "Estábamos en Inglaterra, era invierno, hacía frío y pensamos que estaría bien ir a un lugar con una luz bonita", contaba al autor de este artículo hace cerca de 20 años. Eligieron Castelldefels, donde pasaron los meses del frío pagando un alquiler más bajo de lo que les costaba la calefacción de su casa inglesa.

No sabían que iban detrás de sus pasos dos jóvenes conspiradores contraculturales, Manuel Huerga y Juan Bufill, tipos capaces de plantarse, un par de años antes, en su casa en Twickenham, tan solo para saludarlo, aprovechando una ruta en Interrail. Tenían oscuras intenciones. "Queríamos hacer un documental sobre él, pero no nos salían los números", explica Bufill, que se recuerda sin rodeos como un hombre "obsesionado" con el autor de 'Rock bottom', con quien tuvo ocasión de departir. "Me dijo que había venido aquí huyendo de los ingleses".

Tres años después, Bufill era guionista de 'Arsenal', en TV3, espacio que dirigía su amigo Huerga, y el proyecto del documental pudo por fin tomar forma. A finales de 1986, Robert y Alfie volvieron al apartamento, "en una planta baja, para no subir escaleras, con una terracita". Recordemos que Wyatt iba en silla de ruedas después de caer, en 1973, desde varios pisos de altura durante una fiesta loca regada con "un ponche muy rico". De esa segunda estancia surgió 'El viatge de Robert Wyatt', un episodio que dirigió Bufill, mientras Huerga daba la vuelta al mundo preparando 'Arsenal Atlas'. Una de las (muchas) delicias del programa, hoy inconcebiblemente fuera de circulación en el océano 'on line'. Incluyó una canción, 'Born again cretin', grabada en directo, a voz y piano, en el plató de Sant Joan Despí.

De Robert a Roberto

El matrimonio se quedó, de nuevo, algunos meses, cada vez más atraído por las pistas culturales y políticas que intuían a su alrededor. En particular, aquello que se conoció como 'cinturón rojo'. "En Inglaterra, su ideología iba a contracorriente, y bromeaba diciendo que aquí había más comunistas que en Polonia", recuerda Juan Bufill. Queriendo sumergirse en el mundo de la inmigración, disfrutó de la peña flamenca de Gavà, donde le daba a la botella de vino turbio gallego. Se convirtió en un habitual. "'Ha venido Roberto', decían cuando aparecía".

Wyatt quiso colaborar con un músico local y, aunque le atraía el flamenco, sus rigores le imponían respeto, y por eso fue a parar, vía Bufill, al heterodoxo dúo Claustrofobia, con quien grabó el tema 'Tu traición', que incluía un verso de Nicolás Guillén y terminaba clamando "contra el imperialismo y los medios de comunicación de masas". Pedro Burruezo, cantante del tándem, recuerda a un Wyatt "muy solidario con la inmigración" y le recuerda en el apartamento escuchando Radio Tele-Taxi. "La primera vez pensé que igual andaba despistado, pero luego me di cuenta de que no era ninguna casualidad". Burruezo fue un día a comer paella con él y se percató de que apartaba en el plato los calamares, el pollo... "Le pregunté y me dijo, en castellano: 'hay demasiados animalitos muertos'. Yo ahora soy vegetariano, pero entonces no lo era y aquel fue mi primer contacto con este mundo".

En algunas canciones de 'Dondestan' se observan reflejos de aquel segundo invierno en la playa. 'Sight of the wind', por ejemplo, con esas figuras de arena, moldeadas por el viento. Roberto y Alfie no han vuelto por aquí, pero Juan Bufill, su admirador más fiel, mantiene el hilo directo. "De vez en cuando, todavía nos mandamos algún correo".

>> The original article (Spanih version)
>> The original article (Catalan version)

Footage of the video "El viatge de Robert Wyatt"

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Así será 'Rock Bottom', la película de animación sobre el pionero de la música psicodélica Robert Wyatt - Valenciaplaza.com - 13/09/2018

valenciaplaza

culturplaza

Así será 'Rock Bottom', la película de animación sobre el pionero de la música psicodélica Robert Wyatt

El proyecto sobre la vida del ex Soft Machine se desarrollará en València con un presupuesto de unos 4 millones de euros

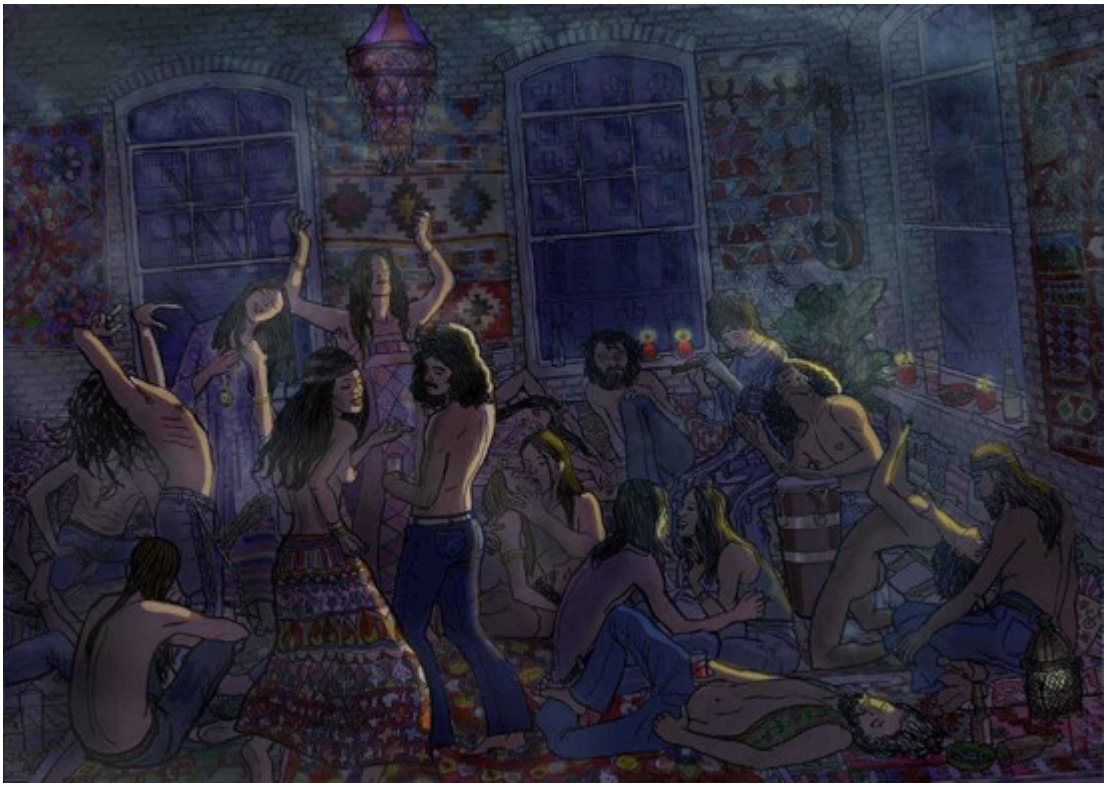
En inglés, la expresión rock bottom hace referencia a esa profundidad abisal del estado de ánimo en la que no penetra luz alguna. El sentimiento de degradación física y emocional extrema –lo que nosotros llamamos "tocar fondo"- dio título al disco más celebrado de Robert Wyatt. Un álbum que el músico británico comenzó a componer premonitoriamente meses antes de sufrir el accidente que partiría su vida en dos. La noche del 1 de junio de 1973, uno de los pioneros de la escena psicodélica británica –como vocalista y batería de Soft Machine, y posteriormente de Matching Mole- se precipitó como un saco de plomo desde el cuarto piso de un edificio donde se celebraba una fiesta para Pink Floyd. Robert Wyatt, que por entonces contaba 28 años de edad, se partió la espina dorsal y quedó parapléjico.

Los ocho meses que pasó en el hospital dieron mucho de sí. No sirvieron para apartar al músico de sus problemas con el alcohol y las drogas, pero paradójicamente pusieron los cimientos de una nueva y fructífera etapa en su trayectoria artística, en la que cambió la batería por el piano. "Asumí que hacer giras ya sería demasiado problemático. Me di cuenta de que a partir de ese momento tendría que centrarme en las grabaciones, y cantar más –señalaba el propio Wyatt en 1998-. Por otra parte, vi que podría escoger a músicos distintos para cada canción. Que tampoco tendría que utilizar los mismos instrumentos en todas mis composiciones. Perder las piernas me dio otro tipo de libertad". A principios de 1974, Robert Wyatt se trasladó a una casa de campo en Wiltshire cedida por la mecenas española Delfina Entrecanales, donde grabó esta obra maestra del art rock y la psicodelia.



Rock Bottom es un disco transformador, que bascula de forma indefinida desde las atmósferas sombrías hasta el éxtasis emocional. Es clásico y experimental. Complejo estructuralmente, pero fácil de navegar. Una gema extraña. Además de su mujer -la artista Alfreda Benge (Alfie), creadora de la portada del disco y de muchas de las letras de la trayectoria de Wyatt en solitario-, éste contó con la ayuda de músicos como Mike Oldfield, Fred Frith, Richard Sinclair (Caravan) y Hugh Hopper (ex Soft Machine), además del productor Nick Mason (más conocido como batería de Pink Floyd). Esta colección de cinco canciones –y menos de 40 minutos de duración- erigió a Wyatt como uno de los compositores más importantes de la música del siglo XX. Su larga nómina de admiradores confesos incluye artistas como Brian Eno, David Bowie, Björk o Thom Yorke de Radiohead.

La gestación de Rock Bottom y la historia de amor con Alfie -que se casó con él meses después del accidente y todavía continúa a su lado-, son el telón de fondo de una película de animación que llevará al cine por primera vez los años de juventud de Robert Wyatt. A pesar de estar basada en personajes y hechos reales, y de contar con el beneplácito del propio artista, ni el fondo ni la forma de este proyecto se asemejan al de un documental o un biopic al uso. Se trata más bien de una fabulación dotada de una narrativa no lineal y una estética experimental, que combina la artesanía y la gestualidad de la animación clásica en 2D con la tecnología del 3D.

El contexto histórico de la película –el momento de declive de la contracultura hippie a principios de los setenta- tendrá gran protagonismo. También la relación de Wyatt con España, concretamente con el pueblo mallorquín de Deià, donde se concentró parte de la comunidad hippie expulsada de Ibiza entre 1970 y 1971. El escritor Robert Graves (Yo, Claudio), que residió en esta localidad durante más de treinta años, acogió al músico durante una etapa fundamental en su vida.

El proyecto, que acaba de recibir una ayuda del Instituto Valenciano de Cinematografía, está liderado por la ilustradora y cineasta valenciana María Trenor (ganadora de 15 premios en festivales como la Berlinale con su cortometraje Con que la lavare?, y candidata a un Goya por el corto de animación ExLibris); el guionista y dibujante Joaquín Ojeda (conocido por sus trabajos en televisión y películas galardonadas como El Cielo Sube o la mencionada Con que la lavare?), y el director de animación Raúl Colomer (quien también ha participado en producciones como ExLibris o El vendedor de humo, ganadora de un Goya en 2013). El equipo se completará con 60 profesionales especializados en animación en 3D. Se grabará en lengua inglesa, tendrá unos 80 minutos de duración e implicará dos años y medio de trabajo. El presupuesto estimado es de 4 millones de euros.

Con el beneplácito del propio Wyatt

"Todo comenzó con una visita casual que hice a Robert Wyatt en su casa de Louth en 2014. Yo acompañaba a un amigo que estaba entrevistando a artistas del norte de Europa que habían vivido en las comunidades hippies de Deià (Mallorca) en los años setenta. Me sorprendió el enorme carisma que tenía. Yo hacía tiempo que quería dar el salto al largometraje… hacer algo artística y técnicamente interesante. De repente surgió la idea: ¿por qué no hacerlo con un personaje inspirado en Wyatt? Se lo propuse y le pareció muy bien".

También han contado con su beneplácito para las canciones de la banda sonora, que incluirán las canciones de Rock Bottom y otras de su proyecto anterior, Matching Mole.

"En animación siempre se tiende a jugar en terreno seguro, pero nosotros queremos darle mucha importancia a la experimentación tecnológica –señala Colomer-. Queremos encontrar una forma distinta de contar historias reales a través de la animación, alejándonos del automatismo de la producción industrial. El mayor reto será llevar al 3D el estilo gráfico de María, que es muy expresionista, plástico y gestual". Es, en su opinión, un buen momento para hacer rodar el proyecto, puesto que, "después del efecto Pixar, que ha hecho mucho daño a la animación para adultos", ahora vivimos un renacimiento de este tipo de cine.

Otra de sus preocupaciones es huir de los clichés estéticos que siempre han rodeado a la contracultura hippie. "Todo eso del flower power no tiene nada que ver con la verdadera estética underground de principios de los años setenta", explica Trenor. Ella se siente mucho más cerca del estilo inquietante de ilustradores como Mati Klarwein y de películas de culto como Planeta Salvaje (René Laloux, 1973) y The Wall (Alan Parker, 1982).

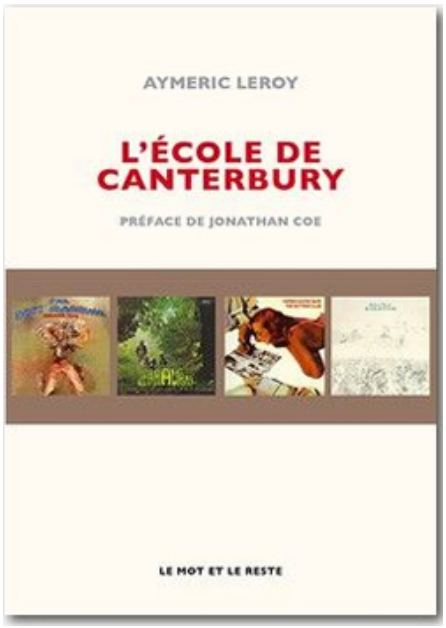
Marta Moreira

>> L'article sur le site de Valenciaplaza

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list



ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Aymeric Leroy - La Escuala de Canterbury - El Chamberlin - N° 18 - Noviembre 2016

AYMERIC LEROY LA ESCUELA DE CANTERBURY

L'ECOLE DE CANTERBURY - AYMERIC LEROY - Le mot et le reste.
Marsella (France), 2016.
ISBN 9782360541973.
736 Paginas. 33 Euros.
lemotetlereste.com

Un libro, o mas bien una biblia, como algunos quieren llamarlo ya. Si quieres conocer todo sobre este movimiento musical britânico nacido en esta pequeña ciudad de Kent, en el extremo sudeste de Inglaterra, sobre el rio Stour, a 86,4 kilómetros de Londres, tienes dos posibles direcciones: la de Éditions Le Mot et Le Reste, o la de su autor, un apasionado de nombre Aymeric Leroy...

El Chamberlin. ¿Cuàndo y por qué has tenido la idea de este libro?

Aymeric Leroy. La idea de hacer un libro sobre este tema nació a principios de 1999, y yo pienso que venía impuesto mes por la acumulación de matérial, tanto en el marco de mi sitio Calyx desde 1996, como en el de la revista Big Bang (1), desde 1993. Pensar en pasar del ejercicio de la crónica a un libro me parece, con la distancia, presuntuoso; pero, por ingenuidad más que por pretensión. Yo imaginaba que una vez reunido el matérial, el libro nacería por si mismo, un poco como por magia. Evidentemente, no hay nada de eso. Durante dos o très años, me he dedicado a la búsqueda en bibliotecas, examinando cuidadosamente la prensa musical francesa y extranjera, y entrevistando a mucha gente. Así he podido compenser la falta de informaciones de determinados grupos o ciertos périodos y encontrarme en posición de abordarlos con el nivel del detalle que me parecia justificado para cada uno, sin tener en cuenta una jerarquía basada en la notoriedad o el éxito.

En 2003, con el fin de obtener una subvención del Centre National du Livre, finalicé un capîtulo y una propuesta del sumario, pero en realidad la estructura evolucionó considerablemente más adelante. La idea de una división por fechas en forma de agenda no se impuso hasta bastante tarde. Al principio, pensaba proponer capítulos tratando cada uno de un grupo, o de un período de un grupo, pero eso no funcionaba, y estoy contento de haber encontrado esta solución que me parece mucho mejor.

El Chamberlin. Intentas justificar el principio de este libro la denominación "Escuela de Canterbury". Es cierto que este término invita a hablar de Soft Machine o Caravan, pero ¿por qué, en tu opinión, era necesario que se llegara a admitir esta noción de una vez por todas?

Aymeric Leroy. No quiero dar una importancia excesiva a lo que no deja de ser un obligado ejercicio de estilo para justificar la existencia de semejante obra y su titulo. Definir el estilo Canerbury no es en sí una postura de calidad artística, sino simplemente la localización de un centro de gravedad estilística, que explica por ejemplo que yo hable más de Hatfield and the North que de Gong, aun cuando este último merecerîa seguramente por si mismo un libro aparte. Sin embargo, este ejercicio de estilo no me parece del todo banal, en la medida en que permite a pesar de todo explicar lo que esta música haya podido tener de original, de novedosa y de única en el paisaje musical de su tiempo. Con evidentemente una preferencia personal aunque nada exclusiva. Soy consciente que las músicas que me gustan no son forzosamente aquellas que tuvieron una mayor resonancia en su época, y al contrario. No se trata pues de que yo diga lo que es injusto de este estilo -aquí no se conoció un éxito mayor de público, crítica o comercial-.

La definiciôn que yo propongo mezcla elementos de fondo (un colorido jazzy, un gusto por las métricas impares y cambiantes, textos absurdos o auto referenciales) y de forma (el órgano saturado, la discreción o la ausencia de guitarras, una forma de cantar anti-teatral) no reclama ser una verdad demostrada. Por eso, no es completamente objetiva. Está, creo, alimentada de todo aquello que yo he podido leer o escuchar sobre el tema, tanto músicos como periodistas o simples oyentes. Dudo que los primeros tengan que reconocerse forzosamente, pero espero el beneplácito de los últimos. Después de todo, es la conciencia popular quien tiene la última palabra para légitimar tal o cual denominación como dar nombre a una corriente artística. En cierta medida, no hago más que ratificar, en lo teorizante de una manera más amplia, lo que la posteridad de aquí en adelante tenía reservado a esta música.

El Chamberlin. Para encontrar todos estos detalles fue necesario la colaboración de los músicos, sobre todo para Soft Machine, con esas diversas versiones de las mismas piezas. ¿De qué manera lo hicieron personas como Hugh Hopper, Richard Sinclair o Robert Wyatt?

Aymerïc Leroy. Todos se han mostrado muy colaboradores, pero evidentemente en el caso de Robert Wyatt su reticencia es bien conocida al abordar el periodo de Soft Machine. Desde mi principal entrevista con él, en 2001, no he dejado de utilizar estrategias desviadas para sonsacarle algunas frases, sin gran éxito. Se ha mostrado mucho más abierto en Rock Bottom. Más recientemente, en la entrevista para el libreto de '68, le he encontrado más sereno y elocuente. A Hugh Hopper le entrevisté personalmente pero también he sido muy correspondido por correo cuando ha sido posible y ha dado muestras de una gran disponibilidad, tanto como Pip Pyle o Dave Stewart sobre todo.

Aymeric Leroy

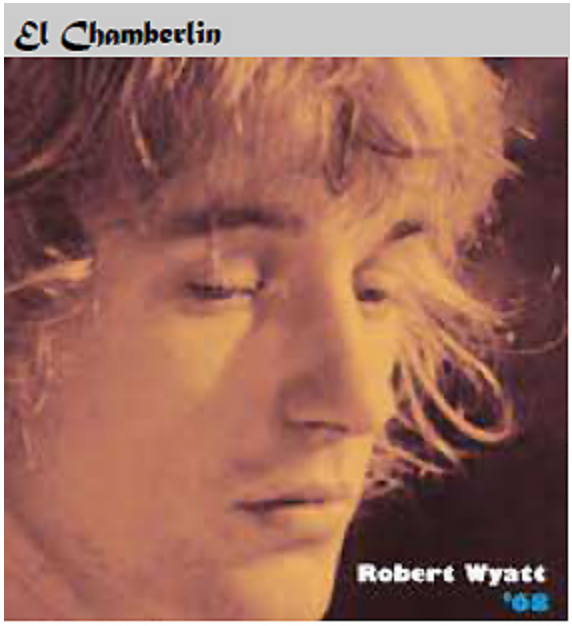
Con Richard Sinclair he cruzado e intercambiado cartas con frecuencia de manera informal. Aparte de una entrevista comûn con Phïl Miller (y con Pip Pyle poco antes de su fallecimiento) en el festival Baja Prog en Méjico, en 2006; he sacado mucho de otras entrevistas, esto es a lo que he estado obligado hacer con Mïke Ratledge, que era el portavoz de Soft Machine en los años setenta, aunque apenas se mostrara deseoso de desahogarse cuando nosotros hemos llegado a cruzarnos con él.



En lo que concierne a los detalles factuales, los músicos no son siempre las mejores fuentes. No queda otra solución que hacer de ratas de bibliotecas y recuperar los testimonios. Con a veces la divina sorpresa de caer con tal o cual persona que haya tenido y conservado cuadernos de apuntes. ¡A veces no se está muy lejos de un trabajo de investigación policial!

El Chamberlin. El libro está prologado por Jonathan Coe, un autor muy próximo a estos músicos (sobre todo por su libro The Rotters' Club, aparecido en 2001). ¿Cómo contactas con él?

Aymeric Leroy. Yo habia leido ya Testament à l'Anglaise cuando apareció Bienvenue au club [el libro francés] en 2001. Habia descubierto su pasión por la escena de Canterbury en ese libro. En 2002, él vino a Paris para un pequeno concierto promocional del CD (9th & 13th) que él habia sacado en Tricatel. Me présenté a él después del concierto y me aseguró que conocía mi sitio Calyx, y pensaba incluso mencionarlo en la suite (The Full Cirde), cosa que finalmente él no hizo. Para la suite, nosotros nos hemos carteado con frecuencia, sobre todo en los conciertos de reforma de Hatfield and thé North, en Londres o Canterbury, como corresponsal de vez en cuando.

Cuando vino a Paris a presentar Expo 58, él mismo me propuso que queria firmar un prólogo, que yo acepté gustosamente, ante todo porque era totalmente legitimo, habiendo visto estos grupos en una época en la que yo era bien joven para interesarme, y conociendo muy bien los discos y, en ciertos casos, a los propios músicos, pero también porque su notoriedad de escritor podía atraer la atención de mi libro a un público que ignorase por completo esta música.

El Chamberlin. ¿Por qué tener que hablar de Soft Machine de cabo a rabo? Idem de Gong (sin Daevid Allen)...

Robert Wyatt, '68

Aymeric Leroy. Hay dos proyectos paralelos en este libro: el primero, por el que tengo el mayor interés, era explorar el centro de lo que yo experimento como la esencia del estilo Canterbury, que yo sitúo en alguna parte entre el Volume Two de Soft Machine y Hatfield and the North; el segundo era tener en cuenta las legítimas consideraciones de los lectores de un libro titulado de esta manera, y luego abordar también los grupos o los periodos no forzosamente más "canterburianos" de las formaciones más emblemáticas. En el caso de Gong, hay de sobra una paradoja, puesto que el período más "canterburiano" del grupo es sin duda el que sigue inmediatamente a la salida de Daevid Allen, dominado por Steve Hillage que venía de publicar Fish Rising.

En lo que concierne a Soft Machine, lo confieso, he ido mucho más allá de la fase "canterburiana" de su evolución musical, cuando he abandonado en el camino a ciertos músicos en sus proyectos en solitario. Así se investiga. Digamos que es el privilegio del nombre.

El Chamberlin. Describes muy bien en coda grupo el interés que ha representado (o no) en una determinada estética musical que ha marcado a muchos de nosotros en estos años fértiles que fueron los finales de los años sesenta y los años setenta. ¿Qué piensas de la influencia que estos músicos de una periferia normal de una Inglaterra en total revolución hayan podido tener sobre la culture musical europea?

Aymeric Leroy. Personas como Pierre Lattes o Jean-Pierre Lentïn (2), desgraciadamente los dos ya fallecidos, hubieran dado interesantes opiniones para reflexionar en este asunto, sobre todo en lo que respecta al cariño particular de Francia por esta música.

Más allá de una atracción general por el pop anglosajón, y británico en particular, había en la escena de Canterbury especificidades que gustaban a !os franceses: una parte intelectual, aguda, contrabalanceada por un gusto por lo absurdo y el humor. En el sentido contrario, estos músicos tenían la vista puesta menos en América que sus contemporáneos, y, luego, eran réceptivos a inventos franceses como la Patafîsica.

Hay evidentemente una parte involuntaria, también en todo esto. Robert Wyatt cuenta a menudo que sus reposiciones a veces "desfasadas" son al principio intentos de una fiel imitación de los originales; pero que, a pesar suyo, se impone su personalidad musical. La imitación está pues mal hecha, pero es precisamente eso que la convierte en un acierto. Veo algo bastante similar en la escena de Canterbury en general: una reapropiación de músicas llegadas del extranjero, de los Estados Unidos en primer lugar, pero transfigurada por un ADN británico que estos músicos no podian quitarse de encima. Wyatt subraya a este respecto el papel de Kevin Ayers quien asumía su acento inglés sin tratar de imitar a los americanos; el mismo Ayers me explicó que él no podía elegir, que era incapaz de tener otro acento que no fuera el suyo, ¡y eso es lo que además le daba rabia!

Caravan 1980

El Chomberlin. ¿Cuál es tu posición personal con respecto a este movimiento? ¿No es de lo más asombroso que sea un francés el que haya descrito con minuciosidad esta aventura típicamente inglesa?

Aymeric Leroy. Soy consciente de lo paradójico, incluso generacional. Mi encuentro con esta música era improbable, y el hecho que yo sea conferido hasta este punto todavía más. Puede ser que yo sea la prueba que decididamente hay una afinidad muy profunda entre esta música y Francia. Difícil de decir.

En mi caso personal, es la exploración de músicas de este periodo, que me han atraído enseguida a una época [a mediados de los años ochenta] cuando lo que se escuchaba en las ondas era bastante espantoso, lo que me ha llevado primero en dirección a Inglaterra antes que Estados Unidos, y en el seno de la escena británica -digamos "progresiva" en general-, hacia sus matices más "jazzy", en este caso la escuela de Canterbury. Pero fue menos debido a la connotación jazz en sí misma que por el hecho que el abanico de estilos me parecio de lo más completo: en el Canterbury, se tiene a la vez todo lo que me interesa del progresivo, sin el aspecto conceptual un poco pesado y lo cutre de los refritos clásicos, y esta sofisticación jazz, en el fondo (riqueza armónica, improvisación) como la forma (utilización de vientos y metales). Es una excelente síntesis de todo lo que me interesa en música.

El Chamberlin. ¿Qué piensas de las reacciones (más bien entusiastas) en internet, reacciones mayontariamente británicas?

Aymeric Leroy. De momento, a un mes tan sólo de la publicación, las reacciones son todavía parciales -es necesario darle tiempo, ¡en esta situación!- e informales, recibidas sobre todo durante algunas firmas que he hecho. Para las verdaderas crónicas, ¡habrá que esperar un poco! Pero, al menos los decepcionados no tratan a herir mi sensibilidad, las respuestas son muy entusiastas. Creo que el libro tiene cualidades objetivas, que se basan en la cantidad de informaciones resueltas y con el interés de la historia contada y

National Health 1976

músicas evocadas. Mi aportación personal, critica y literaria, está menos omnipresente que en los libros precedentes, y espero que incluso aquellos que no compartan mis preferencias o no les gusten los análisis encuentren materia para contentarse -dejo mucho la palabra a los propios protagonistas, y también a mis colegas críticos de la época-. Mi objetivo es simple, es el mismo que para mis otros libros (3), y espero haberlo ejercido de nuevo: enriquecer la escucha de los discos, que quede lo esencial, revelando los secretos y el contexto en el cual han sido creados. El mejor cumplido que se me puede hacer, y lo escucho a menudo, es que mi libro invita a escuchar los discos y a descubrir en otros lo que no se había visto.

PHILIPPE RENAUD. Traducción Chema Chacón. Originalmente en la revista Improjazz# 225. Junio 2016. Cuenta con el permiso del autor de la entrevista.

(1) http://calyx.perso.neuf.fr/ y http://www.bigbangmag.com

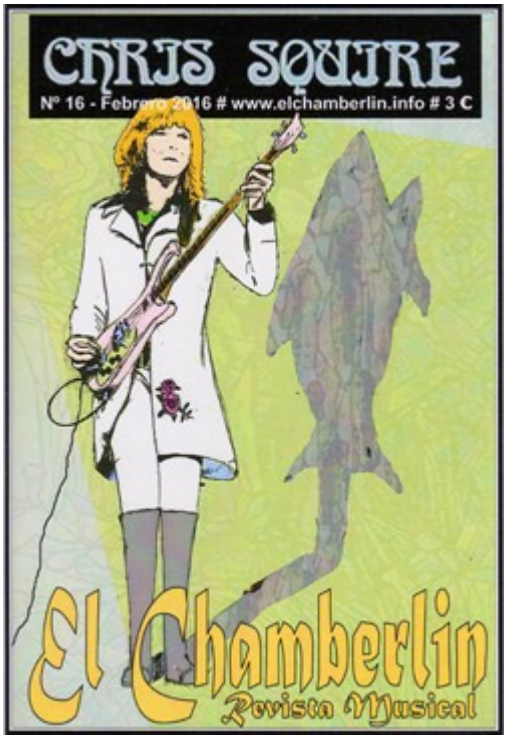
(2) Pierre Lattes y Jean-Pierre Lentin fueron periodistas, escritores, productores en émiseras de radio y télévision francesas, tanto pûblicas como privadas, con programas relacionados preferentemente con la mûsica y la cultura en général.

(3}Pink Ftoyd (edición francesa) Le Mot et Le Reste, 2009. Rock Progressif. Le Mot et Le Reste, 2010. King Crímson (edición francesa) Le Mot et Le Reste, 2012

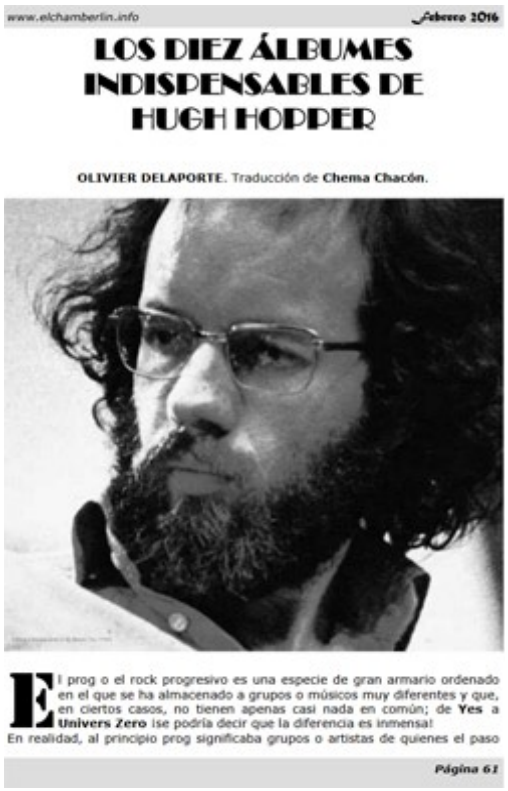
Previous article

Next article

Back to the list



ABÉCÉDAIRE



Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Los diez álbumes indispensables de Hugh Hopper - El Chamberlin - n° 16 - Febrero 2016

LOS DIEZ ÁLBUMES INDISPENSABLES DE HUGH HOPPER

www.elchamberlin.info Febrero 2016

LOS DIEZ ÁLBUMES INDISPENSABLES DE HUGH HOPPER

OLIVIER DELAPORTE. Traducción de Chema Chacón.

El prog o el rock progresivo es una especie de gran armario ordenado en el que se ha almacenado a grupos o músicos muy diferentes y que, en ciertos casos, no tienen apenas casi nada en común; de Yes a Univers Zero ise podría decir que la diferencia es inmensa!
En realidad, al principio prog significaba grupos o artistas de quienes el paso

Página 61

Olivier Delaporte
Traducción de Chema Chacón.

El prog o el rock progresivo es una especie de gran armario ordenado en el que se ha almacenado a grupos o músicos muy diferentes y que, en ciertos casos, no tienen apenas casi nada en común; de Yes a Univers Zero ise podría decir que la diferencia es inmensa!

En realidad, al principio prog significaba grupos o artistas de quienes el paso consistía en hacer evolucionar una base musical que más o menos todo el mundo entendía, y que se designó como pop-rock. Pero si algunos músicos simplemente hicieron evolucionar el género rock, otros crearon francamente una nueva identidad musical retomando la energía del rock, pero también la improvisación del jazz o la sofisticación de la música contemporánea. Si hoy la música de Henry Cow se nos ha vuelto familiar es siempre interesante intentar imaginar la desorientación que ha ejercido en los oídos de la época. Para enredar todavía más las cosas existen grupos donde la música evoluciona considerablemente, y a veces en poco tiempo; este fue el caso de Soft Machine que en apenas un año va a dar un gran salto, ese año activo de mediados de 1969 a los primeros meses de 1970.

Dos músicos van a influenciar el curso de las cosas durante este período: Elton Dean y Hugh Hopper. Mientras que Robert Wyatt y Mike Ratledge son todavía permeables a numerosas influencias, Hopper y Dean parecen claramente atraídos por la música instrumental, improvisada y muy definidamente influenciada por el jazz. Esto que está muy claro para Elton Dean, es más ambivalente en Hopper; de hecho, la técnica de amplificación de su bajo (fuzz) le va a permitir enganchar sonidos que se asemejan unas veces a la guitarra eléctrica, otras al sintetizador. Él y Ratledge quedan seducidos por los sonidos masivos presentes en el rock gracias a la guitarra, a este respecto te sugiero la escucha de Grides, un directo de Soft Machine grabado a principios del año 1971, donde el sonido del bajo de Hopper y del teclado de Ratledge nunca han estado tan próximos.

Estamos pues en la época donde estos músicos producen una música muy difícil de clasificar y que se le llama todavía prog: Leg End de Henry Cow o Third de Soft Machine. La ambivalencia existirá todavía durante algunos años en Hatfield and the North o en los primeros álbumes de National Health o de Gilgamesh. ¿Dónde colocar estos discos, en el jazz rock, en el rock? No, ¡en el prog! Esta ambivalencia ha hecho que todos estos músicos hayan creado un público además de haber conseguido seducir masivamente al público rock o jazz. La principal notoriedad de Fred Frith en el campo del rock no es mucho más elevada que la de Pip Pyle al lado de los aficionados de jazz. El único que ha adquirido finalmente sus cartas de nobleza en el jazz es sin duda Elton Dean, hasta el punto de que algunos de los que le siguen desconocen no solamente que él ha formado parte de Soft Machine sino además que él no ha abandonado nunca totalmente este entorno, manteniéndose en grupos como Soft Heap o Soft Works durante toda su carrera.

Puesto que estas columnas son las de una revista de jazz y de impro (1), me parece interesante evocar a un músico que no se beneficia en realidad de la consideración de los públicos de ninguno de estos dos estilos pero que, como escribo más arriba, se está fraguando su propio público. Sin embargo, Hugh Hopper merece sobradamente figurar en las discotecas de aficionados al jazz en todo caso, de estos y de los que saben escuchar la música tal como es, sin tener demasiado en cuenta clasificaciones asignadas por los biógrafos y otros críticos musicales.

A pesar de todo y a favor del público, ¡puede decirse que Hopper no ha puesto de su parte! En el momento donde se le hubiera podido capturar al fin en la categoría de jazz o jazz-rock iría a maquinar con guitarristas para producir álbumes claramente orientados al rock, como con el grupo Glass Cage o también Brainville. Es cierto que el eclecticismo no se percibe siempre como una cualidad; debido a esto, para un cierto número de aficionados al jazz, Hopper se queda siempre en el purgatorio, incluso en el infierno. Voy a intentar que salga.

La ocasión me viene dada con esta serie que le es consagrada en forma de diez CDs publicados por el sello Gonzo, de los cuales ya se han publicado los nueve (2) primeros números. Estas líneas permiten también rendir homenaje al echado en falta Michael King, quien nos ha abandonado hace unos meses (3), ingeniero de sonido fabuloso habiendo restaurado con un infinito respeto numerosas grabaciones, todas ellas excelentes.

Es Michael King quien ha trabajado en la constitución de esta retrospectiva magníficamente realizada. King era además un sincero admirador de Hugh Hopper. Se supera a sí mismo con esta serie. Cada uno de estos diez CDs, con la excepción del primero y del último, se centran en un grupo concreto y el conjunto de estos discos cubre mayoritariamente los años 1990 a 2000.

Soft Machine en 1970, Elton Dean, Robert Wyatt, Hugh Hopper y Mike Ratledge

En efecto, si durante los años 1970 la trayectoria musical de Hugh Hopper se quedó bastante limitada al prog, desde mediados de los años 1980 hasta su muerte se han multiplicado las experiencias musicales y los encuentros; estos dos decenios estaban muy poco documentados antes de la llegada de esta colección. Pero antes de evocar estos diferentes grupos comencemos lógicamente por el primer volumen que se presenta bajo la forma de una compilación, estando particularmente bien pensada.

Volume 1 – Memories

Si en el seno de Soft Machine Elton Dean y Hugh Hopper eran quienes manifestaban el atractivo más claro hacia el jazz, los centros de interés de Hopper estaban en esta época más dispersos, como testimonia el álbum 1984, grabado en el verano de 1972. Este disco está muy alejado del free jazz de la época pero, sin embargo, es este alejamiento lo que debió captar la atención de los aficionados al género. En efecto, el collage casi esquizofrénico que constituye este disco es un desafío a la conveniencia musical, al menos tan importante como los más grandes clásicos del free.

Portada alternativa del disco 1984 (1973) en la reedición de 1979 del sello Atmosphere Records

Choque frontal entre Lovecraft, Terry Riley y el Rhythm & blues, así se podría resumir este disco en el cual se encuentra la primera versión de 'Miniluv', una composición que va a jalonar estos diez volúmenes encontrándose en buen número de ellos. Por la diversidad de las grabaciones que constituye Memories Vol. 1 ilustra pues, bastante bien, la amplitud de miras de Hugh Hopper y se comprueba por tanto una excelente introducción. Era difícil no comenzar por Soft Machine ya que sin decir que todo comenzará aquí para Hopper, la máquina blanda ha sido a pesar de todo la rampa de lanzamiento.

Reemplazando a Kevin Ayers en 1969, Hopper es el primero de los dos músicos que van a influenciar di grupo Soft Machine en una dirección más instrumental y experimental. Pero el título 'Memories' que inaugura, o casi, esta compilación está más en el espíritu de Two que de Third.

Volume 1 - Memories - introduction disc

1. Memories
Hugh Hopper's Demo with Soft Machine
Recorded August 6th, 1969. Regent Studios, London
Hugh Hopper, bass guitar/acoustic guitar; Mike Ratledge, piano/organ; Robert Wyatt, drums/vocals

2. Was A Friend – Hugh Hopper Franglo Band
Recorded May 29th, 2004. St. Jean-aux-Bois, France
Patrice Meyer, electric guitar; Pierre Olivier-Govin, saxes; Hugh Hopper, bass guitar; Francois Verly, drums

3. Shuffle Demons
North & South
Recorded August 23rd, 1995. Aberdeen, Scotland
Steve Kettley, tenor saxophone; Paul Flush, keyboards; Hugh Hopper, bass guitar; Mike Travis, drums/percussion

4. Playtime
Hugh Hopper Interprets Alan Gowen
Recorded circa 2002. Whitstable, U.K.
Hugh Hopper – computer programming

5. Debonaire
Hugh Hopper Franglo Band
Recorded May 29th, 2004. St. Jean-aux-Boix, France
Patrice Meyer, electric guitar; Pierre Olivier-Govin, saxes; Hugh Hopper, bass guitar; Francois Verly, drums

6. MGH
Hugh Hopper & Nigel Morris
Recorded circa 2002. California and Whitstable, U.K.
Hugh Hopper, fuzz bass; Nigel Morris, drums/percussion

7. Long Piece
Hugh Hopper Computer Collage
Recorded circa 2002. Whitstable, U.K.
Hugh Hopper + Many Friends = Many Surprises

Quien abre, o casi, es la voz de Hugh Hopper porque de hecho es el primer sonido de este CD, una voz que va a presentar cada pieza; Memories Vol. 1 se presenta pues como una especie de emisión de radio en la cual se podría dar carta blanca a Hopper y la idea se revela un acierto que funciona muy bien. Más de treinta años separan la primera de la segunda pieza, el disco continúa con la 'Frangloband', luego a continuación es 'North & South'. No voy ahora a detenerme sobre estas dos formaciones cuando son ellos dos el objeto de dos volúmenes posteriores. Lleguemos primero a otros tres títulos de este álbum. El primero es 'Playtime', una composición de Alan Gowen con el cual Hopper tocó regularmente en la segunda mitad de los años 1970. Fundador de Gilgamesh y co-fundador de National Health, se puede decir que Gowen ayudaba a Hopper a sublimar su atracción por el jazz rock. Pero la complicidad entre estos dos músicos iba más lejos; en efecto, 'Two Rainbow Daily', que ellos grabaran en 1980, no tiene mucho que ver con las sonoridades del jazz rock de la época, este álbum va más allá del simple dúo intimista que parece. La reinterpretación de 'Playtime' que se puede escuchar en este primer volumen suena más "eléctrica" pero constituye un bello homenaje a esta complicidad. En el registro de las curiosidades que hacen de esta introducción un CD indispensable se encuentra también un dúo con Nigel Morris. Aquí también los dos músicos tienen un background común que se remonta a los años 1970, en la época en la que Hopper durante un tiempo tocó con Isotope.

Isotope, 9 de enero de 1975, Gary Boyle, Nigel Morris, Hugh Hopper y Laurence Scott

Pero desde los años 1980 Nigel Morris trataba con el free jazz siendo uno de los tres miembros del Paul Rutherford Trio, con Paul Rogers. Este dúo Hopper / Morris se coloca en la categoría de los inclasificables, Morris toca en la regrabación todo un conjunto de percusiones sobre la cual Hopper llega a incorporar su bajo, no solamente el título es muy acertado sino que además viene a completar la discografía de Morris que es más bien escasa. Este primer volumen se termina con un collage de diversas fuentes sonoras, músicas, voces, ruidos efectuados por Hugh y que nos reenvía a la época de 1984 donde él había utilizado por primera vez ese proceder de bucles sonoros presentándose en la época como uno de los precursores de un efecto hoy más de democratizado. Salvo que en la época de 1984, no había ordenadores que permitieran el muestreo del sonido, iél llegaría a trabajar con la cinta magnética y las tijeras de edición! En el momento de la salida de Memories Vol. 1, en 2013, todo salió a pedir de boca y la suite no ha decepcionado como veremos.

Volume 2 – Frangloband

Del Hugh Hopper músico, y también compositor, son precisamente estas composiciones que han sido escogidas con preferencia para esta serie. Trataremos pues el segundo volumen bajo este ángulo, puesto que ofrece un punto de vista apasionante.

Volume 2 - Frangloband, como su nombre indica, presenta al bajista de Canterbury acompañado de un grupo francés. El guitarrista Patrice Meyer toca con Hopper desde mediados de los años 1980; los otros dos músicos, Pierre-Olivier Govin y Francois Verly se unirán más tarde.

Este disco, que reproduce un concierto dado en Triton en 2003, se abre con 'Facelift', la pieza que inicia precisamente Third de Soft Machine y que marca de verdad el impacto de Hopper en el grupo. Para estos y los que están en relación a 'Facelift' surge forzosamente una pregunta: cómo se puede tocar esta pieza después de más de treinta años tras las versiones explosivas que se han podido escuchar en los diferentes directos del grupo, puesto que durante los años 1980 Hopper había dejado un poco de lado este título.

Frangloband en la sala Spirit of 66 el 30 de mayo de 2004, Patrice Meyer, Pierre-Olivier Govin, Manuel Denizet y Hugh Hopper)

La obertura del tema es bastante rigurosa, casi geométrica en los arreglos y para devolverle esta rigurosidad, Hopper y Meyer han echado mano de algunos artificios sonoros; sin llegar a sacar del olvido el sonido de su fuzz bass de la época, Hopper le devuelve sin embargo un sonido bastante cortante, mientras que Meyer da a su guitarra el estilo de una syntax a lo Holdsworth. A pesar de todo, no se vuelve a los ambientes de batallasas electrónicas o de desenfreno pirotécnico a lo Ratledge, pero el guiño está. Cuando la pieza se instala en su fase más rítmica, Verly la aborda de manera menos directa que lo hacía Wyatt, platillos y tambor entran más en juego.

La lección que se saca es que 'Facelift' permanece aún hoy como un formidable terreno de improvisación donde algunos músicos actuales faltos de ideas deberían inspirarse. Podrían también inspirarse de 'Shuffle Demons', otra composición de Hopper, no tan antigua como aquella pero, con todo, muy próxima a lo que se hacía en el prog en la gran época y sobre todo en el primer National Health (véase 'Tenemos Roads'). Sobre un ritmo que queda poco más o menos idéntico durante toda la pieza, esta se desarrolla en cuatro descripciones constituyendo, cada una, una mini composición en un grupo con, cada vez, un ambiente singular. Basta con escuchar esta versión aquí para darse cuenta que el tema es una fuente de improvisación más o menos inagotable.

'Howny Brownie' marca el interés de Hopper por el ritmo y blues puesto que este tema habría podido salir todo seguido de un grupo de blues rock. Para este título, Hopper muestra que la simplicidad de una composición puede de hecho permitir a los músicos liberar toda una energía de interpretación, es el caso aquí; y el final repetitivo hubiera podido durar tres o cuatro minutos más, que uno no se cansaría.

Por último el ineludible 'Miniluv'. Visiblemente Michael King consideraba este tema como importante puesto que lo ha reservado en cinco de los diez volúmenes y, en efecto, esta composición responde a mi parecer a una

Caricatura de Hopper realizada por Jos Thommassen incluida en el libreto de este Volumen 2

genialidad, como lo ha sido 'Acknowledgement' para Coltrane. Estas dos piezas que aparentemente no tienen nada que ver tienen, de hecho, un punto en común y esto permite abordar una transición ideal sobre North & South volume 3 puesto que 'Miniluv' figura también.

Volume 3 – North & South

Este tercer CD es también uno de los más largos de toda la serie, durante más de una hora recoge un concierto dado el 24 de agosto de 1995 en un pequeño club de Aberdeen. Está acreditado a Hugh Hopper y Mike Travis. Aunque Hopper y Travis no se han cruzado en el camino regularmente, todo esto ya comenzó con Gilgamesh veinte años antes, el grupo que se puede escuchar en este disco ha tenido una vida bastante corta y es una lástima a la vista de las impresiones que proporciona la escucha.

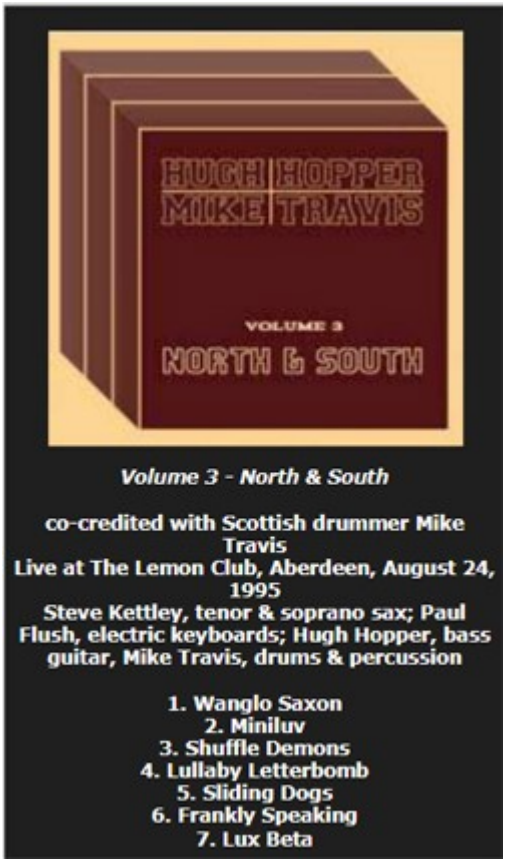
El público parece bastante limitado a un pequeño número, se deduce en todo caso una impresión de intimidad y la sensación que el grupo no estaba allí ni para demostrar ni para impresionar, sino simplemente por el placer de tocar. Basta escuchar la entrada de Steve Kettley al saxofón en composiciones como 'Miniluv' o 'Shuffle Demons' para convencerse de lo que tiene que ver con músicos que no hacen figuración.

Había evocado la relación que se podía apreciar entre 'Acknowledgement', de Coltrane y 'Miniluv'. En realidad, esta relación reside en el hecho que en los dos casos el bajo sugiere el ritmo pero también la melodía. En ambas, el tema melódico propuesto es bastante simple pero su intrincación en el ritmo hace una base extremadamente sólida para él o los improvisadores, así como para el grupo que le apoya. Kettley lo demuestra tanto en el sentido de volar literalmente con una soltura desconcertante. Veremos en el volumen 4 cómo esta composición es abordada por un dúo de saxo y trombón.

Dos títulos más adelante, Hopper sorprende con 'Lullaby Letterbomb', una composición que ha tocado poco y menos aún grabado. Parece haber salido de la imaginación de un compositor de Trinidad, aporta un toque exótico inesperado y en su momento, se dijo, se quería escuchar a algunos percusionistas locales para realzarla más. Uno se da cuenta que Paul Flush ha modificado el sonido de su teclado para sacar sonoridades próximas a un steel drum. Una mención particular puede ser otorgada a Flush por sus elecciones sonoras. Realmente los sonidos en boga en los teclados de los años 1990 hicieron a veces daño en los oídos, tanto que están "marcados" por su época, pero Flush supo moderar todo esto variando los ambientes.

Volume 3 - North & South

co-credited with Scottish drummer Mike Travis
Live at The Lemon Club, Aberdeen, August 24, 1995
Steve Kettley, tenor & soprano sax; Paul Flush, electric keyboards; Hugh Hopper, bass guitar, Mike Travis, drums & percussion



1. Wanglo Saxon
2. Miniluv
3. Shuffle Demons
4. Lullaby Letterbomb
5. Sliding Dogs
6. Frankly Speaking
7. Lux Beta

Los dos últimos títulos son un homenaje muy claro a la música negra. 'Frankly Speaking', cuya marcha no descabalaría en un álbum jazz funk, y sobretodo 'Lux Beta', que es la composición más bluesera que Hopper ha podido imaginar. Aquí todavía Paul Flush se adapta produciendo el sonido de un órgano. Esta pieza termina de forma muy apropiada por un feeling tranquilo, un concierto tocado más o menos cerca de sus oyentes. Este disco es probablemente uno de los más intimistas de toda la discografía de Hugh Hopper, singularidad que él comparte con el volumen siguiente.

Volume 4 – Four by Hugh by Four

Otro grupo, otro ambiente con Four by Hugh by Four, dicho de otra manera, 4 de Hugh tocados por 4. Se trata pues de un cuarteto y aquí también el grupo es único en la discografía del bajista. Este álbum ocupa un lugar específico no solamente en esta serie sino más generalmente en la discografía de Hugh Hopper; de hecho, es uno de los raros al no incluir ni teclado ni guitarra, esto hace suponer que el bajo estará más claramente presente de lo habitual. El grupo está pues constituido por Robert Jarvis al trombón, Oscar Schutze a la batería y Frank Van Der Kooy al tenor y al clarinete bajo (primer título). Este último es el más conocido puesto que había tocado en la banda de Hugh Hopper al principio de la formación y Hopper había tocado en su propio grupo, N.d.i.o.

'Was A Friend', que será objeto de un tratamiento particular en el último volumen es una composición de una total tensión donde Hopper, después de una introducción más bien virtuosa, pasa a un registro más "minimalista" concentrándose en una sola nota o casi, que él obtiene golpeando la cuerda de manera rítmica, este motivo de aspecto lancinante crea un verdadero clima y esta tensión sube progresivamente a la mitad de la pieza. Hasta ahora han sido pocas las ocasiones de escuchar esta composición como las tres siguientes que siguen.

'Virus Day', es un ritmo de tempo medio pero los músicos no se duermen ni mucho menos. En 'Wrong Gong', Hopper propone un tipo de tema repetitivo basado en ocho notas un poco en la forma de una tambura en la música indú. Aquí se encuentra el interés que Hugh siempre tuvo por la música llamada minimalista, que constituye uno de los puntos de anclaje de 1984. Este disco relativamente corto que se ha grabado en 2000 en Holanda acaba con 'Miniluv', y la versión que se toca ofrece todavía un punto de vista nuevo sobre la esencia de esta composición. En primer lugar, durante los primeros segundos donde toma posesión el baterista, su forma de tocar podría hacer pensar que va a abordar el tema con un ritmo reggae, pero la sensación desaparece cuando abandona casi enseguida el contrapunto rítmico para tocar en una igualdad más bien binaria que remite más al rock. A pesar de todo esta puerta brevemente entreabierta hace pensar que una guitarra rítmica al lado del bajo podría dar una bella interpretación a la forma reggae de este título. No pasan más que unos segundos antes de notar los "bucles" repetitivos tocados por el saxofonista y el trombonista a modo de introducción; bucles que, en particular Van Der Kooy, reutiliza a mitad de la pieza. El propio Hopper también se concentra sobre esta manera de abordar el tema haciendo variar muy progresivamente la firma melódica de este tema de tal manera que se le reconoce siempre atrás, al fondo. 'Miniluv', por su capacidad de acoger la repetición de cortos encadenamientos de notas posicionándose en la base, muestra toda la fascinación que esta manera de abordar la música ha producido en Hopper, pero también sobre generaciones de aficionados que se han abandonado a la contemplación auditiva escuchando a La Monte Young, Terry Riley o Steve Reich. Recuerdo haber evocado ya el tema en las columnas de esta misma revista [Improjazz (N. del T.)] durante una entrevista dedicada a Trevor Watts, en la que nosotros habíamos llegado a esta cuestión abordando los primeros discos del Spontaneous Music Ensemble, así como los de Moiré Music.

Four by Hugh by four viene a ser quizás (con el volumen 8), de los diez, el que seducirá más a los oyentes menos atraídos por el prog. Es sin duda el más "jazzista" de esta colección, pero sus composiciones guardan sin embargo el sabor que sólo un músico que viene de otra parte del jazz es capaz de dar. Es también por la constitución del grupo que toca estos temas, uno de los más intimistas, desde luego menos que el quinto volumen que es en dúo.

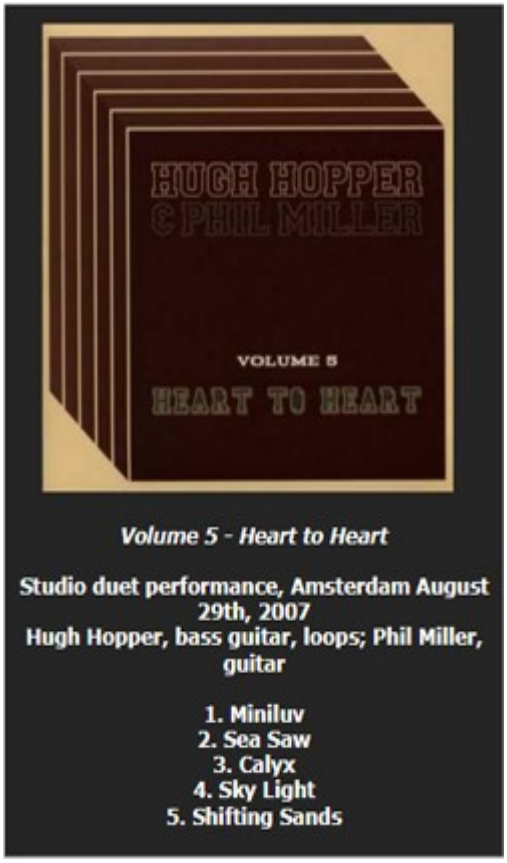
Volume 5 – Heart to Heart

Este nuevo volumen, así como los dos siguientes, nos van a permitir cruzarnos con algunas de las figuras legendarias de la escuela de Canterbury sin necesida de sumergirse en el prog de los años 1970. Esto comienza con este volumen, a través del dúo Hugh Hopper / Phil Miller, titulado Heart to heart y grabado en Amsterdam en 2007. Miller y Hopper han seguido caminos paralelos durante los años del prog, Delivery, Hatfield and the North y National Health para el primero; Soft Machine, Isotope y Gilgamesh para el segundo. Habían ya tocado juntos durante este período pero se encontraron oficialmente en la formación In Cahoots, con la que Hopper va a tocar al principio. Se reencontraron nuevamente en Short Wave pero se volverá a hablar en poco tiempo.



Hugh Hopper y Phil Miller, Amsterdam, 29 agosto 2007

En la discografía de Hugh Hopper los dúos son poco numerosos, el que viene a la memoria es evidentemente Two rainbows daily (junto a Alan Gowen), este ambiente de conversaciones amigables entre dos músicos que no tienen nada que demostrarse, ni entre ellos ni a los oyentes.

Para esta sesión cada uno aporta una composición: 'Miniluv' por Hopper y 'Calix' por Miller, esta última habiendo hecho su aparición en la época de Hatfield and the North, se encuentran otras versiones y especialmente con Elton Dean. Menos destacable que 'Seven for Lee', de Dean, dirán algunos, sin duda menos contundente igualmente que 'Miniluv', 'Calyx' sin embargo es un magnífico tema que empuja al lirismo pero no sucumbirá nunca en el exceso en manos de estos músicos. Se trata verdaderamente de un justo equilibrio entre sentido melódico e improvisación. Las otras tres piezas están más basadas en la impro que en la composición, pero con algunos reparos a pesar de todo.

'Sky light' es una pieza con atmósfera que revela una cierta tensión y a la que no faltaría más que una batería para que se la sitúe al lado del rock. Detrás del bajo se encuentra un discreto bucle que da la impresión que Hopper está pregrabado con un fuzz bass como en la época grande. 'Shifting sands', que acaba el álbum es una larga pieza de más de 18 minutos que contiene varias fases. Un bucle repetitivo sostiene los primeros intercambios que no parecen tomar una dirección muy definida pero que va a abandonarse bastante rápido, y el ambiente va a calmarse hasta el punto de convertirse en casi plano. Aparecen entonces nuevos "samples" de bajo discretos y repetitivos, después los dos músicos se reasientan plenamente para cerrar la pieza en un ambiente, de nuevo, más rítmico. Difícil decir si esta sesión está del lado del jazz o del rock, está claro que el sonido de la guitarra de Miller y su manera de utilizar el control del volumen hace inclinarse más por el segundo término pero la calidad de las improvisaciones remiten, sin embargo, al jazz. Al finalizar este quinto volumen uno no puede sino felicitarse una vez más ante la idea y calidad de esta serie.

Hugh Hopper y Alan Gowen en 1978

Volume 6 - Special Friends

Phil Miller nos acompaña todavía en el volumen siguiente, uniéndose con Pip Pyle, otra figura del prog, para un grupo donde el personal varía en las dos últimas piezas. Conocido bajo el nombre de Pip Pyle' Short Wave esta formación también ha realizado gira como Hugh Hopper special friends. Un álbum de Short Wave se publicó en los años 1990, bastante decepcionante pero este sexto volumen viene a superar plenamente la frustración y eleva definitivamente las dudas sobre el potencial de este grupo. Para los amantes instruidos del prog el primer título 'For Alan' indica claramente a quien se dirige la dedicatoria, se trata de Alan Gowen por supuesto, con el que Hopper ha tocado a menudo desde finales de 1970. Es una balada donde Didier Malherbe ofrece un muy buen solo de flauta con la justa necesidad de lirismo, Miller le acompaña quedando bastante discreto. Una versión muy corta de 'Sliding dogs', tocada a continuación es totalmente diferente a la que se encuentra en el volumen 3, mucho más rock en cierta manera; esto restablece en cierto modo el background [trayectoria] de esta composición que figuraba por primera vez en dos versiones en el álbum Monster Band (1973). 'Midnight Judo' me recuerda la cuarta parte de la suite 'Slightly all the time' ('backwards') (Soft Machine, *Third). 'Midnight Judo' no es de ninguna manera una recuperación sino que uno tiene la sensación que Hopper se inspiró de ese tema más antiguo para esta composición más reciente.

'Miniluv' que nos ha acompañado prácticamente desde el inicio de este itinerario permite a Phil Miller brillar en un solo que sin ser incisivo está sin embargo tocado con mucha convicción. Después es 'Wanglo saxon', una composición que se ha podido apreciar en North and South y que está tocada aquí un poco casi en el mismo estilo. 'Wanglo saxon' vuelve enseguida para introducir al grupo que va a tocar en las dos últimas piezas, Malherbe es reemplazado por Elton Dean al alto y el grupo está aumentado con un pianista. La sucesión de estas dos versiones es interesante puesto que la segunda lectura aborda el tema de manera más aflorada, más restringida. Aunque sin transición, el grupo engancha con una improvisación de más de 17 minutos que constituye una de las atracciones de este sexto volumen. Sin que se pueda identificar un tema, hay una rítmica que da una cierta dirección y cada músico improvisa por turno. De manera asombrosa Elton Dean no está particularmente incisivo en esta última parte, su forma de tocar aparece finalmente como bastante próxima a la de Didier Malherbe que le ha precedido en los otros 5 títulos. Esta larga improvisación es magnífica, no da ocasión de una demostración de fuerza del uno u otro músico sino ilustra más bien una gran coherencia del grupo y de improvisadores seguros ellos mismos y convincentes.

Volume 7 - Soft Boundaries

Si Miller había asegurado la continuidad entre los volúmenes 5 y 6, es Elton Dean quien es el nexo entre este volumen y el siguiente. Titulado Soft Boundaries este séptimo volumen viene de hecho a completar la discografía más bien escasa de un grupo que no habría por desgracia de durar mucho tiempo. Formado en 2004, la trayectoria de Soft Bound se paro con la muerte prematura de Elton Dean en 2006. Un sólo disco está disponible: Live at Le Triton 2004, grabado el 17 de junio. Constituido por Hopper al bajo, Dean al saxo, Simon Goubert a la batería y Sophia Domancich a los pianos acústico y eléctrico, esta última no era una novata en el ambiente post Canterbury puesto que se la encontrará, sobre todo al lado de Pip Pyle, en los años 1990. Este directo en Triton era más que prometedor y tiene bastante bien olvidadas frustraciones puesto que era evidente que el grupo había tocado mucho más que las cuatro piezas que contiene. Aquí están pues las previsiones satisfechas con este séptimo volumen, el cual añade dos piezas del concierto del 17 de junio 2004 y otras dos de un concierto dado un año más tarde.

Antes de abordar la música en sí, es necesario que haga un pequeño repaso a la dinastía "Soft". A pesar de que Soft Head o Soft Heap no estaban del todo hechos en la línea del heroico Soft Machine del período Third, Fourth o Fifth, estos grupos se replanteaban la idea directriz, el buen lado jazz rock podríamos decir, a saber la energía del rock exceptuando las preocupaciones virtuosas. Lo que era igualmente interesante en estas dos formaciones era la ausencia de guitarrista, como en el periodo bisagra de Soft Machine. Pienso en efecto que si hubiera habido un guitarrista en Third y en los dos siguientes, nunca Ratledge y los demás hubieran podido llegar a ocupar el espacio musical como lo han hecho; cada uno sabía hasta qué punto en el prog un guitarrista ocupa naturalmente un sitio importante. Una de las razones por las cuales yo no he sido personalmente nunca muy entusiasta al respecto de Soft Machine Legacy al considerar por cierto que hubiera preferido con creces un teclado a los diferentes guitarristas que han pasado por ese grupo. Así Soft Bound inmediatamente ha encarnado en lo a mí concierne una especie de herencia de Soft Head o Soft Heap. Herencia sin duda alguna, pero la música es totalmente actual. Naturalmente si uno se basa en Live at Le Tritón se podía argumentar que la aparente modernidad se debía por cierto en que tres de las cuatro composiciones eran actuales, sólo 'Kings & Queens' venía del repertorio de Soft Machine. Sin embargo la interpretación de este "¡estándar!" no se hizo al pie de la letra. ¡Esto teniendo también en cuenta que Simón Goubert y Sophia Domancich revisaban aún su filosofía de bachiller cuando los dos ingleses estaban ya en las carreteras desde hacía tiempo!

Para los aficionados de Soft Machine es siempre interesante escuchar la relectura actual de determinadas composiciones, de hecho los diferentes "Softs", Head o Heap, han mayoritariamente tocado un repertorio inédito y han retomado poco. Así, descubriendo la lista de títulos de este séptimo volumen la febrilidad no va a dejar de invadir a los aficionados de la máquina blanda periodo Third.

Soft Bound Live At le Triton 2004

Es 'Slightly all the time' la que abre el disco y la suite compuesta mayoritariamente por Ratledge está tocada en su integridad sin apenas rearreglo alguno. El carácter de esta composición que se despliega en sus diferentes fases produce siempre su efecto. Elton Dean aparece más bien discreto y es Sophia Domancich quien sale del apuro. Ella está al piano eléctrico lo que parece bastante lógico dada la historia de este tema, aunque no busque en modo alguno imitar a Ratledge. Utilizando su experiencia de jazz ella reactualiza completamente la composición. Su forma de tocar está naturalmente marcada por su gran diferencia (en edad) y ella no ha recurrido a ningún efecto sonoro particular, que descansa únicamente en sus solos o sus puntuaciones rítmicas. El espíritu de la pieza está ahí pero sin la menor traza de un aburrido revival. A este estadio de la escucha se espera con impaciencia la segunda versión que termina el CD preguntándose cuál es la buena razón que ha podido empujar a Michael King a elegir por segunda vez este título y no otro.

El segundo título que es además el último extraído del concierto del 17 junio 2004 es The lonely sea and the sky'. Ya alternado en el segundo volumen, esta pieza proviene de hecho de Hopper Tunity Box, grabado en 1976. Aquí se encuentra uno de los aspectos más interesantes de esta formación, a saber: que incluso si una parte de las raíces provienen del prog, el grupo no busca resucitar este período. Como por ironía además, Domancich se instala en el piano para esta pieza, es solamente en el segundo tiempo que regresa al piano eléctrico. Esta elección es realmente interesante, por cómo a su lado Elton Dean toca el saxello en un estilo de total moderación, y con un sonido magnífico pues él tenía el secreto, ¡el conjunto da a la pieza un aspecto francamente clásico! Esta pieza de tempo medio que apareciera como una especie de respiración plana en Hopper Tunity Box en un ambiente más bien de rock/experimental, se va a convertir en 2004 en una balada más que respetable pues la sólida composición se demuestra plenamente.

Damos a continuación un salto de un año para encontrarnos el 11 de junio de 2005 en el mismo lugar y con el mismo grupo o casi, para las dos últimas piezas de este volumen. 'Spanish Knee' contiene uno de los aspectos más singulares de esta formación, a saber, su capacidad de liberar energía de rock sin por ello estar en el jazz rock. Esto ya es lo que podía experimentarse en Soft Head o Soft Heap pero no francamente en In Cahoots por ejemplo. Este clima proviene sobre todo de Simon Goubert que marca el ritmo de manera mucho menos binaria que lo haría un baterista en un contexto jazz rock. Él es más sutil pero su despliegue de energía a lo Elvin Jones da a esta pieza un relieve singular que no se encuentra forzosamente en el jazz. Elton Dean siempre al saxello es más incisivo, y Sophia Domancich, sin imponerse, da pruebas de pertinencia.

Detalle de la contraportada de Soft Bounds -Live at Le Triton 2004

Al final llega la segunda versión tan esperada de 'Slightly all the time'. Al cuarteto se añade un segundo saxofonista, el francès Jean Michel Couchet que se encuentra en varios discos de Goubert. No conociendo por otro lado la discografia de este músico, no puedo confiarme nada más que en su prestación en este título. Visiblemente inspirado por la pieza y sin duda también por el grupo, él libera un solo muy cautivante, enérgico sin ser expresivo a ultranza. La pareja que forma con Dean es muy eficaz y apetecería tener más de un sólo título. Es también Simon Goubert quien está puesto delante con un solo de batería que una vez más podría recordar a Elvin Jones. El tema está de nuevo tratado en estas diferentes fases pero con foco más basado en los solistas. Sobre el conjunto de estos cuatro títulos Hugh Hopper permanece más discreto, no tomando apenas la palabra en solitario pero la pertinencia de sus contribuciones, en concreto en las figuras rítmicas que aporta en la primera versión de 'Slightly all the time', hace que uno se fije sin problema.

Este séptimo volumen es pues de importancia por la calidad de su contenido y porque viene a completar la más que escasa discografía de Soft Bound. Pero sobretodo una reflexión me viene al término de esta escucha y considerando que este grupo no ha tocado prácticamente más que en un solo sitio: "el Triton"; ime pregunto mucho qué hacen los programadores de festivales y pienso sobre todo en aquellos que trabajan en invierno o en las afueras pintadas de azul!(4) Cómo las diferentes formaciones de Hugh Hopper han podido permanecer ajenas a estos acontecimientos. Es cierto que Hopper no ponía de su parte, obstinándose en permanecer siendo inglés durante toda su vida. Y sí, desgraciadamente, para una parte de la inteligencia del jazz en Francia el pasaporte americano deja todavía una calidad por sí misma. No saben lo que se pierden. El octavo volumen aporta una flagrante demostración.

Volume 8 - Bass on Top

Este octavo título intriga en primer lugar por su personal. A los lados de Hugh Hopper se encuentra en efecto el baterista Aharon Kaminski que viene más bien del rock alternativo, el productor e instrumentista Meidad Zaharia, fundador en otros tiempos del sello Mio Records, el saxofonista Pierre Olivier Govin (Frangloband) y finalmente el célebre pianista Slava Ganelin, quien fue en otros tiempos el alma del Ganelin Trio. Un piano, una batería y percusiones, un saxofón, loops y samples... Con semejante personal y frente acrobacias tales Hugh Hopper nos ha habituado a que uno se pregunte qué género de música nos espera puesto que se trata de una sola improvisación dividida en cinco partes.

Pero lo que intriga más todavía es lo que se nos da a conocer en las notas del libreto, a saber: que la sesión estaba normalmente prevista para dos. Inicialmente el productor quería grabara Kaminski y Ganelin, pero con la escucha de la sesión, Zaharia había tenido la idea de añadir un bajo, el de Hugh Hopper en una regrabación. Después Pierre Olivier Govin está incorporado también con el mismo procedimiento. Al principio se podría creer en un re-make de 1984 y por tanto también en una banda sonora en coherencia con el clásico de George Orwell. Todo es como en 1972, un bajo eléctrico en tensión, con sonido desmultiplicado y con drone inestable, todo dominado por sonidos apenas identificables pero pudiendo hacer pensar en una lejana multitud agitada. Pero poco a poco Kaminski y Ganelin toman posesión y el fuzz bass desaparece en beneficio de un bajo simplemente eléctrico. Se entra en la segunda fase y una extraña impresión puede atravesar al oyente en este momento, la sensación de una modernidad ya oída. Es en lo que se caracterizan la segunda y tercera partes de esta pieza, ese sonido aparentemente con referencias al prog, pero de una sutileza tal que uno duda en los remarques. Al principio de la segunda parte la música puede remitir a Leg end, o Unrest de Henry Cow en lo que se refiere a la improvisación, pero sin por ello decir que se está en el jazz. Los ritmos, el posicionamiento de los solistas no evoca directamente al jazz. Es en concreto el enfoque de Pierre Olivier Govin que instala el clima, no imponiéndose él como lo haría casi de forma natural un saxofonista de jazz, él se instala un poco a la manera de un Geoff Leigh, desapareciendo antes que uno le preste demasiada atención. Slava Ganelin es, en cuanto a él, bastante reconocible, autor de sus agitados asaltos inmediatamente temperados por una calma asegurada tal como los libraba en el Ganelin trio. Poco a poco, sin embargo, las referencias ritmicas al jazz se instalan pero sin nunca identificarse totalmente a este estilo.

En el cuarto movimiento Govin endosa, esta vez más claramente, la costumbre del saxofonista de jazz en una pieza que podría hacer pensar en una versión actual de Soft Heap. Algunas discretas manipulaciones sobre el sonido del saxo remiten una vez más al trabajo sonoro efectuado en los dos primeros [álbumes de] Henry Cow. Kaminski por su parte hace demostración de una buena inventiva tanto en la batería como en las percusiones, puesto que la manera de tocar con el sonido contribuye tanto al aprovechamiento del ritmo como al simple respeto del tempo. El bajo de Hugh Hopper está muy bien aprovechado en la mezcla con un sonido un poco diferente del que nos tiene acostumbrado a escuchar viniendo de él. Se añadieron sonidos graves que hacen que el sonido del instrumento esté más presente, pero también un poco más apagado, haciéndole planear como una sombra persistente sobre el grupo entero. La improvisación se calma totalmente en su última fase, el bajo ha desaparecido para dar lugar a discretos loops con la fuente bastante desconocida, el saxofón está también eclipsado y los misteriosos loops forman un tapiz detrás de la batería de Kaminski que se aplaca y el piano de Ganelin que toma aires de Satie o de un Mal Waldron introspectivo.

Slava Ganelin actuando en Lituania con el Ganelin Trio Priority

Este octavo volumen ocupa un lugar particular en el seno de toda la serie. En efecto, North & south, Frangloband o Soft Boundaries se inscriben en una especie de tratamiento del pasado al presente. Pero ese Bass of Top propone una música enteramente nueva. En efecto, aquí no hay temas familiares como se pueda encontrar en las otras formaciones, la organización de la música es inédita e incluso si se encuentran trazos del pasado, este se ve reapropiado por el músico de una manera totalmente nueva. Del mismo modo, los miembros de este grupo así como las circunstancias de la grabación, revelan una selección inédita. Si en las diferentes formaciones de los primeros volúmenes se encuentran músicos que comparten un pedestal común, el prog o el post prog, aquí todo es distinto. Ni trazo de prog ni de Kaminski ni de Ganelin. Pierre Olivier Govin demuestra ser un músico que hubiera podido tener un camino aún más largo con Hugh Hopper, y aparece en este volumen como totalmente en fase con la evolución musical que perseguía el bajista. Este disco es también un mensaje póstumo a todos aquellos que actualmente tocan incansablemente una música que data de 40 años, convencidos de estar a la vanguardia y preguntándose al mismo tiempo porqué venden tan pocos discos. Para esta larga improvisación Hopper demuestra cómo influencias tan gloriosas sean las que sean no deben hacer función de cortapisa sino que deben permitir, al contrario, una reactualización de la música.

Volume 9 - Anatomy of Facelift

El volumen nueve se presenta bajo apariencias engañosas; en efecto, cuando se propone cinco veces el mismo título 'Facelift' podría creerse que se destina sobre todo a los oyentes versados en musicología. Cinco veces la misma pieza ino se puede seducir nada más que a aficionados de profundos estudios musicales! Pero el hecho es que estas cinco versiones son totalmente diferentes y presentan cada una un verdadero interés. De modo que uno no se cansa en modo alguno de este disco a pesar de su constitución. Sin pretender disertar sobre 'Facelift como lo haría un musicólogo; a pesar de todo, es necesario detenerse sobre la singularidad de cada versión porque el álbum representa bien el título que tiene; en realidad, es una anatomía de esta composición a la cual estamos invitados.

'Facelift' es el título que abría Third y por el que se introdujo pues la mutación que Soft Machine efectuó en menos de un año. Si 'Sightly all the time' u 'Out bloody rageous' soltaron en realidad las amarras en el primer período de la máquina blanda, 'Moon in june' y 'Facelift' fueron el nexo. Aún siendo instrumental, 'Facelift' conservaba el aspecto directo propio del rock. Menos sofisticado que las dos composiciones de Ratledge,

Robert Wyatt, Hugh Hopper y Mike Ratledge

['Facelift'] permitía al grupo no desorientar más que moderadamente a su auditorio, si se me permite decirlo. Es justamente en parte éste el motivo que Hugh Hopper aborda en la introducción de este CD donde él expone que no habiendo hecho estudios musicales particulares de sus composiciones sean más bien simples, citando como ejemplo contrario a Mike Ratledge, quien teniendo nociones teóricas sobre la música le permite componer de manera más compleja. El propósito de Hopper subrayando que una composición de apariencia simple puede hacerse más compleja según la manera de quien la aborda va a estar ilustrada por la selección y la sucesión que quiso Michael King, quien va a secundar, en efecto, a una complejidad gradual del título.

Este comienza por la que es probablemente la versión más rock de 'Facelift', grabada el 25 de junio de 1969 en París; esta versión es una de las raras en trío y ella da a entender lo que se podría llamar el esqueleto de la composición. Desprovista de la introducción a la cual la pieza será adosada por la suite, uno entra inmediatamente en el chorus inicial y en lo sucesivo célebre. La manera de tocar el bajo de Hopper está bastante concentrada en un espectro limitado, a la manera de un bajista de rock, Wyatt tiene una poderosa forma de tocar; los dos músicos estando favorecidos por la mezcla, es por lo que se puede hablar del esqueleto del título. Lo que acentúa la dimensión rock de esta primera interpretación es también el sonido tan crudo del órgano de Ratledge que toma a veces acentos de guitarra eléctrica. Su solo es impresionante y el conjunto del trío despliega toda la energía de un grupo de rock. Cuatro meses después el ambiente evolucionó sensiblemente. Ahí todavía uno se asienta directamente en el título pero el trío de base está aumentado por Elton Dean (saxo alto), Lyn Dobson (flauta y saxofón), Marc Charig (trompeta) y Nick Evans (trombón).

Cierto que el sonido es un poco confuso y uno tiene dificultad para distinguir a cada uno de

Volume 9 - Anatomy of Facelift

Five live performances of Hugh's signature composition, Facelift, as performed by Soft Machine, 1969 through 1971. Booklet includes extracts from Lois Frith's University Thesis: Anatomy of Facelift
Mike Ratledge, organ, piano; Hugh Hopper, bass; Robert Wyatt, drums; Elton Dean, alto sax, saxello (3-6); Lyn Dobson, soprano sax (3-4); Nick Evans, trombone (3); Mark Charig, cornet (3)

1. Facelift (Workshop Session, Cremo Italy, March 3rd, 2007)
2. Facelift (Le Bataclan, Paris, June 25th, 1969)
3. Facelift (Festival Amougies Belgium, October 28th, 1969)
4. Facelift (Fairfield Halls, Croydon, January 4th, 1970)
5. Facelift (Havikodden Arts Centre, Oslo, February 28th, 1971)
6. Facelift (Turfschip, Breda, March 21st, 1971)

estos músicos pero esto, resulta claramente compensado, con la llegada de los arreglos que vienen a incorporarse al tema de base. Estos arreglos así como los solos dan a esta pieza una dimensión menos cruda, más sofisticada. Los solos son privilegiados en la tercera versión, fechados el 4 de enero de 1970, se asemejan a la grabación de Third. Hay menos solistas potenciales puesto que los vientos se reducen a Dean y Dobson, pero de golpe la dimensión jazz aparece más evidente puesto que hay más sitio para la improvisación. Es también la primera vez que el título no se tocó directamente sino que se presentó durante unos cuantos calmados minutos antes de la llegada de la pieza propiamente dicha.

Las dos últimas versiones son interesantes porque aportan también una evolución un poco inesperada. Se vuelve a la fórmula en trío, aun cuando en la escucha uno podría creer que hay dos órganos. La primera de estas dos versiones está grabada el 27 de marzo de 1971 en Noruega; la introducción un poco lenta de la pieza se prolonga y durante un instante uno cree incluso que el título va a tomar una dirección un poco free pero esto se calma muy rápido. La soltura de Ratledge en cuanto a hacer juegos malabares entre el órgano y piano eléctrico recuerdan el ambiente de los primeros National Health. Los habituales habrán comprendido que yo quiero describir por aquí sonoridades bastante refinadas pero de repente el bajo de Hopper toma un sonido claramente más afilado y el tema suena. Sin embargo, Ratledge mantiene este clima un poco jazz rock durante toda la pieza, Wyatt se queda bastante discreto en su manera de marcar el ritmo. La versión siguiente, separada un mes de la que venimos escuchando, se instala un poco de la misma manera con la diferencia que la introducción lenta es más breve, el tema llega más de repente y Wyatt retoma una forma de tocar más masiva. Las improvisaciones de Ratledge son también más directas y comprometidas. Se aprecia al término de este recorrido que escuchar cinco veces el mismo título no ha sido aburrido ya que las versiones seleccionadas son diferentes y todas interesantes. La selección muy juiciosa de Michael King ha venido a ilustrar a la perfección el propósito de Hugh Hopper recogiendo la diferencia entre el título y la manera de abordarlo. Esto parece evidente en el jazz pero lo es menos en una música que tiene una parte de sus raíces en el rock.

Hugh Hopper, Robert Wyatt, Mike Ratledge, Lyn Dobson y Elton Dean en 1971

Pero esto abre también una interrogante en relación con la cohorte de homenajes a los gigantes del jazz al cual uno tiene derecho después de tan largo tiempo. ¿El mejor homenaje consiste en volver a tocar el tema o apropiárselo para hacer cualquier cosa nueva? En menos de dos años están comprendidas estas cinco versiones de 'Facelift' y en este corto lapso de tiempo el título ha evolucionado mucho. Pero haría falta entonces volver a Volume 2: Frangloband y que se rememorase la versión de 'Facelift' que figura para convenir que aquella marcó seguramente un poco de audacia y aparece como un poco moderada a la luz de esto que se viene escuchándose.

Volume 10 - Was A Friend

Queda pues un décimo volumen que aparecerá a principios de septiembre (5) [2015]], que contendrá sobre todo un reencuentro de Hopper y Chris Cutler asi como una versión de 'Was a friend' (6), por el trío de Denis Colín.

Dado el nivel de los nueve primeros títulos, hay pocas posibilidades para que este último volumen decepcione. La idea de publicar estos CDs separadamente y no bajo la forma de una caja es correcta en cuanto a que deja la posibilidad a cada uno de favorecer lo que se desee escuchar incluso cuando, en mi opinión, los diez volúmenes son indispensables tal y como son, y en cuanto a que cada capítulo da valor al grupo de esta colección. Es necesario señalar también, una vez más, el excelente trabajo de organización y de compilación efectuado por Michael King quien demuestra de nuevo la exigencia de calidad que ha marcado sobradamente todos los títulos sobre los cuales ha trabajado, tanto para su sello como para los que le pasaron lista; uno no podía imaginar mejor homenaje a la música de Hugh Hopper. Para ser completo del todo, sin que eso no sea reivindicado por el sello Gonzo, esta serie parece salir en cantidad muy limitada puesto que algunos ejemplares son ya un poco difíciles de encontrar. Finalmente, en el mismo sello podréis encontrar algunas otras reediciones importantes en relación con Hugh Hopper. Hay sobre todo los dos álbumes del cuarteto Hopper, Dean, Tippett, Gallivan a saber, Cruel but Fair y Mercy Dash. Presente igualmente en el catálogo encontramos la reedición del álbum Monster Band, de Hopper, asi como un Live de 1971 de Soft Machine junto a Daevid Allen y Gilly Smith.

Volume 10 - Was A Friend

Various rare tracks, including duets with drummers Chris Cutler (Henry Cow) & Seb Rockford and concluding with Hugh final musical performance: Was A Friend, performed by Denis Colin Trio, 2008
Robert Wyatt, vocals, piano (1 & bonus); Chris Cutler, drums, electronics (2); Seb Rochford, drums (3); Jeff Sherman, acoustic & bass guitar (4); Denis Colin, bass clarinet (5); Julien Omé, guitar (5); François Verly, percussion (5)

1. Was a Friend (Bresse-sur-Grosne, November 1983/Kent, April 1995)
2. Full Flight (Nozart Festival, Cologne, March 3rd, 2007)
3. Flight Full (Roundhouse, London, October 27th, 2006)
4. Dim_04 (Washington/Kent, 2007)
5. Was a Friend (Kerava, Finland, June 7th, 2008) bonus: Round Midnight (Kent, circa 1960)

(1) Originalmente este artículo se publicó en la revista francesa Improjazz. (N. del T.)

(2) Cuando se publicó originalmente el artículo solo se habian publicado los 9 primeros títulos. Actualmente ya se ha publicado el 10 y último.

(3) Michael King falleció el 2 de marzo de 2015. Puedes leer una entrevista con él en El Chamberlín, n° 15 (N. del T.)

(4) Frase irónica por parte del autor que recuerda a festivales que, con una tradición de decenios, se organizan en París y alrededores apoyados por instituciones oficiales de la ciudad como el Festival Sons d'hiver (desde 1991, en Val-de-Marne y Paris) y Banlieues Bleues (desde 1984, organizado por dicha asociación, en Seine-Saint-Denis y otros extrarradios de Paris) N. del T.

(5) El articulo original se publicó en septiem¬bre de 2015 pocas fechas antes de la edición del último volumen.

(6) 'Was a friend' era el título genérico que Michael King tenía pensado para la salida de esta colección.

Originalmente publicado en la revista francesa
Improjazz# 218, septiembre 2015.
Cuenta con los permisos del autor y el editor de Improjazz, Philippe Renaud.
https://sites.google.com/site/improjazzmag/home

HUGH HOPPER - DEDICATED TO HUGH

Hugh Hopper nació el 29 de abril de 1945 en Canterbury y falleció el 7 de junio de 2009.

Para saber más de estos 10 CDs:
http://www.noisette.nl/discs/DEDICATEDTOHUGH.htm
https://www.gonzomultimedia.co.uk/product details/15691

Los CDs de esta colección Dedicated to Hugh

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

¡Entrevista a Robert Wyatt! - Tribulaciones - 24 enero, 2014

¡ENTREVISTA A ROBERT WYATT!

Uno de los nombres más respetados y creativos de la escena del rock progresivo y la vanguardia británica, miembro fundador de Soft Machine y dueño de una notable carrera solista, concedió un extenso y profundo reportaje -algo no muy habitual en su larga trayectoria- a una periodista argentina desde su residencia en las afueras de Londres. Vale la pena compartirlo.

Por Mario De Cristófaro

Entrevista: Julieta Desmarás
Fotografías: Cuneiform Records

Nació en Bristol, Gran Bretaña, en el año 1945. Baterista y miembro fundador de Soft Machine, una de las bandas prominentes de la escena del rock progresivo de mediados de los '60. Hace pocos meses, el sello estadounidense Cuneiform editó una nueva compilación de Robert Wyatt, con material inédito y grabaciones de su época en la banda. "'68" se trata de música que creó en Estados Unidos tras la extenuante gira norteamericana junto a The Jimi Hendrix Experience. El material está en cd y vinilo; un lujo de colección.

En 1966, utilizando el nombre de uno de los libros de William Burroughs, Wyatt forma Soft Machine, junto a Kevin Ayers quien se encargó del bajo y las voces, el tecladista Mike Ratledge y el guitarrista australiano Daevid Allen. Esta formación primaria, de Soft Machine, fue una de las que definieron la psicodelia británica, presentándose en diversos clubs en Londres a lo largo de 1967. Desafortunadamente en 1968, por problemas con su visa, Daevid Allen deja la banda. Convertidos en trío, se unen a la gira de Jimi Hendrix's Experience (sí, el mismísmo Hendrix era su fan y les prestó un colchón para que se quedaran tocando en EEUU) durante sus conciertos brindados a principios de1968. La banda también tocó en varios discos de artistas reconocidos entre ellos, Syd Barret. Compositor, cantante, percusionista y multi-instrumentista, Robert Wyatt es un hombre reservado y misterioso, se toma su tiempo para revelar lo preciso, como si en él refugiase sólo lo onírico y esencial. Dice que es hijo del jazz y del alcohol, pero nosotros sabemos que es mucho más que eso.

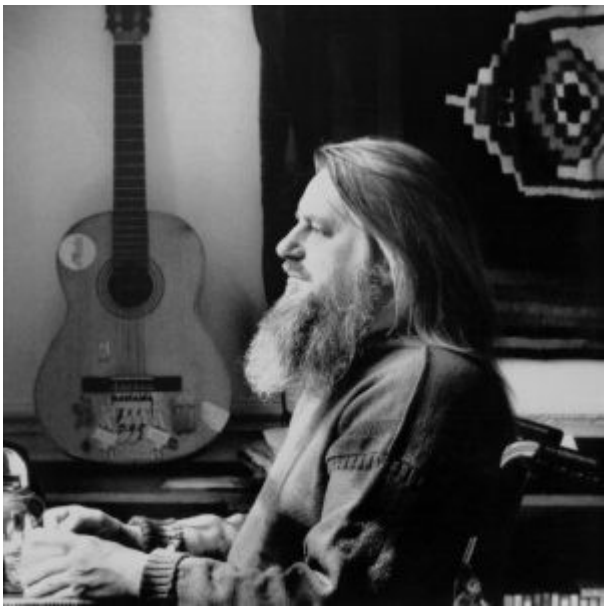
¿Cómo fue la rutina de hacer música con Syd?

Sus tiempos en el estudio eran irregulares, por lo tanto teníamos que volver un par de veces para encajar. Era buena onda y tranquilo. (Suelta una carcajada) Me sorprendió muchísimo cuando decidió dejar la toma de un ensayo en su disco editado (The Madcap Laughs, 1970).

David (Gilmour) es un verdadero caballero con cierto porte aristocrático donde enmascara sus emociones más sinceras

Como solista, colaboraste varias veces con otro integrante de Pink Floyd, David Gilmour. ¿Cómo es la experiencia cada vez que se encuentran?

Fui convocado por el London Festival Hall como curador invitado por unas semanas y lo invité a tocar. Ese concierto fue fantástico. Él no venía tocando públicamente y se dio todo de manera muy natural. Un tiempo después, participó en mi disco "Cuckooland" en el tema Forest, dónde realizó un increíble solo con slide. Posteriormente toqué la trompeta en una pieza instrumental para su disco "On an Island". David es un verdadero caballero con cierto porte aristocrático donde enmascara sus emociones más sinceras.



Tu padre tocaba el piano y tu madre era periodista, creciste en un ambiente creativo ¿recordás las primeras melodías y pinturas que te impactaron?

Conocí a mi padre cuando tenía unos seis años (¡es una larga historia!). Profesionalmente era psicólogo. Lo recuerdo tocando adaptaciones de canciones sencillas para poder cantar juntos. La primera que me viene a la mente es Away in a Manger y adaptaciones de temas populares y divertidos como Little Brown Jug, how i love thee y las más tristes, como Sweet Molly Malone. Luego, cuando yo tenía ocho años, agarró esclerosis múltiple y no pudo tocar más. Coleccionaba vinilos de Benjamin Britten, Ravel, Bartok.

También le gustaba el jazz de la pre-guerra como Ellington, Django y Fats Waller. A mi madre le gustaba Monteverdi y la música popular de su juventud, el charleston por ejemplo. Pero lo que realmente me transportó fueron sus preciosos libros de arte. Pasé mis años escolares en mi cuarto tratando de pintar.

Soy un afortunado de haber sido testigo de mis héroes: Art Blakey, Thelonious Monk, Charles Mingus, John Coltrane.

¿Qué te aportó el jazz que no te dio el rock o el pop?

Mi era de descubrimiento fueron los 50. Conozco gente que piensa que la cultura musical de su juventud fue la mejor y vivieron bajo esos estándares el resto de sus vidas. El jazz de los 50 fue rejuvenecido por Charlie Parker y el be-bop. Soy un afortunado de haber sido testigo de mis héroes: Art Blakey, Thelonious Monk, Charles Mingus, John Coltrane. A veces siento que podría emocionarme hasta las lágrimas por todo lo que me brindaron. Pero me encanta que la música pop pueda unir a la gente y por supuesto que mi primer trabajo pago fue tocar música pop en fiestas locales. No hay nada como cuando la gente se para y empieza a bailar lo que estás tocando. Es un servicio, como el de un cocinero. Y estoy agradecido a los Beatles por poner en el mapa a la música británica, que es principalmente un fruto de los ritmos afroamericanos.

HAY UN MUNDO MÁS ALLÁ

Robert Wyatt, además de ser el batero original de SM, mantuvo una prolífera carrera musical. Va del jazz al rock psicodélico, del rock al pop, del pop al bossa-nova, simplemente porque quiere y puede. Incursionó con soberbias versiones músicos latinoamericanos como Victor Jara, Violeta Parra, y Antônio Carlos Jobim, a quienes admira por su arte y compromiso político.

"Sentí interés al ver que la verdadera cultura revolucionaria no necesariamente tiene que gritar. Por los años '70 estaba atrapado en una especie de claustrofobia músico-cultural, debido a un elitismo excluyente que existe en los vastos imperios comerciales".

Un poco cansado del rock rebelde porque sí, paró su oreja hacia otro campo musical:

"El rock se distinguió por su música rebelde, pero tener el pelo largo y burlarte de la generación de tus padres no necesariamente es luchar por la justicia en el mundo real. Así que pensé, ¿qué está pasando más allá de esta cultura narcisista anglo-americano? Por lo tanto, después de haber aprendido un poco de español, me mantuve alerta a las posibles canciones de los trovadores, tanto en España como en Latinoamérica. Eso me dio la oportunidad de celebrar esas canciones que imaginaban un mundo basado en la ayuda mutua", declara.

Se mostró contento al conocer que en nuestro país hay un proyecto colectivo para juntar bronce y poner en lugar de donde yace un monumento a Julio Argentino Roca, el Monumento a la Mujer Originaria. Por momentos parece un trovador de estos tiempos: "Latinoamérica está en movimiento, generando cosas por ella misma y a su manera, finalmente. Mientras Gran Hermano al norte de la frontera está distraído por los acontecimientos del mundo al norte de la línea ecuatorial."

Su álbum "Nothing Can Stop Us Now" tiene canciones folk y versiones de intérpretes de países sudamericanos. Disco influenciado por la voz de trovadores latinos y que se vio afectado por el negocio musical. "Virgin records no me permitía hacer música para otra compañía discográfica y se quedaba con mucho dinero de nuestra venta, no nos dejaba ni siquiera con lo justo para vivir. Lo que nos salvó fue conocer a gente post punk en Rough Trade Records. Ellos se arriesgaron a juntar nuestros singles y se aseguraron que nos llevásemos bien con otras compañías discográficas", recuerda Wyatt. Dentro de ese trabajo está "Shipbuilding" escrita por Elvis Costello, y un claro manifiesto en contra de la guerra de Malvinas. Wyatt es sincero: "Nosotros, los europeos, hemos pisoteado y tenemos bajo nuestras suelas tantas culturas vulnerables devastadas que deberíamos, al menos, saber decir 'lo siento'". Fiel a su postura pacifista sentencia los resultados de la era tacheriana en el universo cultural y musical. "Pienso en eso como 'la era Reaganomía', la era en la que los ricos y poderosos se les dio poder sobre los gobiernos electos, incluso, los ricos se hicieron más ricos y los pobres cada vez más pobres. Hoy en día sigue siendo el caso de muchos países del mundo", reflexiona.

Alejado del ruido de ciudad, Wyatt vive en las afueras de Gran Bretaña con su esposa Alfie. Su mujer no es sólo una musa, sino que juega un rol muy importante en la obra de Robert.

No estoy deliberadamente ni fuera ni dentro de la gran industria musical.

Hay una frase tuya en la que te referís a tu mujer, Alfie: "De no haber existido ella, me habría dedicado a beber hasta morir escuchando a Thelonious Monk". ¿Cómo es trabajar con tu mujer?

Varios de los poemas que ella escribió fueron canciones, y su arte adornó todas las portadas de mis discos. Es una persona muy apasionada por las cosas. Sabe reflejar muy bien sus sentimientos, y cómo conjurarlos en palabras para que luego yo pueda cantar. Una verdadera escritora, fuerte y hermosa.

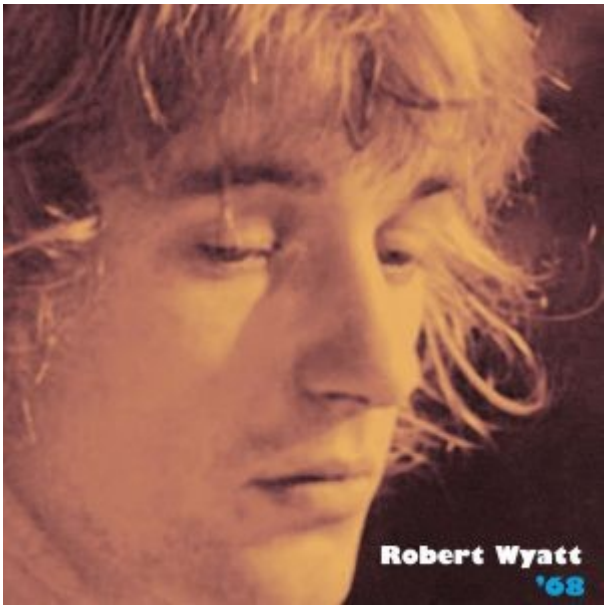
¿Cómo logras mantenerte a salvo de cualquier contaminación posible producto del negocio de la música?

No estoy deliberadamente ni fuera ni dentro de la gran industria musical. Simplemente, no veo necesario orientar o encajar mi trabajo en un mercado determinado. Me considero muy afortunado de haber vivido de esta manera. Varios de mis artistas favoritos fueron comercialmente exitosos (Stevie Wonder, Pablo Picasso), y otros que también admiro (Charlie Parker, Frida Kahlo) no lo fueron. Mi amor por lo que han hecho es igual.

¿Cuál es tu pensamiento acerca de la religión?

Por más de que no haya ninguna evidencia verificable de un dios benigno, muchas culturas tienen religiones. Sin embargo pienso la religión más en relación con el Arte. Ahí es donde está el mundo de los sueños.

La utopía es otra fantasía religiosa y ya tenemos suficientes.



¿Es preocupante que los jóvenes no tengan sueños políticos? ¿Estamos viviendo un mundo sin utopías?

No veo que sea preocupante pero sí espero que no estemos viviendo en un mundo utópico. La utopía es otra fantasía religiosa y ya tenemos suficientes.

HISTORIA DE "68"

Bajo el sello estadounidense Cuneiform, se editó una nueva compilación de Robert Wyatt, con material inédito y grabaciones durante su época en Soft Machine. "68" se trata de música que creó luego de que Soft Machine terminara de tocar como banda soporte durante las dos giras que dio su amigo y fan, Jimi Hendrix por todo Estados Unidos. El resto de los integrantes de SF volvieron a Inglaterra y él decidió quedarse y ver qué onda unos días más. Según palabras textuales de Wyatt, originalmente no había intención alguna de sacar un álbum con los temas que figuran en el disco. Simplemente se dio así. "Son canciones experimentales.

Sobre todo de autodescubrimiento. Quería desafiar, por primera vez, mi capacidad de grabar solo en un estudio. Lo que me divierte en retrospectiva es ver que estaba involucrado con el reto instrumental y listo para definir qué cantar o cómo. Claramente estaba tratando de trazar mi música en el mapa" declara Robert.

"68" es un álbum donde se puede percibir los cimientos de un músico elevado, cuyo único desafío es superarse con música. Un must have para los amantes de este barbudo explorador de culturas que canta –y cuenta – el mundo, armado nada menos que de su poesía.

>> L'interview sur le site de Tribulaciones

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Gramola galáctica: Una tarde con Robert Wyatt - El Pais - 11 de marzo de 2014

EL PAÍS
EL PERIÓDICO GLOBAL

Gramola galáctica: Una tarde con Robert Wyatt

A finales de los ochenta, mi mujer y yo fuimos a Castelldefels a conocer a Robert Wyatt y a su esposa, Alfreda Benge, guiados por Juan Bufill y su compañera, Maria Pilar Tirbió. Bufill (poeta, cineasta experimental, crítico de arte y muchas cosas más) era entonces el principal heraldo de Wyatt en Barcelona, por no decir en España. Él me descubrió, casi una década antes, el deslumbrante Rock Bottom, su obra maestra. En los primeros setenta, Wyatt era para mí el batería y cantante de Soft Machine. Primer encuentro: en el disco doble Rock 71 (Rock Buster, en el original), "el de la portada del forzudo" (luego sabríamos que era un joven Schwarzenneger), donde aparecía el tema To Mark Everywhere. Nunca me volvió loco Soft Machine, aunque parece que tenían un directo de impresión, no en vano se los llevó de gira Jimi Hendrix.

Segundo encuentro: la maravillosa Oh Caroline, compuesta y cantada por Wyatt con Matching Mole, el grupo que fundó en el 72, tras dejar Soft Machine. No sé si antes o justo después de grabar el disco de Matching Mole hizo su primer álbum en solitario, The end of an ear. Me hizo una ilusión loca cuando lo pillé en un cajón de ofertas, pero la parte free me pareció latosa y aparqué su nombre.

Hasta que aparece Bufill con su espada flamígera y me dice: "Abre esas orejas y escucha Rock Bottom". También me dijo: "Escucha de nuevo la excepcional versión de Las Vegas Tango, de Gil Evans, en The end of an ear". Tenía razón. Bufill casi siempre tiene razón. Sobre los orígenes de Rock Bottom circulan dos versiones, la (más o menos) oficial y la legendaria. Estamos en 1973. La acción tiene lugar en la casa de la pintora June Campbell Cramer (en arte, Lady Jane), mitad musa mitad tutora excéntrica de los principales miembros del rock progresivo inglés de la época (o Canterbury Sound: Soft Machine, Caravan, Gong, Henry Cow, Hatfield and the North, etc), que vive en Maida Vale, en Londres. Wyatt se ha metido de todo, como la mayoría de los asistentes, pero solo él tiene la mala fortuna de caer por una ventana abierta. Según unos, era un tercer piso; según otros, el quinto. Da igual: no se mató de milagro, pero se cascó la columna vertebral y quedó paralítico de por vida. Acerca de la ingesta fatal, Wyatt recordaba "un ponche que estaba buenísimo, aunque nadie sabía muy bien lo que contenía".

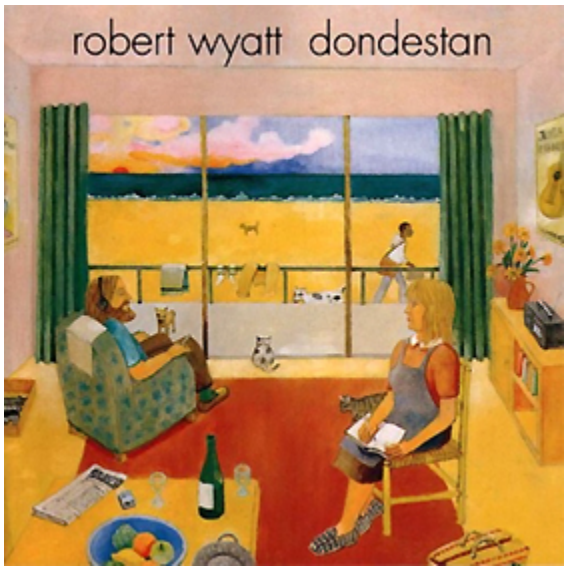
La versión legendaria me gusta más, por algo es legendaria. La fiesta está en su apogeo y Wyatt se ha llevado a una chica al lavabo (o viceversa). Su novia, Alfreda Benge (a partir de ahora Alfie, porque hubo confianza), se percata de la maniobra y comienza a aporrear la puerta. A Wyatt le entra una paranoia del nueve y se dice "He de salir de aquí". Y sale por la ventana, olvidando que está en un tercer o quinto piso. ¿Algún dato a favor de esta versión? La foto que, según algunos, se hicieron a modo de felicitación navideña al año siguiente, en la que Wyatt está ya en silla de ruedas, muy sonriente, ataviado con una túnica multicolor, y a su lado, con humor negrísimo, Alfie Benge empuña un cuchillo de trinchar venado. No, no les pregunté sobre la veracidad de la leyenda: me pareció un asunto inconveniente. Puede que la foto aludiera a una doble culpa: la de él por engañarla, la de ella por llamar frenéticamente a la puerta del lavabo y, en cierto modo, propiciar el vuelo paranoico.

Seamos justos: fotos siniestras aparte, Alfie Benge estuvo siempre a su lado (se casaron poco después del accidente) y fue capital en su recuperación. "De no haber sido por ella", nos dijo, "yo no habría hecho nada. Bueno, sí: habría bebido hasta la muerte escuchando a Thelonious Monk".



Más leyendas. Yo estaba convencido de que Rock Bottom era un álbum que surgió como una respuesta emocional al accidente y fue grabado en Venecia, recién salido del hospital. Error parcial. Supe aquella tarde que no lo grabó en Venecia. Lo compuso en Venecia (en buena parte) con un teclado casi de juguete, durante el rodaje de la terrorífica Don't Look Now (Amenaza en la sombra), de Nicholas Roeg, en la que trabajaba Alfie. "Quizás por eso es tan acuático", dijo Bufill. Y, nos dijo Wyatt, lo completó y grabó en Inglaterra, en el 74, producido por Nick Mason, el batería de Pink Floyd.

Es evidente, sin embargo, que se hizo después de la caída. Rock Bottom está empapado en dolor: basta escuchar esa voz increíble, siempre a punto de romperse o de echar a volar. Pensé entonces: cada vez que vuelva a ver Amenaza en la sombra veré a Wyatt acercando las manos al teclado, manos temblorosas pero fuertes, Wyatt luchando por salir a flote mientras el agua de un canal subterráneo y oscuro se desborda y sube hacia la luz.

Curiosamente (o no), grabó también ese mismo año una inesperada versión de I'm a believer, la canción que escribió Neil Diamond y cantaron los Monkees en 1966, y que se convirtió en el mayor éxito de su carrera y trepó a lo alto de las listas británicas. El productor de Top of the Pops se negó a que la interpretara en directo porque lo de la silla de ruedas, dijo, "podía resultar deprimente para el público familiar", pero cuando los miembros de su banda aparecieron sentados en sillas de ruedas en la portada del New Musical Express no le quedó más remedio que tragar.

En 1975 publica Ruth is stranger than Richard (que durante mucho tiempo se vendió, en disco doble, junto con Rock Bottom). A partir de ahí yo le pierdo la pista hasta los primeros ochenta, cuando reemerge con Nothing Can Stop Us, un disco muy combativo (acababa de afiliarse al Partido Comunista británico) y, sobre todo, con una serie de versiones majestuosas que publica Rough Trade (y en España, Nuevos Medios): At Last I Am Free, de Chic, Round Midnight, de Thelonius Monk, Memories of you, de Andy Razaf y Eubie Blake, y, joya de esa corona, Shipbuilding, de Costello y Clive Langer. Aquí yo también me había armado un lío. No es estrictamente una versión, aunque haya acabado pareciéndolo: Costello y Langer la escribieron para Wyatt, que la grabó primero, en 1982, y Costello la cantó un año más tarde en Punch the Clock (1983).

Wyatt y Alfie Benge recalaron por primera vez en Castelldefels en esa época, en el invierno de 1982, y en la apropiadísima calle Estrella de Mar, y al escuchar ese nombre recordé una imagen: mi amigo llegando a la casa de los Wyatt en Londres y viendo, a través de las cortinas de su ventana, un coral rojo, como si vivieran bajo el agua. Nuestra visita debió tener lugar entre el otoño del 86 y la primavera del 87. Vinieron a rodar un espléndido documental de Juan Bufill, El viaje de Robert Wyatt, para el programa Arsenal, que dirigía Manuel Huerga en TV3, la cadena catalana: se filmó en otoño-invierno del 86/87, se estrenó en febrero de 1987, y fue el primer monográfico sobre su vida y su obra. Yo le llevé un disco (no recuerdo ahora si de Allen Toussaint o de Jimmy Reed) porque había leído en algún lado que andaba loco buscándolo. Lo agradeció mucho pero no pudo escucharlo, porque en el apartamento de Castelldefels solo tenían un lector de cassetes y, quizás, cedés.

Aquel apartamento es el que aparece, pintado por Alfie, en la portada de Dondestan, que salió en 1991. Era un lugar muy modesto, con muebles de veraneo; algunos carteles de flamenco en las paredes y, sobre todo, una terraza con un gran ventanal que daba a la playa. Allí escribieron las letras (Alfie) y músicas (Wyatt) de ese disco, en el que aparecen algunos personajes de aquellos días, como el vendedor ambulante que cargaba grandes cajas de objetos africanos y trataba de venderlos en aquella franja de playa, en pleno invierno, cuando no había ni un comprador posible. La tarde que llegamos, Wyatt y Alfie se reían de un grupo de modelos, hombres y mujeres, de cuerpos atléticos, que hacían ejercicios gimnásticos y se fotografiaban a pocos metros de su ventana.

"No es el espectáculo más apropiado para un paralítico", bromeó Wyatt.

Les recuerdo como dos reyes nórdicos, de ojos claros y melenas rubias, casi blancas.

Wyatt parecía también un cruce entre Neptuno y un patriarca ruso, por su larga y pobladísima barba. No tomaban el sol, pero estaban muy morenos: gracias a la terraza, el sol y el aire del mar llegaban hasta ellos.

De la playa había llegado también un gato al que llamaron Lobueno.
Alfie le había puesto ese nombre porque el animal estaba cojo y ella había visto en un restaurante un baldosín con la siguiente frase:
"Lo malo viene volando y lo bueno cojeando".
El gato había dejado preñada a la gata titular, que estaba en un cajón de la sala amamantando a varios gatitos. María Pilar se llevó uno de ellos.
Le pregunté a Wyatt si seguía siendo comunista. "Más que nunca". Odiaba, nos dijo, el "narcisismo cultural" europeo. "Empezando por los ingleses, que siguen siendo imperialistas sin imperio". Le interesaban todas las músicas, y casi cada noche iban a una peña flamenca de Gavà, porque había actuaciones y podían comprar casetes. Allí le llamaban "el inglés" o "Roberto". Bufill tradujo al castellano los poemas de Alfie en Dondestan porque Wyatt quería leerlos en aquella peña.

Poco más puedo contar, periodísticamente hablando. Fue una velada estupenda, pero no tomé ni una nota y bebimos incontables botellas de vino turbio (al parecer, la bebida española favorita de los Wyatt), que Alfie, Pepita y María fueron a buscar varias veces a un bar gallego. Tampoco recuerdo, por cierto, como volvimos a casa. Aquella tarde escuchamos mucha música (flamenco, sobre todo) y, ya a punto de despedirnos, Wyatt le preguntó a Bufill por algunos artistas españoles con los que pudiera hacer algo. Bufill le habló, en mi vaporoso recuerdo, del entonces dúo formado por Javier Navarrete y Alberto Iglesias, pero él quería algo "más español", y echó sobre el tapete los nombres de Gato Pérez y de Claustrofobia.

Bufill estaba convencido de que la unión de Gato y Wyatt (con Wyatt como productor, o teclista, o segunda voz, o una mezcla de todo ello) podía dar un resultado excepcional. Wyatt parecía interesado, porque le atraía la mezcla de rumba y ritmos latinos. El proyecto no cuajó. Gato había escuchado a Soft Machine pero no a Wyatt. Vale, ningún problema. Le llevamos unos discos. Le gustaron, aunque no acababa de verlo claro, y la cosa quedó en el aire.

En esa época teníamos una cierta vocación de productores, mitad productores mitad mánagers, y el plural incluye también a Francisco Casavella, DJ Ragnampiza y Joan Riambau (entre otros). Queríamos relanzar la rumba catalana y conseguimos algunos bolos para quienes más nos gustaban: logramos que Estrellas de Gracia actuaran en el Festival de Pineda de Mar y que Ramonet cantase en Costa Breve, el club que dirigía Fede Sardá y que visitábamos con frecuencia.

La propuesta de Claustrofobia salió adelante: Wyatt cantó en un castellano un tanto escuálido el tema Tu traición. Y los Claustrofobia, por cierto, ni siquiera incluyeron el nombre de Bufill en la lista de agradecimientos del disco.
Tras escuchar de nuevo en selecto programa doble Sea Song (de Rock Bottom) y Mambo, una de las piezas más oceánicas de La Catedral, creo que al que teníamos que haberle presentado para una joint venture era a Sisa. Bueno, todavía estamos a tiempo.

Para Juan Bufill y Maria Pilar Tirbió

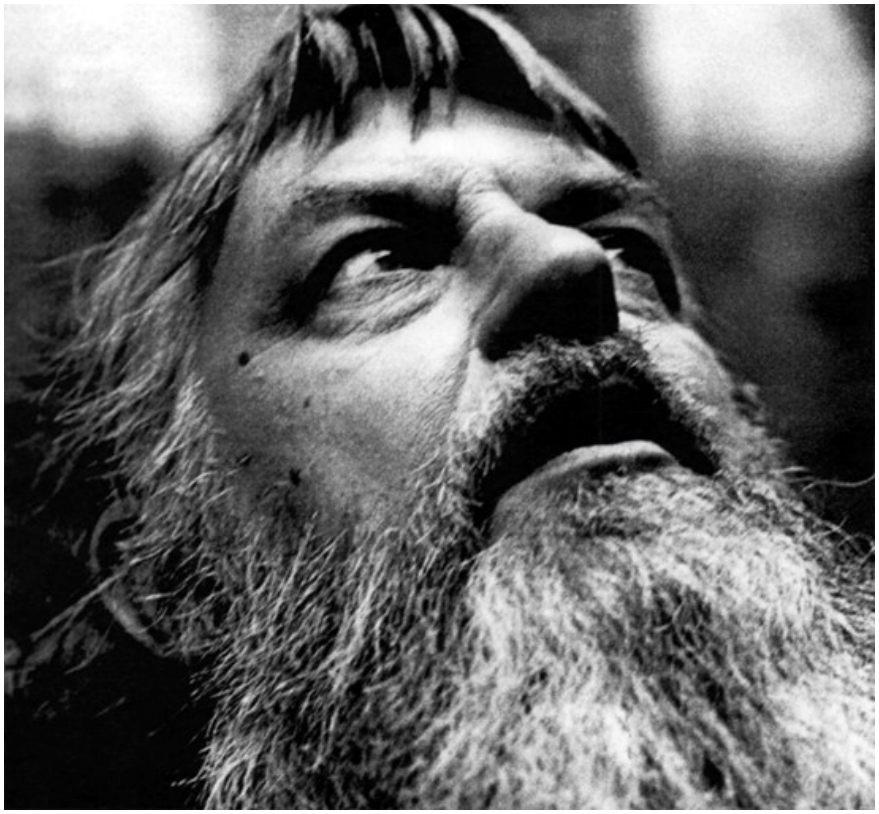
Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises



HOME

Sonido - El País - 27 de octubre de 2007

Sonido Wyatt

El alcoholismo y otros fantasmas acechaban a Robert Wyatt, legendario batería de rock, durante la concepción de su último disco, Comic opera. En esta entrevista habla de la felicidad que halla en una silla de ruedas y de su incesante búsqueda de la belleza.

Por Iker Seisdedos

MAL QUE LE PESE a Gladys, la rubia oxigenada que atiende la oficina de turismo, no abundan las razones para venir a Louth, un pueblo del norte de Inglaterra donde las casas se organizan en filas de granate melancolía. Con la estación de tren más cercana a 45 kilómetros, el lugar es tan improbable como otro cualquiera para servir de hogar a una leyenda del rock en silla de ruedas. Robert Wyatt se mudó aquí a filiales de los ochenta en busca del hábitat menos hostil posible que su poco dinero pudiese pagar. Los granjeros y comerciantes de Louth descubrirían con los años que el grandullón sonriente que se daba impulso con guantes de esquí por las aceras del pueblo fue en otra vida batería de Soft Machine, mítico grupo de la escena de Canterbury que hizo historia del rock, la psicodelia y el jazz a finales de los sesenta.

Lo que en su caso equivale a decir en otra vida; antes de aquella mala noche del muy ebrio 1973 en la que Wyatt creyó volar y cayó por la ventana de un cuarto piso en una fiesta de Pink Floyd. El médico que lo atendió de urgencia esa madrugada dijo que, de no haber estado tan sumamente borracho, el paciente habría opuesto alguna resistencia y el impacto hubiese resultado mortal. "Fue un buen movimiento para mi carrera", explica en esta entrevista Wyatt con tanta distancia que casi parece un abismo.

Pero eso sucederá más tarde. El día del encuentro (el lunes 8 de octubre) fue también el del lanzamiento en el Reino Unido de Comic opera, otro de sus brillantes tratados de jazz pop confesional y el noveno disco de la carrera que inició en solitario sobre el alféizar de una ventana. Para celebrarlo, la pequeña tienda de discos local organizó una firma de álbumes y unas cien personas llegaron de toda Inglaterra a presentar sus respetos a Wyatt.

Al término del desfile de aficionados, el músico, de 62 años, recibe al periodista en su casa georgiana de ladrillo oscuro y una sola planta. Aquí vive entre discos, cuadros e instrumentos con su suegra y su mujer, Alfreda Benge, Alfie, una tímida y enérgica inglesa de ascendencia austropolaca. Alfie y Robert contrajeron matrimonio cuando, tras un año de convalecencia, él salió del hospital sobre ruedas, "en el primer día de primavera en un larguísimo invierno".

Además de compañera, Alfie es autora de las letras originales de Comic opera, así como de las distinguidas ilustraciones de los discos de Wyatt desde el paisaje a lápiz de la portada de Rock bottom (1974), considerado su obra maestra. "De no haber existido ella, me habría dedicado a beber hasta morir escuchando a [el pianista de jazz] Thelonious Monk", aclarará Wyatt después. "Soy un cocinero terrible, no soy capaz de vestirme solo, ni puedo administrar mi dinero. En nuestro contrato, a mí me toca hacer discos"..

De ese particular acuerdo nace una de las carreras más fascinantes del rock contemporáneo. Más que un tipo con un estilo propio, Robert Wyatt es un género en sí mismo. Podría ser su voz, ese lamento ahogado que Ryuichi Sakamoto definió como "el sonido más triste del mundo". Podría ser esa intimidad agradable como el agua templada que brinda el fondo de la trompeta tocada por el propio Wyatt sin demasiada destreza. O quizá sea esa mezcla entre el jazz del que proviene y la melancolía del pop perfecto hacia la que camina.

La suma de todo esto hace de cualquiera de sus lanzamientos un acontecimiento raro pero siempre relevante. Si el último, Cuckooland (2003), fue escrito bajo los efectos del 11-S y recibido como una de las obras más singulares del año, Comic opera, que cuenta con una nómina de colaboradores similar a aquél (Brian Eno, Paul Weller o Phil Manzanera, entre otros), se mueve en terrenos más personales. Maneja, con todo, la misma descamada sinceridad de siempre. Una virtud (o un defecto) que convierte una tarde con Wyatt —charlar, escuchar discos de jazz, y bucear en el océano desmitificador de sus recuerdos— en una de las experiencias más singulares del periodismo musical.

La inusual franqueza está presente desde la bienvenida. "Estoy preocupado por la salud de Alfie. Nos han llamado del hospital por algo relacionado con el corazón. Peligroso para unos ancianos campeones del fumeque como nosotros", es lo primero que suelta Wyatt tras las presentaciones. Después, en una entrevista que se prolongará durante más de cuatro horas, admitirá: "Gran parte de mi problema es decir siempre la verdad".

PREGUNTA. No veo mucho de cómico, ni de operístico en su último disco.
RESPUESTA. Pues a mí me da risa. Y algunos pueden pensar que hoy meter una canción sobre el Che [Hasta siempre comandante] podría ser un chiste.

P. ¿Niega la cualidad melancólica que se atribuye a su obra?
R. Lo que digo es que nunca hago nada conscientemente Triste. Ni siquiera Rock bottom, que se asume nacido del trauma de quedarme parapléjico [fue en parte concebido en su convalecencia]. Lo siento, no es cierto. Algo debe de haber, sin duda, cuando tanta gente lo ve así. Pero en aquellos días no me sentía especialmente triste.

P. ¿Y cómo se sentía?
R. Salir del hospital fue como abandonar la prisión. El estímulo físico del aire fresco y el tráfico en las calles después de meses de reclusión fue una experiencia casi psicodélica. ¡Vida! ¡Árboles! ¡Gente! ¡Música! Fue un día increíble. Por supuesto que había ansiedad, pero no sentí rabia. Todo era por mi culpa. Por borracho e idiota. Sólo teníamos 15 libras en este mundo, nos fuimos a un pub a celebrarlo. Pero hablábamos del disco, ¿no?

P. Claro. Lo ha dividido en tres actos, como ya es costumbre en usted.
R. Me gustan los episodios musicales de 20 minutos. Porque soy un tonto anacrónico. Adoro la vieja distribución de los elepés. No ordeno las canciones en términos musicales, sino de la secuencia de las letras. La primera parte va sobre el amor y la pérdida. La segunda, sobre sentirse incómodo como inglés. Y la tercera, sobre reconciliarse con las ideas políticas que siempre me conmovieron. Veo mis canciones como un jardín salvaje. Soy un jardinero que está enamorado de la belleza orgánica de lo que se trae entre manos. Por eso me siento fascinado a mis sesenta años con alguien como Nat King Cole. De joven no lo apreciaba porque no era lo suficiente crudo para mí. Ahora, en cambio, tras cuarenta años de tocar instrumentos y cantar, he acabado valorando lo difícil que es dar una nota correctamente. Sólo una bella nota. Escasean.

P. ¿De qué va Just as you are, el dueto con Monica Vasconcelos, es una de las flores más conmovedoras de su último jardín?
R. No lo sé, se lo tendrás que preguntar a Alfie. Ella la escribió. Alfie...
"Vamos Roben, sabes perfectamente la respuesta", responde ella misteriosa. La aclaración llegará más tarde, cuando, en un aparte, diga: "¿Quiere conocer el verdadero significado de la canción? Hace unos meses Robert estaba empezando a tener un serio problema con el alcohol. Y comenzó a mentirme. Este tema es un mensaje de mí para él. Estás bebiendo demasiado, amigo. Ya basta. Decir: mi amor, tras todos estos años, sigue siendo condicional". Después, Wyatt corroborará la confidencia. Lleva un par de meses asistiendo a reuniones de Alcohólicos Anónimos y maneja la clase de dialéctica del rehabilitado. Cuando, a la hora de la cena, la entrevista continúe en un restaurante, Wyatt rechazará el ofrecimiento ("sólo un limoncello, Robert") de una camarera algo ajada. "El trago que márcala diferencia no es el último", dirá solemne. "El que lo cambia todo es el primero".

P. El alcohol es una constante en sus letras desde aquel "eres maravillosa cuando estás borracha" que abría Rock bottom.
R. Ya entonces estaba camino de convertirse en un problema. Hay quien dice que si empiezas a saltar por las ventanas es un mensaje de que algo marcha mal. Como soy un poco retrasado, me cuesta llegar a las conclusiones. Hace 34 años de la ventana.

P. ¿Qué sucedió esa noche?
R. No lo voy a contar [largo silencio] aunque lo recuerdo perfectamente. Puedo revelar lo que pasó, pero no por qué.

P. Bien... ¿Qué pasó?
R. Me caí de una puta ventana porque estaba demasiado borracho [golpea su plato contra la mesa]. ¿Vale? Me pusieron sedantes durante seis meses. Luego estuve consciente en el hospital hasta cumplir un año.

P. Disculpe si le he irritado. ¿Escribe Alfie las letras porque usted prefiere no hacerlo?
R. Me es difícil. Tengo mucha más música que palabras. Escribí letras durante años, pero solían ser sonidos guturales.

P. O letras como aquella en la que se limitaba a describir lo que sucedía musicalmente. Éste es el primer verso, éste es el puente, sigue el estribillo...
R. En un momento pensé, oh, no sé lo que pensé... ¿Sabe qué? Siento haberme enfadado de ese modo antes. Si no puedo decir algo totalmente fresco sobre algo me crispo. Porque las entrevistas me parecen interesantes. No hay dos iguales. Y aquel episodio no es que sea doloroso o dramático, es sólo que no hay nada nuevo que decir. Aunque suene chocante, yo no contemplo aquel accidente como algo malo. Fue un nuevo comienzo. Puesto que mi vida es mejor después que aquello, mucho mejor, de hecho, no lo veo como una tragedia. Es sólo un cambio. Y en mi caso, a pesar de las dificultades obvias, soy una persona más feliz. La gente que no se ha roto nunca la espalda piensa: qué terrible vivir así. Pero es algo que sucede. i*Bang*! y a otra cosa. Parecido a un animal salvaje cuando está en la jungla. Llega un helicóptero, le atrapa con una red, y al poco está en una reserva en Tanzania. Y piensa: cojones, dónde están mis amigos, mis árboles... y al final se da cuenta de que está en un lugar más seguro. Si fuese religioso, diría que fue un don. Esto me recuerda la mejor mala crítica sobre mi trabajo que nunca leí. "Como mucho nos temíamos, Wyatt se cayó aquel día sobre su cabeza" irisas].

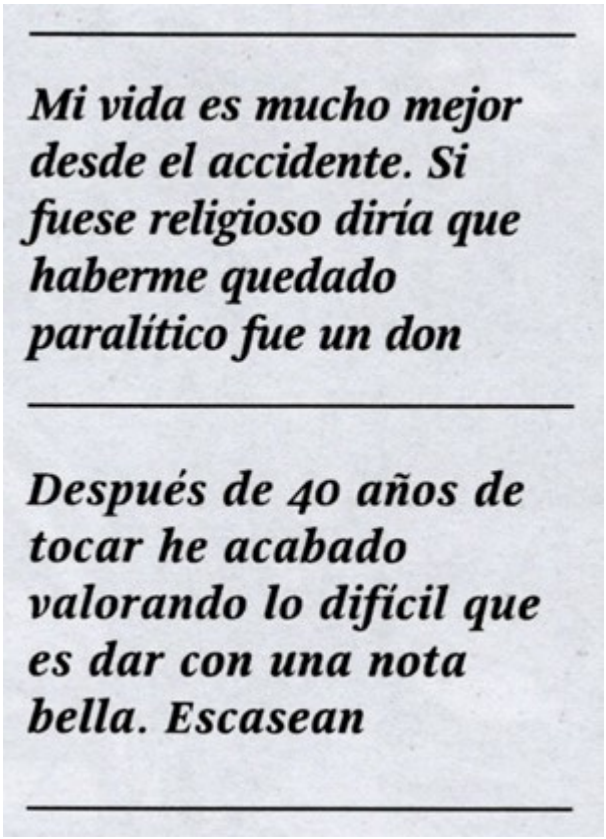
Robert Wyatt (tercero desde la izquierda), con la formación de Soft Machine de 1970. Foto: Francis Fowke



P. ¿Cómo era antes de aquello?
R. Un batería borracho que aprendía trucos tan útiles como el método más rápido posible para acabar pedo: tequila y whisky a intervalos. Me lo enseñó Keith Moon [batería de The Who). No sé... Debía de ser un cabrón porque me echaron de Soft Machine...

P. Fue por razones personales.
R. No lo sé, no dijeron nada. Somos ingleses. No expresamos sentimientos. Seguramente toda la conversación se redujo a: "Que te folien, tío".

P. Aquella primera formación hacia 1967, con Mike Ratledge (teclados) y Kevin Ayers (bajo), siempre pareció más una reunión de individualidades...
R. Nunca fuimos un grupo normal. Pero en cierto sentido fue culpa mía. Yo conseguí que esos músicos que nunca habrían tocado juntos se pusiesen a ello. Mike dejó la universidad por mi insistencia. Incluso cuando Kevin abandonó el grupo y se fue con sus maravillosas canciones, metí a Hugh [Hopper, bajista]. No habría funcionado sin mis indicaciones. No era un líder. La batería no lidera, como tampoco el motor conduce el coche.

P. ¿Ha mantenido la amistad con ellos?
R. No siempre. Hace poco vi a Kevin Ayers. Estuvo muy bien. Aún siento nostalgia de aquellos días en Deià. Los dos solos. Éramos jóvenes, entusiastas, estábamos borrachos y era maravilloso.
Para entonces, Wyatt ya había coincidido en su infancia con varios de los miembros de Soft Machine en el colegio Langton, en Canterbury, un centro liberal que pareció la mejor opción de enseñanza a sus padres, un psicólogo aficionado al jazz y una periodista, ambos intelectuales progresistas. La primera mujer de su padre fue secretaria de Robert Graves en Mallorca y, cuando a los 16 años, Wyatt dejó la escuela para buscar la libertad en Deià, se instaló en la casa balear del escritor. Allí conoció a Ayers, futuro miembro de Soft Machine, y a Daevid Alien, que fue parte del grupo hasta que la negación de un visado le obligó a quedase en París, donde acabaría fundando Gong, otra banda seminal de la psicodelia británica. Ayers compartió las tareas vocales con Wyatt antes de abandonar el grupo tras el magistral debut, que titularon 1 a secas, en una costumbre, emplear los ordinales, que se mantendría como un sello de la banda.

El grupo se convirtió con su defensa del jazz-rock, el pop psicodélico y la patafísica en una institución de la boyante escena underground londinense. Fueron años de giras estadounidenses con Jimi Hendrix, de vivir la gran vida del rock y todo eso.

Cuando Wyatt fue despedido después de la intensa grabación del tercer álbum, bautizó su nuevo proyecto como Matching Mole (topos idénticos, en su traducción del inglés), un juego de palabras intencionadamente irónico que jugaba con la traducción francesa de Soft Machine. Y entonces, llegarían el accidente y los años de la creatividad. Los discos de mediados de los setenta como Rock Bottom o Ruth is stranger than Richard y hasta el éxito. Su versión de I'm a believer, viejo tema de Neil Diamond, alcanzó el número uno de las listas británicas y convirtió a Wyatt en el único artista en la historia del célebre programa de la BBC Top of the pops que actuó en silla de ruedas.
No hay mucha explicación en las brumas de su memoria para el silencio que siguió a aquellos años, cuando la pareja se mudó a la Costa Brava e interrumpió la producción discográfica. De aquel limbo, Wyatt regresó a principios de los ochenta como un artista comprometido. Se afilió al partido comunista, repartió pasquines en las calles de Londres y adoptó el español como idioma de combate. También se abonó, una constante en su trabajo posterior, a las versiones. "Alfie siempre me compra ropa en las tiendas de beneficencia", explica Wyatt. "Es lo mismo con las canciones. Voy al mercado de segunda mano y me quedo con las que me sientan bien".

P. Tras la caída del muro de Berlín abandonó el partido. ¿Ya no le veía el sentido a la militancia?
R. Superé la etapa. Pero sigo creyendo que el comunista es el mejor de los partidos. Te unes al laborista, cosa que he hecho un par de veces, y no te dicen:

"Pongámonos a discutir", sino "apoya al candidato de tu distrito". En el comunista te ponen a leer. Mis diez años en el partido fueron mi universidad.

P. Pero mantiene cierta liturgia de los gestos. Al final de Comic Opera renuncia a cantar en inglés por vergüenza.
R. Me avergüenzo de ser inglés. Estoy incómodo con que el idioma se haya convertido para los negocios en lo que el latín para la Iglesia. Es demasiado poder para una estúpida y pequeña isla.

P. ¿Son éstos los tiempos más nefastos que ha conocido?
R. Lo peor llegó con el triunvirato de Blair, Aznar y Berlusconi. Estuvimos frente al rostro del infierno. Lo único bueno que hizo Blair fue destruir con él a estos dos tipejos. Sólo me ha tocado una vida en el planeta y resulta que la tengo que vivir en esta mierda de situación. Moriré y todo seguirá igual. Eso me deprime.

P. ¿Teme a la muerte?
R. La espero con ganas. Si tuviese que vivir para siempre moriría [risas]. Estoy harto de luchar.

P. ¿Cuál es su mayor temor entonces?
R. Hacer daño a los demás por mi falta de tacto e insensatez. Cuando bebo hago daño a la gente. Física, no, pero sí mentalmente. No es adrede, es como tropezar con alguien sin querer. No soy bueno viviendo con cuidado. Mi mayor temor es ése: el miedo a la vergüenza.

Comic opera está editado en Domino/PIAS.

Soft Machine
Soft Machine 1 & 2
Big Beat (1968)

La edición reúne los dos primeros discos de Soft Machine, uno de esos grupos más influyentes que exitosos. A medio camino entre el pop psicodélico y el jazz rock, contiene lo mejor del Wyatt batería. Polirrítmico, irónico y divertido. Esencial.

Robert Wyatt
Rock bottom
Thirsty Ear (1974)

Suele considerarse la gran obra individual de Wyatt. La leyenda lo asimila con el periodo de convalecencia del músico tras el accidente que lo dejó parapléjico. En realidad, la mayoría del material estaba escrito antes. Involuntaria melancolía.

Robert Wyatt
Nothing can stop...
Thirsty Ear (2005)

Recopilación de los sencillos de versiones que Wyatt publicó a principios de los ochenta, en la cumbre de su activismo político. De Chic a Billie Holiday o Ivor Cutler, cualquier tema adquiere un nuevo sentido en la voz única del músico.

Robert Wyatt
Cuckooland
Hannibal (2003)

Más escorado al jazz brumoso (la trompeta de Wyatt es protagonista), es una obra que trata tanto del desconcierto del nuevo desorden mundial como del artista en su lacónica madurez. Fue considerado por gran parte de los especialistas el mejor disco de su año.

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt - Rockdelux - RDL 213 - Diciembre 2003

Robert Wyatt

El que fuera batería de Soft Machine rompe seis años de silencio con "Cuckooland", enigmático visionado de las tensiones globales del siglo XXI sobre un fondo ingrávido, inquieto, mágico. "El mundo vuelve a estar oscuro / Necesito tu canción de cuna". Todos la necesitamos. Marea alta

Los veteranos del lugar sabrán que un accidente fatal, cuando cayó por una ventana durante una fiesta en junio de 1973 (según describió, "el accidente siguió este orden: vino, whisky, Southern Comfort y entonces la ventana"), no fue suficiente para frustrar la larga, dosificada y siempre intrigante carrera discográfica del batería de Soft Machine, postrado desde entonces en una silla de ruedas. Los que no lo sean, que tomen nota de pequeñas biblias como "Rock Bottom" (Virgin, 74) y "Nothing Can Stop Us" (Rough Trade, 82), de sus paisajes nublados y de su angustia interior, antes de proclamar que Sigur Rós es un grupo revolucionario.

"Cuckooland" (Hannibal-Ryko-Naïve, 2003) transpira algo de la compleja epopeya personal de Robert Wyatt en setenta y cinco minutos de oleajes vivenciales desengañados, de angst contemplativo adaptado a un lenguaje musical falsamente balsámico que, como indica el autor, "no es ni rock ni jazz". Un disco que Wyatt construyó a lo largo de dieciocho meses junto a su esposa, la letrista e ilustradora austríaca Alfreda Benge ("Alfie y yo trabajamos mucho en pareja", revela Wyatt) y diversos colaboradores, y que habla, también y sobre todo, de las tensiones globales del nuevo milenio. Conclusión: el horror nos acompaña. De Hiroshima a Bagdad. Amarga reflexión para un músico siempre comprometido con el izquierdismo que en su día homenajeó a Violeta Parra y Víctor Jara y cuyo activismo le llevó a ingresar en el Partido Comunista Británico.

"Un segundo, por favor. Si me permites, voy a buscar mi taza de té", solicita Wyatt, con voz jovial, desde el otro lado de la línea telefónica. Acomodémonos.

Da la impresión de que "Cuckooland" es un disco influido por el tenso clima político que vive el planeta desde hace dos años...
Normalmente me siento feliz por el simple hecho de vivir mi propio sueño. Pero ahora eso no es posible. Hay una locura general que me afecta. A mí y a Alfie, quien escribió muchos de los textos. Pero no es una elección nuestra, sino que las cosas son así. En Gran Bretaña tenemos un gobierno en el que no podemos confiar.

¿Son la angustia o la irritación política buenas herramientas para componer música?
Creo que no. Pero con la música puedes tratar de llegar a gente que tiene las mismas dificultades que tú. Eso es todo.

> Zoom

¿Son la angustia o la irritación política buenas herramientas para componer música?
Creo que no. Pero con la música puedes tratar de llegar a gente que tiene las mismas dificultades que tú. Eso es todo.

¿Te sientes un pesimista global?
Nunca me he sentido ni particularmente pesimista ni optimista; no tiene sentido.
Es imposible hacer una generalización respecto a todo el mundo. ¡Hay tantos lugares distintos y tanta gente diversa! Pero ahora me entristece ver que ya nunca en mi vida veré un gobierno británico honesto. Eso me entristece.

El mundo es, efectivamente, diverso, pero hay algo común a buena parte de él: su estado de guerra permanente...
Por supuesto. Hay una gran presión del sistema económico que sólo beneficia a los ricos de occidente. Es lamentable comprobar que, desde la Segunda Guerra Mundial, ha habido un largo proceso de reaparición de ciertas formas de colonialismo.

"Cuckooland" está estructurado en dos bloques: "neither here...", "... ñor there" ("ni aquí...", "... ni allá"). ¿A qué responden esos enunciados?
Tienen que ver con la idea de la desubicación. Vienen de mi reflexión sobre la cantidad de gente desplazada que hay en el planeta. Por ejemplo, "Forest" alude a los gitanos, un pueblo permanentemente desplazado. Uno de los músicos del disco, Gilad Atzmon (saxo, flauta, clarinete), es judío de origen centroeuropeo; procede de una familia que se trasladó a Gran Bretaña. Así que ahora es británico. Pero ha grabado un disco titulado "Exile" porque dice que ese estado, el exilio, es permanente para ellos. Yo no digo si eso es bueno o malo. Sólo hablo de ello.

Brian Eno y David Gilmour formaron parte, en los setenta, de cierta escena de rock progresivo o de vanguardia próxima a la de Soft Machine. Pero, ahora, ¿qué te une a ellos?

Vinieron un poco por accidente, y ambos hicieron unas pequeñas contribuciones muy amablemente. Dave es una gran persona y un gran músico, y de Brian Eno... ¿qué puedo decir? Es un hombre generoso y amable. Como Paul Weller; somos amigos desde mediados de los noventa y nos conocemos bien. Todos ellos han puesto un poco de color y brillo al disco.

¿Crees que a tu música le falta color y brillo?
Siempre he tenido problemas con los discos de cantantes. Las voces suelen tener un rango de posibilidades estrecho en comparación con los instrumentos. Tiendo a preferir los instrumentales, con más colores y matice. Por eso, como yo canto, no quiero que mis disco suenen simplemente como los de un cantante. Me gusta trabajar en texturas distintas, y todo aquél que pueda ayudarme a crearlas es muy bienvenido.

Años atrás adaptaste piezas latinoamericanas, de "Guantanamera" a "Te recuerdo, Amanda". Ahora has grabado "Insensatez", de Antonio Carlos Jobim y Vinícius de Moraes.
Alfie dice que es lo más vanguardista que he hecho nunca (ríe). Parece que ha sorprendido mucho. Siempre me ha gustado la música popular de todo el mundo, de antes de que llegaran los grandes "bulldozers" del rock'n'roll y lo reventaran todo (vuelve a reír). En mi infancia y mi juventud, en los cincuenta y sesenta, había música popular muy hermosa. Me encantan muchas músicas latinoamericanas, como el tango. Me gustan esas ideas melódicas. Y, por otra parte, creo que era oportuno hacer una canción brasileña debido al momento que vive ahora ese país, con ese esperanzador intento de gobierno democrático. Grabar esa ha sido como saludar a Brasil y desearle suerte.

> Zoom

¿Confías en el experimento de Lula da Silva?
Bueno, el Banco Mundial y organizaciones como la OTAN son tan fuertes... Les están presionando mucho. Hacer algo que no gusta a los estadounidenses siempre comporta muchos problemas.

Un amigo tuyo, Pascal Comelade, dice que está en contra de la idea de progreso en la música. Considera que no hay que esperar siempre ideas nuevas de un artista; que esa visión es un cliché del periodismo. ¿La compartes?
(Ríe). Bueno, en nuestra civilización hay una idea de progreso que viene de los últimos ciento cincuenta años, con el avance de la tecnología. En el mundo occidental la gente vive más años ahora que entonces. Pero en términos de arte es difícil hablar de progreso considerando que biológicamente los seres humanos somos los mismos que hace miles de años. Las ideas artísticas de los antiguos egipcios o de los indios americanos de hace mil años quizá son más excitantes e inspiradoras que cualquier cosa actual. No hay razón por la cual debamos pensar que cualquier forma de música popular actual sea necesariamente mejor que lo que se hacía, por ejemplo, en la primera mitad del siglo XX. Lo que sí hacemos es desarrollar nuestro propio lenguaje; cada época tiene su forma de decir las cosas. Hay una singularidad. Todos somos únicos. Y es algo maravilloso que debemos celebrar. Pero, en términos de cultura juvenil, es cierto que cada generación quiere su propio imaginario, ser reconocido frente a sus hermanos mayores y sus padres. Eso es razonable; responde a una necesidad biológica.

Da la sensación de que Comelade y tú vivís en mundos propios, poco permeables al exterior. ¿Cómo lo hicisteis para encontraros en el mini-álbum "September Song" (Disques du Soleil et de l'Acier, 2000)?
No trabajamos en el mismo lugar. Pascal había estado animándome durante más de veinte años, en momentos buenos y malos, mandándome cartas y postales: "Espero que estés bien"... Me emocionó mucho. Y encuentro su música más que encantadora; detrás de esa ingenuidad aparente, hay una actividad intelectual. Pero no sé si repetiremos la colaboración. Trato de concentrarme en mis propias ideas, en intentar liberarlas. Lo que yo hago no es ni rock ni jazz, sino un proyecto propio que me resulta más fácil manejar por mi propia cuenta.

El nombre de Soft Machine está ahora en boca de diversos grupos, desde Spiritualized hasta Sigur Rós. ¿Alguna reflexión al respecto?
¿Qué bandas? Ah, sí, alguien me ¡as ha mencionado. ¿Si las he escuchado? Pues... no, debo decirlo. Pero, en fin, cuando empecé había gente mayor que yo que me influyó, y seguro que ellos tampoco tienen ni idea de quién soy yo (ríe). Quizá sea una pauta que se repite.

¿Crees que la prensa es demasiado perezosa al citar siempre "Rock Bottom" como tu mejor disco?
No. Me hace feliz ver que existe ese reconocimiento. "Rock Bottom" fue un disco con el que abrí mi propio camino. Tenía que inventar una nueva forma de hacer discos, y ése fue mi primer paso. Pero aprecio todos mis discos porque he sido parte de ellos. No los juzgo. Es como tener hijos: habrá la chica bonita que gusta a todo el mundo, pero como padre también amarás al chico raro que no gusta a tanta gente. Por otra parte, no salgo mucho de mi vida doméstica y no sé muy bien lo que piensa la gente sobre mi trabajo.

¿Temes las opiniones?
Me dan miedo los juicios en general. Los exámenes, los controles de la policía, las situaciones competitivas... No me gusta estar en una situación en que alguien diga si esto es mejor o peor que otra cosa...

Intuyo que no apreciarás mucho a la crítica musical...
¡Oh, sí! Me siento muy afortunado por el hecho de que haya gente que preste atención a mi música, la escuche y piense en ella. Eso me impresiona. Por otra parte, mi madre era periodista... (ríe).

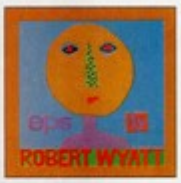
En la última parte de la conversación, el entrevistador no puede evitar curiosear sobre un período poco comentado de la biografía de Wyatt: su estancia en Castelldefels, población costera de la Barcelona metropolitana, a mediados de los ochenta, en dos períodos de seis meses cada uno. "Guardo una cierta nostalgia de Barcelona. Mi esposa tenía un trabajo como ilustradora de un libro infantil. Estábamos en Inglaterra, era invierno, hacía frío y pensamos que estaría bien ir a algún lugar que tuviera una luz bonita. Y fuimos a Castelldefels, donde pagábamos por el alquiler menos de lo que costaba la calefacción de nuestra casa en Inglaterra".

De aquella Barcelona preolímpica recuerda, sobre todo, "el mercado de la Boqueria, la Rambla, el barrio chino, el frontón, la Fundació Miró y el flamenco y la cultura andaluza que había en Cataluña". Su presencia despertó el interés de algunos periodistas y músicos. "Me invitaron a hacer un programa de televisión, 'Arsenal', y también canté con una pareja muy maja, Claustrofobia - colaboró en su disco "Repulsión" (Justine, 87) -. Estaría bien volver a verles". Hasta aquí el momento revival. Wyatt sigue mirando hacia adelante, aunque sus planes de futuro inmediato no sean muy sofisticados. "Reformar la cocina y el cuarto de baño: éste es mi próximo proyecto". Nos queda "Cuckooland" para amenizar los próximos seis años de espera.

Jordi Biancotto

POESÍA EN ROJO Por QUIM CASAS

La presente selección de discos de Wyatt tan sólo pretende orientar. Podrían estar "Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard" (Virgin, 75), "Dondestan" (Rough Trade, 91), el hermoso EP "A Short Break" (92) o el último álbum, "Cuckooland" (Hannibal-Ryko-Naïve, 2003). Pero los escogidos le definen tan bien como los ausentes.



"ROCK BOTTOM"
(VIRGIN, 74)
La reflexión tras el accidente. La vida en una silla de ruedas. El blues como emoción más allá del género. La voz como instrumento. La música como pentagrama político sin recurrir a las consignas. La trompeta de Mongezi Feza, el amigo africano que se iría para siempre. Los juegos de palabras y las canciones que no necesitan palabras. Prolongación de una carrera irreprochable –The Wilde Flowers, Soft Machine, Matching Mole y el primer disco en solitario, "The End Of An Ear" (CBS, 71)– que es a la vez el punto de partida de una nueva trayectoria. "Sea Song" y "Alifib", lo más grande.

"NOTHING CAN STOP US" (ROUGH TRADE, 82)
Wyatt inició con el respaldo de Rough Trade su etapa más politizada. No tuvo reparos en versionar temas ajenos y comprometidos para dar su visión, hastiada y combativa, del desequilibrio social. "Nothing Can Stop Us" no fue grabado como un álbum, sino que compendia los cinco singles editados entre 1980 y 1981, pero posee una concluyente unidad de estilo y hace poesía sonora de la lucha de clases: "Caimanera" (Carlos Puebla), "Strange Fruit" –que Billie Holiday cantaba en homenaje a las víctimas del Ku Klux Klan–, "Arauco" (Violeta Parra), "At Last I Am Free" (Chic)... El arte verdadero de la versión.

"OLD ROTTENHAT"
(ROUGH TRADE, 85)
Tras la epopeya melancólica de "Rock Bottom" y el cancionero popular, Wyatt regresa introvertidamente al pop con "Old Rottenhat", alcanzando niveles de sedosa fascinación e hipnótica arquitectura que le sirven para reflexionar sobre el diálogo con el enemigo, la edad del egoísmo, lo absurdo de las fronteras, la historia, la noticia y los rebaños de mentes independientes de Chomsky. "The Age Of Self", "The British Road" y "Gharbzadegi" son piezas capitales para el futuro sonoro de su intermitente obra de los noventa. El disco entero, junto al EP "Work In Progress" (84), está incluido en el CD "Mid-Eighties" (93).

"EPS"
(HANNIBAL, 99)
Un recopilatorio fundamental, ya que recoge los singles y maxis de Wyatt que fueron concebidos independientemente de los álbumes. Incluye, entre otras excelencias, los dos primeros singles para Virgin tras el accidente, "I'm A Believer"/"Memories" y "Yesterday Man"/"Sonia"; el 12" de 1982 con "Shipbuilding" –el tema escrito por Elvis Costello sobre la guerra de las Malvinas– y las más jazzísticas "Memories Of You" y "Round Midnight"; el EP "Work In Progress" (84), que contiene su sentida versión de "Yolanda" de Pablo Milanés; y la maoísta "Chairman Mao", una rareza de 1987.

"SOLAR FLARES BURN FOR YOU" (CUNEIFORM, 2003)
Lo viejo y lo nuevo. Wyatt mira hacia atrás y rescata una sesión radiofónica de la BBC al desnudo, de 1974, y otra con el teclista Francis Monkman de 1972, tras la disolución de Matching Mole. Interludia con el sinuoso e inédito tema para el corto experimental "Solar Flares Burn For You" (73) –incluido aquí en formato Quicktime– y desvela tres piezas recientes como complemento al álbum "Cuckooland". En dos de ellas, grabadas el pasado invierno, Wyatt (corneta y teclados) y su viejo amigo Hugh Hopper (loops y bajo) tejen un ambient jazzístico y oscuro. La otra, "The Verb", embellece la sencillez. ■

> Zoom

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

"El flamenco es lo profundo" - El Pais - 7 jun 1999

EL PAÍS

"El flamenco es lo profundo"

Entrevista: ROBERT WYATT [EP] CANTANTE

No deja de palmotear sobre cualquier superficie que encuentra (una mesa, el salpicadero de un automóvil) buscando nuevos ritmos de percusión. "La música es mi vida", dice. Robert Wyatt (Bristol, 1945) lleva la batería en la sangre, pese a ir en silla de ruedas desde una caída que tuvo durante una borrachera, en 1973. Aquello no lo arredró. Ahora acaba de publicar Eps, una caja de CD"s que contiene todos sus grandes singles, como la versión que hizo de Shipbuilding, de Elvis Costello, o Te recuerdo, Amanda, de Víctor Jara. Su pasión por García Lorca le ha llevado hasta Granada, en donde intervino en el programa de Canal 2 Andalucía Imaginaria y saboreó el flamenco. "El flamenco", afirma, "es lo profundo, es la música soul de Europa". Pregunta. Una vez dijo que el mundo no necesita desesperadamente las canciones de Robert Wyatt.

¿Es eso cierto? Respuesta. El mundo no necesita mis canciones. Creo que hay demasiadas canciones ya. Para mí, lo importante es escuchar lo que pasa. Creo que sólo en determinados momentos se necesitan las canciones, pero no cada minuto del día durante las 24 horas. Hay demasiados discos.

P. ¿Es por eso por lo que pasa tanto tiempo entre un disco suyo y otro?
R. No soy una fábrica de hacer discos. En 30 años he hecho ya muchos discos. A mí lo que me gustó siempre era hacer singles. Pero ahora cuesta demasiado dinero publicarlos. Además, mi trabajo es componer, cantar, tocar la percusión, tocar los teclados, y preparar cada uno de estos aspectos necesita su tiempo. Y una canción no llega a mi cabeza cada día, por cierto.

P. En algún momento definió sus propias canciones como "periodismo sonoro de agitación"...
R. Eso fue hace 20 años, cuando la derecha retornó al poder en Gran Bretaña. Me di cuenta de que en ese momento yo tenía que decir algo. Consideré que no había que hacer un arte perfecto, unas canciones técnicamente perfectas, sino hablar inmediatamente, cantar con urgencia. Por suerte era la época del punk rock y en ese momento no importaba que una canción sonara mal, sino en decir las cosas inmediatamente.

P. Usted abandonó el Partido Comunista, pero ¿sigue siendo comunista?
R. Si solamente hay dos respuestas a esa pregunta, como sí o no, entonces debería responder que sí, que sigo siendo comunista. En política me definiría como marxista-pesimista.

P. ¿Por qué le atraen tanto García Lorca, Víctor Jara o Pablo Milanés?
R. Porque escribían con humanidad. Lorca, además, escribía música, era más abstracto. Hay poemas suyos que no logro comprender del todo, pero me encanta la musicalidad que tienen. Lorca escribía con el alma. P. Se le suele comparar con Tom Waits.

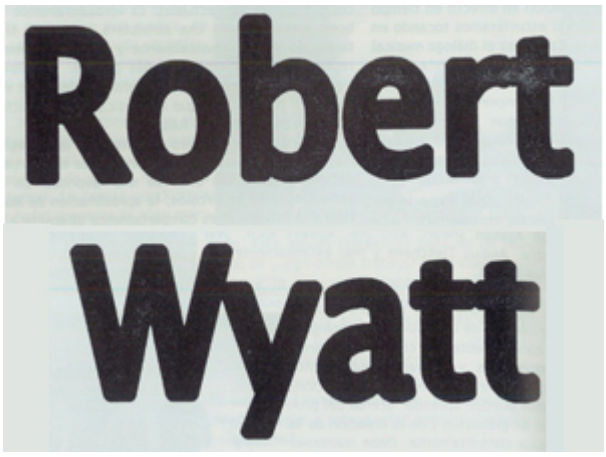
¿Qué le parece?
R. Bueno, supongo que es porque más o menos somos de la misma generación. Desde lejos da la impresión de que hay parecidos, que tenemos algo en común, pero la verdad es que no escucho mucho lo que hace, no lo conozco mucho. Me haría más feliz que me compararan con Compay Segundo.

P. ¿Por qué siente tanto afecto por España?
R. No es sólo por España, sino por todos los países hispanos, Cuba, Argentina... No sé por qué razón, el idioma hace que la música sea diferente. En todos los países en los que se habla español la música es especial. Como el son cubano... o el flamenco. El flamenco es lo profundo, es la música soul de Europa, es la música negra. No sé si es una tontería lo que voy a decir, pero creo que los gitanos son como los negros del delta del Mississippi. Cuando oigo flamenco es como si oyera cantar puro blues.

Jesus Arias

Previous article Next article

Back to the list



ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt - Margen - N° 14 - Verano 98

El éxito comercial sin precedentes de Shleep corona la obra de un artista cuyo principal talento es jugar maliciosamente con las paradojas. Este disco dinamita los santuarios musicales y consagra las colaboraciones artísticas inéditas en canciones irónicas que contradicen su compleja arquitectura. Desde Rock Bottom, Robert no había concebido ningún disco tan emotivo. Era necesario que recayera un poco el entusiasmo suscitado por este álbum para encontrar a su autor...

Por fin era posible hablar con Robert sin estar irresistiblemente obsesionado por el recuerdo de melodias de Shleep... En una conversación que duró más de tres horas, Robert habló mucho de su juventud, de música, un poco de política... Para él esta charla ponía fin a una serie de entrevistas concertadas con la prensa internacional.

Un olor de Vacaciones presidia este mediodía de invierno, acentuado por los cristales de Coteaux du Loire y por el tic tac de las agujas del péndulo. Robert Wyatt y Alfie Benge son gente muy acogedora y su casa no podía ser menos. El salón es el centro de la vida común. Allí está la cadena estéreo y el lector de CD's. La portada de Best of… de los Coasters al lado de una foto donde John Peel posa en compañía de Robert. Aquí, se prefiere la madera y el vinilo al hierro y al plástico. El orden de las preguntas rápidamente cede el lugar a una conversación vagamente caótica. Alfie, ausente en la entrevista, hace furtivas reapariciones.

Robert y Alfie aman la Europa Continental. Alfie es de origen austro-polaco y Robert no deja escapar la ocasión de intercalar una palabra o una frase en francés o en español. Tiene una afición particular por los juegos de palabras: Shleep asocia el sueño y los corderos que cuenta para ayudarse a dormir. En el pasado ha combinado el bilingüismo: asi, Matching Mole era un guiño fonético y franco-inglés a Soft Machine.

Se acordaba de una lejana participación en la televisión francesa donde Robert, con la cara tapada por un pasamontañas, presentaba trozos de Little Red Record en francés...

Francia y America

"Fui educado en un atmósfera continental. Mís padres pasaban largas temporadas en España y asimilaron sus hábitos culinarios. En nuestra casa se comía ajo y cebolla: perfumes que irritan el olfato de los británicos. Pero es en París, donde pasé algunos meses al final de los años 50, donde descubrí el jazz y el cine. Es alli donde vi "Ascenseur pour l'échafaud" (Ascensor al Patíbulo). No entendia una palabra de lo que decía Jeanne Moreau pero descubrí a Miles Davis y Barney Wilen: ¡un momento de puro placer!

Iba a la escuela del barrio con el hijo de unos amigos de mis padres que habían estado en la Resistencia durante la guerra. Al final de mi estancia hablaba francés. Se oxidaría después. A veces lo intento: cuando un periodista de Liberation vino a verme tras la aparición de Shleep insistí para que ia entrevista se desarrollara en francés. Mis lagunas fueron decisivas paro que pasáramos rapidamente ali inglés... Para un proyecto de Mike Mantler leí una poesía de Soupault. Mi forma de pronunciar los diptongos franceses, "l'oeil" por ejemplo, tiene el don de enfadar a Alfie".

Robert sigue la actualidad cultural francesa muy de cerca: su cine, su canción (Jean-Louis Murat), su música (Pascal Comelade) no tiene secretos para él. Tiene una afición particular por el jazz francés de los años 50 ó 60, un tema que el desarrolla particularmente bien...

"El jazz francés se revalorizó con los solistas americanos. Pienso en Rene Urtreger, Pierre Michelot, Jean-Francois Jenny-Cíark, Mimi Perrin, Jacques Lousier... Se les subestima, sin duda, a la vista de su carrera "popular", pero su sensibilidad es patente. En los años 50, la escena francesa descubrió a gente como Chet Baker o Miles Davis... En América, el jazz estaba concebido como una musica ligera, en Francia se le imprimió seriedad y los artistas de color encontraron refugio. Los jazzmen americanos eran tratados con respeto. Se sentían a gusto para tocar. El grupo de Miles Davis era mixto: dos negros, tres franceses. Esta combinación interétnica no tiene nada que ver con el imperialismo sino con las buenas maneras. Esta combinación fue decisiva: gracias a ella Miles pudo liberarse de las estructur melódicas y explorar su talento como improvisador. Creo que hay también una conexión historica entre Francia y America, entre el viejo continente y la cuna del jazz: Sidney Bechet era un criollo de Nueva Orleans... En un contexto personal y subjetivo considero que mi forma de cantar está más influenciada por la trompeta de Miles Davis en "Ascenseur pour l'échafaud" que por la voz de cualquier cantante.

Robert está dolido por el imperialismo del interior" que castiga a los americanos y lo condena a la ignorancia de sus raices y de su historia...

"Con Soft Machine fuimos de gira a USA como teloneros de Jimi Hendrix. Ero en eí 67 o en el 68. Me desconcertaba por aquel entonces la falt de cultura de los afro-americanos. ¡ignoraba hasta el nombre de Langston Hughes! No solomente su historia les era desconocida, tambié su propia cultura musical. Esta cultura del olvido raientizó el proceso evolutivo normal de la cosas... Entonces, par diversas razones, no se puede ser sensible a la música de Wynton Marsalys lis y se debe recordar que es uno de los grandes. Por su simplicidad y su actitud abierta, él es un de los grandes conocedores del patrimonio musiccal afro-americano. No debemos olvidar que los años 30, 40 y 50 para los jóvenes del ghetto es la Edad Media. Sin duda él familiarizó a su gente con su cultura".

Folklore y Rock

Al principio de los años 80 Robert produjo una serie de singles para el sello Rough Trade dejó su impronta en clásicos del pop (I'm a Believer de los Monkees, Yesterday Man de Chris Andrews), un himno (La Internacional) y los proyectó en otra dimensión. No debemos olvidar su interès por la canciones populares sudamericañas (Arauco, Caiminera) y otros clásicos del jazz (Strange Fruít). Robert se reencarnaba literalmente en cada una de estas recreaciones haciendo gala de un simbolismo rebelde ciertemente intenso. Coincidenca, en francia Jean Rochard proponia diferentes proyectos basados en el jazz y el folklore.

"Considero que Nato es uno de los mejores sellos europeos junto a ECM... Fue Tony Coe quien me hizo escuchar mis primeros discos de Nato. En Les Voix d'Ixtassou, es José Menese quien canta Hasta la Victoria. Es necesario apuntar que José Menese no es solamente uno de los interpretes más autenticos en el canto gitano, sino que es un sincero militante comunista... Como anécdota, decir que el nombre de José Menese aparece en Dondestan en la reproducción de un cartel de un espectáculo flamenco. Quedé impresionado por el proyecto de Jean que ofrecía algunas similitudes con algunos aspectos de mi propia producción de los años 80. Pero su trabajo es más sofisticado. Jean Rochard me invitó a participar en algunos de sus proyectos pero mi lentitud en mi trabajo personal, lo que a veces me angustia terriblemente, me impidió hacerlo".

En Gran Bretaña La Revolución Industrial erradicó el folklore. Robert no está particularmente interesado por los movimentos "revivalistas" aunque valore La voz de June Tabor... Los hijos espirituales de los Joe Hill, Ewan McCall y Woodie Guthrie no están necesariamente allí donde se piensa que se esconden...

"Hace dos años participé en un concierto de Billy Bragg como protesta por el embargo americano de Cuba - ¡que bella ironía cuando todos sabemos que los americanos son los apóstoles del mercado libre!- Después del concierto, celebramos una pequeña fiesta donde Bill y yo charlamos animadamente. Él me habló de su compañero Paul Weller. Paul y Billy son auténticos músicos folk. Perpetúan y reinventan a la realidad del momento su propuesta. Una tradición de canción protesta con creaciones que están destinadas a formar parte de una variada audiencia. En mi opinión son sucesores de los compositores anónimos de siglos pasados. Aquella gente que tenia una función no sólo artística sino también de crítica del sistema social y algunas veces incluso de agitadores. En otro contexto el disco de Denez Prigent me sorprendió. Es necesario tener unas raices bien arraigadas para sobrevivir a la era Disney".

Es en 1976 cuando los Sex Pistols van a revolucionar el panorama musical popular inglés mientras los artistas de la generación Stones-Beatles estaban disfrutando las mieles del éxito. Las estrellas del rock y el jazz infravaloraban este movimiento que les parecía una apología del amateurismo. Es en Rough Trade, el sello británico que encarna lo mejor de la aparición de una escena post-punk, donde Robert graba Born Again Cretin, una canción que hostiga a la derecha fundamentalista cristiana. En ese tema, Robert bordea a Stiff Little Fingers. pero también a Scritti Polititi y su cantante Green, cuya voz estaba lejanamente inspirada por la de Robert Wyatt.

"La importancia del punk-rock no fue tenida en cuenta por muchos músicos y artistas que se pueden calificar de "innovadores". Sin duda porque ellos estaban aburguesados y los burgueses menosprecian la cultura popular. No hay nadie más reaccionario que Andy Warhol al final de su carrera. El punk-rock ha sido una expresión musical particularmente ofensiva y aunténtica, Johnny Rotten me ha hecho reír porque tenia algo de cruel y de despiadado en sus textos y su forma de cantarlos. Su arrogancia lo volvia impermeable a la mirada de los demás y sus conviciones. Pero lo principal a propósito del punk no era su lado novedoso, nada más lejos, era su lado primitivo, ofensivo e instintivo... En la época de Matching Mole los músicos estaban respaldados por su propia actitud al tocar piezas cada vez más complejas. Me impresionaban mucho sus facultades atléticas, pero esta estética no hacia latir mi corazón. No, lo que hacía latir mi corazón era más simple que todo eso: tos Especials y el movimiento 2-Tone, su mezcla de idiomas rock y jamaicano y de ídeas politicas interesantes. Pero la música punk no aceptó mi propuesta, sólo fue un lapso intermedio".

Experimentación, canción y política

Moon In June del Third de Soft Machine y Caroline con Matching Mole anunciaban la nueva faceta de Robert como cantante y compositor. La mezcia de su voz y melodias complejas provocan algunas turbulencias...

"Trabajo con músicos de jazz. Adoro el jazz, pero la "hermandad" del jazz inglés guarda sus distandas. Distancias amables. Las personas que trabajan conmigo son excepciones: Annie Whitehead, Evan Parker... La música de Evan Parker es como un impulso eléctrico. Para mi no es mùsica "complicada", ¡no más"complicada" que la forma de cantar de Johnny Rotten! Él deja hablar a su corazón y esto es ¡simplemente fantastico! En la época de Matching Mole habia ya esta dualidad: los músicos de jazz no tomaban al grupo en serio. El grupo no funcionaba como era debido. Se puede tomar el ejemplo de Dave McRae que era un músico de sesión muy solicitado. Eligió mal entre las giras con Matching Mole y sus misiones sedentarias: finalmente se fue a Australia con su mujer... En cuanto a mi forma de cantar es natural y su color también. Es una voz humana como la de Murat en vuestra propia casa. Las experimentaciones vocales, que hice en The End of an Ear se realizaron inspirando las palabras en lugar de expirarlas. La voz es un instrumento de comunicación que trasciende la lingüistica. Los sonidos de una lengua cantada ofrecen muchos niveles de lectura y el texto no es lo más importante... Puedo vibrar con el sonde una voz venida de Mongolia pues la emoción que sugiere me embelesa".

Robert ha reivindicado siempre la indisoluble relación entre arte y política. Esto no se manifiesta con la emisión gratuita de puntos de vista, sino por la práctica de una filosofía.

"La idea de vanguardia no es interesante porque traza los fundamentos de una cultura cerrada y mantiene una élite privilegiada. Esto funciona a niveles de lenguaje y de vocabulario. La belleza es una noción típicamente burguesa y una fuente de exclusión. Max Ernst dijo: "Nada de restas". Sé que puede sonar tópico pero en el fondo es la forma de ser fiel a uno mismo... El humor puede ser ofensivo. Dada y los surrealistas lo han demostrado en su tiempo. Hasta los músicos populares, los juglares de la Edad Media que iban de pueblo en pueblo, utilizaban el humor como una forma natural de rebelión.

La farsa y la ironia son un arma".

Creación y mezcia de géneros

Robert es un oyento atento y ante las modas se muestra circunspecto y vigilante. Su obra, desde su contribución a Soft Machine hasta Shleep tienen prácticamente una dimensión conceptual, cede más a su instinto que a las nuevas corrientes tecno y drum'n' bass. Un detalle que lo distingue de sus coetáneos...

"Los fenómenos de la moda tienen una influencia determinante en la evolución musical. Pienso que en los años 20 es el boom de la canción popular americana, esencialmente judia, y de la música popular negra que ha permitido al jazz desarrollarse. En ciertas épocas, y la nuestra es una, las barreras entre las gentes y los géneros se disipan. Los artistas de rock y los artistas de jazz trabajan juntos pero hay un frontera casi inapreciable entre las mezclas oportunistas y la simbiosis natural de los estilos. Es verdad que un nuevo sonido es excitante pero es necesario que su nacimiento esté motivado por un sentimiento profundo."

El proceso de creación en Robert es un fenómeno lento. Seis años separan Dondestan de Shleep... Cada uno de sus álbumes es una arquitectura sofisticada de canciones que exigen una atención y un sentido particulares, arreglos y colaboraciones differentes...

"Para Shleep, Phil (Manzanera, guitarrista de Roxy Music) me hizo un gran favor. Me dijo que me to tomara con calma y que él se encargaba del tema del estudio. Esto contribuyó a realizar este álbum. Me libré de los contratiempos habituales, el barullo de la gente que tienen mucho que hacer en poco tiempo. Liberarme de todas las tensiones que generaban en mi casa todos los períodos de grabación. Sin su amistad no hubiera podido invitar a Paul Weller (ex-Jam y Style Council) y Evan Parker... Dos artistas que navegaban en aguas diferentes y que no se hubieran encontrado jamás... Shleep me ha permitido reencontrarme con viejos amigos y lograr su colaboración de forma fructífera..."

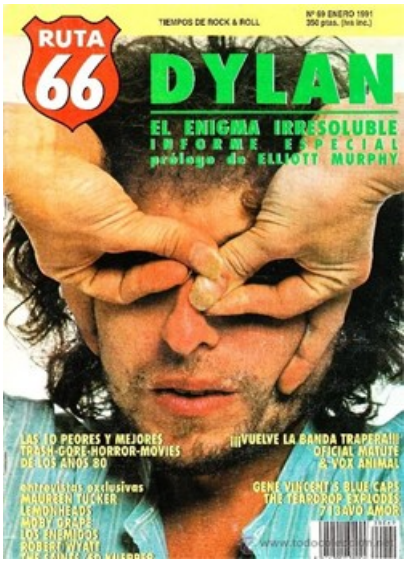
Aunque Alfie y Robert sueñan con el sol de España, están confortablemente instalados en un entorno apacible que ofrece las ventajas de la ciudad sin presentar los inconvenientes de la vida del campo. Esta proximidad del mundo rural fue un elemento determinante en la realización de Shleep. El éxito de este último álbum ha permitido adquirir los derechos de los discos precedentes de Robert (excepción hecha de la compilación Rough Trade) y ve el futuro de forma serena. Ha compuesto muchos títulos para un próximo disco y cuando se conoce la lentitud del proceso creativo de Robert no se necesita ser adivino para augurarle una buena producción...

Nadie puede pararle...

René Guyomarc'h
(c) Improjazz Magazine

Previous article Next article

Back to the list

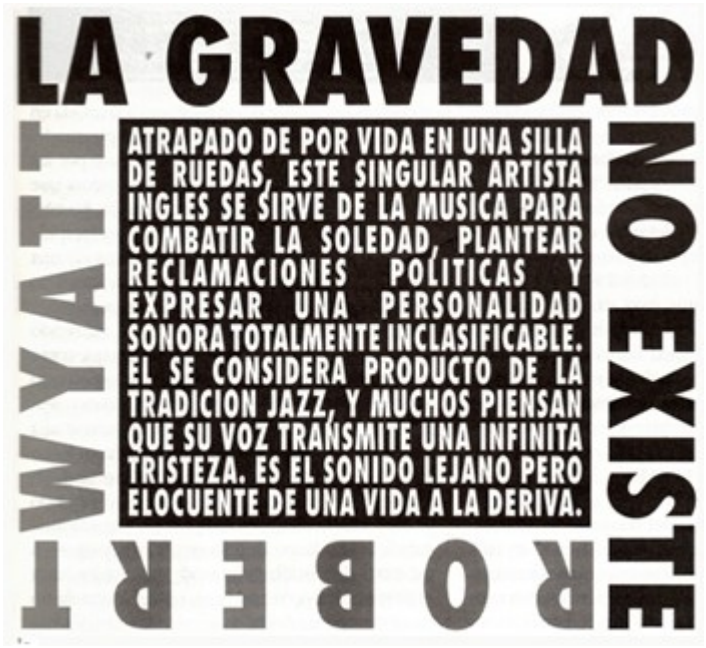


ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises|

HOME

Robert Wyatt - La Gravedad No Existe - Ruta 66 - N° 69 - Enero 1991



ROBERT WYATT - LA GRAVEDAD NO EXISTE

Por RAFA CERVERA

¡Atención, estimado lector rutero! Lo que viene a continuación no es fácil de digerir. Pasearse a través de la obra y las palabras de Robert Wyatt apenas tiene que ver con el contenido habitual y especializado de esta tu revista. Robert Wyatt es un hombre que apenas se relaciona con el rock, que vive totalmente ajeno al discurrir de la música pop y que dice sentirse mucho más identificado con el jazz o el folklore del Tercer Mundo que con lo último de lo último en materia independiente. Es más, Robert Wyatt posee una extensa discografía en la cual, lo último que podrás encontrar, son vestigios de rock & roll, al menos, tal y como lo solemos degustar. Y ahora es cuando tú te preguntas con toda la razón: ¿qué hace este individuo entre mis melenudos favoritos?

Que Wyatt fuera batería de los sofocantes Soft Machine es hoy un hecho que tiene más que ver con la casualidad histórica que con los deseos del interesado. Si hay algo que haga de él un elemento incomparable dentro de la música pop-un marco en el cual él se niega a enclavarse- es que piensa, trabaja, crea y vive de espaldas a ella. Por poner un ejemplo, Robert Wyatt es un socialista irredento, alguien dispuesto a versionear «La internacional» con tanta alegría como los Fuzztones lo hacen con una pieza de los Sonics. Y es que su sonido ha funcionado en diferentes escalas a lo largo de los casi 20 años que lleva trabajando en solitario. Formado sobre unas bases estrictamente jazzísticas, Wyatt se crió en la ciudad inglesa de Canterbury, lugar de nacimiento también para el grupo Soft Machine, amalgama de psicodelia, sinfonismo y abstracciones jazzies que situaron al batería en el mismísimo ojo del huracán del rock psicodélico.

En 1991, aquellas aventuras parecen como una broma del tiempo. Así lo asegura al menos el viejo Wyatt, feliz y relajado por la aparición de su nuevo elepé, «Dondestan». Es su primera señal de vida musical en casi 6 años, colaboraciones aparte. Su discográfica en España ha logrado arreglar una entrevista telefónica con el músico, un personaje afable y terriblemente entrañable que está encantado con el interés que ha despertado su resurrección discográfica.

CONTRACORRIENTE

Dice la leyenda que Wyatt abandonó Soft Machine -el grupo en el que también se inició Kevin Ayers- debido a su «creciente seriedad». Fue en 1971, cuando la banda había lamido las mieles del éxito, encaramada entre lo más destacado del underground británico, teloneando a Jimi Hendrix y Pink Floyd. Para contrarrestar los efectos de la experiencia, fundó Matching Mole (que quiere decir lo mismo que Soft Machine, pero en francés), iniciándose como letrista y cantante. Dos años después, sobrevino la tragedia: Wyatt se rompe la espina dorsal a consecuencia de una caída. El whisky y tres pisos de distancia entre los efluvios del alcohol y la dura realidad del suelo estuvieron a punto de segar de cuajo su carrera. Los médicos aseguraron que jamás podría volver a andar, y muy posiblemente, tampoco volvería a tocar. Desde entonces vive unido a su silla de ruedas, aunque nunca ha dejado de ejercer como músico.

«Si miro hacia atrás con nostalgia», dice el entrevistado, «en lo último que suelo pensar es en los años 60. Tiendo a recordar más el antes y el después. La época anterior, los 50, fueron estupendos. Era lo suficientemente joven como para no tener que trabajar y eso siempre está muy bien. En la escuela era un desastre y las chicas, a pesar de mi interés, tampoco se me daban demasiado bien. Pero escuchaba mucho jazz, montones de disco. Los 50 fueron estupendos. Y los 60 un caos, en mi caso, sólo pude desarrollar un claro sentido musical de lo que hacía en los 70, cuando empecé a hacer discos como «Rock Bottom» o «Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard». Pero los 60 fueron como si yo no hubiese estado allí realmente. Cuando pienso en aquellos días es como ver a alguien en una vieja foto: apenas puedo reconocerme».

Lo que de verdad ayudó a Robert Wyatt a concentrar su talento fue el periodo de convalecencia que, tras el accidente, le tuvo retenido en un hospital durante 6 meses. El producto de aquella etapa se tornó en vinilo y, bajo el apelativo de «Rock Bottom» -producido por Nick Mason en 1974-, redescubrió a su autor. Junto al ya mentado «Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard» (1975), conforma la cúspide creativa del artista a lo largo de la| borrosa década de los 70. Wyatt también llegó a saborear el éxito comercial con una personal versión de «I'm a believer». Ateniéndonos de nuevo a la mitología rock, hay quien asegura que cuando el programa Top of the Pops convocó a Wyatt para que hiciese el playback de rigor con el tema, éste se presentó con toda una banda... en sillas de ruedas, Mike Oldfield incluido.

- ¿Crees que el rock era mucho más interesante y espontáneo en tiempos pasados?
- Siempre me ha interesado la música que no está demasiado acabada ni demasiado pulida y ante todo, me gusta la música tocada por gente que de verdad siente lo que hace. En cuanto al rock actual, no estoy seguro de que merezca la atención que recibe. Supongo que todo se debe al gran apoyo económico con el que cuenta. Pero entonces, ¿qué tenía de bueno el rock & roll? Muy sencillo, que todo el mundo podía tocarlo. Era algo amateur y sentido. Ahora es justo lo que no debe ser, música de una aristocracia millonaria, con enormes presupuestos. Ya no es lo que solía ser.

- ¿Hacia dónde piensas que evolucionará la música pop en los próximos años?
- ¿El pop? Oh, la música pop no me interesa, que evolucione hacia donde quiera, no me siento parte de ella. Gran parte de la música que escucho y que más disfruto es música nada comercial y casi nunca angloamericana. Me gustan casos como el de esa banda de rock gitana, Ketama, que han obtenido un cierto éxito fuera de sus fronteras. Es bueno que se rompa el monopolio del lenguaje inglés. También me gusta ver que cada vez hay más mujeres trabajando como músicos. Pero básicamente el pop es la música de esta era industrial. Personalmente, hay tanta música y tan diferente que no me importa si es o no pop.

MÚSICA COMBATIVA PARA TIEMPOS DE DESIDIA

Su entrada en la década de los ochenta fue algo más que acertada. Con un pasado como el suyo, plagado de nombres inherentes al jazz-rock y la experimentación, noviazgos con Fred Frith y Robert Fripp, Robert Wyatt no era el prototipo a adorar en plena temporada new wave. Su fichaje para Rough Trade demostró lo contrario. Unos cuantos sencillos sirvieron para asentar con todo respeto su nombre entre las oleadas de nuevos talentos británicos: «Arauco», «Grass» -un tema de Ivor Cutler-, una versión de Chic. Y la estremecedora «Shipbuilding», agrio fresco de la Inglaterra bajo el domino de la Thatcher que firmara Elvis Costello Elepés como «Nothing Can Stop Us» (1982) y «Old Rottenhat» (1985) desvelaron bajo la quebradiza sensibilidad del músico se escondía un agrio observador político. Desgraciadamente, Robert Wyatt no es un tipo marcado por la premura en lo que a grabaciones se refiere. Salvo algún otro sencillo y colaboraciones de lo más variopintas (Ryuichi Sakamoto, Chris & Cosey, Kip Hanrahan), su nombre ha estado ausente de la actualidad musical durante años.

¿Por qué has tardado tanto tiempo en volver a grabar un disco?
Bueno, nunca sé exactamente qué hacer con mi vida, y todavía sigo sin saberlo; es algo que me ocurre desde que dejé la escuela: no sé qué hago en este mundo. Hasta me sorprendo cuando veo los discos que he hecho. Siempre que hago algo es porque alguien me lo ha sugerido; en este caso fue mi esposa, Alfie (Alfreda Benge, poetisa). Un buen día dijo, «mira, Robert, ya es hora de que hagas un disco». Así que me dije, «vale, de acuerdo».

LA GRAVEDAD NO EXISTE

ROBERT WYATT

ATRAPADO DE POR VIDA EN UNA SILLA DE RUEDAS, ESTE CINGALAR ARTISTA INGLES SE SIRVE DE LA MUSICA PARA COMBATIR LA SOLEDAD, PLANTEAR RECLAMACIONES POLITICAS Y EXPRESAR UNA PERSONALIDAD SONORA TOTALMENTE INCLASIFICABLE. EL SE CONSIDERA PRODUCTO DE LA TRADICION JAZZ, Y MUCHOS PIENSAN QUE SU VOZ TRANSMITE UNA INFINITA TRISTEZA. ES EL SONIDO LEJANO PERO ELOCUENTE DE UNA VIDA A LA DERIVA.

DISCOGRAFIA DE UN ROBINSON INGLES

- ¿Tiene eso algo que ver con que varios de los textos de «Dondestan» sean de Alfie?
- Sí, la puse a trabajar a ella también. Fue como un castigo por haberme obligado a componer de nuevo, soy muy perezoso. Tenía muchas ideas en la cabeza pero me faltaba una motivación, una clave para sacar afuera todas esas emociones. Algunos de los poemas que dieron lugar a las canciones del elepé fueron escritos en España. Hacía tiempo que buscábamos un paisaje que nos inspirase, un cambio respecto a nuestra vida cotidiana. Esa es otra de las razones por la que no había grabado nada últimamente.

- En relación a obras anteriores, «Dondestan» es un disco menos orientado políticamente. Es más descriptivo, muy emocional. Sin embargo, el título parece tener claras connotaciones de denuncia.
- Si, es un punto interesante. Incluso los poemas de Alfie contienen esa especie de desorientación… En España vivimos en un sitio llamado Castelldefels, al sur de Barcelona. Era temporada de invierno, cuando todo es más barato, y yo tenía un trabajo para la TV catalana. En esa época, la gente que está ahí en verano ha desaparecido. Hay una atmosfera extraña que te desorienta. «Dondestan» podría significar eso: ¿dónde esta todo el mundo?, aquí no hay nadie… excepto una pareja de monjas y algunos perros. A partir de ahí surgieron canciones más políticas y abstractas, aunque al terminar el disco descubrí que, inconscientemente había seguido hablando de esa sensación de pérdida, de desesperación, de sentirse a la deriva como un barco sin ancla. Supongo que ambas cosas van unidas.

NO ES POP

Aunque Robert Wyatt está cercano a los planteamientos de la música pop, todo se reduce a más casualidades. Amigos y colaboradores (Working Week, Jerry Damners, Ben Watt) y una comedida militancia en el género. Salvo excepciones, el Wyatt de la pasada década suele ser un tipo adepto a las construcciones extravagantes y los tempos medios. Solo que tiende a cantar y tocar cosas de Pablo Milanés, Thelonius Monk y Víctor Jara, a mezclar su educación jazzie con todo tipo de recursos roqueros hasta edificar un estilo incomparable. Escuchar su versión de «Strangers in the night» (en el álbum «Miniatures») es la mejor manera de introducir a un neófito en el mundo de Robert Wyatt: un mago del bricolage musical, un prestidigitador naif que sabe perfectamente como subvertir con sutilidad las estructuras convencionales.

- ¿Te consideras un músico de rock?
- Es difícil contestar a eso. Lo que más hago es escuchar música, me encanta oírla todo el día, soy un adicto a diferentes estilos. Se puede decir que ante todo soy un oyente ya que la música es un buen método para conocer otra gente, algo especialmente importante en mi caso, ya que estoy en una silla de ruedas y no salgo demasiado. Tener discos es una forma de tener todo tipo de visitas en casa. Siempre prefiero escucha música a hacerla. Si hiciese lo contrario acabaría encerrado en mi propio mundo, y quiero conocer otros. Pero contestando a tu pregunta Alfie dice que probablemente sea un cantante de jazz.

- ¿Qué tipo de música escuchas con más asiduidad?
- Mi amor original fue el jazz, pero a partir de ahí he desarrollado mi interés en varias direcciones. Gracias a gente como John Coltrane o Miles Davis terminé interesándome por algunos tipos de música española, y cuando digo española supongo que me refiero a la andaluza. Las características del flamenco son particularmente interesantes porque a veces se utilizan escalas e ideas que asocio con sonidos árabes e indios.

LA VOZ DE LA CONCIENCIA

Hay una generación de músicos británicos que está fuertemente influenciada por Robert Wyatt. Se trata de aquellos que han apoyado activamente la, lucha contra la supremacía del partido conservador, gente que no sólo comparte el estilo sino también la crítica política que el ex batería ha derramado en obras como «Nothing Can Stop Us» u «Old Rottenhat». Identificar a Wyatt con la vieja izquierda es ya un tópico, y por lo tanto, un detalle que ha contribuido a crear una imagen un tanto exagerada del artista. Si bien es cierto que sus textos bordean en algunas ocasiones el sermón político, su postura no es tan previsible como cabría esperar.

- ¿Cómo ves los acontecimientos sociopolíticos que han ido sucediéndose en Europa en los últimos meses?
- Hay algunos detalles verdaderamente aterradores. He sabido que, por ejemplo, en la antigua Alemania del Este, para ejercer como médico debes probar que tienes una ascendencia alemana pura, al menos en una generación. Es terrible, lo más parecido que puede haber a un resurgir nazi. Muchos médicos y profesores alemanes están trabajando como porteros porque no son alemanes puros, lo cual es algo muy preocupante. Si continúan habiendo erupciones como ésta me temo el futuro que nos espera. No me sorprendería si el próximo siglo apareciesen unos cuantos gobiernos fascistas en Europa, tanto en el este como en el oeste.

- ¿Crees que los movimientos ecológicos son una nueva forma de movimiento político progresista?
- Bien, un buen marxista debería estar pensando siempre en estas cosas. Engels y Marx lo hacían; una de sus principales críticas al capitalismo es que éste ejercía el poder sin responsabilidad. Por ejemplo, esa gente que llega a un país tropical para abastecerse de caucho, sin importarles si se devasta todo un bosque; una vez terminan, se trasladan a otro para hacer lo mismo. El único problema con los partidos verdes es que evitan las cuestiones de poder político. No puedes preocuparte sólo de ser bueno con los animales, no es suficiente.

- ¿Qué opinión te merecen las estrellas del pop que se empeñan en comprometerse en temas políticos y sociales a los que aseguran defender desinteresadamente?
- Oh, creo que no se les puede medir a todos por el mismo rasero. Lo preocupante es que se intente hacer caridad con ese tipo de asuntos porque lo que se termina generando es más colonialismo cultural: gente de países ricos ayudando a los de los países más pobres. Si realmente quieren ayudar que colaboren para que ciertas naciones dejen de explotar a otras. En cuanto a los músicos, siempre hay que observar de quién se trata.

- Entonces, ¿crees que existen casos de ese tipo intachables y honestos?
- Hay gente que piensa, «me reportará un gran prestigio el colaborar en la próxima gira de Amnistía Internacional». Pero también me consta que hay gente responsable al respecto; Sting utiliza su influjo en los media de un modo muy responsable, no dudo de su sinceridad. Claro que también podríamos considerar las cosas de otra manera. Por ejemplo, escuchas una canción en la que un tipo dice, «te amaré el resto de mi vida» y sabes perfectamente que el que canta eso ha amado a media docena de mujeres en la última semana. Así pues, ¿qué está diciendo? Supongo que es muy difícil escapar a las presiones del marketing.

- Ryuichi Sakamoto dijo en una ocasión que tienes una de las voces más tristes del pop, ¿estás de acuerdo?
- No lo sé, no imprimo deliberadamente una u otra emoción a lo que canto. Cuando canto tan sólo trato de ordenar la música correctamente, como si todo fuese instrumental. De hecho, mucha de la gente que me influencia y admiro son instrumentistas, trompetistas y cosas así. Quizá es que no estoy creando emociones deliberadamente: es como una foto, cuando ves a alguien que no expresa absolutamente ninguna emoción; da sensación de tristeza.

- ¿Te interesan los grupos de la escena independiente británica?
- La verdad es que no me entero demasiado. No estoy muy conectado con los media en general, llevamos una vida como muy apartada del resto del mundo. Conozco muy pocas cosas y no suelen ser precisamente las últimas novedades. Los músicos ingleses que más admiro no son nuevos: Paul Weller, Ian Dury.

- ¿Y Billy Bragg?
- Sí, es un gran tipo. Ha hecho algo similar con el rock a lo que Winton Marsalis hizo con el jazz. Pero mi modelo de compositor sigue alguien como Paul Weller.

No está muy claro cuánto tiempo habrá de pasar hasta que Robert Wyatt haga su siguiente disco («nunca sé qué ocurrirá después»). Pero sí tiene claro que es «fan de esa banda gallega, Os Resentidos; son mucho mejores que muchos de los nuevos grupos de por aquí». Dice que hace 20 años que no ve a Kevin Ayers y hasta se extraña de que haya grabado un disco no hace mucho. Robert Wyatt, genio y figura, vive en una órbita privada de la que sólo nos llegan noticias de vez en cuando. Inencasillable, tan cercano del mundo real y a la vez tan distante.

DISCOGRAFIA DE UN ROBINSON INGLES

Con SOFT MACHINE
«Love makes sweet music/Reelin' Feelin' Squealin'» (EP, 1967)
«VOLUME TWO»(LP,1969)
«THIRD» (2 LPs, 1970)
«FOURTH»(LPJ971)
«TRIPLE ECHO» (3 LPs, 1977)
«LIVE AT THE PROMS 1970» (LP, 1988)
«THE SOFT MACHINE TURNS ON CD» (Peel Sessions; LP, 1990)

Con MATCHING MOLE
«O Caroline/Signed curtain» (Sn, 1972)
«MATCHING MOLE» (LP, 1972)
«MATCHING MOLE'S LITTLE RED RECORD» (LP, 1973)

En solitario
«THE END OF AN EAR»(LP, 1974)
«I'm a believer/Memories» (Sn, 1974)
«ROCK BOTTOM»(LP, 1974)
«RUTH IS STANGER THAN RICHARD» (LP, 1975)
«Yesterday man/ Sonia» (Sn, 1977)
«Arauco/Guantanamera» (Sn, 1980)

«At last I'm free/Strange fruit» (Sn, 1980)
«Grass» (single compartido, 1981)
«From man to woman» (Sn, 1982)
«NOTHING CAN STOP US» (LP, 1982)
«Stalin wasn't stallin'/Stalingrad» (Sn, 1982)
«Shipbuilding/Memories of you/Round midnight»(Mx, 1982)
«THE ANIMALS FILM» (Banda sonora; LP, 1982)
«Work in progress EP» (Mx, 1984)
«OLD ROTTENHAT» (LP, 1985)
«The last nightingale/On the beach at Cambridge»(Mx, 1985)
«The age of self» (Single compartido, 1985)
«The wind of change/Namibia» (con los Swapo Singers; Sn, 1985)
«Peel sessions» (Mx, 1987)
«DONDESTAN»(LP,1991)

Temas en recopilaciones
«MINIATURES» (LP, 1980; tema «Strangers in the night)
«RECOMMENDED RECORDS SAMPLER»
(2 LPs, 1982; tema «La internationale»)
«THE LIBERATOR» (LP, 1989; tema «Pigs»)

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt - El extraño genio de la profundo - Disco Express - Num. 369 - 2 Abril 1976

EL EXTRAÑO GENIO DE LO PROFUNDO

UNA LUCHA VITAL POR SUPERAR LA ESTETICA VOCIFERANTE

Ya ha superado la barrera de los treinta años. Incluso ha superado el paredón de su incapacidad física. Cuando Robert Wyatt se defenestró allá por el 73 se pensó que desaparecería del panorama rock el legendario batería de Soft Machine. Pero la profecía sólo era parcialmente cierta. Su accidente hizo surgir en él una nueva creatividad instrumental y una nueva vivencia generadora de inspiración. Hay que hablar desde entonces de dos Wyatt: su etapa anterior al auto-vuelo en picado y la posterior, siempre sentado.

Su primera época tuvo varios escalones. Junto a varios amiguetes luego famosos (Ratledge, por ejemplo) tocaba ya desde el año 59. En el David Allen Quartet (61) rodeaban al poeta-guitarrista loco australiano, Hugh Hopper (b), Mike Ratledge (teclas), y Wyatt. De aquí pasó a formar junto a Ratledge, Mal Dean (trompeta) y Rab Spall (violín) un grupete denominado The Korean War (63). Hasta ahora el jazz presidía sus acciones pero su siguiente paso será de aire pop al quedar creados los Wild Flowers (64) con Hugh Hopper, Kevin Ayers (gt), Brian Hopper (saxo), Richard Sinclair (gt. rítm.) y Wyatt. Con solo darle otro empujoncito ya lo tenemos como miembro fundador de Soft Machine junto a Ratledge, Ayers, Allen y Larry Nolan (gt). Desde entonces aguantó todos los cambios que fue sufriendo la banda hasta que a finales del 70 graba el último Lp con ellos. Un año más tarde se iría definitivamente. Su aparición baterística y vocal en esos 4 LP's fue respaldada por la co-autoría en doce temas y la aportación de tres temas propios, dos en el «Volume Two» y uno, de veinte minutos, en el «Third», tema en el que según confesó Ratledge todo el trabajo de órgano y piano eléctrico es del propio Wyatt salvo el último solo.

Pero Robert empezó en el mismo 70 con actividades extra-machinescas. Primero con los Whole World de Kevin Ayers (que dejó S. M. en el 69) participando en la grabación de «Shooting at the Moon». Luego con la Amazing Band creada por los antes citados Mal Dean y Rab Spall cuyo violín aparece en el «Third») y junto a Mick Brannan (saxo alto), Chris Francis (saxo tenor), Top Topham (gt.), Jim Mullen (bajo, luego gt. con Brian Auger y Vinegar Joe), y Miriam Spall (voz). Pero la actividad decisiva es con su propio grupo con quien completa su primer Lp como solista, «THE END OF AN EAR» (Dic. 70) acompañado por Elton Dean (saxo), Marc Charig (corneta) y Neville Whitehead (b). En sus palabras el disco es un montón de «cosas totalmente free en diversas combinaciones, con todo el desmadrado sonido burlón que Zappa descartó hace 5 años y con el que yo estoy divirtiéndome al ra cantidad». En el sampler «Rock 71» se incluye un temita super-extraño y cachondón de la Carla Bley, «To mark everywhere», perteneciente al tal Lp.

Coincidiendo con la aparición del disco Wyatt anuncia la creación de Symbiosis, otra banda de free —loco con el piano— voz legendario Zoot Money, Nick Evans (trombón), Mongezi Feza (trompeta), Gary Windo (tenor), Steve Florence (gt.) y Roy Babbington (b). Luego se añadió en la batería el futuro Hatfield Pip Pyle. Por esta época estuvo de un activo increíble apareciendo en discos de Lol Coxhill («Ear of beholder»), Daevid Allen («Banana Moon», donde toca bat, gt solista), Centipede («Septober energy») y Syd Barrett («The madcap laughs»).

En agosto 71 deja Soft Machine definitivamente y participa en el Festival de Jazz de Berlín respaldando al tándem violinístico de moda: Ponty, Sugarcane, Urbaniak y Brantner. Poco después forma su grupo Matching Mole, una banda que el célebre John Peel describiría como de «Mahavishnu con sentido del humor». Wyatt escogió para esta ocasión a Phil Miller (gt, ex-Delivery), Bill McCormick (bajo, ex-Quiet Sun) Dave Sinclair (teclas ex-Caravan) y después al australiano Dave McRae (piano eléctrico) con quienes grabó «Matching Mole» y en el mismo 72 «Little Red Record» (sin Sinclair) con la colaboración de Eno y sus cacharros electrónicos. El humor burlón desde luego era una de sus características y se evidenciaba en letras como esta: «Qué haces en la Tierra, Dios?. La próxima vez que envíes aquí a tu hijo dale una esposa y una hija sexy», o en incluir un diálogo entre prostituta y cliente inexperto.

Cuando aparentemente todo iba en canoa y Wyatt escribía temas para el tercer Lp de los Matching, aparte de colaborar de nuevo con Ayers en su «Whatevershebringswesing», se le ocurre caerse desde un tercer piso cuando asistía a una fiesta. Como resultado aparece una nueva imagen del rubio a partir de ahora ex-batería: esclavo d e una silla de ruedas.

Su estado de ánimo se va recobrando lentamente y tras un año de inactividad y replanteamíentos mentales vuelve a aparecer en alguna actuación de Ayers y colabora en el primer Lp de Haftield & The North. Sus viejos amigos no le olvidan en la histórica actuación del «June 1,74» y allí va a tocar pequeñas percusiones.

Su aparición como solista se producirá en julio de ese año en un festival a beneficio de los familiares del ya mencionado Mal Dean. Precisamente ese mes se ponía a la venta «ROCK BOTTOM» del cual ya se habló en estas páginas (ver D. E. n.° 319). Le acompañaban en la aventura Richard Sinclair (b), Hugh Hopper (b), Mongezi Feza (trompeta), Gary Windo (woodwind), Fred Frith (viola), Mike Oldfield (gt), el viejete cachondo Ivor Cutler (voz, concertina), Laurie Allan (bat) y la mujer de Wyatt, Alfreda Ellidge (alias A. Benge, en la intimidad, Alfie) que diseña la carpeta y canta. Sí hay algún disco trágico de principio a fin no cabe duda que es éste. La voz se hace fantasmal, atormentada, las teclas producen acordes obsesivos, introvertidos, cálidos, sin pizca de frivolidad o de brillantez egocéntrica. El bajo subyace como línea de reflexión y opacidad. La guitarra de Wyatt se tiñe de misticismo oriental en su única aparición. Incluso una canción de amor como «Sea song» está inmersa en lo tétrico gracias a un conseguí d í s i m o efecto de melotrón sobre el que un piano rabioso se quiere imponer .El caos psico-físico se patentiza dolorosamente en «Little Red Riding Hit The Road» en el que la voz lucha por emerger entre la telaraña anudada ñor los instrumentos de viento.

En relación fonética y emocional con su mujer Alfie están los temas «Alifib» y «Alife». La ansiedad, la agonía incluso hacen su aparición con un dramatismo exasperado al que los saxos clarinetes de Windo añaden la connotación de la queja desesperada. «Profundo» es la traducción del título y en verdad que es el justo. El trabajo de Wyatt en teclas, voz y percusiones es seguramente de lo mejor que haya hecho en su vida, haciéndote olvidar sus años de batería y completando, sin intención, uno de los pocos «álbum concept» que valen la pena de principio a fin.

Por este tiempo su ánimo mostraba de nuevo el aire burlón de su primera personalidad, pues a un crítico del Melody Maker le espantanó lo siguiente: «Miembro a miembro me estoy desintegrando. No podré tocar la batería nunca más y como fumo 60 pitillos diarios la voz se me secará en un par de años, además, como el envenenamiento alcohólico se apodere de mi no seré capaz de escribir canciones y me convertiré en un patético zombi sentado frente al piano. Sin duda, poco después, la parálisis afectará mis manos y finalmente cuando todas mis facultades se hayan atrofiado me convertiré en crítico y me iré contigo al MM.».

Los franceses conceden al disco el Premio de La Academia Charles Cross. Al poco tiempo lanza un single con el tema «I'm a believer», una re-re-re-creación del clásico tema compuesto por Neil Diamond para los Monkees. Le acompañan Fred Frith, Richard Sinclair y Nick Mason. Meses más tarde la Virgin se niega a lanzar también como single el tema «Yesterday's man» y lo incluye en el sampler «V». Toca en el 2.° disco de Eno. Un año después del plimer plástico ya está acabado el segundo «RUTH IS STRANGER THAN RICHARD» que ahora se ha publicado aquí. Inferior al anterior pues se conjuntaron una serie de circunstancias discográficas televisivas que le desanimaron profundamente y le llevaron a hacer un disco porque el contrato le exigía. La inspiración de Wyatt ha de buscar ayuda en Frith, o en Offenbach, o en Brian Hopper. Nick Masón, pink floydiano él, sigue produciendo y en los créditos encontramos a Laurie Allan Bill McCormick, Gary Windo, John Greaves (b), Nisar Ahmad Khan (saxos), Eno (sintet, gt.), Frith, y la trompeta de Mongezi Feza con quien ya no podrá contar nunca más pues falleció estás navidades.

Empieza el asunto con «Soup song», una melodía convencional y alegre que aprovecha Wyatt para decirnos cómo se hace una sopa mientras Windo se desgarra con su saxo culinario.

Sigue un agradable tema de Feza para su lucimiento (ahora suena como un auto-homenaje) mientras la batería de nuestro héroe suena de nuevo. Buena antesala para la mejor pieza del disco, «Team spirit», una adaptación del tema «Frontera» que compusieron Wyatt y Manzanera para el Lp de éste último. Allí Robert cantaba en español demostrando que había estado su temporadita de rigor en Mallorca y que le gusta leer a Samuel Beckett pues el textito se las traía. La adaptación es preciosa y supera aquel tema con facilidad. La letra comunica esa desesperanza en su invalidez física y el miedo que le produce sentirse depender de los demás. Los dos saxos crean el climax propicio mientras la voz se agarra al piano. El trabajo de Mc Cormick es sencillamente fabuloso. Por si alguien duda de la ideología de Wyatt nos ofrece una sentida versión de la «Song for Che» que el contrabajista Charlie Haden elevó a inmortal en su Lp «Liberation Music Orchestra». Aquí se le da un marcado ceriz funerario. Escucha cómo batea leí ex-Gong Laurie Allan.

"El único corte compuesto especialmente por Wyatt es «Solar flares», donde nos re-encontramos con cierto aire hipnótico y onírico. La voz y teclas desarrollan este tema cautivador y sencillo. La misma broma d e irrealidad cargada ahora de experimentación es la que se observa en «5 black notes & 1 white note». Para finalizar un dueto piano (Frith) — voz (Robert) con premeditados cambios d e acorde por parte del miembro de Henry Cow y de registro por parte del segundo. El buen Robert no ha podido evitar que el disco acabe con tristeza. Mucha tristeza. Toda la que en estos momentos tiene Robert en su cabeza.

Ruth es más extraña que Richard y Robert lo es más que los dos juntos. Tal vez por eso pueda llegar de nuevo a la genialidad de lo profundo. De momento en Septiembre - 75 estaba trabajando junto a Carla Bley (teclas), Jack Dejohnette, (bat) y Steve Swallow (b) en un disquete con temas de Michael Mantler y Edward Gorey, titulado THE HELPLESS CHILD AND OTHER GOREY STORIES.

Antonio de Miguel

DISCOGRAFIA

—SOFT MACHINE: single «Love makes sweet music»
Volume One (68).
Volume Two (69).
Third (70).
Fourth (71).
—KEVIN AYERS & THE WHOLE WORLD: «Shooting at the Moon» (70).
—AMAZING BAND: Creo que llegaron a grabar un Lp en el 70.
—ROBERT WYATT: «The End of An Ear» (70).
—LOL COXHILL: «Ear of the beholder» (71).
—DEAVID ALLEN: «Banana Moon» (71).
—CENTIPEDE: «Septober energy» (71).
—SYD BARRETT: «The madcap laughs» (71).
—NEW VIOLIN SUMMIT (71).
—KEVIN AYERS: «Whatervershebringswe sings» (72).
—MATCHING MOLE: «Matching Mole» (72).
«Little Red Record» (72).
—HATFIELD & THE NORTH (74).
—«JUNE 1,74» (74).
—ROBERT WYATT: «Rock Bottom» (74).
Single «I'm a believer» (74).
—ENO: «Taking tiger mountain (by strategy) (75).
—PHIL MANZANERA: «Diamond head» (75).
—ROBERT WYATT: Single «Yesterday's man» (en sampler «V») (75).
«Ruth is stranger than Richard» (75).

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

En Menorca, de week-end con Robert Wyatt - Vibraciones - Noviembre 1975 en Menorca, de week-end con robert Wyatt

POR JM. MARTI,
FOTOS : CARRERAS MOYSI

Kevin Ayers dixit; "Cuando llegué a Canterbury en seguida conocí a los beatnicks locales. Eran muy extraños en comparación con los demás y estaban muy metidos en el jazz. Las cosas estaban centradas en casa de Robert Wyatt, porque allí estaban la música, las drogas y el sexo. Yo no estaba interesado en la música por aquel entonces pero terminé uniéndome a ellos. Solíamos emborracharnos... ¡La historia de mi vida!... y cuanto más nos enrollábamos tocando, mejor salía."

Esto sucedía hacía 1963, el año siguiente nacieron los Wilde Flowers y después Soft Machine. Son los orígenes de la Escuela de Canterbury, Wyatt, Ayers, Sinclair, Allen, Ratledge...

Ahora Robert Wyatt ni bebe ni fuma otra cosa que dorados Benson & Hedges o azules Rothmans, pero tiene una mujer, Alifie, rubia, alta y corpulenta, con hermosos y fuertes senos que se adivinan a través de los largos y escotados vestidos que siempre lleva con cara de eterna gruñona, imagen maternal que no esconde su papel en la vida de Robert. En cuanto a la música admite que disfruta más escuchando que haciéndola y que si la hace es porque hay sonidos que le gustaría oír y los debe hacer él mismo. Pero tampoco creo que Wyatt a raíz del accidente que lo dejó imposibilitado en una silla de ruedas, sea alguen que haya renunciado a nada, ni que su vitalismo congénito se haya difuminado en la amargura. Y como músico, a pesar de que se quite importancia a sí mismo, es uno de los más completos de su generación y para demostrarlo, el mejor álbum del año (apreciación completamente subjetiva) es suyo. "Rock Bottom" ha sido mi disco durante todo el invierno pasado y me sigue sorprendiendo cada vez que lo escucho. Cuando se lo dije me agradeció muchísimo la deferencia y casi estuve a punto de explicarle las historias que me sucedieron en torno a su música. Pero no fue ésta la onda del primer encuentro con Robert y Brian Eno en casa de un amigo común en Mahón, extraña ciudad-pueblo, cosmopolita y provinciana, capital de ta isla desde que los ingleses estuvieron en Menorca, perfecto lugar, lleno de matices, mezcla de culturas y... calma. Al abrir la puerta tropecé con la imagen de Wyatt y corno por impulso le dije ¡Hola! como si lo conociera de toda la vida, pero es que su imagen me era tan familiar, coincidía tanto con lo que yo imaginaba, que no pude por menos. Al fondo una divertida imagen de Eno —pelo corto hacia delante disimulando su incipiente calva, jeans y camiseta negra sin mangas— me saludaba. Un auténtico turista despistado que distaba años luz del serio y concluyente Eno que conociera en Londres.

—Tú también te has cortado el pelo —me dijo.

Alrededor de la mesa las mujeres de ambos se enfrascaban en la típica lectura de revistas y a un lado sonaba fuerte "Quiet Sun", el álbum que Manzanera ha grabado con su antiguo grupo y en que también ha participado —cómo no— Eno. Una ligera tensión en el ambiente, me pareció que habían olido a periodista y cuando esto ocurre, los artistas suelen desplegar en abanico su susceptibilidad. Eno, sin embargo, se mostraba mucho más amable que Wyatt, quizá porque ya me conocía, pero éste sacó su sarcasmo cuando, en parte para cachondearse, pusieron el primer disco de Neu en plan ale-mano-cósmico. Yo no seguí muy atentamente la conversación, pero en un momento escuché el nombre de Tangerine Dream, y aunque tampoco sea un fan de los Dream no los considero comparables con Neu. Así que me aventuré a dar mi opinión. Robert asintió con la cabeza y tras un silencio dijo:

—Cualquier Barry White lo hace igual o mejor.

—No veo que haya comparación posible.

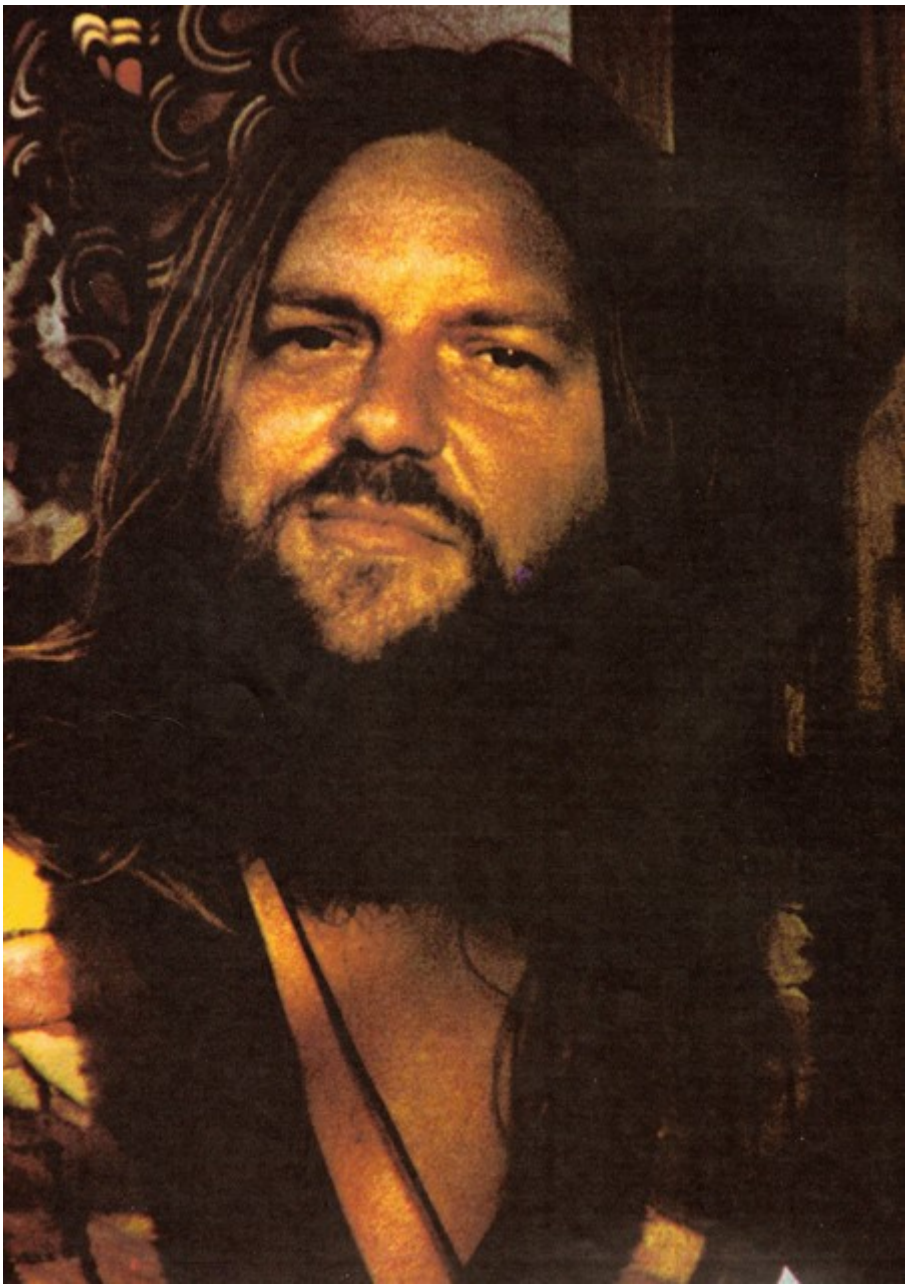
—Si claro, como que Barry White es gordo, negro y feo y hace estos sonidos con la boca, es una mierda. Pero los otros que son altos y rubios y lo hacen con máquinas son cojonudos...

Me dejó bastante cortado y me salí como pude. Más tarde, cuando ya se iban le propuse a Robert una conversación más larga para el día siguiente, a lo que me contestó:

—Si tú quieres..., podernos hablar de Barry White...

—Bueno, podemos discutirlo...

(Conste, que como puedes imaginar el diálogo se desarrolló en inglés, con lo que quedó mucho más bonito. —"If you want, we can talk about Barry White." —Ok, we can talk about it.) Pero al día siguiente, viejos amigos diseminados por las islas, pacíficos y relajados amigos, consiguieron que me olvidara de muchas cosas, entre ellas la cita, lo que me proporcionó un día más de estancia en Menorca, algo que agradecer. Así, al tercer día, después de la hora playera, me presenté en un pequeño chalé de Binibeca, el pueblo de pescadores más bien imitado de España. En una casita a menos de veinte metros de las olas y a un paso de la playa, decorada como todas las casas de veraneo, unos cuantos muebles stándar salpicados de las diversas pertenencias de sus habitantes. Saludo a Eno enfrascado en un plato de espaguetis con salsa y a los demás personajes excepto a Robert que sale un rato más tarde. Sobre una cómoda, un tocadiscos escupe música ininterrumpidamente, sin parar. Con Carlos, el amigo común que nos había presentado, localizamos una "casette" del White con la que sorprender a Robert.



—"Oh, muchas gracias. Pero no te creas que yo soy un fan de este señor, simplemente ocurre que tengo un gran respeto por la música popular. Me merece toda la consideración posible el mundo del clásico show-biz, el espectáculo concebido en un sentido popular. Hay una lar-ga y considerable tradición en el mundo de lo que podríamos llamar varietés, es algo que siempre ha existido y que responde a una necesidad real, quizá no tan sofisticada como la que otros sostenemos. Personalmente yo no tengo nada en contra de ello, únicamente ocurre que no formo parte del tinglado.

Mientras tanto Eno escurrió el bulto inhibiéndose completamente de la conversación, marchándose al jardían a tomar café. Durante el resto de la tarde, e incluso después, cuando fuimos a pasear por Mahón, se mantuvo entre cortés y distante, quizá herido en su susceptibilidad de artista y star. Pienso que podría deberse al hecho de que yo entrevistara a Robert y no a ék Asi que cambiaron tos papeles, si el primer día era Robert el que no quiso saber nada, luego resultó un personaje fantástico con el que me entendí perfectamente. Así que pude le solté el rollo de mi amor por "Rock Bottom" aprovechando para renegar un tanto de su último disco "Ruth is stranger than Richard".

—"Estoy de acuerdo contigo, a mí tampoco me gusta demasiado, pero tiene una explicación; mientras que Rock Bottom era el resultado final de un proceso de experimentación, "Ruth is..." es un trabajo de experimentación, una investigación que puede llevarme a una obra posterior. Por eso es relativamente poco compacto, si se quiere falto de coherencia".

El disco contiene dos historias diferentes, en una cara Ruth, critica a Richard mientras que en la otra ocurre lo contrario, y desde luego, la cara en la que habla Ruth es mucho mejor que la de Richard. Parece que Wyatt haya tenido una deferencia para con el personaje femenino y él se encarga de confirmármelo. Pero poco a poco, el café, la soleada tarde mediterránea de principios de otoño nos impulsa a convertir la entrevista en tertulia de café e inevitablemente a hablar de política, era imposible hablar de otra cosa a finales de septiembre pasado...

—"... ¡Claro!, yo, políticamente votaré siempre laborista, sin embargo, muchos pop-stars se han declarado decididamente conservadores y hasta cierto punto bastante reaccionarios. El gobierno laborista les exige cantidad de dinero como impuestos y reaccionan contra él. Gente como Rod Stewart, los Faces y hasta los Stones, hacen propaganda conservadora, y de hecho influyen considerablemente en una masa de votantes que por simple fanatismo pueden votar conservadores en las próximas elecciones. Aunque también hay excepciones, por ejemplo los Floyd, a pesar de ser millonarios mantienen una postura bastante aceptable, Masón me decía una vez que se ponía nervioso siempre que algún ministro laborista hablaba por TV renegando de los ricos y aumentando los impuestos. ¡El gobierno laborista, aquel por el que había votado! Y, sin embargo, me confesaba que a pesar de todo él no podía votar por la derecha, ni creía que pudiera hacerlo nunca."

> Zoom

—Pero ésta es una postura muy ambigua, se trata sólo de un pequeño sentimentalismo nostálgico que solo tiene valor como anécdota.

—"Si claro, pero es que esto de llegar a ser "star" es algo que proporciona mucho dinero y el dinero es una espiral. Por ejemplo, resulta que el dinero invertido en negocios no paga impuestos, pues bien, la mayoría de millonarios del "rock" invierten en negocios de todo tipo, principalmente en aquello relacionado con el tinglado musical. Pink Floyd, por ejemplo, acaban de montar unos estudios de grabación en Londres con lo que se han salvado de pagar impuestos. Y esto a su vez da más y más dinero y cada vez se es más rico y de ahí se pasa a una posición de poder de la que es muy difícil salirse."

—Es el eterno dilema de integrarse o no, aunque el signo de los tiempos, quizá como respuesta a la frustración de nuestra generación, sea el volver a jugar desde dentro.

—"Y da la casualidad de que precisamente el clásico individuo inteligente que adopta una postura relajada ante la vida y no le obsesionan ni el dinero ni la fama ni todas estas cuestiones, precisamente por esto, por la lucidez que le proporciona esta manera de pensar, es el que acaba haciéndose rico y triunfando en lo que se ha propuesto. Yo no quiero hacerme rico, sólo me gustaría vender suficientes copias de cada álbum como para que me permitieran hacer el siguiente."

—Pero aunque tu postura sea quizá más honrada, por otra parte, la gente que hace música popular, en el más amplio sentido del término, que es la que se hace rica, es mucho más realista en su planteamiento inicial, dejando a un lado planteamientos más intelectuales y sofisticados que solo llegan a una minoría más o menos amplia."

—"Si, te lo admito, se peca de exceso de sofisticación e intelectualismo. No tengo nada que decir. Pero estos temas llevan siempre a callejones sin salida, no por la discusión en sí sino porque hay algo que falla en general."

—Hay algo que falla en general y muchas cosas se hallan en franca decadencia, el "rock" inglés, por ejemplo, ha quedado reducido a unos pocos grupos para minorías y el resto son productos de consumo. ¿No?

—"Esto tiene una explicación. Concretamente, al final de los cincuentas se suprimió en Inglaterra el servicio militar obligatoria. El ejército era algo que tradicionalmente ocupaba la primera juventud de cualquier inglés. Con estos años libres la gente llenó las Universidades y los Colleges, pero en aquel tiempo, mientras que las pruebas de acceso a cualquier carrera técnica eran muy difíciles, no ocurría lo mismo con las Art Schools en las que era muy fácil entrar. Fue la época dorada de las Escuelas de Arte, había libertad absoluta de experimentación, unas inmensas posibilidades creativas y muy buenos profesores. El resultado fue una generación de artistas de los que un buen tanto por ciento se dedicaron a la música (Eno, Sid, Barret...) e hicieron posible el boom musical inglés de la década pasada."

—Bueno, ¿y ahora por qué ya se ha acabado?

—"Porque ahora las escuelas de Arte se han convertido en algo mucho más institucionalizado, y tas pruebas de acceso son muy difíciles, y porque esto es algo que sucede así, de una manera irregular, las situaciones y los lugares propicios para hacer algo se dan durante temporadas. Durante cinco años lo que realmente vale la pena es hacer "rock" en Inglaterra, pero luego se acaba y resulta que lo interesante es hacer de antropólogo en el Perú, o jugar al tenis en Bolivia. Es mejor así, porque sino, al final, las cosas acaban aburriendo y las historias se empiezan a repetir."

Eno, de espaldas. Esta vez la entrevista no iba con él.

Robert nos pregunta por una tienda de discos en la que pueda comprar unos cuantos álbumes de cantaores de flamenco. Se aprueba por unanimidad ir hasta Mahón y de paso tomarse unas copas. Así que tras la típica historia de ponerse en marcha, el camino discurre en un bonito atardecer salpicado de blancas casas hasta meterse en una ciudad teñida de los últimos calores del verano, con las terrazas de los bares aun bastante llenas y un público colorado y paseante mirador de escaparates. Entramos en una tienda de discos en busca de algún disco de Agujetas de Jerez, Gerena o Manolo Caracol. La primera tentativa resulta infructuosa pero Eno se ha comprado...
¡Oh! "Blood on the tracks" de Dylan, y Wyatt ha localizado un viejo Miles Davis, "Move On", el de la portada amarilla y asegura que no lo había visto nunca y se lo lleva. La segunda tienda está mucho más surtida, increíblemente surtida, lo tienen todo allí tras mostrarle al dueño un disco de Wyatt, el single "i'm a believer" en el que aparece su foto y decirle que era aquel señor que venía con nosotros, nos instalamos y empezamos a barajar discos y discos. Con Julio, el sevillano que venía con nosotros le hacemos una selección de cantaores. Agujetas, Caracol, Menese, Gerena, Camarón de la Isla, Diego del Castor, y casi todo lo lque pudimos localizar.

—"Lo que más me interesa del flamenco es la utilización de la voz más que la guitarra, el cante jondo. Además ahora estoy particularmente interesado y obsesionado porque hace poco leí un ensayo sobre el nacimiento del "blues" americano a mediados del siglo pasado, y establece una comparación con la consolidación del flamenco en Andalucía. Las coincidencias son increíbles, casi fecha por fecha a nivel sociológico hay una simetría total en cosas como su extracción popular, de trabajo rural, de raza segregada."

Y como por un sortilegio todo el mundo empieza a encontrar piezas de museo entre el surtido de discos, olfateando entre el cartón, viejas grabaciones de "jazz", reliquias nostálgicas de todo tipo.

—Ya no compro nunca "rock" inglés, no me interesa, con la excepción de lo que hacen mis amigos, lo cual naturalmente sigo, estoy más interesado en abrirme, en conocer la música que se hace por el mundo, tanto música americana como de cualquier sitio."

Por allí encima aparece el "Diamond Head" de Manzanera y le pregunto a Robert por el significado de "Frontera" la canción que canta él en español.

—La tetra es absolutamente surrealista…

—"¡Oh no!, no es tan complicado como te parece, es simplemente un ejercicio de español que había en un libro de idiomas. Juntando todas las frases salío esto. No es que intentara cantar en español, sino que utilicé los sonidos que me daba el texto como sí fuera música, olvidándome de los espacios entre palabras y de los acentos."

Sentados en el Bar Andalucía, en la plaza Robert estaba como un niño con zapatos nuevos mirándose el paquete de discos que había comprado. Un par de copitas de ginet llenaron el tiempo que me quedaba para coger el avión. Una despedida rápida, de esas en que uno se avergüenza un poco de salir tan disparado. Eno se muestra amable tras hacerse el estrecho toda la tarde, me dice que va a venir a Barcelona unos días, y de pronto me acuerdo de que no le he hecho aún una pregunta de las más típicas y casi obligada, que Robert explique los proyectos que tiene en perspectiva.

—Estoy grabando en el último álbum de Carla Bley después de que dejara la Jack Bruce Band. El grupo lo forman... (y aquí yo raudo y veloz intento apuntarme los nombres, al final le pido a Robert que me lo escriba, y cuando me devuelve el bloc, leo:) El grupo se llamará "Goreysongs y el personal será; Words; Edward Gorey, Music; Mike Mantler, Keyboards; Carla Bley, Bass; Steve Swallow, Drums; Jack de Jonette, Voice; Richard Nixon..."

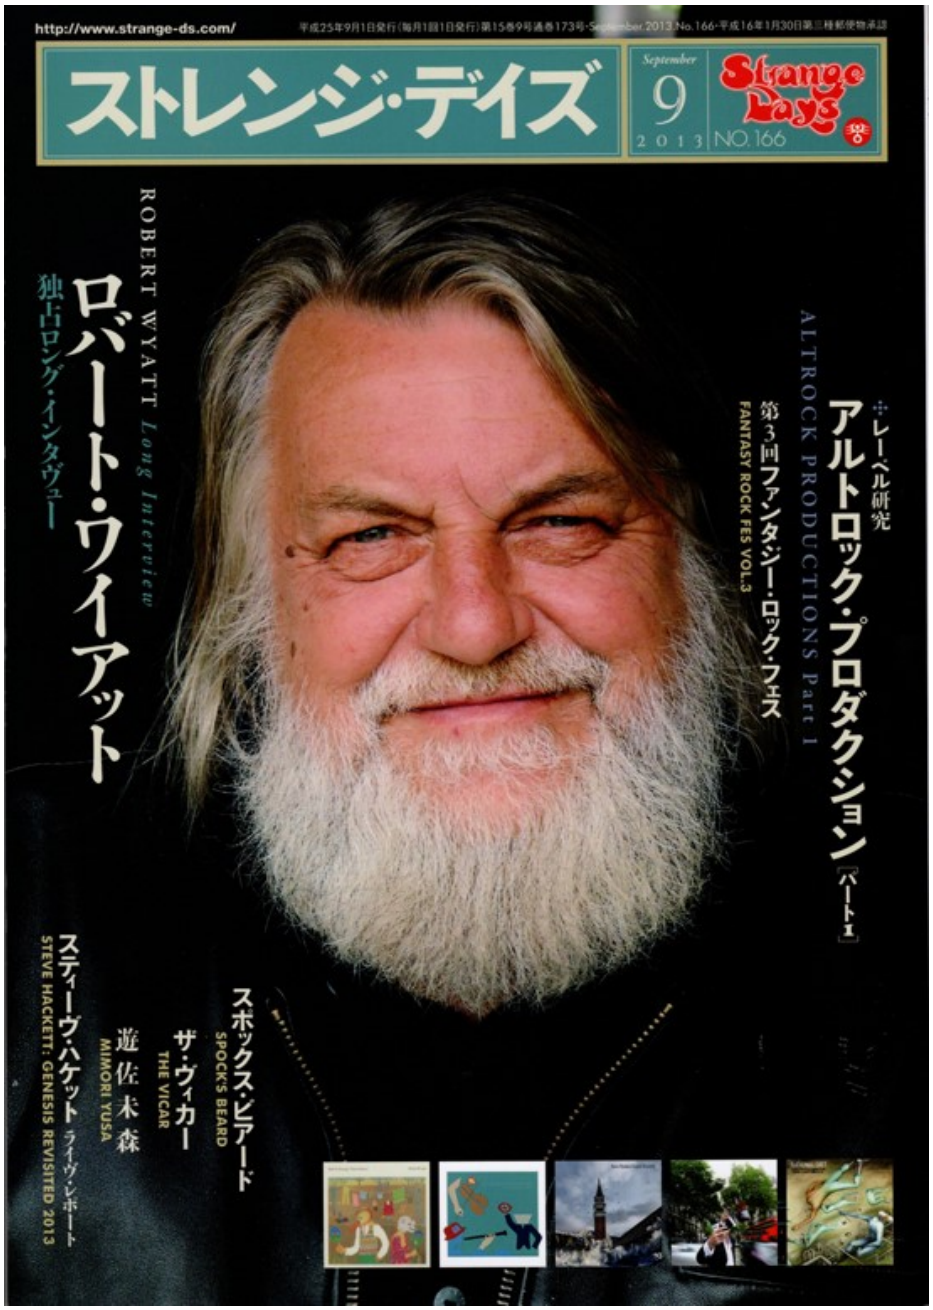
—¡Cómo! ¿quién es este Richard Nixon?

—"Es que como soy muy modesto no he querido poner mi verdadero nombre..."

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list



ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt - Long Interview - Strange Days - N° 166 - September 2013

ROBERT WYATT

ロバート・ワイアット
robert wyatt 独占ロング・インタヴュー
Long Interview

60年代中・後期から現在まで連綿と続くカンタベリー・シーン。その源泉の一人として知られるアーティストがロバート・ワイアットである。不慮の事故で車椅子の生活を余儀なくされてからも精力的な活動を続け、デヴィッド・ギルモア、ビョーク、ブライアン・イーノ、ポール・ウェラーなど、多くのアーティストに多大な影響を与え続けている。そんな彼がストレンジ・デイズのインタヴューに応じてくれた。今もまだカンタベリー・シーンの中心に鎮座し、大きな存在感を誇るロバート・ワイアットの超貴重なスペシャル・インタヴュー。

インタヴュー＝ミカエル・ビヨルン
訳＝池田聡子

僕がロバート・ワイアットに初めてインタヴューしたのは、10代後半の頃だった。僕はロンドン郊外にある彼の自宅に招かれ、偉大なロック・スターに会ったことにすっかり圧倒されていた。以来彼は、音楽的にもまた人間性の面においても僕にとってはずっと偉大なヒーローだった。

けれども僕が今回のインタヴューのために彼とコンタクトをとったとき、〝言うべきことはもうない〟とはっきりと断られてしまった。ロバート・ワイアットは、オリジナル・アルバムにボーナス・トラックをたくさん追加収録した最新のリイシュー盤に非常に不満を持っているようだった。

しかし何度かEメールを交わすうちに、ロバートは打ち解けてくれて、インタヴューすることに同意してくれた。彼の怒りは、ユニークで見事なオリジナル・アルバムへの強烈なプライドに征服されているという感じを持った。ようやく彼と話をすることができたとき、ロバートはとてもいいムードで、親近感に満ちた笑いでいっぱいだった。僕は10代の学生に戻った気がして、思いやりがあって、思慮深い彼の姿勢にすっかり魅せられてしまった。

◉

――早速ですが、あなたとインタヴューをして、掲載前にそのインタヴュー原稿を送りたいと思っています。

「そのことは前にも聞いたよ。でも僕はどんなものであれ検閲みたいなことをするのは好きじゃないんだ。僕は自分が考えていることはどんなことでも話すし、きみは自分が書くことをどんなことでも書けばいいんだ」

――わかりました。ありがとう！

「ただきみは、このことについて語るのは自分の考えであったことをはっきりさせるべきだ。ある街にやってきた司教についてのジョークがあるのを知っているかな。司教が街に着くと、一人のジャーナリストが彼に訊ねた。〝あなたは、わたしたちの街の赤線地区を訪れる予定はありますか？〟と。司教は答えた。〝きみたちの街には赤線地区があるのか？〟。すると、翌日の新聞の一面には――まるでそれが司教の目的かのような表現で――〈司教は〝この街に赤線地区はあるのか？〟と訊ねた〉と飾るんだ（笑）」

――わかりました。それでは、マッチング・モウルについて話をしたいのですが……これは僕の考えで、あなたのではありません！

「そうだな（笑）」

――マッチング・モウルは、ソフト・マシーンをフランス語にした〝マシーン・モール（Machine Molle）〟にかけているものですよね。

「ああ、フランス語でソフト・マシーンのことだよ。だから僕は単にソフト・マシーンを続けると思っていたんだ。なぜ完全にその名前を失ってしまうことになったのかわからなかったからね」

――あなたがソフト・マシーンとしてフランスにいた際、実際に〝マシーン・モール〟と呼んでいたんですか？

「ああ、彼らはそう呼んでいたよ。僕のちょっとしたジョークだったんだ。それがすべてさ。誰もその名前を所有していなかったから、実際誰でもソフト・マシーンと名乗ることができた。マッチング・モウルのレコードを〝ソフト・マシーン5〟とか〝ソ

> Zoom

フト・マシーン6〟とかって呼んでいたのはすごく面白かった。だけどそうしているうちに〝そう呼ばなくても気にしなくていいんじゃないか〟って思ったんだ（笑）」

――もともとこのバンドはどのようにスタートしたんですか？

「それが覚えてないんだ……どうやってビル・マコーミックのことを知ったのか思い出すことができない。彼は僕を知っていた。彼はフィル・マンザネラの学友だったからね。彼らがまだ若かった頃、ソフト・マシーンのコンサートに来ていたんだ。まあ、それは別として、本当にわからないんだよ。デイヴ・シンクレアはもちろんキャラヴァンの頃から知っていた。それからデイヴ・マクレエ……いったいどうしてデイヴ・マクレエのことを聞いていたんだろう？……おかしなことに思い出すことができない。だいたい50年くらい前から僕は音楽で生計を立て始めた。それから10年くらいは、ライヴで仕事をしていて、毎日ノンストップでドラムを叩いていた。1973年から今までドラムを叩いていないけど、たくさんやってきてから、覚えているのは難しいんだ」

――マッチング・モウルではどういう音楽を作ろうとしていたのでしょう？

「子供の頃、僕が聴いていた音楽は、父親が聴いていた音楽……基本的にクラシックだった。その後兄が自分のジャズのレコードを家に持ってきたんだけど、そのLPもかなり長いものだった。僕はそれに慣れていた……実は、僕にとって革新的だったのは、ポップ・レコードのような3～4分の短い曲を作ることだったんだ。その曲が商業的であるかはどうかということには興味なくて、2～3分で1曲を完成させるというアイデアだけだった。普通の人がプログレッシヴ・ミュージシャンに対して考えるものとは反対の方向だ。プログレッシヴ・ロックの人たちはまずロック・ミュージシャンとしてスタートして、その後壮大な作品を作るようになっていくからね」

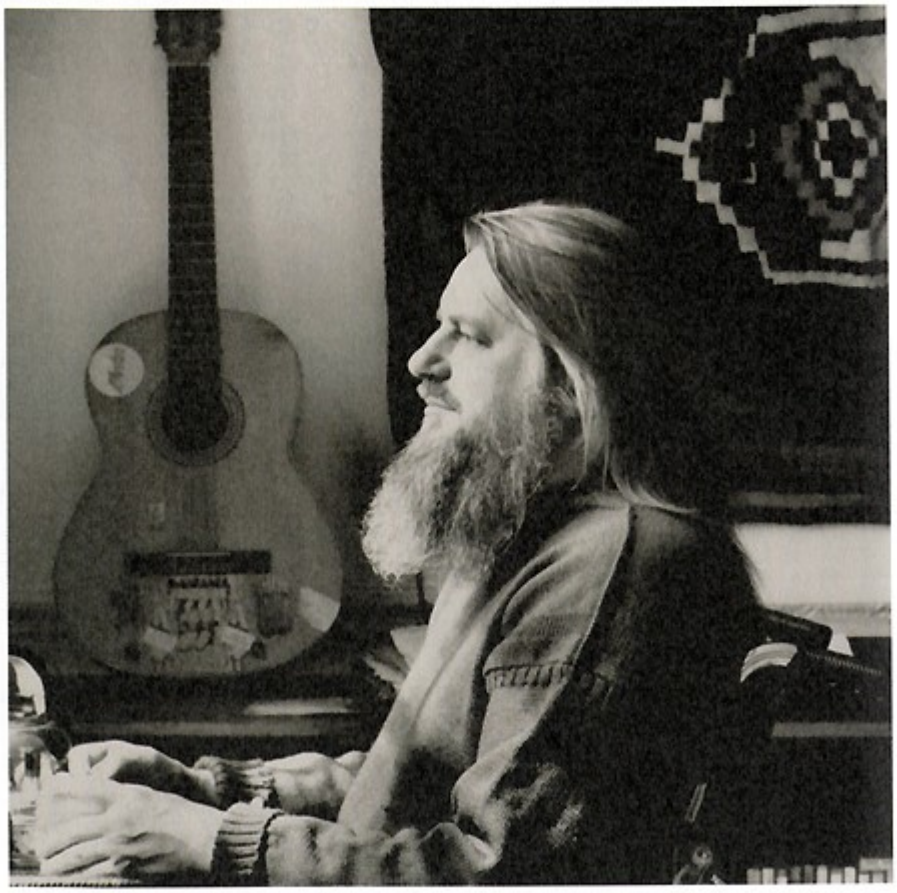
――つまり長いものから短いものというのは、違う方向にあるという……。

「別の方向にあるんだ。僕たちがどこで出会ったかというのは興味深いけど、僕はその方向には進んでいなかった。僕にとっての50年代のドラマティックな発見はポップ・ミュージックだったんだ。僕は子供の頃ポップ・ミュージックを聴いたことがなかったからね。だから〝これは面白い！1曲作って、3分後に止めるだけなんだ〟って思ったんだ」

――（笑）。

「僕の父はヒンデミット、ストラヴィンスキー、バルトークのようなレコードを持っていた。僕にとっての音楽は、いかに長いかというものだった。それから兄はデューク・エリントンやチャールズ・ミンガス、ギル・エヴァンスなどのレコードを持っていた。それはある種、長くなっていったものだった。そういうふうに僕は音楽について考え始めた。うまくやろうとはしなかった。僕は、人が耳にする初めの部分について慎重に考えるけど、終わりの方はもっとも弱いトラックを置くというやり方が好きじゃなかった。実際、僕はレコードの終わりのインパクトは、レコードの初めと同じ

> Zoom



くらい強いものだと思うんだ。レコードの最後の音……シンフォニーとやったもののように……は、それが止まると、そこに漂っているものなんだ」

――マッチング・モールのファースト・アルバムではポップ・ソング「オー・キャロライン」で終わらないで、それで始まっています。

「いや、僕はまだそこまで手が回っていなかった。だけど、よくデイヴ・シンクレアの支持に回った。ポップ・ミュージックを見下している人たちと一緒のときは、非常にディフェンシヴになったよ。そして〝やってみるといいよ。そんなに簡単じゃないから〟って言うんだ。だけどその一方でポップ・ミュージックじゃないものは何でもただ大袈裟で退屈なものだと考えている人たちに囲まれると、僕も動揺してしまう。なぜそこに闘いがなければならないのかわからない。そんなことをしないで、その違いを楽しむべきじゃないか」

――どのようにその音楽を組み立てようとしたのですか？

「僕たちはオール・セインツ・ロードって

Robert Wyatt

> Zoom

いうところに住んでいたんだけど、悲惨なところだった。1階と2階に部屋を持っていて、1階にすべての楽器を置いていた。当時そこはとても貧しくて荒れ果てたところだった。僕たちはかなり大きな音を出すことができたし、騒ぎ立てる隣人もいなかった。だからこそそこにいたんだ。そしてまさにほとんど演奏していた。ジャズのように、いろんなものに相対するように楽器を演奏していた。僕はジャズのプロセスを逆に行ってみたかった。そうすると一つのプランからスタートするけれども、インプロヴィゼーションは最新のタイプのものになる。ファースト・アルバムで、フィル・ミラーと僕で大部分のテーマを作った。歌が入っていない曲か、もしくはある種パターンだけのメロディかのどちらかだった。だけどこれらのパターンの扱い方は無限のヴァリエーションがあった。リズム・パターンを続けるか、ハーモニーのパターンにするか。そしてその他のあらゆるものが変化するんだ。フリージャズからとても影響されていたんだけど、僕はある種ロック・サウンドをベースにしたものにしたかった。ロックのコンテクストの中での自由が欲しかったし、当時は珍しかったと思うんだ。何かを変えるということだ。それはレコーディングの編集において行なう。僕たちは何時間も型にはまった作業に耐えた。だけどそのプロセスは、ずっと機能しているものを見つけ、機能していないものはすべて捨てることだった。それが、このレコードのCD再発で僕を動揺させたものだ。彼らは、機能していたものでも扱わなかったものをすべて入れたんだ。とにかく……率直に言えば、僕を慌てさせた。なぜならオリジナルのLPは、たまに聴くリスナーにとってはランダムに聴こえるかもしれないけど、実はそうではないからだ。僕は人が思ったように聴こえるものが好きなんだ。それは結構簡単で、彼らはそれについて考える必要はない。僕たちは〝アートレス〟って呼んでいるんだ。僕はアートレスな（作りものではない）アートが好きなんだ。人はランダムだと思う。でもランダムじゃない。ちょうどいい引用がある。セザンヌの言葉だったと思う。〝人々は、わたしの絵をまるでそれらがあまりに早急に描かれたもののように見えると思う。それは彼らがあまりに早急に見ているからだ〟（笑）」

――デイヴ・シンクレアは、あなたがポルトガルから彼を電話で呼び戻したと話していました。あなたはグループに彼を入れたいと本当に決めていたのですか？

「もちろんズート・マネーといった非常にいいオルガン奏者を何人か知っていた。だけど概して僕が知っていたキーボード奏者は、ジャズ・プレイヤーか、ジャジーなブルース・プレイヤーだった。それはそれで素晴らしいけれど、すでに存在しているイディオムだ。確かに、インプロヴァイズすることに興味を持っていて、クラシカルで伝統的なものをやっていた素晴らしいキーボード奏者もいた。だけど僕は、彼らは、僕がスウィング、もしくはグルーヴと考えるものに強い概念（興味）を持っていないこと気がついた。だから一緒にプレイするミュージシャンを見つけることはとても難しかった。僕は、きみたちが特定のイディオ

> Zoom

ムに属していると見なす人たちは欲しくなかった。僕は音楽から特定のアイデアを得ることはなかった。アイデアはたいてい絵画から得ていたんだ。ボナールはドガとは似ても似つかないし、ドガはゴッホとは似ても似つかない。そしてゴッホはカンディンスキーとは似ても似つかないものだ。彼らは一つのものに適合しようとしているようには見えない。彼らは彼ら自身の言語で展開している。そして僕はそれをしてくれる人、ただ〝ああ、これはジャズのものだね〟とかそういったことを考えない人が欲しかったんだ。僕は以前に行なわれたことのない何かを本当に探し求めていたんだ」

――『Little Red Record（そっくりモグラの毛語録）』では、他のミュージシャンたちは音楽を発展させることに、より大きな役割を担っています。

「その通りだね。彼らはお互いにもっとよく知っている間柄だったし、僕と仕事をすることにももっと慣れていた。だから彼らは自分たちがどんなもののために曲を書いているかわかっていた。これはまた『そっくりモグラの毛語録』はもっとダメになりそうだったことを意味している。なぜなら、ファーストでのプレイは民主的だったけれども、編集では僕がすっかり独裁的だったからだ。僕は自分たちが作る次のレコードでは、他の人たちに対して、彼らがやりたいことをやらせなければならないと感じた。彼らがやりたいことは何でも。だからデイヴ・マクレエは曲を作ったし、ビル・マコーミックも曲を作った。フィル・ミラーも作品を作った。もともとアルバムはそんなふうに論理的ではないんだ」

――アルバム・タイトルはそうは思えませんが……？

「人はそうだと考えるけれど、それほど政治的なことではない。僕は当時政治的なことには特別興味はなかった。アルバム・タイトルはただのジョークだったのさ。誰もが、〈毛沢東語録（Little Red Book）〉のことを意味すると考えるけど、列車についてのイギリスの児童書の名前、〈ちいさなきかんしゃレッドごう（Little Red Engine）〉から取ったのさ。レコードには非常に単純化した社会主義のレトリックがあった。僕はそれを意味したのかどうかはわからない。おそらく何について話していたかもわかっていなかった。だけど毛沢東主義者を模したアルバム・カヴァーのアイデアは、僕のものじゃなくて、レコード会社のものだった。僕たちは何も関係していなかったんだ。僕はジャケットには当惑したよ。なぜなら世界でもっとも穏やかな人間であるかわいそうなデイヴ・マクレエは、恐ろしい銃を渡されていた。虫も殺さない彼にはとてもアンフェアなことだったよ」

――いくつかの楽曲はニックネームで書かれていますね。

「そう、そうしたことに興味ある人がいるかどうかわからないけど、〈Gloria Gloom〉は僕の妻のアルフィー（アルフリーダ・ベンジー）のことだし、〈Flora Fidgit〉は女優のジュリー・クリスティーのことだ」

――そしてデイヴ・ゲイルと合わせて、彼らは〈Die Mutter Korus〉ですね。

「その通りだよ。僕は最近またデイヴ・ゲイルに会ったんだけど、彼は映画か何かを作っていたよ。実は彼は、ピンク・フロイ

> Zoom

ドの友達だったんだ。僕が背骨を損傷したとき、〝ロバートのためになぜコンサートをやらないんだ？〟って言ってくれたのは彼だった。だから僕はデイヴには感謝することがたくさんある。それに彼はアート・カレッジの頃からのアルフィーの友人だ」

――アルフィーとジュリーは二人ともレコードで語っています。

「確かにね。デイヴ・ゲイルもそこにいる。彼はとてもおかしなものを作っているんだ。彼らの話を聞くことができれば、彼がウールのものを着たがることについて聞けるよ。彼はいつもウールのものを着るのが好きなんだ。ちょっとおかしな神経症的なものだけど、より安心感を感じさせるらしい。ジュリーは、何らかの理由で初めての客と娼婦になることに決めた。そしてアルフィーは、彼らがいったい何について話しているのかと思っている。とにかく僕たちはそこにすべてのものをそのままにした。僕たちはそれに楽しみがあったんだ」

――ジュリーの最初の客は女性のようですが……？

「ああ、そこには含みがあって、デイヴ・ゲイルは間違いなく興味を持っていなんじゃないかな。彼はウールのものでいっぱいっぱいなんだ。だけど僕は考え抜かれていたとは思えない。彼らはミュージシャンと同じくらい即興でやっていたと思う。それはまた普通は決してやらないやり方だ。楽器の統一性を保ち、いくつかの声を入れる方法をトライして、成功させることは非常に興味深かったし、面白いことだったけど、いつもではなかった」

――レコードは少し混沌としていますね。ロバート・フリップはまるで思いがけないプロデューサーのように思えます。

「そうだね、わかっているよ。なぜ僕が彼に頼んだのかわからなかったと思う。おかしなことに、僕の息子が昨日やってきて、僕とフリップが、何かのフェスティヴァルだったと思うけど、向かい合って話している写真を見つけたんだ。それはとても楽しい写真なんだけど、僕は全然覚えていないんだ。僕は彼のバンドを聴いていたのか、あるいは僕が彼に何かを聴かせていたのかも覚えていない。僕たちが1965年イギリスで仕事をしていた頃、そこで僕が知っていたバンドは本当にいなかったんだ」

――フィル・ミラーは、フリップに畏敬の念を持っていたのでスタジオでのレコーディングが難しいと考えていましたね。

「ああ、ビル・マコーミックはそう言っているよ。実際ビルはいつもそうみたいだ。彼はほとんど慢性的と言えるほどシャイで、決して人を見ないんだ。だけどそれが本当であるなら、それに全く気づかなかったことを言うのが恥ずかしいよ。僕はジミ・ヘンドリックスとのツアーを行なっていたから、その後素晴らしいギタリストの存在によって、畏敬の念に打たれることをイメージすることはとってはとても難しいことだったんだ」

――ブライアン・イーノもアルバムに参加しています。

「そうだね。ビル・マコーミックがフィル・マンザネラの友人だったことから彼のことを知っていたんだ。ビルは彼に〈Gloria Gloom〉のイントロを頼んだんだけど、彼

> Zoom

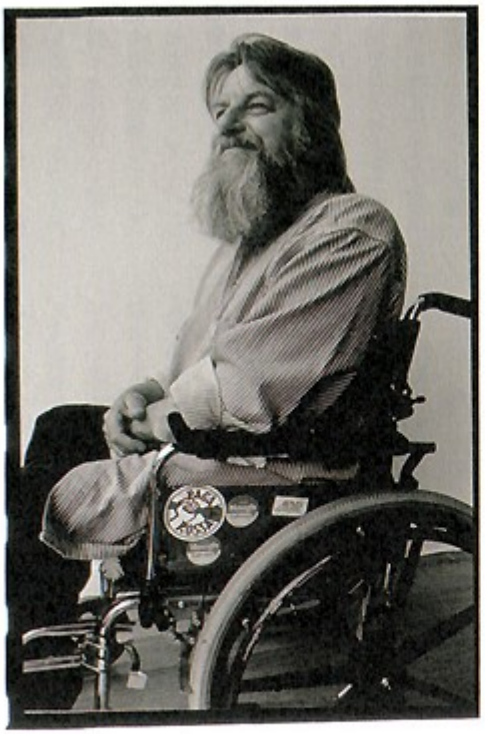
は自分のスタジオでそれを作ってきて持ち込んだだけだった。だから僕たちはそれに手を加えたんだ」

――彼はスタジオにシンセを持ち込み、デイヴ・マクレエがレコードでそれを使っていると思うのですが……。

「ああ、おそらくそれが正しいんだろう。僕は完全に忘れてしまっているよ！　そうだね、その通りだよ。イーノは控えめなやり方でレコードに貢献している。彼がやっていることがわからないくらいさ。デイヴ・マクレエは彼自身がキーボードについて創意に富んでいる。とにかくある種クレイジーなやり方でファズ・ボックスやペダルを使うんだ。けれども確かに彼はブライアンのために試していることが満足だったんだ」

――1993年のBGOでの『そっくりモグラの毛語録』のCDリリースの際には、A面とB面が入れ替わっていました。僕はあなたはもともとあのアルバムをそうしたかったのだと読んだのですが……。

「その通りだね。それについては確証がなかった。結局、僕は基本的に〈Gloria Gloom〉にブライアンのイントロを入れたアルバムでスタートすると決めた。そして僕は入るにはあまりにも長くかかりすぎると思った。テーブルに食べ物を持ってこられるくらいだって」



――（笑）。

「だから僕はしばらくしてそれをやめた。僕の『ルースはリチャードより不思議』の時と全く同じアイデアだった。異なるヴァージョンでA面B面は交換したんだ」

――つまり楽曲の構成については重要だと考えていたということですか？

「ああ、そうだ。そのために責任を取った。誰かが取らなければならないからね。本当に誰も知らなかった。そう考えていたフリップでさえもね。完璧な音楽作品のためにすべてのトラックはそこにあるんだ。僕は常にそう考えたい」

――ファースト・アルバムのレコーディングの後CBSはスタジオを閉めたためマッチング・モウルがそこでの最後のバンドとなりました。『そっくりモグラの毛語録』では、新しいスタジオでの最初のバンドです。

> Zoom

「そうなんだ！　それも忘れていたよ。確かにそうだよ！　かわいそうなデイヴ・シンクレアはその冷たいスタジオにいた。僕はすっかりそのことを忘れていたよ。だけどとはいえそれは僕たちにあまり影響を及ぼさなかった。若い頃は、知っているところでなら眠ることができるというものさ（笑）」

――スタジオがそんなに寒かったということは、スタジオに入る前に音楽のパターンを発展させていたのではないか、と思うのですが……？

「そうとは限らない。僕たちは自宅でレコーディングはしなかったからね。だから僕はスタジオで試していたものがたくさんあったと思う。僕たちは、考える必要がないくらいにみんながそのパターンに十分に慣れ親しむためにリハーサルをしていたんだ」

――僕は、その他のカンタベリーのアルバムのようなサウンドなので、マッチング・モウルのファースト・アルバムの方が好みだったんですが、聴き込めば聴き込むほど、『そっくりモグラの毛語録』の方をより好きになっていくんです。

「僕もまさに同じリアクションだったよ。きみと連絡を取るようになってから、それらのアルバムを聴いていたんだ。ファースト・アルバムは全く一貫した作品で、僕たちがやろうとしていたことを理解していて、それをやったものだ。セカンド・アルバムは、もっともっと無頓着な作品なんだけど、だからこそ非常に面白いんだということがわかる。そして僕は、ヴァリエーションや異なるテイクを聴くことはかまわない。そういったものは異なる面を見せてくれるからね。CDの場合、間違いなく、より聴くべきものがある『そっくりモグラの毛語録』のCDだ。今僕はそれを聴いてより心地いい。全く同意するよ。それが逆になる。ファースト・アルバムでは、エクストラ・トラックやシングルの繰り返しにはとても不満だ。ただメチャクチャだということがわかる。だからきみに同意するよ」

――マッチング・モウルのCD再発には満足していない？

「僕は、オリジナルの78回転のレコードであっても、ヴィニールのLPであっても、2面あるものが好きなんだ。そしてそれぞれおよそ20分持つLPの2面があることがとても面白いことにいつも気づく。とてももったいぶっているように聴こえるけど、僕はとてももったいぶった男なんだ。だけど人生の多くはだいたい不均衡な二等分だということがわかるはずだ。実際、目にしても、腕にしても、男と女にしても、みんな対のものだ。スプラウトが育っていくのを見れば、最初に目にするのは片方と、もう片方が交互に出てくる葉だ。それらは全く同じではない。僕はレコードの一面が、もう一面と同じものだけれども全く異なっているというアイデアが好きだ。ここは文字的な同義語はなく、言葉で表すことはできない。A面とB面は僕にとって何かを意味したという感覚があるだけだ。特にマッチング・モウルのファースト・アルバムにもあったが、その後のセカンドでもまたあり、また『ロック・ボトム』でも『ルースはリチャードより不思議』にもある。CDになったときでも、僕は少なくとも二つのパートに分ける傾向がある。異なるパートがあって、それがどんなタイプの形式でも、そ

> Zoom

れぞれがだいたい20分くらいの長さのものが、トイレに行ったり、もう一杯飲み物を取りに行ったりしなければならないことなしで、一つの音楽作品を聴くにはちょうどいい長さのように思えるんだ。だからそう考えていたんだ。だけど一方で、僕は大きな塊の中にそれらをすべて一緒に入れてしまうのには満足しない。なぜなら終わりまで聴いているままにできるレコードを作りたかったからだ。もしきみがオルタナティヴ・テイクがあったり、同じようなものがもう一度あるようなレコードを作るとすると、それがアーカイヴや歴史的な記録のためのものなら問題ない。だけどもともとの役目では機能しない。1枚のレコードはかけて、終わりまでそのまま聴くものだ。それがオリジナルのもののアイデアだった」

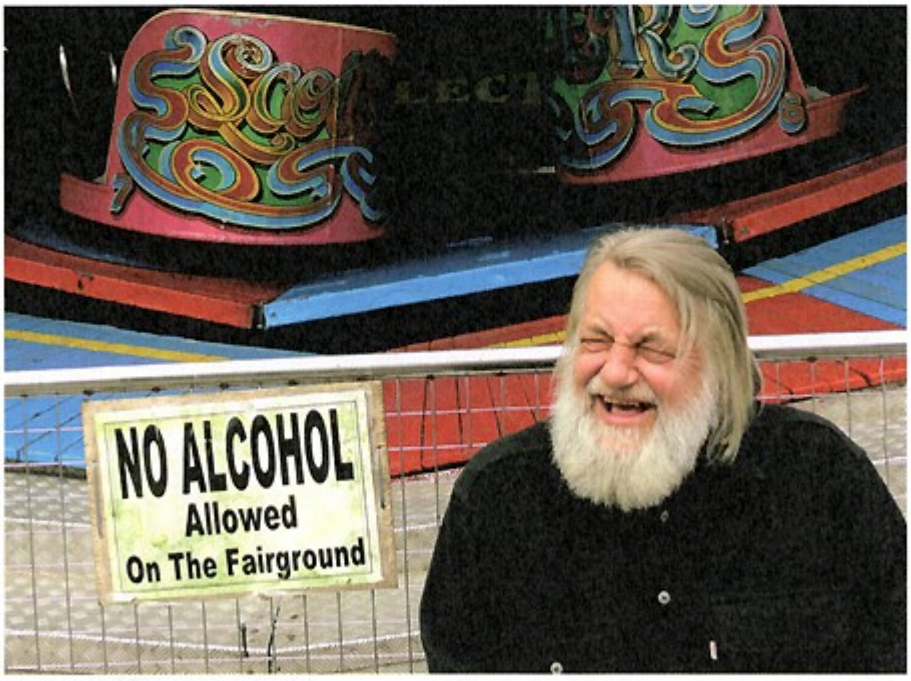
――短命のバンドでしたが、その間、たくさんのライヴを行ないました。

「ああ、僕たちはたくさんライヴをやった。そしてプレイするのは本当に楽しかった。僕はテーマの部分を変えるのが好きだった。オリジナルの〈Marchides〉のように、デイヴはテンポを完全に外したりするインプロヴィゼーションを欲しがった。ルバート(rubato)とか、歌詞があるものなら何でも。僕はそういうライヴには不安があった。だから僕はその下にある種のパルスを入れ始めた。僕はフリージャズが好きな分だけ、テンポからあまり外れたものでは全く落ち着けない。僕がジャズやロック・ミュージックについて本当好きだったものの一つは、そういったフィジカルな動きだった。だからそれを入れるか、もしくは拍子をわずかに変えたりする傾向があった」

――セカンド・アルバムのAB面はひっくり返したことには、ライヴで演奏したことが影響していたんですか？

「そうだね。おそらくまさにそういうことだったと思う」

――バンドを解散することにした時の思い出は何かありますか？



「ソフト・マシーンにおいて僕はフォロワーになり得ないことを悟ったんだ。そしてマッチング・モウルでも僕はリーダーになり得ないということがわかった。だからこの二つのグループを後にしたんだ。そしてそれから僕の心に浮かんだんだ！　僕にインスピレーションを与えた輝きの瞬間はこうだった。〝ロバート、お前はバンドにいなきゃいけないってことはないんだ！　そんな決まりはないぞ〟。ロック・グループは、だいたい軍の徴兵が終わった時にスタートするから、僕はいつも軍に入る猶予として見なしていたんだ。60年代初期には、すべての若者は数年間外国を占領するために軍に入った。そして座ってビールを飲みながら、地元の女の子をひっかけたりしていた。そして彼らが兵士を入隊させるのをやめると、ビートルズがドイツに行って、まさに同じようなことをやったんだ（笑）。僕はいつもグループみたいなものにいなければならないと思っていたけど、そうじゃなかったんだ。そうする必要はなかったんだ！　結局は僕は開放されたんだ……人は僕のことを皮肉屋だと思うだろうけど……、だけど僕は車椅子になることによって開放されたんだ。バンドはもはや可能性ではなかった。それはパラドックスだけど、僕は

> Zoom

今、起こったことに全く満足しているよ」

――でもマッチング・モウルの発展形の話がありましたね。

「デイヴ・マクレエはジャズ・ロック・トリオを結成したかったんだ。そして僕はジャズ・ロックの道を進みたくなかった。僕はジャズ・ロックとして知られるようになったものを好きじゃないんだ。ジャズ・ロックをやっている本当に素晴らしい人たちはいるけど、ちょっとご都合主義のように見えるんだ。ロック・ミュージシャンを妬んでいるジャズ・ミュージシャンはそうやっていて、〝わたしは彼らよりも上手く楽器を弾ける。髪を伸ばして、神秘的な名前をつけて、ホーン奏者を排除して、ギタリストを入れよう。そうすれば僕たちは彼らよりもロックだってうまくできる〟って考えているんだ。だから僕はジャズ・ロック・バンドにはいたくなかった。キーボード奏者については本当に考えようとしていた。そして僕が見つけた素敵な人は、カーヴド・エアでプレイしていたフランシス・モンクマンという男だった。彼にはジャズの素養

Robert Wyatt／写真提供：HosTess Entertainment

> Zoom

はなかったけど、僕は、のちにアメリカの〝Cuneiform〟というレーベルで発表されていたラジオ放送で彼と仕事をしていた。彼はクラシック畑出身で、素晴らしく、またとてもイマジネイティヴだった。だけど僕はどうすべきかわからなかった。そして〝僕はジャズ・プレイヤーだけど、セッション・ミュージシャンのようにプレイしないゲイリー・ウィンドーみたいな誰かが欲しい。おそらくまたビルなんだ〟って思った。僕はそれに取り組んでいて、それとともに何曲かは想像ができていた。だけどただそれだけで1年も費やすっていうことを想像できていなかった。だから……窓から落ちることによってそのすべてからある種救われたんだ。別の惑星に行ったんだ(笑)。別の世界にね」

——ソロ・アーティストとして、残りのキャリアであなた自身がリーダーだったわけですね。

「そうだね、その通りだよ。僕が僕自身に指示する。そこには悪感情はない」

——昨年、あなたがバブでワークショップを行なっているのをYou Tubeで見ました。そこではあなたの音楽を何曲か再生していました。

「ああ、2回あったね。〈Wire〉誌のためのものと、ロンドンのカフェOTOのためのものだ。彼らは日本人が経営している音楽のためのヴェニューを持っているんだ」

——日本でそういったことをやることに興味がありますか?

「日本には行ったことはあるけど、実はもう旅行はしていないんだ。もう飛行機にも乗らない。問題は、妻は僕より年上だということだ。彼女は70代になっていて、あまり調子がよくない。彼女は健康と闘ってきた。僕は自分の人生の大部分でかなり利己的で、自分のことをやってきた。僕はもっとマイホーム型の人間になろうとしているんだ。日本人は素晴らしいから日本には行きたいとは思っている。日本から素晴らしい手紙や美しい贈り物など、ラヴリーなものを受け取っているよ。ある人が新しいレストランの名前を付けてほしいと頼んできたんだ。僕は〝ハッピー・マウス〟と名付けたよ。それに日本人の隣人もいる。だけど僕はもう旅に出ることができない。確かにミュージシャンたちはそこでプレイすることを愛している。そして僕はそれを逃してしまっているのは悲しいと感じる。だけど僕はもうそれに対処することはできないんだ。僕は自分の障害について話すことには興味はない。なぜならきみたちが集まるように、大部分はほとんど僕を集中させて、自分の人生を単純化させるという利点だったからだ。だけど来年には70歳になるし、健康上の問題も抱えているんだ。僕はかつてできていたことをすることができない。日本には感謝している。日本人は東洋のイタリア人っていう感じだね。なぜなら僕が元気を得る二つの場所は、理解があって、親しみのある反応をしてくれる。それは西欧ではイタリアで、東洋ではもちろん日本だ。この二つの場所で聴いてくれる人たちは、間違いなく長年にわたって僕に最高の励ましをくれたんだ」

——今日はありがとうございました。

「最初の方できみにちょっと難しい時間を与えたのは申し訳ない。きみが言うように僕は個性の強いミュージシャンなんだよ!」

> Zoom

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Soft Machine & Canterbury Scene revisited - Strange Days N° 165 - August 2013

ROBERT WYATT

ソフト・マシーン&カンタベリー・シーン再訪

SOFT MACHINE &
CANTERBURY SCENE
REVISITED

特集

SOFT MACHINE &
CANTERBURY SCENE
REVISITED

70年代のブリティッシュ・ロック・シーンの一角を成すカンタベリー・シーン。それはアーティストが離合集散を繰り返しながら形成したプログレッシヴ・ロックのラビリンスであり、英ジャズ・ロックの一大コロニーとも言える。そんなカンタベリー・シーンに残された重要作が6月から7月にかけてリイシューされることになった。カンタベリー・シーンにおいて重要な位置を占めるデイヴ・シンクレア、ソフト・マシーン・レガーシーのインタヴューを織り交ぜながら、現在へと続くカンタベリー・サウンドの魅力に再び迫った。

ソフト・マシーンとカンタベリー・シーン再訪

鬼形智

すべては、ソフト・マシーンから始まった。該当バンドの多くがイギリス南東部に位置するケント州カンタベリー出身だったことから、いつしか〈カンタベリー・シーン〉と呼ばれるようになったムーヴメントはソフト・マシーンからスタートしたのだ。

厳密にいうならば、カンタベリー・シーンの源流はマシーンの前身的バンドのワイルド・フラワーズにまで遡ることができるかもしれない。時は1961年、カンタベリー名士の子弟や芸術家の卵が通うことで知られるサイモン・ラングストン・スクールで、ロバート・エリッジ（ワイアットは芸名）とマイク・ラトリッジとブライアン・ホッパーが出会ったことから歴史はスタートする。父親が放送作家で母親はジャズDJを務めたことがあるという音楽一家に育ったワイアットの元に集った彼らは、母親が所有するマンションを溜まり場として音楽や芸術や文学について語り合うようになり、やがてブライアン・ホッパー（G）と弟のヒュー・ホッパー（B）、ワイアット（Ds）、ラトリッジ（K）でバンド活動を開始した。

ワイアットがカンタベリー・カレッジ・オブ・アートに、ラトリッジがオックスフォード大学に進学したことによりバンドは解散したが、すぐにワイアットは学校をドロップ・アウトしてスペインへ放浪の旅に出かけ、そこでオーストラリア出身のデヴィッド・アレンと出会った。アレンとワイアットはヒュー・ホッパーを加えて63年にデヴィッド・アレン・トリオ名義でロンドンでライヴを行ない、カンタベリーに戻ってバンド活動を再開。そこに加わってきたのがケント州ハ

(above) left to right: Robert Wyatt, Elton Dean, Hugh Hopper, Mike Ratledge (1969年) photo by Barry Wentzell
(below) left to right: Karl Jenkins, John Marshall, John Etheridge, Mike Ratledge, Roy Babbington (1975年) from John Marshall's archive

ーンベイ出身でカンタベリー大学に進学したケヴィン・エアーズ（G、Vo）とリチャード・シンクレア（B）で、彼らはワイルド・フラワーズというバンド名で活動をスタートし、エアーズが放浪の旅に出たあとはリチャード・コフラン（Ds）とパイ・ヘイスティングス（G）が加わるなど、メンバーは流動的だった。一介のローカル・バンドだったにもかかわらず、ワイルド・フラワーズの音源が残っており発掘CD化されているが（ブライアン・ホッパーが録音マニアだったらしい）、確かにそれらの音源はモダン・ジャズ／現代音楽／ビート文学／前衛芸術に加え、これはあまり指摘されないことだがR&Bやソウル・ミュージックの影響がうかがえるものとなっている。たとえば、ファルセットで囁くように歌うスタイルやテンション・コードを多用したアレンジは、明らかに当時のブリティッシュ・ロックではなくブラック・ミュージックの手法を取り入れたものだ。すでに60年代の時点で、現代音楽と黒人音楽という水と油のような存在を融合して独自のロック・ミュージックを作り上げた彼らのセンスには、驚くよりほかはない。

放浪の旅を終えたデヴィッド・アレン、ケヴィン・エアーズ、大学を卒業したラトリッジがカンタベリーに戻ってきたことから、ワイアットはワイルド・フラワーズを脱退し（残ったメンバーはヘイスティングスを中心にキャラヴァンへと発展）、アレン（G）、エアーズ（B）、ラトリッジ（K）、ワイアット（Ds）、そしてアメリカ人のラリー・ノーラン（G）の編成で66年8月に新バンドを開始。バンド名はラトリッジの提案でウイリアム・バロウズの小説からソフト・マシーンと名乗るようになった。ノーランはすぐに脱退するも彼らは4人組で活動を継続し、ロンドンのUFOクラブなどでのサイケデリック・シーンで話題を集め、ジミ・ヘンドリックスのマネージメントを手掛けていたチャス・チャンドラーと契約を交わし、デビュー・シングル「Love Makes Sweet Music」でレコード・デビューを果たした。この後ジョルジョ・ゴメルスキーのプロデュースでアルバム用のマテリアルを録音するがバンド側がリリースを拒否（この音源は、のちにいろいろなタイトルで発掘リリースされた）、アレンがビザ問題でイギリス入国を拒否されフランスに渡るなどのアクシデントも発生しソフト・マシーンはエアーズ、ラトリッジ、ワイアットのトリオ編成となる。

68年にマシーンはサポート・ギタリストにアンディ・サマーズを迎えた編成で、ジミ・ヘンドリックスの全米ツアーのオープニング・アクトを務め好評を得て、ツアー終了後にニューヨークでレコーディングした正

2

1. 「Love Makes Sweet Music / Feelin' Reelin' Squeelin'」
Polydor / 56 151 / 1967 [UK]
2. 「Love Makes Sweet Music」
1 Polydor / 65 151 / 1967 [Netherlands]

式デビュー作『ソフト・マシーン』を米ブローブ・レーベルよりリリースする。しかしながら、ツアーに疲弊したエアーズはイビザ島へ逃避、ワイアットはアメリカに残るもラトリッジは帰国とバンドは解散状態にあった。ところがアルバムの売れ行きが予想以上によかったためブローブは2作目を要求、ワイアットとラトリッジは当時ローディを務めていたヒュー・ホッパーを加えた編成で活動を再開してセカンド・アルバム『ヴォリューム2』をリリースした。ここからマシーンの変遷の歴史が始まったと見ていいだろう。その理由としては、彼らがミドル・クラス出身の経済的に恵まれた子弟で、イヤになったら逃走する傾向にあったことが挙げられる。ハングリーなロック立身出世物語とは無縁の立ち位置は、バンド形態の流動化と音楽性の変遷を招く結果となったのだ。

ブリティッシュ・ジャズ・シーンから4人のブラス隊を迎えて7人編成となった69年10月から、マシーンのジャズへの接近が始まった。残留したエルトン・ディーン（サックス）を含む4人編成となったマシーンは新たにCBSと契約し、ジャズ・ロック色を強めた2枚組アルバム『3』をリリースする。しかしながらシリアスなジャズ・ロック路線にワイアットは反発、ケヴィン・エアーズのバック・バンドなどの対外活動

from Elton Dean's archive, left to right:
Mike Ratledge, Hugh Hopper, Phil Howard, Elton Dean（1971年11月）

や初ソロ・アルバムのリリースなどでマシーンから距離を置き始め、ついにワイアットのヴォーカル・パートが消えたマシーンの4作目『4』を最後に脱退してマッチング・モウルを結成することになった。残されたラトリッジ、ホッパー、ディーンは後任ドラマーとしてフィル・ハワードを迎えるも、あまりにもジャズ的な彼はすぐに脱退し、元ニュークリアスのジョン・マーシャルが加入して5作目『5』を発表。マーシャルのロック寄りなビートはフォーマル指向のラトリッジ&ホッパーに歓迎された反面、フリー指向のディーンの脱退を招くことになる。代わりの管楽器奏者として加入したのは、これまた元ニュークリアスのカール・ジェンキンスで、作曲とキーボードにも長けていた彼の存在によって、マシーンはロックとジャズと現代音楽を混交した、いわゆる〈カンタベリー・ミュージック〉を確立した。6作目『6』のライヴ・サイドでの白熱とスタジオ・サイドでのクールネス、7作目『7』での浮遊感あふれるサウンドは、マシーンがすべての音楽的要素を包括した総合芸術に到達したことを雄弁に物語るものである。以降もメンバーと音楽性を変遷をさせつつ81年まで活動を続けたマシーンであるが、彼らのクリエイティヴィティが最も横溢していたのは、CBSレーベル時代だったと言っていいだろう。

INTERVIEW

ソフト・マシーン・レガシー インタヴュー
SOFT MACHINE LEGACY

インタヴュー＝ミカエル・ビョルン
訳＝池田聡子

僕がジョンと話したとき、素晴らしい雰囲気だった。この日彼は、エディンバラにいるはずだったが、チケットの手違いで、ロンドンにいた。それは珍しくロンドンに陽が降りそそぐ春の日曜日の1日だった。だからジョンはよく笑い、本当に楽しんでいた。彼は楽しい話をたくさんしてくれた。キース・ティペットとのツアーや新生ソフト・マシーン・レガシーのアルバム『The Burden Of Proof』……これは、彼らの最高傑作と評されている。最近のラインナップによって生まれる活気を証明している作品で、全体的に好意的なレヴューがほとんどだ。しかし一方でアルバムは重荷も背負っているのか？　本当は何を証明しているのか？　ジョン・エサリッジにインタヴューを試みた。これを読んで、答えを見つけ出してほしい！

●

――ニュー・アルバムは本当に素晴らしいですね。

「申し分のないものになったようだ。僕たちは完璧なインプロヴィゼーション・アルバムを作るつもりだったから、ある意味ではかなり驚きだよね。だけどマネージャーの役割もやっているレオナルドは、〝メロディのある楽曲とインプロヴィゼーションをミックスしたアルバムを作りたい〟って言ったんだ。実際それはすごくいい考えだった」

――そのレオナルド・バヴコヴィッチの役割というのは？

「僕たちはレオナルドのために集まったんだ。彼は〝バンドを作りたいんだ〟って言った。彼は、エルトン・ディーン、ヒュー・ホッパー、そしてオリジナル・メンバーのアラン・ホールズワースとジョン・マーシャルをつかまえた。その後アランが抜けてしまったので、彼は僕を電話で呼び出した。そして彼は言ったよ。〝いいかい、僕はこのバンドをやりたいんだ〟ってね」

――なぜレコーディングをイタリアで行なったんですか？

「ベッペ・クロヴェッラはソフト・マシー

ンとマイク・ラトリッジの大ファンなんだ。彼は、イタリアのキーボード奏者で、スタジオを持っている。レオナルドは、イタリアに行って、たくさんのパスタを食べて、すごく太って、レコーディングをやるべきだっていう考えを持っていた。だから僕はすぐに始めて、何曲かを書いた。そしてセオ（・トラヴィス）も何曲か書いた。とても楽しかったよ。僕たちはとても楽しい時間を過ごし、ちょっと仕事もこなした。それから僕たちはロンドンに戻って、それをすべてまとめて、ミキシングして、すべてがうまく収まるようにするためにたくさんの時間を費やした」

――その多くをスタジオでライヴ・レコーディングしたのですか？

「ああ、インプロヴィゼーションはすべて間違いなくスタジオで生で録ったものだ。それが唯一のやり方だからね。だって、インプロヴィゼーションではオーヴァーダビングすることはできないから。すべてのノイズやエフェクトは、ライヴで聴くのと同じようにそこで起こったことだ。僕とテオは、自分たちのルーパー・ペダルをいじったり、リヴァースしたりしている。それがすごく楽しいんだ（笑）。だけどあまりたくさんの道具やエフェクトを使っていないという点では非常に60～70年代的だね。あまりたくさん使っていないからノイズが多いという点でもね」

――レヴューの多くで、〝新鮮な〟とか〝大胆な〟といった言葉が使われています。

「そうなんだ！　それはいろんな意味で正しい。第一に、僕たちはそれほどたくさんプレイしない。レコーディングに入ると、僕たちはあらゆる種類の新しいものを持ち込む。だから新鮮ではなくなることはないんだ。それに、自分がオリジナルを聴いたことがあるかどうかは確かじゃないんだけど、昔の楽曲〈Kings And Queens〉も入れた。もちろん僕個人的な意味でだけど、オリジナルを知らない方がよりクリエイティヴにできるっていうことがわかる。僕たちは、ヒューと一緒にこの曲をやり始めたんだけど、ヒューはそれを持ってきただけだ。僕たちは、マイク・ラトリッジの時代がどうだったかということを知らなくて、最初からプレイしたんだ」

――アルバムはどのように構成していったのですか？

「アイデアは……実は僕のアイデアだったと思うんだけど……みんなが各々ソロとデュオをするというものだった。僕は〈Kitto〉で、ロイ・バビントンは、〈Going Somewhere Canorous?〉でやった。そしてジョンは小品〈ISP〉をやった。みんながちょっとしたソロをやって、そしてみんながデュオをやった。たとえば、ジョンとセオによる素晴らしいデュオ作品〈The Brief〉のようなね。〈They Landed A Hill〉は僕とセオだ。彼はピアノで2～3のコードを弾き始めて、僕はそれにただ加わっただけさ。僕がエルトンとやったものだ。僕はセオに〝ただ演奏を始めてくれ、そして演奏しよう〟って言ったんだ。ただスタートして、終わったという、ナチュラルなものだった」

――作曲された楽曲にもすごくヴァリエーションがあります。「Fallout」は、キング・クリムゾン

の影響を感じますし、「Black And Crimson」はキャメルの感じがあります。

「それらの楽曲はセオが書いたんだ。彼は非常にキング・クリムゾンに傾倒している。そうだね、〈Fallout〉が初期のキング・クリムゾンみたいに聴こえるっていうことに、僕も同意するよ。おそらくセオも同意するだろう。彼はかなり若いけど、70年代のプログを愛して育ってきた連中の一人だ。今は、スティーヴン・ウィルソンとツアーをやっているよ。僕の音楽にもあったものだ。僕がソフト・マシーン作品を取り上げるのが好きな理由の一つは、70年代のフュージョン……この言葉を使うのは嫌いなんだけど……が僕の領域の一つだったということなんだ。その後僕は自分の人生にもっとストレートなジャズが入り込んでくるんだけど、僕の本当の領域だったのは70年代のもので、僕はそれが本当に好きなんだ」

――一方〈Pie Chart〉は、ブルージーなナンバーです。

「僕のアイデアは、チャーリー・ミンガスの〈Goodbye Pork Pie Hat〉のコードを作ったものを書くというものだった。だからこの曲に〈Pie Chart〉ってつけたんだ」

――〈Pump Room〉はアルバムの中では非常にヘヴィな曲です。

「そうなんだ、ヘヴィになってしまったんだ。僕が、アリルド・アンダーセンとジョン・マーシャルとのトリオのために書いた曲だ。『In House』っていうアルバムに収録されている。僕たちはずいぶん前にソフト・マシーンとその曲を演奏し始めた。だけどここに収録されているのはそれとは完全に異なるヴァージョンだ」

――その音楽が非常にエキサイティングであるとすれば、〝レガシー〟をとって、ただソフト・マシーンと呼んでもいいのではないのですか？

「僕たちがこのグループを始めたとき、バンドの歴史に対するある種礼儀を持ってスタートした。ロバート・ワイアットやマイク・ラトリッジ、ケヴィン・エアーズ……そしてデヴィッド・アレンといった人たちへのある種敬意とでもいうのかな。ソフト・マシーンの歴史をみると、多くの人たちが在籍してきた。けれどもヒュー・ホッパー、エルトン・ディーン、僕、ジョン・マーシャルは、個々のパーソナリティという点で力強いラインナップだった。僕たちはそれをソフト・マシーンと呼ぶこともできた。おそらく僕は他の人たちに対して賛否を問うべきなのかもしれない。〝ただソフト・マシーンってしたらどう？〟ってね。僕たちは……10年近くやってきたんだ。たくさんの場所で……こうしたことにそれほどうるさくないイアリアではどちらにしてもソフト・マシーンと呼ばれているよ」

――アルバム・タイトルの『Burden Of Proof（証明責任）』というのはどういう意味ですか？

「特別な意味があるわけじゃなかった。僕が自分の曲用に考えたタイトルなんだ。それから僕たちはこれがアルバム・タイトルにいいって思ったんだ。本当だよ。他に理由はないんだ。だけどそれと〝レガシー〟というのはある意味よく調和している。僕はこれをすごくよく考えたわけじゃない。だけど実は〝証明責任〟というタイトルが合っているっていうことは、僕たちがソフト・マシーンであるという僕たち自身の証

明であるっていうことかもね！」

――それこそ僕があなたに言ってほしかったことです（笑）。

「その通り！　今それを考えると、おそらく潜在的にそうだったんだ。みんなこれがアルバムに素晴らしいタイトルだって考えていたんだからね。そしてある意味そうなんだと思う。このアルバムは、ソフト・マシーンの全歴史におけるどの作品と比べても素晴らしいと言えると思うしね。だからおそらく潜在的に僕たちがこのタイトルを気に入っていた理由だったんだと思う。レオナルドもすぐにこれを選んだしね」

――今後計画しているレコーディングの予定はありますか？

「いやいや、僕たちはこのアルバムを出したから、2〜3年はこのアルバムのことになるだろう。今僕たちはいくつかギグをやって、これをプレイする必要がある。だけどそれは素晴らしいものになるよ。去年の10月、僕たちがやった小さめのツアーの終わりの頃、フランクフルト・ジャズ・フェスティヴァルでゲストとしてキース・ティペットを迎えてのハイライトとなったんだけど、それは信じられないほど素晴らしかったんだ！　バンドはとても素晴らしいプレイをしていた。そして僕たちは本当にそれをする必要がある。ロイとジョン……そしてもちろん僕自身も……は、それほど若くなくなっているから、今これをやるということが必要なんだ」

――ライヴで演奏するのは好きですか？

「僕は二つの理由からソフト・マシーンと一緒にプレイするのが大好きなんだ。一つは、70年代に戻って、自分が28歳だった頃のような気分にさせてくれるから。もう一つは、僕がごく稀に機会を得るプレイするチャンスを与えてくれるからだ。僕は自分の演奏時間の65％をアコースティック・ギターを演奏するのに使う。僕はそれが本当に好きなんだ！　だからそれをもっとたくさんやりたい。9月にロンドンでギグを3回やる。それから今も言ったようにキース・ティペットとやるんだけど、それは素晴らしいものになるだろう」

――キース・ティペットと全ツアーをやるのだと思っていましたが……？

「それについては話さなければならないことがたくさんある。僕たちが実際に抱える問題の一つは、多くのギグは非常に短い告知しかできないということだ。たとえば、僕たちが非常に人気のあるイタリアのような国では、コンサート前2ヶ月くらいまでブッキングはしないみたいなんだ。だけど僕やセオのような人たち……そしてジョン・マーシャルやロイも……もっと何ヶ月も前にスケジュールはふさがってしまっている。だからそうした問題が出てしまうんだ」

――日本でのコンサートの予定はないんですか？

「もちろん、やりたいよ。日本に行くのは大好きだよ。ソフト・マシーンと日本に行って、プレイするのは僕の大好きなんだ。ただ僕は旅行することにそれほど熱心じゃない……。だけど日本にいくことは、本当に好きだ。日本には2回行ったことがあるけど、気に入っているよ。非常に異なる文化がある。ただアルバムのレヴューは素晴らしいものをもらったけど、公演予定はないよ。僕は日本でライヴをしたいんだ！」

The Soft Machine

Probe / CPLP 4500 / 1968
ユニバーサル / UICY-75650(SHM-CD,紙) / 2013.6.26

ジミ・ヘンドリックスの前座で回った全米ツアー終了後、ニューヨークで録音されたデビュー・アルバム。楽曲指向のエアーズ、プレイヤー指向のラトリッジ、両者の中間的立場のワイアットという三者の異なる音楽性が微妙なバランスを保ちつつ、ライヴの勢いをそのままパッケージングした傑作だ。変拍子の未使用とサイケデリック・ポップ色の強さゆえに番外編的な扱いを受ける作品ではあるが、歪んだトーンのオルガン・ソロと反復リフの快感というマシーン・サウンドの根幹となる要素は、すでに提示されている。実はビルボード31位を記録したヒット作で、歯車が回るギミック・ジャケの米オリジナル盤は意外にも見つかりやすい。（鬼形）

Volume Two

Probe / CPLP 4505 / 1969

脱退したエアーズと同等の作曲力を持ちプレイヤー気質が遥かに上回るヒュー・ホッパーの加入により、作曲面とインスト・パートが充実し、曲の大半が8分の7あるいは4分の7拍子で埋め尽くされる変拍子アルバムとなった2作目。各楽器にファズをかけて音色を均質化しソロとバッキングの垣根を取り払ったサウンド、短い曲を組み合わせたというよりは大曲の流れの適当な箇所にインデックスを打って言葉遊び風のタイトルをつけるコンセプチュアル・アート指向、ジャズ・ロックというよりはヒップなイメージを演出するためのジャジーなスタイルの導入など、のちのマシーン、ひいてはカンタベリー・サウンドの原型は本作に存在する。（鬼形）

Third

CBS / 66246 / 1970
ソニー / SICP-30162～3 [Blu-specCD2,紙] / 2013.6.26

Disc 1: 1.Facelift / 2.Slightly All The Time / 3.Moon In June / 4.Out-Bloody-Rageous Disc 2: 1.Out-Bloody Rageous (Live) / 2.Facelift (Live) / 3.Esther's Nose Job (Live)
※曲目データ：ソニー / SICP-30162～3

69年10月のツアーよりキース・テイペット・グループ出身のエルトン・ディーン(Sax)、ニック・エヴァンス(Tb)、マーク・チャリグ(Tp)とセッション・マンのリン・ドブソン(Fl)が加わり、一時期は7人編成となったマシーンは、やがてディーンが残留したクァルテット編成で英CBS移籍初作品となった本作をリリースする。アナログ2枚組で20分弱のナンバーを各面に1曲ずつという構成(CDは1枚で4曲)、抽象的なジャケット・デザイン、単に（3作目）を冠したアルバム・タイトルには当時のシーンを席巻していたフリー・ジャズあるいはブラス・ロック（シカゴと同じCBSだったし）の影響が感じられるが、内容はジャズのイディオムをロックのフィールドで再構成したオリジナリティあふれるものだ。とくに1曲目の冒頭におけるライヴ音源のコラージュという手法は、基本的にテープ編集を是としないジャズとはベクトルが異なっており、その発想はロックというよりも現代音楽に近いものがある。牧歌的にスタートし中盤から後半にかけてのインプロヴィゼーションが白熱するワイアット作のヴォーカル曲も秀逸。70年8月ロイヤル・アルバート・ホール公演を収録したボーナス・ライヴ・ディスク付。（鬼形）

●解説：岩本晃市郎／鬼形 智

SOFT MACHINE ALBUMS

Fourth

CBS / 64280 / 1971
ソニー / SICP-30164[Blu-specCD2,紙] / 2013.6.26

前作に引き続き多彩なゲストを迎えて制作された4作目は、ベースが繰り出す変拍子リフに乗って管楽器とオルガンがインプロヴィゼーションを展開するというスタイルを築き上げた彼らが、事前にアレンジメントが施された構築型ジャズ・ロックを試行したという点において異色作といえるものだ。ホッパーのエレクトリック・ファズ・ベースとロイ・バビントンのアコースティック・ベースの絡みや、従来作以上にファズとワウなどのエフェクターを多用するラトリッジのオルガンなど、音色の追求が始まったのも本作から。歌物ナンバーどころかスキャットさえ禁じられたワイアットだが、ドラムスに専念した演奏のテンションは高い。（鬼形）

Fifth

CBS / 64806 / 1972
ソニー / SICP-30165[Blu-specCD2,紙] / 2013.6.26

アナログA面がフィル・ハワード、B面がジョン・マーシャルとドラマーが短期間で交代したのは、ジャズ指向を強めていたとはいえ、ストレート・アヘッドな4ビートのグルーヴを叩き出すハワードのドラミングは、本質的にフリー・ブロウイングに否定的だったラトリッジ&ホッパー組には合わなかったのだろう。それほどまでに、アルバム前半でのファンク度の高さはマシーン史上において異質な雰囲気を放っている。逆に、もっとインプロヴィゼーションを極めたかったエルトン・ディーンにとっての足りなくなったことも事実であり、マーシャルが叩くナンバーでは当時の彼らしからぬメロウな感覚のプレイが聴けるのが面白い。（鬼形）

Six

CBS / 68214 / 1973
ソニー / SICP-30166[Blu-specCD2,紙] / 2013.6.26

新曲中心のライヴとスタジオ録音からなるアナログ2枚組（CDは1枚）。スクエアな8ビートを得意とするマーシャルのドラミングは構築された楽曲を指向するラトリッジ&ホッパー組にとって理想的なもので、ディーンと交代で加入したジェンキンスは管楽器奏者としてだけでなくキーボーディストとしても確かなテクニックを持っており、バンドは2台のキーボードが織り成す複雑なリフを演奏可能とした。スタジオ録音盤は、複数のミニマル・フレーズの積み重ねで誰も弾いていないメロディが立ち昇ったり、残響音とサウンド・エフェクトの絡みの面白さを追求したりと、この時期の彼らの現代音楽への傾倒ぶりを表す楽曲が並ぶ。（鬼形）

Seven

CBS / 65799 / 1973
ソニー / SICP-30167[Blu-specCD2,紙] / 2013.6.26

演奏の自由度よりも楽曲の構造を重視する方向性は、ついにホッパーの脱退を招いてしまった。ドスの効いた重低音でバンドをリードしていたホッパーから、通常のベースよりオクターブ高い音域を持つ6弦ベースでメロディアスなフレーズを奏でるロイ・バビントンへの交代によってリフが構築度を増し、キーボードと管楽器がベースの呪縛から解き放たれたかのごとく軽やかに舞う。本作で初めて本格的に導入されたシンセサイザーもサウンドに浮遊感を与えており、半分だけ色がついた夢とでもいうべき不思議な感覚を醸し出している。バンド結成当初より彼らが追求し続けてきた"リフの反復による快感"は、本作で完成形に近づいた。（鬼形）

SOFT MACHINE ALBUMS

Bundles　収束

Harvest / SHSP 4044 / 1975
エアー・メイル / AIRAC-1667[Blu-spec CD,紙]

もともとは管楽器奏者として加入してきたカール・ジェンキンスが作曲家／キーボーディストの資質を前面に出してきたため、代わりのソロ・プレイヤーとしてアラン・ホールズワース（G）が加入。リフの谷間を軽やかに飛翔するようなギター・ソロは、前作まで意識的に避けられてきたドラマ性をバンドに持ち込んでおり、それはジャケット・デザインが抽象画から具象画に変化しアルバム・タイトルが数字でなくなったことにも象徴されている。マーシャルの記憶によれば、アルバム前半のナンバーは音質的に満足いくサウンドではなかったが、ホールズワースのプレイが最も冴えているファースト・テイクを採用したとのことだ。（鬼形）

Softs

Harvest / SHSP 4056 / 1976
エアー・メイル / AIRAC-1668[Blu-spec CD,紙]

モード的な奏法を得意としていたラトリッジがゲスト扱いとなり、専任管楽器奏者アラン・ウェイクマンを迎えてキーボードと作曲に専念できるようになったジェンキンスが完全に主導権を握ったことによって、前作では試行段階にとどまっていたコード進行の妙味を中心とした作曲法が開花する。コードの変遷によって楽曲が進行していく部分とモード・ジャズが入り混じったモーダル／コーダルの手法が随所で見られるのが本作の特徴だ。ホールズワースに負けない高速フレーズをフル・ピッキングで弾きまくるジョン・エサリッジのアグレッシヴなギター・ワークや、難なくユニゾン・フレーズをキメるパビントンの職人芸も光っている。（鬼形）

Alive & Well (Recorded In Paris)

Harvest / SHSP 4083 / 1978
エアー・メイル / AIRAC-1669~70[Blu-spec CD,紙]

マシーンがクロスオーヴァー路線からレゲエやファンクあるいはディスコーテクノといった多彩なリズムを導入した総合的なインスト音楽への移行を試みたライヴ盤。アルバム前半を占める組曲形式の新曲は、アンビエント・ミュージック↓レゲエ↓ギター早弾きをフィーチャーした高速フュージョン↓怒涛の変拍子リフにヴァイオリン・ソロが絡むマシーン流ジャズ・ロックといった彼らの持てる要素を詰め込んだ力作である。ラスト飾るエレクトロニック・ナンバー「ソフト・スペース」は、マシーンがデビュー当時から追求していた「リフの繰り返しによるトランス感覚」が、最終的にテクノ的な表現形態に至ったという流れを物語っている。（鬼形）

Land Of Cockayne

EMI / EMC 3348 / 1981
エアー・メイル / AIRAC-1682[Blu-spec CD,紙]

ストリングス、コーラス隊、当時の最新鋭機材シンクラヴィアを起用した優美な音色が心地よく響くマシーン名義の最終作。劇伴音楽制作で磨かれた能力を最大限に発揮したニューエイジ寄りのサウンドが極上で、グルーヴィなエレクトリック・ピアノのソロと音程のズレを気にしないジャック・ブルースによるフレットレス・ベースも聴きどころ。ドラマ性を重視した楽曲主義への移行の帰結は、イージー・リスニング・フュージョンだった。ドラッギーな酩酊感を音楽で表現することからスタートしたマシーンの歴史が、「コカインの地」なるタイトルを持つアルバムで大団円を迎えたのは、ある意味において妥当な結末だったのかもしれない。（鬼形）

SOFT MACHINE ALBUMS

SOFT WORKS / Abracadabra

Tone Center / TC 4029 2 / 2003

エルトン・ディーン、ジョン・マーシャル、ヒュー・ホッパー、アラン・ホールズワースからなるバンドの唯一作。当初はソフト・マシーン名義での活動を希望したが許諾が下りず、ソフト・ウェアに変更するもすでに名称登録があったため、結果的にソフト・ワークスというバンド名となった。キーボーディストの不在をホールズワースの独特なヴォイシングによるギター・シンセで補い、リラックスしたムードのなかでギターと管楽器がソロを取るジャズ・ロックに仕上がっている。後からオーヴァーダビングしたギターが少々浮き気味な面はあるものの、ソフト・ヘッドやハットフィールド&ザ・ノースのカヴァーも含む演奏は素晴らしい。（鬼影）

SOFT MACHINE LEGACY / Live In Zaandam

Musea / FGBG 4617.AR / 2005

ソフト・マシーンのメンバーによって結成されたカンタベリー・シーン期待のニューグループ、ソフト・ワークスは期待通りのアルバムを発表してくれたが、予想通り1枚のみの作品で解散した。

本作はその後結成されたソフト・マシーン・レガシーが05年にオランダのザーンダムで行なったライヴの模様を収録したアルバム。アラン・ホールズワースに代わって加入したジョン・エサリッジのプレイからはまさに英国ジャズの香りが漂い、今は亡きヒュー・ホッパーとエルトン・ディーンの演奏は70年代のソフト・マシーンを彷彿とさせてくれる。エサリッジのソロ作からの選曲もあるマニア必聴の1枚。（岩本）

SOFT MACHINE LEGACY / Soft Machine Legacy

Moonjune / MJR008 / 2006
ストレンジ・デイズ・レコード / SDCR-1001 ※廃盤ジャケ

歴史は繰り返す。ソフト・ワークスをアルバム1枚で脱退したホールズワースの後任として参加したのはジョン・エサリッジだった。バンド名をソフト・マシーン・レガシーに変更した彼ら初のスタジオ録音作はソフト・ワークスとは異なり、エサリッジのストレートかつエネルギッシュなプレイをフィーチャーした白熱のジャズ・ロックが繰り広げられている。メンバー全員がジャズ寄りのフィールドで活動を展開していたにもかかわらず、渋さの追求には走らずに、むしろ70年代よりもギラついたプレイを聴けるのが嬉しい。ディーンもホッパーも故人となってしまったが、ロイ・バビントンとセオ・トラヴィスを迎えて現在も活動を継続中。（鬼影）

SOFT MACHINE LEGACY / Live At The New Morning

In-akustik / INAK 9076 2CD / 2006

2005年12月、パリにある老舗のジャズ・クラブ、ニュー・モーニングで行なわれたステージを収録した2枚組ライヴ・アルバム。

ジョン・エサリッジのソロ「アッシュ」やソフト・マシーンの「4」収録の「キング・アンド・クイーン」などの演奏を味わうことができる。また映像を収録したDVDも同時リリースされているので、当時の彼らの姿を見ることもできる。エサリッジやジョン・マーシャルの白熱のドラム・ソロなど聴きドコロいっぱいのアルバムは、ソフト・マシーン・ファンなら持っていたい1枚だ。06年2月8日にエルトン・ディーンが急逝してしまったため、本作は彼の追悼盤となってしまった。（岩本）

SOFT MACHINE ALBUMS

SOFT MACHINE LEGACY / Steam

Moonjune / MJR016 / 2007

エルトン・ディーンの他界により、ジョン・エサリッジ(G)、セオ・トラヴィス(Sax、Fl)、ヒュー・ホッパー(B)、ジョン・マーシャル(Ds)の4人となってリスタートを切ったソフト・マシーン・レガシーが07年に発表したセカンド・アルバム。

レコーディングはイギリスのサリー州テンプルにあるテンプル・スタジオ。このスタジオは、コロシアム~テンペストのドラマーとして活躍したジョン・ハイズマン所有で、アルバムのエンジニアをハイズマン自身が手がけている。

アルバムの内容は前作を踏襲したもので、随所に現れる70年代のソフト・マシーンを彷彿とさせるサウンドにはグッとくるファンも少なくないだろう。(岩本)

SOFT MACHINE LEGACY / Live Adventures

Moonjune / MJR036 / 2011

エルトン・ディーンに続き、ヒュー・ホッパーまでも失ったソフト・マシーン・レガシーが、ロイ・バビントンを迎えて09年にオーストリアとドイツで行なったパフォーマンスを収録したライヴ・アルバム。メンバーは、ジョン・エサリッジ(G)、セオ・トラヴィス(Sax、Fl)、ロイ・バビントン(B)、ジョン・マーシャル(Ds)の4人。

ソフト・マシーンの「ソフツ」収録の「ゾングス・オブ・アイオロス」、「アライヴ&ウェル」で聴ける「ザ・ノッダー」などの楽曲は、古き良きソフト・マシーンの時代へと導いてくれるが、同時に攻撃的なインプロヴィゼーションは21世紀における進行形としてのソフト・マシーンの姿も伝えてくれる。(岩本)

SOFT MACHINE LEGACY / Burden Of Proof

Moonjune / MJR052 / 2013
ディスクユニオン / DUCT014 / 2013.5.29

1.Burden Of Proof / 2.Voyage Beyond Seven / 3.Kitto / 4.Pie Chart / 5.JSP
6.Kings And Queens / 7.Fallout / 8.Going Somewhere Canorous? / 9.Balck And Crimson / 10.The Brief / 11.Pump Room / 12.Green Cubes / 13.They Landed On A Hill

前作『スティーム』から6年ぶりに発表された3枚目のオリジナル・アルバム。大筋で前作、前々作と同じ方向性を持っているが、70年代のソフト・マシーンが持っていた"プログレッシヴ・ティスト"も味わえる嬉しい1枚となった。純粋なジャズでもなくビートの効いたロック・サウンドでもないカンタベリー・サウンドは、だからこそ時代に流されず多くのファンに長い間にわたって愛され続けてきたに違いない。そしてワイルド・フラワーズに始まり、ソフト・マシーン、キャラヴァン、エッグ、カーン、ハットフィールド&ザ・ノース、ナショナル・ヘルスと幾重にも分かれた源泉が、45年の時を越えて再び一つの点で交わる時、やはりその核となるのはソフト・マシーンであり、13年の現時点では本作ではないかと感じる。枯れることによって味わい深くなるジャズでもなく、シンフォニックに突き進むプログ・ロックでもない彼らのサウンドは、止まったり進んだりするゼンマイ仕掛けの時計のように気まぐれだ。新しくて古い、古くて新しいカンタベリー・シーンは、21世紀になってもすこしずつ増殖しているようだ。70年テイストと現在の空気感が混ざりあった本作が、それを物語っているようだ。(岩本)

SOFT MACHINE ALBUMS

カンタベリー・シーンと呼ばれて

岩本晃市郎

これまで何人かのカンタベリー系と呼ばれるアーティストにインタヴューを試みてきたが、彼らはカンタベリー・サウンドやそれについて聞くといつも妙な顔をする。まるで〝カンタベリーって何?〟というように。そして話がなぜ多くのグループが長続きしないのか、またどうしてメンバー・チェンジを繰り返すのか、ということになると、また同じように〝それがどうした?〟という顔をする。ジョン・マーシャルも、ジョン・エサリッジも、デイヴ・シンクレアも、リチャード・シンクレアも、ディヴ・スチュアートも、ケヴィン・エアーズも、みんな同じ反応をする。彼らにとってはそんなことはどうでもよく、おそらく考えたこともなかったんだろう。それでも質問に対し確実に答えてくれたのは、ジョン・マーシャルとカール・ジェンキンスで、ジョン・マーシャルは、カンタベリー・サウンドについて、それは「ロックのドラマーがジャズをやった音楽」という明快な答えをくれた。カール・ジェンキンスと面会したのは、彼がアディエマスで成功を収めた後だったせいもあるが、ソフト・マシーンの再結成などにまったく関心がなく、どうも自身がカンタベリー・シーン出身と呼ばれるのも嫌らしい。

確かにカンタベリー・シーンやサウンドというのは、カンタベリー地方で生まれ育ったような錯覚に陥るが、実際にはそうではない。始まりは、ロバート・ワイアットの母親が経営するウェリントン・ハウスだったかもしれない。そこにケヴィン・エアーズが転がり込み、デヴィッド・アレンが間借りし、そうやってソフト・マシーンはでき

2

1

1. KEVIN AYERS「Whatevershebringswesing」Harvest / SHVL 800 / 1972
2. GONG「Magick Brother」BYG / 529.305 / 1969

あがり、ヒュー・ホッパーやマイク・ラトリッジによるセッションが行われていたかもしれない。しかし、ケヴィンがイビザに行き、デヴィッド・アレンがフランスに止まったことによってカンタベリーの系譜は拡散してきたように思える。

やがてソフト・マシーンはファースト・アルバムをリリースするが、メンバーの相次ぐ脱退でグループは名前こそ同じだが、アルバムによって、時期によってまったく異なる方向性を示すことになる。始まりはウェリントン・ハウスでも、その源泉はワイルド・フラワーズでも、カンタベリー・シーンを、70年代ブリティッシュ・ロックの一角を成すまで押し上げたのも、そこに出入りするアーティストたちであり、表現の場としてのライヴ・ハウスなのだということがわかる。

カンタベリー系と呼ばれるグループの音がどこか共通しているのは、ある一定のミュージシャンがグループを作っては解散し、また新しいメンバーと新しいグループを作るからだ。ミュージシャンの顔ぶれは同じなので、たとえば、ベースとギターが同じとか、キーボードとドラムスが同じとか、という組み合わせは、まったく別の音楽を生み出すことはない。だから彼らを一つの集団として考えれば、つまりカンタベリー・シーンという30人編成のグループと考えれば、いろいろと理にかなった理論が展開できるはずだ。

しかし、ケヴィン・エアーズによればカンタベリー・サウンドは初期のソフト・マシーンに集約されるという。その理由は初期ソフト・マシーンには音楽以外のいろいろなカルチャーが詰まっているからだ。すでにケヴィンは他界し、二度と話すことは叶わないが、カンタベリー・サウンドとは初期ソフト・マシーンそのものを示していると言いたかったのではないだろうか。カンタベリーで出会ったアーティストたちが作り上げたカルチャーがその後様々なアーティストにまで影響を及ぼし、その結果、ヘンリー・カウやスラップ・ハッピーまでをも巻き込むさらに大きなシーンとなって現れることを考えれば、ケヴィンの言ったことは妄想や思い込みではない。

アラン・ホールズワースはUKを脱退する時に、ライヴではレコードと同じ演奏をしてほしいと願うエディ・ジョブソンに向かって言った。〝どうして毎晩同じメンバーと同じ演奏をしなければならないのか〟と。彼の発言にカンタベリーの離合集散の歴史が見え隠れするようだ。

1

2

3

4

1. V.A. [V] Virgin / VD 2502 / 1975
2. HENRY COW [The Henry Cow Legend] Virgin / V 2005 / 1973
2. SLAPP HAPPY [Slapp Happy] Virgin / V 2014 / 1974
4. STEVE HILLAGE [Fish Rising] Virgin / V 2031 / 1975

デイヴ・シンクレアは語る

インタヴュー＝ミカエル・ビョルン
訳＝池田聡子

ロバート・ワイアットに対して、大きくて、今日まで続くしっかりとした賞賛があったにも関わらず、デイヴ・シンクレアは、マッチング・モウルという音楽のるつぼのような場所では全く居心地のよさを感じなかった。それでも実験音楽とジャズが、唯一無二とも言える彼のファズ・オルガンに出会うとき、彼らの音楽はもっとも明るく輝いている。デイヴのプレイは、「Part Of The Dance」と、ソフト・マシーン的なサウンドの「Dedicated To Hugh, But You Weren't Listening」の複雑性にメロディックな要素を加える。「Instant Kitten」でのシンクレアは、ソロでもメロディ・ラインの演奏でも、『ウォーターフルー・リリー』時代のキャラヴァンがもう作り出すことのできなかったクラシックなサウンドを生み出している。デイヴは、オルガンをカンタベリー・ミュージックの特徴的なサウンドに変えただけではなく、キャラヴァンのクラシック曲「For Richard」や「Nine Feet Underground」「The Dabsong Conshirtoe」を作り出した。彼はまたマッチング・モウルの「オー・キャロライン」を書き、ポップ・ヒストリーに貢献している。だからロバート・ワイアットが〝デイヴはピアノを弾き、そして僕はドラムを叩く。僕たちは音楽を動かし、いくらか楽しみがあるようにしよう〟といって歌を始める理由があるのだ。その理由を見つけだそう。

●

――あなたは、ロバート・ワイアットのソロ・アルバム『ジ・エンド・オブ・アン・イアー』でプレイしています。それがマッチング・モウルへの参加に繋がったのですか？

「実は、『ジ・エンド・オブ・アン・イアー』への参加についてはあまりよく覚えていないんだ。だけど弾いていることは確かだ。しばらくしてロバートは僕に連絡してきて、ソフト・マシーンと録った〈6月の月〉のデモを僕に送ってきた。彼は、すべてのキーボード・パートを僕に弾いてほしかったんだ。だけどデモを聴いたとき、僕は、マイク・ラトリッジの演奏の方が素晴らしいと本当に思っていた。だから僕はロバートにそう言ったんだ。それで実際にそれから何も起こらなかったんだ」

――あなたがキャラヴァンと行なった最後のものは何だったんですか？

「1971年8月、ブランプトン・レースコースで行なわれた大きなフェスティヴァルの後、僕はキャラヴァンを去った。そのフェスティヴァルで覚えているのは、僕は何かするためにフェスティヴァルのエリアから出たんだけど、自分のパスを持って出なかったから、再入場させてもらえなかったってこと。そこの人に〝実は僕は20分くらいでステージに出るんだ〟って言ったんだけど、彼らは〝ああ、わかっているよ。前にも同じことを言った奴がいるよ〟って答えたよ。結局僕は彼らを説得するのは諦めて、通り抜けるために周囲のフェンスを突破したんだ。ステージに上がるつもりだったから、とにかく入らなきゃならなかったからね。だけどそれが僕がキャラヴァンを脱退した理由じゃないよ（笑）」

――キャラヴァン脱退がマッチング・モウルの参加に至ったきっかけだったんですか？

「マッチング・モウルに関する限り、多くの人たちは、バンドを結成するために、僕たちが計画して、ロバートはソフト・マシーンを脱退し、僕はキャラヴァンを脱けたと思っている。だけど僕からしてみれば、当時

ロバートがソフト・マシーンを脱退していたことさえ知らなかったんだ。だからそんな議論は全く意味のないことだよ」

――本当は何があったんですか？

「僕がキャラヴァンを脱退してから1週間くらいして、カンタベリーのザ・セヴン・スターズっていうパブでジョン・マーフィーと会ったんだ。彼は、すごく熱心に僕と一緒に何か仕事をしたがっていた。そして僕たちは彼がギターを弾いたり、彼の曲をたくさん書いて楽しんだ。だけど9月か10月くらいに、彼は、彼の姉妹が住んでいたポルトガル南部のファロにハネムーンに出発してしまった。そして愚かにも……僕は自分に何か起こっているかわからなかったけど、僕たちは音楽でうまくいっていると思っていたんだ……全課程をヒッチハイクしてファロまで行った。たどり着くまで8日間かかったよ。途中僕はほとんど餓死してしまいそうだった。だけど何か不思議な理由で、ロバート・ワイアットは僕がどこにいるか見つけ出した。彼は僕に〈至急戻れ。母国がきみを必要としている！　今バンドを作っている。そこでプレイしてほしい〉っていう電報を送ってきたんだ。これがそのとき起こったことさ。

僕はその後とても不思議な時を過ごした。僕が持っていた最後のなけなしのお金を失くしてしまったからだ。それは僕がヒッチハイクしながら帰るまでの食べ物などを買うのに必要な6ポンドくらいなものだった。しょうがないから代わりに、ジョン・マーフィーが戻ったとき、車でリスボンに連れていってもらったんだ。そこで僕は英国大使館に行って、基本的に本国に送還されることになった。ただ彼らは僕に少しお金をくれた。だから僕はイギリスに戻る前に、電車でパリに行って、友達と1日ほどそこに滞在したよ」

――イギリスに戻ったとき、どんなことがあったんですか？

「ロバートにコンタクトをとった。当時僕は、ケント北部の海岸を下った、テムズ川河口を見渡せる、僕の知り合いが所有しているとても大きな家に住んでいた。ロバートはその家にやってきて、僕に僕のピアノで僕の曲をすべてそこで弾いてほしいと言ったんだ。だから1曲ずつ自分の曲を演奏した。詩が付いているものが何曲かあって、その他のものには詩はついていなかった。そして何曲かは半分くらいしか完成していない詩がついていた。その頃、僕はごく稀に詩を書いていたんだ。それから僕はこの1曲を演奏した。彼は、〝その曲もう一度プレイできるかな？〟って言った。だから僕はもう一度演奏した。そして結果的にそれが〈オー・キャロライン〉になったんだ。僕たちはそれを録って、デモ・テープを作ったんだ」

――レコーディング・セッションはどんな感じでしたか？

「12月か1月だったと思う。スタジオとても寒かったんだけど、実際そこにはちゃんとした暖房は何もなくて、小さな電気で暖めるものがあっただけだった。とても大きいスタジオだったのに、その全体を暖めるためにあったのは1つか2つの電熱線みたいなものだけだった。それで僕たちはみんな手袋をはめていた……ミトンをつけてキーボードを弾こうとしていたんだ！」

――現在、ロバート・ワイアットとの関係はどうなっているんですか？

「若い頃は、ものごとをそれほどよく考えずにやってしまうものさ。僕が自分のアルバム『Dream』のレコーディングをするために彼と会ったとき、ほぼ40年後にもう一度ロバートと一緒に仕事をするのは、僕にとってとてもいいことだった。僕たちは、アルバムに収録される楽曲をレコーディングしただけではなく、他のものもたくさんレコーディングした。面白いことに、今僕はリーダーで、彼がすべきことを彼に伝えなければならなかった。僕は、前もって彼にデモを送ったんだけど、彼はそれを全然聴いていなかったから、僕たちは最初からやらなければならなかった。だけどロバートは驚くほど才能のある人で、ブルースからジャズまで多彩な音楽的なバックグラウンドを持っているんだ」

MATCHING MOLE / Matching Mole　そっくりモグラ

CBS / 64850 / 1972
ソニー / SICP-30321 [Blue-specCD2, 紙] / 2013.7.24

1.O Caroline / 2.Instant Pussy / 3.Signed Curtain / 4.Part Of The Dance / 5.Instant Kitten / 6.Dedicated To Hugh, But You Weren't Listening / 7.Beer As In Braindeer / 8.Immediate Curtain
Bonus Tracks
9.O Caroline (Single Version) / 10.Signed Curtain (Single Version) / 11.Signed Curtain (Take Two) / 12.Part Of The Dance (Take One) / 13.Memories Membrane / 14.Horse / 15.Sandwich
※曲目データ：ソニー / SICP-30321

アルバム冒頭を飾るカンタベリー史上最高の名曲「オー・キャロライン」のイメージに隠れがちであるが、実はインプロヴィゼーション主体の楽曲が大半を占める極めて前衛的な作品だ。ベースとワイアットのスキャットから成り立つ2曲目を経てピアノの美しいコード進行から始まる3曲目の歌詞は、「これが最初のヴァースです／次はブリッジ、あるいはサビです」といったデモ・テープ並みの言葉で綴られている。キメの応酬が頻発するインスト・ナンバーはともかくとして、不気味なメロトロンの音色が渦を巻くラスト・ナンバーに至っては何らかの実験的な試みがなされていたのではないかと推測できるものだ。本作のような遊びごころと探究心に満ち溢れたサウンドこそが、ジャズの方法論に縛られつつあったマシーンを抜けてワイアットがやりたかったことだったのだろう。ワイアットのポップ・センスに惹かれてキャラヴァンから移籍してきたデヴィッド・シンクレアは、のちに「もっとメロディ重視の歌ものをやりたかった」と回顧しているが、あくまでもワイアットが望んでいたのはマシーンと肩を並べるアヴァンギャルド・ミュージックだったことは、マシーンのフランス語読みをもじったバンド名にも表れている。

MATCHING MOLE / Matching Mole's Little Red Record　そっくりモグラ毛語録

CBS / 65260 / 1972
ソニー / SICP-30322 [Blue-specCD2, 紙] / 2013.7.24

後年にドラマーとしての自身に対するワイアットであるが、それは間違いであることが本作を聴けば理解できる。前作ではゲスト扱いだったデイヴ・マクレエ(K)が加入し、彼のジャズ寄りのプレイと本作ではソングライティングに加わらずドラマーとしての側面を強調したワイアットが細かくリズムを刻みながらタムを連打して繰り出すパルスによって、ポップでアヴァンギャルドで躍動的なジャズ・ロックが生まれたのだ。これはロバート・フリップのプロデュース・ワークによるものも大きかったのではないだろうか。フィル・ミラー(G)は「ミックスでギターの音量を下げられた」と不満気だったらしいが……。

ROBERT WYATT / The End Of An Ear

CBS / 64189 / 1970
ソニー / SICP-30323 [Blue-specCD2, 紙] / 2013.7.24

「6月の月」の歌詞をライヴでは大幅に改変して歌っていた当時のワイアットにとって、歌詞の内容はあまり重要ではなかったのかもしれない。ソフト・マシーン在籍時に制作した初のソロ・アルバムは全編で彼のヴォーカリゼーションと派手なドラミングを聴くことができるが、それらはすべてスキャットであり、しかもその多くはテープ速度の変更によって加工されている。ギル・エヴァンスのカヴァーはともかくとして、曲名の多くは仲間内の固有名詞をもじったものだ。本作に漂うリラックスしたムードと、すべてのモノに意味はないけれども面白い、といった世界観は、シリアス一辺倒になりつつあったマシーンへのアンチテーゼだった。

●解説：鬼形 智

CANTERBURY SCENE ALBUMS

ROBERT WYATT / Rock Bottom

Virgin / V 2017 / 1974

落下事故により下半身不随となったワイアットは、入院期間中に自身のドラマー生命が絶たれた事実と対峙し、本作の収録曲を作り始めたという。突然の不幸で味わったロック・ボトム＝どん底からの生還と、愛すべき妻との出会いによる精神的な救済、そしてピンク・フロイドのニック・メイスン（プロデュース）やマイク・オールドフィールド、フレッド・フリス、ヒュー・ホッパー、リチャード・シンクレアらカンタベリー仲間たちの支援を受けての復活。それらの劇的な出来事を感じさせず淡々としたナチュラルな姿勢で楽曲が紡がれていくからこそ、本作は多くの人々の心を打つのだ。これほどまで"喪失感"を美しく昇華した音楽はない。

ROBERT WYATT / Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard

Virgin / V 2034 / 1975

ヘンリー・カウ一派との親交を深め社会主義運動へ傾倒しつつあった時期に制作された復活第2弾。ジャズ・ベーシストの巨匠チャーリー・ヘイデンの「ソング・フォー・チェ」（†革命家チェ・ゲバラのこと）のカヴァーといったシリアスな楽曲と、ワイアットならではの微妙にねじれたユーモア・センスが交錯する作風には前作のような儚い美しさは薄れたが、決してクオリティは引けを取っていない。というよりも、マッチング・モウルが続いていたならばワイアットは本作のような音楽をやりたかったのではないかと想わせる部分もある。ちなみに、ルースは女性カメラマンで、リチャードは当時のヴァージン・レーベル・オーナーのこと。

ELTON DEAN / Elton Dean (Just Us)

CBS / 64539 / 1971
ソニー / SICP-30324〔Blue-specCD2、紙〕/ 2013.7.24

ソフト・マシーン在籍時にリリースされたエルトン・ディーン初のリーダー・アルバム。マシーンの『5』に参加したフィル・ハワードがドラムスを叩いていることもあって、『5』アナログA面のリズムをさらにスウィングし、インプロヴィゼーション・パートを引き伸ばした正統なブリティッシュ・ジャズに仕上がっている。ラトリッジ&ホッパー組が推しすすめる構築型ジャズ・ロックと現代音楽路線に対し、あくまでもフリー・ブロウイングを主張したディーンが、のちに「今のマシーンは刺激が足りない」という理由で脱退するのも納得できる内容だ。サクセロという変形サックスへの電気的音色処理も控えめで、独特な生音が堪能できる。

HUGH HOPPER / 1984

CBS / 65466 / 1973
ソニー / SICP-30325〔Blue-specCD2、紙〕/ 2013.7.24

ベーシストとして一流だけでなく秀でた作曲能力も備えていたヒュー・ホッパーは、それゆえにマシーン随一のアヴァンギャルド推進者であった側面が忘れられがちだ。したがって、73年リリースのホッパー初ソロ・アルバムをジャズ・ロック系ベーシストとしての彼を期待して聴くと、最初は当惑してしまうかもしれない。すべての楽曲タイトルにミニマル・ミュージックの〈Mini〉を冠した本作は、ベースの多重録音やエレクトロニック・ノイズのコラージュが渦を巻く前衛的なナンバーが大半を占めているからである。ソフト・マシーンが毒を秘めたアヴァン・ロック・バンドだったのは、ホッパーの存在が大きかったことを再認識できる作品。

CANTERBURY SCENE ALBUMS

INTERVIEW

ザ・リラティヴス・ウィズ・フィル・ミラー インタヴュー

THE RELATIVES WITH PHIL MILLER

インタヴュー＝ミカエル・ビョルン
訳＝池田聡子

リラティヴズは、1988年、ピブ・パイルの幼なじみのジャック・モンクと、オランダ人キーボーディスト、ウィレム・ヤン・ドローグによって結成されたグループだ。

ジャックは、ピブと、スティーヴとフィルのミラー兄弟とともにデリヴァリーのオリジナル・メンバーだった人物であり、また1972年には、シド・バレットとトゥインクとともに悲運のスーパーグループ、スターズも結成している。一方のウィレムは、オランダでカンタベリーのバンドとコンサートを行なったヘンク・ウェルトフレーデンと一緒にスリップオーヴァーでプレイしていた。

けれども、リラティヴズのデビュー・アルバム『Trans Europe Connection』は、2007年まで世に出ることはなかった。カンタベリーのテイストを漂わせた素晴らしいポップ・ジャズが満載だったが、あまりインパクトはなかった。けれどもこの夏、リラティヴズ・レコーズからニュー・アルバム『Virtually』がリリースされると、状況は変わってくるかもしれない。

バンドにはフィル・ミラーが加入し、ゲスト・ヴォーカリストとしてリチャード・シンクレアが参加している。それにもまして、サックスとフルート奏者のマーク・ハドリーが、70年代のカンタベリー・シーンにあっても不思議ではない、非常に純度の高いカンタベリー・メロディをいくつか提供している。カンタベリー・コネクションについてもっと知るために、マークの話を聞くことにした。

●

――リラティヴズはどのように結成されたのでしょうか？

「ウィレムは建築家になっていた。1988年、彼はロンドンでの建築プロジェクトのために数ヶ月過ごす必要があって、ヘンク・ウェルトフレーデンを通じてフィル・ミラーと連絡をとったんだ。フィルはたまたま

ジャック・モンクが自分の家の部屋を賃貸していることを知っていて、ウィレムとジャックが繋がることになった。

彼らが共通してカンタベリーに関心があるとわかったとき、ウィレムとジャックはいくつかの楽曲を一緒に書くことにした。僕はすでにジャックのバンドの一つでプレイしていた。だからジャックは、僕に関わりたいかって聞いたんだ。僕はイエスって言ったよ。僕たちはロッテルダムに行くことになった。そこでウィレムの友達が集まって、バンドを結成したんだ。僕たちはデモを何曲かレコーディングして、オランダでギグをやり始めた。そこからオランダとベルギーでツアーを続けたんだ」

――最初の年にすでにフル・アルバムをレコーディングしています。それは完成しなかったのですか？

「間違いなくレコーディングは終了したよ。素晴らしいアタリ・コンピュータが出た1989年くらいだった。これは基本的に僕の最初のコンピュータだったよ。このMIDIコンピュータ・システムのおかげで非常に複雑なものを本当に簡単に組み立てることができた。だからロンドンの僕のホーム・スタジオで制作した『Relativity』というタイトルの最初のCDでは、本当にたくさんのMIDIのプログラミングを使った。ただジャズではないことがわかったから、オランダ側が承認しなかったんだと思う」

――リラティヴズでの活動をもう一度始めたのは実際にはいつだったんでしょうか？

「2004年くらいに僕たちは再び集まった。ジャックと僕は、ロッテルダムまでまた旅をしていた。そして僕たちは『Trans Europe Connection』というスタジオ・アルバムを作ったんだ。数年後、僕たちはロッタルダムでのステージの一つを本格的にライヴ・レコーディングするというチャンスを得た。それで『Live In Rotterdam』というライヴ・アルバムを制作したんだ。

2011年くらいにジャックはまた、イン・カフーツで『Conspiracy Theories』を作った後にちょっと休みをとっていたフィル・ミラーと連絡をとった。そしてリハーサルを行なうのにロッテルダムに誘って、僕たちと2〜3回コンサートを行なったんだ」

――ドラマーにちょっと不満を持っていたのではないのですか？

「ああ。僕たちはいつもドラマーに問題を抱えていて、当時、僕たちのドラマーとそれ以上続けることができない状況だった。この頃ジャックがア・ビーチ・シュプリームという僕のクァルテットとステージを行なうために、僕が住んでいるコンウォールに来たんだ。彼はドラマーのダミアン・ロッドに会って、とても感銘を受けた。二人は非常にうまくいって、ジャックは、ダミアンと一緒に仕事をするのが僕たちにとって大きいと思ったんだ。それでリラティヴズの活動を、オランダから、イギリスをベースにすることにシフトすることにした。

僕たちはジャックが書いていた3曲の制作をスタートした。それから僕たちはフィル・ミラーにミックスしたものをいくつか送って、〝このプロジェクトに参加したいと思うか？〟ということを聞いたんだ。彼が〝イエス〟って言ってくれたとき、僕た

ちは何かが進んでいるのを感じたよ」

――フル・アルバムにはどのように発展させていったのでしょうか？

「さらに数曲入れることを決めた。もともとの計画は4曲入りEPを作る予定だったんだけど、去年の10月くらいに6曲の制作に入っていた。それから僕たちはロッテルダムのライヴ・レコーディングから可能性を見出していた〈Stately Waltz〉という曲を選んだ。それに改良を加えて使うことにしたんだ。そうやって7曲用意することができた。最後に……数年前に僕が書いて、常にカンタベリー的なところがあると感じていた〈On My Mind〉という曲があったんだ。ジャックはそれを本当に気にいってくれていたから、僕は彼のためにラフなデモを作った。

それから正式なヴァージョンをレコーディングして、クリスマス頃、フィルに送った。そして彼に言ったんだ。〝もし気に入ってくれたら、この曲にギターを入れることができる。だけどたぶん僕たちはロバート・ワイアットかリチャード・シンクレアがこの曲を歌うことを考えてくれるかどうか、彼らに聞くべきじゃないのかな？〟って。フィルはイタリアにいるリチャードに電話して、聞いてくれた。リチャードは〝ああ、もちろん。気に入ったよ〟って言ってくれた。リチャードは、歌をもらって2ヶ月後にはイタリアからファイルを送り返してくれたんだ。僕たちは、ワーク・ステーションのメイン・プロジェクトにそれを加えた。完璧だったよ。そして僕たちは、僕が長い長い間聴いてきた一番カンタベリー的な曲を手に入れたんだ」

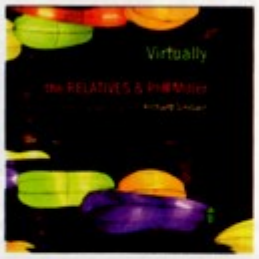
――「Spaghetti」という曲はどのように生まれたのですか？

「フィルにギターを入れてもらおうというアイデアが浮かぶ前、ジャックにはおそらく完成形のヴァージョンを作り上げるまでかなり長い道程があったんだろう。ところが実は僕には自分の曲をやり始める頃には、もっと早い段階でフィルに参加してもらうチャンスがすでにあったんだ。だから実際には僕は、フィルがプレイしてくれるように〈Spaghetti〉という曲を書いたんだ。これも僕が数年前から持っていたテーマだった。この曲は、ある種ハットフィールド&ザ・ノースに対する敬意だといつも感じていた。フィルは、僕が彼にこんなふうにプレイしてほしいと思ったように本当に演奏してくれた。だから本当にうまくまとまっていると思うんだ」

――「Spaghetti」はアルバムの中でも傑出した1曲だと思います。

「きみが〈Spaghetti〉を際立った曲と考えているのは興味深い感想だと思う。ただ、僕がこれまで制作したあらゆる作品の中でももっとも熱烈な評価を受けたのは、〈On My Mind〉なんだ。僕は、それを〈ザ・ロッターズ・クラブ〉の本を書いたジョナサン・コーに送ったんだ。彼は気に入ってくれて、何人かの友達に送ってくれた。その中の一人が、スチュアート・マコニーで、BBCラジオ6の彼の番組〈Freak Zone〉でかけてくれた。だから僕個人としてはこの曲が傑出した作品だと思う。僕の考えでは、フィルとリチャードが参加して、こんなラヴリーなことをしてくれたこと自体が

素晴らしいと思うんだ。彼らは僕が10代の頃のアイドルだったんだから。だから彼らが実際に何かをやってくれたことは、僕の人生において、驚くべき経験なんだよ」



――アルバムの最初の2曲は、非常にスティーリー・ダンの流れにある曲ですね。

「長い間かかったけど、ジャックとウィレムと僕は、カンタベリーは別にして、自分たちのもう一つの繋がりはスティーリー・ダンだということがわかった。僕は、ジャズやその他の影響を融合させようとする曲の形は、スティーリー・ダンがカンタベリーとつながる部分だと思うんだ。そうすると、歌なんだけど、もっとシンフォニックになったもの、もしくは基本的にインプロヴィゼーションのための手段であると考えて、こうしたハイブリッドなものになってしまうんだ」

――今後の予定を教えてください。

「リチャード・シンクレアは、僕といくつかの作品を一緒にやりたいと思ってくれている。そして僕たちも彼といくつか作品を一緒にやりたいと思っている。だからおそらく二つの異なるプロジェクトをやることになるだろう。リチャードはアルバムを作りたいと思っていて、僕はリラティヴズのアルバムをもう一枚作りたいと思っている。それから僕はソフト・マシーン・レガシーのジョン・エサリッジを知ってるんだ。僕たちは何度か一緒にプレイした。僕の望みの一つは、ジョン・エサリッジをフィーチャーした作品を何曲か作るっていうことなんだ！」

THE RELATIVES & PHILL MILLER
Virtually

RelativesRecords (Order CD with 4 tracks) http://www.relativesrecords.com/
2013

1.Going Down / 2.Leading the Fight / 3.Stately Waltz / 4.When? / 5.Spaghetti / 6.New Down / 7.New Ship In Town / 8.On My Mind

ザ・リラティヴズは伝説のアーティストによるビックリ仰天のグループだ。ビブ・バイルと親交が深く（幼なじみ）、あのシド・バレットとトゥインクが結成したスターズのメンバーだったジャック・モンクが、フィル・ミラーに加え、リチャード・シンクレアまでをも巻き込んで作り上げた集団だからだ。本作は彼らが2013年6月にリリースしたばかりの新作で、参加メンバーのビッグ・ネームに押しつぶされることのない素晴らしいジャズ・ロックを聴かせてくれる。ザ・リラティヴズの結成は1988年でデビュー作は07年に発表した「Trans Europe Connection」。11年にはフィル・ミラーをゲストに迎え、ロッテルダムで行なわれたライヴを収録した「Live In Rotterdam with special guest Phil Miller」をリリースしている。それにしてもなんという軽快さだろう。出たしから70年のカンタベリー・シーンにタイム・スリップだ。重鎮リチャード・シンクレアが参加しているのは「On My Mind」のみだが、この1曲でこのアルバム価値はグンと上がっていることは間違いない。カンタベリー・サウンド健在なり!!（岩本）

HATFIELD AND THE NORTH / Hatfield And The North

Virgin / V 2008 / 1973
EMIミュージック / VJCP-98006 [SHM-CD, 紙]

カンタベリー・ミュージックの金字塔的バンド。キャラヴァンのリチャード・シンクレア、スティーヴ・ミラー、マッチング・モウルのフィル・ミラー、ビブ・バイルらによって結成。ミラーが脱退し、デイヴ・スチュアートが加入。本作は73年にリリースされたデビュー作。カンタベリーらしいユーモアとウィットに富んだお遊びがジャジーでポップ、どこかノスタルジックな雰囲気と相まって唯一無二のサウンドを奏でる。それでいて非常に緻密に計算され練り上げられた楽曲とテクニカルな演奏で魅了する。ロバート・ワイアットも参加し、「ケリックス」で素晴らしいヴォーカルをきかせる。女性コーラスのザ・ノーセッツも素晴らしい。（祖父尼）

HATFIELD AND THE NORTH / The Rotters' Club

Virgin / V 2030 / 1975
EMIミュージック / VJCP-98007 [SHM-CD, 紙]

1.Share It / 2.Lounging There Trying / 3.(Big) John Wayne Socks Psychology On The Jaw / 4.Chaos At The Greasy Spoon / 5.The Yes No Interlude / 6.Fitter Stoke Has A Bath / 7.Didn't Matter Anyway / 8.Underdub / 9.Mumps: (i) Your Majesty Is Like A Cream Donut (Quiet), (ii)Lumps, (iii)Prenut, (iv)Your Majesty Is Like A Cream Donut (Loud)

カンタベリー・ミュージックに燦然と輝く金字塔。カンタベリー・シーン最高のメンバーが揃ったスーパーバンド。75年リリースのセカンド。前作はカンタベリーらしいユーモアとウィットに富んだお遊び的な感覚がジャジーでポップ、どこかノスタルジックな雰囲気と相まっておもちゃ箱的な雑多感を醸していた。本作では整理され上品で洗練されたものとなっている。緻密に練り上げられた楽曲展開とテクニカルなアンサンブルが巧みに織り交ぜられ、誇大妄想的な世界観を官能的な美しさでもって作り上げられている。まさに唯一無二の世界だ。シンクレアのヴォーカルが冴える軽快な「シェアー・イット」から彼らの世界が目まぐるしく流れるように展開していく。そしてミラーのうねるメロディアスなギター、スチュアートの独特のオルガンとエレピによる知的なキーボード、タイトでテクニカルなリズム・セクション、管楽器や美しいザ・ノーセッツの女性コーラスがゆったりと溶けあっていく。「ディドゥント・マター・エニウェイ」の珠玉バラード、心地よさが駆け抜けていく「アンダーダブ」、20分に渡る壮大な「マンブス」組曲など煌めく知的な感性に溢れたサウンドはいつ聴いても新たな発見がある極上の音楽。（祖父尼）

KHAN / Space Shanty　宇宙の船乗り歌

Deram / SDL-R 11 / 1972
ユニバーサル / UICY-20133 [SHM-CD]

エッグの前身バンド、ユリエル（アーザケル）に在籍し、大学進学のためにエッグを離れたヒレッジが71年に結成したバンド。クレイジー・ワールド・オブ・アーサー・ブラウンにいてのちにソロ作を出すニコラス・グリーンウッドらがメンバー。ゲストとしてデイヴ・スチュアートが参加（のちにエッグ解散後正式加入するも解散）。のちのヒレッジの方向性を窺わせるサイケデリックでスペーシーなカンタベリー・ジャジー・プログレの傑作。スチュアートの歪んだオルガンとヒレッジのうねるギターがめくるめく宇宙幻想を繰り広げていく。メロディアスでサイケな感触はまさにカンタベリー・サウンドの黎明期を感じさせる。（祖父尼）

●解説：岩本晃市郎／祖父尼淳／松井巧

CANTERBURY SCENE ALBUMS

ARZACHEL / Arzachel

Evolution / Z 1003 / 1969

エッグの前身ユリエルから発展したアーザケルの唯一作。スティーヴ・ヒレッジ(G、Vo)、モント・キャンベル(B、Vo)、デイヴ・スチュアート(K)、クライヴ・ブルックス(Ds)の4人で結成。ヒレッジが抜けた後エッグと改名。ヒレッジはのちにカーンを結成。カヴァー時代のユリエルから進歩し、アーザケルはオリジナル曲を演奏。ワイルド・フラワーズと並びカンタベリー・シーンの源流とされる。サウンド的にはサイケデリックなアート・ロックで暗くヘヴィなサウンドが特徴。その後のエッグへ繋がる方向性を確認できる。スチュアートのオルガンやヒレッジのギターは若々しさを感じる勢いのあるもので、すでに聴き応えがある。(祖父尼)

EGG / Egg

Deram Nova / (S)DN 14 / 1970

デイヴ・シンクレアと並び、カンタベリー・シーンを代表するキーボーディストの1人、デイヴ・スチュアートのバンド。前身バンドはユリエルで、デイヴ・スチュアート、モント・キャンベル、クライヴ・ブルックス、そしてスティーヴ・ヒレッジの4人。ヒレッジが大学進学のため脱退し、エッグとなる。スチュアートのオルガンを大きくフィーチャーしたオルガン・ロックだが、時代的にもサイケデリックなアート・ロック・テイストだ。彼らしい複雑かつ緻密に練り上げられた大仰な実験的サウンドがアグレッシヴかつ大胆に繰り広げられていく。クラシックの素養のあるキャンベルの影響もあるのかクラシカルな要素も強い。(祖父尼)

EGG / The Polite Force

Deram / SML 1074 / 1970

エッグの70年にリリースされたセカンド・アルバムで、クラシックやジャズなどが渾然一体となったプログレッシヴなサウンドは前作より格段の進歩を見せている。重厚でありながらカンタベリーらしいウィットが散りばめられたカンタベリー・シーンを代表する傑作。複雑で緻密な楽曲と整合感は見事でスチュアートとキャンベルの音楽的素養の豊かさを感じさせる。スチュアートのオルガンも後の特徴となる歪んだ音色も聴かせるようになり、場面場面で巧みに使い分けている。ギターの不在をオルガンで補うかのようだ。オーディションもやっていたようなので、ヒレッジの代わりはいないということで追求した結果なのだろう。(祖父尼)

EGG / The Civil Surface

Caroline / C 1510 / 1974

スチュアートがハットフィールド&ザ・ノースで活動中に一時的に再編され、ヴァージン傘下のキャロラインよりリリースされた3作目。ヘンリー・カウやハットフィールドのメンバーをゲストに迎えている。前作までの攻撃的で実験的なオルガン・ロックに加え、ハットフィールドでの経験を取り入れた音楽性はさらに緻密で実験的アヴァンな要素が色濃くなった作品だ。それぞれのメンバーの素養も感じさせるが、カンタベリーらしいウィットを随所に取り込んだサウンドは、カンタベリー・シーンを代表する作品といえる。ライヴでもオープニングに使用され、スチュアートがお気に入りだったという楽曲も収録。他にライヴ音源集もあり。(祖父尼)

CANTERBURY SCENE ALBUMS

SOFT HEAD / Rogue Element

Ogun / OG 527 / 1978

もともとはソフト・ヒープとしてヒュー・ホッパー、エルトン・ディーン、アラン・ガウエン、ピプ・パイルとして78年初頭に結成。78年5月のフランス・ツアーにパイルが参加できず、代わりにデイヴ・シーンが参加。メンバーの頭文字をとりソフト・ヘッドとして本ライヴ録音盤を残している。ソフト・マシーン系列とギルガメッシュ、ハットフィールド系列が合体した感じだが、サウンド的には即興演奏を重視したソフト・マシーン中期頃のジャズやフリー・ジャズ色が強い。緊張感溢れる求心力が彼らの充実ぶりを示している。オープニングの「セヴン・フォー・リー」は印象的なテーマとディーンの白熱のサックスが素晴らしい名曲。（祖父尼）

SOFT HEAP / Soft Heap

Charly / CRL 5014 / 1979

カンタベリーの重鎮、ヒュー・ホッパー、エルトン・ディーン、アラン・ガウエン、ピプ・パイルが集まり78年初頭に結成。一時ソフト・ヘッドとなるも79年に本作を制作。ホッパーやディーンが彼らのソロ作等で披露していたフリー・ジャズをベースにフリーキーにたたみ掛ける。緊張感溢れるシリアスな内容だ。パイルも手数の多さは変わらないが、これまでの印象と異なるシリアスに暴れ回るドラムが印象的だ。そこにアラン・ガウエンのリリカルなエレピやシンセが華を添えるという彼らしいオリジナリティが炸裂する作品。82年にはディーン、パイル、マーク・ヒューインズ、ジョン・グリーヴスの編成で録音を残している。（祖父尼）

GILGAMESH / Gilgamesh

Caroline / CA 2007 / 1975

アラン・ガウエンを中心としたカンタベリー・ジャズ・ロック・バンド、ギルガメッシュのファーストでカンタベリー・シーンを代表する傑作。ガウエンの煌めくようなキーボードが特徴で、フィル・リーのメロディアスなギターにニュークリアスのジェフ・クライン（B）やマイク・トラヴィス（Ds）のスリリングなリズム・セクションが緻密なアンサンブルを奏でる。コミカルなジャケ・アートのようにサウンド自体もカンタベリーらしい軽やかなウィットに富んでおり、アマンダ・パーソンズのスキャットが華を添えている。心地よく耳に馴染むサウンドは、ガウエンの真骨頂だ。オープニング曲の素晴らしさは鏡舌に尽くし難い。（祖父尼）

GILGAMESH / Another Fine Tune You've Got Me Into

Charly / CRL 5009 / 1978

白血病で亡くなってしまうアラン・ガウエンのバンド、ギルガメッシュ、78年のセカンド。ベーシストが前作のジェフ・クラインからソフト・マシーンのヒュー・ホッパーへ交代しているが他のメンバーには変更はない。前作の延長線上にあり、より洗練された美しいカンタベリー・ジャズ・ロックの逸品に仕上がっている。ガウエンの優しく包み込むような煌めくキーボードや流れるようなメロディアスなフィル・リーのギターがやはり特徴で、得も言われぬ叙情性とファンタジックな佇まいが魅力だ。もちろんヒュー・ホッパーが参加しての独特のうねりとグルーヴを感じさせるリズム・セクションも秀逸だ。前作と合わせて聴きたい。（祖父尼）

CANTERBURY SCENE ALBUMS

NATIONAL HEALTH / National Health

Affinity / AFF 6 / 1978

ハットフィールド&ザ・ノース、マッチング・モウル、ギルガメッシュ、エッグなどのバンドに在籍した強者達が集結したいわばカンタベリーのスーパーバンド。デイヴ・スチュアート、フィル・ミラー、ピプ・パイル、ニール・マーレイを核にアラン・ガウエン、アマンダ・パーソンズ、ジミー・ヘイスティングスらが参加。本作は78年のデビュー作。ハットフィールドの発展系ともいうべきサウンドで、より緻密で複雑、ジャジーで力強いサウンドとなっている。テンションの高さは尋常ではない。もちろんカンタベリーらしいウィット感はあるが、ややシリアスに迫ってくる。カンタベリー・ジャズ・ロックの集大成的サウンドだ。（祖父尼）

NATIONAL HEALTH / Of Queues And Cures

Charly / CRL 5010 / 1978

カンタベリー・シーンのスーパーバンド、78年に早くもリリースされたセカンド。彼らの創作意欲はピークに達していたのではないかと思えるくらい2作の楽曲レヴェルや完成度は高い。ニール・マーレイが抜け、ヘンリー・カウのジョン・グリーヴスが加入。それによって同傾向ではあるが、前作以上にシリアスかつアグレッシヴな展開やインプロがスピーディに繰り広げられている。緊張感溢れるアンサンブルは究極のカンタベリー・ジャズ・ロックであろう。彼らの残した2作はカンタベリー・ジャズ・ロックの傑作である。この後、82年に再結成し、白血病で亡くなったアラン・ガウエンに捧げる「D.S.アル・コーダ」をリリースした。（祖父尼）

KEVIN AYERS / Joy Of A Toy　おもちゃの歓び

Harvest / SHVL 763 / 1969
ユニバーサル / TOCP-71551

ソフト・マシーンを脱退しイビザ島に向かったケヴィン・エアーズがその地で書いた楽曲をもって帰国し、旧知の仲間の協力を得て作り上げたのがソロ・デビュー作となるこの「おもちゃの歓び」だった。EMIが設立した新興レーベル、ハーヴェストから69年11月にリリースされている。ポップ、ジャズ・ロック、サイケデリック、フォークと多種多様な音楽で表現されるケヴィン・ワールドまるでユーモアとウィットに満ちあふれたサーカスのようだ。デヴィッド・ベッドフォード、ロバート・ワイアット、ヒュー・ホッパー、マイク・ラトリッジらによるサウンドはまさに、これぞカンタベリーII シーンを代表する1枚だ。（岩本）

KEVIN AYERS & THE WHOLE WORLD / Shooting At The Moon　月に撃つ

Harvest / SHSP 4005 / 1970
ユニバーサル / TOCP-71552

ライヴ要員として集められたデヴィッド・ベッドフォード（G、K）、マイク・オールドフィールド（B、G）、ミック・フィンチャー（Ds）、ロル・コックスヒル（サックス）によるザ・ホール・ワールドなるバック・バンドを従えて制作されたセカンド・ソロ・アルバム。

デビュー作と比べかなり実験的な内容となった本作だが、もしかしたらこの作品にこそケヴィン・エアーズの本質があるのかもしれない。アルバムのトップを飾る「メイ・アイ」や「狂人の囁き」で聴くことのできるポップなテイストと、間に挿入されたインプロヴィゼーションの落差は、このアルバムで初めてケヴィンに触れたリスナーを惑わせるかも。（岩本）

CANTERBURY SCENE ALBUMS

CARAVAN / CARAVAN　キャラヴァン・ファースト・アルバム

リチャード・シンクレアやデイヴ・シンクレア、パイ・ヘイスティングスを中心に伝説のワイルド・フラワーズを母体に結成されたキャラヴァンはソフト・マシーンとともにその後のカンタベリー・ミュージック・シーン形成に重要な役割を果たしたバンドだ。彼らの記念すべき69年リリースのデビュー・アルバム。なんといっても英国の田園風景を彷彿させるパイとリチャードのジェントルで優しいヴォーカル、デイヴの独特の味わいを醸し出すオルガン、緻密ながら全体に漂う心地よい浮遊感は、サイケデリックなポップ感覚と相まってカンタベリー・ミュージックの原点ともいえるサウンドとなっている。ジャケット・アートも秀逸だ。（視父尼）

Verve Forecast / VLP 6011 / 1968
ユニバーサル / UICY-20053 [SHM-CD]

CARAVAN / In The Land Of Grey And Pink　グレイとピンクの地

名曲「リチャードのために」を収録した「キャラヴァン登場！」に続く71年リリースの3作目。カンタベリー・シーンのみならずブリティッシュ・ロックを代表する名盤である。アルバム・タイトルの「グレイとピンクの地」と淡いピンクを基調としたファンタジックなジャケ・アートを彷彿させる桃源郷の世界へと誘ってくれる。その水先案内となっているのがデイヴ・シンクレアによる独特の音色のオルガンと優しく語りかけるジェントリーなパイとリチャードのヴォーカルだ。適度にポップながらこれまで以上にメロディアスでプログレッシヴなサウンドは、カンタベリー・ミュージックの金字塔ともいうべき高い完成度を誇っている。（視父尼）

Deram / SDL-R 1 / 1971
ユニバーサル / UICY-20131 [SHM-CD]

CARAVAN / Waterloo Lily

名作「グレイとピンクの地」リリース後、熱狂的な支持を受けながらも商業的には満足のいくものではなかった。それによってバンド内での不和が始まり、デイヴ・シンクレアが脱退し、デリヴァリーにいたスティーヴ・ミラーが加入する。本作は72年にリリースされた4作目で彼らの新境地であり転換期を迎えた作品。ミラーの加入によってよりジャズやブルース色が強くなった。弟のフィル・ミラーも参加している。とはいえパイやコフランらしいこれまでの風変わりな作風の楽曲も多く、「ナッシング・アット・オール」や次作への布石となる管弦楽器を導入したパイの面目躍如たる「瞳の中の愛」といった名曲も収録している。（視父尼）

Deram / SDL 8 / 1972
ユニバーサル / UICY-20132 [SHM-CD]

CARAVAN / For Girls Who Grow Plump In The Night　夜ごとに太る女のために

前作で方向性の違いが明らかになったことでリチャード・シンクレアらが脱退し、ジェフリー・リチャードソン（ヴィオラ）他が加入しての5作目。カンタベリー・シーンのみならずブリティッシュ・ロックの名盤として名高い。大々的な管弦楽器を導入し、ポップな効き易さも備えながらジャジーでシンフォニックなカンタベリー・ミュージックを構築している。「メモリー・レイン・ヒュー」、「いのしの館」、「ヒー・オール・ライト＝チャンス・オブ・ア・ライフタイム」などの名曲が満載だ。夜の帳が下りて、幻想夜話がひっそりと紡がれていくようなそんなミステリアスなムードが全体に漂っており、本作の格調高さを印象づけている。（視父尼）

Deram / SDL-R 12 / 1973

CANTERBURY SCENE ALBUMS

VARIOUS ARTIST / Canterburied Sounds　カンタベリー・サウンドの誕生

MSI / MSIG-0860 ~ 3 [4CD] / 2013.5.25

Disc 1: 1.Feelin', Reelin', Squealin' (Caravan) / 2.Mummie (Robert Wyatt & Brian Hopper) / 3.Da-Da-Dee/Bolivar Blues (Mike Ratledge & Robert Wyatt) / 4.Orientasian (Brian Hopper & Robert Wyatt) / 5.You Really Got Me (Wilde Flowers) / 6.Thinking Of You Baby (Wilde Flowers) / 7.Man In A Deaf Corner (Brian & Hugh Hopper) / 8.If I Ever Leave You (Zobe) / 9.Stop Me & Play One (Robert Wyatt) / 10.Piano Standards 1 (Mike Ratledge) / 11.Belsize Parked (Brian & Hugh Hooper) / 12.Summertime (Caravan)

Disc 2: 1.Carazobe (Caravan & Zobe) / 2.Instant Pussy (Robert Wyatt) / 3.Esther's Nose Job (Soft Machine) / 4.Moorish (Robert Wyatt & Brian Hopper) / 5.Summertime (Mike Ratledge & Robert Wyatt) / 6.Indian Rope (Zobe) / 7.Drum Solo (Robert Wyatt) / 8.Mirror For The Day (Pye Hastings) / 9.Love Song With Cello (Robert Wyatt) / 10.As I Feel I Die (Caravan) / 11.Where But For Caravan Would I (Caravan)

Disc 3: 1.Slow Walkin' Talk (Robert Wyatt&Jimi Hendrix) / 2.Frenetica (Mike Ratledge&Robert Wyatt) / 3.Idle Chat - Mike Ratledge (Mike Ratledge & Robert Wyatt) / 4.3/4 Blues Thing In F (Mike Ratledge & Robert Wyatt) / 5.More Idle Chat (Zobe) / 6.The Pieman Cometh (Zobe) / 7.Liu-Bo (Robert Wyatt, Brian & Hugh Hopper) / 8.Kansas City/Rip It Up (Brian & Hugh Hopper & Pete Lawson) / 9.That's Alright Mama (Brian & Hugh Hopper) / 10.Tanglewood Tails (Brian & Hugh Hopper & Robert Wyatt) / 11.The Big Show/Central Park West/Songs (Zobe) / 12.If I Could Do It All Over Again I'd Do It All Over You (Caravan)

Disc 4: 1.Slow Walkin' Talk (Zobe) / 2.Some-Of-The-Time (Mike Ratledge) / 3.Ghosts (Robert Wyatt & Mike Ratledge) / 4.With An Ear To The Ground You Can Make It (Caravan) / 5.Dalmore Rode (Brian Hopper & Robert Wyatt) / 6.Piano Standards II (Mike Ratledge) / 7.Johnny B Goode (Wilde Flowers) / 8.Cecilian (Brian & Hugh Hopper,Mike Ratledge & Robert Wyatt) / 9.Austin Cambridge (Caravan)

ワイルド・フラワーズに在籍経験があり、ヒュー・ホッパーは実弟。ソフト・マシーンの2作目にも客演しているサックス奏者。69年からはベガーズ・ファームの一員として活動を行ないながら、メンバーの事故死により解散を余儀なくされ、そのまま音楽から足が遠のいた悲運の人がブライアン・ホッパーである。その後彼は、別の仕事に就いたが、のちに音楽活動を再開してヒューやロバート・ワイアットとも共演するなど、カンタベリーの記憶は彼の中で生き続けていたようだ。

そのブライアンが突然発表したのが、個人的に所有していた録音テープから掘り起こした未発表音源集である。98年に『カンタベリー・サウンズ』と題されたコンピレーションが第1集から4集まで、ヴォイスプリントを通じて発売されている。最近出た『カンタベリー・サウンドの誕生』は、それら計4タイトルを4枚組ボックスセットにまとめた事実上の復刻盤だ。

収録されているのは、ワイルド・フラワーズ、同バンドに関わっていたホッパー兄弟、ワイアット、マイク・ラトリッジ、バイ・ヘイスティングス等のソロ名義、キャラヴァン、ソフト・マシーンの最初期録音などである。

たとえば、第1集のオープニングを飾る「フィーリン、リーリン、スクイーリン」は、ソフト・マシーンのファースト・シングルを、キャラヴァンが地元カンタベリーで行なったギグでカヴァーしたライヴ・ヴァージョン。彼らがワイルド・フラワーズという同じバンドから派生した兄弟バンドだったことや、ジャズ・ロックのソフト・マシーンがとりわけ初期にポップな要素を強く持っていたことなどを再認識させる興味深いトラックといえるだろう。

もっとも古いのは62~63年頃のトラック「ミイラ」。拙いながらもミニマルなギター・リフとヴォイス・インプロヴィゼーションの構成はワイアットとブライアンによるもので、すでにこうした実験的なカンタベリー・サウンドの特徴が明確に表れていることには感動を覚える。ワイルド・フラワーズと同時期に活動していたもうひとつのバンド、ゾベはブルージーなライヴ演奏を繰り広げている。どれもかなり昔のプライベート録音なので音質を云々できるレヴェルではないが、のちの代表作群で聴ける曲のもとになったデモ・トラック、たとえばマッチング・モウルの「インスタント・プッシー」をワイアットがピアノと声で表現した音源などは、これ自体が素朴な点も含めて非常に美しい余韻をもった仕上がりとなっている。録音が年代順に並んでいないのは資料的な意味で難点だが、ブライアンは純粋に作品としての価値も強調したかったのだろう。（松井）

CANTERBURY SCENE ALBUMS

Speced

Cuneiform / RUNE 90 / 1996

69年ロンドンで開催されたマルチメディア・ショウのタイトルがそのままアルバム名。ワイアット、ラトリッジ、ヒュー・ホッパー、ゲストとしてブライアン・ホッパーをサックスに加えたクアルテットでという『ヴォリューム2』と同じ編成で制作された音楽は、バレリーナの前衛的な踊りとシンクロさせている。96年のCD化の際は、当時コンサートのテクニカル・コンサルタントをしていたボブ・ウールフォードが再編集を担当。ファンはステージで実演することを切望したが、実際にはインプロヴィゼーションの編集テープをステージでBGMのようにして流した。ヒューのコメントによると、オリジナルはもっと長いものだったそう。

Noisette

Cuneiform / RUNE 130 / 2000

70年1月4日、英クロイドン・フェアフィールド・ホールで行なわれたソフト・マシーンのコンサートは、全盛期のメンバーにとってもファンにとっても特別な意味をもっている。このときのラインナップは、ラトリッジ、ワイアット、ホッパー、ディーン、リン・ドブソンの5人。傑作『3』の2曲目に収録されている「スライトリー・オール・ザ・タイム」の中のパートが、本作収録の「ノイゼット」「バックワーズ」からとられている。つまり、ステージで演奏されたオリジナルの形が聴けるのだ。とくに「バックワーズ」でのドブソンのフルート・ソロは聴きもの。公式の録音なので音質が良好なのも資料的および作品的価値を高めている。

Backwards

Cuneiform / RUNE 170 / 2002

キュニフォームがこの編集盤を通じて表現したことがあるとすれば、ジャズ・ロックのスタイルを本格的に推し進めた『ヴォリューム2』からその完成へと辿りつく『3』に至る道のりを追うことだろう。1曲目から3曲目までは70年5月の終わりに録音されたロンドン公演。4曲目から6曲目までは69年11月の終わりに録音されたパリ公演。69年版の「フェイスリフト」が8分半ほどであるのに対し、70年版のそれは19分近くまで拡大された。最後に収録されている「ムーン・イン・ジューン」は68年のワイアットのみの多重録音によるスタジオ・デモ（米ツアー時、したがって歌詞の内容も問題）と、69年イングランドでのデモをつなげたもの。

Somewhere In Soho

Voiceprint / VP262CD / 2004

70年4月20日～25日の間に行なわれたロンドン・ロニー・スコッツ・クラブ公演を収めた未発表ライヴ集。『3』の1曲目に収録されていた「フェイスリフト」の編成が、ラトリッジ、ワイアット、ホッパー、ディーンのクアルテットに縮小した時期の演奏にあたる。ホッパーの所有テープから起こしたCDは音質がいまひとつだが、ディスク1、2にそれぞれ一晩の公演の前半と後半がそっくり収められており、『3』の完成に向けてバンドが試行錯誤していた様子を在りのまま状態で確認することができるのが特徴といえるだろう。スタジオ・ヴァージョンと比べるとここでのインプロヴィゼーションはより長く構成も異なっている。

◉解説：松井 巧

SOFT MACHINE ARCHIVE DISC

SOFT MACHINE & HEAVY FRIENDS

BBC In Concert 1971
Huarecords / HUX067 / 2005 / org.1993

71年3月11日、ライヴ番組"BBCイン・コンサート"のためにロンドン・パリス・シアターで収録されたステージ・パフォーマンス。『4』から『5』にかけての時期でハワードとワイアット、ホッパーとバビントンがひとつのバンドの中で同時に演奏している。『3』やエルトン・ディーンのリーダー作を含むメドレーにヴェテランのロニー・スコット他多くのゲストが加わり厚みのあるアンサンブルとソロを繰り広げているのも特徴だ。93年に『BBCラジオ1・ライヴ・イン・コンサート』のタイトルで発売されていたのと演奏は同内容だが、ここでは新たに、ジョン・ピールの冒頭MCが追加された。新タイトルもMC内の発言に由来。

Floating World Live

MoonJune / MJR007 / 2006

75年1月29日独ブレーメンで行なわれたラジオ・ブレーメン放送用音源で、CD化はムーンジューンレコードによる2006年が初。75年といえば、アラン・ホールズワースが加入し、ハーヴェスト移籍後初のオリジナル・アルバム『収束』を発表した頃であり、73年12月にスタートした同ラインナップにとっては絶頂期のライヴ・パフォーマンスということになる(同年3月にはそのホールズワースも脱退する)。ラトリッジのオルガンが大きく後退しているのはオリジナル・アルバム同様。そのぶんエレクトリック・ギターが強い存在感を示しているのも同様だが、いまとなっては彼のヴァイオリンが聴ける点にも注目すべきだろう。

Middle Earth Masters

Cuneiform / RUNE 235 / 2006

ロバート・ワイアットの評伝本を執筆していたマイケル・キング(リール・レコーディングス)が米コネティカット州で自転車修理工をしていたボブ・ウールフォード(別項参照)から入手したライヴ・テープによる編集盤。ソフト・マシーンのライヴ音源の中ではデヴィッド・アレン在籍時に次ぐ古さで、彼がフランスに足止めを喰って離脱を余儀なくされた後の67年9月、ロンドンのミドルアース、ラウンドハウス、チョークファームでの演奏を収録。純然たるトリオ、ケヴィン・エアーズが作曲面で主導権を握っている、マシーンの1作目で聴けるスタジオ・ヴァージョンをはるかに凌駕するパワー、など、非常に興味深い点が多い。

Grides

Cuneiform / RUNE 230/231 / 2006

CDとDVDの2枚組というソフト・マシーンのアーカイヴの中でもとりわけ質、量ともに充実した内容を誇る。CD収録は、70年10月25日アムステルダム公演。『4』の制作期間中に行なわれたオランダ・ツアーの最終日にあたり、2、3作目のレパートリーのほか、『4』に収録される『ヴァーチャリー』、ライヴでしか演奏されなかった曲など、全盛期と一括りにできないこの時期ならではの貴重なトラック群だ。DVDの方は、オランダ公演のおよそ5ヶ月後に収録されたTV番組『ビート・クラブ』のためのスタジオ・ライヴ。オリジナル・テープからのマスターという最良のテイクで、インプロ・バンドとしての実力を堪能できる。

SOFT MACHINE ARCHIVE DISC

MATCHING MOLE / On The Radio

Hux / HUX 083 / 2006

94年に『ライヴ・イン・コンサート』のタイトルで発表されていた72年7月27日のロンドン・パリス・シアター公演に、同様のラジオ放送用ライヴ音源を加えた06年発表盤。収録順に、72年4月17日、同1月25日、同3月24日、同1月17日、同7月27日の公演となっている。「オー・キャロライン」のようなポップなヴォーカル曲は聴けないが、ワイアットの浮遊的なヴォイス・インプロヴィゼーションと深みのあるジャズ・ロック・スタイルに関しては申し分のない出来栄えだ。古い録音（1月17日、25日）はデイヴ・シンクレアとデイヴ・マクレエのツイン・キーボード。彼らのファズ・オルガンとエレクトリック・ピアノの共演も聴きものだ。

MATCHING MOLE / Smoke Signals

Cuneiform / RUNE 150 / 2001

マイケル・キングが企画発案と編集を行ない、キュニフォームのスティーヴン・フェイゲンバウム等がリマスターを手がけた編集盤。

カヴァーからするとファースト・アルバム絡みの選曲を想像するかもしれないが、実際はセカンド・アルバム主体の選曲および演奏。キーボードもすべてデイヴ・マクレエのみ。録音データが72年のヨーロッパとしか表示されていないのは、既出の未発表音源集との重複が明らかなためか、あるいは、そうした細かい客観データよりも、バンドの音楽性をバンド本来の志向に基づきリスナーに提示することを目的としていたためか。ほぼ切れ目なく繊細に紡がれたジャズ・ロックが美しい。

KEVIN AYERS AND THE WHOLE WORLD / Hyde Park Free Concert 1970

Voiceprint / RR002CD / 2008

ケヴィン・エアーズが自己のグループ、ザ・ホール・ワールドを率いて70年ハイド・パーク・フリー・コンサートに出演時の音源をカナダのリール・レコーディングスが公式CD化。デヴィッド・ベッドフォード、ロル・コックスヒル、マイク・オールドフィールド、ロバート・ワイアットというラインナップはごく短期間であり、それだけでも非常に価値ある未発表ライヴ音源。ワイアットの参加は音楽的な意味でも重要だ。「ディド・イット・アゲイン」「ホワイ・アー・ウェイ・スリービング」でのヘヴィでサイケなジャズ・ロックは初期のエアーズならでは。彼がソフト・マシーンにあのままとどまっていたら。そんな想像を逞しながら聴くと楽しい。

ROBERT WYATT & FRIENDS / Theatre Royal Drury Lane 8th September 1974

Hannibal / HNCD 1507 / 2005

73年6月1日の落下事故で入院とリハビリを余儀なくされていたロバート・ワイアットの復活を祝うコンサートは、74年9月8日ロンドン・ドゥルーリー・レーン劇場で行なわれた。当時の所属レーベルを運営するヴァージンのリチャード・ブランソンが音頭を取ったステージは、デイヴ・スチュアートを筆頭に、モンゲジ・フェザ、ローリー・アラン、ヒュー・ホッパーが集まり、ゲストとしてマイク・オールドフィールドやジュリー・ティペッツ、フレッド・フリス、MCとしてジョン・ピール等が集う豪華な内容となった。このときの音源を公式CD化したのが本作。新たなキャリアの幕開けにふさわしい力強い歌と演奏はいつ聴いても感動を呼ぶ。

●解説：松井 巧

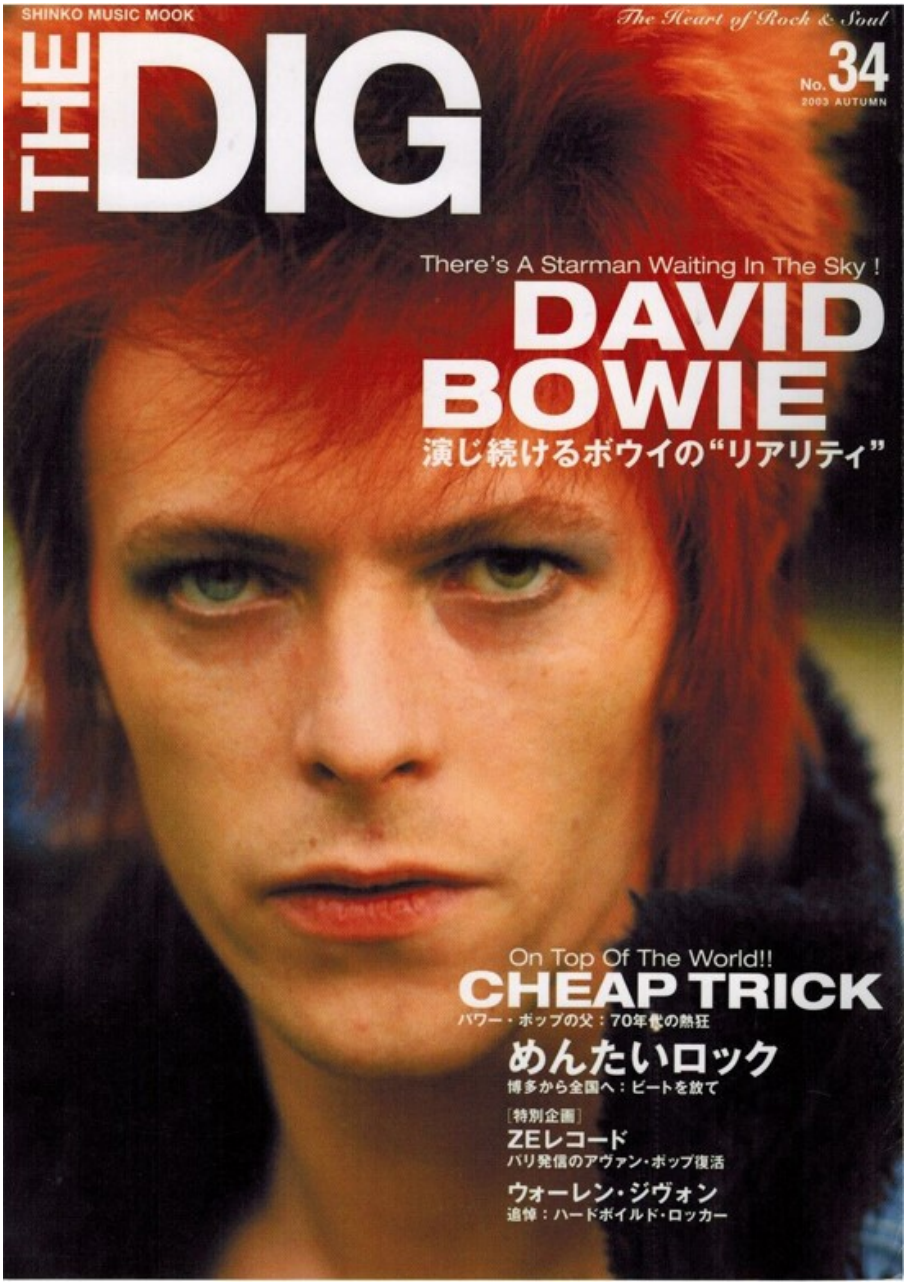
CANTERBURY SCENE ARCHIVE DISC

publicité en 4ème de couverture

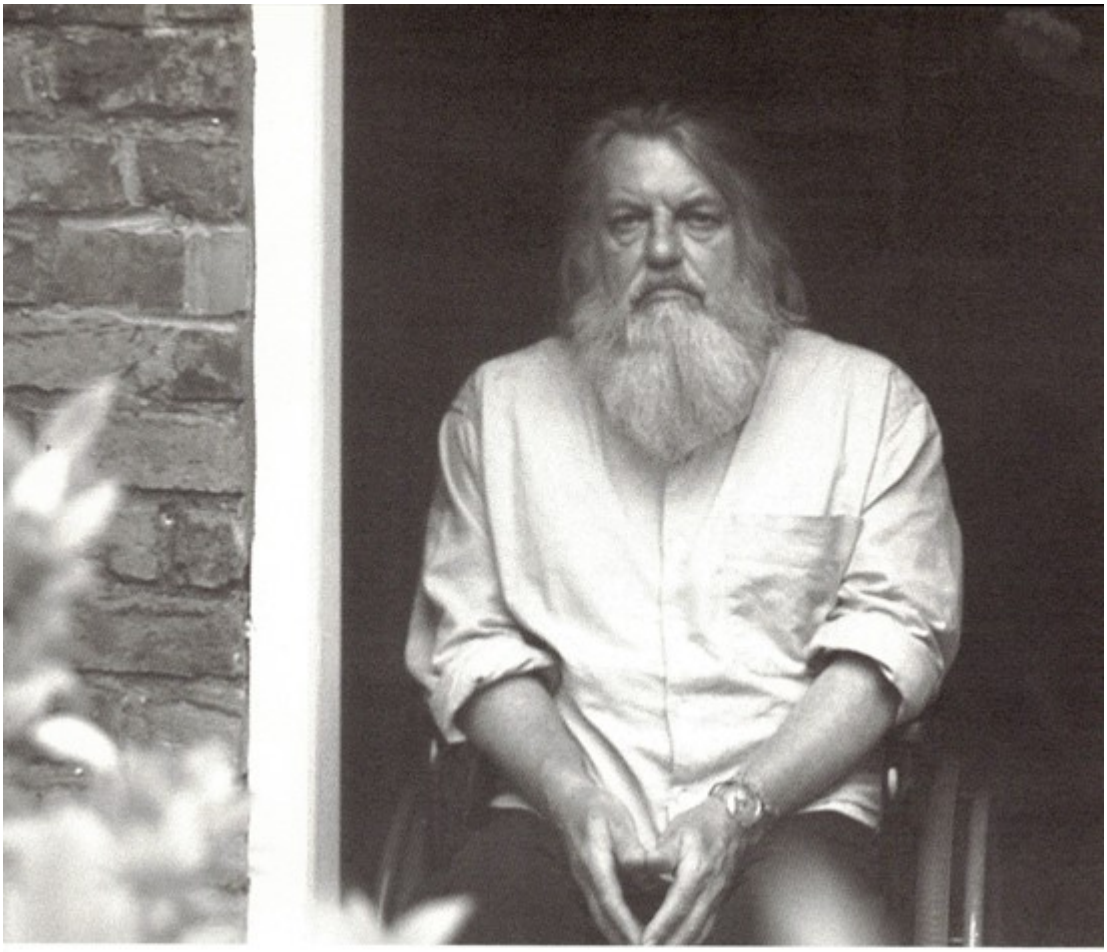
Previous article

Next article

Back to the list



ABÉCÉDAIRE



Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt - The Dig - N° 34 - 2003 Autumn

ROBERT WYATT

ROBERT WYATT

私はルーツに、過去のものにどんどん惹かれていっている

6年周期説を実践する新作『クックーランド』が遂に登場。
再びロバート・ワイアットに浸れる至福の時がやって来た！

インタヴュー・文／コラム●小山哲人　通訳●川原真理子

85年の『オールド・ロットンハット』、91年の『ドンデスタン』、そしてまだ感動を鮮烈に記憶している97年の『シュリープ』。ロバート・ワイアットのアルバムはなぜか正確に6年のインターヴァルでリリースされてきた。世紀が変わり、ニューヨークを襲った〈9・11〉を境に世界がかつてなく忌まわしい方向へ歩を進める中、伝説の巨人は6年振りに静かに身を起こした。いや、ワイアットはこの6年間を沈黙して過ごしたのではない。友人たちの作品にゲストで参加、また多くのファン、彼を慕うミュージシャンによって企画されたトリビュート作品やコンサートがあった。2001年には自身がディレクターとなってメルトダウン・フェスティヴァルを開催。精力的な活動を続けながら、堆積された彼の思考と感情が新作『クックーランド』には封入されている。ア

> Zoom

ルバムの冒頭、薄明の空間をさまようように吹かれるワイアットのコルネット・ソロ。前作『シュリープ』に満ちていた躍動、まばゆいばかりの生命感は再び胸の奥底にしまわれた。元ブロックヘッズ、現在はザ・オリエント・ハウス・アンサンブルを率いるギラド・アツモンと辿るオールド・ジャズへのノスタルジー。バディ・ホリーやアントニオ・カルロス・ジョビンの有名曲のカヴァーも用意されているが、過去への目線はあくまで不吉さを増すこの世界への対抗軸なのだ。カレン・マントラー、ポール・ウェラー、イーノら新旧の知人の助力を得て、ワイアットは大国が唱導するグローバリズムの網の目からは零れ落ちるもの、そして絶対に掬め取られない人間個々の尊厳を静かに訴えかける。アラブの女性シンガー、アマル・モコスの作品を取り上げた最終曲がアルバムの白眉だろう。キリスト教徒のパレスティナ人という複雑な出自を持つ彼女の祈りは、ワイアットという触媒を経て、音楽それ自体の純粋なカへと昇華されていく。

ワイヤット・ナンバーをカヴァーしたウェルシュ・バンド、ゴーキーズ・ザイゴティック・マンキのアルバム『Tatay』(1997)

不思議の国のアリスのように世界を見る

●2001年のメルトダウン・フェスティヴァルではディレクターを務められましたが、大規模なコンサートを企画するなんて初めてですよね。

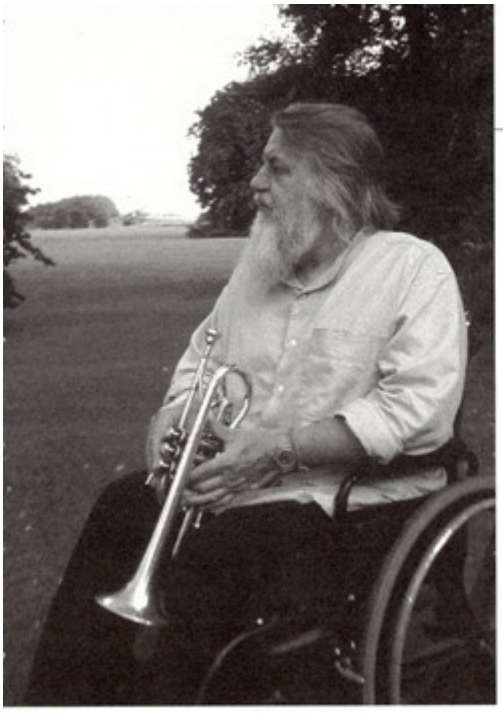
「そうなんだ。あの時は私がフェスティヴァルのホストを務めたんだよ。毎年、別のホストを立てているんだが、2年前は私に白羽の矢が当たったというわけ。呼んだ面々の半分は私が選び、残りの半分はフェスティヴァルの主催者が決めた。そうして1カ月間に渡るコンサートを企画したんだが、とても楽しかったよ」

●メルトダウン・フェスにはゴーキーズ・ザイゴティック・マンキなども参加しましたが、新しい世代で気に入っているアーティストはいますか?

「ゴーキーズは以前、私の《Carolina》をウェールズ語でカヴァーしてくれた。あれはとんでもない言語でね、すごく難しいんだよ。私にとっては、ウェールズ語よりは日本語を覚えることの方がずっと簡単だと思う。私の中にもウェールズ人の血が流れているんだがね。でも、彼らは見事にやってくれた。妻のアルフィーが彼らのCDのカヴァー・アートを描いて以来の知り合いなんだ。他に新しいアーティストでは、ミス・ダイナマイト、クレイグ・デイヴィッドなんかが気に入っている。イギリスのブラック・ポップ・ミュージックが好きなんだ」

●今回のアルバムですが、タイトルにはどんな意味が込められているのでしょう?

「それはアルフィーが何年か前に歌詞を書いた《Cuckoo Madame》から来ているんだ。彼女は田舎で鶏のカッコーをしょっちゅう見ていたんで、あのタイトルはどうかと言い出した。どうしてか分からないけど、これがぴったりだと思えたんだよ。《Cuckooland》とは、《気のふれた場所(Mad Place)》という意味にも取れる。でもそれは、私が《気のふれた場所にいる》ということかどうかは分からない。この世界はちゃんとしているのかも知れないし、あるいは狂っているのかも知れない。私はまるで不思議の国のアリスのように世界を見ているんだよ。まあ、いずれにしろ私には《Mad World》のように見える。それが私のせいなのか、世界のせいなのかは分からないがね。それが《Cuckooland》の意味なんだ」



●録音はいつ頃から行われたのですか?

「レコーディングは2度に分けて行われた。最初は去年、カレン・マントラーとスタジオに入ったんだ。彼女はカーラ・ブレイとマイク・マントラーの間に生まれた娘でね。去年の夏、カレンが父親を訪ねてアメリカからヨーロッパへ来ていたところを捕まえて、セッションをしたんだよ。ロンドンにあるフィル・マンザネラのスタジオで6曲ほど録音し、その中から3曲を選んで今回のアルバムに収録した。その後、フィルのスタジオの改修工事のために一時中断し、今年の頭からまた作業を再開して完成させたんだ」

●彼女とのコラボレーションのきっかけとなったのは?

「カレンの両親、カーラとマイクとはも

> Zoom

う30年来の付き合いなんだよ。断続的にではあるが、ずっと音から一緒に仕事をしてきた。だからカレンも幼い頃から知っていたよ。当時はパンクできかん気の強い娘だったが、その後、自分が両親から多くのことを吸収していたことに気付いたんだろう。自分で曲を作るようになり、今では母親のバンドでハーモニカを吹いているし、父親の曲を歌ったりもしている。

カレンと友達になったのは、彼女の作曲の仕方が私のそれとマッチすると思ったからなんだよ。同じような音楽的アイディアを持っているんだ。彼女がハーモニカでソロを取るときの音の選び方とか、私がトランペットを吹くときの音とすごく似ている。だからきっと、一緒に曲を作ってみたら面白いんじゃないかと思ったのさ」

昔の民俗音楽、大衆音楽全般に対する興味

●今回のアルバムでは、ギラド・アツモンのクラリネットも印象的ですね。

「彼は今ではイギリス国籍を持っているが、元々は東地中海地方の生まれなんだ。彼のプレイが大好きなんだよ。それに、とても面白いソングライターでもある。われわれ二人とも、古い時代のジャズにノスタルジアを感じているんで、〈Oa Europa〉のような曲をやったんだ。私が何を歌いたいのか、そしてアルフィーの歌詞に込められていることを、彼はちゃんと理解してくれた」

●「Oa Europa」での彼のプレイは、クレズマー音楽の匂いもしますが。

「イスラエル人だったギラドは若い頃、もちろんクレズマー音楽をよくプレイしていた。クラリネットのプレイでは特に、ジャズとクレズマー音楽には共通性があるんだ。だから、アーティ・ショウとか、アメリカの偉大なクラリネット奏者はユダヤ人であることが多いんだ。それは彼らの両親の世代がクレズマー音楽に親しんでいたからだろう。ギラドのプレイにもそこからの影響がうかがえる。でも、それ以上のことではないね。ギラドはアラブやトルコの音楽にも造詣が深いし、とても幅広い引き出しを持っているんだ。私もアルフィーも、ロックンロール以前にヨーロッパをはじめとした様々な国のフォーク・ミュージックやポップ・ミュージックを聴いてきたんだ。クレズマーもそのひとつだよ。要するに、昔の民俗音楽、大衆音楽全般に興味があるんだ。ジプシー・バンドも好きだし、現代の有名なロマニー・バンド、タラフ・ドゥ・ハイドゥークスなんかも好きだ」

●「ヒロシマ／ナガサキ／コンニチワ／アリガト」と歌われる「Foreign Accents」は、我々日本人にはずいぶん奇妙に聞こえます。

「まず、おそらくは正しい発音で歌っていないことについて謝っておくよ（笑）。外国語で歌うのはとても楽しいんだ。まるでマントラのように聞こえてくるんだもの。でも、言葉は慎重に選んだよ。日本語だけでなく、イスラエルの科学者やイランの政治家の名前も歌っている。これはアメリカの外交政策の偽善についての歌なんだ。世界は常に目茶苦茶で、大量破壊兵器が存在するなどと彼らは言うが、それを実際に使用しているのは彼らだけなんだからね！　そこには明らかに偽善が存在する。こういう曲をやるには、少なくとも二つの理由が必要だった。まず、これは音楽なのだから良く聞こえなければならない。言葉の響きも大切だ。ちょっと待ってくれるかな？　庭の蜘蛛の巣に蝶々がひっかかってしまったみたいなんだ。（アルフィーに向かって）大丈夫かい？　逃げられたの？　それは素晴らしい！　ごめんよ、中断してしまって！」

●いいえ。

「今、外に座っているんで、いろんなドラマが常に展開しているんだ。自然はみんな仲がいいだなんて、嘘っぱちだよ。ここは戦場だ。さあ、続けよう」

●アルバムの最後の曲「La Ahada Yaqra」は鎮魂歌のように響きますね。

「これはアラブ語でね、アラブ人のソングライター、ニザー・ズライクと彼の妻、アマル・モコスが書いた曲なんだ。彼女にはメルトダウン・フェスでも歌ってもらった。ある午後にアラブ／イスラエル親交というイヴェントを設けてね。イスラエル人とパレスティナ人のミュージシャンを一堂に集めたんだが、音楽的にもとても価値のある出来事だった。ギラ

> Zoom

世界同時沸騰、ワイアットを巡る“熱”

ここ数年、ワイアットへのトリビュート・アルバム、コンサートが多数企画されている。その嚆矢となったのが、女性トロンボーン奏者、アニー・ホワイトヘッドを中心とするスープ・ソングス・プロジェクト。99年10月にパレス・シアターで行なわれたライヴの模様は本誌20号でも報告され、翌年には実況盤も発売された。また、とりわけ熱狂的なファンの多いイタリアとフランスではトリビュート・アルバムが制作されている。イタリア版にはマウロ・パガーニ、フランコ・バッティアートなど大物が名を連ね、フランス版ではパスカル・コムラード、クリンペライらがワイアット・ナンバーをカヴァー、ワイアット自身も語りと朗読で参加した。さらに今年の11月には「Dedicated To You」と題したトリビュート・ライヴがフランスで行なわれる。カレン・マントラー、ジョン・グリーヴスらの出演が決定しており、ライヴ盤の予定もあるらしい。

インタヴューでも語っているように、ワイアットは2001年のメルトダウン・フェスでホストを務めた。レジデンツ、レインコーツといった元祖オルタナ・ロックからジョン・サーマンやジャック・ディジョネット、アンドリュー・シリルらの実験ジャズメン、さらにテリー・ライリー、エルヴィス・コステロなどジャンルを越えた出演者の顔ぶれはいかにもワイアットらしい選者だろう。そして同フェスでのデイヴィッド・ギルモアのライヴにはワイアット本人もゲストで出演。実況DVD「デイヴィッド・ギルモア・イン・コンサート」（東芝EMI：TOBW3059）で本当に久し振りとなる生のパフォーマンスを見ることができる。近年、ワイアットのゲスト参加作品は非常に数多く、とてもここでは紹介しきれないが、意外性のあるのが2001年のフランス映画「Wataridori」のサントラCD（東芝EMI：VICP68484）。ヒーリング系のやや安直なバックトラックながら、やはりあの声が乗ると惹きつけられてしまう。

今年11月に開かれるトリビュート・ライヴ「Dedicated To You」の告知ポスター

英トリビュートのライヴ盤「Soup Songs Live - The Music Of Robert Wyatt」(Voiceprint)

伊トリビュート盤「The Different You - Robert Wyatt e noi」(CPI)

仏トリビュート盤「MW pour Robert Wyatt」(In Poly Suns)

私の体はワインだらけ

●数年前、あるインタヴューで「カンタベリーの伝説なんて信じない」という趣旨の発言をしていましたね。

「デイヴィッド・アレンとケヴィン・エアーズ、特にケヴィンは素晴らしい曲を書いていた。ソフト・マシーンは実際にやったことよりももっと可能性を秘めていたと思う。プレイするのはとても楽しかった。あれをもっと発展させることも出来たんだろうが、機会がなかったんだ。人はそれをカンタベリーの伝説と呼ぶが、デイヴィッドはオーストラリア出身だし、ケヴィンはマレー半島育ち、そして私はブリストル生まれだ。一体、カンタベリーに何の関係があるのかと思ってしまうよ（笑）。それに、私は主にブラック・ミュージック、そしてジャズばかり聞いているんだ。人が思っているような音楽はまったく聞いていないんだよ」

ド・アツモンはパレスティナ人の言い分を支持しているんで、イスラエルを出てイギリス国民になったんだよ。彼はどんなかたちでも、植民地化計画に加担したくなかった。私は彼の立場を代弁できないが、考えはよく分かっている。ギラドはこの曲にすごく感情移入しているね。とてもソウルフルだ。アラブ語で歌えない私に代わって、クラリネットで歌ってもらった。美しすぎて私が入る余地はなかったよ。だからこの曲が最後なんだ」

●ヒュー・ホッパーらによるソフト・マシーン再結成プロジェクト、ソフト・ワークスのアルバムは聞かれましたか？

「聞く必要はないよ。どんな音なのか、私にははっきり分かっているから（笑）。ヒューには、まあ頑張ってくれたまえと言っておいたよ」

●来年で60歳を迎えられますが、あなたの歌、音楽への情熱はこれからどのように変化していくのでしょう？

「私は新しいものには特に執着していない。（最先端）というのは、とても居心地の悪いところだ。逆にルーツに、過去のものにどんどん惹かれていっているんだ。古代エジプトの音楽を録音したテープがあったらどんなにいいだろう！　私にとって、新しいとか古いとかとかは価値のあることじゃないんだ。私はベストを尽くすだけだ。これが卵だったら問題だがね。新鮮な卵のほうがいいに決まってる。でも、アーティストは別なんだよ」

●ワインと以ているかも知れませんね。

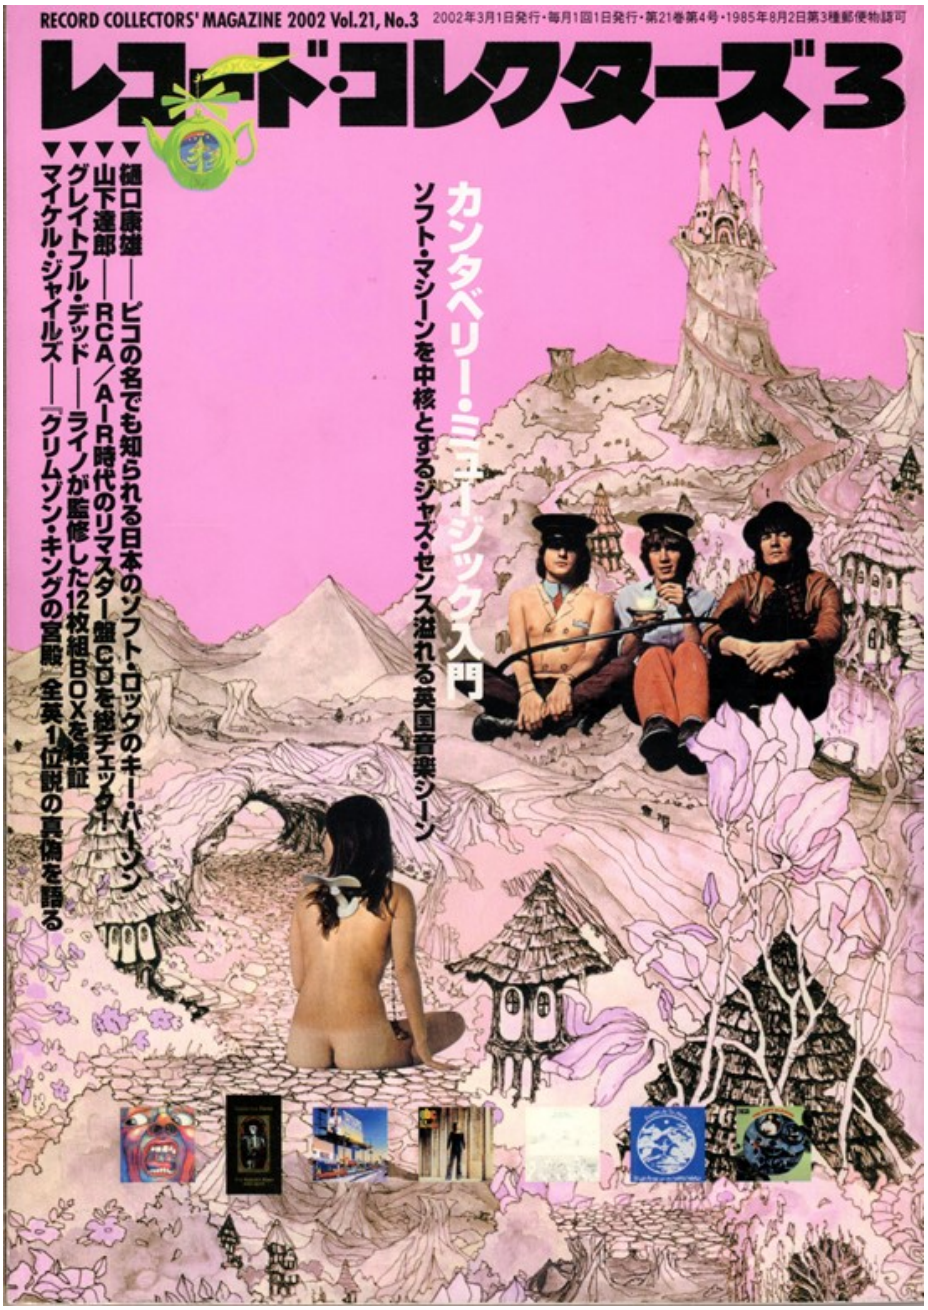
「そうだね！　その比喩は私にぴったりだ（笑）。私を食べ物にたとえるなら、私の体はワインだらけだろう！」

ロバート・ワイアット「クックーランド」（ビデオアーツ VACK-1269）

> Zoom

Previous article

Next article



Back to the list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

Canterbury - Record Collector's Magazine - 2002

CANTERBURY

> Zoom

SOFT MACHINE
特集
CANTER BURY
カンタベリー・ ミュージック
MUSIC
ジャズの新しい潮流の影響を受けながらイギリス独自の色彩感を持ったサウンドを創り上げた英国
カンタベリー出身のグループ、ソフト・マシーンを中核とする人脈の広がり、そして彼らが作り上げ
る音楽の総体。カンタベリー・ミュージックの輪郭はこうである。最先端の高度な音楽性と、カン
タベリーという歴史と伝統を強く感じさせる地名との絶妙の組み合わせが物語るように、彼らが奏
でるサウンドは一見難解でクールだが、どこか親しみやすさを感じさせる独特な響きを持つ。
昨年以来、イン・カフーツ、キャラヴァン、ケヴィン・エアーズなどカンタベリー系ミュージシャンの
来日が続き、CDリイシューも加速しつつある。カンタベリー探索の旅に出るなら今だ。

> Zoom

CANTER BURY

カンタベリー・ミュージック概論

起源となるワイルド・フラワーズから代表グループの70年代後半までの動き

坂本 理

注目されるカンタベリー・シーン

「カンタベリー・ミュージック」――もしそれがどんなものであるかを知らないとしても、あなたがロック・ファン、あるいはジャズ・ロック・ファンであるなら、多分どこかでそんな呼称に出くわしたことがあるだろう。60年代以降のブリティッシュ・ロック、プログレッシヴ・ロックのシーンの一角で大勢のミュージシャンがそこに参画し、他とは質の違う音楽を生み出していった。そんな音楽の呼び名だ。

ごく大雑把に定義すれば、ソフト・マシーンとその周辺の音楽を総称したのが「カンタベリー・ミュージック」だ。ソフト・マシーンのメンバーたちはイギリスの南東部に位置する地方都市、カンタベリー（正確には隣町のウィットスタブル）を出発点として音楽活動を開始し、多くの仲間たちがカンタベリーから後を追った。しかし、実際の活動はロンドンであったり、周辺ミュージシャンはカンタベリーとは何のゆかりもなかったりするので、彼ら全員にカンタベリー云々の話をすると「僕はカンタベリーには行ったこともない」と答えたりするだろう。しかし、関係者はそれがカンタベリー・ミュージックと呼ばれることを理解している。何故なら、その音楽がある種の連帯に基づくものであることを充分に意識しているからだ。

近年、カンタベリー・ミュージックが注目されるような出来事が続いている。ゴングが再三来日を果たし、昨年はイン・カフーツやステュアート&ガスキンの10年ぶりの再来日が続いた。残る現役大物バンド、キャラヴァンが遂にこの1月に初来日。3月にはケヴィン・エアーズやリチャード・シンクレアが来日する。一方、旧作アルバムのリイシューもいよいよカンタベリーに焦点が当たってきた。一昨年のゴングやカーンの紙ジャケット盤に始まり、キャラヴァンの名作群のボーナスつきリマスター盤（日本では紙ジャケット盤）が話題となり、今年はロバート・ワイアット

> Zoom

左：カンタベリーの聖ダンスタン通り。キャラヴァン "Blind Dog At St. Dunstans'" のジャケ（上）にも描かれた城門が見える
写真●赤岩和美氏（26、32ページも）

の紙ジャケット盤も登場する。その間、着々とカンタベリー関連の発掘音源盤が掘り起こされ、伝説が実像を結んできている。

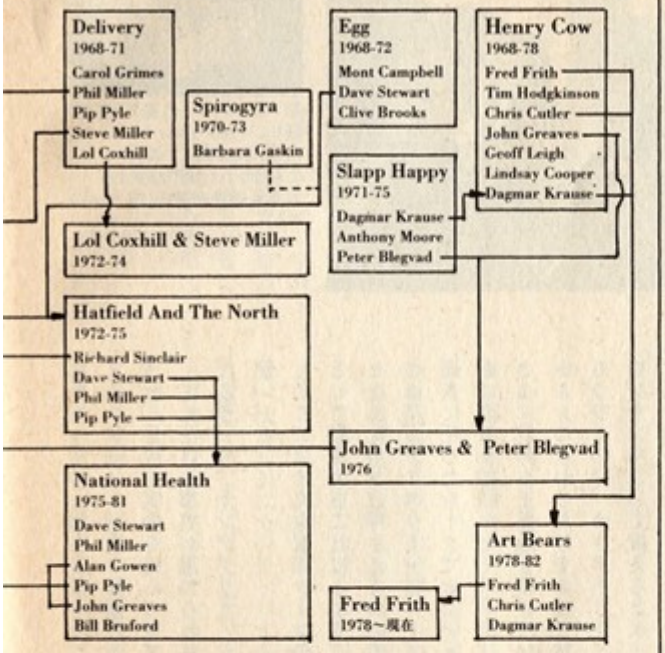
　これだけの事実が重ねられれば誰でも思うだろう。今、カンタベリー・ミュージックが熱い、と。

　ここではそんな音楽シーンの概要を入門編として整理することにしよう。前提となることをふたつだけ押さえておいて欲しい。ひとつは、カンタベリー・ミュージックは決して過去に閉じたシーンではないということ。現在に至るまで脈々とその系譜は引き継がれ、さらに世界へと拡散を続けている。そうしたシーンのさわりだけをここでお見せする訳だ。もうひとつは、カンタベリー・ミュージックをジャンルとして捉えるとポイントがずれる可能性があるということ。少なくとも70年代の日本ではこのシーンを特にプログレッシヴ・ロックのサブ・カテゴリーとして理解していた傾向がある。しかし、彼らの音楽は決してプログレッシヴ・ロックに閉じてはいない。強いていうならジャズ・ロックの方が近いだろうが、そこにも閉じてはいない。そうしたジャンルを超越した運動体であり、同時にジャンル不問の音楽的方法論でもある、そんな柔軟性がカンタベリーならではの歴史を築いてきた。でも、ここでは話を簡明にしたい。なので、典型の部分だけを拾うことにする。だから入門編なのだとご理解いただきたい。

複雑だが親しみやすい音楽性

　カンタベリー・ミュージックは難しい。そんな声を聴くことがある。それはどういう意味なのか？

　ひとつにはあまりにもミュージシャンやバンドの数が多く、その全容が把握しきれないという全体量の問題があるかもしれない。彼らの活動は今もなお進行形であり、平気で国境を跨ぎ、その先で新たなシーンと連携していく。



　また、カンタベリー・ミュージックの音楽的傾向を理解しにくいということもあるだろう。これだけバンドがあって、それぞれが固有のサウンドを追求している中で、では全体としてのカンタベリー・サウンドとは一体どんなものなのか？　そういう情報を提供している媒体もほとんどないだろうから、核となる部分を押さえないと輪郭をなぞるだけで一向に中に入れないかもしれない。

　そしてもうひとつ、カンタベリー・ミュージックそのものの抑制された表現スタイル、本当は凄い演奏をしているのにそうと気付か

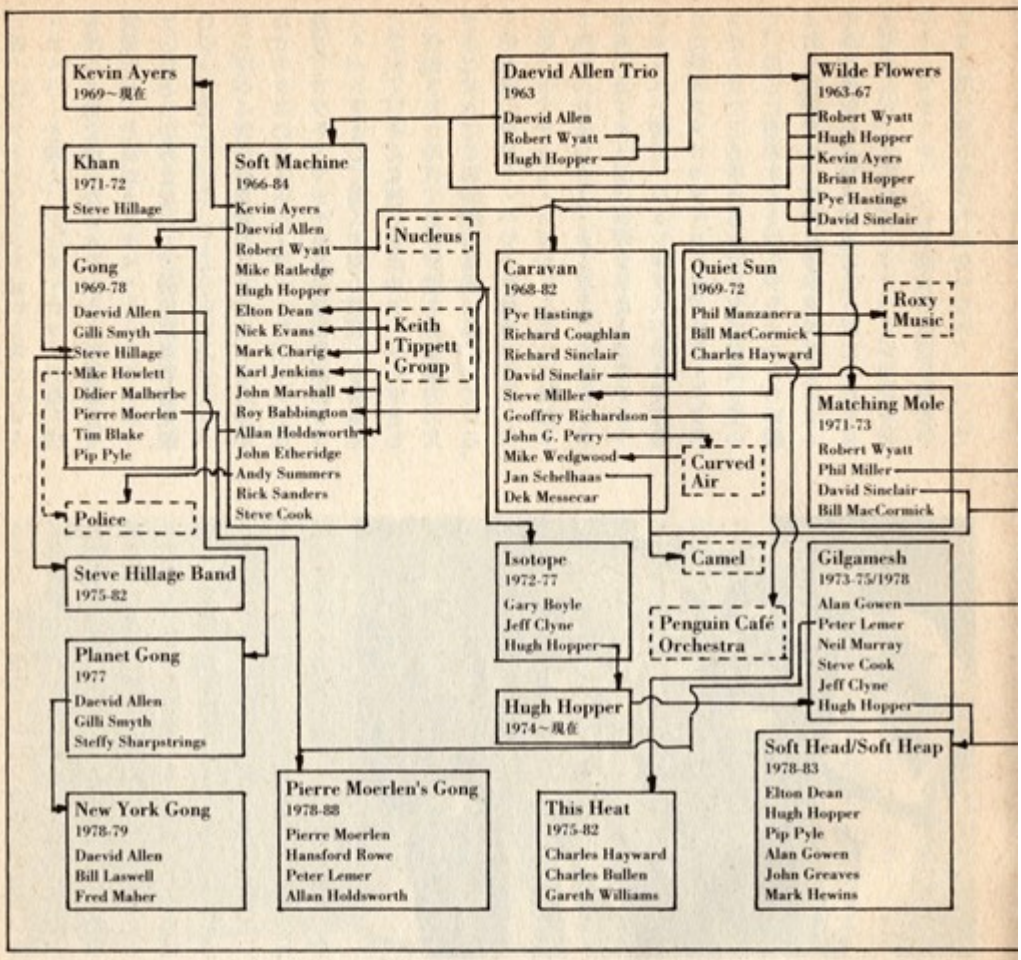
> Zoom

カンタベリー重要メンバー／グループ概略図

作成●坂本 理

＊70年代後半までのカンタベリー・ミュージック・シーンで重要と思われるグループをピックアップしました
＊点線で囲まれたグループは、非カンタベリー・グループとみなします

せないようなポーカーフェイスぶり、複雑過ぎて普通に聞こえてしまう凝った楽曲作り、そうした独特の要素の面白さを学び取るのにリスナーとしての成熟を必要とするという事情がある。



しかし、そんなに取っ付きにくい音楽なのかと言えば、否。むしろ驚くほどに親しみやすいというのがカンタベリー・ミュージックの特徴だ。そこを理解しないと無意味に難解さを読み取ろうとする迷路へと彷徨い込んで、疲れ果ててしまうだろう。音楽を音楽として楽しむのは当たり前。でもそこには1度では味わい尽くせない隠し味がいっぱいに仕込んである。そんな音楽としてカンタベリー・ミュージックを聴けば、やがてその魅力へと到達するだろう。簡単に判ったつもりになったら落とし穴があるけれども、肩肘張った音楽ではない。そこからスタートしよう。

60～70年代の入り組んだ人脈

ここに用意した簡単な人脈図をご覧いただきたい。これが60～70年代に登場するカンタベリー・シーンの主要グループの全容だ。移動線はとてもすべては載せきれないので、一部省略してある（線がなくても複数箇所に記載されているミュージシャンが多数いる）。バンドの沿革は一切無視して圧縮してあるし、この背景にまだまだ重要なミュージシャンが控えている（例えば、マイク・オールドフィールドやブライアン・イーノ）ことを考えると、非常に厚みのあるシーンであることがお判りいただけるだろう。隣接するシーンに多くの著名なアーティストがいることにもご注目いただきたい。例えば、ポリスやロクシー・ミュージックが深いところでカンタベリーに通じ、キャメルやカーヴド・エアーも密接に関連している。図示はしていないがキング・クリムゾンやブランドX、ホークウィンドとも様々なレヴェルで交錯してきた。ジャズ・シーンとの接点など多過ぎて書き切れない。それがカンタベリー・シーンなのだ。

カンタベリー・ミュージックのスタート・ラインはワイルド・フラワーズという60年代半ばにカンタベリーで結成されたR&Bバン

> Zoom

ドだった。彼らはウィルソン・ピケットの曲をコピーしたりしていた。このバンドが母体になってふたつの大きな枝が生まれた。ひとつがソフト・マシーン。もうひとつがキャラヴァンだ。この事実によってワイルド・フラワーズは伝説となった（93～94年に発掘されたワイルド・フラワーズ結成前のデイヴィッド・アレン、ロバート・ワイアット、ヒュー・ホッパーによるデイヴィッド・アレン・トリオの63年のライヴ録音盤と、ワイルド・フラワーズの未発表発掘音源集によって、謎のヴェールが解き明かされている）。

66年にソフト・マシーンが結成される。メンバーはデイヴィッド・アレン、ロバート・ワイアット、ケヴィン・エアーズ、マイク・ラトリッジの4人。67年にイギリスへの再入国を拒まれたアレンがバンドを離れ、ギターレスとなったことでラトリッジのオルガンが主役に踊り出る。このことでソフト・マシーンは全く独自の演奏スタイルを確立。こうした過程で弾き出されるようにバンドを飛び出したのがケヴィン・エアーズで、彼はサイケデリックな感性を生かしながらソロ活動を展開していく。マイク・オールドフィールド、デイヴィッド・ベッドフォード、ロル・コクスヒルらが彼のバンドで研鑽を積んだ。

> Zoom
> Zoom 2 (complete diagram)

残ったソフト・マシーンはベースにヒュー・ホッパーを迎え、ジャズ・ロック的な手法を用いて他に例のないオリジナルな音楽性を完成させ、それがカンタベリー・ミュージックのひとつの形となった。69年には新進気鋭のジャズ・ユニット、キース・ティペット・グループから管楽器奏者たちを迎え、その中からサックスのエルトン・ディーンがバンドに残り、ソフト・マシーンは一気に硬派のジャズ・バンドとして前人未到の領域へと踏み込んでいく。そんな彼らがロック・バンドとして評価された時代であり、彼らの影響力の大きさはすべてこの時期の活動に基づいている。

その後、ソフト・マシーンはロバート・ワイアット、ヒュー・ホッパーを失い、代わって加わったサックス／オーボエ／キーボード奏者のカール・ジェンキンスによってフュージョンへと接近。ジェンキンスがかつて在籍したジャズ・ロック・バンド、ニュークリアスから次々と名手たちがバンドに合流していく。ここに登場するミュージシャンたちの顔ぶれも重要だが、純粋にカンタベリー・ミュージックという視点で見ると、既にずれを見せており、「カンタベリー・ミュージック＝ソフト・マシーン」という図式が成立し得ないことにも注意しなければならない。

一方、キャラヴァンはワイルド・フラワーズの最終メンバーたちによって68年に結成された。ソフト・マシーンとは全く異なる牧歌的なポップ・サウンドを追求し、人気者になっていく。彼らの音楽にもカンタベリー色は強く、変拍子の多用やデイヴィッド・シンクレアのオルガン・プレイにそれが現われている。バンドとしての勢いが加速したのは従兄弟同士であるふたりのシンクレアが離れ、ヴィオラ奏者のジェフリー・リチャードソンが加わってからだが、その頃からギタリストのパイ・ヘイスティングスがバンドを掌握し、ポップ化路線を邁進する。

キャラヴァン

このふたつの主軸の間で誕生したマッチング・モウルこそがカンタベリー・シーンの形成を促したのかもしれない。急速に先鋭的なジャズへと接近するソフト・マシーンに耐えきれず独立したドラマーのロバート・ワイアットがソロ・アルバム制作を目論見、レーベルの要請で急遽メンバーを集めることになったバンドだったが、ここに参加したのは元キャラヴァンのデイヴィッド・シンクレア、ロンドン北部で活動していたブルース・ロック・バンド、デリヴァリーのギタリスト、フィル・ミラー、ソフト・マシーンのロンドンでの活動拠点で直接影響を受けたクワイエット・サンのベーシスト、ビル・マコーミックだった。ここに初めてカンタベリー外の血が流入し、シーンがシーンとして拡大する成長点を確保したのだ。デリヴァリーのメンバーだったビップ・パイル、スティーヴ・ミラー、ロル・コクスヒル、ロイ・バビントンらはいずれもその後のカンタベリー・シーンに幾度となく登場することになる。逆にダイレクトな音楽的影響のもとに姿を現わしたクワイエ

> Zoom

ット・サンの意味も大きく、フィル・マンザネラ、チャールズ・ヘイワードらのその後の音楽界全体への関与がカンタベリーの歴史的意義を裏付けていくことになる。

マッチング・モウルは短命に終わったが、その後フィル・ミラーがリチャード・シンクレア、ピップ・パイル、デイヴ・ステュアートと結成したハットフィールド&ザ・ノースはカンタベリー・シーンの生んだ最高峰のグループとして不動の評価を得ることになる。この4人はまさにシーンの主役たちだった（図上のフォーク・バンド、スパイロジャイラからの点線はバーバラ・ガスキンの準メンバーとしての参加を表わしている）。

ハットフィールドも短命だったが、ロンドン北部で活動していたギルガメッシュからキーボード奏者のアラン・ゴーウェンが合流する形でナショナル・ヘルスが結成される。これもカンタベリーのスーパー・グループと言うに相応しいバンドだった。しかし本来は華々しく活動しておかしくなかったにも関わらず、時代の逆風を受け、苦戦の歴史を辿る。後にベースで加わるジョン・グリーヴスはヘンリー・カウからの参入で、ごく短期間ながらリンジー・クーパー、ジョージー・ボーンらもヘンリー・カウからナショナル・ヘルスに加わる動きを見せた。

ナショナル・ヘルス

ヘンリー・カウはフレッド・フリス、ティム・ホジキンソン、クリス・カトラーらが極めて構築度の高い音楽を創造したバンドで、初期にはエッグとも強い連帯を示し、マッチング・モウル解散後に事故で下半身付随となったロバート・ワイアットへのリスペクトを表明。バンド解散後は世界中のアヴァンギャルド・ミュージシャンたちを統合するＲＩＯ（後のレコメン系）という組織を立ち上げることになる。カンタベリー拡大の一翼を担ったバンドだ。

ヘンリー・カウと深く関わったスラップ・ハッピーはドイツで結成され、イギリスに渡って活動したポップ・バンドで、メンバーたちはその後様々な活動を展開。四半世紀後に活動を再開し、２０００年に来日を果たしたのは夢のような事件だった。

もうひとつ重要なバンドがゴング。フランスに取り残されたデイヴィッド・アレンが地元で結成したジャズ・ロック・バンドで、壮大なヴィジョンを持ったトリップ型ジャズ・ロックを極め、独自のユートピア思想と相俟って、国境を越え大きな影響力を持っていった。ゴングは多くの異性体を生み出しながら現在に至る長い歴史で自身がトゥリーを形成する人脈の坩堝となったが、例えば後にポリスを結成するスティングがゴングの周辺バンドに出没し、ゴングの名ベーシスト、マイク・ハウレットがポリス結成に大きく関与するなどの歴史も語れば切りがないほど詰まっている。ポリスに関して言えば、アンディ・サマーズが初期ソフト・マシーンのツアー・メンバーだったこと、ステュアート・コープランドがキャラヴァンと強い関わりを持つカーヴド・エアーのメンバーだったこともよく知られている事実だ。

> Zoom

クールなエレクトリック・ジャズ感覚

ソフト・マシーンの音楽／文化的背景からさぐるカンタベリー・シーンの魅力

小山哲人

カンタベリー・シーンの代表的アーティストについてその音楽的背景を語る、というのが本稿の主旨なのだが、これは結構やっかいな論題だ。ソフト・マシーンとキャラヴァンのメンバーの何人かが育ち（そして現在も居住し）、バンドが活動を始め、多くのアーティストが交流を重ねた地理的状況として〝カンタベリー・シーン〟は確かに存在する。しかし、その人脈から派生した数多くのバンドとその音楽を語るうえで〝カンタベリー・サウンド〟という冠は絶対的なものでないことを最初に確認したい。言うまでもなく、ソフト・マシーンをはじめとするカンタベリー・シーンのアーティストの音楽はその出立点から複雑な折衷性を背負っている。そしてマシーンとキャラヴァンだけに限っても、その音楽性は激しいメンバー・チェンジとともに大きく変化してきた。特定の一時期を切り取って音楽性を分析、解明したとしてもそれはバンドの全体像とイコールではないのだ。その後に続く多くのアーティストを対象とすれば事態はさらに複雑化する。網の目のように入り組んだファミリー・トゥリーの中で、いくつものバンドが生まれ、解散し、影響を及ぼし合ってきた。

また、本特集にも寄稿されている坂本理さんが以前書かれていたことだが、次のような問題もある。例えば英ジャズ界の重鎮クラリネット奏者、トニー・コーは生粋のカンタベリー生まれであり、キャラヴァンやロル・コクスヒル、リチャード・シンクレアと共演しているのにもかかわらず、彼をカンタベリー・シーンのミュージシャンとしてとらえるような見方はまずない。逆に、実際にはカンタベリーに行ったことすらないクワイエット・サン〜ディス・ヒートのチャールズ・ヘイワードはカンタベリー・シーンに組み込まれるのが普通だ。つまり〝カンタベリー・シーン〟とはローカリティの繋がりよりも、何らかの音楽／精神的共通項を優先して語られる呼称なのである。周知のように、70年代末以降のプログレッシヴ・ロックの衰退を乗り越えてカンタベリー・シーンの多くのアーティストは今日も現役で活動を続行中だ。30年前にはブリティッシュ・プログレのひとつの流派に

> Zoom

すぎなかった〝カンタベリー・シーン〟は現在も世界各地で異種交配を繰り返し、拡散と増殖を続けている。外縁部からカンタベリー・サウンドとは何か、と規定するのはもはや無理だし、強引に体系化しても意味はない。ひとつ確実なのは、シーンを形成したすべてのバンド／アーティストが、初期ソフト・マシーン（66年～70年、ぎりぎりで71年まで）からの全面的な影響を自認し、それぞれのスタンスで音楽を継承、発展させたということだろう。ここではカンタベリー・サウンドという冠で個々のアーティストを十把ひとからげに括るのではなく、ファミリー・トゥリーの主幹となった該当時期のソフト・マシーンの音楽／文化的背景をいくつか示すことで、カンタベリー・シーンのアーティストに共通する魅力を探ってみたい。

フリー・ジャズ／現代音楽への関心

73年に米コロンビアから発売された〝The Progressives〟という2枚組LPがある。コロンビアが手持ちの音源から当時の尖鋭的ジャズを集めました、というお気楽なコンピレーションで、マハヴィシュヌ・オーケストラ、ウェザー・リポート、ドン・エリス、オーネット・コールマン、チャールズ・ミンガス、ビル・エヴァンスといった面々はさもありなんなのだが、そこに混じってソフト・マシーンとマッチング・モウルが収録されている点が少々ミソである。マハヴィシュヌとウェザー・リポートの生みの親、〝電化マイルス〟／マイルス・デイヴィスを筆頭に、ここに収められたジャズの巨人たちはソフト・マシーンの前身としてカンタベリー・ファミリー・トゥリーの源流に位置するワイルド・フラワーズのメンバー、すなわちロバート・ワイアット、ヒューとブライアンのホッパー兄弟、マイク・ラトリッジが、少年時代に大きな影響を受け、愛してやまなかったアーティストばかりなのだ。〝The Progressives〟の編纂者がこんなことを意図したはずはないが、ウェザー・リポートとミンガスのトラックに挟まれたマシーンの〝Pigling Bland〟を聞くと、60年代初めにカンタベリーの片田舎で育った少年たちが示した旺盛な音楽的好奇心、そこから現在まで綿々と連なっていく人脈と彼らが創造した音楽の豊穣さについて改めて感慨を深くする。

"The Progressives"
米Columbia●KG31574

90年代に入り、ソフト・マシーンやキャラヴァン、マッチング・モウルなどのBBC放送用音源、未発表ライヴが数多く製品化されてマニアを喜ばせたが、カンタベリー・ファンに最大の衝撃を与えたのは93、94年にヴォイスプリントから相次いでリリースされたデイヴィッド・アレン・トリオ（クォーテット）、そしてザ・ワイルド・フラワーズの発掘音源だろう。前者はデイヴィッド・アレンに率いられたホッパー／ワイアット／ラトリッジがジャズとポエトリー・リーディングの野心的な融合を試みた63年のライヴ。そしてソフト・マシーンとキャラヴァンの前身バンドとして、永らく伝説的な存在だった後者のCDには、エアーズ／ワイアット／ホッパー兄弟／リチャード・シンクレアという65年当時の編成での録音を中心になんと22曲もの演奏が収められていた。ワイルド・フラワーズ時代のデモ・レコーディングが存在することはずっと以前からマニアの間では知られており、筆者もテープ・トレードで入手したカセットで数曲を耳にしたことがあるのだが、それにしてもこれほどのヴォリュームで記録が残されていたとは思いもよらなかった。

30年もの間、オープンリール・テープ、アセテート盤、さらにバースネルなどの付随情

> Zoom

報や写真などをきちんと保管していたのはヒュー・ホッパーの実兄、ブライアン。彼が発起人となったカンタベリー・アーカイヴ・プロジェクトはこれのみに終わらず、98年に発表された全4集からなる『カンタベリード・サウンズ』シリーズの編纂へ繋がっていく。初期ソフト・マシーンやキャラヴァンの珍しいライヴも含まれてはいたが、このシリーズの目的はホッパー兄弟やワイアット、ラトリッジたちがワイルド・フラワーズと並行して、あるいは無関係に行なっていた60年代初頭からの様々な即興演奏、音楽的実験に陽の光を当てることだった。乱暴にいえば、米国産R&Bやソウル・ミュージックのカヴァーからスタートしたワイルド・フラワーズはあくまでカンタベリー・ローカルのダンス・バンドであり、バンドの洗練とは別個にメンバーはフリー・ジャズや現代音楽への関心を具体化すべくプライヴェートな活動を試みていたのである。そのどちらにも深く関わったブライアンにすれば、ワイルド・フラワーズの音源だけでは「自分たちが当初想像したよりもずっと遠い地平まで結果的に発展することとなったこのムーヴメント」の本質を見極めることにはならないと感じたのではないか。カンタベリー・シーンを語る際、まっさきに俎上に上がるジャズとの関わりについては、ワイルド・フラワーズのCDに添付されたブライアン自身による解説が多くの示唆を提供してくれたが、『カンタベリード・サウンズ』に収められた実験記録はそれを検証するものだ。

ソフト・マシーン（左からロバート・ワイアット、ヒュー・ホッパー、マイク・ラトリッジ）

独創的な解釈で演奏される変拍子

カンタベリーの伝説は60年頃、サイモン・ラングトン男子グラマー・スクールでの音楽好きの少年たちの出会いから始まった。ロバート・ワイアットとヒュー・ホッパーは同級生、一級上にはブライアン・ホッパーとマイク・ラトリッジ、一級下にはデイヴ・シンクレアがいた。ワイアットの母親がやっていたウェリントン・ハウスという下宿屋が彼らの音楽や芸術をめぐる議論と実験の場所となる。モダン・ジャズが大好きだったのは全員共通だが、年長のラトリッジとブライアンは特に前衛芸術にかぶれており、ジョン・ケージやシュトックハウゼンなどのクラシック・アヴァンギャルド、トマス・ピンチョンやウィリアム・バロウズの現代アメリカ文学まで、ラジオや輸入雑誌から情報を吸収するのに夢中だった。ほどなくしてウェリントン・ハウスにはドラッグのトラブルでロンドンを追われたケヴィン・エアーズ、さらにオーストラリア人の元祖ヒッピー、デイヴィッド・アレンまでが転がり込む。音楽観賞と議論に明け暮れてきた少年たちの興味が、実践へと向かうのにそれほど時間はかからなかった。

ブライアンはウェリントン・ハウスに集った少年たちに大きな感動を与えたジャズの一例として、エリック・ドルフィーの60年の初リーダー作『アウトワード・バウンド』に収

> Zoom

Don Ellis
"How Time Passes"
Candid●LP9004 ◇ Candid◎CCD79004

Terry Riley
"Persian Surgery Dervishes"
仏Shandar●83.501～2

録されたスロー・ブルーズ「245」、そして同年のドン・エリスのアルバム『ハウ・タイム・パッシーズ』を挙げている。後年、ビッグ・バンドを率いて変拍子ジャズの開拓者となったエリスだが、ロン・カーターやジャキー・バイアードらとのクォーテットで録音されたこのアルバムではまだ変則拍子はほとんど登場しない。おそらくブライアンたちはLPのB面すべてを費やして演奏される長い即興組曲での自由闊達なインプロヴィゼイションから、演奏を開始するうえでのヒントを授かったのだろう。60年代中期、ドン・エリスは民俗音楽を参考に、奇数拍を混合したリズムを大胆に取り入れ、また自らもエレクトリック・トランペットを吹くなど実験的なサウンドに向かっていく。ウェリントン・ハウスの元住人、ワイアット／ホッパー／ラトリッジのトリオとなったソフト・マシーンがセカンド・アルバム『ヴォリューム2』で奇数拍子を見事に消化したジャズ・ロックを聞かせたのはその数年後だった。

「1966年と1967年には、多くのロック・グループがこのリズムの融合性を使って実験を始めたが、ソフト・マシーン以上に完全かつ効果的に使ったグループはなかった」

カンタベリー第2世代の新鋭として、73年にヴァージンからデビューするヘンリー・カウのドラマー、クリス・カトラーは著書『ファイル・アンダー・ポピュラー』の中でこう述べている。カトラーも言うように、変則拍子の導入は当時のプログレッシヴ・ロックのトレンドではあったが、ソフト・マシーンの変則リズムへのアプローチで見逃せないのはミニマル・ミュージック、特にテリー・ライリーからの影響だろう。『ヴォリューム2』のLPでB面すべてを占める「エスターの鼻手術（Esther's Nose Job）」のメドレーは4分の7、8分の7のリズムで終始展開する。フェイズをかけたベースとオルガンが交互にカウンターとなり、アドリブを取ったりと複雑な進行を見せるなか、ベースあるいはオルガンが提示するラインを追っていくと、4＋3に分割された基本リフはテリー・ライリーがテープ・ディレイを背景に任意で反復するリズムのパルス、旋律的ドローンの〝音型〟と酷似していることに気付く。

ライリーの作品ではカーヴド・エアーの名の由来となり、ザ・フーにも絶大な影響を与えた〝A Rainbow In Curved Air〟（70年）が有名だが、同作は多重録音によって音楽の基本構造が見えにくくなっている。ここでは単独のシンプルなライヴ・パフォーマンスを収めた72年作〝Persian Surgery Dervishes〟を参考作品に挙げておこう。マシーンの次作『サード』冒頭部ではライリー音楽をそのままシミュレイトしたようなオルガン・ソロもフィーチャーされた。バンドの創設者、デイヴィッド・アレンが63年頃、パリでライリーと一緒にテープ・ループを使った実験を行なっていた事実を鑑みれば両者の相関は当然ともいえるが、ソフト・マシーンがライリーの音楽を血肉化して完成させた変拍子の解釈は真に独創的であり、キャラヴァンをはじめ後に続くカンタベリー派の多くがこれに倣った。ファズ・ベースの長いサスティンが果たす新しい役割を含めて、この特徴こそがカンタベリー・サウンド最大の個性といえるのではないか。付け加えると、多分に感覚的な判断だ

> Zoom

が、イギリスのジャズ・ロックと米国産クロスオーヴァー／フュージョンの識別点となるのもこのあたりだと考えられる。

電気的変調を加えたオルガンの音響

もうひとつ、初期ソフト・マシーンで音楽性の重要なキーとなったのが、マイク・ラトリッジのオルガンだ。ラトリッジは先述したようにマシーンのメンバー中でもいちばんのインテリで、現代音楽への興味からフリー・ジャズに目覚め、そこからジャズの歴史を溯るという普通と逆の音楽遍歴を辿ってきた。当初はピアノでセロニアス・モンクやビル・エヴァンスの自己流解釈を演奏していたらしいが、ファズ・オルガンのインプロヴィゼイションに先達からの影響を収斂させた。マイルス・デイヴィスのモード手法、ジョン・コルトレーンの〝シーツ・オブ・サウンド〟、セシル・テイラーのパーカッシヴなピアノ奏法を応用／合体、ノイジーに空間を埋めていくその激烈なアドリブのスタイルはソフト・マシーンのデビュー作（68年）の時点でほとんど完成している。煙ったようなトーン／テクスチャーを含めて、彼のオルガン・プレイの特徴はキャラヴァンのデイヴ・シンクレア、エッグ～ハットフィールド&ザ・ノース～ナショナル・ヘルスのデイヴ・ステュアート、ヘンリー・カウのティム・ホジキンスンへそっくり引き継がれた。

明確な根拠はないが、ソフト・マシーンがファズによるベースやオルガンの音色の電気的変調を重視したひとつの要因に、最初期にグループが活動の拠点としていたUFOクラブでの同僚、AMMからの影響も挙げられるかも知れない。シュトックハウゼンに師事したこともある現代音楽家のコーネリアス・カーデュー、マイク・ウェストブルックのジャズ・バンド出身のキース・ロウ、エディ・プレヴォストたちは、ギターやチェロ、管楽器に電気的増幅／変調を加えて大音量で即興演奏を行なった。ジャズ的なイディオムを完全に放棄したインプロヴィゼイションは、デレク・ベイリーによってより禁欲的なかたちで継続されるが、ロックのバックグラウンドをまったく持たないAMMが繰り広げるカオティックな音響のアナーキズムに、徹底した自由主義者であるデイヴィッド・アレンやロバート・ワイアットは同質の精神を感じ取ったのではないか。後年、ギター・インプロヴァイザーとしてデレク・ベイリーの後を追ったヘンリー・カウのフレッド・フリスが、キース・ロウの革新的なギター奏法に大きな影響を受けたことは言うまでもない。

『サード』『フォース』をリリースした70～71年期、マシーンはキース・ティペット・グループのホーン・セクションやロイ・バビントンのダブル・ベースなどを加え、拡大編成で活動する。急速にジャズに接近したこの時期のマシーンの音楽は、やはり『ビッチズ・ブルー』を嚆矢とする〝電化マイルス〟以降

AMM（左からキース・ロウ、コーネリアス・カーデュー、ルー・ゲア、エディ・プレヴォスト）

> Zoom

のアメリカのジャズ・シーンの多様化／展開と無縁ではない。複数のパーカッションを加えてポリリズミックにうねる『ピッチズ…』の高揚に対し、マシーンのエレクトリック・ジャズはあくまで英国的な整合感を持って覚醒したリズムを刻む。が、エレクトリック・ピアノが放つクールな響きなど、空間処理に共通する感覚を看て取れるのだ。71年7月、マシーンはグループにとって2度目となるアメリカ・ツアーに旅立つ。ビーコン・シアターで行なわれたニューヨーク公演ではマイルス・バンドの前座を務めた。ニューヨークでのライヴを見たオーネット・コールマンが感激してマシーンのメンバーのためにパーティーを開いた、というエピソードも残っているが、ツアー終了後にワイアットはグループから解雇。ワイアットの後任はフィル・ハワード、そしてすぐにジョン・マーシャルへ替わった。マーシャルはグレアム・コリアー、ニュークリアスを経た生粋のジャズ・ドラマーだが、ジャック・ディジョネットのようなハイパーな8ビートも得意としていた。

MEV-AMM
"Live Electronic Music Improvised" 米Mainstream●MS5002
ローマで活動したMEVとのカップリング盤

マイルス・デイヴィス
『ピッチェズ・ブリュー＋1』 ソニー◎SRCS9714～5

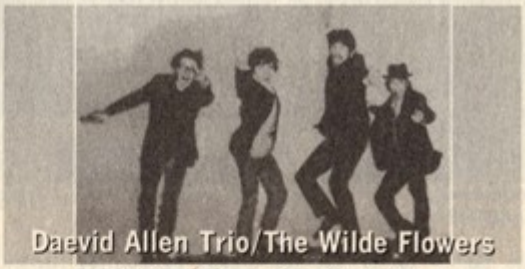
"First Offenders"
Criminal●TAKE4

最後に、現在のような意味付けで〝カンタベリー・シーン〟という呼称が流通するようになったのはいつ頃からなのか、少し調べてみよう。ソフト・マシーンのLP3枚組アンソロジー"Triple Echo"(77年)付属のブックレットに掲載されたピート・フレイムによる人脈図にはすでに登場しているのだが、ここでの概念はファミリー・トゥリーに書かれた人脈的広がり以上の意味はないと思われる。80年にキャラヴァンのジェフリー・リチャードスンとルパート・ハインがプロデュースした"First Offenders"なるオムニバス・アルバムにも触れておきたい。これは当時カンタベリーで活動していたニュー・ウェイヴ・バンド9組を集めたLPで、残念ながら人脈的にも音楽的にも〝カンタベリー〟色は皆無。"New Music-Canterbury 1980"というサブタイトルは70年代までの〝古い〟カンタベリー・シーンしか意識していない。単なるローカル性を越えて、〝カンタベリー〟という呼称が何やら意味を持つようになったのはやはり80年代中期以降であるようだ。

筆者が以前、直接話を聞いたケヴィン・エアーズ、ヒュー・ホッパー、デイヴィッド・アレン、さらに先日会うことができたパイ・ヘイスティングスとデイヴ・シンクレアのいずれもが、〝カンタベリー・サウンド〟というような呼称はジャーナリズムやファンが作り出したイメージで、自分たちの音楽とはあまり関係ない、という意見を口にしていた。だが、それでも僕たちは、この愛すべき音楽群を前に、カンタベリー・ミュージックって何?と考えることを止めないだろう。現在も進行中のムーヴメントに対し、結論を急ぐ必要はない。代わりに、エアーズの発言を引用してこの文章を終わろう。

「俺達はそれほど上手くなかったし、あまりにも白人だった。だから自分達なりにためこんだネタを元にして、オリジナルの白人音楽をでっち上げたんだ。なんだか妙なものになったけどね」(『ロング・ムーヴメンツ～ロバート・ワイアットの足跡』青林堂刊)



> Zoom

主要アーティストのプロフィール

監修●小山哲人

赤岩和美　石川真一　大鷹俊一　岡田敏一　小野島 大
小山哲人　高橋道彦　立川芳雄　山岸伸一

- Daevid Allen Trio / The Wilde Flowers
- Soft Machine
- Caravan
- Robert Wyatt / Matching Mole
- Kevin Ayers
- Hatfield & The North / National Health
- Henry Cow / Slapp Happy
- Daevid Allen / Gong
- Hugh Hopper / Elton Dean (Soft Head / Soft Heap)
- The Keith Tippett Group / Nucleus
- Isotope
- Delivery / Lol Coxhill & Steve Miller
- Steve Hillage / Khan
- Egg
- Gilgamesh
- Quiet Sun / This Heat
- Spirogyra / Dave Stewart & Barbara Gaskin

Daevid Allen Trio/The Wilde Flowers

デイヴィッド・アレン・トリオ／ザ・ワイルド・フラワーズ

The Wilde Flowers

ソフト・マシーン、ゴング結成の鍵を握ったデイヴィッド・アレンは、じつはオーストラリア、メルボルンに生まれている。家具商として成功した家庭で裕福に育った彼は十代でビートニク文学に夢中になり、ヨーロッパを放浪するようになる。

カンタベリーで下宿したのが、ロバート・ワイアットの母親が経営するアパートで、年上のアレンの存在は、すでに自分たちでも音楽を始めていたワイアットとその仲間たちに多大な影響を与えることになった。アレンのギター、ヴォーカル（ポエトリー・リーディング?）を軸にワイアットのドラムス、ヒュー・ホッパーのベース、マイク・ラトリッジのピアノなどでロンドンに出向いてパフォーマンスをおこなったりするようになる（63年の録音が聞ける）。

その後、ワイアットはブライアン、ヒューのホッパー兄弟、リチャード・シンクレア、そしてイギリスで生まれマレーシアで育ったケヴィン・エアーズを加えた形でワイルド・フラワーズを結成する。事実上の結成は64年で、65年になるとライヴやデモ・レコーディングなどもおこなうようになるが、時々の事情からメンバーの出入りも激しくなり、また個々人の興味も様々に拡散するようになって自然消滅状態になっていく。こうした背景には、当然ソフト・マシーンの結成、活動の活発化があったことはいうまでもないが、カンタベリーの源流を語る上で欠かすことのできないのがワイルド・フラワーズである。（大鷹）

> Zoom

Soft Machine

ソフト・マシーン

ロバート・ワイアット、ヒュー・ホッパー、ケヴィン・エアーズが在籍していたワイルド・フラワーズは、63年頃からカンタベリー地方で活動していた流動的なセミ・プロ・グループだったが、後にこのソフト・マシーンとキャラヴァンの母体となるカンタベリー・ミュージックの最初の重要バンドだ。66年中頃、ワイルド・フラワーズを抜けたワイアットが故郷に戻ってきた古くからの友人デイヴィッド・アレンとマイク・ラトリッジ、そしてエアーズと共に結成したのがソフト・マシーンである。すぐにロンドンへ進出した彼ら4人はピンク・フロイドやアーサー・ブラウンらと共に当時のアンダーグラウンド・ロックのメッカUFOクラブに出演し、ライト・ショウ仕立てのサイケデリックで実験的なパフォーマンスを行なって注目を集めることになる。そして67年1月ポリドールから1枚のシングルを発表するが、麻薬問題からのアレンの脱退等で3人が残されることになる。

3人はジミ・ヘンドリクスのアメリカン・ツアーに前座として同行し、68年春、ニューヨークでデビュー・アルバムを録音しアメリカのみで発表するが、ツアー等で消耗したグループは一度解体してしまう。しかし、サイケデリックでいながらも実験的でユーモラスなポップ感覚が同居しているアルバムの評判が良かったため、発売元のプローブの要請で、ワイアット、ラトリッジ、そしてヒュー・ホッパーの3人により69年に2枚目のアルバムが制作される。エアーズが抜け、ホッパーが加入したことでジャズ的な感覚が導入されたここでの彼らの音楽は、ワイアット流のダダイズム的ポップ感覚との合体でその個性が開花し、革新的なジャズ・ロック的グループへと変貌していく。

英国やヨーロッパへと活動の中心を移した彼らは69年秋、エルトン・ディーンら3人のキース・ティペット・グループの管楽器奏者を含む7人編成で英国ツアーを行ない、評価を高め英CBSと契約する。70年の大作2枚組『サード』からディーンが正式メンバーになり、即興的演奏とインタープレイというジャズ的論理を大胆に取り入れてつき進んでいった彼らは、続く4、5枚目のアルバムの時期にはフリー・ジャズ的色彩が強まったため、4作目でワイアットが脱退してしまう。5作目からニュークリアスのジョン・マーシャル（ds）が、6作目から同じくニュークリアスのカール・ジェンキンス（オーボエ、kbd）が加入。ディーンとホッパーが順に抜けていく72年後半頃からニュークリアス組が軸となり始めたために、バンドはミニマル・ミュージック的な要素を取り入れた独特のクールなジャズ・ロック的サウンドへと変化していく。

7枚目のアルバム発表後の73年秋、元テンペストのアラン・ホールズワース（g）が加入し、5人編成となった彼らはハーヴェストに移籍し、8作目の『収束』を75年に発表するが、唯一のオリジナル・メンバーだったラトリッジが脱退。これ以後78年の解散までジェンキンスを中心にしたニュークリアス周辺の人脈からなる技巧的なジャズ・ロック・フュージョン・グループとして活動していくことになる。

（石川）

> Zoom

キャラヴァン

キャラヴァンとソフト・マシーンは、カンタベリーにあるサイモン・ラングトン・スクールに通っていた学生たちが61年に結成したワイルド・フラワーズから派生したグループだった。リチャード・シンクレア(b、vo)はワイルド・フラワーズの初期メンバーのひとりで、リチャードとは別の時期ながらデイヴ・シンクレア(kbd)、パイ・ヘイスティングス(g、vo)、リチャード・コグラン(ds)もこのグループ後期に加わっていた。

この4人で67年から活動をはじめ、68年にヴァーヴからリリースした彼らのデビュー盤が"Caravan"だ。とはいえこの時期の彼らは、ロンドンのUFOクラブで派手な活動を展開するソフト・マシーンを横目に、住む場所もなく、ホールの裏手にテントを張ってレコーディングに備えたというほど苦労していたようだ。

運悪く英ヴァーヴも閉鎖になり、70年の2作目"If I Could Do It All Over Again, I'd Do It All Over You"で彼らはデッカ(3作目から傘下のデラム)に移籍、これが功を奏し、71年の3作目"In The Land Of Grey And Pink"でキャラヴァンは確かな手応えを感じさせるグループになった。

リチャード&デイヴ・シンクレアといえば、79年にキャメルのメンバーとして来日し、予想以上にジャズ色の濃い、強烈な演奏を聴かせてくれたことを思い出す。キャラヴァンとしての音楽性も、ジャズ〜ジャズ・ロック的な演奏とポップな作風や柔らかなヴォーカルが見事なバランスを保っていて、それがカンタベリー一派のなかでもキャラヴァン独自の個性になっている。ヴォーカルにも演奏にも歌ごころを感じるというか、独特の温かみがあるのだ。

しかし、この3作目をもってデイヴ・シンクレアが脱退(ロバート・ワイアットのマッチング・モウルへ)、かわりに元デリヴァリーのキーボード奏者スティーヴ・ミラーを迎えて72年に制作された4作目が"Waterloo Lily"だ。オルガン中心のデイヴとは違い、ミラーはピアノを得意とするキーボーディストで、それが新たな色合いになっている。しかし、このアルバムが出るとすぐにミラーが脱退、リチャード・シンクレアさえもハットフィールド&ザ・ノースを結成に動いてグループを離れた。

リチャード・シンクレアを失ったキャラヴァンは、ヴィオラなどを担当するジェフリー・リチャードスンを加えて73年に"For Girls Who Grow Plump In The Night"をリリース、このアルバムではデイヴ・シンクレアがメンバーに戻り、ジョン・G・ペリーがベースを担当する5人編成になっている。以後、グループはメンバー・チェンジを繰り返しながら82年の"Back To Front"まで活動を続けていくことになるが、75年の"Cunning Stunts"は、全米チャート入り(といっても最高124位、全英チャート最高50位)もして、そこそこの成功も収めた。

90年に入るとグループは復活、パイを中心にした"The Battle Of Hastings"(95年)が制作され、この1月には来日もした。そして別の道を歩むリチャード・シンクレアはこの3月に来日し、日本のトリオ・ロス・オパピノスをバックにした公演を予定している。

(高橋)

> Zoom

Robert Wyatt/Matching Mole

ロバート・ワイアット／マッチング・モウル

Matching Mole

ケヴィン・エアーズやデイヴィッド・アレンとともにカンタベリー派を代表するミュージシャンだったロバート・ワイアット。いまやブリティッシュ・ロック界を代表する重鎮として、流行とは無縁の音楽活動を続けているが、その半生は激動に満ちたものだった。

1944年、イギリス・ブリストル生まれの彼は、ジャズ・ロック・バンド、ソフト・マシーンの優れたドラム奏者として一躍有名になったが、バンドの音楽性を巡り他のメンバーたちと衝突。71年9月にバンドを脱退し、3カ月後の同年12月、新たなバンド、マッチング・モウルを結成する。

元キャラヴァンのデイヴィッド・シンクレア(kbd)、元クワイエット・サンのビル・マコーミック(b)、元デリヴァリーのフィル・ミラー(g)、ニュークリアスのデイヴ・マクレエ(kbd)の技巧派5人によるこのバンドは71年にデビュー作『マッチング・モウル』をリリースする。

ワイアットがヴォーカルをとる楽曲はキャラヴァンに通じる牧歌的でポップなイメージに溢れ、インスト・ナンバーではフリー・フォームのジャジーなスタイルを追求するなど、ソフト・マシーンとはやや違ったアプローチがなされ、新たなファンを獲得した。しかし、続く2作目の『リトル・レッド・レコード』(73年)を聞く限り、彼が目指した新たなサウンドづくりが成功したとは言い難く、その目論見は事実上、とん挫する。

この後、一時休業を経て新生マッチング・モウルで3作目を出そうとリハーサルをするが、73年6月、悲劇が起きる。ワイアットがパーティの席上、泥酔し、5階の窓から落ちて背骨を折り、下半身不随になったのだった…。ドラマー生命を絶たれた彼だったが、カンタベリー派の仲間たちの支えで音楽活動を続け、約半年の闘病生活後、ソロ・アルバム『ロック・ボトム』(74年)をリリース。車いすでの生活ながら、シンガーとして奇跡の復活を遂げた。

未来の妻、アルフィーへの想いをはじめ、悲しい歌声の中にも喜びや希望が感じられる本作は、世界中の音楽ファンから感動を持って迎えられ、冒頭の「シー・ソング」は名曲として語り継がれている。翌年には『ルース・イズ・ストレンジャー・ザン・リチャード』をリリースし、名シンガーぶりとともに深みを増した音楽性も話題となった。

その後、しばらく音楽活動から遠ざかるが、80年代に入ってパンク／ニュー・ウェイヴ系の新興レーベル、ラフ・トレードから『ナッシング・キャン・ストップ・アス』(82年)、『オールド・ロッテン・ハット』(85年)といった名作群を発表。エルヴィス・コステロの手による「シップビルディング」のヒットもあって、若いファンも獲得すると同時に、熱心な共産党員でも知られる彼の作品群は、水墨画のような淡々とした歌声に加え、80年代には珍しい極めて政治的なメッセージを盛り込んだいぶし銀のような輝きを放っていた。

しかし90年代には共産党と決別。97年にはポール・ウェラーら多彩なゲストを招き久々の新作『シュリーブ』をリリース。ファンに健在ぶりをアピールし、各方面から圧倒的な評価を受けている。

（岡田）

ケヴィン・エアーズ

ケヴィン・エアーズは、ケント州の州都カンタベリーの北に位置する港町ハーン・ベイで、45年8月16日に生まれている。6歳から12歳の間は家族と共にマレーシアで暮らしたが、12歳の時に母親とカンタベリーに戻っている。16歳の時(60～61年)に学校をドロップアウトし、ロンドンに行くが、ドラッグ問題を起こし、母親の下へ戻ることを指示され、カンタベリーに帰った時に、ロバート・ワイアットらと知り合うことになった。ワイアットの母親が経営していた14室のアパートメント、ウェリントン・ハウスに集まる地元のミュージシャンや世界各地から来ていた詩人や芸術家などとの交流を持つようになり、ロック／R&B／ジャズや文学などに興味を持つようになったエアーズは、ビートニク的生活を体験するために、ワイアットらと64年にスペインのマジョルカ島で過ごしたこともあった。カンタベリーに戻ったエアーズとワイアットは、同じような放浪から戻り、ビート・グループを結成しようとしていたヒューとブライアンのホッパー兄弟の誘いを受けワイルド・フラワーズを結成することになった(ワイアットとヒューは63年にデイヴィッド・アレン・トリオで活動していた)。

しかし、エアーズは65年の夏にバンドを脱退し、イビザ島やアフリカへの放浪に出かけ、マジョルカ島で、デイヴィッド・アレンと再会(?)している。エアーズとアレンは再びカンタベリーに戻ると、ワイアットらと66年8月に新たなバンドを結成。当初はミスター・ヘッドなどと名乗っていたが、のちにソフト・マシーンと改名している。折からのサイケデリック・ムーヴメントの中、彼らはロンドンに進出し、アヴァンギャルドなパフォーマンスで注目を集めることになった。その時にジミ・ヘンドリクスのマネージャーだったチャス・チャンドラー(元アニマルズ)が、エアーズの作詩・作曲の才能に注目し、アニマルズなどに楽曲提供するために契約し、ソフト・マシーンのマネージメント契約も結んでいる。

ソフト・マシーンは、ジミ・ヘンドリクスの前座で2度のアメリカ・ツアーを行なうが、エアーズはツアーで精神を消耗し、68年12月にベース・ギターをミッチ・ミッチェル(ジミヘンのドラマー)に売り払い、ガールフレンドと共にイビザ島へと隠居してしまうのであった。

イビザ島での平穏な生活の中で音楽を再発見したエアーズは、アストラッド・ジルベルトの「イパネマの娘」などの穏やかな曲に魅せられ、初期ビートルズやラヴィン・スプーンフルのようなシンプルで美しい曲と、ランボーやボードレールに感銘を受けた詩も作るようになっている。こうした楽曲のデモ録音のためにロンドンに渡ったエアーズは、ピンク・フロイドのマネージメント、プラックヒル・エンタープライズと契約し、ハーヴェスト／EMIからソロとしてのデビューを飾っている。

その後、マネージメントからバック・バンド編成のアドヴァイスを受け、マイク・オールドフィールド(b)らを含むザ・ホール・ワールドなどいくつかのバンドも率いて活動してきたが、74年以来のパートナーだったオリー・ハルソール(g、92年没)の存在も忘れられない。(赤岩)

> Zoom

Hatfield & The North/National Health

ハットフィールド&ザ・ノース／ナショナル・ヘルス

Hatfield & The North

もちろん、ジャズ・ロックだけがカンタベリー・サウンドではない。けれども、独特のクールで緻密なジャズ・ロックがカンタベリー・サウンドのメイン・ストリームのひとつであることは事実だ。そして、その分野で頂点を極めたバンドが、ハットフィールド&ザ・ノース（以下ハットフィールドと呼ぶ）とナショナル・ヘルスなのである。

ハットフィールドのメンバーは、リチャード・シンクレア（b・vo、元キャラヴァン）、フィル・ミラー（g、元デリヴァリー、マッチング・モウル）、ピップ・パイル（ds、元デリヴァリー、ゴング）、デイヴ・ステュアート（kbd、元エッグ、カーン）の4人（ただし72年末の結成時には、キーボーディストがリチャードのいとこデイヴ・シンクレアだった）。このメンバーによってバンドは地道な活動を続け、74年3月にデビュー・アルバム『ハットフィールド・アンド・ザ・ノース』をリリースする。穏やかさと緊張感の同居した独特のサウンドは、ハットフィールドの名前とカンタベリーのミュージシャンたちの実力を世に知らしめた。そして、その後75年3月に発表された2作目の『ザ・ロッターズ・クラブ』は、カンタベリー・ミュージックを代表する傑作であった。

75年6月にハットフィールドは活動を停止するが、その後、アラン・ゴーウェン（kbd）の率いたジャズ・ロック・バンド、ギルガメッシュと合体するようなかたちで、新バンドのナショナル・ヘルスが結成される。当初はステュアート、ゴーウェン、ミラーに、フィル・リー（g）、モント・キャンベル（b）、アマンダ・パーソンズ（kbd）という大所帯で活動を行なっていた。この時代にはドラマーがおらず、ライヴではビル・ブルフォードやクリス・カトラーなどを招いていたらしい。そして77年に、ステュアート、ゴーウェン、ミラー、パーソンズに、ピップ・パイル（ds）、ニール・マーレイ（b）を加えたメンバーで、最初のアルバム『ナショナル・ヘルス』をリリース。ハットフィールドよりもジャズ寄りで濃密になったサウンドを披露した。その後78年には、ステュアート、ミラー、パイル、ジョン・グリーヴズ（b）の4人を中心に数人の管楽器奏者を加えた編成で、セカンド・アルバムの『オブ・キューズ・アンド・キュアーズ』をリリース。79年以降は、ゴーウェン、ミラー、パイル、グリーヴズの4人でライヴを行なっていたようだが、80年にバンドは活動を停止。そしてゴーウェンは、81年に白血病で他界してしまう。それを機にバンドは一時的に再結成され、ゴーウェンの曲を演奏した追悼アルバム『D.S. Al Coda』（81年）が発表された。このアルバムはナショナル・ヘルスの最高傑作だろう。

ハットフィールドもナショナル・ヘルスも、とくにリーダーはおらず、対等の立場でメンバーたちが互いを高めた。そして優れた演奏家を輩出し、カンタベリー・シーンの支柱となったのである。なおハットフィールドは、90年頃からデイヴ・ステュアートの代わりに女性キーボーディストのソフィア・ドマンシッチを加えて断続的に活動を行なっているらしく、その様子は『ライヴ1990』で聴くことができる。（立川）

Henry Cow/Slapp Happy

ヘンリー・カウ／スラップ・ハッピー

Henry Cow

ヘンリー・カウこそは、カンタベリー・トゥリーの中心部に位置する最重要グループのひとつである。ジャズ、ロック、現代音楽を機軸にインプロヴィゼーションを駆使した、エクスペリメンタルなアヴァンギャルド・ミュージックの極北とでも言うべき高度な音楽性は、時代のトレンドや風向きに決して左右されることなく、古代ギリシア建築のような風格と、瑞々しいまでの緊張感と、たとえようもない解放感を携え、いまなお古びることなく屹立している。

ケンブリッジ大学の学生だったフレッド・フリス(g、vln)、ティム・ホジキンスン(s、kbd)により68年に結成。72年までにジョン・グリーヴス(b)、クリス・カトラー(ds)らが参加しメンバーが確定、このころにはマルキズムを思想的基盤におき、単に高度な技術で音楽をプレイするだけにとどまらず、音楽を階級闘争の一環として実践する一種の政治的運動体としても組織されていたのである。

73年にヴァージンからデビュー作"Legend"を、74年に"Unrest"を発表。このころからスラップ・ハッピーとの交流が始まり、74年秋、両者は共闘しての活動を始める。

スラップ・ハッピーはおそらくは史上初の、そして最良の「アヴァン・ポップ」グループである。71年終わりにドイツのハンブルクでロンドン生まれのアンソニー・ムーア(kbd、g、vo)、旧知のアメリカ人ピーター・ブレグヴァド(g、vo)、さらにムーアの恋人のドイツ人ダグマー・クラウゼ(vo)の3人で結成。ファースト・アルバム"Sort Of"はムーアと交流のあったファウストの全面協力のもと72年春に制作され夏にポリドールから発表される。翌年、やはりファウストの協力でセカンド・アルバムを制作するが、レコード会社から発売を拒否される(後に"Acnalbasac Noom"として発売)。これを機にヘンリー・カウの所属であるヴァージンに移籍。74年、セカンド・アルバムをリメイクした"Slapp Happy"を発表、その後ヘンリー・カウとの共同行動をとる。

まずはスラップ・ハッピー主導でアルバム"Desperate Straights"(75年)、続いてヘンリー・カウ主導で"In Praise Of Learning"(75年)を発表するが、このときすでに両者の関係は崩壊しており、ただひとりクラウゼがヘンリー・カウに残り、スラップ・ハッピーは消滅する。

やがてヘンリー・カウはヴァージンからの契約を破棄され、自衛のためのヨーロッパのアンダーグラウンド・ミュージシャンの組織RIO(反抗するロック)を結成、自主レーベル、レコメンディッドを発足させた。これが彼らの初期からの理念である左翼思想の結実であることは言うまでもない。

だがバンドの内情はすでにガタガタだったようだ。78年の"Western Culture"を最後に解散。フリス、カトラー、クラウゼの3人はアート・ベアーズとして3枚のアルバムを発表するが、それも解散する。その後もメンバーはそれぞれ現在に至るまで現役で活動を続けている。

そして98年にスラップ・ハッピーが突如再結成して23年ぶりのアルバム"Ca Va"を発表、そして00年に奇跡の来日公演が実現したのは記憶に新しい。

(小野島)

デイヴィッド・アレン／ゴング

Gong

ソフト・マシーン結成時のメンバーでバンドの名付け親でもあるオーストラリア出身のギター奏者、デイヴィッド・アレン（1938年1月生まれ）がフランスで結成した摩訶不思議なプログレッシヴ・ロック・バンド、ゴング。アレンの音楽活動の出発点こそ〝カンタベリー〟だが、バンドは欧州のヒッピー文化そのものを象徴する孤高の存在として60年代末から70年代にかけて精力的に活動。あちこちに仲間を増やすとともに、唯一無二といえるスケールの大きさと底無しの魅力に満ちた音宇宙を構築し、いまも欧米では高い評価と根強い人気を誇っている。

21歳でオーストラリアを離れたアレンは欧州各地を放浪し、イギリスではカンタベリーにあるロバート・ワイアットの母親の下宿で暮らした。そこでワイアットやマイク・ラトリッジらカンタベリー一派と出会い、ソフト・マシーンを結成することになる。ところがバンドの最初のフランス公演のあと、アレンは麻薬とビザの問題でイギリスへの再入国を拒否されてしまう。67年9月のことだ。

アレンはやむなくバンドを離れ、そのままパリに残り、クラブでの演奏などで食いつなぐ。

欧州放浪時代に知り合ったジリ・スマイスがパリでアレンと合流。アレンのギター演奏にスマイスの即興囁きパフォーマンスが加わり、ゴングの原型のようなものが形作られつつあったが、68年、パリで5月革命が起こりアレンとスマイスは警察に追われスペインはマジョルカ島のデヤに逃亡。ここで二人はバナナムーンというバンドを作り密かに活動を続けた。

69年夏、二人は再びパリに戻り、新興のジャズ・レーベル、BYGレコードと契約、9人編成によるバンド、ゴングをスタートさせ、翌70年にデビュー・アルバム『マジック・ブラザー』をリリース。ユニークなサイケデリック・サウンドを披露した。続いて名作『キャマンベール・エレクトリック』(71年)、映画のサントラ『コンティネンタル・サーカス』(72年)をリリースするが、この2作で彼らの音楽性や演奏能力が大きく進歩し、一気に注目を浴びることになった。

そして73年、当時はまだイギリスのマイナー・レーベルだったヴァージン・レコードから『フライング・ティーポット』をリリース。イギリスでも彼らの人気が高まるとともに、本作からゴングを象徴する壮大かつナンセンスなヒッピーSFファンタジー〝レディオ・ノーム・インヴィジブル（見えない電波の精の物語）3部作〟がスタートする。

3部作の2作目となる『エンジェルス・エッグ』(73年)と3作目『ユー』(74年)でバンドは黄金期を迎え、スティーヴ・ヒレッジ（g）らの卓越した演奏能力がバンドのユニークな持ち味に高度な音楽性と深みを与えた。しかしバンドのハイテク化に疑問を抱いたアレンとスマイスは75年にゴングを離れ、独自の活動をスタート。残ったバンドも違う道を歩み出す。70年代後半からアレンは様々なバンド活動でゴング・ファミリーを果てしなく増殖させ、今日に至っている。いまもアレン、そしてゴング・ファミリーは地道に活動を続ける…。

（岡田）

> Zoom

Hugh Hopper/Elton Dean (Soft Head/Soft Heap)

ヒュー・ホッパー／エルトン・ディーン(ソフト・ヘッド／ソフト・ヒープ)

Soft Head

触媒的な働きをするミュージシャンというのがいる。その人間がバンドに加わることで他のメンバーたちが実力以上の力を発揮するといった存在だ。ベーシストのホッパーと、サックス奏者のディーンこそ、まさにそのようなミュージシャン。だから二人とも、他の演奏家とのコラボレーションに優れた作品が多い。

ヒュー・ホッパーは、1945年カンタベリー生まれ。郷里の学校ではロバート・ワイアットと同級生だった。ソフト・マシーンには結成時から裏方のようなかたちで関わっていたらしく、68年にマシーンがジミ・ヘンドリクスの前座でアメリカ・ツアーをしたときには、ツアー・マネージャーとして同行している。その後、ケヴィン・エアーズがマシーンから脱退した際に、ベーシストとしてバンドから誘われた。

ソフト・マシーンには2作目から『シックス』まで在籍したが、名盤『サード』の冒頭を飾る「フェイスリフト」がホッパーの作だという事実は見逃したくない。マシーン脱退とほぼ同時に最初のソロ・アルバム『1984』(73年)をリリース。その後、自身のリーダー・アルバムを次々に発表するが、そのどれもが、エルトン・ディーンやキース・ティペット(p)といった共演者を立てた内容になっている点は、注目に値する。カンタベリー・シーンのなかでも最年長者である彼は、他のメンバーたちにとって面倒見の良い父親のような存在なのかもしれない。90年代に入ってからは、アメリカ人シンガー&ソングライターのクレイマーや、女性ヴォーカリストのリサ・S・クロスナーと組んで、充実した作品を発表している。なお、90年代のホッパー作の歌モノを手軽に味わうには、ベスト盤『パラボリック・ヴァージョンズ』がお勧めだ。

エルトン・ディーンは、1945年ノッティンガム生まれ。ソウル系のバンドなどでサックスを吹いた後、ジャズの世界に入り、68年頃にキース・ティペット(p)と出会い、ソフト・マシーンに『サード』から参加。マシーンには『フィフス』まで在籍していた。

彼は伝統的なジャズをマスターしたサックス奏者であるとともに、フリー・ジャズ演奏家としても革新的。その意味で、イアン・カー(tp)などと同じく、英国ジャズ界の王道を行く人物ともいえるだろう。マシーンの『フォース』や『フィフス』では彼のサックスが明らかにイニシアティヴを握っており、この時期のマシーンはフリー・ジャズ・テイストを色濃くしている。マシーン脱退後は、自身のバンド、ジャスト・アス、カルテット、ナインセンスなどを率いて精力的に活動。ヨーロッパのジャズメンとのコラボレーションも多く、自身のリーダー・アルバムだけでも約30作ほどが確認できる。

78年、ホッパーとディーンは、アラン・ゴーウェン(kbd)、デイヴ・シーン(ds)とともにソフト・ヘッドというバンドを結成。彼らの音は、4人の連名名義で発表された『ロング・エレメント』(79年)で聴くことができる。その後ソフト・ヘッドは、ドラマーがピップ・パイルに替わって名前をソフト・ヒープと変更。79年にはアルバム『ソフト・ヒープ』を発表している。

(立川)

> Zoom

この二つのグループの多くの出身者たちは70年代ソフト・マシーンの革新的サウンドの原動力になっていた。各リーダー、キース・ティペットとイアン・カーはそうした意味も含め、70年代前衛派ジャズ・ロック界における人材育成の師であった。

キング・クリムゾンへの参加やロバート・フリップへの影響で知られているティペットは、60年代後半、英国現代ジャズ界の新星ピアニストとして注目を浴び登場する。後にソフト・マシーン組となるエルトン・ディーンやニック・エヴァンスらと結成した最初のグループは急進的かつヒップな2枚のジャズ・ロック・アルバムが高く評価されるが、彼はそこに留まることなく、フリー・フォームと即興的偶然性に基づくより前衛的で幅広い活動に移行していく。その成果はセンティピード、オヴァリー・ロッジ名義作や様々なセッション等に数多く残され、今も現役だ。

一方、60年代初期からジャズ・トランペッターとして活躍してきたカーが69年に結成したニュークリアスは、当時の英国ジャズ界隈で最もロック・サイドに積極的に接近したユニットの一つとして、英国版マイルス・グループ等とも形容されていた。カール・ジェンキンス、ジョン・マーシャル、クリス・スペディング、アラン・ホールズワース、ゴードン・ベック、デイヴ・マクレエ、ロイ・バビントン等多彩な人脈が10年間余りの流れの中でメンバーとして関わり、特異なジャズ・ロック・フュージョン世界を作り出していた。（石川）

キース・ティペット・グループ／ニュークリアス

Nucleus

インド出身のギタリスト、ギャリー・ボイルを中心に、ヴェテラン・ジャズ・ベーシストのジェフ・クライン、ナイジェル・モリス（ds）、ブライアン・ミラー（p）によって72年に結成。ボイルはかつてブライアン・オーガーのトリニティに在籍、またクラインとともにキース・ティペット・グループでもプレイしていたが、管楽器を入れず、ギターとキーボードがリードを取り合うストイックなインストゥルメンタル・ロックを志向したのがアイソトープだった。74年の第2作"Illusion"ではベースがヒュー・ホッパーに交替、独特のトーンで反復リフを繰り出すホッパーのカラーが濃厚に出て、ソフト・マシーンをコンパクト化したようなジャズ・ロックが聞かれた。

アイソトープ

同時期にボイル／ホッパー／モリスは揃ってツトム・ヤマシタのイースト・ウィンドでもリズム・セクションを務め、"Freedom Is Frightening"、"One By One"などのレコーディングに参加する。75年の第3作"Deep End"はブランドXのロビン・ラムリーがプロデュース、ホッパーは正式メンバーを外れたが（ゲストでは参加）、ダブル・キーボード編成でカラフルなクロスオーヴァー・ロックを展開した。ボイルはリターン・トゥ・フォーエヴァーやウェザー・リポートを強く意識していたようで、続けてラムリーがプロデュース、モリス・パート、サイモン・フィリップスらが参加した76年の初ソロ"Dancer"ではよりゴージャスなサウンドが聞かれる。（小山）

> Zoom

デリヴァリー／ロル・コクスヒル&スティーヴ・ミラー

Delivery

昨年12月に来日したイン・カフーツのフィル・ミラー（g）、ピップ・パイル（ds）の二人は6歳の頃からの幼馴染みで、60年代中期にはフィルの兄のスティーヴ（p）を加え、ブルーノズ・ブルーズ・バンドを結成。このバンドを母体とし、ロル・コクスヒル（s）、ジャック・モンク（b）が参加して68年に誕生したのがデリヴァリーである。ブルーズがルーノズ時代からアレクシス・コーナーらの賞賛を受け、デリヴァリーはオーティス・スパン、マディ・ウォーターズ、ローウェル・フルソンなど多くのブルーズマンのイギリス・ツアーでバック・バンドを務めるなどして活躍した。

69年にはベーシストがロイ・バビントンに交替、さらに元バビロンの女性ヴォーカリスト、キャロル・グライムズが加入する。ケヴィン・エアーズのホール・ワールドへ参加したコクスヒルをゲストに迎え、70年に唯一のアルバム『Fools Meeting』をB&Cからリリース。ヴォーカリストがジュディ・ダイブルに替り、ダイブル・コクスヒル&ザ・ミラー・ブラザーズと名を改めた後、各メンバーはキャラヴァンやマッチング・モウル、ゴングなどへ分散したが、72年にはスティーヴを中心に再結成された。スティーヴは73年、74年にコクスヒルとLP片面ずつをシェアするデュオ作を2枚発表。以降、アルバム・リリースは殆どなかったがマイペースの活動を続け、98年に膵臓ガンでこの世を去った。（小山）

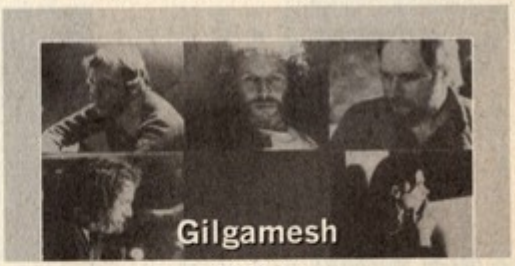
スティーヴ・ヒレッジ／カーン

Steve Hillage

51年生まれのスティーヴ・ヒレッジは、シティ・オヴ・ロンドン・スクール在学中に同級生のモント・キャンベル、デイヴ・ステュアートとユリエルを結成。その後、ヒレッジがケント大学に進むためにユリエルを抜けると、バンドはトリオとなり、エッグと名乗るようになった。一方のヒレッジはケント大学時代にキャラヴァンやスパイロジャイラのメンバーと知り合い、71年に大学を卒業するとロンドンに戻ってカーンを結成、デイヴ・ステュアートの全面的な協力を得て72年にアルバム『Space Shanty』を残した。

カーンが解散すると、ヒレッジはケント大学時代に知り合ったケヴィン・エアーズのバック・バンド、デカダンスに加わり、73年のエアーズの『Bananamour』では『Shouting In A Bucket Blues』にゲスト参加、リード・ギターを披露している。しかし、エアーズの仏トゥアーで共演したデイヴィッド・アレンに共鳴したヒレッジは、デカダンスを3カ月で脱退、今度はゴングに加入、73～74年に発売されたいわゆる『ラジオ・ノーム・インヴィジブル』三部作の『Flying Teapot』『Angels Egg』『You』で重要な役割を果たした。

初ソロ作『Fish Rising』（75年）は英チャートを上昇して商業的にも成功、翌年には『H』が続いた。70年代前半のスティーヴィ・ワンダーを支えたシンセ奏者／エンジニアのマルコム・セシルをプロデューサーに迎えた『Motivation Radio』（77年）も充実したアルバムだ。（高橋）



> Zoom

エッグ

デイヴ・ステュアート（kbd）、モント・キャンベル（b、vo）、グライヴ・ブルックス（ds）によるトリオがエッグ。ステュアートとキャンベルは生年月日が50年12月30日と同じで、67年にシティ・オヴ・ロンドン・スクールで出会っている。同級生にはスティーヴ・ヒレッジ（g）もおり、募集広告に応募してきたブルックスを加え、ユリエル（Uriel）というバンドを結成。ブルース、サイケ、プログレッシヴ・ロックと、クラシック音楽の家系に生まれたキャンベルの影響でストラヴィンスキー、バッハ、メシアン、ホルスト（キャンベルの祖父の友人だったとか）などの要素も持ち込まれた。この4人による録音が、アーザケル名義で69年に発売されているが、これはプログレ・ブームに乗ってレコード会社が企画した作品だったようだ。

68年夏にヒレッジがカンタベリーのケント州立大学に進学のために脱退後はトリオで活動を続け、ミドル・アースなどのロンドン・アンダーグラウンド・シーンで活躍、その時にデッカに認められ、エッグと改名してレコード・デビューしている。2枚のアルバムを発表後に、ライヴ作が検討されるが、デッカが契約を解除。ロック・ビジネスに失望したキャンベルがロイヤル・カレッジ・オヴ・ミュージック進学のために解散を迎えている。74年にステュアートはハット・フィールド&ザ・ノースの一員として人気を博みソロ制作を打診された際に、エッグを再結集しアルバムを制作している。（赤岩）

ギルガメッシュ

ギルガメッシュはアラン・ゴーウェンの音楽活動の大半を占める存在だった。アランはアサガイで一緒だったジェイミー・ミューアと72年にサンシップを結成したが、ジェイミーはキング・クリムズンに加入、他のメンバーはマイク・トラヴィスとアラン・ホールズワースだった。72年秋にマイクとギルガメッシュを結成、目まぐるしくメンバーを変えながらジャズ・ロックを演奏し続け、73年11月にハットフィールド&ザ・ノースと共演し両者の交流が始まった。この時期はアラン、マイク、ニール・マレイ、フィル・ミラーという布陣。

ジャズが好きでミュージシャンになったアランは曲作りに力を注ぎ、ギルガメッシュで自分の曲をきちんと演奏しようとした。他のメンバーはアランとは異なり、結構ロック感覚でジャズに切り込もうとしていた。

75年5月にアラン、マイク、フィルにジェフ・クラインで初アルバム『ギルガメッシュ』を制作したが、9月には解散、アランとフィルはデイヴ・ステュアートらとナショナル・ヘルスを結成し、マイクはノース&サウスへ、ジェフはターニング・ポイントへと移っていった。

78年6月、アランはギルガメッシュ名でアルバムを制作するため、フィル、ヒュー・ホッパーとトレヴァー・トムキンスで一時的に再結成、アルバム『アナザー・ファイン・チューン・ユーヴ・ガット・ミー・イントゥ』を制作した。そして、アランは81年に白血病で死亡、ギルガメッシュは永久に封印された。（山岸）

> Zoom

クワイエット・サン／ディス・ヒート

Quiet Sun

ル・マンザネラのギターを中心に、彼のダルウィッチ・カレッジの同窓生だったビル・マコーミック(b)、チャールズ・ヘイワード(ds)、そしてキーボードにデイヴ・ジャレットという編成で、近所だったこともあってソフト・マシーンの多大な影響を受けつつ音楽性を高めていった。

実質的な活動は70～71年の約1年間で、マンザネラが新聞のメンバー募集に応募し採用されたのをきっかけに解散している（もちろんそのグループはロキシー・ミュージック）。その後、74年にマンザネラのソロ・アルバムを作るときに再結成され、かつてのナンバーを吹き込んだのが唯一のアルバム『メインストリーム』で、今も高く評価されている。

その後ヘイワードは、基本的にはノン・ミュージシャンだったチャールズ・バレン、ガレス・ウィリアムズと共に76年にディス・ヒートを結成し、即興演奏を再構築していく衝撃的なサウンドで、カンタベリー派の音楽性をパンク以降の時代の中でもプログレッシヴなものとして提示したのだった。

（大鷹）

ソフト・マシーンの純音楽的な影響はじつに大きいが、その最良の成果の一つが聞けるのがクワイエット・サンのアルバムだ。

グループはウィンダー・コマンダー・ニクスン&ヒズ・ホイート・イーティング・ピーズ、そしてブー&オーストリッチ・フィーザーズという二つのグループの発展形として誕生したものだった。ロンドンで生まれ、キューバ、ベネズエラで育ったフィ

スパイロジャイラ／デイヴ・ステュアート&バーバラ・ガスキン

Spirogyra

フォーク・ロックのスパイロジャイラがカンタベリー系として括られるのは、デイヴ・ステュアートとデュオを組むバーバラ・ガスキンがいたことと、まさしくカンタベリーで活動していたからにほかならない。

ランカシャーのボルトンで68年にマーティン・コッカーハムとマーク・フランシスで結成。マーティンがカンタベリーのケント大学に進み、そこでバーバラと出会い、69年にス

ティーヴ・ボリル、ジュリアン・カゼックの4人組で活動を始めた。

イギリスの古い時代の音楽をイメージしながらロックの手法で演奏するフォーク・ロック・バンドで、ほとんどの曲はマーティンが作っていた。71年6月にファースト・アルバム『セント・ラディガンズ』を制作、フェアポート・コンヴェンションのデイヴ・マタックスらがバック・アップ。デイヴは準メンバーとして3枚のアルバムに付き合う。

かつてのコンビ、マークが新たに加わるとジュリアンは脇にまわり新メンバーで72年にセカンド『オールド・ブート・ワイン』を制作、その後バーバラとマーティンのデュオとなり73年にサード『ベルズ・ブーツ・アンド・シャンブルズ』を発表、74年にスパイロジャイラは解散した。バーバラはデイヴのいるハットフィールド&ザ・ノースや74年のエッグのアルバムに加わったりした。その後、81年にナショナル・ヘルスを辞めたデイヴとデュオを組み、ステュアート&ガスキンとして現在まで活動を続けている。

（山岸）

> Zoom

アルバム選

選盤●小山哲人＋編集部

文●赤岩和美　石川真一　大鷹俊一　岡田敏一　小野島 大
小山哲人　坂本 理　高橋道彦　立川芳雄　山岸伸一

＊評文は原則としてオリジナル・アルバムに準拠しお書きいただいています

The Soft Machine
"The Soft Machine"
ソフト・マシーン『ヴォリューム 1&2』

米Probe●PLP/CPLP4500 [1968]◆ビッグ・ビート●MSIF3612

ジミ・ヘンドリクスのアメリカン・ツアーの前座として同行中の68年4月に、ニューヨークのレコード・プラントで4日間で録音されたデビュー・アルバム。プロデュースにはチャス・チャンドラーとアメリカ側からトム・ウィルスン（ボブ・ディラン、ヴェルヴェット・アンダーグラウンドの制作等で著名）が関わっているが、内容は当時の彼ら3人のランダムな志向が直接反映されたもので、それがかえって新鮮でもある作品集だ。

ケヴィン・エアーズのサイケデリックな感覚が軸となり、未だ模索しながらも既に個性の芽が見られるマイク・ラトリッジのオルガンのジャズ・ロック風パートとその間に立ち何か新しい音楽を作ろうとするロバート・ワイアットのユニークなドラムスや独特な唱法の歌が絡んでいく様はなかなかおもしろい。ここには未完成でありながら様々な要素がまじり合うという初期のダダイズム・ポップの精神がラフな形で描き出されていると言えるだろう。（石川）

The Soft Machine
"Volume Two"
ソフト・マシーン『ヴォリューム 1&2』

Probe●SPB1002 [1969]◆ビッグ・ビート●MSIF3612

エアーズが脱けてイビザ島に去ってしまい、ラトリッジが英国へ戻ってしまったため、バンドは68年冬に既に解散していたが、プローブ側の要請で再結成され69年2月にこのアルバムが録音された。

エアーズにかわってヒュー・ホッパー（b）が正式加入するが、そのことも影響して、ソフト・マシーンの音楽は短期間のうちにかなりの変化を見せている。以前のサイケデリックな感覚は消えていき、それにかわって器楽面でのアレンジや展開が複雑化し、スリリングでいて広がりのある音楽が生み出されている。ホッパーが作曲面で活躍しジャズ的指向を導入しているのと同様、ラトリッジのキーボードがよりカラフルで大胆さを獲得しているのも大きな特徴。また、変拍子も取り入れて自在にふるまうロバート・ワイアットのドラムスも魅力だ。シュールでユーモラスな言語的実験とオーケストラ的でケイオティックな音楽的実験が出会いを演じる様はまさに革新的パタフィジック・ポップの傑作だ。（石川）

> Zoom

Soft Machine
"Third"
ソフト・マシーン「サード」

CBS ● 66246[1970] ➡ エピック ◎ESCA5535

前作のラトリッジ、ホッパー、ワイアットの3人に新たにサックスのエルトン・ディーン（キース・ティペット・グループ）が加わった新生ソフト・マシーンが、他3人の管楽器奏者ニック・エヴァンス（キース・ティペット・グループ）、リン・ドブスン（ピート・ブラウン&バタード・オーナメンツ）、ジミー・ヘイスティングスと、ヴァイオリンのラブ・スパールを加えて70年5月に制作した大作の2枚組。

ホッパーとワイアットが各1曲、ラトリッジが2曲書いたナンバーが片面ずつに収録されたもので、ワイアットの代表曲の一つ"Moon In June"のマニエリスティックなヴォーカル入りポップ以外は、フリー・ジャズや現代音楽の手法が大胆に導入された脱ロック色の濃い曲が並ぶ。しかしそれらのどれもが、メンバー相互の器楽的インタープレイに基づきながらも各楽器を均質的に重層化させアンサンブル領域を拡張させていく様は独自性を持つ。複合化実験による革新的自由音楽の大傑作。（石川）

Caravan
"In The Land Of Grey And Pink"
キャラヴァン「グレイとピンクの地+5」

Deram ● SDL-R1 [1971] ➡ デラム ◎UICY9058

メンバーがキャリアを積み、そしてプロデューサーがテリー・キングからデイヴィッド・ヒッチコックに交代したことで、さらに完成度を増したサード・アルバム。エンジニアリングをエアー・スタジオ録音分をジョン・バンターが、デッカ・スタジオ分をデイヴィッド・グリンステッドが担当しているのもポイントといえるだろう。グリンステッドは鳴りモノ担当としてミュージシャン・クレジットもされている。アン・マリー・アンダースンが描いたジャケットのイラストも、カンタベリー・ロックを代表する1枚に相応しい、素晴らしいものだ。

名曲"Winter Wine"を筆頭に、リチャード・シンクレアがリード・ヴォーカルを取る曲が多く、彼の声の質そのものが好きな人間にはそれも嬉しいところだが、なんといっても圧巻なのは22分に及ぶ組曲の"Nine Feet Underground"だ。冒頭からデイヴ・ステュアートが大活躍、オルガンの多彩な音色を駆使しながら、最後まで見事に聴かせる。（高橋）

Caravan
"For Girls Who Grow Plump In The Night"
キャラヴァン「夜ごとに太る女のために+5」

Deram ● SDL-R12 [1973] ➡ デラム ◎UICY9060

デイヴ・シンクレア（kbd）が復帰したかわりにリチャード・シンクレアが抜け、ベーシストは今度はジョン・G・ペリーになった。同時にヴィオラ奏者のジェフリー・リチャードスンが参加し、バンドのアンサンブルは一層アグレッシヴになっている。リチャードスンは、サイモン・ジェフスも関わった次作のライヴ盤などでも活躍し、のちにはカフェ・ジャックスやペンギン・カフェのアルバムにも参加している。

バイ・ヘイスティングス（B）の求心力が増し、これまで共作曲が圧倒的に多かったキャラヴァンにあって、組曲を除くすべてがバイの単独制作曲になった。しかし曲調は多彩で、ルパート・ハインがシンセで参加したハードな"Memory Lane, Hugh-Head-Tom"からフォーク～カントリーっぽいナンバーまで、非常に出来の良い曲が揃っている。サードとともに名盤といわれる由縁だ。そして、ソフト・マシーン3作目に収録されていたマイク・ラトリッジの曲が、組曲のなかで披露されているのも嬉しい。（高橋）

> Zoom

Robert Wyatt
"The End Of An Ear"

CBS●64189 [1970]

ロバート・ワイアットがソフト・マシーンのドラマーとして活躍中だった絶頂期にリリースした初ソロ・アルバム。ソフト・マシーンの3作目『Third』のリリースとほぼ同時期の作品で、全9曲のうち、1曲目と最後の9曲目で、マイルス・デイヴィスとの共演などで知られるジャズ界の大御所、ギル・エヴァンスの楽曲『Las Vegas Tango』を取り上げていることからも分かるように、ジャズ色の濃いフリー・フォーム・スタイルのサウンドの作品に仕上がっている。

エヴァンスの楽曲を除く7曲はすべてワイアットが作詞・作曲したものだが、これらはキャラヴァンやカーラ・ブレイといったカンタベリー一派の友人たちに捧げられているうえ、プロデュースも彼自身が担当するなど非常にパーソナルな印象の作風。とはいえ、本作を聞くと、評論家筋からも高く評価された彼の素晴らしいドラミングがソフト・マシーンをがっちり支えていたことがよく分かる。（岡田）

Matching Mole
"Matching Mole"
マッチング・モウル『そっくりモグラ』

CBS●64850[1972]→エピック◎ESCA5425

音楽性の違いからソフト・マシーンを脱退したワイアットが新たに結成したバンドのデビュー作。元キャラヴァンのデイヴ・シンクレア(kbd)やフィル・ミラー(g)といったカンタベリー派を代表する実力派ミュージシャンがワイアットのもとに結集して作り上げた作品だけあって、カンタベリー・サウンドを代表する名作となっている。

シンクレアとワイアットが共作した冒頭の『O Caroline』など全8曲、ユーモアとウィットに富むポップ感覚とジャズの要素が絶妙にマッチした素晴らしい楽曲が揃っており、眼鏡をかけたかわいいモグラが登場するジャケット・デザインが本作のサウンドや雰囲気をうまく表現している。ソフト・マシーンではやれなかった試みに嬉々として挑むワイアットの姿が目に浮かぶが、本作ではその試みがまだまだ途上段階のようだ。ちなみにこの奇妙なバンド名は、『Gas Machine』のフランス語の発音を英語に当てはめたもの。（岡田）

Robert Wyatt
"Rock Bottom"
ロバート・ワイアット『ロック・ボトム』

Virgin●V2017 [1974]→ライコディスク◎VACK1225

下半身不随となり、ドラマーとしての生命を絶たれた彼が入院生活から半年後、絶望の淵から這い出すかのごとくリリースしたソロ2作目。アルバム・タイトルは日本語に訳すと"どん底"。こう書くと何やら重苦しい作風を連想するが、実は全くその逆で、本作からは後悔や自責の念よりも、生きることへの喜びや希望、そして何よりシンガーとして新たな出発を果たそうとする強靭な意志が感じられる。本作がカンタベリー・ミュージックだけでなく、ブリティッシュ・ロックを代表する超名盤のひとつといわれる所以である。

退院後、ハットフィールド&ザ・ノースの録音に参加するなどして徐々に音楽活動に取り組んだ成果が、彼を唯一無二のシンガーとして復活させた。深い祈りにも似た真摯で美しい歌声。偽らざる心の内の想いをひとつひとつ紡ぎ出すようにして作られた楽曲。ジョン・レノンの名作『ジョンの魂』にも通じるピュアな魂がそこにある。（岡田）

> Zoom

Kevin Ayers
"Joy Of A Toy"
ケヴィン・エアーズ『ジョイ・オブ・ア・トイ』

Harvest●SHVL763 [1969]

69年11月に発表されたソロ・デビュー作。ソフト・マシーン時代に書いた曲 'Joy Of A Toy' をアルバム・タイトルにし、その続編的なインスト曲で幕を開けるが、サウンドはよりポップでカラフルになっており、ケヴィン・エアーズの穏やかな心境が導入部で伝わってくる。'Joy Of A Toy' という曲名はオーネット・コールマンの同名曲から取られたもの。

プロデュースは、エアーズと所属マネージメント、ブラックヒルの片割れピーター・ジェナーの共同によるもので、当時、「フロム・マリー・アントワネット・トゥ・ザ・ビートルズ」という劇の音楽で注目を集めていた現代音楽畑の作曲家デイヴィッド・ベッドフォードに目を付けたジェナーが、アレンジャー兼ピアニストとして招いている。エアーズのフォーキーな音楽と「サージェント・ペパーズ」以後を感じさせるベッドフォードの斬新かつノスタルジックなオーケストレーションの融合が見事に調和している。ワイアットとソフト・マシーンも参加。(赤岩)

Kevin Ayers & The Whole World
"Shooting At The Moon"
ケヴィン・エアーズ『シューティング・アット・ザ・ムーン』

Harvest●SHSP4005[1970]
◆BGO@MSIF7211

70年3月発表の2作目。今作も共同プロデュースしているピーター・ジェナーの進言でライヴ用のバンド、ザ・ホール・ワールドを結成した後の作品で、バンド名義の作品になっている。メンバーには、前作のアレンジャーでもあったデイヴィッド・ベッドフォード(kbd)に、マイク・オールドフィールド(b、g)、ミック・フィンチャー(ds)、ロル・コクスヒル(s)と年齢の幅も広く、クラシック、ジャズ、フォークなど多彩なバック・グラウンドを持ったミュージシャンの集合体となった。

エアーズのポップな面を代表する名曲 'May' で始まるが、その後はメロディアスな曲の途中にアヴァンギャルドなジャムが乱入したり、オールドフィールドのハードなギター・ソロが鳴り響いたと思えばミュージック・コンクレート的展開になったりと、前衛とポップの融合といった奇妙な音空間で構築されている。表題曲はソフト・マシーン時代の 'Esther's Nose Job' の改題版。(赤岩)

Hatfield & The North
"Hatfield And The North"

Virgin●V2008 [1974]㊥米
Caroline@CAROL1833-2

ハットフィールド&ザ・ノースのデビュー作であり、その後ナショナル・ヘルスやイン・カフーツなどへと展開していく系譜の誕生を告げる一枚でもある。ロバート・ワイアット(vo)や、バーバラ・ガスキン(コーラス)らのゲストも一部参加しているが、基本的には4人編成のバンドの音だ。リーダーらしいリーダーはおらず、曲作りにおいても演奏においても4人が対等のバランスで関わっている。もちろんソロ・パートはあるが、それらはあえて目立たないように工夫されているという印象すら受ける。それほどアンサンブル指向が強いのだ。情動を控え目かつ理性的に表現するというカンタベリー風ジャズ・ロックの特徴が、すべてここに表われている。

変哲もない田舎町の風景がぼんやりと映し出されたようなジャケットには、よく見ると細かい絵が描きこまれているが、これがアルバムの内容を象徴しているかのようだ。ノスタルジックな人工着色を施したインナーの写真も趣がある。(立川)

> Zoom

Hatfield & The North
"The Rotters' Club"

Virgin●V2030 [1975]◇米
Caroline◎CAROL1834-2

ハットフィールド&ザ・ノースの2作目にしてラスト・アルバムは、カンタベリー系ジャズ・ロックの最高傑作ともいえる素晴らしいアルバムだ。アンサンブル指向は前作よりも強められ、アレンジはこれ以上考えられないほど緻密になっている。けれども全体の聴き心地はなめらかで、一種のBGMのように聴くこともできてしまう。その音はたとえていえば、遠くから見ると無地の中間色なのに近くで見るとさまざまな色の糸が細かく編み込まれた織物のようで、聴くたびに溜息が出る。楽曲も前作に比べはるかに粒ぞろいで、とくにジャジーでメロウなインストゥルメンタルの小曲 "Share It" は名曲。ジャケットの素晴らしさも特筆ものだ。

CDにはボーナス・トラックとしてライヴ音源が入っているが、そこでの演奏はキング・クリムズン風だ。スタジオでは、過激さをあえてオブラートでくるむようにして録音していたのか。そのあたりに彼らの指向性を読み解く鍵があるのかも。（立川）

National Health
"National Health"

Affinity/Charly●AFF6 [1978]◇仏Spalax◎CD14827

4人のメンバーがガッチリとタッグを組んでいたハットフィールド&ザ・ノースに比べると、ナショナル・ヘルスは結成時のメンバーがやや流動的だった。そのせいか、このナショナル・ヘルスの1作目は、ハットフィールドの作品よりもアンサンブル指向が弱く、各メンバーのソロを聴かせる部分が強くなっている。また、ハットフィールド時代よりもシンセサイザーやエフェクターの使用頻度が増しており、ギターの音色もハード。そのため全体としては、ややジャズ寄りのプログレといった印象が強い。アラン・ゴーウェン(key)はクレジット上ではゲスト扱いだが（本作録音の直前に一度バンドを脱退している）、実際には彼の個性が色濃く出ている。

本作が録音されたのは77年の初めだったが、発売してくれるレコード会社が見つからず、結局78年にチャーリーからリリースされる運びとなった。不遇な状況のなかで自分たちの信じる音楽を演奏し続けたメンバーたちに、拍手を送りたい。（立川）

Slapp Happy/Henry Cow
"Desperate Straights"
スラップ・ハッピー『カサブランカ・ムーン／デスプリット・ストレイツ』

Virgin●V2024 [1975]◆ロクス・ソルス◎LSI2041

まずはスラップ・ハッピーが主導権をとったとおぼしい1作。全13曲中、ヘンリー・カウ組が作詞作曲に参加したのはわずか2曲に過ぎない。しかし、前作と同じようにムーア／ブレグヴァドが手がけながら、これほどまでに曲の表情が一変するとは驚きである。スラップ・ハッピーは3人だけではいささかレイドバックしがちな空気をピリリと引き締めるようなテンションと技術に裏打ちされたストイックさをバートナーに求め、ヘンリー・カウは自分たちの思想をあらわす核としてのダグマー・クラウゼの歌とブレグヴァドの言葉を求めて、両者は半年にわたる共同作業の末、この見事な傑作を送り出す。

ときに毅然として、ときにコケットリーに歌われるクラウゼのヴォーカルは、ヘンリー・カウ組の作り出す緊迫した磁場を完全に支配下において見事だ。ルンバ風なブレグヴァド歌唱の "Gisela" だけが、このアルバムで従来のスラップ・ハッピー風なゆるさがあって、後年の決別を予感させる。（小野島）

> Zoom

Henry Cow
"Concerts"
ヘンリー・カウ「コンサーツ」

Caroline●CAD3002[1976]→ロクス・ソルス◎LSI1002～3

ヘンリー・カウ唯一のライヴ盤。ダグマー・クラウゼだけを残してスラップ・ハッピーと袂を分かち、6人組で再スタートした時期の録音で、アナログAB面に彼らの構築性を前面に出した既存曲、CD面にフリー・インプロヴィゼイションを主に収録し、彼らの両面を鮮やかにとらえている。

A面冒頭の既存曲をメドレーにした組曲はBBC放送のためのスタジオ・ライヴだが、彼らの高い演奏力と卓抜とした構成力を示す名演。"Desperate Straights"に収録されていた"Bad Alchemy"ではクラウゼとロバート・ワイアットの歴史的なデュエットが聴ける。メドレー後半はワイアットのソロ曲"Little Red Riding Hood This Road"と、これまたファン泣かせ。

B面最後から始まるインプロヴィゼイション・パートは、ロックが到達しえたもっとも緊迫した、そして密度の濃い磁場である。同工の演奏で、彼らを超えた者はほとんどいないと断言できる。(小野島)

Gong
"You"
ゴング「ユー」

Virgin●V2019[1974]→ビクター◎VICP61174

ゴングを代表する空前のヒッピー・スペース・SFファンタジーハレディオ・ノーム・インヴィジブル(見えない電波の精の物語)Vの完結編となったのが本作。ゴングの最高傑作であるとともに、カンタベリー一派、そしてプログレッシヴ・ロックを代表する傑作でもある。

惑星ゴングからやってきたゴングのメンバーたちと謎の妖精が、地球と惑星ゴングを舞台に繰り広げる物語は、60年代後半、米西海岸の多くのバンドが深く傾倒したセックスとドラッグによる共同体幻想と根本は同じだが、ゴングのようにフリー・ジャズやクラシックの要素を前面に押し出したうえ、アルバム3枚を費やしてひとつの優れた物語に仕上げた例は他にない。バンドの演奏能力も頂点を極め、独自のフワフワ感と隙のない巧みな演奏技術が組み合わさる知的なグルーヴ感が存分に楽しめる。が、バンドの演奏技術の飛躍的な向上に疑問を感じたアレンとスマイスはバンドを去ってしまう。(岡田)

Hugh Hopper
"1984"
ヒュー・ホッパー「1984」

CBS●65466[1973]→アルカンジェロ◎ARC2104

ソフト・マシーンを脱退したヒュー・ホッパーが最初にリリースしたソロ・アルバム。ホッパー脱退後のマシーンは、カール・ジェンキンス(kbd)が次第に実権を握るようになり、75年の"Bundles"では、アラン・ホールズワース(g)などの新メンバーを加えて、クロスオーヴァー色の強いバンドへと生まれ変わった。そして、旧マシーンの音楽性は、このホッパーのソロ・アルバムに受け継がれたのだ。実際このアルバムは、もう一つのソフト・マシーンの作品として聴くこともできると思う。

タイトルは有名なジョージ・オーウェルの近未来小説から取ったものだろうが、とくにコンセプチュアルではなく、マシーンの"Fourth"や"Fifth"に似た、ややフリー・フォーム感覚の強いジャズ・ロックである。ジョン・マーシャル(ds)やロル・コクスヒル(s)らが参加。内容はもちろん充実している。LPよりも、ボーナス・トラックが7曲も入っている日本盤CDのほうがおすすめ。(立川)

> Zoom

アルバム選

Hugh Hopper
"Hopper Tunity Box"
ヒュー・ホッパー『ホッパー・チューニティ・ボックス』

ノルウェイCompendium●FIDARDO7 [1977]→エレジー◎HER013

ヒュー・ホッパーのリーダー・アルバムのなかでも最高傑作であり、カンタベリーという枠を超えた英国ジャズ・ロックの名盤だろう。とくに聴きごたえのあるのはA面の4曲で、ホッパーの吹くリコーダーが不思議なメロディーを奏でるタイトル曲に始まり、キング・クリムズン顔負けのヘヴィな曲が2曲続く。そして最後は"Third"時代のソフト・マシーンの音楽性をしっかり受け継いだジャジーなナンバー。これらA面に比べるとB面がやや物足りないが、それでもオーネット・コールマンのカヴァーなど、聴きどころは少なくない。

演奏しているのは、エルトン・ディーン(s)、マーク・チャリグ(コルネット)、デイヴ・ステュアート(kb)などが参加したやや大所帯のバンド。ソフト・マシーンの"Third"に収められた"Facelift"(ホッパー作)も同様の大編成によるジャズ・ロックの名演だったが、ホッパーは本作でもそうした世界を目指したのかも。

(立川)

Elton Dean
"Elton Dean"
エルトン・ディーン『ジャスト・アス』

CBS●64539 [1971]→アルカンジェロ◎ARC2103

エルトン・ディーン(s)がソフト・マシーン在籍中にリリースした、彼の最初のソロ・アルバム。バックを務めているエルトン・ディーン・グループは、フィル・ハワード(ds)、ネヴィル・ホワイトヘッド(b)、マーク・チャリグ(コルネット)という布陣。後にこのバンドはメンバーを若干変更し、ジャスト・アスという名前に変わるが、本作のCDにはこの新バンドの名称が付けられている。

基本的には、ディーンがリーダー・シップを握っていた時期のソフト・マシーンを連想させるような、フリー・フォームで先鋭的なジャズ。なかでもマイク・ラトリッジ(kb)がゲスト参加した曲は、マシーンの"Third"にかなり似ている。その一方でオーソドックスな4ビートを巧みに取り入れてる部分もあったりするところが、ジャズのメインストリームからも評価を得ているディーンらしい。70年代の英国のジャズがカヴァーしている領域の広さを示しているかのような一枚だ。

(立川)

The Keith Tippett Group
"Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening"
キース・ティペット・グループ『デディケイテッド・トゥ・ユー』

Vertigo●6360 024 [1971]→レパートワー◎MSIF7229

英国ジャズ界において鮮烈なデビューを飾ったキース・ティペット率いるこのグループがさらなるステップへと向かった傑作セカンド・アルバムにしてラスト・アルバム。これは当時の英国現代ジャズ・シーンからのロック・サイドへの意欲的アプローチの先駆的好例の一つを示す作品として、「メロディ・メイカー」等当時のプレスから絶賛されたものだ。

4人編成に加え、ロバート・ワイアット、ゲイリー・ボイル(g／後にアイソトープ)、ロイ・バビントン(b／後にニュークリアス、ソフト・マシーン)らも参加、冒頭のヒップでエネルギー溢れるナンバーからフリー・フォームな前衛曲、コラージュ的アート曲等まで一気に突き進む感覚は素晴らしい。わずか二十代前半にしてキング・クリムズン等へのゲスト参加や強い影響、あるいはほぼ同時期の大編成ジャズ・オーケストラ・シンフォニー集団センティピードの結成等、幅広い活動を実戦化していたティペットの視界の確かさを証明している作品。(石川)

> Zoom

Centipede
"Septober Energy"
センティピード『セプトーバー・エナジー』

Neon●NE9 [1971]→ヴォイスプリント・ジャパン◎VPJ12 9～30

キース・ティペットが2年余の構想を実践化したビッグ・コンボラリー・ジャズ・オーケストラの唯一の作品集で、レコード4面が一つの実験的組曲形式になっている。当初ロバート・ワイアットやアルバムのプロデュースを担当したロバート・フリップ等に呼びかけて70年秋と71年春、フランスやオランダ等で数回ライヴを行なったこのプロジェクトは、71年6月当時のジャズやロック、あるいはブルースや現代音楽畑等から総勢50人余りが集結してスタジオ入りする。集められたのはワイアットやフリップの他、エルトン・ディーン、ジョン・マーシャル、カール・ジェンキンス、イアン・カー、ジュリー・ティペット、マイク・パトゥー、ボズ・バレル、イアン・マクドナルド等、今から見れば幅広い仕々たる人達だ。

ティペット作曲の組曲を即興を交えてシンフォニーに高めていったもので、混沌とした重みと詩的な美しさが同居し、調和と解体が様々な音楽的フィルターを通し提示された意欲的な力作だ。（石川）

Nucleus
"We'll Talk About It Later"

Vertigo●6360 027[1971]

60年代前半からドン・レンデル＝イアン・カー・クインテットという英国の代表的ジャズ・コンボで活躍してきたカー(tp)が、69年秋に新たなスタイルのグループを作るべく結成したのが6人編成のジャズ・ロック・ユニット、ニュークリアスである。そして、それは当時のジャズ界隈の中でロック・サイドに最も積極的に接近したものの一つとして注目を集め、すぐにデビュー作"Elastic Rock"が発表される。

クリス・スペディング(g)、ジョン・マーシャル(ds)、カール・ジェンキンス(オーボエ、kbd)、ブライアン・スミス(s)らデビュー作と同じメンバーで制作されたこの2作目は、よりロックの躍動感を大きく取り入れた、当時のカー曰く"ボディ・ミュージック"の強化作品集だ。また、そこにジャズの先鋭的アドリブやロック的な叙情性が有機的に混然一体化し、開放的なジャズ・ロック・アンサンブル・サウンドをみごとに完成させている。電化マイルスとは一味違う英国流洗練さと知性が特徴的。（石川）

Carol Grimes & Delivery
"Fools Meeting"
キャロル・グライムス&デリヴァリー
『フールズ・ミーティング』

B&C●CAS1023 [1970]→アルカンジェロ◎ARC2115

アレクシス・コーナーに率いられたブリティッシュR&Bシーンで着実に活動してきたデリヴァリーが、元バビロンの女性シンガー、キャロル・グライムズというフロントマンを得て70年11月にリリースした唯一のアルバム。バンドの布陣はグライムズのほか、フィル・ミラー(g)、スティーヴ・ミラー(p)、ロイ・バビントン(b)、ビップ・パイル(ds)にゲストで元メンバーのロル・コクスヒル(s)が加わっている。

イギリス版ジャニス・ジョプリンと評されただけあって、グライムズのヴォーカルはさすがに迫力十分。R&Bをベースにした比較的シンプルな楽曲が並ぶが、ミラー兄弟のメロディアスでジャジーなフレージング、フェンダー6弦ベースで細かく動き回るバビントンのプレイなど、各人のクセのある演奏からはやはりカンタベリー派特有の感覚が染みだしている。ハットフィールド&ザ・ノースへの伏線を準備した意味でも重要なバンドだった。（小山）

> Zoom

Steve Miller & Lol Coxhill
"Coxhill/Miller. Miller/Coxhill."

Caroline●C1503 [1973]

スティーヴ・ミラーとロル・コクスヒルが、LPの片面ずつを分け合うかたちでリーダー・パフォーマンスを収めたデュオ・アルバム。当初はコクスヒルの72年作"Together Again"を出したマッシュルーム・レーベルでリリースされる予定だったが、倒産によりヴァージン傘下のキャロラインから発売された。このレコードのハイライトはリチャード・シンクレア、フィル・ミラー、ビップ・パイルの3人が合流して演奏される2曲だろう。この編成はデリヴァリーの最終型であると同時に、ハットフィールド&ザ・ノースのプロトタイプともいえるものだ。

スティーヴ・ミラーがウーリッツァー・エレクトリック・ピアノの愛らしい音色で奏でる美しいメロディを、後のハットフィールズのリズム・セクションがほぼ即興で色付けしていく展開は息をのむほどスリリング。テープ操作やモーター音をバックにしたコクスヒルの演奏も興味深い。私的"カンタベリー名盤10選"には必ず入る大傑作です。（小山）

Lol Coxhill
"Ear Of The Beholder"

Dandelion●DSD8008 [1971]◆See For Miles●SEECD414

ロル・コクスヒルは1932年生まれ。十代でサックスを学び、50年代からジャズ・クラブで演奏活動を開始している。ルーファス・トーマスやモーズ・アリスンなどのイギリス・ツアーでバッキングを務めたりしながら、62年頃にはすでに現在のスタイルに通じるようなサックスのソロ・インプロヴィゼイションも行なっていた。スティーヴ・ミラーらと結成したデリヴァリーを経て、70年にケヴィン・エアーズのザ・ホール・ワールドに加入する。

本作は71年にダンデライオンから2枚組LPとしてリリースされた初のソロ・アルバム。ソプラノ・サックスの飄々とした即興を中心に、ホール・ワールドのメンバー、デイヴィッド・ベッドフォードとのデュオ、バンド演奏、子供たちと街頭で録音したユーモラスなパフォーマンスなど多彩な内容となっている。エアーズ、ロバート・ワイアットも参加しているが、契約の関係でそれぞれ"Kevin Dee"、"Robert Or Dwich"とクレジット。（小山）

Khan
"Space Shanty"
カーン「宇宙の船乗り」

Deram●SDL11 [1971]◆デラム●UICY9037

スティーヴ・ヒレッジを中心にして、元クレイジー・ワールド・オヴ・アーサー・ブラウンのニック・グリーンウッド(b、vo)と元ドクター・K'ズ・ブルース・バンドのエリック・ピーチー(ds)が脇を固めたカーンの唯一のアルバム。録音にはヒレッジの旧友デイヴ・ステュアートが全面参加、1曲目のアルバム・タイトル曲から鋭いオルガン・プレイを披露している。プロデュースを務めたのはエッグの"The Polite Force"(71年)と同じくニック・スレイヴンで、それも好結果をもたらしたといえるだろう。

ヒレッジとステュアートによるジャジーなインプロヴィゼイションが最大の聴きどころだが、"Grand Sea"をはじめとした牧歌的な雰囲気も兼ねがたく、静と動による叙情的なカンタベリー・タペストリーを織りなしている。収録曲は、1曲の共作を除くすべてがヒレッジの単独作で、宇宙との交信やら仏教的な瞑想感やら、歌詞にはややくもヒレッジ色が濃厚に表われている。（高橋）

> Zoom

Egg
"Egg"
エッグ「エッグ」

Deram Nova●SDN14 [1970]→デラム◎POCD1843

70年に発表されたファースト・アルバム。デビュー・シングル「Seven Is A Jolly Good Time/You Are An Princess」(69年)に続いて発表されたもので、当時のプログレッシヴ・ロックの定番とも言える片面一杯を占める20分強の組曲「交響曲第2番」が、LPのB面に収められていた。この曲はグリーグの「ペールギュント組曲」の中の「山の大王の宮殿にて」(サウンズ・インコーポレイテッド、ザ・フー、ELOなどイギリスのロック・バンドがカヴァーしている曲)や、ストラヴィンスキーの「春の祭典」から「乙女たちの踊り」といった古典を織り込んだ作品で、クラシックとロックの融合という彼らのコンセプトを示した快演を聞くことができる(A面にはバッハをアレンジした曲も)。

また、この組曲のインターリード部にはデイヴ・スチュアートのトーン・ジェネレイターによるインプロヴィゼイションも盛り込まれており、のちにハットフィールズでも使われた彼独特の演奏だ。(赤岩)

Gilgamesh
"Gilgamesh"

Caroline●CA2007 [1975]

75年5月にレコーディングされたギルガメッシュのファースト・アルバム。メンバーはアラン・ゴーウェン(kb)、フィル・リー(g)、マイク・トラヴィス(ds)、直前に加わったジェフ・クライン(b)の4人で、アマンダ・パーソンズ(vo)がゲスト参加している。プロデュースはギルガメッシュとハットフィールド&ザ・ノースのデイヴ・ステュアート。カンタベリー系のアルバムを積極的に出していたヴァージンの傘下レーベル、キャロラインから発表された。

ここでの曲は73年頃からすでに演奏されており、アランがほとんどの曲を作り構成はしっかりしている。特に三つのパートからなる長尺曲3曲はストーリー性があり、想像力をかきたてる。ジャズ指向のアランなのに、かなりロックっぽく聞こえるのは、大きくフィーチャーされているフィルのギターが、まるでロバート・フリップを師としたかのようだからだ。一方、アランのピアノ、シンセ、クラヴィネットの演奏はまさしくジャズ・ロックだ。(山岸)

Quiet Sun
"Mainstream"
クワイエット・サン「メインストリーム」

Island●HELP19 [1975]→ベル・アンティーク◎MARO 1621

ソフト・マシーンに影響を受けた学生たちが結成した、いわばカンタベリー第2世代の代表とも言うべきバンドがクワイエット・サンだった。フィル・マンザネラ(g)、ビル・マコーミック(b)、デイヴ・ジャレット(kbd)、チャールズ・ヘイワード(ds)という、グループ解散後の充実した活動で知られる連中が心血を注ぎ創作していったバンドだが、残念ながら70年代前半ではあまりに活躍の場が少なかった。

残されたこの唯一のアルバムは、マンザネラがソロ・アルバムを作るために再び集まった仲間によって、かつてのナンバーを演奏したものだが、驚かされるのは、その緊迫感に満ちたインプロヴィゼイションと構成力。大ざっぱにジャズ・ロックといえばそうだが、ソフト・マシーンとキング・クリムズン的なものが融合/圧縮された密度に圧倒される場面もしばしば。近年のマンザネラ、ヘイワードの良い仕事&他プロジェクトのサポートぶりなどとともに、忘れず評価しておきたいグループだ。(大鷹)

> Zoom

アルバム選

Daevid Allen Trio
"Live 1963"

Voiceprint◎VP122CD [1993]

運命の糸に導かれてやってきたヒッピー、デイヴィッド・アレンを軸にしたロバート・ワイアット、ヒュー・ホッパーのトリオが残した奇蹟の発掘もの。ドラムス、ベース、ギターをバックにポエトリー・リーディングを展開するアレンというパターンが中心で、いかにも若いリズムがギシギシと軋んでいるが、それがこの意欲が先走ったプロジェクトや試みにはよく合っている。もちろんソフト・マシーンの芽はくっきりとあるし、マシーンはレコードを出すまでが一番面白かったというワイアットの言葉に思わず首肯したくなるようなユーモアとスリルも濃厚だ。（大鷹）

The Wilde Flowers
"The Wilde Flowers"

Voiceprint◎VP123CD [1994]

もう10年近く前になるが、これが発掘リリースされたときにはホントに驚き、感動すら覚えたものだ。65～69年の未発表音源集で、ケヴィン・エアーズ、ロバート・ワイアットらの若々しい歌声、ロックやブルーズ、ジャズが大胆かつ繊細にミックスチャーされていくアンサンブルの妙は、音楽のミューズ誕生の瞬間に立ち会うような気さえしてくる。録音状態にばらつきはあるがまったく気にはならないし、だいたいそんなことすら無関係になる貴重な音源なのだ。ブライアン・ホッパーによる素晴らしいライナーもあって、カンタベリー周辺ファン、必携の一枚。（大鷹）

Soft Machine
"Face And Place Vol. 7/Soft Machine"

(L)BYG◎529 907 [1972]◆Charly◎CD CHARLY188

デイヴィッド・アレン、ケヴィン・エアーズ、マイク・ラトリッジ、ロバート・ワイアットのオリジナル4人の録音が収録された唯一のアルバムで、67年4月のデモ的録音9曲を収録。俗にゴメルスキー音源と呼ばれ、当初はフランスBYG "Rock Generation" シリーズ第7集と第8集の二つに分割されて71年に出たが、すぐ後に本盤で1枚にまとめられた。シングル "Love Makes Sweet Music" 同様にシンプルなサイケデリック風ポップが中心だが、ワイアットの名曲バラード2曲等、聴きどころも多い。うち2曲が3人の各々のソロ作で後に再び取り上げられた。（石川）

Soft Machine
"Fourth"

ソフト・マシーン『4』

CBS◎64280 [1971]◆エピック◎ESCA5417

"Third" で大きな変貌をとげた彼らがよりフリー・ジャズ色を強めたのが70年11月録音の4作目だ。エルトン・ディーンはオリジナル曲も提供、既に他の3人と対等の存在に位置している。即興を軸にラトリッジの歪んだトーンのキーボード類（電気ピアノを多用）とホッパーの空間的広がりを持つベースやディーンのうねりを放つサックスが絡み、ジャズやロックの垣根を越えた独自の整合感を誇るコンテンポラリー音楽を作り出した。ワイアットはドラマーに徹しすぐれた演奏を披露するが、この後脱退。ゲストにキース・ティペット・グループの3人他が参加。（石川）

Soft Machine
"Fifth"

ソフト・マシーン『5th』

CBS◎64806 [1972]◆エピック◎ESCA5418

フリー・ジャズの洗礼を強く受けているディーンのサックスがかなり前面に押し出されている5作目。新ドラマーとしてフィル・ハワード（キース・ティペット・グループ）とジョン・マーシャル（キース・ティペット・グループ、ニュークリアス）が順に加入し、片面ずつを担当している。彼らの作品中最もジャズに接近したもので、マイルス・デイヴィスの "Miles In The Sky" あたりに近い印象もあるが、その完成度は高い。ディーンのサックスがメインに立ちながらも、総合的な統一感を生み出しているのはあくまでラトリッジとホッパー組である。（石川）

> Zoom

Soft Machine
"Six"

ソフト・マシーン「6th」

CBS●68214 [1973] ◆エピック ●ESCA5536

自己のリーダー・グループやソロ活動に従事するためにエルトン・ディーンが脱退し、新メンバーとしてニュークリアスのオーボエ奏者カール・ジェンキンスが加入して制作された6作目。ジェンキンスはニュークリアス時代にも多くの作曲を手掛けていた才人で、ここでもラトリッジと共に新たな表情を見せるこのグループの中心的存在として大活躍している。AB面が72年秋の英国ライヴ音源から編集の11曲、CD面がスタジオ作4曲からなる2枚組で、ミニマル・ミュージックの独自の解釈を多用した浮遊感と躍動感が新たな魅力を作り出している秀作だ。（石川）

Soft Machine
"Bundles"

Harvest●SHSP4044 [1975] ◆ See For Miles●SEECD283

"Seven"発表直後の73年11月にアラン・ホールズワース（g／元ニュークリアス、テンペスト）を迎え入れて5人組となった彼らがEMIハーヴェストに移籍して発表した8作目。グループの歴史上、最も大きな変容をとげたアルバムと言ってよく、大まかに表現すれば、それまでのジャズ・ロックからフュージョン的なサウンドに変わってしまっている。リフが明確になり、楽曲構造が技巧的に様式化し始めたためか、独特の浮遊感が個性だった彼ら流のジャズ・ロックはほとんど消えていく。"Hazed Profile Part 1"は ニュークリアスの曲のリフ引用である。（石川）

Soft Machine
"Softs"

Harvest●SHSP4056 [1976] ◆ See For Miles●SEECD285

アラン・ホールズワース（ゴングへ移籍）と唯一のオリジナル・メンバーだったマイク・ラトリッジが脱退し、新ギタリストにジョン・エサリッジ（元ダリル・ウェイ&ウルフ）、新サックス奏者にアラン・ウェイクマン（元グレアム・コーリアー・グループ）を迎えて発表された9作目。ジェンキンスはキーボード類担当に専念し、ラトリッジなき後の新体制で立て直しをはかろうと作曲面でもそのほとんどを手掛け、叙情的なものと劇的なものとのバランスを巧く取っている。静動の幅を持つエサリッジのギターも生かされ質の高いフュージョン作に仕上がった。（石川）

Soft Machine
"Alive & Well Recorded In Paris"

Harvest●SHSP4083 [1978] ◆ See For Miles●SEECD290

"Seven"から正式参加していたベーシストのロイ・バビントン（キース・ティペット・グループ、ニュークリアス）とアラン・ウェイクマンが脱退し、新ベーシストにスティーヴ・クック（元ギルガメッシュ）と新ヴァイオリニストにリック・サンダース（セカンド・ヴィジョン）を迎えた10作目。デビュー10周年記念のツアーのパリ公演（77年7月）のライヴから編集された作品で、この後バンドは解体する。ライヴ・フュージョン・バンドとしての技巧性は確かだが、中軸ジェンキンスのアイディア先行のみの部分も目につき、中途半端に終わってしまった作品。（石川）

2nd Vision
"First Steps"

セカンド・ヴィジョン「ファースト・ステップス」

Chrysalis●CHR1289 [1980] ◆ ヴォイスプリント・ジャパン●VPJ 162

76～77年にソフト・マシーンを支えたソリスト二人が78～80年に結成していた極上のフュージョン・バンド。元ウルフのギタリスト、ジョン・エサリッジとトラッド系ヴァイオリニスト、リック・サンダースの相性は抜群で、ソフト・マシーンでの緊迫感のあるプレイとは一味違うゆとりすら感じられる。他のメンバーも実力者揃い。彼らの唯一のアルバムである本盤が名作と言われていないのは時代との巡り合わせの悪さ以外の何ものでもなかったと思う。長らく入手困難だったが、00年にやっとCD化。3月にリックはフェアポート・コンヴェンションで再来日の予定。（坂本）

アルバム選

Caravan
"Caravan"

キャラヴァン「キャラヴァン」

Verve●VLP/SVLP6011 [1968] ◆ヴィヴィド◎VSCD1357

シングル化された"Place Of My Own"やボサノヴァ調の"Love Song With Flute"、哀感たっぷりな"Magic Man"など、なかなかポップでメロディアスな曲が揃ったデビュー盤。だが、演奏はもうひとつ引き締まったところがなく、アイディアを消化し切れていない印象がある。ちょっとサイケでフォーキーな感覚は、意外とジェネシスのデビュー盤に近い気もする。ヴォーカルもまだ弱く、"歌手がダメだ"とクリス・ブラックウェルにアイランド入りを蹴られたという話も頷ける。ただし、デイヴ・シンクレアは随所で光るプレイを聴かせ、充分に才気をみせる。（高橋）

Caravan
"If I Could Do It All Over Again, I'd Do It All Over You"

キャラヴァン「キャラヴァン登場+4」

Decca●SKL5052 [1970] ◆デラム◎UICY9065

レーベルを移籍してのセカンドでキャラヴァンは大きな成長を遂げた。まず、聴きどころになるのがアルバム・タイトル・ナンバー。たった3分ほどの曲だが、だからこそ逆に、この変拍子バシバシの曲をポップにまとめた手腕が光る。ファーストに比べると演奏に核が感じられ、ヴォーカルやハーモニーも引き締まっている。アグレッシヴな"As I Feel I Die"も良いが、アルバムのハイライトとなるのは代表曲"For Richard"。フルートとサックスにジミー・ヘイスティングスを迎え、オルガンやベースと絡み合いながら、幽玄の世界が劇的に展開される。（高橋）

Caravan
"Waterloo Lily"

キャラヴァン「ウォーター・ルー・リリー+3」

Deram●SDL8 [1972] ◆デラム◎UICY9059

キーボード奏者がデイヴ・シンクレアからスティーヴ・ミラーに替わったことで、バンドのアンサンブルにも変化がみられる第4作目だ。リチャード・シンクレアのベースが一定のリズムをキープしながら演奏の屋台骨をなす場面が増し、リズムの粘りが一段と強くなっている。ジャズ・ロックというよりも、もろにジャズっぽい熱気を持つ演奏が多いのだ。ロル・コクスヒルとフィル・ミラーが参加した"Nothing At All"や、ストリングスを配した"The Love In Your Eye"が新たな魅力を感じさせ、特に後者では、パイのギターと歌も大きな存在感をみせる。（高橋）

Caravan
"Cunning Stunts"

キャラヴァン「ロッキン・コンチェルト+3」

Deram●SKL-R5210 [1975] ◆デラム◎UICY9067

ベースがジョン・G・ペリーから元カーヴド・エアのマイク・ウェッジウッドに替わり、彼が力強いヴォーカルを披露する曲も多い。"Welcome The Day"はパーカッションも活躍するファンキーな曲調で、バラードの"Lover"を含め、確かにアメリカ受けしそうな曲がここには数多く収録されている。しかし、繊細にはじまり、弦楽器が活躍する18分の大作"The Dabsong Conshirtoe"でもデイヴ・シンクレアのキーボードは控え目、ブラス・アレンジには米国指向が強く出て、なにか、どっちつかずに感じるのもまた確かだ。ヒプノシスによるジャケットは秀逸。（高橋）

John G. Perry
"Sunset Wading"

ジョン・G・ペリー「サンセット・ウェディング」

Decca●SKL5233[1976]◆ヴォイスプリント・ジャパン◎VPJ107

キャラヴァン、そしてカーヴド・エアのベーシストのジョン・G・ペリーが76年にルパート・ハインのプロデュースで制作したアルバム。バックにはマイケル・ジャイルズ、モーリス・パート、ロジャー・グローヴァーらとともに、イタリア人のコッラード・ルスティーチとエリオ・ダンナのノヴァやサイモン・ジェフスらペンギン・カフェ・オーケストラのメンバーが加わった。湖のある風景の夜明けから日没までを、シンフォニックなものからロックやジャズといった様々なテイストを持つ長短14曲を繋ぎ、水の音やニワトリの声を入れて描いた絵画的な音楽だ。（山岸）

> Zoom

Camel
"Breathless"

キャメル「ブレスレス」

Decca ● TXS-R132 [1978] ◆ デラム ◎ POCD1827

78年9月発表の8作目。前スタジオ作"Rain Dances"の録音途中に加入したリチャード・シンクレア(vo、b)が本格的に参加した作品だが、これを最後にピーター・バーデンス(kbd／先日亡くなった)、ツアー後にシンクレアとメル・コリンズ(s)が相次いで脱退(シンクレアは7作目のライヴにも一部参加)。キャメルにはシンクレアに続いて元キャラヴァンのヤン・シェラース(kbd)やデイヴ・シンクレア(kbd)が加入、カンタベリー派との関係を深めた。本作での、タイトル曲や自作"Down On The Farm"など4曲でフィーチャーされるシンクレアのあの歌声は絶品だ。(赤岩)

Matching Mole
"Matching Mole's Little Red Record"

CBS ● 65260[1972] ◇ オランダ Sony ◎ 4714882

デイヴ・シンクレアが抜け、前作ではゲスト扱いだったデイヴ・マクレエ(kbd)が正式メンバーとなった4人組は、欧州でしばしばライヴをこなしながら本作をリリースする。バンドとしての2枚目のアルバムとなる本盤は、キング・クリムゾンのロバート・フリップ(g)をプロデューサーに迎えて制作された。全9曲のうちワイアットが手がけた曲は全くなく、マクレエやフィル・ミラーら他のメンバーがほぼ均等に曲作りを担当している。フリップがプロデュースしているわりには実験的色彩は薄い。このあとバンドは事実上、活動停止状態に入ってしまう。(岡田)

Robert Wyatt
"Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard"

ロバート・ワイアット「ルース・イズ・ストレンジャー・ザン・リチャード」

Virgin ● V2034 [1975] ◆ ライコディスク ◎ VACK1226

前作"Rock Bottom"から約1年後にリリースされたソロ3作目。プロデュースは前作と同じくピンク・フロイドのニック・メイスンが担当しているが、ワイアット自身がすべての曲づくりを手がけた前作とは違い、本盤にはフィル・マンザネラやフレッド・フリスといった多彩なゲストが曲作りに参加していることもあってか、ややリラックスしたムードの作風に。彼の歌声にも余裕が感じられる。冒頭の"Soup Song"のように飄々としてユーモアに満ちた楽曲をはじめ、フリスとのコラボレーションなどが聞きどころだが、前作に比べるとややまとまりに欠ける印象も。(岡田)

Ivor Cutler
"Velvet Donkey"

Virgin ● V2037 [1975]

1923年生まれのカトラーは英空軍を除隊後、教師として働く傍ら59年からBBCラジオで番組を持ち、自作の童話などを読み上げていた。61年にデッカからレコード・デビュー、ジョン・ピールと親交を持った60年代後半からは多くのラジオ・ショウで活躍するようになる。カンタベリー・ファンに印象的だったのは、ロバート・ワイアットが落下事故から復帰した"Rock Bottom"でカトラーが披露した朗読だろう。本作は75年にリリースされた通算4枚目のアルバム。フレッド・フリスのヴィオラが牧歌的に響くなか、ユーモラスなファンタジーが語られていく。(小山)

Kevin Ayers
"Whatevershebringswesing"

ケヴィン・エアーズ「ホワットエヴァーシーブリングスウェシング」

Harvest ● SHVL800 [1972] ◆ BGO ◎ MSIF7212

72年1月発表の3作目。バックには第2期ホール・ワールドやロバート・ワイアット(vo)、ゴングのディディエ・マレーブ(s)らが参加。バンド的アプローチが取られた前作と違い、名義通りにソロ作といった色が濃い。前衛的な手法も取られた前作とは違い、デビュー・アルバムの雰囲気に戻ったような牧歌的要素も聞かせるポップ作となった。ベッドフォードのカラフルなオーケストレーションを再び起用、1曲目のメドレーはピンク・フロイド"Atom Heart Mother"を思わせる開放的な弦楽が美しい。ルー・リードっぽい"Stranger In Blue Suede Shoes"も代表曲。(赤岩)

> Zoom

アルバム選

Kevin Ayers
"The Confessions Of Dr. Dream And Other Stories"

ケヴィン・エアーズ「コンフェッションズ・オブ・ドクター・ドリーム」

Island●ILPS9263 [1974]◆BGO@MSiF7213

74年5月発表の5作目で、アイランド・レコードに移籍しての最初の作品。エルトン・ジョンと同じマネージャー（ジョン・リード）のもとに（イーンも担当）の下に移り、アイランド側もヘッドA&Rのリチャード・ウイリアムスの戦略で、ニコやジョン・ケイル、イーノなどを結集し、アート／モダン・ロック的アプローチを図ろうとしていた。そんな状況下で制作された本盤は、ルパート・ハインをプロデューサーに起用し、多数のセッション・ミュージシャンをバックに録音されている。18分にわたるタイトル組曲（ニコ参加）はアヴァンギャルドなプログレ作。（赤岩）

Kevin Ayers
"June 1, 1974"

ケヴィン・エアーズ、ジョン・ケイル、イーノ、ニコ「JUNE 1, 1974」

Island●ILPS9291[1974]◆アイランド◎PHCR4854

前作 "The Confessions..." の発表に合わせたUKツアー初日のギグにニコを招いたエアーズだったが、ニコがジョン・ケイルも誘い、ケイルがブライアン・イーノを誘うということになった。こうした状況を見ていたエアーズもロバート・ワイアットやマイク・オールドフィールドといった旧友に声をかけ、この歴史的な競演が実現した。前半部（LPのA面）はイーノ、ケイル、ニコの各パート、後半部にエアーズを収録したライヴ作で、バックのソポリフィクス（オリー・ハルソール&他）とワイアットらを交えての貴重な演奏が聞ける。（赤岩）

David Bedford
"Nurses Song With Elephant"

Dandelion●2310 165 [1972]

ベッドフォードは1937年生まれ、ロイヤル・アカデミー・オブ・ミュージックで学んだ。シェーンベルクに大きな影響を受け、またルイジ・ノーノに師事し、60年代初めから現代音楽家として作曲活動を開始している。本作はケヴィン・エアーズのホール・ウールドに参加後の72年に発表した初ソロ・アルバム。管弦楽オーケストラ、フリーキーなギターの集団演奏、テープ操作などが交錯する内容はアヴァンギャルドだがユーモラス。マイク・オールドフィールドがベースで一曲参加しているほか、エアーズのほのぼのとした歌もエンディングでフィーチャーされた。（小山）

Mike Oldfield
"Tubular Bells"

Virgin●V2001 [1973] ©Virgin ◎7243 8 49388 2 6

ヴァージン・レーベルの第一弾として73年5月に発売されたマイク・オールドフィールドのデビュー作で超有名盤。映画「エクソシスト」に使われたことでも知られている。発売時マイクはちょうど20歳で、17歳の頃すでに構想を練っていたというから早熟の天才だ。ケヴィン・エアーズのホール・ワールドでの経験が大きい。姉サリーらの参加はあるものの基本的にはギター、ベース、キーボード、パーカッションそれにチューブラー・ベルズをひとりで演奏し多重録音した画期的なアルバム。根幹にフォーク、トラッドがあり、ケルトの血が脈々と流れている。（山岸）

Lady June
"Lady June's Linguistic Leprosy"

Caroline●C1509 [1974]

パフォーマーで、画家で、詩人でもあったレディー・ジューンが、ケヴィン・エアーズのプロデュースとブライアン・イーノらのバックで制作し、74年に発表した作品。ロシアとスコットランドのハーフとして31年に生まれた彼女は、エアーズより20歳も歳上だったが、60年代初めにマジョルカ島でのボヘミアン生活時代に知り合い、60年代末にジューンがロンドンで住んでいたフラットはカンタベリー系人脈の溜まり場だった（ワイアットの転落事故現場はここ）。キャバレー・ショー的なパフォーマンスでも知られた彼女の歌と語りで綴った異形のポップ作。（赤岩）

> Zoom

National Health
"Of Queues And Cures"

Charly●CRL5010 [1978]●仏
Spalax◎CD14830

ナショナル・ヘルスの2作目は、実質的にはデイヴ・ステュアート(ds)のソロといった内容のアルバムだ。彼が同時期に全面的に関わっていたビル・ブルフォードのアルバムに、とても音が似ている。ステュアートは緊張感のある緻密なアレンジを得意としているが、本作にもそんな彼の特徴が良くも悪くも如実に表れているようだ。スリリングな雰囲気と濃密さという点ではカンタベリー系の同類の作品のなかでもいちばんだが、ちょっと息が詰まるようだと感じる人もいるだろう。ここにユーモアや風通しの良さが加われば、名作になったこと間違いなし。（立川）

Slapp Happy
"Sort Of"

スラップ・ハッピー『ソート・オブ』

Polydor●2310 204[1972]◆ヴォイスプリント・ジャパン◎VPJ1 25

そのあまりの前衛志向に業を煮やしたレコード会社から、ポップ・バンドを作るよう要請されたアンソニー・ムーアは、旧知のピーター・ブレグヴァドとスラップ・ハッピーを結成した。つまり前衛とポップ、ノイズとメロディ、実験性とコマーシャリズムの止揚がこのバンドが宿命的に背負ったテーマだった。そしてそれがこのファースト・アルバムではやくも完璧に近い形で実現していることに驚く。ファウストとの共同生活のドラッグ漬けの毎日から生まれ育まれた、毒とユーモア、実験と遊び心。それでいて優雅で気品のあるたたずまい。素晴らしすぎる。（小野島）

Slapp Happy
"Slapp Happy"

スラップ・ハッピー『カサブランカ・ムーン／デスプリット・ストレイツ』

Virgin●V2014 [1974]◆ロクス・ソルス◎LSI2041

ファーストとほとんど同じ態勢で制作・完成しながらレコード会社から発売を拒否され、移籍先のヴァージンでリテイクの末ようやく発売にこぎつけたいわくつきの作品。本作は、グレアム・ブレスケットのヴァイオリンが大幅にフィーチャーされた名曲"Casablanca Moon"をはじめ、どれもアレンジがきっちりとなされ曲の輪郭が明瞭になり、より完成されている。ファーストに比べ、ファウスト周辺のヒッピー的なライフ・スタイルの枠から飛び出して世界を広げていった彼らの成長がより明確になった、ポツ版セカンド。"Nowhere Room"。同様の名盤。（小野島）

Henry Cow
"The Legend"

ヘンリー・カウ『レッグ・エンド／レジェンド』

Virgin●V2005 [1973]◆ロクス・ソルス◎LSI2035

まさに"伝説"の第一作。ジャズ・ロックからスタートして、やがてそこにはとどまらない流動的かつ意志的な運動体として組織されていった彼らの出発点（というには、あまりに完成されているが）がここにある。高度に構築された緻密なアレンジ・ワークと、奔放なインプロヴィゼイションがシームレスに連続展開し、複雑で変化に富んだ音世界を形作っている。発表以来30年近くもたつ本作は、いまだ古びることなく輝き続けている。気まぐれな時の流れから隔絶し、唯一無二の境地を確立した彼らの音楽には、まるで修行僧のような厳しさが漂う。（小野島）

Henry Cow
"Unrest"

ヘンリー・カウ『アンレスト』

Virgin●V2011 [1974]◆ロクス・ソルス◎LSI2038

ジェフ・リー(s、fl)が脱退、女性バスーン奏者リンジー・クーパーが加入しての第2作。初期ヘンリー・カウの最高傑作と言える。精密なコンポジションと高度なインプロヴィゼイションの止揚というテーマは、ここに至ってきわめて洗練された形で完成された。スタジオでのフリー・インプロヴィゼイションを整理し再構成したB面の流れがそれで、見事なアンサンブルを展開する。後に日本のアヴァンギャルド・グループの名にも流用された"Ptah"などA面の楽曲の大胆かつ緻密な構成も素晴らしい。バスーン、オーボエなどを中心としたアンサンブルも新鮮だ。（小野島）

> Zoom

Henry Cow/Slapp Happy
"In Praise Of Learning"

ヘンリー・カウ『イン・プレイズ・オブ・ラーニング』

Virgin●V2027 [1975] ➡ロクス・ソルス◎LSI2040

一応共作となっているが、スリーヴの〝靴下〟が示すように、実質的にはヘンリー・カウの作品にダグマー・クラウゼが参加したアルバムだ。1曲目の〝ゼア、こそムーア／ブレグヴァド作で、ブレグヴァドの朴訥なヴォーカルにわずかにスラップ・ハッピーの面影を感じるが、残りは精密な構築とフリー・インプロヴィゼイションによる緊張度の高いヘンリー・カウの世界。シリアスでヘヴィ、かつアグレッシヴだ。クラウゼのヴォーカルもそれまでになく張りつめた緊迫を伝える。寓話性の強い言葉の中に強い意志とメッセージをこめた歌詞も鋭い。（小野島）

Art Bears
"Winter Songs"

Recommended●RE0618[1979] ⇔同◎ReR &bCD1

のっけから凄い緊張感が漂う。ダグマー・クラウゼの鋭い刃物のようなヴォーカルと、いっそう贅肉がはぎとられ骨組だけになった演奏が、ギリギリの崖っ淵を歩くような張りつめた空気を切り裂くように、めくるめく展開していく。パンク／ニュー・ウェイヴの性急な革新で旧来のロックがことごとく精彩を失っていた79年においても、これは際だった光を放っていたはずだ。長大なインプロヴィゼイションや大作主義はやめ、コンパクトな演奏と歌で、寓意性に富んだ歌詞の世界を完璧に表現した本作は、彼らのキャリアの頂点に位置する、あまりに凄すぎる傑作。（小野島）

Gong
"Magick Brother"

仏BYG●529 305 [1969]

記念すべきゴングのデビュー・アルバム。デイヴィッド・アレンとジリ・スマイスを中心とした計9人編成のバンドが奏でるサウンドは、冒頭のタイトル曲に代表されるようにサイケでアシッドなジャズ・フォークといった趣で、壮大でスペイシーなプログレ色は薄い。とはいえ、そのサウンドは当時の英米のバンドとは一線を画すおしゃれで奇妙な雰囲気に溢れている。ジャズの要素はもちろん、タブラを使ったインド風の味つけやオリエンタル指向のサウンドも聞かれ、後のゴング路線の萌芽も感じられる佳作だが、まだ各要素が未消化な印象も受ける…。（岡田）

Gong
"Camembert Electrique"

ゴング『キャマンベール・エレクトリック』

仏BYG●529 323 [1971] ➡ベル・アンティーク◎MAR96242

前作〝Magick Brother〟の音楽性を踏襲しながらも、めざましい進歩を遂げた2作目。後にハットフィールド&ザ・ノースで活躍する名ドラマー、ピップ・パイルを中心とした凄腕リズム隊のシャープでタイトな演奏と、アレン&スマイスのほのぼのヒッピー・コンビが繰り出す能天気でひょうきんなサウンドという持ち味が見事に一体化。唯一無二のゴング・ワールドが姿を現わした。本作の最大の特徴は、ゴングの代名詞ともいえるハラジオ・ノーム・インヴィジブルV3部作の原型や要素がバランス良く盛り込まれている点だろう。ゴングの初期を代表する大傑作だ。（岡田）

Gong
"Flying Teapot"

ゴング『フライング・ティーポット』

仏BYG●529 027[1973]◆ビクター◎VICP61172

バンドとしては3作目のアルバムで、ゴング・ワールドを象徴する物語ハラジオ・ノーム・インヴィジブルV3部作の始まりとなる重要作。バンドは71年冬、イギリス・ツアーを行なって英国のロック・ファンにもその存在を強くアピールしたこともあってか、本作は英ヴァージン・レコードからもリリースされた。本作では各楽曲の構成や物語の進め方、そして各メンバーの演奏能力などすべてに無駄がなく、バンドがその持ち味を最良の形で提示することに成功している。特に本作からバンドに加わった名ギタリスト、スティーヴ・ヒレッジの演奏が見事だ。（岡田）

> Zoom

Gong
"Shamal"

Virgin●V2046 [1976] ◆米
Caroline●CAROL1663-2

バンドを象徴する存在だったアレンとスマイスがバンドを離れ、スティーヴ・ヒレッジ(g)らもゲスト扱いとなったため、従来とは異なる新たなサウンドづくりがなされている。ジャズやインド音楽、東洋指向の要素は従来通りだが、バンドはイエスのようなポップ感覚やジャズ・ロック指向を深めていく。ゴングの持ち味だったファンタジックで牧歌的、かつ飄々とした良い意味でのいい加減さや、独特のスペイシーなサウンドは本作でほぼ皆無となった。しかし各楽曲の質は極めて高く、プログレッシヴ・ロックを代表する傑作のひとつには違いない。(岡田)

Gong
"Gazeuse!"

Virgin●V2074 [1977] ◆米
Caroline●CAROL1660-2

本作ではとうとう、スティーヴ・ヒレッジの名前がクレジットから完全に消えてしまったうえ、マイク・ハウレット(vo)まで脱退し、ゴングは全く新しいバンドに生まれ変わった。メンバー・チェンジでピエール・ムーラン(ds、パーカッション)を含む計3人がパーカッションを担当。カラフルで分厚く、力強いリズムに乗せ、新たにバンドに加わったプログレ界最強のハイテク・ギタリスト、アラン・ホールズワースがシャープな演奏を披露する。全7曲、すべてインストゥルメンタル・ナンバーで、フュージョン色の強いジャズ・ロックに仕上がっている。(岡田)

Hopper/Dean/Tippett/Gallivan
"Cruel But Fair"

ノルウェイCompendium ● FIDA RD4 [1976]

米国人ドラマーのジョー・ギャリヴァンが英国のジャズ・プレイヤーと組んで制作したシリーズのなかの一枚。即興性の強いジャズ・アルバムで、ギャリヴァンはドラムよりもシンセを多くプレイしているが、これはあまりいただけない。ホッパー(b)は触媒的役割に徹している感じ。頑張っているのはエルトン・ディーン(s)とキース・ティペット(p)の二人だろうか。とくに、ティペットのリリカルで静謐なピアノに乗せてディーンが透明感あふれるサックスを吹く"Chaos"は絶品だ。このアルバムを機にホッパーとディーンの共同作業が増える。(立川)

Elton Dean's Ninesense
"Happy Daze"

Ogun●OG910 [1977]

エルトン・ディーンのリーダー・アルバムのなかで、個人的に最も好きな作品がこれだ。77年のブラックネル・ジャズ・フェスティヴァルのために作られたアルバムだが、他のディーンの作品にあるようなフリー・フォーム的サウンドではなく、キース・ティペット(p)と複数の管楽器奏者を中心に展開される、計算されたジャズが聴ける。初期のキース・ティペット・グループの作品を連想させる"Zero"が絶品。その一方で、軽快にスウィングする"Green For Lee"のほどほどに保守的な感じがまた良い。実験性と娯楽性とが見事に共存した良作である。(立川)

Hopper/Dean/Gowen/Sheen (Soft Head)
"Rogue Element"

ソフト・ヘッド『ローグ・エレメント+2』

Ogun●OG527 [1978] ◆アルカンジェロ●ARC1028

78年の初頭から夏頃まで、ヒュー・ホッパー(b)、エルトン・ディーン(s)、アラン・ゴーウェン(kbd)、デイヴ・シーン(ds)の4人は、自分たちの名前の頭文字H・E・A・Dをとってソフト・ヘッドと称するバンドを結成していた。本作は、4人の連名でリリースされた、そのバンドのライヴ盤。バンド名の示すとおり、ソフト・マシーンの音楽性を継承しようという意志があるようだ。演奏レヴェルは非常に高く、かなりテクニカルなプレイをさりげなく演奏している。ただ、ソフト・マシーン的なジャズ・ロックの枠組みに収まってしまっているのが残念だ。(立川)

> Zoom

アルバム選

Soft Heap
"Soft Heap"

Charly●CRL5014 [1979]

ソフト・ヘッドのデイヴ・シーン(ds)がピップ・パイル(ds)に交替して生まれたバンドがこれ。H・E・A・DのDがPにかわったわけだ。基本的な音楽性は変化していないが、ソフト・ヘッドのアルバムに比べると、スタジオ録音になった分、丁寧に作られているという印象を受ける。アラン・ゴーウェンのキーボードは良くいえば繊細、悪くいえば押しが弱く、そのあたりが評価の分かれ目になりそうだ。なお本作発表後にベースがジョン・グリーヴズに交替したが、そのときにはバンドの名称はそのまま。新メンバーでツアーを行なった後、バンドは自然消滅した。(立川)

The Keith Tippett Group
"You Are Here... I Am There"

キース・ティペット・グループ『ユー・アー・ヒア・アイ・アム・ゼア』

Polydor●2384 004[1970]◆ベル・アンティーク●MAR00556

幼少時から専門教育を受け、バリ・サマー・スクールのジャズ・コースを主席で卒業した天才的新星ピアニストのティペットがこの時期の気鋭現代ジャズ系プレイヤー達、エルトン・ディーン(s)やマーク・チャリグ(コルネット)、ニック・エヴァンス(tb)らと結成した最初のグループのデビュー作で、制作にはジョルジオ・ゴメルスキーやエディ・オフォードが関わっている。全体構造は当時の英国現代ジャズ的なものだが、過去のジャズ解体や再構築から導き出されてくるダイナミズムや繊細さが若々しいエネルギーの集合の元でにじみ出ている様は新鮮で瑞々しい。(石川)

Ovary Lodge
"Ovary Lodge"

RCA●SF8372 [1973]

一カ所に留まることないティペットの意欲はキング・クリムズンの3作品への参加経験も経て、72年のソロ名義作"Blueprint"での即興的演奏の深化へと向かう。そこでバートナーの一員となったのが実験的即興打楽器奏者のフランク・ベリーだ。ベースのロイ・バビントンとのトリオ編成で制作されたこのオヴァリー・ロッジ名義の初作品はまたもロバート・フリップがプロデュースし、相互のその後に影響も与えた重要作の一つだ。即興的演奏の可能性を突きつめ、無限に広がっていく音の小宇宙的空間を作り上げていくという探求心と実験は素晴らしく美しい。(石川)

Ian Carr
"Belladonna"

Vertigo●6360 076 [1972]

ソロ名義だが、実質的にはニュークリアスの4作目のアルバムで、メンバーがかなり入れかわった第2期の最初の作品。クリス・スペディングやカール・ジェンキンス、ジョン・マーシャルら主要メンバーが脱け、アラン・ホールズワース(g)、ロイ・バビントン(b)、デイヴ・マクレエ(kbd)、ゴードン・ベック(kbd)らが加入し、プロデュースをジョン・ハイズマン(コロシアム)が担当している。ホールズワースの流れるようなギターやマクレーの空間的電気ピアノを生かした叙情性とややファンキーなリズム感覚とが同居したジャズ・フュージョン的志向の始まり。(石川)

Nucleus
"Alleycat"

Vertigo●6360 124 [1975]

7作目"Under The Sun"から再び大幅なメンバー・チェンジがあり、次作"Snakestone"(75年)とこの9作目あたりでは、共にプロデュースのジョン・ハイズマンとイアン・カー自身の当時の志向が強く反映されたのか、よりファンキーでリズミックなジャズ・フュージョン色が強調されたものになっていく。ジャケットやタイトルからしてこの2作はそれを直接象徴している派手なもので、ケン・ショウのファンキーなギターにカーやボブ・バートルズの躍動する管類等が絡み演奏の質は高い。2作とも若きスティーヴ・リリーホワイトがエンジニア担当。(石川)

> Zoom

アルバム選

Arzachel
"Arzachel"

Evolution●Z1003 [1969]

アーザッケルはエッグの前身バンド、ユリエルの変名バンドだ。ユリエルはエッグの3人に、ギターとヴォーカルのスティーヴ・ヒレッジを加えた4人編成だった。既にエッグが始動しているにも関わらず、アルバム制作者の依頼でユリエルを再編してサイケデリック・ブルース・ロックを演奏したため匿名としたらしいが、ユリエルはほかにアルバムを残しておらず、この音楽の価値は極めて高い。各メンバーの演奏はまさに彼らならではの輝きを持っていて、聴き応え充分。とりわけデイヴ・ステュアートのオルガンは申し分なくファンを魅了するだろう。（坂本）

Egg
"The Polite Force"

エッグ「優雅な軍隊」

Decca●SML1074[1971]◆デラム◎POCD1844

71年1月にリリースされた2作目のアルバム。前作の"四角"同様、LPのB面全部を使った20分強の組曲「小品第3番」が収録されている。バッハを引用した"四角"という曲がA面に収録されているが、今作では古典からの引用は少なく、フリー・フォームなジャムをまとめたようなアナーキーな演奏が表に出ている。「小品第3番」ではその特色が表われた3人のインタープレイが聞きどころだ。一方で、モント・キャンベルがアレンジした、ブラス隊を導入した不思議な変拍子の曲（8分の5拍子と8分の9拍子が交互に）のような実験作も聞ける。（赤岩）

Egg
"The Civil Surface"

Caroline●C1510 [1974]

約3年ぶりの74年に発表された3作目。当時、ハットフィールド&ザ・ノースが成功し、各メンバーのソロ作制作を打診したレコード会社の企画に乗り、ステュアートがエッグの再結成新録を呼びかけ録音されたプロジェクト作。オリジナル・メンバー3人に加え、ユリエル時代の仲間スティーヴ・ヒレッジ(g)やヘンリー・カウのリンジー・クーパー(オーボエ他)とティム・ホジキンスン(cl)、ノーセッツ(vo)ら多彩なゲストも参加。以前にライヴで演奏していた曲から、大学でフレンチ・ホルンを学んだキャンベルによる管楽四重奏まで、多様性に富んだ音楽を展開。（赤岩）

Gilgamesh
"Another Fine Tune You've Got Me Into"

Charly●CRL5009 [1978]◇仏 Spalax◎CD14838

78年6月に本作のために再結成したギルガメッシュのセカンド・アルバム。メンバーはアラン(kb)、フィル(g)、ヒュー・ホッパー(b)、トレヴァー・トムキンス(ds)で、ヒューとトレヴァーはギルガメッシュに過去在籍したことはない。派手さはないが、いかにも職人的な4人の音楽性がうまくマッチした音で、静かななかに醸めた熱気を感じる。アランのキーボードは感性のまま自在に展開し、フィルのギターは何色もの音を聞かせ、トレヴァーにはドラム・ソロが用意されていたり、ヒューのベースも結構自由に泳いでいるようで、4人のセッション風の絡みが面白い。（山岸）

801
"Live"

Island●ILPS9444 [1976]◇Expression◎EXVP16CD

ロキシー・ミュージックのフィル・マンザネラ(g)の実験的プロジェクト。76年9月3日、クイーン・エリザベス・ホールでのライヴで、彼が69年にソフト・マシーンの影響を受けて結成したクワイエット・サンでの仲間、ビル・マコーミック(b)やロキシーで一緒のイーノ(kb)、他にフランシス・モンクマン(kb)、サイモン・フィリップス(ds)、ロイド・ワトスン(g)という実力者を集め、クワイエット・サンのアルバムから2曲、イーノの3曲、巧みにアレンジされたビートルズやキンクスのカヴァーが聞ける。ライヴにも拘らず一分の隙もない超絶な演奏力は見事だ。（山岸）

> Zoom

This Heat
"This Heat"

Piano●THIS1 [1979]

少なくとも僕にとってこの一枚がなかったらカンタベリー・シーンの70年代半ば以降の評価はずいぶん違っていた。クワイエット・サン解散後のチャールズ・ヘイワード(ds)を中心にチャールズ・バレン(g)、ガレス・ウィリアムズ(kbd)によるトリオが作り出した音塊は強固な世界を構築し、発表後四半世紀が過ぎてもなお、いささかも古びていない。即興演奏、その徹底した分析と再構築、さらに即興を積み重ねたものながら、まったく肉体感は失われず、さらにヘイワードの紡ぐメロディ感覚には、やはりカンタベリーの遺伝子が息づくというみごとな傑作。(大鷹)

Spirogyra
"Old Boot Wine"

Pegasus●PEG13 [1972] ⇔独Repertoire●REP41321

72年発表のセカンド・アルバムで、明るいのどかな曲中心のフォーク・ロック・サウンドだが、一部に陰りもみられる。チェロやヴァイオリンを使った曲には彼らにしかない本来の良さが出ている。だが、歌詞は別としてマーティン・コッカーハム(g)が作る曲の大半が平凡。マーティンとマーク・フランシス(g)の歌も上手くなく、まだバーバラ・ガスキンの歌声を十分に生かしきってはいない。全体的には中途半端な印象を受ける。デイヴ・マタックス(ds)がたしかな腕を見せているのが救い。スティーヴ・ヒレッジへの謝辞が記されているところがカンタベリーらしい。(山岸)

Spirogyra
"Bells, Boots And Shambles"

スパイロジャイラ「ベルズ・ブーツ・アンド・シャンブルズ」

Polydor●2310 246[1973]→レパートワー●MSIF7154

3作目にしてラスト・アルバム。マーティンとバーバラのデュオになり、スティーヴ・ポリル(b)とジュリアン・カゼック(vln)の前メンバーはバックでサポート、さらにヘンリー・ローザー(tp)やスタン・サルツマン(fl)が参加。全曲マーティンの作。ドリー・コリンズのアレンジは古楽風の味わいを醸し出し、それがバーバラの清楚でしかもはかなげな歌声をより引き立たせている。アコースティックな響きからロックへの流れには節度があり、ポップさもある。霧のかかった幻想的な世界を音楽に導かれて歩くような感じがする英フォーク・ロックの秀作のひとつ。(山岸)

Turning Point
"Silent Promise"

Gull●GULP1027 [1978]

ターニング・ポイントはベーシストのジェフ・クラインが76～80年に率いていたフュージョン・バンドで、ジェフ自身がそれまでに在籍したニュークリアス、アイソトープ、あるいはギルガメッシュに近い音楽性を持っていた。ロックよりはジャズからのアプローチで組み立てられた音楽であり、今も鮮度の衰えない透明感のあるサウンドは彼らの魅力を的確に伝えてくれるのだが、もう少し躍動感のあるビートを導入していれば歴史的評価も違っていただろうにと思う詰めの甘さも感じられるのが残念。これは彼らの最終作となったセカンド・アルバム。(坂本)

Brian Hopper & Robert Wyatt, Caravan and others
"Canterburied Sounds Volume 1"

「カンタベリー・サウンズVol. 1」

Voiceprint●VP201CD [1998]→ヴォイスプリント・ジャパン●VPJ 086

デイヴィッド・アレン・トリオ、ワイルド・フラワーズの音源を発掘、公表したブライアン・ホッパーが、さらなるカンタベリー・アーカイヴとして編纂した究極の歴史資料集。98年に発表され、シリーズは第4集まで続いた。初期キャラヴァンの未発表ライヴなども含まれるが、このシリーズの価値はまだ十代半ばだった少年たち、ロバート・ワイアット、ヒュー・ホッパーらが手近の楽器を使って繰り広げる音楽的実験、その背景となった好奇心を垣間見せてくれたことだろう。ジャンルを超越した想像力。それこそがカンタベリー・マジックの根源に違いない。(小山)

> Zoom

ソフト・マシーンの再結成プロジェクト始動、その名はソフト・ウェア

松崎正秀

カール・ジェンキンス&マイク・ラトリッジによるヒーリング・ミュージック・プロジェクトAアディエマスVの成功に誘発されたかの如く、この1〜2年、ソフト・マシーンの元メンバー達の動きが活発になってきた。そういった動きをサポートするべくインディペンデントの米キューニアフォーム・レコーズ（www.cuneiformrecords.com）では、元メンバートの新録アルバムやソフト・マシーン、ナショナル・ヘルス、マッチング・モウルなどカンタベリー系ミュージシャンのクオリティの高い未発表ライヴ音源をリリースしている。

Elton Dean
"Moorsong"
Cuneiform@RUNE143

このレーベルでは、その新録のメイン・プロダクツの一つとしてエルトン・ディーンの様々なプロジェクト・アルバムをリリースしており、昨年には彼の自己名義のアルバム"Moorsong"を発売した。こういった流れを汲み、ヒュー・ホッパーも自らのプロジェクト・ユニットHughscoreのデビュー・アルバム"Delta Flora"を同レーベルからリリース。これがきっかけとなりコンタクトをとったホッパーとディーンの二人は新たなバンドを結成、アルバムを制作する構想を持った。

この構想をより具体化すべく奔走したのが、米国のインディ・ジャズ・レーベルムーンジューン・レコーズ（www.moonjune.com）のオーナーであり、エルトン・ディーンのアメリカでのマネージャーでもあるレオナルド・パフコヴィッチ。彼はその構想を、自分のアイドルでもあったソフト・マシーンとしての再結成の形に持っていくべく動いた。その結果、ジョン・マーシャルとジョン・エサリッジがこのプロジェクトに参加する意志を表明。ロバート・ワイアットは陰ながら応援することを表明し、マイク・ラトリッジも同様な意思表示をした。しかしながら、ジョン・マーシャルと共にソフト・マシーンをその活動停止まで運営してきたカール・ジェンキンスが、ソフト・マシーンとしての活動再開を容認せず、このプロジェクトは新たなる名前を必要とすることになる。その結果、この新しいバンドはソフト・ウェア（Soft Where）と名乗ることになった。

その間、契約上の諸事情からジョン・エサリッジの参加がなくなり、何とアラン・ホールズワースの参加が決定するといった経緯もあったが、バンドはこの2月からロンドンでレコーディングを開始し、6月頃にアルバムのリリースが予定されている。ちなみにキーボード・プレイヤーとして参加するのはエルトン・ディーン・グループに参加しているアレックス・マグワイアで、ゲストとしてキース・ティペットとマーク・チャリグの参加も予定されているようだ。またこれと並行して、ムーンジューンからは、カンタベリー系アーティストの未発表ライヴのCD化も進められており、アラン・ホールズワース在籍時のソフト・マシーンや、ヒュー・ホッパー在籍時のアイソトープのライヴ音源などがリリースされる予定だ。さらに、このソフトウェアの来日公演はこの秋に実現する可能性が高い。

> Zoom

世界に広がる"カンタベリー・サウンド"

松井 巧（アルバム選も）

カンタベリー・ミュージックはもともとローカルで家族的な音楽サークルだったはずだ。しかし、結果的には世界中のいたるところへ浸透し、70年代にはジャズ・ロックやプログレッシヴ・ロック、80年代にはニュー・ウェイヴやアヴァンギャルド・ポップ、さらに90年代にはテクノやハウスのなかにまでもその音楽性や実験精神が継承されていった。不思議といえば不思議なのだが、それはとりもなおさず、カンタベリー・ミュージックの高い記号性と柔軟な発展性とを証明することにほかならない。「記号性」という意味では、たとえばキーボード・トリオのELPや、シンフォニック・ロックとしてのジェネシスも数多くのフォロワーを世界中に生んではいる。けれども、こと発展性ということに関していえば、カンタベリーにならぶものはないだろう。

オリジナルのカンタベリー・ミュージックがジャズにせよアヴァンギャルド音楽にせよ、インプロヴィゼーションに大きく依存していることは明らかだし、それがミュージシャン間の多国籍的なネットワーク作りに貢献していることもまちがいない。フランスやベルギー、オランダにカンタベリー・フォロワーが多いのも、地理的にイングランドと近く、60年代から盛んに音楽的交流が続けられてきたからだ。それはまちがいないのだが、面白いことに、すぐれたフォロワーであればあるほど、そうしたジャズ・ロック的な下地のうえに独自の素養を加えて、新たな視点のカンタベリー・ミュージックを作り上げてしまうのだ。

フラメンコとの融合を試みたスペインのムジカ・ウルバナや、小粋なフレンチ・ヴォーカルを乗せてハットフィールドのなかの洗練された前衛趣味と呼応しあうベルギーのコスは、その典型例といえるだろう。ソフト・マシーンから影響を受けたといわれるアレアは、デビューした当時からすでにあまりにも特異な音楽観を完成させてしまっているので、一概にカンタベリーとはいえないけれど、むしろそうしたさまざまな異文化のこなれ具合に、私などは大ローマ時代以来のイタリアの伝統を垣間見る思いがする。

今回左ページに挙げた「アルバム10選」は、入門者にもカンタベリーというキーワードがイメージしやすく、かつ幅広くという要請に基づくものだ。したがって、できるだけ音の印象そのものが、いかにもカンタベリーらしいと感じられるような欧米各国の作品をならべておいた。しかし、そんななかにも、それぞれの地域や時代状況にふさわしい独自性、発展性は十分に読み取れると思う。

> Zoom

Cortex
"Troupeau Bleu"

フランスDisques Esperance ● ESP155524[1975] ◇Dare Dare● DOCD005

バンマスのアレン・ミオンは60年代半ばにプロ活動を開始、ブルー・ノートへの出演経験もあるジャズ系のキーボード奏者だ。75年に発表された本作は、グループの1作目。アルバムの出だしはフュージョン・タッチのコンボに華奢な女性ヴォーカルをふんわりトッピングしたサウンド、いかにもお洒落フレンチ好みのヴォーカル・ジャズといった雰囲気を漂わせている。なのに、演奏がヴォルテージを上げるにつれて、ときおり尖鋭的な横顔をのぞかせる。じつのところカンタベリー云々の明確な裏づけはないが、スキャット入りの曲にはナショナル・ヘルス風のものもある。

Potemkine
"Nicolas II"

フランスPhaeton ● 7801 [1978]

中心メンバーはシャルル、ミシェル、フィリップのグバン三兄弟。76年にデビューしたフランスのジャズ・ロック・バンドだ。本作は78年に発表された3枚目。ほぼ全編でナチュラル・ディストーション系のギターがメロディをおさえる硬質のインストは、後期ソフト・マシーンにも近い感じだが、冒頭曲のテーマ部分や、軽快なユーモアとクラシカルな幻想性に富んだキーボードは、あきらかにアラン・ゴーウェンからの影響をうかがわせている。ギルガメッシュの繊細な幻想味を、ドラマチックかつ精密な演奏のなかでスッキリと描き出したところに、個性の秘密がありそう。

Abus Dangereux
"Le Quatrieme Mouvement"

フランスAJ ● 1001 [1980] ◇Musiclip● 0800

フランス人ギタリスト、ピエールジャン・ゴーシェが78年に結成。本作は翌年録音のデビュー・アルバム。82年にはメンバーを一新した2nd.も発表されている。しかしワンマンバンドではない。グループ・インプロヴィゼーションをきめ細かく紡ぎ、複雑な演奏を複雑と思わせないくらいポップに染め上げたセンスの良さはさすがだ。レコーディング用に起用されたらしい女性ヴォーカルのスキャットはアマンダ・パーソンズというよりフローラ・プリム風で、アメリカン・フュージョン派とのパイプも太い彼らだが、夢想的な曲構成からは、カンタベリーの匂いが上品に漂う。

Supersister
"Present From Nancy"

オランダMedium/Polydor ● 2441 016 [1970]

いまでこそオランダはカンタベリーの影響下にある音楽家の多い国として知られているが、スーパーシスターは、そのなかでも古株だ。70年のデビューだけにハットフィールドもナショナル・ヘルスも知らなかった彼らの音楽は、モーダルなファズ・オルガンが浮遊する即興演奏に加え、ヨーロピアン・ポップやクラシックの素養も感じさせるもの。初期ソフト・マシーンとザ・ナイスの中間をいくような感じで、結果的にエッグにも似た音楽性を示していた。1作目に当たる本作は、彼らのアルバムのなかでもっともシンプルだが、そのぶんキャッチーさは一番。

Cos
"Viva Boma"

ベルギーIBC ● 23605 [1976] ◇Musea● FGBG4159.AR

ダニエル・シェルとその妻パスカル・ソンを中心とするベルギーのグループ。フランスのマグマやザオの影響が強かったが、そこにカンタベリー色を持ち込んだのがマルク・オランデル。彼はコス在籍中にアクサク・マブールも編成し、RIOへの参加を通じてアート・ベアーズとも交流を広げたキーボード奏者だ。本作は76年、彼の加入後に発表された2作目。パスカルの歌はフレンチ・ロリータ、とまでには舌足らずでなく、ジャンルでいえばやはりアヴァン・ポップだが、そのキュートさはハットフィールド系カンタベリーと女性ヴォーカルとの親和性を言い当てている。

> Zoom

Univers Zero
"1313"

ベルギーAtem●7001[1977]◇Cuneiform●RUNE20CD

74年、鬼才ダニエル・ドゥニが結成したベルギーの誇るチェンバー・ロック・バンド。最近、そのドゥニが70年代初頭に在籍していたアーカムというバンドの未発表音源を、キュニフォームがCD化した。それはあらゆる面でソフト・マシーンからの影響をあからさまにしたサウンドだった。これまで欧州アヴァンギャルドの突然変異のように思われていたユニヴェエル・ゼロだが、彼らもまたヘンリー・カウのように、ソフト・マシーンを創造の潤滑剤としながら独自の道を開拓したことになる。道なき道の第一歩は77年発表の本作。厳格なアンサンブルは、すでに確立済み。

Area
"Arbeit Macht Frei"

アレア「自由への叫び」

イタリアCramps●CRSLP5101[1973]◆クランプス／キングインターナショナル●KKCP21

デメトリオ・ストラトスというシャーマニックな天才を擁し、唯一無二の個性がきわだつイタリア屈指のグループ。それだけに、ここで取り上げるのには躊躇もある。しかし、彼らがソフト・マシーンに共感を覚えていたのは周知の事実。バルカン半島の音楽とジャズ・ロックの高度な融合は、彼らの思想的な出発点であるコミュニストとしての政治姿勢を抜きにしても、十分刺激に満ちている。代表作なら"Crac!"という選択もあるけれど、ここでは73年発表の一作目。ソフト・マシーンでいえば"Six"の頃。マシーンの"Fantare~3/2"と似た演奏は、たんなる偶然か？

Picchio Dal Pozzo
"Picchio Dal Pozzo"

ピッキオ・ダル・ポッツォ「ピッキオ・ダル・ポッツォ！」

イタリアGrog●GRL03[1976]◆ネクサス●KICP2822

イタリアはジェノヴァ出身で、活動期間は72～80年。サイケなユーモアとジャズに裏打ちされた多彩で実験的な即興演奏を基調としている。フリーキーなファルセットが端的に物語っているように、彼らが影響を受けているのは、ずばりマッチング・モウルとハットフィールド。76年に発表された本作（一作目）は、曲調も総じてそれ風だ。しかし、彼らもそこだけにとどまらない。以前別のところで彼らのオリジナリティを軽視するようなコメントを書いたことがあるが、聴き方が浅かった。凄惨な明るさとでもいうべきイタリアの風土をひしひしと感じさせるのだ。

Musica Urbana
"Musica Urbana"

スペインEDIGSA●UM2033[1976]◇PDI●80.3331

マルチ奏者ホアン・アルベルト・アマルゴスをリーダーとするスペインのグループで、76年バルセロナ録音の本作がデビュー盤。カンタベリー色はアマルゴスの書く曲やキーボードによく表われているが、同時にリターン・トゥ・フォーエヴァー（RTF）ばりの流麗なプレイも印象深い。しかしそれ以上に印象深いのが、フラメンコを絡め、ユニークなリズムを試みているところ。これもRTFの「スペイン」がヒントになっているのだろうが、カンタベリーと結びつけたのは慧眼だ。シンフォニックになる次作"Tess"は少しその色が薄れる。が、B面の野心的な大作は名演。

The Muffins
"Manna/Mirage"

アメリカRandom Radar●RRR003[1978]

マフィンズは73年、アメリカで結成。ソフト・マシーンやハットフィールドの影響から出発した彼らは、フレッド・フリスの遭米に関与、彼のソロ・アルバムもサポートするなど、カンタベリーとNYアヴァンギャルドとの掛け橋になった。本作は78年発表の一作目。フリー・パートと、そこから魅惑的なグループ・アンサンブルへと解放されていく瞬間のゾクゾクするような展開は、彼らなりに咀嚼し、解釈したカンタベリーの本質が凝縮されている。圧巻はB面組曲の、美しくも起伏に富む構成。このあとの作品では、さらに独自のアヴァンギャルドを追求していくことになる。

> Zoom

ロバート・ワイアット

カンタベリーの枠を超えて愛される ソロ時代の歌声を紙ジャケCDで

立川芳雄

いまでも私は、人前で「カンタベリー・ミュージックが好きです」とか「プログレ・ファンです」とか言うことに対して、恥ずかしさを感じる。たとえば私はソフト・マシーンの作品を素晴らしいものだと思っているが、その一方で、それは特定のジャンルのファン以外にはまったく受け容れられないものではないか、という思いも禁じえないのだ。そんな私にとってロバート・ワイアットは、大げさにいえば一種の救いでもある。いちど彼の歌声の魅力を知った者は、その哀しげな声を忘れない。彼の音楽にはジャンルの枠を超える力があるのだ。彼がいなかったら、カンタベリー・ミュージックはもっと閉じたものになっていたかもしれない。だから、82年にワイアットのシングル「シップビルディング」がヒットし、若い音楽ファンの間でも話題になったとき、私は心のなかでひそかに快哉を叫んだものだ。

そんなロバート・ワイアットのアルバム6タイトルが、日本企画盤として紙ジャケットのCDになった。今回の目玉は、6枚のCD全部を購入すると付いてくるボーナス・ディスク『エアプレイ』だ。6作品とこのボーナス・ディスクについて、内容を簡単に紹介しよう。

まずは74年に発表されたソロ2作目『ロック・ボトム』。ワイアットのソロ・アルバムのなかで、個人的には最も好きな作品だ。転落事故で下半身不随となった約1年後に発表され、彼の復活を告げた作品である。なんといってもアルバム冒頭を飾る「シー・ソング」が素晴らしい。不協和音すれすれの微妙なコード、ミニマル・ミュージック的なピアノ、ディストーションのかかったオルガン、それらをバックに歌われるワイアットの祈るようなヴォーカル。実験的だが力強く、哀しみのなかに生への希求が感じられる名曲だ。

『ルース・イズ・ストレンジャー・ザン・リチャード』は75年の作品。全体の統一感という点ではいまひとつだが、それぞれの曲は充実している。モンゲジ・フェザ（tp）を迎えたチャーリー・ヘイデンのカヴァー「ソング・フォー・チェ」や、フレッド・フリスが曲を書きピアノも弾いた「マディ・マウス」など、聴きどころは多い。

70年代後半のワイアットは、社会主義運動に身を投じ、音楽活動を控えるようになる。そんな彼が7年ぶりに発表した作品が『ナッシング・キャン・ストップ・アス』（82年）だ。80年代初頭のシングルをまとめたもので、実験的色彩の強かった前作とは異なり、ワイアットのヴォーカルが前面に打ち出されている。このアルバムによって、彼の名前は多くの人々に知れわたった。ここでの聴きものは「アット・ラスト・アイム・フリー」。シックの曲（79年の『エレガンス・シック』に収録）を大胆に解釈して美しいバラードに仕立て上げている。

85年の『オールド・ロットンハット』は前作の延長線上にある作品。前作以上に歌詞のメッセージ性が強

> Zoom

まっている。その後90年代に入ると、ワイアットは共産党と訣別し、ひさしぶりのソロ・アルバム『ドンデスタン』(91年)をリリース。この作品は、妻のアルフリーダ・ベンジとの共作曲を中心にしている。

そして97年に発表された現時点での最新作が『シュリープ』。イーノ、フィル・マンザネラ、ポール・ウェラーなど豪華ゲスト陣の参加も見逃せないが、なんといっても70年代の作風に戻っている点が嬉しい。長い試行錯誤の末、迷いを断ち切って原点回帰をしたような作品だ。

そしてボーナス・ディスク『エアプレイ』だが、収録曲は4曲。どれも録音は2001年の秋で、完全な新曲だ。作曲・演奏はすべてワイアット本人とのことだが、トランペットが参加している。「ブリッジ」は、ミニマル的な要素の強い実験的なインストゥルメンタル。フリーキーなヴァイブの演奏はワイアットだろうか。「ホエン・アクセス・ウォズ・アン」は、ちょっとユーモラスな雰囲気が、ソフト・マシーンやマッチング・モウルを連想させる。「ソルト〜アイヴィー」は個人的にこのCDのなかで最も好きな曲で、8分の7拍子のリズムに乗ってマイケル・マントラー風のトランペット・ソロが演奏される。そして「サインド・カーテン」は、ワイアットが祈るように呟くように歌うバラード。ヴォーカリストとしての彼のファンにとっては最高の一曲だろう。

CDを6枚買わないとボーナス・ディスクを貰えない点や、名曲中の名曲「シップビルディング」がどのCDにも収録されていない点には、不満も感じる。けれども全作品を通して聴くと、やはりワイアットの音楽の力に圧倒させられる。CDの仕上がりは未見だが、某誌の編集氏の話によれば、ジャケットの発色はとても奇麗で、ワイアット本人がイラストを描いたボーナスCDの紙ジャケットも、とても美しいそうだ。

『ロック・ボトム』
ライコディスク◎VACK1225

①Sea Song ②A Last Straw ③Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road ④Alifib ⑤Alifie ⑥Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road

『ルース・イズ・ストレンジャー・ザン・リチャード』
ライコディスク◎VACK1226

①Muddy Mouse〔A〕②Solar Flares ③Muddy Mouse〔B〕④5 Black Notes And 1 White Note ⑤Muddy Mouse〔C〕⑥Soup Song ⑦Sonia ⑧Team Spirit ⑨Song For Che

『ナッシング・キャン・ストップ・アス』
ライコディスク◎VACK1227

①Born Again Cretin ②At Last I Am Free ③Caimanera ④Grass ⑤Stalin Wasn't Stallin' ⑥Red Flag ⑦Strange Fruit ⑧Arauco ⑨Trade Union ⑩Stalingrad

『オールド・ロットンハット』
ライコディスク◎VACK1228

①Alliance ②The United States Of Amnesia ③East Timor ④Speechless ⑤The Age Of Self ⑥Vandalusia ⑦The British Road ⑧Mass Medium ⑨Gharbzadegi ⑩P. L. A.

『ドンデスタン』
ライコディスク◎VACK1229

①Costa ②Sight Of The Wind ③Worship ④Catholic Architecture ⑤Shrinkrap ⑥Left On Man ⑦Lisp Service ⑧CP Jeebies ⑨N. I. O. ⑩Dondestan

『シュリープ』
ライコディスク◎VACK1230

①Heaps Of Sheeps ②The Duchess ③Maryan ④Was A Friend ⑤Free Will And Testament ⑥September The Ninth ⑦Alien ⑧Out Of Season ⑨A Sunday In Madrid ⑩Blues In Bob Minor ⑪The Whole Point Of No Return ⑫September In The Rain

> Zoom

カンタベリー・ミュージックのレア・レコード

小山哲人氏*、岡田 洋氏提供

オリジナル・ジャケットのデザインはどう継承されたのか？ ソフト・マシーンのファースト・アルバム

The Soft Machine "The Soft Machine"
(米Probe●CPLP4500)*
68年12月に米国のレーベルからリリースされたオリジナル盤。歯車の部分は回転するしかけになっている。左は裏ジャケット

The Soft Machine "The Soft Machine"
(イタリアOrizzonte/MCA●ORL8662)*
イタリア盤ファースト・アルバム
米セカンド・プレスの裏ジャケの図柄が表に使用されている

The Soft Machine "The Soft Machine"
(米Probe●CPLP4500X)*
米国セカンド・プレス。オリジナル・ジャケットの切り抜いてある部分がすべて省略され、裏ジャケの女性には水着が着せられてしまった

The Soft Machine "The Soft Machine Volume 1/ Volume 2" (イタリアProbe●3C154-50185~6)*
ファースト・アルバムとセカンド・アルバムをカップリングした2枚組

The Soft Machine "The Soft Machine"
(オランダStateside●D109/5)* オランダ盤

> Zoom

ジャケットに反映されたグループ名の様々な解釈ぶり　ソフト・マシーンの各国盤

The Soft Machine "We Did It Again" (ベルギーABC●27135ET)*
ベルギー盤ファースト・アルバム

ソフト・マシーン『アート・ロックの彗星』
(プローブ／キング●SR303)*
国内盤のファースト・アルバム・オリジナル盤

The Soft Machine "The Soft Machine"
(独Probe●SHZE9088L)*
ファースト、セカンドの両アルバムから編集されたシングル・アルバム

ソフト・マシーン『ソフト・マシーン』
(プローブ／東芝EMI●IPP80899)*
国内再発盤

The Soft Machine "The Soft Machine"
(オランダS.R. International●20.165)*
上と同趣旨のアルバム。オランダ盤レコード・クラブ・イシュー

The Soft Machine "The Soft Machine"
(仏Barclay●0920 082)*
フランス盤ファースト・アルバム

> Zoom

Soft Machine "At The Beginning" (独Bellaphon●CR3058)*
右のアルバムの再発盤

Soft Machine "Soft Machine"
(独BYG/Metronome●200.137)*
ジョージオ・ゴメルスキー・プロデュースで録音されたファースト・アルバム用のデモ音源を集めたLP

The Soft Machine "The Soft Machine Volume 2" (ベルギーABC●28 601XAT)*

Soft Machine "Soft Machine Vol.2"
(仏Barclay●0921 019)*
フランス盤セカンド・アルバム

Soft Machine "Soft Machine"
(スペインPDI●C30.1384)*
87年に、英国に先駆けてスペインでリリースされたBBCライヴ

Soft Machine "Soft Machine"
(ポルトガルOrlador●71668)*
76年のアルバム"Softs"のポルトガル盤

キャラヴァンの各国盤ほか

Caravan "Waterloo Lily"
(仏Pink Elephant/Kingdom●PE855.015H)*
フランス盤の4作目

Caravan "Caravan"
(英Verve●SVLP6011)*
68年リリースの英国盤ファースト・アルバム(ステレオ)

Caravan "Headloss" (スペインDeram●CPS9327)*
『夜ごと太る女のために』のスペイン盤

Caravan "Caravan"
(独Polydor●2310 191)*
ドイツ盤ファースト・アルバム。英国盤とのロゴの大きさの違いに注目

Caravan "DOS" (スペインDeram●DCS15078~9)*
4作目と6作目をカップリングしたスペイン盤

Caravan "If I Could Do It All Over Again I'd Do It All Over You" (仏Motors●44002)*
フランス盤セカンド・アルバム

> Zoom

Caravan "Songs & Signs"
(独Teldec✪6.23668AO) *
ドイツ盤編集アルバム

Caravan "This Is Caravan" (独Brain/Metronome✪200.164) *
ドイツ盤編集アルバム

Caravan "Pop Spectacular/Caravan In Concert" (英BBC Transcription Serveces✪134387) *
BBCでのライヴ音源が収められたトランスクリプション・ディスク。裏面はヴィネガー・ジョー。73年

Caravan "The Album"
(仏Kingdom✪574015) *
ジャケ違いのフランス盤

ケヴィン自身の曲解説や、ボブ・ラウリーによるイラストも楽しいパンフレット

Kevin Ayers "Bananamour" (英Harvest✪SHVL807) *
ブックレット付きの英国オリジナル盤

> Zoom

Soft Machine 'Soft Space Part 1 (edited version) /Soft Space Part 2 (edited disco version)'
(英Harvest●PSR419)

The Soft Machine 'Love Makes Sweet Music/Feelin' Reelin' Squeelin'' (オランダPolydor●65 151)
デビュー・シングルのオランダ盤

ザ・ソフト・マシーン「スリーピング／ジョイ・オブ・ア・トイ」
(プローブ／キング●HIT1647)

Caravan 'Hello Hello/If I Could Do It All Over Again I'd Do It All Over You'
(ベルギーPink Elephant●22.524)

Caravan 'Hello Hello/If I Could Do It All Over Again I'd Do It All Over You'
(オランダPink Elephant●PE22 524Y)

キャラヴァン「スタック・イン・ア・ホール／恋人よ」
(ロンドン／キング●TOP1982)

Matching Mole 'O Caroline/Signed Curtain'
(英CBS●S8101)

Caravan 'Love To Love You (Tonight Pigs Will Fly) /Golf Girl'
(オランダPink Elephant●PE22 557N)

Caravan 'Hello Hello/If I Could Do It All Over Again I'd Do It All Over You'
(独Metronome●M25 265)

Hatfield And The North 'Let's Eat (Real Soon) /Fitter Stroke Has A Bath' (英Virgin●VS116)
アルバム未収録曲(A面)入りシングル

Kevin Ayers 'The Up Song/Everybody's Sometime And Some People's All The Time Blues' (仏Island●6138 046)

Kevin Ayers 'Stranger In Blue Suede Shoes/Fake Mexican Tourist Blues' (オランダHarvest●5C006-06 124)

> Zoom

日本盤LP

ケヴィン・アイヤーズ『月に撃つ』
(ハーヴェスト／東芝音工●OP80172)

ソフト・マシーン『ソフト・マシーンVol.2』
(プローブ／キング●SR348)*

ケヴィン・エヤーズ『ケヴィン・エヤーズ3』
(ハーヴェスト／東芝EMI●EOP80478)

ソフト・マシーン『ソフト・マシーン』
(CBSソニー●SONP50336~7) サード・アルバムのジャケ違いの国内盤

ケヴィン・エヤーズ『いとしのバナナ』
(ハーヴェスト／東芝EMI●EOP80837)

ケヴィン・エヤーズとソフト・マシーンのメンバー達『おもちゃの歓び』
(ハーヴェスト／東芝音工●OP80337)*

> Zoom

デーヴィッド・アレンズ・ゴング『マジック・ブラザー』
(BYG／日本コロムビア●BYG5)

ゴング『マジック・ブラザー』
(BYG／東宝芸音●YX6054)

ゴング『エンジェル・エッグ』
(ヴァージン／日本コロムビア●YX7028VR)

ゴング『キャモンベール・エレクトリック』
(BYG／東宝芸音●YX6080)

デヴィッド・アレンとユーテープ『グッド・モーニング』
(ヴァージン／日本コロムビア●YX7122)

ゴング『フライング・ティーポット』
(BYG／東宝●YX7024)

> Zoom

CANTERBURY

ハットフィールド&ザ・ノース『ハットフィールド&ザ・ノースI』
(ヴァージン／日本コロムビア●YX7027VR)*

マッチング・モウル『そっくりモグラの毛語録』
(エピック●ECPL69)

ヘンリー・カウ『不安』
(ヴァージン／日本コロムビア●YX7034VR)

ロバート・ワイアット『白日夢』
(ヴァージン／日本コロムビア●YQ7017VR)*

スティーヴ・ヒレッジ『魚の出てくる日』
(ヴァージン／日本コロムビア●YX7051VR)*

キャラヴァン『グレイとピンクの地』
(デラム／キング●DL29)
英国オリジナル・アルバムとしては3作目の作品

> Zoom

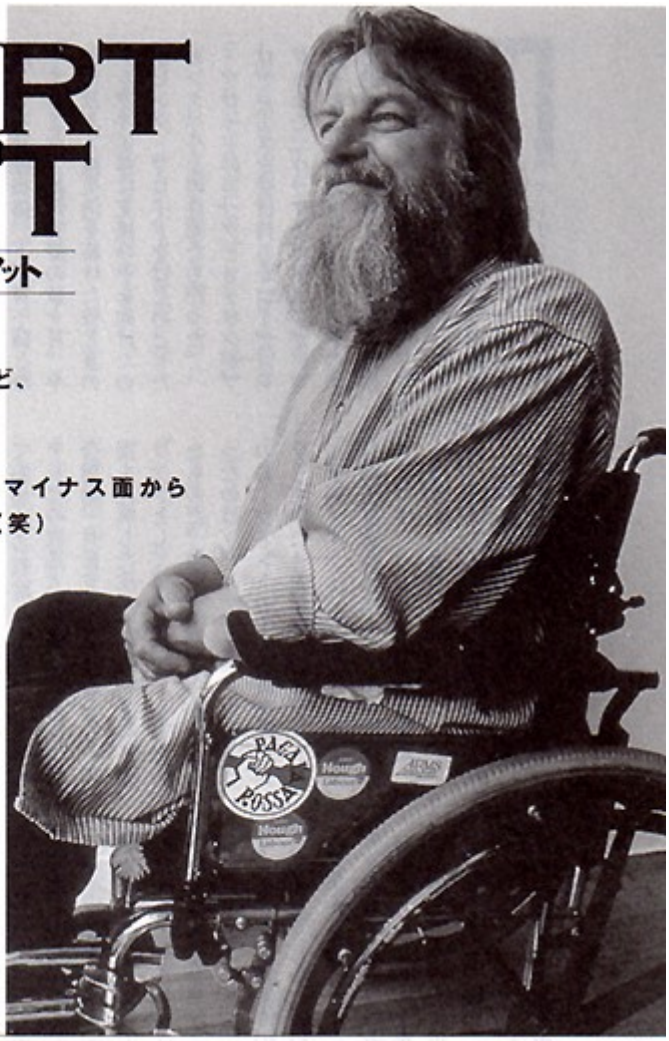
publicité en 3 ème de couverture

> Zoom

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list



Robert Wyatt Interview - Strange Days N° 31 - March 2002

ROBERT WYATT

ROBERT WYATT

INTERVIEW ロバート・ワイアット

僕が車椅子生活になってから、
他人からは可哀想だと思われるけど、 実際は僕は得しちゃった感じさ。 っていうのは、
バンドに所属していることの負担やマイナス面から
完全に自由になれたわけだからね(笑)

取材●大鷹俊一+荻原裕美子
Toshikazu OHTAKA+Yumiko HAGIHARA
文・アルバム解説●大鷹俊一 Toshikazu OHTAKA profile

1945年英国ブリストル生まれ。ハイスクール在学中マイク・ラトリッジらとジャズやブルースのセッションを開始。その後ケヴィン・エアーズ、デヴィッド・アレンらとソフト・マシーンを結成し4作目まで在籍。脱退後はソロ、マッチング・モウルなどでカンタベリー・シーンを代表するドラマーとして活躍。しかし73年、不慮の事故で下半身付随となりドラマー生命を絶たれるが、その半年後にはヴォーカリスト/キーボーディストとして再起。以降、寡作ながらも名作を発表しつづけ、現在もカリスマ的人気を誇る。2月20日、ビデオアーツよりそのオリジナル作品6タイトルが限定紙ジャケでリリースされる。

約十年ほど前、ロンドンから三時間かけて彼のお宅を訪ねた思い出は、この仕事をやっていてもっとも感激したことの一つで、いまだに記憶をたぐると幸福な気持ちになる。ユーモアに溢れ、率直な答えは誠実な音そのもので、改めてこのアーティストに出会えたことの幸福感を満喫させてくれたものだ。

久しぶりにデイヴ・ギルモアのコンサートにゲスト出演、さらにソロ六枚の紙ジャケ化に合わせて新作四曲がプレゼントされるという、まさに日本のファンにはたまらない春先になった。

❖

——先日デイヴ・ギルモアのコンサートに出られたそうですが、どういういきさつから?

「ロンドンのフェスティヴァル・ホールでコンサートの主催者をやってほしいって依頼されたので、ぜひ彼に出演してもらおう、って推薦したんだ。で、快諾してくれたんだけど、その時に条件として〝君も出なよ〟って言われてね。一曲、ヴォーカルが二重になっているところがあって、その部分だけでも歌ってもらえないかって言われたんだ。それで、もともとロジャー・ウォーターズが歌った部分を、僕が歌ったわけさ。ほんの小さな瞬間、だけだったけどね」

——ギルモア、ピンク・フロイドとは多くの思い出があるんでしょうね?

「彼らとは長い間友達だし、最初にバンドを始めた頃は、一緒にクラブに出たりしていたね。というのは僕たちのようなバンドを出演させてくれる

場所は限られていて、自然と活動場所が重なってきたんだよね。そして時々、彼らは僕らに機材を貸してくれたんだ。僕たちはあまりいい機材を持ったことがなかったのでね。当時のバンドのなかには、ピンク・フロイドの持っている高級な機材をとても妬ましく思っているバンドもあったぐらいさ（笑）。彼らはとても寛大に、気前よく機材を僕たちに貸してくれたよ。

それに……僕が背中に重傷を負った時、僕のためにベネフィット・コンサートを開いてくれたんだ。僕と妻のアルフィーのためにね。ホントに、あの時はお金に困っていたので、彼らには命を救われたし、一生の恩人だと思っているよ。メンバーも皆、いい奴だし大好きだ。ロジャー、デヴィッド、リック、ニック。そうそう、この前のコンサートでも、リックがゲスト出演したんだ。ちょっとビックリしたね。というわけで、この前のコンサートでは、ピンク・フロイドの半分が出そろったってわけさ（笑）」

――もう少し、昔の話を聞かせてください。そもそもビートニクに影響を受けるきっかけとなったのは何でしたか？　もっとも影響された考え方、音楽観とは？

「僕が影響を受けたカルチャーは、もう半世紀以上昔のものになるけど、パリとかそういう都市で起きた、モダン・アート・ムーヴメントだ。ダダイズムとか。で、50年代には、アメリカのビートニクのような動きがあったよね。今でも、そういう時代の作品や考え方から、よりインスピレーションを得ていると思う。50年代の当時、聴いていた音楽なんかは完全にアンダーグラウンドなシーンのもので、商業主義とは全く無縁だったので、文化に関わる人たちの間には、親密な一体感があった。でも60年代になると、こうしたアイデアが、これ見よがしにプレゼンテーションされていくようになってしまった。僕にとっては、50年代のモダン・アートの方が、よりロマンティックで愛しいものに思えるね。

僕が影響を受けたアーティストは、やっぱりその時代のジャズ・ミュージシャンや詩人、たとえばドラマーのマックス・ローチやベースのチャールズ・ミンガスなんかだね。彼らの音楽や姿勢を通じて、僕自身も政治に興味を抱くようになったんだ。こうした尊敬するミュージシャンたちの音楽は、すでに50年代から始まっていた人権運動と密接に関わっているからね」

――ビートニクから60年代後半のサイケデリックなシーンとの関連は、どういうものだったと思いますか？

「サイケデリック・シーンというのは、基本的にアメリカのものだったし、まあ、ある種の文化的な実験、といえるような活動だったんじゃないかな。その本拠地となったのはアメリカの大学キャンパスだ。でも僕は大学とも、そういう世界とも縁がなかった。最終学歴は16歳までで、そのあとは調理場でバイトをしたりしてたりでね。それに、僕は非合法なドラッグもやらなかったし。僕は合法ドラッグである酒だけでもう、ヘロヘロになってたから、それ以上は必要なかったわけ（笑）。サイケ・ムーヴメントとはたまたま同時代に生きていたけど、実はサイケ・カルチャーというものをあまり身近に感じたことはないし、好きでもなかった。唯一感謝していることは、髪の毛を伸ばし放題にしても何も言われなくなった、ってことだけ。覚えてるのはそれだけさ（笑）。文化的な内容については、シンパシーは持てなかった。僕はね、個人的にも〝日常のなかの魔法〟みたいなことにグッと来てしまう人間だしね。普通の人が見のがしているようなことさ」

――ソフト・マシーン在籍時のソロ曲「slow Walkin' Talk」でジミ・ヘンドリックスがベースを弾いてますが、特別親しかったのですか？

「うん、60年代終わり頃、エクスペリエンスと一緒にツアーしたことがあって、彼らはカリフォルニアのレコーディング・スタジオを定期的に予約して使っていたので、〝何かあたためている曲をレコーディングしないか〟って言ってくれたんだ。で、あの曲をレコーディングしていると、ジミが通りかかって〝何か手伝うことはあるかい〟と聞かれて、曲を聴かせると、すぐにその場にあったベースを取り上げて、弾いてくれた。とてもカジュアルな感じで起きたことなんだ。ジミはとてもいい人だった。心が優しく、態度にもそれが表われている人だったよ」

――二枚目のソロ「ロック・ボトム」の楽曲は新編成のマッチング・モウル用に用意されたものが多かったと言いますね。

「うん、そのとおり。マッチング・モウルの三枚目を作るつもりで、そのために曲も書きためていたものだ。その時、背中を痛めてしまったので、僕はメンバーに〝俺を待つな。早く次の仕事を探しに行け〟と言ったんだ。で、彼らはそれぞれの道を行ったわけだ。でも僕にとっても解放感があったね。おそらくバンドを続けていたら、他のメンバーとコミュニケーションするのが物凄く困難になっていたと思うんだよね。というのは、やっぱり具体的に演奏して聴いてもらうことによって初めて、相手にどんな音で何をやってほしいのかが伝わるし、一緒に曲を作っていけると思うんだ。僕にとっては、やっぱりそういうやり方が一番簡単だし、基本的だったから、そういうのができなくなったらやっぱりバンドは難しいなと思った」

――その次の「ルース・イズ・ストレンジャー・ザン・リチャード」発表後、ヴァージン・レコードを離れますが、音楽活動そのものへの興味も薄れたのですか？

「音楽自体は、何とか続けていたよ。多くのミュージシャンから、レコーディングに参加するよう招かれて、ゲスト出演していた。でも、確かに政治的な活動や、個人としての人生の方が忙しくなっていたかも……僕の人生は音楽が100%じゃないから。僕の人生における目的も、音楽をやることが主な目的じゃない。人生を有意義なものにし、楽しみたいという動機の方が強いんだ。時にその手段が音楽であり、時にはそうでないこともあるということだね」

――80年代に入ってラフ・トレードから久しぶりにレコードを出すようになったのはバンクの動きに、かなり触発されたからなわけですよね。

「それもあるね。シングルが中心だったけどね。シングルのミニチュア作品的な形式が気に入っていたからなんだ。バンクについては、アマチュア的なアティテュードで曲を作ってもOKっていう考え方に共鳴した。というのは、ポップ・ミュージックって何でも大袈裟に考える傾向があって、クラシック音楽か何かみたいに完璧主義になり、リリースする前の仕上がりとか完成度に異様にうるさくなる傾向があると思うんだ。でも、僕自身のアーティストとしての出自はそういうのとは全く違うんでね。僕は、人が聴いていろいろなアラが聴こえてしまうような音楽でも、全然構わないと思う方なんだ。ライヴ演奏だって、二つか三つ、音程が外れていたとしても、演奏自体に生命感があれば、そのままにしておきたい方なんだ。バンクってそういう姿勢が強いから、その点には共感したね」

――85年の「オールド・ロッテンハット」は、イギリス政府や、共に活動した共産党などに言及した曲が多いですが、これらはこの時点で歌わねばならないと強く意識したわけですね？

「僕の生まれ持った性格というのは、とにかく現実から逃避して、別次元の天国みたいな心地よい場所で一生を過ごしたい、という願望が強い方なんだ。でもあの頃は、イギリス全体に右翼勢力からの政治的な圧力が復興した、反動的な時代でね。すべての国民に影響を与えたし、文化にも大きく影を落としていたんだ」

――それが次の「ドンデスタン」では、一転して、平穏な空気がとても印象的でした。

「あのアルバムの歌詞の半分は妻のアルフィーが書いたもので、それに僕が曲を付けた。故意に何らかのイメージを演出しようとしたアルバムではないんだ。事実、歌詞のなかには、かなり挑戦的なものもあるしね。「ドンデスタン」というタイトル曲の歌詞は、〝～国民〟というような国籍を持つ権利をはく奪されている人たちのことを歌ったものだ。具体的にはパレスチナ人、クルド人のことだ。彼らは民族としてのアイデンティティを奪われ、また全世界がそのことを黙認している。今日、いっそう深刻な問題になったんじゃないかという気もする。今だってパレスチナでも、クルドでも相変わらず人々はさまよい、苦しんでいる。彼らにとって、ただ生き延び、存続していくというだけのことが、こんなにも困難にさらされているわけだ。政治を反映しようとか、世の中を変えようとかいうコンセプトで故意に作った作品ではないんだけど、ただその頃、自分が考えていたことを曲にしたらそうなったわけだ」

――現時点での最新作『シュリーブ』では、広く新旧の友人が参加していますが『トンデスタン』から大きな心境の変化があったのですか？

「このアルバムは良き友人のフィル・マンザネラの好意で、スタジオを貸してもらえたことで実現した。彼にはほんと、感謝している。きっかけは〝ロバート、君はあまりにも、自分のなかにこもって内省的に、一人きりでレコード作りをやっている。もっと昔みたいに、他のミュージシャンとの交流を楽しみながら作ったらどうか〟ってアドバイスされたからなんだ」

――旧い友人たちと、たとえばポール・ウェラーみたいな人とやるのではどんな違いが？

「ポール・ウェラーがスタジオに来る日は少し緊張したね。彼が恐い人とかそういうことじゃなくって。彼は実際にはとても良い人で、気楽な相手なんだよ。スタジオで、とても真剣に集中力を発揮して取り組んでくれて、演奏もバッチリだったし、最後にはとても打ち解けることができたけど、彼のような人とは僕は全然違った生活を送っているから、ちょっとビビッてしまったんだ。でも曲は曲、どんな人でもスタジオでは一人のミュージシャンであることには変わりはないんだよね。スタジオってそういうところが良いんだ。というのは、ステージでの演奏では、バンド全員がすべての曲について同意し、共通に理解してなきゃいけないじゃない。でもスタジオなら、一、二曲だけ、ビッタリのミュージシャンならそれでOKだから。一曲や二曲のための小さなグループ、一曲だけの命っていうところが、とても自由な感じだ。これって逆説的なんだけど、僕が車椅子生活になってから、他人からは可哀想だと思われるけど、実際には僕は得しちゃった感じさ。っていうのは、バンドに所属していることの負担やマイナス面から完全に自由になれたわけだからね（笑）」

――ということは次のアルバムも、同じようなものになりそうですか？

「ウーン、自分でもよくわかんないんだよね～（笑）。どうしたものだろう？　今は自分の小さな音楽部屋に戻り内省的な世界にしばらく引きこもって、次の段階に備えたい、そういう時期と感じてはいるけどね」

――今回、日本での紙ジャケット再発特典として提供された4トラック、全然違ったアプローチで、とても楽しめました。

「あの四曲は、僕が家で実際にどんな音を作っているか、皆にとって面白いんじゃないか、と思ったので提供したんだ。僕はレコード制作の合間は、ほぼすべての時間を僕の音楽部屋で過ごしていて、ああしたいろいろと実験的なことをやっているんだ。そのうち何か、一貫したテーマみたいなものが発見できれば一枚のアルバムにするのも悪くないかもね。でもこれは、どちらかというと僕のスタジオでやっていることをサンプルとして紹介するような意味合いが強いかな。ミュージシャンって、レコードに収録されるよりも、実際には遥かに多くのマテリアルをスタジオで作っているのが普通だから。絵画でいうと、スケッチブックみたいなものかな」

――ところで日本の多くのファンが来日を望んでいるのですが、可能性はあるのでしょうか？

「いや、僕はコンサートは基本的にはもう、やらないよ……緊張するし、こういう身体だとあちこち行くのが難しく感じられるから。でも、最近ハンガリーのレコード会社の友人と話したら、パリやロンドンはやはり身体障害者にとって移動が難しいことが多いけど日本はかなり快適だ、ということだった。それを聞いて日本に行きたいとの思いが強まったけど、でもやっぱり距離的に遠いしなあ……そうそう、日本からはいつも、とても心のこもった手紙をもらうんだ。思慮深い、しっかりした内容の手紙をもらって、とても嬉しく思っているよ。ありがとう」

ROBERT WYATT
Airplay (Bonus CD For Paper Sleeve)

1.Fridge / 2.When Access Was Noun / 3.Salt/Ivy / 4.Signed Curtain

❖なんと今回の紙ジャケ化にあたり特典として新作4トラックが彼から提供された。現代音楽風から柔らかな歌声に癒されるもの、ジャジーなコラージュなど、どれも聴きごたえがあり、素晴らしいボーナスになっている。

ROBERT WYATT
[Solo & Important Band's Albums : Except Soft Machine]

文●大鷹俊一 Toshikazu OHTAKA

CBS / 64189 1970

ROBERT WYATT
The End Of An Ear

1.Las Vegas Tango Part 1 (Repeat) / 2.To Mark Everywhere / 3.To Saintly Bridget / 4.To Oz Alien Daevyd And Gilly / 5.To Nick Everyone / 6.To Caravan And Brother Jim / 7.To The Old World (Thank You For The Use Of Your Body, Goodbye) / 8.To Carla, Marsha And Caroline (For Making Everything Beautifuller) / 9.Las Vegas Tango Part 1

❖ソフト・マシーンとしても活動中の70年に作った課外活動第一作。ギル・エヴァンスのナンバーで前後を固め、その間に仲間たちの名前をもじったタイトルを持つオリジナルが並んでいる。ソフツのエルトン・ディーンやキャラヴァンのデヴィッド・シンクレアなどの仲間たちとともに果敢にジャズ、ロック的な枠組みを乗り越えたアプローチに挑んだもの。

もちろんこの当時は元気だからバシバシとドラムスも叩きまくって器楽的な意味での完成度は高く、エフェクト処理されたヴォーカルものちにつながる部分も含め、非常に示唆に富んだアルバムだ。

Virgin / V 2017 ●ビデオアーツ / VACK-1225 / 2002.2.27 1974

ROBERT WYATT
Rock Bottom

1.Sea Song / 2.A Last Straw / 3.Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road / 4.Alifib / 5.Alife / 6.Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road

❖メンバーを一新して再活動を行なおうとしてマッチング・モウルのために書かれた楽曲を中心に74年に作られたソロ・セカンド。下半身不随になるという大アクシデントがあったためソロの形をとったが、ニック・メイソンのプロデュースのもとリチャード・シンクレアやヒュー・ホッパー、フレッド・フリスら気心の知れた仲間が参加したためバンド的なアンサンブルの良さは感じられる。

名曲「シー・ソング」に始まり美しい楽曲が並び、ワイアットの再出発にふさわしい音楽的な姿勢がロックの底（ボトム）から浮かび上がってくる傑作。

Virgin / V 2034 ●ビデオアーツ / VACK-1226 / 2002.2.27 1975

ROBERT WYATT
Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard

1.Muddy Mouse (A) / 2.Solar Flares / 3.Muddy Mouse (B) / 4.5 Black Notes And 1 White Note / 5.Muddy Mouse (C) Which In Turn Leads To Muddy Mouth / 6.Soup Song / 7.Sonia / 8.Team Spirit / 9.Song For Che

❖ヴァージン・レコードからのセカンドで、女性カメラマンのルースの方がよりストレンジと言われているリチャードとはヴァージン社長のリチャード・ブランソンのこと。アルバム中にも、こうしたちょっとしたユーモア感覚が漂い、ゲバラに捧げたチャーリー・ヘイデンのヘヴィなナンバーなどの空気を和らげるのに貢献している。

敬愛するアフリカ人のトランペッター、モンゲジとの企画と、フレッド・フリスとの間で計画した作品プロジェクトの断片が混ざり合って入っているため、やや統一感に欠ける面はあるが、逆にワイアットの多彩さは伝わる。

Rough Trade / ROUGH 32 ●ビデオアーツ / VACK-1227 / 2002.2.27 1982

ROBERT WYATT
Nothing Can Stop Us

1.Born Again Cretin / 2.At Last I Am Free / 3.Caimanera / 4.Grass / 5.Stalin Wasn't Stallin' / 6.Red Flag / 7.Strange Fruit / 8.Arauco / 9.Trade Union / 10.Stalingrad

❖パンク～ニューウェイヴの7インチ・シングル復権の動きに触発されてラフ・トレードから四枚のシングル「Arauco / Caimanera」「At Last I Am Free / Strange Fruit」「Stalin Wasn't Stallin' / Stalingrad」「Grass / Trade Union」を相次いで発表したが、それらと二曲の新作をアルバムにまとめたもの。ビリー・ホリデイの歌で有名な「ストレンジ・フルーツ」をはじめ、民衆が生活や闘いの中で歌い継いできた世界中の楽曲をワイアットなりにカヴァーしたもので、単に素材として曲じゃなく、その奥に流れるものをくみ上げる姿勢が深い感動を呼ぶ。

Rough Trade / ROUGH 40 1982

ROBERT WYATT
The Animals Film Original Music Composed And Played By Robert Wyatt

1.The Animals Film / 2.Wind Of Change (7 Inch Version) / 3.Wind Of Change (12 Inch Version) / 4.Nambia (7 Inch Version) / 5.Nambia (12 Inch Version

❖動物虐待反対を訴えたヴィクター・ショーンフィールド監督のドキュメンタリー映画のためのサントラ。ジャケットの猿の写真でもわかるように、特に動物実験の残酷な実態を告発したもので、ワイアットは他にも同趣のチャリティ・アルバムなどにも参加している。音楽的にはアンビエント的なサウンドで、ときおりワイアットらしいスキャットが聴ける30分弱のものなので、そのつもりで接する必要はある。

なおCD化に際して南アフリカのSWAPOシンガーズとのシングル「Wind Of Change / Nambia」が収録された。

Rough Trade / ROUGH 69 ●ビデオアーツ / VACK-1228 / 2002.2.27 1985

ROBERT WYATT
Old Rottenhat

1.Alliance / 2.The United States Of Amnesia / 3.East Timor / 4.Speechless / 5.The Age Of Self / 6.Vandalusia / 7.The British Road / 8.Mass Medium / 9.Gharbzadegi / 10.P.L.A.

❖約十年ぶりとなるオリジナル楽曲が集められたアルバム。リンカンシャーの田舎に住居を移し、じっくりと世界の動きやイギリスの体制や制度に思考を巡らした結果が、さりげない音や言葉の一つ一つからしっかりと伝わってくるものになっている。〝古い腐った帽子〟とはシルクハットに象徴されるイギリスの古い社会体制のことなのだろう。当時、イギリスは大不況、サッチャーによる公共事業の民間化政策で、全土で大労働争議が起こって騒然とした時代だったが、それを静かに鋭く告発する姿勢が印象的だ。東ティモール問題への言及もさすが。

Strange Fruit / SFPS 037 1987

ROBERT WYATT
The Peel Sessions

1.Soup Song / 2.Alifib / 3.I'm A Believer / 4.Sea Song

❖74年に〝ピール・セッション〟に出演したときの四曲を収めたもので、87年に正式に発売された。基本的にはピアノやわずかなエレクトロニクス類で作ったバッキングとヴォーカルのシンプルな演奏だが、ワイアットの存在感は圧倒的なものがある。

スキャットがフィーチャーされた「スープ・ソング」、じっくりとピアノだけで歌われる美しい「Alifib」、初シングルだった「アイム・ア・ビリーヴァー」、そして究極の名曲「シー・ソング」と、どれも何度聴いても飽きることのない演奏が続く。絶対に持っていたい一枚だ。

Rough Trade / R 2741 ●ビデオアーツ / VACK-1229 / 2002.2.27 1991

ROBERT WYATT
Dondestan

1.Costa (Memories Of Under-Development) / 2.Sight Of The Wind / 3.Worship / 4.Catholic Architecture / 5.Shrinkrap / 6.Left On Man / 7.Lisp Service / 8.CP Jeebies / 9.N.I.O (New Information Order) / 10.Dondestan

❖スペインのテレビの依頼に応じて訪れ、ついでにホリデーを過ごしたスペインで書かれた妻アルフィーによる詩に曲をつけたもの(ジャケットも、そのときの様子を描いたアルフィーの手になる)、当時の激変する社会情勢の中で彼が考えたことを反映した部分とで構成されたアルバム。

雪崩を打って崩れ去る東欧社会主義諸国、そして自ら入党までして活動した英共産党との決別など、さまざまな思いとワイアット流視座が丹念に練り込まれていく。90年代後半のCD化に際して、不満だった部分が本人の手で再ミックスなど行なわれている。

Voiceprint / VP 108 CD ●MSI / MSIF-3307 1992

ROBERT WYATT
A Short Break

1.A Short Break / 2.Tubab / 3.Kutcha / 4.Venti Latir / 5.Unmasked

❖92年に、長年の友人が始めたレーベル、ヴォイスプリントのために提供されたスペシャル・アイテムもの。オリジナル盤はブックレットをボックスに収めたものだったが、その後通常のCDスタイルになっている。日常繰り返されているというミニマルかつアンビエントな音のスケッチを集めたもので、レギュラーのアルバムやシングルと同等に扱うわけにはいかないが、彼の自室に招かれて聴かされているような親しみはある。

ジャケットは幼い頃にホリデーで訪れたポルトガルでの写真を使ったもの。何とかボックスのオリジナルで持っていたいところだ。

Rough Trade / R 3112 1994

ROBERT WYATT
Flotsam Jetsam

1.Slow Walkin' Talk / 2.Moon In June / 3.Standfast (SYMBIOSIS) / 4.No 'Alf Measures (MATCHING MOLE) / 5.God Song/Fol De Rol / 6.Soprano Derivitavo/Apricot Jam (LOL COXHILL) / 7.A Little Something (SLAPP HAPPY & FRIENDS) / 8.Now Is The Time (GARY WINDO) / 9.Now't Doin (UNITY / HANWELL BAND & R. WYATT) / 10.Born Again Cretin / 11.Billie's Bounce / 12.Locomotive / 13.War Without Blood / 14.Obert Tancat 1 / 15.Tu Traicion (CLAUSTOPHOBIA) / 16.Obert Tancat 2 / 17.Turn Things Upside Down (THE HAPPY END) / 18.The Wind Of Change

❖ジミ・ヘンドリックスがベースを弾いた「Slow Walkin' Talk」に始まり、珍しい楽曲、未発表曲、レア・セッションが全18曲ぎっしりと詰まった、ワイアット・ファン必携の一枚。

どれが特にすごいとかレアというのは不可能なほど甲乙つけがたい演奏が詰まっているが、ゲイリー・ウィンドらとのシンバイオスとしてのものや、ロル・コックスヒル、ハッピー・エンドとのセッションなどは個人的に印象的。またBBCで共演したスラップ・ハッピーとの「ア・リトル・サムシング」はダグマーとの昇天もののデュエットが聴ける。

Virgin / CDVDM 9031 1994

ROBERT WYATT
Going Back A Bit: A Little History Robert Wyatt

Disc 1:1.Moon In June / 2.To Caravan And Brother Jim / 3.O Caroline / 4.Gloria Gloom / 5.God Song / 6.Calyx / 7.Alifib 他全11曲
Disc 2:1.I'm A Believer / 2.Memories / 3.Yesterday Man / 4.Sonia / 5.Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road / 6.Five Black Notes And One White Note / 7.Team Spirit / 8.Song For Che / 9.The Doubtful Guest / 10.The Object Lesson / 11.Arauco / 12.A L'battoir / 13.I'm A Mineralist / 14.Rangers In The Night 他全18曲

❖ヴァージンの廉価シリーズの中で出された二枚組ベスト盤だが、非常によく練り込まれて作られたものとなっていて、コンパクトに彼の音楽史を俯瞰したいときには最適なものとして推薦したい。

ソフツ時代の「ムーン・イン・ジューン」に始まり94年の音源まで含まれるが、主になっているのは70年代のもの。しかし年代の違うものがアットランダムに並んでいても音楽性や、アーティストとしての姿勢に揺らぎがないところは、さすがのひと言。レア音源も入っているし、内ジャケットに提供されたアルフィーのカラフルな絵や写真なども必見だ。

Thirsty Ear / 57040 ●ビデオアーツ / VACK-1230 / 2002.2.27 1997

ROBERT WYATT
Shleep

1.Heaps Of Sheeps / 2.The Duchess / 3.Maryan / 4.Was A Friend / 5.Free Will And Testament / 6.September The Ninth / 7.Alien / 8.Out Of Season / 9.A Sunday In Madrid / 10.Blues In Bob Minor / 11.The Whole Point Of No Return / 12.September In The Rain

❖現時点の最新アルバム。フィル・マンザネラのスタジオを舞台に新旧の交友をベースに作り上げた快作。「ドンデスタン」の内省的な深さを、ごくごく自然な形で仲間たちの周りに広げていくサマが、新たな感動を呼ぶ。

「ロック・ボトム」などにあった世界が、多くの体験と時間という風雨にさらされながら熟成に達したのだろう。特にギタリストたちとの絡み合いや使い方は、それまでのワイアット・ワールドからするととても新鮮な感じで、個人的にはぜひこの方向性での作品作りもまたコンスタントにやっていってほしいのだが。

Hannibal / HNCD 1440 ●ビデオアーツ / VACK-5397 1999

ROBERT WYATT
Eps

Disc 1 <Bits>: 1.I'm A Believer / 2.Memories / 3.Yesterday Man / 4.Sonia / 5.Calyx Disc 2 <Pieces>: 1.Shipbuilding / 2.Memories Of You / 3.Round Midnight / 4.Pigs...(In There) / 5.Chairman Mao Disc 3 <Work In Progress>: 1.Yolanda / 2.Te Recuerdo Amanda / 3.Biko / 4.Amber And The Amberines Disc 4 <Animals>: 1.The Animals Film Disc 5 <Remixes>: 1.Was A Friend / 2.Maryan / 3.A Sunday In Madrid / 4.Free Will And Testament

❖EPという形態が好きなんだと言っていたワイアットの思いを具現化したボックス。ファースト・シングルだった「アイム・ア・ビリーヴァー」などを収めた一枚目から「シュリープ」のトラックをリミックスした五枚目まで、どれも聴き逃せない音源が揃っている。各盤につけられたジャケット、タイトル、選曲など、単に凝っているというよりも、ボックス作品としての完成度を追求した結果と言えるだろう。特に"Work In Progress"と名づけられたディスク3には、いま聴いてもいろいろ考えさせられる。全ファン、必携のボックス。

Blueprint / Voiceprint / BP 123CD 1994

THE WILDE FLOWERS
The Wilde Flowers

1. Impotence / 2. Those Words They Say / 3. Memories / 4. Don't Try To Change Me / 5. Parchman Farm / 6. Almost Grown / 7. She's Gone / 8. Slow Talkin' Talk / 9. He's Bad For You / 10. It's What I Feel / 11. Memories / 12. Never Leave Me / 13. Time After Time / 14. Just Where I Want / 15. No Game When You Lose / 16. Impotence / 17. Why Do You care / 18. The Pieman Cometh / 19. Summer Spirit / 20. She Loves To Hurt / 21. The Big Show / 22. Memories

❖62~66年に活動した伝説のグループのデモ、ライヴなど、さまざまな音源をブライアン・ホッパーがまとめたもの。彼による詳細なライナーノーツもついて、発売された当時は、まさにカンタベリー・ファンが騒然となったものだ。ワイアットの「メモリーズ」などはしっかりと完成しているし、ケヴィン・エアーズのブルース的な部分を発展させようと試行錯誤するバンドの姿は、実に生々しく当時の意欲的な音楽性を伝えてくれる。デビューしコンスタントな活躍につながらなかったのは不幸だったが、それは作り上げていた音楽とは無関係だったことがよくわかる。

Voiceprint / VP 122 CD　1993

DAEVID ALLEN TRIO
Live 1963

1.Love Is A Careless Sea / 2.My Head Is A Nightclub / 3.Capacity Travel (a)Part One (b)Part Two (c)Part Three (d)Part Four / 4.The Song Of The Jazzman / 5.Dear Olde Benny Green Is A-Turning In His Grave / 6.Ya Sunne Wot / 7.Frederique La Poisson Avec Frite Sur Le Dos

❖フリー・ジャズ、アヴァンギャルド、ポエトリー・リーディングと記号化される以前、のエモーションだけがグツグツと燃えたぎる63年の貴重な録音。アレン、ワイアットにヒュー・ホッパーのベース、一部でマイク・ラトリッジがピアノで参加する。

基本的にはジャジーなリズムにアレンのフリーキーなギターとヴォイスが絡んでくるもので、テクニック的なものは低いのだが憎めない。背伸びしているというよりは、自分の足元を一つ一つ固めながら暗闇を前進しようとする真摯な姿が全員にあるからだろう。重要な最初の一滴である。

CBS / 64850 ◉ソニー / ESCA-5425　1972

MATCHING MOLE
Matching Mole

1.O Caroline / 2.Instant Pussy / 3.Signed Curtain / 4.Part Of The Dance / 5.Instant Kitten / 6.Dedicated To Hugh, But You Weren't Listening / 7.Beer As In Braindeer / 8.Immediate Curtain

❖ソフト・マシーンを放り出されたことによる屈辱がバネとなって素晴らしいマッチング・モウルというユニットを作らせ、このアルバムのような傑作誕生となったのだからファン的には喜ぶべきことなのかもしれない。実際、ソフツに残っていたとしても、当時の雰囲気ではこういう方向性のアルバムを作ることはできなかったろう。

ワイアットらしい叙情溢れる「オー・キャロライン」があるかと思えば、四人のメンバーの超絶的なテクニックを駆使しての器楽的な感動を味わえるナンバーがあったりと、実に豊かな世界を構築してくれている。

CBS / 65260　1972

MATCHING MOLE
Matching Mole's Little Red Record

1.Starting In The Middle Of The Day We Can Drink Our Politics Away / 2.Marchides / 3.Nan True's Hole / 4.Righteous Rhumba / 5.Brandy As In Benj / 6.Gloria Gloom / 7.God Song / 8.Flora Fidgit / 9.Smoke Signal

❖前作以上にユーモラスなジャケット、そしてタイトルとすべてにワイアットらしさが溢れているマッチング・モウルのセカンド。キーボードがデヴィッド・シンクレアからデイヴ・マクレエに変わって、サウンドの質感はかなり変わっていった。ジャズ的なアンサンブルは、より鋭さを増し、ワイアットのユーモアとの混在感も深まっていく。こうした世界を作り上げたバンドは、マッチング・モウルだけだったと思う。

プロデュースにロバート・フリップ、一部にイーノが参加というのも、当時のプログレ・ファンには大きな話題だった。

Windsong / WINDCD 063　1994

MATCHING MOLE
BBC Radio 1 Live In Concert

1.Instant Pussy / 2.Litheing And Graceing / 3.Marchides / 4.Part Of The Dance / 5.Brandy As In Benge

❖72年7月に出演したときの貴重なライヴを94年に正式発売したもの。全五曲、30分に満たない音源なのだが、ちょうどファーストとセカンド発売の間での出演であったために両方のアルバムにまたがるレパートリーが嬉しい。ライヴではしばしば取り上げられていた「Littering And Graceing」は特に貴重だ。

一曲目からワイアット独特のヴォイス・パフォーマンスとハイハット類を細かく刻んでいくドラミングで、一気に彼らの宇宙に連れ込まれる。挑発的なインタープレイの数々もまたこのグループの到達点の高さを示している。

Coneiform / RUNE 150 ◉DIW/ARCÀNGELO / ARC-2150　2001

MATCHING MOLE
Smoke Signals

Phil Miller (g), Bill MacCormick (b), Robert Wyatt (ds,vo), Dave McRae (p)

1.Intro, 2.March Ides I, 3.Smoke Rings, 4.Nan True's Hole, 5.Brandy As In Benj, 6.Electric Piano Solo, 7.March Ides II, 8.Instant Pussy, 9.Smoke Signal, 10.Lything & Gracing, 11.Gloria Gloom

❖昨年、突然リリースされて衝撃を与えた発掘もの。72年のヨーロッパ・ツアーで収録されていたライヴで、セカンドのラインナップによるステージ。ほぼ一つのコンサートの流れを体感できるところはBBCもの以上に貴重だし、正式なスタジオ・アルバムのかっちりとした作りから離れた、ラフ&タイトな構成はこのバンドだからこそのスケール感を、時空を越えて伝えてくれる。

"すごい楽しそうにドラム叩いてるなあ、俺！"と、ワイアット自身が聴いて思ったそうだが、この爆発的な演奏を聴くとそれも心から納得だ。

publicité dans le même numéro / ad in the same issue

Previous article

Next article

Back to the list

Interview Robert Wyatt - Fool'sMate - Vol.14 - 1980 年11月

INTERVIEW ROBERT WYATT

Interview

Robert Wyatt

絶望を体現する古びたイメージのロックからは結局何も得られなかった……

近藤等則／Toshinori Kondo

60年代の後半から70年代の前半まで、様々な困難やアクシデントと闘いながら、イギリスにおけるプログレッシヴ・ミュージックのリーダー・シップを執り続けたソフト・マシーンの創始者ロバート・ワイアット。孤独な仙師の祈りにも似た名作「ロック・ボトム」から既に7年もの月日を経た今、状況は大きく変化し、同時に彼の真摯な創造の足跡が確実な速度で状況の内に反映している事実が認められる。現在のワイアットが何を考え、どう感じているか、ミュージシャンである近藤氏とのこの対話によってその全てが明らかにされている。穏やかな導師の目に映る「世界」とはいかなるものだろうか。

今のイギリスは私に10年前を思い出させるね

去年の10月、イギリスでジョン・ラッセル(g)、ロジャー・ターナー(ds)、スティーブ・ベレスフォード(toys)等との演奏の合い間のある日、ジョン・ラッセルと僕は、ロンドン郊外のTwickenhamに住むロバート・ワイアットをたずねた。僕が彼に会うのはそれが初めてだった。ジョンとロバートはよく知ってて、ロバートの家について一杯の紅茶の後、我々3人はすぐ演奏を始めた。全くの即興演奏。2時間くらい続けただろうか。終った後、我々は上気嫌になっていた。

そして今年6月、再び僕はイギリスを訪れた。ラッセル、ターナー、僕のTrioで、イングランドの各都市で8日間連続演奏ツアーのためだった。その夜はロンドンでの演奏だった。6月12日の午後、少しの間をみつけて、僕はロバート・ワイアットの家にかけつけた。車イスにのったロバートが、柔かい笑顔で、玄関の扉をあけてくれた。

近藤：まずロック・ドラミングについて、あなたの意見をうかがいたい。

ロバート・ワイアット（以下、R・W）：私は長年ロックを演ってきたが、ロックは訓練をつんだプロミュージシャンにしてはじめて演奏出来るというたぐいのものではなく、全くのアマチュアが演奏出来うるイディオムとしてある、と私は考えている。しかし、客観的に言えば、ロック・ドラミングはドラムセットの限界を目指して発展させられてきた。

私がドラムを始めた頃、イギリスではちょうどロックのドラミングを発展させようとしていた時期だった。簡単な歌の伴奏といったものから、バーチュオーソを目指しはじめたのだった。初期のイギリスのロックドラマーにとってのモデルは、ニューオリンズのドラマー、ブーカーT&MGS、モータウン系のレコードに使用されているリズムセクション等だったが、60年代、我々はそれをもっと発展させようとしたのだ。

当時、我々は8ビートをやったが、その中にピリー・コブハムもいた。彼のドラミングは、とても高いところからバケツの水の中にダイビングするサーカスのような、劇的しいショー的要素をもっていてとても印象的だった。彼は我々の世代のバディ・リッチと言えよう。しかし私は彼のようなドラミングには結局興味をもつことが出来なかった。

それから、我々ロックドラマーの多くは、エルビン・ジョーンズから影響をうけたと言われるが、私にはそうは思えない。それはエルビンにとっていささか御辞儀でさえある。何故なら、イギリスの大変テクニカルなロックドラマーをきくとわかることだが、エルビン・ジョーンズのドラミングにみられる「流動的なわくからはみ出たあいまいさ」を彼らはもっていないからだ。彼らのロールの頭をきけば、いつそれが正確に終るのか わかるし 、たとえばギターとピタッとあっている。彼らは競争的なバーチュオシティを過度に見せようとしたのであって、エルビン・ジョーンズやアンソニー・ウィリアムズがやったように、「タイム(拍)に対する危険なゲーム」に挑戦することはなかったのだ。すなわち、70年代のロックドラミングが、革新的な発展をとげた、という一般的な評価に対して私は全く懐疑的だ。正直なところ、我々がやってきたロック・ドラミングが、ジャズと比べた場合、音楽的にみて、冒険的な貢献をはたした、とは私には思えない。実際こんなことを言うのは、自分にとってあまり得なことじゃないんだが。(笑)

近藤：あなたがエルビンのドラミングを「はみ出た」といったことは面白い。キチッと小節の中におさまったようなリズムより、はみ出し、ずれ、のびちじみをもったリズムの方が僕には生き生きときこえるし、そういったリズムの方がより大きく自由な空間を生み出すことが出来る、と僕は考えるのだが。これは僕が日本人であることも多分に関係していると思う。

R・W：それは面白い。我々イギリスのパーカッションの伝統は、私の知っている限りでは、ダンスミュージックと歌からきているが、東洋の巨大なパーカッションの伝統には、規則的なダンスのリズムからは全く離れているところがある。例えば、日本の伝統音楽を私はよくきくが、そこにあるアクセント、スペースといったものは本当に素晴しいと思う。

近藤：東洋以外の民族音楽はどうか。

R・W：今、西インド諸島、南アメリカのパーカッションの伝統にとっても興味をもっている。それはアフリカのヨルバ族のパーカッションにとても似ているのだが、これらをきいて気がついたこと、すなわちアメリカの最高のジャズロックプレーヤー達が、ブラジルやキューバのリズムをもちいる時、とても問題があることに、私は言及したい。彼らはどういうものか、へまをやっているんだ。(笑) クロスオーバーのエキスパートの連中、例えばウェイン・ショーターは影響的にも、メロディ、ハーモニーの面でも大変感覚的にうまくブラジル音楽をとり入れていると思う。しかし、三連音符の流動的な組合わせということや、小節の頭と終りを控え目に言ったり、のばしたりするということには彼は無頓着に見える。又ある時、フルートのヒューバート・ローズ等有名ジャズロックミュージシャンのはいったロビー・ハンコックのレコードをもらってきてくれたんだが、その中で気になったのはビリー・コブハムのドラミングだった。彼はとてもやさしく、静かに演奏していたが、ずっとon, off, on, off, on, off……とやっているだけだった。それはブラジルやキューバのリズムのあり方とは全く違う。あなたがもしブラジルのパーカッション奏者、ミルトン・バナナ、オカシナ名前だが (笑) をきけば、私の言ってることをわかってもらえると思う。彼は、ある意味ではすごい[illegible]と言えるかもしれないが、[illegible]を超える流動性があるのだ。それに比べれば、アメリカのフュージョンは小節の頭とか、4小節とかいったものを気にしすぎて、明白すぎる様に思えてならない。大抵ブラジル音楽は、16小節や32小節単位のこくがりきたりの構成であるけれど、リズムセクションはずっと流動的にやっている。

近藤：あなたの意見を今のフュージョンの連中にきかせてやりたいものだ。(笑) (マイルス・ダイビスは70年代初めまでにリズムの複合性のもつダイナミズムに注目し、それを彼のバンドのリズムセクションに追求させたのだ。彼の影響をうけてフュージョンが出現したが、マイルスの真の意図、リズムの複合性、多方向へといくつかのリズムを同時に進めること、を理解して、マジメにやったフュージョンバンドはない。このことはいささか面白くない。——近藤私見)

ところでレゲエをどう思うか。僕はレゲエが好きで、特にボブ・マーリー&ウェイラーズのエレキベースとドラムスの関係は、これからのポップ・ミュージックの可能性を提示している、と思う。

R・W：私もレゲエをよくきく。彼らのドラミングは再び生気をもちこんだ。ドラムセットに新しい可能性を見い出したのだ。ダンス音楽におけるドラムセットの可能性は、10年前にすでに一つの限界にきて狭くなっていた。例えばビリー・コブハムはスピードを、ヘビィ・ロックは単純さを、パンクロックはやけっぱちを追求したが、それからはいずれもエネルギッシュだった。そこへ「軽さ」、「間」をもちこんだのがジャマイカの連中だったのだ。

私が最も嫌ってるのはバディ・リッチ系統のドラミングだ。それはビリィ・コブハムへと続いているんだが、彼らのドラミングはスネア・ドラム中心主義だ。それに比べ、私の好きなキューバのリズムではスネアドラムは一つの要素にすぎない。それと同様、レゲエドラムでは、スネアを全体の一つとしてつかっている。ちょうどフィリリー・ジョー・ジョーンズの奏法のように、全く軽く、カンとスネアをたたくだけだ。それにベースドラムをオフビートでたたくベースドラムがオンビートだと地面をはうような感じになるんだが、オフビートだともちあげられたような感じになる。それは今までの我々のだれもしなかったことだ。もちろん、レゲエも普通のロックのように4拍全部にベースドラムを打つこともやるけど、彼らはそれを一部分として使っているだけだ。レゲエのドラムには軽さと重さが同時にある。ロックのドラムセットでは、スネアドラムもベースドラムと同じように重みのある、似かよった音質をもっているんだが、レゲエでは、スネアもベースドラムもタムタムもそれぞれが全く違った音質の音を出す。レゲエのドラムでは、一つ一つの音が全くクリアーで分離独立しているんだ。それにレゲエのドラムセットはロックよりもっと小型でシンプルだし、小さい音をもっと生かしている。レゲエギターだって、ロックギターのようにはうるさくないし、もっとスペースを大切にしていて、ミュージシャン同志お互いによくきあうことも出来る訳だ。

近藤：素晴しい意見をありがとう。(笑) レゲエドラムでは、ベースドラム、スネア、シンバル等、それぞれから出るリズム、音質が独立してて、多方向へとむかうので、自由な空間の拡がりを生み出すことに見事に成功している。ロックドラムは、たくさんの音でうめつくすけど、一方向へのリズム、音質しかなく、カタ苦しい。この違いをみつめることは、大変重要なことだと思う。

> Zoom

ところであなたは今のイギリスのロック、シーンをどう思っているか。

R・W：今の私は、他のことにもっと興味があるので、それ程今のイギリスのロック・シーンのことを知らないが、最近一緒に演奏したポップ・グループ、ザ・スリッツといったところは好きだ。何故なら、彼らはパンクの後ジャマイカン・ミュージックの影響をうけながら実験的なことをやろうとしているからだ。それから北イングランドからきたTwo Tone(S)のグループも面白い、特に社会学的に。すなわちレゲエが髪はますます長くますますゆっくりとしたテンポで演奏し、パンクは、短い髪に、ますます早いテンポで演奏するといった。両極端へむかってる時、Two Tonesの連中が初期のジャマイカンミュージック、SKAを見つけたんだ。SKAはレゲエにくらべると、都会のケン騒感をもっていて、イギリスのミュージシャンは親近感をもったんだろう。実際、イギリス出身のジャマイカ人にしても、生粋のジャマイカ人とは違うんだ。Two toneは全くいいところをみつけたと思う。しかしながら、多くの人達がTwo toneはレゲエをしのぐ音楽をつくるだろうと思ってるようには、私は思わない。

それから、面白い話があるんだ。ザ・スリッツが以前、ドン・チェリーと一緒にイギリス・ツアーをした。その時の聴衆はみんな若いパンク・ファン。(笑)

彼らは全く熱心にドン・チェリーをきいたと言う。又、ポップ・グループの連中は、いつかサン・ラ・オーケストラをききにオランダまで出かけた、と言っていた。このことは私に、10年前を思い出させる。我々も当時の創造的なジャズミュージシャンの演奏をよくみにいった。それは彼らの音楽をコピーするためでなく、自分達が勇気づけられるためだった。

現在のメインストリームのロックについては、私は何もしらない。

近藤：パンクロックについてもう少し話してほしい。

R・W：まず政治的な面で特に興味深い。イギリスで、人種差別、偽善等が受け入れやすくなってた時期に、パンクは「そんなのはクソくらえだ。」と言ったんだ。でもパンクの連中が、ステージできらわれる様にふるまい、苦しみを叫び、クスリをやり死んでいくのは、もう全く古びたイメージだ。音楽的には、今までの主流のロックがきずきあげてきたものに対する反作用であって、むきだしのままのアイディア、芸術性の無視、一つの終末と言えるんじゃないか。

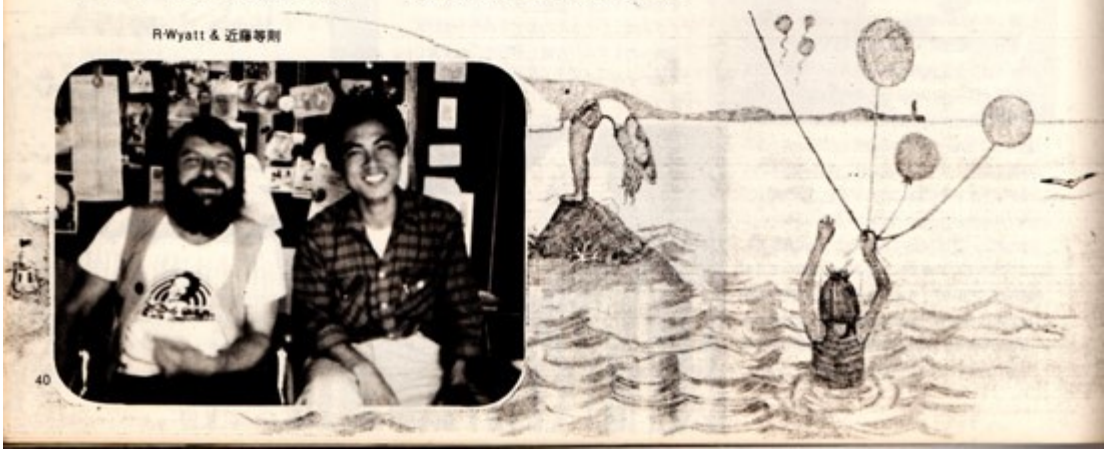
近藤：ディス・ヒート、ランダム・ホールド、アート・ペアーズ等ソフト・マシーンと深い関係にあるグループについてはどう思うか。

R・W：彼らは友人で、よく知っている。彼らは我々が70年代初期にやってたことをよりよく発展させてきていると思う。彼らは、70年代初期のプログレッシヴ・ロックの次の段階をやっているとは思うが、私にとってはもうそれ程重要ではなく、皮肉にも10年前を思い出させてノスタルジックなだけだ。あの後、世界中の民族音楽が私の頭をもっとOpen UPしてくれたんだ。

近藤：それではパタフィジカルについては。

R・W：それももうノスタルジアだ。当時、我々はヨーロッパの前衛の伝統の中にパタフィジックという概念がないので、それを取得するいい機会だと思ったんだが……。もう今はそれもアバンギャルドじゃないしね。

近藤：ところでデレク・ベイリーについてはどうか。



R・W：彼については面白い体験があって、私が日本の琴やベトナムの音楽をきくようになってからはじめて、彼のやってることがよくわかるようになったんだ。もちろん、デレクがそれらをコピーしたとは思わないし、一度もきいたことさえないかもしれないのだが、それらの音楽のもつスペースやサウンド、例えば弦を指でこする音等がデレクの不可思議にみえるギターに、ある確かなもののあることをわからせてくれたのだ。

近藤：それは面白い。というのは、去年の8月、ロンドンのICP Theatreでのカムパニーのコンサートで、僕はデレクとデュオをした。その始めの部分で、デレクのアコースティックギターが僕には琴のようにきこえてきて、「アッ、デレクは僕にジョークをやってるのかな。」と思ったことがあったんだ。(笑)

R・W：イヤ、彼は自然にそのような奏法をあみ出したんだと思うよ。

近藤：デレクのことから、琴の話が出たが、先程あなたが「世界の伝統音楽が私の歌をもっとOpen Upした」といったことのあたりをもう少し話してほしい。

R-Wyatt & 近藤等則

> Zoom

R・W：イギリス人が最初にきいた東洋の音楽はインド音楽で、それは大変ハーモニックで、複雑で、急なところがあり、官能的なカーペットのようだ。それに比べ、日本や中国の音楽は、官能的なものを欠いていて、冷ややかで、ドライにきこえた。でも自分の音楽があまりに急がしく、厚味が乏るように思いはじめるようになり、それは例えばコルトレーンの音楽にも言えると思うが、それに比べ、琴音楽等は、もっと余裕があって、空間的で、かわいている。自分のこれから求める方向は、これだと思うようになり、この5年間変わろうとしている。このことはどっちがいいとか、ということではなく、一つのことをやりつくし、あきた時全く違ったことに興味をもつことにたとえられるかもしれない。

最良の方法はまだわからない、変化あるのみ

近藤：あなたの最近の活動についてうかがいたい。最近シングル盤を一枚出したときいているが。

R・W：長い間レコーディングしなかったので、そのカンをとりもどすためもあってLPにしないでシングルでスタートしたのだ。しかしながら、自分の目指すところの新しい音を、どう組織して、どのように出すか、また興味の段階で、全く自信がない。ただ、パンクロックシーンの後イギリスでは一つの良い方向が生まれた。それは、マイナーでとるにたらない様な事だって、それはそれなりの価値があって、やっていいんだ、ということが了解されたことだ。そんな訳で、新しいシングルには、私の好きな2つのフォークソングを入れたんだ。一つは「カイマネラ」、他の一つは、「アライカ」。カイマネラはキューバのフォークソングで、作曲家はまだ生きている。そしてアライカはチリの歌だ。(両方共政治的な曲だ。)自分でピアノ、ボーカル、パーカッションをオーヴァー・ダビングした。

近藤：あなたは、もう2枚シングルを出す予定でいるとか。

R・W：次のでは、ビリー・ホリデイの「Strange Fruits」をやる予定だ。この曲をやることが危険であることは知っている。全くクレージーだ。(笑) でも何百人もの演奏家が毎日モーツァルトの曲をやってることを思うと、私がこの偉大な曲をやることが許されたっていいんじゃないか、と考えた訳だ。(笑) これは、この曲に対する私の尊敬のしるしでもあるし、自分の可能性への挑戦でもあると思う。実際、自分の作った曲を歌う時には直面しない、重要で難しい問題に、「Strange Fruits」のような曲をやる時には直面する。このことが好きなのだ。もう片面は、「シータ・パラード」をやろうと思ってる。これはアメリカのディスコ・ソングで、たまたまこの曲をきいて、気に入ったからだ。その他の予定としては、私の詩の朗読、そして私の歌のバックにバングラディッシュのミュージシャンの演奏を使おうと思っている。彼ら自身だけの演奏もシングルに使いたい。

以上のプランは数ケ月以内にレコードになるはずだ。

近藤：あなたが活動を再開して、大変うれしい。今まであなたが語ってくれた、リズムに対するあなた自身の新鮮で柔軟な考え方を生かしきった新しい音楽をあなたが表現してくれることを、本当に僕は期待している。

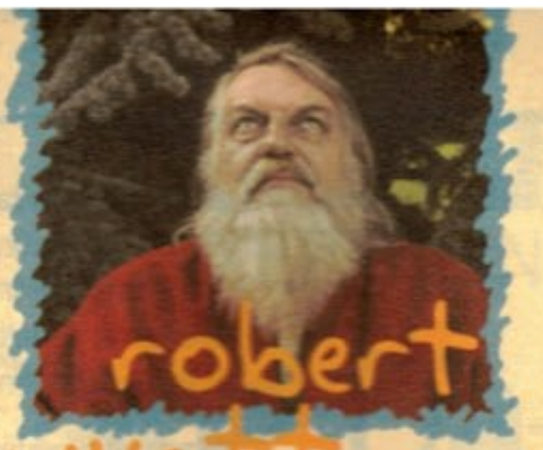
R・W：ありがとう。でも、まだはっきりした勇気はもてない状態なんだよ。今、私は様々なことに興味をもってるが、それらをどうオーガナイズしていいものか、どのように用いるのか、最良の方法がわからないんだ。ただ、私は、今、全くかわりつつあると思う。

1980年6月12日ワイアットの自宅にて

> Zoom

Previous article

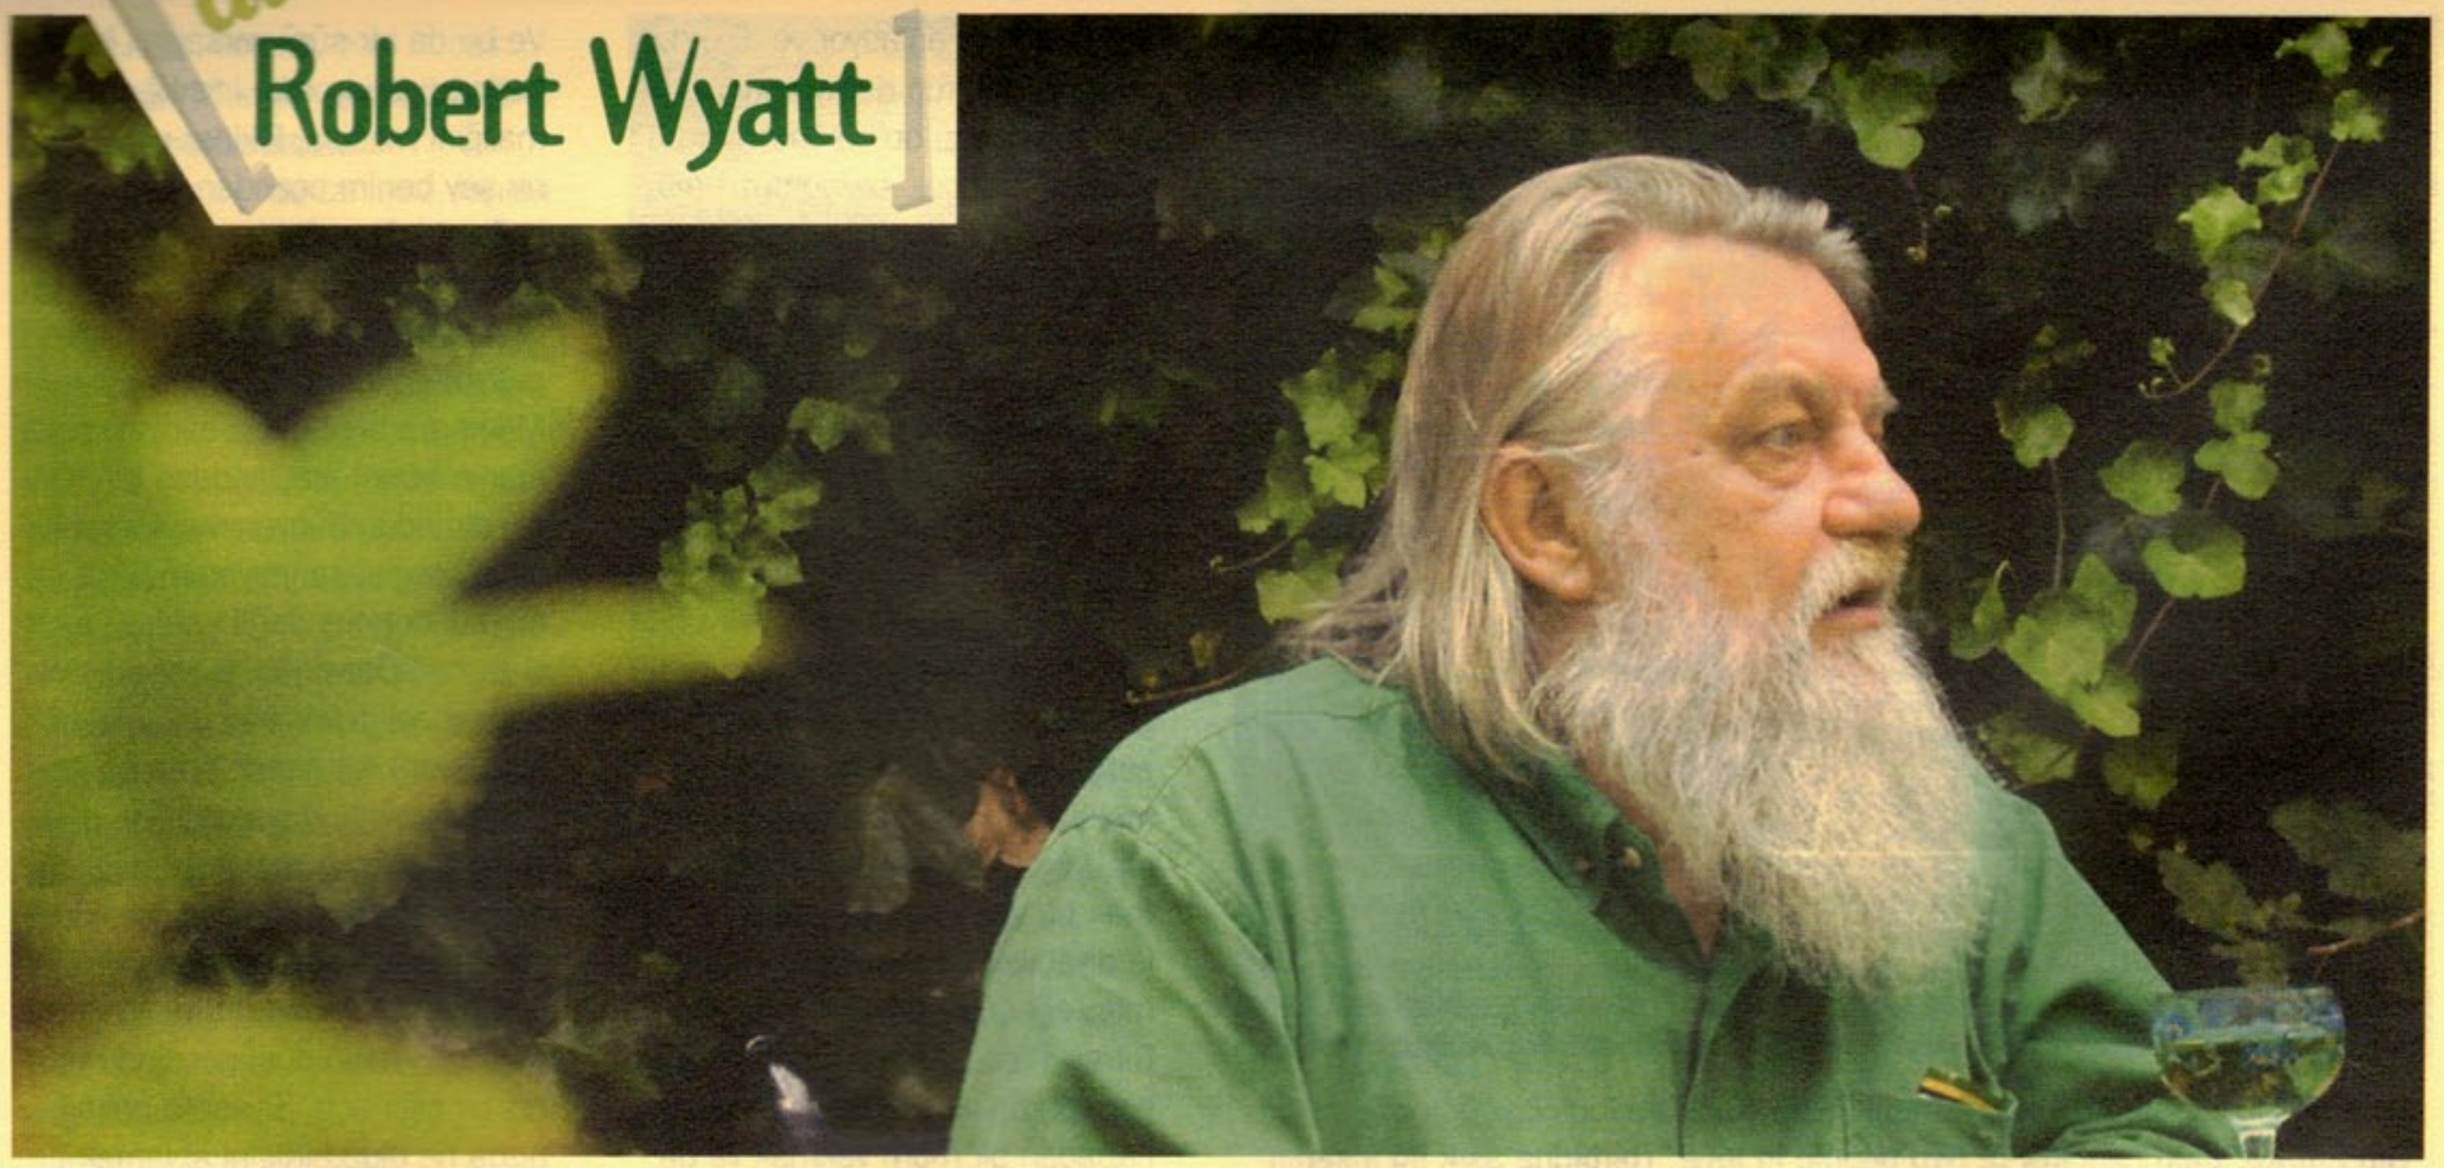
Back to the list



ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME



ROLL

112480 aralık 2003/12
3 000 000 TL

ROLL 81

THE BEATLES

Robert Wyatt

Hiçbir kalıba, hiçbir kategoriye sığmayan bir adem... Caz, rock, psikedelia, minimal nağmeler, Akdeniz, Afrika, deney deney üstüne... Davul, vurmalılar, tuşlular ve melek gibi bir ses... 60'ların ortalarından bugüne, bazen ön saflarda, bazen gölgede... Şair, melodist, marksist... "Strange Fruit"in, "Shipbuilding"in, "Biko"nun, "Enternasyonal"in müthiş yorumcusu... Kendini epeyce özlettikten sonra "Cuckooland" albümüyle çıkagelen modern müzik aleminin baba erenlerinden Robert Wyatt'a bir telefon çakıp uzun uzun muhabbet ettik, dere tepe düz gittik.

HARİKA HAYALETLER

Londralısınız; kimi tutuyorsunuz? Chelsea'yi mi, Arsenal'i mi?
Robert Wyatt: Arsenal'i.
Joe Strummer da Arsenalliydi...
Öyle mi? Arsenal bir Londra fenomenidir. Bir saniye, gidip bir sigara alayım. (Guardian gazetesi günde üç paket içtiğini yazıyor) Kusura bakmayın, tiryakilik işte. Arsenal'den bahsediyorduk, değil mi?
Aslında Strummer'dan bahsediyorduk...
Clash'in patladığı günlerde çok yoğun çalışıyordum ve daha çok dünya müziğiyle ilgiliydim. Doğru dürüst dinleyemedim onları, ama haklarında çok olumlu şeyler duydum, kıyak herifler olduğu belli. Özellikle Strummer. Mühim insan. Fikirleri, tarzı, tavrı...
Son albümünü, "Global A Go Go"yu dinlemiş miydiniz?
Maalesef, ama güzel isimmiş...
Yeni albümünüz "Cuckooland"de bizim favori parçamız "La Ahada Yalam", sizinki hangisi?
Benimki de "La Ahada Yalam". O kadar güzel çaldılar ki... Gilad Atzmon, İsrail doğumlu bir Britanya yurttaşı. İsrail ordusunda da görev yapmıştı. İsrail'i terketmesinin sebebi, o klastrofobiye tahammül edemez hale gelmesi. İsrail ordusunun ruhsal narsizminden bunalmıştı. Sürekli kendi kabilesine tapınmak istemedi. Müzik tahsili yapmış. Cazı, Arap müziğini, Türk müziğini iyi biliyor. Onun için bu kadar ilginç bir caz klarnetçisi. Dünyanın birçok yerinde bu tür melezlemeler revaçta. Ama Gilad, kökleri Doğu Akdeniz kültüründe olan bir müzisyen. Yahudi ve Arap. Ve tabii kaçınılmaz olarak Osmanlı. Bu tarih müziğinde temayüz ediyor, bu da klarnet çalışını müthiş zenginleştiriyor. Gilad'ın "La Ahada Yalam"ı çalışında bir Osmanlı-Türk havası hissediliyor. Avrupa dışı bir armonik unsur var, aynı zamanda gelişmiş bir yapı, Akdeniz'in herhangi bir yerinde bir folk ezgisi olabilecek sound'da. Türkiye, Yunanistan, İtalya, Fransa; gitar kısmı o ülkelerden herhangi birinden olabilir. Ya da ortada bir yerden, Malta ya da Sardunya'dan. Armoni yapısı itibariyle. Batı kulağının aşina olduğu bir ezgi, aynı zamanda kesinlikle Avrupalı değil.

Fikirler bir ortam yaratır, eğer üşüyorsanız sizi ısıtır. Bir şeyi anlamanızın verdiği bir sıcaklıktır. Fazladan bir mum yakmak ya da avizeye bir ampul eklemek gibi.

"Lullaby For Hamza"yı (Hamza'ya ninni) dinlerken Gilad Atzmon'u düşündük ister istemez, intihar bombacıları hakkında neler geçiyor aklından acaba diye. Hamza, şarkıdaki öyküye göre, ilk Körfez Savaşı'nda doğmuş, şimdi 12 yaşında olmalı. 12 yıldır bütün gördüğü, savaş, ambargo, yeniden savaş ve şimdi de işgal. İnsan merak ediyor, bundan üç-dört yıl sonra Hamza nasıl biri olacak? Pekâlâ bir intihar bombacısı olabilir...
Muhtemelen. Kesintisiz bir fasit daire bu. O şartlar içindeki insanların çaresizlikten çılgınca işler yapması kaçınılmaz. İyi örgütlenmiş bir siyasal yapı olmadığında güdüsel eylemler ortaya çıkıyor. Dışarıdan bakıldığında ne denli çılgınca görünürse görünsün, anlamaya çalışmak lazım.
Albümün ilk şarkısı "Just A Bit"i "The Selfish Gene" (Bencil gen) adlı kitabıyla uluslararası ün kazanan Richard Dawkins'e ithaf etmişsiniz...
Evet, çünkü onun desteğe ihtiyacı olduğunu düşünüyorum, çok acımasız eleştirilere maruz kalıyor. Medya, tanrıyı ve kutsal kitapların söylediklerini reddediyor diye çullanıyor, bilim camiası da indirgemecilikle suçluyor. Bence Dawkins, bu gezegenin sihirli bir yer olduğuna inanıyor ve mahvedilmesine karşı çıkıyor. Bir bilimadamı olarak, insanoğlunun evrimini, bu evrimin dinamiklerini izah etmeye çalışıyor. Bunu da genleri temel alarak yapıyor. Bunun indiregemecilikle alâkası yok. Genler, maddî hayatın temel ögesi. Bu dünyada en sihirli şey maddî gerçekler. Dawkins'in "astroloji büyüleyici gelebilir, ama asıl sihirli olan astronomi" tespitine hayranlık duyuyorum. Elbette hepimizin batıl tarafları, irrasyonel bağlılıkları var. Öte yandan evrim gibi, genler gibi gerçekler var, biz inanmasak da var...
Albümün ikinci şarkısı, "Old Europe", Donald Rumsfeld'in Almanya ve Fransa'yı Irak savaşına karşı çıktıkları için "eski Avrupa" diye nitelemesine bir gönderme galiba...
Rumsfeld gibilerinin Atlantik'in bu yakasının tarihi hakkında söyledikleri bana hakaret gibi geliyor. Banal bir çizgi film gibi. Hiçbir derinliği olmayan, bilgi fakiri bir yaklaşım. Dünyanın en muktedir insanlarının bu zihniyette olması ürpertici. Nasıl oluyor da İtalya ve İspanya yeni Avrupa da, Almanya ve Fransa eski 1975'de, kırk yılın başı, Robert Wyatt ve arkadaşları bir hit şarkı yapıp İngiliz listelerine girdiler: Monkees'in yorumuyla bilinen Neil Diamond bestesi "I'm A Believer". Bu başarının ardından, doğal olarak BBC televizyonundaki Top Of The Pops programına katılmayı hak ettiler. Ancak BBC yetkilileri tekerlekli sandalyedeki bir şarkıcıyı programa çıkarmak istemedi. Dinmeyen protestoların ardından sonunda program çekildi ve yayınlandı. Bu fotoğraf o günün anısı.

Avrupa? Tek kıstas, ABD'nin müttefiki olup olmamak.

"Old Europe"daki "ghosts of two people in love" (birbirine aşık iki insanın hayaletleri) dizesinde kastedilen Juliette Gréco ve Miles Davis mi?

Evet, Gréco ve Davis. Sözleri Alfie (Wyatt'ın hayat arkadaşı Alfreda Benge) yazdı. Albümdeki şarkıların birçoğunun sözleri Alfie'nin. Ben çok şanslı bir müzisyenim. Şöyle bir paradoks var: Ben müziği ve duyguları yazıyorum, ama çoğu zaman sesimi oraya nasıl koyacağımı kestiremiyorum, Alfie imdadıma yetişiyor. Hangi sözcüklerin kendimi ifade etmeme yarayacağını bulup çıkarıyor.

Hayalet denen şey çok da güzel olabilir. Benim hayatım harika hayaletlerle dolu. Gerçi Gréco hayatta ama, benim için çok güzel bir hayalet. Çok alımlı bir kadındı. 1950'lerde çok popülerdi, Fransız şanson geleneğinin önde gelen temsilcisiydi. Rock'n'roll'dan önce dünyada envai çeşit popüler müzik vardı. Pop sadece gençliğe hitap eden bir müzik değildi, her yaştan insanların dinlediği müzikti. Şansoncular, savaş sonrası Paris'in sesiydi ve büyük çoğunluğu sol düşünceye bağlı insanlardı. Irk, din, dil farkı onlar için mesele değildi. Gréco kariyerinin başlarında Miles Davis'le bir aşk yaşadı, böyle bir şey o günlerin Amerika'sında tahayyül ötesiydi. Gréco-Davis ilişkisi, Fransa'nın siyah Amerikalılara kucak açısını temsil ediyor aynı zamanda. Amerikalıların kabullenmeye yanaşmadıkları bir gerçek bu. Fransa'nın Amerikan kültürüne çok önemli katkıları oldu. Amerika'daki Fransız düşmanlığının sebebi, Fransız düşünürlerinin büyük bir bölümünün solcu olmasıydı.

Albüme "Cuckooland" adını vermeniz nasıl oldu, mânası ne?

Birçok yan anlamı var. Ama temelde "cuckoo" (guguk kuşu), kafayı yemek demek. Argoda "guguk kuşu yuvası" akıl hastanesi için kullanılan bir deyiş. "Cuckooland" de, kabaca tımarhane ya da deliler ülkesi anlamına geliyor.

"Cuckooland"i dinlerken akla Ken Kesey ve "Guguk Kuşu" geliyor.

Romanı okumadım, ama filmi seyrettim. Hepimiz içerdeyiz, hepimiz sapıtmış haldeyiz. Ben çok aklı başında olduğumu iddia etmiyorum, ama ülkeleri yönetenler kafayı hepten sıyırmış durumda.

Albümün düşündürdüğü isimlerden biri de Edward Said...

Ölümüne çok üzüldüm. Çok önemli bir düşünürdü. Filistinliler karikatürize edilirken, Said çıkıp gerçeğin öyle olmadığını gösterdi. Kendi kimliği de, realitenin sanıldığından çok daha karmaşık olduğunu gösterdi. Filistin'de sadece müslümanlar yok, hıristiyanlar ve başka dinlerden insanlar var. Ayrıca, bütün müslümanlar fundamentalist değil. Filistin toplumunun ekseriyeti seküler. Said'in özellikle yahudi orkestra şefi Daniel Barenboim'la birlikte Arap ve İsrailli müzisyenlerle gerçekleştirdiği proje, müziğin ve genel olarak sanatın din, dil, ırk gibi yapay sınırları nasıl ortadan kaldırdığının dört başı mamur bir örneğiydi... İsrailli basçı Yaron Stavi, Daniel'le birlikte çalışmış, Said'le de tanışmış. Yaron'la tokalaştığımda Said'le tokalaşmış gibi hissediyorum kendimi. Said müstesna bir düşünürdü, medenî aklın sesiydi.

Bir söyleşinizde çarpıcı bir kavram kullanıyorsunuz: "Umutsuz iyimserlik".

Aslında bütün albümün özeti bu. Talih meselesi hep hüzünlü ve komik gelmiştir bana. Çingenelerin geçim kaynaklarından biri umut satmaktır, güzel gelecek, yaver giden bir talih... Ama bunlar kendileri için geçerli değildir. Onları iyi bir geleceğin beklemediği ortadadır... Umut, çok hayatî bir güç. İnsanları yaşama bağlayan, eyleme geçiren bir dinamik. Ama nasıl oluşuyor, bunu bilemiyorum. Randy Newman bu konuda çok güzel şarkılar yazdı. Tanrı üzerine yazdığı şarkı çok matrak. Tanrının gözünden yazmış, insanoğlunu ne kadar çok sevdiğini anlatıyor ve diyor ki: "Çölde koşturup duruyorsunuz, beni arıyorsunuz, bu çok marazi, bu nedenle sizi çok seviyorum." (gülüyor)

Bir söyleşide, "insan fikirlere de aşık oluyor" diyorsunuz...

Mümkün tabii. Fikirler cazibelidir... Bunu nasıl anlatacağımı bilemiyorum, aslında ben müzik dışında sözcükleri kullanmayı beceremiyorum. Sözcükler, müzik içinde kendi başlarına bir ışık taşıyabiliyorlar, ama onları müziğin dışına çıkardığınızda fazla kesin oluyorlar, hissettiğim şeyleri ifade ederken maksadımı aşan bir kesinliğe bürünüyorlar. Bu nedenle hiçbir zaman bir yazar olamayacağım. Şöyle diyebilirim: Fikirler bir ortam yaratır, eğer üşüyorsanız sizi ısıtır. Bir şeyi anlamanızın ya da bir şeyi görmenizin verdiği bir sıcaklıktır. Fazladan bir mum yakmak ya da avizeye bir ampul eklemek gibi.

Sizin aşık olduğunuz fikirler neler?

Ergenlik günlerimde, Paris'i mesken tutmuştum bir süre. Dürüst olmak gerekirse, seks, müzik ve yeme-içme dışında bir şey düşünmüyordum. Fakat o şehirde bir ruh, felsefî bir şemsiye vardı. O sıralarda bunun çok bilincinde değildim belki. Bir atmosfer yaratılmıştı, bunu yaratan insanlar benden çok daha edebî, akademik insanlardı, ama bana da ulaştı. O atmosferde Marksizm merkezi bir yere sahipti.

Miró hiyeroglif gibi resim yapıyor. Bir fikrin özünü bulup ona görsel bir biçim verme arayışı Miró'nunki. Ben de müzikte aynı arayıştayım.

BELLİ BAŞLI ESERLERİ

Kevin Ayers, R. Wyatt, Mike Ratledge
Soft Machine 1968

SOFT MACHINE: Volume One, 68 • Volume Two, 69 • Third, 70 • Fourth, 71 MATCHING MOLE: Matching Mole, 72 • Little Red Record, 72 SOLO: The End of an Ear, 71 • Rock Bottom, 74 • Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard, 75 • Nothing Can Stop Us, 80 • Robert Wyatt, 81 • The Animals Film, 82 • Old Rottenhat, 85 • Dondestan, 91 • Floatsam Jetsam, 94 • Short Break, 96 • Shleep, 97 • Cuckooland, 03

EP'lerini, session ve bootleg kayıtlarını da hesaba katarsak ipin ucu kaçar. Ama bu sonbahar, "Cuckooland"le aynı sıralarda yayınlanan iki albümü analım: Ressam Jean-Michel Marchetti'yle 97'den bu yana oluşturdukları projenin dördüncü kısmı "M4W" ve 72, 74, 2003 kayıtlarından derlenen "Solar Flares Burn For You".

Ve bu da bir sürü varsayımı beraberinde getiriyordu. Irkçılığın saçmalığını mesela. Fikirler organik bir şey benim açımdan, kendimi bağlı olduğum fikirler olmadan düşünmem mümkün değil.

Bunların başında da Marksizm geliyor galiba...

Marksizm benim için dünyayı anlamanın temel araçlarından biri. O açı olmadan dünyanın anlaşılabilir olabileceğini sanmıyorum.

Miyadı dolmuş değil yani...

O zaman Darwin'in de miyadı doldu, sanayi devriminin de –elektronik devrim var şimdi. Ama bu süreçlerin nasıl ortaya çıktığını, dünyayı ve hayatlarımızı nasıl değiştirdiğini, tarih denen şeyin ne olduğunu Marx'a başvurmadan anlayabileceğimizi sanmıyorum. Marx'ın tahlilleri, insan düşüncesinde müthiş bir çığır açtı. Siyasete baktığınızda ne olup bittiğini anlamak için, insanlar ve ülkeler arasındaki ekonomik ilişkilere bakmak gerekiyor. Bugün dünyadaki çatışma, genel olarak din veya kültürel farklılıklar retoriği çerçevesinde izah ediliyor. Ama, o çatışmaların gerçek nedenini, ekonomik gerçeklere bakmadan anlamak mümkün değil. Tarihe, kralların karizması perspektifinden bakanlar gerçekliği fena halde ıskalıyor bence.

Aşklarınızdan biri de İspanyol ressam Miró, değil mi?

Miró'nun bütün resimlerini çok seviyorum. Bir kere İspanyol olmak gibi bir avantajı var. İspanya resim için harika bir yer. Işık olağanüstü, mavisi müthiş, olağanüstü bir gökyüzü, hele geceleri. Miró'nun eserleri giderek kaligrafik hale geldi, neredeyse Japon kaligrafisi gibi. Görsel bir yazı adeta, bir hiyeroglif gibi resim yapıyor, hiyeroglif de kaligrafiye dönüşüyor bir noktadan sonra. Bir fikrin özünü bulup ona görsel bir biçim verme arayışı Miró'nunki. Ben de müzikte aynı arayıştayım.

Albümde Greta Garbo'ya da atıf var. Onunla ilişkiniz nasıl?

Yalnız kalmak, gözlerden ırak olmak istemesiyle ün yapmış bir insan. Sanırım asıl sebep, Hollywood'un halkla ilişkiler aygıtının –o günlerin paparazzilerinin– onu çok taciz etmeleri. Başa çıkamadı demek ki, sürekli izlenmek bir korku yaratmış olmalı. Medyanın güya toplum adına gösterdiği ilgi, sevgi ve şefkate dayalı bir ilgi değil, kötücül bir ilgi... Garbo öteki Hollywood yıldızları gibi bu ilgiye açık değildi, kendini medyaya arz etmiyordu. Bu yönü beni cezbediyor, güzelliği ayrı bir sohbet konusu. (gülüyor)

Carla Bley de hayranlık duyduğunuz kadınlardan biri galiba...

Evet, şahane bir kadın, bütün ailesi öyle. Kızı, kocası, eski kocası...

Kızı Karen Mantler yeni albümünüzün konuklarından...

Carla'yla otuz yıldır tanışırız, kızının şarkıcı olduğunu söylemişti... Ben de yeni bir albüm hazırlığındaydım, böylece yollarımız kesişmiş oldu. Karen minicikti ilk tanıdığımda, ikimiz de onun anne-babasından etkilendik. Michael Mantler'ın trompeti beni çok etkilemiştir.

Bir ortak dostumuz var galiba: Paul Haines.

Ah, çok özlüyorum onu. Ailesiyle temastayım. Karısı Jo çok tatlıdır.

İstanbul'a bir caz festivaline gelmişti, güzel bir gün geçirmiştik...

Kanada'da bir caz dergisine de nefis bir makale yazdı, o festivalle ilgili. Türkiye'ye hayran kalmış. Kızı Emily de müzisyen ve çok başarılı. Paul bir deryaydı, mükemmel bir müzikologdu.

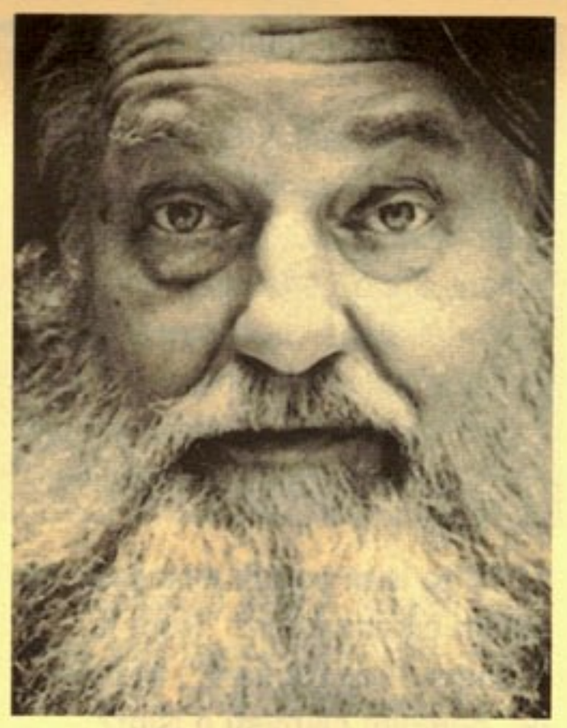
Şiirlerini sever miydiniz?

Bayılırdım. Birkaç yıl önce, Kip Hanrahan'la yaptıkları albümü dinledim. Şahane... Yazışıyorduk, birbirimize kasetler gönderiyorduk. Çok özlüyorum onu. Onların kuşağına çok imreniyorum, çünkü cazın en iyisini onlar dinlediler. Lester Young'ı, Miles'ı zirvede olduğu zamanlarda...

Albümde bir de Buddy Holly'nin ünlendirdiği "Raining In My Heart" var...

Buddy Holly ergenlerin ilacıdır. 15-16 yaşında, bir kafedesiniz, etrafınızda fıstık gibi kızlar... Fakat onlarla nasıl temas kuracağınızı, ilgilerini nasıl çekebileceğinizi bilemiyorsunuz. Ve jukebox'ta Buddy Holly imdadınıza yetişiyor. Bir şey söylemenize gerek kalmıyor, sizin yerinize o her şeyi söylüyor.

"Raining In My Heart"ı seçmenizin bir özel bir sebebi var mı?



Çocukluğumdan beri severim. Çocukken sevdiğim pop şarkılarını hâlâ seviyorum. Arkaik bir versiyonunu yaptım. Bir 19. yüzyıl ilahisi gibi... (gülüyor)

Bir söyleşide The Sam The Sham'den "Wooly Bully"nin aşılamaz bir şarkı olduğunu söylüyorsunuz...

Du-tum aha, ı-hım aha, du-tum aha. Harika değil mi? Sözler de şahane. Bazı şarkıları aşmak mümkün değil. Hele bunun gibi saçma sözlü olanları. (gülüyor)

Onun bir de Türkçe versiyonu var, Erkin Koray adında rock'çu söylüyor. ("Şöyle Böyle") Tanıdığınız Türkiyeli müzisyenler var mı?

Müthiş bir davulcu vardı, olağanüstü bir adam... Okay Temiz! Bir de Nâzım Hikmet'in şiirlerinden yapılmış şarkıların olduğu Türkçe albümlerim var. Hikmet'in şiirlerini çok beğendiğim için almıştım, İngilizce çevirisinden okuduğum halde çok etkilenmiştim. Büyük şair.

Yves Montand'ın söylediği Nâzım şiirleri var...

Öyle mi! İşte size şanson geleneği! Yetişkinler için popüler müzik. Popüler müziği çok seviyorum, ama o kadar çok değerli şey gözardı ediliyor ki. Fransızlar siyasî olarak o kadar uyanık ki, Nâzım'ı ıskalamamaları doğal.

The Byrds ve Bowie'nin de Nâzım şiirlerinden yaptıkları şarkılar var.

Harika, bunu öğrendiğime çok sevindim. Nâzım'ı keşfetmişler, bravo onlara.

Birçokları için Soft Machine zamanlarından "Moon In June" adlı şarkınızın ayrı bir yeri var...

Kendi başıma plak yapmaya karar verdiğim sıralarda yazdığım ilk şarkılardan biridir. Baştan sona ben çalmıştım. O tecrübe sonraki şarkılarım için bir kılavuz işlevi gördü.

Bir yerde okuduk, size Şili'den yazıp sözleri istemişler...

Evet, insan şaşıp kalıyor. Fakat beni dinleyen insanlar coğrafî olarak çok dağınık. "Moon In June"un sözlerini isteyen çok oldu. Hatta Fransa'da bir dergi geçenlerde yayınladı da. Ama bana sorarsanız, o sözler pek öyle ahım şahım değil. Benim şöyle bir sorunum var: Sözleri nasıl kurmam gerektiğini tam kestiremiyorum. Sözlerin sorumluluğunu taşımak konusunda müzikte olduğu kadar kendimden emin değilim.

Albümde David Gilmour da var...

35 yıldır ahbabız. Çok nazik bir adamdır, zengin ve nazik. Bütün zenginler onun gibi olsa devrime gerek olmazdı. Çok da iyi bir gitarist. Ünlü olmanın şöyle bir dezavantajı da var, Pink Floyd gibi bir gruptaysanız, bu biraz anonim bir ün oluyor. Dolayısıyla, müzisyenleri o bağlamdan çıkarıp onları ünlü yapan marifetlerini sergilemek çok iyi oluyor.

Pink Floyd'un en çok sevdiğiniz şarkısı hangisi?

İkinci albümlerinde klavyecileri Rick Wright'ın yazdığı bir şarkı var. Slow bir şarkı, adını hatırlayamıyorum. Çok güzel armonisi var. Beni, klavyenin bir şarkıda nasıl kullanılacağına dair acayip etkilemiştir.

Syd Barrett'la da çalışmıştınız...

Syd'in "Madcap Laughs" albümündeki birkaç şarkıda davulu ben çaldım. Syd çok iyi bir şarkı yazarı, çok eğlenceli ve çok tatlı bir herifti. Bana hiç deli gibi gelmedi. Deli olan Syd Barrett değil, Tony Blair.

Son albümünüzdeki "Foreign Accents" şarkınızda (Yabancı Şiveler) İran'ın Şah dönemi öncesindeki başbakanı Musaddık'tan bahsediyorsunuz. Geçenlerde iktidardan devrilmesinin 40. yılında Batı gazeteleri ve TV'lerinde timsah gözyaşları döküldü Musaddık için.

Musaddık, İran'ın seçilmiş lideriydi. İran petrolünü millîleştirince, İngiliz-Amerikan ortak yapımı bir darbeyle iktidarına son verildi. Ve yalnız İran'dan sürülmedi, tarih kitaplarından da silindi. Batı'nın İran hakkında bildiği şundan ibaret: İyi bir Şah vardı, Batı dostuydu, sonra İran halkı birdenbire delirdi ve acayip dindar oldu. Musaddık diye birisi yaşamamış, İran'ın demokratik bir dönemi hiç olmamış gibi davranılıyor. İngiltere ve Amerika, İran petrolüne el koymak için İran'ın bağımsızlığını, kendi kaderini belirleme hakkını çiğnediler ve Musaddık'ın yerine Batı çıkarlarının bekçiliğini yapan Şah'ı koydular. Bunu hatırlatmak ve İngiliz-Amerikan yönetimlerinin ikiyüzlülüğünün altını çizmek için "Foreign Accents"da Musaddık'tan söz ediyorum. Amerika özgürlüğü ve demokrasiyi bayrak yapmıştır hep. Ama, tarihe baktığımız zaman, en azından benim ömrüm boyunca, hep tam tersi olmuştur, hep diktatörleri iktidara getirmiştir. Birçok ülke kendi haline bırakılsaydı, demokratik süreçlerle kendi kaderlerini belirleyebilirdi. Ama İran'da ve başka birçok yerde, Amerika müdahalesi ülkelerin demokratik gelişimlerine ket vurdu. Türkiye de bu örneklerden biri. Yunanistan da öyle. Birçok ülkenin siyasî kültürü Amerika'nın talepleri ve ihtiyaçları adına tahrip edildi, yolundan çıkarıldı, militarize edildi. Şimdiki anti-demokratik yapılar o kültürlerin doğasıymış gibi sunuluyor, ama Amerikan müdahaleleri olmasaydı, o ülkeler demokrasiyle yönetiliyor olacaktı. İnsanı çileden çıkaran bir durum bu.

Tarih denen şeyi Marx'a başvurmadan anlayabileceğimizi sanmıyorum. Tarihe, kralların karizması perspektifinden bakanlar gerçekliği fena halde ıskalıyor.

Yakın zamanlara kadar Komünist Parti üyesiydiniz, şimdilerde desteklediğiniz bir parti, bir hareket var mı?

Hiçbir partiye üye değilim. Bildiğiniz gibi, Komünist Parti harakiri yaptı. İngiltere'de siyasî anlamda bir ağırlığı yoktu, olmadı, ama olaylara başka türlü bakan insanları bir araya getiriyordu, katkıda bulunmaktan mutluluk ve onur duyduğum kampanyalar düzenlendi. Şimdi doğaçlama yapıyorum. Destekliyorum diyemeyeceğim. Benim gibi ileri yaşta, felçli bir şarkı yazarının desteğinden ne olacak ki? (gülüyor) Kim dünyanın başka türlü olabileceğini söylüyorsa, gönlüm onlarla...

Kimler mesela?

Hayatı, dünyayı demokratikleştirmek isteyen herkes. Noam Chomsky, Naomi Klein... Alternatif küreselleşme hareketi...

80 yılında, Stalin hakkında bir şarkınız var, "Stalin Wasn't Stallin."

Bunu Alexis Korner'ın radyo programında duydum. Bir gospel grubu, Golden Gate Quartet, 1940'lardan, o zamanlarda genellikle dinî şarkılar söylüyorlardı, arada bir de milliyetçi şarkılar. Bunlardan biri de bütün müttefiklere övgü düzen bir Amerikan savaş şarkısıydı. Ve o müttefiklerden biri de SSCB'ydi, Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin üçlüsü faşizme karşı ittifak içindeydi. Dünyanın ne denli hızlı değiştiğinin bir göstergesi bu şarkı. Komik de bir şarkı. İnsanlara

Robert Wyatt 1973'ün haziran ayında, üçüncü Matching Mole albümü için çalışırken, alkollü bir akşam dördüncü kattan düşerek felç geçirdi ve tekerlekli sandalyeye mahkûm oldu. O tarihten beri davul çalamayan Wyatt, sekiz aylık mecburi hastane konaklaması esnasında "Rock Bottom" albümünü hazırladı. Bu fotoğraf o albümden: Aynı günlerde evlendiği ressam eşi Alfreda Benge, Wyatt'ın bütün albümlerinin kapak desenlerini çiziyor.

ABD'nin müttefiklerini hatırlatmak için yaptım onu, Stalin Amerikalıların "Joe Amca"sıydı bir zamanlar.

Sizin Stalin'e bakışınız nasıl?

Bana hiçbir zaman hitap etmedi. Sekiz yaşındaydım öldüğünde. Çok uzak bir tarihî geçmiş gibiydi, Napolyon gibi neredeyse. O tür insanların kahraman gibi görülmeleri, tahtlarından indirdikleri imparatorların karikatürleri haline gelmeleri insanoğlunun doğası ve tarihi hakkında çok aydınlatıcı. Tarih bir de şunu gösteriyor: Bağımsız ve görece küçük, yerel hareketler, şahane ve cesur olabilir, ama büyük savaş makinalarına karşı pek şansları yok. IMF ve Pentagon çok güçlü, herkesi imha edebilir. Meksika hükümeti mesela, Amerikan hükümetinin hizmetkârından başka bir şey değil.

Brian Eno da var "Cuckooland"de...

Brian benim tam anti-tezim. Yeni çıkmış ne kadar teknoloji varsa hemen edinir. Benim o alemle hiçbir irtibatım yok, bilgisayarlarla filan... Ben ilkel bir müzisyenim, sadece ellerimi ve ağzımı kullanıyorum. (gülüyor) Kullanabildiğim bir makina yok. Brian stüdyoya elinde acayip cihazlarla geldi. Kulüp DJ'lerinin distorsiyon yapmak için, efekt yaratmak için kullandıkları dalgametrelerden. Onları, normalde asla kullanılmayacakları bir bağlamda kullanmak hoşuma gitti. Eski moda caz cümlelerine Brian'ın en son teknoloji harikalarının marifetlerini serpiştirdik.

DJ denince akla hiphop da geliyor, hiphop'la aranız nasıl?

İnsanların hoplayıp sıçraması, eğlenmesi, iyi vakit geçirmesi... Bir genelleme yapmak çok zor, ama etkisi açısından şöyle: Popüler müziğin büyük keşifleri, icatları hep siyah müzisyenlerden geldi. En azından benim hayatımda böyle oldu. Benim en çok ilgimi çeken o, dans tarafı değil. Bizim gibileri pek dansetmez. (gülüyor) Siyah popüler müzik, epey bir zaman pembe dizilerdeki siyah dünyasına saplanıp kalmıştı, hiphop'un bunu bertaraf etmesi harikulade bir gelişme oldu. Siyah Amerikalıların çok zengin, çok verimli bir dili var. Bu dil, hiphop sayesinde kamusal alana çıktı.

Sevdiğiniz, beğendiğiniz isimler kimler?

NWA (Niggers With Attitude) tavrını seviyordum. Onların tavrı beyazlara da sirayet etti. Eminem mesela çok güzel plaklar yapıyor.

Hiphop Amerika'ya özgü bir tür olmaktan çıktı, dünyanın dört bir yanına yayıldı. Türkçe hiphop da var mesela...

Evet, çok yaygınlaştı, Fransa'dan Brezilya'ya kadar birçok yerde popüler. Hiphop bütün dünyada dilin kullanımını özgürleştirdi, argonun kamusal alana çıkmasını sağladı. Popüler müzik geleneğinin, John Lennon ya da Randy Newman gibi istisnalar dışında becerebildiği bir şey değil bu.

1975'te ismi merak uyandıran bir albüm çıkarmıştınız: "Ruth Is Stanger Than Richard". Mânası ne, nereden çıkmıştı o isim?

Bir gün sarhoşken, "gerçek, hayal ürününden daha tuhaftır" (Truth is stranger than fiction) demek istedim, dilim dolaştı, "Ruth, Richard'dan daha tuhaftır"a (Ruth is stranger than Richard) yakın bir cümle çıktı ağzımdan. (gülüyor) Alfie'nin çok hoşuna gitti, "bunu bir şarkı adı yapmalı" dedi. Sonuçta yaptık. Bir gün sarhoşken siz de "Truth is stranger than fiction"ı birkaç kere hızlı hızlı tekrarlayın, bakalım ne çıkacak. (gülüyor)

David Gilmour zengin ve nazik biri. Bütün zenginler onun gibi olsa devrime gerek olmazdı. Syd Barrett da çok eğlenceli ve tatlı bir herifti. Deli olan o değil, Tony Blair.

1991'de, İspanyolca isimli bir albüm çıkarmıştınız: "Dondestan". Onun öyküsü ne?

Aslında iki sözcük, Donde "nerede", estan'sa "onlar", yani "neredeler?" Göç olgusuyla ilgilenmemin sonucuydu o albüm. Göç ebedi bir olgu. Bu gezegende sonsuz bir yerinde duramama hali var. Birileri bir yerlerden kalkıp geliyor, birilerini kovup oraya yerleşiyor, sonra sınırlar çiziliyor, derken başka birileri geliyor, aynı öykü yeniden başlıyor.

Bir söyleşide dünyadaki en düşündürücü ve hüzünlendirici şey köksüzleşme ve göçebelerle yerleşikler arasındaki ebedî aşk-nefret ilişkisi diyorsunuz...

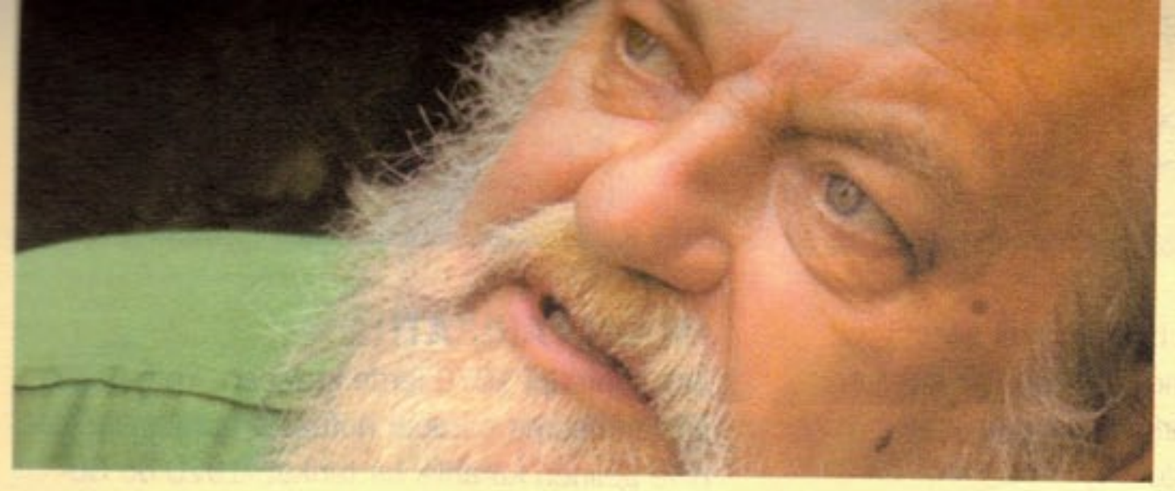
Bu benim şahsî fikrim değil. Tarih göçebelerle yerleşikler arasındaki ebedî mücadeledir. Mesela Osmanlılar, niçin ve nasıl, küçücük bir beylikken büyük imparatorluk haline geldi? Bu örneği siz Türkiyelisiniz diye verdim. Dünyanın birçok yerinde üç aşağı beş yukarı aynı durum söz konusu. Bunun hakkında çeşitli teoriler var... İklim değişikliği, yeni kaynaklar bulmak, mevcut kültürü korumak ve geliştirmek... İstikrar denilen şey imkânsız aslında. Çünkü insanoğlu hareket eden bir varlık, sürekli yer değiştiriyor, kendisine yeni ortamlar, yeni imkânlar arıyor. Belli bir yerde yerleşik olanlar da oraya yeni gelenlere karşı tavır alıyor, "kendi" topraklarına, yaşam alanlarına sokmak istemiyor. İnsanoğlunun öyküsü bu.

Söyleşi boyunca Osmanlılar'dan dem vurdunuz. Osmanlı tarihi özel ilgi alanınız mı?

Akdeniz'in tarihi öteden beri ilgimi çekiyor. Bir de son zamanlarda İslâm hakkında epey kitap okudum. Ve gördüm ki, müslüman toplumlar arasında çok derin kültürel farklılıklar var. Bu, onların İslâm'a bakışlarında da kaçınılmaz biçimde önemli rol oynuyor. İran'daki müslümanlıkla Türkiye'deki müslümanlık birbirinden çok farklı, Arap ülkelerinde de birbirlerinden çok farklı İslâmiyet anlayışları var. Zira, homojen bir Arap kültürü yok aslında. Batı'daki egemen anlayış bütün bu farklılıkları yok sayıyor, karşımıza homojen –ve nefret edilesi– bir İslâm çıkarıyor. Ben bir akademisyen değilim, ancak şunu gözlemliyorum: Büyük imparatorluklar yıkıldıklarında buharlaşıp uçmuyor, dünyayı belli bir şekle sokmuş oluyorlar, onların yerine kurulan yapılar ister istemez onların izini taşıyor. Avrupa'nın Büyük Roma'yla, Balkanlar ve Türkiye'nin de Doğu Roma ve Osmanlı'yla ilişkisi bu yüzden ilgimi çekiyor.

Sufizme ilgi duydunuz mu hiç?

Onun bir hakaret sözcüğü olduğunu sanmıştım. (gülüyor) Rough Trade'in sahibi Jeff Travis'le konuşuyorduk bir gün. "Niye daha sık albüm yapmıyorsun?" diye sormuştu. Ben de, "niye yapayım ki?" diye başlayan ve "mâna" kavramının etrafında yoğunlaşan bir cevap vermiştim. O da, "bu senin dediğin sufizm" demişti. Ne dediğini anlamamıştım. Sonra sözlüğe baktım ve öğrendim. Öğrendim, ama anladığımı söyleyemem.



"Anadolu zeni" diyebiliriz. Zen için de Japon sufizmi desek başımız ağrımaz. Jeff Travis, sufizmi bir tür ermişlik-dervişlik anlamında kullanmışsa haklı olabilir. Bize de ermiş gibi geliyorsunuz...

(gülüyor) O zaman bu söyleşi biter bitmez sufizm maddesini bir daha okuyayım.

"Shleep" adlı sondan bir evvelki albümünüz çok tezahürat toplamıştı...

90'ların ortasında kötü bir rahatsızlık geçirdim. Bunun semptomlarından biri, bir türlü uyuyamamaktı. Birkaç hafta hiç uyuyamadım. Çok acayip bir şeydi, uykusuzluk insanı hiçbir şey yapamaz hale getiriyor. Sürekli bir panik duygusu hakim, insanların ne dediğini anlamıyorsunuz, kastetmediğiniz şeyler ağzınızdan çıkıyor, dengeniz bozuluyor, sağa sola çarpıyorsunuz. Feci bir durum. İşte o zaman anladım ki, en ağır işkence uykusuz bırakılmak. Eskiden, Uluslararası Af Örgütü'nün raporlarında işkence yöntemleri arasında "uykusuz bı-rakma"yı görürdüm ve diğerlerinin yanında çok kötü bir şeymiş gibi gelmezdi. Birkaç hafta uykusuz kalınca ne büyük bir azap olduğunu idrak ettim. İnsanı darmadağın ediyor resmen. Nihayet uyuyabildiğimde, uykunun ne büyük bir lütuf olduğunu gördüm. Uyayabilmek ve rüya görebilmek büyük hazine. Birçok şey gibi, onun kıymeti de yokluğunda anlaşılıyor.

Niye "Sleep" değil de, "Shleep"?

(gülüyor) Londralı yahudilerin İngilizceye getirdikleri bir kelime oyunu bu. Bir kültüre dışardan gelenlerin o kültürün dilinde yaptıkları değişiklikler çok ilginç. Siyah Amerikalıların İngilizcesinin güzelliği de bu zaten. Yahudiler de İngiltere'de ve başka yerlerde benzer şeyler yaptılar. Mesela "Shmoney" derler, "ne 'money'si? –beş para yok" anlamında. "Sh", sıfırlayan bir ön ektir genellikle. "Shleep" de oradan geliyor, "ne 'sleep'i?" mânasında.

"Foreign Accents"ın düşündürdüğü bir şey bu: Yabancı şiveler her dile başka bir müzik getiriyor, hatta dili müzikalleştiriyor...

Kesinlikle. Onun için İngilizce olmayan kelimeleri ve özel isimleri kullanmak hoşuma gidiyor. Başka bir sound çıkıyor ortaya. Sonuçta benim enstrümanım sesim ve kendimi belli bir söz ve ses dağarcığıyla sınırlamak istemiyorum. Başka bir dilin sözcüklerini kullanmak bir sihir, bir esrar duygusu da veriyor. Katolikler dualarını Latince söylemekten hoşlanır, Arap olmayan müslümanlar da Arapçayı tercih ediyor dua ederken. Tuhaf bir sihri var, başka bir dilin sözcüklerini kullanmanın.

Beatles'ın "Michelle"i geliyor akla: " Michelle / ma belle / These are two words / that go together well". İngilizce sözcükler arasındaki Fransızca "ma belle" kıyak bir etki yaratıyor...

Değil mi! Nasıl da sihirli bir hava veriyor, dilin o bükülüşü. Paul Haines çok mahirdi bunda. İngilizce bir şiiri Fransızca imlâsıyla yazardı mesela.

Bob Marley'in sihrinin bir boyutu da İngilizcesi galiba. Anadili İngilizce olan birçok müzisyen –Keith Richards, John Lydon mesela– Jamaika İngilizcesine öyküdü...

Jamaikalıların İngilizcesi nefis. İngiltere'deki üçüncü kuşak Jamaikalıların bile İngilizceye öyle takla attırışları var ki... Dili acayip tazeliyorlar. Mücevhere "bling bling" diyorlar mesela. Özellikle elmas türünden ve sahte olanlara taktıkları isim bu. Çok güzel değil mi?

Son soru, belki de gına getirdiğiniz bir soru: Soft Machine.

Kader, n'apalım? (gülüyor) Reddettiğim, keşke olmasaydı dediğim bir şey değil Soft Machine. Ama, samimi olmak gerekirse, benim için uzatmalı bir ergenlik kederi. (gülüyor) Çok zekice bir iş yaptığımızı düşünüyorum, bütün zekice işler gibi, onda da sürüngen faktörü vardı. Genç insanların sürüngenlere özendiğini filan söylemiyorum. Ama genç insanlar kendilerini ifade etmek için öyle bir ateşle yanıp tutuşuyorlar ki, hinlik yapabiliyorlar. Soft Machine'de de hinlik vardı. Şimdi bir yetişkin olarak beni bayağı rahatsız eden bir nitelik bu.

Hiphop dilin kullanımını özgürleştirdi, argonun kamusal alana çıkmasını sağladı. Popüler müziğin, Lennon ya da Randy Newman gibiler dışında becerebildiği bir şey değil.

Hâlâ severek dinlediğiniz bir albüm, sevdiğiniz bir parça var mı?

Yok, çünkü beni gruptan kovduklarında bütün Soft Machine plaklarını çöpe atmıştım.

Yine de aklınızda kalan, hoşunuza giden bir şeyler vardır herhalde...

Elbette. Ama bir şarkı, bir albüm değil o. Davul çalmak çok hoşuma gidiyordu. Bağlam da, bizim yarattığımız, özgün bir bağlamdı. Ne rock'tu, ne cazdı, dolayısıyla kendi tarzımı yaratabileceğim bir bağlamdı. Bundan ötürü Soft Machine tecrübesine minnettarım. Kendi dilimizi yaratmıştık. Bir geleneğin içinde hareket ederek yepyeni bir dil yaratmak açısından Soft Machine çok önemli bir deney.

Yeni kuşaklara hangi Soft Machine albümünü tavsiye edersiniz?

Hiçbirini. Soft Machine'i boşversinler, Coltrane'in son işlerini dinlesinler.

Söyleşi: Yücel Göktürk

AHMET KAYA

Bu Aralık'ta
İlk Defa Dinleyeceğiniz
Onbir Yeni Şarkısıyla
Bizimle Olacak...

Tüm Müzik Marketlere
Duyurun!..

BİRAZ DA SEN AĞLA

CD•KASET

ROBERT WYATT - NA DRODZE DO ARTYSTYCZNE EMANCYPACJI (1968-1974)

Robert Wyatt.
Na drodze do artystycznej emancypacji (1968-1974)

Robert Wyatt jest nie tylko ikoną sceny Canterbury, ale także prominentną postacią rockowej awangardy. We wcześniejszych numerach naszego czasopisma (13, 24 i 32) pojawiały się obszerne teksty poświęcone działalności Soft Machine. Wszystkie dotyczyły okresu, gdy jego członkiem był Wyatt. Tym razem czas na jego wczesny dorobek solowy. To właśnie wtedy powstały najbardziej reprezentatywne albumy w jego dyskografii.

ALEKSANDER FILIPOWSKI

Fot. Cuneiform

I Korzenie tożsamości

Na wstępie warto pokusić się o nakreślenie korzeni tożsamości muzycznej naszego bohatera. Być może dzięki temu nieco lepiej zrozumiemy jego duchowy świat. Warto zatem najpierw zanurzyć się nieco w przeszłość, aby poszukać tam źródeł jego muzycznych fascynacji. Działalność kanterberyjskiego ekscentryka pięknie wpisuje się w etos niezależnego i niepokornego artysty, który nie boi się iść pod prąd. W latach będących przedmiotem naszego zainteresowania proponował muzykę, która była prawdziwym wyzwaniem dla słuchacza. Pionierom oraz krzewicielom nowych idei często przychodzi zmagać się z oporem materii społecznej. Warto zastanowić się, co określało specyfikę jego drogi twórczej, wedle jakich reguł rozwijał strategię artystyczną. Pytania można mnożyć. Zacznijmy jednak od początku…

Rodzice Roberta byli dobrze wykształconymi przedstawicielami brytyjskiej klasy średniej. Jego ojciec, George Ellidge, otrzymał tytuł magistra języka angielskiego i muzyki w Christ's College w Cambridge. Był także absolwentem wydziału prawa University Of Liverpool. Zawsze żywo interesował się muzyką klasyczną i nie była to tylko twórczość z odległych epok, ale także bardziej współczesna. Szczególnie gustował w muzyce z pierwszej połowy XX wieku. Do jego ulubionych kompozytorów należeli: Szostakowicz, Bartók i Hindemith. Matka Wyatta, Honor, była nauczycielką oraz dziennikarką, prowadziła również audycje w radiu BBC. Robert był synem urodzonym w drugim związku małżeńskim jego rodziców. Obydwoje zresztą mieli potomstwo już wcześniej. Jego ojciec miał syna Marka, później znanego fotografa, natomiast matka syna Juliana i córkę Prudence. Atmosfera w domu była bardzo ciepła i serdeczna. Mieszkający u państwa Wyattów George Neidorf dobrze zapamiętał klimat jego rodzinnego gniazda: Gdybyś chciał wybrać sobie idealnych rodziców, wybrałbyś rodziców Roberta. Wspierali go absolutnie we wszystkim, co tylko robił. W ich rodzinie zauważalna była wielka miłość, ogromne ciepło, pomoc i wzajemne wsparcie. Było to naprawdę bardzo otwarte miejsce, niezwykle stymulujące intelektualnie. Byliśmy bardzo zaprzyjaźnieni, to był wspaniały czas. Mieszkanie w tym domu było znakomitym doświadczeniem.

Gdy rodzina Wyattów przeprowadziła się do Canterbury zdecydowanie wyróżniała się tam swoimi poglądami. Rodzice Roberta byli zwolennikami socjalizmu. Bliskie były im kwestie społeczne, walka z wyzyskiem i feudalnymi pozostałościami Imperium Brytyjskiego. Honor Wyatt była bliską przyjaciółką znanego poety i powieściopisarza Roberta Gravesa. W tym czasie pisał właśnie swoją słynną powieść Ja, Klaudiusz. Dzięki tej zażyłej znajomości Robert miał dwukrotnie sposobność spędzić wakacje w posiadłości Gravesa na Majorce. Dla jego intelektualnego rozwoju miało to niepomierne znaczenie, stykał się tam bowiem z elitą najwyższych lotów. Niemały wpływ na rozwój duchowy naszego bohatera miało miejsce, gdzie pobierał edukację. W 1960 roku rozpoczął naukę w Simon Langton School. Była to jedna z najbardziej elitarnych szkół w Wielkiej Brytanii. Uczęszczało do niej kilku uczniów, którzy już wkrótce przejawiać będą ochotę do wspólnego muzykowania. Simon Langton School była typową szkołą dla brytyjskiej klasy średniej. Jej specyfiką było to, że była placówką przeznaczoną tylko dla chłopców. Na początku lat 60. uczęszczało do niej około 500 uczniów. Podobnie jak inne tego typu szkoły, miała charakter dość konserwatywny, oparty na starych wzorcach Imperium Brytyjskiego. Nie brak jednak głosów, iż na tle innych placówek tego typu, cechowała się liberalizmem. Oferowała uczniom wiele możliwości osobistego rozwoju w ramach dodatkowych zajęć, z naciskiem na szeroko pojętą kulturę. Surowo zabroniona była współczesna muzyka młodzieżowa, nie pozwalano także na jakąkolwiek przynależność do młodzieżowych subkultur, nie tolerowano modnych strojów i fryzur. Za łamanie obowiązujących przepisów wymierzano kary cielesne, co w ówczesnym systemie brytyjskiego szkolnictwa było czymś powszechnie spotykanym. Robert Wyatt nie miał najlepszych wspomnień: Była to straszliwie nudna średnia szkoła ogólnokształcąca. Tak w ogóle, jeśli chodzi o Canterbury, nie pamiętam dosłownie niczego, co oddziałałoby na mnie stymulująco.

Gdy rodzina Wyattów przeprowadziła się do Canterbury wyróżniała się tam swoimi poglądami. Rodzice Roberta byli zwolennikami socjalizmu. Bliskie były im kwestie społeczne, walka z wyzyskiem i feudalnymi pozostałościami Imperium Brytyjskiego.

Na późniejszych założycieli The Soft Machine zapewne większy wpływ miała atmosfera domu rodzinnego. Wykształceni rodzice z klasy średniej szybko zainteresowali swoje pociechy kulturą wysoką, która stała się ważnym czynnikiem ich duchowego i intelektualnego rozwoju. W 1961 roku w domu Wyattów zamieszkał George Neidorf, postać niezwykle ważna w muzycznej biografii Roberta, bowiem to właśnie od niego pobierał pierwsze lekcje gry na perkusji. W owym czasie Wyatt potrafił już grać na kilku instrumentach. Zawdzięczał to wcześniej pobieranym lekcjom. Pod wpływem nowych znajomości oraz sztywnej atmosfery Simon Langton School postanowił radykalnie odmienić swoje życie. W grudniu 1961 roku rzuca szkołę i wraz z Neidorfem oraz jego przyszłą żoną, Pry Phippard, wyrusza w długą wędrówkę, planowaną na dwa lata. Do tej pory Wyatt był dobrym uczniem, z pewnością bez trudu dostałby się na jakiś renomowany uniwersytet. Postanowił jednak nie przywiązywać wagi do formalnego wykształcenia. Jedną z pierwszych przygód muzycznych w jego życiu była gra w amatorskim zespole skiffle'owym. Próby odbywały się w piwnicy jego 14-pokojowego domu, noszącego nazwę Wellington House.

II The Daevid Allen Trio – The Wilde Flowers – The Soft Machine

Ważnym momentem w jego życiu było poznanie Daevida Allena, który pod koniec 1960 roku zamieszkał w domu jego rodziców. Allen miał spory wpływ na niespełna 16-letniego młodzieńca. Ogromną rolę odegrała jego obrosła już legendą walizka, zawierająca około 200 płyt, które słuchali namiętnie nowi znajomi z Canterbury. Przede wszystkim były w niej albumy z muzyką jazzową: kilkanaście krążków Theloniousa Monka, płyty Johna Coltrane'a, Charlesa Mingusa, Ornette'a Colemana, Erica Dolphy'ego, Sonny'ego Rollinsa, Cecila Taylora, Arta Blakeya i jego Jazz Messengers, Wesa Montgomery'ego, Charliego Parkera i oczywiście Milesa Davisa. Ponadto można było w niej znaleźć sporo pozycji z zakresu dwudziestowiecznej muzyki poważnej, tej bardziej eksperymentalnej (Karlheinz Stockhausen, John Cage), klasyków pierwszej połowy XX wieku, tworzących wówczas podglebie dla rozwoju nowoczesnej muzyki współczesnej (Igor Strawiński, Béla Bartók) lub nastawionych nieco bardziej tradycyjnie (Benjamin Britten, Darius Milhaud, Eric Satie). Wreszcie takie osobliwości, jak: muzyka z indonezyjskiej wyspy Bali, hinduskie ragi, muzyka z chińskiego teatru Noh. Trzeba wspomnieć również o literaturze, gdyż miała istotny wpływ na ich rozwój intelektualny. Teksty Wyatta na pierwszych albumach The Soft Machine w niemałym stopniu były pokłosiem fascynacji niepokorną dwudziestowieczną literaturą, by wymienić tylko surrealizm, dadaizm i twórczość beatników. Słuchając płyt przybysza z Australii młodzieniec odkrywał nowe fascynujące muzyczne kontynenty. Poznawał z wielkim zapałem twórczość takich gigantów jazzu, jak: Miles Davis, Dizzy Gillespie, Thelonious Monk czy też Sonny Rollins. Jego pasja przeniosła się także na działalność w szkolnym klubie jazzowym, któremu zaczął przewodniczyć wiosną 1961 roku. W czasie spotkań klubowych prezentował poznaną muzykę swoich nowych jazzowych idoli, uwielbiał prowadzić długie, namiętne dysputy na ich temat. Oprócz poszerzenia swojej wiedzy muzycznej, za sprawą Allena, po raz pierwszy zetknął się z marihuaną. Wkrótce zaczął prowadzić podobny styl życia.

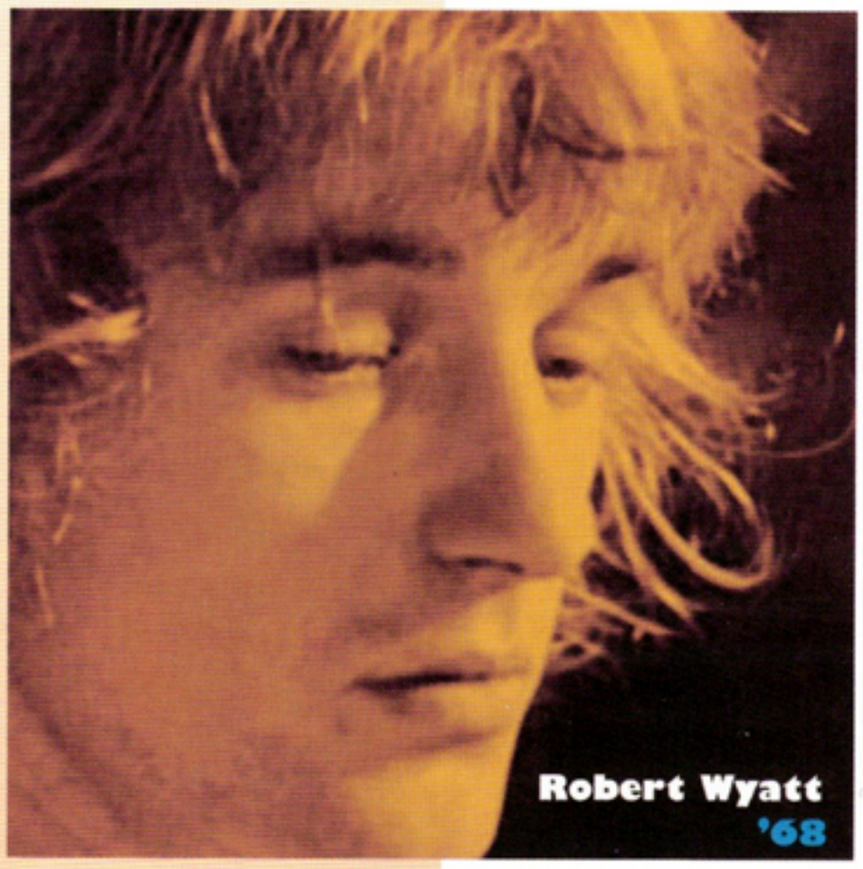
Na początku 1963 roku Wyatt i Hopper zamieszkują razem z Daevidem Allenem, Kevinem Ayersem oraz fotografem Tedem Bingem. Daje im to świetną sposobność do nawiązania działalności muzycznej, która już wkrótce objawi się w postaci The Daevid Allen Trio.

Na początku 1963 roku Wyatt i Hopper zamieszkują razem z Daevidem Allenem, Kevinem Ayersem oraz fotografem Tedem Bingem. Daje im to świetną sposobność do nawiązania działalności muzycznej, która już wkrótce objawi się w postaci The Daevid Allen Trio. Nagrania efemerycznej formacji ukazały się po latach na płycie Live 1963. Ten historyczny koncert odbył się w słynnym londyńskim klubie Marquee 3 czerwca 1963 roku. Na scenie pojawili się: Daevid Allen (gitara, śpiew, recytacje), Hugh Hopper (gitara basowa), Robert Wyatt (perkusja) i Mike Ratledge (fortepian). Ten ostatni wyrwał się na chwilę z Oksfordu, aby wspomóc przyjaciół w prestiżowym występie, który mógł być szansą wypłynięcia na szerokie wody. Nie był to jednak jeszcze ten moment… Cóż można powiedzieć o tych nagraniach? Z pewnością srogo zawiodą się ci, którzy będą doszukiwać się jakichś kanterberyjskich powiązań. Materiał wypełniający album to, pomimo swojego specyficznego ekscentryzmu, zupełnie inna muzyczna kraina. Porównywanie muzyki z tego występu z późniejszymi dokonaniami Soft Machine czy też innych grup z tego kręgu byłoby więc zajęciem dość karkołomnym. Nagrania początkujących artystów zostały zarejestrowane w siermiężnych warunkach na monofonicznym magnetofonie Philipsa z jednym mikrofonem. Słychać wyraźnie, iż tkanka muzyczna jest podporządkowana warstwie słownej. Partie instrumentów częstokroć sprowadzają się tylko do ascetycznego akompaniamentu, tak by nie odwracać uwagi od warstwy werbalnej. Egzemplifikacją tego trendu są takie utwory, jak: Love Is A Careless Sea, My Head Is A Nightclub, Capacity Travel. Zdarzają się także fragmenty pozbawione podkładu muzycznego. Wyatt w czasie tego koncertu posiadał tylko połowę zestawu perkusyjnego, co miało oczywiście wpływ na jego grę. Słychać wyraźnie, że w owym czasie był zafascynowany grą takich jazzowych drummerów, jak Philly Joe Jones, Jimmy Cobb czy też Elvin Jones. Nie był to jeszcze czas, gdy stworzył własny styl gry, oparty na syntezie pierwiastków jazzowych i rockowych. Próbuje często grać rytmy synkopowane, jednak rezultaty tych starań są dalekie od doskonałości. Wyraźnie brakuje mu jeszcze techniki i doświadczenia. Free jazzowe improwizacje wymagają wszechstronności, zmysłu strukturalnego kompozycji oraz empatycznego zrozumienia z partnerami. The Daevid Allen Trio przypominał grupę utalentowanych przyjaciół z ambicjami, którym brakuje jednak ewidentnie umiejętności.

Kolejnym etapem jego kariery była gra w The Wilde Flowers. W 1994 roku nieoceniona wytwórnia Voiceprint pokusiła się o wydanie archiwalnych nagrań zespołu. Tales Of Canterbury: The Wilde Flowers Story jest ogniwem łączącym twórczość The Daevid Allen Trio z The Soft Machine. Zdecydowana większość kompozycji to wersje demo. Zostały zarejestrowane w różnych studiach w latach 1965-1966. Na płycie umieszczono również trzy utwory grupy Zobe, w której udzielał się Brian Hopper. W ogólnym zarysie profil stylistyczny The Wilde Flowers nie odbiegał specjalnie od tego, co działo się wówczas na brytyjskiej scenie muzycznej. Ich pierwotny repertuar składał się niejednokrotnie z klasyków rock'n'rollowych i rhythm'n'bluesowych. Warto zauważyć jednak i niemałe różnice. Na ich dorobek składały się bowiem także jazzowe opracowania kompozycji Coltrane'a, Monka, Ellingtona. Mimo zasadniczo popowej orientacji, grupa nie miała więc zamiaru zerwać pępowiny łączącej ją z jazzowym idiomem. Wydatnie przyczyniło się to do tego, że żadną miarą nie mogła liczyć na zdobycie szerszej popularności. Porównując utwory The Wilde Flowers i The Daevid Allen Trio od razu zauważyć można odejście od estetyki free jazzowej, czy też szerzej, od jazzu. O ile elementy free zanikają zupełnie, to generalnie wpływy jazzowe występują w niewielkim stopniu. Dobrze słychać to choćby na przykładzie gry na saksofonie Briana Hoppera, który nie odwołuje się do modern jazzu, ale wyraźnie obraca się w kręgu wpływów muzyki popularnej. Odejście od radykalnej i bezkompromisowej postawy nie przyniosło im jednak żadnych wymiernych korzyści natury finansowej. Byli grupą anonimową. Czasami ukazywały się na ich temat artykuły w prasie lokalnej, relacje z koncertów, jednak w najmniejszym stopniu nie oznaczało to, iż uzyskali choćby niewielką popularność ogólnokrajową.



Słuchając archiwalnych nagrań formacji trzeba przyznać, że Wyatt poczynił postępy w grze na perkusji. O ile w The Daevid Allen Trio głównie mierzył siły na zamiary, jego synkopowane rytmy były nieco niezborne, to w czasach The Wilde Flowers stopniowo wypracowywał sobie zręby własnego stylu, który w pełni objawi się już na pierwszych dwóch płytach The Soft Machine. The Wilde Flowers to przede wszystkim początek nowej fascynującej przygody muzycznej, która do historii przeszła pod nazwą „scena Canterbury". Robert Wyatt niechętnie odnosił się do tej etykietki. Nie mógłbym o tym zbyt wiele powiedzieć… Nie pamiętam żadnego szczególnego ruchu, który miałby tu miejsce. Chodziłem tam do szkoły, ożeniłem się i mieszkałem przez pewien czas. (…) Jeżeli kiedykolwiek była jakaś scena Canterbury, było to wtedy, gdy The Wilde Flowers przeobrazili się w Caravan. Oni byli ludźmi z Canterbury. Grając w The Wilde Flowers perkusista od pewnego czasu był związany z Pam Howard, z którą zamieszkał wspólnie, gdy rzuciła Art College w Canterbury. Rodzice Howard nie byli zachwyceni wybrankiem jej serca, niejednokrotnie dochodziło między nimi do tarć. W końcu nie pozostało im jednak nic innego, jak zaakceptować ten układ. Para zawarła związek małżeński i wkrótce dochowała się syna Samuela. Małżeństwo nie przetrwało próby czasu, zakończyło się bowiem rozwodem w 1971 roku.

Lata 1966-1971 to czas aktywności w Soft Machine. Ten wątek potraktujemy marginesowo z racji tego, że był już szczegółowo omówiony we wcześniejszych numerach „Lizarda". Jedną ze specyficznych cech działalności Soft Machine były permanentne roszady personalne. Żaden album nie został nagrany w identycznym składzie! Zdaniem części zwolenników zespołu mogło to być czynnikiem oddziałującym negatywnie na jej artystyczny rozwój. Atmosfera w grupie była częstokroć bardzo napięta, co rusz pojawiały się spory personalne. Były one związane z tym, iż w Soft Machine znalazły się wybitne indywidualności. Osiągnięcie consensusu w takich warunkach nie było łatwe. W tym kontekście znamienna jest wypowiedź bohatera tego tekstu. Żałuję trochę lat 60. Ten okres to dla mnie pewne rozczarowanie. Myślę, że udało mi się wtedy wypracować dość szczególny, oryginalny sposób grania na bębnach i sprawiało mi to dużo radości, a w tamtych warunkach nie miałem szansy, by to rozwinąć. Wynikało to z relacji z ludźmi, z którymi współpracowałem w Soft Machine. I myślę, że to, co udało mi się wykształcić, taki osobny styl grania, pozostało trochę niedocenione i niezauważone. Różnorodność gustów członków The Soft Machine

Jedną ze specyficznych cech działalności Soft Machine były permanentne roszady personalne. Żaden album nie został nagrany w identycznym składzie! Zdaniem części zwolenników zespołu mogło to być czynnikiem oddziałującym negatywnie na jej artystyczny rozwój.

dobrze ukazuje inna jego wypowiedź z 1969 roku: Gdyby Hugh Hopper słuchał muzyki, to byłoby to „Uncle Meat" Franka Zappy, Miles Davis i Dizzie Gillespie. Mike słucha amerykańskiej awangardy lub kwartetów Debussy'ego. W mojej kolekcji płyt znajdują się Bee Gees, Sly & The Family Stone oraz Wilson Pickett i jego wersja „Hey Jude". Elementem łączącym ich gusta był jazz nowoczesny, nie dziwi zatem fakt, iż to właśnie ten gatunek na początku nowej dekady w coraz większym stopniu wyznaczał ich stylistykę.

W owym czasie Wyatt miał już w pełni skrystalizowane poglądy społeczno-polityczne. Klimat ówczesnej epoki miał istotny wpływ na światopogląd artysty. Znalazło to swoje odzwierciedlenie w radykalnych poglądach lewicowych. Niewątpliwie wzmacniały je takie wydarzenia, jak: wojna w Wietnamie, rewolta studencka z 1968 roku czy też klimat drugiej połowy lat 60., kiedy to radykalne poglądy lewicowe były popularne w środowiskach intelektualnych i studenckich w Europie Zachodniej i USA. Kapitalistyczna ideologia i jej specyficzna aksjologia to zdecydowanie nie był ten świat, z którym chciał się utożsamiać, awersję potęgował zapewne tak typowy dla tego systemu wszechobecny konsumpcjonizm. Nie można zapominać o atmosferze rodzinnego gniazda. Wyatt pochodził wszak z domu, w którym poglądy socjalistyczne były bardzo silnie ugruntowane. Od wczesnej młodości przesiąknął więc antykapitalistycznym klimatem, co zaowocowało później określoną postawą społeczną.

III Pierwsze próby samodzielnej wypowiedzi muzycznej – '68 (1968)

Pierwszym albumem solowym Wyatta był wprawdzie The End Of An Ear, wydany w grudniu 1970 roku, jednak my zaczniemy od roku, który często kojarzy się ze studencką kontestacją. Oto bowiem w październiku 2013 roku światło dzienne ujrzało wydawnictwo, na którym znalazły się jeszcze starsze utwory naszego bohatera. Chodzi rzecz jasna o '68, który jest cennym dokumentem swojej epoki. Jak wskazuje tytuł, lwia część materiału została nagrana w 1968 roku. Dokładnie było to w październiku i listopadzie, tuż po amerykańskiej trasie The Soft Machine. Wyatt skwapliwie skorzystał z propozycji Jimi'ego Hendrixa, aby zamieszkać u niego, mógł również korzystać z jego studia nagraniowego. Jimi Hendrix dał mi znać, że ma wolne łóżko w domu, który wynajmował wraz ze swoimi kolegami z zespołu. Z ogromną radością przyjąłem tę spontaniczną propozycję. Wówczas moim celem było stworzenie muzyki jakiej naprawdę lubię słuchać. I właśnie wtedy wyobraziłem sobie życie bez zespołu, zapragnąłem sam stworzyć muzykę, bo zawsze chciałem być jak malarz.

Ostatecznie na '68 trafiły cztery kompozycje. Wyatt jawi się na nim nieomal jak człowiek-orkiestra. Śpiewa, gra nie tylko na perkusji, ale także na organach Hammonda, fortepianie, elektrycznym fortepianie i gitarze basowej. Rozpoczynający album Chelsa wprawne ucho słuchacza rozpozna bezbłędnie. Tak, to wczesna wersja Signed Curtain, perełki, która lśniła na debiutanckiej płycie Matching Mole. Wersja z '68 jest bardziej surowa i dynamiczna. Brakuje jej jeszcze finezji i wyrafinowania. Rys melodyczny nie jest jeszcze tak szlachetny, jak w Signed Curtain, z kolei brzmienie jest mniej idiomatyczne. Mocno wyeksponowane organy Hammonda sprawiają, że zatraca się gdzieś kanterberyjska otoczka. Pomimo pewnych uchybień, utwór zdecydowanie zasługuje na uwagę. Najmniej udany jest trzyminutowy Slow Walkin' Talk. Jak na Wyatta, to dość konwencjonalna rzecz, pobrzmiewają w niej jeszcze echa rhythm'n'bluesa. Gościnnie na gitarze basowej zagrał... Jimi Hendrix. I w tym przypadku artysta sięgnie do szuflady i wykorzysta go w przyszłości – pojawi się na jego trzecim albumie solowym Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard (1975) pod zmienionym tytułem Soup Song. Okrasą wydawnictwa są dwie rozbudowane kompozycje: Rivmic Melodies i Moon In June. Pierwszą z nich znamy z wybornego Volume Two, The Soft Machine. W tym przypadku warto zwrócić uwagę na różnice. Mocno poszerzony został segment z brytyjskim alfabetem, dzięki czemu Wyatt ma sposobność rozwijać na szerszą skalę swoje wokalne poszukiwania. Wartością dodaną jest również długa fortepianowa improwizacja na bazie tematu Dada Was Here, miejscami przybierająca kształt dialogu tych instrumentów. W rezultacie powstała ciekawa faktura fortepianowa, miejscami mocno grawitująca w stronę free jazzowej i „poważnej" awangardy. W przeciwieństwie do wersji The Soft Machine, narracja jest bardziej konwencjonalna. Na koniec pojawia się Moon In June. Co ciekawe, podobnie jak w przypadku Third, w jego pierwszej części pojawia się tylko lider tego projektu. Sam gra na wszystkich instrumentach. W drugiej części pojawiają się Hugh Hopper i Mike Ratledge. Podobnie jak na Third, znowu możemy podziwiać doskonały zmysł improwizatorski muzyków. W tym przypadku Wyatt, ciesząc się swobodą artystyczną, pokusił się o dodanie partii wokalnych. Ciekawe są fragmenty, w których pojawiają się jednocześnie brzmienia organów Hammonda i Lowreya. W kontekście kanterberyjskiego brzmienia takowy sound jest niestandardowy. Z dzisiejszej perspektywy '68 można określić umownie „albumem zerowym" artysty. Dzięki niemu możemy w pogłębiony sposób zapoznać się z ewolucją jego twórczości. Trzeba pamiętać o tym, że materiał nie jest dopracowany, całość brzmi dość surowo. Na pewno przydałoby się go trochę dopieścić, popracować nad niektórymi pomysłami, aby twórczo je rozwinąć. Powyższe uchybienia żadną miarą nie mogą jednak wpłynąć na ogólną ocenę wydawnictwa. Gdyby ukazało się w tamtych czasach jako normalny album solowy, zapewne od dawna byłoby postrzegane jako jedno z jego największych osiągnięć.

IV Debiut solowy – The End Of An Ear (1970)

W 1969 roku artysta zagrał gościnnie na perkusji na debiutanckim albumie Kevina Ayersa Joy Of A Toy. Zaiste, przepyszne to wydawnictwo. Obok Shooting At The Moon (1970) z pewnością najlepsze w jego dyskografii. We wczesnym okresie solowej twórczości Ayersa, Wyatt pojawił się ponownie na Whatevershebringswesing (1972) i Bananamour (1973). Tym razem jego udział był jednak symboliczny. W obydwu przypadkach wzbogacił jeden utwór na płycie swoimi harmoniami wokalnymi (Whatevershebringswesing, Hymn). W 1971 roku pojawił się na innym albumie solowym byłego członka The Soft Machine.

Tym razem był to Daevid Allen. Po nagraniu Third angażował się w różne przedsięwzięcia artystyczne. Jednym z nich była efemeryczna formacja Amazing Band. W septecie grali: Mal Dean (trąbka), Rab Spall (skrzypce), Miriam Spall (śpiew), Mick Brannan (saksofon altowy), Anthony „Top" Topham (gitara) oraz Jim Mullen (kontrabas). Wyatt wystąpił z nimi kilkakrotnie w czasie koncertów wiosną 1970 roku. Grupa grała muzykę mocno grawitującą w stronę ortodoksyjnego free jazzu, bliskiego estetyce colemanowskiej. Wyatt, nie mogąc pogodzić gry w Amazing Band ze zobowiązaniami wobec macierzystej grupy, zrezygnował z udzielania się w niej na rzecz Kena Hyde'a. Third był wyraźnym świadectwem tego, że drogi twórcze Wyatta i jego kolegów zaczynają się stopniowo coraz bardziej rozchodzić. Dla perkusisty Moon In June był bodaj ostatnią poważną próbą walki z „frakcją jazzową", z którą, walcząc samotnie, niechybnie musiał przegrać.

Dziennikarz „Melody Maker" Michael Watts, który towarzyszył Soft Machine w czasie ich trasy koncertowej po Holandii, w październiku 1970 roku, był naocznym świadkiem wielu scysji między Wyattem a kolegami. Od razu zauważył napiętą atmosferę w relacjach interpersonalnych. Najlepiej zapamiętał ostrą kłótnię przed jednym z koncertów, kiedy to wokalista wpadł we wściekłość z powodu przygotowanej setlisty. Jako że wybitnie mu nie odpowiadała, z powodu eskalacji wpływów free jazzowych, dał upust swojej złości. Jego narastająca frustracja oraz poczucie osamotnienia skłoniły go do nagrania pierwszego albumu solowego. Koledzy z zespołu skwapliwie się na to zgodzili. Liczyli przede wszystkim na to, że swój nadmiar pomysłów, które nie pasowały do ich stylistyki, przedstawi na płycie autorskiej. Materiał został zarejestrowany w sierpniu 1970 roku, by ostatecznie ukazać się 4 grudnia tegoż roku. W sesjach udział wzięli: Elton Dean (saksofon altowy, saxello), Mark Charig (kornet), Neville Whitehead (kontrabas), David Sinclair (organy) i brat Wyatta, Mark Ellidge (fortepian). Nie licząc Las Vegas Tango, wszystkie kompozycje wyszły spod ręki lidera tego projektu. Niewątpliwie największym osiągnięciem była autorska interpretacja kompozycji Gila Evansa Las Vegas Tango, która pojawia się jako klamra w dwóch częściach. Jej ostateczny kształt jest zgoła odmienny od oryginału, została bowiem mocno przefiltrowana przez Wyattowskie koncepcje muzyczne. Dzięki temu może być wzorcową egzemplifikacją oryginalnego podejścia do tworzywa muzycznego. Tylko we wspomnianych dwóch częściach kompozycji pojawia się głos wokalisty. W różnych sferach muzycznego przekazu jest mocno niestandardowy. Wyatt objawia się w nich jako wokalista, który traktuje swój głos w sposób totalny, często jest on po prostu jednym z instrumentów. Uwagę zwraca bogata artykulacja – jego wokal to nie tylko śpiew, ale także szept, zawodzenie, mruczenie i cała gama niekonwencjonalnych dźwięków. Nie uświadczymy na tej płycie wyśpiewywanego tekstu. Pojawiają się tylko bardziej lub mniej niekonwencjonalne wokalizy. Warto zwrócić uwagę na wymyślną aranżację, ciekawy kontrapunkt oraz język harmoniczny. Rozbudowane, kilkuwarstwowe partie wokalne często mają polifoniczną fakturę. Nietypowa jest również tkanka instrumentalna. Fortepian budzi skojarzenia z radykalnym free jazzem – bardziej dynamiczne fragmenty z Cecilem Taylorem, sonorystyczne eksploracje z Chickiem Coreą z okresu gry w Circle, innym razem z darmsztadzką awangardą. Wyatt gra na perkusji w bardzo swobodny sposób, w warstwie strukturalnej jest to dość złożona rzecz. Materiał muzyczny nierzadko podlega obróbce studyjnej, pojawiają się ciekawe eksperymenty brzmieniowe i przestrzenne. W rezultacie powstał niepowtarzalny utwór, skrzący się intrygującymi pomysłami. Ostatnim z długich utworów jest dziewięciominutowy To Nick Everyone, mocno zanurzony w estetyce jazzu nowoczesnego. Elton Dean jeszcze raz udowadnia w nim, że w owym czasie miał silne predylekcje do grania w stylu free. Pozostałe kompozycje są na ogół dość krótkie. Często grawitują w stronę swobodnych form na modłę free jazzową (To Saintly Bridget, To Oz Alien Daevyd And Gilly). Ważną rolę odgrywają dęciaki, szczególnie saksofon altowy i saxello Eltona Deana. Pod względem formalnym są mocno swobodne, czasami wręcz amorficzne, jak w przypadku mocno eksperymentalnego To The Old World (Thank You For The Use Of Your Body, Goodbye), w którym pojawiają się echa „poważnej" elektroniki. Ciekawym przykładem syntezy stylistycznej jest To Caravan And Brother Jim. To jeden z dwóch najbardziej przystępnych utworów na płycie. Łączy w sobie elementy typowo kanterberyjskie oraz minimalistyczne. Nie inaczej jest w sferze brzmieniowej. Mamy tu do czynienia z ciekawą strukturą polirytmiczną, w której zderzają się ostinata z bardziej złożonymi, improwizowanymi rytmami.

The End Of An Ear w niejednym względzie okazał się wydawnictwem dość mocno odległym od ówczesnego oblicza zespołu. Uwagę zwracała odmienna narracja, nieco inna była tkanka brzmieniowa, przede wszystkim nie można jednak zapominać o partiach wokalnych, które stanowiły istotne novum w znacznie szerszym kontekście. To właśnie one zdają się być największą wartością tego wydawnictwa. Nie będzie przesadą konstatacja, iż mamy tu do czynienia z jednym z najbardziej twórczych i oryginalnych przykładów podejścia do sztuki wokalnej w obrębie szeroko pojętej muzyki rockowej, mocno skoligaconej z jazzem. Stylistycznie autorskie kompozycje lidera tego projektu nieodległe są temu, co w owym czasie robił Keith Tippett i jego zespół, szczególnie mam na myśli wyborny Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening (1971). Bynajmniej nie ma w tym nic dziwnego, wszak w zespole brytyjskiego pianisty grali Elton Dean i Mark Charig, natomiast Neville Whitehead pojawił się na wspomnianym powyżej drugim albumie zespołu. The End Of An Ear mocno zanurzony był w estetyce free jazzowej, głównie za sprawą saksofonisty altowego Eltona Deana i kornecisty Marka Chariga. Ich ekspresyjne improwizacje, szczególnie pierwszego z nich, sprawiały, że faktura kompozycji była mocno dysonansowa, czasami grawitowała wręcz w stronę atonalności. Stosunkowo silne ujazzowienie The End Of An Ear zakrawa na paradoks, zważywszy na fakt, iż pierwotnie Wyatt na swoim autorskim wydawnictwie zamierzał nieco odejść od ortodoksyjnego jazzu. Choćby za sprawą faktu, że był zmęczony utarczkami z Ratledge'em, Deanem i Hopperem. W czym przejawia się największa wartość jego solowego debiutu? Mocną stroną są niebanalne kompozycje oraz maestria w sferze wykonawczej, jednak chyba najwyżej należy ocenić fakt, że artyście udało się wykreować własny, oryginalny świat dźwięków.

ROBERT WYATT

V Odejście z Soft Machine. Matching Mole (1971-1972)

Nagranie albumu solowego bynajmniej nie rozładowało napiętej sytuacji. Ba! Atmosfera gęstniała z każdym tygodniem. Był to bardzo trudny czas dla wokalisty. Z jednej strony w gruzy sypało się jego małżeństwo, z drugiej jego muzyczne pomysły były permanentnie ignorowane przez kolegów z zespołu. Doszło nawet do tego, że poważnie zwątpił w swoje możliwości twórcze. Obecność Wyatta w Soft Machine stawała się coraz bardziej problematyczna. Będąc artystą poszukującym znacznie szerszej syntezy estetycznej niż jego towarzysze, coraz bardziej dusił się w silnie ujazzowionej konwencji, zamkniętej na wokalne eksperymenty. Ostatnie miesiące Wyatta w Soft Machine to czas współpracy z różnymi artystami i formacjami. Jeszcze w 1970 roku nawiązał współpracę z Keithem Tippettem. We wrześniu tego roku wziął udział w sesjach nagraniowych drugiego albumu sekstetu Tippetta, Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening. Następnie zaangażował się w inny projekt Tippetta, znany jako Centipede. Nagrał razem z nim dwupłytowy album Septober Energy (1971), będący ważnym dokonaniem brytyjskiego jazzu lat 70. Była to osobliwa mieszanka radykalnego free jazzu z elementami jazz-rocka, z wyraźną przewagą pierwszego składnika. W tym samym roku zagrał na perkusji na nietypowym wydawnictwie New Violin Summit, firmowanym przez czterech skrzypków. Byli to: Michał Urbaniak, Jean-Luc Ponty, Nipso Brantner oraz Don „Sugar Cane" Harris. U tego ostatniego pojawił się ponownie w 1972 roku na płycie Sugar Cane's Got The Blues.

Amerykańskie koncerty okazały się ostatnim akordem współpracy Wyatta z Soft Machine. Trójka jego adwersarzy doszła do wniosku, że taka sytuacja nie może dłużej trwać i zdecydowanie potrzebne są radykalne ruchy. Wersja oficjalna jest taka, że Wyatt odszedł w sierpniu 1971 roku. Prawda jest jednak nieco inna, gdyż de facto został usunięty. Dopiero po latach w wywiadach prasowych można było dowiedzieć się na ten temat nieco więcej szczegółów. Jak wyglądało to z perspektywy naszego bohatera? Miałem wiele własnych pomysłów, lecz nie znałem nikogo – poza sobą samym – kto byłby nimi zainteresowany. Soft Machine potrzebował już wtedy tylko takiego perkusisty, który w dowolnym podziale grałby podkłady dla bardzo długich improwizacji solowych. Każdy z nas miał bardzo odmienny wkład w to, co robiliśmy w zespole i w gruncie rzeczy nie mogliśmy się porozumieć. Nasze ścieżki przecięły się tylko dlatego, że startowaliśmy z różnych punktów i zmierzaliśmy w odmiennych kierunkach – to co było satysfakcjonujące dla jednego, nie było dla innych. Myślę, że w rzeczywistości dojrzeliśmy do tego, aby się rozejść. Na początku byliśmy razem tylko dlatego, że nie znaliśmy innych muzyków. Według Mike'a nie poświęcaliśmy wystarczającej ilości czasu na próby, podczas gdy dla mnie było dokładnie odwrotnie, gdyż nowe rzeczy odkrywałem dopiero w trakcie wykonywania ich w czasie koncertu. Odejście Wyatta zamykało najbardziej twórczy okres w historii Soft Machine. Jego specyficzny, jedyny w swoim rodzaju głos, połączony z nowatorskim podejściem do sztuki wokalnej, sprawiał, że muzyka grupy nabierała wysoce indywidualistycznego zabarwienia. Nie można także zapominać o jego specyficznych tekstach, będących pokłosiem zainteresowania dwudziestowieczną literaturą awangardową. W obrębie rockowego przekazu jawiły się jako coś nowego. Ważnym wkładem w rozwój zespołu była jego gra na perkusji. Był nie tylko jednym z prekursorów fuzji rytmiki rockowej i jazzowej, wykształcił również własny charakterystyczny sposób gry na tym instrumencie. Niewątpliwie Soft Machine bez Wyatta był już mniej idiomatyczną formacją.

Grupa Matching Mole wydała dwa albumy studyjne: Matching Mole (1972) i Little Red Record (1972). Obydwa były niewątpliwie świadectwem artystycznej prosperity Wyatta.

W 1971 roku zakłada własną formację. Jej nazwa była pokłosiem leksykalnych eksploracji, wszak francuskie wyrażenie „Machine Molle" w przekładzie na angielski oznacza ni mniej, ni więcej, tylko… Soft Machine. W jego muzycznych poszukiwaniach towarzyszyli mu: gitarzysta Phil Miller (ex-Delivery) i klawiszowiec znany z Caravan, Dave Sinclair. Ten ostatni szukał nowego zajęcia, bowiem nie odpowiadała mu ewolucja macierzystej formacji, która dryfowała w stronę konwencjonalnej odmiany rocka progresywnego. Los bywa przewrotny. Kilkanaście miesięcy później tenże Sinclair odejdzie z zespołu Wyatta, zrażony jego nazbyt eksperymentalnym obliczem. Składu dopełnił basista Bill MacCormick, znany z formacji Quiet Sun. W czasie nagrywania Little Red Record pełnoprawnym członkiem zespołu był już wyborny nowozelandzki pianista Dave MacRae, który gościnnie zagrał na elektrycznym fortepianie już na debiucie. Ten wątek działalności perkusisty potraktuję dość pobieżnie, ponieważ w niniejszym eseju postanowiłem skupić się na jego działalności solowej. Matching Mole zasługuje na osobny wnikliwy tekst. Grupa wydała dwa albumy studyjne: Matching Mole (1972) i Little Red Record (1972). Obydwa były niewątpliwie świadectwem jego artystycznej prosperity. Szczególnie wyborny debiut, na którym odnaleźć możemy zarówno rzadkiej urody „piosenki", jak i intrygujące wokalizy, nie zabrakło również brawurowych partii instrumentalnych. Obydwa zaliczyłbym do najwybitniejszych osiągnięć „sceny Canterbury". Na powyższych płytach Wyatt jawi się jako niepospolity muzyk, który posiada własną oryginalną wizję artystyczną. Muzyka Matching Mole była twórczą syntezą jazzu nowoczesnego oraz rocka progresywnego. Na Little Red Record nie zabrakło również eksperymentów z elektroniką. Gościnnie pojawił się Brian Eno, który zagrał na syntezatorze VCS3 w Gloria Gloom. To zresztą jeden z najmocniejszych fragmentów płyty. Uwagę zwraca w nim mistrzowskie operowanie nastrojem oraz frapujące pejzaże dźwiękowe. Matching Mole w niemałym stopniu zbliżył się do rockowej estetyki, czasami przypominał formacje progresywne. Na debiucie na szeroką skalę wykorzystano melotron, na którym z dużą inwencją grał Wyatt. Jego niestandardowa rola jest godna uwagi. Instrument nie imituje orkiestry, aby stworzyć podniosłe, quasi symfoniczne brzmienie. Nie wpisuje się również w klasycystyczny czy też szczególnie neoromantyczny paradygmat, jakże częsty w przypadku grup hołdujących estetyce mainstreamowego rocka progresywnego. Dobrą egzemplifikacją tego trendu jest język harmoniczny – z pewnością bardziej nowoczesny, żadną miarą nie kojarzący się z dziewiętnastowiecznym światem dźwiękowym. Na co warto zwrócić szczególną uwagę? Choćby na bardzo rozluźnioną tonalność, harmonika jest mocno schromatyzowana, miejscami grawituje wręcz w stronę atonalności. W tym sensie bliżej jej do tonącego w dysonansach Schönbergowskiego ekspresjonizmu.

Na płytach Matching Mole w mniejszym natężeniu ujawniają się wpływy jazzu nowoczesnego. Nie oznaczało to bynajmniej ograniczenia ambicji. Zespół grał muzykę par excellence progresywną, uwagę przykuwały ciekawe eksploracje sonorystyczne, Wyatt nie rezygnował z rytmicznego wyrafinowania. Na Little Red Record perkusista po raz pierwszy na taką skalę zaprezentował się jako radykalny lewicowiec, co dobrze ukazywała zarówno „socrealistyczna" okładka płyty jak i politycznie zaangażowane teksty, ujawniające prokomunistyczne sympatie autora. W dużej mierze właśnie szata graficzna sprawiła, że za zespołem poszła fama radykalnych lewaków sławiących rewolucję kulturalną. Tymczasem sprawa wyglądała nieco inaczej. Muzycy nie mieli nic wspólnego z tym pomysłem. Okładkę stworzył jeden z grafików pracujących dla CBS. To wytwórnia zadecydowała też o tym, że właśnie ten projekt trafił na Little Red Record. Wyatt dystansował się od tego pomysłu, stwierdził nawet, że okładka zupełnie mu się nie podobała. Z kolei basista Bill MacCormick podchodził do niej w bardziej humorystyczny sposób. Wedle niego, koncept okładki miał żartobliwy charakter i nie było w nim nic z rewolucyjnego patosu. Little Red Record kojarzony jest często z ideologicznym radykalizmem. Jak to wyglądało w rzeczywistości w przypadku Wyatta? W latach 60. jego poglądy sytuowały się blisko myśli Towarzystwa Fabiańskiego, optującego za socjalizmem, jednak odrzucającego rewolucję proletariacką. W drugiej połowie tej dekady, niewątpliwie pod wpływem ówczesnego ruchu kontestacji, zaczął stopniowo dryfować coraz bardziej na lewo. Pomimo nawiązań na Little Red Record do chińskiej wersji komunizmu, Wyatt nigdy nie był maoistą. Stopniowa ewolucja poglądów przywiodła go ostatecznie do marksizmu. Jak sam wyjaśniał: Marksizm jest najmniej absurdalnym sposobem opisu wydarzeń, które mają miejsce na świecie.

VI Magnum Opus – Rock Bottom (1974)

Pod koniec 1972 roku Wyatt zaczął komponować materiał na nowy album. Mieszkał wtedy na małej włoskiej wyspie Giudecca. Jego towarzyszka życia, Alfreda Benge, była wówczas zaangażowana w produkcję filmu Nicholasa Roega Don't Look Now. Benge była bliską przyjaciółką Julie Christie, wielkiej gwiazdy filmowej, znanej zarówno z kina popularnego (Doktor Żywago), jak i artystycznego (451 stopni Fahrenheita, Posłaniec). Wyatt miał mnóstwo wolnego czasu, co wcześniej zdarzało mu się niezwykle rzadko. Dysponował też małym keyboardem. Stopniowo wykluwały się zręby nowych utworów. Po powrocie do Wielkiej Brytanii powstały teksty do Sea Song, Alife i A Last Straw. Wokalista postanowił stworzyć nowe wcielenie Matching Mole. Tym razem mieli mu towarzyszyć: pianista Francis Monkmam, saksofonista Gary Windo oraz jedyny, obok Wyatta, stały członek Matching Mole, basista Bill MacCormick. Jaka miała być nowa muzyka formacji? Trudno do końca dociec. Z jednej strony Wyatt deklarował, że tym razem zamierza w większym stopniu skupić się na formach quasi piosenkowych, z drugiej bootlegowy zapis koncertu z 14 kwietnia 1973 roku wskazuje, że nadal nie wyzbył się eksperymentalnych ciągotek. W słynnym klubie Ronnie'ego Scotta towarzyszyli mu: Richard Sinclair (gitara basowa), Dave MacRae (elektryczny fortepian), Gary Windo (saksofon tenorowy). Muzyka była oparta na improwizacji i niemal w całości instrumentalna. Stylistycznie grawitowała gdzieś między dokonaniami Soft Machine i Matching Mole. Nowe wcielenie grupy ostatecznie się nie ukonstytuowało. Wszystko zmieniło dramatyczne wydarzenie, które miało miejsce 1 czerwca 1973 roku. Z okazji urodzin Gilli Smyth odbyło się przyjęcie urodzinowe, w czasie którego Robert Wyatt wypadł z okna z czwartego piętra, łamiąc 12 krąg kręgosłupa i nogę. W wyniku tego został sparaliżowany od pasa w dół. Wyatt: Ludzie myślą, że na pewno jest mi trudno mówić o moim wypadki, ale to nieprawda. Natomiast trudno jest mi mówić o tym, co zdarzyło się wcześniej. Płyta „Rock Bottom" i to, co było później, tak, to jestem ja.

ROBERT WYATT

Ale ja-nastolatek-pełnosprawny perkusista? Nie pamiętam i nie rozumiem go. (…) Wypadek ów to, jak mi się teraz wydaje, wyraźna cezura między młodością a resztą mojego życia. A oto przebieg wydarzeń: najpierw było wino, później whisky, potem likier „Southern Comfort", a na końcu okno. Lekarz był zdumiony, powiedział: „musiałeś być naprawdę pijany, skoro wypadłeś z okna na tak zupełnym luzie".

Ze szpitala muzyk został zwolniony dopiero w listopadzie 1973 roku. Wspaniałomyślnie zachowała się Julie Christie, kupując dla Alfredy i Roberta dom przystosowany do wózka inwalidzkiego. 4 listopada 1973 roku Soft Machine oraz Pink Floyd zagrały dwa charytatywne koncerty na rzecz Wyatta. Impreza miała miejsce w londyńskim Rainbow Theatre. Było to zaledwie osiem miesięcy po wydaniu słynnego albumu The Dark Side Of The Moon, który bił wówczas rekordy powodzenia. Nie dziwi zatem fakt, że bilety rozeszły się bardzo szybko. Występ Soft Machine został przyćmiony efektownym spektaklem zespołu Watersa. Muzycy Soft Machine nie wspominają tego występu najlepiej. Dotknęło ich to, że w całym tym przedsięwzięciu zostali zmarginalizowani, dla większości publiczności liczył się bowiem tylko występ supergwiazdy i jej sceniczny show. Występy przyniosły dziesięć tysięcy funtów zysku, z czego ostatecznie siedem przekazano Wyattowi. Trzy tysiące zgarnął brytyjski urząd podatkowy, co z dużym niesmakiem odebrała matka Roberta, wyrażając zdziwienie, jak można opodatkować taką spontaniczną akcję charytatywną na rzecz człowieka, którego dotknęło nieszczęście.

Wokalista postanowił szybko wrócić do życia artystycznego. Doskonale zdawał sobie sprawę, że nigdy nie będzie już mógł grać na perkusji, trudno było również wyobrazić sobie, aby jeździł na trasy koncertowe. W zasadzie pozostawała mu tylko praca w studiu. Gdy wyszedł ze szpitala materiał na nowy album był już w zasadzie gotowy. Przyjaciółka Roberta i Alfredy wynajęła im dom w Wiltshire. Tam też zaczęto rejestrować nowe nagrania. W marcu 1974 roku swoje partie zaczęli nagrywać zaproszeni muzycy. Pojawili się przyjaciele Wyatta oraz artyści, z którymi bardzo chciał nagrać swoje najnowsze dzieło. Towarzystwo było zaiste doborowe: Hugh Hopper (gitara basowa), Richard Sinclair (gitara basowa), Laurie Allan (perkusja), Mongezi Feza (trąbka), Gary Windo (klarnet basowy, saksofon tenorowy), Fred Frith (altówka), Mike Oldfield (gitara), Ivor Cutler (głos, fisharmonia, koncertyna barytonowa). W Alife pojawia się głos Alfredy Benge, która jest zresztą, obok autora tego wydawnictwa, centralną postacią Rock Bottom. Warto dodać, że jest również autorką okładki płyty. Dramatyczne wydarzenie z 1 czerwca 1973 roku niewątpliwie miało istotny wpływ na jego ostateczny kształt oraz treść. Zapewne zdeterminowało refleksyjną, nierzadko melancholijną atmosferę, choć trzeba przyznać, że Wyatt bynajmniej nie użalał się nad sobą. Nie wyzbył się również charakterystycznego humoru, nadal miał zamiłowanie do leksykalnych zabaw. Od razu rzuca się w uszy fakt, że artysta wyraźnie odszedł od dźwiękowego radykalizmu. Kolejnym novum jest tkanka brzmieniowa. Rock Bottom to bardzo „klawiszowa" płyta. Jest zdominowana przez dźwięki syntezatora. Czasami pierwszorzędną rolę odgrywa fortepian, często można usłyszeć jednocześnie obydwa wspomniane instrumenty, które tworzą bogatą, barwną fakturę brzmieniową.

W kontekście syntezatora koniecznie trzeba podkreślić, że artyście udało się stworzyć dość łatwo rozpoznawalne brzmienie. To znamienny przykład, że w tym względzie najważniejszym czynnikiem nie jest biegłość techniczna, ale kreatywność.

Rock Bottom posiada niepowtarzalny klimat. To muzyka o ogromnej sile wyrazu, dużym walorem kompozycji są piękne melodie, które na długo zapadają w pamięć. Na słowa uznania zasłużył Nick Mason, który był producentem płyty. Brzmienie jest ciepłe, czyste, klarowne, selektywne. Dla każdego, kto przywiązuje wagę do detali technicznych, ma to niebagatelne znaczenie. Jest to tym bardziej godne podkreślenia, że macierzysta formacja wokalisty miała wyjątkowego pecha do produkcji albumów. Kłania się choćby Third, który za sprawą koszmarnego brzmienia, jest w istocie okaleczonym arcydziełem. Na Rock Bottom Wyatt w twórczy sposób kontynuuje eksperymenty wokalne. Tym razem nie mają już tak radykalnego posmaku, jednak nadal są intrygujące i oryginalne. W jeszcze większym stopniu skorzystano z dobrodziejstw studia nagraniowego. Przekłada się to na ciekawe rozwiązania strukturalne i kolorystyczne, zarówno tkanki czysto instrumentalnej, jak i partii wokalnych. Świetną egzemplifikacją pierwszego wątku jest deformacja brzmienia fortepianu w A Last Straw lub finał Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road, w którym uzyskano frapujący rezultat, dzięki zwielokrotnieniu brzmienia trąbek Mongeziego Fezy. W drugim przypadku zachwycają rozbudowane aranżacje wokalne w Sea Song, podobnie jak na The End Of An Ear, wykazujące silne tendencje do polifonizacji faktury brzmieniowej. W aspekcie formalnym różnice między The End Of An Ear a Rock Bottom są znaczące. W tej materii Wyattowe magnum opus przynosi daleko posunięte uporządkowanie. Mocno wyswobodzona narracja, czasami wręcz amorficzna forma, jak w przypadku To The Old World (Thank You For The Use Of Your Body, Goodbye), zostaje zastąpiona przez przemyślnie uporządkowane struktury. Zdecydowanie maleje rola improwizacji. Autor unika jednak konwencjonalnej formy piosenkowej. Nawet, gdy na początku wydaje się, że dana kompozycja może przybrać taki kształt (Sea Song), pojawiają się różne niestandardowe rozwiązania. Wyatt jakby nie chciał powielać schematów, dlatego buduje własną, silnie zindywidualizowaną formę wypowiedzi. Rośnie rola aranżacji, która często przybiera wysmakowany kształt. Czasami bywa bardziej ascetyczna (Alifib), innym razem olśniewa nieomal barokową feerią barw (Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road).

W różnych aspektach muzycznego przekazu Rock Bottom jest pozycją wysoce idiomatyczną. Co determinuje taki efekt końcowy? Trzeba wymienić przynajmniej kilka elementów. Niepowtarzalny głos, oryginalne eksperymenty wokalne, rozpoznawalne brzmienie syntezatora, twórcza obróbka materiału dźwiękowego w studiu nagraniowym, niepospolite pomysły w sferze aranżacyjnej i brzmieniowej. Wartością dodaną są również zaproszeni goście.

Niejednokrotnie są to muzycy, których gra jest od razu rozpoznawalna (Hugh Hopper, Mike Oldfield). Summa summarum – powstało jedno z arcydzieł szeroko pojętej muzyki rockowej lat 70. Dramatyczna geneza oraz warunki w jakich powstawała zapewne jeszcze bardziej uwypukliły jej niezwykłość. Korzenie estetyczne Rock Bottom dalekie są od jednoznaczności. Wyatt jeszcze raz udowodnił, że interesuje go szeroka synteza muzyczna. Wynikało to choćby z tego, że fascynowała go nie tylko „poważna" awangarda i jazz nowoczesny, ale także różne nurty muzyki popularnej.

W niejednym względzie jest to dzieło par excellence progresywne. Warto ową „postępowość" zestawić z dość tradycyjnym podejściem do materii muzycznej wielu przedstawicieli głównego nurtu rocka progresywnego (Genesis, Yes, Focus, Camel). Istotnym wątkiem jest tu choćby kwestia twórczego podejścia do dwudziestowiecznego dorobku muzyki artystycznej. Rock Bottom jest niewątpliwie pozycją bardziej przystępną niż ezoteryczny The End Of An Ear, który wielu słuchaczy mógł odstraszać swoim radykalizmem i hermetycznością. Tym razem Wyatt postawił na większą komunikatywność i bezpośredniość. Bynajmniej nie oznacza to jednak, że powściągnął swoje ambicje i wyrzekł się aspiracji. Charakter dzieła, jego treść oraz dramatyczne przeżycia z nieodległej przeszłości sprawiły, że autor przewartościował swoje podejście do muzyki. Nadal nieobca jest mu jednak awangardowa mentalność twórcy, który stale poszukuje nowych idei i rozwiązań. Jedną z istotnych zalet Rock Bottom widziałbym w sferze edukacyjnej. To jeden z tych albumów, który może zachęcić słuchacza do obcowanie z szeroko pojętą awangardą. Jest znakomitą furtką do tego, co na początku często odstrasza lub wręcz irytuje. Wyatt ułatwia i oswaja awangardę.

Rock Bottom ukazał się na rynku 26 lipca 1974 roku. Tego samego dnia Robert Wyatt i Alfreda Benge zawarli związek małżeński. Nowe wydawnictwo zostało bardzo przychylnie przyjęte przez brytyjską prasę muzyczną. Pochwał nie żałowali recenzenci, nie brakowało głosów entuzjastycznych. Przełożyło się to na wyniki sprzedaży. W Stanach Zjednoczonych również znalazło swoich zwolenników. Chętnie było prezentowane przez stacje, które specjalizowały się w ambitniejszych odmianach rocka. We Francji, od dawna przychylnej artyście, przyznano mu prestiżową nagrodę Grand Prix de'l Academie Charles Cros. Z oczywistych względów Robert Wyatt nie mógł udać się w trasę koncertową promującą nowy album. Zdecydowano się jednak na jeden występ, który miał miejsce 8 września 1974 roku w londyńskim Drury Lane. Zanim jednak do niego doszło został w osobliwy sposób zareklamowany przez „New Musical Express". Oto bowiem na okładce tego czasopisma przedstawiono zdjęcie Wyatta oraz zaproszonych gości siedzących na wózkach inwalidzkich. Ostatecznie obok lidera na scenie pojawili się: Julie Driscoll Tippetts (śpiew, instrumenty klawiszowe), Mike Oldfield (gitara), Fred Frith (skrzypce, gitara, altówka), Ivor Cutler (głos), Dave Stewart (instrumenty klawiszowe), Gary Windo (instrumenty dęte), Mongezi Feza (trąbka), Hugh Hopper (gitara basowa), Laurie Allan (perkusja), Nick Mason (perkusja). W 2005 roku obszerne fragmenty koncertu wydano na płycie Theatre Royal Drury Lane 8th September 1974. Jakkolwiek ów spektakl ma dziś bez mała historyczne znaczenie, to jednak wartość wydawnictwa obniża niemal bootlegowa jakość dźwięku. Kilka miesięcy po wydaniu Rock Bottom Wyatt zaistniał w świadomości jeszcze szerszego grona słuchaczy. Na listy przebojów trafiła jego przeróbka hitu The Monkees, I'm The Believer. Był to największy sukces komercyjny w jego karierze. W 1974 roku ukazało się kilka albumów, na których gościnnie pojawił się nasz bohater. Godny wyróżnienia jest znakomity debiut kanterberyjskiej formacji Hatfield And The North. Można go również usłyszeć na klasycznym wydawnictwie Briana Eno Taking Tiger Mountain (By Strategy). Tym razem dodał partie instrumentów perkusyjnych oraz zaśpiewał w chórkach. Efemeryczny projekt kwartetu Kevin Ayers – John Cale – Eno – Nico, również wsparł grą na instrumentach perkusyjnych - średnio udany June 1, 1974.

VII Epilog

Rock Bottom zamyka najbardziej progresywny, twórczy i oryginalny okres w karierze muzyka, choć można by oczywiście poszerzyć go jeszcze o całkiem udany Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard (1975). W pierwszej połowie lat 70. miał, bez dwóch zdań, wyśmienitą passę. Nagrał wszak dwa bodaj najważniejsze albumy solowe: emanujący świeżością i oryginalnością, mocno eksperymentalny The End Of An Ear oraz Rock Bottom, prawdziwe magnum opus w jego dyskografii. Nie można zapominać o dwóch albumach jego formacji Matching Mole. Obydwa są niekwestionowaną klasyką sceny Canterbury, czy też, w nieco innym ujęciu, szeroko pojętego rocka progresywnego. Był to czas, gdy jego muzyka ulegała dynamicznym przeobrażeniom, co siłą rzeczy sprawiło, że wszystkie powyższe albumy mocno różnią się między sobą. Nieco więcej punktów stycznych można znaleźć tylko w przypadku płyt Matching Mole. Wszelako na każdym odnajdziemy bez trudu specyficzne komponenty jego twórczości: śmiałe eksploracje wokalne, usilne poszukiwanie nowych brzmień, wieloznaczność ekspresji, niekonwencjonalne aranżacje i wreszcie specyficzny duch ekscentryzmu. Robert Wyatt objawił się na nich jako artysta poszukujący. Starał się poszerzać paletę środków wyrazu, konsekwentnie dążył do indywidualizacji wypowiedzi. Był to czas, gdy nadal pełnymi garściami czerpał z dorobku dwudziestowiecznej awangardy. Podobnie jak w psychodelicznym okresie Soft Machine, potrafił w twórczy i oryginalny sposób przełożyć różne nowatorskie koncepcje na język szeroko pojętej muzyki popularnej. Żadną miarą nie można zapominać o pionierskich eksperymentach wokalnych. Nonkonformistyczna osobowość oraz autentycznie progresywne podejście do muzyki pozwoliły mu wykreować własny świat dźwięków. Godnym uwagi jest fakt, że Wyatt nie był niewolniczo związany z formułą grania wypracowaną w czasach Soft Machine. Nawet jeśli odwoływał się do podobnej estetyki, uskuteczniał to w sposób typowy dla siebie. Był to jeszcze jeden dowód na to, że mamy do czynienia z artystą osobnym, który nie lubi kroczyć utartymi ścieżkami. Z czasem zacznie udatnie łączyć elementy modernistyczne z bardziej tradycyjnymi. Słychać to już dobrze na Rock Bottom, w bodaj jeszcze większym stopniu na Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard. ■

Une discographie de

Robert Wyatt

ARCHIVE 6
au 1er juin 2026

Abécédaire

ABÉCÉDAIRE

A

Alifie

A colloquio con Robert Wyatt

A Season in Hell

Archives vidéo (concerts et clips)

B

BBC Radiophonic Wokshop

Book Bottom

Books A-Go-Go

Bootlegs

C

Canterbury Scene

Chantons!

Cinéma NEW

Coleman, Ornette

Comicoperando in Archives & concerts

Common

Compilations

Contrefaçon/Counterfeit

Covers
an alphabetical list sorted by track title

Critiques/Reviews

Cuckooland

D

Dalla Viva Voce

Days In The Life

Dedicated to RW

Dedicated To You & Dondestan ! The Wyatt Project

Different Every Time

Different Every Time - traduction française

Docteur Honoris Causa

E

Ecole de Canterbury

Editions des Accords

Encyclopedia

F

Famille Soft Machine (La)

Fanzines (Hommage aux)

Fenêtre Rose (La)

Feza, Mongezi

Fiction

Flamenco

G

H

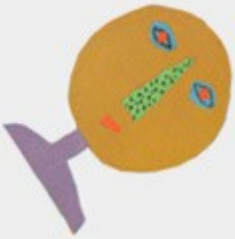
Happening (Summer 67)

Homonymie

How the Band Works

I

I'm A Believer



In Conversation...

Interviews & articles in Interviews & articles (vol.1 - 2 et 3)

J

Jazz And Max Roach

K

L

Le Bleu Le Bleu

Légèrement Wyatt

Les Années Before

Les temps changent (Hélène Labarrière)

Liner Notes

Links/Liens

Litany

Little Red Concert

Lyrics

M

Matching Mole

MW

N

Newsletter

O

P

Q

R

S

Old Rottenhat's Journal

Out-Bloody-Rageous

Prière in Interviews & articles (vol. 2 - en français)

Producer - Gambit Of Shame

Projet 7x7

Quarante ans, c'est émouvant

Radio Robert (for Firefox)

Reprises - covers

Robert Wyatt, l'homme de plusieurs vies

Robert Wyatt's Meltdown 2001

Rock Bottom

Rock Bottom, le film

Rock progressif anglais

Royal Drury Lane 8th September 1974

Rythme et la Raison (Le)

Samples

Scores / Partitions

Sculpture

Sea Song

Side by Side - Selected Lyrics

Soft Machine

Soft Machine Family Tree

T

U

V

W

X

Y

Soft Machine Generations

Solo career

Stampa Alternativa

Sweet Memories by Anaïd

Tago Mago in Interviews & articles (vol. 2 - en français)

Ten Songs That Saved Your Life

The Official Robert Wyatt Fan Club Song

Toucher le fond

Trickster (le mystère)

Unes/Front Pages

Various Artists

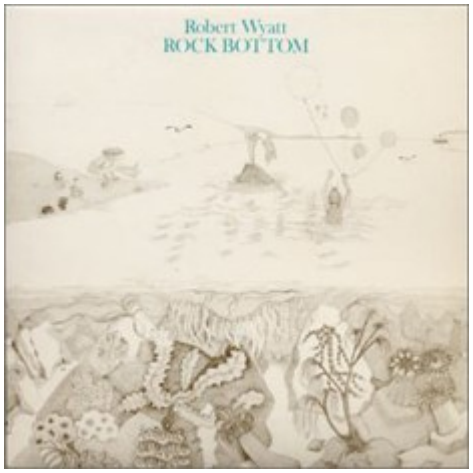
Vidéos et DVD

Vinyl et vin/Vinyl and wine

With Friends

Words

Wrong Movements



Z

Alifie

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Il n'est pas anodin que le premier item de cet abécédaire soit Alifie, Alfie, Alfreda, la compagne de Robert Wyatt, la femme qui l'a accompagné tout au long de sa carrière et a partagé son œuvre, unique. En 1974, nous découvrons Rock Bottom, une pochette déconcertante avec son crayonné de gris, une illustration paisible et oppressante à la fois. L'album sortira le jour du mariage entre Alfie et Robert.

Alfreda Benge y est créditée pour la pochette ("Cover by Alfreda Benge") mais aussi comme "Voice" sur le second morceau de la face B dont le titre lui est dédié: Alifie.

Par la suite, Alfie signera la plupart des pochettes de la carrière solo de Robert Wyatt.

Sur Dondestan, Alfie sera la parolière de nombreux morceaux (Sight Of The Wind, Shrinkrap, Catholic Architecture, Costa, Worship).

Sur les albums suivants (Shleep, Cuckooland) la collaboration entre Alfie et Robert sera plus forte encore:

"Ce disque (Shleep) est le fruit d'une totale collaboration entre ma femme et moi : elle a écrit des poèmes, dessiné la pochette, choisi la typographie, l'ordre des morceaux. Pour moi, rien n'est plus important que ce duo, ce groupe que nous formons. Je suis peut-être vieux jeu, mais je ressens chaque jour le besoin de justifier la raison pour laquelle je l'ai épousée. Elle n'a qu'une vie et elle me l'a consacrée. Si je gâchais mon existence, je gâcherais la sienne aussi. Et ça, c'est une idée que même la musique ne pourrait me faire supporter..."
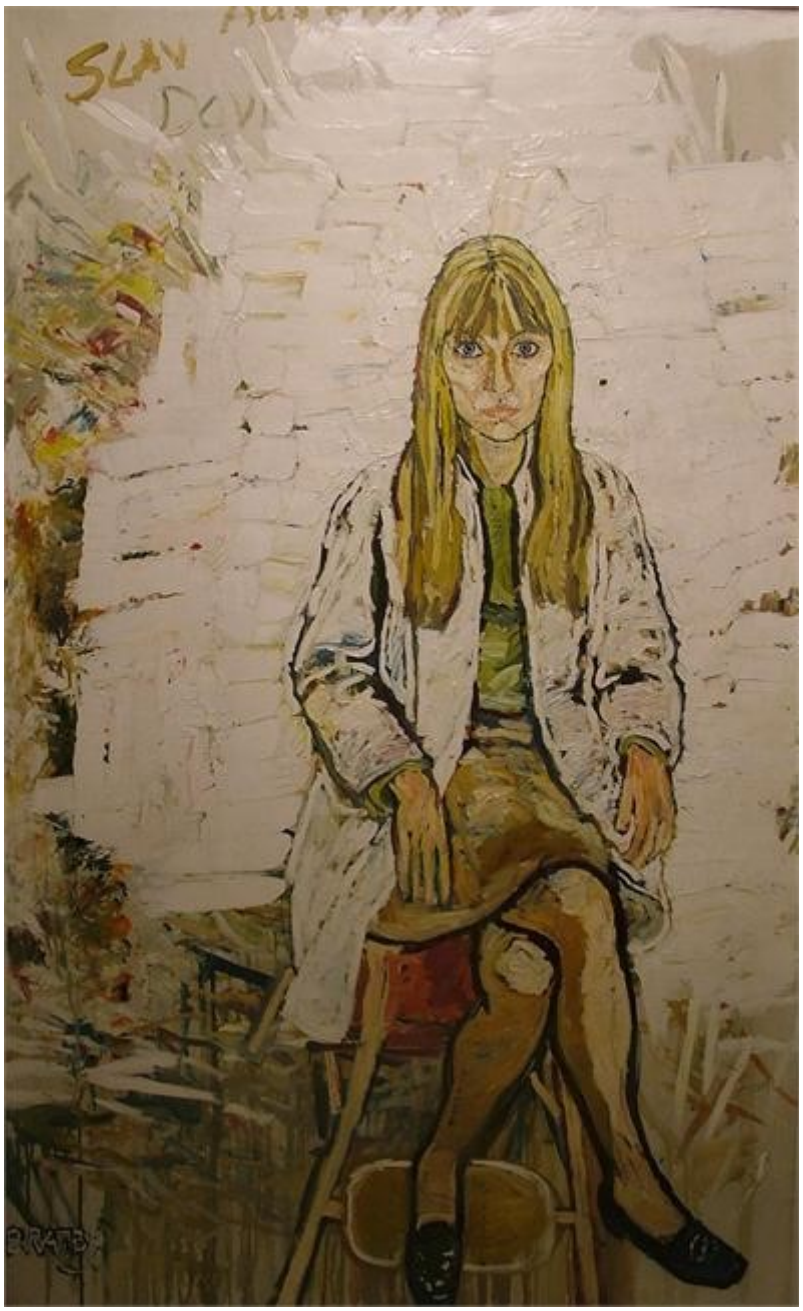
(interview R.W. in Télérama 1997).

Alfreda Benge a également réalisé des pochettes d'albums pour d'autres musiciens tels que Fred Frith ou Annette Peacock, toujours dans ce style naïf et intriguant que nous lui connaissons maintenant bien. Elle a aussi exposé à plusieurs reprises mais je ne dispose (pour l'instant) d'aucune copie de ses travaux extra-discographiques.



A. Benge (1974)

> Zoom

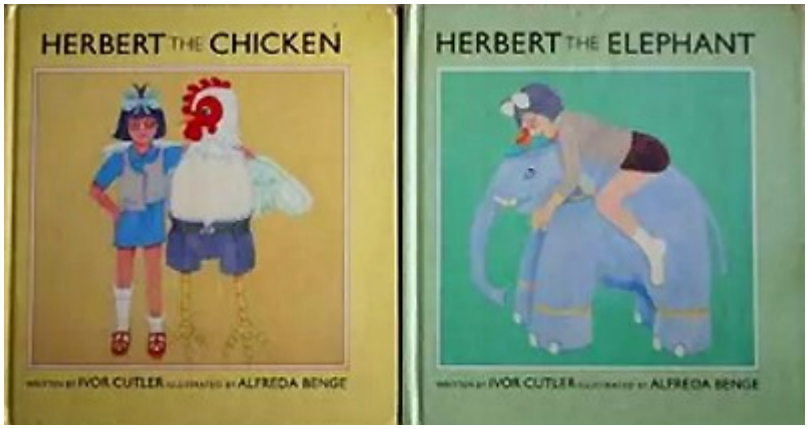
Alfreda Benge by John Bratby

Au début de l'année 2015, une bonne nouvelle : Alfreda Benge exposera une partie de ses travaux du 7 février au 5 avril dans la galerie [SPACE] à Londres, à proximité du parc London Fields.

Je n'ai malheureusement pu m'y rendre, mais le site de la galerie a heureusement conservé traces de cette exposition et a mis en ligne à cette occasion un long entretien (part 1 | part 2) réalisé en mars 2008 par Sharon Gal et Edwin Savage Pencil Pouncey pour la station de radio Resonance (104.4 FM).

IN CONVERSATION WITH ALFIE

0:00 / 1:01:11



Part 1

0:00 / 59:19

Part 2

Diggers with Alfreda Benge Alfie Wyatt by Sharon Gal/Edwin Pouncey
(Resonance 104.4 FM - March 2008)

Collaboration Alfreda Benge / Ivor Cutler pour des albums "Jeunesse"

[space] EXHIBITIONS | 07 FEB - 05 APR 2015

GALLERY OPENING HOURS
10AM - 5PM WEEKDAYS / 12 - 6PM WEEKENDS

GALLERY - ALFREDA BENGE: P.L.A.

Poor little Alfie trying to draw
Trying to draw

Poor Little Alfie trying to sleep
Trying to sleep

SPACE is proud to present a retrospective exhibition of paintings, illustrations, collages and lyrics by Alfreda Benge (b. 1940). Her first showing in a public institution, the exhibition explores Benge's solo and collaborative work, in particular the fascinating creative partnership she shares with her husband, the musician Robert Wyatt (b. 1945).

P.L.A. takes its title from a track on Wyatt's 1985 album Old Rottenhat. Painted by Benge, the cover for this album opens the exhibition, one of a number of album artworks on show. These appear alongside a sequence of portraits depicting Wyatt alone and together with Benge, a tracklist of Wyatt's songs featuring lyrics by Benge, and other items relating to their five decade long collaboration.

While Benge's work with Wyatt is indubitably significant, P.L.A. also attempts to look beyond it: on the one hand to different collaborations (e.g. with the humourist Ivor Cutler on the book Herbert The Chicken (1984) or the poet Bob Dixon, with whom Benge worked on a special edition of leftist journal Artery) and on the other, to her incidental work as a solo artist.

In this sense P.L.A. functions as a retrospective only in the very loosest sense of the term. Previously unseen doodles, self-portraits, photography and printed matter from Wyatt and Benge's home in Louth, Lincolnshire, are given equal standing alongside recognised album artworks. In a display that jumbles its chronology, responsibility for telling Benge's 'story' is only partially taken up. By no means intended as a comprehensive overview, P.L.A. nonetheless represents an unprecedented opportunity to access Benge's art; to encounter the pathos, wit, strangeness, agitation and whimsy of a diverse body of work as simple as it is complex.

Born in Austria to Polish and Austrian parents, Alfreda Benge moved to the UK in 1947. Between 1958-61 she studied painting at Camberwell School of Art, going on to learn typography at the London College of Printing (1961-63) and film at The Royal College of Art (1963-68).

BloombergON AUDIOGOLD ARTS COUNCIL ENGLAND

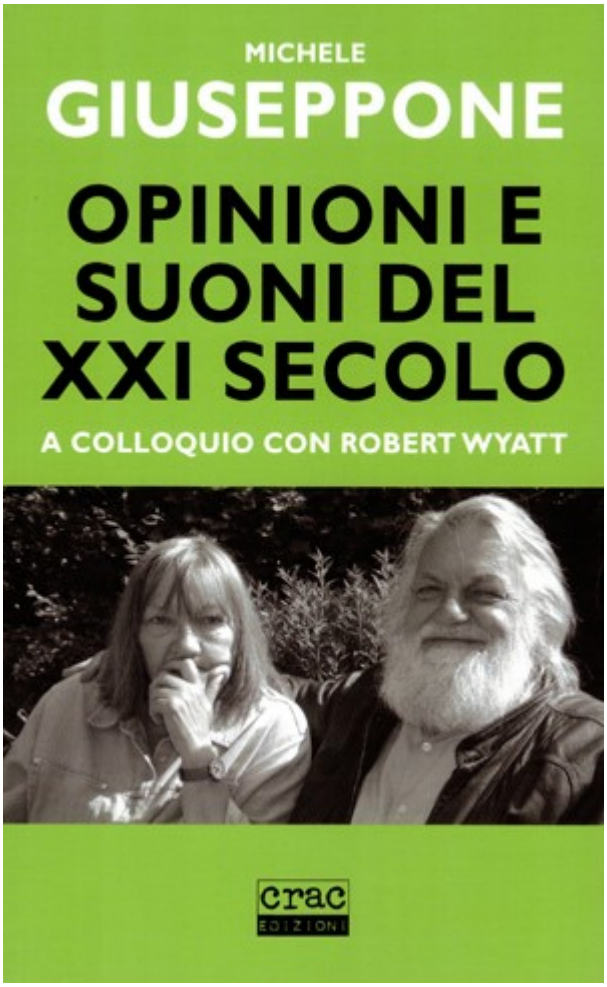
A la même période, l'Hypergallery en ligne commercialisait plusieurs lithographies en édition limitée d'Alfreda Benge, dont la magnifique œuvre illustrant la pochette du disque Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard.

> Zoom

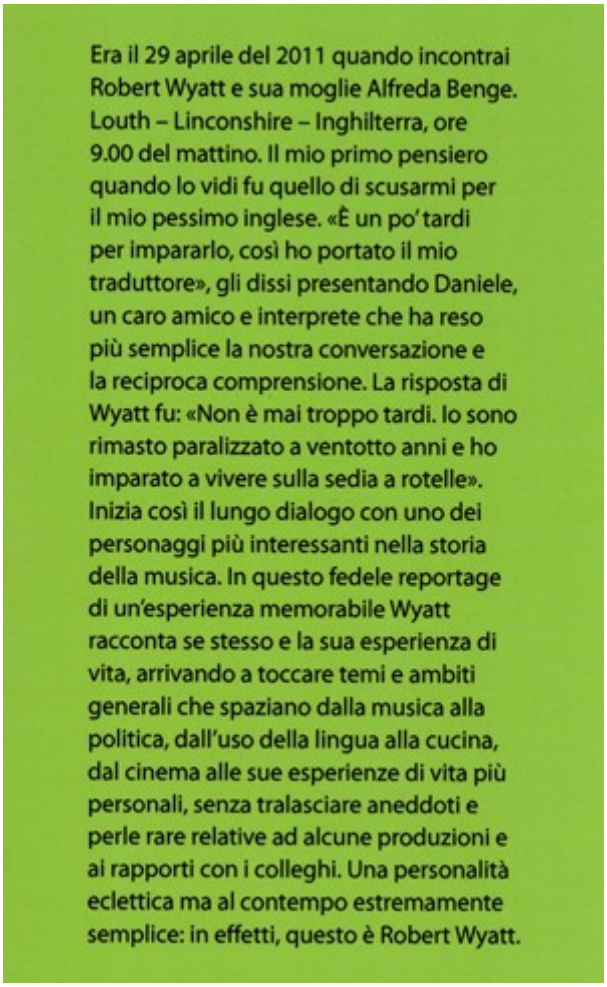
En juillet 2024, Dave Larder signale sur Facebook la participation d'Alfreda Benge à l'album de Nick Hudson en ces termes :
On the album "Kanda Teenage Honey" released in March 2024 by Nick Hudson is the track "Sky burial while alive". The track features Alfreda Benge delivering a spoken introductory explanation.
Nick who grew up in Louth (his parents still live in the area), is now resident in Tiblisi, Georgia.

Alfie y est créditée de "cosmological rhetoric".

0:00 / 4:01



Sky Burial While Alive



A colloquio con Robert Wyatt

ABÉCÉDAIRE

C'est le 29 avril 2011 que j'ai rencontré Robert Wyatt et son épouse Alfreda Benge. Louth - Linconshire - Angleterre, 9h00. Ma première pensée en le voyant a été de m'excuser pour mon mauvais anglais. "Il est un peu tard pour l'apprendre, alors j'ai amené mon traducteur", lui ai-je dit en lui présentant Daniele, un ami cher et un interprète qui a facilité notre conversation et notre compréhension mutuelle. Wyatt a répondu : "Il n'est jamais trop tard, j'ai été paralysé à vingt-huit ans et j'ai appris à vivre dans un fauteuil roulant". Ainsi commence le long dialogue avec l'un des personnages les plus intéressants de l'histoire de la musique. Dans ce reportage fidèle d'une expérience mémorable, Wyatt parle de lui et de son vécu, abordant des thèmes généraux et des domaines allant de la musique à la politique, de l'usage de la langue à la cuisine, du cinéma à ses expériences de vie plus personnelles, sans oublier des anecdotes et des perles rares relatives à certaines productions et à ses relations avec ses collègues. Une personnalité éclectique mais en même temps extrêmement simple : en effet, c'est Robert Wyatt.

Avec un essai introductif de Guido Festinese et une préface de Valerio D'Onofrio.

Photos : Fabio Donato

Ce petit livre mérite une attention particulière. Non parce qu'il cite de manière exagérément élogieuse le présent site mais par ce qu'il relate une aventure éditoriale originale : l'auteur mène pendant près de 100 pages une interview de Robert Wyatt qui prend le temps de cerner des sujets que les magazines qui faisaient le plus souvent le pélerinage à Louth à l'occasion d'un nouvel album n'avaient pas la place de rapporter. Il est probable que cette disponibilité de l'auteur y soit pour beaucoup dans le ton direct et amical des échanges qui nous rend le projet éminemment sympathique.

Qu'il s'agisse de ses méthodes de composition et de son rapport à l'improvisation, du génie intemporel de Bach, de l'art islamique, de l'importance des sonorités de chaque langue dans la musique ("je veux écouter Verdi ou Puccini en italien, je veux écouter Wagner en allemand"), de ce qui distingue les chœurs professionnels des chœurs amateurs (pas forcément ce que vous croyez), du jazz bien sûr, de l'influence d'Alfie, de la très détaillée élaboration de The End Of An Ear, de l'étrangeté de la musique d'un point de vue scientifique, de la vraie valeur de l'avant-garde, et de son admiration pour le peuple japonais (le seul peuple légitime par ce qu'il a vécu dans sa chair à pouvoir interpeller les dirigeants iraniens sur leur programme nucléaire) et de bien d'autres sujets... ce colloque mérite bien son titre Opinions et sons du 21ème siècle...

CRAC EDIZIONI
edizionicrac.blogspot.com

> Zoom

A Season In Hell

ABÉCÉDAIRE

The complete session

ARTHUR RIMBAUD - A SEASON IN HELL - BBC RADIO 3 / BETWEEN THE EARS (2009)

"... About thirty years ago I was in a bar in a small Mexican town where a French actor gave a thoroughly eccentric performance of some of Rimbaud's poetry to a musical accompaniment. He didn't include the prose poem A Season in Hell, probably because it defied even his eccentricity and powers of performance. Later, it seemed to me that radio was the ideal place to try to find expression for its insistent, wild, knowing autobiographical voice and emotional complexity.

I asked the composer Elizabeth (Liz) Purnell to read it, and she leapt at the chance to respond to such an extraordinary piece of writing.

I knew I'd have to make fierce cuts to fit it into half an hour, and had imagined I'd drop the songs which appear about two thirds of the way through the piece, as they seemed to me to be the most problematic elements in a pretty knotty piece of writing. But when we talked about it, Liz argued convincingly for at least some of them to be left in, and I realised when she talked about wanting to set them for Robert Wyatt that she was absolutely right. We decided on the three we both felt would work best, based on instinct rather than any literary judgement; literary judgements about the poem itself are so disparate and interpretations so varied that it was liberating not to have any orthodoxy to follow. Liz says she wanted the songs to suggest a kind of alter-ego Rimbaud, speaking from beyond the grave, and that she asked Wyatt to sing them because of his sense of spontaneity, his interest in poetry and the wonderful delicate nature of his voice in the high register.

She went to record them at his house in Lincolnshire, where she set up a microphone in his front room, ignored the background roar of passing lorries and played him the backing track on her laptop as he sang. Robert was keen to sing the songs mainly in the original French - something I hadn't envisaged, but was charmed when Liz brought the recordings back. Liz knew she was pushing him to the top of his register, but he went for it, and with lots of fag breaks and cups of tea, they got the recordings done over an afternoon and the following morning. One of the most enjoyable recording sessions she's ever done, she says - and not a lorry to be heard in the background. "

Andrew Downs

An excellent analysis of this radio programme

0:00 / 9:00

Three poems sung by Robert Wyatt

Archives / Concerts & clips

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Soft Machine - UFO Club London - June 2, 1967

Soft Machine at the Dutch TV - Sep. 1967

Soft Machine at the French TV Camera 3 - Octobre 1967

Soft Machine à la Nuit Psychédélique La Fenêtre Rose

Soft Machine - Jimi Hendrix

Soft Machine - Ce soir on danse

Soft Machine - Ce soir on danse (2)

Soft Machine - Dim Dam Dom

Soft Machine - Ester's Nose Job - 1969

- Soft Machine - "Tous en scène" (ORTF) - 1969

- Soft Machine - Pop & Jazz festival - Bilzen (Belgique) - 1969

- Soft Machine - Free concert in Hyde Park - 1969

- Soft Machine - Théâtre National de Strasbourg - 1969

- Soft Machine - Gare Montparnasse Paris - 1969

Soft Machine - L'invité du dimanche (ORTF) - 1969

Soft Machine - Théâtre de la Musique (Paris) - 1970 -1ère partie

Soft Machine - Théâtre de la Musique (Paris) - 1970 -2ème partie

Soft Machine at the Holland Pop Festival - 28/06/70

Soft Machine
- répétition de l'album "Fourth" (1970)
- concert du 25 mai 1973 au Bataclan (sans Robert Wyatt)

- Soft Machine - Théâtre 140 (Bruxelles) - 1971

- Soft Machine - Théâtre 140 (Bruxelles) (Extrait) - 1971

- Soft Machine - Radio Bremen (Allemagne) - 1971

- Berlin Jazz Festival - 1971

- Matching Mole - Rockenstock - 1972

- Matching Mole - Archive from the ILEA - 1972

- Improvisation Group - Archive from the ILEA - 1972

- Matching Mole - Pop 2 - 1972

- Hatfield and the North with Robert Wyatt - 1973

- Robert Wyatt - Sea Song - Full version of the film shot in Paris in 1975

- Robert Wyatt - I'm A Believer - 1974

- Robert Wyatt - Shipbuilding (official video) - 1983

- Robert Wyatt - The Old Grey Whitle Test - 1983

- Working Week - We Will Win - Venceremos - 1984

- Wind Of Change - Robert Wyatt & The SWAPO Singers - 1985

Kingdom - Ultramarine with Robert Wyatt - 1993

Another Great Victory - Millennium (Robert Wyatt/Jo Bogaert/Blissphemy) - 1995

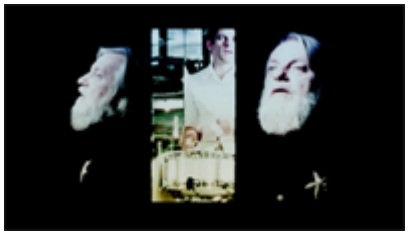
The Songs of Robert Wyatt - London Jazz Festival - November 17, 1999

Comfortably Numb - Robert Wyatt's Meltdown 2001

Five songs from Free Will And Testament - A Robert Wyatt Story (BBC4) - 2003

Gilad Atzmon & the Orient House Ensemble, Re-Arranging the 20th Century - 2004

David Gilmour Live At The Royal Albert Hall - 2006



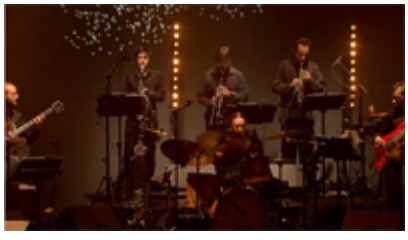
Manzanera / Eno / Wyatt - The Unknown Zone - 2006

University Of Errors Play The Soft Machine - 2006

Hatfield And The North At The Bowery Poetry Club - 2006

Bertrand Burgalat & Robert Wyatt - This Summer Night - 2007

Delta Saxophone Quartet with Hugh Hopper (2007 & 2008)



Mop Meuchiine plays Robert Wyatt (2008 et 2009)

Liberation Music Orchestra - Ornette Coleman's Meltdown - 2009

Orchestre National de Jazz - Around Robert Wyatt - 2009 - Présentation du projet

Orchestre National de Jazz - Around Robert Wyatt - Concert (extrait) - 2009

Orchestre National de Jazz - Just As You Are
7ème Victoires du Jazz - 2009

The Unthanks perform Robert Wyatt's 'Dondestan' - 2010

Comicoperando - 2011

The Unthanks - Sea Song - 2011

The Unthanks performing four songs of Robert Wyatt & Antony and The Johnsons - 2011

Annie Whitehead Group - "Soupsongs - Robert Wyatt tribute" - 2013

- Artchipel Orchestra - Moon In June - 2014

- Artchipel Orchestra - Facelift - 2014

- Athelas Sinfonietta - 2015

- 3 Degrees of Robert Wyatt - June 4, 2015

- Odeia - Alifib - 2017 & 2025

- Max Andrzejewski´s Hütte & Guests Play the Music of Robert Wyatt at Leipzig - 2018 (1)

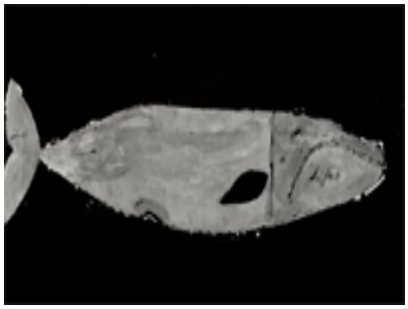
.

Max Andrzejewski´s Hütte & Guests Play the Music of Robert Wyatt at Leipzig - 2018 (2)

.



Artchipel Orchestra plays Soft Machine - Facelift - 2016

North Sea Radio Orchestra plays Sea Song - 2018

Phil Miller Tribute Concerts - 2019

Folly Bololey At Cafe Oto 27 June 2019

Tribute To Hugh Hopper - 30 mai 2019 - Le Triton

- Live A FIP - Tribute to Robert Wyatt - 2019

- "Henry and Robert play Richard" - an antimated short film by Shin Pey - 2020

- Max Andrzejewski´s Hütte & Guests Play the Music of Robert Wyatt - 2020

- Eleven for Ten - Costa - 2021

- Orchestra SMS (Lucca) - 2013 + 2021

When The Fire Grows Cold - 2022

The Unthanks - Shipbuilding - 3 versions

A Visit by Shlomo Polonski - 2022

Henry Now with Annie Barbazza - Piacenza 18/11/2022

John Greaves & Friends - Piacenza - 5 Agosto 2023

Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Shlomo Polonski - 2024

AnaId live at Le Triton - Sweet Memories - 2024

Concert Rock Bottom de l'Atelier Play It Again ! à Paris 8 - 12 juin 2024

Dondestan (for Palestine)

Soft Machine at UFO 1967

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Soft Machine- UFO Club London - June 2, 1967
Activist & friend - John (hoppy) Hopkins had been arrested on trumpet up charges & this performance by Daevid Allen aimed to hit back at the hypocrisies of the British establishment.
Duration : 3:49
Film & Light-Show Projections : Mark Boyle & Joan Hills (P&C Boyle family archives)

"This rare footage of the first Soft Machine lineup shot at the UFO Club in London during the swinging sixties shows an early example of performance poetry by an experimental psychedelic rock band."

More about UFO

Robert Wyatt about Mark Boyle

> Archives

Dutch TV - sep. 1967

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Soft Machine interprète "We Know What You Mean" et "I Should've Known"
Dutch TV Sep. 1967.
durée: 8:42
Lightshow : Mark Boyle
Robert Wyatt, Mike Ratledge et Kevin Ayers.

> Archives

Soft Machine - Caméra 3 - On en parlera

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Soft Machine - 3 octobre 1967 - "Camera 3 - On en parlera" (ORTF)
Durée : 4:17.

- Clarence In Wonderland
- We Did It Again
- Clarence In Wonderland (Reprise)

- Robert Wyatt - batterie
- Kevin Ayers - guitare
- Mike Ratledge - orgue.

> Archives

La Fenêtre Rose

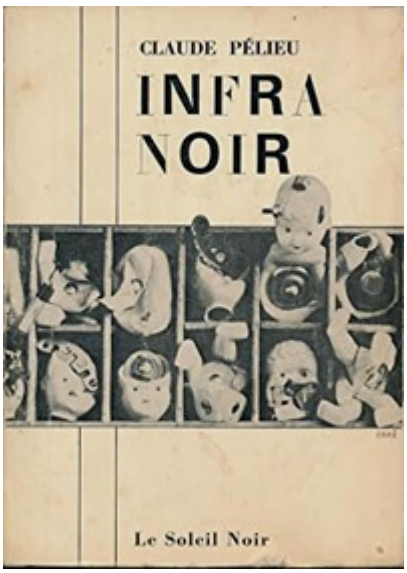
Premier Show Psychédélique organisé par Jean-Jacques Lebel dans la nuit du 17 au 18 novembre 1967 au Palais des sports de Paris, avec Soft Machine et de nombreux autres groupes.

Extrait de l'émission Bouton Rouge avec Soft Machine - présentée par Pierre Lattès.

LA FENÊTRE ROSE

La première Nuit Psychédélique organisée par l'activiste Jean-Jacques Lebel eut lieu au Palais des Sports de Paris les 17 et 18 novembre 1967.

S'il reste peu de traces sonores et visuelles de cet happening qui deviendra en peu de temps une date mythique de la french contre-culture, les 1 500 spectateurs qui l'ont vécu ne sont pas près d'oublier les light-shows, le Plastic Circus, les Pop Dancers et la trentaine de groupes qui jouèrent toute la nuit durant près de 12 heures ...



Parmi ces groupes, on se souvient aujourd'hui de Dantalian's Chariot, Cat Stevens, Tomorrow, Spencer Davis Group, Smoke, Vanilla Fudge et surtout du Soft Machine qui jouera de longs sets jusqu'au bout de la nuit.

La Fenêtre Rose est d'abord un long texte de Claude Pélieu, le poète français de la Beat Generation, qui sera édité bien après le psychadeliopoptique happening dans le recueil Infra Noir aux éditions Le Soleil Noir en 1972.

Infra Noir irréductible, miroir infidèle, labyrinthe & solitude, mort abolie, oui, non, instant fatal, défense de ne pas rêver, sel, sang, pluie, feu, érection, narcotica — Infra Noir où Opale flottait dans la Fenêtre Rose, sans feu ni lieu, sans dieu ni maître.

(houles) Transpacific Telephone
un cri réprimé défonce l'horoscope
les fantômes qui assaillaient Carl le Momo
ne sont plus de ce monde —
(ils ont des visages de fumée)
L'homme-antenne se réfugia dans le ventre d'un turbo-réacteur
FENÊTRE ROSE OU SE LÈVE LA TEMPÊTE
l'axe incendie l'arc-en-ciel
les ongles-chiffres traquent les naufragés
les yeux-plis pluvieux brûlent au large de l'Ile au Trésor
silhouettes de boucaniers s'écrasant entre chiens et loups
(le silence d'une autre tragédie)

500 mcg —
(la pensée procédera à ces exécutions capitales)
le silence au fil des heures — tout grossit — le feutre verse une larme sur l'orchidée rouge

Et
l'aurore en marge de ces plis
désir désir — DÉSIR/d'une
engloutissement d'arc-en-cie
la Fenêtre Rose disparaît
le Calendrier Noir refoula le les épines-scories et le reste

Alice's Day/LSD Alice
les doigts-ricochets
et les hélices du vent
et quelque part abandonné dans un visage se partage pour mi

> Zoom

Quelques photos de La Fenêtre Rose circulent sur internet dont celles postées par Aguzim sur un forum dédié aux hippies des années 70s.

Sur ce même forum, Jacti rapporte sa rencontre inopinée avec Robert Wyatt peu avant le concert de Soft Machine dans un bar de la Porte de Versailles.

Je venais d'avoir 19 ans et, compte tenu de l'affiche, je ne pouvais pas ne pas y être.
J'ai d'ailleurs une anecdote qui va certainement en rendre jaloux quelques-uns ici. Avant le début des hostilités dans la salle, je décide d'aller prendre un sandwich dans un des nombreux troquets devant le Palais des Sports et qu'elle n'est pas ma surprise de sortir en même temps, par la même porte, avec... Robert Wyatt !
Malgré mon anglais hésitant, je l'aborde (c'est facile car il est vraiment à côté de moi). Il me demande dans quel établissement il vaut mieux aller et avec l'assurance de l'ignorant, je lui indique l'un des troquets et lui demande si je peux venir avec lui. Il ne fait aucun problème, certainement content d'être finalement reconnu et de parler avec un français. Je ne me souviens pas de la teneur de notre conversation, assez rudimentaire et nous mangeons de bon cœur chacun notre sandwich.
Je me souviens d'un mec tout à fait abordable, charmant, essayant même de dire quelques mots en français. Un très bon souvenir.
Quant à la nuit de la Fenêtre Rose elle-même, je me souviens que Soft Machine a joué très longtemps en enchaînant les morceaux sans interruption et de la prestation de Dantalion' Chariot qui avaient recouvert les ampli en blanc (ils jouaient eux-mêmes souvent en blanc) et le membre le plus connu, à l'époque, était Zoot Money.
Je me rappelle que j'ai parlé avec Robert Wyatt aussi de la fameuse soirée à la RoundHouse à Londres du 15 octobre 1966 où Soft Machine et Pink Floyd ont joué (j'y étais !).

> Zoom

La Fenetre Rose, Premiere Nuit Psychedelique au Palais des sports de Paris

La revue anglaise IT (The International Times) annonçait même l'évènement parisien dans son n° 21 daté de la semaine du 17 au 30 novembre 1967.

Paris freak-out

For the first time on the Continent, an all-night dream, a psychadeliopoptique happening complete with light show, pop dancers, plastic circus, and Suzy Creamcheese— late of San Francisco and London — pop posters, and a wildish fashion collection, will appear on 17 and 18 November at the Palais des Sports in Paris.

LA FENETRE ROSE, the name of the show, is being staged by Alan Dale and Tony Townsend, two of England's leading impressarios in the field of all-night experience. The Fernch reaction to this is, so far, somewhat bewlidcred. The idea of thousands of people coming together to have what amount to a large pop party with dozens of top pop performers and an audience as much performers as the performers themselves, is something new in France. At least 100 pop artistes and their horde will be flying to Paris, together with 7 tons of light.

A man called JEFFREY SHAW and his PLASTIC CIRCUS are bringing miles of plastic tubing from Amsterdam with which Mr Shaw plans to fill the Palais des Sports.

THE EXPLODING GALAXY, which recently startled English television will present one of their extraordinary choreographic scenes and perform at will throughout the show.

MALCOLM TILLIS has designed a wilder collection of clothes that, in his words, "break the rules". Many of England's top pop groups, including SPENCER DAVIS and the SOFT MACHINE, will perform for twelve continuous hours. Europe's top D.J., ROSKO, will broadcast the show in France and through Radio-Luxemburg.

Paris freak-out

For the first time on the Continent, an all-night dream, a psychadeliopoptique happening complete with light show, pop dancers, plastic circus, and Suzy Creamcheese—late of San Francisco and London — pop posters, and a wildish fashion collection, will appear on 17 and 18 November at the Palais des Sports in Paris.

LA FENETRE ROSE, the name of the show, is being staged by Alan Dale and Tony Townsend, two of England's leading impresarios in the field of all-night experience.

The French reaction to this is, so far, somewhat bewildered. The idea of thousands of people coming together to have what amount to a large pop party with dozens of top pop performers and an audience as much performers as the performers themselves, is something new in France. At least 100 pop artistes and their hordes will be flying to Paris, together with 7 tons of light.

A man called JEFFREY SHAW and his PLASTIC CIRCUS are bringing miles of plastic tubing from Amsterdam with which Mr Shaw plans to fill the Palais des Sports.

THE EXPLODING GALAXY, which recently startled English television will present one of their extraordinary choreographic scenes and perform at will throughout the show.

MALCOLM TILLIS has designed a wilder collection of clothes that, in his words, "break the rules".

Many of England's top pop groups, including SPENCER DAVIS and the SOFT MACHINE, will perform for twelve continuous hours. Europe's top D.J., ROSKO, will broadcast the show in France and through Radio Luxenburg.

RIALS X...

Thursday, November 9.
after a previous attempt
in without legal counsel,
to matter, they all looked g ages. One man seemed unt eyed, one was a kid
t about to buck anybody,
o do. The rest were non-that throughout the trial
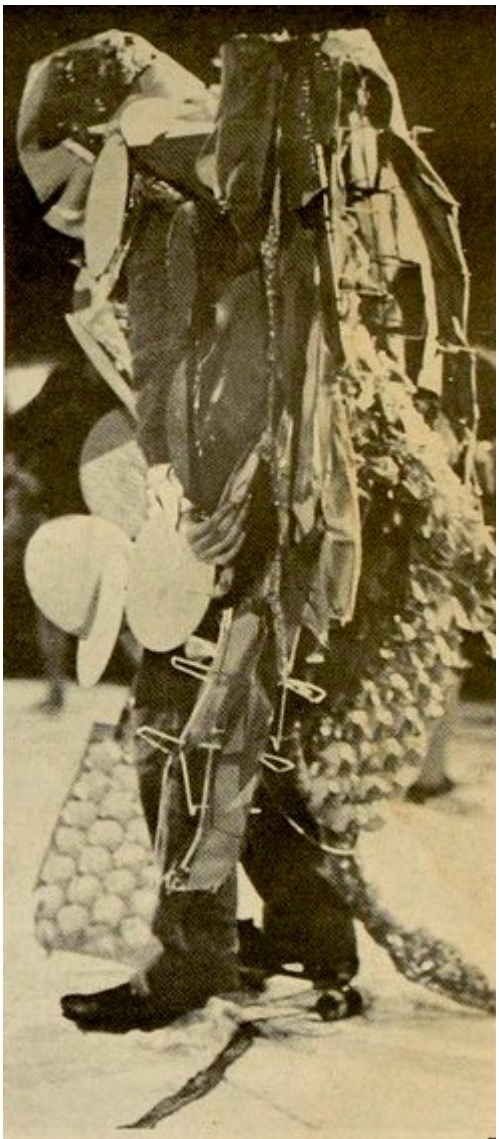
to be no real reason for koran which he also refused, explaining that because they

PSYCHEDELIC RESEARCH CENTRE

Last month Time Out of Mind (originally the Head Shop) closed down leaving a major gap in the facilities of Notting Hill, an area with far too few focal points in relation to its large hip population.

Now round the corner in Blenheim Crescent (near Portobello Road) the Psychedelic Research Centre has opened to continue and move forward from Time Out of Mind.



At present the centre consists of a shop which took over the stock of Time Out of Mind and above the shop a silk screen press has been built and is ready for use. Geoff. Rainford the moving force behind the centre is very interested in hearing from designers and also anybody with ideas. The long-term aim is to establish a creative community.

A major development likely soon is a direct link with Chet

Scene from EXPLODING GALAXY BIRD BALLET. The GALAXY will be in Paris for La Fenetri Rose.
—Photo: Ray Stevenson

> Zoom

Scene from EXPLODING GALAXY BIRD BALLET. The GALAXY will be in Paris for La Fenetri Rose.
—Photo: Ray Stevenson

> Zoom

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Thank You Jim

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Footage from the Jimi Hendrix Tour USA 1968.
Soft Machine - Thank You Pierrot Lunaire/Have You Ever Bean Green? (Vol. 2)
Durée: 2:15

> Archives

Ce soir on danse

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Ce soir on danse avec les Soft Machines et leur musique expérimentale
durée: 25:19
Emission de la télévision française, enregistrée en octobre 1967 et diffusée le 25 août 1968 (Save Yourself est également enregistré au cours de ce même set).

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Save Yourself

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Soft Machine - Save Yourself
durée: 10:15
Extrait de l'émission Ce soir on danse enregistrée en octobre 1967 et diffusée le 25 août 1968.

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Dim Dam Dom

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

Improvisation + Hope For Happiness
Emission Dim Dam Dom de la télévision française enregistrée en octobre 1967 avec Robert Wyatt, Kevin Ayers et Mike Ratledge.
Durée: 5:26

> Archives

Esther's Nose Job

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Soft Machine en répétition au Ronnie Scott's de Londres - 25 avril 1969 pour l'émission Forum Musiques - Spécial Londres" de la 1ère chaîne de la TV française (diffusion le 24 mai 1969).
Esther's Nose Job
durée: 10:23
Réalisation : Raoul Sangla

> Archives

Tous en scène

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

Soft Machine interprète "A door opens and closes" Émission "Tous en scène" diffusée le 25 juillet 1969 (ORTF).
durée: 5:05
Robert Wyatt, Mike Ratledge et Hugh Hopper.

> Archives

Bilzen Jazz And Pop Festival Aug 22, 1969

Soft Machine - Moon In June
durée: 15:16
Jazz & Pop Festival - Bilzen, Belgium - August 22, 1969

Mike Ratledge - Keyboard
Hugh Hopper - Bass
Robert Wyatt - Drums, Vocal

Le "Jazz & Pop Festival" a eu lieu les 22 et 23 août 1969 à Bilzen (Belgique) avec au programme Deep Purple, Shocking Blue, Bonzo Dog Doo Dah Band, Taste, Moody Blues, Soft Machine, Marsha Hunt & White Trash, Brian Auger & The Trinity, Steve Shorter & Tilly Set, Humble Pie, Life, Blossom Toes, The Move...

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Hyde Park - 20 september 1969

Free concert in Hyde Park on September 20, 1969 (excerpt) from the Dig Media Jack Henry Moore archive.

Robert Wyatt - drums
Hugh Hopper - bass
Mike Ratledge - organ
Duration: 10:45

> Archives

Théâtre National de Strasbourg - 1er décembre 1969

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Soft Machine - Théâtre National de Strasbourg (01/12/69)
durée: 4:31

Mike Ratledge - Keyboard
Hugh Hopper - Bass
Robert Wyatt - Drums, Vocal

Extraits du concert (Eamonn Andrews + Hibou, Anemone And Bear) suivis par des interviews de jeunes spectateurs après le concert...

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Soft Machine - Gare Montparnasse - 28 novembre 1969

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Soft Machine - Dim Dam Dom (28/11/69)
durée: 2:32

Extrait d'un film de Gérard Pirès pour l'émission télévisiée avec Anna Karina et le septet de Soft Machine jouant en play-back sur le parvis de la gare Montparnasse à Paris.

A noter : Robert Wyatt à la guitare basse !

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Soft Machine - L'invité du dimanche

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Soft Machine - 7 décembre 1969 - L'invité du Dimanche (ORTF)
Réalisation : Raoul Sangla et Jean Brard.

- Pigling Bland
- Facelift

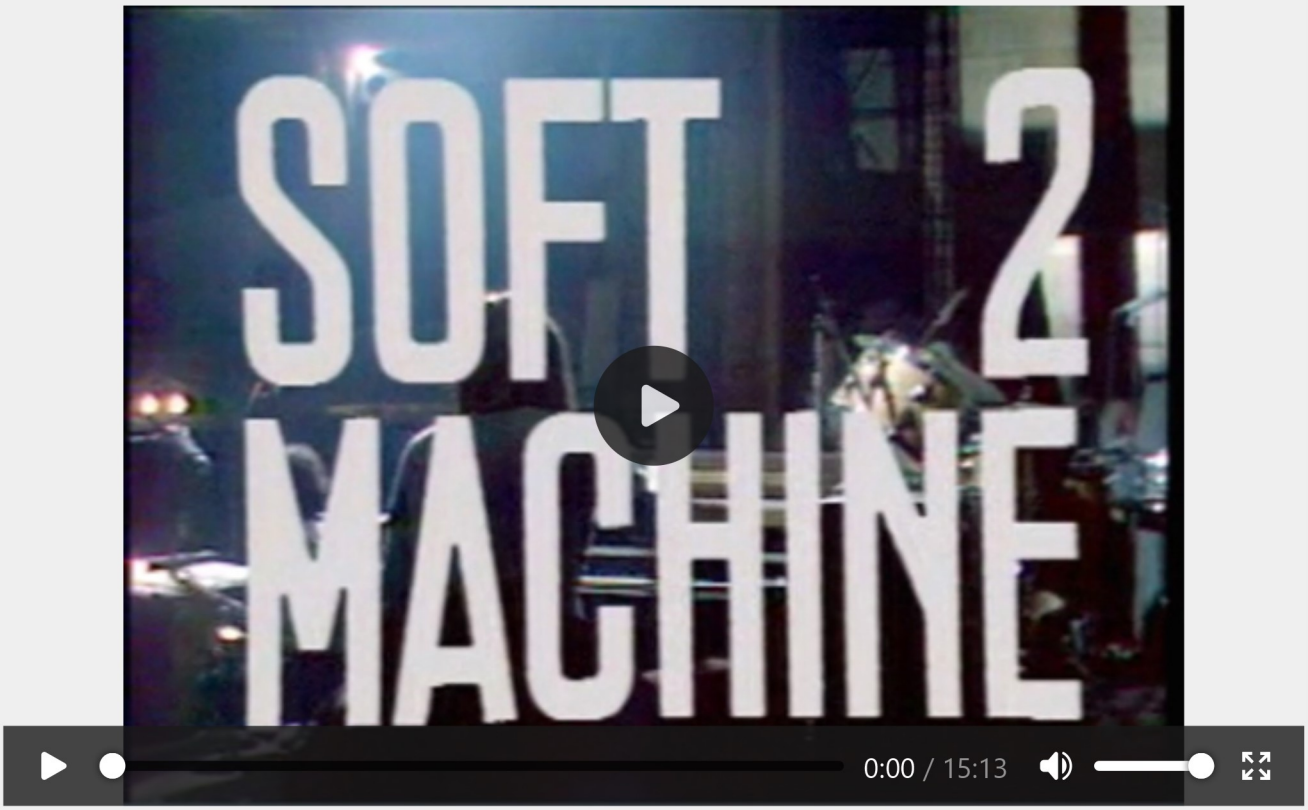
- Mike Ratledge - Organ, Electric Piano
- Hugh Hopper - Bass
- Robert Wyatt - Drums
- Elton Dean - Alto sax
- Lyn Dobson - Soprano and Tenor Saxes
- Marc Charig - Cornet
- Nick Evans - Trombone

> Archives

Soft Machine - partie 1

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Soft Machine (Robert Wyatt, Mike Ratledge, Hugh Hopper, Elton Dean, Lyne Dobson) - 2 mars 1970 - Théâtre de la Musique (Paris).
Émission Pop 2 (ORTF) - 1ère partie.
Durée : 15:29
Réalisateur : Claude Ventura
Présentateur : Patrice Blanc Francard



> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Soft Machine - partie 2

Soft Machine (Robert Wyatt, Mike Ratledge, Hugh Hopper, Elton Dean, Lyne Dobson) - 2 mars 1970 - Théâtre de la Musique (Paris).
Émission Pop 2 (ORTF) - 2ème partie.
Durée : 15:13
Réalisateur : Claude Ventura
Présentateur : Patrice Blanc Francard

> Archives

Soft Machine at the Holland Pop Festival - 28/06/70

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Soft Machine plays Esther's Nose Job at the Holland Pop Festival (28/06/70) (excerpt).
Duration : 6:15

- Robert Wyatt - drums
- Hugh Hopper - bass
- Mike Ratledge - keyborards
- Elton Dean - saxophone

> Archives

Soft Machine At Olympic Sound Studios

Soft Machine (émission pop 2)
1) Répétition de "Teeth" pour l'album Fourth à l'Olympic Sound Studios (London) en octobre 1970 avec Robert Wyatt, Mike Ratledge, Hugh Hopper, Elton Dean et Roy Babbington.
durée: 11:12
2) Extrait du concert du 29 mai 1973 au Bataclan (Paris) avec Mike Ratledge, Roy Babbington, Elton Dean, John Marshall et Karl Jenkins.
durée: 26:11

> Archives

Soft Machine - Bruxelles - 1971

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Soft Machine - 15 janvier 1971 - Théâtre 140 - Bruxelles.
Durée : 1h03.
Réalisation : RTB/Jacques Bourton

- Robert Wyatt - drums and vocals
- Mike Ratledge - keyboards
- Hugh Hopper - bass
- Elton Dean - sax and keyboards

1. Improvisation 2:44
2. Neo-Caliban Grides 8:53
3. Out-Bloody-Rageous 17:31
4. Kings and Queens 26:45
5. Teeth 42:10
6. Pigling Bland 51:27
7. Esther's Nose Job (excerpt) 53:44
8. '...It's nothing' 56:17
9. Mousetrap 56:52
10. Noisette 1:01:47

Articles consacrés à ce concert :

- Le Soir du 16/01/1971
- La Dernière Heure du 16/01/1971
- Le Peuple du 17/01/1971

- Communiqué de presse diffusé par les organisateurs avant le concert

> Archives

Soft Machine au Théâtre 140 (Bruxelles)

Soft Machine (Robert Wyatt, Mike Ratledge, Hugh Hopper, Elton Dean)
15 janvier 1971 - Theatre 140 - Bruxelles (Belgique).
Durée : 9:13
Réalisation : RTBF

Soft Machine at Radio Bremen's TV studio

Soft Machine (Robert Wyatt, Mike Ratledge, Hugh Hopper, Elton Dean) - 23 mars 1971 - Radio Bremen's TV studio (Allemagne).
Émission Beat Club.
Durée : 20:46
Réalisateur : Mike Leckebusch
Ingénieur du son : Otto G. Hühn

> Archives

Berlin Jazz Festival 1971

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

Robert Wyatt's appearance at the Berlin Jazz Festival on November 7, 1971, to accompany the four violinists of the New Violin Summit marked the beginning of a new musical adventure, just a few weeks after he left Soft Machine.

The double album New Violin Summit captures the essence of this extraordinary evening, where the four soloists (Jean-Luc Ponty, Don "Sugar Cane" Harris, Nipso Brantner, Michal Urbaniak)—all backed by the same electrifying rhythm section (Robert Wyatt, Terje Rypdal, Wolfgang Dauner, Neville Whitehead) shattered the boundaries of jazz, rock, and blues with compositions drawn from their respective repertoires.

Another album, Sugar Cane's Got The Blues, features several tracks performed that evening by Don'Sugar Cane Harris, including "Where's My Sunshine," filmed by a professional crew and recently unearthed by the archivist-musical alchemist Alan Bershaw (Bershaw Archival Management) recently unearthed to replace the mediocre mono sound of the video recording with the exceptional sound of the album released the following year on MPS.

This sonic sleight of hand transports us directly to the front rows of the Berlin Philharmonic Hall on November 7, 1971, with the indescribable feeling of experiencing a concert that will go down in history.

> Archives

Matching Mole

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Matching Mole (Robert Wyatt, Bill MacCormick, Phil Miller, Dave MacRae) - 7 janvier 1972.
Émission Rockenstock (ORTF)
Durée : 14:20
Présentateur : Pierre Lattès

> Archives

Matching Mole - Smoke Rings

Matching Mole - 1972. 31st May.
From the ILEA (Inner London Education Authority) archive.

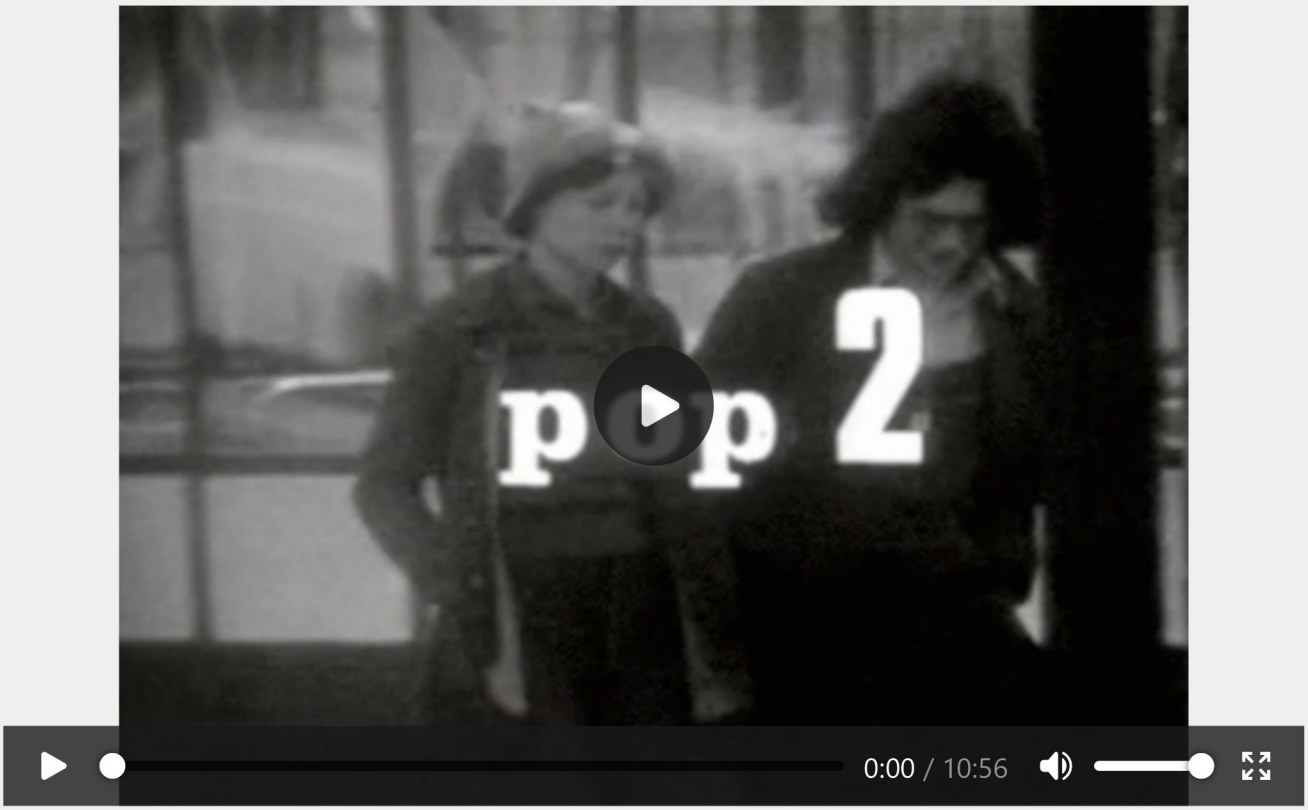
Smoke Rings played by Matching Mole :

- Robert Wyatt - vocal & drums
- Dave McCrae - keyboards
- Bill Mac Cormick - bass
- Phil Miller - guitar

> Archives

Improvisation Group

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives



Improvisation Group - 1972. 31st May.
From the ILEA (Inner London Education Authority) TV archive.

- Robert Wyatt - drums
- Kevin Ayers - guitar
- Lol Coxhill - saxophone
- David Bedford - organ

> Archives

Matching Mole

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Matching Mole - extrait du concert donné en mai 1972 à Paris.
durée: 10:56
Émission diffusée le 10 juin 1972 sur la 2ème chaîne de l'ORTF.
Réalisateur : Claude Ventura
Présentateur : Dominique Blanc Francard.

> Archives

Hatfield and the North

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Hatfield and the North avec Robert Wyatt Rockenstock (ORTF) - Émission diffusée le 2 janvier 1973.
Réalisation : Gille Daude
Présentation et production : Pierre Lattès

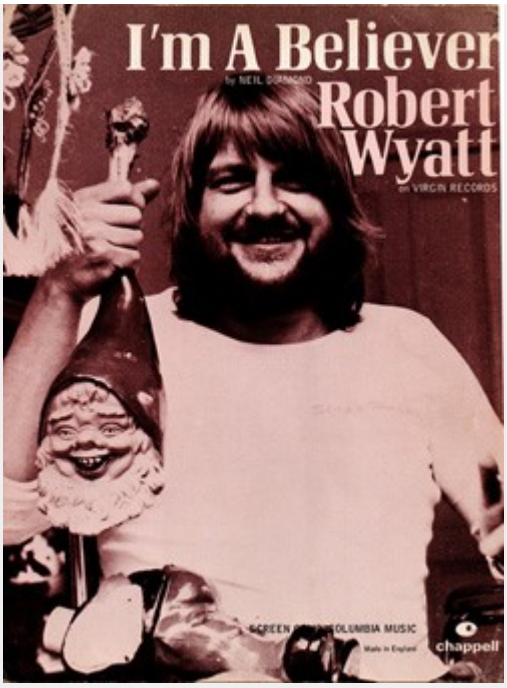
> Archives

Sea Song

Full version (14:48) of the film shot in Paris in 1975 by French Television, the day after the concert at the Theatre of the Champs Elysees with Henry Cow.

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE



Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

I'm A Believer

Robert Wyatt - September 1974 - BBC - Top Of The Pops (Robert Wyatt with Nick Mason and Fred Frith)

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

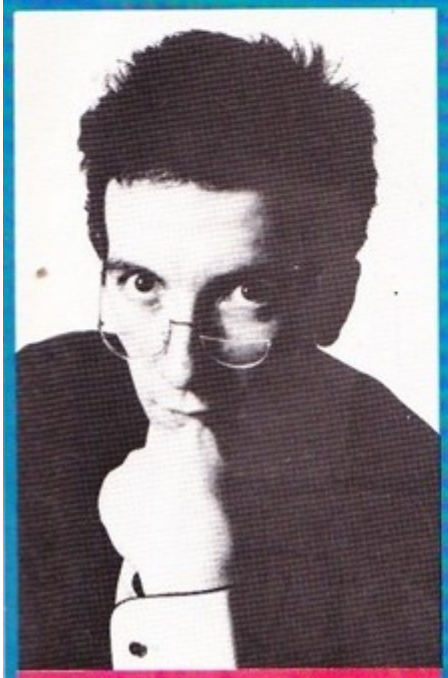
Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Shipbuilding (official video)

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives



Robert Wyatt - Shipbuilding (official video)
durée: 3:04
Mai 1983

Robert Wyatt - Vocals / Percussion
Elvis Costello - Backing Vocals
Mark Bedford - Double Bass
Clive Langer - Organ
Martin Hughes - Drums

> Archives

SHIPBUILDING
THE WRITER & THE SONG

ELVIS COSTELLO

"The song came about this way. Clive Langer had written the tune specifically for Robert Wyatt and he gave me a tape of the backing track without any vocal other than a very vague melody line.

We were on tour in Australia and this was at the height of the Falklands War. We were getting these very third-hand reports through the Australian press which I think are world famous for being very sensational. You know, British troops were being napalmed and ships were being blown up every day. It really was alarmingly dramatised.

They say when you're away, you can see things in a different light. This 'shipbuilding' idea popped into my head. I wrote the lyric quite quickly. I didn't hone it down that much. Normally when I write, I change a lot but this came almost as a complete thought.

I rang Clive up from Australia and said, I've finished the song but I'm not entirely certain you're going to be pleased with it. I wouldn't read him the lyrics over the phone because I always think if you do that then you'd be a poet and not a songwriter.

The idea came about purely from the notion of these ships going down and life being lost.

It's very easy to fall into the trap of writing a very poignant song about war but that's been done to death over the years. Nobody ever thinks of the consequences of death and destruction on people back at home except in a sentimental way.

So I thought I'd take up the more ironic aspect of it. That shipbuilding in this country is in a terrible state and has caused a tremendous economic decline in the areas where it was really important like Clydeside, Tyneside, Northern Ireland and Merseyside.

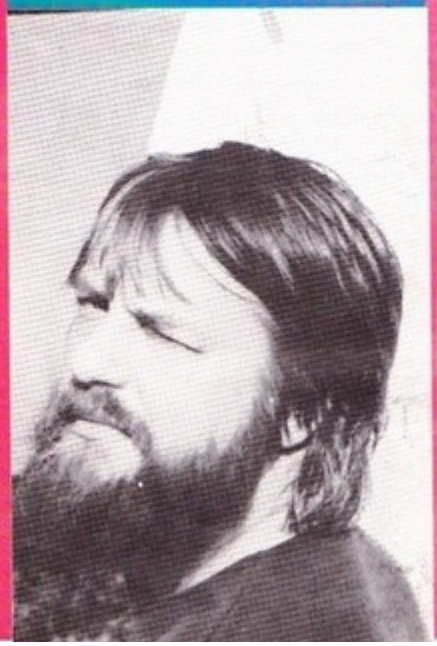
I could see a point if the war had carried on where fathers would have been getting their jobs back to build ships to send their sons to die and that's really all the lyric is about.

You get a conflict between those people who are glad to be working again and those people who see the futility of it. It's just a tragedy.

The last line was quite important. I didn't want the song just to stay totally within the bounds of realities and commodities. The first part of the song talks about commodities and the second about realities. I thought that there would also be some sort of aspiration to something a bit better. The idea of the line is that there must be something better to do than ending up in the water for some other purpose than drowning. That's what I currently think. I don't know what crossed Robert's mind when he sang it."

IS IT WORTH IT?
A NEW WINTER COAT AND SHOES FOR THE WIFE
AND A BICYCLE ON THE BOY'S BIRTHDAY
IT'S JUST A RUMOUR THAT WAS SPREAD AROUND TOWN
BY THE WOMEN AND CHILDREN
SOON WE'LL BE SHIPBUILDING

WELL, I ASK YOU
THE BOY SAID, DAD THEY'RE GOING TO TAKE ME TO TASK
BUT I'LL BE BACK BY CHRISTMAS
IT'S JUST A RUMOUR THAT WAS SPREAD AROUND TOWN
SOMBODY SAID THAT SOMEONE GOT FILLED IN
FOR SAYING THAT PEOPLE GET KILLED IN
THE RESULT OF THIS SHIPBUILDING



WITH ALL THE WILL IN THE WORLD
DIVING FOR DEAR LIFE
WHEN WE COULD BE DIVING FOR PEARLS

IT'S JUST A RUMOUR THAT WAS SPREAD AROUND TOWN
A TELEGRAM OR A PICTURE POSTCARD
WITHIN WEEKS THEY'LL BE RE-OPENING THE SHIPYARD
AND NOTIFYING THE NEXT OF KIN ONCE AGAIN
IT'S ALL WE'RE SKILLED IN
WE WILL BE SHIPBUILDING

WITH ALL THE WILL IN THE WORLD
DIVING FOR DEAR LIFE
WHEN WE COULD BE DIVING FOR PEARLS

WORDS BY ELVIS COSTELLO/MUSIC BY CLIVE LANGER.
REPRODUCED BY PERMISSION
WARNER BROS. MUSIC LTD./PLANGENT VISIONS MUSIC LTD.
ON ROUGH TRADE

ROBERT WYATT

Born Again Cretin & Shipbuilding

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Robert Wyatt - Born Again Cretin & Shipbuilding
The Old Grey Whistle Test (1983)
Duration: 6:15

> Archives

We Will Win

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Working Week - We Will Win
durée: 3:55
Venceremos (1984)
Promotional Video.

Robert Wyatt - vocals
Simon Booth - spanish and electric guitar
Dave Bitelli - baritone sax and clarinet
Chuchow Mercham - bass
Kim Burton - piano
Mark Taylor - drums
Dawson Miller - percussion
Bosco D'Oliveira - percussion
Tracey Thorn - vocals
Claudia Figuerda - vocals

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

Wind Of Change

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Robert Wyatt & The SWAPO Singers - Wind of Change
durée: 2:24
(1985)

> Archives

Kingdom

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

Kingdom - Ultramarine with Robert Wyatt 1993
MTV.
Duration: 4:38

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Another Great Victory

Millennium - Another Great Victory.
Titre extrait de l'album A Civilised Word réalisé par Millennium (Robert Wyatt/Jo Bogaert/Blissphemy) en 1995.
- Programmed by Jo Bogaert
- Violin – Chikako Sato
- Vocals – Robert Wyatt
Durée: 6:16

Millennium - A Civilised Word (CNR 200 23 22)

Robert Wyatt, Alfreda Benge, Jo bogaert, Iris Pattyn, Toon Loenders et Remo Perrotti pendant l'enregistrement de Millennium.

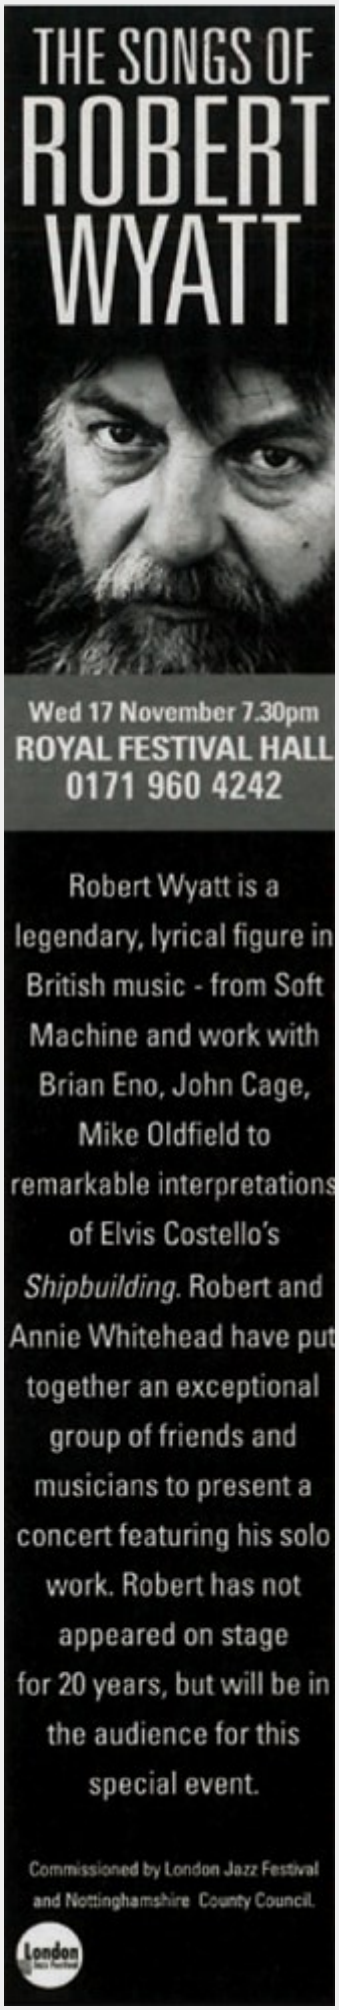
> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises



HOME

The Songs Of Robert Wyatt At The London Jazz Festival

0:00 / 1:24:12

London Jazz Festival - 17 novembre 1999

Viendra, viendra pas ? A chaque fois que des musiciens célèbrent sur scène le chanteur, pianiste, percussionniste et ancien batteur Robert Wyatt, ses admirateurs se posent la question...

S'il avait été absent en octobre 1999 de la présentation au Nancy Jazz Pulsations de Soup Songs par une nonnette britannique qui perpétue son œuvre, Wyatt avait, un mois plus tard, assisté en coulisse au concert du même groupe dirigé par la tromboniste Annie Whitehead lors du London Jazz Festival. "Ma présence aura été ce qui se rapprochera au maximum de l'idée de mon "retour" scénique", avait-il alors plaisanté.

Sylvain Siclier in Le Monde du 6 novembre 2003

En ce soir de novembre, Robert Wyatt a sans doute assisté à un des meilleurs concerts de la formation emmenée par Annie Whithead, galvanisée par la présence si rare, pour les raisons que l'on sait, de l'auteur-compositeur.

Capté par BBC Radio 3, ces moments de grâce ont gardé avec le temps toute leur magie.

- Alliance (0;14)
- Team Spirit (6:08)
- CB Jeebies (13:31)
- September For Ninth (18:05)
- Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road (24:33)
- Alifib (31:10)
- A Sunday In Madrid (41:53)
- Sea Song (48:31)
- The Duchess (54:10)
- P.L.A. (59:18)
- Alien (1:02:29)
- Free Will And Testament (1:08:25)
- Gharbzadegi (1:14:38)

- Annie Whitehead - trombone
- Julie Tippetts - vocals
- Harry Beckett - trumpet, flugelhorn
- Didier Malherbe - flute, alto saxophone, soprano saxophone, doudouk, ocarina
- George Khan - tenor Saxophone, baritone saxophone
- Janet Mason - piano, keyboards
- Phil Manzanera - guitar
- Ian Maidman - vocals, guitar
- Steve Lamb - bass
- Liam Genockey - drums

Robert Wyatt's Meltdown 2001

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Comfortably Numb - Royal Festival Hall
durée: 6:51

Extraits du concert de David Gilmour. le 22 juin 2001.

More about Robert Wyatt's Meltdown 2001

> Archives

Five songs from A Robert Wyatt Story

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

Cinq morceaux extraits du documentaire de la BBC4 : Free Will and Testament - A Robert Wyatt Story (2003) réalisé par Mark Kidel.

- Robert Wyatt, vocals, trumpet
- Annie Whitehead, band leader, trombone, vocals
- Jennifer Maidman, lead guitar, vocals
- Liam Genockey, drums
- Janette Mason, keyboards
- Dudley Philipps, bass
- Larry Stabbins, saxophone
- Harry Beckett, trumpet
- Paul Weller, slide guitar

Sea Song

Gharbzadegi

September The Ninth

Left On Man

Free Will And testament

The musicians, many now firm friends, were equally enthusiastic. 'I loved it,' Paul Weller recalls. "The sound wasn't great, but aside from that, everything was great. And it was great to actually see Robert performing. I remember at the time, probably because I was pissed as well, I kept bugging him about live shows.' Like all Wyattophiles, Weller still dreams of an actual headline gig, although he is reconciled to the fact that it will probably never happen.

From Different Every Time - The Authorised Biography of Robert Wyatt by Marcus O'Dair (Serpent's Tail - 2014)

> Archives

Re-arranging the 20th Century

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

0:00 / 5:39

Gilad Atzmon & the Orient House Ensemble, Re-Arranging the 20th Century (2004)
Video Art by Yeast.
durée: 5:38

> Archives

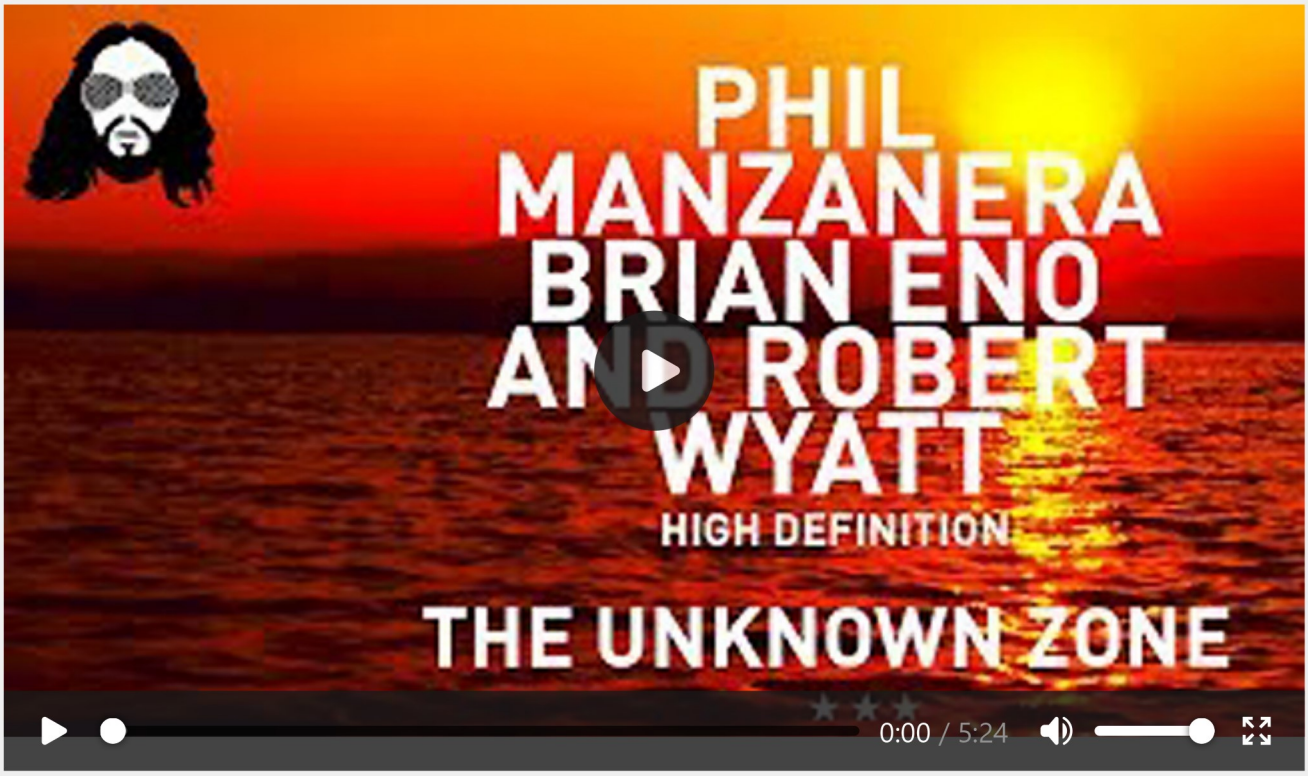
David Gilmour Live At The Royal Albert Hall - 2006

David Gilmour - Then I Close My Eyes
From the DVD "Remember That Night - Live At The Royal Albert Hall" - 2006.

"... Gilmour somehow managed to persuade Wyatt to go onstage at the Royal Abert Hall in 2006. 'He has one of those voice wich just tear at your soul', says Gilmour. 'There's the old cliché about singing the phone book, but he really does have a voice which endears itself to you and tugs at the hearstrings. But he's also a very, very accomplished musician'. [...]

Having wheeled onto the stage, Robert sat, fag in mouth, for five minutes without playing a note. But, when the time came, he distilled, deeply lyrical cornet solo curled like smoke above Gilmour's gently looping guitar part. The DVD Remember That Night captures the guitarist's broad, and possibly relieved, smile as Robert takes off."

Different Every Time - Marcus O'Dair



> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

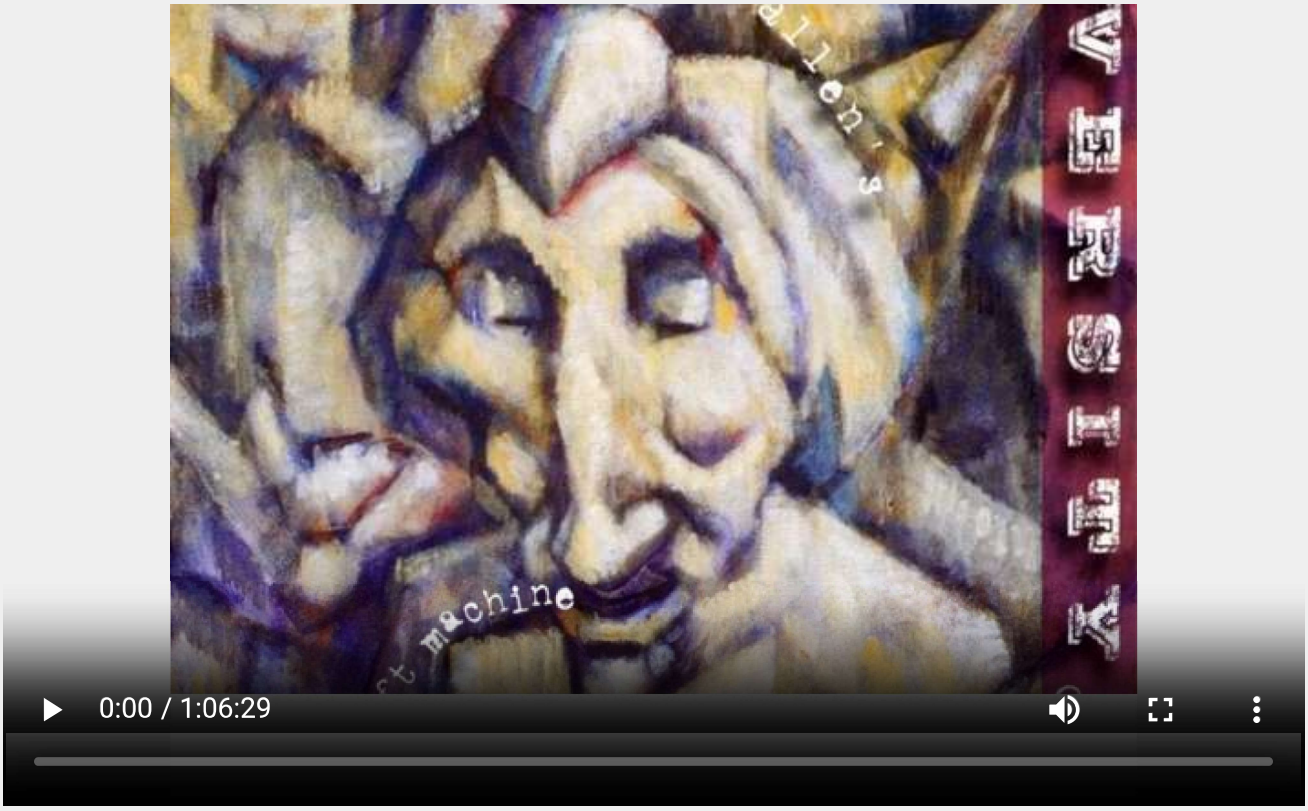
HOME

The Unknown Zone

THE UNKNOWN ZONE (Wyatt/Eno/Manzanera)

When Robert Wyatt was recording ' Cukooland 'at my studio Eno popped round for dinner ,a chat,and an overdub or two and after a few bevies we had a jam.This track ,The Unknown Zone' grew out of that night's improvisations, as did my track '50 minutes later.

Phil Manzanera



Phil Manzanera: Guitars
Brian Eno: Chaos drums and synth bass
Robert Wyatt: Keyboards
Yaron Stavi: Double Bass

Engineered and mixed by Jamie Johnson at Gallery Studio London October 2006

> Archives

University of Errors Play The Soft Machine

University of Errors Play The Soft Machine Live at the Gong Family Unconvention 2006.
Gong Family Unconventional Gathering. The Melweg, Amsterdam.05/11/06

00:00 - That's How Much I Need You Now
04:11 - Save Yourself
07:19 - Hope For Happiness
15:40 - She's Gone
18:09 - When I Don't Want You
23:17 - You Don't Remember
27:33 - Tattoo Internude
30:03 - I Should Have Known
35:56 - Shooting At The Moon
41:47 - Stoned Innocent Frankenstein
46:20 - Fohat Dig Holes In Space
58:53 - Love Makes Sweet Music

Dr. Dada Ale & He Arty: Floating guitar and grinde.
Prof. Posh Bollox: Liquid luncheon guitar & mega phonetix.
Prof. Perplexiglass: Suave bananaply & bottomly bass.
Dr. Harem Q Woogle, Esq: Hit sticks stampons poundig stone & very few issues Countess Nicoletta Stephanzina La Magnifico: Theramin of toast mezcla en vivo por David Id y Venux De Luxe

Hatfield And The North At The Bowery Poetry Club

New-York City - June 25 2006

0:00 / 8:44

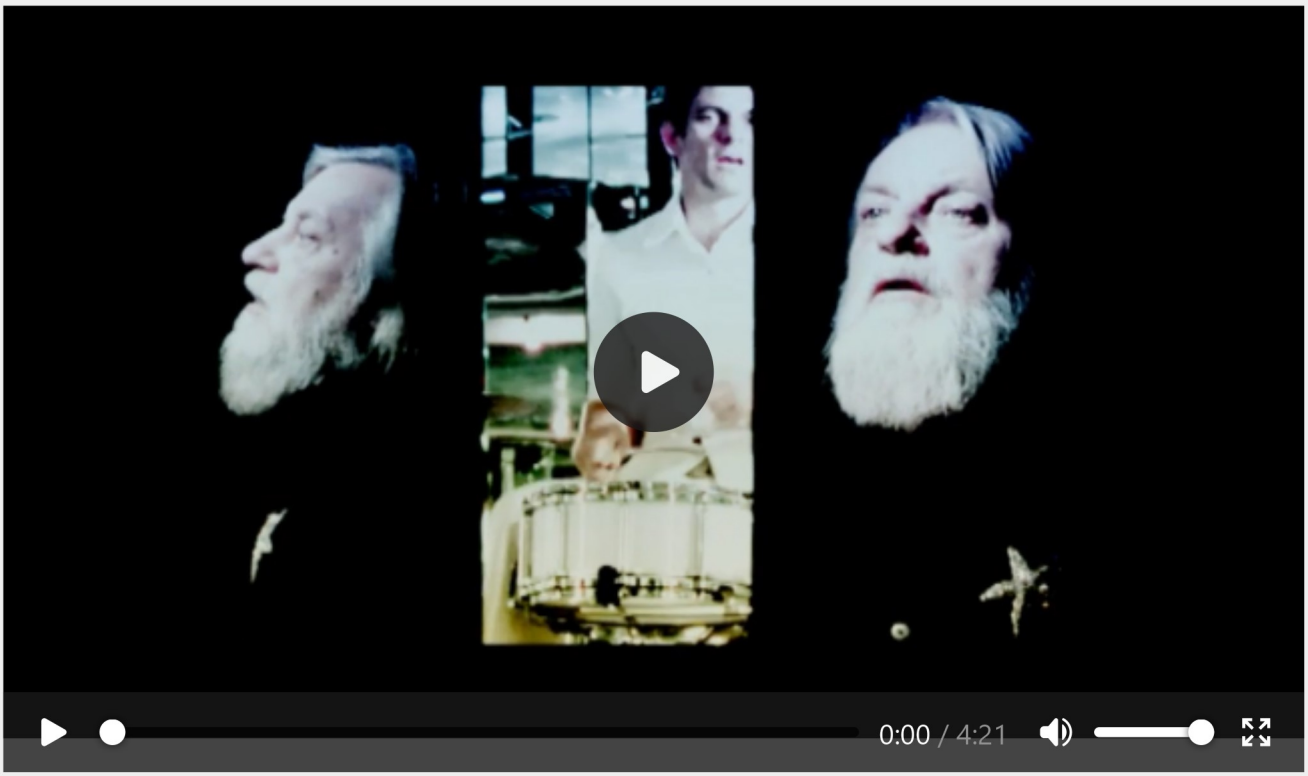
God Song + Lything And Gracing

Part Of The Dance + Nan's True Hole

Hatfield And The North At The Bowery Poetry Club
New-York City - June 25 2006

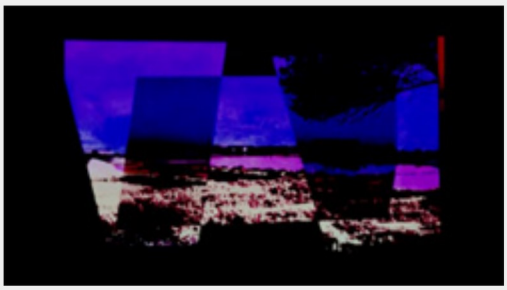
- Richard Sinclair - bass, vocals
- Pip Pyle - drums
- Phil Miller - guitar
- Alex Maguire - keyboards

The full concert on philmillerthelegacy.com



> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE



Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

This Summer Night

Bertrand Burgalat & Robert Wyatt - This Summer Night
durée: 4:21
(2007)
Label Tricatel.
Réalisation : D. Klein/J. Auzende

> Archives

Delta Saxophone Quartet with Hugh Hopper

Le Delta Saxophone Quartet enregistre en 2007 le magnifique album Dedicated To You... But You Weren't Listening - The Music Of Soft Machine puis joue avec Hugh Hopper à plusieurs reprises dont la même année à l'Etna Jazz Festival (ci-dessous) qui sera publié en bonus de l'album réédité en 2012.

Facelift - Etna Jazz Festival (2007)

Dedicated (improvisation sur le thème de Dedicated To You But You Weren't Listening) - Kingston University (2008)

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Mop Meuchiine plays Robert Wyatt

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

Mop Meuchiine joue British Road au Petit Faucheux (Tours - France) le 29 février 2008.
Durée: 6:47

- Pascal Maupeu - guitare
- Jean-Baptiste Réhault - saxophone, accordéon, saxhorn alto
- Frantz Loriot - violon
- Cédric Piromalli - piano, fender rhodes, korg ms20
- Nicolas Le Moullec - basse électrique, voix
- Bertrand Hurault - batterie, électronique

Le concert du Petit Faucheux sera le premier concert de Mop Meuchiine avec un répertoire entièrement dédié à Robert Wyatt. Une dizaine de concerts auront lieu avant la sortie de l'album Mop Machiine plays Robert Wyatt un an plus tard.

Mop Meuchiine joue Anachronist-A.W.O.L. au Petit Faucheux (Tours - France) le 29 février 2008.
Durée: 8:36

Mop Meuchiine joue Anachronist-A.W.O.L. (extrait) à Orléans le 14 novembre 2009.

Durée: 2:59

Hugues Vincent (violoncelle) a remplacé Frantz Loriot.

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Liberation Music Orchestra

2009 - Liberation Music Orchestra
Ornette Coleman's Meltdown Royal Festival Hall London, England June 20, 2009.
"Tail Of A Tornado"
durée: 6:29
Robert Wyatt - Vocals
Charlie Haden - Bass
Carla Bley - Piano
John Parricelli - Guitar
Matt Wilson - Drums
Tony Malaby - Tenor Sax
Shabaka Hutchings - Tenor Sax
Miguel Zenon - Alto Sax
Tom Rees-Roberts - Trumpet
Mike Rodriguez - Trumpet
Curtis Fowlkes - Trombone
Jim Rattigan - French Horn
Joe Daley - Tuba

Le journaliste musical et photographe italien Alessandro Achilli a réalisé de très belles photos à l'occasion de cet évènement.

> Zoom

Carla Bley & Robert Wyatt: Liberation Music Orchestra, Londra, Royal Festival Hall, Ornette Coleman’s Meltdown, 20 giugno 2009.

> Zoom

Robert Wyatt & Charlie Haden: Liberation Music Orchestra, Londra, Royal Festival Hall, Ornette Coleman’s Meltdown, 20 giugno 2009.

> Zoom

Liberation Music Orchestra + Robert Wyatt, Londra, Royal Festival Hall, Ornette Coleman’s Meltdown, 20 giugno 2009. Tom Rees-Roberts e Mike Rodriguez: trombe; Jim Rattigan: corno; Fayyaz Virji: trombone; Andy Grappy: tuba; Jason Yarde: sax contralto; Tony Malaby e Shabaka Hutchings: sax tenori; Carla Bley: pianoforte, arrangiamenti, direzione; John Parricelli: chitarre; Charlie Haden: contrabbasso; Matt Wilson: batteria + (in Rabo de nube e in Song for Che including Hasta siempre) Robert Wyatt: voce e cornetta.

> Zoom

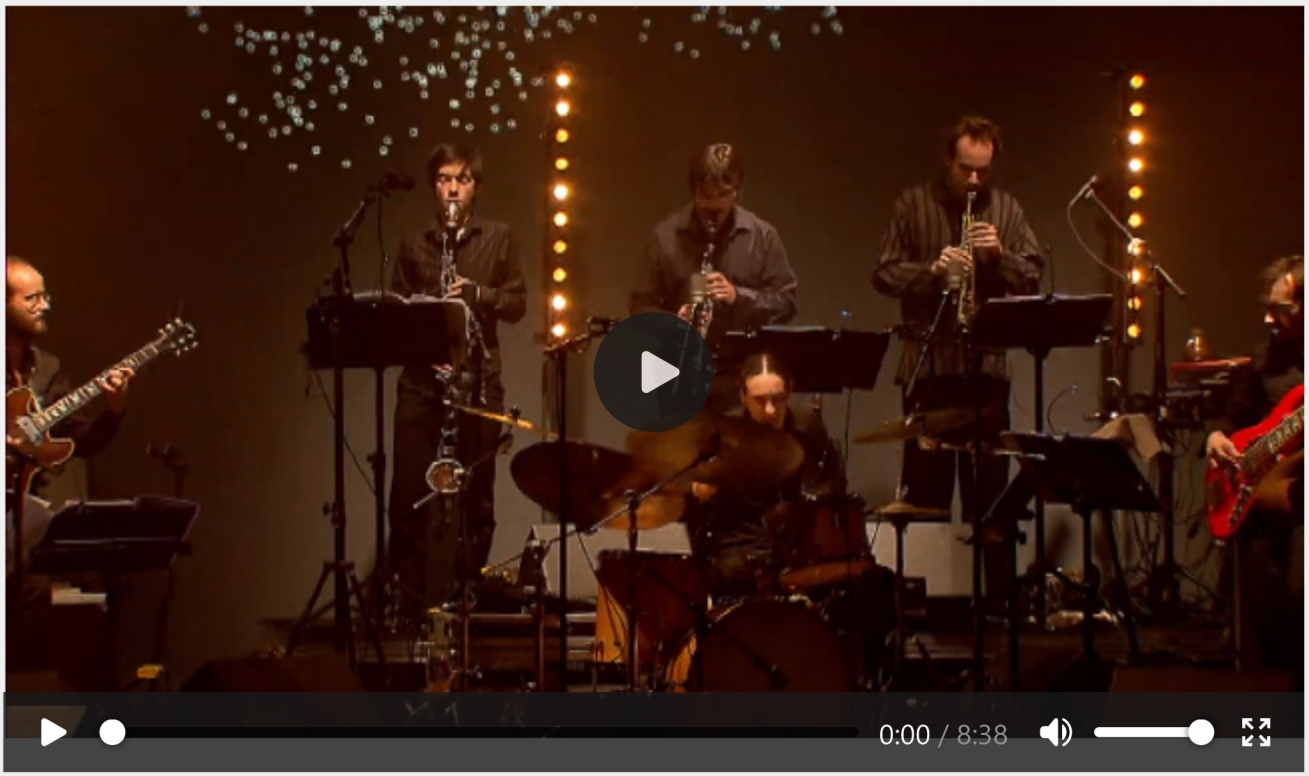
Robert Wyatt & Carla Bley, Royal Festival Hall, backstage, 20 giugno 2009.

> Zoom

Robert Wyatt & Carla Bley, Royal Festival Hall, backstage, 20 giugno 2009.

> Archives

Orchestre National de Jazz - Around Robert Wyatt Live



Durée: 8:49
(2009)
Direction artistique : Daniel Yvinec
Arrangements : Vincent Artaud

découvrir le disque

> Archives

Around Robert Wyatt - Concert

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Around Robert Wyatt" Orchestre National de Jazz - Concert (extrait) 2009

durée: 8:38
(2009)
Concert diffusée en direct sur Qobuz.
Réalisation : Abdelhak Terroufi
Direction artistique : Daniel Yvinec
Arrangements : Vincent Artaud

- Kew Rhone
- Rangers In The Night
- Interlude

découvrir le disque

> Archives

Orchestre National de Jazz - Just As You Are

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

Orchestre National de Jazz - Just As You Are (A. Benge/R. Wyatt)
7ème édition des Victoires du Jazz - 2009
Durée: 5:24

Around Robert Wyatt (Bee Jazz/Abeille Musique) de l'Orchestre national de jazz de Daniel Yvinec a été lauréat dans la catégorie "Album instrumental français" de la 7ème édition des Victoires du Jazz.

Direction artistique : D. Yvinec
Arrangements : V. Artaud
- E. Risser - piano préparé
- V. Lafont - claviers
- A. Hoan & M. Metzger - saxophones
- J. Mienniell - flutes
- R. Dumoulin - clarinette
- G. Poncelet - trompette
- P. Perchaud - banjo
- S. Daniel - basse
- Y. Serra - batterie
- Arno & Y. Naim - chant

Découvrir le disque

The Unthanks perform Robert Wyatt's 'Dondestan' - 2010

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

0:00 / 2:03

The Unthanks - Dondestan
The Unthanks perform Robert Wyatt's 'Dondestan' (with clogs dance). London, Union Chapel - December 8th, 2010.
duration: 2:03
Photo/video: Sergio Amadori [https://hibou-anemone-bear.blogspot.com]

> Archives

Comicoperando

ABÉCÉDAIRE

"Comicoperando is dedicated to the music of Robert Wyatt, a singular voice in British music... Tonight, his eccentrically arranged songs will be performed by musicians and friends from like-minded groups like Henry Cow and Caravan. Featured singer Dagmar Krause is praised for her performances of the music of Brecht and Weill" (Bimhuis programme).

Extraits du concert de l'ensemble Comicoperando - The music of Robert Wyatt emmené par Annie Whitehead le 19 mai 2011 au Het Bimhuis à Amsterdam (Pays-Bas) - entrecoupés d'interviews avec les musiciens (Interview by Aad van Nieuwkerk).
A Pavel Borodin / VPRO Radio 6 production.

Trackslist

- Gloria Gloom (Bill MacCormick / Robert Wyatt)
- Beware (Kraen Mantler)
- Alifib (Robert Wyatt)
- Out Of The Blue (Alfreda benge / Robert Wyatt)
- Little Red Riding Hood Hit the Road (Robert Wyatt)

Musicians

- Dagmar Krause - vocals
- Annie Whitehead - trombone, backing vocals

- Karen Mantler - Hammond B3, vocals
- Michel Delville - synth guitar
- John Edwards - double bass
- Chris Cutler - drums

Le premier concert du Comicoperando a eu lieu le 1er mars 2010 au Teatro Comunale Luciano Pavarotti de Modène (Italie) dans le cadre de L'Altro Suono Festival et a fait l'objet d'un enregistrement produit par EXB. D'autres concerts ont eu lieu dont celui du 18 mai 2011 à la Rote Fabrik de Zurich dont l'enregistrement circule également sur internet.

Modène (1er mars 2010)*

Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road

Zurich (18 mai 2011)*

The British Road

Amsterdam (19 mai 2011)*

Team Spirit

Jaquette de l'enregistrement du concert de Modène.

> Zoom

Regione Emilia Romagna
Comune di Modena
Lunedì 1 marzo ore 21 prima asso
Modena, Teatro Comunale Luciano Pavarotti
comicoperando
A Tribute to the Music of Robert
Wyatt
Dagmar Krause canto
Richard Sinclair canto e basso elettrico
Gilad Atzmon ance e flauti
Annie Whitehead trombone
Michel Delville chitarra synth
Alex Maguire pianoforte e tastiere
John Edwards contrabbasso
Chris Cutler batteria
Cristiano Calcagnile percussioni l'AltroSuono festival 2010

The Unthanks - December 2011

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

The Unthanks - Sea Song
December 02, 2011
duration: 6:27
London, St James's Church
Photo/video: Sergio Amadori [https://hibou-anemone-bear.blogspot.com]

> Archives

The Unthanks - 4 Songs Live - 2011

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

The Unthanks - 4 Songs Live
The Unthanks performing four songs of Robert Wyatt & Antony and The Johnsons
Whelan's Dublin December 2011
duration: 23:01
As captured by Sébastien Escalante & Edgar Simis.

- Out Of The Blue (Robert Wyatt)
- Lullaby For Hamza (Robert Wyatt)
- Alifib (Robert Wyatt)
- Spiralling (Antony And The Johnsons)

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Annie Whitehead Group

Caroline - Annie Whitehead Group, guests Cristina Donà and Sarah-Jane Morris

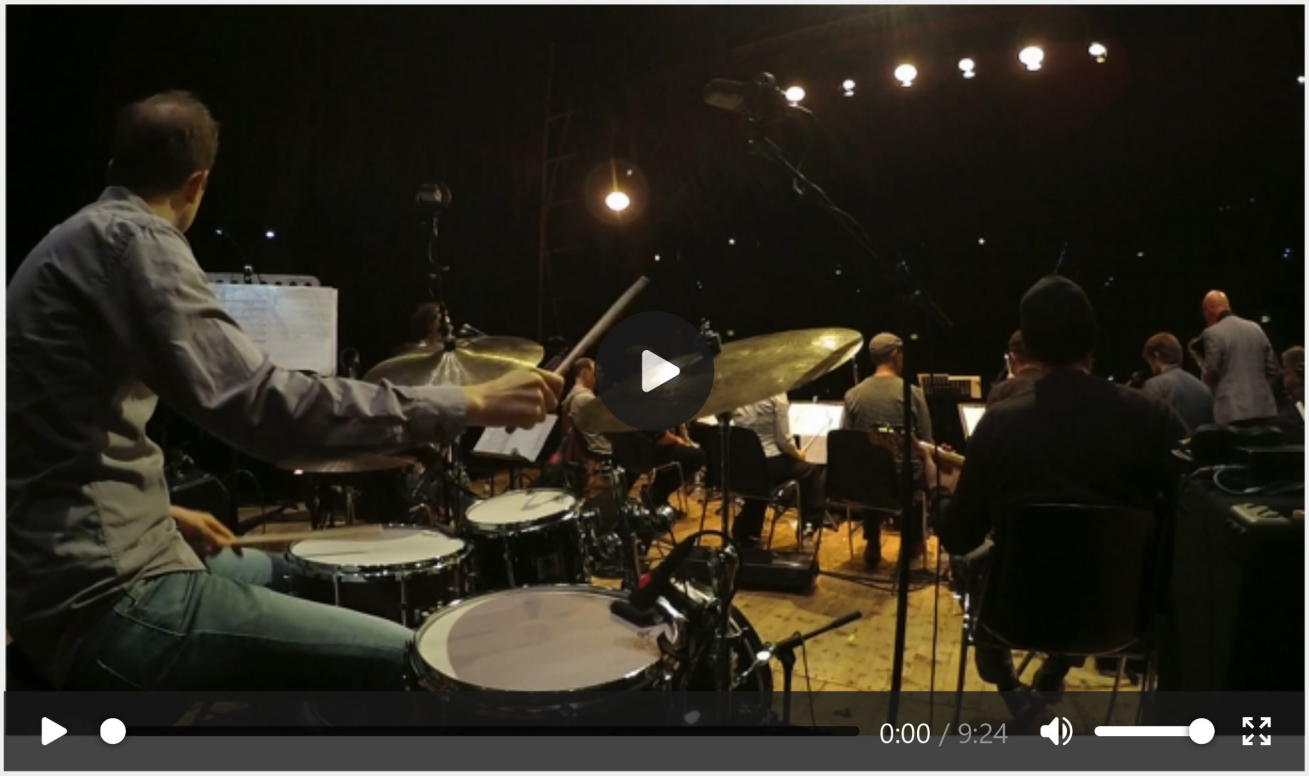
"Caroline" performed by Annie Whitehead Group, during the concert "Soupsongs - Robert Wyatt tribute" of March 2, 2013 at the Teatro Bonci in Cesena (Italy).

- Annie Whitehead - trombone, leader
- Sarah-Jane Morris and Cristina Donà - voice
- Brian Hopper - tenor sax
- Mark Lockheart - tenor and soprano sax
- Jennifer Maidman - guitar, vocals
- Janette Mason - piano, keyboards
- Tim Harries - elecric bass
- Liam Genockey - drums

Artchipel Orchestra - Moon in June

Artchipel Orchestra - Moon in June (Robert Wyatt)
Fasano (Italy), Teatro Kennedy June 7, 2014
Photo/video: Sergio Amadori http://www.hibou-anemone-bear.com

Marco Mariani, Gianni Sansone, Massimo Cavallaro, Rosarita Crisafi, Massimo Falascone, Paolo Profeti, Francesca Petrolo, Simone Mauri, Paolo Botti, Eloisa Manera, Mariangela Tandoi, Massimo Giuntoli, Beppe Barbera, Gianluca Alberti, Lorenzo Gasperoni, Stefano Lecchi, Naima Faraò, Serena Ferrara, Giusy Lupis, Filippo Pascuzzi.



Directed by Ferdinando Faraò, with Visual effects by AU + Fabio Volpi and Rosarita Crisafi.

> Archives

Artchipel Orchestra - Facelift

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

Artchipel Orchestra - Facelift (Hugh Hopper)
Live at Teatro dell'Arte, Milano (Italy) - 2014
Directed by Ferdinando Faraò.

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Athelas Sinfonietta - G((o))ng Tomorrow Festival

L'Ensemble Athelas Sinfonietta fête le dixième anniversaire de G((o))ng Tomorrow de Copenhague le 23 octobre 2015 avec des oeuvres de Nico et de Robert Wyatt dans le cadre d'une soirée d'ouverture du festival intitulée "NICO & WYATT VS. BEIRUT".
Les oeuvres de Robert Wyatt ont été adaptées pour Athelas Sinfonietta par Peter Bruun et Regin Petersen.

Ce festival propose chaque année une programmation résolument axée sur l'expérimentation, le croisement des genres et la rencontre avec d'autres formes d'art.

FREE WILL AND TESTAMENT

A LAST STRAW

SIGHT OF THE WIND

Chef d'orchestre :
- Martin Nagashima Toft

Musiciens :
- Karen Skriver Zarganis (flute)
- Liza Gibbs Fox (hautbois)
- Marie Bessesen (clarinette)
- Signe Haugland (basson)
- Niklas Kallsoy Mouritsen (cornet)
- Peter Vallebo (trompette)
- Lars Hastrup (trompette)
- Jakob Weber (percussions)

Interprète :
- Jomi Massage

- Mathias Reumert (percussions)
- Manuel Esperilla (piano)
- Maria Boelskov Sørensen (harpe)
- Anne Søe (violon)
- Idinna Therese Alsbirk Lützhøft (violon)
- Mina Fred (alto)
- Carl-Oscar Østerlind (violoncelle)
- Olle Davidsson (contrebasson)

Program:

Robert Wyatt (f. 1945) /Peter Bruun (f. 1968): Free will and Testament
Sight of the Wind

Nico (1938-1988) /Henriette Groth (f. 1976): Evening of Light
No one is there

Robert Wyatt/Regin Petersen (f. 1980): A last Straw

Morten Olsen (f. 1961)/Jomi Massage (f. 1974): Nico
I. The Beginning - prelude
II. Song number one: As a Child
III. The Middle: Interlude
IV. Song number two: Who Am I
V. The End

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

3 Degrees of Robert Wyatt

0:00 / 1:19:13

Spinning on Air Series: 3 Degrees of Robert Wyatt 2015

Thursday, June 4, 2015 - 8:00 pm

In early June 2015, ten New York musicians gathered on the stage of Roulette in Brooklyn to play music that Wyatt has composed or recorded.

Jared Samuel and his band Invisible Familiars coordinated the concert, "3 Degrees of Robert Wyatt," which featured Joan Wasser (Joan As Police Woman), Oren Bloedow (Elysian Fields), Adam Minkoff (The Machine), Charlotte Kemp Muhl (The Ghost of a Saber Tooth Tiger), Michael Leonhart (Steely Dan), Greek singer Monika, and Jordyn Blakely and Noah Berman of Invisible Familiars, as well as Spinning On Air's own David Garland of WNYC.

Odeia - Alifib

Odeia - Alifib (2017)

Elsa Birgé - chant
Lucien Alfonso - violon
Karsten Hochapfel - guitare
Pierre-Yves Le Jeune - contrebasse

"I am so moved by this . everything about it : a great film for a start . and the variations so interesting ,original but also , exactly understanding the harmonic feel i was after . And then , Elsa .....You : Perfect"

Robert Wyatt

Odeia - Alifib Live @ Studio de l'Ermitage (02/2025)

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Max Andrzejewski´s Hütte & Guests At Leipzig

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Max Andrzejewski‘s Hütte and guests play the music of Robert Wyatt Leipziger Jazztage - Fish'n'Chips Westbad - Leipzig
19.10.2018

Tribute mit der Musik der Soft-Machine-Legende – neu arrangiert von einem der umtriebigsten Musiker unserer Landes – Festivalprojekt in der Reihe « Across the English Channel »

- Starting In The Middle of The Day We Can Drink Our Politics away

Musiker:
- Johannes Schleiermacher - saxophon, synthesizer
- Jörg Hochapfel - keyboards, gitarre
- Tobias Hoffmann - gitarre
- Andreas Lang - kontrabass
- Max Andrzejewski - schlagzeug, stimme, arrangements
- Cansu Tanrıkulu - stimme

> Archives

Max Andrzejewski´s Hütte & Guests At Leipzig (2)

Max Andrzejewski's Hütte and guests play the music of Robert Wyatt
Video from the premiere at Leipziger Jazztage on October 19th, 2018

Robert Wyatt´s comment: „This project is great for my sense of still being alive , knowing that these brilliant young musicians look my way for a moment. Please thank them from me. They have my profound gratitude ."

- Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road
- Cuckoo Madame

Musicians:
- Johannes Schleiermacher - saxophone
- Tobias Hoffmann - guitar
- Andreas Lang - bass
- Max Andrzejewski - drums, arrangement
- Cansu Tanrikulu - voice
- Jörg Hochapfel - keys, git

> Archives

Artchipel Orchestra plays Soft Machine - Facelift

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Grande Festa jazz del Torino Jazz Festival - 1 maggio 2016 con Ferdinando Faraò e Artchipel Orchestra.
Durata: 7:33

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

North Sea Radio Orchestra plays Sea Song

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

North Sea Radio Orchestra plays "Sea Song" by Robert Wyatt with John Greaves and Annie Barbazza.
Audience recording from the gig at Conservatorio Nicolini in Piacenza for the Musiche Nuove a Piacenza festival. November 30, 2018.

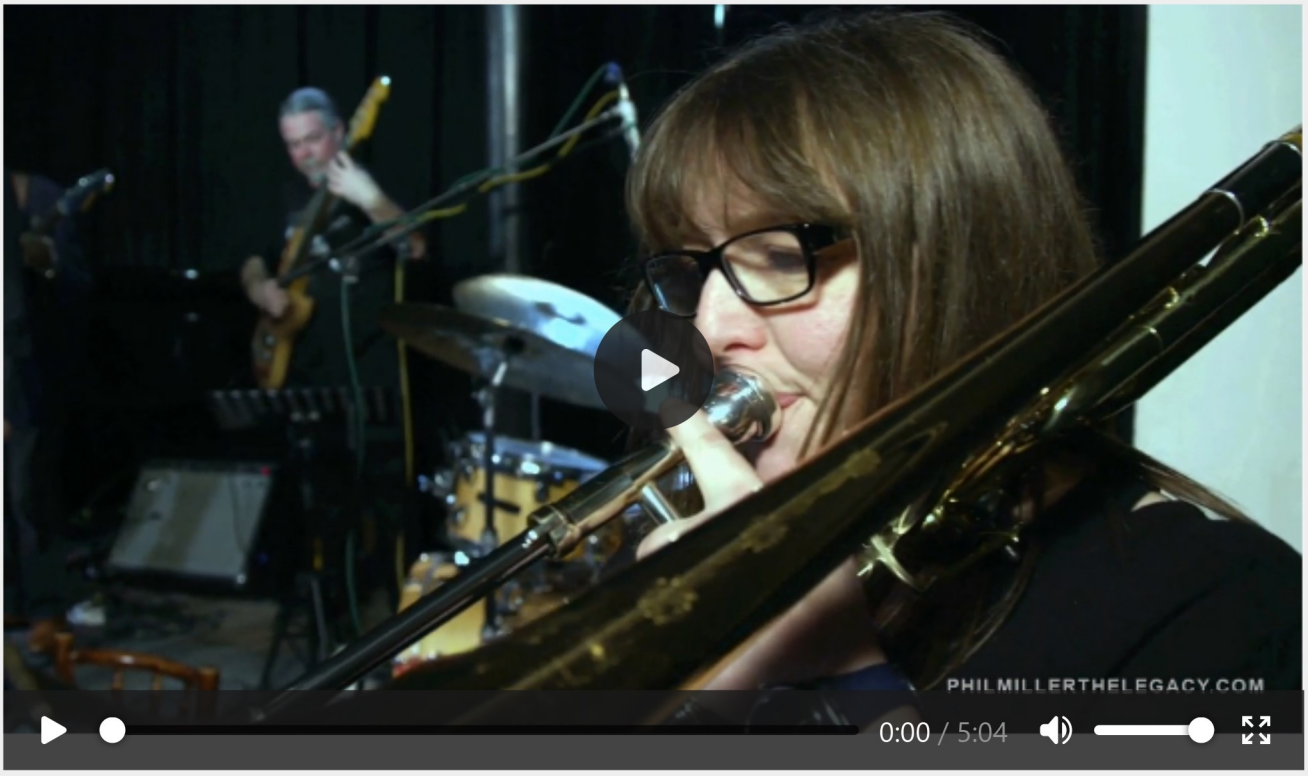
> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Phil Miller Tribute Concerts



Phil Miller, guitariste emblématique de l'école de Canterbury, nous a quitté en 2017. Sa femme Herm et son fils Kyle ont souhaité honorer sa mémoire en mettant librement à la disposition de tous ses admirateurs un ensemble d'archives (captations de concerts, interviews et entretiens, partitions, fichiers midi, master classes...) d'un intérêt inestimable pour qui s'intéresse à l'oeuvre de ce grand musicien. Avec le concours de Doug Boyle - ami de Phil, ex_guitariste de Caravan mais ici archiviste audio méticuleux - le site philmillerthelegacy.com s'enrichit régulièrement de contributions de musiciens ayant travaillé avec Phil Miller ou souhaitant lui rendre hommage avec des témoignages ou des reprises de son répertoire. Aymeric Leroy pour sa part, y fournit un gros travail éditorial.

C'est également pour faire vivre l'héritage musical de Phil Miller que deux concerts furent organisés le 6 janvier 2019 à Londres à l'instigateur de Herm Miller et de quelques amis musiciens. Les trois compositions que nous restituons ici sont le fruit d'une collaboration entre Robert Wyatt et Phil Miller au début des années 70 avec Matching Mole et à l'occasion d'une collaboration pour le premier album d'Hatfield And The North.
Trois magnifiques interprétations qui ne peuvent que vous encourager à découvrir les deux sets complets sur le site philmillerthelegacy.com/a-life-in-music/.

God Song - (set 1)

Calyx - (set 2)

Nan Trues Hole - (set 2)

Bande-annonce

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Folly Bololey At Cafe Oto 27 June 2019

Folly Bololey At Cafe Oto 27 June 2019
Audience Recording of the succesful gig of North Sea Radio Orchestra with John Greaves and Annie Barbazza and Fred Frith as special guest At Cafe Oto 27 June 2019 presenting the Dark Companion album FOLLY BOLOLEY - Songs from Robert Wyatt's Rock Bottom (more information)
Duration: 1:33:46

00:00:00 Opening set by John Greaves
00:02:39 Bad Alchemy (Greaves/Blegvad)
00:04:35 Kew Rhone (Greaves/Blegvad)
00:09:35 The Song (Greaves/Blegvad)
00:14:33 The Forest (Wyatt)
00:20:30 Free Will And Testament (Wyatt/Kramer)
00:25:25 The British Road (Wyatt)
00:31:54 Maryan (Wyatt/Catherine)
00:37:36 Shipbuilding (McManus/Langer)
00:42:28 Sea Song (Wyatt)
00:48:58 A Last Straw (Wyatt)
00:54:26 Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road (Wyatt)
00:59:44 Alifib (Wyatt)
01:07:05 Alife (Wyatt)
01:12:15 Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road (Wyatt)
01:20:20 O Caroline (Wyatt/Sinclair)
01:26:51 Encore: Sea Song (Wyatt)

Personnel:
- Annie Barbazza: Lead Vocal/Farfisa Organ
- John Greaves: Bass guitar/Vocal/Spoken Word/Piano
- Nicky Baigent: Bb Clarinet/Bass Clarinet/Spoken Word
- Luke Crookes: Bassoon
- William D. Drake: Piano/Farfisa Organ/Vocal
- Harry Escott: Cello
- Craig Fortnam: Guitar/Farfisa Organ/Vocal
- Tommaso Franguelli: Vibes/Percussion
- Cheb Nettles: Drums
- Laurent Valero: Violin/Viola/Recorder/Bass Recorder
- Fred Frith: viola and laughter on "Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road"

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Tribute To Hugh Hopper

Tribute To Hugh Hopper - 30 mai 2019 - Le Triton - France
Bande-annonce
durée: 4:21

- Patrice Meyer - guitare
- Patrick Buchmann - batterie
- Pierre Olivier Govin - saxophone
- François Verly - piano Fender Rhodes
- Dominique Grimaldi - basse
- Didier Malherbe - flûte

Tribute To Hugh Hopper - 30 mai 2019 - Le Triton - France
Was A Friend (extrait)
durée: 2:19

Tribute To Hugh Hopper - 30 mai 2019 - Le Triton - France
Elton Dean's solo on Kings and Queens (extrait)
durée: 3:09

JEUDI 30 MAI	20H30	SALLE 1	TRITONALES	E

TRIBUTE TO HUGH HOPPER

Hugh nous avait quittés prématurément, il y a dix ans. Bassiste phare du début des années 70, cité régulièrement aux côtés de Jack Bruce ou Tim Bogert dans les référendums, il avait collaboré avec Carla Bley, mais entra dans l'histoire surtout pour son rôle de bassiste-compositeur de Soft Machine dans sa période la plus créative. Il s'y illustra dans l'écriture de longues pièces instrumentales, mais également dans le format "pop song" pour Robert Wyatt, avec qui il continua sa collaboration par la suite. La reformation du groupe en 2002 sous l'appellation Softworks (avec Allan Holdsworth, Elton Dean, John Marshall), puis Soft Machine Legacy (avec John Etheridge) l'avait à nouveau catapulté sur la scène internationale. Cet homme doux, quintessence de la courtoisie british, était aussi artistiquement intransigeant. Sachant s'entourer, Hugh n'était jamais aussi heureux qu'en entendant ses solistes s'exprimer dans des compositions qu'il avait ciselées à leur mesure. Quelques-uns de ses collaborateurs français lui rendent hommage en reprenant le répertoire qu'il avait créé pour Soft Machine, et pour ses trois premiers albums en solo.

Patrick Buchmann batterie - Dominique Grimaldi basse
Patrice Meyer guitare - Didier Malherbe flûte

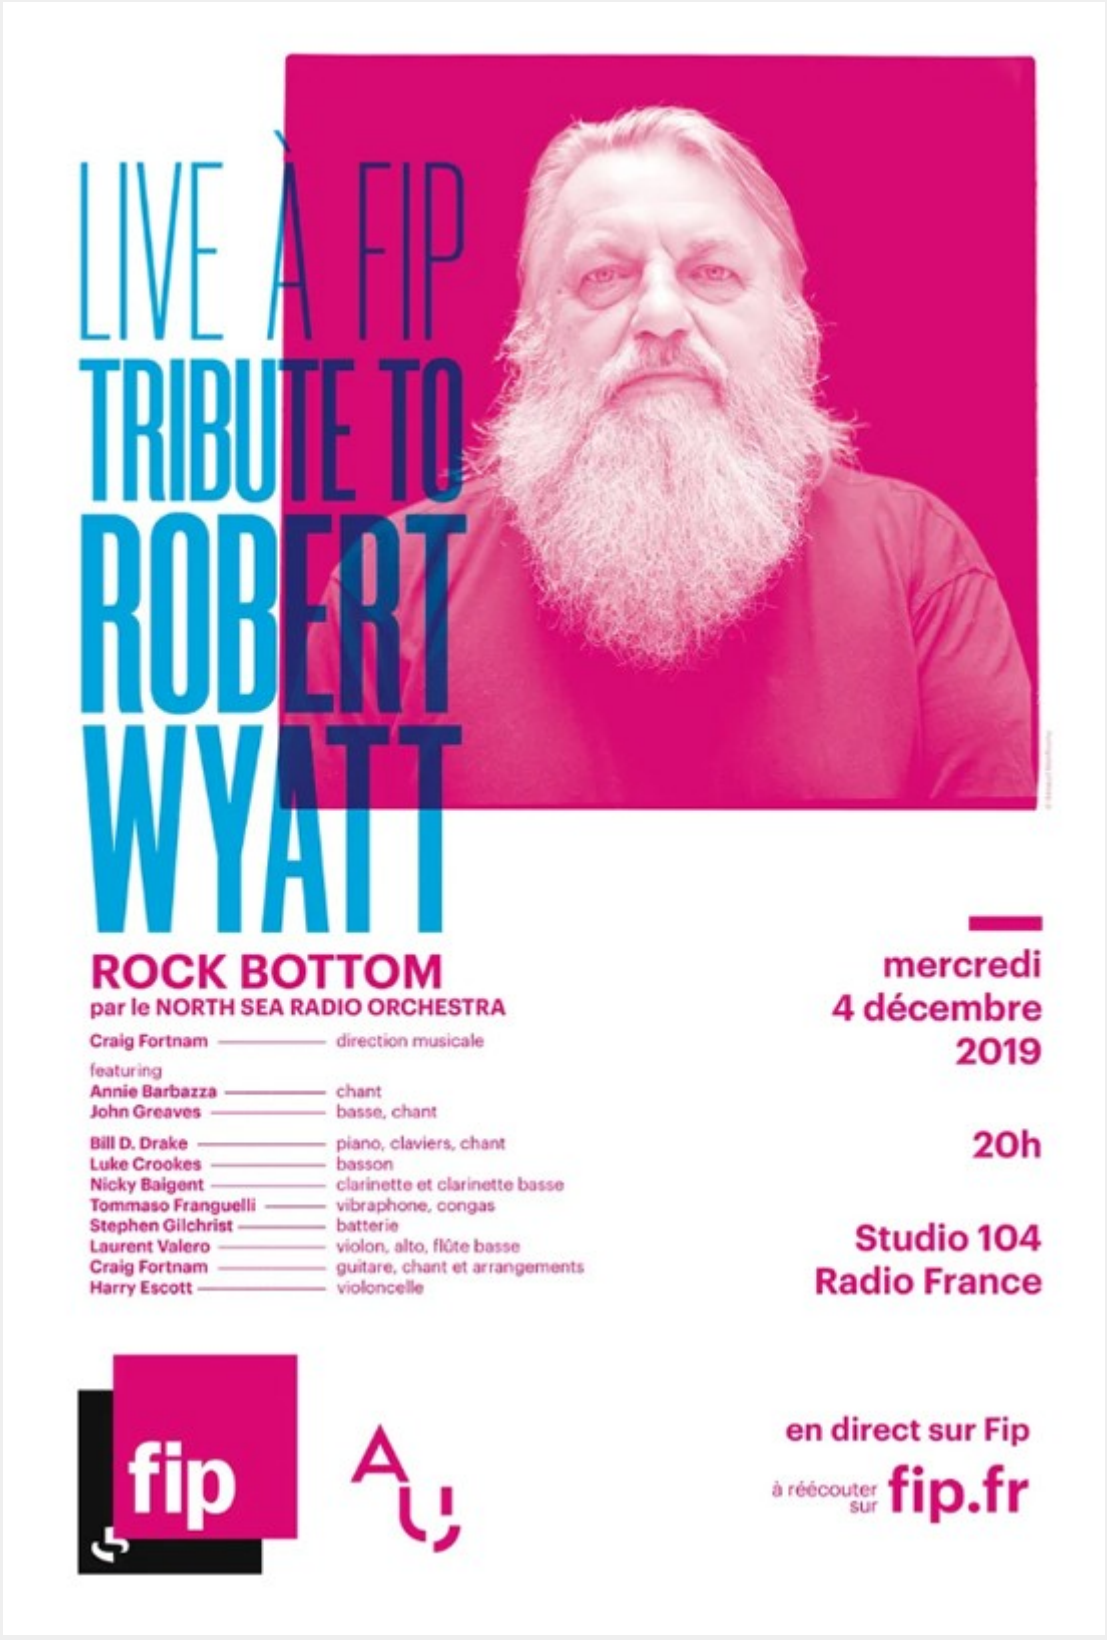
> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises



HOME

Live A FIP - Tribute to Robert Wyatt

0:00 / 1:36:29

Concert-hommage du North Sea Radio Orchestra à Robert Wyatt dans le grand auditorium de la Maison de la Radio à Paris, le 4 décembre 2019. Le concert retransmis en direct par la station FIP a été précédé de la diffusion d'une interview de Robert Wyatt par John Greaves que l'on peut écouter ici.

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Henry and Robert play Richard

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

"Henry and Robert play Richard" - an antimated short film by Shin Pey
Visual fantasy based on live performance by Henry Cow and Robert Wyatt 21 May, 1975, New London Theatre.

2020 НА ГРАНИ ЧУ Production

The Shlomo Polonsky channel

> Archives

Max Andrzejewski´s Hütte & Guests Play the Music of Robert Wyatt

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

Jazz & Wine Of Peace 2020
Teatro Comunale Cormòns - 22 ottobre 2020
Duration : 20:30

- Johannes Schleiermacher - tenor saxophone, flute, synth
- Jörg Hochapfel - organs, guitars, vocals
- Tobias Hoffmann - guitar
- Andreas Lang - double bass
- Max Andrzejewski - drums, vocals, arrangements
- Cansu Tanrıkulu - vocals

- Instant Kitten
- Starting In The Middle of The Day We Can Drink Our Politics away
- At Last I'm Free

> Archives

International Jazz Day 2021 - Eleven for Ten

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Costa (Robert Wyatt)
Centre culturel d'Uccle (Belgique) - 30 avril 2021

Concert enregistré en live streaming par Eleven for Ten - à l'occasion de la 10ème édition de l'International Jazz Day.
Jazz4you Production.

- Maayan Smith - arrangement
- Dorian Dumont - piano
- Armando Luongo - drums
- Jean-Paul Estiévenart - trumpet
- Lior Tzemach- guitar
- Federico Pecoraro - bass

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

Orchestra SMS

Orchestra SMS a été fondé en 2012 par Stefano Giannotti comme un atelier de musique de chambre au sein de l'école de musique Sinfonia de Lucca (Toscane).
Il s'agit d'un ensemble mixte composé de vents, de cordes, de guitares, de harpes, de claviers et de voix. Le répertoire va du rock progressif à la musique baroque et renaissance, en passant par la musique contemporaine expérimentale.
Parmi les compositeurs revisités par Orchestra SMS : Robert Wyatt, The Residents, Tuxedomoon, David Bowie, King Crimson, Terry Riley, Talking Heads, John Cage...

Sea Song

Excerpt from MUSICA SPARPAGLIATA 2015-2025, the video-documentary made to fix the first 10 years of the ensemble Orchestra SMS :
https://youtu.be/mgoXm6xbL0Y

Sea Song (Villa Bottini, Lucca, 28 agosto 2021)

Olga Pezzuti: flute, voice
Paolo Pasqualetti: flute
Domenico Piegaia: clarinet
Enrico Giuntini: voice, piano
Francesca Pezzuti: keyboard, voice
Gabriele Stefani, Giada Del Grande: guitars, voices
Nicolò Paganucci, Jacopo Di Grazia: guitars
Duccio Nieri: bass guitar, voice
Edgar Gomez: drums, voice

Stefano Giannotti: guitar, arrangements, direction

Lullaby For Hamza (Fondazione Banca del Monte, 13 maggio 2013)

Rebecca Franceschini, Olga Pezzuti, Emma Vicidomini: flutes, voices Domenico Piegaia: clarinet, voice
Gabriele Stefani: sax, voice
Pietro Phelan, Benedetta Bendinelli: violins, voices
Lucia Pera, Daniele Petroni, Claudia Di Terlizzi: guitars, voices
Thiago Tiribocchi: chitarra elettrica
Sofia Paterni: harp
Enrico Giuntini, Stefano Sestani: keyboards
Duccio Nieri: bass guitar -
Matilde Giannotti: voice

Stefano Giannotti: conductor, arrangements

> Archives

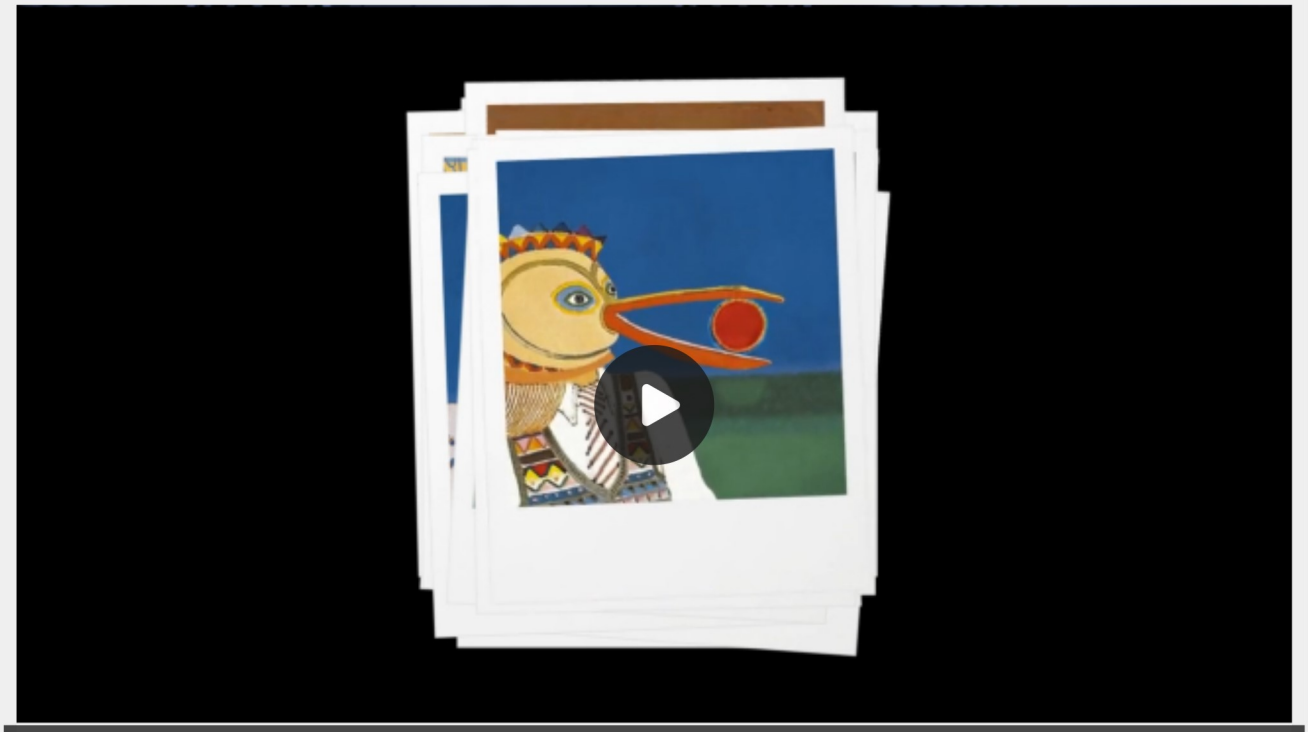
ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

When The Fire Grows Cold

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives



Official Music Video for "When The Fire Grows Cold" from the EP, ''Extinction!'' which features guest contributions from the great Robert Wyatt and the late great, Daevid Allen. Both founders of the ground-breaking legendary band, The Soft Machine.
(2022)
Written by Max Vanderwolf
Directed by Alden Volney

> Archives

A Visit

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

An animated short film based on the artwork by Alfreda Benge and music by Robert Wyatt.
Directed and created by Shlomo "Shin Pey" Polonsky - 2022
НА ГРАНИ ЧУ Production

The Shlomo Polonsky channel

> Archives

The Unthanks - Shipbuilding - 3 versions

0:00 / 3:15

The Unthanks - Shipbuilding (2 excerpts)

- Live At Paard - The Hague - The Netherlands (March 5th, 2023)
- Dunbar Music Festival, Saturday 24 September 2022

The Unthanks - Shipbuilding (2012)

- The Unthanks performing Shipbuilding for Other Voices 2012 in St. James' Church, Dingle.

> Archives

Henry Now - live Piacenza 18/11/22

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Henry Now featuring Anna Barbazza - Little red riding hood hit the road, live Piacenza 18/11/22.

- John Greaves
- Fred Frith
- Chris Cutler
- Tim Hodkingson

in concerto.

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

John Greaves & Friends - Piacenza - 5 Agosto 2023

0:00 / 5:36

- Little red riding hood hit the road -

Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Archives

ROBERT WYATT WITH FRIENDS - LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD HIT THE ROAD (LIVE 1974)

Part of the full length animated film "LITTLE RED CONCERT, 1974" based on the music from Robert Wyatt's Drury Lane Theatre performance, September 8, 1974 Directed and created by Shlomo Polonsky.

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Play It Again! à Paris 8 : Rock Bottom - 1974-2024

Chaque année, l'atelier Play It Again ! dirigé par Guillaume Gilles immerge les étudiant.e.s de master en Musique-Musicologie de l'université de Paris 8 dans l'introspection d'un album historique de l'histoire de la pop pour célébrer le cinquantenaire de sa sortie. En partant de l'analyse de l'album, l'atelier retranscrit la musique pour en proposer une réinterprétation live originale et inédite.

Le 12 juin 2024 a donc eu lieu le concert de restitution de Rock Bottom dans l'amphithéâtre de l'université à St-Denis (93).

Durée : 41:43

Musiciens :

- Eliot Allegrini - violoncelle, looper
- Guillaume Gilles - piano, orgue philicorda
- Augustin Lavault - basse électrique
- Mathias Rivera De Hoyos - guitare - électrique

- Romain Rongier - batterie, voix
- Garance Schirmann - saxophone alto
- Vivien Sladic - voix

Le songbook de Rock Bottom est ici.

Une version HD (6 Go) du concert est téléchargeable ici.

> Archives

Dondestan for Palestine

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> Archives

Robert Wyatt - Dondestan
Video : Dave Larder (2025)

"I made this video following conversations with both Robert Wyatt and Alfreda Benge. It illustrates the dangers of being born in countries deemed unimportant by major powers. It also illustrates how inhumane the human race has become."

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

BBC Radiophonic Workshop Meets Soft Machine

On August 17th, 1970 the Soft Machine collaborated with the BBC Radiophonic Workshop, legendary for its electronic music and soundtracks, and best known for Delia Derbyshire's realization of Ron Grainger's theme Doctor Who (1963). Subsequent sessions at Olympic Sound Studio occurred on August 27th, and again at the Radiophonic Workshop, Maida Vale, London, on September 1st. The complete program was broadcast October 6th, 1970 on the Radio 3 program 'Study Session'. The following transcript, taken from a lo-fidelity off-air recording, illustrates the willingness of Soft Machine to experiment with electronic effects in their musical sphere.

In my last program we looked at the techniques and facilities used in the modern recording studio. In this program were going to find out how musicians set about using them during the recording session. We invited the Soft Machine to collaborate with the BBC Radiophonic Workshop, and to create a piece of music especially for this programme. So now you are invited to sit in on the various stages of the production sequence. The first thing is to get everybody together to investigate the equipment in the Radiophonic Workshop, and that is where we are now. It's quite a large meeting; there are the four members of Soft Machine, Robert Wyatt the drummer, Hugh Hopper, bass guitar, Mike Ratledge, keyboard, and Elton Dean, alto saxophone. Then there's Delia Derbyshire and Brian Hodgson from the Radiophonic Workshop, and sound technician Paddy Kingsland and myself, I'm going to produce the piece of music, and produce the program, David Epps.

The idea is to decide on the musical material to be used and what electronic effects can be incorporated into the piece. Also we need to decide on the method of recording, so the best use can be made at the sixteen track facilities at Olympic Sound Studio. At the moment the group is listening to its taped sound samples, in fact, you may have noticed a snatch of Doctor Who music a moment ago. After this they'll be investigating some of the equipment. And I know one of the things that will interest them is the VCS3 Machine, or the voltage control studio. This is a fairly small but extremely versatile piece of equipment. It produces sound from oscillators. It generates a wide range of effects trough its interaction of its three basic sounds: The Sine Wave, The Square Wave and this which is called Noise (all demonstrated sequentially). Using these an unlimited number of sounds can be produced, much in the same way that colour's can be blended from the primaries red, yellow and blue (demonstrated example). In addition of course pitch can be varied, by slide or step. And the various characteristics of a sound, its attack and decay for instance, can be modified by the Voltage Control system. The possibilities in fact seem endless. All this investigation will obviously take some time, so we'll brake off now until we've finished experimenting here. And then I'll ask David to talk to the group, to find out what effects they've decided to use.

David - You've decided on what piece to use. I believe it's even got a title. Robert, what's it called?

Robert - It's called Eammon Andrews. It was conceived as a link piece, between numbers, that's how it started out.

David - You play long pieces with links in between.

Robert - We used the name Eammon Andrews as an affectionate, but we hope, witty reference.

David - Now its original shape, was what, what sort of structure, Mike?

Mike - The structure hasn't changed that much. It started off with a very simple tune in 5/4, then used to have a passage in 9/8, which then goes back into the reprise of the tune. We've included the 9/8 section in the beginning, as well as in the middle, to give it some kind of shape and form.

David - And you used to use how many instruments?

Mike - Three

David - So for this you've added the sax.

Mike - Yeah

David - Right. Now wondering around this afternoon you've seen all kinds of equipment, and I believe you've come up with three things you want to use in the new version, Mike.

Mike- Mine is playing the keyboard through the VCS3, with two tones tuned an interval of a tri-tone.

David - Well let's listen to that first

(demonstration)

David - Now Hugh, you've chosen a rather different device, in fact one where the frequency or pitch of the note is changed. I better explain what happens first. If I understand it right, the original sound is altered in pitch, either up or down, and at the same time the sound of it changes. So that when this is used in conjunction with the delayed tape echo, the treated sound gets fed round and round and round in a circle and it sets up a sort of spiral of sound. So every single note you play you get this spiral effect.

(demonstration)

Hugh - The actual effect doesn't really sound like a bass guitar at all. You get a lot of high harmonics coming off. It's difficult to play the original because you hear all these different notes coming off of it. I suppose you would get used to it eventually.

David - Elton, the same with you, saxophone with a different sort of frequency shift device.
Elton - Yeah, one doesn't have to play very much with it going on. It does the work for you, and on this piece with a long bar you get the phrase at the beginning of the bar. The machine will do the work for the rest of the bar.

(demonstration)

David - Well, we've obviously got plenty of new techniques and sounds in this new piece, so I better leave you all to think about them before the next session, which is down at Olympic Studios next Wednesday.

(the program resumes with music under speech)

David - As you can no doubt hear we are down at the studio. Let's just find out what stage we have reached with the creation of this piece of music? Mike.

Mike - So we got the basic structure straight, and the areas that we're going to leave free so that we can add electronic effects afterward. And the basic structure is very simple to allow for a kind of maximum use of the facilities we've got after we put down the basic track.

David - The basic track will consist of what?

Mike - It's a very simple tune. It starts off with virtually acoustic bass, and piano, for which the electronic sound is going to modified later on, and more and more electronics are brought into it until it builds up, and then the tune comes in, which is in a different time signature, 5/4. It then goes into a freer area which is again in 9, comes back into the tune again, then ends up on this riff.

David - Have you formulated any ideas on what sort of distortion or electronic effects you're going to use yet, or are we still working on ideas?

Mike - Well at the moment we've got various procedures that we know we're going to use and maybe more will come up once we got the backing track done and the electric effects we want to use. I mean it might not work out so we'll have to write something else. Things always get suggested when you are recording that won't get suggested when you're sitting around thinking about it.

David - Fine then, so we're going to put the rhythm tracks down now. That's drums, bass, organ. Anything from the sax or wind instrument at all? (inaudible group comment) Nothing yet that's an interesting point (chuckles) So we're going to start recording, on sixteen track, splitting up the instruments, drums, bass and organ. Let's listen to what they're going to put down first of all.

(The Soft Machine then performs Eammon Andrews, but the performance breaks down one minute later, and the band members discuss the arrangement. The performance resumes, but again breaks down as band members resume discussion regarding direction.)

David - We'll obviously iron out these problems in due course. So when we've recorded a good rhythm track that everybody is happy with, I'll play you some of it.

(the music resumes briefly)

David - It took 30 minutes to record this track to our satisfaction, and we used a layout as follows; track 1, bass drum; track 2, top kit drums, track 3, bass guitar; track 4, the VCS machine; track 5, electric piano. Now the next stage is to add a second bass line using a frequency shift device, then on another track we'll add the saxophone on a different frequency shift. We demonstrated this effect at the Radiophonic Workshop you remember. When we reach this stage, I'll play a section to you. The group will have heard it all of course, and then you can hear what they think about it. Here's the first mix.

Now that you've all heard both the basic rhythm track, which I think you were very happy, and also the first mix with the bass and the saxophone added. It would be quite interesting I think to hear what you think about them. I rather sense that the mix isn't what you're after, Elton.

Elton - I didn't like the bass track, it was sort of irrelevant to what was going on from the basic track.

David - Any reason why you don't think it works?

Elton - Well it's not (unintelligible), it was the way it was used probably more than anything else.

David - Hugh?

Hugh - Well in fact the trouble is that the actual notes that were being played by the bass are in strict time, and when you had the tape delay put on to that it delayed everything by a certain amount which produced on the top of the basic rhythm track a very sort of weird rhythmic thing. And there are certainly delays on the higher harmonics, you couldn't really hear anything. It just became a mudded sound; it lost all the basic rhythm of it.

David - So what you want really is for the time of the delay to be altered for you and it would be easier then to play against it

Hugh - Yes, and I think the bass should be simpler phrases. At the time we did very similar phrases to the first basic track which is quite, quite a full rhythmic thing. And I think in the future we must do a much more simple thing.

David - Mike?

Mike - I agree, I think that was the problem, apart from the physical difficulty of actually having to play something and hear something completely different in the cans (headphones).

David - This takes a lot of getting used to?

Mike - Yeah.

David - Robert, it didn't really affect you, but what did you think when you heard it?

Robert - I like the bass effect very much when I heard it on its own. You know I like to use something like that, that effect on the bass, but in a different way. When I heard the basic track, but together… they weren't, you know…

David - Yes, putting the effect against the basic track, so you've got to match somehow and these two didn't.

Robert - Yeah that's what I thought.

David - Well there's plenty more to do this afternoon then, so perhaps we'll break for lunch, and start again at 2:15.

David - One of the things that came up in discussion over lunch was the VCS machine effects. It was thought we might be able to make some alteration in the electronic treatments, so it would help to blend them with the live treatments. Also, Hugh would like to improve the sound of the bass guitar, and add a rhythmic bass figure at the beginning of the piece using the frequency shift device. Mike wants to reinforce the tune by adding another track using the VCS machine again. And finally, Elton has several ideas for his saxophone track, stimulated by hearing the playback. So we're now going to add these tracks. We'll start by improving the bass sound. You'll hear me adjusting the sounds of the bass and drums. OK Hugh let's run the new track and hear you new bass sounds.

(one minute of music)

After this, for the introduction, we overdubbed the bass using the frequency shift device, and reinforce the tune on the VCS. Then we put down two new saxophone tracks as an alternative to the original take. One using the phase shift, and the other via the VCS, which is operated by Robert. Altogether we took about three hours to complete this overdubbing. But before hearing this let's listen to what the group thinks of it.

Robert - I've always liked this unfinished piece, melodically, this piece of material. I wasn't happy with the range of sounds available to us to play it, which is why I thought it was a good idea to use it here, because we've never have found out a way to fully realize what the potential of our material is. So now we've got a much more dense sound and now to explore the rhythmic interest of the effects, and having the saxophone on it too, as opposed to having it a trio piece. I think if we could do it live like this, this would be the way

I'd actually choose to do it.

David - Hugh and Elton, your effects didn't come off the first time. Do you feel it's now how you would like them to sound? Hugh.

Hugh - Yeah, I think it's much better. In fact I ended up on the first section, the introduction, just playing a very simple figure across the basic rhythm, but it was a style of figure that you actually hear the delay coming off, and it didn't actually conflict too much with the basic track.

David - You've really got to plan ahead a lot to make the texture quite sparse from your point of view, cause you know that it's at least going to be doubled if not more by the machinery you use.

Hugh - Yeah, I think it's important to have somebody in the control box all the time, as one of the group, which will cause a difficulty if we're all playing in the studio. But the way we did it, in fact Mike and Robert listened and checked out how it sounded.

David - And Elton when you played an enormous amount seemed to be added by the machine. Do you find this difficult to do?

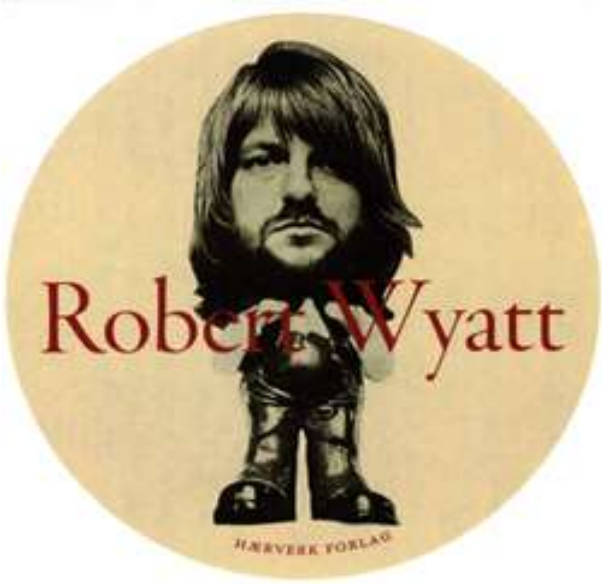
Elton - No, I quite enjoyed putting it on. In a fashion it does work, If I'd been playing in thin images I don't think it would've worked.

David - Can you predict to a certain extent what the combined sound is going to be after a time?

Elton - Umm, after a time, I'd have to spend much more time with the actual machine, got to learn it more. As it was it was more off the cuff than anything else.

David - Mike, how do you feel about any future plans? Can you make use of this sort of equipment and does it in fact extend you and inspire you?

Mike - I think it's like any area of sound, you know, you can use them and you can use them well, but it takes a long time to familiarize yourself with the techniques, enough to actually not be victimized by the machinery that you're playing with. I think in this case we were lucky, in it just about worked, but obviously if we'd had more time and we got to know the machine better, what we can do with it, it would have been a much more satisfactory result. And I hope we can, you know, use the equipment later on and get to know it.



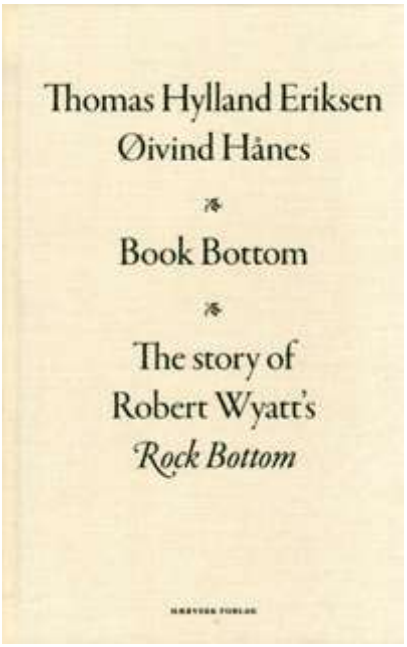
Robert - Yeah, I'd say it worked. The possibilities of the machine are enormous and we knew we wouldn't possibly be able to really do it justice on a sort of vast scale. All we could do is choose certain things that we had time to really familiarize ourselves with. Within that framework I was very happy with it.

David - I think we've all found this an extremely interesting project to work on, and I hope you've enjoyed hearing the group at work. Let's end this program then with the final result of all our efforts. The first complete performance of the Soft Machine piece, Eammon Andrews.

[The Soft Machine Sound - An electronic Acoustic Experience Examined - published in 2009 by Henie Onstad Art Centre and Reel Recordings].

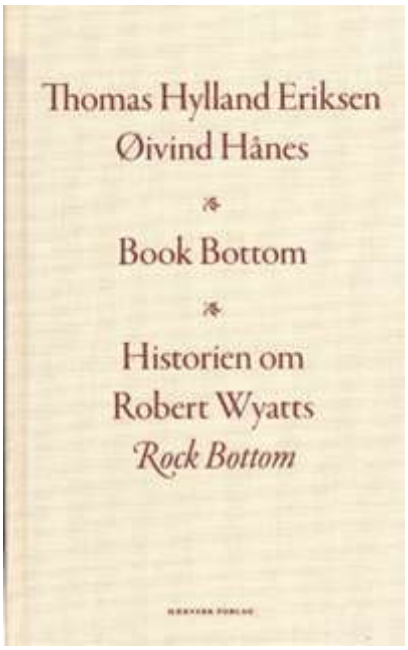
The fiftieth anniversary of the release of Rock Bottom is drawing to a close (I'm writing this on 29 December 2024) and I received this jubilant text from Xavier Béal on Book Bottom, a book by Thomas Hylland Eriksen and Øivind Hånes, published in Norway this autumn.

It occurred to me that only one book (Philippe Gonin's Rock Bottom) had so far dealt exclusively with Robert Wyatt's masterpiece. This Book Bottom is therefore the second, but doubtless not the last, so many possible entries and poetic revelations are to be found in the opus published in July 1974...



Robert Wyatt Book Bottom, The story of Robert Wyatt's Rock Bottom Haerverk Forlag 2024

L'année 2024 a bien failli se terminer sans qu'un véritable hommage soit fait du cinquantenaire de l'album solo Rock Bottom de Robert Wyatt paru chez Virgin Records le 26 juillet 1974.



Pourtant, venu de Norvège, un très joli livre blanc grège de 112 pages, fait à quatre mains (Thomas Hylland Eriksen et Oivind Hanes), paru tout d'abord en norvégien, ensuite en anglais fait le tour de la question (le précédent ouvrage important était celui de Philippe Gonin (68 pages) paru chez Discogonie/Densité en 2017 et curieusement inconnu de la biblio des auteurs norvégiens).

Cet album, consacré en 1974 par un prix de l'académie Charles Cros en France a été analysé de nombreuses fois et l'histoire de cette « exploration des fonds marins de Robert bloqué à jamais sur sa chaise » est archi connue, de son élaboration durant l'hiver 1972 (soit avant le terrible accident de 1973 à Londres) en résidence à Venise avec l'offre de la Gem Riviera (combo organ) par la muse Alifie car Robert était un peu mélancolique pas mal désœuvré et tout à fait inoccupé après le naufrage de son précédent groupe Matching Mole, jusqu'à la réalisation avec un producteur attentionné (Nick Mason) et des amis musiciens virtuoses Hugh Hopper et Richard Sinclair, indispensables et attentifs, mélanges magnifiques d'ex Soft Machine, Caravan et de cuivres qui tous, semblent perpétuer un tant soit peu la flamme de Matching Mole mais sans s'y inscrire véritablement et en déclinant en solo l'œuvre de l'ex batteur/chantant depuis les premiers albums de Soft Machine sous influence mid tempo d'avant-garde de Coltrane, Mingus revendiqués par Wyatt, de mélopées au bord de l'effondrement de Van Morrison revendiquées plutôt par Alfie avec des textes hommages à double ou triple sens à la Lewis Carroll ou Alfred Jarry.

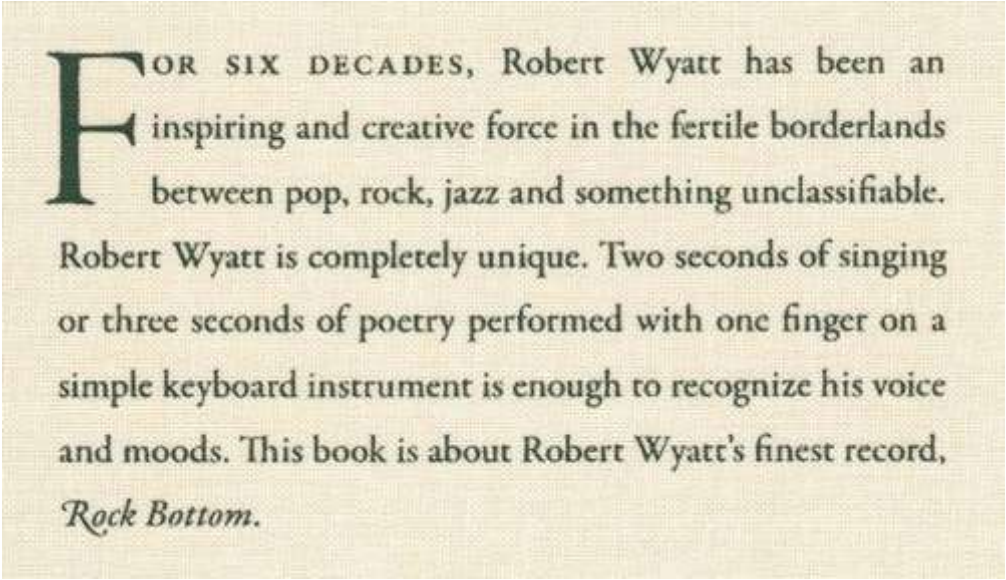
L'ouvrage des deux compères norvégiens est divisé en pas mal de chapitres qui font avancer l'analyse en permettant de multiples ramifications, notamment l'univers de Robert Wyatt à la fois rattaché de loin à la galaxie de Canterbury (Hatfield and the North), tout en s'en détachant avec discernement, ou en piochant dans les marges du mouvement (Henry Cow), et en poursuivant les correspondances entre les musiciens sus nommés avec les invités de l'album : Laurie Allen aux drums, Gary Windo à la clarinette, Fred Frith viola et Mongezi Feza à la trompette, ainsi que la relative importance de Virgin Records à l'époque, même si le grand patron de ce label se moquait éperdument du côté musical de son affaire.

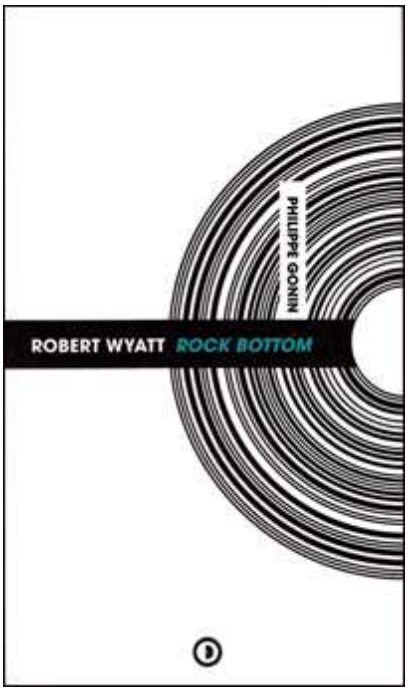
On passe rapidement à l'exercice de fond à savoir l'analyse morceau par morceau et par ordre (face A face B) des six titres de l'album, sans oublier l'architecture de ceux-ci dans l'ensemble puisque Rock Bottom est tout sauf un assemblage de chansons mises bout à bout (on peut parler ici de multi-concept album), les auteurs de l'ouvrage ne négligeant aucune piste, depuis l'influence des musiciens sud-africains auprès de Wyatt, jusqu'aux apports de la poésie chantée/récitée, inclassifiable d'Ivor Cutler, les savoureux mélanges des soupirs de Robert à Alfie, bien aimée et indispensable (qualifiée malicieusement à la fois de garde-manger (larder) et de diner (mégère et amante !), partly fish, partly porpoise (marsoin ce qui est pas vraiment flatteur !).., et de sirène complice et mystérieuse (c'est un peu mieux), sous-marine et enfantine, mi vierge, mi sorcière, pardonnant tout mais pas oublieuse des excès de son gaillard de mari) qui avoue ses «petits péchés » en partant dans les aigus emplis de claviers à la fin de Last Sraw sur un We're not Alone terrassant.

Le tout de cet ouvrage limpide et argumenté, foisonnant et creusé comme un sujet d'étude très révérencieux, mais pas trop, un peu facétieux, mais plutôt rayonnant, gardant son sérieux comme un vrai pataphysicien, réellement documenté, sans pour autant alourdir la lecture, assemblant les différents musiciens et protagonistes de l'album intervenant toujours doucement et discrètement aux bons moments de la lecture (comme pour une belle mise en scène ouvragée et complice).



L'ouvrage se termine par la séquence amusante et amusée de l'achat de l'album par les 2 auteurs, curieusement pas lors de sa sortie (1979 pour l'un et un peu par hasard pour le deuxième).

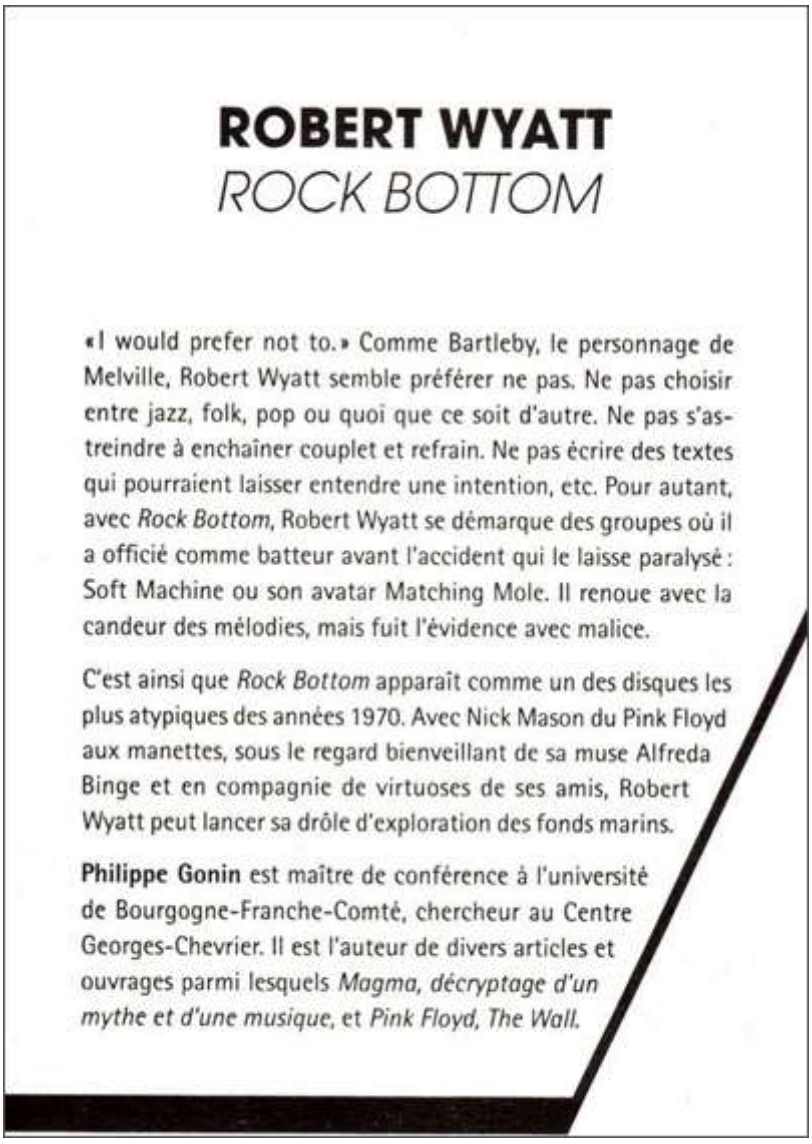
Un livre dont on sent à la fois la révérence, le respect et la déférence des deux auteurs ainsi que la volonté affirmée d'un hommage amoureusement écrit venant de bien loin (la Norvège c'est de l'autre côté du Danemark qui lui-même est un peu en dehors de l'univers anglosaxon bien que ce soit la même Mer du Nord (entrée maritime importante dans l'ouvrage) qui est un des liens qui fait communiquer tous ces pays entre eux avec Robert Wyatt et son splendide rock bottom multi-sens au beau milieu.



Xavier Béal

To order Book Bottom : jege1001@gmail.com

Robert Wyatt Rook Bottom, Discogonie 2017



Un opuscule de 84 pages uniquement consacré à Rock Bottom. Paru en 2017 (réédition augmentée d'une vingtaine de pages en 2021) dans la Collection Discogonie (Ed. Densité) dédiée à "ces trous noirs qui opèrent trente-trois révolutions par minute", ce petit ouvrage pourrait n'être qu'une longue critique de plus de cet album au son "intemporel" comme l'écrivent si souvent les commentateurs...

Ce qui distingue cette énième tentative d'épuisement du sujet, c'est justement de tenter de mettre à jour les mécaniques et les méthodes qui ont produit ce chef d'oeuvre tout en conservant la part d'émerveillement qui submerge l'auditeur à chaque nouvelle écoute.

Philippe Gonin rappelle également avec justesse tout ce que Rock Bottom doit à Nick Mason et ce coup de chapeau n'est pas immérité !

Certes, bien des extraits d'interviews et nombre d'anecdotes citées sur la réalisation de l'album ne seront pas une révélation pour les amateurs de ce site mais l'ouvrage reste hautement recommandable pour quiconque cherche encore à percer le mystère de cette traversée solaire en eaux profondes...

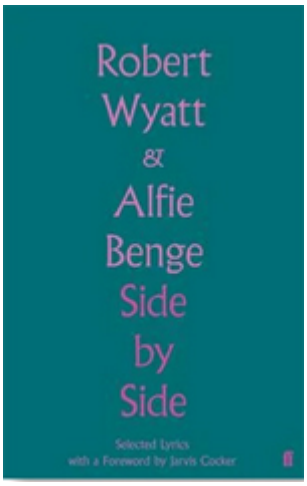
ROBERT WYATT
ROCK BOTTOM

«I would prefer not to.» Comme Bartleby, le personnage de Melville, Robert Wyatt semble préférer ne pas. Ne pas choisir entre jazz, folk, pop ou quoi que ce soit d'autre. Ne pas s'astreindre à enchaîner couplet et refrain. Ne pas écrire des textes qui pourraient laisser entendre une intention, etc. Pour autant, avec Rock Bottom, Robert Wyatt se démarque des groupes où il a officié comme batteur avant l'accident qui le laisse paralysé : Soft Machine ou son avatar Matching Mole. Il renoue avec la candeur des mélodies, mais fuit l'évidence avec malice.

C'est ainsi que Rock Bottom apparaît comme un des disques les plus atypiques des années 1970. Avec Nick Mason du Pink Floyd aux manettes, sous le regard bienveillant de sa muse Alfreda Binge et en compagnie de virtuoses de ses amis, Robert Wyatt peut lancer sa drôle d'exploration des fonds marins.

Philippe Gonin est maître de conférence à l'université de Bourgogne-Franche-Comté, chercheur au Centre Georges-Chevrier. Il est l'auteur de divers articles et ouvrages parmi lesquels Magma, décryptage d'un mythe et d'une musique, et Pink Floyd, The Wall.

Books A-Go-Go



ABÉCÉDAIRE

Il existe de nombreux livres consacrés à Robert Wyatt, à Soft Machine, à Canterbury, et nous avons déjà présenté les plus fameux dans notre abécédaire.
Mais nombre d'autres évoquent parfois au détour d'un chapitre tel ou tel épisode de la carrière de Robert Wyatt, soulignent des collaborations musicales inattendues ou s'attardent sur des pépites de son répertoire...
Chaque ouvrage mérite notre attention. Ils concourent, parfois à la marge, à affiner le portrait musical et humain de notre batteur-chanteur-compositeur préféré.

REVUE NON-EXHAUSTIVE DES OUVRAGES QUI FONT LA PART BELLE A ROBERT WYATT ET A SON OEUVRE SI PEU CLASSABLE

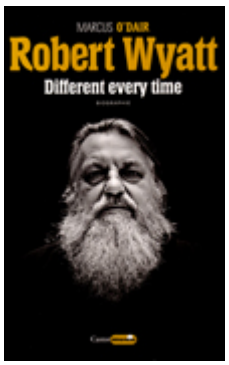
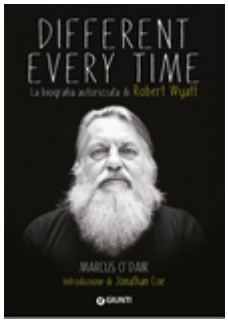
Side by Side - Robert Wyatt & Alfie Benge - Selected Lyrics
Faber (2020)

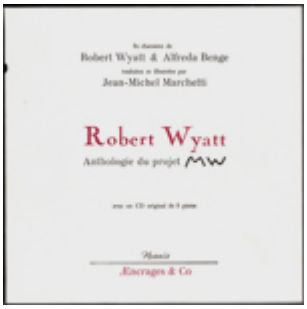
'Taken together Alfie & Robert's lyrics combine to create a humanist world-view that is at once global & particular. Take it from me: that's no mean feat.'

Jarvis Cocker



More information





Different Every Time - The Authorized Biography Of Robert Wyatt
by Marcus O'Dair - Serpent's Tail (2019)

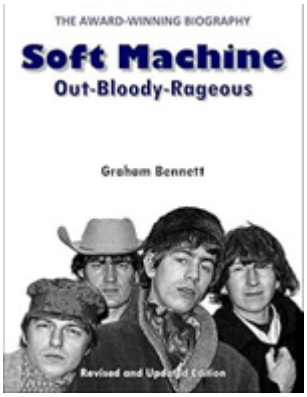
"If you don't believe avant-garde political music can be both playful and polemical, heartfelt and heartbreaking, you need Robert Wyatt in your life." (NME).

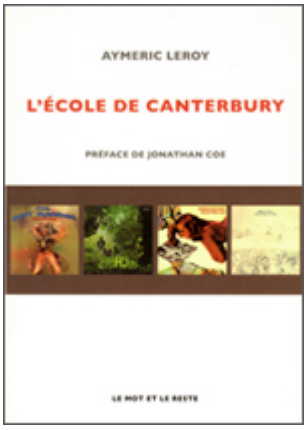
More information here and here.

Robert Wyatt - Anthologie du projet MW (80 chansons de Robert Wyatt & Alfreda Benge traduites et illustrées par Jean-Michel Marchetti)
AEncrages & Co (2009) avec un CD original de 8 pistes.

More information

Ce volumineux ouvrage de 235 pages compile les 6 recueils édités de 1997 à 2008.





Soft Machine - Out Bloody-Rageous with forewords by Daevid Alle, Hugh Hopper and John Etheridge
by Graham Bennet - S.A.F. Publishing Ltd. (2005)

More information

Réédition et mise à jour en 2025

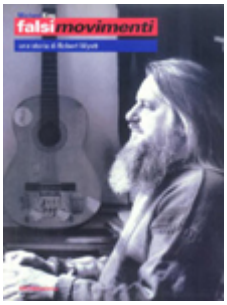
L'École de Canterbury - Préface de Jonathan Coe
de Aymeric Leroy - Le Mot et le Reste (2016)

La Bible (735 pages).

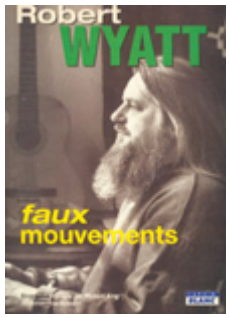
More information

Legends In Their Own Lunchtime : An Exploration Of The Canterbury Scene

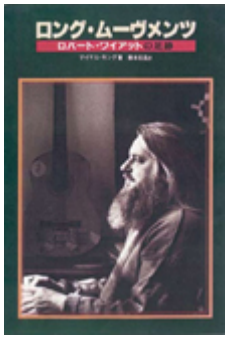
English version of L'École de Canterbury - Cuneiform Records (2026)

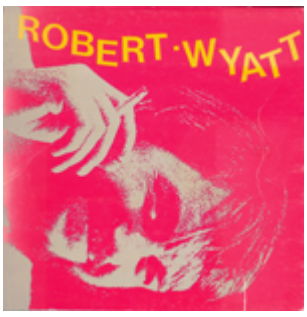


This English edition is being published 10 years after the original release.
Aymeric Leroy has added two new chapters and rewritten and expanded certain sections, particularly those covering the Soft Machine's 1966–68 period. He has also replaced many of the photos.



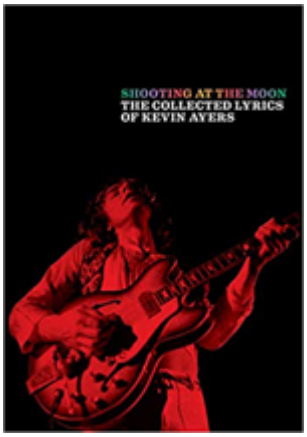
Canterbury Scene Chat! feat. Aymeric Leroy and Steve Feigenbaum (Cuneiforùm Records)

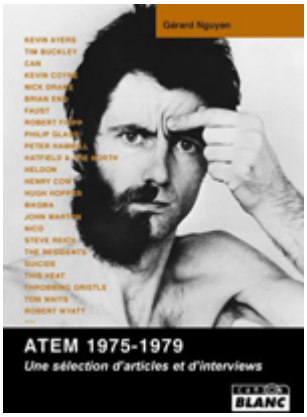




Wrong Movements - A Robert Wyatt History
by Michael King - S.A.F. Publishing Ltd. (1994)

More information





Stampa Alternativa
Pubblicazione bimestrale - Supplemento al n.3 (1987)

More information

Shooting at the Moon: The collected lyrics of Kevin Ayers
Faber Music (2019)

Très beau et volumineux recueil des textes des chansons de Kevin Ayers supervisé par sa fille Galen Ayers. Avec un avant-propos de Robert Wyatt.

ATEM 1975-1979 - Une sélection d'articles et d'interviews
de Gérard Nguyen - Camion Blanc (2010)

"De 1975 à 1979, Atem décidait de défendre les musiques de traverses et publiait 16 numéros tirés de 2 000 à 7 000 exemplaires introuvables aujourd'hui (ceux qui les possèdent les gardent précieusement)... Ce livre contient une sélection d'articles et d'interviews (dont certains inédits) sur la scène dite de Canterbury (Kevin Ayers, Hatfield and the North, Henry Cow, Hugh Hopper, Robert Wyatt) ... / ... Trente ans plus tard, Atem 1975-1979 permet de nous replonger dans l'âge d'or de la musique..."

Opinioni e suoni del XX secolo. A colloquio con Robert Wyatt di Michele Giuseppone - Crac Edizioni (2021)

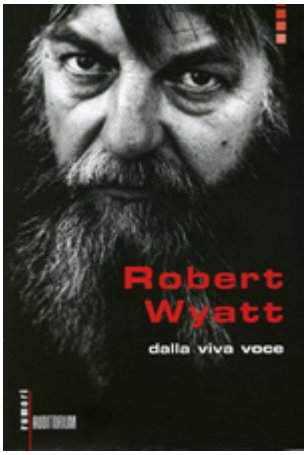
More information

La musica rock-progressiva europa
de Al Aprile - Calypso (1979)



La photo de couverture avec Robert Wyatt et Dagmar Krause a été prise lors du concert d'Henry Cow à Rome le 27 juin 1975 sur la Piazza Navona.
Une nouvelle édition sera publiée en 2009 avec Ivor Cutler en couverture.

Robert Wyatt. Folly Bololy, testi commentati de Andrea Guerrini - Arcana Edizioni (2019)

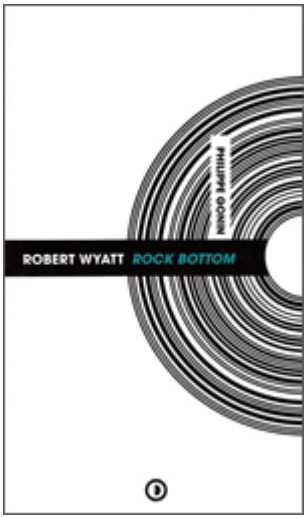
"...Un uomo mutante nella forma e nei contenuti, dalla personalità oscura e luminosa, che abbraccia linguaggi altrui per formarne uno proprio, assoluto e inconfondibile. Dall'ascolto di una musica fatta di suoni liberi associati a canoni variabili, e dei testi – liberi pensieri associati a lettere e parole nuove – si traccia un percorso che a partire dall'uomo-artista Wyatt, bipede batterista e autore incatenato, abbraccia la sua società e il suo tempo, del quale egli si è fatto voce cristallina, spezzata e sincera."



Robert Wyatt - Dalla Viva Voce
Editions Auditorium - Collection Rumori (Milan - 2009).

More information

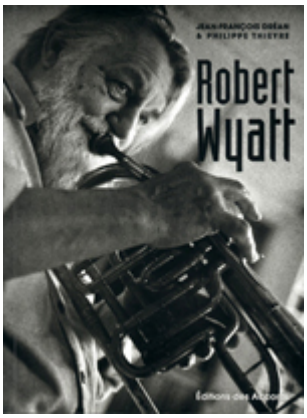
Robert Wyatt - Dalla Viva Voce - Nuova ediz.
Editions Auditorium (2023).

Robert Wyatt - Rock Bottom
de Philippe Gonin - Densité - collection Discogonie (2017 - réédition augmentée en 2021)

"Explorons cet univers, celui de Rock Bottom, album unique en son temps et qui le demeure aujourd'hui. Cherchons ce que ces chansons ne sont pas. Ne les rangeons pas dans des boîtes qui, très vite, deviendraient trop étroites. Mais explorons-les, traquons-en les sentiers cachés. Et n'oublions pas que si notre regard vient en scruter les méandres, ce n'est pas pour en exorciser le charme mais, bien au contraire, pour tenetr, par une écoute renouvelée, d'en multiplier peut-être, la magie."

More information

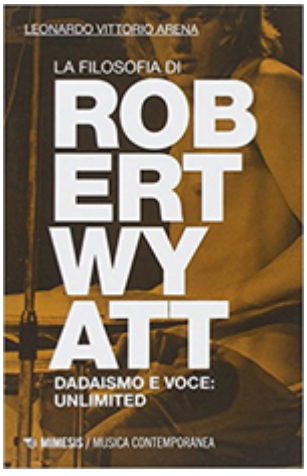
Soft Machine 1968-1981
de Carlo Pasceri - Dischi da leggere vol. 11 (2017)



La collection Dischi da leggere ("Disques à lire") propose des discographies raisonnées des grands groupes de la "rock-génération"ou l'analyse détaillée d'un album icônique. On y trouve Pink Floyd, Genesis, King Crimson mais aussi Deep Purple, Jethro Tull, Led Zeppelin ou même Miles Davis, John Coltrane, Return To Forever...
Le Soft Machine avec RW couvre les 72 premières pages soit presque la moitié de l'ouvrage.

L'auteur est musicien et cela se lit à défaut de s'entendre car la structure et l'orchestration des morceaux sont parfois finement analysées et je regrette alors que ma connaissance de l'italien soit aussi sommaire...

June 1st 1974
de Dave Thompson - (2013)



Auteur prolifique (plus de 100 livres au compteur) pour concert mythique, cet ouvrage part d'une idée lumineuse : tracer la destinée musicale des artistes qui, le 1er juin 1974, donnèrent au Rainbow Théâtre de Londres un concert d'autant plus mémorable qu'il réunissait des musiciens aux origines et aux styles aussi distincts que Nico, Kevin Ayers, Brian Eno, John Cale et Robert Wyatt (sans oublier John "Rabbit" Bundrick, Ollie Halsall, Archie Legget, Eddie Sparrow, Liza Strike et les Chanter Sisters).
Sur près de 320 pages, Dave Thomson parcourt les discographies et les comptes-rendus de concert des membres de ce supergroupe d'un soir et met à jour des ramifications qui ont perduré tout au long de leurs carrières respectives...

Robert Wyatt
de Jean-François Dréan & Philippe Thieyre - Éditions des Accords (2009)

"Quand des gens m'arrêtent dans la rue et me posent la question rituelle : êtes-vous Robert Wyatt ? Je réponds: "I used to be Robert Wyatt" (J'ai été Robert Wyatt)."

More information

La filosofia di Robert Wyatt - Dadaismo E Voce : Unlimited de Leonardo Vittorio Arena - Mimesis Edizioni (2014)

Petit opuscule de 70 pages qui cherche à relier l'oeuvre de Robert Wyatt à des philosophes et à leur courant de pensée en s'appuyant sur les nombreuses déclarations politiques et réflexions humanistes que RW a pu faire au cours d'interviews donnés à la presse spécialisée. On repère effectivement au fil des pages les noms de Marx, Engels, Deleuze, Guattari, Marcuse, Stirner, Mao, Nietzsche, Schuon, Heidegger, Gramsci, Hume, Kant, Einstein, Orwell, Dawkins, Platon, Schopenhauer parmi d'autres... (mais pas Spinoza !)

Ce qui, en 70 pages relève tout de même de l'exploit !

La démonstration philosophique est-elle concluante ? je n'en sais trop rien (mon italien m'interdit de donner un quelconque avis autorisé) mais - soyons taquins - cela nous change des sempiternelles références à Syd Barrett et à Jimi Hendrix et les noms de ces géants sonnent dans le contexte agréablement à nos oreilles éberluées.

(A noter dans la même collection: La filosofia di Brian Eno, Franck Zappa, John Cage, David Sylvian, Monk, degli U2 etc.)

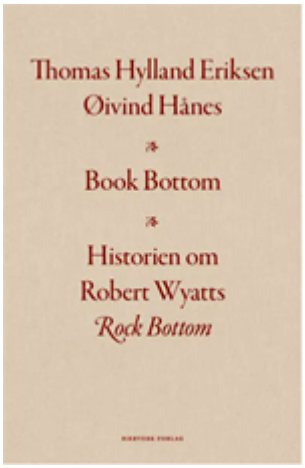
Simply Not Cricket I et II
Catalogue du jazz britannique - 1964-1994 Vol.1
Catalogue du jazz britannique - 1995-2000 Vol.2
de Philippe Renaud

35 ans de jazz britannique en plus de 400 pages. Une bible en 2 volumes référençant près de 4 000 albums que Philippe Renaud prolongera et approfondira avec les 270 numéros de la revue Improjazz qu'il publiera de 1993 à 2020.

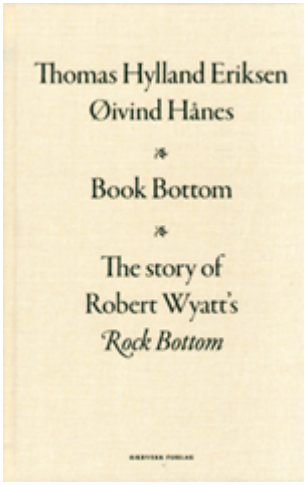
Un travail d'archives et de passion bien résumé dans l'introduction dans laquelle Robert Wyatt est vivement remercié pour sa contribution au titre de l'ouvrage !

La famille Soft Machine
de J.J. Brunin et P. Dufroc - Fusion (1976)

"De plus, il est à noter que le groupe était doté d'un système d'amplification de plusieurs centaines de Wyatt...".



More information



shakespeare dans une baignoire suivi de légèrement wyatt de Pierre Soletti - Dernier Télégramme (2022)

"Le disque
a fini de tourner
sur le plateau
la mer a rangé ses cheveux
nous voilà
revenus sur terre sensiblement
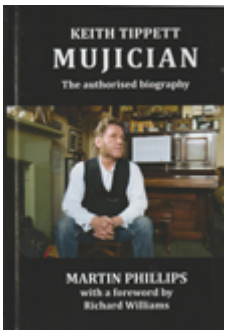
différent"

More information



Book Bottom - Historien om Robert Wyatts Rock Bottom
Book Bottom - The story of Robert Wyatt's Rock Bottom
av Thomas Hylland Eriksen & Øivind Hånes - HÆRVERK (2024)

" I seks tiår har Robert Wyatt vært en inspirator og kreativ kraft i de fruktbare grenseområdene mellom pop, rock, jazz og noe uklassifiserbart. Robert Wyatt er er helt unik. To sekunders sang eller tre sekunders famlende poesi fremført med en finger på et enkelt tangentinstrument er nok til å gjenkjenne stemmen og stemningene hans. Denne boka er om Robert Wyatts fineste plate, Rock Bottom. "

"For six decades, Robert Wyatt has been an inspiring and creative force in the fertile borderlands between pop, rock, jazz and something unclassifiable. Robert Wyatt is completely unique. Two seconds of singing or three seconds of poetry performed with one finger on a simple keyboard instrument is enough to recognize his voicie and moods. This book is about Robert Wyatt's finest record, Rock Bottom."

More information

Impossible de citer tous les livres évoquant Robert Wyatt plus ou moins brièvement tant sa productivité protéiforme a croisé le chemin de tant d'artistes... essayons quand même:

Keith Tippett - Mujician - The authorised biography (+ 2 CD)
by Martin Phillips - Jazz In Britain (2026)

Grand par son format et par son ambition, cet ouvrage de 328 pages en édition limitée de 1000 exemplaires retrace le parcours complet du musicien britannique: du Centipede composé de 50 musiciens créé alors qu'il avait à peine 20 ans aux multiples collaborations en passant par ses dernières œuvres de musique de chambre et ses récitals en solo...
Un double CD d'enregistrements inédits - un récital solo de 1984 capté à Exeter et un concert de Tippett's Ark au 100 Club de Londres en 1976 - offre ainsi "une preuve sonore directe de ce que le livre décrit avec éloquence".

Une histoire musicale du rock de Christophe Pirenne - Fayard (2011)

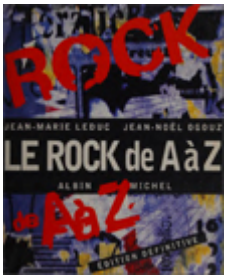
Monumental ouvrage de 800 pages dans lequel Robert Wyatt et Soft Machine sont cités à plusieurs reprises.
"La musique de Soft Machine se distingue par une forme du rock mâtinée de pratiques d'improvisation et d'interprétation empruntées au be-bop et à ses dérivés. Robert Wyatt (batterie et chant) et Mike Ratledge (claviers) n'ont d'ailleurs jamais caché leur inclination pour des artistes tels que Charlie Parker ou John Coltrane..."

Sigma - L'Aventure d'un Festival - 25 ans pour une culture visionnaire à Bordeaux
Editions Sigma (1990)

Auto-célébration d'un Festival (1965-1996) qui a réuni dès ses premières éditions des artistes hors-normes tel Soft Machine en 1969 pour Sigma 5. Deux entrées consacrées à Soft Machine, dont la célèbre photo "Robert Wyatt à la grimace" égalemnt publiée dans l'article du magazine Rock & Folk rendant compte de l'évènement.



Happening elephant « Guinch'Experiment » Sigma 5, 1969 musique Soft Machine projections lumineuses, Jenkin Warrenstructures gonflables, Jeffrey Shaw.

« La semaine de recherche et d'action culturelle prendra fin ce soir à l'Alhambra-Casino où doit se dérouler une manifestation assez peu banale, un bal expérimental appelé « Guinch'Experiment » avec groupes de pop' music, Ronnie Scott band et Soft Machine. Les danseurs-spectateurs pourront apprécier les images psychédéliques, de Warren, light show, projetées sur les flancs d'un éléphant vivant qui, dans la salle, « jouera » avec les énormes structures gonflables de Jeffrey Shaw »

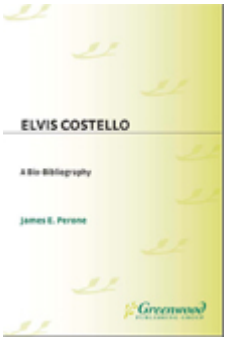
Le Figaro, Novembre 1969

Le Rock de A à Z
de Jean-Marie Leduc et Jean-Noël Ogouz - Albin Michel (1999)

Une somme de 808 pages dont une page sur Soft Machine, une autre sur Robert Wyatt et une petite notule sur Matching Mole.

Synths, Sax & Situationists (The French Musical Underground 1968-1978)
by Ian Thompson - Round Table Books (2025)

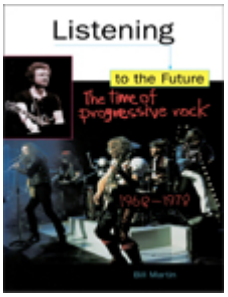


Peut-on écrire sur l'Underground à la française sans évoquer Robert Wyatt ? Non bien sûr, et c'est la raison de cet ouvrage dans cette page....

Plus d'information

Elvis Costello - Unfaithful Music & Disappearing Ink
by Elvis Costello - Blue Rider Press (2015)

Many pages devoted to Shipbuilding...

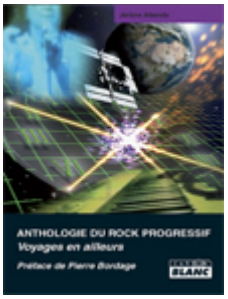


Elvis Costello - A Bio-Bibliography
by James E. Perone - Greenwood (1998)

Robert Wyatt's version of Shipbuilding is well represented among the 800 bibliographic references and the complete discography of his commercially released recordings.

Complicated Shadows - The Life and Music of Elvis Costello
by Graeme Thomson - Canongate Books (2005)

Several pages devoted to the genesis and reception of Shipbuilding.



Listening to the Future - The time of progressive rock 1968-1978
by Bill Martin - Open Court (1998)

"Since the late seventies, histories of rock music have either ignored or marginalized the progressive rock era. In part, this has occurred because rock music criticism has taken an almost completely sociological turn, with little or no interest in musical form itself. In "Listening to the Future", Bill Martin argues that it is a musical and political mistake to ignore this period of tremendous creativity, a period which still finds resonance in rock music today."

Mountains Come Cut of the Sky - The illustrated history of prog rock by Will Romano - Backbeat (2010)

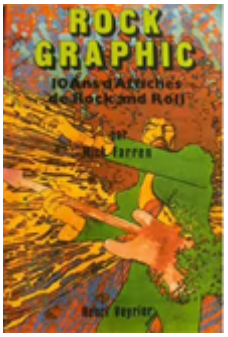
"From its artful beginnings (Syd Barrett-era Pink Floyd, the Mothers of Invention, and those progressive forebearers, the Sgt. Pepper-era Beatles), through the towering guitar solos, monumental synthesizer banks, and mind-boggling special effects of the Golden Age of Prog..."
Also contains a lengthy chapter on Canterbury music.

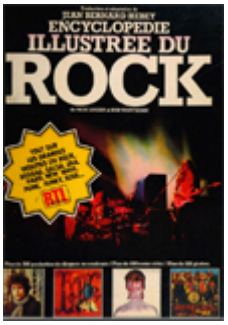
Anthologie du rock progressif - Voyages en ailleurs
de Jérôme Albérola - Camion Blanc (2010)

Soft Machine et Robert Wyatt bien servis dans cette anthologie où le "rock progressif" est à prendre au sens large..



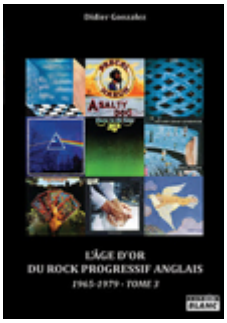
Rock'n'Roll : la discothèque idéale : 101 disques qui ont changé le monde
de Philippe Maneuvre - Editions Rock & Folk / Albin Michel (2005)

Rock Bottom à la 56ème place, entre Rock 'n' Roll Animal de Lou Reed et Radio City de Big Star...



Rock'n'roll - tome 2: La discothèque rock idéale. 101 disques à écouter avant la fin du monde
de Philippe Maneuvre - Editions Rock & Folk / Albin Michel (2011)

Soft Machine vol. Two à la 24 ème place, entre Happy Trails du Quicksilver Messenger Service et The Marble Index de Nico...



Rock Graphic - 10 ans d'affiche de rock'n'roll de Mike Farren - Editions Henry Veyrier (1976)

Au moins 2 affiches de Soft Machine de la "grande époque"...

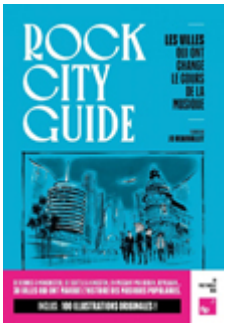
Encyclopédie illustrée du rock de Nick Logan et Bob Woffinden (traduction et adaptation de Jean-Bernard Hebey) - RTL Edition (1980)

Robert Wyatt, mais aussi Kevin Ayers, Gong, Soft Machine au rendez-vous de cette encyclopédie publiée en France par la station de radio RTL.



L'âge d'or du rock progressif anglais 1965 - 1979 - tome 3
de Didier Gonzalez - Camion Blanc (2025)

Shleep sur la couverture de l'ouvrage...

Jean-Jacques Lebel - Galerie Louis Carré & Cie - catalogue d'exposition publié à l'occasion de l'exposition 'Recycler, détourner' du 16 mars au 28 avril 2012 à Paris.
Texte de Jean de Loisy - Entretien de Jean-Jacques Lebel avec Guy Scarpetta.

Les différentes collaborations de Jean-Jacques Lebel avec Soft Machine à la fin des 60's sont brièvement évoquées dans le catalogue.

Rock City Guide - Les villes qui ont changé le cours de la musique de JD Beauvallet (auteur) et Frédéric Peltier (illustrateur) - GM éditions (2025)

De Rennes à Manchester, de Seattle à Kingston, en passant par Berlin, Reykjavik et Canterbury... 29 villes qui ont marqué l'histoire des musiques populaires.

Underground 2 - Derviches Tourneuses & punks cosmiques de Arnaud Le Gouëfflec (texte) et Nicolas Moog (dessins) - Glénat (2025)

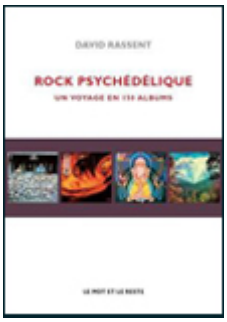
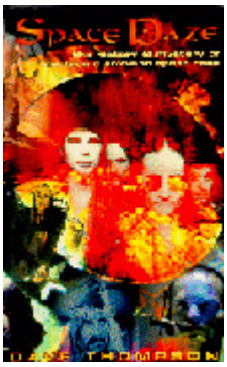
Une séquence consacrée à A Canterbury Tale.



Jazz Rock - Esprits libres et fusion des genres
de Marc Alvarado - Le Mot Et Le Reste (2019)

Robert Wyatt et Soft Machine sont évoqués à la 207ème page, vite suivis par Gong et l'Oblivion Express...



Electrosound: Storia ed estetica della musica elettroacustica di Giacomo Fronzi - EDT (2013)

"Da Cage ai Pink Floyd, da Schaeffer e i suoi eredi ai Soft Machine, da Edgar Varèse a Iannis Xenakis, dai compositori acusmatici ai DJ contemporanei, la ricerca elettroacustica ed elettronica ha vissuto e continua a vivere una felicissima stagione in ogni parte del globo; una stagione che è il momento di ricostruire in modo più ampio e, laddove possibile, interpretare, non solo all'interno dei confini della storia della musica."

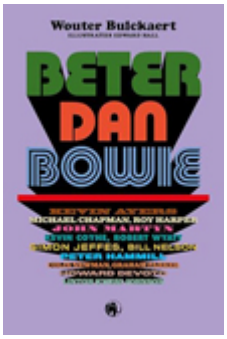
Rock psychédélique - un voyage en 150 albums
de David Rassent - Le Mot Et Le Reste (2025)

"Rock psychédélique, un voyage en 150 albums propose un tableau riche de rencontres insoupçonnées, d'affinités électives entre les maîtres et les outsiders, des Beatles de Revolver à Tame Impala, de Jefferson Airplane à Spacemen 3, en passant par Jimi Hendrix, Soft Machine ou Boards Of Canada."

Space Daze: The History and Mystery of Electronic Ambient Space Rock
by Dave Thomson - Cleopatra (1994)

Le Space-Rock dans son acceptation la plus large (de Hawkwind à Tyrannosaurus Rex en passant par... Soft Machine!). L'auteur, très prolifique, a également rédigé l'étonnant June 1st 1974.

Pink Floyd en rouge
de Michele Mari - Seuil (2011)



Sorte de roman-documentaire sur l'ascension des Pink Floyd dans lequel de nombreux protagonistes de la scène musicale londonnienne sont convoqués.. "...Si dans les concerts de David Bowie ou de David Gilmour vous avez vu sur la scène un petit vieux sur un fauteuil roulant, ce petit vieux c'était moi..."

More information

We are living on a star
Published in conjunction with the exhibition Vi lever pa° en stjerne (We are living on a star) held at the Henie Onstad Kunstsenter, Høvikodden, Norway, Jan. 30-Apr. 27, 2014 - Sternberg (2014)

A conversation with Robert Wyatt on his works and politics.

Beter dan Bowie:Kevin Ayers, Michael Chapman, Roy Harper, John Martyn, Kevin Coyne, Robert Wyatt... van Wouter Bulckaert en Edward Hall (illustraties) - Mammoet (2014)

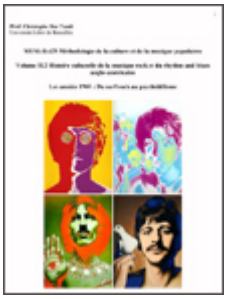
In dit boek redt connaisseur Wouter Bulckaert culthelden zoals Kevin Ayers en Kevin Coyne uit de vergeetput van de Engelse rockgeschiedenis. Hij ontrafelt hun beste werk en kadert het tegen de achtergrond van de Engelse geschiedenis en de platen van Bowie in dat tijdsgewricht, dat verdacht veel lijkt op onze turbulente jaren twintig."

La France Underground - 1965-1979 - Free Jazz Rock Pop - Le temps des utopies
de Serge Loupien - Rivages Rouge (2018)

Ce livre haut en couleurs, signé par un journaliste « historique » des pages culture de Libération et émaillé de nombreux témoignages inédits, évoque – un peu à la manière de la free press de ces glorieuses années - une épopée bouillonnante, libertaire, parfois délirante et foutraque. Une époque où le rock a pour noms Âme Son, Gong, Crouille Marteau, Heldon ou Fille Qui Mousse... "

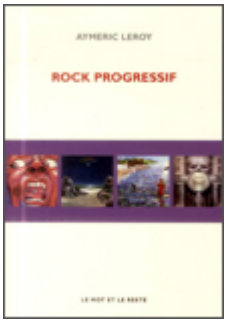
More information

150 batteurs en 150 figures
sous la direction de Daniel Dumoulin - Editions du Layeur (2022)



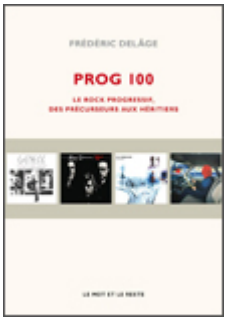
150 figures du monde de la batterie et des percussions qui ont pour nom Art Blakey, Jack de Johnette, Elvin Jones, Tony Williams, Brian Blade et... Robert Wyatt à qui plusieurs pages et photos sont consacrées.

More information



On Some Faraway Beach: The Life And Times Of Brian Eno
de David Sheppard - White Rabbit (2024)

"First published in 2008 and reissued in 2015 then 2024 as part of White Rabbit's Deep Cuts series, David Sheppard's acclaimed authorised biography of Brian Eno has been fully revised and updated (wit brand new material and an introduction by Alan Warner). Featuring interviews with many key collaborators over the years: from Bryan Ferry to David Byrne and Robert Wyatt."



Méthodologie de la culture et de la musique populaires du Prof. Christophe Den Tandt - Presses Universitaires de Bruxelles (2023)

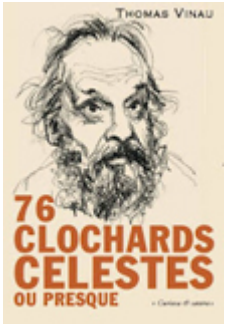
Dans le volume II de ce syllabus de cours intitulé "Histoire culturelle de la musique rock et du rhythm and blues anglo-américains - Les années 1960 : Du surf rock au psychédélisme", l'auteur évoque Soft Machine et ses "figures légendaires du prog-rock et du jazz fusion" (en une demi-page).

Rock progessif
de Aymeric Leroy - Le Mot Et Le Reste (2014)

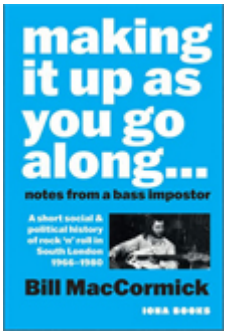
"La noirceur envoûtante de King Crimson, le raffinement symphonique de Genesis, l'exaltation mystique de Yes, les rêveries sonores de Pink Floyd, la virtuosité extravagante d'Emerson Lake & Palmer... Et tant d'autres, plus obscurs mais non moins valeureux - Van der Graaf Generator, Jethro Tull, Magma, Gentle Giant, Soft Machine... Autant de groupes qui, à partir de la fin des années soixante, ont cherché - et souvent réussi - à inventer une musique au-delà des distinctions de genre et du formatage commercial."



Prog 100 - Le rock progressif, des précurseurs aux héritiers
de Frédéric Delâge - Le Mot Et Le Reste (2014)

"... Frédéric Delâge rend justice à l'énergie et à l'imagination sans bornes d'un genre capable de se renouveler par des détours souvent inattendus [...] Des musiciens - Robert Wyatt, Peter Hammill -, des groupes - Yes, Genesis, King Crimson, Pink Floyd - ont consacré l'album comme le format privilégié d'explorations parfois vituoses, souvent poétiques, toujours passionnantes..."

Rock 70's
de Dominique Dupuis - Rock & Folk (2022)



Quelques pages consacrées à Robert Wyatt et au Soft Machine dans ce livre consacré aux années soixante-dix (qui, pour certains, ont démarré avant le 1er janvier 1970) et qui furent parfois le terrain de jeu de véritables laboratoires de musiques populaires : place au psyché, au rock prog', au glam, au hard ou encore au blues rock.De l'Angleterre aux États-Unis, sans oublier l'Europe (Italie, Allemagne... et France)... "

76 clochards célestes ou presque
de Thomas Vinau - Le Castor Astral (2016)

" ... Ils n'ont pas renoncé. Ils n'ont la plupart du temps pas eu trop de chance non plus. Ils ont bringuebalés, sublimes et admirables, crevards dégénérés jusqu'à nos yeux blessés. Ils étaient peut être malades mais c'est eux qui nous ont soignés de beauté, la vraie, la pure, celle qui ne renonce à aucune réalité...

Richard Brautigan - Arthur Cravan - Moondog - Walt Whitman - Robert-Louis Stevenson - Albert Cossery - Jean-Paul Clébert - Blaise Cendrars - Dan Fante - Roger Gilbert-Lecomte - Charles Bukowski - Skip James - Diogène de Sinope - Lester Young - Daniel Darc - Nicolas Bouvier - Chet Baker - Jehan Rictus - Billie Holiday - Syd Barrett - Norge - Neal Cassady - Jack London - Helno - Robert Wyatt - ..."

Making it up as you go along... - Notes from a bass impostor - or A Short Social & Political History of Rock 'n' Roll in South London, 1966 -1980
by Bill MacCormick - Iona Books (2024)

" In the 70s I was, somehow, a bass player. In the 80s and 90s, a political organiser, local councillor, and pollster. Since then, I've written a few books about the Great War. And now one about my time in the music biz. "

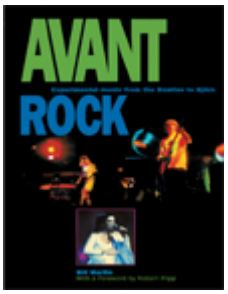
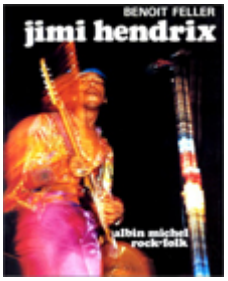
Électro - Une anthologie
de Thomas Gaetner - Gründ (2019)

" Ils s'appellent Pierre Henry, Kraftwerk, Larry Levan, Aphex Twin, Jeff Mills, Laurent Garnier, Moodymann, ou encore Mézigue et Todd Terje et contribuent, jour après jour, avec talent et passion, à l'une des aventures musicales les plus inventives de ces 30 dernières années."
Robert Wyatt est cité pour sa collaboration avec Brian Eno sur l'album Music For Airports.



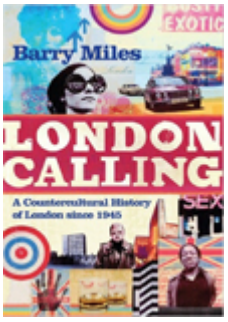
John Peel - A Life in Music
by Michael Heatley - Michael O'Mara Books Limited (2004)

"... So into the Top Gear concept were they that singer/drummer Robert Wyatt even ad-libbed new lyrics to their song 'Moon In June', which made reference to the programme, recommending it 'despite its extraordinary name' and namechecking 'mates like Kevin [Ayers], Caravan and the old Pink Floyd'. Wyatt later explained that the original lyrics had been written as a joke that had worn thin by the time they arrived at Maida Vale, so he simply wrote new ones on the spot...".



Listen to Psychedelic Rock
by Christian Matijas-Meccas - Greenwood (2020)

"... The Soft Machine is one of the most overlooked and generally forgotten groups of the psychedelic era. They were at the forefront of the English psychedelic scene and played many of the scene's early shows with Pink Floyd both at the Roundhouse and UFO. Although they were at the birth of psychedelia, their sound is often described as progressive rock or jazz fusion. The sheer variety of their music makes it difficult to categorize them in one or other camp, but that is a complete waste of time; in doing so, we lose the amazing music of this unique band...".



Avant Rock - Experimental music from the Beatles to Björk
by Bill Martin - Open Court Publishing Company (2002)

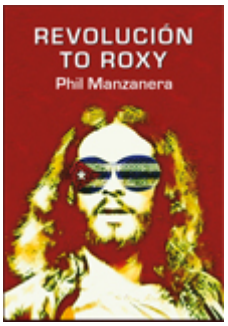
Plusieurs citations de Robert Wyatt dans cet ouvrage où l'on croise aussi bien Alice Cooper que Xenakis, Yes que Guy Debord ou Kurt Vonnegut (l'index complet donne le tournis). Préface de Robert Fripp.

Jimi Hendrix
de Benoît Feller - Albin Michel / Rock & Folk (1976)

Soft Machine qui a croisé la route de Jimi Hendrix est cité dans cet ouvrage dans lequel Robert Wyatt y est spécialement remercié (avec John Mc Laughhlin) par l'auteur.

London Calling - A Countercultural History of London since 1945
by Barry Miles - Atlantic Books (2010)

"...The Softs' drummer, Robert Wyatt, told Daniel Spicer: In those days there was no seating in the Roundhouse so there was lots of space. A friend of the organist was a motorcyclist and, as another member of the group, his contribution was to ride around the room to add a bit of enjoyable sound. He was very sensitive in the way he drove his motorcycle and it fitted in with the tunes perfectly, as I remember. ..."

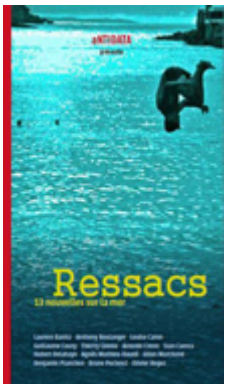


Hippie
by Barry Miles - Cassell Illustrated (2003)

"...Robert grew up listening to Virgil Thompson, Shostakovich, Bartok, Webern, Monteverdi and Hindemith. His elder brother played Cecil Taylor, Mingus, Ornette Coleman and Duke Ellington...

100 %, 100 disques en 100 mots
de Denis Desassis - The Book Edition (2023)

"...vaste puzzle » musical qu'invite l'écrivain et chroniqueur, passant du rock au jazz, du classique à la pop et à la chanson française : Brassens côtoie Led Zeppelin, Camille Pépin, Lou Reed, Robert Wyatt, Stevie Wonder. Bruno Tocanne, Neil Young, Bob Dylan, John Zorn".



Revólución to Roxy -
by Phil Manzanera - Wordzworth Publishing (2024)

"...I hope you'll find my family history every bit as fascinating as my music adventures, I'm proud to be related to a Colombian pirate, a spy and and an Italian opera musician."

Encyclopedia of British Rock - Party. 1 : Progressive rock & its periphery by Marquee Special Edition (1990)

Ressacs - 13 nouvelles sur la mer de Collectif - Antidata (2019)

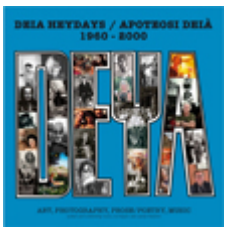
"Treize nouvelles sur la mer, mais pas toujours maritimes, où l'on trouvera certes quelques tempêtes, des embarcations diverses, du sable et des coquillages, mais aussi des éléments plus incongrus, comme une virée au cimetière ou une chanson de Robert Wyatt. "

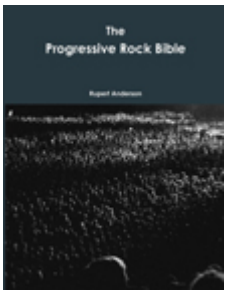


Rock Critic - Chroniques de rock'n'roll (1967-1982)
de Alain Dister - Castor Astral (2007)

" Un livre plein d'enthousiasme où l'on croise Elvis Presley, Jerry Lee Lewis, les Beatles, John Lennon, Bruce Springsteen, les Sex Pistols, Robert Wyatt et bien d'autres."

The prog side of the moon - Suoni e leggende del rock europeo. Anni '70.
di Cesare Rizzi - Giunti Editore (2010)

" The Prog Side of the Moon, ricco di informazioni inedite e di una straordinaria iconografia. Un capitolo è dedicato alla Scuola di Canterbury."



Deia Heydays - Apoteosi Deià1960-2000
by Oona Lind Napier and Jackie Waldren (2018)

"The book offers short, to the point, pen portraits of a whole host of artists, musicians and writers who lived and worked in Deia between 1960 and 2000, those Deia heydays."

Rock Progresivo : Historia, cultura, artistas y álbumes fundamentales (Guías del Rock & Roll) (Spanish Edition)
by Pérez Ladaga, Eloy - Robinbook, Ediciones S.L. (2018)

The Progressive Rock Bible
by Rupert Anderson - Lulu Publishing (2016)

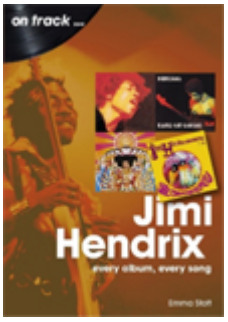
Une solide (452 pages) compilation de textes issus de Wikipedia sur le "rock progressif."

100 classiques rock et leur sens caché
de Axel Du Bus - Editions La Boîte A Pandore (2014)

"... Mais Langer n'est pas totalement satisfait des paroles écrites par Wyatt. Il va alors trouver Elvis Costello. Qui se met aussitôt au travail..."

...Really Good Songs - a collection of 48 all-time classic favourites arranged for piano, voice and guitar
Music Sales (2010)

Sea Song is one of the scores in this book.



Il suono del progresso - Esplorazioni sonore nel rock progressivo de Lelio Camilleri - Arcana (2022)

"... Oltre a una panoramica delle varie tipologie di discorsi sonori vengono analizzati in dettaglio i lavori solistici di Robert Wyatt, Hopper, Frank Zappa, e album degli Henry Cow, dei Faust e dei Tangerine Dream..."

Prog Rock en 150 figures de Dominique Dupuis - Editions du Layeur (2020)

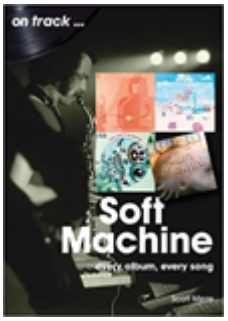
Une très courte évocation de Soft Machine dans cette approche du "Prog Rock"...

Jimi Hendrix - Every Album, Every Song
by Emma Stott - Sonicbond Publishing (2022)

"... His early work as a session player for acts like The Isley Brothers, Little Richard and even Jayne Mansfield is considered, along with his later work as a guest star on albums by Stephen Stills, Robert Wyatt, and McGear and McGough; and not forgetting his blistering work as a producer for Eire Apparent. ..."

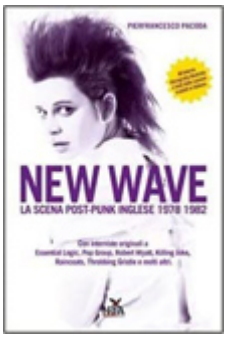
A Nord di Londra
di Enrico Fontana - Arcana (2022)

"Gli album di Hatfield and the North e di National Health sono considerati da critici e appassionati come gemme della Scuola di Canterbury e di tutta l'iconografia del progressive inglese. Il suono all'interno dei microsolchi racchiude il compendio di molta della musica che ha caratterizzato il periodo che inizia nel 1965 e termina all'incirca nei dieci/quindici anni successivi. ..."



Gong - Every Album, Every Song
by Kevan Furbank - Sonicbond Publishing (2021)

"Musically and spiritually Gong emerged from the whimsical imagination of founder member, Daevid Allen, an Australian who'd travelled to England in the early 60's to check out the beatnik scene – eventually meeting up with Mike Ratledge, Kevin Ayres and Robert Wyatt, who formed the Soft Machine, inadvertently becoming instigators of 'the Canterbury scene'. "

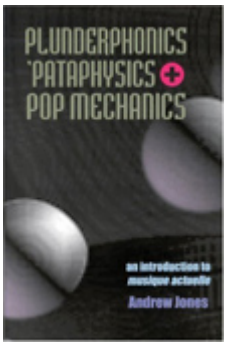


L'âge d'or du rock progressif anglais 1965-1979 - tome 2
de Didier Gonzalez - Camion Blanc (2023)

Un chapitre consacré à Matching Mole...

Soft Machine - Every Album, Every Song
by Scott Meze - Sonicbond Publishing (2023)

"Scott Meze is a psychedelic music obsessive born in Britain but based in Tokyo, the music connoisseur's capital of the world. Soft Machine has been one of the abiding loves of his life ever since a friend played him a tape of Triple Echo while careening his thoroughly chemicalised brain through the hills of South Somerset on the back of a Moto Guzzi 850 Le Mans. You don't ignore an education like that."



New wave. La scena post-punk inglese 1978-1982
by Pierfrancesco Pacoda - Nda Press (2010)

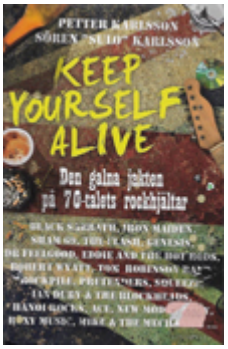
"La scena post-punk inglese 1978-1982. Concepito come un diario di viaggio nel cuore dell'Inghilterra del dopo punk, quando l'estate anarchica dei Sex Pistols aveva fatto esplodere le energie sotterranee di band che univano la volontà di rivolta al puro gusto per la sperimentazione. Sfilano, in New Wave, incontri con gruppi "seminali" come Throbbing Gristle, Pop Group, Essential Logic, Glaxo Babies, Passions, Killing Joke, Ruts, ed il "vecchio" Robert Wyatt che di questa generazione è stato il padre spirituale."

Canterbury
Collectif - Volume! La revue des musiques populaires - Éditions Mélanie Seteun (2022)

Compilation des interventions présentées à l'Université de Strasbourg lors du colloque en visio-conférence Zoom du 20 novembre 2020 sur "la scène de Canterbury".

Plunderphonics, `Pataphysics Pop Mechanics: an introduction to musique actuelle
by Andrew Jones - SAF Publishing Ltd. (1999)

"Where new music collides with contemporary pop (as opposed to jazz or classical), Plunderphonics explains the implications of the new wave of sonic appropriation."



Gobbing Pogoing and Gratuitous Bad Language
by Ted Curtis - Spare Change Books (1996)

"A unique collection of short stories documenting the finest moments of twenty years of punk rock. The bands, the booze and the bad behaviour. The drugs, the shagging and brawling. Contributions from Mark Perry, Stewart Home, Nick Blinko, Robert Wyatt and many more."

AGI 2 / ENO
Collectif - Kyou records (2022)

Ce livre met en lumière l'évolution d'Eno et de la scène musicale à travers une sélection et des archives d'écrits d'Eno, de critiques de disques et de notes de pochette rédigées dans la revue japonaise Rock Magazine de l'époque.

Keep Yourself Alive
av Sören "Sulo" Karlsson & Petter Karlsson - Lind & Co (2012)

"Upphovsmännen bakom det fantastiska projektet Keep yourself alive gav sig ut på en unik resa till Storbritannien för att träffa sina gamla rockhjältar. Förutom alla avslöjanden och otroliga historier som boken bjuder på medföljer även en cd, där Sulo tillsammans med de medverkande artisterna gjort nya versioner av deras mest kända låtar. Kultrockikonen Robert Wyatt har till och med bidragit med ett helt nyskrivet spår, exklusivt för Keep yourself alive."

"...The Robert Wyatt interview is quite nice, with Robert not wanting to make too much fuzz about his own person, modest as usual. Instead he honor other rock stars, jazz drummers and the ordinary workers who pay their taxes! [...]
With the book you get a CD where Sulo play old hits with several of the artists interviewed. Robert Wyatt instead asked Sulo to write som lyrics to the title "Enjoy the risk", and he plays piano to Sulo´s vocals and Magic Gunnarson´s saxophone. A nice, little (less than 2 min.) tune."
Svenn in Robert Wyatt and Stuff blogspot

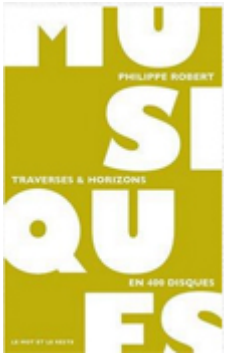
Brian Eno - Le magicien du son de Olivier Bernard - Camion Blanc (2022)

"Près d'un bon kilo (915 g) pour une étude pointue, érudite, d'une grande acuité, emplie de révérence et de respect tout à fait hors du commun pour un artiste absolument hors des étiquettes, sauf celles qu'il s'est fabriquées, qu'il a inventées et/ou diagnostiquées depuis près de 40 ans (Here Come the Warm Jets premier album solo enregistré en septembre 1973 est sorti en janvier 1974 pour le début de la carrière véritable de l'artiste aujourd'hui âgé de… 74 ans). "
Xavier Béal



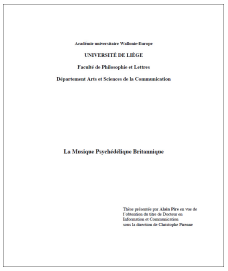
A Beginner's Guide to Brian Eno
by Tsutomu Noda, Masato Matsumura, Takune Kobayashi,Mariko Sakamoto, Haru W. Mita,Tomoko Takahashi, James Hadfield, Ian F. Martin and Rie Eguchi - Ele-King Books (2022)

All Things About Canterbury Rock
by Koji Wakui - Kawade Shuppan Shinsha - Japanese Edition (2022)

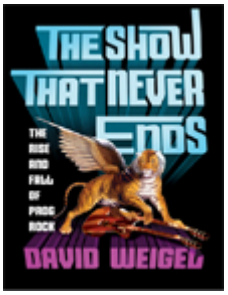
The world's first disc guide to the sixty years of unique rock that emerged in the ancient English city of Canterbury. It covers 500 discs, from jazz rock and progressive rock by Soft Machine, Caravan and Gong to avant-pop by Slap Happy and Henry Cow, as well as the solo work of each of the key figures. The ultimate history book and the one and only in-depth guide to the band's unique cultural background, musicality and worldwide network.

Musiques, traverses & horizons en 400 disques
de Philippe Robert - Le Mot Et Le Reste (2021)

"Philippe Robert propose une anthologie totale : 100 ans de musique en 400 albums, à la croisée des genres. Musiques, Traverses & Horizons donne à voir une construction de l'histoire musicale du XXe siècle où Moondog croise Oneothrix Point Never, Robert Wyatt, John Cale, Etta James et Colette Magny."



Caravan: Every Album, Every Song
by Andy Boot - Sonicbond Publishing (2021)



Shakin' All Over - Popular Music and Disability
by George McKay - The University of Michigan Press (2013)

"...By looking closely into the work of artists such as Johnny Rotten, Neil Young, Johnnie Ray, Ian Dury, Teddy Pendergrass, Curtis Mayfield, and Joni Mitchell, McKay investigates such questions as how popular music works to obscure and accommodate the presence of people with disabilities in its cultural practice. He also examines how popular musicians have articulated the experiences of disability (or sought to pass), or have used their cultural arena for disability advocacy purposes."

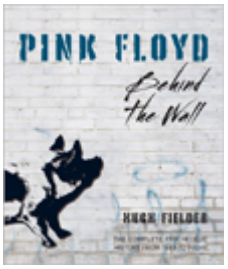
La Musique Psychédélique Britannique de Alain Pire - Université de Liège - Faculté de Philosophie et Lettres - Département de Arts et Sciences de la Communication (2009*)*

Thèse présentée par Alain Pire en vue de l'obtention du titre de Docteur en Information et Communication sous la direction de Christophe Pirenne.



The show that never ends - The rise and fall of Prog Rock
by David Weigel - W. W. Norton & Company (2017*)*

Subcultures, Bodies and Spaces - Essays on Alternativity and Marginalization by Samantha Holland and Karl Spracken - Emerald Publishing (2018*)*

Music Scenes - Local, Translocal and Virtual by Andy Bennett & Richard A. Peterson - Van erbilt Univresity Press (2004*)*

Pink Floyd - Behind the Wall - The complete psychedelic history from 1965 to today by Hugh Fiedler - Race Point Publishing (2013*)*

Stone Free - Jimi Hendrix in London - September 1966-June 1967
by Jas Obrecht - University of North Carolina Press (2018*)*

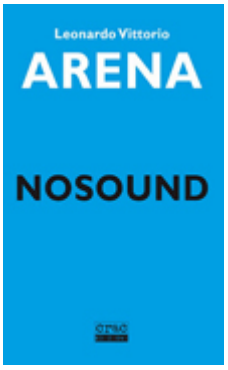
Through Music to the Self
by Peter Michael Hamel - Shambhala Pubilcations Inc. (1976)

Nombreuses rééditions au fil des ans de cet ouvrage de référence du compositeur allemand qui a débuté sa carrière au côté de Morton Feldman, John Cage et Terry Riley...

Voir aussi...

Pete Frame's Complete Rock Family Trees
by Peter Frame - Omnibus Press (1983)

More information



L'underground musical en France
de Éric Deshayes et Dominique Grimaud - Le mot et le reste (2008)

Bible incontournable où se croisent tous les groupes et tous les musiciens qui peuplent nos discothèques depuis plus de 50 ans (j'écris ces lignes en 2021). Robert Wyatt, Hugh Hopper, Daevid Allen, Kevin Ayers, Mike Ratledge, mais aussi Soft Machine, Gong et Matching Mole y sont fréquemment cités... Indispensable...

La Musica In Grigio e Rosa di Lelio Camilleri - Arcana (2020)

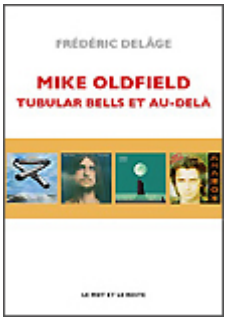
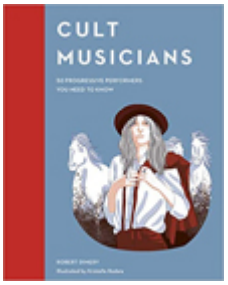
"I Caravan sono, insieme ai Soft Machine, uno dei principali gruppi di quella che comunemente viene chiamata scena o scuola di Canterbury. Il libro contestualizza i Caravan all'interno della scena del rock progressivo e ripercorre la loro produzione discografica dall'inizio all'ultimo disco con la formazione originaria, nel 1982. "



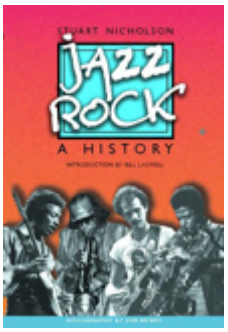
Nosound
di Leonardo Vittorio Arena - Crac Edizioni (2020)

"Il libro si concentra su vari generi, il rock, il jazz, la musica classica ed etnica, nella visione del non suono. L'indagine è dominata dalla contaminazione: l'antico e il moderno, l'Oriente e l'Occidente, musica, letteratura e pittura, sonorità e silenzi si rincorrono, all'insegna del non suono. Nella prospettiva di una musica mondiale si esaminano le opere di Terry Riley, Brian Eno, Richard Wagner, i Soft Machine, Ryuichi Sakamoto, David Sylvian e altri."



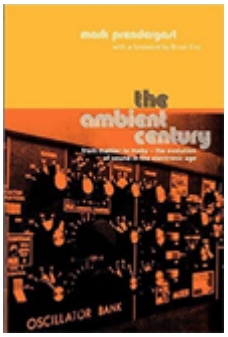
Mike Oldfield
de José Cantos - Catedra Ediciones (2007)

"Mike Oldfield, músico singular, huidizo, camaleónico, tremendamente efectista, ha sido capaz de sorprender con sonidos de todo tipo desde que en 1968 se publicó su primer disco..."



Mike Oldfield - Tubular Bells et au-delà
de Frédéric Delâge - Le Mot et le Reste (2021)

"Tubular Bells et au-delà revient sur le contexte de création et de diffusion de l'ensemble de l'œuvre musicale du génial compositeur britannique retiré aujourd'hui sur une île au sable fin.".

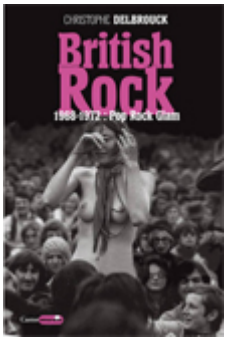


Cult Musicians : 50 Progressive Performers You Need to Know
by Robert Dimery & Kristelle Rodeia - Frances Lincoln Publishers Ltd (2020)

"Cult Musicians introduces 50 musicians deserving of a cult status. The book charts a plethora of genres and boundary-breakers – from afrobeat and art pop to glam rock and proto punk; Bjork and PJ Harvey to Aphex Twin and Robert Wyatt.".

Jaaz Rock : A history
by Stuart Nicholson, Bill Laswell (Contributor), Jon Newey (Discographer) - Schirmer Trade Books (1998)

"The quintessential crossover form, jazz-rock encompasses the most popular hybrid styles, from 1970s fusion to the latest in acid jazz".



The Ambient Century - From Mahler to Moby --The Evolution of Sound in the Electronic Age
by Mark Prendergast, Karen Rinaldi, (Foreword by Brian Eno) - Bloomsbury Publishing PLC (2003)

Robert Wyatt is mentioned several times, mainly for his contribution to "Music for Airports".

Soft Machine - Rock Storia E Musica - #23
de Riccardo Bertoncelli - Gruppo Editoriale Fabbri (1983)

Livret de 28 pages en italien, accompagné d'une cassette (face A : Moon In June / face B : Teeth et Chloe And The Pirates).

British Rock - 1968-1972 : Pop, Rock, Glam de Christophe Delbrouck - Le Castor Astral (2017)

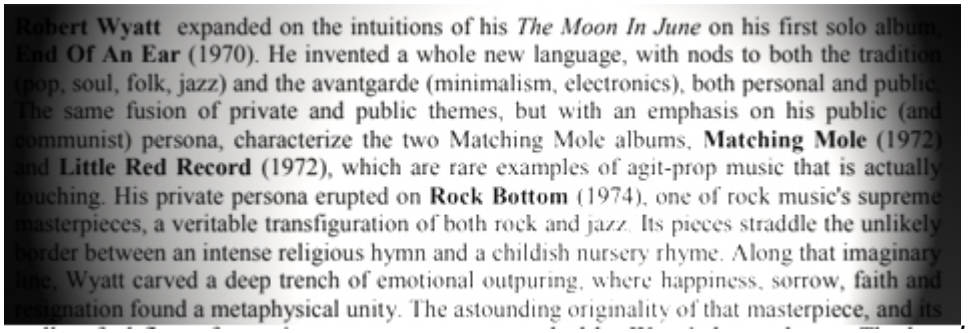
All the Madmen
by Cliton Heylin - Constable & Robinson (2012)

...But the real return dated back to a night at the end of March, when he turned up at the f 00 Club to see his old pals Soft Machine play. And afterwards, he even said hi. As bassist Hugh Hopper recalls it: 'Syd was muttering away in his usual way and said, "Would you like to come along and do some recording?'" They assumed, not unreasonably, that he had some specific idea in mind....



5th concise edition - The Encyclopedia of Popular Music compiled and edited by Colin Larkin - Omnibus Press & Muze (2011)

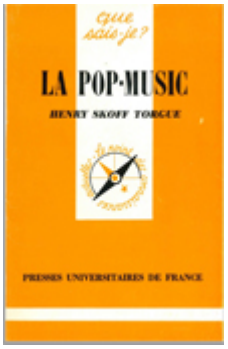
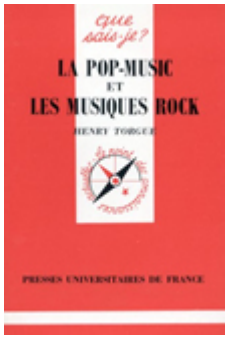
3 659 pages for this "concise editon" (3 000 entries from the 27 000 of the multi-volume).
Kevin Ayers, Soft Machine and Robert wyatt are not forgotten...



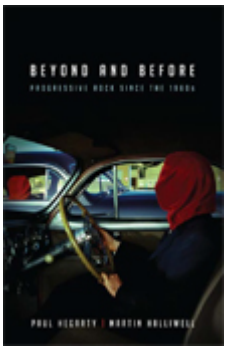
A History of Rock Music- 1951-2000
by Piero Scaruffi (2003)

"Best read as an alternate history of rock music. Scaruffi has dedicated his platform to elevating underrated masterpieces and wholly unconventional music. ... "

Robert Wyatt expanded on the intuitions of his The Moon In June on his first solo album, End Of An Ear (1970). He invented a whole new language, with nods to both the tradition (pop, soul, folk, jazz) and the avantgarde (minimalism, electronics), both personal and public. The same fusion of private and public themes, but with an emphasis on his public (and communist) persona, characterize the two Matching Mole albums, Matching Mole (1972) and Little Red Record (1972), which are rare examples of agit-prop music that is actually touching. His private persona erupted on Rock Bottom (1974), one of rock music's supreme masterpieces, a veritable transfiguration of both rock and jazz. Its pieces straddle the unlikely border between an intense religious hymn and a childish nursery rhyme. Along that imaginary line, Wyatt carved a deep trench of emotional outpuring, where happiness, sorrow, faith and resignation found a metaphysical unity. The astounding originality of that masterpiece, and its

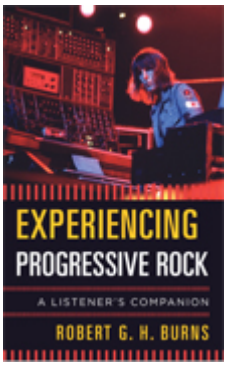


...



La Pop-Music
de Henry Skoff Torgue - Collection Que sais-je ? au Presse Universitaire de France (1975)

Beaucoup d'excellentes références (Soft Machine, Kevin Ayers, Robert Wyatt, Gong, Matching Mole etc.) dans ce petit fascicule emblématique de la culture académique...



Réédition en 1997 avec un changement de titre : La Pop-Music et les musiques rock.

Beyond and Before - Progressive Rock Since the 1960's by Paul Hegarty & Martin Halliwell - The Continuum International Publishing Group (2011)

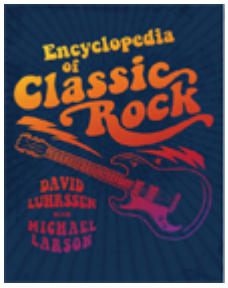
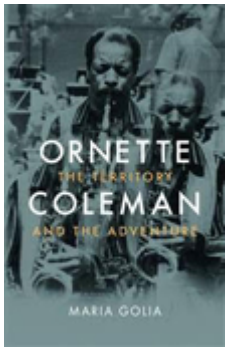
"... Hegarty and Halliwell assess the roots of progressive rock, arguing convincingly that a fusion of styles, approaches and genres defined the 1970s period, and the authors develop tools to assess other, later progressive musics..."



Experiencing Progressive Rock - A Listener's Companion
by Robert G.H. Burns - Rowman & Littlefield (2018)

"In Experiencing Progressive Rock: A Listener's Companion, Robert G. H. Burns brings together the many strands that define the "prog rock" movement of the late 1960s and early 1970s to chart the evolution of this remarkable rock tradition over the decades. "



Rocking the classics - English Progressive Rock and the Counterculture
by Edward Macan - Oxford University Press (1997)

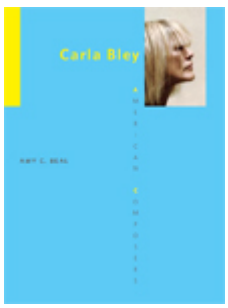
"An impressive piece of work ... Macan knows this music backwards and forwards: he combines a fan's detached knowledge of minutiae with what if often a quite sophisticated agenda of cultural criticism." (Robert Walser)

Encyclopedia of Classic Rock
by David Luhrssen with Michael Larson - Greenwood (2017)

"The book covers rock artists who emerged or came to prominence in the period ranging 1965–1975 and follows their careers through the present. It also specifically defines the term "classic rock" and identifies the criteria that a song must meet in order to be considered as within the genre."

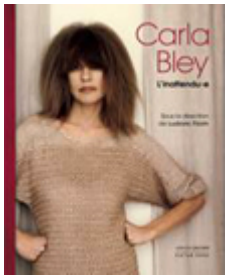
Ornette Coleman - The territory and the adventure
by Maria Golia - Reaktion Books Ltd (2020)

"As patron saint of all things dissonant and defiant, Ornette's musical appeal extended through his own to subsequent generations. Epoch-shaping 1960s bands who acknowledged his transmissions include the Velvet Underground, Soft Machine, and Cream..."



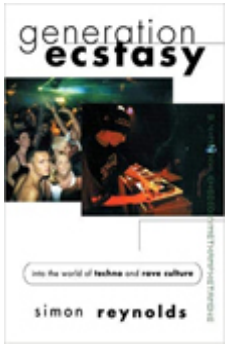
Pink Floyd - The Early Years
by Barry Miles - Omnibus Press (2006)

From Cambridge to Dark Side Of The Moon...



The Strawberry Bricks Guide to Progressive Rock (Third Edition)
by Charles Snider - strawberrybricks.com (2020) - 572 pages

"Each of the over 500 entries is lovingly annotated with insightful breakdowns of each subject, which resulted in me reacquainting myself with many albums I hadn't thought about in years. Whether you are the novice getting your cape dirty for the first time, or a seasoned veteran who enjoys a fresh perspective, this is your mountain to climb."



Carla Bley
by Amy C. Beal - University of Illinois Press (2011)

"Beal also points to Bley's professional and managerial work as a pioneer in the development of artist-owned record labels, the cofounder and manager of WATT Records, and the cofounder of New Music Distribution Service."

Carla Bley - l'inattendu-e par Ludivic Florin (avec Jean-Michel Court, Jean-François Mondot et Alex Dutilh) - Naïves Livres (2013)

"Le tour de force de nos quatre auteurs reste d'avoir su solliciter, auprès et au loin d'elle, les personnalités les plus insolites (John Cage, Don Cherry, Charlie Haden, Robert Wyatt, Jack Bruce, etc.) sans jamais rompre l'unité de leur chronique artistique, nuancée de chaleur et d'enthousiasme."

Generation ecstasy
by Simon Reynolds - Routledge (1999)

"In Generation Ecstasy, Simon Reynolds takes the reader on a guided tour of this end-of-the-millenium phenomenon, telling the story of rave culture and techno music as an insider who has dosed up and blissed out. A celebration of rave's quest for the perfect beat definitive chronicle of rave culture and electronic dance music. "

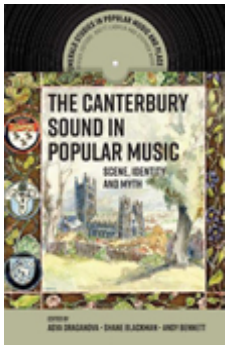
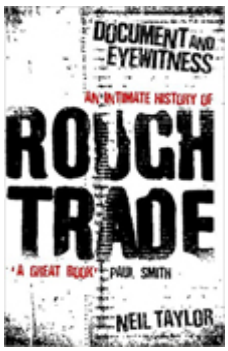
Litpop - Writing and popular music by Rachel Carroll and Adam Hansen - Ashgate (2014)



Part I - chapter 2 : "You can't just say 'words' : Literature and Nonsense in the Work of Robert Wyatt" (by Richard Elliott).

Pre-publication (2014) of this chapter



Him Through Me - making love and music in the Sixties & Seventies by Pamela Windo - CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform (2014)

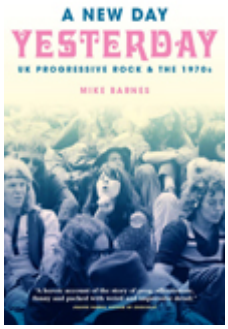
"We lived on air and ideas, without cell phones and Facebook … we took quite a few drugs, and had quite a lot of sex…we were earnest and naïve… it was all so new, to be young and empowered…and it was music not money that played the major role…"

The Canterbury Sound In Popular Music: Scene, Identity and Myth
by Asya Draganova, Shane Blackman and Andy Bennett - Emerald Publishing Limited (2020)

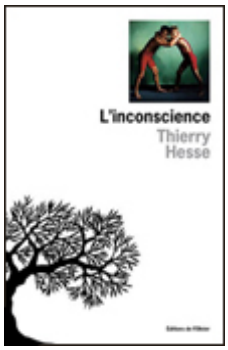


"... The volume recounts the stories, and explores the significance, of the Canterbury Sound as heritage, ongoing legacy and scene. Originating from the experiences and ethnographic research of the three editors, all of whom have lived and worked in Canterbury, the book brings together reflections, stories, and critical insights from well-known musicians, researchers, DIY archivists and fans to explore the Canterbury Sound as an inter-generational phenomenon and a source of cultural identity. Associated with acts like Caravan, early Soft Machine, Robert Wyatt, and Kevin Ayers, this romanticised scene has a special place in popular music culture. ..."

Document And Eyewitness: An Intimate History of Rough Trade
by Neil Taylor - Orion (2012)

"Rough Trade is practically a byword for the history of independent music over the last thirty years. DOCUMENT AND EYEWITNESS: AN INTIMATE HISTORY OF ROUGH TRADE tells the story from the inside of a phenomenally influential record label, through the voices of Geoff Travis, Jarvis Cocker, Robert Wyatt, Green Gartside and many many more.

From the early records of Cabaret Voltaire, Kleenex and the Swell Maps, through to groundbreaking releases by The Fall, The Smiths and Scritti Pollitti, on through the collapse of the independent collective and the rebirth of Rough Trade at the turn of the century, this is the definitive, essential account for any serious music fan."



A New day Yesterday - UK Progressive Rock & the 1970s
by Mike Barnes - Omnibus Press (2020)

"This 600-page account of the birth and heyday of progressive rock is based on over 100 original interviews with musicians, journalists, record industry insiders and the testimonies of fans and is the product of five years' work."

The Singer-Songwriter in Europe - Paradigms, Politics and Place
by Isabelle Marc and Stuart Green - Routledge (2019)

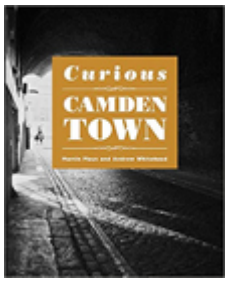
La contribution de Richard Elliott à cet ouvrage collectif est intitulée : 'Words take the place of meaning': sound, sense and politics in the music of Robert Wyatt.

L'inconscience
de Thierry Hesse - Éditions de L'Olivier (2012)

Apparition inattendue de Robert Wyatt dans ce roman qui met longuement en scène la tragique soirée au cours de laquelle il chûtera du 4ème étage d'un immeuble londonien.

More information

Auge & Ohr - Ear & Eye (Encounters with World Music)
by Christoph Wagner - Edition Neue Zeitschriftfür Music (2004)



Mit ein Text von Robert Wyatt.

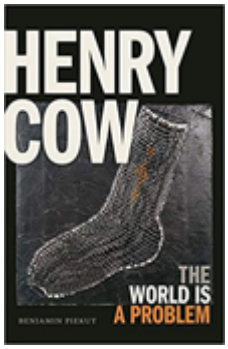
More information

Le bleu Le bleu
de Dashiel Hedayat - Christian Bourgois (1971)

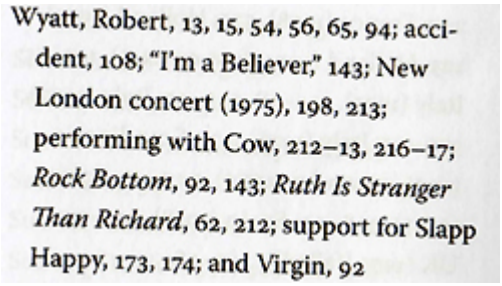
More information

Curious Camden Town
by Martin Plaut & Andrew Whitehead - Five Leaves Publications (2015)

Une évocation du quartier de Camden à Londres comprenant un saisissant reportage sur la soirée inaugurale de la Roundhouse le 15 octobre 1966 en soutien à la revue International Times. Au programme: Pink Floyd et Soft Machine...



The renaissance of the Roundhouse started in 1964 when the playwright Arnold Wesker launched Centre 42 there, winning trade union support for the creation of an arts and cultural centre. But the moment that Camden became hip was two years later, on 15th October 1966 – when Pink Floyd and Soft Machine, neither then signed up to a record label, played at the all-night launch party of International Times (IT), one of the more cerebral of the ventures of the sixties alternative press. It was the first big gig ever held at the Roundhouse. The building wasn't remotely fit for purpose, as Barry Miles, a founder of IT, recalled in his history of the city's counter-culture, London Calling: there was no proper floor, and great jagged pieces of metal stuck up through a layer of grime. There were only two toilets, and the electricity supply was about the same as that of a small house, powerful enough only to light the building. There were several large doors opening out on to the railway freight yards, but the entrance staircase from Chalk Farm Road was so narrow that only one person at a time could enter or leave. On that night, 2,000 youngsters made their way up and down that far-from-adequate stairwell. But the venue delivered. "It was great," recalls top record producer Joe Boyd. "Very raw, dirt on the floor, unheated - but strangely spectacular."...



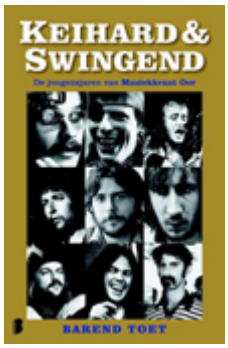
New Sounds : The Virgin guide to new music
by John Schaefer - Virgin Books (1990)

Robert Wyatt est évoqué à plusieurs reprises au sujet de l'album Music for airports de Brian Eno.

Henry Cow - The World is a problem
by Benjamin Piekut - Duke University Press (2019)

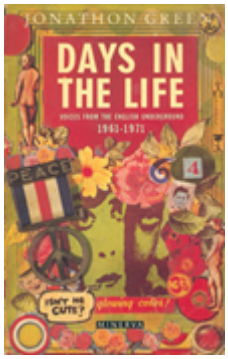
Wyatt, Robert, 13, 15, 54, 56, 65, 94; accident, 108; "I'm a Believer," 143; New London concert (1975), 198, 213; performing with Cow, 212–13, 216–17; Rock Bottom, 92, 143; Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard, 62, 212; support for Slapp Happy, 173, 174; and Virgin, 92

Epiphanies - Life changing encounters with music
Edition Tony Herrington - Wire (2015)



Recueil de 52 Epiphanies publiées par la revue Wire et signées par des personnalités aussi célèbres qu'inattendus : de Genesis Breyer P-orridge "on the psychedelic designs of Hapshash And The Coloured Coat" à Jerry Dammers "on his appreciation of Sun Ra and his cosmic music", en passant par Philip Brophy "on the problem with John Cage", chaque auteur s'attache à décrire cette prise de conscience soudaine et lumineuse qui constitue le coeur de l'épiphanie littéraire.

Robert Wyatt se livre à une épiphanie enthousiaste de l'album "The Genius Of Ray Charles" paru en 1959 chez Atlantic, non sans s'interroger lorsqu'il découvrit le titre du disque sur le sens des mots :" I tought : Genius? How could he be a genius if he's only a popular singer? Clearly a misuse of the word. I was like that." Nul doute, vous l'avez deviné, qu'il allait très vite changer d'avis...



Kevin Ayers: ¿Por qué estamos durmiendo?
de Alberto Manzano Lizandra - Editions Milenio (2015)

Une biographie détaillée de Kevin Ayers avec de nombreux interviews, des dessins, des textes inédits ainsi que des chapitres consacrés à ses principaux compagnons musicaux : Robert Wyatt, Daevid Allen, Ollie Halsall et Nico.

Keihard & Swingend - De jongrensjaren van Muziekkrent Oor de Barend Toet - Ed. Boekeru (2011)
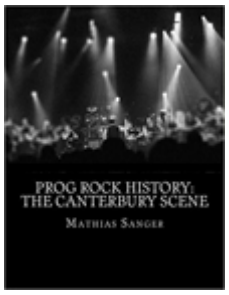
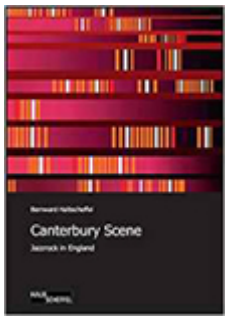
(en néerlandais)

Barend Toe, fondateur en 1971 de la revue musicale hollandaise Oor (dont plusieurs articles sont référencés sur ce site), raconte son aventure éditoriale en évoquant plusieurs artistes dont Robert Wyatt qui ont marqué l'histoire du magazine,.

Days in the life - Voices from the English Underground 1961-1971
By Jonathon Green - Heinemann - Minerva (1988)



More information



I 101 racconti di Canterbury. Viaggio nella storia di una (non) scena de Valerio D'Onofrio, Valeria Ferro - CRAC Edizioni (2017) (en italien)

L'école de Canterbury en 302 pages: "Le son de Canterbury est basé sur une combinaison singulière de psychédélisme, de jazz et de progressif, soutenu par des textes souvent empreints d'ironie et de mondes surréalistes.".

Et aussi sur L'école de Canterbury : une compilation qui rassemble de très nombreux textes publiés sur ce sujet dans Wikipédia :

Prog Rock History:
The Canterbury Scene
de Mathias Sanger (2015)

Canterbury Scene. Jazzrock in England de Bernward Halbscheffel - Halbscheffel Verlag (2014) (en allemand)

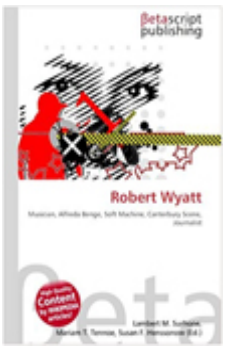
Re-Make/Re-Model: Art, Pop, Fashion and the Making of Roxy Music - 1953-1972
by Michael Bracewell - Faber & Faber (2007)

Le rock progressif anglais (1967-1977)
de Christophe Pirenne - Editions Champion - Collection Musique-Musicologie (2005)

More information



Amougies
by Jean-Noël Coghe - Les Presses du Midi (2019)
Inclus 2 CD avec un court extrait de Soft Machine.

L'organisation du festival d'Amougies du 24 au 28 octobre 1969, racontée par un très proche collaborateur de Jean Karakos pour cet évènement qui a failli ne jamais avoir lieu.
D'une écriture encore passionnée, J.N. Coghe fait preuve d'un goût musical très affirmé :

" Soft Machine trois + quatre pour la circonstance. Le Soft s'est adjoint quatre cuivres. L'expérience musicale la plus avancée. Ils nous servent, entre autres, vingt-neuf minutes d'une réelle intensité émotionnelle. Peut-être les plus grands."

Soft Machine - De (Kevin) Ayers à (Robert) Wyatt de Jérôme Pintoux - Camion Blanc (2020)

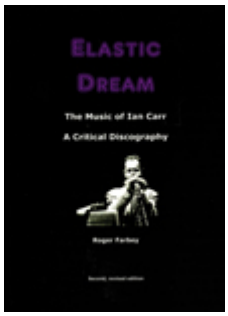
Robert Wyatt
Betascript Publishing (2010)

Compilation d'articles parus sur Robert Wyatt dans Wikipédia.

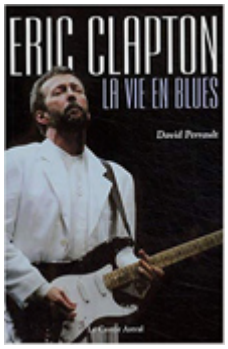
Soft Machine
Betascript Publishing (2010)

Compilation d'articles parus sur Soft Machine dans Wikipédia.



Volume Two (Soft Machine album)
Betascript Publishing (2010)

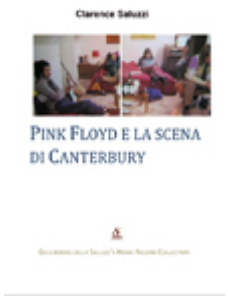
Compilation d'articles parus sur le volume Two de Soft Machine dans Wikipédia.



Mike Ratledge
Cell Publishing (2011)

Compilation d'articles parus sur Mike Ratledge dans Wikipédia.

Elastic Dream - The Music of Ian Carr - A Critical Discography
By Roger Farbey - Roger Farbey Edition (2010)



Eric Clapton - la vie en blues
David Perrault - Le Castor Astral (2003)

David Perrault évoque Soft Machine à deux reprises dans cet ouvrage consacré à Eric Clapton.

I Racconti di Canterbury - Gnomi e banane musicali tra '60 e '70 di Luigi Bontempi - Nautilus (1990)

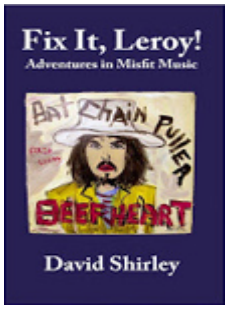
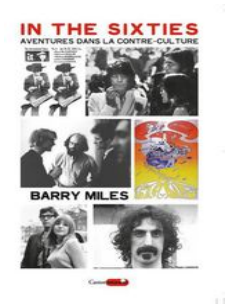
Livret de 50 pages édité par Nautilus Autoproduzioni, collectif lié au mouvement des occupations à Turin. Gnomes et bananes musicales entre '60 et '70 de Luigi Bontempi est "une véritable plongée dans cet esprit irrationnel, dada, romantique et courageux qui au moins au début unissait Soft Machine, Gong, Kevin Ayers et Caravan" (Donato Zoppo).



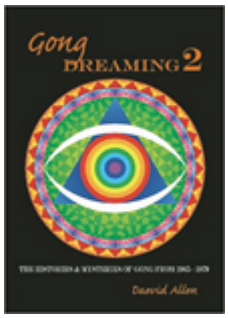
Pink Floyd e la scena di Canterbury
Clarence Saluzzi - Gli e-books della Saluzzi's Home Record Collection (2012)



Questo ebook raccoglie una serie di post pubblicati sul site saluzzishrc.com durante l'anno 2012.

Brian Eno - Zaobilazne Strategije - razgovori 1973-1984
Beograd -: Radionica SIC (1986)

Fix It, Leroy! Adventures in Misfit Music
de David Shirley - Create Space Independent Publishing Platform (2017)



In the Sixities - Aventures dans la contre-culture de Barry Miles - Le castor astral (2016)

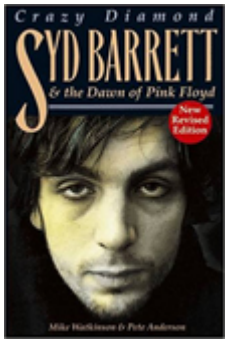
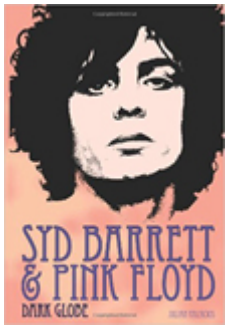
Gong Dreaming 1: From Soft Machine to the Birth of Gong
de Daevid Allen - SAF Publishing (2006)

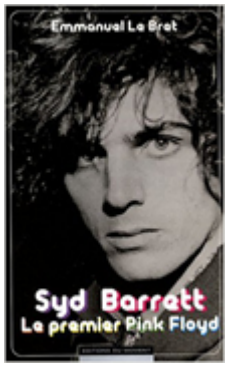


Gong Dreaming 2: The Histories & Mysteries of Gong from 1969-1975
de Daevid Allen - SAF Publishing (2009)

One Train Later: A memoir
de Andy Summers - Piatkus Books (2007)



Syd Barrett - The Making Of Madcap Laughs
de Malcom Jones - PDF sur internet (1982 et 2003)

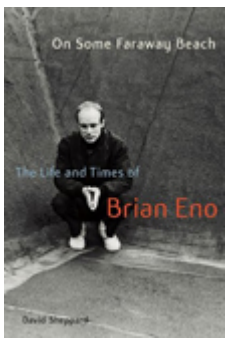


Syd Barrett - Crazy Diamond: The Dawn Of Pink Floyd
de Mike Watkinson et? Pete Anderson - Omnibus Press (1991)

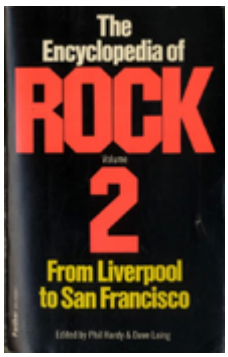
Une traduction française est parue en 2005 aux Editions Camion Blanc.

Syd Barrett & Pink Floyd - Dark Globe
de Julian Palacios - Editions Plexus (2010)

Une traduction française est parue en 2012 aux Editions Camion Blanc.



Syd Barrett - Le Premier Pink Floyd
de Emmanuel Le Bret - Editions du moment (2008)



Before and After Eno - Una biografia di Brian Eno de Marco Calloni - Meridiano Zero (2016)

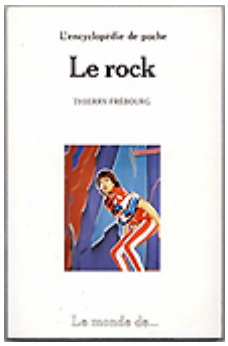
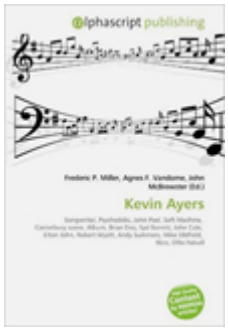
Avec de rès nombreux commentaires et iconographie sur Robert Wyatt + un interview exclusif.

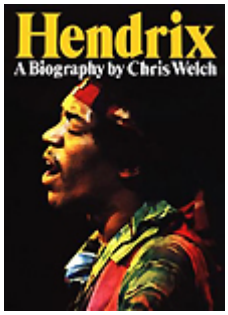


On Some Faraway Beach: The Life and Times of Brian Eno
de David Sheppard - Orion Books (2008)

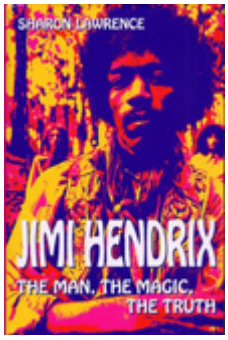


The Encyclopedia of Rock vol. 2: From Liverpool to San Francisco
de Phil Hardy & David Laing - Panther Books (1976)

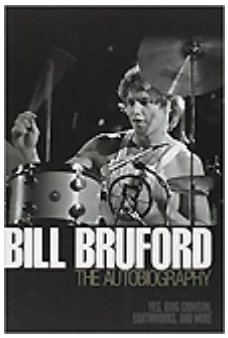
The Encyclopedia of Rock vol. 3: The Sounds of the Seventies
de Phil Hardy & David Laing - Panther Books (1976)



Le rock
de Thierry Frébourg - Le Monde de... Editions (1987)

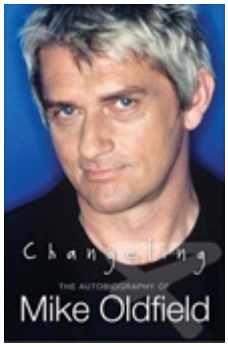


Kevin Ayers
de Frederic P. Miller , Agnes F. Vandome et John McBrewster - Alphascript Publishing (2010)

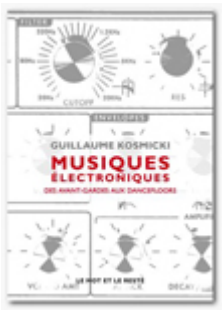


Compilation d'articles de Wikipédia dont certains sur Soft Machine et Robert Wyatt.

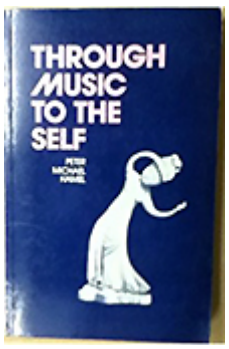
Hendrix - A Biography
de Chris Welch - Flash Books (1973)



Jimi Hendrix: The Man, the Magic, the Truth
de Sharon Lawrence - Pan Books (2006)



Bill Bruford - The Autobiography
de Bill Bruford - Jawbone Press (2009)



Une traduction française d'Aymeric Leroy est parue en 2012 aux Editions Le Mot & Le Reste.

Changeling: The Autobiography of Mike Oldfield
de Mike Oldfield - Virgin Books (2007)

Musique Electroniques, des avant-gardes aux dance floors de Guillaume Kosmicki - Editions Le Mot et le Reste (2009)

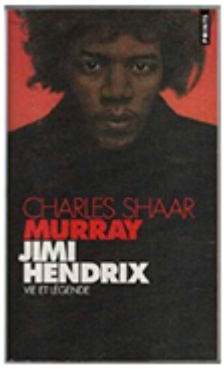
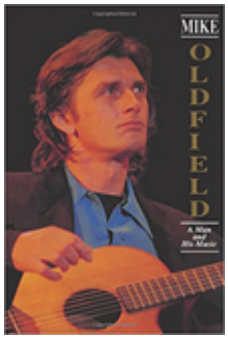
Through Music to The Self
de Peter Michael Hamel - Elemet Books (Compton Press) - (1978)

Traduction du livre allemand publié à l'origine chez Scherz Verlag en 1976.

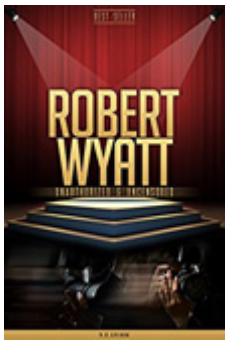




Voir aussi

Crosstown Traffic, Jimi Hendrix and Post-War PoP
de Charles Shaar Murray, Editions Faber & Faber (1989)

Ttraduction en 1993 sous le titre "Jimi Hendrix, Vie et Légende" (Seuil).



Mike Oldfield - A Man and His Music
de Sean Moraghan - Britannia Press Publishing (1993)

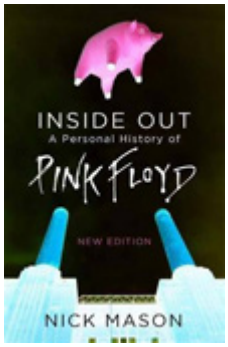
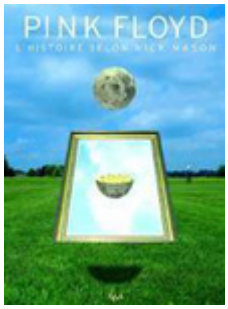
Le Livre du Pink Floyd de Alain Dister, Jaques Leblanc & Udo Woehrle - Editions Albin Michel / Rock&Folk (1978)



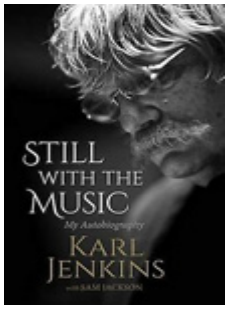
Robert Wyatt Unauthorized & Uncensored
de R.B. Grimm - Kindle Edition - (2015)



Compilation d'articles au format ebook. 27 pages.

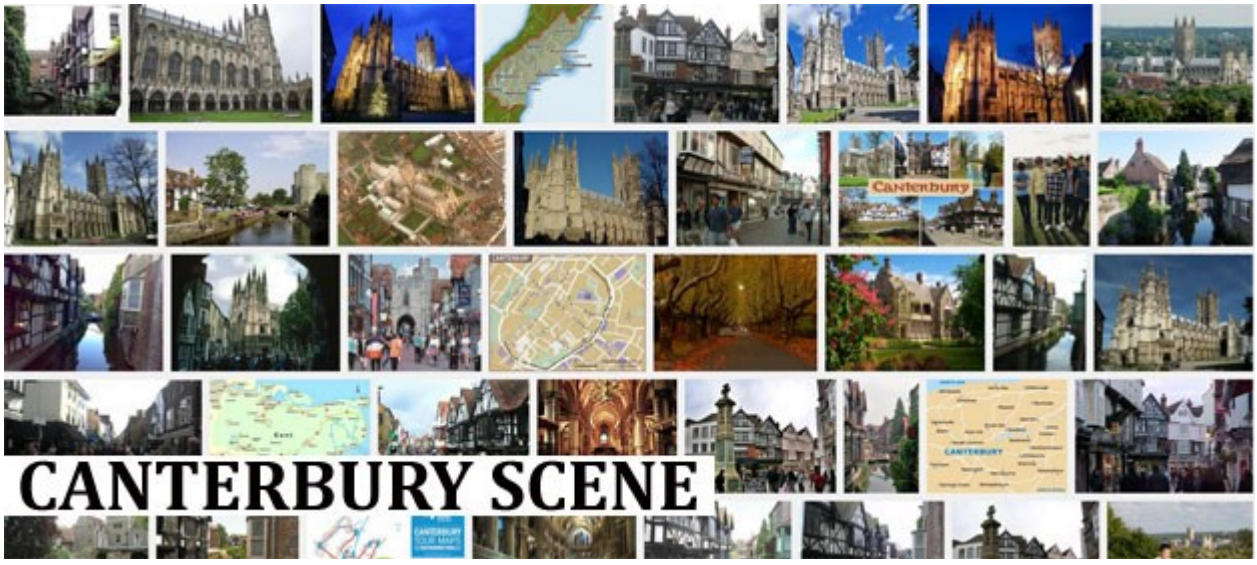
Pink Floyd - A Visual Documentary
by Miles Mabbett and Andy Mabbett - Omnibus Press (1980)

Inside Out : A Personal History of Pink Floyd
by Nick Mason - Weidenfeld & Nicolson (2004)



Pink Floyd - L'Histoire selon Nick Mason
de Nick Mason - Editions E.P.A (2005)

Traduction du livre "Inside Out".



Swingin' Canterbury: viaggio nella provincia del rock progressivo britannico: 1967-1981
de Michele Coralli - Editions Tuttle (2007)

Still with the Music de Karl Jenkins with Sam Jackson - Editions Elliott & Thompson (2015)

Canterbury Scene

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Ecole de Canterbury or not ? Question cruciale à laquelle je me garderai bien de répondre à la légère...

Les arguments sont depuis longtemps connus. On débat dans des forums spécialisés, on échange entre spécialistes, l'Université s'en mêle, c'est un sujet qui fait réfléchir...

Sur Calyx, les avis sont partagés : Richard Sinclair, Didier Malherbe y vont de leur explication, Hugh Hopper est plus réservé et Robert Wyatt plutôt sarcastique...

HH

"People say, what is the Canterbury scene? I think you have to come to Canterbury and see it and hear it ! I think Kent has got a particular sound. We've sung it in our schools here, we were all at school in this sort of area. I was part of the Church of England choir : up to the age of sixteen I was singing tonalities that are very English. Over the last three or four hundred years, and even earlier than that, some of the tonalities go back. So they are here, and they are a mixture of European things too. The history is very much that. A very historical centre of activity is Canterbury for the last hundred years. So it's quite an important stepping stone of whatever this thousand years have covered. I think it's not to be mocked because it's a centre of communication here and it's a meeting point - many nations come here to visit the cathedral, so you get a very unique situation happening".

"A lot goes on here, it's quite cosmopolitan, Canterbury, to a degree... But that's because of the tourists, not from the people who actually live here : they are very conservative, not cosmopolitan at all, not particularly worldly, I don't think. The music happens outside, gets written here and taken out. This is the Canterbury scene for me. It doesn't really exist here, but it forms here. Musicians, friends join together and play music together, and then they head off around Europe and play their music and get noted for this type of sound"...

RW

"I couldn't tell you much about that... I don't remember any particular movement happening there. I was at school there, I got married there and I lived there for a while. The school I went to had nothing special, there wasn't any particular interest for art, and I grew bored because I wasn't really good at school... If there ever was a Canterbury scene, it was when the Wilde Flowers became Caravan : they were Canterbury people...".

"I didn't even know it meant me until interviewers started asking me about it. As I say, because I'd bussed in from outside to go to school there I didn't really consider myself a Canterbury person. I think it really means people like Hugh Hopper and Richard Sinclair, who are genuinely based in that area. I met them there and I'm eternally grateful that I met someone like Hugh who provided something I don't think anyone else could have provided. My mind doesn't dwell on it as a place though, if I recall a former fantasy world upon which I draw, it's Harlem in the Forties and not Canterbury in the Fifties...".

Sur Whatsrattlin (Yahoo Group) la problématique est clairement posée Does Canterbury exist ? et la polémique va bon train... :

All think the Ramones are not Canterbury, but maybe there was one Ramone who pushed Robert's wheelchair and maybe this is the reason to declare the Ramones as part of the CS, why should it be not ok - you must not accept it, but it's no reason to start a war!

Halte au feu !

En 2002, un émérite universitaire de University of Surrey tente la synthèse avec le concept de Canterbury Sound :

Music, media and urban mythscapes: a study of the 'Canterbury Sound' !

In this article I examine how recent developments in media and technology are both re-shaping conventional notions of the term 'music scene' and giving rise to new perceptions among music fans of the relationship between music and place. My empirical focus throughout the article is the'Canterbury Sound', a term originally coined by music journalists during the late 1960s to describe the music of Canterbury1 jazz-rock group the Wilde Flowers, and groups subsequently formed by individual members of the Wilde Flowers – the most well known examples being Caravan, Hatfield and the North and Soft Machine (see Frame, 1986: 16; Macan, 1997; Stump, 1997; Martin, 1998), and a number of other groups with alleged Canterbury connections. Over the years a range of terms, for example 'Motown', the 'Philadelphia Sound' and, more recently, the'Seattle Sound', have been used as a way of linking musical styles with particular urban spaces. For the most part, however, these terms have described active centres of production for music with a distinctive 'sound'. In contrast, however, in its original context the Canterbury Sound was a rather more loosely applied term, the majority of groups and artists linked with the Canterbury Sound being London-based and sharing little in the way of a characteristic musical style. Since the mid-1990s, however, the term 'Canterbury Sound' has acquired a very different currency as a new generation of fans have constructed a discourse of Canterbury music that attempts to define the latter as a distinctive 'local' sound with character- istics shaped by musicians' direct experience of life in the city of Canterbury. A particularly significant aspect of this re-working of the Canterbury Sound is the spatial relationship of fans both to the city and to each other. Thus, the revived interest in the Canterbury Sound constitutes an essentially virtual scene, debates, discussions and definitions of the Canterbury Sound being focused around fanzines, Internet newsletters and websites via which a globally diffuse fan base communicates. In relation to this virtual scene, Canterbury itself performs an important anchoring role as myths surrounding the city are constructed online and worked into discussions concerning the defining characteristics of the 'Canterbury Sound'..

Et en juillet 2018, Alan Stumpenhuson-Payne de University Of Kent tire enfin le bilan définitif :

Popular Music in Canterbury betwwen 1965-1971 and Theories of Scene

This thesis examines the phenomenon and lasting influence of what has come to be known as the Canterbury Scene. It argues that the Canterbury music sceneis best understood through an investigation of the scale and diversity of live music in the city in the1960s, the nostalgia and interest it still evokes and the sense of popular music heritage which it contains. It adds to the relatively small body of literature about the Scene by examining academic and theoretical writing on the subject and using this andother paradigm examples to cast further light on the relationship between the music and its perceived location.My original contribution to knowledge is a detailed account of the state of musical performance and the performative features in Canterbury between 1965 and 1971, in particular. Through this, an assessment of the importance of the music to the canon of progressive rock may be made, and new insight gained into the extent to which the Canterbury of fifty years ago might be said to have been the locus of a scene or, at least, have given some support to a network of musicians -albeit musicians in bands with little economic co-dependency.The work draws on first-hand accounts of the music making of the time as well as local media accounts, fan magazines and online materials and attention is paid both to the translocal nature of the scene and musicians for whom Canterbury and East Kent remained the geographical focus of the musical practices.

L'Histoire jugera.

0:00 / 4:44

The Canterbury Scene An Interview with Robert Wyatt - BBC South

Et pour ceux qui souhaitent épuiser les mystères de la Jérusalem de notre musique préférée, nous recommandons fortement la lecture de l'ouvrage You Are Here: The biography of a moment de Matthew Watkins. Une exploration kaleidoscopique de ce que Michel Butor a appelé Le Génie du Lieu, Canterbury en expansion, du big-bang au 15 août 2014 - centre du monde et mère nourricière des agencements sonores les plus enivrants que l'humanité a produit depuis son origine - Canterbury, ici, hier, maintenant et forever...

Where are you right now? Have you ever wondered just what it took to get you here? And what do we mean by 'here' and 'now', anyway?
You Are Here is the visionary exploration of everything that led to one moment in one city in one part of the world. Part history, part cosmology, part psychogeography and part autobiography, You Are Here takes a radical perspective on the story of Canterbury, the Earth and the Universe, from the very, very large right down to the sub-microsecond instant. Drawing on mathematics and graphic novels, and full of illustrations, this is a comic and intimate trip through all scales of thought. You'll never think about the simple moment of being here in the same way again.
You Are Here
The biography of a moment
Matthew Watkins
You Are Here
The biography of a moment
an accelerating history of Canterbury from the Big Bang to noon August 15th 2014
Matthew Watkins

Plus d'infos

Let's sing to the instrumentals of Robert Wyatt, Soft Machine, Matching Mole and co..

ABÉCÉDAIRE

SOFT MACHINE - VOL. 1

0:00 / 4:14

A Certain Kind
Lyrics

0:00 / 5:32

Why Are We Sleeping
Lyrics

SOFT MACHINE - VOL. 2

0:00 / 2:32

Dedicated To You But You Weren't Listening
Lyrics

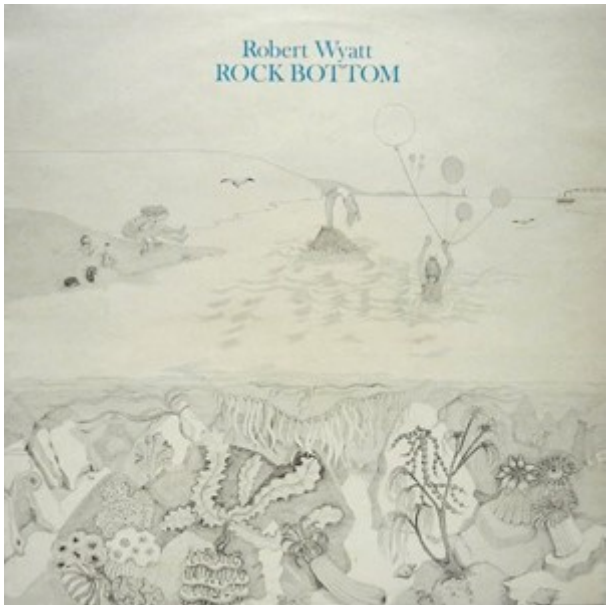
SOFT MACHINE - THIRD

0:00 / 19:09

Moon In June
Lyrics

MATCHING MOLE

0:00 / 5:06

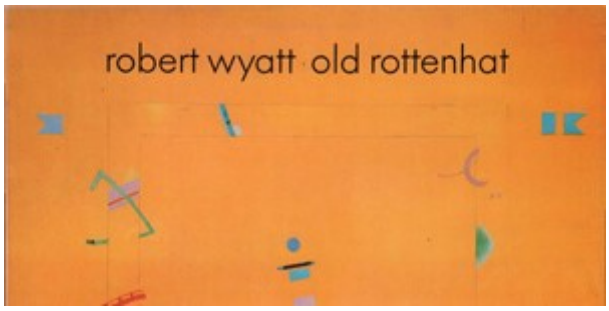


O Caroline
Lyrics

MATCHING MOLE - LITTLE RED RECORD

0:00 / 3:00

God Song
Lyrics



ROBERT WYATT - ROCK BOTTOM

0:00 / 6:31

Sea Song
Lyrics

0:00 / 7:41

Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road
Lyrics

ROBERT WYATT - OLD ROTTENHAT

0:00 / 2:50

The Age Of Self
Lyrics

ROBERT WYATT - SHIPBUILDING

0:00 / 3:05

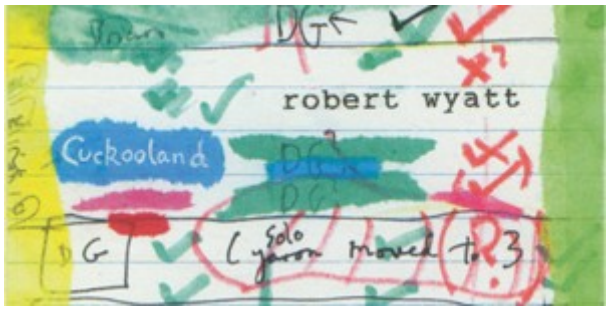
Shipbuilding
Lyrics

ROBERT WYATT - DONDESTAN (REVISITED)

0:00 / 5:02

Catholic Architecture
Lyrics

0:00 / 3:31



Left On Man
Lyrics

ROBERT WYATT - SHLEEP

0:00 / 6:11

Maryan
Lyrics

ROBERT WYATT - CUCKOOLAND

0:00 / 5:01

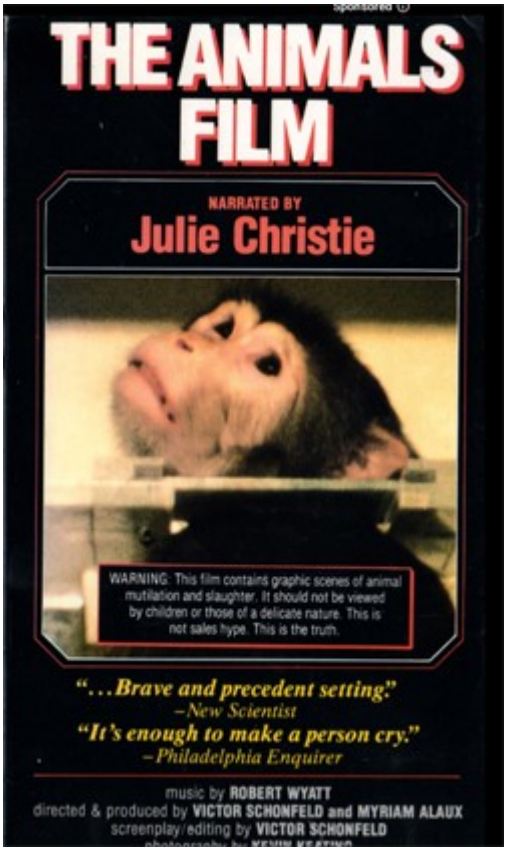
Lullaby For Hamza
Lyrics

ROBERT WYATT - COMICOPERA

0:00 / 2:40

A Beautiful War
Lyrics

Cette année 2025, le film d'animation de Maria Trenor "Rock Bottom" est enfin sorti en salles puis en DVD. Un bon prétexte pour découvrir ou redécouvrir les nombreuses incursions que Robert Wyatt a faites dans le 7ème art tout au long de sa carrière musicale.



Pour m'aider à déambuler dans ce parcours qui n'est surement pas exhaustif, j'ai organisé celui-ci en 5 thèmes qui parfois se croisent et se répondent...

1. Les compositions

Il y a bien sûr les films qui 'empruntent' au répertoire de Robert Wyatt des morceaux qui illustreront à merveille le propos du réalisateur et il y a la musique que Robert Wyatt a spécialement composée à cet effet, telle la bande-son du documentaire THE ANIMALS FILM sorti en 1982.

Robert Wyatt a raconté à de nombreuses reprises dans quelles circonstances il avait été amené à participer à ce documentaire dénonçant la cruauté envers les animaux, réalisé par Victor Schonfeld et Myriam Alaux, Julie Christie en étant la narratrice,

« Victor Schonfeld voulait que le groupe Talking Heads compose la B.O., se rappelle Robert, mais ils lui demandaient 500 livres rien que pour la chanson du générique. Et c'était un sacré budget pour le film. Julie le renseigna : "J'ai un ami qui le ferait pour moins que ça, je pense. Pourquoi ne lui demandes-tu pas ?"

Et j'ai composé le reste de la B.O. pour 100 livres. C'est-à-dire que Talking Heads a reçu 500 livres pour la séquence d'ouverture, et moi 100 pour le reste. Mais j'étais tellement heureux de le faire.»

Abstraite et parfois agressive, la B.O. de Wyatt est proche de la musique industrielle : plus Throbbing Gristle ou Cabaret Voltaire que Violeta Parra. La musique lugubre et brutale colle parfaitement aux images choquantes. Parmi les images les plus horribles du film, on retrouve des becs de poulets guillotinés ou un chien vivant les organes exposés sur une table d'opération.

« C'était une tâche ardue, se souvient Wyatt. C'est difficile de composer de la musique pour une scène insupportable à regarder. »

En lien avec son récent intérêt pour FREGG (Free Range Eggs), une « petite organisation, totalement dingo, pleine de personnes du type Joyce Grenfell », qui menait une campagne pour des œufs de poules élevées en plein air, The Animals Film fait écho à la politique plus générale de Wyatt. Outre la cruauté envers les animaux, Schonfeld et Alaux traitaient de la cupidité des entreprises qui permettait et même encourageait ces abus.

Julie Christie en 1982

Robert déclara au Morning Star que le film ajoute « un peu de muscle politique dans ce qui semblait être des préoccupations libérales insipides du végétarisme ».

À l'époque, il s'agissait d'un programme radical, bien ces idées fassent aujourd'hui partie de l'opinion majoritaire.

Extrait de Robert Wyatt Different every time, la biographie de Marcus O'Dair.

Il existe à ma connaissance au moins trois versions de cette B.O. : la version originale de 28 minutes, la version CD d'une durée de 20 minutes et une version japonaise dont le mixage est légèrement différent.

- Le film - version intégrale) (YouTube)
- La bande-annonce (YouTube)
- Plus d'infos sur l'album

3 excerpts from The Animals Film music remixed by Todd Beasley from different versions.

Pt1 #1

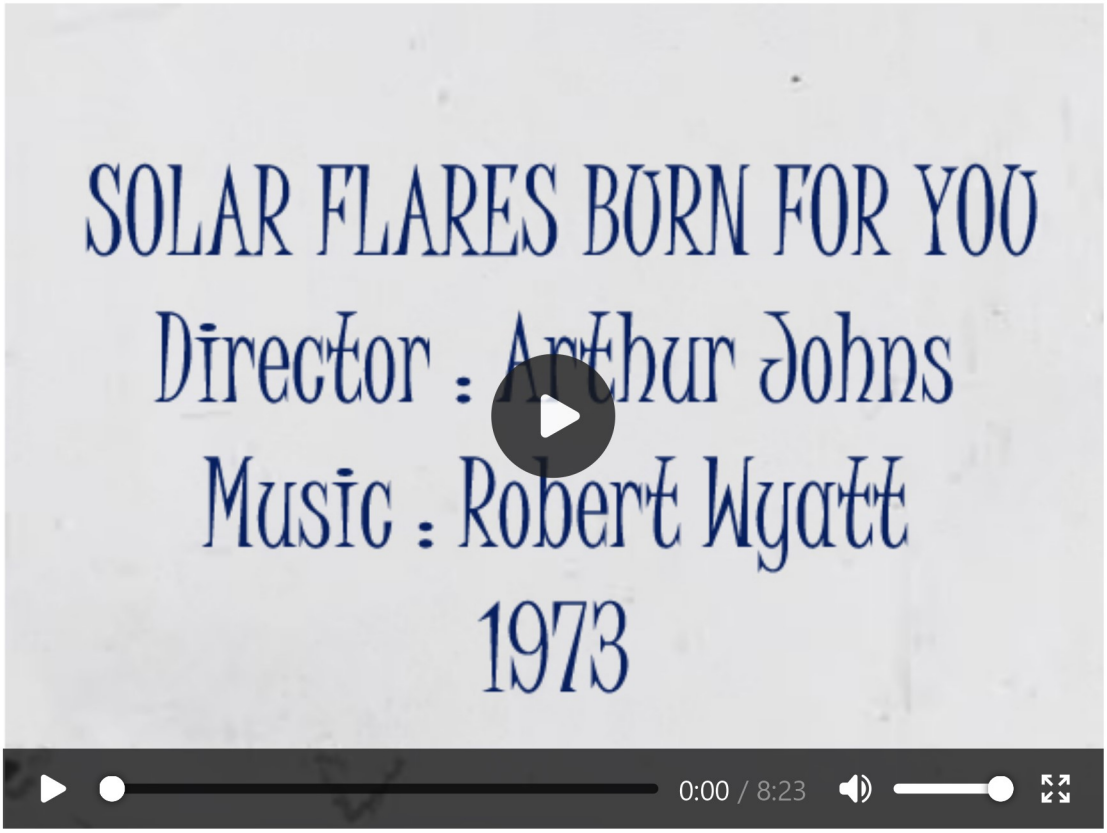
Pt2 #1

Pt1 #2

//

SOLAR FLARES BURN FOR YOU est le titre d'un morceau paru en 2003 chez

Cuneiform Records qui donne également son titre à l'album. C'est également le titre d'un film expérimental 16 mm sorti en 1973 dont la musique est entièrement composée par Robert Wyatt. Et c'est bien le même morceau qui sera édité 30 ans plus tard sur le label américain.



Sorte de road-movie industriel arty, réalisé par Arthur Johns tout juste diplômé du London's Royal College of Art, le film est à l'image de la bande-son (et réciproquement) : kaleidoscope de séquences urbaines et champêtres saturées de couleurs vives et de dissonances électroniques, dérives de personnages muets et mystérieux que la musique de Robert Wyatt magnifie.

Musique dont on retrouvera la trame mélodique dans le Solar Flares de Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard qui paraitra 2 ans plus tard.

Le film totalement méconnu à sa sortie, sera néanmoins projeté en 2001 au Centre Pompidou (Paris) dans le cadre d'un festival de films "psychédéliques". Il échappera à la disparition définitive grâce aux plateformes internet où il sera enfin visible par le plus grand nombre.

Plus d'infos

RW selling The Morning Star in Twickenham with CP delegate Digby Jacks

Le soutien de Robert Wyatt à de nombreux combats politiques et sociaux est connu, en particulier au début des années 80 alors que Margaret Thatcher s'engageait dans une attaque frontale contre les syndicats de mineurs.

On ne sera donc guère étonné de découvrir sa participation à la bande-son du film militant SO THAT YOU CAN LIVE aux côtés de Lindsay Cooper et de Scritti Politti.

Réalisé en 1982 dans le Sud du Pays de Galles par le collectif Cinema Action, SO THAT YOU CAN LIVE aborde la réalité sociale à travers le personnage d'une militante syndicale - Shirley Butts - qui avait mené quelques années plus tôt une grève dure pour l'égalité salariale dans l'usine GEC. Le film aborde les relations entre cette femme et son entourage familial, les délégués syndicaux masculins et plus généralement l'ensemble des interactions entre sa vie personnelle et son engagement.

Considéré comme un film majeur du groupe Cinéma Action, il donne aussi du Pays de Galles une vision bien éloignée des poncifs qui caractérisent parfois ce pays qui était en train de vivre la fin de son aventure industrielle.

- Plus d'infos
- Cinema Action

La participation de Robert Wyatt consiste en de nombreuses courtes séquences inspirées pour la plupart du morceau Born Again Cretin publié à la même époque sur Nothing Can Stop Us.

[On retrouve ces séquences musicales à : 3:28 - 4:24 - 21:38 - 32:59 - 56:28 - 1:01:18 - 1:08:50 - 1:17:15 et 1:20:29]

2. Les musiques de film

Robert Wyatt n'a pas seulement composé des musiques de films, il en a aussi interprétées. Parfois des compositions inédites écrites spécialement pour lui, ou des morceaux puisés dans son vaste répertoire générateur de tant d'émotions.

En 2012, le groupe Sleeping Men enregistre à Berlin la musique du film DAS SCHLAFENDE MÄDCHEN (La fille endormie) du réalisateur Rainer Kirberg. Ils font appel à Robert Wyatt pour qu'il pose sa voix sur Around the Corner, une superbe chanson minimaliste et obsédante.

//////////////////////// ////////////////////////

En 2014, Robert Wyatt interprète deux chansons composées par Adrian Johnston pour COMMON,le téléfilm de Jimmy McGovern que The Guardian qualifie de "brutal and devastating drama".

Cette série télévisée de 90 minutes diffusée sur BBC One s'inspire du cas réel de Jordan Cunliffe, 16 ans, condamné en vertu de la doctrine juridique dite de "l'entreprise commune" (pour aller vite, une notion de co-responsabilité dans un crime auquel on n'a pas directement participé).

Ce sujet de société qui eut un fort retentissement dans la société anglaise, évoque la peine de 12 ans de prison infligée à Jordan Cunliffe, 16 ans, pour le meurtre de Garry Newlove, bien qu'il n'ait pas participé activement à l'attaque.

Robert Wyatt y chante 2 chansons déclinées sous différentes séquences, à retrouver dans la rubrique COMMON de notre Abécédaire.

This is the debt I pay
Just for one riotous day,
Years of regret and grief,
Sorrow without relief

0:00

The Dept - part 1

Pour écouter l'intégralité des séquences musicales de COMMON Cliquez ici

//

"C'est un texte qui a été écrit en anglais par Gabriel Yacoub et chanté par Robert Wyatt, qui pour moi est un mythe. Adolescent, j'avais une admiration, une passion pour la voix de Robert Wyatt. Il avait les textes, il avait la musique et donc il a travaillé chez lui pendant un certain temps, une quinzaine de jours je crois.

Et puis on s'est retrouvés dans un petit studio au fin fond de l'Angleterre, et on a passé deux ou trois jours… j'avoue que quand on a commencé à appuyer sur le bouton d'enregistrement et que sur une de mes musiques j'ai entendu la voix de Wyatt, j'étais déjà dans un état second… j'étais comme au spectacle… c'était très troublant… c'était une chose totalement irréelle et ça l'est toujours !"

Bruno Coulais, compositeur des morceaux chantés par Robert Wyatt dans le film de Jacques Perrin sorti en 2011 :

LE PEUPLE MIGRATEUR

Plus d'infos

Bande-annonce du Peuple migrateur (avec un extrait de Master Of The Fields)

0:00 / 2:26

The Red Forest

0:00 / 3:14

The Highest Gander

0:00

Off Camera

Les films ci-après font appel au répertoire de Robert Wyatt. Cette liste est évidemment incomplète : n'hésitez pas à me contacter pour me signaler un oubli.

Mais Место на земле s'impose pour être le premier cité.

Deuxième et peut-être dernier film à ce jour d'Artur Aristakisyan, Место на земле (Un endroit sur terre) réalisé en 2001 nous plonge au cœur d'une communauté de sans-abris vivant dans un squat à Moscou.

Très dérangeant pour les uns, film culte pour les autres, il décrit la misère et la détresse psychique avec une maîtrise remarquable du son et de la photographie (le film est en N/B).

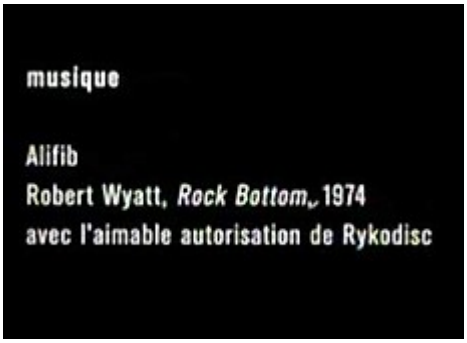
Et quel n'est pas notre étonnement d'entendre, au détour d'une scène d'une forte intensité dramatique, la basse si caractéristique d'Alifib qui résout à sa façon la tension accumulée les minutes précédentes (premier extrait).

Alifib sera rejouée une seconde fois dans la dernière scène jusqu'au générique final (second extrait).

Dans l'extrait ci-dessus, Robert Wyatt intervient (à notre grand soulagement) à 18:28.

Scène finale et générique



ILS ONT BIEN VIEILLI - ce documentaire multi-primé de Sébastien Louis (2004) évoque la vie quotidienne d'une maison de retraite.

"Quelques vieilles personnes sont assises en silence : peau ridée, mains tremblantes, regards perdus dans le vide. Certains se mettent à parler, comme pour eux mêmes. Ils récitent des monologues extraits de pièces de Shakespeare. Ils parlent d'amour, d'effroi face à la mort, de l'inanité de nos destinées...

Ce film poignant débute et se termine par Alifib.

Jérôme Lefdup et Véro Goyo, vidéastes iconoclastes, reçoivent au début des années 80 une commande institutionnelle pour filmer des démonstrations sportives de saut à la perche dans une "cité de banlieue".

Cela donnera SAUT HAUT, monté plaisamment avec des extraits remixés de Rock Bottom et des traitements de l'image réalisés à grands coups de tournevis dans un TBC ("Time Base Corrector" pour les intimes) qui n'en demandait pas tant.

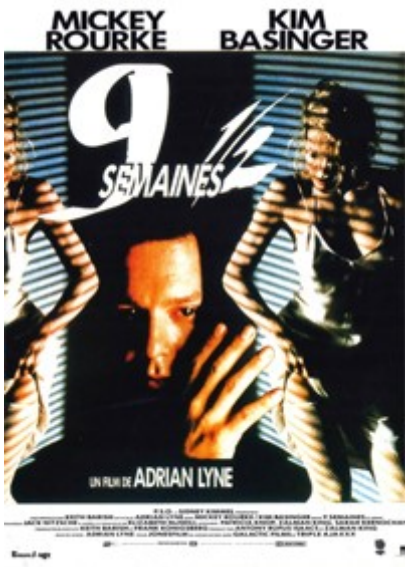
30 ans plus ard, en 2015, Robert Wyatt s'invite à nouveau dans l'œuvre de Jérôme Lefdup (l'Oeil du cyclone et autres fantaisies visuelles) avec deux recherches très formelles sur MARYAN : une version (initialement en VR, ici la version à 180°) et une seconde version réalisée avec Anne-So, plus sage mais toute aussi envoutante...

Maryan - version J. Lefdup

0:00 / 6:23

Maryan - version J. Lefdup + Anne-So

- Plus d'infos sur Jérôme Lefdup
- Télécharger la version VR de Maryan



BEAU FIXE SUR CORMEILLES est en compétition du Festival de Cannes 1989 dans la catégorie Courts-métrages.

Réalisé par Gilles Lacombe, le film bénéficiera de la présence de Carole Laure et d'André Wilms et... de Signed Curtain, pour la musique, tiré du premier album de Matching Mole paru 17 ans auparavant.

Il sera à nouveau diffusé 35 ans plus tard au Festival de Cannes dans le cadre d'un hommage rendu à de précédentes sélections.

9 semaines 1/2 d'Adrian Lyne et Lovely Bones de Peter Jackson sortent tous les deux la même année - 2009 - avec un morceau identique dans leur bande-son : 1/1 co-signés de B. Eno, R. Wyatt et R. Davies extrait de l'album Music For Airports de Brian Eno.

Un journaliste évoquera avec Robert Wyatt en 1991 cet usage inattendu de l' Ambiant Music d'Eno...

"These days Robert lives with his wife Alfie in the Lincoln village of Louth. His spacious 19th century home houses a grand piano, a drum kit, a home recording studio, a definitive jazz record collection, and a lot of books of the politically philosophical kind. In fact, his reading desk is as much a focal point as his beloved piano. Asked about the use of Music For Airports, on which he soloed with Brian Eno, for some of the steamy sex scenes in the film 9 1/2 Weeks, he chuckles. With no new album since Old Rottenhat, the appearance of "We Love You" with Sakamoto points to a low-key Wyatt, industriously working away in the background as others push themselves forward."

Option #39 - July-August 1991

Extrait avec Shipbuilding

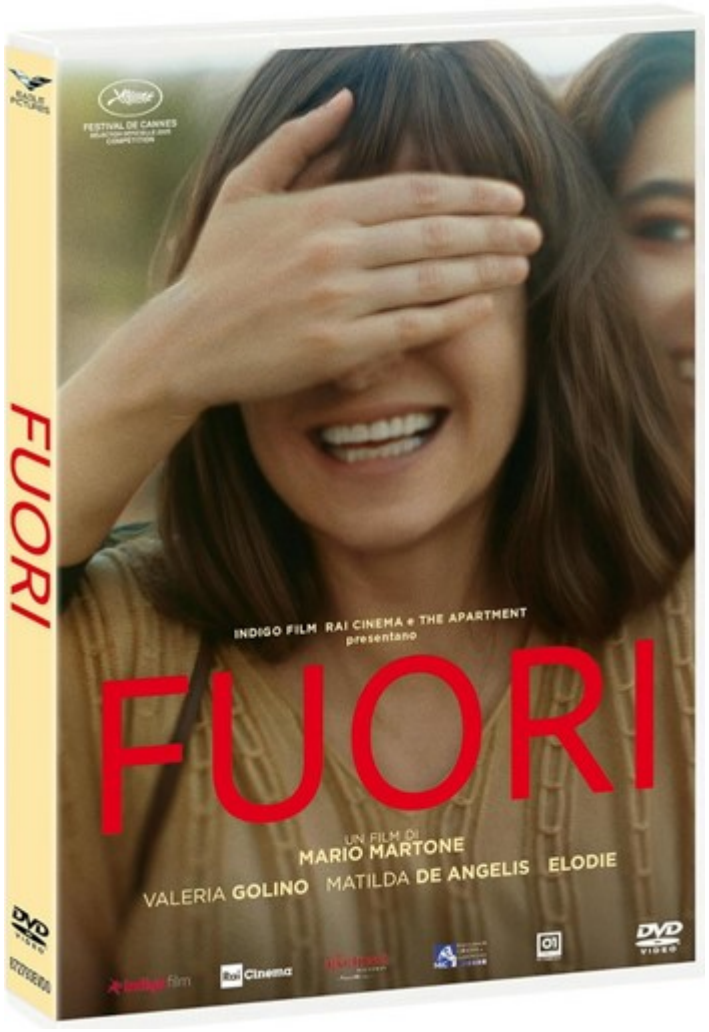
Dans le film THE SOUVENIR - PART ONE (2019) de Joanna Hogg avec l'actrice Tilda Swinton et sa fille (Honor Byrne), une évocation des chantiers navals du nord de l'Angleterre sur fond sonore de Shipbuilding dans la version chantée par Robert Wyatt.



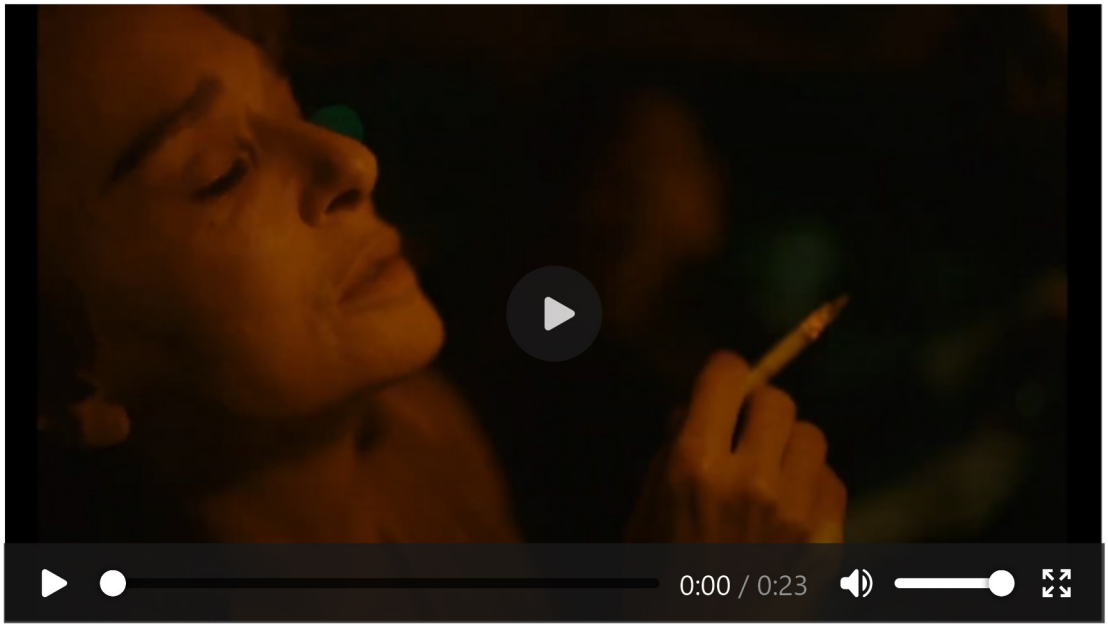
Cinq morceaux de Robert Wyatt dans un seul film, de surcroit sélectionné au Festival de Cannes 2025 et acclamé par la critique ? C'est FUORI du réalisateur Mario Martone qui aura l'occasion de s'expliquer sur l'environnement musical de son film :

You use several tracks by British multi-instrumentalist Robert Wyatt, founder of Soft Machine. Talk to me about this interesting choice.

I never think about the music before shooting, never. I usually almost always use repertoire. And I work on it when I edit. So I started editing and I was looking for a female voice to create a sonorous off-voice, evocative of a Goliarda. But we never come across the right voice. And then, I don't even know how, from what corner of my mind Robert Wyatt came to me. The fragility of his voice, the vitality and at the same time that sense of anxiety, that is in his songs. So I thought: who cares if it's a male voice, it's the voice of a soul. And it was a soul that suddenly I felt was able to have an intense dialogue with the soul of Goliarda Sapienza.

CINEMATOGRAFO

E ritorna prepotente la voce di Robert Wyatt (il pioniere della scena di Canterbury segna in maniera indelebile questo film, con cinque brani – tra i quali il potentissimo Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road (da Rock Bottom, epico album, irripetibile), dilaniato da quelle incredibili sovraincisioni della tromba di Mongezi Feza, durante la scena del furto dei gioielli – utilizzati oltre alle musiche originali di Valerio Vigliar) con*Memories*, nella versione che non a caso incise nel '74, solo qualche tempo dopo il drammatico incidente che lo rese paraplegico, segnando al contempo l'inizio di una nuova fase non solo umana, ma artistica.
Proprio come accadde a Goliarda Sapienza, dopo l'esperienza carceraria.



GAZETTELY

The sparse soundtrack, anchored by Robert Wyatt's plaintive songs, introduces an off-kilter lyricism more akin to European experimental cinema than to traditional Bollywood scores, yet it resonates with Indian parallel films that deploy minimal music for maximum emotional effect.

Costume and makeup subtly align Sapienza with Roberta—shared hairstyles, mirrored dress tones—suggesting a porous boundary between mentor and muse. Bars, open roads and shattered glass recur as visual leitmotifs, underscoring the paradox of creative freedom born in confinement.

Political undercurrents—class tensions, feminist assertion, the shadow of Italy's Red Brigades—surface in overheard radio broadcasts and graffiti fragments, inviting viewers to draw parallels with cross-cultural struggles for voice. Through these elements, Fuori transforms a brief jail term into a universal fable of resilience and rebirth.

Extrait avec Blues in Bob Minor

Les 5 morceaux de RW joués dans Fuori : Memories, Blues in Bob Minor, Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road, The British Road et Round Midnight.

3. L'acteur

Découvrir Robert Wyatt et Daevid Allen dans cette "romance" espagnole de 1964 est plus qu'intriguant : mais qu'allaient-ils donc faire dans cette galère ? de la figuration muette de quelques secondes qui justifie la présence de ce film dans cette page, et peut-être à l'époque un cachet pour quelques repas...

Mais peu importe, PLAYA DE FORMENTOR réalisé par Germán Lorente ressemble à ces dizaines de film des années yé-yé - soleil, piscine et plages à gogo - dont certains ont mieux vieilli que celui-ci. Mais le kitsch l'emporte et c'est avec plaisir que nous distinguons nos deux compères à l'aube de leur carrière.

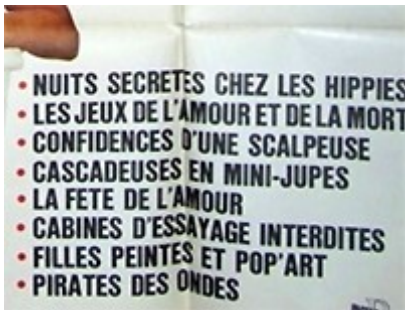
Extrait 1 - A l'entrée du club

Extrait 2 - Clopes au bec

Extrait 3 - Daevid Allen's slow dance

Extrait 4 - Daevid Allen "à la flute"

Interdit aux moins de 16 ans, LES TEENAGERS - JEUNESSE INTERDITE, sorti en 1968 fait aujourd'hui sourire.



Pierre Roustang, son réalisateur n'en est pas à son premier coup d'essai. En 1965 il présente Paris Secret une compilation des "aspects immoraux et du profil trouble de Paris". Il récidivera en 1969 avec Paris Top Secret, "une plongée sans concession dans les bas-fonds de la capitale".

Les TEENAGERS sont de la même eau : une juxtaposition racoleuse de séquences visant à émoustiller le bourgeois sous le prétexte d'un film-enquête qui, de Paris à Londres en passant par la Suède et la Chine "dresse un portrait optimiste d'une certaine jeunesse dans l'air du temps."...

Cinquante et quelques années plus tard, le quotidien d'un groupe underground, les Soft Machine, a le parfum nostalgique de notre propre jeunesse !

0:00 / 4:42

JEUNESSE INTERDITE
"LES TEENAGERS"
EASTMANCOLOR
ULYSSE PRODUCTION
INTERDIT AUX MOINS DE 18 ANS

-- ////////////////// \\\\\\\\\\\\\\\\\\ \--

Apr 23 — Winter Gardens, Bournemouth

In April, Robert Wyatt makes his acting debut (typecast as a jazz-rock drummer) in an episode of BBC TV's 'Take Three Girls'. In May, Robert is voted Player Of The Month by the British magazine Beat Instrumental.

Wrong Movements - A Robert Wyatt History by Michael King (1994)

De fait, la BBC diffuse le 7 avril 1971 l'épisode 3 de la saison 2 de sa série télévisée TAKE THREE GIRLS, intitulée Jenny: Closed Circuit.

Robert Wyatt y joue le rôle d'un... batteur ! Cet épisode a malheureusement disparu des archives de la TV britannique (il est indexé "LOST" dans la base de la BBC).

Reste une interrogation sur la date exacte de l'enregistrement : si la BBC a diffusé l'épisode le 7 avril, il ne peut avoir été enregistré le 23 du même mois. Le mystère reste entier...

-- /////// --------/////// \\\\--------\\\\\\\\--

Je ne peux évoquer la relation de Robert Wyatt avec le cinéma sans mentionner au moins un projet inabouti.
Du reste, il existe bien plus de projets inaboutis que de films réalisés dans la longue histoire du 7ème art, et peut-être ces projets éphèmères sont-ils les plus beaux ?

En 2010, Martine Doyen, cinéaste belge dont Komma a été sélectionné pour la 46ème semaine de la Critique au Festival de Cannes quelques années auparavant, écrit une nouvelle version de son scénario VAGABOND et se met à travailler sérieusement sur le casting...

L'univers musical du film dans son ensemble se précise également, notamment en ce qui concerne le personnage de Louis Pierre (ROBERT WYATT?).

Un ressort dramatique extérieur ajoute aussi plus de tension au récit et intensifie l'aventure de Sacha, autre protagoniste, sans la modifier. Le projet prend de l'épaisseur et la réalisatrice contacte Robert Wyatt pour lui proposer le rôle.

Celui-ci déclinera gentiment la proposition, et Martine Doyen cherchera, sans succès, à remplacer Robert Wyatt, avant de renoncer définitivement, faute de financement.

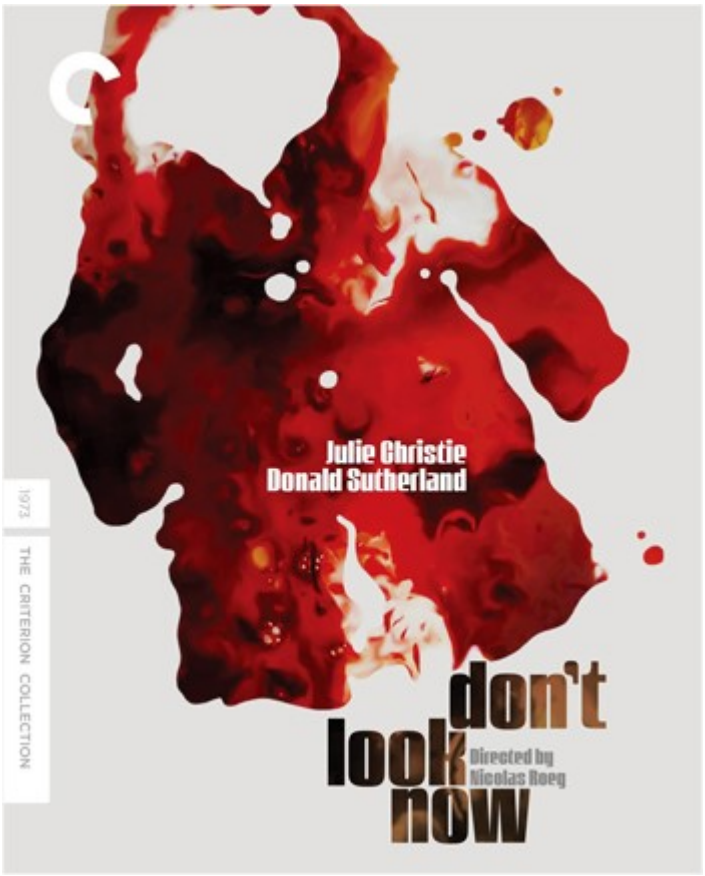
4. Don't Look Now

Two Intertwined Semi-Venetian Masterpieces

By Glenn Kenny — Jun 7, 2015 [criterion.com]

Late in Nicolas Roeg's Don't Look Now (1973), John Baxter (Donald Sutherland) is walking with the blind psychic Heather (Hilary Mason), who, along with her sister Wendy (Clelia Matania), has been a bit of a thorn in John's side. He has inadvertently gotten Heather into a spot, and after apologetically getting her out of it, he's obliged to make small talk with her as they navigate the alleyways and footbridges of Venice. "My sister hates it," Heather says of the place. "She says it's like a city in aspic . . . left over from a dinner party, and all the guests are dead and gone. It frightens her. Too many shadows."

Venice asserts itself as "a sinister presence" in Roeg's film, Robert Wyatt aptly notes in the liner notes to a 1998 reissue of his 1974 album Rock Bottom. Wyatt cites Don't Look Now in his notes because the making of the film, particularly its six-week Venice shoot, is intimately intertwined with the genesis of his classic album—ranked alongside Bob Dylan's Blood on the Tracks by NME in the year of its release, when it was also awarded an international Grand Prix du Disque in France, and, according to biographer Marcus O'Dair, "still widely considered one of the finest albums ever made."



Late in 1972, Wyatt's then girlfriend and future wife, the artist Alfreda Benge, was hired as second assistant editor for the just-beginning Roeg production. Benge had met Roeg while he was shooting the concert doc Glastonbury Fayre, and was close friends with the film's female lead,Julie Christie. The picture began filming around Christmas in England, and in January of 1973 moved to Venice for location shooting.

Although, according to O'Dair, the workaholic Wyatt was puzzled by the idea of "going on holiday," the musician, who had recently dissolved his band, joined Benge, Christie, and a couple of other crew members at a house on the Venetian island of Giudecca. Working on an inexpensive electronic keyboard Benge had purchased in a Venice music store ("She's like that; an astute and thoughtful scout," the musician notes), Wyatt soaked in the atmosphere and began writing. "What I do remember is how seeing Venice out of season was like coming across a famous beauty when she's out shopping, without makeup, in scruffily humble clothes, not dressed to be looked at," Wyatt recollected in an e-mail to me. "I felt we were in the real place, populated by the locals. A modest, rather run-down village, but all the more likeable for that. But it would be easy to imagine it as sinister: the narrower canals so dark and damp, the thick moss—or is that some kind of seaweed?—above the waterline, crabs scrambling along the edges. And the sheer age of the place. A large, ancient door set in a canal wall could be, I was told, a thousand years old. Is that possible? Whether or not it is, there was a weird feeling of being in a live museum, a place in which it would be easy to evoke ghosts."

The keyboard on which Wyatt wrote had a "particular vibrato," which contributes significantly, it would seem, to the aquatic feel of Rock Bottom's music. "Fortuitous is the word," Wyatt says. "Alfie found that keyboard, and I found the sound in my head at last. Aquatic? It must be so, though I am a fairly abstract tunesmith. I have to let my instincts take me where they want to go; I try not to interfere with conscious plans or calculations. What I do is not 'program' music. But yes, my instincts seem to have been guided by where we were. I'd say, thinking about it now, that the ungrounded ambiguity of Venice—'Are we at sea or on land?'—could well have influenced the soundscape in my head." Hence, the opening track of Rock Bottom, Sea Song".

As Wyatt teased out his soundscape, Benge attended to her duties. "Film editing was very physical in that time. Splicing the film and sticking it together, then looking at different ways sequences would work," she recalled, also via e-mail. "My job was just to log all the film as it came in . . . so any shot needed could be given to Graeme [Clifford], the editor, as he needed it. It was just creating some order and keeping order. Graeme would be on the editing machine. Tony Lawson was the first assistant. Nic would come in to check how it was going. They'd often watch sequences to existing music that was later replaced by Pino Donaggio's score. I have a strong memory of the funeral scene with Fauré's Pavane, which worked beautifully."

Despite the intensity of the film's subject matter, the work on it didn't impinge much on life in the house. "That's partly because of what happens to Julie during a film, and maybe to all actors . . . I don't know," says Benge. "But the film seems to become part of a private relationship between her and the director. It's a time of real concentration on her part, and just as with Robert when he's recording, one has to be very careful not to interfere with the creative process, because anything you mention could really disconcert their confidence in what they are trying to do."

As it happened, prior to the Venice jaunt, Benge and Christie had been invited by Wyatt into his process: they'd participated in the recording of his group Matching Mole's Little Red Record back in 1972. Billed as "Ruby Crystal and the Little Honest Injun," the pals improvised a spoken-word sketch that embellishes the song "Nan True's Hole" (named for a hangout belonging to BBC DJ John Peel).

The project begun in Venice would not yield similar opportunities for genial private jokes. Wyatt, who'd been mightily upset by the breakup of Matching Mole despite having instigated it, was keen to find a new way of making music. He didn't overtly share his evolving work with his housemates. "One heard him tootling on the keyboard," recalls Benge, "but a lot of what he was composing went on in his head. Only he could hear it."

Wyatt is quick to insist, though, that "being there with Alfie was my biggest influence." Excited by what he was coming up with, Wyatt returned to England a short time before the location shooting ended to work on lyrics, while Benge stayed on.

When Benge returned to London, she found herself obliged to leave the Don't Look Now team because she couldn't afford to commute to Shepperton, where the editing was being continued ("Both of us were stoney broke," she says). Wyatt, close to having finished writing a batch of songs, considered re-forming Matching Mole to record the material. Then,on the first of June, 1973, disaster struck: he fell from an apartment window at a party, and the subsequent injury left the former drummer paralyzed from the waist down. After a long period of recovery and rehabilitation, he had to reinvent himself as a working musician. Hence, Rock Bottom, recorded from February to May of 1974, a self-described collection of "drones and songs" that many listeners assumed was directly addressing his accident. In O'Dair's biography, Wyatt insists this isn't the case: "I find the tradition of singer-songwriters working their way through their mental neuroses in public a bit limited."

Nevertheless, musician Fred Frith, who played on the album, said to O'Dair, "Even though Rock Bottom's lyrics predate the accident, there's a sense that this record is a whole new beginning, and I'm sure that the combination of survival and starting afresh has a lot to do with it." In the 1998 liner notes, Wyatt ties everything together thusly: "Alfie always remembers Nic Roeg, the director, reiterating the theme of the film: WE ARE NOT PREPARED." Wyatt does not remember when he first was finally able to see Don't Look Now in its finished form,but he admires it a great deal. When asked about the recently announced prospect of a remake of the film, Benge responded, "Pointless." Wyatt requested that the details of his equally unenthusiastic response go unpublished.

Bande-annonce de Don't Look Now - 1973

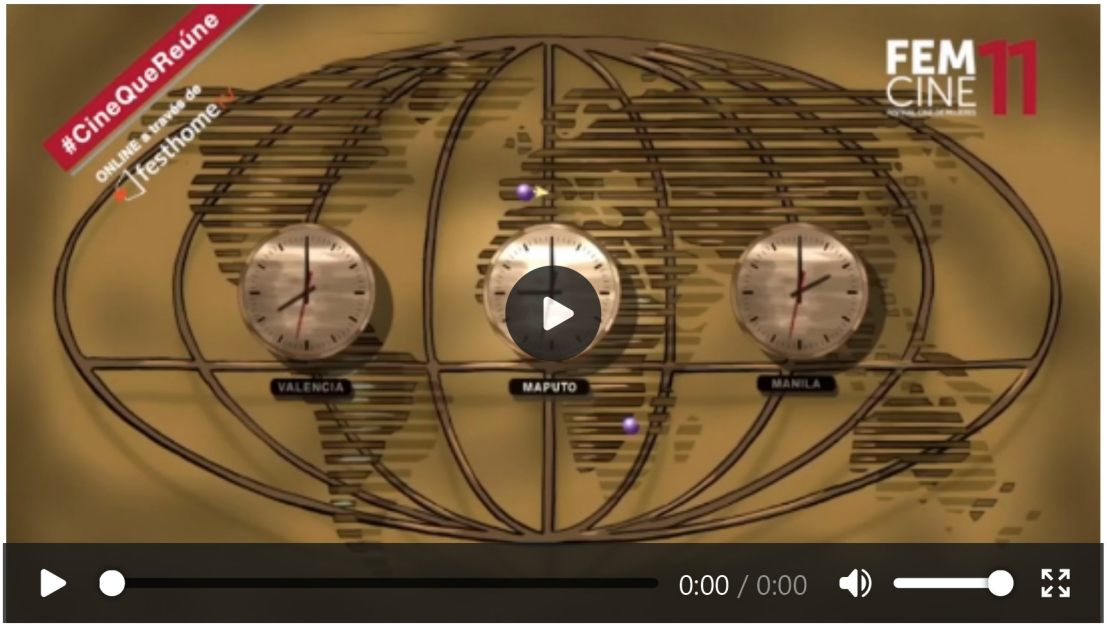
5. Le film d'animation

ROCK BOTTOM, le film d'animation de la réalisatrice espagnole Maria Trenor est enfin sorti en salles à l'été 2025 après quelques années de curiosité impatiente pour bien des fans de Robert Wyatt.

Il faut dire que s'attaquer à l'œuvre maîtresse et tenter d'en cerner sa genèse ainsi que la relation nouée dans la même période entre Robert (Wyatt) et Alfie (Benge) semblait a priori un pari impossible à tenir. L'annoncer sous la forme d'un film d'animation rendait le projet encore plus intriguant.

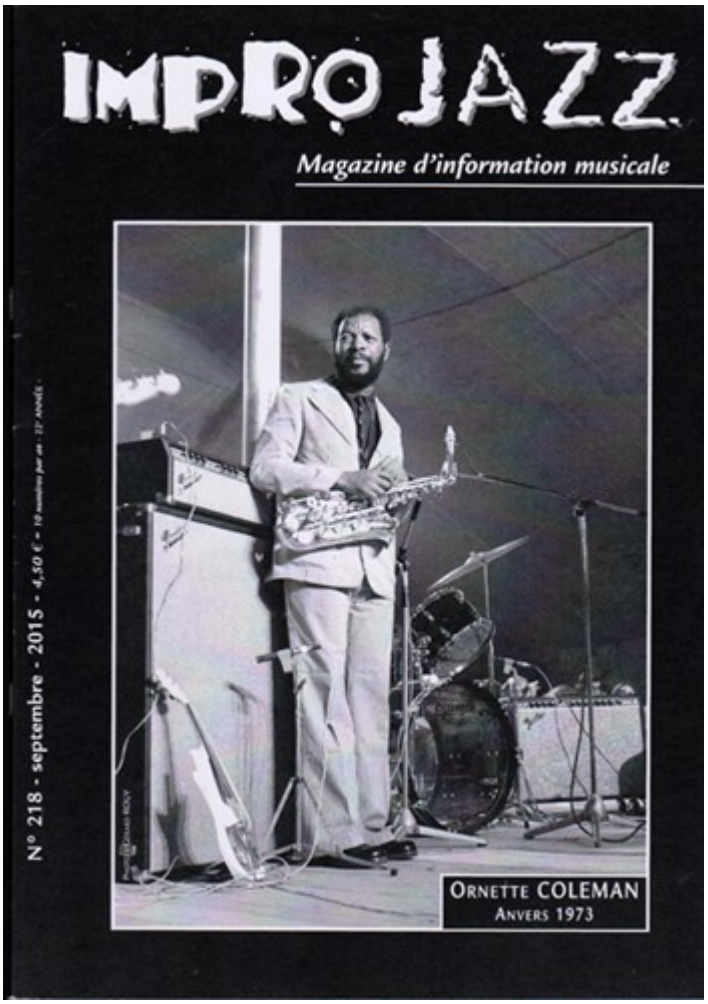
Une page entière est consacrée, sur le présent site, à ce "biopic qui n'en est pas un". Il compile de nombreux articles et critiques que le film a suscités ainsi que mes propres réactions.

La page Rock Bottom, le film



Le dossier de presse

Maria Trenor a souvent eu l'occasion d'expliquer sa démarche et de détailler les techniques utilisées pour ce film aussi troublant qu'inattendu.



Interview de Maria Trenor au Festival d'Annecy (2024)

¿DÓNDE ESTABAS TÚ? DE MARÍA TRÉNOR 19', ESPAÑA, 2019

Ornette Coleman 1930-2015 by Robert Wyatt - The Wire - June 2015
Ornette Coleman par Robert Wyatt - ImproJazz - N° 218 - septembre 2015

> Zoom

Ornette Coleman par Robert Wyatt

Lorsqu'on interroge Robert Wyatt sur ses influences ou tout le moins ses admirations musicales, quelques noms reviennent systématiquement : Charles Mingus, Charlie Haden, Miles Davis, Elvin Jones, Thelonious Monk, Cecil Taylor (liste non exhaustive) et Ornette Coleman, of course, le créateur avec son double-quartet du Free Jazz A Collective Improvisation (1961) qui porte si bien son nom !

Quelques jours après le décès d'Ornette Coleman le 11 juin 2015, The Wire a publié sur son site cette déclaration d'amitié de Robert Wyatt à l'homme et au musicien disparu. La revue ImproJazz l'a traduite et publiée à son tour dans son numéro de septembre 2015.

As part of our online tribute to Ornette Coleman, who died on 11

(I'm actually very grateful to hear what Paul Bley was already up to at that time,

June, Robert Wyatt explains why he loves the saxophonist's earliest recordings so much.

> Zoom

Ornette Coleman in the late 1950s.
Photo: William Claxton/Courtesy Demont Photo Management

To begin at the available beginning. Ornette Coleman live at the Hillcrest Club, October 1958. On piano: Paul Bley (which may explain what Carla was doing there, recording it). Already, their take on a standard, the Don Cherry feature "How Deep Is The Ocean", is stretched beyond its bounds. Like Ornette's later recorded "Embraceable You", it is a totally fresh take – as far from the subject matter as the cubist portraits by Picasso. Similarly true to their emotional source, though.

Musicians can and maybe must discard their earlier attempts. We, listening to the preserved imprints, are under no such obligation. (In fact, I'm very grateful to be able to hear Paul Bley playing at that time, in that context.)

And I find Ornette's earliest recordings so moving. His voice is immediately unique, as if he were the last surviving speaker of an ancient language. So the musicians he works with are naturally encouraged to find their own uniqueness. The Hillcrest recording begins with a lengthy, barnstorming… "Klactoveesedstene"! A Charlie Parker tune, tricky even by the composer's standards. The group sails through the tune itself with a deftness that should silence any sceptic who doubts their grasp of the idiom they inherited.

I only met Ornette Coleman a couple of times – what a gent. Did he ever raise his speaking voice in anger? It's hard to imagine. What I remember is his (often mentioned) amused but welcoming Old World courtesy. (He was, by the way, as is the wonderful Archie Shepp, a very snappy dresser. Just see the photographs: no shabby chic for Ornette!)

But why do I love Ornette Coleman quite so much? Well, I'll leave it to others to celebrate his significance to subsequent explorers of the freedom principle. What has always warmed my heart, in the end, has little to do with his influence on younger improvisors. It is the timeless vocal beauty of the actual sequences of notes and phrases he could come up with, and the feeling of pure living joy of playing they can communicate.

Ornette dead? The way I hear it, Ornette's heartbeat's as alive, in the ether, as it ever was.

Robert Wyatt

Commençons avec son quartet d'origine. Ornette Coleman live au Hillcrest Club, en octobre 1958. Au piano, Paul Bley (ce qui explique peut-être la présence de Carla qui enregistrait le concert). Déjà, leur version du standard "How Deep Is The Ocean", avec Don Cherry en solo, est poussée au-delà de ses limites. Comme avec sa version plus tardive de "Embraceable You", on a une lecture du morceau complètement nouvelle, aussi loin du sujet que les portraits cubistes de Picasso, mais, en revanche, tout aussi proche de la source émotionnelle.

Les musiciens peuvent, et peut-être doivent, s'éloigner de leurs premières ébauches. Mais nous, lorsque nous écoutons les enregistrements qui restent, nous n'avons pas du tout les mêmes obligations. (En fait, je suis très reconnaissant de pouvoir entendre ce que Paul Bley faisait déjà à cette époque, et dans ce contexte). Et je trouve les premiers enregistrements d'Ornette particulièrement émouvants. Sa voix est d'emblée tellement unique, comme s'il s'agissait du dernier locuteur vivant d'une langue ancienne. Naturellement, donc, les musiciens avec qui il travaillait étaient encouragés à trouver leur propre singularité. Les enregistrements du 'Hillcrest' commencent par un "Klactoveesedstene"! aussi long qu'enflammé. Ce morceau de Charlie Parker est complexe, même selon les normes de son compositeur. Cependant les musiciens l'interprètent avec une aisance qui cloue le bec à n'importe quel sceptique qui aurait pu douter de leur maitrise de l'idiome dont ils étaient les héritiers.

Je n'ai rencontré Ornette qu'à quelques rares occasions, mais quel gentleman c'était. A-t-il jamais élevé la voix sous l'effet de la colère? On a du mal à l'imaginer. Ce dont je me souviens (et beaucoup l'ont mentionné) c'est sa courtoisie d'un autre âge, son air amusé mais bienveillant. Il était, par ailleurs, toujours tiré à quatre épingles, tout comme le merveilleux Archie Shepp. Il suffit de regarder les photos : Pas de faux vintage chic pour Ornette!

Mais pourquoi j'aime autant Ornette? Je laisserai à d'autres le soin de célébrer son importance pour ceux qui se sont engagés sur la voie du "freedom principle". Ce qui m'a toujours réchauffé le cœur en fin de compte n'a que peu de choses à voir avec son influence sur les improvisateurs plus jeunes. Ce n'est rien d'autre que la beauté vocale intemporelle de ses séquences de notes et de phrases qui étaient capables de communiquer intensément le pur bonheur de jouer.

Ornette est mort ? Mais moi j'entends toujours battre son coeur, dans l'éther, aussi vivant qu'il l'a jamais été.

Robert Wyatt

Nos remerciements à Robert Wyatt et Tony Herrington qui ont autorisé la traduction de cet article publié pour la première fois dans thewire.co.uk en juin 2015.

Traduction : Gary May et Catherine Thinland.

Common

ABÉCÉDAIRE

En 2014, Robert Wyatt pose sa voix sur deux chansons composées par Adrian Johnston pour le téléfilm de Jimmy McGovern Common que The Guardian qualifie de "brutal and devastating drama".

Le texte du premier morceau, The Debt, est un poème de Paul Laurence Dunbar constitué de trois strophes qui seront chantées chacune par RW à trois moments différents du film.

This is the debt I pay
Just for one riotous day,
Years of regret and grief,
Sorrow without relief

The Dept - part 1

Pay it I will to the end —
Until the grave, my friend,
Gives me a true release —
Gives me the clasp of peace.

The Dept - part 2

Slight was the thing I bought,
Small was the debt I thought,
Poor was the loan at best —
God! but the interest!

The Dept - part 3

Le texte du second morceau - 'One morn I left him in his bed' - est un long poème d'Elizabeth Drew Barstow Stoddard dont seules les trois premières strophes sont chantées par Robert Wyatt.

One morn I left him in his bed;
A moment after some one said,
'Your child is dying
– he is dead.'

We made him
ready for his rest,
Flowers in his hair,
and on his breast
His little hands together prest.

We sailed by night
across the sea;
So, floating from the world were we,
Apart from sympathy, we Three.

0:00 / 1:13

One morn I left him in his bed

0:00 / 11:58

And in less than 12 minutes, the essence of the film ...

Contrefaçon/Counterfeit

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les pirates, les bootlegs répondent à une demande que les compagnies commerciales refusent de satisfaire : investissements non rentables, enregistrements de trop médiocre qualité, cadres contractuels inexistants... les bootlegs nous arrivent alors par la bande et les fans qui ne reculent ni devant la dépense, ni parfois devant la médiocrité sonore, leur font la fête! Et si le bootleg est un bijou (ça arrive) il se pourra que la version officielle prenne le relais : le concert du 8 septembre 1974 au Drury Lane Theatre en est un bel exemple...

La contrefaçon, c'est autre chose. La numérisation et la compression des sons, la banalisation des outils de reproduction bouleversent les modèles techniques et économiques. Plus de "raretés" ou de concerts volés, juste un copier/coller à la barbe de l'auteur...

Je ne peux me résoudre à faire entrer ces CDs dans la discographie. Ils resteront en marge, pour un temps.

The Soft Machine MP3
2003

The Soft Machine MP3

- Volume One (1968)
- Volume Two (1969)
- Third (1970)
- Fourth (1971)
- Fifth (1972)
- Six (1973)
- Seven (1974)
- Bundles (1975)
- Softs (1976)
- Rubber Riff (1976)
- At The Beginning (Bonus)

- RMG RECORDS

The Soft Machine MP3 Collection
2003

The Soft Machine MP3 Collection

- At The Beginning (Jet-Propelled Photographs) (1968)
- Volume One (The Soft Machine) And Two (1968)
- Third (1970)
- Noisette (1970)
- Live In Europe '70 (1970)
- Fourth (1971)
- Fifth (1972)
- Six (1973)
- Seven (1974)
- Bundles (1975)
- Softs (1976)
- Rubber Riff (1976)
- Alive And Well In Paris (1978)
- Land Of Cockayne (1981)

- MP3 SERVICE (MP3 COLLECTION) 2xCDR

- The End Of An Ear (1970)
- Shleep (With Brian Eno) (1997)
- Two's And Three's (1994)
- Smoke Signals (1972)

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Une liste (provisoire) alphabétique des reprises

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Alphabetical list

Reprises ?

Les reprises/covers concernent les morceaux de Robert Wyatt - auteur et/ou compositeur - mais aussi tous les morceaux de Soft Machine et de Matching Mole qu'il a interprétés lors de leur création, en studio ou sur scène.

C'est également le cas des nombreuses collaborations dont il fut un des co-créateurs significatifs. Calyx d'Hatfield And The North, Mu*sic For Airports - Part One* de Brian Eno ou The Song de John Greaves sont, à titre d'exemple, concernés par d'éventuelles reprises.

Je considère également comme reprise un morceau du répertoire des premiers Soft Machine (avec RW) joué par le "Soft Machine post-Fourth" ou a fortiori par des groupes tels que Soft Legacy, Soft Bounds etc.

Enfin, il est des reprises de reprises dont la référence sera l'interprétation qu'en donne Robert Wyatt plutôt que la version originale (Chairman Mao de Charlie Haden ou At Last I Am Free de Chic par exemple).

On comprendra donc que je prends quelques libertés pour déterminer les morceaux faisant l'objet de ces reprises : la position de Robert Wyatt dans le processus de création artistique m'importe plus que le statut strictement juridique des oeuvres.

Lorsqu'un même enregistrement est présent sur plusieurs albums, c'est la référence la plus ancienne qui est répertoriée dans cette liste alphabétique.

Un lien sur le titre de l'album permet de pointer directement sur le disque contenant la reprise référencée.

Covers ?

The covers include tracks by Robert Wyatt - as author and/or composer - as well as all the Soft Machine and Matching Mole tracks that he performed during their creation, in the studio or on stage.

This is also true of the many collaborations of which he was a significant co-creator. Hatfield And The North's Calyx, Brian Eno's Music For Airports - Part One and John Greaves' The Song are all examples of possible covers.

I also consider a cover to be a song from the early Soft Machine repertoire (with RW) played by the "post-Fourth Soft Machine" or a fortiori by bands such as Soft Legacy, Soft Bounds etc.

Finally, there are covers of covers whose reference will be Robert Wyatt's interpretation rather than the original version (Charlie Haden's Chairman Mao or Chic's At Last I Am Free, for example).

So you'll understand that I'm taking a few liberties in deciding the songs covered here: Robert Wyatt's position in the artistic creation process is more important to me than the strictly legal status of the works.

When the same recording appears on several albums, the oldest reference is listed alphabetically.

A link on the album title points directly to the disc containing the referenced cover version.

Alphabetical list

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Une liste (provisoire) des reprises

ABÉCÉDAIRE

More information about this list.

Reprises

Morceau	Interprète	Album
1/1 - Music For Airports by Brian Eno	Bang On A Can	Music For Airports A 20th-Anniversary Version Of Brian Eno's Ambient Classic
1/1 - Music For Airports by Brian Eno	Bang On A Can	Music For Airports (live)
1/1 - Music For Airports by Brian Eno	Dedalus Ensemble	Brian Eno Performed By Dedalus Ensemble
1/1 - Music For Airports by Brian Eno	Delta Saxophone Quartet	Bowie, Berlin & Beyond
1/1 - Music For Airports by Brian Eno	PRF Monthly Tribute Series	Tribute 35 - Brian Eno
1/1 - Music For Airports by Brian Eno	Psychic Temple	Psychic Temple Plays Music For Airports
12-8 Theme by Soft Machine	Hugh Hopper	Monster Band

A Beautiful Peace by Robert Wyatt	Aaron M Olson	What Song I Should Sing ???
A Certain Kind by Soft Machine	Bloodrock	Bloodrock 3
A Certain Kind by Soft Machine	Carsten Jost	A Certain Kind
A Certain Kind by Soft Machine	eBraam	3
A Certain Kind by Soft Machine	Eric Matthews	Fanfare
A Certain Kind by Soft Machine	Faubert	Ce Monde Sauvage
A Certain Kind by Soft Machine	Weyes Blood	A Certain Kind Of Everybody
A Certain Kind by Soft Machine	Zapata	A Certain Kind/Make It All Go
A Door Opens And Closes by Soft Machine	Improgressive	Primo
A Last Straw by Robert Wyatt	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
A Last Straw by Robert Wyatt	Marlene Kuntz/ P. Hamilton/M. Nikaido	The Different You (Tribute)
A Last Straw by Robert Wyatt	Mary Newsletter	To Canterbury And Beyond
A Last Straw by Robert Wyatt	North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Folly Bololey

A Little Something by Slapp Happy	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
A Sunday In Madrid by Robert Wyatt	Annie Whitehead's Soupsong	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt
A Sunday In Madrid by Robert Wyatt	Area	The Different You (Tribute)
A Sunday In Madrid by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
A. W. O. L. by Robert Wyatt	Mop Meuchiine	Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Bel Canto Orchestra	En Direte A La Plaça Del Sol 22-08-1985
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Colonial Recordings	Colonial Recordings
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Epitimia	Alifib - Robert Wyatt Cover By Epitimia
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Grey Lotus	Songs by Wyatt (Live)
Alifib by Robert Wyatt (Le Piano De La Rue De Vergennes)	Jean-Michel Marchetti	MW3
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Julie Constantine	A Tribute Collection - Part Two
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Folly Bololey

Alifib by Robert Wyatt	One Lick Less	Spirits Of Marine Terrace
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Loïs Le Van	So Much More
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Odeia	Parlami
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt
Alifib by Robert Wyatt (Chanson Pop)	Pascal Comelade	Bel Canto
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Pascal Comelade	Chants Et Danses De Syldavie
Alifib (Chanson Pop) by Robert Wyatt	Pascal Comelade	Festival M.I.MI. 86
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Pascal Comelade	Haïkus De Pianos
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Pascal Comelade	MW3
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Pascal Comelade	Détail Monochrome
Alifib by Robert Wyatt (In A Lebanon Park)	Pascal Comelade	Sentimientos
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Red Banjo	Le Piano Confit
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Richard Robert et Gilles Tordjman	MW3

Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Saro Cosentino/ Franco Battiato/ Morgan	The Different You (Tribute)
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	The More Extended Versions	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Wyatt Moss-Wellington	Gen Y Irony Stole My Heart
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Zapmachine	Kot
Alifib / Alife by Robert Wyatt	Dono Celeste	To Canterbury And Beyond
Alifib / Alife by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Alifib / Alifie by Robert Wyatt	The Unthanks	Memory Box Archive Treasures (2005-2015)
Alifie by Robert Wyatt	North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Folly Bololey
Alifie / Alifib by Robert Wyatt	Crlustraude	Crlustraude
Alifie Medley by Robert Wyatt	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi
Alliance by Robert Wyatt	Annie Whitehead's Soupsong	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt
Alliance by Robert Wyatt	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt

Alliance by Robert Wyatt	Cpt. Kirk &. The More Extended Versions	Round About Wyatt
Alliance by Robert Wyatt (Aliantza)	Ekida Arte Ekimen Sozialista	Manifestua
Alliance by Robert Wyatt	Lea Delaria	Double Standards
Alliance by Robert Wyatt	Maria Due	Lucky Fish
Alliance by Robert Wyatt	Max Nagl/Clemens Wenger/Herbert Pirker	Market Rasen
Alliance by Robert Wyatt	Michel Albert	Alliance
Alliance by Robert Wyatt	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt
Alliance by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Alliance by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
Amber And The Amberines by Robert Wyatt	Dimthingshine	Songs From Home
Amber And The Amberines by Robert Wyatt	Mauro Pagani	The Different You (Tribute)
Amber And The Amberines by Robert Wyatt (Amber And The Ambergrines)	Nick Hudson	K69996ROMA:EP
Amber And The Amberines by Robert Wyatt	Nuccio D'Angelo	Homages

Anachronist by Robert Wyatt	Mop Meuchiine	Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt
As Long As He Lies Perfectly Still by Soft Machine	Clammbon	Lover Album
As Long As He Lies Perfectly Still by Soft Machine	Jakko M. Jakszyk	The Bruised Romantic Glee Club
As Long As He Lies Perfectly Still by Soft Machine	Schnauser	Herne Bay
As Long As He Lies Perfectly Still by Soft Machine	Zacht Automaat	Cover Tape
At Last I Am Free by [Chic] Robert Wyatt	Cassiber	Beauty & The Beast
At Last I Am Free by [Chic] Robert Wyatt	Dana Gavanski	Wind Songs
At Last I Am Free by [Chic] Robert Wyatt	Heiner Goebbels / Alfred 23 Harth	Live À Victoriaville
At Last I Am Free by [Chic] Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte Plays The Music Of Robert Wyatt - Jazz & Wine Of Peace
At Last I Am Free by [Chic] Robert Wyatt	Mezz Gacano 50th Birthday Party	Fünfzig
At Last I Am Free by [Chic] Robert Wyatt	Nostalgia	To Canterbury And Beyond
Backwards by Soft Machine	Caravan	For Girls Who Grow Plump In The Night
Backwards by Soft Machine	Caravan	The Best Of Caravan "Live"

Backwards by Soft Machine	Caravan	A Night's Tale Live In The USA
Backwards by Soft Machine	Caravan	Live At The Fairfield Halls, 1974
Backwards by Soft Machine	Polysoft	Tribute To Soft Machine
Backwards by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Other Doors
Barcelona Tango (very inspired) by Robert Wyatt	Pascal Comelade	Fluence
Be Serious by Robert Wyatt	Mahieux "Family Life" Quartet	[Peaux d'âmes]
Beware by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
Blues In Bob Minor by Robert Wyatt	Grey Lotus	Songs by Wyatt (Live)
Born Again Cretin by Robert Wyatt (Re-Born Again Cretin)	Almamegretta	Re-Born Again Cretin
Born Again Cretin by Robert Wyatt	Cpt. Kirk &. The More Extended Versions	Round About Wyatt
Born Again Cretin by Robert Wyatt	Dominique Répécaud	MW3
Born Again Cretin by Robert Wyatt	Field Music	Field Music Play...
Born Again Cretin by Robert Wyatt	Hobby Horse	Helm

Born Again Cretin by Robert Wyatt	Max Nagl/Clemens Wenger/Herbert Pirker	Market Rasen
Box 25/4 Lid I by Soft Machine	Joce Miennel	Paris Short Stories Saison 1
Box 25/4 Lid II by Soft Machine	Joce Miennel	Paris Short Stories Saison 1
Box 25/4 Lid III by Soft Machine	Joce Miennel	Paris Short Stories Saison 1
Box 25/4 Lid by Soft Machine	Mary Newsletter	To Canterbury And Beyond
Box 25/4 Lid by Soft Machine	Max Nagl/Clemens Wenger/Herbert Pirker	Market Rasen
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Abracadabra In Osaka	Soft Works
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Artchipel Orchestra	Truly Yours Musiche Di Phil Miller
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Gaia Mattiuzzi	Inner Core
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Hatfield And The North	Fasano 2005
Calyx (K Licks/Long) by Hatfield And The North	Hatfield And The North	Hattitude
Calyx by Hatfield And The North (K Licks/Short)	Hatfield And The North	Hattitude

Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Hatfield And The North	Paris Sept. 25 1973
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Hatfield And The North	Tread Upon the BBC
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Hopper/Dean/Tippett/ Gallivan	Mercy Dash
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Improgressive	Primo
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Mezz Gacano 50th Birthday Party	Fünfzig
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Mop Meuchiine	Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Phil Miller/Fred Baker	Double Up
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Richard Sinclair/David Rees/Tony Coe	What In The World
Calyx by Hatfield And The North	Richard Sinclair - Taranterbury Bossa Nova	Villanova II
Catholic Architecture by Robert Wyatt	Enric Lareine/ Pascal Maupeu/ Wyatt/ Marchetti	How Can I Rise If You Don't Fall?
Catholic Architecture by Robert Wyatt	Grasscut	Catholic Architecture/Beacon
Chairman Mao by [Charlie Haden] Robert Wyatt	C. S. I.	The Different You (Tribute)
Chairman Mao by [Charlie Haden] Robert Wyatt	The More Extended Versions	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening

Clarence In Wonderland by Soft Machine	Daevid Allen's University Of Errors	Ugly Music.4.Monica
Clarence In Wonderland by Soft Machine	Gong	Pre-Modernist Wireless On Radio : The Peel Sessions
Clarence In Wonderland by Soft Machine	Kevin Ayers And The Whole World	BBC Radio 1 Live In Concert
CP Jeebies by Robert Wyatt	Max Nagl/Clemens Wenger/Herbert Pirker	Market Rasen
Costa by Robert Wyatt	Annemarieke Coenders & Wim Sebo	Go
Costa by Robert Wyatt	Giovanni Ferrario Alliance	Places Names Numbers
Cuckoo Madame by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte & Guests Play The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Cuckoo Madame by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte Plays The Music Of Robert Wyatt - Jazz & Wine Of Peace
Cuckoo Madame by Robert Wyatt	The Unthanks	Diversions, Vol. 1: The Songs Of Robert Wyatt And Antony & The Johnsons
Deconstructing Wyatt (including The British Road, The Age Of Self, Speechless, Gharbzadegi) by Robert Wyatt	Algebra	To Canterbury And Beyond
Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening by Soft Machine	Ashqelon Quilt	To Canterbury And Beyond
Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening by Soft Machine (Dedicated To PQ But She Couldn't Hear It)	Brainville 3	Trial By Headline
Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening by Soft Machine	Caveman Hughscore	Caveman Hughscore

Dedicated To You by Soft Machine	Delta Saxophone Quartet	Dedicated To You... But You Weren't Listening The Music Of Soft Machine
Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening by Soft Machine	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra play Soft Machine
Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening by Soft Machine	Improgressive	Primo
Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening by Soft Machine	Jakko M. Jakszyk	The Bruised Romantic Glee Club
Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening by Soft Machine	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi
Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening by Soft Machine	Kevin Figes	You Are Here
Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening by Soft Machine	Polysoft	Tribute To Soft Machine
Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening by Soft Machine	The Keith Tippett Group	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening by Soft Machine	The More Extended Versions	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
Del Mondo by [Zamboni/Maroccolo/Magnelli] Robert Wyatt	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt
Dondestan by Robert Wyatt	Giorgio Canali/Ulan Bator/Umberto Palazzo	The Different You (Tribute)
Dondestan by Robert Wyatt	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi
Dondestan by Robert Wyatt	Look De Book	MW3

Dondestan by Robert Wyatt	Some Things	Positive Feedback
Dondestan by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Dondestan by Robert Wyatt	The More Extended Versions	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
Dondestan by Robert Wyatt	The Unthanks	Diversions, Vol. 1: The Songs Of Robert Wyatt And Antony & The Johnsons
East Timor by Robert Wyatt (Ashdod)	3alef	No Coast #1
East Timor by Robert Wyatt	Dans Dans	I/II
East Timor by Robert Wyatt	Dans Dans	Live At Roma
East Timor by Robert Wyatt	Hobocombo	The Magnetic Sound Of Hobocombo Presents Moondog Mask
Esther's Nose Job by Soft Machine	Beppe Crovella	What's Rattlin' On The Moon?
Facelift by Soft Machine	Abracadabra In Osaka	Soft Works
Facelift by Soft Machine	Artchipel Orchestra	Live At The Fasano Jazz Festival
Facelift by Soft Machine	Delta Saxophone Quartet	Dedicated To You... But You Weren't Listening The Music Of Soft Machine
Facelift (live) by Soft Machine	Delta Saxophone Quartet	Dedicated To You... But You Weren't Listening The Music Of Soft Machine

Facelift by Soft Machine	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra play Soft Machine
Facelift by Soft Machine	Hugh Hopper	Frangloband - Volume 2
Facelift by Soft Machine	Mind Capsule	The Space Between
Facelift by Soft Machine	Polysoft	Tribute To Soft Machine
Facelift Intro by Soft Machine	Polysoft	Tribute To Soft Machine
Facelift by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Live In France
Facelift by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Milton Keynes 2017
Facelift by Soft Machine	Soft Machine Legacy	Live Adventures
Facelift by Soft Machine	Soft Machine Legacy	Soft Works - Live At The Garden Hall - Tokyo
Facelift by Soft Machine	Soft Machine Legacy	Maiden Sailing
Feelin', Reelin', Squeelin' by Soft Machine	Caravan	Green Bottles For Marjorie
Feelin', Reelin', Squeelin' by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
Five Black Notes And One White Note by Offenbach/Robert Wyatt	Dissoi Logoi	The Different You (Tribute)

Five Black Notes And One White Note by Offenbach/Robert Wyatt	Max Nagl/Clemens Wenger/Herbert Pirker	Market Rasen
Five Black Notes And One White Note by Offenbach/Robert Wyatt	Mop Meuchiine	Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt
Five Black Notes And One White Note by Offenbach/Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
For The Ghosts Within by Wyatt/Atzmon/Stephen(The Ghosts Within)	Grey Lotus	Songs by Wyatt (Live)
Forest by Robert Wyatt	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Forest by Robert Wyatt	Dwiki Dharmawan	Pasar Klewer
Forest by Robert Wyatt	Grey Lotus	Songs by Wyatt (Live)
Forest (Excerpt) by Robert Wyatt	The Unthanks	Diversions, Vol. 1: The Songs Of Robert Wyatt And Antony & The Johnsons
Forest by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Andrea Chimenti/ Mara Redeghieri	The Different You (Tribute)
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Annie Whitehead's Soupsong	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Christine Collister	Dark Gift Of Time

Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Elf Power	The Amos House Collection - Vol II
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Grey Lotus	Songs by Wyatt (Live)
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Joan Of Arc	Eventually, All At Once
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt (Free Will)	John Trap	Inédits (1996/1998)
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Kabusacki Band	Free Will And Testament
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Kinfolk	Kinfolk
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Manishevitz	Private Lines
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Régïs Boulard	Streamer
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	The Unthanks	Diversions, Vol. 1: The Songs Of Robert Wyatt And Antony & The Johnsons
Free Will And Testament by Robert Wyatt	Wyndow	Wyndow
Frontera by Phil Manzanera	Phil Manzanera (instrumental)	Primiitive Guitars

Frontera by Phil Manzanera	Phil Manzanera and The Sound of Blue Band	Live In Japan
Gegenstand by John Greaves/Peter Blegvad/Lisa Herman	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt
Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	Carmine	Be There/Gharbzadegi
Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	Dar Nahmias's Project	Desert Heat
Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	Julien Retaillaud	Démos
Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	Marco Parente/La Crus	The Different You (Tribute)
Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	Max Nagl/Clemens Wenger/Herbert Pirker	Market Rasen
Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	Mop Meuchiine	Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt
Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	Music From A Mailing List	Gharbzadegi
Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	The More Extended Versions	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	TNHCH	Retrospective My Eye
Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	Visual Orchestra	Gharbzadegi

Gharbzadegi by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
Gloria Gloom by Matching Mole	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
Gloria Gloom by Matching Mole	Cpt. Kirk &. The More Extended Versions	Round About Wyatt
Gloria Gloom by Matching Mole	Henry Cow	Concerts
Gloria Gloom by Matching Mole	Henry Cow	Hamburg -Volume 3 Of The Henry Cow Anniversary Box Set
Gloria Gloom by Matching Mole (Gloria Gloom's Breath)	Jean-Marc Foussat	Nouvelles
Gloria Gloom by Matching Mole (Gloria Gloom's Meat)	Jean-Marc Foussat	Nouvelles
Gloria Gloom by Matching Mole	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi
Gloria Gloom by Matching Mole	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
God Song by Matching Mole	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
God Song by Matching Mole	Artchipel Orchestra	Truly Yours Musiche Di Phil Miller
God Song by Matching Mole	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
God Song by Matching Mole	Delivery	BBC in Concert

God Song by Matching Mole	Hatfield And The North	Fasano 2005
God Song by Matching Mole	Hatfield And The North	Paris Sept. 25 1973
God Song by Matching Mole	Hatfield And The North	Live 1973
God Song by Matching Mole	John Greaves	Life Size
God Song by Matching Mole	John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Earthly Powers
God Song by Matching Mole	R. Stevie Moore	Vague
God Song by Matching Mole	Steve Miller/Lol Coxhill	The Story So Far... ... Oh Really? (Reissue)
God Song by Matching Mole	Ultra Living	Monochromatic Adventure
God Song by Matching Mole	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
God Song by Matching Mole	Yung & Moore	Objectivity
God Song (bonus track) by Matching Mole	Yung & Moore	Objectivity
God Song (live WFMU) by Matching Mole	R. Stevie Moore	Vague
Good-Bye Wyatt Hat (very inspired) by Robert Wyatt	Pascal Comelade	Paralelo

Grass by [Ivor Cutler] Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte & Guests Play The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Grass by [Ivor Cutler] Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte Plays The Music Of Robert Wyatt - Jazz & Wine Of Peace
Heaps Of Sleeps by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Heaps Of Sleeps by Robert Wyatt	The Hunt Saboteurs	Heaps Of Sheeps
Hibou, Anemone And Bear by Soft Machine	Beppe Crovella	What's Rattlin' On The Moon?
Hope For Happiness by Soft Machine	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
Hope For Happiness by Soft Machine	Band Of Pixies	Centro Cultural São Paulo, 18/09/2010
Hope For Happiness by Soft Machine	Brainville - Daevid Allen With Hugh Hopper & Pip Pyle	Live In The UK
Hope For Happiness by Soft Machine	Brainville: 01	Live In NYC '98
Hope For Happiness by Soft Machine	Daevid Allen With Euterpe - & With Brainville	Studio Rehearsal Tapes 1977 & Live In The UK
Hope For Happiness by Soft Machine	Going Going	Going Going Live
Hope For Happiness by Soft Machine (Hopeful Impressions Of Happiness)	Humi (Hugh Hopper & Yumi Hara Cawkwell)	Dune
Hope For Happiness by Soft Machine (Hopeful Impressions Of Happiness Original Version)	Humi (Hugh Hopper & Yumi Hara Cawkwell)	Parallel Dune

Hope For Happiness by Soft Machine (Echec Naturel)	Patrick Forgas	To Canterbury And Beyond
Hope For Happiness by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
Hope For Happiness by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Live At The Fleece
I'm A Believer by [Neil Diamond] Robert Wyatt	Mop Meuchiine	Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt
I Rather Be With You by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
I Should've Know by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
Impotence by Wilde Flowers	Smith	The Winstons
Instant Pussy by Matching Mole	La 1919	Freepopjazzrock
Instant Pussy by Matching Mole	Mop Meuchiine	Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt
Instant Kitten by Matching Mole	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte & Guests Play The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Instant Kitten by Matching Mole	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte Plays The Music Of Robert Wyatt - Jazz & Wine Of Peace
Instant Kitten by Matching Mole	Ultramarine	United Kingdoms
Jelly Babies by Epic Soundtracks	Cpt. Kirk &. The More Extended Versions	Round About Wyatt

Joy Of A Toy by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Other Doors
Just As You Are by Robert Wyatt	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Just As You Are by Robert Wyatt	Enric Lareine/ Pascal Maupeu/ Wyatt/ Marchetti	How Can I Rise If You Don't Fall?
Just As You Are by Robert Wyatt	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt
Justice by News From Babel	The More Extended Versions	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
King And Queens by Soft Machine	Abracadabra In Osaka	Soft Works
Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Artchipel Orchestra	Live At The Fasano Jazz Festival
Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Bise de Buse	Bise de Buse Joue Sa Musique
Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Delta Saxophone Quartet	Dedicated To You... But You Weren't Listening The Music Of Soft Machine
Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra play Soft Machine
Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Polysoft	Tribute To Soft Machine
Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Soft Bounds	Live At Le Triton 2004
Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Live At The Baked Potato

Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Soft Machine Legacy	Burden Of Proof
Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Soft Machine Legacy	Live In Zaandam
Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Soft Machine Legacy	New Morning - The Paris Concert
Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Soft Machine Legacy	Soft Works - Live At The Garden Hall - Tokyo
Kings And Queens by Soft Machine	Soft Machine Legacy	Maiden Sailing
Left On Man by Robert Wyatt	Giancarlo Onorato/ Madaski	The Different You (Tribute)
Left On Man (Interferenze) by Robert Wyatt	Giancarlo Onorato	Le Nozze Chimiche
Left On Man by Robert Wyatt	Kafka	Robert Et André
Left On Man by Robert Wyatt	L'Ensemble Rayé	MW3
Left On Man by Robert Wyatt (La Liberté)	Mendelson	Sciences Politiques
Left On Man by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Left On Man by Robert Wyatt	The More Extended Versions	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
Left On Man by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)

Life Is Sheep by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
Lisp Service by Robert Wyatt	Monsieur Benjamin	Marottes
Lisp Service by Robert Wyatt	The Unthanks	Diversions, Vol. 1: The Songs Of Robert Wyatt And Antony & The Johnsons
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Annie Whitehead's Soupsong	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Estasia	The Different You (Tribute)
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Jaggernaut	MW3
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Jo Bogaert/An Pierlé/ John Snauwaert	MW3
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Kees Meijlink & Coos de Groot	Memories
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte & Guests Play The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte Plays The Music Of Robert Wyatt - Jazz & Wine Of Peace
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Folly Bololey
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)

Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt (Robert Wyatt's dilogy)	Tagubu	Miss Elianus
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	The More Extended Version	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Tin Huey	Disinformation
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte & Guests Play The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte Plays The Music Of Robert Wyatt - Jazz & Wine Of Peace
Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Folly Bololey
Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
Locomotive by [Thelonious Monk] Robert Wyatt	Mop Meuchiine	Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt
Love Makes Sweet Music by Soft Machine	Bon Scott With The Valentines	The Early Years
Love Makes Sweet Music by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
Lullaby For Hamza by Robert Wyatt	Nadia Szachniuk	Luna Atrás

Lullaby For Hamza by Robert Wyatt	The Fiction Aisle	Live At Lick
Lullaby For Hamza by Robert Wyatt	The Unthanks	Diversions, Vol. 1: The Songs Of Robert Wyatt And Antony & The Johnsons
Lullaloop by Robert Wyatt	Enric Lareine/ Pascal Maupeu/ Wyatt/ Marchetti	How Can I Rise If You Don't Fall?
Lying And Gracing by Matching Mole	Hatfield And The North	Tread Upon the BBC
Lything And Gracing by Matching Mole	Hatfield And The North	Fasano 2005
Maryan by Robert Wyatt	Baptiste Trotignon	Brexit Music
Maryan by Robert Wyatt	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Maryan by Robert Wyatt	Ginevra Di Marco/ Cristina Donà	The Different You (Tribute)
Maryan by Robert Wyatt	Group Listening	Clarinet & Piano: Selected Works Vol. 1
Maryan by Robert Wyatt	North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Folly Bololey
Maryan by Robert Wyatt	Salmoni	Salmoni
Maryan by Robert Wyatt	Theo Travis' Double Talk	Transgression
Maryan by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)

Mass Medium by Robert Wyatt	Philippe Fretun/ Michel Benita	MW3
Memories by Soft Machine	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
Memories by Soft Machine	Brainville: 01	Live In NYC '98
Memories by Soft Machine	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Memories by Soft Machine	Damon & Naomi	More Sad Hits
Memories by Soft Machine	Grey Lotus	In Tribute To Robert Wyatt (Live)
Memories by Robert Wyatt	Grey Lotus	Songs by Wyatt (Live)
Memories by Soft Machine	In Circolo/Mira Spinosa	The Different You (Tribute)
Memories by Soft Machine	Kees Meijlink & Coos de Groot	Memories
Memories by Soft Machine	Material & Whitney Houston	Memories
Memories by Soft Machine	Pascal Comelade	El Primitivismo
Memories by Soft Machine	Serious Solid Swineheard Is Better Than Homecooked	Memories
Memories by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs

Moon In June by Soft Machine	Artchipel Orchestra	Live At The Fasano Jazz Festival
Moon In June by Soft Machine	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra play Soft Machine
Moon In June by Soft Machine	Invisible Opera Company Of Tibet	UFO Planante
Moon In June by Soft Machine	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi
Moon In June by Soft Machine	John Wesley Harding And The Monks Of Doom	Moon In June/Cowboy Song
Moon In June by Soft Machine(Noisy Moon In Trashy June)	Kafka	Robert Et André
Mousetrap by Soft Machine	Artchipel Orchestra	Live At The Fasano Jazz Festival
Mousetrap by Soft Machine	Delta Saxophone Quartet	Dedicated To You... But You Weren't Listening The Music Of Soft Machine
Mousetrap by Soft Machine	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra play Soft Machine
Muddy Mouse by Robert Wyatt	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
Muddy Mouse by Robert Wyatt	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi
Muddy Mouse by Robert Wyatt	Mop Meuchiine	Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt
Muddy Mouse [A] by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)

Muddy Mouse [B] [Mix] by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Muddy Mouse [C] by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Muddy Mouse by Robert Wyatt	Uwe Oberg	Work
Muddy Mouth by Robert Wyatt	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi
Muddy Mouth Suite by Robert Wyatt	Annie Whitehead's Soupsong	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt
Nan True's Hole by Matching Mole	Artchipel Orchestra	Truly Yours Musiche Di Phil Miller
Nan True's Hole by Matching Mole (Ethanol Nurse)	Hatfield And The North	Hatwise Choice
Nan True's Hole by Matching Mole	Hatfield And The North	John Peel Session (12th January 1973)
Nan True's Hole by Matching Mole	Hatfield And The North	Live 1973
Nan True's Hole by Matching Mole	Hatfield And The North	Fasano 2005
Nan True's Hole by Matching Mole	Hatfield And The North	Paris Sept. 25 1973
Nan True's Hole by Matching Mole	Richard Sinclair - Taranterbury Bossa Nova	Villanova II
Nan True's Hole by Matching Mole	Short Wave	Live

Nan True's Hole by Matching Mole	The Muffins	Baker's Dozen 10
Nan True's Hole by Matching Mole	The Muffins	Loveletter #1
Neo-Caliban Grides by Soft Machine	Elton Dean	Elton Dean
N. I. O. by Robert Wyatt	Aquaserge	New Information Order
N. I. O. by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte & Guests Play The Music Of Robert Wyatt
N. I. O. by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte Plays The Music Of Robert Wyatt - Jazz & Wine Of Peace
Noisette by Soft Machine	Artchipel Orchestra	Live At The Fasano Jazz Festival
Noisette by Soft Machine	Delta Saxophone Quartet	Dedicated To You... But You Weren't Listening The Music Of Soft Machine
Noisette by Soft Machine	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra	Ferdinando Faraò & Artchipel Orchestra play Soft Machine
Noisette (Noisette 1) by Soft Machine	Polysoft	Tribute To Soft Machine
Noisette by Soft Machine (Noisette 2)	Polysoft	Tribute To Soft Machine
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Bréchet/Denizet/ Ponthieu	Standard
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Caravan	A Night's Tale Live In The USA

O Caroline by Matching Mole	Caroline	Garden Parti & Caroline, Yes !
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Clammbon	Lover Album 2
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Dave Sinclair	Full Circle
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Dominique Fellmann/ Julien Goetz	MW3
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Dominique Fellmann/ Julien Goetz	MW Pour Robert Wyatt
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Eric Barret Septet	My Favorite Songs
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Gorky's Zygotic Mynci	Tatay
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Hoffmann Family Blues Experience	Five
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Horse Latitudes	September Songs
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Improgressive	Primo
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Jennifer Maidman	Dreamland

O Caroline by Matching Mole	King Size	! White Lies, White Beats !
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Max Gazzé	The Different You (Tribute)
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Maxi Trusso	El Firichinio
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Mezz Gacano 50th Birthday Party	Fünfzig
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Mirage	Live 14th December 1994
O Caroline by Matching Mole	North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Folly Bololey
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt
O Caroline (2 versions) by Matching Mole	Pascal Comelade	El Primitivismo
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Perdio	A Robert
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Richard Sinclair's Caravan Of Dreams	An Evening Of Magic
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Richard Sinclair - Taranterbury Bossa Nova	Villanova II
O Caroline by Matching Mole (Oh Caroline)	Sarah Murcia & Noël Akchoté	Sarah Murcia & Noël Akchoté
O Caroline by Matching Mole (Voi Helena)	Suonna Kononen	Lisälehtiä Korpraali Kukkakaalin Laulukirjaan

O Caroline by Matching Mole	University of Errors	Live At The Fleece
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Veranda Music	Look Of Joy
O Caroline by Matching Mole	Witold Bolik	Covers
Orange Skin Food by Soft Machine	Improgressive	Primo
Out-Bloody-Rageous by Soft Machine	Beppe Crovella	What's Rattlin' On The Moon?
Out-Bloody-Rageous by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Live In France
Out-Bloody-Rageous by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Drop
Out-Bloody-Rageous Intro by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Hidden Details
Out-Bloody Intro by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Live At The Baked Potato
Out-Bloody-Rageous Part 1 by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Hidden Details
Out-Bloody- Rageous Part 1 by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Live At The Baked Potato
Out Of The Blue by Robert Wyatt	Grey Lotus	In Tribute To Robert Wyatt (Live)
Out Of The Blue by Robert Wyatt	Grey Lotus	Songs by Wyatt (Live)

Out Of The Blue by Robert Wyatt	The Unthanks	Diversions, Vol. 1: The Songs Of Robert Wyatt And Antony & The Johnsons
P. L. A. by Robert Wyatt	Dimthingshine	Songs From Home
P. L. A. by Robert Wyatt	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt
P. L. A. by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
P. L. A. by Robert Wyatt	Toupidek, Limonade et Jérôme Tagu	MW3
Pataphysical Introduction by Soft Machine	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Pig by Soft Machine	Beppe Crovella	What's Rattlin' On The Moon?
Pig by Soft Machine	Improgressive	Primo
Pigs (in there) by Robert Wyatt	Enric Lareine/ Pascal Maupeu/ Wyatt/ Marchetti	How Can I Rise If You Don't Fall?
Pigs (in there) by Robert Wyatt	Incroyable Jungle Beat	Surround
Pigs (in there) by Robert Wyatt	Squids	Natural Resources
Rangers In The Night by Robert Wyatt	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt
Rivmic Melodies by Robert Wyatt	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi

Round Midnight by [Thelonious Monk] Robert Wyatt	Cpt. Kirk &. The More Extended Versions	Round About Wyatt
Save Yourself by Soft Machine	Carsten Jost	A Certain Kind
Save Yourself by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Aldo Romano/Rémi Vignolo/Baptiste Trotignon	Flower Power
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Alexander De Large	At Brunch With Satan
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Annie Barbazza	Annie's Playlist
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Annie Barbazza	Annie's Playlist 3 - The Streaming Concerts
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Annie Whitehead's Soupsong	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Berry Sakharof	אקוסטי
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Bill Baird	Songs the Sound of Myself, As Written By Others
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Bill Callahan & Bonnie Prince Billy	Sea Song
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Bill Rieflin/Chris Connelly	Largo

Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Black Forest/Black Sea	Black Forest/Black Sea
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Bruno Tocanne/Sophia Domancich/Antoine Läng/Rémi Gaudillat	Sea Song(e)s
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Carla Diratz & Pascal Vaucel	pRéCis.AiMaNt
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Carolina Katún	Al Silencio
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	CE François Couture	Ballades Pour Elle
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Chris Kunkel	Covers
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Ci S'Ha	The Different You (Tribute)
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Clare Louise - Le Yéti	Sea Song/La Moisson
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Daevid Allen's University Of Errors	Sea Song
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Dune	Forever
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Emm Gryner	Girl Versions
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Eyes Like Saucers	Still Living In The Desert

Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Fabio Zuffanti	Tributes
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Graham Brice	Horfes Turn'd Jockies
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Grey Lotus	In Tribute To Robert Wyatt (Live)
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Grey Lotus	Songs by Wyatt (Live)
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Harbour	The Covers Albums
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt (Canción Del Océano)	Honduras	Canción Del Océano
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Hostsonaten	To Canterbury And Beyond
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Johanna's House Of Glamour	Style Monsters
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	John Greaves	Piacenza
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Julie Constantine	A Tribute Collection - Part One
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt (Zeelied)	Kees Meijlink & Coos de Groot	Memories
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Klimperei	MW3

Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Map Towan	W-Ouvert
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Mezz Gacano 50th Birthday Party	Fünfzig
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Michele Sperandio Quartet	The Sea Of Music
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Mop Meuchiine	Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Folly Bololey
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Nuccio D'Angelo	Homages
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Phipps pt.	Kiss you so many times, you can't count my love
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Qaä	Qaä
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Rachel Unthank And The Winterset	The Bairns
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Rebecca Barnard	Everlasting
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Roberto Gatto	Jazz Italiano Live Festival 2008
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Ruben Block	Turn The Tide
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Sim & Moe Kamura	Common Difference

Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Sharon Gal	Melancoholic
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	She Gave Him Oleander	She Gave Him Oleander
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Sine	Sine
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Tears For Fears	I Believe
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	The Icicle Works	Up Here In The North Of England
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	The Married Monk	Rocky
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	The Unthanks	Diversions, Vol. 1: The Songs Of Robert Wyatt And Antony & The Johnsons
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Tim Hawthorn & the Archetypes	The End Of Words
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	VVAA	I Will Never Do Cover Versions! (expanded)
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
Sea Song by Robert Wyatt	Zapmachine	Kot
September The Ninth by Robert Wyatt	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt

September The Ninth by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
September The Ninth by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
She's Gone by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	Grey Lotus	In Tribute To Robert Wyatt (Live)
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	Grey Lotus	Songs by Wyatt (Live)
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	June Tabor	Ashore
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	Manuel Agnelli Featuring Rodrigo D'Erasmo	An Evening With Manuel Agnelli
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	Marianne Dissard & Raphael Mann	Souvenir Of England
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	Mark Mulcahy	I Just Shot Myself In The Foot Again
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	Maurizio Brunod, Giorgio Li Calzi & Boris Savoldelli	Nostalgia Progressiva
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	Michele Sperandio, Quartet	The Sea Of Music
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Folly Bololey
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt

Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	Orchestre National de Jazz	Concert Anniversaire 30 Ans
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	Raphael Mann	Shipbuilding
Shipbuilding by [Elvis Costello] Robert Wyatt	The Mystery Jets	Home Protests
Shooting At The Moon (aka Jet Propelled Photographs) by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
Sight Of The Wind by Robert Wyatt	Annie Whitehead's Soupsong	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt
Sight Of The Wind by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Signed Curtain by Matching Mole (Cortina Firmada)	Enric Casasses/Pascal Comelade	La Manera Més Salvatge
Signed Curtain by Matching Mole	Enric Lareine/ Pascal Maupeu/ Wyatt/ Marchetti	How Can I Rise If You Don't Fall?
Signed Curtain by Matching Mole	Kirin J Callinan	Return To Center
Signed Curtain by Matching Mole	M.T. Hadley	There Isn't A Window That I Won't Look Out Of
Signed Curtain by Matching Mole	Pascal Comelade	September Song
Signed Curtain by Matching Mole	The Hellmask	The Bonus Tracks From Monsterverse
Slightly All The Time by Soft Machine	Alain Blesing	Songs From The Beginning

Slightly All The Time by Soft Machine	Beppe Crovella	What's Rattlin' On The Moon?
Slightly All The Time by Soft Machine	Polysoft	Tribute To Soft Machine
Slightly All The Time by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	BBC Radio 1 Live In Concert
Slightly All The Time by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Live In France
Slightly All The Time by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	Drop
Slightly All The Time by Soft Machine	Soft Machine	The Dew At Dawn / (Slightly) Slightly All The Time
Solar Flares by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Solar Flares by Robert Wyatt	Adjabel	7
Sonia by [Mongezi Feza] Robert Wyatt	Jean-Philippe Ramos	The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi
Soupsong by Robert Wyatt	Annie Whitehead's Soupsong	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt
Soupsong by Robert Wyatt (Funcia Da Carrua | Soup Song)	Cantastorie Sintetico	Stere0types
Soupsong by Robert Wyatt	Comicoperando	A Tribute To The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Soupsong by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)

Stalin Wasn´t Stalling by Robert Wyatt	The More Extended Versions	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
Stalingrad by Peter Blackman/Robert Wyatt	Null Object	Remix
Starting In The Middle Of The Day We Can Drink Our Politics Away by Matching Mole	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte & Guests Play The Music Of Robert Wyatt
Starting In The Middle Of The Day We Can Drink Our Politics Away by Matching Mole	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte Plays The Music Of Robert Wyatt - Jazz & Wine Of Peace
Starting In The Middle Of The Day We Can Drink Our Politics Away by Matching Mole	Roberto Gatto	Jazz Italiano Live Festival 2008
Stay Tuned by Robert Wyatt	The Unthanks	Diversions, Vol. 1: The Songs Of Robert Wyatt And Antony & The Johnsons
Te Recuerdo Amanda by Robert Wyatt	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt
Team Spirit by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Team Spirit by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
That's How Much I Need You Now by Soft Machine	The Lysergics	TimeMazine #3
That's How Much I Need You Now by Soft Machine	The Lysergics	That's How Much I Need You (version 2019)
That's How Much I Need You Now by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
The Age Of Self by Robert Wyatt	Asmodaeus	Lies And Logic

The Age Of Self by Robert Wyatt	Bullion	Love Me Oh Please Love Me
The Age Of Self by Robert Wyatt	Cpt. Kirk &. The More Extended Versions	Round About Wyatt
The Age Of Self by Robert Wyatt	Ekida Arte Ekimen Sozialista	Manifestua
The Age Of Self by Robert Wyatt	Enric Lareine/ Pascal Maupeu/ Wyatt/ Marchetti	How Can I Rise If You Don't Fall?
The Age Of Self by Robert Wyatt	Jono McCleery	Pagodes
The Age Of Self by Robert Wyatt	Ruper Ordorika	Ez Da Posible
The Age Of Self by Robert Wyatt	Solaris Great Confusion	Untried Ways
The Age Of Self by Robert Wyatt	The More Extended Versions	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
The Age Of Self by Robert Wyatt	The Mystery Jets	Home Protests
The Age Of Self by Robert Wyatt	Ulgebräk	The Age Of Self
The British Road by Robert Wyatt	Max Nagl/Clemens Wenger/Herbert Pirker	Market Rasen
The British Road by Robert Wyatt	Mop Meuchiine	Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt
The British Road by Robert Wyatt	North Sea Radio Orchestra	Dronne

The British Road by Robert Wyatt	North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Folly Bololey
The British Road (live) by Robert Wyatt	Speed The Plough	The Plough & The Stars
The British Road by Robert Wyatt	The More Extended Versions	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
The Duchess by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte & Guests Play The Music Of Robert Wyatt
The Duchess by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte Plays The Music Of Robert Wyatt - Jazz & Wine Of Peace
The Duchess by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
The Song by [John Greaves] Robert Wyatt	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
The Song by [John Greaves] Robert Wyatt	John Greaves	Piacenza
The Song by [John Greaves] Robert Wyatt	John Greaves - Annie Barbazza	Earthly Powers
The Song by [John Greaves] Robert Wyatt	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt
The United States Of Amnesia by Robert Wyatt	Enric Lareine/ Pascal Maupeu/ Wyatt/ Marchetti	How Can I Rise If You Don't Fall?
The United States Of Amnesia by Robert Wyatt	Wyattando	Wyattando (live at Bari)
To Nick Everyone by Robert Wyatt	Jacopo Andreini	Cover Me Now

Toledo Texas by Robert Wyatt	Jean-Marc Montera/ Elio Martusciello/ Fabiana-Yvonne Lugli-Martinez	MW3
Toledo Texas by Robert Wyatt	Jean-François Pauvros	MW3
Unmasked by Robert Wyatt	David Fenech	A Découvrir Absolument Volume 40
Unmasked by Robert Wyatt	Ground/Lift	Ground/Lift
Vandalusia by Robert Wyatt	Orchestre National de Jazz	Around Robert Wyatt
Vandalusia by Robert Wyatt	Soupsongs Live	Soupsongs Live The Music Of Robert Wyatt (Tribute)
Venti Latir by Robert Wyatt	Bob Bucko Jr	Covers
Venti Latir by Robert Wyatt	Cpt. Kirk &. The More Extended Versions	Round About Wyatt
Venti Latir by Robert Wyatt	Kammerflimmer Kollektief	Incommunicado
Venti Latir by Robert Wyatt	Odeia	Parlami
Was A Friend by [Hugh Hopper] Robert Wyatt	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
Was A Friend by [Hugh Hopper] Robert Wyatt (Sweet Memories)	Anaïd	I Have A Dream
Was A Friend by [Hugh Hopper] Robert Wyatt (Sweet Memories)	Anaïd	Anaïd In Parïs

Was A Friend by [Hugh Hopper] Robert Wyatt	Hopper/S.Klossner	Different
Was A Friend by [Hugh Hopper] Robert Wyatt	Hughscore	Delta Flora
Was A Friend by [Hugh Hopper] Robert Wyatt	Kees Meijlink & Coos de Groot	Memories
We Did It Again by Soft Machine	A Tribute To Robert Wyatt	Be In The No-Air
We Did It Again by Soft Machine	Bongwater	Double Bummer
We Did It Again by Soft Machine (Dididtagin)	Brainville 3	Trial By Headline
We Did It Again by Soft Machine	Going Going	Going Going Live
We Did It Again (encore) by Soft Machine	Going Going	Going Going Live
We Did It Again by Soft Machine	Jean-Marc Foussat	Nouvelles
We Did It Again by Soft Machine	Kevin Ayers	Singing The Bruise The BBC Sessions 1970-72
We Did It Again by Soft Machine	Kevin Ayers	Songs For Insane Times: An Anthology 1969-1980
We Did It Again (2 versions) by Soft Machine (Again)	Pascal Comelade	Ready-Made
We Did It Again by Soft Machine	The Modernaires	We Dit It Again/And Again

We Did It Again by Soft Machine	Tirol	Meat Das Tirol !
Whe Know What You Mean (Soon Soon Soon) by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
When I Don't Want You by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Bananamoon Band	Bananamoon Band
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Bongwater	Too Much Sleep
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Carsten Jost	A Certain Kind
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Daevid Allen/Banana Moon Band/Gong	Je Ne Fum' Pas Des Bananes
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Gong	Haunted Chateau 1969
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Gong	Live In Lyon December 14th 1972
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Gorky's Zygotic Mynci	Llanfwrog
Why Are Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Kevin Ayers	Songs For Insane Times: An Anthology 1969-1980
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Kevin Ayers & Wizards of Twiddly	Turn The Lights Down
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Kevin Ayers And The Whole World	BBC Radio 1 Live In Concert

Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine (Porquoi Dormons Nous?)	Paragong	Live '73
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Pascal Comelade + Les Limiñanas	Traité de Guitarres Triolectiques
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	The More Extended Versions	Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening
Why Are We Sleeping? by Soft Machine	Urinals	Negative Capability... Check It Out!
Yesterday Man by [Chris Andrews] Robert Wyatt	Pascal Comelade + Les Limiñanas	Traité de Guitarres Triolectiques
Yolanda by [Pablo Milanes] Robert Wyatt	L. Cherubini/ Jovanotti	The Different You (Tribute)
You Don't Remember by Soft Machine	University of Errors	Jet Propelled Photographs
You You by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte & Guests Play The Music Of Robert Wyatt
You You by Robert Wyatt	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte	Max Andrzejewski's Hütte Plays The Music Of Robert Wyatt - Jazz & Wine Of Peace

Critiques/Reviews

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Love Makes Sweet Music - Soft Machine - 1967

Volume One - Soft Machine - 1968

Volume Two - Soft Machine - 1969

The End Of An Ear - Robert Wyatt - 1970

Third - Soft Machine - 1970

- Shooting At The Moon - Kevin Ayers And The Whole World - 1970

- Fourth - Soft Machine - 1971

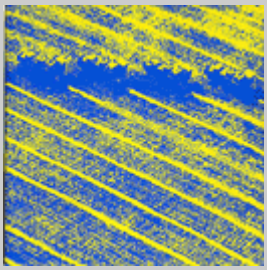
- Matching Mole - Matching Mole - 1972

- Little Red Record - Matching Mole - 1972

- Whatevershebrîngswesing - Kevin Ayers - 1972

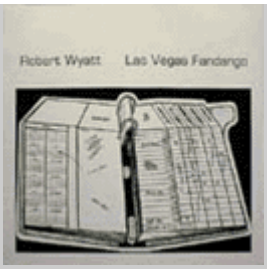
- Hatfield & The North - 1973

- Rock Bottom - Robert Wyatt - 1974



- I'm A Believer - Robert Wyatt - 1974

- Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard - 1975



- Ambient 1 Music For Airports - Brian Eno - 1978

- At Last I'm Free - Robert Wyatt - 1980

- Rock Bottom/Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard (Reedition LP) - Robert Wyatt - 1981

- Las Vegas Fandango - Robert Wyatt - 1981

- The Animals Film - Robert Wyatt - 1982

- Nothing Can't Stop Us - Robert Wyatt - 1982

- Shipbuilding/Memories Of You/'Round Midnight - Robert Wyatt - 1982

- The Last Nightingale - Various Artists - 1984

- Old Rottenthat - Robert Wyatt - 1985

- The Wind Of Change - Robert Wyatt With The SWAPO Singers - 1985

- Bel Canto - Pascal Comelade - 1986

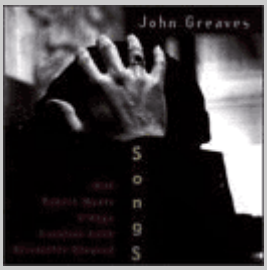
- The Peel Sessions - Robert Wyatt - 1987

- Dondestan - Robert Wyatt - 1991

- A Short Break - Robert Wyatt - 1992

- Mid-Eighties - Robert Wyatt - 1993

- Darn It! - Paul Haines - 1993



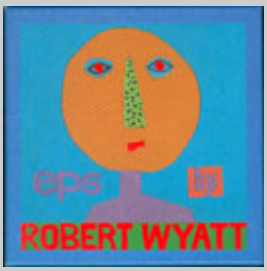
- Flotsam & Jetsam - Robert Wyatt - 1994

- Going Back A Bit: A Little History Of Robert Wyatt - Robert Wyatt - 1994

- Tales Of Canterbury - The Wilde Flowers - 1994

- Songs - John Greaves - 1995

- Live At The Paradiso - Soft Machine - 1996



- Spaced - Soft Machine - 1996

- Shleep - Robert Wyatt - 1997

- Live 1970 - Soft Machine - 1998

- EP's - Robert Wyatt - 1999

- Noisette - Soft Machine - 2000

- MW pour Robert Wyatt - 2001

- Nouvelles - Jean-Marc Foussat - 2001

- Cuckooland - Robert Wyatt - 2003

- Somewhere In Soho - Soft Machine - 2004

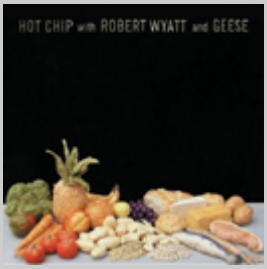
- His Greatests Misses - Robert Wyatt - 2004

- Theatre Royal Drury Lane - Robert Wyatt & Friends In Concert - 8th September 1974 - 2005

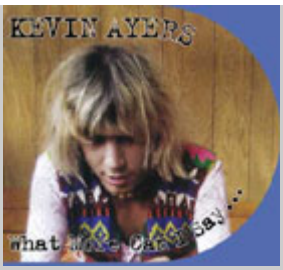
- BBC In Concert 1971 - Soft Machine & Heavy Friends - 2005

- Sirens & Silences / Work Resumed On The Tower / Letters Home (Reedition) - News From Babel - 2006

- Soft Machine – Middle Earth Masters - 2006

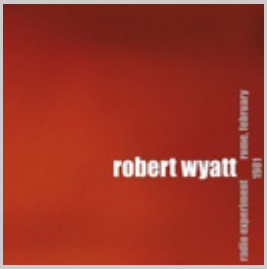


- Hyde Park Free Concert 1970 - Kevin Ayers & The Whole World - 2007



- The Story So Far... - Steve Miller/Lol Coxhill - 2007

- Comicopera - Robert Wyatt - 2007



- Hot Chip With Robert Wyatt And Geese - 2008

- What More Can I Say... - Kevin Ayers - 2008

- Around Robert Wyatt - Orchestre National de Jazz - 2009

- Radio Experiment Rome - February 1981 - Robert Wyatt - 2009

- Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt - 2010

- ...For The Ghosts Within' - Wyatt/Atzmon/Stephen - 2010

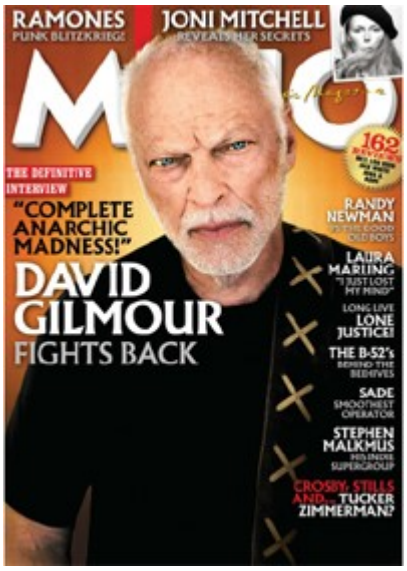
- Live At Henie Onstad Art Centre 1971 - Soft Machine - 2010

- '68 - Robert Wyatt - 2013

- One Night Stand - W M W S - 2015

- Folly Bololey Songs From Robert Wyatt's Rock Bottom - North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza - 2019

- The Future Eve featuring Robert Wyatt - 2019



Love Makes Sweet Music
1967

Soft Machine

More information about this album

MOJO - N° 372 - november 2024

Soft Machine - Feelin' Reelin' Squeelin'
Written by Kevin Ayers. Published by Warner Chappell Music Ltd.®1967Soft Machine. Licensed courtesy of Cherry Red Records Ltd.

From the peak of the UFO era, a convention-busting freakout courtesy of Soft Machine. This B-side of their February 1967 debut, Love Makes Sweet Music, amps up the weird ness: Robert Wyatt is blue-eyed soul incarnate on the chorus; Kevin Ayers the twisted MC on the verse. "This is a feeling from the ceiling of my dreams!"

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Volume One
1968

Soft Machine

More information about this album

ROCK'N'FOLK - N° 28 - mai 1969

Volume One - Soft Machine

Philippe Paringaux

On en parlait, on en parlait, de cette douce machine, et l'on ne voyait rien venir. Voici enfin un disque, et notre attente n'a pas été vaine. Michael Ratledge (org. voc), Robert Wyatt (dms, ld-voc) et Kevin Ayers (ld-gt) créent à eux trois une musique absolument passionnante et qui mériterait certainement une plus grande audience. Mais ils sont des chercheurs de sons nouveaux, et cela n'a jamais été un très bon moyen pour atteindre la gloire. Le but des Soft Machine est de réaliser une synthèse des diverses sonorités du jazz et du rock dans ce qu'on pourrait appeler une "continuité électronique". Mais cette utilisation abondante des effets électroniques ne correspond pas, dans l'optique du groupe, à une succession de gimmicks plus ou moins utiles. Tout, au contraire, sous une apparence trompeuse de laisser-aller, est fort structuré, de sorte que chacun sait où il va et y arrive sain et sauf. Et les morceaux se succèdent sans vraiment être différents, entrecoupés de soli et de bruitages, ponctués de chants parfaitement intégrés à l'ensemble. Une musique qui déroutera bien des oreilles...

More information about this album

Volume Two
1969

Soft Machine

More information about this album

ALOHA - N° 12 -van 3 tot 17 oktober 1969

The Soft Machine - volume 2
Command/Probe CPLP 4505

P. S.

De soft Machine is altijd een van Hitweeks lievelingen geweest en zolang de groep nog zulke platen blijft maken en zulke indrukwekkende concerten blijft geven als pas nog in het Concertgebouw zal dat zeker zo blijven. De tweede elpee van de groep is weer een van de belangrijkste gebeurtenissen in het platenseizoen en ik geloof niet dat zoiets nog heel erg toegelicht hoeft te worden.

Iedereen die de groep een beetje kent houdt heel erg van de muziek die de jongens maken, maar misschien is het toch wel een beetje moeilijk om uit te leggen waarom deze groep zulke uitstekende muziek maakt en groepen als The Nice alleen maar flauwekul. Ieder z'n smaak natuurlijk, maar toch lijkt de muziek van de Soft Machine veel belangrijker dan het meeste dat er op het ogenblik uit Engeland komt. Mike Ratledge zelf wist in het interview dat een tijdje geleden in deze krant stond te vertellen dat er op het ogenblik groepen zijn met goeie ideeën en groepen met een behoorlijke muzikale vaardigheid, maar dat er maar heel weinig groepen zijn die dit op een goeie manier weten te kombineren. De Soft Machine is zo'n groep en het opvallende is misschien wel dat er door die groep muziek gemaakt wordt die zowel aanslaat bij rokers en trippers, als bij gewone popliefhebbers, jazzliefhebbers en ook soms wel minnaars van moderne klassieke muziek. Er wordt wel gezegd dat de Soft Machine van tamelijk veel jazz-achtige verworvenheden gebruik maakt en dat is waar in die zin dat ze wat struktuur, melodie, harmonie en ritme betreft dingen doen die in de pop meestal niet beroerd worden, maar daar staat tegenover dat ze toch steeds in de eerste plaats pop zijn blijven maken. Ze streven naar een Sound, maken gedrieën één hecht stuk geluld zonder dat ze zich te buiten gaan aan allerlei zeer Individuele expressies. Ze blijven muziek maken voor jou en niet voor zichzelf. En ze maken die muziek niet alleen zeer knap en subtiel, maar ook op een hele gewone manier vanuit de muziek zonder daar allerlei buitenmuzikale nonsens voor nodig te hebben. Goed, zo zouden we nog even door kunnen gaan, maar laten we het nog even over deze plaat hebben.

Kevin Ayers is vervangen door Hugh Hopper en dat maakt ietsje uit omdat Hopper aktiever bezig is in de geluidsklomp waarin verder de klavierinstrumenten van Ratledge en de drums van Robert Wyatt zo overtuigend bezig zijn. Wyatt zingt weer alles op deze plaat met zijn prachtige fragiele stemgeluid en ook op deze plaat staan weer twee lange nummers die uiteenvallen in meest kleine speelse, maar ook grotere stukken. Het is zo ongeveer de muziek van het laatste concert van de groep en het enige nadeel vergeleken met het vroegere werk lijkt het ontbreken van kleine grapjes. Verder is het eigenlijk nog beter.

ROCK'N'FOLK - N° 35 - décembre 1969

Volume Two - Soft Machine

Philippe Paringaux

Le second disque des Soft Machine est aussi étonnant que le premier, ahurissant collage d'idées toutes plus originales les unes que les autres, problème insoluble pour tous les amoureux des classifications tant l'art du groupe défie l'analyse. Rien n'est plus excitant que d'écouter ces trois formidables instrumentistes / compositeurs créer mille climats différents sans jamais se perdre, allier avec une aisance (qui ne peut être que le fruit de l'expérience ajoutée au talent) la rigueur des thèmes à la spontanéité jaillissante de leurs développements. Je ne crois pas que la musique des Soft Machine soit, comme on l'a prétendu, une musique intellectuelle. Elle est au contraire très accessible, pour peu que l'on veuille se donner la peine d'écouter, en ayant pris soin auparavant de se laver ses oreilles de tout ce qu'elles peuvent contenir de "culture" et d'idées reçues (c'est la même chose). Ce "Volume Two" est, d'un bout à l'autre, une oeuvre extrèmement élaborée sans être un instant froide. C'est peut-être la plus grande qualité des Soft Machine, que de ne jamais sombrer dans l'exercice de style, de ne jamais faire de la recherche sonore ou harmonique une fin en soi. On peut fort bien écouter ce disque sans se prendre la tête entre les mains, sans chercher à tout prix un message à déchiffrer entre les extraordinaires échafaudages qu'édifie le groupe. La musique des Soft Machine peut être acceptée telle qu'elle est, je veux dire instantanément, et si Ratledge, Wyatt et Hopper s'amusent à nous compliquer la vie en donnant à leurs thèmes les titres les plus invraisemblables, il ne faut pas oublier qu'ils sont pataphysiciens, et il n'est pas absolument nécessaire de donner tête baissée dans leurs panneaux. Le raisonnement est peut-être simpliste, mais il me semble que vouloir analyser fragmentairement cette musique n'aboutirait qu'à la désarticuler et à lui ôter toute vie. La formidable et très cohérente masse sonore (qu'ils jouent bas ou fort, vite ou lentement.... Le SON est omniprésent) qu'est la musique des Soft Machine doit avant tout être subie. Par les sens ET par l'esprit, d'accord, en cela leur musique peut être qualifiée d'intellectuelle, mais pas seulement par les uns ou par l'autre. Et, à tout prendre, surtout pas par le second...

ROCK'N'FOLK - HORS-SERIE N° 34 - 1954-2016 - LA GRANDE DISCOTHEQUE - décembre 2016

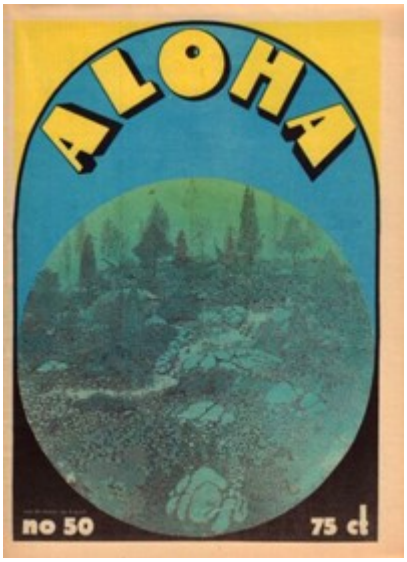
The Soft Machine - Volume Two - Probe

Bertrand Burgalat

Il y eut quelques mois où même les minables faisaient de bons disques. La situation de Hugh Hopper, Mike Ratledge et Robert Wyatt était moins confortable : ces types étaient trop doués. "Sacre du Printemps" psychédélique, leur deuxième album propose déjà, avant même que le genre n'explose, un autre voyage. Soft Machine, formation Swinging London par excellence, n'en convoque jamais les poncifs, sitar et cordes Bombay pour scènes de jerk Persuaders. Basse et orgue plongés dans la fuzz, un peu de piano, l'usage modéré (pour l'époque) de l'écho et une voix d'Adamo sous pastilles explorent, effleurent, cherchent et trouvent sans démontrer. La production, subordonnée aux idées qu'elle suscite, néglige la forme, déconcertante. On retrouvera chez Can ces manières frustrantes, laissant entrevoir les choses en disposant à la hâte les pressentiments. Sortie en beauté du cahier des charges rock, la musique de la joie ne s'arrête jamais, intense et inspirée. Ce qu'il y a de plus beau sur Terre se trouve dans la vingtaine de mesures de "Pataphysical Introduction Part 2". Si Soft Machine se pique de jazz, c'est un jazz idéalisé, libertaire, ignorant les montées de gammes et procédés modaux qui vont rendre l'improvisation tellement… prévisible. Ce n'est pas le seul domaine que nos amis abordent en touristes : il y a chez certains groupes anglais une attraction bien compréhensible pour le Bassin méditerranéen, paysages de version latine, cyprès, jeunes femmes drapées, éphèbes à cheveux bouclés et sandales Palais des Papes. L'imagerie pompéienne culminera avec le "666" d'Aphrodite's Child et le Pink Floyd de "Ummagumma" "More" et "Meddle". Elle prolonge les escapades tropéziennes des Soft Machine été 1967, leur prestation naturiste au Festival de la Libre Expression et ce light show total dont ils sont les inventeurs. Tout est là, en filigrane et spontanéité, dans ces morceaux qui persistent à surprendre après plusieurs centaines d'écoutes. Cette tragédie psychédélique annonce toutes les dérives et en sublime quelques autres, ébauche d'une musique solaire qui porte en germe sa propre mort.

More information about this album

Volume Two
1969



Soft Machine

More information about this album

ALOHA - N° 50 - van 26 maart tot 9 april 1971

SOFT MACHINE (CBS S 64280)
ROBERT WYATT
The end of an ear (CBS S 64189)

Hugo Epte

De vierde van de Soft Machine is een consequente voortzetting van de derde, al is dit gelukkig geen dubbelelpee. De afdeling toeten en blazen is nog prominenter geworden, er staat een heer op een contrabas te strijken, Ratledge verwisselt het orgel nogal eens voor de jazzpiano en zingen ho maar. De ziekte waar de muziek onder leidt is de bekende hedendaagse vrome Wichtichmacherei die bekend staat onder de benaming Coltrane-syndroom. Het is allemaal al veel eerder en veel beter gedaan, de plaat voegt niets nieuws toe aan de muziek die al bestaat en is dus volslagen overbodig. De volgende keer kunnen de heren zich misschien beperken tot het rondsturen van een briefkaart waarop staat dat het oeuvre van wijlen de tenorsaxofonist John Coltrane - vooral dat deel dat begon met de lp Giant Steps - bij hen zeer in de smaak valt. Iets anders hebben ze toch niet te melden. (Soft Machine : Coltrane = Benny Goodman : Count Basie). De afwezigheid van een Wyatt-feature - het enige onderdeel dat de vorige dubbelelpee genietbaar maakte - hoeft niet betreurd te worden want Vriend Leipmans heeft zijn eigen bedoeninkje op een aparte plaat gezet. Gelukkig maar.
'The end of an ear' is een pretentieuze titel volgens Flesseman. Dag Torn ! Wat dacht je dan van dit dialoogje:
'Ik heb oorpijn, dokter'.
'Doe de kleren maar uit'.
'Maar dokter. Mijn kleren uit?'
'Jazeker juffrouw. Alles uit. Weet u niet dat het oor zich uitstrekt door het hele lichaam?'
En jawel: waar is de grens tussen oor en niet-oor? Het wereldraadsel in handzame vorm, binnen het geestelijk bereik van de gewone man gebracht.

Maar goed. Lennon is adept van het primal-scream wezen, waarvan de kas beheerd wordt door een Californische praatjesmaker. Primal scream ! Het mocht wat, vrome naprateri, voze dikdoenerij. Nee, dan Wyatt - die is in de ban van de KleuterDreun. Een aanzienlijk authentieker aandoende obsessie, omdat iedereen zich de eertijds met overgave ten gehore gebrachte kleuterdreun nog best herinnert.
Tot zover de ideologie en De Boodschap. De muziek is een vreemd ratjetoe: monotoon gebens en gesljoesj en gejammer en daar omheen de geluiden van een dromens papagaaienhuis, losgeslagen Swingle Singers, Jongenstreurigheid om niet plus plezier in geluid - alweer zo'n authentieke muzikantenobsessie. Geluid, omdat het zo gek is, of zo vals, of zo wezenloos of zo mooi. Een betere reden om muziek te maken moet nog steeds uitgevonden worden.
Groot voordeel daarbij is dat Wyatt echt wat van jazz weet en niet alleen naar Coltrane geluisterd heeft. Hoe moet een popjongen anders op het idee komen om de Las Vegas Tango van de Verve-lp 'The individualism of Gil Evans' te gebruiken? Toch ontsnapt hij ook hier aan de afschuwelijke Soft Machine ziekte van het naspelen van grote voorbeelden. Uit het ratjetoe aan zeer uiteenlopende invloeden ontstaat iets eigens, een mooi ijl rokersmuziekje.
We hebben weer wat om naar uit te kijken: de volgende lp van Wyatt.

CHARLIE HEBDO - N° 3 - 7 décembre 1970

MECHAMMENT POP

Livingstone (Pierre Lattès)

A propos de Kevin, dont le deuxième disque vient de paraître en G.-B., et pour en revenir à cette « famille » ultra-productrice de Soft Machine, Robert Wyatt vient lui aussi de publier un disque, The End of an Ear. Chacun des Soft doit avoir le sien, et le groupe au complet enregistre ces jours-ci chez Olympic son quatrième album. Ce qui vaut le jus dans le disque du célèbre pataphysicien et néanmoins batteur, c'est que personne ne va aimer ça.

Les gars du pop parce que c'est trop compliqué pour leurs petites oreilles, les gens du jazz parce que l'étiquette n'y est pas et que tous les musiciens sont anglais, et que, dieu merci, poil au nez, il n'y a pas encore d'amateurs de cette habomination appelée free-pop, jazz-rock, etc. Alors, qu'est-ce que c'est ton machin ? Comme je n'aurais pas la mauvaise foi insigne de vous dire que ce n'est que de la musique, et fi du reste, disons que c'est du pop extrémiste. C'est si réussi que si qui vous savez avait eu un souple, je suis sûr qu'il aurait attendu un peu pour claboter. Robert joue de la batterie et chante, et fait des tas de choses à un pauvre piano. Si ça parait chez CBS-France avant six mois, je me les coupe (une seule, à la réflexion).

BEST - N° 36 - juillet 1971

The End Of An Ear - Robert Wyatt

(Barclay 920.308)

Hervé Muller

Ce disque est le complément du L.P. de Soft Machine dont je vous ai parlé le mois dernier, dans la mesure où il est l'expression créatrice de Wyatt lui-même, alors que "Fourth" était celle des trois autres et qu'il n'y avait qu'un rôle de batteur. Une note sur la pochette précise d'ailleurs : "Robert Wyatt, chanteur pop en chomage (actuellement à la batterie avec le Soft Machine)!"

C'est donc nettement différent de "Fourth". A la pureté presque méticuleuse de la musique actuelle des Soft s'oppose, dans la même mesure où s'opposent, en fait, les personnalités de Wyatt et Ratledge, l'aspect beaucoup plus torturé et confus de "End of an Ear". Cela rend le disque plus inégal, mais aussi moins purement formel. C'est aussi dans une large mesure le prolongement du magnifique "Moon in June" de "Third". A cet égard la pièce maîtresse de l'album est constituée par "Las Vegas Tango (part 1)", répartie entre les deux faces et formant un total de plus de vingt trois minutes. Ce morceau est le seul qui ne soit pas signé Wyatt : c'est un thème du pianiste Gil Evans. Et il n'est certes pas peu surprenant de constater que tout au long des quatorze minutes que prend ce morceau sur la seconde face il n'y a pas de batterie ! Robert montre ici pour la première fois ses talents de pianiste et il convainc sans peine. Mais c'est surtout pour lui l'occasion de pousser plus loin encore (large emploi du re-recording) les effets vocaux que lui permette son étonnante voix, autrefois une des caractéristiques principales de la musique des Soft. On a cependant par ailleurs largement l'occasion de retrouver le style de batterie de Wyatt, à la fois le moins orthodoxe et un des plus riches qui soit à l'heure actuelle (cf. par exemple "To Mark Everywhere"). Mais l'utilisation des percussions va bien au-delà de la batterie elle-même : effets acoustiques et électroniques les plus divers sont largement employés (cf. "To Carla, Marsha and Caroline").

Musicalement on est donc tout aussi loin de la pop qu'avec "Fourth". Les références sont essentiellement la musique contemporaine (entre autres Terry Riley, bien sûr) et le jazz moderne. Mais la démarche est en général différente de celle suivie aujourd'hui par les Soft, et rappelle souvent le climat de fusion créatrice de certains enregistrements de free-jazz, plutôt que le self-control quasi absolu pratiqué par Ratledge et Hopper. L'aspect spontané de la musique a pour corollaire son côté extraverti : la plupart des titres sont dédiés à des amis dont certains sont des membres notoires de la "famille Soft" : Daevid Allen et Gilly Smyth, Bridget Saint-John (folk-singer mais aussi collaboratrice éventuelle de Kevin Ayers), "Mark" (probablement Mark Ellidge, son demi-frère, qui joue du piano sur le disque), "Nick" (Evans ?), Caravan et "brother Jim" (également désigné ainsi sur les disques de Caravan : il s'agit du frère de leur guitariste Pye, Jim Hastings, saxophoniste présent également sur "Third" et "Fourth"). "Au vieux monde" aussi ! Les amis, on les retrouve aussi parmi les musiciens : David Sinclair (organiste de Caravan), Cyrille Ayers (femme de Kevin). Et puis Elton Dean, remarquable comme toujours et très bien secondé par Mark Charig (cornet). "The End of an Ear" représente ainsi une autre facette de ce que l'on sera peut-être bientôt obligé d'appeler la "musique Soft", courant de plus en plus discernable de tout autre étiquette, pop ou jazz, et uni par une parenté profonde et toujours sensible, au-delà de divergences parfois considérables dans la forme comme dans l'esprit, des Soft eux-mêmes jusqu'à Caravan en passant par Gong.

More information about this album

Third
1970

Soft Machine

Les 1001 ALBUMS QU'IL FAUT AVOIR ÉCOUTÉS DANS SA VIE - 2006 - Flammarion

Soft Machine - Third - CBS Direction artistique : John Hays

DN

Enregistré en quatre jours, Third de Soft Machine montre un groupe britannique au sommet de son art et, en même temps, en pleine tourmente. Le rock progressif devient dominant et le reste du groupe se lasse de la voix de Robert Wyatt - alors que lui en a assez de leur désir intransigeant de faire une musique plus sérieuse et jazzy.
Moon in june est la dernière création de ce dernier pour Soft Machine, et probablement le chef-d'oeuvre du groupe, même si les autres membres ne l'apprécient pas vraiment (on découvre sur la pochette que Wyatt est sur ce morceau à la basse et à l'orgue, instruments habituellement joués par Hugh Hopper et Mike Ratledge). Il mêle de vieux airs de Soft Machine à de nouvelles parties dominées par l'autodénigrement enjoué de Wyatt. Un autre enregistrement de cette suite vocale sur Peel Sessions, plus récent, est encore plus irrévérencieux, se moquant même de Ratledge. Parmi les autres titres, Facelift de Hopper, où l'on retrouve les huit membres du groupe, est probablement le plus difficile, fascinant et amusant. La pochette du vinyle original indique que Slightly all the time comprend quarante secondes du Noisette de Hopper, à vous de les identifier !
À l'intérieur de l'album, on découvre une photo formidable des membres principaux de ce groupe, étonnamment sous-estimé.

SOUNDS - # 21 - September '70

Soft Machine - Third - CBS S-66248

RB

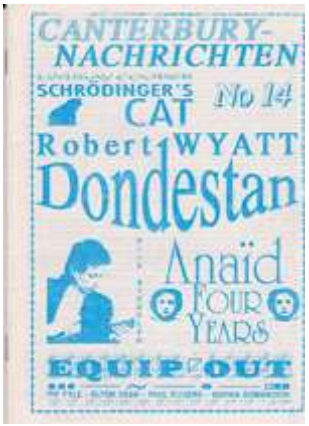
Das neue Soft Machine Album finde ich über weite Strecken zu kühl, zu sachlich, zu klassisch und intelektuell. Das excitement der Rockmusik ist verloren gegangen. Das wird deutlich in Stücken wie "Facelift" oder "Slightly All The Time", einer modalen Komposition à la Miles Davis von 1960. Diese Blutleere in der Soft Machine Musik, die live zu erleben immer noch ein Genuß ist, wird vielleicht auch der Grund dafür gewesen sein, daß Drummer und Sänger Robert Wyatt die Gruppe verlassen hat.

Wyatt's Stück "The Moon In June" ist denn auch das befriedigendste der insgesamt vier Stücke (plus kleinen eingeschobenen Kompositionen)..

LES INROCKS HORS-SERIE - LES 100 MEILLEURS ALBUMS ANGLAIS - 2016

Third - Soft Machine - CBS

Francis Dordor



1970 marque un tournant dans l'histoire de ce rock anglais auquel on a substitué le qualificatif "progressif" à celui de "psychédélique". Le Soft Machine de Third correspond d'autant plus à cette transition que le groupe de Canterbury a complètement muté avec les départs successifs des membres originaux David Allen et Kevin Ayers et l'arrivée du saxophoniste Elton Dean. Mais si l'on doit parler bouleversement, il est avant tout musical, la ligne dadaïste des deux premiers albums se trouvant supplantée ici par celle beaucoup plus jazz qu'impose le claviériste Mike Ratledge, q*ui signe ici deux compositions, les renversantes Slightly All the Time et Out-Bloody-Rageous*. Le terme "jazz" n'a d'ailleurs que la valeur d'un repère de commodité, tant cette musique extraordinairement aventureuse traverse les genres avec autorité et poésie, intégrant aussi bien les principes sériels que la fusion postcoltranienne, capable d'engendrer en dernier ressort un ovni absolu comme Moon in June, génial vagabondage chanté par Robert Wyatt, alors batteur ambidextre à la voix d'ange endolori.

CANTERBURY NACHRICHTEN - N° 14 - Oktober 1991

Soft Machine - Third & As If... (Sampler)

(88) EEC Charly LIKD 35
US Columbia CGK 30339
(91) UK Elite 006CDP

Zu "Third" kamen wahrscheinlich die meisten Anfragen, ob das

Doppelalbum denn nun endlich auf CD raussei? Und Immer lautete die Antwort: Nein, gibt's leider noch nicht. Beim Blättern in einem alten Record Collector von 1988 (!) - wer hat denn da gepennt? -stach dann eine Kritik von "Third on CD" mit der Charly Bestellummer in's Auge. Diese zu bestellen schlug zwar fehl, doch dafür kam die amerikanische CD, was ja auch nicht weiter schlimm ist. Also nicht mehr schreiben, es gibt sie endlich ... Ich glaube, ich habe hier auch schon mal geschrieben, daß die Platte fantastisch ist, besonders "Moon in June". Falls nicht, wißt ihr es jetzt. (Um euch das Porto zu sparen: ob es die Charly-CD wirklich gibt, weiß Ich nicht & es ist alles drauf auf der einen CD: 75:22 Minuten. Und "As if ..." enthält nur bekanntes Material, s. Bemerkung unter CAMEL) Übrigens geht die Mär von einem holländischen Video namens "Psychomania", das Aufnahmen von SOFT MACHINE aus dem Jahre 1967 des holländischen Fernsehens enthalten soll - näheres ist noch nicht bekannt.

MELODY MAKER - May 30, 1970

Soft Machine album an MM preview

Richard Williams

IT MUST be hard for a lot of people to understand that, in France, the Soft Machine are one of the top three or four bands. Hard because they mean little in Britain as yet, although they can pack the Fairfield Hall and command a week's residence at the Ronnie Scott Club.

Their first two albums were released first in the States on the Probe label, and only the second of these was put out in Britain, after a considerable timelag. These omissions will be rectified early next month, when their new double-album will appear under a new contract with CBS.
The album, called simply "Third", resembles Pink Floyd's "Ummagumma" in that each member of the band has been given complete freedom. Bassist Hugh Hopper and drummer Robert Wyatt have one side each, while organist / pianist Mike Ratledge has two.
It opens with Hopper's "Facelift," which is actually a collage of two live performances (from the Fairfield Hall and Mothers in Birmingham, both last January) plus, some tape-loops overlayed by Hopper later on. Most of the material is from the Fairfield concert, and the side opens with the extraordinary organ solo with which the second half began.
Ratledge is now probably the most resourceful and inventive organist anywhere, making most other practitioners sound academic with his sliding pitch-warps and visceral gobs of sound.
The " bugged" soprano (Lyn Dobson) and alto (Elton Dean) play a Zappalike theme, which segues quickly into a very percussive 7/4 tune, with Wyatt asserting himself strongly behind the organ solo. Dobson solos well on flute and electric soprano, and it's back to the theme, wich is played forwards before the tape is reversed to give a pyramid effect.
Ratledge's "Slightly All The Time" starts with harmonics on the bass, and Dean's overdubbed alto and saxello play a theme which has a strong jazz flavour. Dean solos on alto over a ponderous bass progression, being interrupted occasionally by brief two-horn riffs which are introduced each time by a staccato organ phrase. A flute solo by Jimmy Hastings develops into a written flute loop, which repeats on top of the saxes' theme, and the saxello and organ solo over a 9/4 pattern. The track fades with a stately theme voiced by the reeds, fuzz organ, and fuzz bass.

Robert Wyatt's "Moon In June" features a great deal of the drummer's highly unorthodox singing, with that cool, pure tone which is most effective in the improved passages, especially when doctored with echo. Robert played most of the organ and electric piano on this track, Ratledge only coming in for a solo near the end.
Finally there's Ratledge's "Out - bloody - rageous," which opens in startling fashion with piano tapes played backwards, all based on progressions of the bass line which underpins the main theme. This theme is again played by Dean on overdubbed alto and saxello, and trombonist Nick Evans makes a couple of brief appearances. Dean has an extraordinary beautiful alto solo before the track ends with another tape collage, this time of the electric piano overdubbed three or four times, playing phrases of differing lengths which gradually contract.
The Softs are an exhilarating band, and listening to them can be like jumping off a cliff into a pool of freezing water. The new album is full of music of such fine, invigorating quality, and their crucial importance in the future of popular music cannot be denied.

ROCK'N'FOLK - N° 43 - août 1970

Third - Soft Machine

Melmoth (aka Dashiell Hedayat)

Le bruit. Là, depuis toujours. À votre oreille. Pourtant vous ne l'avez jamais écouté. Les fredonnements incertaines – hésités, cassés puis repris – la voix blanche : débris de refrains, coq à l'âne de comptines à moitié oubliées, lania lanières à tue-tête ou chuchotées, « pour rien » dites-vous, sinon à éclairer le noir des couloirs, à rameuter les rêves et avec les sommeil. Écoutez les rêves, passez de l'autre côté du miroir. De là votre regard étonné va découvrir l'impensable beauté : le bruit et la musique sont une seule et même chose, votre chant-bas est aussi bien un « beau » chant (bel canto). Dada l'avait dit, lorsqu'il était là (au second disque) mais en parler c'était encore faire confiance aux mots – donc d'une certaine façon à la Kultur. Seule la musique par sa propre convulsion (belle) pouvait nous livrer le secret de son origine : qu'elle ne que bruit. « Facelift » non pas ascension de la musique vers la lumière, mais convulsion du bruit « devenu » musique. « Devenu » par la magie dérisoire d'un mot. Où finit le bruit, où commence la musique ? Où le jour, où la nuit ? Wyatt sous les lueurs blafardes de juin « Moon in june » en muezzin. La voix blanche a hésité d'une psalmodie déchirée sur une question aussi dérisoire. À la faveur de la nuit nous libérons cette envie de chante que la Musique (celle qui s'écrit avec un grand M) nous interdit. À la faveur des rêves (tout le monde chante comme Wyatt, la beauté est partout, en vous, par vous, et qu'importe la lumière et l'ombre, le beau et le laid). Subversion de/par la musique. Depuis toujours que vous chantez ; ce n'était pas pour « rien ». Depuis toujours qu'il y a du bruit. Mais le voyant (celui qui vous a donné à voir) se damne par son projet même ; là fît sa souffrance : (contradiction insurmontable) que SA musique recule les limites de LA musique. À peine (depuis) toujours, « Slightly all the time » Ascension vers la lumière. Zarathoustra nous a dit que là est une façon de bonheur et l'Orient est une libération par la répétitif. À peine toujours. Les enfants prennent plaisir à se regarder pleurer à un miroir – oublié pourquoi ils pleuraient. Le malaise cependant persiste – sans doute la présence signalée par le texte intérieur de « Noisette », fruit ou couleur mais plus sûrement petit bruit. Inaudible. Là, pourtant. Sans doute pour casser le dernier accord ; le changer en ce hurlement grotesque par quoi tout le calme de cette plage bascule soudain vers le cauchemar, la colère blanche « Out-bloody rageous » d'être impuissant à dépasser l'indépassable contradiction, à transformer le monde – « bruit » - en un monde sa composition – à changer la vie. Retour obsédant du bruit sur lequel les musiciens qui se sont crus un instant des Dieux doivent à nouveau PLAQUER (coller) leur musique. Avec ses distinctions imbéciles, ses garde-FOUS, la Kultur reprend ses droits. La musique – blanche de colère – n'a plus qu'à s'autodétruire dans l'espoir (« Hope for Hapiness ») qu'un jour l'art aura le goût de la vie. C'est-à-dire que seule la vie sera pensable.

« Le plaisir limité de se détruire risque fort de détruire en fin de compte le pouvoir qui le limite ». R. Vaneigem… Constat d'échec – réussite de cette musique. Schoenberg (une autre série est possible), Webern (toute série est possible), Cage (tout son), Coltrane (toute musique est vous – solo – votre voix), les Beatles (tout flonflon est beau), Sun Ra (la musique est ascension vers la lumière)… third, cette ascension même. Flash, c'est-à-dire image-idée-convulsion. Date dans l'histoire de la musique, si date avait encore un sens.
Je laisse aux flics de Melody Maker le soin de vous expliquer que Wyatt n'a pas une belle voix (parce que « blanche » - ? – sans doute) et à quelques autres les influences de Coltrane sur le jeu de Dean (plus utile eût été de nous montrer à quel point le jeu de Dean est plus précis, plus « mescalin » que celui de Coltrane – chaleur élastique qui étreint), de Terry Riley sur le traitement des sons par Hopper (or chez Riley la question de la situation du musicien par rapport au matériau sonore est pose différemment). Et encore quelques sujets de dissertation pour vous : le soft machine et Dada, – l'Orient –, Brech-Weill (Alabama-Song in Moon in June), Sly & Family Stone, - Platon (conscient inconscient chez Ratledge), - l'Acide (in friends : « notre musique est à l'attention des défoncés »)… commentez et discutez. Je hais les critiques et leur prétention à montrer quand ils dissimulent. Ils n'écouteront pas Third. Sur leurs tombes nous écrirons : « Morts de beauté violente ». En avant le SOFT POWER : - MELMOTH.

More information about Dashiell Hedayat

TRAVERSES - N° 33 - juin 2013

Soft Machine Third - 1970 - par John Hays et Jurgen D. Ensthaler

Eric Deshayes

Third de SOFT MACHINE est un immense album, de ceux que l'on découvre avec stupeur et que l'on réécoute toujours avec un plaisir intense en se préparant à être simultanément saisi par la beauté et l'effroi. On s'attardera ici essentiellement sur la pochette du disque, c'est le but, mais il est nécessaire de décrire le contenu musical à grands traits de marqueur sur paperboard pour les éventuels lecteurs de Traverses qui n'auraient plus en tête le plan d'ensemble de ce monument historique. Third, le troisième album de SOFT MACHINE, ce sont quatre monstres d'environ dix-neuf minutes chacun : Facelift, Slightly All The Time, Moon In June et Out-Bloody-Rageous, chacun occupant l'une des quatre faces du double 33 tours d'origine. Chaque titre érode les côtes du continent jazz-rock par un phénomène de marées à très fort coefficient. Le bulletin de météo marine indique brume, houle, douceur lunaire et vents violents. Les auditeurs sujets au mal de mer sont priés de se munir d'un gros paquet de bonbons à la menthe ou de fumer les plantes de leur choix. Tout voyage s'accompagne de certains désagréments imprévisibles, mais ils sont généralement vite effacés de la mémoire par un émerveillement d'une intensité insoupçonnée une fois la destination atteinte.

La pochette elle-même n'a rien d'une brochure d'agence de voyages. Elle a l'apparence d'un matériau dépourvu de toute noblesse : du papier kraft, celui dont on se sert pour les emballages et les envois postaux. Pratique, neutre et solide. Il faut l'ouvrir pour voir intégralement s'étaler le lettrage : THIRD THIRD THIRD. Trois fois « THIRD » crayonné sur du papier kraft. Pas de peinture, ni à l'huile, ni à l'eau, ni à l'acrylique, pas d'encre de Chine, pas de feutre, pas de crayon de couleur, pas de montage de photos dispendieux, rien que du crayon à papier, uniquement du « crayon gris », griffonné par John HAYS. Il a déjà conçu la pochette du premier album d'ELMER GANTRY'S VELVET OPERA (du proto-prog post-Beatles de 1968). Il concevra les pochettes des albums Fourth et Fifth de SOFT MACHINE et celles de plusieurs albums du chanteur soûl anglais Géorgie FAME. Pour Third, John HAYS exerce l'art du graphisme dans sa plus simple expression : la typographie. On lui accordera tout de même une certaine habileté à créer du volume, il en faut pour SOFT MACHINE, notamment en travaillant les jeux d'ombres sur le troisième THIRD. Précisons qu'il fallait faire vite : hormis Facelift, capté lors de deux concerts en janvier, l'album est enregistré le 6 mai 1970 et sort seulement un mois plus tard, le 6 juin 1970. Pas de temps à perdre en post-production. Emballez, c'est pesé, envoyez ça direct à l'usine de pressage !

La pochette intérieure ne demande pas plus de travail, tout simplement une photo «panoramique ». La photo du groupe est prise dans un appartement par Jurgen D. ENSTHALER. Dès l'instant où on la découvre, on se sent complice, pote avec les SOFT, avachi comme eux sur un sofa, cuvant un bon vin en écoutant un putain de disque. Le panard ! Moi, je m'étais fait une photocopie agrandie de la photo en noir et blanc, celle du CD (je ne connaissais pas encore la version couleur du vinyle), pour la punaiser sur le mur principal de ma chambre de cité universitaire. Mon 9m2 devenait virtuellement une extension du salon des SOFT.

Il faudrait parfois préserver certains fruits de son imagination de toutes recherches empiriques. Les informations glanées pour la rédaction de cet article ont abattu le mythe au fusil de chasse. L'appartement n'est pas celui d'un des membres de SOFT MACHINE. Selon le livre Robert Wyatt : faux mouvements de Michael KING traduit par Yves BALANDRET (Camion Blanc, 1998, page 111), c'est Winfried TRENKLER que l'on distingue en haut à droite de la photo, caché derrière un poteau. Au premier plan les pieds nus qui dépassent sont ceux d'Ingrid BLUM. Beaucoup plus précis, l'ouvrage de Graham BENNETT Soft Machine: Out-Bloody-Rageous (SAF Publishing Ltd, 2005, page 206) indique que la photo a été prise le 4 avril 1970 dans l'appartement des deux journalistes Winfried TRENKLER et Ingrid BLUM, adeptes, comme beaucoup à l'époque psychédélique, d'Optical Art à voir les reproductions affichées sur leurs murs. Winfried TRENKLER fera carrière à la radio WDR 2 en fin spécialiste de rock progressif et de musiques électroniques. Les SOFT MACHINE font un break chez eux, ils sont arrivés à Cologne par avion pour un concert au Sporthalle dans le cadre du Progressive Pop Festival'70. Les SOFT MACHINE se remettent doucement du voyage éprouvant à bord d'un petit avion qui laissait passer le jour et l'air par l'embrasure des portes et dont les vitres étaient givrées de l'intérieur. L'habitacle du coucou n'était pas du tout pressurisé. Elton DEAN en ressortit les tympans sévèrement meurtris et n'avait pas encore récupéré la totalité de ses facultés auditives lorsqu'il monta sur scène. Ainsi donc, ceux que l'on a longtemps cru être des musiciens photographiés dans un doux moment de méditation fraternelle sont en fait sonnés par leur déplacement dans un zinc de transport de fret, celui qui transportait leur matériel. Ils se sont écroulés chez de quasi inconnus, éreintés, assourdis. Ils viennent d'enfiler quelques bières et une bouteille de vin rouge en accompagnement d'un en-cas dont il ne reste aucune miette dans leurs petites assiettes à dessert, peut-être un peu d'omelette. Ils ont un concert à assurer dans les heures qui viennent.

Légende de la photo de pochette intérieure : Elton DEAN, Hugh HOPPER et Mike RATLEDGE et Robert WYATT. Derrière le poteau : Winfried TRENKLER. Premier plan : les pieds d' Ingrid BLUM.

JUKEBOX MAGAZINE - N° 164 - avril 2001

Le rock progressif anglais (2) - 9 pièces maîtresses - 1970-72
Soft Machine - 1970 - The Third (CBS 66246 UK).

Luc Marianni

Ce disque représente la première longue suite sortie au milieu de l'année 1970. En fait, il n'y en a pas une mais quatre sur ce double album, véritable merveille qui concilie toutes les tendances de la recherche musicale de pointe de l'époque. Nous sommes au confluent du jazz, du free, de la pop, du rock, de la musique répétitive et contemporaine, de la recherche électronique et de la mélodie. Quelle classe !

Soft Machine, comme Pink Floyd, vient du mouvement psychédélique. Comme son nom l'indique, c'est une magnifique machine molle, dans le sens où ce groupe n'a jamais trouvé, durant son existence de 1966 à 1982, une véritable unité de personnes. En effet, le guitariste australien Daevid Allen est parti dès les débuts, après les premières séances mais avant l'enregistrement du premier album qui a été suivi du départ du bassiste Kevin Ayers, intégrant la grande nébuleuse des anciens de Soft Machine. Cas unique, il est le seul à avoir une formation finale totalement différente de son origine, sans aucun membre commun. « The Third », qui voit le jour le 4 juillet 1970, est enregistré par Mike Ratledge (claviers), Robert Wyatt (batterie, chant), les deux survivants des débuts, rejoints par Hugh Hopper (basse) et Elton Dean (cuivres) plus, comme invités, Nick Evans (trombone), Jimmy Hastings (flûte, clarinette), Lyn Dobson (flûte, saxo) et Rab Spall (violon). Album double, quatre morceaux, un par face et un seul chanté, « The Moon In June ». C'est l'œuvre de Robert Wyatt, batteur et chanteur, qui laisse éclater en 19 minutes une pluie de sensation, un torrent de surprise, un océan de tendresse. Le feeling ici dépasse toutes les limites. Cassures de rythme incessantes dues à un assemblage hétéroclite et pourtant parfait de petites mélodies, voix attachante, jeu de batterie rarement égalé dans la subtilité et la douceur percussive (Robert Wyatt devra pourtant abandonner la batterie quelques années plus tard suite à une paralysie des jambes due à une chute). Authentique œuvre qui évolue au fil du temps avec des paroles souvent improvisées qui se transforment d'une version à l'autre. Folie et unité, un concept peu concevable aujourd'hui dans le monde technologique régit par l'ordinateur. « The Third » est d'ailleurs la dernière œuvre de Soft Machine enregistrée avec le chant de Robert Wyatt, le groupe se tournant ensuite vers le free jazz puis le jazz-rock, ce qui en fait un groupe à part, déterminant dans l'univers progressif anglais. Il engendrera des émules, des courants parallèles et des musiques nouvelles (avec Henry Cow, l'excellent groupe français Pataphonie dont le second LP est réédité en CD chez Muséa, ou encore les Belges de Univers Zéro).

JAZZ MAGAZINE - N° 658 - février 2014

Dossier Jazz & Pop
Soft Machine - Third - 1970 - Columbia.

Franck Bergerot

Qui découvre aujourd'hui ces quatre suites - une par face de Lp, aujourd'hui en un seul CD - sourira peut-être de ce pré-jazz-rock post-ornettien psycho-minimaliste qui en constitue les trois faces instrumentales. L'orgue de Mike Ratledge sonne comme un jouet, le vocabulaire d'Elton Dean est étriqué, le drumming de Robert Wyatt est foutraque, l'abominable prise de son est l'objet d'impensables bidouillages. On peut lui préférer l'album "4", décrié parce qu'il illustre la mise sur la touche de Robert Wyatt comme chanteur et compositeur, mais qui fait bonne figure dans la discographie du jazz anglais. Pourtant, les instrumentaux de "Third" ont marqué leur époque (jazzmen compris). Evidemment datés, ils portent la patine du fol imaginaire pop des sixties où tout s'inventait avec les moyens du bord. Reste la face 3, Moon in June, le grand poème de Robert Wyatt qu'il a enregistré quasiment seul moyennant quelques montages. Aboutissement des deux précédents albums, tête de pont d'une œuvre solo à venir, il irradie les trois autres faces de l'album (peut-être même les deux faces de "4") et, depuis, n'a cessé de hanter des zones entières du jazz.

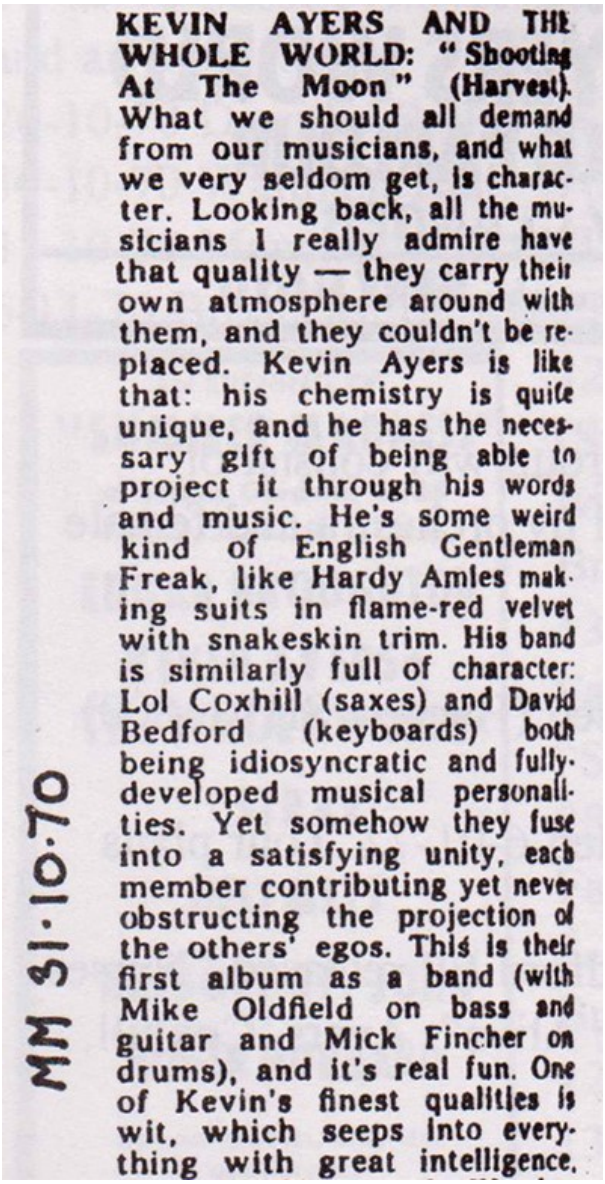
More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

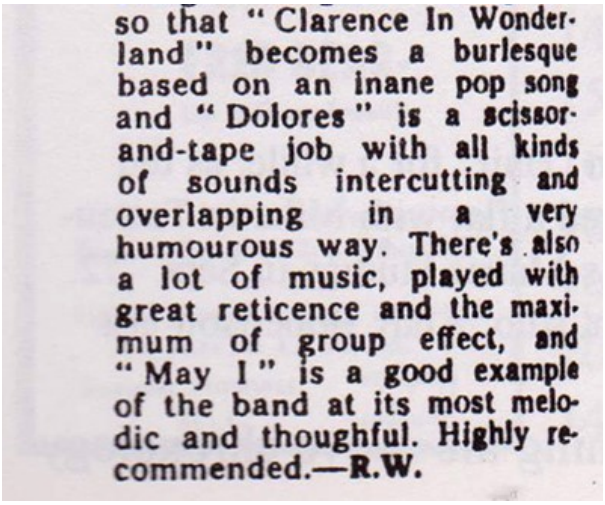
Shooting At The Moon
1970



Kevin Ayers And
The Whole World

More information about this album

NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS - 31.10.70

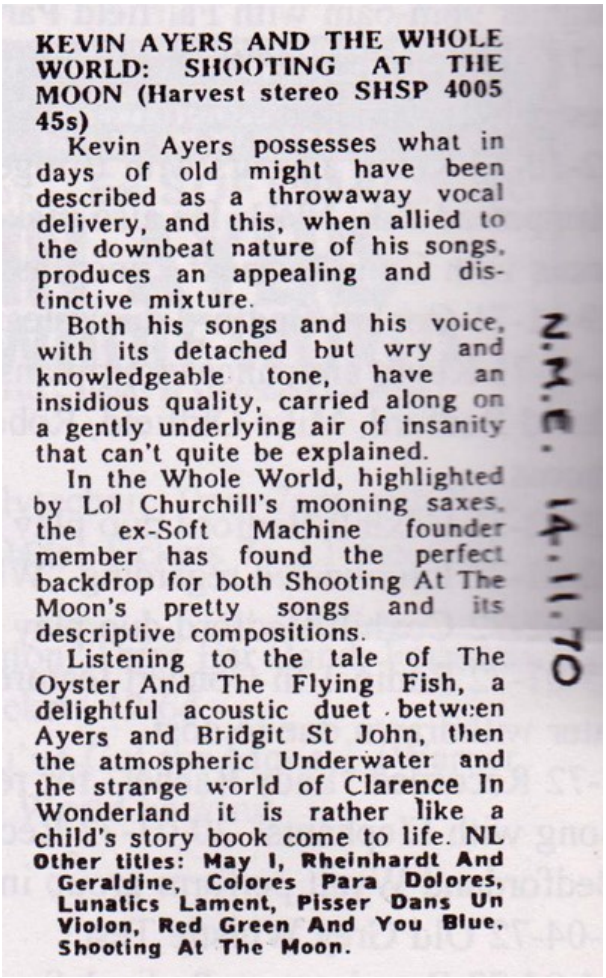


Kevin Ayers And The Whole World - Shooting At The Moon (Harvest)

R.W.

KEVIN AYERS AND THE WHOLE WORLD: "Shooting At The Moon" (Harvest). What we should all demand from our musicians, and what we very seldom get, is character. Looking back, all the musicians I really admire have that quality — they carry their own atmosphere around with them, and they couldn't be replaced. Kevin Ayers is like that: his chemistry is quite unique, and he has the necessary gift of being able to project it through his words and music. He's some weird kind of English Gentleman Freak, like Hardy Amies making suits in flame-red velvet with snakeskin trim. His band is similarly full of character: Lol Coxhill (saxes) and David Bedford (keyboards) both being idiosyncratic and fully-developed musical personalities. Yet somehow they fuse into a satisfying unity, each member contributing yet never obstructing the projection of the others' egos. This is their first album as a band (with Mike Oldfield on bass and guitar and Mick Fincher on drums), and it's real fun. One of Kevin's finest qualities is wit, which seeps into everything with great intelligence.

MM 31·10·70



so that "Clarence In Wonderland" becomes a burlesque based on an inane pop song and "Dolores" is a scissor-and-tape job with all kinds of sounds intercutting and overlapping in a very humourous way. There's also a lot of music, played with great reticence and the maximum of group effect, and "May I" is a good example of the band at its most melodic and thoughful. Highly recommended.—R.W.

NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS - 14.11.70

Kevin Ayers And The Whole World - Shooting At The Moon (Harvest stereo SHSP 4005 45s)

NL

KEVIN AYERS AND THE WHOLE WORLD: SHOOTING AT THE MOON (Harvest stereo SHSP 4005 45s)

Kevin Ayers possesses what in days of old might have been described as a throwaway vocal delivery, and this, when allied to the downbeat nature of his songs, produces an appealing and distinctive mixture.

Both his songs and his voice, with its detached but wry and knowledgeable tone, have an insidious quality, carried along on a gently underlying air of insanity that can't quite be explained.

In the Whole World, highlighted by Lol Churchill's mooning saxes, the ex-Soft Machine founder member has found the perfect backdrop for both Shooting At The Moon's pretty songs and its descriptive compositions.

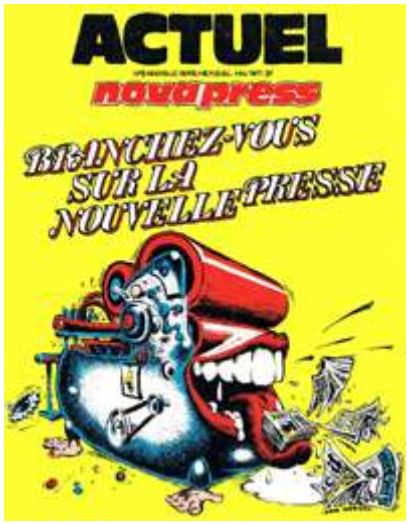
Listening to the tale of The Oyster And The Flying Fish, a delightful acoustic duet between Ayers and Bridgit St John, then the atmospheric Underwater and the strange world of Clarence In Wonderland it is rather like a child's story book come to life. NL

Other titles: May I, Rheinhardt And Geraldine, Colores Para Dolores, Lunatics Lament, Pisser Dans Un Violon, Red Green And You Blue, Shooting At The Moon.

N.M.E. 14.11.70

More information about this album

Fourth
1971



Soft Machine

More information about this album

ACTUEL - N° 8 - mai 1971

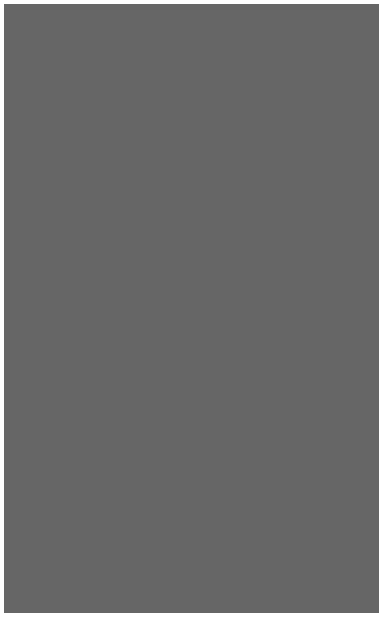
Les Pops du jazz" (Soft Machine - "Fourth")

Paul Inconnu

... L'intrusion du jazz dans la pop a entraîné un appel à la respectabilité. Mais le renouvellement qu'il apporte reste l'aspect essentiel. De la même manière, l'orientation définitivement technique et jazzistique du Soft Machine (dans le quatrième album) s'affirme dans la complexité des apports sonores (cuivres), la construction rigoureuse. Mais surtout dans la négation complète de la voix au profit d'une musique instrumentale. Si le volume sonore reste puissant, ce n'est plus l'orgasme des sons, cette masse agglutinée et effrayante de la première époque. Ce n'est plus, de même, le temps des comptines, des petites suites dadaïstes, les susurrements de la voix voilée de Robert Wyatt.

Ce qui tend à rendre la musique du Soft Machine proche de celle de Miles Davis, ce qui peut être de la même manière affirmé pour le disque de Robert Wyatt, (The End of an Ear).

Cette orientation de tout un courant de la pop vers le jazz, l'intrusion du jazz et de ses musiciens dans la pop tendent à faire éclater la belle unité du mouvement musical. Les différentes voies sont comme autant de cassures qui viennent s'installer dans la musique pop....



BEST - N° 36 - juillet 1971

SOFT MACHINE - "Fourth" (Barclay 080.439)
Teeth ; Kings and Queens ; Flepcher's Telmish ; Virtually.

Hervé Muller

L'histoire de la musique de la Machine Molle, au fur et à mesure de ses changements, peut se résumer à la lutte — ou équilibre instable — entre deux tendances, deux modes d'expression. Radicalement opposées dans leur esprit, plus que dans leur forme, elles correspondent en fait à la personnalité des divers membres du groupe. L'une, celle de Daevid Allen, de Kevin Ayers, de Robert Wyatt, vise à une forme de création tournée vers l'extérieur, une explosion. C'est celle du premier album, celle du Whole World aussi, mais seul le Gong en représente vraiment un développement autonome, bien au-delà des Soft du début. L'autre tendance, celle de Ratledge, des frères Hopper, d'Elton Dean, est totalement tournée vers l'intérieur — je ne crois pas qu'il existe musicien plus indifférent au public que Mike Ratledge —. C'est la création pure, l'implosion. Cette tendance triomphe avec ce quatrième album parce qu'elle est arrivée à une totale maturité d'expression, y compris dans l'improvisation. Robert Wyatt n'est plus ici présent que dans la mesure où il la sert,à savoir par son jeu de batterie plus stupéfiant que jamais, unique, véritable pulsion vitale de la musique des Soft, peut-être justement parce qu'il relève plutôt de l'autre tendance. Par contre ici, il ne compose plus, ni ne chante, et il reporte ses besoins d'expression vers l'extérieur, en particulier dans un album solo.
« Fourth » est un disque absolument prodigieux. S'il est un groupe qui ait jamais pu prétendre à la perfection, c'est le Soft Machine. y a plus dans une minute de cet enregistrement que la plupart des groupes ne réaliseront jamais.
Pourtant, c'est aussi une impasse. Non pas pour le Soft, dont l'ésotérisme, dans cet album pourtant supérieur à tous les précédents, laisse entrevoir des possibilités créatrices à peu près infinies. Mais une impasse pour ce qu'il est convenu d'appeler la pop-music. Les Soft sont bien au-delà de tout le monde, même des Mothers, mais ils représentent l'achèvement extrême d'une tendance générale : progressive pop, dit-on parfois. Recherche formelle et complexité technique de plus en plus poussés à tous les niveau de la création et de l'interprétation.
Beaucoup finissent par s'y embourber, s'égarant, au cours de cette recherche frénétique, dans les artifices les plus variés ; et même les meilleurs n'aboutissent, le plus souvent, qu'à un résultat hybride, un peu monstrueux. On en arrive à la situation paradoxale d'avoir une production énorme, d'un niveau de qualité jamais vu auparavant, et pourtant bien plus insatisfaisante qu'il y a cinq ans. Seul, pratiquement, le Soft Machine a réalisé une musique pure, mais qu'a-t-il encore à voir avec la pop-music ? L'évolution actuelle de la pop atteint un étonnant degré d'absurde: de par son évolution qualitative elle se nie. « Fourth » est peut-être plus proche de certaines tendances modernes du jazz, parce que lui aussi a évolué dans cette direction, mais sans que cela soit dans son cas contradictoire. Il y avait longtemps qu'il avait perdu toute vocation de musique populaire. Alors ? Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young, à vouloir trop utiliser le folk comme un moyen, s'essouffle. Faudrait-il se résigner à toujours retomber soit dans la variété, soit dans le hard-rock ? Une lueur d'espoir peut-être du côté de groupes comme Band, Sea Train, Byrds, Gong, mais dans l'ensemble c'est l'impasse à plus ou moins brève échéance. Que ces considérations pessimistes ne vous empêchent pas, en tout cas, de profiter pleinement de ce chef-d'œuvre qu'est le quatrième album du Soft Machine.

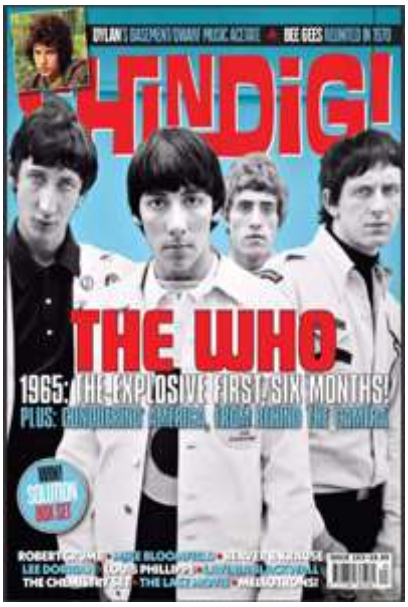
More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME



Matching Mole
1972

More information about this album

SHINDIG! - N° 163 - May 2025

MATCHING MOLE - O'Caroline from Matching Mole - CBS 1972

AM

Choosing to open their debut album with a stark five-minute break-up song, Matching Mole-pieced together by Robert Wyatt and assorted journeyman pals following Wyatt's escape from Soft Machine - instantly stood to one side of the prevailing prog-jazz tropes of the day.
'O'Caroline' is almost a solo piece, Wyatt's multi-tracked vocals recounting the end of his relationship with counterculture artist and activist Caroline Coon. Wyatt picks out the melody using the Mellotron's much-favoured flute setting during the song's first 60 seconds - it still sounds like the perfect advocacy of the instrument, leading supporter John Peel to comment that it was the least cliched use of the instrument he'd ever heard.

> "Wyatt picks out the melody using the Mellotron's much-favoured flute setting during the song's first 60 seconds – it still sounds like the perfect advocacy of the instrument"

BEST - N° 47 - juin 1972

MATCHING MOLE (CBS 64850 - Réf. anglaise)

Hervé Muller

O Caroline ; Instant Pussy ; Signed curtain ; Part of the dance ; Instant kitten ; Dedicated to Hugh, but you weren't listening ; Beer as in Braindeer ; Immédiate curtain.

Personnel : Robert Wyatt (mellotron, piano, batterie et vocaux), David Sinclair (piano et orgue), Bill McCormick (basse), Phil Miller (guitare), Dave McRae (piano électrique).

Lorsque Robert Wyatt quitta le Soft Machine, où il ne figurait déjà plus que comme batteur, celui-ci devint définitivement un groupe de musique d'avant-garde très ésotérique, s'apparentant plus ou moins au jazz. La tendance extravertie et folle, qui fait toujours du premier LP du Soft le meilleur disque de véritable pop-music jamais enregistré, disparaissait avec son dernier représentant. Rupture inévitable, je suppose, pour que l'autre tendance, passionnante, mais très narcissique, celle de MM. Ratledge, Hopper & Dean, puisse s'exprimer pleinement. Mais la magie de l'ancien Soft, cette magie qui reposait justement sur un équilibre explosif entre les deux tendances, il appartenait à Robert de la perpétrer, lui qui avait toujours été le trait d'union, de par une double orientation musicale qui chez lui confine à la schizophrénie.
D'où Matching Mole (La Taupe Assortie), réplique ironique à la Machine Molle : d'emblée, le nom du groupe donne le ton. Avec Robert, deux très jeunes musiciens, Bill McCormick (basse) et Phil Miller (guitare), et puis un compère musical de longue date, David Sinclair (orgue et piano), autre membre de la famille Soft puisqu'il officiait au sein de Caravan. Cet album n'est déjà plus tellement le reflet de la musique du groupe qui a d'autant plus évolué que Sinclair est déjà parti et a été remplacé par Dave McRae, discrètement présent sur ce disque au piano électrique. Mais il comblera tous les nostalgiques de l'ancien Soft Machine, tous ceux à qui le timbre de voix si particulier de Robert Wyatt manquait cruellement. Et ce dernier profite aussi de l'occasion pour s'exprimer au piano (remarquable sur « Signed curtain ») et même au mellotron, dont il fait une utilisation nettement plus inventive que les Moodies ou Crimson (« Dedicated to Hugh, but you weren't listening »). Le disque a des moments inégaux qu'il faut imputer au fait que la formation était très récente à l'époque de l'enregistrement, mais l'ensemble est largement à la hauteur de ce que l'on pouvait attendre du père Wyatt. « Instant Pussy » et « Instant kitten », c'est toute la magie de « Save yourself » retrouvée.
En fait, je vous renvoie à ces titres parce qu'ils sont écrits sur la pochette, mais c'est un peu arbitraire, car, selon la bonne habitude Soft, chaque face est bien sûr ininterrompue.
David Sinclair, s'il n'est pas Ratledge, est loin d'être sans intérêt (« O Caroline »), le jeune Bill Mac Cormick s'acquitte fort bien de sa tâche, en compagnie d'un tel batteur. Mais c'est surtout Phil Miller qui impressionne. On attend toujours au tournant un guitariste qui s'aventure dans ce genre de contexte musical, mais Phil convainc sans peine. On retrouve dans son jeu l'influence de ses maîtres, Coryell et McLaughlin, mais il s'en montre digne tout en développant son propre style, servi par une imagination sans bornes. Il y a des gens, comme ça, qui ne déçoivent jamais...

IL MUCCHIO SELVAGGIO - n. 538 - dal 17 al 23 giugno 2003

MATCHING MOLE - Matching Mole (CBS, 1972)

Alessandro Besselva Averame

Entrare ed uscire, senza farsi imprigionare, dai confini della canzone, è sempre stata la fissa di Robert Wyatt. Non è un caso che le sue cose migliori abbiano l'aria di essere state concepite come melodie senza guscio, costruzioni improntate su una ricerca melodica e sperimentale al tempo stesso, sfuggente, mai perfettamente definita, portatrice tuttavia di illuminazioni poetiche di rara intensità. Spesso attraverso una voce che Ryuichi Sakamoto ha descritto come "la più triste del mondo". Avanguardia emotiva: si potrebbe inventare questa definizione per comprendere l'opera intera di Wyatt, a partire dall'apporto dato dal musicista inglese ai Soft Machine, fino a quel manifesto poetico, paradossalmente uno dei motivi del suo allontanamento dal gruppo, che era l'inarrivabile Moon In June. Già, perché a Wyatt interessavano sì la complessità e la ricerca, ma le costruzioni musicali della Morbida Macchina iniziavano ad andargli sempre più strette, poiché si stavano allontanando alla velocità della luce dal pop dadaista e psichedelico in cui il talento del musicista era emerso. Semplificando, anche la musica dei Matching Mole, complesso messo in piedi subito dopo l'uscita dai Soft Machine, il cui nome è un'ironica storpiatura in francese di questi ultimi, "Machine Molle", si potrebbe includere nella capiente categoria del jazz rock. Ma sarebbe probabilmente un errore, almeno parziale. Se da un lato c'è una vivace anche se alla lunga prevedibile sintesi di forme, con una componente free progressivamente ingabbiata e stilizzata, e con un'inventiva in fase calante già dopo l'uscita del capolavoro Third, in queste composizioni la componente più anarchica e vitale della ricerca trova il suo compimento, a costo di apparire, a tratti, irrisolta e fuori fuoco.

C'è ben poco di calcolato - o almeno il calcolo, se c'è, è accuratamente mimetizzato - in questa straordinaria pagina free rock dei Settanta. Con l'aiuto di David Sinclair, che ha appena lasciato il posto di tastierista nei Caravan, Phil Miller, versatile chitarrista proveniente dai Delivery e Bill Mac Cormick (già nei Quet Sun di Phil Manzanera) al basso, Wyatt mette in piedi un progetto di cui sarà leader assai democratico, accentratore di energie più che dittatore, dividendosi tra batteria, voce e piano quando occorre avventurarsi nel territorio della canzone vera e propria. Ed è proprio una canzone - nell'accezione che abbiamo dato a inizio pagina - ad aprire l'album d'esordio del gruppo, quella O Caroline che mette giù in poche righe, all'apparenza senza troppe pretese, una love song di abbagliante semplicità, con un battito felpato di batteria e un mellotron che diventa una desolata rappresentazione della malinconia. Matching Mole è tutto un susseguirsi di melodie inserite in agglomerati caotici che cambiano continuamente forma. Se i punti di partenza sono, semplificando e schematizzando, il jazz rock e il progressive, invece dei labirinti un poco claustrofobici di marca Soft Machine troviamo nei Matching Mole brani strumentali pieni di strappi, accelerazioni, esplosioni trattenute, assoli irregolari, due piani elettrici (Sinclair e il più temerario Dave McRae, ospite occasionale, che entrerà in pianta stabile nel gruppo di lì a poco in seguito all'abbandono del primo, non sufficientemente sintonizzato sulla scelta di affrontare i territori dell'improvvisazione) che si inseguono, e una batteria vivissima, liberata dalle necessità miniaturistiche del passato e tuttavia efficacissima nel fare da collante, da tessuto connettivo, a composizioni sempre in bilico tra l'ispirazione del momento e lo spartito. C'è poi l'urgenza di comunicare con il pubblico, un dato, questo, davvero essenziale: uno dei momenti più emozionanti dell'album è Signed Curtain, piano e voce soltanto, una metacanzone che si strugge - la tensione è quasi lacerante, poesia allo stato puro - nel tentativo di stabilire un contatto con il destinatario del messaggio: "E questo è il chorus / o forse il ritornello / o solo un'altra parte della canzone che sto cantando / non ci badate / non è per dar fastidio / significa solo che io / ho perso la fede in questa canzone / perché non mi aiuta a raggiungervi". Un tentativo perfettamente riuscito, al contrario di quanto vogliano farci credere le parole, perché è proprio questa indifesa e nuda umanità, fragile, a provocare empatia, al di là dei pur pregevoli momenti di coesione strumentale (i riff e gli unisoni di Part Of The Dance, l'incalzare di Dedicated To Hugh, But You Weren't Listening); un'anima messa a nudo che non si manifesta solamente attraverso le progressioni vocali, ma è amplificata da un basso malleabile, da una chitarra che non esce mai dai binari nonostante la densità dei fraseggi, da un piano elettrico irrequieto ed errante, liquido e colloso. Troppo aperto per resistere all'usura del tempo, il progetto naufragherà subito dopo un secondo album non del tutto convincente, nonostante gli sprazzi geniali, Little Red Record. Ma Wyatt ritroverà ben presto, Rock Bottom è a pochi metri, il filo del discorso, quello di una musica liberata e libertaria che è sempre stata il fulcro dell'epopea canterburyana. Di quella effimera meraviglia, confluenza di stili e generi vitale per pochi ma fondamentali anni, e di cui forse troppo si è detto e scritto, magari non sempre a proposito, Matching Mole resta uno dei momenti più alti.

ROCK'N'FOLK - HORS-SERIE N° 34 - 1954-2016 - LA GRANDE DISCOTHEQUE - décembre 2016

MATCHING MOLE - Matching Mole - CBS

Philippe Thieyre

Lorsque Robert Wyatt, qui a toujours eu le sens de l'humour et une certaine francophilie, quitte, — plus ou moins contraint et forcé, Soft Machine, il forme Matching Mole, bien qu'il ait déjà un album solo à son actif ("The End Of An Ear"). Aux côtés du chanteur/ batteur, on retrouve David Sinclair, pianiste/ organiste de Caravan, le guitariste Phil Miller, habituel associé de Carol Grimes et de Lol Coxhill, et le bassiste Bill MacCormick. Bien sûr lorsqu'on évoque le nom de Robert Wyatt, on pense immanquablement à Soft Machine et à "Rock Bottom", un des grands disques du XXe siècle à l'influence considérable, mais on aurait tort d'en négliger pour autant les œuvres antérieures ou postérieures. Ainsi il est indispensable de se procurer ce "Matching Mole" paru en avril 1972, ne serait-ce que pour le premier morceau. "O Caroline" est en effet une superbe chanson, composée par Sinclair et Wyatt, qui préfigure, deux ans plus tôt, "Rock Bottom". Tout de grâce et de légèreté, drapée dans les subtiles textures de l'orgue, elle est transcendée par la voix céleste de Robert Wyatt et aurait dû embraser le monde entier, devenir numéro un partout et rapporter à ses auteurs de quoi vivre pendant mille ans. Difficile d'égaler cette merveille. Pourtant les sept plages suivantes, dans des styles différents, ne sont pas mal non plus. "Instant Pussy" et "Signed Curtain" se situent dans la filiation directe de "Moon In June", pièce majeure du "Soft Machine Third". Les paroles y cèdent plutôt la place à des vocalises, la voix étant utilisée à la façon d'une trompette comme lors d'une improvisation de jazz. Ce qui est également le cas pour "Instant Kitten" quoique sur un tempo plus rapide. "Part Of The Dance", longue plage instrumentale, porte la signature de Phil Miller, du jazz-rock avec de beaux duos orgue/ guitare, traité dans l'esprit de ce que l'on a appelé l'école de Canterbury. "Beer As In Braindeer" opère dans un registre un peu plus free alors que "Dedicated To Hugh, But You Weren't Listening" est un autre instrumental jazzy dont le titre est un clin d'œil ironique à Hugh Hopper, le bassiste de Soft Machine. Tous ces morceaux mettent également en évidence le jeu très fin du batteur Robert Wyatt. Pour clore le disque, "Immédiate Curtain" envoie planer l'auditeur dans la stratosphère à grandes envolées de Mellotron.

ROCK & FOLK - 1972 (?)

MATCHING MOLE
O Caroline. Instant Pussy. Signed curtain. Part of the dance.

Instant kitten. Dedicated to Hugh, but you weren't listening.
Beer as in braindeer. Immediate curtain.
CBS 64.850/30 cm

Paul Alessandrini

Un disque qui symbolise la naissance d'un groupe; celui qui voit aussi renaître un Robert Wyatt, que la nouvelle orientation du Soft Machine (purement instrumentale) avait éteint. Un retour de Robert Wyatt et de ses comptines, de sa voix qui susurre plus qu'elle ne chante. Si la sonorité d'ensemble du groupe rappelle aussi celle du premier Soft Machine, c'est aussi que David Sinclair, qui a depuis quitté Matching Mole, a une approche ratledgienne de l'orgue. Ce nouveau groupe ne se veut pas pour autant un groupe-souvenir tourné vers le passé. Bien au contraire, sur ce territoire recouvré, il s'essaye à plus encore de modernisme en exploitant comme Robert Wyatt l'avait déjà fait dans son album solo « The end of an ear » les ressources du studio pour distendre le son, construire par tout un jeu d'échos, de miroirs, une nouvelle approche de la musique, qui elle ne sera pas pour autant glacée, artificielle. C'est que Robert Wyatt et son groupe réaffirment la prédominance de la jouissance et du désir: plaisir, ivresse que Robert Wyatt, sevré avec le Soft « new-look », affirme avec d'autant plus de passion. Cette musique est ouverte aussi au hasard, à l'improvisé : elle est ouverture totale, donc instant où tout est possible. On retrouve là des conceptions d'une musique « à faire » depuis longtemps oubliées dans la rock music, depuis tout entière tendue vers l'efficacité (commerciale). Deux longues plages où les thèmes s'inscrivent pour disparaître, toujours noyés dans la masse des sons, leur grouillement, ou qui restent présents dans le lointain : lente descente dans l'inconscient, voyage au pays d'un son pur, promenade enivrante notamment dans l'extraordinaire « Immediate Curtain ». Aucun artifice, pas de performance d'instrumentiste ; des musiciens distributeurs d'énergie sonore, bruiteurs plus que virtuoses, des sonorités étouffées ou transparentes. Matching Mole c'est, hors des modes, le groupe qui venait à manquer. Robert Wyatt retrouve son humour pataphysicien (Matching Mole/Machine Molle,une composition « Dedicated to Hugh, but you weren't listening», référence à la composition de Hugh Hopper « Dedicated to you but you were not listening »). L'album a été enregistré très peu de temps après la mise sur pied du groupe. Depuis, la cohésion est en train de se forger, comme on put le voir à l'Olympia. Matching Mole, un parfum de Soft Machine, un clin d'oeil vers Riley et vers Miles: un groupe original, pourtant.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Matching Mole
1972

More information about this album

A FACEBOOK POST BY CRAIG RUNYON - May 2025

About Matching Mole's latest concerts

As Mick Jagger said if you can remember the 1960s you weren't there.

The period when Matching Mole was performing at the Kings Cross Cinema was complicated. I missed the concert on 17/06/72 but my friends were there. The previous night the concert started and they had problems with the equipment and Robert Wyatt cried being such a perfectionist and the concert was postponed until the following night or soon afterwards. It's a long time ago and the people who were there are all dead now. But I missed the concert because I had gone to Amsterdam and traveled around Europe for the summer. So much was going on that summer with Matching Mole I adored them and so did my friends living close by on Swindon Street in Kings Cross. I was a great fan of Robert Wyatt after seeing him at the Washington Hilton Hotel with Soft Machine the support band to Jimi Hendrix. The first Matching Mole record was the anthem of my youth and graduating from high school in 1972. Matching Mole was supposed to return to the Kings Cross Cinema at the end of the summer but it never happened because the group got busy with recording "My Little Red Record" and it's grand subsequent premier at the Royal Festival Hall Southbank London. Before the concert happened I met Lol Coxhill busking on Tottenham court Road, we became friends and he put me on the guest list, centre front row for the concert at the hifi palace of the Royal Festival hall!. Can you imagine how relieved Robert Wyatt was to be playing in a venue where the sonics of this sophisticated music could be heard properly. Matching Mole played at the Kings Cross Cinema with equipment borrowed from the Pink Floyd, they had the most advanced and plentiful equipment in a storage unit somewhere in central London, who knows where perhaps Kings Cross?

Robert Wyatt was living in his native Dulwich South London, close to Southbank where the second album was premiered but the Pink Floyd were living around north London near the Kings Cross Cinema.

For the Royal Festival hall concert Brian Eno was there with his synthesisers sounding fantastic! That summertime was truly a blessing to be around Matching Mole and their contemporaries for their concerts and it was the greatest musical experiences of my life. Experiencing the fabulous singing and drumming of Robert Wyatt, the improvisation of Lol Coxhill known and beloved by all there, Robert Fripp was there that night as the producer of the Little Red Record, Mike Oldfield was there that night because he was in the band on Kevin Ayers second record "Shooting at the Moon" with Lol Coxhill.

Glen Sweeney was there of the Third Ear Band that had just completed the soundtrack to Roman Polanski's Macbeth. Peter Sinfield was there with Roxy Music Sinfield had just produced their first album. That night was a stark contrast to the small concert at the King's cross Cinema. The premier night of Matching Mole was a who's who of British progressive music and a sign of things to come so much creativity, inspiration and hope abounded everywhere that night.

And anything and everything seemed possible.

But underneath it all Robert Wyatt wasn't happy about the pressures he was being put under as the manager of a group, the struggles with the record companies.

Soft Machine were world famous and respected by their CBS label but Robert Wyatt got second class treatment and yet the new personnel that replaced Robert and Kevin Ayers got better treatment than Robert Wyatt did because of being connected to the famous name of Soft Machine. That translated into money. The Matching Mole were poor as church mice and the band was subsidised partially by Bill McCormick's girlfriend Julie Christie. This all culminated into a night when Robert was drinking heavily and had his tragic accident and suddenly Matching Mole was abruptly over!

DEE JAY - Sound Of the Month - December 1972

MATCHING MOLE - "Little Red Record" - CBS 65260

John Peel

Contrary to what you may believe, a great deal of the best and most creative rock music comes from without the Anglo-American axis. Bands like Can, Amon Duul II, Faust and Neu from Germany, Komintern from France, Supersister and Focus from Holland are experimenting to a greater or lesser degree with a whole new range of sounds and experiences.
Because of their experiments they seldom achieve much popular stature in their own countries and the same fate may well befall Matching Mole in this country - and for the same reasons. As with nearly all experimental records this LP is not without flaws, but the successes that there are are remarkable - and they are not academic and unapproachable successes either. There's power, wit and skill involved throughout and drummer Robert Wyatt, keyboards man Dave McRae, guitarist Phil Miller and bass player Bill MacCormick have, with producer Robert Fripp of King Crimson and synthesizer star Eno, of Roxy Music, made an LP which is more accessible than a lot of the fashionable nonsense that makes the album charts.

More information about this album

Whatevershebringswesing
1972

Kevin Ayers

More information about this album

BEST OF CROSSROADS- 1969-1972 -108 albums essentiels - août 2009

KEVIN AYERS Whatevershebrîngswesing (Harvest)

Tony Grieco

Cet artiste est sans doute l'un des plus sous-estimés du rock et ses confluents, d'abord par l'ingratitude d'un public infidèle et volage, mais peut-être aussi à cause d'un certain dilettantisme sciemment cultivé par l'individu. Pourtant, son profil artistique est plutôt « king size », notamment concernant l'écriture et la maîtrise du double sens. Kevin Ayers se fait connaître en tant que bassiste de la première mouture du groupe branché Soft Machine.

Il ne se contente surtout pas de ce rôle relativement secondaire dans un groupe, quoique son approche de l'instrument soit très original, car il compose une large part du répertoire et, en compagnie du charismatique Robert Wyatt, donne ce côté « pata-physique » joyeusement déconneur au groupe. Se sentant plus pop que jazz, c'est au cours d'une éreintante tournée US qu'il décide de voler de ses propres ailes et lâcher le navire. Finalement assez prolifique pour un roi fainéant, Kevin Ayers signe ici son troisième album sous son propre nom. On peut y entendre un sympathique simili tube avec « Stranger in blue suède shoes » et le reste de l'album qui oscille entre la pop innocente et la recherche raffinée. C'est la nonchalance vocale de Kevin qui guide le son de l'ensemble et qui sera un peu sa marque de fabrique pour tous ses projets à venir.

Malgré une certaine confidentialité, commercialement parlant, l'artiste touche un public concerné qui l'aime et le suit dans de nombreux concerts sur le territoire européen. Pas du tout prophète en son pays, l'Angleterre, qu'il fuit pour s'installer à Ibiza, au paradis hippie, Kevin Ayers se taille une solide réputation en France, où on l'associe encore à Soft Machine ; c'est comme ça, que voulez-vous, la colle qui fixe les étiquettes est souvent de première qualité... Cet album attachant, qui en annonce d'autres qui le seront tout autant, recèle aussi le charme de révéler un petit guitariste méconnu du nom de Mike Oldfield, qui peu de temps après deviendra connu, très connu... Vous aurez aussi le plaisir d'entendre David Bedford aux claviers, le saxophoniste Français Didier Malherbe chipé au Gong de Daevid Allen (ex-Soft Machine itou) et le gentil copain Robert Wyatt venu poser sa voix sur les chœurs. Resitué dans le contexte, l'album qui synthétise bien l'esprit post sixties, s'écoute encore fort agréablement, contrairement à d'autres... albums... de la même période...

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Hatfield & The North
1973

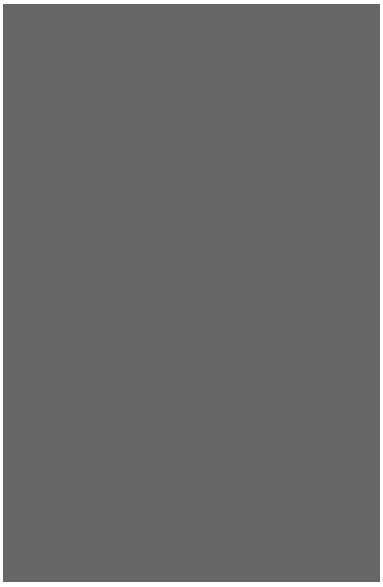
Hatfield & The North

More information about this album

ACTUEL - N° 42 - mai 1974

Hatfield & The North (Virgin - Import. Givaudan)

Jean-Pierre Lentin



...Hatfield and the North , en revanche, me laisse de marbre: le groupe hérite de tous les tics de «l'école Soft Machine», hypertrophie intellectuelle, inutiles complications rythmiques et mélodiques, l'élégance guindée d'une musique de chambre que les quelques touches humoristiques n'arrivent pas à racheter.
C'est épouvantablement anglais, à écouter une tasse de thé à la main en parlant du temps qu'il fait. Il manque un chapeau melon, la bruine de Londres, le fog, quelques chats qui ronronnent sur des fauteuils capitonnés... Assez!

JAZZ MAGAZINE - N° 658 - février 2014

Hatfield & The North - 1973 - Virgin Records

Franck Bergerot

Parmi la descendance de la scène dite "de Canterbury" née au milieu des années 60 à la Simon Langton School et chez les parents Wyatt, "Hatfield and the North" nous marqua particulièrement parce qu'aux côtés du chanteur-bassiste Richard Sinclair, du guitariste Phil Miller, du claviériste Dave Stewart et du batteur Pip Pyle, on apercevait pour la première fois Robert Wyatt dans la chaise roulante à laquelle il était condamné depuis le 1er juin 1973. Invité lors des séances d'octobre à chanter sur un titre, Calyx, il signait son acte de renaissance et annonçait son œuvre à venir tout en participant à la cohérence de l'un des disques les plus aboutis de la galaxie canterburienne par la qualité d'assemblage (au sens œnologique) d'une multitude d'arômes dont on est autorisé à citer les sources (Soft Machine, le folk revival et le pop-rock anglais) ou qui invitent au moins à certaines comparaisons (notamment le tandem Gary Burton / Steve Swallow, le second Return Forever dont "Hymn of the Seventh Galaxy" n'est peut-être pas même pressé à l'heure où s'enregistrent ces faces, voire le Frank Zappa de "Burnt Weeny Sandwich" et "Hot Rats").

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Rock Bottom
1974

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

MUCCHIO - dal 25 luglio al 4 settembre 2000 - n. 407

Robert Wyatt - Rock Bottom - Hannibal /Rykodisc

Alessandro Besselva

Nel 1974 il distillato di rock, pop, jazz (classico e free), anarchia, provocazione dadaista e humour molto inglese che va sotto il nome di scena di Canterbury - è un'invenzione della stampa musicale, d'accordo, ma anche una comunità che si nutre della stessa visione - sembra aver già dato i frutti migliori. Nella gran parte dei casi, chi non è finito nella strada senza uscita di un jazz rock perfetto ma freddo o di un progressive rock fine a se stesso, ha perso l'allucinata lucidità degli esordi. Robert Wyatt è un caso a parte: escluso, a causa di manifeste tendenze eretiche - evidenti già nell'esordio solista del 1970 (l'esperimento surreale di The End Of An Ear) - dal gioco Soft Machine, arriva a registrare Rock Bottom dopo innumerevoli vicissitudini, tra cui la fondazione degli sfortunati Matching Mole e la partecipazione ad una miriade di altri progetti. Uscito in un momento durissimo della vita del Nostro, l'album contiene sei piccoli capolavori che riportano alla luce la visione di una musica liberata da vincoli formali eppure assolutamente godibile e cantabile, discorso che avrà un ideale seguito, con una percentuale di militanza e osticità in più, nella saga degli Henry Cow e di Rock in Opposition.

Gran parte delle idee che finiranno sull'album, Wyatt le concepisce negli ultimi mesi del 1972, quando segue la futura moglie Alfreda Benge a Venezia, trascorrendovi alcuni mesi. Sulla laguna inizia a comporre, su un piccolo organo portatile, le musiche che presumibilmente finiranno nel repertorio dei nuovi Matching Mole. L'insistenza del bassista Bill Mc Cormick lo ha infatti convinto a riformare il quartetto, scioltosi alcuni mesi prima, il quale è nuovamente operativo nella primavera del 1973: in organico, questa volta, l'ex Curved Air Francis Monkman e Gary Windo al sax. Ad interrompere la sequenza degli eventi ci pensa il destino, con un volo dal quarto piano nel corso di un party alcoolico, il primo giugno di quell'anno: la frattura della dodicesima vertebra costringe da quel momento il nostro su una sedia a rotelle. L'incidente probabilmente accelera un processo che è già in atto, quello di estendere ulteriormente la ricerca musicale al canto e alle tastiere. Wyatt, del resto, non si è mai considerato un batterista puro, manifestando da sempre la volontà di "avere un controllo complessivo sulla musica", un controllo che non esclude collaborazioni e scambi d'idee. La coralità è il punto di forza di Rock Bottom, e l'elenco degli ospiti che si alternano in studio nei primi mesi del 1974 è impressionante: il batterista Laurie Allan (nei primi Gong), l'ex compagno nei Softs Hugh Hopper, Richard Sinclair, che ha da poco mollato i Caravan per dedicarsi ad Hatfield And The North, il trombettista sudafricano Mongezi Feza, il jazzista newyorchese Gary Windo, Fred Frith degli Henry Cow, il poeta-performer Ivor Cutler, l'ormai lanciatissimo Mike Oldfield. Naturalmente, c'è anche Alfreda Benge, musa ispiratrice dell'intera opera. Ma forse l'album non sarebbe stato il capolavoro che conosciamo senza Nick Mason al banco del mixer. Wyatt non ha mai avuto un grande rapporto con i produttori, lo dimostra lo scarso feeling con Robert Fripp in occasione delle registrazioni di Little Red Record con i Matching Mole, ma la frequentazione con Mason risale ai tempi dell'UFO Club. Oltre a mettere Wyatt a suo agio, il batterista dei Pink Floyd ha il grande pregio di organizzare il suono in maniera compatta, amalgamando voce, tastiere e percussioni agli eterogenei contributi degli ospiti, tutti registrati in un secondo tempo. Fatta quest'ampia - ma dovuta - premessa, la prima cosa a sorprendere, è la semplicità: Sea Song esordisce con poche note di piano e tastiera che anticipano e poi seguono la voce, limpide ed essenziali. La seconda è, per l'appunto, la voce. Difficile descrivere quel falsetto in grado di diventare - non è un luogo comune - uno strumento vero e proprio, a tratti fievole respiro, a tratti protagonista di veri e propri assoli, come in Last Straw, dove c'è l'invenzione di un effetto wah-wah da brividi. Sempre sul punto di incresparsi o infrangersi, ma sempre capace di trovare l'assetto ideale. Se nei primi due brani la calma da fondale roccioso regna sovrana, tra suoni liquidi e stratificati, in Little Red Riding Hood la tensione è guidata dalla tromba aliena di Feza e dalle percussioni: la melodia si costruisce ed emerge poco alla volta, intonando un canto disperato. La calma ritorna con Alifìb: il respiro si fa ritmo lievissimo, le tastiere disegnano capricci melodici e la voce intona una ninna nanna di nonsense e strofe d'amore alla compagna Alfie, protagonista di un duetto nella seguente Alifie, la quale sfocia in un'improvvisazione del sax di Windo. Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road è l'ultima della collezione. La tensione iniziale - le rullate marziali di Allan e la lancinante chitarra di Oldfield, per una volta sobria - si scioglie nella declamazione surreale di Cutler accompagnato dalla viola di Frith. L'influenza sotterranea - si tratta pur sempre di un fondale roccioso - di questo lavoro è emersa periodicamente nel corso degli ultimi venticinque anni: senza Rock Bottom non avremmo avuto, tanto per fare un esempio, i Gastr Del Sol di Camoufleur. A dimostrazione che le attuali esplorazioni intorno ai confini del rock -post o meno - continuano ad attingere energia da questo capolavoro.

LIBERATION - 5 décembre 1974

Robert Wyatt

J. N. O.

Dans la masse de disques sortis, il en est d'excellents, peu d'importants, et d'ailleurs vous les connaissez déjà tous grâce à votre mensuel spécialisé. S'il faut n'en choisir qu'un, c'est sans conteste la magnifique réalisation du musicien anglais bien aimé des Français qu'est Robert WYATT. Vous avez beaucoup lu, à propos de ce merveilleux album qu'est " Rock Bottom " (Virgin 840043), aussi je ne m'étendrai pas plus (chouette, la pirouette, non?); et puis vous êtes déjà un bon nombre à le posséder, ce nouveau pilier de discothèque. Pour les autres malheureux, sachez qu'il s'agit d'une superbe synthèse de tout ce qui s'est fait dans le rock, de tout ce qui se fait et se fera, et que vos arrières petits-marmots vous remercieront de les avoir bercés avec. Volez-le, tuez pour l'avoir, mais écoutez-le. Et avant qu'il n'obtienne le grand prix de l'Académie Charles Cros du meilleur disque pop. C'est à espérer, c'est possible, mais cela pourrait refroidir certains indairgraounde pipaul qui ne le connaissent pas encore. Ne crachons pas sur ce prix " qui consacre ", Electric Ladyland " l'avait obtenu. Et avant la mort d'Hendrix. Et tac!...

ROBERT WYATT

TELERAMA HORS-SÉRIE - juin 1993

Robert Wyatt - Rock Bottom

Virgin

Philippe Barbot

Le voyageur immobile. Ermite paraplégique, artisan impressionniste et militant communiste, Robert Wyatt fut, en des temps antédiluviens, le batteur-vocaliste de Soft Machine, le groupe qui improvisa la naissance, non du jazz rock, mais d'une sorte de rock jazzeux. Depuis, ce sculpteur d'arabesques sonores a développé un paysage musical ourdi de lentes mélopées, de comptines grelottantes, de faux gospels sud-américains au swing plaintif, de collages sonores pataphysiques et de poésie sociale malicieuse. Rock bottom, paru en 74, fut considéré d'emblée comme un chef-d'œuvre baroque et introspectif. Un peu au rock progressif ce qu'est Bilbo le Hobbit à la littérature fantastique. Ce sombre et méditatif opéra pour claviers lugubres, harmoniums étouffés et conciliabules tintinnabulants susurrés d'une glotte acide, reste une œuvre à part. Un de ces disques culte dont on se fait, égoïstement, un intime jardin secret.

NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS - 27th July, 1974

Can a Wyatt man sing the blues?

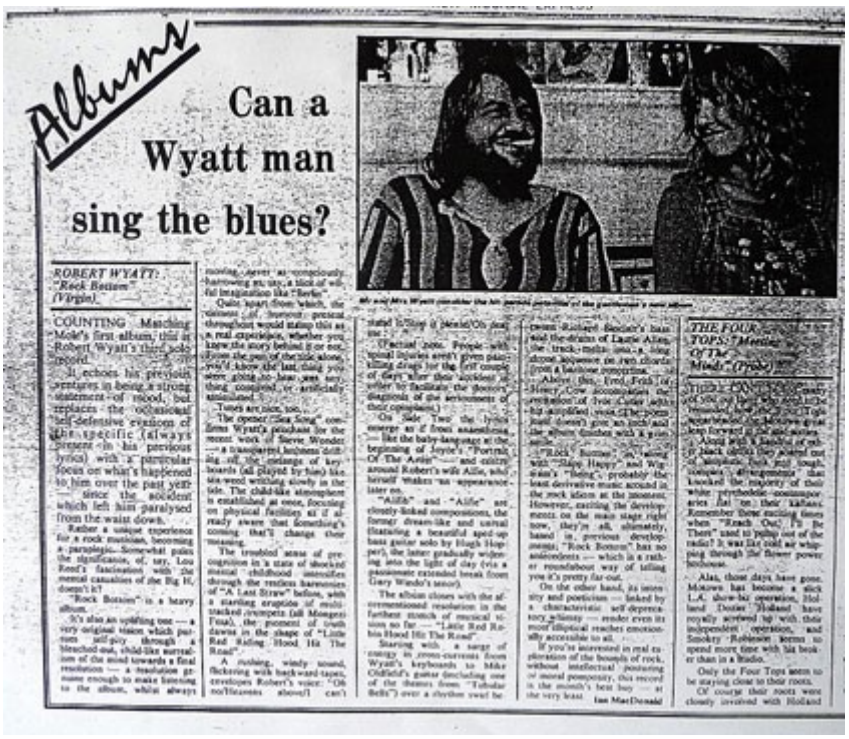
Robert Wyatt - Rock Bottom (Virgin)

Ian MacDonald

COUNTING Matching Mole's first album, this is Robert Wyatt's third solo record.

It echoes his previous ventures in being a strong statement of mood, but replaces the occasional self-defensive evasions of the specific (always present in his previous lyrics) with a particular focus on what's happened to him over the past year - since the accident which left him paralysed from the waist down.

Rather a unique experience for a rock musician, becoming a paraplegic. Somewhat pales the significance, of, say, Lou Reed's fascination with the mental casualties of the Big H, doesn't it?



Rock Bottom is a heavy album.

It's also an uplifting one - a very original vision which pursues self-pity through a bleached out, child-like surrealism of the mind towards a final resolution - a resolution genuine enough to make listening to the album, whilst always moving, never as consciously harrowing as, say, a slice of wilful imagination like Berlin.

Quite apart from which, the element of humour present throughout would stamp this as a real experience, whether you knew the story behind it or not. From the pun of the title alone, you'd know the last thing you were going to hear was anything contrived or artificially assimilated.

Tunes are nice, too.

The opener 'Sea Song' confirms Wyatt's penchant for the recent work of Stevie Wonder - a transparent lushness drifting off the melange of keyboards (all played by him) like sea-weed writhing slowly in the tide. The child-like atmosphere is established at once, focusing on physical facilities as if already aware that something's coming that'll change their meaning.

Albums

Can a Wyatt man sing the blues?

ROBERT WYATT: "Rock Bottom" (Virgin).

COUNTING Matching Mole's first album, this is Robert Wyatt's third solo record.

It echoes his previous ventures in being a strong statement of mood, but replaces the occasional self-defensive evasions of the specific (always present in his previous lyrics) with a particular focus on what's happened to him over the past year — since the accident which left him paralysed from the waist down.

Rather a unique experience for a rock musician, becoming a paraplegic. Somewhat pales the significance, of, say, Lou Reed's fascination with the mental casualties of the Big H, doesn't it?

"Rock Bottom" is a heavy album.

It's also an uplifting one — a very original vision which pursues self-pity through a bleached out, child-like surrealism of the mind towards a final resolution — a resolution genuine enough to make listening to the album, whilst always moving, never as consciously harrowing as, say, a slice of wilful imagination like "Berlin".

Quite apart from which, the element of humour present throughout would stamp this as a real experience, whether you knew the story behind it or not. From the pun of the title alone, you'd know the last thing you were going to hear was anything contrived or artificially assimilated.

Tunes are nice, too.

The opener 'Sea Song' confirms Wyatt's penchant for the recent work of Stevie Wonder — a transparent lushness drifting off the melange of keyboards (all played by him) like sea-weed writhing slowly in the tide. The child-like atmosphere is established at once, focusing on physical facilities as if already aware that something's coming that'll change their meaning.

The troubled sense of precognition in a state of shocked mental childhood intensifies through the restless harmonies of "A Last Straw" before, with a startling eruption of multi-tracked trumpets (all Mongezi Feza), the moment of truth dawns in the shape of "Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road".

A rushing, windy sound, flickering with backward tapes, envelopes Robert's voice: "Oh no!Heavens above!I can't stand it!Stop it (Mole)Oh dear, me!"

Factual note. People with spinal injuries aren't given pain-killing drugs for the first couple of days after their accident in order to facilitate the correct diagnosis of the seriousness of their condition.)

On Side Two the lyrics emerge as if from underwater — like the baby-language at the beginning of Joyce's "Portrait Of The Artist" — and centre around Robert's wife Alfie, who herself makes an appearance later on.

"ALIFE" and "Alife" are closely-linked compositions, the former dream-like and unreal (featuring a beautiful sped-up bass guitar solo by Hugh Hopper), the latter gradually widening into the light of day (via a passionate extended break from Gary Wendle's tenor).

The album closes with the aforementioned resolution in the farthest stretch of musical visions so far — "Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road".

Starting with a surge of energy in cross-currents from Wyatt's keyboards to Mike Oldfield's guitar (including one of the themes from "Tubular Bells") over a rhythm owed be-

Ian MacDonald

THE FOUR TOPS: "Meeting Of The Minds" (Probe)

The troubled sense of precognition in a state of shocked mental childhood intensifies through the restless harmonies of 'A Last Straw' before, with a startling eruption of multi-tracked trumpets (all Mongezi Fesa), the moment of truth dawns in the shape of 'Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road.'

A rushing, windy sound, flickering with backward-tapes, envelopes Robert's voice: "Oh no / Heaven's above / I can't stand it / Stop it please / Oh dear me ..."

(Factual note. People with spinal injuries aren't given painkilling drugs for the first couple of days after their accident in order to facilitate the doctors' diagnosis of the seriousness of their complaint.)

On Side Two the lyrics emerge as if from anaesthesia - like the baby language at the beginning of Joyce's Portrait Of The Artist - and centre around Robert's wife Alfie, who herself makes an appearance later on.

'Alifib' and 'Alifie' are closely-linked compositions, the former dream-like and unreal (featuring a beautiful sped-up bass guitar solo by Hugh Hopper), the latter gradually widening into the light of day (via a passionate extended break from Gary Windo's tenor.)

The album closes with the aforementioned resolution in the fullest stretch of musical vision so far - 'Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road.'

Starting with a surge of energy in cross-currents from Wyatt's keyboards to Mike Oldfield's guitar (including one of the themes from Tubular Bells) over a rhythm swirl between Richard Sinclair's bass and the drums of Laurie Allan, the track melts into a long drone sequence on two chords from a baritone concertina.

Above this, Fred Frith of Henry Cow accompanies the recitation of Ivor Cutler with his amplified viola. The poem itself doesn't give an inch and the album finishes with a grim smile.

Rock Bottom is, along with Slapp Happy and Wigwam's Being, probably the least derivative music around in the rock idiom at the moment. However exciting the developments on the main stage right now, they're all, ultimately, based in previous developments; Rock Bottom has no antecedents - which is a rather roundabout way of telling you it's pretty far-out.

On the other hand, its intensity and poeticism - linked by a characteristic self-deprecatory whimsy - render even its most elliptical reaches emotionally accessible to all.

If you're interested in real exploration of the bounds of rock, without intellectual posturing or moral pomposity, this record is the month's best buy - at the very least.

CHARLIE HEBDO - N° 197 - 26 août 1974

MECHAMMENT ROCK

Doublemain (Pierre Lattès)

Suis-je objectif, suis-je ? Ce disque de Robert Wyatt, je voulais qu'il soit bon. Ce n'est pas de ma faute s'il est extraordinaire. Je répète, s'il est extraordinaire. Imaginez que vous ayez un pote que vous considérez comme un des meilleurs musiciens du moment, qu'il arrive à se foutre par ta fenêtre et à se retrouver paralysé des membres inférieurs, qu'il soit batteur, et qu'il fasse ensuite son premier disque comme chanteur, pianiste et percussionniste, vous ne seriez pas mécontent de cette réussite. Peut-être seriez-vous, comment dirais-je, impressionné par une photo publicitaire où l'on voit Robert, assis dans sa petite chaise roulante, tenant sur ses bras croisés une statuette de nain ventru décapité qui lui arrive juste sous le menton. Il ne faut pas se laisser impressionner, je sais. « Rock Bottom », produit par le batteur du Floyd, Nick Mason, est publié par Virgin Records (V 2017), et va sortir un de ces jours distribué par Barclay. Mais c'est tout de suite que j'ai envie de vous le raconter.

Il y a très peu de musiciens, mais bien choisis, et le studio d'enregistrement a été, pour une fois, vraiment utilisé comme instrument de musique. Mais, pour une fois également, tous les « trucs » servent la conception finale et les boucles, les ré-enregistrements, les échos, les bandes à l'envers, ne sont pas comme ajoutés à la musique, et en font intégralement partie. Pour une fois, ce qui devait être dit en quarante minutes n'aurait pas pu être condensé en un quarante-cinq tours. Et cette partie de Soft Machine qui apparaissait de temps en temps dans les vieux disques du groupe est développée complètement, bien mieux encore que dans Matching Mole, le groupe que Robert Wyatt avait formé à son départ des Soft. Ça ressemble à quoi ? Justement, ça ne ressemble à rien. C'est probablement pourquoi Steve Lake, dans sa critique, élogieuse, de Melody Maker, prévient qu'il ne s'agit pas d'un album... « qui vous clouera au mur par des effets pyrotechniques éblouissants, mais d'un disque que vous écouterez et ré-écouterez, longtemps après que les super-héros de 1974 auront prouvé n'avoir été que des passades ». Je ne suis pas tout à fait d'accord, seulement dans la mesure où, en plus, j'en ai pris plein les oreilles. Sur un plan purement musical, il y a là la réalisation de toute une série de promesses du rock, si mal tenues par tant d'autres. Entre autres : d'être tout bêtement, simplement, original. D'autres combinaisons de notes, d'autres sons, d'autres mots. Pas si facile apparemment. Et pis surtout cette étrange faculté de faire passer l'énorme quantité d'émotion dans une galette de plastique, quelque chose qui n'arrive jamais. D'abord, ça ne se fait pas. Surtout dans le monde du rock. Quand ça se fait, c'est bêlant. Le petit pincement venant d'un synthétiseur, je pensais que ça n'existerait jamais. Des musiciens qui se mettraient entièrement au service d'une musique, et arriveraient par là à se dépasser, je pensais que ça n'arriverait plus. Un ban pour Hugh Hopper et Richard Sinclair à la guitare basse. Un ban pour le batteur Laurie Allan, pour le trompettiste doublement de poche Mongezi Feza, pour le saxophoniste ténor et clarinettiste basse Gary Windo, pour le guitariste Mike Olfield, pour Fred Frith à l'alto. Pour Ivor Cutler qui chante et joue du concertina baryton (! ?), un triple ban pour Alfreda Benge qui cause. C'est elle qui est la muse à laquelle on doit de pouvoir demander un ban multiple et bruyant pour Robert Wyatt qui dit qu'il l'aime. Un ban aux ingénieurs du son qui ont compris ce qu'on leur demandait. Un ban pour moi à tout hasard. Un ban pour vous quand vous aurez écouté Robert Wyatt. Et avec ça, faut-il vous l'envelopper ?

ROCK'N'FOLK - N° 93 - octobre 1974

Rock Bottom - Robert Wyatt

Virgin 840.043 (dist. Barclay)

Paul Alessandrini

Il faut que je vous le dise: décidément, ce disque de Wyatt atteint une telle beauté, une telle perfection dans l'assemblage des éléments sonores qui sont sa culture musicale (jazz, électronique, ballade et rock-music), que tout pouvoir critique est annihilé. Wyatt a jailli de sa nuit avec le disque le plus secret, le plus passionné, le plus ample, le plus chaleureux (disque de murmures et de vibrations, mais aussi de cris, d'appels, disque plénitude, oeuvre totalisante) que l'on a pu enregistrer cette année. Techniquement, c'est aussi grandiose qu'un disque de Todd Rundgren, mais avec la sensibilité en plus, c'est aussi fou et angoissé qu'un disque de Kevin Ayers, mais avec un plus grand perfectionnisme sonore, tout aussi jazzistiquement rock que les albums de la Soft Machine, mais la folie en plus. Mais il y a aussi, puisque nous en sommes réduits à un inventaire, la voix unique de Wyatt, totalement a-culturée, donc sans effet superflu, naturelle. On rencontre dans ce "Rock Bottom" les échos, les boucles sonores, la voix qui chante, mais aussi le texte dit, insistant, les histoires et l'émotion brute, la mélodie et les fracas, les envolées lyriques et le recours constant au rythme. Cela ouvre avec le dépouillement de la voix dans "Sea Song", chanson lente que vient envelopper un superbe brouillard sonore, et Wyatt vocalisant enfin. C'est simple et grandiose à la fois. Aucun artifice, juste la recherche de l'émotion. "A Last Straw" a une coloration soft machinienne, celle de l'époque de "Hope For Happiness"; même l'orgue dont joue Wyatt vient rappeler cette atmosphére de ballade curieusement torturée qui fut la marque du Soft, ce pouvoir de pénétrer un inconnu du son presque originel (les notes du piano égrenées). "Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road" serait plutôt une tentative de symphonisation avec collages multiples de sonorités (flambée des sons), une apocalypse maîtrisée; intensité du background que vient encore recouvrir cette voix engourdie et pleine d'une chaleur presque enfantine. Tout sera décuplé par le jeu des échos, les bandes miroirs réfléchissant à perte de sens les sons pour enfin sombrer dans l'ombre.

"Alifib", c'est encore une chanson-dépouillement, réveil d'une voix que porte une delicatesse sonore admirable, avec notamment la basse d'Hugh Hopper. "Alifie", qui suit, est aussi centré autour de l'évocation-hommage de Alfie, la femme de Wyatt. Même insistance de ce climat de rêve évoqué à voix haute, jeu avec les ombres, les visions que souligne le saxophone de Gary Windo. Pour le titre qui clôt le disque, "Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road", Robert Wyatt a voulu un grand déploiement sonore, intervention à l'unisson de Mike Oldfield à la guitare ou de Fred Frith (cf. Henry Cow) au violon; texte récité par Ivor Cutler et la voix de Wyatt. C'est ce morceau qui donne toute la mesure de l'accomplissement musical de la démarche de Robert Wyatt. Il est aussi une des plus belles choses que l'on ait réussi à faire sur ce territoire ô combien périlleux où voudraient se rencontrer la folie, l'invention et l'émotion. Cet inventaire ici fait n'est bien entendu que la tentative d'un survol d'une oeuvre riche, aux multiples séductions secrètes. Les dernières secondes seront, vous le découvrirez, pour un pied de nez musical, juste pour nous rappeler que Wyatt n'a pas perdu son humour. Que vous dire de plus ?

ACTUEL - N° 48 - novembre 1974

Le rock du paralytique

Devinette : quel est le meilleur album de l'automne ? Ceux qui ont répondu Lou Reed ont gagné des coups de pied au cul. C'est, bien sur, Robert Wyatt et son « Rock bottom » (Virgin-Barclay) qu'il fallait identifier : un album si beau qu'on ne sait pas par quel bout le prendre ni comment en parler pour éviter d'en donner une idée limitative. « Rock bottom » ne porte pas le cachet de son époque et toutes les références, rock, free jazz, musique planante, Soft Machine, tous les détails techniques, re-recordings et bandes à l'envers, tout cet arsenal du critique pop ne peut que créer un écran de fumée. Je n'ai même pas envie de faire de la retape : « Rock bottom », c'est certain, va nous tenir compagnie pour les dix ans à venir, et vous tomberez dessus tôt ou tard. Il faut de temps en temps laisser faire le hasard. Quelques mots quand même : la musique est triste, parfois oppressante ou poignante. La voix traîne des mélopées allongées sur la plaine sombre d'un accord d'orgue ou de mellotron. On tombe en plein désespoir, traversé par les cris de souffrance, « stop it », « Lord have Mercy », on remonte vers la mélancolie, on atteint parfois une euphorie salée par un arrière-goût de larmes. Wyatt provoque chez tous les musiciens de l'album des épanchements passionnés : cela ne nous surprend pas trop chez Mongezi Feza, dont la trompette démultipliée sonne comme la fanfare de l'apocalypse, ou chez Mike Oldfield, guitariste toujours lyrique, mais on reste émerveillé devant le brûlant solo de basse (accéléré et remonté de quelques octaves) du cérébral Hugh Hopper. La musique de Wyatt fait des miracles. Ce disque est un miracle. Je pourrais en parler des heures, j'en deviens gâteux, il vaut mieux que je passe la parole à Wyatt. Un musicien qui a quelque chose à dire, voilà qui nous change rudement.

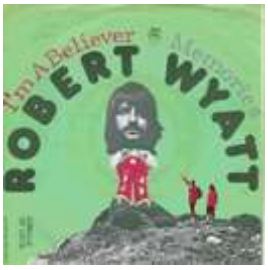
L'avant-garde :
« Les gens venaient me voir en coulisse pour me dire « oh ! ça fait du bien d'entendre quelque chose d'intelligent au lieu de toute cette soul music pour analphabètes. » Ils pensaient être très flatteurs, mais ça me mettait mal à l'aise. Aujourd'hui je me mettrais en colère. Je ne comprends pas ce désir de paraître plus intelligent que les autres. A l'hôpital, après mon accident, j'ai écouté beaucoup de cassettes, et j'ai découvert que je n'arrivais pas à écouter les gens qui font de la « musique intéressante ». Et des gens que je considérais comme gentils mais superflus sont devenus mes favoris — des gens comme J.-J. Cale et Bobby Charles. Cela vous étonne de m'entendre dire ça ? Si on m'avait dit ça il y a cinq ans j'aurais été moi-même choqué. Une bonne partie de la musique innovatrice fait penser à de l'espéranto. Souvent les gens qui ont quelque chose à dire ne se donnent pas la peine supplémentaire d'inventer un nouveau langage pour les exprimer — les langages établis leur conviennent. Souvent les créateurs vraiment imaginatifs n'éprouvent pas le besoin de restructurer le langage musical. »

Le rock :
« Je trouve l'atmosphère qui entoure le rock tristement dépourvue d'humour, pompeuse et morne. Le rock ressemble à une sorte de substitut de service militaire. Les critiques proclament souvent que le rock a certaines limitations de style et que ça vaut mieux pour lui. On pourrait dire la même chose de la musique militaire. On dit que les groupes de rock subissent l'influence du rhythm and blues, mais ces tempos carrés qu'ils utilisent tous n'ont rien de commun avec les rythmes fluides, spontanés et dansants du rhythm and blues.

LA MINUTE DU MELOMANE #23 - ROBERT WYATT (2018)

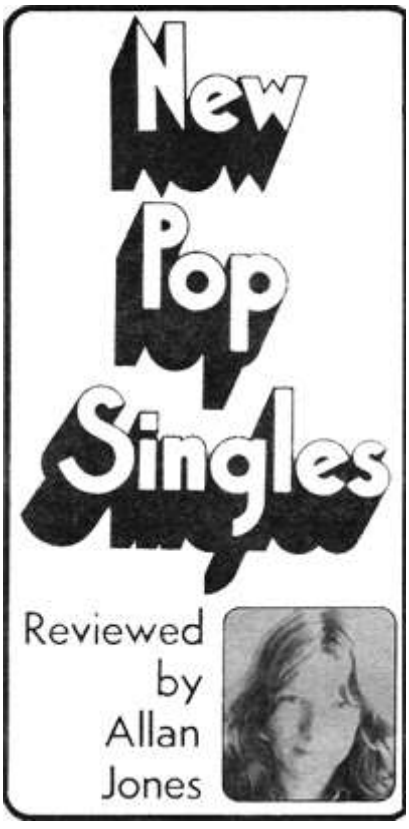


www.oreille-moderne.com

Laurent Rousseau

More information about this album

More information about this album



I'm A Believer/Memories
1974

Robert Wyatt

MELODY MAKER - 14th September 1974

Robert Wyatt : I'm A Believer (Virgin)

New Pop Singles Reviewed by Allan Jones

An INSTANT CLASSIC. Not content with producing one of '74's best albums with " Rock Bottom," Robert Wyatt has now come up with the best single for many years, with his remarkable remake/remodel of Neil Diamond's great song, written originally for the Monkees. Three minutes and thirty seconds of perfection, Pancho. Thrill to Fred Frith's expertly executed guitar and viola lines — his entry on guitar just after the first verse is amazing — and the asskicking rhythm section of Richard Sinclair and (we think) Nick Mason, all topped off by Robert's truly unique vocal performance. It builds beautifully toa shattering conclusion. Should rock the nation, shoot up them charts and give Virgin their first numero uno single. An all-time great.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises |

HOME

More information about this album

Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard
1975

Robert Wyatt

SOUNDS 78 - August '75

Robert Wyatt - Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard - Virgin (89 061XOT)

Karl Lippegaus

ROCK BOTTOM hat die ganze Szene begeistert, - alte und neue Soft-Machine-Fans, Jazzmusiker, Rockmusiker und die Kritiker, die diese Platte in die Reihe ihrer 'Insel-Platten' einstimmig aufnahmen. Robert Wyatts neue Platte ist musikalisch noch sehr viel farbiger, lebendiger und selbstbewußt-professioneller. Es ist eine der besten Platten der letzten fünf Jahre. Ich kenne keinen anderen Musiker außer ihm, der so unkompliziert die denkbar entferntesten individuellen musikalischen Statements zu einer solch begeisternden eigenen Aussage zu formen imstande ist.
Seine Talente offenbaren sich in einer Direktheit und Vieldimensionalität, die einen für immer in ihren Bann zu ziehen scheint. Sein Klavierspiel, das unbekümmert auf Monk, Cecil Taylor, Count Basie und Nicky Hopkins zurückgreift; seine große Fähigkeit, aus den Mitspielern das Beste herauszuholen (man höre sich nur die großartigen Beiträge der Saxofonisten George Khan und Gary Windo an, Laurie Allans nirgendwo je beachtetes meisterhaftes Schlagzeugspiel und Fred Friths Kunststücke am Piano!). Schließlich seine faszinierenden Klangvorstellungen, - wie er das Piano aufnimmt, mit seiner Stimme experimentiert, ein Riff von E-Baß und Baßklarinette unisono spielen läßt, seine Stimme (den Gesang gibt er auf dem Cover wunderbar mit 'mouth' an) vor Synthesizer- und Piano-Landschaften ausbreitet, einem die Ohren öffnet für die Schönheit der Klangwelten Mongezi Fezas in ,,Sonia' und Charlie Hadens Widmung an Che Guevara, 'Song For Che'.
Und was kann man alles mit dem ersten Motiv aus Jacques Offenbachs schnulziger 'Baccarole' anstellen. Da ist der Brechtsche Verfremdungsbegriff in die Rockmusik geraten! 'Team Spirit' ist endlich eine Realisierung der Vorstellungen, die Robert Wyatt in der Zeit von Soft Machine's 4. LP vorgeschwebt haben könnten. Und 'Soup Song' und 'Muddy Mouse' sind Beispiele für einen musikalischen Lyrik-Begriff, wie ich ihn außer bei Wyatt im Pop noch nicht gehört habe. - Ich habe diese Platte, seit ich sie habe, fast ununterbrochen gehört, immer wieder. Es ist eine so reiche und großartige Musik darauf, daß man sie überhaupt nicht mehr weglegen möchte.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises |

HOME

Ambient 1 Music For Airports
1978

Brian Eno

More information about this album

ROLLING STONE - July 26, 1979

Brian Eno - Ambient 1: Music For Airports

Michael Bloom

Brian Eno carefully distinguishes his art music, which is also his pop music, from his gebrauchsmusik, or utilitarian undertakings. Ambient 1 Music for Airports is as utilitarian as they come: it's conceived as background sound for airport lobbies, hopefully to replace the usual piped-in saccharine strings and smooth MOR frosting.

As aesthetic white noise, Ambient 1 Music for Airports makes for even more dissipated listening than last year's similarly unfocused Music for Films. Film scores, accompanying the unraveling of a screenplay, still relate to some sort of time frame, but the new material — having already abandoned conventional notions of melody, harmony, rhythm and personality — strives to dispense with even that. As environmental sound, it works quite well, better than the earlier Discreet Music, which it superficially resembles.

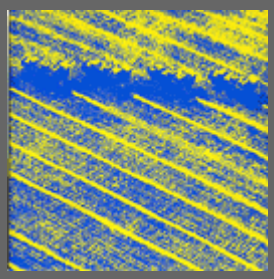
Moreover, there's a good deal of high craftsmanship here, but to find it, you've got to thwart the music's intent by concentrating. The first of four untitled pieces is assembled from a childlike, Robert Wyatt piano phrase. Eno adds sparse accents on bass and bells, makes a tape loop, then pinpoints different facets of the loop with his synthesizer. This procedure proves easier to see (on the musical score, reproduced on the back of the record jacket) than to hear: there are several partial repetitions to contend with, as well as the overall miasma of inattention.



Other "songs" are simpler in concept. Several repeating tones or patterns of different lengths drift in and out of phase. In theory, none of these pieces end: the loop'can continue, with eternal variation, as long as the airport is standing. But whether or not they ever play this stuff over the loudspeakers at La Guardia, Brian Eno has succeeded once again in provoking his fans.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

At Last I'm Free/Strange Fruit
1980

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

TELERAMA - 29 novembre 2016 - telerama.fr

Robert Wyatt (4), passion du fruit étrange - Strange fruit (1980)

Les disques rayés, le blog musique de François Gorin

Une copieuse biographie de Robert Wyatt (Different every time, par Marcus O'Dair) vient de paraître et je vous la recommanderais bien, si sa lecture en traduction française n'était une telle épreuve. Dommage collatéral : un retour dudit Robert sous forme de disque rayé. On ne pouvait décemment faire le tour du Grand Schtroumpf en trois mouvements. Pour le consoler de la fin de Fidel Castro, poursuivons l'hommage. Il y a deux ans, deux volumes dont un de reprises par d'autres ou collaborations, récapitulaient l'œuvre sous le même titre Different every time. Les critères ayant présidé au choix du sommaire sont mystérieux. Par exemple, on y pointe At last, I am free (déjà traité ici), mais pas Strange fruit. Qui était la face B du premier, dans cette curieuse saison où Wyatt devint provisoirement un artiste à singles, chez Rough Trade. Or je me souviens d'un saisissement à l'écoute de Strange fruit, dont je ne connaissais à l'époque que la version de Billie Holiday. Déjà classique et qu'on pouvait croire définitive. Même la grande Nina Simone n'y a pas ajouté d'autre dimension, découvrirais-je plus tard. Le poème d'Abel Meeropol, un professeur juif et communiste du Bronx, signant sous pseudo (Lewis Allan) l'évocation déchirante d'un « fruit étrange » pendu à la branche d'un peuplier — le corps d'un Noir lynché —, semblait avoir trouvé son interprète idéale avec la dame au gardénia, alors quasi débutante. Chanté par Robert Wyatt d'une voix plus blanche que blanche mais non moins concerné par l'affaire plus de quarante ans après, Strange fruit a soudain une autre résonance. C'est un écho et un souvenir, c'est le fantôme d'une chanson et celui de l'image qu'elle fait naître et dépasse. Et ce spectre a pourtant une présence, une consistance qui peut laisser croire que les mots et la mélodie sont de la veille. C'est une interprétation plus qu'une reprise. Elle touche à chaque fois de la même façon, et vous hante même quand vous ne l'écoutez pas.

THE GUARDIAN - 10 January 2013 - theguardian.com

Old music: Robert Wyatt – At Last I Am Free

George Chesterton

In which a hero of the English counterculture embraces the hedonistic disco of Chic, and plays a blinder.

This song involves a lot of heroes and is, in a way, about heroism itself. A ballad of psychological manumission, it was written by Nile Rodgers and Bernard Edwards for Chic's second album, 1978's C'est Chic. Chic were not merely masters of the disco sound, they embodied the best qualities of the disco ethos: unerring positivity, hope and – in the old fashioned sense of the word – the fantastic.

Rodgers and Edwards were two of my earliest musical heroes. The band's heavily cultivated image of sophistication and affluence was in part a response to the economic and social depression of late-70s New York, but this can't muddy the luminous wonder of their songwriting, musicianship and production, which went on to enhance – in some cases rescue – the careers of Sister Sledge, Diana Ross, David Bowie, Madonna, Duran Duran and many others (not to mention their huge influence on hip-hop).

I remember watching Top of the Pops open-mouthed as they mimed to I Want Your Love. Rodgers glued their sound together with his distinctive and often-copied rhythm guitar, Tony Thompson was that most unusual of beasts, a chic drummer, Alfa Anderson and Luci Martin provided the ice-cold vocals while all around them the piano and strings whirled and purred. The person who stood out the most was the much-missed Edwards, who played the bass with the élan of a funkified praying mantis.

So it seems a long journey from Chic's original seven minutes of At Last I am Free to the version by Robert Wyatt, which appeared on his 1982 singles and B-sides compliation, Nothing Can Stop Us. Wyatt is one of the great heroes of British counterculture, like a cross between an old English sheepdog and Pan. His blend of political commitment, an endearing folk twang and a sense of musical experiment and liberty has led to career of almost unrivalled range and influence. On this song he brings the heartbreaking honesty most people will recognise from his version of Shipbuilding, with a voice that somehow is at once shrill but deeply soulful and communicative. Around the central pillar of the vocals fall piano, organ and percussion lines that gently splish and splash then dissipate like ripples in water.

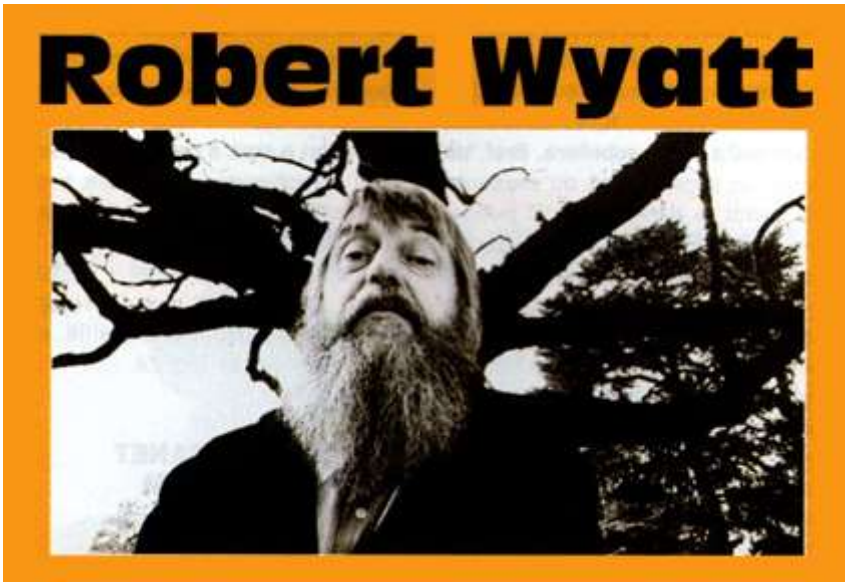
The lyrics speak of a failing relationship but the way Wyatt sings it could be about anything – any momentous parting or new beginnings. The line "I can hardly see in front of me" is one of those phrases in pop music that come along from time to time that mean almost nothing yet bulge under the weight of a thousand projected meanings for a thousand different listeners. It is an anthem for the turning of a page.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME



Rock Bottom/Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard (Reedition LP) 1981

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

BLAH BLAH NEWS - juillet-août 1998

Robert Wyatt - Rock Bottom
Robert Wyatt - Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard
Ryko/Harmonia Mundi

Robert Wyatt, batteur et deuxième chanteur de Soft Machine jusqu'au volume six (sic), entama tragiquement une carrière solo qui ne fut pas ce qu'elle aurait dû être.

Paralysé après une chute, Wyatt eut du mal à concilier musique, déplacements et vie normale. C'est néanmoins avec un grand courage et surtout l'aide de musiciens, des Pink Floyd aux Roxy Music, que Wyatt réalisa avec ces deux albums une autre musique très éloignée de la pop ou même de quoi que ce soit d'autre. On obtient une musique purement mentale, une musique organique qui fait appel à tout ce qu'il y a de plus sensible au fond de chaque être humain. Robert Wyatt possédait une voix d'alto, et il a merveilleusement trouvé le moyen de s'en servir. Il a écrit la seule musique qui pouvait aller avec. La réédition de ces deux monuments donne une idée de la créativité du bonhomme, car vingt-cinq ans plus tard, rien n'a vieilli. Ni la voix, ni le traitement. Ces disques sont deux chimères à saisir au passage. Les plus vieux se souviendront du poignant concert au théâtre des Champs-Elysées et de Wyatt dans son fauteuil roulant.

THE WIRE - June 1998

Robert Wyatt - Rock Bottom - HANNIBAL HNCO1426 CD

Robert Wyatt - Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard - HANNIBAL HNCD1427 CD

Clive Bell

A few years ago Robert Wyatt, always the frankest and most open of interviewees, spoke about the accident which left him paralysed at age 27. "Suddenly I became middle-aged Overnight. So I'm stuck with the experience of a 27 year old in the early 70s, and I've just got to make that work now forever. That's the oddest thing. Not being able to grow up fully in the way I imagine I might have done."
Rock Bottom, now reissued with new cover art and Wyatt's good essay about its history, was written and recorded on either side of that accident. One of its concerns opposes babies vs adults, articulating a kind of rage at having to grow up. On the opening "Sea Song" Wyatt compares his beloved to a fish ("partly porpoise, partly baby sperm whale"). He likes her drunk, and escapes from adulthood into intoxication, but can't understand her the next morning when she turns into a grumpy adult. Throughout the record the music strains to escape through long scalar progressions, always going further than you would expect, either upwards ("Sea Song") or down ("A Last Straw") to the very bottom of the piano and the seabed.
The outro of "Sea Song" moves with simple logic from 4/4 to a swaying 11/4, creating a watery kind of seaweed dance for Wyatt to scat over. In his sleevenote essay, Wyatt recalls the watery vibrato of the little keyboard he was writing on in 1972, making a connection to the shimmering lagoon of Venice outside his window. (Nicholas Roeg was there at the same time, shooting the sinister tragedy Don't Look Now.)
By the time we reach "Alifib/Alife", with its rhythm built from the sound of breathing, Wyatt has regressed into baby language Words disintegrate ("No nit not") with an almost painful intimacy while he serenades the woman as "my larder". Wyatt brings off this strange tightrope act through the eerie, childlike conviction of his singing, and the sheer beauty of the melody. Gary Windo's tenor sax sounds like it's trying to be born. The woman gets a chance to answer back: she is neither his larder nor his dinner, and she criticises his silly baby language ("And what's a bololey when it's a folly?"). But when this adult woman appears, the rhythm immediately stops and the muse dissipates. The adult drives away the watery baby world. But finally the woman agrees to play along and accepts the baby language ("I'm Alife, your guarder').

Ivor Cutler's Scots singing of the sturdy anthem at the close of the album (over Fred Frith's viola chords) provides a hymn-like resolution. But even this is a song of rage and struggle against the contents of the adult world (cars, TV, phones...). It all ends suddenly on a weird cackling laugh.

If Rock Bottom is an example of self-indulgence and talented narcissism producing great art, Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard is a more social occasion. Slightly less of a unified and personal project, here Wyatt shares composing credits with Frith, Mongezi Feza, Offenbach and others. But songs like "Muddy Mouth" and "Team Spirit" are still vintage Wyatt. "Muddy Mouth" offers a James Joycean vision of the anti-hero Handy masturbating by the canal, leading to the sea, leading to oceans: "Even under oaf Handy lies," sings Wyatt, the melody dropping down the scale into a bog.

These songs empathise with victims "Soup Song" is sung by a joint of bacon outraged at being thrown into a pot of soup. "Team Spirit" evokes school football matches and privates in trench warfare, and the singer feels booted about like a football. Again resolution comes at the close, in the wordless, hymn-like version of "Song For Che" by Charlie Haden.

NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS - 18 April 1981

Robert Wyatt: Rock Bottom / Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard (Virgin)

Richard Cook

THE REAPPEARANCE of Robert Wyatt's two Virgin albums (1974-5 vintage), now in a double package, is as welcome as a spring day after a relentless winter.

Rock Bottom is participatory. It's built around elementals: small groupings of players drop in and out of focus, with the mantric swirl of Wyatt's keyboards as constant. The aching vulnerability of his singing invites reactions – sharing, generous – this is no clarion call to sentiment! The gentle ebb and flow of 'Alifib/Alife' elicits a human response from machine and metal: the pristine clarity of Hugh Hopper's bass, Gary Windo's plaintive reeds. It seeps into the farewell of 'Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road', Mike Oldfield's spindly guitar lines a centrepin of proud sorrow before resolution in Ivor Cutler's wide-eyed nursery rhyme.

But this is mere chalk and pins guidance. You're asked to make your own way through the fierce forest of trumpets that Mongezi Feza spreads over 'Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road', choose your own meaning for the slender half-sense of the lyrics. Intensely personal, uniquely open-hearted, there is no other record like Rock Bottom.

The second album is more sharply drawn, perhaps less easily embraced. Side Ruth runs a twisted jazz-based course; the lilting swing of 'Sonia' gives way to a palpable wilderness of pain in 'Team Spirit', a jab in the guts of remorse settled by the serene dignity of Charlie Haden's 'Song For Che'. Side Richard's voice-piano extemporisations are the counterweight, unfolding like the sepia-toned pages of a forgotten diary.

If these records spell out a sadness that seems to border on despair they are, equally, uplifting in Wyatt's resolve to come to terms with his situation and the simple triumph of creating music of true beauty.

Q, August 1989

Robert Wyatt: Rock Bottom / Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard (Virgin)

Martin Aston

NOW ON CD: how Robert Wyatt found beauty in the aftermath of personal disaster.

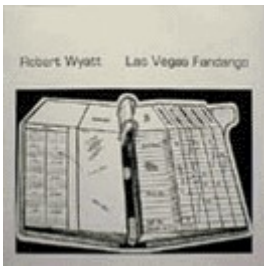
Robert Wyatt's five luminous and investigative years as Soft Machine's drummer/vocalist and subsequently as instigator behind Matching Mole's two albums literally took a tumble – from out of a third floor window at a party given by the ex-Soft Machine/Gong man Daevid Allen, to be exact. Tragic circumstances in rock circles usually end in death, with all artistic achievements suspended in aspic, and Wyatt would have undoubtedly been an "example" of a true British progressive musician (Canterbury Arts division), but permanent paralysis from the waist down only put an end to Wyatt's drumming, not his mind.

Self-explanatory and gravely humorous in its choice of title, Rock Bottom was composed during six arduous, painful months of hospital recovery and rehabilitation; it's no wonder the album's mood is deeply personal, traumatic and yet uncannily dignified and resolute, with his wife Alfie's cover painting of three playful teenage girls at the beach above a handful of sea plants rooted to the seabed the most unnerving of reflections.

You'll have to travel inside albums such as John Lennon's Plastic Ono Band and Van Morrison's Astral Weeks to find equivalent states of raw self-examination, although Rock Bottom is painted with very different hues. Several Matching Mole songs predated this calming but emotionally quivering sound, etched out by Wyatt's distinctively plaintive English warble over a probing bass, simmering keyboards and fragile percussion – Wyatt finds odd objects like a tray, battery or "Jamie's drum" for percussion, or dispenses with rhythms altogether – but Rock Bottom stretches the mood further out. The sound of a genuinely new kind of electronic, minimalist jazz, it's something like the tide on the album cover, and has the therapeutic effect of an isolation tank.

There are only six tracks; 'Alifib' and 'Alife' are aching drifts, dominated by breathing and childlike mutterings, 'Sea Song' is another beautifully drifting paean to Alf, 'A Last Straw' shifts gears with an almost military drum pattern (by Laurie Allen) while 'Little Red Riding Hood Hits The Road' and its Red Robin Hood counterpart over on side two are more congested, ensemble pieces, the former driven by Mongezi Feza's trumpet beside Wyatt's delirious babble, as physical pain gives way to painful guilt, the latter resting on Mike Oldfield's long and winding guitar, but both coloured by Ivor Cutler's inspired nursery rhyme of a narrative.

From 1974, Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard was naturally more outgoing and playful, revising Soft Machine's jazz-rock structures and improvisations and collaborating with new-found allies, instrumentally like Gary Windo on sax and clarinet throughout, and in writing, like Fred Frith on the four-part 'Muddy Mouse A'/'Muddy Mouse B', ex-Softie bassist Hugh Hopper on the bluesy shuffle 'Soup Song', while Mongezi Feza's 'Sonia' and Charlie Haden's 'Song For Che' are treated with a solemn reverence. Wyatt's only solo piece, 'Solar Flares', like 'Muddy Mouse C', maintains Rock Bottom's restless, resolving motion.



Over 15 years on, there has never been anything quite like the effect of this pair, and one realises there never will be. Wyatt soon wheeled himself on to Top Of The Pops with, of all things, The Monkees' 'I'm A Believer', and then off toward Communist agit-pop, witnessed by his only other hit, Elvis Costello's 'Shipbuilding'. Another unique English musical eccentric a waits your undivided attention.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Las Vegas Fandango
1981

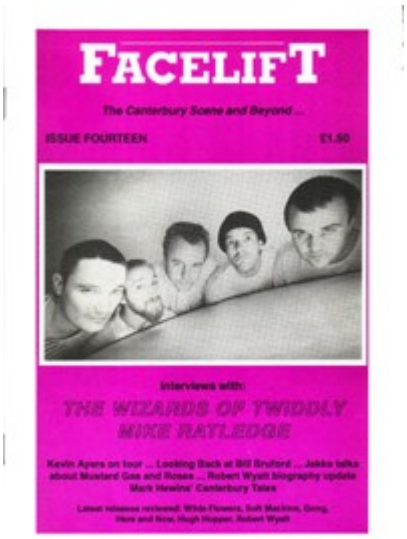
Robert Wyatt

NOTES - N° 5 - Mars 1982

Robert Wyatt - Las Vegas Fandango

Philippe Renaud

Pour compléter l'information parue dans NOTES N° 4 et l'article imprimé dans ce n° 5, je me permets de parler de ce bootleg de WYATT "Las Vegas Fandango", produit italien et limité à 500 exemplaires pour le premier tirage. Evidemment, il n'apporte rien à ceux qui possédaient la bande du concert de DRURY LANE à LONDRES le 9 août 1974 avec "quelques" amis. Par ordre alphabétique : Laurie ALLEN, Ivor CUTLER, Mongesi FEZA, Fred FRITH, Hugh HOPPER, Nick MASON, Mike OLDFIELD, John PEEL, Dave STEWART, Julie TIPPETT et. Gary WINDO. Les morceaux : Memories, Sea song, A last straw, Instant Pussy, Little red riding Hood / Alifib, God song, Little red Robin Hood , I'm a believer. Par rapport au concert intégral, il manque : Dedicated to you (tourné en dérision), Behind the eyes (magnifique chant de Julie TIPPETT), Signed curtain (de Matching Mole) Calyx (du premier album de Hatfield and the North). L'album dure 53 minutes et 45 secondes, ce qui est déjà une performance. Par contre, je préfère personnellement écouter la bande qui est de meilleure qualité. .. Enfin, c'est un document intéressant, avec une pochette montrant un agenda ouvert au 9 août. On peut citer le label : Penguin Records, EGG FOUR. Pas d'autres indications. .. Le mien est déjà arrivé entier d'Italie, ce qui est une performance si j'en crois l'état des colis de certains amis (hein, Bernard?). Pour les amateurs de Robert, il n'est point besoin de faire de commentaires. Pour ceux qui ne le connaissent pas (en existe-t-il encore ?), sachez que c'est un grand moment, bien sûr l'époque de Rock Bottom et les souvenirs pré-accident de la Machine Molle. Si mes souvenirs sont exacts, c'est bien le seul concert que Robert ait donné sous son nom, si on ne tient pas compte des concerts avec Henry COW à Londres et Paris et de "June, first 1974" avec Kevin Ayers et consorts. Dernier détail : ce disque m'est revenu à environ 70 F. avec le port, c'est-à-dire une misère, comparé aux prix prohibitifs auxquels on se heurte lorsqu'on a affaire à des disques heu. .. blancs. Alors, ne laissez pas les enzymes gloutons du vinyl vous escroquer.



The Animals Film
Robert Wyatt

1982

More information about this album

FACELIFT - Issue fourteen - June 1995

Robert Wyatt - The Animals Film
Rough Trade R3172

Quite the strangest thing Robert Wyatt has ever done. This mini-album (clocking in at around 20 minutes) formed the musical backdrop to a film about cruelty to animals (particularly in the meat trade) which was apparently quite harrowing to watch.

Fittingly, the album of this film is quite difficult to listen to. A series of fiddly, odd keyboard pieces, with few hook-ins, make this quite unlike any other Wyatt release. Entirely instrumental: the synths and effects Wyatt appears to be using are very much early Eighties, with sounds as important as the music they tend to hide.

Wyatt adds wordless scats to one section only and there is little percussion either, or certainly none that's not warped out of recognition. There's occasional the appealing naked feel that piano and keyboards added to 'A Short Break', but these passages tend to be short, and even those rarely particularly accessible.

One for the completist, for those who sat through the film, and for those with a commitment to animal rights. And that's about all I can say really.

More information about this album

Nothing Can Stop Us
1982

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

SOUNDS - N. 159 / Mai '82

Robert Wyatt - Nothing Can Stop Us - Rough Trade Rough35

Diedrich Diederichsen

Daß Robert Wyatt nicht schlechter singt ist als irgendwelche Carla Bley-Band Vokalisten, wie noch vor kurzem in diesem Blatt zu lesen, glaubte ich eigentlich nicht noch mal sagen zu müssen. Er hat die herzergreifendste, erschütterndste Stimme seit John Lennon und vermittelt, dessen Naivität („Free The People Now!") und Glaubhaftigkeit ähnlich, Elementares, Selbstverständliches, so, daß es wieder stimmt. Um dummes linkes Bewußtsein kritisieren zu dürfen, muß man eben wenigstens den Impuls mal erlebt haben, der zu diesem Denken fuhrt, auch wenn das zoon politikon heute ein blödes reaktionäres Konzept ist, das nur dazu dient, unverständlich gewordene Jugendliche mit Hilfe von Udo Lindenberg, den Jusos und dem ZDF in die SPD oder die Grünen zurückzuführen, in Bürgerinitiativen wirkungslos altern zu lassen und damit in die staatliche Vernunft zu reintegrieren.
Robert Wyatt geht zurück zu diesem politischen Impuls. Mit seinen Adaptionen exotischer Kampflieder begeht er nicht den Fehler einer heruntergekommenen Linken, die, über das Versagen ihrer veralteten Begrifflichkeit angesichts westlicher Industriegesellschaften, ihre Identität aus den Kämpfen der dritten Welt bezieht, wo die Widersprüche noch die alten zu sein scheinen. Obwohl Mitglied der kommunistischen Partei, verfällt er nicht dem Zentralismus, der die Kulturen und die Kriege einer Teleologie der Befreiung unterstellt. Robert Wyatts ergreifende Versionen von so unterschiedlichen Kampfliedern wie „Arauco" (Chile, Violetta Parra), „Caimanera" (Kuba, Jose Marti), „Strange Fruit" (Südstaaten, Lynchjustiz, Billie Holiday), „Stalin Wasn't Stalling" (Rote Armee, zweiter Weltkrieg, Roosevelt, Golden Gate Quartet) und „At Last I'm Free" (Gegenwart, schwarze Identität und Eleganz, Chic) affirmieren und feiern die Unterschiedlichkeit.

Wyatt hat nur einen eigenen Song beigesteuert („Born Again Cretin, bereits auf der NME/Rough-Trade-Cassette erhältlich) und nur einen Song für die LP neu aufgenommen („Red Flag", die sozialistische Variante von „Oh Tannenbaum"). Der Rest ist Material von den vier Singles, die hier komplett enthalten sind, auch die beiden Beiträge, an denen Wyatt nicht mitgearbeitet hat: das indische „Trade Union" von der Gruppe Dishari und das Gedicht „Stalingrad" des von Wyatt geförderten Poeten Peter Blackman.
Wyatt verachtet die Autorenfunktion zutiefst. Nichts nervt ihn mehr als Autor eines Werkes verstanden zu werden. Mit seinem Namen dokumentiert er die Vielfalt des ihn Umgebenden, stellt sich in den Dienst des gefundenen Material. Und das ist extrem Anti-Hippie.
NOTHING CAN STOP US ist natürlich eigenartig und schön. Drei Songs kann man für Jahrzehnt-Auszeichnungen im Auge behalten: „Strange Fruit", „At Last I'm Free" und „Caimanera" mit Wyatts tollem Spanisch. Nieder mit The Clash!

JAZZ HOT - Janvier 1983 - N° 397

Robert Wyatt : Nothing Can Stop Us

Pierre de Chocqueuse

Depuis la sortie de "Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard" en 1975, Robert WYATT n'avait plus enregistré d'album sous son propre nom. Un silence musical interrompu par sa participation aux séances de quelques disques, prêtant sa voix à Caria BLEY et Mike MANTLER ("The Hapless Child", "Silence"), à Nick MASON ("Fictitious Sports"), apparaissant ça et là dans les musiques de quelques amis. L'âme du défunt Soft Machine amorce ainsi son retour.
C'est une petite compagnie de disques Rough Trade qui lui permet d'accéder à son désir d'enregistrer une série de 45 tours réunis ici sous le titre de "Nothing Can Stop Us". Ne signant qu'une seule composition, il s'exprime à travers les chansons des autres reprenant les musiques de nombreux pays qui lui tiennent à coeur. Des chansons simples, variées qui traduisent son goût très éclectique, son intérêt pour le folklore, pour les musiques traditionnelles. "Nothing Can Stop Us" est également un manifeste politique, un engagement personnel face à l'histoire. "Born Again Crétin" est une chanson sur Nelson Mandela, un leader noir sud-africain emprisonné depuis plusieurs années. "Arauco" de Violetta PARRA est une exhortation au soulèvement des chefs indiens contre les colonisateurs. L'hymne national cubain, l'original du fameux "Guantanamera" côtoie le fameux "Strange Fruit" composé par Billie HOLIDAY. Le chanteur s'efface aussi volontiers n'intervenant pas dans deux des titres de cet album pour nous laisser entendre le groupe DISHARI, des musiciens originaires du Bengladesh s'exprimant dans la pure tradition de leur folklore sur l'assouvissement de leur communauté à Londres et le poète Peter BLACKMAN récitant une de ses oeuvres.
Robert WYATT avoue être un musicien primitif, utilisant à la base les deux instruments les plus simples, la bouche et les mains. Il joue ici à peu près tout ne s'entourant que de quelques comparses parmi lesquels Bill Mac CORMICK et Harry BECKETT.
Autre caractéristique de sa musique, ce son d'orgue très particulier que l'on retrouve déjà dans ses précédents enregistrements. Voix, orgue, piano, des percussions abondamment utilisées remplacent souvent la traditionnelle batterie. Une ligne de basse souvent très simple suffit pour créer un climat irréel. Une musique flottante, légère et intemporelle.

"Nothing Can Stop Us" est un album marginal de la pochette à son contenu. Ici rien n'est parfait, tout laisse plutôt à désirer, un sympathique laisser-aller se dégageant de ces quelques chansons. La musique redevient humaine dans son imperfection, ne donne pas une impression d'achevé, restant plutôt dans un état de gestation prolongée. On retrouve ainsi le stade de la maquette avec ce que cela comporte de spontané, de vivant. Mais surtout Robert WYATT donne beaucoup de lui-même avec cette générosité qui est la marque de tout ce qu'il entreprend. Cet album, disponible depuis quelques mois en import dans quelques magasins spécialisés, sort en janvier en pressage français, distribué par CELLULOÏD. Ne le laissez pas passer.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

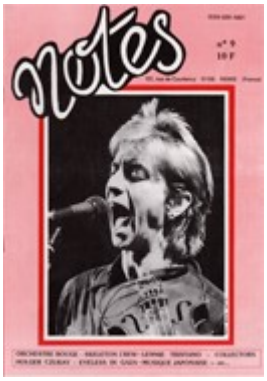
Shipbuilding/Memories Of You/'Round Midnight
1982

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

TELERAMA.FR - 19 septembre 2012

"Round Midnight" : le déchirement, l'émerveillement…



Les disques rayés, le blog musique de François Gorin

Des années durant, il n'y a eu entre Robert Wyatt et moi que Rock Bottom. C'était l'alpha et l'oméga, un puits sans fond, un jour sans fin dans la nuit noire. Le cri primal d'un vieil enfant noyé dans la musique et s'accrochant à sa voix. Dans cet océan venait s'engloutir le reste, connu (ses palinodies chez Soft Machine) ou inconnu (ses aventures avec Matching Mole). Puis au début des années 80, sont apparus comme une géniale incongruité des singles du même Wyatt. Sur label Rough Trade, le Gallimard de la new wave, ou plutôt ses éditions de Minuit. L'ex-batteur condamné à la position assise, vieux sage avant l'âge et agitant un éternel drapeau rouge près de son cœur, chantait les autres. Illuminait le Shipbuilding que la guerre des Malouines inspira (le mot est faible) à Elvis Costello. Puis s'en allait rôder autour de minuit quelques années avant Tavernier. Sans faire offense à Jackie Paris, qui l'interpréta dès 1949, ni à Ella Fitzgerald ou à June Christy, qui lui donnèrent chacune un peu, beaucoup, ni même à Claude Nougaro qui l'adapta dans sa langue en 1979, le sublime thème de Thelonious Monk trouvait sa voix la plus singulière. Devenait chanson à jamais. Pour mieux la faire sienne, Robert Wyatt lui invente un autre texte. Celui de Bernie Hanighen évoquait la tristesse d'après une rupture. Minuit est là ce moment où l'esseulé(e) est taraudé par les souvenirs et le regret de l'absent(e). Puis celui où l'espoir de son retour prend la voie des anges. Le timbre doucement fêlé de Wyatt rend un son plus philosophe. L'heure est ici à peser les sad times et les glad times, à en tirer le meilleur, let your spirit start the fight… Rien n'échappe aux inflexions de cette voix blanche et sans caractère défini, d'une matière et d'une couleur jamais tout à fait fixées : le déchirement, l'émerveillement… Ou tout simplement l'hommage désintéressé aux accords nés des doigts spatules de Monk, un autre jour, une autre nuit, dans un autre temps.

NOTES - N° 9

Robert Wyatt : Shipbuilding (Rough Trade)

P. Schuster

A première vue, on flaire le disque de circonstance à la Lennon, Capaldi et les autres: un prétexte (les malouines), une star du moment (Costello), on se dit le tour est joué et nous avec. Et bien non. C'est du bon, pas de la "B" side enrergistrée la veille. Loin de là. Plutôt du ciselé patiemment, du vieilli a la cave, bref du grand cru. Magnum, en plus. Dans la bouteille, y a un bateau et WYATT, capitaine d'un instant, nous invite, voyage divin, même si trop court.. Même mis quinze fois bout à bout, c'est trop court mais c'est toujours un ravissement. Perpétuel. Imaginez: un léger bruit de vagues, le vent qui doucement se lève et WYATT qui lentement s'avance: "Is it worthy?" Yes, it is et urgent en plus.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

The Last Nightingale
Various Artists
1984

More information about this album

NOTES - N° 17 - Avril 1985

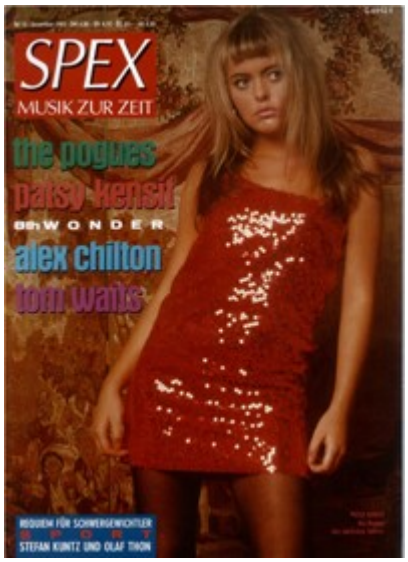
WYATT / CUTLER / COOPER / HODGKINSON ETC... THE LAST NIGHTINGALE (RE. RECORDS RE 1984)

Bernard Gueffier

C'est une véritable douche écossaise que ce maxi de chez RECOMMENDED. Face 1, le meilleur: Robert WYATT accompagné par les trois ex-HENRY COW sus-cités, plus Bill GILONIS. Depuis des années que WYATT nous avait habitué à des reprises de chansonnettes, on doutait qu'il soit encore capable d'innover dans les hautes sphères musicales. Le doute est levé, il nous livre ici deux magnifiques morceaux, compositions des ex-HENRY COW, dans la droite ligne du HENRY COW CONCERT.
Face 2, le pire: deux poèmes d'Adrian MITCHELL dits par l'auteur sans accompagnement musical et un remixage d'un morceau de UNREST qui n'apporte pas grand chose.
Alors Robert, quand te décideras-tu à nous offrir un album complet du cru de ces deux morceaux.

More information about this album

Old Rottenthat
1985



Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

SPEX - Dezember 1985

Robert Wyatt (Rough Trade)

Wilfried Rütten

Zehn traurige Traktate von Altmeister Robert Wyatt. Noch sparsamer, noch minimaler und noch zerbrechlicher als sonst sind die hier versammelten Kompositionen. Wyatts Stimme und deren Mutationen dominieren diese LP, gelegentliches Trommeln und schräge Keyboard-Harmonien haben lediglich unterstützende Funktion. Der hier entstehenden Stimmung entgeht nur, wer die Platte vom Teller nimmt; ansonsten folgt man unweigerlich und geradezu hypnotisiert Wyatt auf seinem Weg in die Tristesse. Elegische Meditationen über versäumte Revolutionen, vermißte Chancen und vertane Zeit. Selbst die Internationale ist nicht mehr das was sie einmal war; statt mit kraftvollem Chorgesang klimpert sie uns hier aus einer Spieluhr entgegen. Und auch an dieser Version kassiert Beierlein seine Tantiemen. Nur Wyatt selbst - so scheint's - bleibt sich treu. Es gibt nur wenige so eindeutig definierte Stimmen und Stimmungen wie seine; nach drei Sekunden weiß man, wer da singt. Harmonische und melodische Schönheiten in Moll en masse. Novembermusik oder: Elvis Costello für Arme.

FRIED ROCK CLASSICS FROM THE 80's - Jeudi 20 décembre 2007

Robert Wyatt - Old Rottenhat - LP, Rough Trade Rough 69, décembre 1985

Jean-Philippe Cimetière

Si les années septante de Robert Wyatt et Rock Bottom (1974) en particulier font l'objet de respect et de nombreuses citations chez les amateurs de musique ayant les oreilles bien débouchées, ses années 80 sont souvent considérées au mieux comme une période de transition expérimentale, au pire comme une traversée du désert. Il est pourtant un album, publié en décembre 1985, qui mérite de figurer parmi de ses plus belles réussites. Mettons donc ici à l'honneur Old Rottenhat, publié par Rough Trade, le label indépendant issu du mouvement punk et qui redonna à Wyatt l'opportunité –peut être même le goût- de sortir des disques. Après une poignée de single et un premier album en 1982 (Nothing Can Stop Us), le barbu batteur présente ici un album auquel convient on ne peut mieux l'épithète « solo » puisque Wyatt livre dix morceaux entièrement interprétés seul ; soit drums, keyboards & vocals by Robert Wyatt. Le disque n'a pas été enregistré à la maison, on ne parlera donc pas de repli ou d'autarcie. On pourra toutefois supposer que cette solitude n'est pas étrangère à l'engagement politique de Wyatt (il était alors membre du parti communiste) : il avoua avoir dû faire preuve de beaucoup plus de courage pour défendre ses idées que pour s'affirmer en tant qu'artiste.

Et c'est bien un disque politique qu'il nous propose : les mensonges sur lesquels repose la démocratie, la manipulation médiatique, la réécriture amnésique de leur passé par certaines nations comme les Etats Unis (« The United States Of Amnesia »), le sale rôle de l'Occident en « East Timor » constituent le fondement des lyrics. « They say the working class is dead, we're all consumers now » se plaint-il au début de "The Age Of Self ». Il ne s'y résout visiblement pas et distille ça et là quelques notes de l'Internationale histoire de marquer le coup.

La musique, elle, n'est « certainement pas du rock'n'roll », comme il l'affirme dans un bel article du New Musical Express (14 décembre 1985). Wyatt parle d'un « english blues ». Ce sont ses claviers, pour l'essentiel très minimalistes, qui donnent à Old Rottenhat cette couleur en harmonie avec son inimitable voix, à la fois haut perchée, sans cesse comme dans un souffle. Le jeu et les possibilités sont la fois limitées et d'une grande variété et une impression de grande richesse s'impose au fil des écoutes. On est ici à la fois tout près, parfois, des orgues de Nico et des vocaux de Brian Wilson. Soit l'eau (très froide) et l'air (de très haute altitude).

Tout disque politique qu'il est, Old Rottenhat s'achève par une adresse à Alfie, sa compagne : « Poor little Alfie trying to draw, poor little Alfie trying to sleep » puis par une courte pièce psychédélique, une petite ritournelle qui reste dans l'oreille une fois le disque arrivé à son terme à tel point que l'on en vient à se demander si l'essentiel ne s'y cache pas. Or que nous y dit Robert ? "you wondering now, what to do ?, now you know this is the end." Pataphysique ou mantra ? Et si la meilleure chose à faire n'était pas encore de replacer l'aiguille là où tout commence, c'est-à-dire, en ce qui concerne ce disque en tout cas, au début d' «Alliance » ?

NOTES - N°20 - février 86

Robert Wyatt - Old Rottenhat (ROUGH TRADE 70406)

Bernard Gueffier

Dix ans ! Il se sera écoulé dix ans entre le dernier LP de WYATT et celui-ci. Oh! bien sûr! entre temps il avait calmé notre impatience en jalonnant les années de multiples 45t, compilations, apparitions diverses et éparpillées où les délices de sa voix n'avaient bien souvent d'égale que l'indigence de son propos musical. Le récent LAST NIGHTINGALE avec Chris CUTLER nous avait bien confirmé que WYATT doit pour s'épanouir, s'intégrer à un groupe, se mettre au service d'un compositeur. Eh bien! ce dernier disque sera l'ultime démonstration de ce fait : la voix est toujours suave à souhait, mais le minimalisme des compositions et de l'instrumentation nous laisse sur notre faim. Enfin, tout espoir n'est pas perdu puisqu'on parle de notre vieux Robert, pour remplacer DAGMAR dans NEWS FROM BABEL. . .)

ORDET BLOG - 22 mars 2016

Robert Wyatt: Old Rottenhat

Philippe L

L'inattaquable plongée mid-seventies Rock Bottom à beau être l'un des plus beaux albums d'anti-rock au monde, il y a dedans Nick Mason l'infirmier Pink Floyd et encore un peu quelque chose du Barnum dans les arrangements. Voilà peut-être pourquoi j'ai toujours trouvé plus à mon goût le Robert Wyatt mid-eighties celui du vieux chapeau pourri et des merveilles Cherry Red. Une voix, un orgue et rien de plus, ou presque. Robert le défenestré gazouille autour de quelques génocides divers et oubliés celui des Indiens d'Amérique, celui des Timorais orientaux, il est question de lutte des classes, de mass medium et de temps de cerveaux disponible. C'est un disque qui pourrait avoir été écrit par Noam Chomsky. Bienheureusement il est chanté par Robert Wyatt, ce formidable porte-parole du Parti communiste britannique. Là oui très haut dans les limbes, c'est lui. (On me chuchote qu'un Wyatt fredonnant le bottin pourrait être tout autant politique puisque ce qui est surtout politique chez lui c'est sa voix et avant tout sa voix. Je ne sais pas ; peut-être, allez savoir ?)

NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS - 30 November 1985

Robert Wyatt: Old Rottenhat (Rough Trade)

Mat Snow

CAN POLITICS and music mix? Are songs about matters commonly deemed to belong in the political sphere not really songs at all, but rather singing pamphlets on a par with singing telegrams? Should political songs necessarily be anthemic and sloganising: is their purpose to stress goals, identify the enemy, raise the spirits and unite common causes in a single voice? What is music for?

Old Rottenhat raises all these questions; but first impressions first. How does it sound? "Musically, I should say it's more of a slinking record than a dance record," ventures Robert in his customarily wry press-release. He's right. Old Rottenhat neither quickens the pulse nor punches the shadows: rather, it fills the air with the sound of quietly philosophical Englishness, a point of view, a tone of voice, a singular mood.

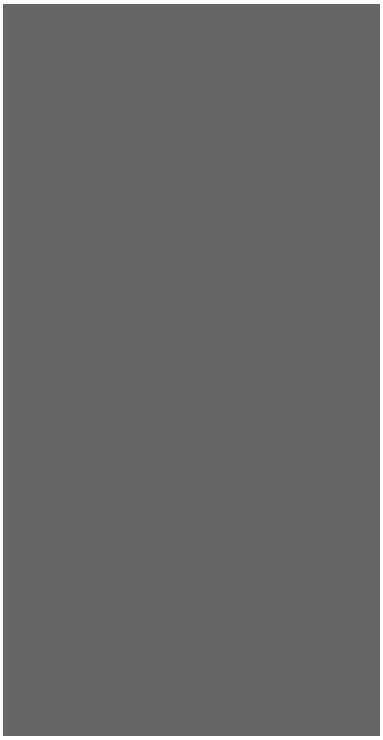
Robert Wyatt's quirky individualism is the strength of his music and argument. A Wyatt record is like an old friend; it neither hectors, lectures nor harangues as if the listener were a public meeting. His plaintively low-key voice and the uncluttered, hymnal contemplativeness of his music demand you listen hard: its quiet self-effacement is not only impossible to ignore, but invests with personal relevance and resonance tunes hitherto abandoned to memory's stockpile of frozen standards. I'm thinking of his 1974 version of The Monkees' 'I'm A Believer' and his solo rendition of 'The Red Flag' from the 1982 collection Nothing Can Stop Us: sung by Robert Wyatt they find a melancholy dimension that rings touching, refreshing and true.

Old Rottenhat – as unheroic an LP title as there's ever been – is dedicated to Michael Bettany, "just one of England's (sic) many political prisoners". Since Old Rottenhat is Robert Wyatt's first LP of self-penned songs since 1975's Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard, I should imagine he thought long and hard about this choice. Bettany's trial for trying to pass official secrets to Russia indicated a most hapless bungler, inspired more by embittered outsiderhood than idealism: Robert Wyatt makes no distinction between this dubious character and a more noble political prisoner. Whichever, Bettany shouldn't be in jail, and Wyatt's judgement here is humane, not ideological – a telling gesture.

But of what does he sing? The majority of songs here are plainly 'political'. He regrets the divisiveness and hypocrisy of the Alliance parties ('Alliance'); sighs at the modish view that workerism has been undermined by consumerisation ('The Age Of Self'); confronts white America with the wilfully forgotten history lesson of the Red Indian extermination ('United States Of Amnesia'); derides British self-glorification ('The British Road'); reminds that there is such a place as East Timor, and all is not well there ('East Timor'); implicates our 'free press' in the erosion of our freedom of thought ('Mass Medium')...

These are familiar topics of hand-wringing conversation amongst Guardian-readers such as myself; but does conscience only prod if pushed by novelty? Should concern diminish with loss of newsworthiness? And would we just stand there and be buttonholed, however right-on the message, if the messenger was a bore?

Luckily, not a note strikes false nor word rings hollow. With quiet, mournful endurance, Robert Wyatt applies steady musical pressure – a sort of analogue to the theory where real history is not the surface activity of the waves, but rather the great invisible oceanic movements beneath. Words may lose their original meaning over time, but music conveys a profounder spirit. That is what music is for.



By the way, a great record.

TELERAMA - 22 janvier 1986

Robert Wyatt: Old Rottenhat - Rough Trade - Virgin (70406)

Philippe Barbot —fff—

Le retour de l'ermite. Cloué sur un fauteuil roulant depuis 1973, l'ex-batteur-chanteur de groupes baroques britanniques comme Soft Machine et Matching Mole, ne faisait guère plus jaser.

Les inities conservaient au creux de leur discothèque son Rock Bottom, un des albums les plus sombres et déroutants de l'histoire du rock dit de Canterbury. Une série de 45 tours — dans lesquels il reprenait, en vrac, Costello et... Guantanamera — et une musique de film animalier exceptés, Robert Wyatt semblait davantage concerné par la méditation politique — on le dit inscrit au parti communiste — que par la continuité de son œuvre musicale.
Cet album, couplé d'un maxi 45 tours en compagnie des Swapo Singers, anecdotique s'il n'était consacré à la cause anti-apartheid (The wind of change, Virgin 80222), est donc une véritable résurrection. Et une nostalgique surprise: Wyatt a conservé cette voix de glotte acide, ces murmures aux tonalités évasives qui ont fait sa particularité.
Sur des canevas de claviers lugubres, orgues de barbarie civilisés et harmoniums essoufflés, il tisse ses cantiques de cathédrales en kit, comme des comptines déraillantes. Les percussions s'égrènent en conciliabules tintinabulants, et les textes caustiques ne laissent paraître qu'un militantisme à la vue large. Frileux, mais superbe.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

The Wind Of Change
Robert Wyatt
With The SWAPO Singers
1985

More information about this album

NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS - 26th October, 1985

Robert Wyatt With The SWAPO Singers: The Wind Of Change (Rough Trade)

Steven Wells

If this record was as boring as the man's version of 'Shipbuilding' or as crass and insulting as his ode-to-a-mass-murderer 'Stalin Wasn't Stalling' then, one supposes, we'd get the usual dull whimperings of the 'pop and politics don't mix' fruitbats. Ha! It's a cracker. This is truly a righteous record. Though not quite as catchy as 'Free Nelson Mandela', the power of the melody and the simplicity of the message make this one of those all too rare great protest songs. The wind referred to is the wind of revolution. A fine sentiment and perhaps one that should be extended not only to the people of Namibia but also those of Poland and wherever working people kick against the bosses, eh, Robert?

More information about this album

Bel Canto
1986

Pascal Comelade

More information about this album

NOTES - N° 25/26 - mars 1987

Bel Canto - Pascal Comelade (DSA 54006)

Jean-Pierre "Pégourdine" NADAU

Monsieur COMELADE nous sert ici une véritable cuisine de style(s), il tient de sa mère y'a pas d'erreur! Les ingrédients principaux, du moins ceux qui concourent à la quintessence des morceaux, sont ses fameux "instruments-de-musique-jouets" dont Pascal raffole de plus en plus me semble-t-il.
Les lapin-tambour, plastic-guitar, trombone-jouet, plastic-accordéon, imitation-hautbois et autres tambours en carton se marient sans effort avec un véritable piano, un vrai violon ou une authentique clarinette pour créer une sorte de grosse boîte à musique à la fois très complexe et très intime (COMELADE ne fait pas dans le "son énorme").
Avec grande finesse, Pascal et ses amis jouent du COMELADE bien sûr mais aussi le célèbre "Besame mucho" de Consuelo VELASQUEZ, "Chanson pop" de Robert WYATT, "Still I'm sad" des YARDBIRDS, un traditionnel, "Giulietta" de Nino ROTA et même, pour la première fois sur vinyl, "L'Air des bijoux" d'Igor WAGNER (la partition est encore disponible chez Casterman sur le song-book : "Les bijoux de la Castafiore").
Cependant il faut bien sentir le propos chez COMELADE : il ne se prend pas au sérieux pour le plaisir de ne pas se prendre au sérieux et parce que c'est la mode, non, il ne s'agit pas du Petit Magic Circus, il fait ça pour la poésie, ça reste donc très sérieux.
Que deviendrait "Une andalouse sur la pelouse" sans le xérémia? Et bien ça deviendrait une belle andalouse sur une belle pelouse, sans grand intérêt. Tandis qu'avec le "Pouet-Pouët" du xérémia le morceau est totalement transfiguré car 1'andaIouse louche !

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

More information about this album

The Peel Sessions
1987

Robert Wyatt

TELERAMA.FR - 19 septembre 2012

Robert Wyatt, bis pour l'abyssale "Sea Song" -

Les disques rayés, le blog musique de François Gorin

François Gorin

Chez John Peel, l'arsenal de Robert Wyatt se réduit à un piano et un orgue. Plus des effets filtrant la voix. L'hymne perd en pouvoir submergeant, gagne en puissance brute. Cela crée des passages où la beauté du morceau se risque à la dissonnance. Aux frottements, aux cadences pas très caressantes. L'absence de décorum oblige à se concentrer sur le personnage, qui lui ne cesse de jouer une partition littéralement folle entre absence et présence. L'étrange crudité de ses mots éclate au jour : partly fish, partly porpoise, partly baby sperm whale… you're terrific when you're drunk… you're a seasonal beast… Le tout nimbé du bel accent de Cambridge. Quand on se croit abandonné aux vagues des claviers, un vrai chant d'amour vient conclure : your lunacy fits neatly with my own… Puis commence (à 5'30 dans cette version) l'inouï, voix déformée, redoublée, fondue sans paroles aux instruments, cherchant l'air ou quelque chose de plus rare, psalmodiant sans fin (du moins le voudrait-on), touchant le même graal qu'un Surf's up, coupant son élan pour céder au pas d'un métronome. Il faut rappeler l'admiration fanatique de Wyatt pour les Double Six et leurs vocalises échafaudées. A lui seul il ne pouvait faire une chorale. Mais il essayait. Ça reste effrayant et sublime.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises |

Dondestan
1991

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

BLAH BLAH NEWS - février 1999
Robert Wyatt - Dondestan
Ryko

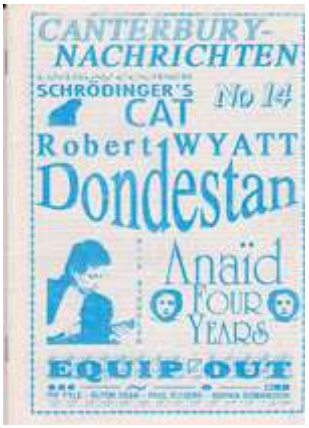
Sorti sur le légendaire label anglais Rough Trade, Dondestan est un album de Robert Wyatt qui renoue avec la magie de ses débuts en solo. On y retrouve son jeu de piano plutôt percutant, et une utilisation de la batterie, très sèche, qui nous ramène aux années Soft Machine. Robert Wyatt, cloué dans un fauteuil roulant, n'a rien perdu en voix. La majeure partie des textes ont été écrits par sa femme et témoignent de l'engagement politique que Wyatt n'a jamais dissocié de la musique, même rock. Cet album est une ode au minimalisme, il donne une grande part au chant très aérien de Wyatt et laisse les plages atmosphériques vivre d'elles-mêmes. Le temps étant le pire fossoyeur de pop music, Wyatt aura la modeste satisfaction de savoir que ses disques, grâce aux amateurs éclairés, resteront encore quelque temps dans les bacs des disquaires, et que de nouvelles générations pourront ainsi, au hasard de chroniques, découvrir quelqu'un d'important qui n'a strictement aucun tube à son palmarès.

FACELIFT - Issue 7 - Feb' 92

Robert Wyatt - Dondestan
(Rough Trade E274)

Mike King

Clearly, the man requires no introduction to FACELIFT readers. Equally self-evident is that Robert neither rushes, nor releases his art until it clears a stringent and solipsist 'quality control check'.



Not surprisingly then, 'Dondestan' (Spanish for 'where are they') is a profoundly moving collection of songs, largely crafted from the music of Robert Vyatt and the impressionistic poetry of Alfreda Benge. An engaging range of vocal delivery rides across a varied aesthetic; from the suspension of ethereal atmospheres of 'Worship' to the strikingly rich piano chords of 'Catholic Architecture'. There is a rap confronting the vested interests of psychoanalysis in the song 'Shrinkrap', and the case of stateless people is addressed in the toe-tapping title track. Also included is 'Lisp Service', a Hugh Hopper jewel (rescued) from the unreleased album Hugh and Richard Sinclair recorded for Europa eight years ago.

Throughout, 'Dondestan' presents a unification of content and form, born of socialist committment and an increasingly rarified quality in contemporary music: beauty. If, as it has been opined, that a new record from Robert Wyatt is akin to receiving an intelligent communique from an old friend, then to be sure 'Dondestan' will desserve and reward your reception.

CANTERBURY NACHRICHTEN - N° 14 - Oktober 1991

Robert Wyatt - Dondestan
(CD W BKL & lyrics) 91 D Rough Trade RTD 101-1234-2

Es (er) ist schon irgendwie ein Phänomen: jahrelang läßt er nichts von sich hören, außer ein paar, von seinen Fans gierig aufgenommenen, Gastauftritten bei exzellenten Musikern, verkündet regelmäßig, nicht mehr ins Studio gehen zu wollen, dann kommt, wie aus heiterem Himmel, eine neue Platte und er ist plötzlich in aller Munde. MELODY MAKER, NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS, VOX, SPEX und viele andere Musikzeitungen überschlagen sich förmlich, ihn und seine Platte vorzustellen, bringen lange Interviews, küren "DONDESTAN" zur Platte des Monats (verdientermaßen natürlich), der WDR widmet ihm und der Platte eine ganze Stunde, im November gibt's noch mal eine, diesmal über seine Beziehung zum Jazz. Erstaunlich diese Aufmerksamkeit für jemanden, der die "Regeln" des Musikgeschäftes permanent mißachtet hat, unbequem war im englischen Hurra-Patriotismus des Falklandkrieges und mit "Shipbuilding" und seinem Rollstuhl in die Hitparaden fuhr (was ihm 1974 von der BBC noch verwehrt wurde), aus politischer Überzeugung den Wirtschaftsriesen Virgin verließ und sich dem Abenteuer Rough Trade anschloß, der über Lynchjustiz, Rassenhaß, Apartheit, politische Willkür singt, Discohits und Jubellleder auf Stalin covert und bei alldem, und das ist das erstaunlichste dabei, tatsächlich gehört wird. Es gibt zuwenige von seiner Art, das ist schon mal klar ...

Sechs Jahre sind vergangen seit seiner letzten Solo-Platte "Old rotten hat", ungeachtet ihrer Qualität, war sie schon recht schwer verdaulich, etwas melancholisch in ihrem Ausdruck ist es keine Platte, die man "mal eben so" hören kann. Zwar gilt das auch für "Dondestan", aber die ganze Stimmung dieser neuesten Platte ist anders, sehr viel freier - befreiter -, gefüllt mit Optisimismus und einem besonderen Humor, mit einem speziellen Sinn für das kleine, alltägliche und dessen Bedeutung für unser Leben. "The sight of the wind" zum Beispiel, eins der schönsten Lieder auf dieser Platte, beschreibt einen Tag am menschenleeren Strand an der spanischen Küste. Zwar ist der Mensch durch seine Hinterlassenschaften (= Müll: Plastiktüte, alte Zeltungen) allgegenwärtig, aber die scheinbar toten Gegenstände entwickeln ihr eigenes Leben (ein totes Blatt kratzt eine eilige Botschaft in Sanskrit in den Sand, bevor es auf einer munteren Bö davonfährt): ein Tag für den Müll zu tanzen. Ein wunderbares, ungewöhnliches Gedicht von Alfreda BENGE (die auch weitere Texte beigesteuert hat), behutsam musikalisch umgesetzt von Robert WYATT. Seine besondere Art des Keyboardspielens, die langgezogenen, schwellenden Töne, schaffen die eigenartige Atmosphäre eines scheinbar leblosen Strandtages, die Singstimme folgt dem umherfliegenden Blatt, lautmalerisch von den windigen Hintergrundstimmen auf die Reise geschickt, mit einzelnen Pianotönen und dem allgegenwärtigen Wind erstirbt das Lied langsam: die Fusspuren des Vortages werden verweht, niemand ist zu sehen, noch nicht mal die Hunde ... Ob da nun die "Katholische Architektur" oder zwei Nonnen am Strand beschrieben werden, ob im schnellen "Shrinkrap", die harte Arbeit beschrieben wird, sein wirkliches Ich aus der Schale zu lösen, dies alles ist verbunden mit einer erfrischenden, spitzfindigen Gelassenheit, die Spaß macht. Auch eindeutig politische Stellungnahme ist hier vertreten: über das ungleiche (Macht-)Verhältnis zwischen dem Norden und dem Süden, über Privatisierungswahn (der hier bis zum Exzess getrieben wird: warum nicht die Armee, die Polizei, die königliche Familie, gar das Meer und den Wind privatisieren), über Flüchtlinge, über Palästina. Bis auf den Song "Lisp Service" (Melodie von Hugh HOPPER) hat sich WYATT die Musik selbst geschrieben (und vollkommen "solo" eingespielt), was die beste Garantie dafür ist, daß seine unverwechselbare Stimme sich voll entfalten kann. Genüßlich ausgekostet wird dies bei "N.I.O.", das sich, zuerst ungeordnet (spanische Wortfetzen und Sätze fliegen umher, Pianoakkorde hauen dazwischen), erst langsam findet, dann aber schnell von dem Gesang beherrscht wird, einzelne Worte werden langgezogen wie ganze Sätze (in der Tat kommt "N.I.O." bei 6 1/2 Minuten Dauer mit weniger als 60 Worten aus). Hier ist man dankbar, daß die Texte abgedruckt sind. Besonders gelungen ist wie "N.I.O." übergangslos in den Titelsong "Dondestan" hinüberwächst (durch ein paar Trommelschläge vorangekündigt), der doch, von der Melodie her fast wie ein Kinderlied anmutend, so ganz anders klingt, und wie schließlich "Dondestan" sich zum Ende hin wieder in das Thema von "N.I.O." auflöst. Platten von dieser Art, gibt es zu wenige, das ist auch klar...

LA VOIX DU NORD

Robert Wyatt : l'humour et la mélancolie

Snobé par les jazzmen effarouchés par la dégaine et la chevelure hirsute de ses musiciens, incompris des amateurs de pop rebutés par l'hermétisme de sa musique, Soft Machine, avec ses sonorités élégantes empruntées au jazz et ses rythmes simples et dépouillés issus du rock, fut un des groupes les plus cruciaux de la période folle des années 65-70. Robert Wyatt fut son batteur ailé et sa voix. En 72, il fonda le groupe Matching Mole, instrument idéal pour inventer de nouvelles mixtures musicales iconoclastes, puis le drame survint. Au cours d'une « party » planante et arrosée, Wyatt passa par la fenêtre et tomba du quatrième étage. Paraplégique, il allait devoir tout revoir, tout reprendre à zéro. Retour au premier plan en 74 avec le grand album « Rock bottom » et succès dans les « charts » avec une reprise de « I'm a believer » de Neil Diamond. Le disque suivant, « Ruth is stranger than Richard » tient aussi la rampe et réjouit ses admirateurs. Puis il se réfugie dans un long silence entre 74 et 80. Dérives politiques au début des années 80 et enregistrement d'une série de chansons militantes parmi lesquelles « Stalin' wasn't Stalin » (Staline n'était pas un rigolo) interprété auparavant par le Golden Gate. En 85 « Old rotten hat » permet d'entendre ses premières compositions originales depuis longtemps. Wyatt coupe à nouveau la communication pendant six ans et ne nous redonne que récemment de ses nouvelles avec ce « Dondestan » qui vient confirmer tout le bien qu'on pouvait penser de lui. Un penchant immodéré pour la mélancolie, parfois de l'humour à propos des discours opportunistes des politiciens du P.C (C.P jeebies) ou du racket de la médecine (Shinkrap), un respect affiché pour les poésies impressionnistes de son épouse Alfie, vont de pair avec les musiques qui peuvent évoquer des paysages grandioses et imaginaires. Loin d'avoir le goût amer du passé, « Dondestan » s'inscrit en dehors du temps, en dehors des modes, oeuvre originale de beauté sereine, elle ne décevra pas les fidèles de Wyatt.
(Rough Trade/Virgin)

LES INROCKS - 26 septembre 1991

Robert Wyatt : Dondestan

Christophe Conte

Coquin de sort ! Scélérate ironie ! Ce nouvel album de Robert Wyatt nous parvient le jour même où Gorby décide l'abandon de la lutte des classes, éparpillant ainsi, façon puzzle, l'un des derniers dogmes marxistes aux quatre coins de l'ex-empire des tsars. Pauvre Robert, pour lui qui ne publie plus qu'un album par plan quinquennal, ces quelques années écoulées depuis le précédent, Old rotten hat, doivent avoir un sérieux arrière-goût de désillusion. Le rouge n'excite guère plus que les taureaux et les ennemis d'hier ont revêtu des habits respectables, Mandela est libre, l'apartheid décomposé et l'Angleterre a troqué sa vieille sorcière contre John Major aux allures de gentleman. Quant à la guerre du Golfe, elle a réduit en peau de chagrin les derniers fantasmes égalitaires de l'utopie tiers-mondiste. Diable ! Que reste-t-il au vieux militant comme juste combat à mener ? Réponse ici avec Dondestan, en français où sont-ils ??, qui pose le problème des apatrides. Une façon comme une autre de ne plus s'engager aux côtés d'une doctrine incertaine en optant pour une cause aussi consensuelle qu'insoluble dans un avenir proche. Et puis, au-delà, il reste les chansons, ces mélopées fluides qui percent le palpitant des uns et brisent les nerfs des autres. Dès le premier titre, l'ex-Soft Machine déstabilise son petit monde en le plongeant dans le labyrinthe d'une rythmique à mettre hors d'usage le plus performant des pace-makers. Tout l'art de Wyatt réside dans cette fameuse résistance aux codes préétablis, sans courir derrière une prétendue modernité, à l'instar de bon nombre de ses contemporains mais uniquement par nécessité émotionnelle. Comme celles de son vieux complice Kevin Ayers ou comme chez le Van Morrison d'Astral week, les compositions de Robert Wyatt se situent hors des limites du palpable et seuls les funambules et les astronautes maîtrisent avec un tel bonheur les lois de l'équilibre. On aura beau se référer au jazz et à sa noblesse pour quadriller une œuvre trop ambitieuse pour notre quotidien futile du rock. Ou bien au chant des sirènes car nul ne sait à quoi il ressemble. En vain, c'est de vertige dont il s'agit ici. Ce vertige qui l'a cloué dans un fauteuil roulant, Wyatt ne cesse depuis de le provoquer, de lui faire payer sa dette pour une vie brisée. La musique ici n'est qu'un prétexte et on ne peut qu'en admirer la beauté extérieure, la coquille. Le cœur, et par conséquent la plus grosse part de vérité, reste pour nous désespérément impénétrable.

GUITARES & CLAVIERS - Octobre 1991 - N° 123

Robert Wyatt : Dondestan

Nicolas Ungemuth

Dix-sept ans après « Rock Bottom », Robert Wyatt sort enfin son quatrième album solo. A la première note du premier morceau, à la première écoute, on sait déjà que c'est lui. Ce chant qui joue comme un instrument à vent, ces claviers apparaissant comme une brume et s'évanouissant brusquement, c'est Robert Wyatt de retour. « Dondestan », du début à la fin, est un pur chef-d'œuvre. Un disque qui traumatisera à vie les pseudos gourous du nouvel âge et les petits banquiers qui s'encanaillent le samedi soir en écoutant de la musique mondiale avant de s'inscrire au Paris Dakar. Pas d'étiquette viable pour « Dondestan ». Juste la beauté faite musique. De longues dérives construites comme des mirages, et des textes (de la femme de Wyatt, la Alfie de « Rock Bottom ») d'une simplicité désarmante mais à la beauté primitive essentielle. « Dondestan », c'est le génie de « Rock Bottom », la sérénité en plus et la mort en moins. Un disque capital qui nous assure encore au moins dix-sept ans de surprises intarissables.

THE WIRE - September 1991 - Issue 91

Robert Wyatt : Dondestan (wire winner: unprivatised pop)

Jonathan Coe

ONE OF the most heartening things about Wyatt's work is its sense of continuity, however sporadic his album releases might have been over the last 15 years. The soundscape of Dondestan is instantly recognisable: the layers of rippling, droning keyboards, the complex percussive effects achieved with a minimum of fuss, and above all (literally) that fabulous voice. Tentative but commanding, fragile but resolute: one of the greatest voices in British music.

Continuity need not mean repetition, of course, and this album finds Wyatt charting out new territory as well as revisiting the old. "Shrink Rap" takes us back to the cheerful experimentations of Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard, with stomping, dissonant piano lines and some verbal rhythms which recall Dury's "Reasons To Be Cheerful" rather than Public Enemy. The other songs on side two mine Old Rottenhat's vein of politicised lyricism: simple chord progressions over which the melody lines wander and spiral and soar, their mixture of passion and quirkiness ruling out any question of ideological inflexibility (also kept at bay by the characteristic self-deprecatory tone of the lyrics).

The rest of the album features settings of verse written by Wyatt's wife, Alfie. We already know from his record sleeves what a good painter she is; it now also transpires that, as a poet, she has a real gift for evoking physical detail in a language which is both inventive and unpretentious: "We could hear it before the shutters were open/The wind on the beach/Then we found miniatures and dunes/On the concrete of the balcony/And a dead leaf zigzagging/Scratching an urgent message in sandscript/Before hitching a ride on a frisky gust" ("The Sight Of The Wind").

The combination of these different sensibilities might have made for a patchy and disjointed album, but instead the two strands fruitfully interweave and fold in upon each other. The polemic of Wyatt's "CPGB's", for instance, which could easily have seemed like too-obvious sarcasm ("Privatise the sea/Privatise the wind . . . Don't waste good air/Breathing isn't paying its way") acquires resonance and vitality from the heartfelt celebrations of the natural world which have preceded it. In fact the assurance with which this whole record conflates steely intelligence with honest-to-goodness musical pleasure proves beyond doubt that Wyatt is losing none of his edge. Seems like nothing can stop him.

More information about this album

A Short Break
1992

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

RIVISTA ANARCHICA - #201 - giugno-luglio '93

Robert Wyatt

Con un aereo immaginario, e per questo velocissimo, partiamo dall'Austria ed arriviamo subito in Inghilterra, ad incontrare una delle leggende viventi della musica contemporanea, cioè Robert Wyatt.

Sarebbe vergognoso tentare di negare l'influenza della personalità di Wyatt sui grandi spazi della cultura alternativa europea. La "diversità" a tutti i costi di esperienze come Soft Machine e Matching Mole, l'apertura ad altre culture (quando la cosiddetta world music non era ancora stata inventata) ed il volontario esilio discografico.

Poi, su tutto, il ritorno in pubblico in un periodo storico difficile come poteva esserlo l'Inghilterra degli anni Ottanta: oltre vent'anni di cammino su una strada di periferia sempre in salita, percorsi un po' a piedi, un po' su una sedia a rotelle.

Il pregio delle opere Robert Wyatt sta nel bilanciamento di sogni ideologici ed utopie politiche (rigorosamente, testardamente ed irrinunciabilmente rosse) e sentimenti sottil, quasi disegnati a matita, disillusioni e sarcasmo (e qui il colore si fa sempre, e soltanto nero).

Le parole delle sue canzoni sono come piccole tessere di un enorme quadro, e raccontano di una vita vissuta momento per momento, con orgoglio e determinazione, aspettando quasi che il destino (in cui comunque non si crede) improvvisamente spenga la luce.

E in mezzo a questa tristezza, comunque, non manca mai il sarcasmo. Non manca la voglia continua, solleticante, di spiare la vita per indovinare la sua prossima mossa. L'umorismo (proprio nel senso di "English humour"...) come ultima arma di sopravvivenza.

In "A short break" ritroviamo un Robert Wyatt in dimensione più umana rispetto a quella della discografia ufficiale, costretto a registrazioni casalinghe e ad appunti scritti su fogli di carta. Le cinque canzoni raccolte in questo CD sono infatti ancora in forma di appunti musicali fatti in casa, forse abbozzi di un qualche cosa che magari sarà contenuto in un suo prossimo disco. La veste tecnica più dimessa non toglie comunque una virgola alla "purezza" di queste canzoni. Al CD è allegato un libretto con disegni, parole, appunti e altri frammenti.

"A short break" è a prezzo ridotto ed è stato pubblicato solo in un'edizione limitata. Per questo, si dovrebbe trovare qui da noi con qualche difficoltà : magari tentate in quei negozi che trattano materiale discografico d'importazione.
Se non ci riuscite, potete rivolgervi alla piccola casa editrice inglese Voiceprint (che ha pubblicato, oltre a questa, un'altra manciata di opere interessanti), a questo indirizzo: P.O. Box 5, Country, Durham DH9 7HR, Great Britain.

MARGEN - Primavera/96

Robert Wyatt - A Short Break

Rafa Dorado

El que fuera batería de bandas tan importantes como Soft Machine o Matching Mole, compuso y grabó en su casa con un 4 pistas, el conjunto de canciones de este mini CD durante el verano del 92.
Son pequeñas piezas que sin llegar a la grandeza de Rock Bottom y ni siquiera de Old Rottenhat, poseen ese estilo único, intimista y emocionante que Wyatt ha acuñado en sus discos en solitario.
Cinco temas abstractos y minimales surgidos seguramente de la improvisación, interpretados en base a una instrumentación simple con voces frágiles y susurrantes, y grabados igualmente sin ningún tipo de maquillaje.
Todo rebosa frescura en este disco, ese impulso vital que parece estimular la creatividad de Wyatt en los últimos años y que a la vez deja entrever cierta amargura. Otro disco único en la trayectoria de un compositor único. (Voiceprint)

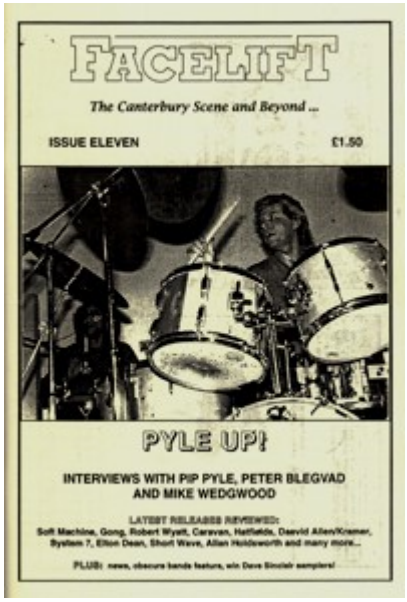
More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Mid-Eighties
1993



Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

FACELIFT - issue Eleven - September 1993

Robert Wyatt - Mid-Eighties - Rough Trade (R2952)

Robert Wyatt has been involved with Rough Trade for over a decade now: with an open-ended licence to write and release material. He has hardly been prolific during his time with Rough Trade but his output has been consistently challenging. On the heels of the highly successful 'Dondestan' comes this compilation covering the best of the Rough Trade years. Although 'Mid Eighties' comes with the same cover artwork as their earlier release '1982-1984', this is a more complete and satisfying compilation.

FACELIFT

The Canterbury Scene and Beyond ...

ISSUE ELEVEN £1.50

PYLE UP!

INTERVIEWS WITH PIP PYLE, PETER BLEGVAD AND MIKE WEDGWOOD

LATEST RELEASES REVIEWED:

Soft Machine, Gong, Robert Wyatt, Caravan, Hatfields, David Allen/Kramer, System 7, Elton Dean, Short Wave, Allan Holdsworth and many more...

PLUS: news, obscure bands feature, win Dave Sinclair samplers!

Included are all of the 'Work in Progress' EP: the hispanic covers 'Yolanda', 'Te Recuerdo Amanda'; the cover of Peter Gabriel's hit 'Biko' and the deliberate 'Amber and the Amberines', co-written and performed with Hugh Hopper.

Also included are two further covers from the B-side of the hit 'Shipbuilding'. Robert Wyatt's sympathy for jazz tradition has rarely manifested so poignantly as on 'Memories of You', lending his soul also to a re-working of 'Round Midnight'. Old Moler Dave MacRae adds keyboards.

'Old Rottenhat' is reproduced in its entirety. This is a fine album of original compositions which married a more mainstream pop approach with some of Robert's most uncompromising political lyrics. This is stirring stuff: a damning microcosm of British and western perspective during the early Thatcher years. 'Old Rottenhat' sits happily alongside the two rarest (and for me, the most original) compositions of the entire album: 'Chairman Mao' and the questioning 'Pigs'. The former first appeared on a ReR Quarterly compilation and is probably his finest work since 'Sea Song'; the latter is taken from an Artists for Animals release.

A feature of this compilation is its consistent approach. Unlike the complexities of Softs or Matching Mole days, or even the more rounded instrumentation of 'Rock Bottom', 'Ruth...' and the more recent 'Dondestan', these are instantly accessible songs given a twist by the melancholy of the Wyatt voice, just as 'I'm A Believer' was turned on its head ten years earlier. Another instantly recognisable trademark is the keyboard sound. I'm told that the basic sound we hear on Robert Wyatt's solo records emanates from a toy keyboard bought in the mid-Seventies, which possibly lends to the air of innocence found on 'Pigs' and particularly the exquisite lullaby 'P.L.A'.

Clocking in at around eighty minutes, this is not so much a 'best of compilation as a digest of Robert Wyart's Eighties work.

Essential.

>> FACELIFT the canterbury scene and beyond

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

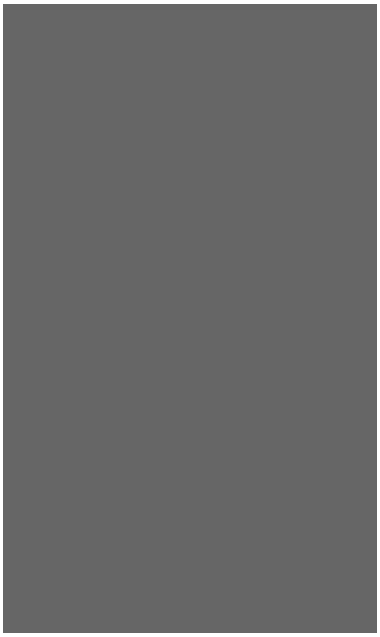
Darn It!
1993

Paul Haines

More information about this album

DOWNBEAT - November 1994

Paul Haines - Darn It!
American Clavé - 1014/18



John Corbett

THREATS THAT MATTER; CURTSY; WHAT THIS Is GOING To SUPPOSE To MEAN; FUNNYBIRD SONG; OUTSIDE THE CITY; ART IN HEAVEN; RAWALPINDI BLUES; STICKS IN THE MUD; THERE AREN'T THESE THINGS QUESTIONABLE ALL OVER; LES PARAMEDICAUX ERO-TIOUES; JUBILEE; ON THE WAY To ELSEWHERE AND HERE; INEXPLICABLY; POEM FOR GRETCHEN RUTH; JUST WHEN I THOUGHT; THIS DEDICATION; THREATS THAT COUNT; WHAT THIS WAS GOING To SUPPOSE To MEAN; BREAKFAST; SNOW VARIATIONS ON DARN IT!; DARN IT!; ROUTE DOUBT; ASK ME IF You KNOW; THOSE SWEET BLUE OLIVES OF BOMBAY; HELLO; MRS. DRESSUP; THIRD WORLD Two MEDLEY; BREAKFAST (LATE); THE PLEASE FASTEN YOUR SEAT-BELT SIGN; TESTING TESTING; DARN IT! REPRISE (DowN IN BACK!); THREATS THAT CAN'T READ; C'ETAIT DANS LA NUIT. (46:56/50:23) Personnel: A cast of thousands, including John Tchicai, Jack Bruce, Carla Bley, Don Pullen, Derek Bailey, Robert Wyatt, Henry Threadgill, Marvin "Smitty" Smith, John Oswald, and Kip Hanrahan.

* * * *

Kip Hanrahan's most rewarding productions to date (Tete a Tete, Desire Develops An Edge) have caught vastly disparate musicians, singers, songs, styles, and genres in a giant spider web of Latin percussion. Darn It! is more like a strand than a web; it strings together an outrageous number of artists performing one after another in a polyglot line that stretches from Paul Bley's solo-piano "Threats That Matter" through funky dance numbers by Greg "Iron Man" Tate to a duet by trombonist Roswell Rudd and Canadian poet Paul Haines, "C'Etait Dans La Nuit." Even its beautiful package, designed by artist/filmmaker/musician Michael Snow (who also contributes a lovely piano piece) enforces the compilation's linearity, unfolding into a long accordion of personnel and poetry.

Haines is the through-line. His poetry has been the basis for other musical adaptations, such as Carla Bley's *Escalator Over The Hil*l and most recently Curlew's A Beautiful Western Saddle. Highlights include Danish saxophonist John Tchicai with Andrew Cyrille ("Those Sweet Blue Olives Of Bombay"), Robert Wyatt's lilting voice echoed with soprano lines by Evan Parker ("Curtsy"), and John Oswald's music-box cut-up collage ("Funnybird Song"). Some links are tenuous, almost untenable, like the transition from Derek Bailey's gruff reading over guitar splinters ("Art In Heaven") to "Rawalpindi Blues." But for the most part, Darn It! overcomes stylistic impediments successfully, revelling in the way Haines' terse writing can endure so many different kinds of interpretation.

More information about this album

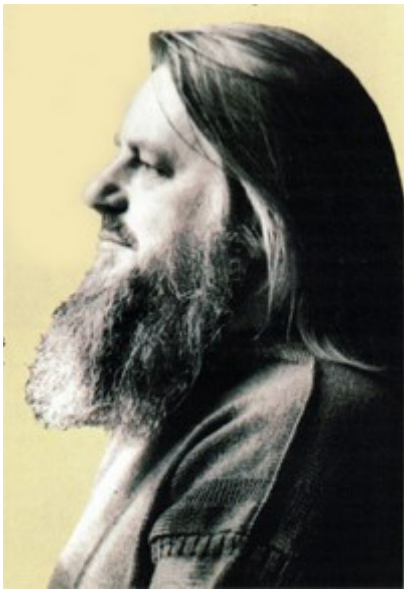
Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Floatsam & Jetsam
1994

Robert Wyatt



More information about this album

ROCKSOUND - N° 18 - octobre 1994

Robert Wyatt - Flotsam Jetsam (Rough Trade/Virgin)

Yannick Bourg

Le papa de Robert Wyatt était un cas. Il évitait les compartiments non-fumeurs dans les trains, parce qu'ils "sentaient l'urine" et craignait que l'encre des journaux anglais de droite ne l'empoisonnât. Cet homme que Robert regrette, on aurait aimé l'aimer. Heureusement, son fils a de qui tenir. Le sens de l'humour, de l'amitié et la volonté d'un changement du monde ne l'ont jamais quitté.

Cette compilation en apporte une nouvelle affirmation en dix-huit manifestations de 1968 à 1989. Il y a là la joie de retrouver ses amis et de travailler ensemble (Kevin Ayers, Lol Coxhill, Peter Blegvad...)- Des pièces rares, inédites ou introuvables : le swing fragile dans un rythm'n'blues de traviole avec Jimi Hendrix à la basse ("Slow walkin' talk") ; l'approximation touchante, les tremblements vocaux qui annoncent "Rock bottom" ("God song/Fol de Rol", un univers se crée) ; les expérimentations parfois un brin crispantes des 70's; un sourire pas mièvre, la joie, la déconnade, des bruits de bouche ("A little something", "Soprano/Apricot jam") ; l'amour du jazz ("Locomotive" de Thelonius Monk, adapté a capella) et du Sud (instrumentaux pour un documentaire TV espagnol, participation au groupe Claustrophobia) ; un extrait d'une longue pièce ("Will of the people") sur les grèves générales de 1926 ou cette chanson de la fin du 19e avec des arrangements cuivrés pour grand-orchestre, ou encore "The wind of change" avec les Swapo Singers (arrangé et produit par Jerry Dammers, ex-Specials) ; et en une minute comme en presque douze, avec trois fois rien ou en grande pompe, un homme de partout et de nulle part donne son cœur sans arrière-pensée. On aimerait pouvoir en dire autant plus souvent.

BIG BANG - N° 8 - novembre 1994

Flotsam & Jetsam (Rough trade)

Aymeric Leroy

Une optique radicalement différente a présidé à la conception de cette seconde compilation, conçue d'ailleurs plus comme une annexe sonore à la récente biographie de Mike KING, qui a sélectionné les morceaux et, dans la plupart des cas, a déniché les bandes souvent perdues dans des endroits difficilement imaginables.
Qu'il s'agisse des styles abordés ou de la qualité sonore, nous avons droit à toutes sortes de choses. La seule cohérence de ce CD se situe au niveau de l'ordre chronologique... et de l'intérêt musical.
Flotsam & Jetsam n'est pas une collection de chutes de studio. C'est plutôt un coup de projecteur sur bien des zones d'ombre de la carrière de WYATT. De son association à la scène jazz improvisée à ses jams avec Loi COXHILL ou SLAPP HAPPY, en passant par ses premiers enregistrements solo (effectués fin 68 chez son ami Jimi HENDRIX) et les sessions BBC de MATCHING MOLE, sans oublier quelques inédits de choix, dont ce magnifique 'Turn Things Upside Down" jazzy de The HAPPY END, voici le complément idéal de Going Back A Bit ...

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Going Back A Bit: A Little History Of Robert Wyatt 1994

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

THE WIRE - ISSUE 125 - JULY 1997

Robert Wyatt: Going Back A Bit - A Little History of Robert Wyatt (VIRGIN CDVM 9031 CD)

Jonathan Romney

25 years ago, when Soft Machine were elbowing aside the canon walls by playing at the Proms, Robert Wyatt was seen as one of those wry young men right out on the wild frontier, smirking over the barricades Now, beloved and respected, he's out there still, but the frontier looks more like a safe secluded margin, and the devilish smirk looks more like the beatific beam of some contented, if sometimes testy, old uncle. For a few years now, every time Wyatt has made a record, you end up glad that he's there (even though it probably wouldn't have made any difference if he hadn't been). There's nothing wrong with that - one of the prime values of the marginal is that it should at times claim its right to be superfluous.

It is easy to forget what a sublime irritant Wyatt has always been at his best - the gobstopper in the cheek of 'alternative' pop. Going Back A Bit is somewhat fractured, covers some obvious ground, and doesn't really have a story to tell; but it has its moments, and that's all it purports to provide It contains all of the peerless Rock Bottom, for example, but out of sequence, which throws its disturbing narrative cohesion way out of kilter [t has two awful, hyperventilating collaborations with Mike Mantler, and one sublime one (the fatter from his Some Have No Speech) It also has the most tantalising reminder (three tracks) of Matching Mole, and one track ("Moon In June") from Soft Machine - a 13 minute Top Gear version that remains a last word in rambling self-referential pop Add extracts from Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard, a couple of tracks from the last Rough Trade LP proper, Dondestan, and you get a fascinating but muddled jigsaw.

If there's a key piece here to build a picture round, it's in the pairing of I'm A Believer" and "Yesterday Man", deeply radical gestures in 1974 from a man who'd staked out his place as being as wilfully avant garde as you could be and still get played on Radio One. It was little short of heresy for a performer with Wyatt's pedigree to do an absolutely unironic, wilfully poppy rereading of a Monkees number, still less to get on Top Of The Pops with it. Which is perhaps why he had to pay by not doing so well with his (even better, brisker) follow-up, an obscure Chris Andrews hit. But clearly those two records taught a lot about reclaiming pop history to certain, more regular habitues of the Top Ten - well, Brian Eno and Bryan Ferry, anyway.

That was only a passing blip in Wyatt's career. His real unchallenged glory was Rock Bottom, and despite some moments of brilliance since (eg the Rough Trade singles not included here, especially his cover of Chic's "At Last I Am Free"), that IP's febrile intensity has been lacking. Or maybe it's more a feeling of unity, of consistent purpose. Mind you, we probably wouldn't look for that even in long-running artists who have a more solid oeuvre - Van Morrison, say - and we shouldn't look for it in Wyatt. He's set himself up as a player of fragments, a character actor in sporadic movies (his own or others') that don't always do him justice. Just about everything here does that, but be warned: as the title says, it's only a little history.

BIG BANG - N°8 - NOVEMBRE 1994

Robert Wyatt: Going Back A Bit - A Little History of Robert Wyatt (Virgin)

Aymeric Leroy

Le caractère 'officiel' de cette première compilation ne doit pas minimiser son intérêt, tant il est appréciable de retrouver, sur un seul et même coffret, certains des plus grands classiques de SOFT MACHINE, MATCHING MOLE et Robert VVYATT, ainsi que ses contributions les plus marquantes aux oeuvres d'autres musiciens.
C'est d'ailleurs ce dernier chapitre qui procurera le plus d'heureuses surprises à ceux qui ne connaissent que ses albums solo. II faut particulièrement signaler les titres extraits de ses collaborations avec le couple Mike MANTLER-Carla BLEY, et notamment The Hapless Child (1976). Un classique méconnu que ce splendide album, proposant une musique indéniablement progressive, autant dans l'esprit que la lettre. La voix étrange de WYATT s'adapte admirablement aux ambiances surréalistes de MANTLER, interprétées par un 'supergroupe' du label ECM (Carla BLEY donc, ainsi que Terje RYPDAL, Steve SWALLOW et Jack DeJOHNETTE). Une petite perle à redécouvrir dans son intégralité!
L'essentiel du coffret demeure malgré tout consacré aux albums de WYATT, avec bien sûr de très larges extraits de son chef-d'oeuvre, Rock Bottom (dont cinq des six pièces sont présentées), et du successeur controversé de celui-ci, Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard (1975), qui montrait un WYATT attiré par des contrées plus proches du jazz et du minimalisme. En ce qui me concerne, l'intérêt du disque tenait surtout au magnifique "Muddy Mouth", où Fred FRITH accompagnait au piano les vocalises de WYATT. Hélas, ce bijou brille par son absence... De Nothing Can Stop Us, nous n'avons droit qu'à "Arauco", alors que des titres comme "Strange Fruit", "At Last I Am Free" ou "Shipbuilding" comptent parmi les interprétations les plus bouleversantes du chanteur. ROUGH TRADE n'aurait-elle qu'entrebâillé sa porte aux compilateurs de VIRGIN ? Old Rottenhat n'est carrément pas représenté. Deux titres (peut-être pas les plus réussis là non plus) de l'excellent Dondestan de 1991 sont néanmoins présents.

Restent les raretés et les inédits. Concernant les premières, la compilation remplit bien son but, avec notamment "I'm A Believer" / "Memories" (1974), la version de ce dernier titre étant sans conteste la plus belle, grâce notamment au violon de Fred FRITH, "Yesterday Man", qui figurait sur l'excellente compilation V de VIRGIN. Quant aux inédits, nous ne sommes pas vraiment gâtés, mais après tout ce n'est pas le but de ce coffret. Passons sur la version inédite de "Sonia" pour nous pencher sur la grosse surprise du coffret : une version live de "Calyx" où WYATT est accompagné par un backing-band de rêve : Dave STEWART (fender rhodes), Hugh HOPPER (b) et Laurie ALLAN (d) !!! De toute évidence, il s'agit d'un extrait du fameux concert de Drury Lane en 1974... Peut-on espérer voir sortir l'intégralité de cette prestation en CD ???
Finissons en parlant des deux formations dont fit partie Robert WYATT avant sa carrière solo : SOFT MACHINE et MATCHING MOLE. Le choix des compilateurs n'est pas spécialement représentatif, puisqu'il s'est porté sur les morceaux chantés, minoritaires dans les deux cas, le premier étant organisé autour du piano électrique de Dave MacRAE et de la guitare saturée de Phil MILLER; quant au second, peut-on vraiment définir un style sans devoir présenter plusieurs morceaux ? La version de 'The Moon In June" (12 minutes) est malgré tout à sa place ici, car ce morceau symbolise les débuts de la carrière solo de WYATT (c'était sa face solitaire sur l'album Third).
A l'arrivée, malgré les critiques que ce genre de compilation attire forcément, Going Back A Bit s'avère être un objet indispensable de par le panorama très complet qu'il propose de la carrière du "vieux barbu à la voix d'enfant"... On n'y est jamais très loin du progressif...

MELODY MAKER - 1994

Robert Wyatt: Going Back A Bit - A Little History of Robert Wyatt (Virgin)

Simon Reynolds

AT LAST, a long-overdue anthology of stuff and nonsense by one of the great eccentrics of English art-rock, Robert Wyatt. A miscellany of bits and bobs from solo albums and the shortlived outfit Matching Mole, its main selling-point, O punter, is that it makes available again, CD-sharp, 5/6 of his all-time 1974 classic Rock Bottom. But infuriatingly, not only is the album's original sequence jumbled up, for no apparent reason, but one track is shunted onto the second disc, so that you can't even reprogram it into the correct sequence. And one of the best is left off altogether.
With most albums this wouldn't matter a jot, but Rock Bottom is structured around a compelling emotional/musical narrative – it's a complex allegory of Wyatt's disablement (he tumbled out of a window during a wild party), his subsequent emotional regression, and his slow recovery. Even in the wrong order, Rock Bottom dazzles: it's a masterpiece of oceanic rock to rival Buckley's Starsailor, A.R. Kane's 69, maybe even Davis' In A Silent Way. On 'Last Straw', aqueous keyboards, refractory guitars and imagery like "seaweed tangled in a home from home" conjure up a poignant vision of the amniotic heaven of the briny deep. 'Sea Song' begins as an eerie serenade to a mermaid, then Wyatt spirals off into soul-harrowing scat-falsetto aquabatics.
'Alifib' is Wyatt at his lowest ebb, gasping out tiny breaths of anguish amidst a lachrymal sound-web of harmonium, while 'Alifie' sees him reduced to baby-talk drivel as his dependence on his wife Alfie deepens. "I can't forsake you or forsqueak you, Alifie, my larder", dribbles Wyatt; eventually she puts her foot down – 'I'm NOT your larder'. This is the turning point, the first step on the road to recovery, and the (original) album ends with the wonderful eco-terrorist ditty 'Little Red Riding Hood', with Ivor Cutler ranting about how he lies down in the road to stop the cars: "yeah me and the hedgehog busting tyres all day long".

Wyatt emerged, via the Soft Machine, from the late '60s/early '70s Canterbury scene, along with Caravan, Gong, Kevin Ayers, Egg etc. As well as an interest in bending rock form in all manner of jazzy-folky-weirdy ways, what these groups shared was a very English whimsy – at once their charm and their liability. And so on the 13 minute 'Moon In June', Wyatt extemporises about the joys of doing a session for the Beeb, while 'Soup Song' is sung from the point of view of one of its reluctant ingredients, a slice of bacon. Even Wyatt's lovesongs are skewered by irony. In the wonderfully sentimental 'O Caroline', Wyatt warns his sweetheart "if you call this sentimental crap you'll make me mad", while 'Calyx' is full of oddly phrased praise: "close inspection reveals you're in perfect nick".
Wyatt's wonderful voice is why he gets away with it whereas, say, Kevin Ayers mostly grates: he always sounds simultaneously wry and earnest, ironic and heart-felt. Damp, lugubrious, resolutely colloquial, totally unrock'n'roll (like a cross between Peter Skellern and Roland Kirk), Wyatt's voice could be the closest thing to an authentic "English soul" this nation's produced.

MOJO - August 1994

Robert Wyatt: Going Back A Bit - A Little History of Robert Wyatt (Virgin)

Richard Cook

HE IS A GREAT ENGLISHMAN, a pragmatic jazz buff, a witty and wise lyricist, an ingenious instrumentalist; but it's by his singing that Robert Wyatt will be remembered. In that eerie, colloquial voice, Wyatt has distilled his singular contribution to rock's beleaguered soul. He can sing as high as Smokey Robinson, as plaintively as Ben E. King, yet he is as remote from their tradition as, say, Ian Hunter.

On much of this collection, Wyatt is singing words that are a step away from mere nonsense and rhyme. But when he sings those few lines at the heart of 'Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road' (mistitled here, by the way), which is about rain falling on the garden of England, it almost sounds like a lament for a lost empire. No wonder Elvis Costello's melancholy masterpiece, 'Shipbuilding', suited him so well.

Not that Wyatt would ever think of mourning imperial decline. Whether as the drummer for the earliest Soft Machine and their spin-off Matching Mole, or the genial balladeer of 'Arauco' and 'Stalin Wasn't Stallin'', he's always worn politics on his sleeve, even if he sounds like the tenderest of hard-liners. A concern for justice imbues all the music that he has arranged and sung. One always hears Wyatt as a member of a group, rather than a singer with accompanists: his jazz leanings dissolved the brute pecking order of the rock group, and have saxophonists and guitarists and drummers in a democratic alliance. It's appropriate that Going Back A Bit – A Little History Of Robert Wyatt starts with a BBC version of the Softs' old classic 'Moon In June', with lyrics adapted for John Peel's Top Gear circumstances: this edition of the Machine, with Mike Ratledge and Hugh Hopper helping Robert to burn off the barriers between jazz group and rock band, was crucial in suggesting ways that rock could accommodate the braininess of jazz without surrendering either playfulness or a visceral impact (and if you doubt this group's ability to be visceral, check out Ratledge's fuzztoned organ solos – a fine memento of another lost figure). A pity, though, that this version is finally something of a dud: Wyatt sounds terribly off-key throughout.

Matching Mole's three tracks here include the lovely 'O Caroline', a deliberate undercutting of the kind of lyrics that Wyatt had already guyed on the earlier track: it's the timbre of his voice that identifies the emotion in the song, a man trying to say something to a woman without sounding like a romantic twit. This is English reserve surfacing as honest, tongue-tied bewilderment at your own emotions. Still, Matching Mole were trying to be as political as their later offspring, Crass: they called one of their albums Little Red Record and had Maoist cover art to go with it. But everything changed when Robert fell out of a window in 1973 and found himself confined to a wheelchair.

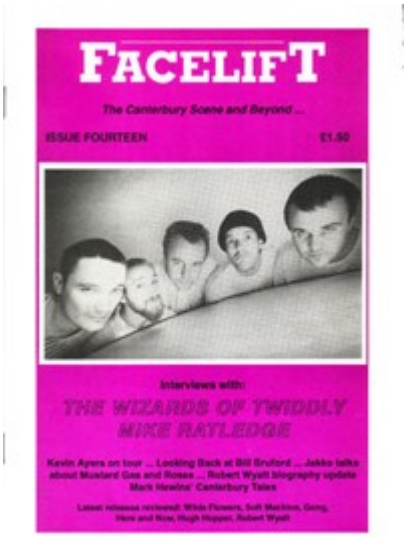
He then made his two mid-'70s albums, Rock Bottom and Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard, which are the core of this compilation. The first album is, indeed, here in its entirety (aside, alas, from the extraordinary 'Little Red Riding Hood Hits The Road') although the sequencing has been jumbled. Robert called them "songs and drones", set around the lilting buzz of his cheap electric organ, performed by friends from the Canterbury school of rock groups which Soft Machine had spawned some years earlier. Though the lyrics are sometimes epigrammatic or gobbledgooked into near-nonsense, they clearly document his pain and dependence on wife Alfie. 'Team Spirit' especially is a cruel, pitiless self-examination. He sings them and scats around the words with a kind of anti-virtuosity: you hear the effort in his vocals, but also the inventiveness and skills of a musician who started out by loving Mose Allison, Thelonious Monk and Sonny Rollins.

More than that, Wyatt makes sure the music is a fascinating blend of rock and jazz that has seldom been heard from since on British records. When punk wiped out the fatuous excesses of art-rock, it also killed the possibility of making more records like this, the sense of great players – Hopper, tenor saxophonist Gary Windo, the flutteringly beautiful trumpet of Mongezi Feza – being experimental and dissonant and still making it work within the context of what are unequivocal rock records, albeit of a maverick nature. Improvisation has long since left rock playing, disdained as empty showmanship, but Wyatt proposed a music that remains unexploited by the most inventive of acid-jazz groups. Even when he goes for a "pure" jazz, as with his arrangements of Feza's gorgeous 'Sonia' or Charlie Haden's 'Song For Che', he confines them to pop-single length. And then he made a couple of great pop singles, remakes of 'I'm A Believer' (drivingly rhythmic, with nutty guitar fills by Fred Frith) and 'Yesterday Man' (heartbreakingly desolate and a complete antithesis to Chris Andrew's original).

The remaining nine tracks are bits and pieces from a career that has never quite mustered the urgency that could have propelled him into making another album to equal those earlier two. The Michael Mantler and Carla Bley tunes that he signs on, the sparkly arrangement of 'Arauco', the lonely fragment of 'Lisp Service' and the rousing finale of 'The Internationale' are jigsaw pieces from an observer who has had little choice but to be passive.

It's been good, though, to have Robert back again in recent times, since such a piercingly intelligent musician should never stop making music, and this lumpy, engaging patchwork will remind many of a time when rock had real margins to work in.

More information about this album



Tales Of Canterbury
1994

The Wilde Flowers

More information about this album

FACELIFT -Issue 14 - June '95

The Wilde Flowers - Voiceprint VPB 123CD

This is the album we've all been waiting to hear - an album of songs which takes us back a couple of years further from even the earliest Soft Machine and Caravan recordings. For those of you not familiar with the story, The Wilde Flowers were the first 'Canterbury' band, a band of shifting lineups throughout mid to late Sixties who included future Softs members Kevin Avers, Robert Wyatt and Hugh Hopper, as well as the entire cast of Caravan. They also included Hugh's brother Brian, the only constant member in the band. And it's really Brian's story, as those who got the accompanying CD booklet will appreciate.

I'd heard some very scratchy Flowers demos on a tape a few years back, and was more curious than hopeful about the quality of material on the CD. The first surprise is that there are 22 tracks. The music I'd heard was a batch of six songs from 1965/6, and assumed that was it. In fact, far from it.

The second surprise is quite how good some of the music is. Again, I'd been hoping for little more than an interesting archive document with maybe some early versions of Soft Machine songs thrown in as a bonus. There are, in fact a vast amount of 'new' songs, whilst more familiar ones take on radically different arrangements. The album can be broken down into essentially four periods: the demos from 1965 from two bands that included Richard Sinclair, both Hoppers, Robert Wyatt and contrasting vocalists Graham Flight and Kevin Avers; a large collection from 1966 which are dominated by Robert Wyatf s voice; Brian Hopper's Zobe recordings; and a reconvening in 1969 to record demos for the Hopper brothers. Whilst the last two sessions both went under different names, they essentially involved Wilde Flowers musicians and music.

The 1965 material was largely familiar to me. Two R'n'B covers (Mose Allison's 'Parchman's Farm'; Chuck Berry's 'Almost Grown') are steady and unremarkable, maybe reflecting the Wilde Flowers likely set list at that time, but already the prolific Hugh Hopper writing machine was underway. The instrumental work through 'Memories' may not be the most striking of versions, but it shows a highly developed writing talent three years before Hugh Hopper joined the Soft Machine...

One song from '65 I hadn't heard was 'It's What I Feel', a very straight version of 'A Certain Kind', sung by a very young Richard Sinclair. Good to hear the Sinclair voice this far back, but, like 'Memories', it perhaps serves best to show quite how much Robert Wyatt had re-arranged a whole host of Flowers material by the time of Soft Machine Volume One or 'Moon In June'.

The 1966 tunes perhaps best show a band starting to find their own voice, and to these ears represent a quantum leap from the '65 band.' Richard Coughlan had joined the band on drums, leaving Robert Wyatt free to sing, and it's the combination of Hugh Hopper's writing and Robert Wyatt's voice that make it work. 'No Game When You Lose' is a stunningly simple Sixties pop tune that shows enough of the booming Hopper bass line and melancholy Wyatt to give a hint of what was to come later. 'Never Leave Me', with an unusual time signature underpinning the chorus, is another fine foretaste. We also see the Wyatt voice starting to find its range on 'Memories'.

Less memorable are the Zobe pieces, recorded in 1968 with Brian Hopper alongside Flowers singer Dave Lawrence. Interesting because they feature perhaps the most sophisticated instrumentation of the whole CD (thanks largely to Brian Hopper's sax and flute-remember that Soft Machine's 'Volume Two' was round about this era), but also the weakest vocals.

Dominating the album is the classy 1969 session, and Voiceprint, no fools, have recognised this by beginning and ending the CD with tracks from this. 'Impotence', a Hugh Hopper song, can be heard, in rougher sound, in the midst of the 1966 songs, but as track one it has enormous impact - it could be a classic Caravan tune, backed by a very familiar Pye Hastings guitar sound, but the high-ended vocals are Robert Wyatt's domain. Track 22 is, for me, the best-ever cut of 'Memories', and I can't think of a better example of the Wyatt voice. With Mike Ratledge providing some jazz piano chords not heard on any other version and Wyatt's voice at its most haunting, it has a deliciously sleazy jazzbarfeel. These 1969 songs (which also include Hugh Hopper's 'She Loves To Hurt', with fine Pye Hastings vocals and Brian Hopper's more adventurous 'The Big Show') also benefit from the best sound quality of the album and a moving rota of musicians that include the Hopper brothers, Pye Hastings, Robert Wyatt, Mike Ratledge and even, supposedly, Kevin Ayers, who was hanging around the studio at the time and presses down a solitary organ note at the end of The Big Show'.

OK, so this CD is essentially a collection of demos by musicians with their most creative years ahead of them, and the quality of the sound and maybe the musicianship reflects this. However, no student of the Canterbury school would want to be without it for an insight into an entire musical scene. Not to mention a significant number of previously unheard tunes from the pens of Hugh Hopper and Robert Wyatt. And, in the case of 'Impotence' and 'Memories', songs worth the CD cover price alone.

Brian Hopper's accompanying 28-page booklet comprises an in-depth look at the history of the Wilde Flowers including archive photos and details of all the recording sessions and line-ups of the band. It's an essential companion to the CD, and any readers who've seen only the CD should write to Voiceprint to obtain the missing link.

REVUE & CORRIGEE - N° 23 - mars 1995

The Wilde Flowers - Tales Of Canterbury - Voiceprint - VP 123

Pierre Durr

Certains labels s'accrochent aux musiques progressives des années 60 et surtout des années 70. Pourquoi pas. De bonnes choses sont parues pendant ces années. Et d'autres ne le furent d'ailleurs jamais. Alors, que Voiceprint les édite ou les réédite, quoi de plus louable. Même si un tri s'impose. Ainsi, tout amateur de la scène de Canterbury ne peut que souscrire à l'édition de THE WILDE FLOWERS (notamment l'édition limitée sous forme de carnet avec le récit de leur histoire par Brian Hopper. Pépinière de musiciens qui s'illustreront au sein de Soft Machine (Wyatt. H. Hopper. K. Ayers) ou de Caravan (Pye Hastings, Richard Sindair, Richard Coughlan), c'est à dire deux des meillleures formations de l'époque, les WILDE FLOWERS combinent l'esprit pataphysicien wyattien et/ou caravannière et les couleurs encore très sixties d'un blues anglais raffiné.

[...]

MOJO - APRIL 1995

Wilde Flowers: Tales Of Canterbury: The Wilde Flowers Story (Voiceprint)

Rob Chapman

Caravan, Soft Machine, Kevin Ayers & The Whole World: all grew from the stem of the legendary Wilde Flowers. Rob Chapman tells their story.

BURIED DEEP IN THE GARDEN OF ENGLAND IS A RICH musical lineage. It begins with The Soft Machine and Caravan, takes in Kevin Ayers and The Whole World, the pre-Tubular Mike Oldfield, Daevid Allen’s Gong, and the solo works of Robert Wyatt, then hits public indifference head on in the late ‘70s.

However, if one takes the Steve Hillage/System 7 connection into account, and the fact that ambient technoids Ultramarine have featured both Ayers and Wyatt on recent releases, it becomes obvious that there's life in the old legacy yet. They may not be about to place a commemorative blue plaque on the A1 to honour the road sign which bears the legend "Hatfield and the North", but plainly some sort of critical resurgence is under way.

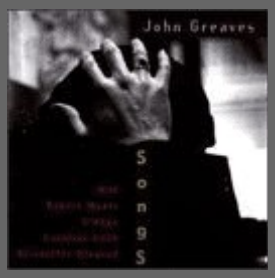
The Canterbury bands were an inconsistent and eclectic lot. Kevin Ayers and The Whole World rarely captured on record what blinding innovation they were capable of live. All talk of Gong concentrates on the pot-headed pixie nonsense of the mid-`70s and neglects to mention what a seminal space-rock prototype they were prior to the arrival of woolly hats and woolly minds. Soft Machine began as avant-garde explorers but ended up as a finishing school for ponderous jazz rock fusionists. Caravan by 1976 were releasing albums with titles like Cunning Stunts.

Long before any of this there was The Wilde Flowers, the oftmentioned but rarely heard outfit that effectively spawned them all. Now thanks to Voiceprint's Tales Of Canterbury: The Wilde Flowers Story you can listen to the whole legacy taking shape. Compiled by co-founder Brian Hopper from his dusty old collection of acetates and rehearsal tapes, the 22 tracks gathered here span the entire Wilde Flowers oeuvre from the quirky R&B covers of early 1965 right through to a 1969 reunion replete with assorted Softs and Caravan members.

The album – complete with the booklet of Hopper's memories which accompanies the first 2,000 copies – reminds you what a intricately intertwined unit the Canterbury family was. Members casually came and went. Third cousins twice removed and ex-roadies were drafted in at the drop of a hat. Kevin Ayers drifted off to the Balearics with a mad Australian pal of William Burroughs called Daevid Allen.

"The whole thing was very freewheeling," says Hopper. "But that was the nature of the Flowers – very fluid, not like most other bands who had a more regimented and conventional approach. Compared to most music scenes at that time our influences were pretty broad. We were quite conscious we were doing something different, and that probably prevented us from gaining more popularity at the time."



It is chiefly Wyatt's singing, along with Brian Hopper's guitar playing, that gives these tentative offerings their originality, offsetting standard beat group formulae with a unique vision of things to come. There was always a distinct Canterbury sound – droll, understated, aching with English melancholia. Two other exquisite voices from the Canterbury chorus also get a first outing here. On 'It's What I Feel', Richard Sinclair unveils the wayward choirboy enunciation he later perfected on Caravan's quintessential Land Of Grey And Pink. And on 'She Loves To Hurt', fellow Caravan founder Pye Hastings offers conclusive proof that he inherited both larynx and phrasing from the same gene pool as Wyatt.

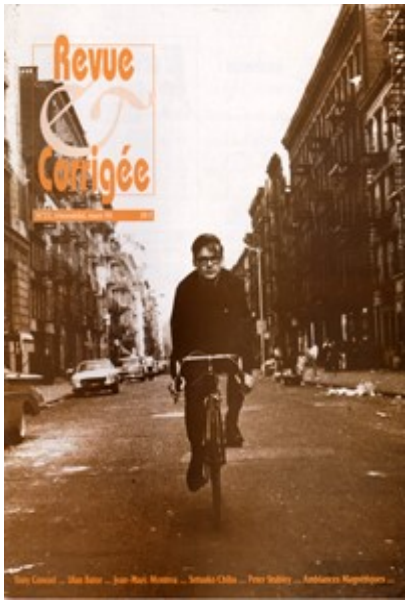
The road from Canterbury was paved with wilful indulgence. Some routes led to innovation, others to ennui. Most of it is worthy of reissue. Hopefully there's more stashed away in Brian Hopper's attic. In the meantime this compilation should be essential listening for anyone who wishes to trace the exploratory roots of the early English Underground.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

Floatsam & Jetsam
1994



Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

REVUE & CORRIGEE - N° 27 - mars 1996

John Greaves "Songs" Resurgence RES 112 / Voiceprint.

Pierre Durr

Compositeur fin et nuancé, aux accents lyriques bien prononcés, John GREAVES est aussi un chanteur à la voix sensuelle, grave et profonde. Et pourtant, pour bien servir ses compositions (certaines d'entre elles figuraient déjà sur d'autres enregistrements, tel "Kew Rhône", "Accident" ou "Parrot Fashions", il n'hésite pas à faire appel à d'autres interprètes, tels Susan Belling. Caroline Lœb, Kristoffer Blegvad et surtout Robert Wyatt. Le parti pris relativement acoustique et sobre de l'instrumentation adopté pour cet enregistrement, ajouté à la reprise de certains anciens titres, renforce un peu le côté nostalgique et mélancolique qui transparaît naturellement des compositions de John Greaves. Ce dernier, désormais bien éloigné des expériences sonores et de l'improvisation (qui fut aussi son apanage, comme en témoigne la réédition des "Concerts" de Henry Cow!), sait pourtant garder un charme indéniable, dénotant le caractère intemporel de ses compositions.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

Live At The Paradiso

Soft Machine

More information about this album

RYTHMES CROISÉS - 2 octobre 2018

SOFT MACHINE – Live at The Paradiso 1969 (1995, Voiceprint / 1996, Blueprint / 2015, Retroworld)

Stéphane Fougère

Article réalisé à partir de chroniques parues dans les revues TRAVERSES et TANGENTES, dûment remaniées et complétées en 2018.

L'enregistrement inclus dans ce CD n'est sans doute pas une nouveauté pour les fans ultra de SOFT MACHINE puisqu'il a déjà circulé depuis des lustres sous forme de disque pirate. Sa publication officielle avait même été envisagée à l'époque, l'autorisation avait été requise auprès des membres du groupe, ceux-ci ont refusé, jugeant que ce n'était pas utile ; le disque est sorti quand même ! Depuis, on ne compte plus ses rééditions en LP et en CD, et il aura fallu attendre un bon quart de siècle pour qu'une parution officielle voit le jour, celle-ci, avec de savoureuses notes de livret rédigées par Hugh HOPPER "himself", qui disent entre autres : « De nombreux "bootleggers" ont gagné leur vie avec cette musique. Maintenant c'est à notre tour, les gars ! »

Bien sûr, les fans auraient préféré avoir quelque chose de plus inédit, mais il ne faut pas rêver : les enregistrements live des premières années de SOFT MACHINE ne sont pas légion, et celui-ci reste, en termes de qualité sonore et artistique, le plus fréquentable puisqu'il s'agit d'une captation de console. Ceux qui ignoraient son existence n'en finiront pas d'écarquiller les yeux et les oreilles : oui, c'est bien d'un concert daté de 1969 dont il s'agit, soit de l'époque où SOFT MACHINE n'avait pas encore fait le choix d'une orientation "à-jazz-toute !" strictement instrumentale et incluait encore une dimension pop surréaliste et une énergie rock brute de fonte.

Petit rappel : en 1969, SOFT MACHINE existant depuis environ trois ans, avait déjà pondu un single et un album et s'était fait connaître outre-Atlantique en assurant les premières parties du Jimi HENDRIX BAND (à la demande de Jimi en personne). Revers de la médaille : la vie sur les routes avait annihilé les velléités créatrices des membres du groupe, qui n'avaient plus le temps d'écrire de nouveaux morceaux, et avait épuisé leurs forces tant physiques que mentales. Du coup, Kevin AYERS avait préféré retourner se la couler douce aux Baléares, Mike RATLEDGE était retourné à Londres, et Robert WYATT est resté aux États-Unis concocter de savoureuses démos en vue d’un album solo…

Bref, SOFT MACHINE en tant que tel avait cessé toute activité. C’était compter sans leur maison de disques Probe, qui a rappelé aux musiciens que leur contrat stipulait l’enregistrement d’un second album, coûte que coûte et plus vite que ça ! WYATT a rappelé RATLEDGE et tous deux ont fait appel à leur roadie Hugh HOPPER, qui avait déjà eu l’occasion d’assurer la basse sur de précédents concerts.

Ce qui ne devait être qu’un enregistrement répondant à une obligation contractuelle, dont les musiciens s’acquittent généralement avec une paresse d’inspiration parfaitement volontaire, s’est révélé un nouveau défi créatif dans l’évolution de la musique de SOFT MACHINE, le nouveau trio s’étant finalement pris au jeu. Du coup, le Volume Two de SOFT MACHINE s’inscrit dans la juste continuité musicale du Volume One, mais tire le propos encore un peu plus loin et révèle une alchimie aussi inattendue que brillamment opérante et redoutablement puissante entre HOPPER, RATLEDGE et WYATT.

Alors que ce disque devait être le chant du cygne de SOFT MACHINE, le trio, après l’avoir enregistré, a finalement repris la route des concerts en février 1969, d’abord à Londres et dans la province anglaise, puis à Paris en passant avant au Paradiso d’Amsterdam, que la radio néerlandaise VPRO a eu la bonne idée d’enregistrer. C’est cette bande qui est ici exhumée par Voiceprint.

Live at the Paradiso contient un set de quarante minutes de musique ininterrompue, en conformité avec la démarche adoptée par le groupe, typique d’une session jazz. L’intégralité du répertoire joué provient exclusivement du Volume Two, et une bonne partie des morceaux sont introuvables sur d’autres albums live, notamment ceux provenant de la suite qui remplit la face A de l’album studio, à savoir les Rivmic Melodies, qui ont été peu après remplacées par de nouveaux thèmes, comme Facelift, Noisette, Backwards ou Moon in June.

Pour autant, le trio ne se contente pas de jouer le Volume Two à l’identique de sa version studio. On se souvient que celle-ci comprenait en face A les Rivmic Melodies, soit un enchaînement de dix thèmes majoritairement composés par HOPPER et WYATT, tandis que la face B a pour titre générique Esther’s Nose Job. Les deux premières compositions y sont toutefois bien détachées du reste, et ce n’est qu’à partir de Fire Engine Passing with Bells Clanging que les morceaux s’enchaînent jusqu’au dernier, 10:30 Returns to the Bedroom, formant la suite Esther’s Nose Job proprement dite, composée par Mike RATLEDGE.

Or, bien que prenant la forme d’un long set sans coupure, ce Live at The Paradiso offre comme autre surprise une interprétation du Volume Two qui ne respecte pas exactement les enchaînements présentés sur l’album. Par exemple, Hibou, Anemone and Bear (le premier morceau avec lequel SOFT MACHINE exploite les mesures impaires), à l’origine inclus dans les Rivmic Melodies, est ici pris en sandwich au beau milieu de Fire Engine Passing with Bells Clanging, et donc intégré à Esther’s Nose Job !

De fait, le set commence même avec le thème qui, sur Volume Two, suit Hibou, Anemone and Bear, à savoir Hulloder. On peut toutefois émettre quelques doutes sur le fait que ce morceau ait vraiment démarré le set, dans la mesure où il en manque déjà une bonne moitié. Sur Volume Two, Hulloder s’étale sur cinquante secondes ! Ici, sa durée est amputée de moitié (!!), et Robert WYATT n’y chante que les deux ou trois dernières phrases. Curieuse entrée en matière ! Il y a fort à parier que le début du set soit en fait manquant sur la bande.

Après Hulloder, le trio déroule le reste des Rivmic Melodies dans l'ordre, s'attardant sur Dada was Here, qui bénéficie d'une séquence instrumentale plus développée, et le retour au thème Pataphysical Introduction – Part II est l'occasion d'un enchaînement inattendu avec le morceau qui débute la face B du Volume Two, As Long as He Lies Perfectly Still (dans lequel WYATT rend hommage à Kevin AYERS) qui, sans transition, débouche sur la suite Esther's Nose Job.

Par conséquent, ce Live at the Paradiso ne contient pas exactement l'intégralité du Volume Two puisque certains thèmes manquent à l'appel, certains pour des raisons techniques comme on l'a vu. On suppose que c'est en fait Pataphysical Introduction – Part 1 qui a dû démarrer le set, peut-être suivi du British Concise Alphabet.

Par contre, on peut s'étonner de l'absence du dernier thème des Rivmic Melodies, Out of Tunes, un délire récréatif qui aurait pu être l'occasion d'un "climax" bruitiste en concert. L'autre grand titre manquant est Dedicated to You but You weren't Listening. Sur Volume Two, cette ballade fait fonction d'une délicate pause acoustique bienvenue, mais on voit mal comment elle aurait pu être casée dans le set live de SOFT MACHINE sans provoquer de cassure climatique fatale.

Tel quel, le set de SOFT MACHINE tend à illustrer la constance dans le déploiement de force sauvage et viscérale dont le trio était capable sur scène, d'autant qu'il jouait à fort volume, même si le mixage de console livré ici a tendance à en minimiser les effets. (Un enregistrement de salle aurait certainement mieux restitué cet aspect, mais n'en aurait pas forcément été plus écoutable…)

Malgré tout, il est difficile de ne pas être impressionné par l'épaisseur texturale de la musique de SOFT MACHINE sur ce live, dominée par l'orgue "fuzz" visqueux et aigre de Mike RATLEDGE. La basse tout aussi "fuzzée" et incisive de Hugh HOPPER ajoute un grain de curry qui ne passe pas complètement inaperçu dans les conduits auditifs, et pour cause ! Face à ces bâtisseurs de "Loudness War", Robert WYATT impose un "drumming" leste et foisonnant qui, sans tirer inopinément la couverture à lui, fait montre d'une persistance et d'une inventivité tout aussi remarquable qui trouvent leur point d'orgue lors d'une déviation soliste étendue sur 10:30 Returns to the Bedroom.

Par contre, dans ce contexte fort en décibels, ses vocaux sont mis à rude épreuve et, entre autres imperfections que l'on pourra trouver dans l'interprétation du trio sur ce live, le placement et la justesse du chant ne sont pas les moins décelables. Plus nerveux que sur le disque studio, le chant de WYATT n'a pas la même saveur et, à plusieurs endroits, son chant semble être "à coté" du micro, certainement en raison de "loupés" dans le mixage. Mais il est clair que Robert WYATT émet quelques difficultés à assurer le chant conjointement à son jeu de batterie.

Du reste, certaines parties chantées sur l'album sont ici littéralement occultées : outre l'absence de la récitation du British Alphabet, sans doute trop acrobatique, on notera de même que les paroles de Pig (une apologie du naturisme…) sont passées à la trappe, rendant l'interprétation de la suite Esther's Nose Job quasi instrumentale, en dépit du maintien des onomatopées vocales de WYATT sur A Door Opens and Closes, un ingrédient qu'il continuera à utiliser encore un peu par la suite, mais dont les futures compositions de ses collègues ne tiendront hélas pas compte.

Quoi qu'il en soit, ce Live at the Paradiso constitue un pendant indispensable au Volume Two, dont il est une sorte de réverbération projetée dans un contexte scénique. Évidemment, certains arrangements n'y sont pas aussi subtils ou travaillés que le disque studio. Ce dernier avait notamment bénéficié du renfort des frères Brian et Hugh HOPPER aux cuivres sur certains thèmes (Hibou, Anemone and Bear, Pataphysical Introduction – Part II, Orange Skin Food…). Sur scène, le trio se livre "à nu", sans invités ni effets spéciaux de studio, et doit tant bien que mal négocier autrement son interprétation ; c'est ce qui fait l'intérêt d'une telle archive, en plus de la présence de certains morceaux qui ont été (trop ?) vite abandonnés.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Spaced
1996

Soft Machine

More information about this album

FACELIFT - Issue sixteen - January 1997

SOFT MACHINE – Spaced - Cuneiform Rune 90

Chris Bussicott

Just when one might imagine that the "Canterbury archive" releases might be starting to scrape the bottom of the barrel, along comes a release of such profound obscurity that I took literally a triple-take at the cover when I came across it in the racks of my favourite specialist London retailer. I mean, more than an hour of unreleased studio work from the 1969 Soft Machine, featuring Ratledge, Hopper and Wyatt that's not even hinted at in Mike King's definitive "Wrong Movements" book? Hard to believe but amazingly enough that's exactly what "Spaced" is.

The concise but informative notes (courtesy of Hugh Hopper and the producer Bob Woolford) in the CD booklet explain; "Spaced" was a "lunatic multi media show at the Roundhouse.... ballet dancers and ex-army gymnasts were choreographed to bound about all over a geodesic structure made of construction scaffolding... they wore wonderful rubber costumes with octopus suckers up and down their arms and legs." All to a taped Soft Machine soundtrack. Wow! I wish I'd been there, but after nearly three decades here's the next best thing - the sounds, if not the visuals, of "Spaced".

"Spaced" is divided into seven numbered sections. It kicks off logically enough with One, which is unmistakably vintage Soft Machine with its' fuzz bass and electric piano flourishes. Yet this is Soft Machine from a strange perspective, it's as if the sounds of the trio are present and correct, but without the purposeful drive or sense of melody of their most contemporary recordings ("Volume Two" and "Third"). The impression is one of stasis.

Two revolves around a repetitive eight note keyboard motif with cyclical drum pattern. Slowly, treated sounds and backwards tapes build up into a cacophonous swirl of sound - shades of John Lennons1 Mr Kite and the most overtly psychedelic noise here. Three is entirely tape work that reflects and extends the sound and tape treatments into what becomes effectively a short prototype of Backwards from "Third".

This leads into Four, which by its' positioning and length (half-an-hour plus) is the centrepiece of the recording. It's a densely avant-garde piece lead by organ squalls and free-form fuzz bass. The piece threatens repeatedly to break into a something with a more recognisable rhythm and direction but never quite makes it. It's the most "difficult" piece by Soft Machine I've yet heard.

Coming after such a long period of rumblings and squeakings Five is a real shock; it's recognisable as a tune! Led by electric piano and Brian Hoppers' jazzy treated sax, it's a short, relaxed piece with an only faintly lopsided rhythm to subvert things. It's the most accessible piece here, and after several listens remains my favourite. " Six starts out briefly sounding like a classic Soft Machine track (can't think which....) before a cut up collage of sound effects and tapes over a thunderous percussion track elbow such normality out of the way. It comes into startling focus with a featured extract from We Did It Again; a thrilling moment that's rather like hearing an old half-remembered favourite broadcast on some faint and unknown station as you twist the radio dial. It's well contrasted with the closing Seven, a rather beautiful backwards tape coda that provides clear pointers towards some of the most creative work of "Third".

"Spaced" is a major archive release, but it certainly isn't the one to recommend for people new to Soft Machine. It's a difficult work that makes demands on even a sympathetic listener what impresses most of all that back in 1969 this was commissioned for people to dance to!

SOUND PROJECTOR - 2nd Issue 1997

SOFT MACHINE – Spaced - USA Cuneiform Records
Rune 90 (1996)

An excellent 'rescued' item, Spaced was commissioned for a special happening at the Roundhouse in 1969, as part of the (ahem) thriving London Underground scene at that time, which might put it in a league with Conrad Schnitzler's pieces for art galleries, or perhaps the Pyramid label records which we look at elsewhere.

Note that it is not a live recording as such, rather a series of treated tapes to be used as background sounds. Here be the classic line up of Ratledge, Hopper and Wyatt, with added input from Brian Hopper on horns, a winning combo which could do little wrong. Soft Machine are well represented on their studio records, but I wonder if some listeners write them off as a fluffy English Pysche Canterbury scene combo? Spaced shows another vital side to them - dark and aggressive, in places verging on the chaotic, with a real bite and attack behind every minute of it. I hear a similar thing in one of my live bootlegs of the Softs, it's remarkable what power they summon up with just a trio of instruments. Particularly this must be due to Ratledge's work with his pedals and keyboard, both hands and feet brought into play in that very physical interlocking with his instrument, demonstrating his virtuoso control over volumes, textures, timing - pure abstract sound battles it out with brutal noise, and lovely melodies played at top speed by his nimble digits. Wyatt is thrashing out an urgent time signature on the high hat, Hopper's bass just slides in like blobs of black treacle, and Ratledge sometimes simply sketches in the tune when he can. Only one fragment of a tune is familiar to these ears, and that radically reworked in the effortless way Ratledge was always so good at - as though he could play it in his sleep and was almost impatiently dispensing with the melodic component, so he could proceed to the more important substance of improvisation, and the deep interrogation of chords and sounds.

The icing on the cake is the lovely post-production interventions - carried out on quite primitive equipment it seems - including liberal use of backwards tapes, a device I can never hear enough of. Also proto-sampling, a track where their recording of 'I Did it Again' is crudely spliced in with new material, the rough tape edits creating an exciting abrasive effect. This work was done by Bob Woolford, who has also provided sleevenotes on how he made these loops. 'Rediscovery' projects of this kind are more than welcome, as they add another dimension to your understanding of a band infinitely.

RYTHMES CROISÉS - 2 octobre 2018

SOFT MACHINE – Spaced (1996, Cuneiform / Orkhêstra)

Stéphane Fougère

Article réalisé à partir de chroniques parues dans les revues TRAVERSES et TANGENTES, dûment remaniées et complétées en 2018.

Ce CD fut la première archive de SOFT MACHINE publiée par le label américain Cuneiform Records ; et c'est peu dire qu'il a dû faire l'effet d'une douche froide à ceux qui en ont fait l'acquisition et se sont risqués à son audition. Non que la qualité sonore soit exécrable – elle est même plutôt très bonne – mais le contenu musical n'est peut-être pas celui qui était attendu par les fans qui pensaient pouvoir écouter un autre concert "classique" du groupe dans sa version trio en 1969, dans la lignée du Live at the Paradiso. Las.

Composé à la demande du sculpteur, "performeur" et générateur de "happenings" Peter DOCKLEY, qui venait de travailler sur un spectacle de PINK FLOYD, Spaced est assurément le projet le plus expérimental dans lequel s'est impliqué SOFT MACHINE. Il ne s'agit pas à proprement parler d'un enregistrement de concert, mais il est en partie constitué de captations live (on y retrouve en filigrane quelques thèmes connus du groupe savamment métamorphosés) et a servi de support à une performance scénique.

Conçu par DOCKLEY comme un spectacle multimédia pour le Roudhouse, légendaire salle de concert londonienne en forme de rotonde, Spaced mettaient en scène des danseurs ou danseuses classiques costumés en pieuvres de caoutchouc – avec ventouses de rigueur aux bras et aux jambes – aux prises avec d'anciens gymnastes militaires avec lesquels ils effectuaient une chorégraphie "bondissante" au sein d'un dôme géodésique construit avec des échafaudages. Une telle performance nécessitait bien évidemment un support musical aussi glauque et déjanté que possible, c'est pourquoi Peter DOCKLEY a fait appel à SOFT MACHINE.

Réuni dans un hangar des docks londoniens alors magistralement délabrés, le trio a de fait enregistré une heure et demie de musiques sur des bandes analogiques auxquelles il a ensuite fait subir, pendant une semaine, moult manipulations, notamment des montages en boucles, des inversions, des accélérations, le tout à grands coups de ciseaux. Mike RATLEDGE, Robert WYATT et Hugh HOPPER ont donné libre cours à leur propension pour ce type d'expérimentations très en vogue à l'époque, sollicitant leur ingénieur du son Bob WOOLFORD et ses magnétophones dernier cri. Dans le livret, WOOLFORD raconte qu'il avait même dû enrouler les bandes autour de bouteilles de lait dans son salon et ses escaliers… tout en surveillant le chat pour qu'il évite de les lécher !

Le CD ne restitue pas exactement l'intégralité de la bande conçue pour le spectacle. Quelques coupures ont été opérées (une introduction diffusée pendant l'arrivée du public), et certains "blancs", qui n'avaient plus de sens hors du contexte scénique, ont été supprimés, de manière à faciliter une écoute domestique de ce "flot" sonore.

Amalgamant des ambiances taciturnes, convulsives et nuageuses, Spaced s'étale sur sept pistes qui ont chacune un numéro pour tout titre.

Introduisant la "suite" tout en douceur, Spaced One peut être perçu comme un prototype de musique indus-ambient artisanale, avec ses nappes d'orgue et ses bourdons de basse auxquels s'ajoutent à la cantonade des frappes sèches et autres bruits parasites.

Spaced Two vient couper court à cette ambiance capiteuse avec une ligne d'orgue saturé et un motif rythmique nettement plus familier, déjà entendus chez SOFT MACHINE, et qui se mettent à tourner en boucles "terry-rileyennes".

Spaced Three est un interlude de drones usant à fond du procédé d'inversion de bande, puis c'est Spaced Four qui accapare l'auditeur et vampirise le disque du haut de ses 32 minutes ! Nous sommes ici au cœur même d'un bouillonnement musical qui mêle allégrement les bandes enregistrées en studio et des captations live antérieures, remontées, superposées et amalgamées pour engendrer un maelström magistral

. Les instruments du trio font l'objet de mutations soniques diverses : l'orgue de RATLEDGE décline plusieurs dialectes de saturation, acrimonieux ou bourdonnants, la basse de HOPPER se déforme et se distord en contorsions florissantes, et la batterie de WYATT déploie ses frénésies rythmiques. Des boucles de voix spectrales âprement passées à l'envers se font même entendre au milieu. Jusqu'auboutiste, Spaced Four est un flux continu délivrant une énergie à la sauvagerie graduelle et indomptable et donne l'impression de cueillir SOFT MACHINE lors d'une session privée improvisée à vocation défoulatoire et cathartique.

Spaced Five opère un contraste tout aussi saisissant avec ce qui précède, créant une atmosphère lounge avec le piano jazzy de RATLEDGE, les "tchi-tchis" des cymbales de WYATT et le saxophone languide de l'éternel collaborateur occasionnel Brian HOPPER.

Spaced Six nous replonge en pleine manipulation chaotique, avec ses sons d'orgue inversés desquels émergent des plans rythmiques de WYATT aux percussions, dont la montée en puissance effervescente est stoppée net par un coup de cisaille très primitif.

Spaced Seven boucle la (les) boucle(s) en revenant à une ambiance brumeuse et glissante, très "chill-out" avant l'heure…

Comme on le voit, Spaced explore des terrains escarpés ou flottants qui ne sont pas d'une écoute aisée pour chacun, ni même récurrente pour les autres, à moins de sélectionner telle ou telle section, selon l'humeur du moment… Certains auront beau jeu de penser que s'il était paru à l'époque, après les deux premiers albums studio du groupe, Spaced aurait pu couler la carrière du groupe, et qu'il est bel et bien "le disque auquel on a échappé" !

Néanmoins, on aurait tort de l'appréhender comme une croûte "hors sujet" dans la discographie de SOFT MACHINE. Ce serait oublier un peu vite que le groupe avait déjà procédé à certaines improvisations, expérimentations et manipulations de studio, à dose certes plus homéopathique, dans certaines sections du Volume Two, et que d'autres allaient émailler les opus étirés de l'album Third (notamment Facelift et Out-Bloody Rageous), sans parler du disque solo de Hugh HOPPER, 1984. SOFT MACHINE n'a fait avec Spaced que pousser plus loin une démarche qu'il avait déjà entamée et qu'il n'a pas eu l'occasion de réitérer ensuite, mais qui a imprégné ses opus ultérieurs.

Spaced nage donc dans un artisanat avant-gardiste débauché et précurseur aux allures de "happening-soundtrack" qui brasse tout à tour l'improvisation jazzy déglinguée, le free-rock, l'électro-indus, l'ambient, la musique concrète et minimaliste, le rite chamanique, en fait tout vocabulaire sonore que l'on catalogue aujourd'hui dans les musiques nouvelles, à l'instar de la face de HENRY COW sur Greasy Truckers, du OM de John COLTRANE, de certains soli claviéristiques dissonants de SUN RA, de certains instrumentaux bien barrés de Frank ZAPPA, des soundscapes de ENO + FRIPP, ou encore du climat général que l'on trouve sur le controversé Neheh de MAG…, pardon, de VANDER/TOP/BLASQUIZ/GARBER.

Avec Spaced, on voit donc combien SOFT MACHINE mérite sa médaille de pionnier prophétique. Il suffit juste de se mettre en condition pour l'écouter, et d'avoir des envies d'espace sans filet…

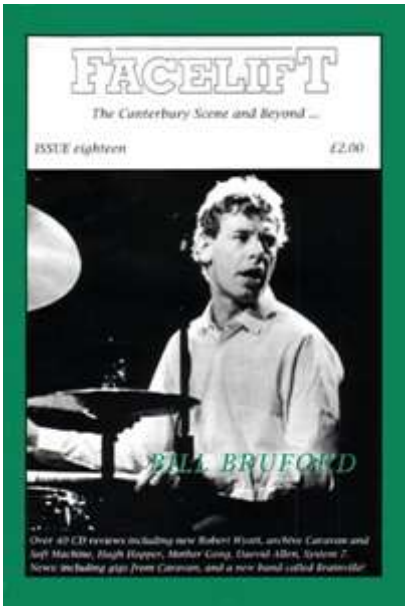
More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Shleep
1997



Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

FACELIFT - N° 18 - MAY 1998

Robert Wyatt / Shleep (Hannibal HNCD1418)

Phil Howitt

It only seems yesterday that 'Dondestan' marked Robert Wyatt's return to the recording studio - in reality, there has been probably as long a wait between albums this time as before. All of which underlines the fact that a new Robert Wyatt album is a rare and precious commodity.

If 'Dondestan' provided a welcome return to some of the styles that defined his two classic Seventies solo albums, it was still largely a solo album. 'Shleep' builds on this in calling in a number of guests, 'Rock Bottom' style..

Two tracks really stand out: 'Maryan', a gentle, evocative ballad co-written by Wyatt and guitarist Philip Catherine, but memorable not just for Its heartstopping vocal line, but the weaving violin solo of Chikako Sato. The dreamy, underwater feel of this track calls to mind so clearly, 20 or so years on, the "Rock Bottom tracks 'Sea Song' and 'A Last Straw'.

The other main highlight is totally different in conception: 'Blues In Bob Minor' Is a quite wonderful 'Subterranean Homesick Blues'-type rant - new words of course, delivered at mournful breakneck speed (which must be a first), breaking at the end of each verse for a honky-tonk piano break, a keyboard effect or a guitar riff from Paul Weller. This track breaks totally new ground for Robert Wyatt, apart maybe from the fact that, 'I'm A Believer'-style, he has once again taken a recognisable idiom and completely redefined it through his unique voice.

'Was A Friend', from memory, is the missing track from the Hopper/Sinclair 1983 sessions. Credited to Wyatt/Hopper, but performed here by Wyatt alone (with a little help from Alfreda Benge), Wyatt alone somehow recreates the sonic landscapes of 'Rock Bottom'. The tinkling piano, voice and percussion we might be familiar with, less so the rumbling bass, and the real revelation on this track (and others) is the trumpet work. Mongezi Feza's unique use of echoed effects on his brass works for 'Rock Bottom' has long been one of that album's abiding memories - scrabbling around in the credits to find who had so excellently carried on the tradition, I was amazed to find it was Robert Wyatt himself. Another string to the bow... No trumpet, but 'Alien', with its chattering percussion, interweaving vocal lines, simple piano chords, and some superb guitar effects from Phil Manzanera also transports the listener back to the unique soundscapes of 20 years before.

Free Will And Testament' you might remember as a doleful, keyboard-based piece from the first Hopper/Kramer album (with Wyatt as guest). This track is never destined to rouse an audience, but here lifts itself a beat or two for a much more satisfying rendition than the original, with Paul Weller adding slide guitar and backing vocals. The tracks mentioned above represent only half of this album's output - elsewhere, 'A Sunday In Madrid' is a gentler rant than 'Blues In Bob Minor', mainly notable for appearances by Eno and Evan Parker. 'Out of Season' and 'September the Ninth' are both briefer, mainly instrumental pieces, both taking their inspiration from the immediate environment of the Wyatt/Benge partnership. Both feature trombonist Annie Whitehead. 'Heaps of Sheeps', which opens the album, was probably chosen as the album's promo single because it is rockily upbeat and again features Eno, but is to this listener otherwise unremarkable, whereas it's successor 'The Duchess', taking its vocal line from the 'Grand Od Duke of 'York' nursery rhyme, but swiftly going off-track, is actually rather unsettling.

And then there's 'The Whole Point of No Return', written by Paul Weller, but performed ty Wyatt on trumpet, a very brief moment of atmospherics to finish the album off.

Alfreda Benge provides many of the lyrics for the album, as well as illustrating a comprehensive lyrics and credits CD booklet In the style that is so in tune with her husband's music.

The overall verdict: Robert Wyatt's most ambitious album since the Seventies, managing to combine the essence of his solo appeal in tracks like 'Maryan' and 'Was A Friend', but recapturing the unique soundscapes of 'Rock Bottom' through a number of carefully chosen guests. And perhaps the most exciting development is the desire to explore new avenues, whether through his own instrumental work or composing to different musical styles. Hannibal are currently re-releasing the classic 1970s Robert Wyatt albums, and there is no better time for 'Shleep' to appear in their midst.

BUSCADERO - N° 183 - SETTEMBRE 1997

Robert Wyatt / Shleep (Hannibal)

Guido Giazzi

Gradito ritorno per Robert Wyatt dopo alcuni anni di ritiro dalle sale d'incisione.

Il mai dimenticato batterista dei Soft Machine e certamente uno degli alfieri del Canterbury Sound. per la prima volta nella sua lunga carriera iniziata più di trentanni fa, si fa accompagnare in studio da uno stuolo di musicisti-ammiratori che lo aiutano nella registrazione di «Shleep» la sua ultima fatica.

Fin dal primo ascolto, le undici canzoni che compongono l'album, rivelano una gioia e un ottimismo vincente sulle cupe atmosfere che di solito Wyatt regalava ai suoi ascoltatori.

Per essere un album firmato Wyatt inoltre la strumentazione è ricchissima e il suono corposo aiuta a far librare le filigranate composizioni. Effetti elettronici, presenza dei fiati, violini ispirati, leggere percussioni attraversano le composizioni scritte e cantate da Wyatt.

Il canto del musicista inglese è certamente il suo marchio di fabbrica: non particolarmente dotato di una vasta estensione vocale, Wyatt riesce però a incantare gli ascoltatori, con il suo modo intimista di interpretare e «vivere» le sue musiche.

Ascoltiamolo in «Maryan» dove un violino in sottofondo caratterizza l'atmosfera del brano mentre le percussioni dettano il tempo: in questo lungo brano la voce del cantante ci porta verso nuovi orizzonti ai confini tra la veglia e il sogno. Ho usato il termine filigranato per definire le composizioni di questo musicista perché davvero i suoi brani sembrano delicati e impalpabili sebbene raccontino stati d'animo, problemi sociali, fotografando la realtà con i colori del sogno.

Robert Wyatt (foto Michele Paparelle)

Questa contraddizione era ancora più evidente quando Wyatt riprendeva canzoni politiche per trasformarle in «Wyatt's composition».

Last but not least, nei brani del musicista inglese è sempre presente la zampata ironica, la capacità prettamnte albionica di ridere, increspando il labbro, sulle brutture della vita.

Partecipano in studio con il musicista una schiera di amici - fan quali Brian Eno, Phil Manzanera e il bravo Paul Weller oltre a Evan Parker e Annie Whitehead.

Tra i brani migliori l'allegra «Heaps of Sheeps», la melanconica «Maryan» e la bellissima «Free Will and Testament», manifesto della sonorità wyattiana.

Tra i brani più originali per il repertorio wyattiano (e quello dal titolo più spiritoso) è «Blues in Bob minor», ritmo sostenuto per una affabulante interpretazione tra Elvis Costello e Lou Reed. Grande canzone Ottimo ritorno per un artista che non abbiamo mai dimenticato.

MOJO - 1997

Robert Wyatt / Shleep

Ben Thompson

Soft Machine and Matching Mole legend makes triumphant return. Sterling work from all-star supporting cast Paul Weller, Brian Eno, Evan Parker, Annie Whitehead and Phil Manzanera.

FAR FROM the old friends benefit it might have been, Robert Wyatt's first album since 1991's Dondestan is a fresh and fully-rounded work. It combines all the best qualities of his earlier recordings - the happy balance of simplicity and complication, frailty and resilience - with a sense of purpose that feels newly minted.

A trio of beautiful bird songs ('September The 9th', 'Alien', and 'Out Of Season'), co-written by Wyatt and his wife Alfreda Benge, form the hub of the album, but there are even greater pleasures in the hinterland. Wyatt's voice resonates as eloquently as ever, but on the bewitching 'Free Will And Testament' it takes flight to a higher realm of unhistrionic poignancy.

The exquisite Eno-flavoured opener 'Heaps Of Sheeps' must be the most tranquil song ever written about insomnia, and 'Blues In Bob Minor' - a suitably warped mirror-image of Dylan's 'Subterranean Homesick Blues' - gives Paul Weller the cue for his most free-spirited guitar blow out since the heyday of the Style Council.

Robert Wyatt talks to Ben Thompson.

Your feathered friends seem to have been a great source of inspiration.

"Well, they outnumber us 10 to one, and I really love watching them, which isn't always true of people. I'm not like a twitcher, in the sense that a bird doesn't have to be rare for me to be interested in it - I really like the ones that just hang about. I think sparrows, for example, are extremely witty and amusing to watch, though that's very anthropomorphic of me, because I know they're really busy struggling for survival."

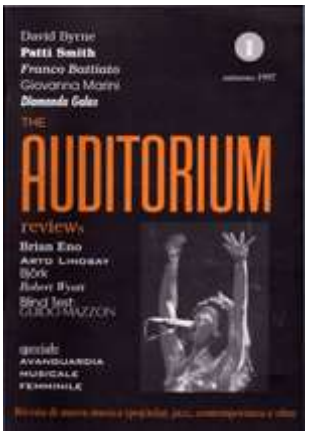
Was is that sympathetic attitude that let you to offer Paul Weller a way out of his pub rock impasse?

"Haha! With some people I'm just like a normal pop fan - judgement is completely suspended, and Paul is one of those. I've always liked the cut of his jib, and having spent so much time struggling around trying to do different things myself, I really identify with some of the adventures that he's had."

People might be surprised by an avant-garde avatar like yourself teaming up with the arch populist loafer-wearer?

"Someone who knows my track record shouldn't be surprised at me working with anybody, really. In any case, we musicians think differently about these things - inside the brotherhood."

What's 'Blues In Bob Minor' about?



"The original vocal was a bit influenced by those adverts: 'Papa!' 'Nicole!' I was just singing 'Oh Alfie' and I thought it was dead good and minimalist, but when I tried it out on my wife she said I was just being lazy and not bothering to write proper words. So, after I'd slammed the door a few times and smashed a couple of plates, I thought, I'll stuff it with words! I was trying to copy the Dylan original but I couldn't remember the lyrics, which was a good thing because it finished up as Robert Wyatt rather than Bob Dylan. Alfie thinks he might object. If he does we'll just bluff it out and say, 'Borrowing is a vital part of the folk tradition'."

AUDITORIUM - AUTUNNO 1997

Robert Wyatt / Shleep

Rykodisc 1997

S.B.

La spina dorsale dei Soft Machine, la voce più impalpabile della musica contemporanea, torna a vivere dopo il blackout che seguì Dondestan, l'album del 1991. Le precarie condizioni di salute e una preoccupante situazione finanziaria sembravano avere allontanato per sempre Robert Wyatt dalle scene. Shleep, dunque, giunge sui mercati discografici come un fulmine a ciel sereno: il compositore di Bristol alza nuovamente la testa e con l'aiuto di alcuni amici musicisti realizza un CD destinato a durare negli anni. Non a caso il brano d'apertura Heaps Of Sheeps, concepito con Brian Eno, ricrea le magie di Before And After Science; non a caso Alien, che vede protagonista la chitarra elettrica dell'ex Roxy Music Phil Manzanera, fa riemergere quell'energia cubana tanto cara a Wyatt; e ancora non a caso la struggente melodia di Free Will And Testament e la riproposta di The Whole Point Of No Return degli Style Council vedono all'opera l'estro di Paul Weller. Ogni ospite di Shleep (fra i quali, inoltre, Evan Parker e Annie Whitehead) si è messo umilmente al suo servizio. Ma nomi di prestigio a parte, ognuno di questi undici brani ci fa ritrovare come per incanto la musica cesellata di Wyatt: sincopata e minimale, jazzata e improvvisativa, 'pop' nel senso più nobile e 'rivoluzionario' del termine. È bello assimilare lentamente la progressione in forma libera di The Duchess, le dolcezze in stile Penguin Cafe Orchestra di Maryan, le umorali accelerazioni di Blues In Bob Minor e i fiati jazz di September The Ninth. Tutto ha una sua ferrea logica che parte dal suono elettronico della "macchina soffice", vola sulle ali di una voce dolcissima capace ancora una volta di commuovere e s'immerge con naturalezza nel suono di pianoforte, fiati, percussioni e chitarre. Dopo Rock Bottom, il nuovo capolavoro del 'canterburyano' Robert Wyatt è Shleep.

AV CLUB - 3/29/02

Robert Wyatt / Shleep

Joshua Klein

For fans of the former Soft Machine drummer/singer, each new Robert Wyatt disc is cause for celebration. Others may have only heard of the paraplegic auteur via his well-regarded interpretations of songs as varied as Neil Diamond's "I'm A Believer" and Elvis Costello's "Shipbuilding." But for the vast majority of music listeners who have never been introduced to Wyatt's adventurous vision, Shleep is as good a place to start as any. This is Wyatt's first album of original music in seven years, and it's peppered with a great cast of longtime friends (like Phil Manzanera and Brian Eno) and younger admirers (like Paul Weller). The album careens smoothly from bouncing art-pop ("Heaps Of Sheeps," the best quirky pop song Eno has laid his hands on in years) to excursions into abstract, jazzy territory (best illustrated by the four-song suite co-written by Wyatt and wife Alfreda Benge). Which is to say that Shleep is basically a continuation of what Wyatt has been doing for the last 30-odd years, tempered as usual by his distinctive, delicate voice, which has gracefully aged into a thing of beauty.

IMPRO JAZZ - n° 39 - Octobre 1997

Robert Wyatt / Shleep - Hannibal HNCD 1418

Heaps Of Sheeps / A Sunday In Madrid - VHCD 1418 (CD 2 titres)

Philippe Renaud

Que le temps passe vite avec Robert... Déjà six ans sans album, sans grand signe de vie. Et le temps passe vite aussi avec ce nouvel album de 53 minutes...

Dès "Heaps of Sheeps" (qui fait également l'objet d'un Cd deux titres, avec "A sunday in Madrid") on retrouve le parfum si particulier qui flottait dans "Taking Tiger Mountain (by Strategy)" de l'ami Eno, puis Evan Parker vient rompre le charme d'un son dissonant, alors que Wyatt hache une histoire à la manière des conteurs pour enfants avec une certaine intonation volontairement ironique. Décidément, les contes de fées et les histoires de princesse ne sont plus ce qu'elles étaient (prémonition ?). "Maryan", chanson d'amour, aurait pu être enregistrée à l'époque de "Rock Bottom" avec cette trompette nostalgique et une guitare égrenée à la sauce Daevid Allen. Et quelle beauté dans la voix... "Was a friend" démarre en demi-teinte par un extrait d'un titre d'Henry Cow, puis débouche sur un thème qui paraît avoir déjà été enregistré (musique de Hugh Hopper)... La charleston en perpétuel claquement, un piano avare, une basse ronflante mais très espacée, et un thème typiquement reconnaissable... "Free Will and Testament" résume complètement ce disque : une voix d'une douceur mélodique irrésistible, une guitare à la Pink Floyd (première époque, la meilleure), un piano qui plaque des accords et fait le lien avec la guitare, les guitares faut-il dire, sèche et électrique, et un tempo presque bancal. Un pur joyau.

"September in the Ninth" est le thème musical le plus élaboré, complexe à souhait, faisant participer le trombone d'Annie Whitehead toujours incisive, qui après une longue introduction instrumentale donne la parole (la voix) à un Wyatt mélancolique, qui suit et colle à l'instrument pas à pas. "Alien" sort tout droit de "Ruth is Stranger Than Richard", un remake de "Team Spirit", modernisé et swinguant à souhait. "Out of Season" est à l'image du titre, avec à nouveau Whitehead, chant décalé prolongé par le piano simple mais expressif. "A Sunday in Madrid" va droit dans la tradition wyattienne : un chant qui débite des mots en un exercice périlleux de rapidité, qui récite presque et qui laisse la phrase musicale se poursuivre en s'arrêtant pour reprendre son souffle; une foule d'instruments (percussions, guitare, sax) vient se noyer dans le duo piano / voix pour déboucher sur le titre marathon à couper le souffle, "Blues In Bob Minor" mené à cent à l'heure et ponctué par la guitare de Phil Manzanera. Enfin, "The Whole Point of No Return" permet de respirer, un thème pour conclure sur quelques notes de trompette à la Davis, pour conclure...

"Shleep" est un album aux couleurs chaleureuses, avec un soupçon de réminiscence heureuse, et une volonté de se battre. C'est dans ces instants que Robert Wyatt est le meilleur. "Shleep" est un hymne à l'espoir, à la dérision, à l'humour, à l'amour, à la VIE.

LES INROCKUPTIBLES - du 1er au 7 octobre 1997

Robert Wyatt / Shleep

Hannibal /Harmonia Mundi

Thierry Jousse

Un ange passe
Six ans d'absence depuis Dondestan. Six ans parsemés de petits signes fugaces tout juste suffisants pour calmer notre impatience. Un 4-titres neurasthénique enregistré à la maison dans le plus extrême dénuement, A Short break. Une brève collaboration avec Ultramarine. Trois chansons d'exception dans le mésestimé Songs de John Greaves. Et puis soudain, comme ça, en ce début d'automne, voici enfin le disque qu'on n'attendait plus, somptueux, hors du temps, parfaitement contemporain, constellé d'éclairs inattendus et tranquille comme la révolution. C'est le retour du prodige Robert Wyatt, le plus indispensable des grands solitaires, un des très rares marxistes à savoir nous tirer des larmes de joie, le seul qui ne nous ait jamais déçus depuis les années pataphysiques de Soft Machine. L'album en question s'intitule Shleep. S'agirait-il, par la grâce d'un étrange mot-valise, de compter les moutons avant de sombrer dans le sommeil ? Plutôt de considérer chacune des onze merveilleuses chansons de ce disque grave et léger comme autant de songes qui peupleront pour longtemps notre mémoire.
A première vue, rien n'a changé : les enfantines ritournelles sont intactes ; la voix d'être-ange de Wyatt est éternellement et célestement venue d'ailleurs ; Alfreda Benge, la compagne de Robert, est toujours aux phrases et aux pinceaux. Pourtant, tout est différent : pour la première fois, depuis la fin des années 70, Robert Wyatt, paraplégique à la suite d'un accident de sinistre mémoire, est sorti de sa tanière pour aller enregistrer dans les studios de Phil Manzanera avec quelques fameux compagnons de route. C'est ainsi qu'on croisera sur Shleep, entre autres complices, aussi bien le conceptuel Brian Eno et le très formaté Paul Weller que le grand improvisateur du free-jazz anglais, le saxophoniste Evan Parker. Ouvrez grand les frontières et place à la polychromie, à la polyrythmie, à la polyphonie. Contrairement à Old rottenhat ou à Dondestan, ses précédents albums, la solitude de Wyatt est ici infiniment peuplée et c'est une pluralité de mondes qui s'offre à nos cerveaux soudainement lavés de toute pollution. En général comme en détail, ce disque est en tous points magnifique. Maryan, splendide et faussement simple ballade ponctuée d'un vibrant solo de violon, côtoie le déchirant Was a friend, évocation haletante et subtile d'une amitié enfuie, ou le dissonant et tordu The Duchess dans lequel le soprano d'Evan Parker se mélange admirablement au violon polonais de Wyatt et aux machines d'Eno. Un trio infernal qui n'hésite pas à récidiver dans A Sunday in Madrid, qui fait lever les échos de la révolution espagnole. Sans oublier ce Blues in Bob Minor, où Wyatt rappe avec la guitare de Paul Weller, ou l'inquiétant Alien au parfum d'éternité. Il y a du jazz, du folklore imaginaire, de la chanson, de la techno, du futurisme, du très ancien, du génie, de l'invention, de la fantaisie... On n'a rien entendu de plus libre et de plus émouvant depuis Rock bottom.

STRAIGHT NO CHASER - Winter 1997

Robert Wyatt / Shleep

Hannibal

JN

People love and hate Robert Wyatt's voice in equal numbers (well maybe not quite equal).
Wyatt is one of England's most enduring singer-songwriters remaining on the credible fringes of pop/rock/jazz for decades. Whether you love or hate I defy you not to BELIEVE. Wyatt's lyrics could be sung by few others; the sentences shaped to fall from his sweet but straining vocal chords. And just look at who wants to play with him. Evan Parker, Brian Eno, Paul Weller, Annie Whitehead - all on one album, all working with and with respect for a friend. 'The Duchess' is a discordant but deeply beautiful song with Parker, Eno and Wyatt finding space for some peaceful madness. 'Maryan' is a gorgeous tumbling song of icy waterways and 'Free Will and Testament' has Weller and Wyatt playing harmonies from heaven. You might have guessed I like this LP, in fact I love it - 20 listens in and it still intrigues and involves me.

SPEX - Oktober 1997

Robert Wyatt : Shleep

Hannibal/RTD

Diedrich Diederichsen

Wenn man für die Robert-Wyatt-Platten nach "Rock Bottom" Metaphern wie "Krankheit", "Extremismus" oder "Verzicht" wählen würde, dann könnte man von dieser sagen, sie sei "gesund", "normal" oder "üppig, reich". Ein Künstler schöpft aus dem Vollen. Hier ist einer, der vielen Konventionen, Routinen und Subroutinen (des Musizierens, Komponierens, Stimme-Verleihens, Autoreffekte-Produzierens) stabile und instabile Gegenentwürfe und schließlich auch so etwas wie einen Gestus des Antimethodischen, eine automatische Autodekonstruktion entgegenzusetzen wußte und nun auf all diesen, in einem gewissen Widerstand entstandenen Schönheitsäckern eigenständige Plantagen gründet. Seine Traurigkeit, die sich in dem oben gemeinten Zeitraum durch Sparsamkeiten, Rückzug auf Cover-Versionen, Liedern von Zerfall und Ende dominierend über andere, konkurrierende Stimmungen legte, ist hier in einer "überschäumenden", nur als "Spielfreude" verständlichen Agilität des Zusammenspielens und arbeitens mit wichtigen Leuten unterschiedlicher Phasen seiner Arbeit verloren gegangen.
Trotzdem bleiben die immer noch "Verlorenheit" und "Einsamkeit" ausstrahlenden Eigenschaften seiner Stimme und seiner Melodien. Aber er hat sie in ein neues Verhältnis gesetzt: wie schon früher zu den Texten und Zeichungen seiner Lebensgefährtin Alfie Benge, zu dem Saxophon des freien und Improvisationsmusikers Evan Parker, zu Brian Enos integrativem Sounddesign fur Songs, das bei einigen Stücken so dominiert wie zuletzt bei dessen Zusammenarbeit mit John Cale, zu Paul Weller - als Mitstreiter, Arrangeur, Begleiter, aber auch als Idol: Wyatt covert "The Whole Point Of No Return" von Style Council als halbinstrumentalen Schlußchoral auf der Trompete - und zu vielen anderen. Phil Manzanera schenkte ihm die hektikfreie Studiozeit, und eine Fortsetzung des 70er-Jahre-Island/Virgin-Glamour-Progressive-Projekts, wie es u.a. mit diesen Namen verbunden ist, scheint unvermeidbar.

Warum auch nicht? Das Projekt, das hier fortgesetzt wurde und das damals viele gewaltsame Unterbrechungen aushalten mußte - Wyatts Unfall, den Tod Mongezi Fezas, den Zerfall der Szene in einerseits die Oldfield-Floyd-, andererseits die Cutler-Henry-Cow-Welt etc. - ist nach wie vor eine der wenigen Überlebensstrategien fur den Erfahrungsschatz eines bestimmten Songwritings und einer bestimmten Jazz-spielweise, die durch Elektronik hindurchgegangen ist. Die starken individuellen Interessen Wyatts, sein immer noch einmaliges und idosynkratisches Songwriting durchkreuzen dabei zu leicht Synthesen dieses Spiel- und Denkfundus.
Seine terminal-traurige Meditation über Willensfreiheit als philosophisches Problem wie als persönliches, die er mit Kramer und Hugh Hopper schon einmal für deren Duo-Platte aufgenommen hatte - "Free Will and Testament" - gerät z.B. plötzlich zu einer stabil lebensfähigen Ballade, um die man nicht mehr wie in der ersten Fassung wie um einen fußkranken Seiltänzer zittern muß. An anderen Stellen -"Alien" - treibt Wyatt auch die anderen MitstreiterInnen in eindeutige, fast kitschige Interpretationen von Songs, die ganz "atmosphärisch" zu werden drohen, bis man merkt, daß schon das melodische Material viel zu komisch ist (wie es das immer war), um dergleichen zuzulassen. Vielleicht bleibt "Dondestan" aus ebenso komischen Gründe zwar vorläufig die mir liebere Platte, aber das braucht Sie nicht zu irritieren.

ROLLING STONE - April 16, 1998

Robert Wyatt : Shleep

Greg Kot

Even within the esoteric confines of British art rock, Robert Wyatt has always been an outsider, a lighthearted sonic chemist puttering on the fringe of a fringe movement for thirty years. After founding visionary prog-rock band Soft Machine in the 1960s, Wyatt cooked up a series of bleak solo albums distinguished by a quiet, conversational singing voice that suggests a wise (if mildly inebriated) elf. Shleep is not only Wyatt's first full-length release in six years, it is also his most pop-friendly LP in a decade, perhaps because the reclusive singer opened up the recording sessions to a variety of friends and admirers, including fellow maverick Brian Eno, jazz saxophonist Evan Parker and Brit-pop icon Paul Weller. Each guest makes a significant contribution to Shleep, but the album's soothing tone, lilting melodicism and gentle abstraction are pure Wyatt, who sings and plays drums, piano, fiddle, bass and keyboards. The songs subvert pop form September The Ninth kicks off with more than four minutes of swooning sax and trombone interplay - but still unwind amiably, in keeping with the album's personal, reflective tone. Ghosts, insomnia, the "demented forces" that "push me madly 'round a treadmill" - nothing gets our man down. An ingratiating weirdness prevails. "I almost forgot where we buried the hatchet," Wyatt muses with a mixture of absent-mindedness and menace on Was A Friend. On Heaps Of Sheeps, a wistful melody pinwheels out of an Eno synthesizer drone as Wyatt sings merrily about a sleepless night, his tender falsetto rising to greet the dawn as if to say, "Let the dreams begin."

More information about this album

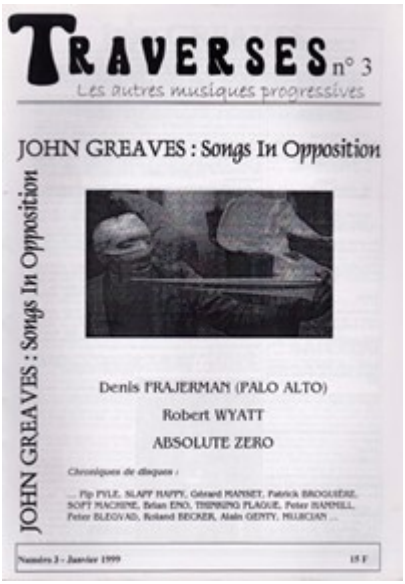
Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Live 1970
1998

Soft Machine



More information about this album

TRAVERSES - N° 3 - janvier 1999

Soft Machine - Live 1970 (Blueprint)

T.B.

Tous les musiciens du groupe se sont accordés à le dire : les albums studio de SOFT MACHINE ont toujours été en-deçà de ses performances scéniques.

TRAVERSES n° 3
Les autres musiques progressives
JOHN GREAVES : Songs In Opposition
Denis FRAJERMAN (PALO ALTO)
Robert WYATT
ABSOLUTE ZERO

Sous-entendu : préférez-leur les albums live ! Plusieurs maisons de disques en ont pris bonne note... Ce live-ci nous vient de Blueprint, sous-label de l'empire Voiceprint. Je préfère le dire d'entrée de jeu de manière à souligner le caractère officiel de l'objet, car ce dernier, sous son aspect extérieur, revêt plutôt la panoplie du parfait bootleg : si les titres des morceaux, les noms des artistes et leurs instruments sont mentionnés, aucune date et aucun lieu d'enregistrement ne sont cependant indiqués. La seule chose qui certifie la légalité de la chose est en fait la traditionnelle note de livret rédigée par Hugh HOPPER, mais la mémoire de celui-ci ne semble pas avoir voulu s'encombrer du calendrier. Les deux extraits de concerts que nous propose ce CD datent de 197O, ont été " recordés " quelque part en Europe (bravo pour la précision !), et basta ! Information pour les fans non avertis : l'extrait comprenant Out-Bloody-Rageous, Facelift et la saga Esther's Nose Job et qui remplit plus des trois-quarts du disque présente le concert du 1S août 1970 donné au Royal Albert Hall et qui fut retransmis par la BBC. Allez donc fouiller dans votre discothèque : ce concert fut déjà publié sous le titre Live at the Proms, celui où la batterie de WYATT émet un curieux son de caisse enregistreuse. C'est bien ce concert qui est ici réédité, à ceci près que les trois premières minutes de Out-Bloody-Rageous sont manquantes.
En contrepartie, l'autre extrait comprenant Facelift et Moon in June est totalement inédit, du moins à ma connaissance. Bien que d'une qualité sonore très moyenne (non, non et non, ce n'est pas un bootleg, vous dis-je !), cet enregistrement ravira les collectionneurs puisqu'il provient d'un concert de l'époque où SOFT MACHINE jouait en quintet (début 70, je présume), mais où Elton DEAN était exceptionnellement absent, laissant Lyn DOBSON seul aux cuivres. Bref, ce CD aurait pu être parfaitement dispensable s'il n'y avait eu ce court mais rare extrait. Avouez que c'est ..."bloody rageous" !

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

EP's
1999

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

CANTERBURY NACHRICHTEN - N° 35 - JANUAR / FEBRUAR 1999

Robert WYATT - EPs 1999, UK, Hannibal HNCD 1440

Thomas Däbritz

In den letzten Monaten sind bereits viele Originalausgaben von Robert WATT's LPs/CDs auf dem Hannibal-Label mit Booklets (und zum Teil mit CD-ROM Bonustrack) erschienen (CN berichtete von den Neuauflagen von "Rock Bottom", "Ruth is stranger than Richard", "Dondestan", "Old rotten hat" und "Nothing can stop us", bei dem übrigens wieder der Track "Shipbuilding" wieder herunter genommen wurde). Was meines Wissens noch fehlt, sind "The End of an Ear" ('70), "The Animals Film" ('82)," A short Break" ('92), "Flotsam jetsam" ('94) und natürlich einige Singles bzw. Maxis, wenn man von SOFT MACHINE, MATCHING MOLE und seinen vielen Gastauftritten mal ganz absieht.

Jetzt bringt WYATT eine wunderschöne, mit viel Liebe gestaltete 5CD Box heraus, dessen Material (bei Disc 1, 2 und 3) sich zwar zum Teil bereits verstreut auf verschiedenen CD-Samplern, wie "Going back a bit" aus der "Virgin Universal" Reihe, oder auch auf "Mideighties" bzw. "Late 70's, Early 80's" befindet. Hier werden diese seltenen Tracks aber zum ersten Mal gesammelt und in einer sinnvollen Reihenfolge zusammengestellt präsentiert. Die Box überschneidet sich nicht mit den bisher erschienenen Hannibal-Reissue-CDs, die ja sämtlichst Originalalben sind. Dank Hannibal muß man sich also jetzt nicht mehr die Füße wund laufen, um die teilweise schon länger gestrichenen Sampler eventuell noch als Second-Hand-CDs zu finden. Jene Musikkonsumenten, die erst ab "Shleep" mit WYATT in Berührung gekommen sind, haben nun die Möglichkeit, die diversen Schaffensperioden in verbesserter akustischer und optischer Qualität zu sammeln. Doch nun zur Box: Jede der 5 CDs befindet sich in einem separaten und durchnumeriertem Pappschuber. Die Box, die

Pappschuber sowie das Cover des dicken und hochinformativen Booklets sind von Alfreda BENGE liebevoll bemalt worden. Jeder CD wurde eine eigene Überschriften gegeben, die ich der Reihenfolge nach durchgehe:

Disc 1: "Bits" beinhaltet 'I'm a believer" (in einer bisher unveröffentlichten extended Version), "Memories", "Yesterday Man", "Sonia" und "Calyx". Alle diese Titel stammen aus dem Jahre 1974 und kamen mit Ausnahme von "Calyx" auf zwei Virgin-Singles auf den Markt. Mit "I'm a believer" kam Robert WYATT sogar in die "Top of the Pops" auf die Nummer 1, durfte dann aber nicht im Fernsehen auftreten (um exakt zu sein: er sollte sich in einen "normalen" Stuhl setzen), da die BBC ihrem Publikum den Anblick eines im Rollstuhl sitzenden Sängers nicht zumuten wollte. "Calyx" ist in der Liveversion vom legendären Konzert im Drury Lane Theatre im September 1974 zu hören, da muß es dann doch wohl noch mehr offizielles Livematerial geben? Interpretiert werden die Songs von Fred FRITH, Dave MacCRAE, Richard SINCLAIR, Nick MASON, Mongezi FEZA, John GREAVES, Gary WINDO, Hugh HOPPER und Laurie ALLAN und natürlich Robert WYATT. Alle Musiker sind also "alte" Bekannte aus der Canterbury Szene.

Disc 2: "Pieces" bietet neben "Shipbuilding" (hier digital remastered), "Memories of You" und "Round Midnight", die als Rückseite der Shipbuilding-12" erschienen, noch die seltenen Titel "Pigs .. (in there)" (von der LP/CD "Artists for Animals") und "Chairman Mao" (erstmals auf einer italienischen Single mit dazugehörigem Textbuch erschienen, später auch auf der CD "ReR Quarterly Collection Vol. 2"). Die letzten beiden Titel waren mir bisher ganzlich unbekannt, da ich leider keine der beiden letztgenannten CDs habe. Als besonderes Leckerli hat WYATT die Disc 2 noch mit dem originalem Promovideo von "Shipbuilding" versehen. Leider können sich nur Anhänger der Bill Gates Sekte "Microsoft" die CD-ROM genüßlich reinziehen, wenn auch alles schön kompatibel ist (mein Laufwerk erkennt leider keine Musik-CDs mit CD-ROM Titeln).

Also geht's weiter mit Disc 3: "Work in Progress", die auch mit der gleichnamigen Maxisingle von 1984 identisch ist Das kubanische Liebeslied von Pablo MILANES "Yolanda", Victor JARA's "Te Recuerdo Amanda", Peter GABRIEL's "Biko" und die WYATT/ HOPPER Komposition "Amber and the Amberines". Thematisch gehören diese 4 Songs für WYATT zusammen, weshalb er sie auch alle auf eine EP pressen ließ. "The songs are mostly secular hymns, in a way, simple tributes to attempts to build a little heaven on earth, south of the border" (Zitat von R.W.). Zu jeder Disc gibt es ausführliche linernotes von Robert WYATI mit Hintergründen zur Entstehung der einzelnen Stücke. Zusätzlich sind die Texte von "Amber and the Amberines" und von "Te Recuerdo Amanda" abgedruckt, letzteres auch in der englischen Übersetzung: "I Remember You Amanda".

Die Disc 4: "The Animals Film" ist die auf 20 Minuten gekürzte Filmusik eines Streifens, in dem grauenvolle Tierexperimente gezeigt werden. WYATT beschreibt in seinen Linernotes einige dieser furchtbaren Tierquälereien und schildert auch dabei, daß es für ihn eine harte Zeit war, zu diesen Horrorbildern auch noch Musik komponieren zu müssen. WYATT bedauert zum einen, daß die originalen Masterbänder des Soundtracks nicht mehr auffindbar sind (weshalb wahrscheinlich nur noch diese knapp 20 Minuten übrig geblieben sind ?), zum zweiten macht er den Hörer darauf aufmerksam, daß jene "Musik" nur dem Zwecke der Hintergrunduntermalung diente. Es war also vorher nicht geplant, einen Soundtrack herauszubringen, da es sich bei den akustischen Stimmungsbildern nicht um wirkliche Musik handelt. Zu hören gibt es leise Synthesizerklänge, etwas Percussion und WYATT's sparsam eingesetzte Stimme (irgend ein Rolling Stone-Kritiker beschrieb die Filmmusik als "fuchtbaren Lärm"). Schade finde ich nur, daß gegen Ende der CD die Musik erst richtig gut wird, etwa wenn WYATT seinen Gesang einsetzt, und dann jene Passage ausgeblendet wird.

Da ich die LP-Version von "Animals Film" nicht kenne, weiß ich eben nicht, ob es noch mehr Material auf Vinyl gab. Vielleicht kann mich da ja mal jemand aufklären. [Anmerkung: die LP von 1982, Rough Trade ROUGH 40, hatte eine Spieldauer von insgesamt 28:11 Minuten, diese EP nur noch 19:38 Minuten]. Bis zu diesem Teil der CD-Box Besprechung gab es vielleicht für einige von Euch nichts Neues an Musik, was sich aber nun ändern wird.

Die Disc 5: "Remixes" bietet 4 remixte Stücke des letzten Albums "Shleep", welche innerhalb einer Woche fertiggestellt wurden, als WYATT sein Album noch nicht einmal fertig abgemischt und germastert hatte. Nigel BUTLER und Angie DIAL von Pmff (bzw. Pmff Productions, Intemetzugang www.pmff.com) sind für diese beeindruckenden Remixes verantwortlich. Keine Ahnung, wer die beiden sind, aber sie besitzen die gleichen genialen Fähigkeiten wie die deutschen Trip-Hop Größen KRUDER und DORFMEISTER, die meiner Meinung nach die Ansätze von KRAFTWERK, NEU, LA DÜSSELDORF, Klaus SCHULZE etc. weiterentwickeln und in zeitgemäße, elektronische Musik transformieren. Als ersten Remix gibt es HOPPER's "Was a friend" zu hören. Unglaublich gut. Bis zur ersten Strophe begleiten spacige Klänge und blubbernde Sounds WYATT's Gesang, später kommen noch ein Hip-Hop Rhythmus und weitere, sparsam benutzte Effekte hinzu. Von der im Original eingespielten Beckenbegleitung hört man anfangs nur zart etwas, später fällt sie dann gänzlich weg. Es ist schon erstaunlich, wie sehr die Songs durch verschiedenartige Rhythmen verändert werden können. "Was a friend" kenne ich nun von HOPPER/SINCLAIR (damals nur auf dem Ur-Tape und ohne Gesang), von HOPPER/SMITH-KLOSSNER (Besprechung in diesem Heft) und zweimal von WYATT. Das sind mittlerweile vier unterschiedliche Songs. "Maryan" ist der absolute Favorit für WYATT's Ohren und auch wieder ein geniales Meisterwerk. Hier wurden ähnliche Techniken wie im ersten Track verwendet. Normalerweise ist ja weniger bekanntlich mehr, doch hier ist mehr einfach noch mehr. Richtig hart jedoch geht es bei "A Sunday in Madrid" ab. Dem Sprechgesang werden harte Drumbeats unterlegt, so daß der Song beinahe einen Hardcore Charakter erhält. In den Gesangspausen erklingen dann ab und zu ein paar nervige Sounds, die dem harten Rhythmus den bitteren Beigeschmack mitliefem. Danach wird es wieder sehr ruhig, wenn "Free will and Testament" ertönt. Sehr seichte Keyboardklänge und ein zarter Blubberrhythmus erklingen zum Gesang. Alle übrigen Instrumente der Originalversion fehlen hier. Auch mit diesem Stück beweisen die zwei Remixer BUTLER und DIAL, daß sie ein gutes Händchen besitzen. Vielleicht hört man von den beiden demnächst mal mehr von ihrer eigenen Musik? Wünschenswert wäre es auf alle Fälle. Leider bin ich im Nichtbesitz eines Internetzugangs, sonst würde ich mich mal in der PMFF-Webside über deren Projekte etwas schlau machen. Soweit nun zu den "EPs", die in Ergänzung zu "Nothing can stop us" den größten Teil von WYATT's Singles und Maxis abdecken. Was jetzt noch fehlt sind die "Peel Sessions", die EP "Man to Woman" (von Marsha HUNT) sowie die beiden Singles "Age of Self / Raise your Banners high" und "The Wind of Change / Namibia" (mit den SWAPO Singers). Das würde meines Wissens alle originalen Robert WYATT Singles und EPs abdecken. Ich würde mir wünschen, daß sich das Hannibal Label auch noch diesen (mir zum Teil unbekannten) Schätzen widmen würde, das wäre schön. Na ja, warten wir mal ab. (Labelinfos und Infos zum WYATT-Programm von Hannibal/Rykodisc unter:
Rykodisc Ltd., 78 Stanley Gardens, London W3 7SZ / Tel: 0181 746 1234 e-mail: data@rykodisc.com — web site: http://www.rykodisc.com

---

Robert Wyatt: EP's

Louise Gray

Attempting to sum up Robert Wyatt's contribution to pop is a difficult job. Not to suggest that the man's career is anyway over - this covetously nice boxed set of five EPs disproves any such thing. Wyatt, a singer and writer who came to prominence in the 1960s with the British band Soft Machine, developed a career which combined artistry with an unswerving passion for social justice. This is reflected in many of the pieces collected here and while Wyatt has always been outspoken in his Marxist sympathies he has never been doctrinaire. This collection takes as its starting point the end of the Softies in 1971 and traces a trajectory up to the present day with selections from last year's album Shleep plus various remixes. Most of the material is available elsewhere on Wyatt's numerous releases, but the beauty of EPs is in its size. These 'extended plays' - each one less than an album, but more than a single - offer a format that allows for a short, concentrated exploration around a thematic grouping. There's a 1974 cover of I'm A Believer; the shimmering sorrow of Shipbuilding, an eloquent indictment of Thatcher and the Falklands war in just minutes; and tracks from the 1982 movie The Animals Film. Wyatt's music can be sparse, but it's also simultaneously vulnerable and taut; Sakamoto had a point when he described his as "the saddest voice in the world". That is, in a sense, the beauty of Wyatt's work. Even when he's on a roll - delivering a mighty cover of Victor Jara's Te Recuerdo, Amanda or Amber And The Amberines, written after the US invasion of Grenada - there's the tenderness of farewell in each of them. Hear this for the songs, the passion, the players: Brian Eno, Fred Frith and Paul Weller all make appearances. Wyatt's one of a kind.

IMPROJAZZ - AOÛT-SEPTEMBRE 1999

Robert Wyatt: EP's
Hannibal - Coffret CD's

René Guyomarc'h

Ouvrir le coffret des "ep's", c'est un peu comme retrouver des objets précieux égarés ou dispersés. Le cœur pince un peu : le souvenir sublime, la nostalgie frustre. Mais il n'y a pas ici que des inconnus. L'identité artistique de Robert Wyatt, préservée en dépit de relocalisations dans divers labels est si excentrique, sa voix soprane si unique et ses compositions (et ses reprises) si spéciales que l'âge les épargne. Son approche de la technologie contrarie la désuétude des arrangements d'époque et on n'écoute pas aujourd'hui "Moon in June" ou "Caroline" avec la même oreille que les compositions des autres membres de la Soft Machine ou de la Matching Mole... Mais ces deux titres figurent sur des compilations antérieures et l'objet de celle-ci est d'un tout autre fût...
En amoureux des musiques populaires et de musiques jazz, Robert Wyatt parvient à capturer l'essence rare de l'âme d'un air, de l'émotion qu'il véhicule. S'il vibre sur "Strange Fruit" et "'Round Midnight" ou "Te recuerdo Amanda", il restitue ce rare et indicible sentiment qu'on éprouve à l'écoute de ce qu'il faut bien appeler par commodité des "classiques". Sous la préhension de Robert Wyatt, la chanson pop devient un standard qui saura désormais affronter le temps qui passe, la version fait peau neuve, elle est Wyatt devenue. C'est vrai pour "I'm a believer" et ça marche aussi pour "Shipbuilding". Robert Wyatt n'habille pas, il habite. Spirituels, cohérents et conceptuels, les "ep's" se déclinent et se découvrent dans l'ordre ou dans le désordre comme un roman à clés. Chaque "ep" est baptisé d'un titre générique mais à l'exception du douloureux interlude des "Animais", il est associé à son prédécesseur et à son successeur par de judicieuses associations d'idées et la chronologie n'a pas plus d'utilité que le pense-bête noué dans le mouchoir. Le livret qui l'accompagne abonde de détails où apparaissent toutes les qualités de leur auteur : humanisme et engagement politique, humour, sens du recul, modestie... et un éblouissant don de narrateur. Toutes ces qualités semblent être des extensions naturelles d'un génie fragile et pétillant, malicieux et terriblement intrépide.

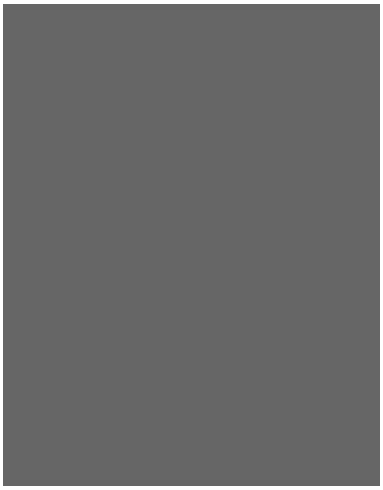
Les "ep's" autorisent l'auditeur à cerner un homme qui parvient à projeter sans approximations ses visions multiples, un artiste dont l'œuvre homogène transcende non seulement les modes mais aussi les genres et les préjugés.



NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS - 20 FEBRUARY 1999

Robert Wyatt: EPs

Stephen Dalton

Robert Wyatt has been a ghostly presence in progressive British pop for the last 30 years.

His avant-jazz drumming and achingly fragile voice echo through much of Damon Albarn's output, his songs have been covered by the likes of Gorky's Zygotic Mynci, while his own sporadic releases have been graced by everyone from Brian Eno to Jerry Dammers, Paul Weller to Ultramarine.
This handsomely packaged box set kicks off in the post-Soft Machine mid-'70s, just after Wyatt was paralysed from the waist down by a drunken fall from four floors up. The first of five EPs begins with his spaced-out, whimsically Olde English take on The Monkees' hit 'I'm A Believer'. The shrill, lovelorn flutter of 'Memories' and brass-driven township jive of 'Sonia' are equally minimal and emotive, twanging heartstrings with the slightest of sighs.
The second disc centres on Wyatt's most famous hit, 'Shipbuilding'. Written especially for the Marxist singer by Elvis Costello in 1982, this all-time classic anti-war anthem draws an explicit link between the Falklands conflict and Thatcherite industrial decline, all within the context of an exquisitely sad saloon-bar lament. Its original B-side, 'Memories Of You', is a tear-stained gem too, although Wyatt's stab at Thelonius Monk's 'Round Midnight' is a trifle cluttered, and his animal rights drone-poem 'Pigs... (In There)' is hardly a barrel of laughs either.
'Work In Progress', first released on Rough Trade in 1984, contains some sublime marriages of rudimentary electronics with so-called 'world' music. 'Yolanda' and 'Te Recuerdo Amanda' are gently oscillating covers of leftist Chilean anthems, each as woozily soothing as warm sunlight. 'Amber And The Amberines' is Wyatt's own stirring epitaph to the US invasion of Grenada, a quavering post-rock torch song and tribute to the undying socialist flame. Even his weightless glide through Peter Gabriel's stadium conscience-pricker 'Biko' manages to lose much of the original's windy pomposity, if not its dragging pace.
Only the fourth disc, edited highlights of Wyatt's soundtrack to Victor Schonfeld's 1984 anti-slaughter movie The Animals Film, lets this collection down. It's a noodling, twittering, Krautronic clonkfest clearly designed with harrowing visual images in mind, not home listening. But the fifth set, featuring four lightly remixed dub'n'bass and trip-hop versions of tracks from Wyatt's 1997 album 'Shleep', restores some consistency and linear logic. Even in such self-consciously contemporary surroundings, what shines through is the luminous beauty of the most original and emotive voice in hard-left British pop.

If you don't believe avant-garde political music can be both playful and polemical, heartfelt and heartbreaking, you need Robert Wyatt in your life.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Noisette
2000

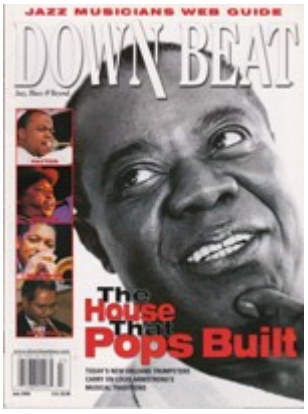
Soft Machine

More information about this album

OCTOPUS - Eté 2000

SOFT MACHINE – Noisette (Cuneiform / Oka)

F.H.



Saisi à l'ourlet d'une des nombreuses formations plus ou moins stables de Soft Machine, « Noisette » nous projette au tout début de l'année 1970, époque rare où la figure de proue de l'école de Canterbury officiait en quintet. Aux côtés d'un Robert Wyatt toujours déchaîné, d'un Ratledge expert en orgue trafiqué et d'un Hugh Hopper habile à faire « fuzzer » sa basse de tous bois, Elton Dean et Lyn Dobson tricotent leurs vents dans un duo prolixe en fulgurances débridées. Rythmes obsessionnels, figures mélodiques répétitives, déports harmoniques, intrusions dans l'électroacoustique expérimentale et débordements sensoriels. Soft Machine était au jazz british, ce que Pink Floyd tentait d'être au rock... La dimension pataphysique en plus. D'une qualité sonore acceptable, bien que parfois un peu lointaine, cet enregistrement live a le mérite de témoigner de l'exubérance inventive et insouciante que le groupe déversait avec bonheur sur scène. Avec une mention toute spéciale pour Wyatt qui porte littéralement l'ensemble en s'agitant comme un diable derrière ses tambours. Outre le répertoire tiré de « Volume Two » et de «Third», qui encadrent cette période, « Noisette » propose plusieurs inédits abandonnés par la suite au fil des pérégrinations chaotiques du groupe. Le tout s'achève sur l'incontournable « We Did It Again ». Voilà certainement ce qu'on peut appeler une machine vintage, luisant de tous ses chromes!

DOWNBEAT - July 2000

SOFT MACHINE – Noisette (Cuneiform Rune 130)

Frank-John Hadley

Pax Brittanica. It's a good day for vintage British Indo-jazz and jazz-rock with new CDs available on alto player Joe Harriott's initial mid-'60s meeting with Indian musicians and on the little-known quintet edition of Soft Machine, whose music is finally heard at length after 30 years. Soft Machine had moved past its fondness for pop whimsy and was working out an innovative union of jazz and rock when expertly taped in a concert hall performance during the first week of 1970. The five band members, who'd recently seen two horn players split after a tour, construct wave after wave of suspense on extended but cleverly structured originals that flow together as one. Keeping his right hand active on a buzzing Lowrey organ while using his other to produce contrasting, subdued colors on electric piano, Mike Ratledge dominates the group sound. His linear and textural inventions are generally inventive, with few episodes of indulgent noisemaking. Ex-road manager Hugh Hopper's melodic runs on electronically altered or natural bass guitar sustain a balance between playfulness and enchantment. Robert Wyatt, who knows his Elvin Jones and Cecil Taylor records, drums with exuberance. Twenty-four-year-old Elton Dean, challenged but not defeated by troublesome contact mikes and an overbearing PA system, churns up a froth playing alto or saxello. Lyn Dobson contributes some OK soprano and flute. On his trademark tune, "Moon In June," and a couple more, Wyatt does a bit of his typically daft and charming singing.

RYTHMES CROISÉS - 2 octobre 2018

SOFT MACHINE – Noisette (2000, Cuneiform)

Stéphane Fougère

Article réalisé à partir de chroniques parues dans les revues TRAVERSES et TANGENTES, dûment remaniées et complétées en 2018.

C’est le 4 janvier que SOFT MACHINE donne son premier de l’année 1970 ; c’est aussi le premier à être donné dans une salle de grande capacité, le Fairfield Halls de Croydon, comptant plus de 1500 places ! Le groupe s’y présente dans une formule “amaincie” par rapport à la tournée française et belge qu’il a achevée quinze jours auparavant. De septette, il devient quintette.

Cette formule en quintette n’est pas inconnue des “SOFT MACHINE Heads”, puisque c’est elle qui a légué à la postérité la version de Facelift que l’on trouve dans l’album capital Third. On se souvient en effet que cette composition magistrale de Hugh HOPPER dans ledit album est à la base un enregistrement live qui a par la suite été “frankensteinisé” en studio, où il a subi plusieurs montages et démontages, et qu’on lui a même greffé des bouts d’une autre version live. Mais à l'origine, la captation live de Facelift qui a servi pour Third provient de ce concert à Croydon, et cet album Noisette ne contient rien moins que le "reste" de ce concert !

Au-delà de l'intérêt purement historique, cet enregistrement permet en outre de se familiariser avec un répertoire en forte mutation depuis le concert à Amsterdam en mars 1969 immortalisé par le CD Live at the Paradiso. Depuis l'été 1969, le répertoire scénique de la Machine molle est constitué de thèmes qui trouveront plus tard place dans Third (Moon in June et Facelift), de pièces jamais enregistrées sur les disques classiques du groupe, et seulement deux compositions de Volume Two (Hibou, Anemone and Bear et Esther's Nose Job) assez transformées par rapport à leurs versions de studio. Autant dire que, pour le public des concerts de SOFT MACHINE à cette période, une majorité du répertoire est royalement inédit !

Le concert à Croydon débute précisément sur une composition inédite en version studio de Mike RATLEDGE, Eamonn Andrews, que des archives live publiées avant Noisette (The Peel Sessions, BBC Radio One in Concert, Virtually) nous avaient fait connaître dans des versions live postérieures nettement plus courtes. La version jouée à Croydon est plus longue que toutes celles-ci, atteignant les douze minutes. Elle démarre tranquillement avec piano et basse, avant que le trio de base ne fasse une embardée avec clavier électrique, basse "fuzz" et batterie frétillante, avec juste quelques singuliers couinements de saxophone à la cantonade.

Un autre thème de Hugh HOPPER jamais capté en studio lui fait suite, Mousetrap, sur lequel DEAN et DOBSON entrent définitivement en scène, plongeant dans cette chevauchée sauvage au rythme haletant. Lyn DOBSON parvient même à glisser quelques interventions vocales "scattées". On croyait ce genre de fantaisie dévolue uniquement à Robert WYATT, on réalise ici qu'il n'en est rien ! Le même DOBSON émet d'autres borborygmes durant son solo de flûte qui habille merveilleusement bien une autre composition de RATLEDGE restée inédite chez SOFT MACHINE, la très planante Backwards, qui finira par atterrir dans le répertoire du groupe CARAVAN, dans la suite l'Auberge du sanglier/A Hunting We Shall Go, sur l'album For Girls Who Grow Plump in the Night.

À noter que Mousetrap et Backwards sont ici reliés par le court Noisette, qui sert de cordon ombilical, puis c'est le thème de Mousetrap qui revient après Backwards servir de pont avec une pièce plus connue de SOFT MACHINE, Hibou, Anemone and Bear, durant laquelle s'enchaînent soli de saxophone, d'orgue fuzz, et Robert WYATT y glisse quelques menues paroles, les seules qu'il chantera durant tout le concert ! Oui, les seules, puisque sur la version de Moon in June qui suit, le batteur reste étonnamment muet sur cette composition dont il est l'auteur, dont il a déjà enregistré une démo et pour laquelle il avait pourtant écrit des paroles, qu'il n'hésitait pas à modifier en fonction du contexte (cf. la version jouée à la BBC en 1969).

Dans Noisette, Moon in June est réduit à une portion instrumentale dominée par un solo d'orgue de Mike RATLEDGE – magistral, cela dit – qui débouche sur un autre thème de Hugh HOPPER, 12/8 Theme, un morceau parfaitement inédit que cette archive live permet de découvrir pour la première fois (à la différence de Eamonn Andrews et de Mousetrap, déjà révélés par une session BBC incluse dans le coffret vinyle Triple Echo et rééditée depuis en CD). Cette pièce de choix, atteignant les onze minutes, comporte toutes les caractéristiques d'une composition typiquement soft-machinienne et s'avère un écrin idéal pour les souffleurs, qui marquent leur empreinte avec rage et détermination.

Le set s'achève sur une pièce désormais classique du répertoire de SOFT MACHINE, Esther's Nose Job, rendue aussi éclatante que pétaradante par le groupe entier, et qui enchaîne les éclats solistes et les passes d'armes d'orgue et de saxophones sur une rythmique tempétueuse. Robert WYATT a juste le temps de glisser deux courtes interventions vocales sans paroles dans cette matière musicale bouillonnante, aussi dense qu'emphatique, qui laisse tout juste deviner le haut degré de volume sonore auquel jouait SOFT MACHINE à cette époque.

Une dernière surprise nous est offerte avec le rappel, qui n'est rien moins qu'une reprise de We Did it again, seule pièce rescapée de l'époque Kevin AYERS. Mais de la chanson pop pataphysique qu'elle était au départ, elle devient ici une pièce en majeure partie instrumentale, prétexte à toutes formes de saturations et de rugosités, où même le chant de WYATT est très fragmenté. Il faut écouter cette version comme un adieu à une certaine époque de SOFT MACHINE et une illustration éloquente de l'évolution musicale de la Machine molle avec cette formation en quintette. Plus rien ne sera comme avant, semble nous dire le groupe.

Une note technique dans le livret nous informe que cet enregistrement a été mastérisé à partir des bandes magnétiques originales de Bob WOOLFORD, l'ingénieur du son de SOFT MACHINE, dont la vitesse d'enregistrement atteignait 15 pouces par secondes. Or, il est arrivé que certains morceaux soient coupés au beau milieu quand ces bandes étaient pleines, laissant un certain "blanc" dans la musique le temps que WOOLFORD installe une nouvelle bande sur son engin enregistreur. Il a fallu pallier à ces blancs en utilisant des fragments d'un autre concert (celui de l'University College à Londres une semaine plus tard) pour restituer sans interruption le flux du concert au Fairfield Hall de Croydon.

Quoi qu'il en soit, la captation sonore est excellente pour l'époque, et on ne peut qu'enrager de ne pas retrouver dans ce disque la version de Facelift qui a été jouée ce soir-là, on aurait pu ainsi la redécouvrir en intégralité et avec un meilleur confort d'écoute que sur l'album Third, où le travail de montage et de production a littéralement étouffé la prise de son d'origine. Noisette donne une bien meilleure image du caractère rêche et mordant que pouvait avoir SOFT MACHINE en concert.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

MW pour Robert Wyatt
2001

Compilation

More information about this album

REVUE & CORRIGÉE - n° 50 - Décembre 2001

COMPILATION
"MW pour Robert Wyatt"
In Poly-Sons 1RS 0401 Dist. Orkhêstra

Pierre Durr

M pour Marchetti (Jean-Michel), W pour Wyatt... Depuis quelques années, Jean-Michel Marchetti illustre et traduit certains titres de Robert Wyatt. Il y eut MW en 97, M2W en 1998 (agrémenté d'une courte interview de R. Wyatt sur CDs (IPS 0098), puis en 2000 M3W, en tirage limité, un livre illustré et un CD (IPS 0800) de 18 titres de R.W. repris presque exclusivement par des musiciens français) et cela avant un 4e puis un 5e opus qui lui proposera sans doute des pièces inédites de Robert Wyatt. 0098 + 0800 = 0401 : Robert Wyatt est une sorte de mythe vivant pour de nombreux amateurs d'une musique qui allie une certain intemporalité à un contexte pourtant bien précis, celui d'un rock pataphysique à la croisée des influences minimales, rock puis jazz, un personnage trop universel pour ne laisser ces adaptations qu'à un nombre limité de lecteurs / auditeurs (300). D'où cette édition sans livre. Voici pour l'information.
"MW pour Robert Wyatt". Rien n'égalera, me direz-vous, les versions de Robert Wyatt lui-même. Certes. Et ce sentiment est bien sûr partagé par les musiciens qui ont participé à cette compilation. Mais cela n'empêche pas l'hommage, qui, ma foi, emprunte des chemins variés : de l'échantillonnage qui va jusqu'à puiser ses sources dans les Soft Machine d'antan, à l'interprétation très dépouillée d'un Kafka (qui rend en même temps hommage à Bourvil !), en passant par des improvisations plutôt déjantées et nerveuses d'un Pauvros et / ou d'un Montera assisté par Chris Cutler et Tony Buck à côté d'autres versions plus fidèles. C'est l'occasion aussi de retrouver quelques habitués : Pascal Comelade dont l'œuvre est parsemé depuis toujours de références à Robert Wyatt, Toupidek Limonade ou Look de Bouk, qui en France ont pris le flambeau de la pataphysique appliquée à la musique. Et quelques autres que vous avez probablement déjà croisés.

"MW pour Robert Wyatt". Une compilation émouvante et de ce fait un brin imparfaite, forcément imparfaite... .

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

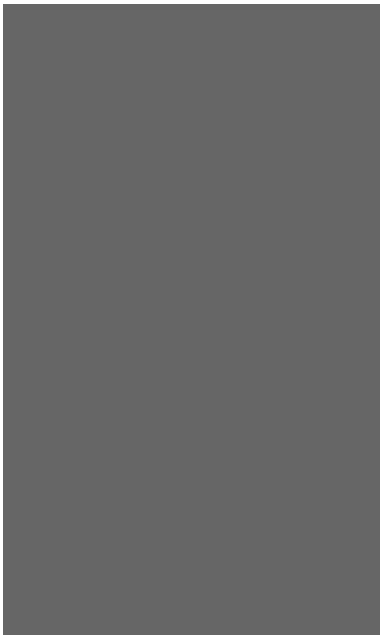
Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Nouvelles
2001

Jean-Marc Foussat

More information about this album



REVUE & CORRIGÉE - n° 41 - Septembre 1999

Jean-Marc Foussat - "Nouvelles"
CD-R (pot-fou@world-net.fr)

Jacques Debout

C'est par la langue de Primo Levi tirée de la bouche del signore Pastorelli que commencent les 65'56" de ces Nouvelles, en disque compactées à la demande par Jean-Marc FOUSSAT ; elles s'adressent à "Vous qui vivez en toute quiétude bien au chaud dans vos maisons..." quoique le disque soit dédié à Marie et à Robert Wyatt, cet autre mélodiste faiseur de chansons tristes (*) évoqué en deux brèves citations d'un Gloria Gloom extirpé du Petit Disque Rouge de Matching Mole - façon pour l'auteur de ces Nouvelles de s'ancrer dans une Histoire pleinement choisie ; encore qu'avant même de fondre sous la chaleur de la langue piémontaise il faille en passer par le rouge sang de ces Nouvelles lavé par les remous sales d'une rivière que perce un cordage où s'effilochent des linges happés par un méchant courant, rude filin tendant sa mince ombre noire sur l'onde tourbillonnante : voilà où s'arriment ces Nouvelles que donne Jean-Marc FOUSSAT aux immobiles voyageurs du numérique les écoutant "le soir en rentrant" ; c'est que le son, capté, découpé, travaillé sans fin, reste l'instrument privilégié de cet homme discret posant son chapeau noir derrière les machines à bruire de Marteau Rouge (sonique pochette-surprise qu'il remplit à loisir aidé de Jean-François Pauvros et Makoto Sato) auxquelles il rajoute ici voix, piano, trompe de Solex, cordes, tabouret à vis, dédicaces, courants d'air, téléviseur et magnétoscope, collés ou pas à la guitare de Jean-François Pauvros, la trompette de Jac Berrocal, la voix de Roger Turner, l'accordéon de Claude Parle, la basse et les percussions d'ex du groupe Mandragore, psychédélique underground météorite seventies (presque) sans lendemains mais où naquit Jean-Marc FOUSSAT aux phénomènes sonores.
Avant ou après le turinois reprenant le compte à rebours qu'égrena Primo Levi à l'ouverture de Se questo è un uomo / Si c'est un homme, viennent en leur temps langue arabe, anglaise, grecque, allemande, latin classique, chiffres et lettres mettant en équation les matières sonores de ces Nouvelles, et que "vous qui (les) trouvez le soir en rentrant la table mise (...) non, ne l(es) oubliez pas : Gravez ces mots dans votre cœur. Pensez-y chez vous, dans la rue, en vous couchant, en vous levant ; répétez-les à vos enfants. Ou que votre maison s'écroule, que la maladie vous accable, que vos enfants se détournent de vous." Menace éminemment politique, impeccablement rédigée par celui qui avait choisi de narrer l'irracontable, l'indicible des camps d'extermination nés en milieu de ce siècle, reprise ici sostenuto par Jean-Marc POUSSAT qui désigne mieux ainsi qu'avec n'importe quoi d'autre le camp de ses choix sonores.

Disponible à l'électronique sybilline adresse ci-dessus.
(*) Serge Gainsbourg, "L'Aquabonisre"

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Cuckooland
2003

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

RUMORE 141 - Ottobre 2003

Robert Wyatt - Cuckooland (Ryko/I.R.D.)

Vittore Baroni & A. C.

Ci sono personaggi che vivono lontani dalle logiche delle classifiche, incuranti degli assillanti meccanismi dell'industria discografica. Artisti che possono permettersi di determinare tempi e modi della loro produzione, operando in una dimensione a sé stante, impermeabile alle mode. Come i Kraftwerk, che vent'anni dopo pubblicano senza batter ciglio un album (ottimo) relativo al loro singolo Tour de France. Come Wyatt, che sei anni dopo riprende il discorso dello stupendo Shleep dallo stesso punto in cui l'aveva lasciato. Anzi, con un pizzico di solare serenità in meno, giacché nel frattempo la situazione nel pianeta (politica, ecologia e sociale) è andata ancor più degenerando, quindi alla rabbia di sempre (contro l'Occidente e la/le guerre) si affianca in tralice il rimpianto per beni e valori che paiono irrimediabilmente perduti, in questo inguaribile "mondo di pazzi".

Non sono certo novità eclatanti che ci attendiamo da un disco di Wyatt, bensì solidità di contenuti e alta qualità di ispirazione. Qui abbiamo entrambe le cose, e in dose massiccia (75'): le malinconiche, soffici melodie marchio di fabbrica del Nostro, figliastre di Monk e Chet Baker; i testi scarni e toccanti (una ninnananna per bimbi nati traumatizzati sotto i bombardamenti, di che altro merita scrivere?); una rinnovata voglia di suonare non solo le tastiere ma anche la cornetta, in distese modulazioni cool jazz (Old Europe fotografa il flirt parigino tra Juliette Greco e Miles Davis), e perfino con insolito impeto le percussioni. Sedici tracce, ognuna diversa e preziosa, che sarebbe esercizio futile (e ne manca lo spazio) sezionare: Forest, sullo sterminio delle tribù zingare e con la lancinante chitarra di David Gilmour, è l'inno estrapolabile dal mazzo, la Shipbuilding del caso. Merita piuttosto sottolineare il ritrovato desiderio di contornarsi di amici-collaboratori, strumentisti d'eccezione come la trombonista Annie Whitehead e il sassofonista Gilad Atzmon, la tastierista Karen Mantler (figlia di Michael, autrice di tre brani iperwyattianni) e ospiti come Eno e Paul Weller. Lo sforzo insomma di realizzare un lavoro di squadra (registrato al Gallery Studio di Phil Manzanera) piuttosto che chiudersi come in altre occasioni nel salotto di casa, che possiamo leggere anche come un'implicita nota di speranza. Come sussurra la compagna Benge nella traccia più scanzonata e intimista, Lullaloop: "dolci sogni, vecchio mio, dolci sogni".

V.B.

A cena da Bob

Dove si trova Cuckooland?

"Da noi cuckoo significa 'matto', 'stupido', 'sciocco': che tu intenda il termine in modo positivo o negativo. Per me è come, molto tempo dopo Alice nel paese delle meraviglie, 'Robert nel paese della follia'."

C'è un movente particolare che ti ha spinto a realizzarlo?

"No. Tranne il fatto che si tratta del mio lavoro, l'unico che posso fare. E ci riesco ancora. Come un cuoco, che lo fa perché gli piace cucinare ed è capace: non è molto diverso - il ristorante è il suo posto di lavoro. Io cucino a casa, ma non interessa a nessuno."

È un album lungo, con pausa in mezzo: sembra un doppio disco in vinile...

"Proprio così. Da quando faccio dischi ho sempre pensato che siano composti da due metà: diverse e complementari. E, dicendolo in modo pretenzioso, così è fatto il mondo: tutto è diviso in due parti. La doppia personalità di ognuno, interna ed esterna. Lo ying e lo yang in Oriente. L'uomo e la donna. Le due parti del cervello. È un meccanismo organico, il modo in cui la natura funziona. In realtà è difficile parlare della musica: ce l'hai in testa, la suoni, ma descriverla a parole è complicato perché non riguarda l'intelletto ma l'istinto. E allora buttiamola sul banale: generalmente gli altri inseriscono i bonus in coda ai dischi, mentre io li ho piazzati in mezzo."

A.C.

MOJO

Robert Wyatt - Cuckooland (Domino 2003)

Jenny Bulley

Wyatt's most welcome return, whiskery but ageless.

Six long years after Robert Wyatt's previous solo album Shleep, Cuckooland, arrived in troubled times. A baby born in Baghdad at the start of the first gulf war, the conditions facing gypsies seeking asylum from the Czech Republic and the plight of factory farmed sheep were all on the singing sticksman's mind in 2003 when Wyatt, along with poet wife lyricist Alfreda Benge, drafted in illustrious friends including trombonist Annie Whitehead, Dave Gilmour and Paul Weller on guitars, Brian Eno and Carla Bley's daughter Karen Mantler to indulge his taste in charmingly eccentric instrumentation, including, on Cuckoo Madam, the sort of toytown keyboards reminiscent of his 1976 keystone, Rock Bottom. A comfortable, wonky jazz feeling permeates the spare, sorrowful songs but the real star, as always, is Wyatt's ageless voice, softly crooning his whiskery wisdom as if soothing a skittish horse. Cuckooland is a lesson in achieving sophistication through economy, there is even a 30-second silence dividing the album into two parts ("for those with tired ears to pause..."). Ageing also concerns Lullaloop, one of Cuckooland's moments of light relief in which Wyatt gives affectionate voice to Benge's song about a grumbling old man trying to get to sleep ("Don that duvet/Cook that cocoa/Turn that music down!"). The overall effect is one of enchanting melody and sharp, informed songwriting, that arcane, folksy album title suggesting either Wyatt or the rest of us are living in cloud cuckooland and I rather suspect it's not him.

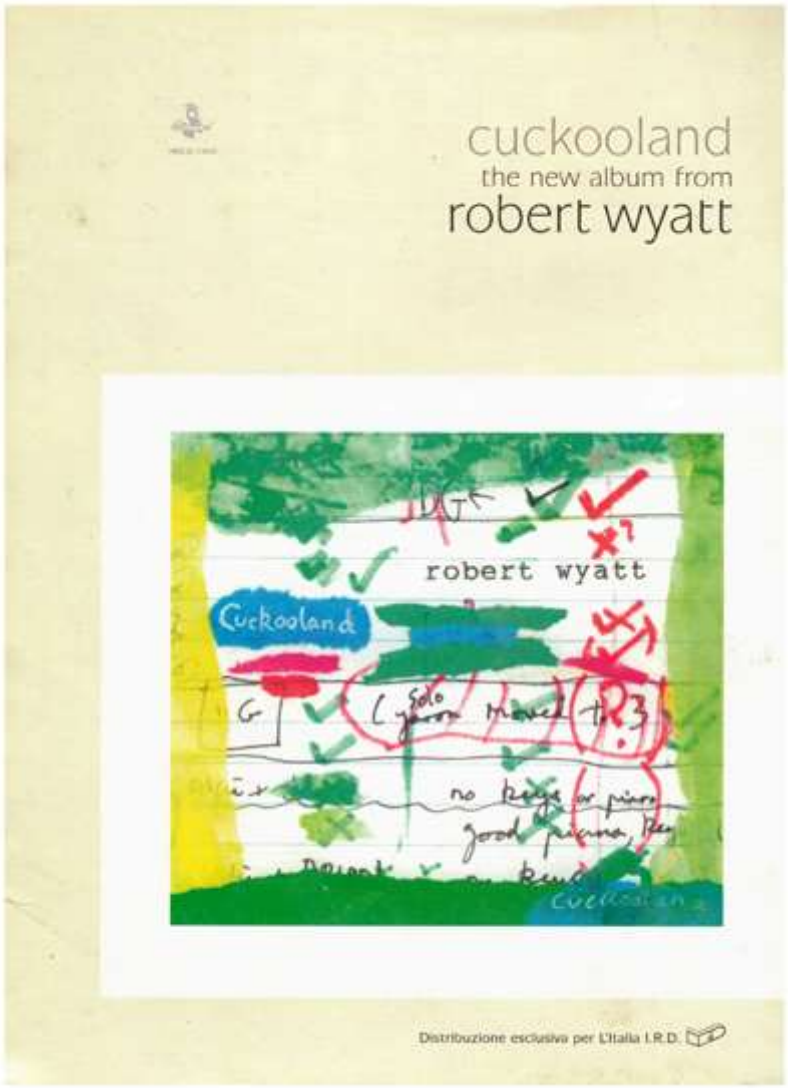
ROCKERILLA - Ottobre 2003



Robert Wyatt - Cuckooland (Hannibal/IRD) RRRRR

Riccardo Bertoncelli

II bianco uccello di "Shleep" ha continuato il suo volo e sei anni dopo è approdato a questa strana terra fantastica, a Cuckooland appunto. Wyatt, lui continua a dormire e a sognare. E' un sonno quieto, felice, non sono più le smanie "alla fine di un orecchio" o le nervose agitazioni che disturbavano certi dischi degli '80. Il vecchio signore sembra appagato e spande di buon umore il miele delle sue fantasie, senza però mai dimenticare il mondo che ha intorno. Così alcuni quadri di sogno sono nostalgia pura e gioiosa, come Juliette Gréco e Miles Davis nella Parigi incantata del 1957 ("Old Europe", dedicata a Mike Zwerin); ma in altre scene il colore non è così tenue, così dolce, e si levano allora lunghi spettri che neanche la luce del sogno può placare: la persecuzione dei Rom in "Forest", la causa palestinese in "Lullaby For Hamza" e "La Ahada Yalam", Hiroshima e Nagasaki sullo sfondo di "Foreign Accents".

Non chiamate questo disco "rock", farebbe sorridere. E' piuttosto un distillato di jazz onirico con molta voglia di raccontare delicatamente in forma di pop, con un paio di cover ("Insensatez" di Jobim, "Raining In My Heart" dal repertorio di Buddy Holly) che Wyatt saggiamente chiama "canzoni folk dell'era industriale". Un quadro sfaccettato e spezzettato, frammenti anche brevi messi insieme con l'aiuto della moglie Alfreda Benge, del produttore Jamie Johnson e di Karen Mantler, la fascinosa figlia di Michael e Carla Bley, che ha scritto tre belle canzoni in quella lingua "di famiglia" che tanto ha influenzato Wyatt negli anni. "Il fatto è che, con tutta la buona volontà, non riesco a venire a capo di più di una canzone all'anno", confessa candidamente RW. "Così, se non voglio pubblicare un disco ogni 15 anni, devo appoggiarmi ad altri."

Registrato come la volta scorsa tra gli studi di Phil Manzanera e casa Wyatt a Louth, "Cuckooland" è disco di liquide tastiere e chitarre sottili, di trombe appassionate (le suona lui in persona) e morbidi ritmi, con un bel giro di amici a collaborare: Annie Whitehead, Brian Eno, Karen Mantler, Gilad Atzmon, anche Paul Weller e David Gilmour in due apprezzati cameo. Wyatt può andarne fiero, anche se questo non scalfirà la sua invincibile modestia e understatement "ormai la mia voce è un borbottìo da avvinazzato", mente con un bel sorriso dei suoi, e spiega lo strano buco di 30 secondi a metà album con il fatto che "il CD è venuto troppo lungo, forse a un certo punto può venir voglia di una pausa o proprio di cambiare disco."

Advertising for Cuckooland in Rockerilla - Ottobre 2003

THE GUARDIAN - 26 Sep 2003

Robert Wyatt, Cuckooland ((Hannibal/Rykodisc)

John L Walters

A new Robert Wyatt album is cause for celebration. He has had an enormous (and mostly positive) influence on the most influential people in music - yet his recordings have an unfinished air, an artlessness or shyness that the unprepared listener may find disconcerting.

Cuckooland is typical: gloopy keyboards and flabby beats sit happily alongside superb musicianship and spine-tingling moments of charm and calm, while Wyatt's frail voice and tiny trumpet float aloft.

But Cuckooland is also full of tunes and feelgood riffs: it's an album that grows on its listeners. There is nothing wispy about the lyrics, many of which were written by Wyatt's partner, Alfreda Benge. Lullaby for Hamza was prompted by a Guardian article about an Iraqi woman and her son, while Forest refers to a Nazi extermination camp and Foreign Accents name-checks Mordechai Vanunu and Mohammad Mossadegh.

Joined by loyal chums such as Annie Whitehead, Gilad Atzmon, David Gilmour and Phil Manzanera, Wyatt maps out an alternative pop universe, as British as a cup of China tea.

BLOW UP - Ottobre 2003

Robert Wyyat - Cuckooland (CD Hannibal/Ird) (16t-75:22)

Piercarlo Poggio

Con personaggi di elevata statura artistica e umana, quale è senza dubbio Robert Wyatt, sarebbe utile rifarsi una verginità acustica ogni volta che mettono in pista una nuova produzione. Nel caso specifico può essere relativamente semplice, considerando la parsimonia con cui Bob da alle stampe i suoi manufatti. Occorre infatti fare un bello sforzo di memoria per risalire al 1997 e ricordarsi di cosa succedeva sul precedente Shleep. Meglio lasciar tranquilla la mente, far finta di non conoscere nessuna storia canterburiana e tantomeno come funzionavano le macchine soffici, e gettarsi a corpo morto su "Cuckooland", esattamente come se si trattasse di un album di un debuttante. Ne ricaveremo così più di una suggestione positiva, a cominciare da una splendida Old Europe che sa di jazz parigino in bianco e nero anni cinquanta con assenza di retrogusto mefitico o da una Forest con annesso David Gilmour che dall'inconsistenza dell'inizio si ispessisce sino al culmine di un finale a quattro voci (quella di Brian Eno compresa). "Cuckooland" ha una durata infinita, ma non viene mai da dire che è troppo lungo e poi, saggiamente, tra l'ottavo e il nono brano, Robert ha lasciato un vuoto di trenta secondi, così c'è il tempo per mettere su l'acqua per il té. Soltanto dove la voce di Wyatt è troppo dominante e solitària (Cuckoo Madame, Life Is Sheep) si ingenera a tratti una sensazione di ingolfamento, come al termine di un lauto pranzo, il che, come tutti sanno, non significa che il pranzo sia stato di scarsa qualità. La finezza con cui il padrone di casa sa introdurre portate fuori dell'ordinario (le complicate figurazioni ritmiche di Trickle Down, l'Insensatez brasiliana di Jobim, le ondulazioni solo strumentali di La Ahada Yalam di Nizar Zreik) è fuori discussione e altrettanto indiscutibile è la sua abilità nel mettere a proprio agio gli ospiti (tra i nomi di riguardo, oltre a quelli già menzionati, siedono a tavola Phil Manzanera, Paul Welter, Karen Mantler, anche in veste di autrice, e la sempre eccellente Annie Whitehead al trombone), i quali danno la netta impressione di aver pagato per esserci e non di essere stati pagati per fare numero. E se la musica di "Cuckooland" può in definitiva apparire sollevata di una buona spanna da terra, basterà gettare uno sguardo ai testi per comprendere che non è così: "zingari, bombe, pace, Hiroshima" sono vocaboli che non necessitano di alcuna spiegazione ulteriore. L'artigiano Wyatt e la sua musa Alfie anche stavolta hanno fatto un buon lavoro e possono tornare sereni a contemplare la campagna, lasciando ai forzati della nota il compito di infastidire il mondo con i tour promozionali. (7/8)

LIBERATION - 26 septembre 2003

Les stances de Robert Wyatt

Nick Kent

On peut faire confiance à Robert Wyatt, l'ex-batteur de Soft Machine cloué sur une chaise roulante depuis 1973, pour pointer du doigt la dérive d'un monde chaque jour davantage contrôlé par la droite. Pour son premier album depuis six ans, le surdoué s'est entouré d'amis comme Eno, Phil Manzanera et David Gilmour, ce qui n'empêche pas certains titres de sonner comme des démos home-made habillant ses vocaux de vieux clodo. Plus important, Wyatt retrouve ses vieux compagnons Alfreda Benge et Karen Mantler sur plusieurs stances virulentes. Le Beware de Mantler est un constat glaçant sur la paranoïa globale, les paroles de Benge sur Cuckoo Madame tentent d'exprimer quelque sympathie pour Margaret Thatcher et sa lutte contre la maladie d'Alzheimer... Le scientifique israélien emprisonné Mordechai Vanunu, l'ex-leader iranien Mohammad Mossadegh, les morts de Hiroshima, de Nagasaki et les victimes du nettoyage ethnique en ex-Yougoslavie hantent ces chansons, mais Wyatt parvient toutefois à insuffler une certaine tendresse à certaines, comme Old Europe, ode au Paris du milieu du XXe siècle. Pas vraiment easy-listening, mais courageux et visionnaire, Cuckooland s'impose comme l'une des rares réussites artistiques de l'année. Vivement recommandé.
Cuckooland (Ryko/Naïve).

LES INROCKUPTIBLES - 30 septembre 2003

Robert Wyatt - Cuckooland - Rykodisc - Naïve

Richard Robert

Les premières mesures de Cuckooland, où quelques coulures de cornet glissent sur une nappe de synthé bon marché, ramènent l'auditeur en terrain familier, une manière de dire que, six ans après Shleep, Robert Wyatt a choisi comme toujours de changer dans la continuité. Mais le terrain est si fertile, si prodigue de beautés et d'inventions, qu'on se laisse une fois de plus surprendre. Il y a d'abord la classe phénoménale d'un musicien qui réussit à enchaîner les figures harmoniques, mélodiques et rythmiques les plus acrobatiques sans jamais donner l'impression de s'adonner à de pénibles tours de force. Il y a cette voix à la fois neuve et ancestrale qui unifie cette improbable mosaïque, cette voix d'enfant centenaire qui n'est pas n'en déplaise à Ryuichi Sakamoto ? "la plus triste du monde" : simplement la plus littérale et la plus musicale du monde. Il y a aussi l'extraordinaire fond de jeu d'une équipe d'instrumentistes qui, de Karen Mantler à David Gilmour, du clarinettiste israélien Gilad Atzmon à la tromboniste Annie Whitehead, donne à chaque trait mélodique la couleur et la vibration requises. Il y a enfin cette place nouvelle accordée au jazz, qui n'apparaît plus seulement en filigrane, mais de manière très explicite, comme sur ces véritables airs à swinguer que sont Old Europe ou Trickle Down. Cet hommage à la musique qui l'a éveillé n'est pas le seul moment fort d'un disque extrêmement dense : toutes les chansons, ici, peuvent facilement faire l'objet de plusieurs niveaux de lecture (musical, poétique, politique, sentimental'), sans que la limpidité ni la légèreté de l'ensemble en soient pour autant altérées. Comment Wyatt réussit-il à créer une musique aussi chargée et aussi aérienne ? Face à une telle question, l'Anglais répond qu'il n'est pas psychologue pour un sou et qu'il n'est pas doué pour l'introspection. S'il est un musicien hors compétition, l'Anglais n'a pas renoncé pour autant à son amour du jeu. Et c'est bien ça qu'on entend de bout en bout dans Cuckooland, comme dans une épatante compilation d'inédits qui vient de sortir, Solar Flares

Burn for You (1972-2003). C'est peut-être là l'enseignement délivré par l'œuvre de Robert Wyatt : l'amour de la musique, quand il est porté par une telle fraîcheur d'intention et d'expression, rend beau, intelligent, heureux et sensible. Une vérité qu'on est en droit d'estimer naïve, voire mièvre, mais qui trouve pourtant dans Cuckooland sa plus indiscutable transcription.

WIRE - september 2003

Robert Wyatt - Cuckooland - Hannibal HN1468 CD

Clive Bell
Photo : Keiko Yoshida

1997's Shleep was rereleased in 2002, but Cuckooland is Robert Wyatt's first album of the new millennium. The ex-singer and drummer from Soft Machine and Matching Mole lives quietly in Lincolnshire, writing "about one song a year" with his wife, Alfreda Benge. Ryuichi Sakamoto once said that Wyatt had "the saddest voice in the world", and for those of us who regard him fondly as a member of some kind of British alternative royal family, it's a pleasure to see him credited with 'coronet' on the first track. Presumably that's a typo, because Wyatt plays plenty of cornet and trumpet (his first instrument, childhood violin lessons notwithstanding) throughout Cuckooland - to lovely melancholy effect on "Old Europe", which is about Juliette Greco and Miles Davis in Paris in 1949. That title's reference to Donald Rumsfeld's anti-French sneering on the eve of the Iraq war is no accident.
Over the last three decades Wyatt has staked out his musical patch by borrowing widely from both jazz and 'beat music'. His 1974 pop hit with The Monkees' "I'm A Believer" was an appropriate response to the jazz instrumentalists who got him sacked from Soft Machine. If Shleep was a poppier, brighter vision than usual, for Cuckooland Wyatt has nudged the dial back towards jazz. The album is also murkier and more understated. The good news is that there are classic songs here, some good jokes, glorious old fashioned harmonica courtesy of Karen Mantler, and yet more proof of Wyatt's amazing ability to write a moving melody about the grimmest of topics without trivialising or patronising them. "Forest" is a rich goulash of a song, with a double-layered chorus and Brian Eno joining the choir for the counter-melody. After a couple of listens you'll be singing too, and yet the lyrics deal with World War Two gypsy extermination camps. "Foreign Accents" loops a six word lyric - four of them Japanese - for a nursery rhyme about Israeli nuclear weapons and CIA meddling in Iran. Wyatt has been here before, of course. "East Timor" on 1985's Old Rottenhat was minimal, caustic and unforgettable. And those who remember with pleasure Shleep's "Free Will And Testament" (a pop ditty that tackles head-on the limitations of human free will) will enjoy Cuckooland's opening track, "Just A Bit", where Wyatt takes on a rich subject: is religious belief a good thing? "Superstition's like religion, bonsai version -faintly sad." It's "I'm A Believer" dragged into 2003. "I'm not a political activist - more an aesthete and self-indulgent piss-artist," Wyatt told The Guardian early this year. He says of his voice that it has "ever-decreasing range, now more or less reduced to a wino's mutter". His self-assessment is a little harsh, for Wyatt can still negotiate the beautiful high melody of "Lullaby For Hamza" (about the bombing of Baghdad) better than any other male vocalist I can think of. The grumpy wino speaks out on "Lullaloop", a hilarious complaint about fast walkers and noisy neighbours. But it's true to say that much of the singing is understated, whether from Wyatt or his guest Karen Mantler (Carla Bley's and Mike Mantler's daughter, who contributes three songs). Sometimes the mix swamps the voices a little, a shame given the quality of the lyrics. This problem is not helped by Wyatt's current fondness for a real stinker of a synth - a huffing, twinkling breeze of digital halitosis that has been mixed more generously than it deserves.

On the musical plus side there is plenty of sax, clarinet and flute from Israeli exile Gilad Atzmon (formerly of Ian Dury's Blockheads). Also dark, treacly trombones from Annie Whitehead, spot-on guitar from Paul Weller on "Lullaloop", and Mantler's spine-tingling harmonica. Not to forget Wyatt's drumming, which, like his trumpet, is more in evidence than usual. When the atmosphere threatens to turn dark and glum, Wyatt clears the air with a parlour piano rendition of Buddy Holly's "Raining In My Heart", or a simple duet with Mantler on Carlos Jobim's Brazilian classic, "Insensatez".
Wyatt can justly be proud of this batch. Shleep raised the bar very high, but Cuckooland is a substantial and deeply personal work, with the light touch of a true master. At 75 minutes, it's also a generously long collection, and the boss has thoughtfully included a half-minute break in the middle, "long enough to change the record or put on the kettle".

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Somexhere In Soho
2004

Soft Machine

More information about this album

RYTHMES CROISÉS - 1er mai 2020

SOFT MACHINE – Somewhere In Soho (2004, Voiceprint)

Stéphane Fougère

Article réalisé à partir de chroniques parues dans les revues TRAVERSES et dûment remaniées et complétées en 2020.

Nous retrouvons ici SOFT MACHINE en concert fin avril 1970, soit quelques jours avant l'enregistrement de l'album Third. La configuration du groupe est celle qui est communément reconnue comme "classique" pour cette époque, à savoir Mike RATLEDGE, Hugh HOPPER, Elton DEAN et Robert WYATT. Un mois auparavant, le groupe se produisait encore en formation quintette lors sa tournée sur le territoire français. Mais de l'eau a coulé sous les ponts et Lyn DOBSON a quitté le navire, laissant Elton DEAN devenir l'unique et glorieux survivant de la section de vents qui avait été recrutée à l'automne 1969.
C'est dans un quartier du West End de Londres qu'a été effectué l'enregistrement du bien nommé double CD Somewhere in Soho. Le "somewhere" en question donne une information certes vague, mais qui ne le reste pas bien longtemps si on regarde bien la pochette : oui, SOFT MACHINE, au départ considéré comme un groupe de pop-rock psychédélique, est à l'affiche du fameux Ronnie Scott's Jazz Club, symbole d'une certaine vie nocturne londonienne. Lui qui s'était produit en début d'année dans l'énorme Fairfield Halls de Croydon a du s'adapter à un espace plus modeste dont la scène est plus exiguë et le contact avec le public plus direct.
C'est cependant un signe qui ne trompe pas quand au processus de mutation perpétuelle dans lequel s'est engagé SOFT MACHINE et qui confirme qu'il fonctionne dorénavant quasiment comme un groupe de jazz tendance fusion, dans un esprit proche de ce que faisait Miles DAVIS à l'époque.
Cela dit, SOFT MACHINE avait déjà eu auparavant – en novembre 1969, à l'époque où il se produisait en septette – l'occasion de jouer dans ce même club de jazz, et sa tendance à jouer à un volume assez élevé n'était pas ce à quoi Ronnie SCOTT et ses clients fidèles étaient habitués ! Mais ce retour en quartette a constitué alors pour le groupe un véritable challenge, car ce n'est pas seulement pour une soirée qu'a été programmé SOFT MACHINE au Ronnie Scott's, mais pour six soirées consécutives, du 20 au 25 avril 1970! Jouer toute une semaine au même endroit impliquait donc pour le quartette de garder sa musique fraîche et vivante avec un répertoire désormais bien éprouvé, toujours constitué de deux sets, parfois trois, dans lesquels ses compositions sont enchaînées pour former une seule suite musicale. Comme le dit Mike RATLEDGE dans le livret : « Il nous a fallu étendre notre répertoire et nous plonger dans des espaces de liberté où nous n'avions pas normalement pas l'habitude d'aller. » Somewhere in Soho nous fait donc entendre deux sets de SOFT MACHINE captés lors de cette semaine de programmation au Ronnie Scott's, et ces sets comportent de généreux moments d'improvisation tant collective qu'individuelle. Par rapport aux concerts de l'hiver 1970, deux nouvelles pièces font leur entrée dans le répertoire et sont jouées au début du premier set, il s'agit de Slightly all the Time et Out-Bloody Rageous, composées par Mike RATLEDGE et qui seront peu après enregistrées en studio pour le double LP Third. Mais à ce stade, ces pièces sont encore à l'état de "work in progress" et n'atteignent pas encore les dimensions qu'elles prendront sur l'album légendaire. (Il est vrai aussi que ces versions sont augmentées de séquences de musique concrète et autres montages de studio.) Lors de ces concerts à Soho, chacune ne dure que dix minutes, soit moitié moins que sur Third. Cela n'empêche pas les musiciens de broder à loisir au sein de ces pièces, Slightly all the Time mettant en exergue le saxophone alto d'Elton DEAN et Out-Bloody Rageous l'orgue de Mike RATLEDGE et le même Elton DEAN, décidément très en verve, qui s'impose de plus en plus comme improvisateur soliste et musicien de premier plan, et non plus seulement comme un membre d'une section de vents.

En seconde moitié du premier set, Eamonn Andrews, un poil plus court que sur les concerts documentés par les CD Noisette et Breda Reactor, offre pour sa part un espace d'expression libre pour le piano électrique de Mike RATLEDGE en introduction, mais aussi pour l'hypnotique basse fuzz de Hugh HOPPER et les inventions rythmiques de Robert WYATT. Puis Mousetrap continue à secouer le bocal, traînant toujours à sa suite les thèmes plus planants Noisette et Backwards (qui finiront par être intégrés à Slightly all the Time sur Third) avant de céder la place à Hibou, Anemone & Bear, qui disparaît hélas au bout de quatre minutes et demie… C'est de nouveau deux autres pièces de Third qui entament le second set. Du haut de ses 19 minutes, Facelift s'affiche comme la composition la plus longue, prétexte à une improvisation collective en introduction puis à plusieurs soli d'orgue et de saxophone alto dans ses différentes sections. Le set se poursuit avec un segment instrumental de Moon in June, à la fin duquel Robert WYATT tente une nébuleuse improvisation vocale avec effet d'écho enrobée de notes discrètes de basse, de piano électrique et de saxophone, avant d'aboutir à la suite Esther's Nose Job, qui comprend toujours Pigling Bland et l'étrange solo de batterie de Robert WYATT, Cymbalism. On remarque que, dans ces deux sets au Ronnie Scott's, WYATT est resté assez discret en termes d'improvisations vocales, préférant faire montre de créativité sur ses fûts et ses cymbales.

À l'instar de Breda Reactor, Somewhere in Soho est un enregistrement amateur dument nettoyé pour sa sortie en CD. Il n'est peut-être pas aussi parfait qu'un enregistrement de console, mais reste éminemment fréquentable par des oreilles averties qui n'ont pas peur de s'immerger dans une captation brute de décoffrage. Du fait de l'exiguité du lieu, il se dégage une sensation de proximité avec la musique qui donne l'impression "d'y être" en direct, et l'inspiration constante des musiciens fait qu'on est vite captivés par le flot sonore ininterrompu de chacun des sets et qu'on en oublie les menues imperfections techniques.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt & Friends
In Concert
Theatre Royal, Drury Lane,
London 8th September 1974

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

BUSCADERO N° 272 - Ottobre 2005

Robert Wyatt - Theatre Royal Drury Lane

Hannibal/Rykodisc ●●●●○

Andrea Trevaini

Il Theatre Royal in Drury Lane è il teatro più antico di Londra, venne inaugurato nel 1663 ed ebbe storia travagliata, venne distrutto tre volte da incendi; nella sua versione attuale, che data dal 1812, fu progettato dall'architetto Benjamin Wyatt (quando si dice la predestinazione!). Forse fu per questo motivo che Robert Wyatt scelse questo teatro per lo storico concerto dell'8 settembre del 1974 che segnò il suo rientro e contemporaneamente il suo addio alle scene, dopo l'incidente che un anno prima l'aveva relegato per sempre sulla sedia a rotelle. Robert nonostante l'incidente non si era fermato e il 1974 segnò l'anno della sua rinascita: nei primi mesi dell'anno completò un disco che rimane una delle pietre miliari della storia musicale, Rock Bottom, il 1° giugno partecipò ad un altro famoso concerto, quello del Rainbow con John Cale, Nico, Kevin Ayers, Eno, Oldfield.

Fu l'allora patron della Virgin Richard Branson che riuscì a raggruppare miracolosamente tutti gli amici di Robert Wyatt e realizzò un concerto che è rimasto tra i miti della storia del Rock, finora reperibile su bootlegs molto ricercati. Ora il nostro desiderio di ascoltare il concerto in versione rimasterizzata ed ufficiale si realizza grazie alla Hannibal Records e finalmente ci troviamo tra le mani questo capolavoro. Il concerto radunò quasi per intero la backing band che aveva registrato Rock Bottom: Mongezi Feza alla tromba, Ivor Cutler alla voce, Gary Windo ai fiati, Fred Frith alla viola e al violino, Mike Oldfield alla chitarra; cui si aggiunsero:Dave Stewart (Egg, Hatfield & the North) alle tastiere, Laurie Allan alla batteria, l'ex-compagno nei Soft Machine Hugh Hopper al basso e la grande Julie Tippets alle tastiere e alla voce (peccato che nel disco manchino alcune interpretazioni della cantante, escluse forse per motivi di spazio).

Al gruppo si aggiunse la partecipazione speciale di Nick Mason dei Pink Floyd, grande supporter di Wyatt, produttore di Rock Bottom, molto legato al giro dei musicisti di Canterbury. Si inizia l'ascolto del disco con commozione ascoltando la voce dello scomparso John Peel che ironicamente introduce il concerto e si parte quasi senza soluzione di continuità con la breve Dedicated to You But You Weren't Listening dal primo album dei Matching Mole, che sgorga quasi improvvisa, con la voce un po' incerta ed emozionata di Wyatt. Segue subito Memories di Hugh Hopper, con il violino di Fred Frith in primo piano ed ecco con l'attacco di una Sea Song di oltre 9 minuti il concerto decolla alla grande con l'esecuzione integrale di Rock Bottom ed è subito magia, pochi vocalizzi di Robert introducono l'organo di Dave Stewart e il Canterbury Sound mostra la sua grandiosa bellezza ed acida liricità; la voce di Wyatt mostra le vette che può raggiungere; il vecchio pard Hopper supporta una sezione ritmica di grande livello, la viola di Frith e la chitarra di Oldfield si alternano alla voce del cantante che vola sopra il suono degli strumenti.

A Last Straw vede Julie Tippets al piano che accompagna i vocalizzi di Wyatt che in alcuni momenti si confondono con suoni di chitarra wha-wha, un brano da far accapponare la pelle. Poi con Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road il tono si alza ancora grazie alla incredibile tromba di Mongezi Feza che parte ricordando il free-jazz di Albert Donald Ayler e duetta con la voce di Wyatt, musica senza confini, cui fa eco la voce di Ivor Cutler, il tutto supportato da una base ritmica incalzante che coadiuva a rendere il finale del pezzo davvero torrido!

Si prosegue con il meraviglioso dittico Alifie/Alifib dedicato alla moglie Alfreda (Alfie), due canzoni che costituiscono il cuore del disco. Sono canzoni sulle quali si sono sprecate parole di interpretazione e che costituiscono uno dei punti più alti della poetica del nostro artista, quindi meglio tacere e passare all'ascolto!

Mind Of A Child è l'unica canzone tra quelle eseguite da Julie Tippets al concerto riportata sul disco ma è sufficiente per far ricordare le qualità interpretative e musicale della ex Julie Driscoll.

Instant Pussy dei Matching Mole ci mostra un altro bel duetto tra Wyatt e la Tippets, cui si aggiunge poi la voce di Cutler, per un brano pieno di vocalizzi azzardati ed estremi, con una sezione ritmica che prepara l'entrata immaginifica della tromba di Mongezi Feza. Il concerto prosegue sempre ad altissimo livello e ogni pezzo meriterebbe una descrizione dettagliata, merita comunque una segnalazione per la chiusura del concerto (ma attenti alla ghost-track, una sperimentale Laughing Policeman!) con una corale I'M A Believer di Neil Diamond, già portata al successo dai Monkees, nella quale spiccano le voci di Tippets e Cutler.

In conclusione: disco atteso da anni, pubblicato a sorpresa, un regalo che viene dal passato ma che sarà gradito non solo a quelli, ormai pochi, che hanno vissuto l'epopea canterburiana, ma a tutti quelli che hanno imparato ad amare in anni più recenti il menestrello magico di Bristol.

VIBRATIONS N° 78 - Novembre 2005

Robert Wyatt & Friends - Theatre Royal Drury Lane

RYKODISC/NAÏVE

Richard Robert

Wyatt et la crème de la scène anglaise en live : un fantasme réalisé en 1974, enchanteur trente ans après rock « Je m'évanouis de peur à la simple idée que des gens comptent sur moi pour animer leur soirée. » Ainsi décrivait Robert Wyatt, en 2003, cette phobie de la scène qui le tétanise depuis trente ans. Il fut un temps où l'Anglais savait en tout cas dompter ses angoisses : en témoigne ce légendaire concert londonien de 1974. Un an après l'accident qui lui a coûté l'usage de ses jambes, Wyatt, soutenu par ses meilleurs amis (Hopper, Frith, Oldfield, Feza & Co), y est tout simplement impérial. Tout en empruntant au répertoire de Soft Machine, de Matching Mole ou des Monkees (reprise démentielle de « I'm A Believer »), II se paie ainsi le luxe de réinventer l'intégralité de « Rock Bottom », avec une intensité proprement sidérante. Cet enregistrement, qui est aussi un document de premier ordre sur la scène anglaise de l'époque, méritait vraiment d'être dépoussiéré.

NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS - 14th September, 1974

Robert Wyatt : Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, London

Charles Shaar Murray

Even though the gig was due to start at 8.30, Drury Lane had started to clog up with earnest-looking hippies nearly two hours before the event.

Mind you, it all adds to the sense of occasion, but the regrettably prosaic explanation was that someone had neglected to inscribe the precise time of showing on either the tickets or the ads.

So it goes.

Things kicked off with a brief monologue by the newlywed Dancing Jack Peel, clad in his most glam rock outfit. Undeterred by shouts of "Boring" from certain sections of the audience - all right then, from me - he intoned for a few moments and then vacated the stage to Ivor Cutler and Phyllis April King, who provided a highly amusing interlude of deadpan poesies and brief songs, which were received with great merriment by the assembled company.

So it goes.

After a discreet intermission, Dancing Jack cartwheeled dynamically back onto the stage. Through mobile, well-shaped lips he enunciated (rather devastatingly, it must be admitted) "For Robert Wyatt of Twickenham, Opportunity Knocks!"

Mr. Wyatt perambulated rapidly to a strategic area between a small mixer ("These knobs don't actually do anything - they just give me something to do with my hands") and a keyboard set-up ("At rehearsals, I couldn't find a position from where I could play these, so I probably won't play them. Still, they look good.")

He ran through a good-naturedly rickety version of Hugh Hopper's 'Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening', backed up by Hopper himself on bass, Laurie Allan on drums, Fred Frith on violin and Dave Stewart on keyboards, the first trickles of the mighty wave of superstars that was soon to swamp the stage.

(The preceding sentence comes to you courtesy of 36 back numbers of Conan The Barbarian).

Most of the material from Wyatt's Rock Bottom found its way into the front half of the set (and in case you need to be re-told, it's a wondrous album indeed).

Towards the end of 'A Last Straw', a diffident young man with an unmistakable "I-am-a-junior-roadie" demeanour wandered on, played a bit of synthesiser and wandered off.

It wasn't until he reappeared half an hour later with a Gibson SG strapped around him, that the audience sussed that this dynamic figure was in fact none other than Mike Oldfield, the man with Britain's two best-selling albums to his name, one of which had been blasted through the P.A. during the intermissions.

However, it was undoubtedly Wyatt's show, despite the superstars who wandered on and off - y'know, yer Nick Masons, Gary Windo, that bunch.

Swaying in his wheelchair playing ghost drums, fiddling with the dials of his mixer with one hand, clutching a mike with the other and his eyes squeezed tight shut, he was unquestionably the focal point of the proceedings, and folks, he's singin' better than ever.

Unfortunately Julie Tippett's contribution to the festivities rather derailed things. After joining Wyatt and Co., in one song, she was left alone tootling merrily on a recorder and humming into it occasionally.

This was followed by two songs at de piano, performed extremely nervously, and a number with Wyatt, Windo and trumpeter Mongezi Feza, which could well have been called 'Dedicated To You But You Ran Out Of The Room Screaming For Aspirin'.

Ms. Tippett's voice is still as compelling as ever, but her stiff, uncertain piano playing and the lugubriousness of her songs provided a rather dead area in the middle of the set, which eventually climaxed with a thoroughly berserk version of 'I'm A Believer' with some singularly dirty rhythm guitar from Oldfield.

Generally, the show veered from the sublime to the ridiculous, with the sublime firmly in the lead.

80 per cent of it was very fine indeed, and the more gigs Robert Wyatt feels like undertaking the better.

Wheel meet again.

CHARLIE-HEBDO N° 198 - 2 SEPTEMBRE 1974

[Annonce du concert de Robert Wyatt au Theatre Royal Drury Lane]

Toujours au sujet de la même catégorie sociale (?) Robert Wyatt donnera son premier grand concert en Angleterre au Théâtre Royal, le 8 septembre, avec à peu près les mêmes musiciens que dans son disque, celui qui est si beau que ceux qui ne l'ont pas encore ouï en sont tout diminués, les pauvres. Cette fois-ci Nick Pink Floyd Mason participera de son instrument, avec également Dave Hatfield and the North Stewart. En super prime, Julie Tippetts, ci-devant Driscoll remettra pour la première fois ses grands pieds sur scène depuis 197I. Et ce retour-là ne fait pas minable.

MUSIQ # 5 - JANVIER-FEVRIER-MARS 2006

Live At Drury Lane 1974

Guy Darol

Un an après la défenestration qui lui coûte l'usage de ses jambes, Robert Wyatt donne sur la scène du Théâtre Royal Drury Lane un concert historique. Le 8 septembre 1974, entouré par les guitares de Fred Frith, Mike Oldfield et Hugh Hopper, les batteries de Nick Mason et de Laurie Allan, les claviers de Dave Stewart (aucun rapport avec Eurythmics) et de Julie Tippetts (également au chant), la trompette de Mongezi Feza, la voix d'Ivor Cutler, Robert Wyatt fait entendre la totalité de "Rock Bottom" (l'album mythique d'après la chute), des pièces de Soft Machine et de Matching Mole. Ayant définitivement renoncé à la batterie depuis son accident, Robert Wyatt a choisi le chant et le piano et c'est (mort de trouille) à voix nue qu'il se présente {expérience non renouvelée) face à un public qui n'ignore pas les splendeurs d'un groupe (Soft Machine) autrefois produit par Kim Fowley et qui ne jure que par Lewis Carroll et Alfred Jarry. De ce concert, il existait au moins quatre bootlegs notoires. C'est dire l'importance de cette publication. La voix de Wyatt (si constamment poignante), soutenue par un instrumentarium passionné, suscite une émotion à l'opposé de la mièvrerie. Avant le final (I'm A Believer, reprise ébaubissante de Neil Diamond), le compositeur magnifique chante Calyx, une invitation à vivre comme si tout n'était que poème: « La poésie en mouvement, voilà ce que tu deviens ». Et c'est ainsi que Wyatt est grand.

LE MONDE - 8 NOVEMBRE 2005

Robert Wyatt & Friends
In Concert, 8th September 74

S. Si.

Le 1er juin 1973, Robert Wyatt tombe par la fenêtre d'un appartement. Pendant son séjour à l'hôpital, Wyatt, qui pourra plus jamais marcher, ancien batteur de Soft Machine puis de Matching Mole, prépare son deuxième album solo, Rock Bottom. Six chansons intenses et délicates, inquiétantes et poétiques, que Wyatt interprétera une fois sur scène, le 8 septembre 1974, au Théâtre Royal Drury Lane, entouré d'amis musiciens. Ce concert, l'un des seuls que Wyatt ait donné après son accident, paraît aujourd'hui officiellement. Aux titres de Rock Bottom, joués avec un élan probablement lié à son trac, il en ajoute de Matching Mole, un de Soft Machine, un de Hatfield The North (Calyx), termine par une reprise de I'm A Believer. Les amis sont Nick Mason le batteur de Pink Floyd, le guitariste Mike Oldfield, Fred Frith et Chris Cutler d'Henry Cow... Puissant et touchant.

TRAVERSE N°19 - MARS 2006

Robert Wyatt & Friends - Theatre Royal Drury Lane
8th September 1974 (Hannibal)

Domenico Solazzo.

La pochette n'a rien à envier aux pires bootlegs qui circulent sous les comptoirs des magasins de disques d'occasion, mais au moins a-t-elle l'honnêteté de mettre en exergue tout ce qu'il faut savoir sur ce formidable document. Enregistré au Théâtre Royal de Drury Lane, le concert de Robert WYATT qu'il nous est proposé d'écouter ici n'aurait sans doute pas la même aura si la simple évocation des noms de ceux qui l'accompagnent ne se transformait pas en autant de portes d'accès instantanées à de mondes merveilleux et singuliers : Mike OLDFIELD, Julie TIPPETTS, Fred FRITH, Gary WINDO et Mongezi FEZA, Nick MASON, Laurie ALLAN, Dave STEWART, Hugh HOPPER et Ivor CUTLER. À peine croyable. Et pourtant... Je sais ; c'est presque trop. Mais ce n'est peut-être pas là l'aspect le plus intimidant du disque ! Jetez plutôt un oeil au répertoire ; l'intégralité de l'album Rock Bottom et quelques autres pioches chez SOFT MACHINE ou MATCHING MOLE (Signed Curtain et Instant Pussy). Enfin, ça ne se déroule pas tout à fait comme ça...
Après une courte introduction que l'on doit à John PEEL, WYATT fait monter sur scène les différents intervenants en fonction de pièces à jouer. C'est d'abord une version explosée de Dedicated to You But You Weren't Listening et Memories, deux titres signés Hugh HOPPER que le fidèle bassiste accompagne de bien entendu. C'est Laurie ALLAN que l'on retrouve à la batterie, Dave STEWART aux claviers - et ce jusqu'à la fin du set - tout simplement époustouflant, ponctuellement rejoints par Fred FRITH au violon. Viennent ensuite seulement les titres du mythique Rock Bottom dans un ordre en tout point conforme à celui de l'album original, sauf que la version qu'ils en donnent est nettement plus sauvage ou, en tout cas, débridée. II faut oublier le Sea Song bien plus intimiste et troublant que Cuneiform avait été nous repêcher sur Solar Flares Burn for You. Cette version-ci n'en est pas pour autant moins poignante ; EGG à l'assaut du répertoire de l'homme de fer du prog, ou presque, montrant par là même toute la souplesse de ses compositions, portant sa marque indélébile, en vers et contre tout, même quand elles se retrouvent bousculées plus que de raison. Et WYATT de s'abandonner sans retenue à ses exercices vocaux inspirés du scat, nous entraînant ainsi avec lui dans sa folie douce. Pour Little Red Riding Hood Hit the Road et la suite Alifie/Alifib, jouée à rebours, le duo Mongezi FEZA et Gary WINDO (BROTHERHOOD OF BREATH) viennent apporter ce souffle lyrique et malade à la fois, en tous points conforme à l'esprit qui règne sur le disque studio, pour s'effacer devant ce grand moment de solitude, comme le ballet de pétales de milliers de fleurs se recroquevillant sur elles-mêmes à la tombée de la nuit.
Puis, Julie TIPPETTS vient s'emparer du micro pour nous chanter son Mind of a Child, pour piano électrique et voix. Les masters de ce qui suit ayant été perdus, Jamie JOHNSON a fait un boulot remarquable pour recoller les petits bouts de chutes de sources divers afin de restituer le concert dans son intégralité. Et même si les morceaux qui clôturent ce recueil ne possèdent pas la même portée symbolique, elles sont toutefois parcourues du même frisson.
Bref, voilà encore un formidable cadeau de Noël à l'approche des fêtes, sauf que ce cadeau-là, je me le suis fait tout seul. Si vous aimez vos proches, je veux dire si vous leur voulez du bien, pensez à eux en leur offrant ce disque. Car ce n'est pas qu'un bout d'histoire que vous leur offrirez, pas seulement un bout de WYATT non plus. C'est bien plus que cela ; un bout de vous-mêmes. Un bout de nous tous. Une part d'humanité.

TRAVERSE N°19 - MARS 2006

Robert Wyatt & Friends - Théâtre Royal Drury Lane
8th September 1974 (Hannibal)

Benoît Godfroy.

S'il fallait rédiger la chronique d'un tel album à l'attention d'un néophyte, alors nul doute qu'il ne faudrait au bas mot pas moins de quatre colonnes pour le faire dignement, à savoir en présentant chaque musicien impliqué d'une façon détaillée, en racontant l'histoire de Robert WYATT et du divin Rock Bottom, puis en restituant le disque dans son contexte, sans oublier d'en décrire les sensations reçues à son écoute. Fort heureusement pour moi, les lecteurs de TRAVERSES ont forcément un minimum de culture musicale « canterburyenne » - peut-être même plus que moi - et il suffira juste de mentionner l'affiche somptueuse de ce concert pour qu'ils courent se procurer cet album au plus vite. Jugez plutôt : Mike OLDFIELD, Julie TIPPETTS, Fred FRITH, Gary WINDO, Nick MASON, Mongezi FEZA, Laurie ALLAN, Dave STEWART, Hugh HOPPER, Ivor CUTLER et bien sûr Robert WYATT, tout ce beau monde ayant été capté en concert en 1974, lors d'une des rares apparitions publiques de Robert WYATT après l'accident l'ayant cloué à vie sur une chaise roulante. Au menu, pas moins que l'intégralité de Rock Bottom, plus Memories et Dedicated To You But You Weren't tistening (SOFT MACHINE), Instant Pussy et Signed Curtain (MATCHING MOLE), Calyx, I'm A Believer, puis Mind Of A Child de Julie TIPPETTS. Avouez que tout cela est plutôt alléchant, non ?
Introduit par le défunt John PEEL, ce concert est enfin la parution officielle d'un enregistrement qui circulait depuis bien longtemps sous forme de bootlegs plus ou moins audibles et qui ne rendaient pas justice à la musique en comparaison de cette publication jubilatoire. Car l'ensemble de l'enregistrement bénéficie de bout en bout d'une qualité sonore allant de superbe (titres 1 à 9) à très correcte (titres 10 à 14). À ce sujet, Robert WYATT lui-même explique les raisons de cette différence de son au dos du CD.
Pour l'auditeur, c'est un plaisir incroyable d'entendre enfin ce concert avec une telle qualité et de pouvoir ainsi s'émerveiller encore plus devant un tel parterre de notes magistralement interprétées. Concert oblige, R*ock Bottom* sur ce disque perd une grande part de sa fragilité d'opaline tout en demi-teintes qui en font indéniablement sa grande force et son intemporalité, mais se voit transmuté en une approche beaucoup plus terrestre, plus organique et plus fiévreuse, où les accroches typiques de l'école de Canterbury se font ressentir plus intensément que sur l'œuvre originelle, et où le jazz y trouve une place encore plus prépondérante. Mon attirance personnelle pour les cuivres et les vents m'incline à vouloir mentionner plus particulièrement Mongezi FEZA et son intervention phénoménale à la trompette sur Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road, ainsi que le saxophone fou de Gary WINDO sur Alife mais en vérité, c'est de chaque intervenant dont il faudrait vanter les prouesses, tant l'unité et l'osmose qui règnent entre chaque musicien sur chacun des morceaux est révélatrice de leur immense talent. D'une part sur la maîtrise de leur instrument et d'autre part, sur cette faculté à ne servir que la musique, sans jamais qu'aucun ne veuille prendre la vedette. Même remarque à l'égard de Robert WYATT, qui écorche le tout de sa voix de porcelaine qui n'a jamais paru aussi fragile qu'ici, à la limite de la rupture, là où WYATT met à nu ses émotions et son ressenti de la musique qui l'entoure.

Mais à quoi bon chercher des termes inexistants pour décrire la beauté ? Cette chronique est forcément superficielle et trop de mots ne pourraient que rendre son utilité encore un peu plus caduque, car il y a fort à parier que de toute façon, chacun de vous a déjà le disque sur son chevet depuis sa sortie.

Sites : www.strongcomet.com/wyatt www.disco-robertwyatt.com

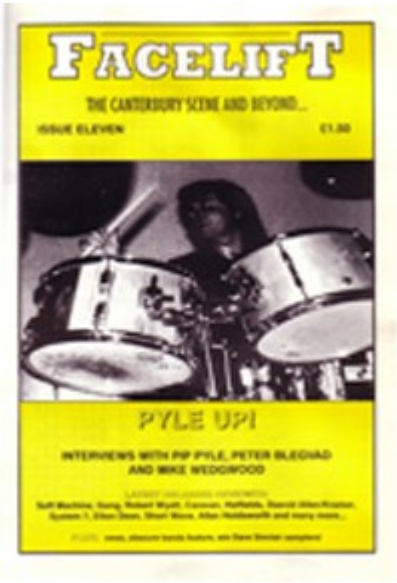
More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

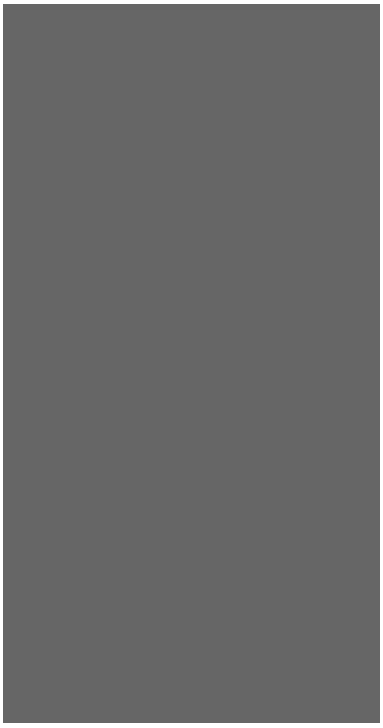
HOME



BBC In Concert 197 1
(Soft Machine & Heavy Friends)
2005

Soft Machine

More information about this album



FACELIFT - N° 11 - September 1993

SOFT MACHINE - Live In Concert - Windsong WINDCD 031

From a period in their historywhich produced a prolific number of tape bootlegs, this official Soft Machine release from the BBC archives spotlights one of their more unusual performances. Many regard the period between 1969 and 1971 as the finest in the band's history, although those distrustful of the Softs' jazz leanings watched the vocal contribution of Robert Wyatt (and Kevin Ayers before him) dissipate to nothing by the time this set was recorded. This release probably represents as free a blow as the band were to extend to, before the tighter structures of the Karl Jenkins version reined the band in once more. What's unusual about this concert is that the band's accepted line-up by this time was the quartet of Hugh Hopper, Mike Ratledge, Robert Wyatt and Elton Dean. Yet now we see the band not only augmented by Elton Dean's freeblowers on all three tracks, but on the first two more or less hijacked. 'Blind Badger' and 'Neo Caliban Grides' are both taken from the admittedly excellent Elton Dean solo LP, two of the more accessible moments from that release, yet still demanding listening. Neither Hugh Hopper nor Robert Wyatt appear on 'Blind Badger' - the line-up incorporates instead bassist Neville Whitehead, cornet player Marc Charig and drummer Phil Howard, who appear, on 'Grides' too. So this part of the concert is very much Elton Dean territory, reflective of the Soft Machine's direction at that time, if not necessarily their normal sound or make-up, given the absence of Hopper and Wyatt.

The medley which comprises the third track is more recognisable, since the band is cut to its basic quartet until the final moments, and plays entirely Soft Machine compositions. Even given the rousing big band cacophony of 'Teeth' (where the band arc, joined by Charig, trombonist Paul Nieman and Roy Babbington on acoustic bass, as well as an understandably bemused Ronnie Scott), the medley's finest moments are Elton Dean's solo parts on 'Kings and Queens' and the everimpressive 'Out Bloody Rageous'. I never tire of hearing new versions of the exploratory, stretched-out themes that dominated Third and Fourth, not least because every version asks new questions or showcases a different player. It's common knowledge that Robert Wyatt was alienated from the band within its latter stages, but his inventive drumming provides the bulk of the backdrop for 'Eamonn Andrews' and is a tower of strength through 'All White'.

Whilst the Softs' Proms release represented a slice of cultural history, this collection finds the band on better form, yet on far from safe ground given the uniqueness of both the lineup and material. There are many better documents nf the live history of this band but since most are only taped bootlegs, it's unlike', that we'll ever hear them in this sort of sound quality. Certainly in such a fascinating environment.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Sirens & Silences / Work Resumed On The Tower / Letters Home (Reedition) 2006

News From Babel

More information about this album

TRAVERSES - N° 22 - juillet 2007

News From Babel - Works Compiled on the Tower

Stéphane Fougère

Généalogiquement lié à HENRY COW et ART BEARS, le groupe NEWS FROM BABEL fait mentir tous ceux qui voient dans le Rock In Opposition un genre surtout instrumental. Créé dans les années 1980 par Lindsay COOPER et Chris CUTLER avec Dagmar KRAUSE et Zeena PARKINS, le groupe - qui n'a connu d'existence qu'en tant que projet studio - a exploré le format « chanson » avec une audace et une inventivité qui le hisse au rang des références indispensables des musiques nouvelles européennes. La récente parution sur ReR Megacorp (distribution Orkhêstra) d'un coffret regroupant les oeuvres complètes du groupe est l'occasion de s'imprégner de nouveau de son univers à l'austérité battue par les vents hivernaux, dans cette tour maudite où l'ivoire a cédé sa place à des pierres humides gravées de symboles occultes et contestataires...

Compte tenu de la présence de Dagmar KRAUSE, à la voix immanquable par définition, et de celle de Chris CUTLER, il est évidemment difficile de ne pas voir en NEWS FROM BABEL le descendant tant généalogique que musical de HENRY COW et d'ART BEARS. Spécialement avec ce dernier, les similitudes sont patentes du fait de l'utilisation des techniques de studio et de l'adoption pour les compositions d'un format court tendance chanson. Mais toutes les musiques sont cette fois écrites par Lindsay COOPER, qui leur a imprimé sa marque sonore spécifique. Quand NEWS FROM BABEL a vu le jour en 1983, Lindsay COOPER était déjà pourvue d'un solide bagage technique et de fortes compétences d'écriture. Issue du milieu de la musique classique, elle a rejoint à vingt ans le groupe acid-folk COMUS en 1971 et a intégré HENRY COW en 1974, apportant les spécificités sonores du basson et du hautbois qui contribueront à faire du groupe le fer de lance des « musiques nouvelles européennes ». Lindsay COOPER y a fait également ses débuts de compositrice, signant toutes les pièces de la face B de l'album Western Culture. Après avoir co-fondé en 1977 le FEMINIST IMPROVISING GROUP avec Sally POTTER, Georgie BORN et Maggie NICHOLS, elle s'est mise à diriger pour la première fois un groupe, le Lindsay COOPER FILM MUSIC ORCHESTRA, avec lequel, comme son nom le laisse deviner, elle a enregistré des pièces pour la TV et le cinéma, notamment les films Rags et The Goldiggers. Toutes ces expériences ont amené à faire de Lindsay COOPER une multi-instrumentiste, jouant, outre le basson et le hautbois, trois types de saxophones (alto, soprano et sopranino) ainsi que des claviers, de la flûte, de la basse et de la guitare.

Enfin, NEWS FROM BABEL a révélé également une artiste new-yorkaise qui s'est depuis taillée une grosse réputation dans le milieu des musiques nouvelles et improvisées : la harpiste et accordéoniste Zeena PARKINS, que Chris CUTLER avait rencontrée alors qu'il jouait au sein du groupe BLACK SHEEP de l'ancien saxophoniste de HENRY COW, Geoff LEIGH, et qu'elle faisait l'ours (!) au sein du JANUS CIRCUS.

C'est la lecture d'un ouvrage de l'essayiste George STEINER, Après Babel, une poétique du dire et de la traduction, qui a inspiré à Chris CUTLER le nom du groupe, et plusieurs de ses textes (politiquement engagés et ésotériquement formulés) font du reste référence à l'œuvre de STEINER. Le premier album de NEWS FROM BABEL, paru à l'époque en format « Maxi-45Tours », était constitué de deux parties (une par face) répondant chacune à une thématique spécifique : Sirens and Silences et Work Resumed on the Tower. On retrouve dans cet opus ces climats d'austérité et de déréliction réminiscents du Winter Songs d'ART BEARS, avec ces chants évaporés sitôt apparus, ces mélodies clairsemées souvent cernées par des attaques dissonantes ou des emballements rythmiques fugaces (Dry Leaf, Black Gold), ces phrases balancées telles des bouteilles dans une mer aux houles stridentes (Odysseus), ces voix spectrales démultipliées, ces rythmiques sentencieuses et abstruses, ces visions fluettes de ruelles humides et de cabaret blafard, bref ces penchants « musique de chambre claustrophobe ».

Avec ses harpes acoustique, électrique et préparée et son accordéon, Zeena PARKINS ajoute un cachet spécifique au son de NEWS FROM BABEL, même si elle ne donne pas encore sa pleine mesure (sauf dans Arcades). Les morceaux de la face Work Resumed on the Tower jouissent d'une écriture plus étalée et d'une orchestration un brin plus étoffée. Invité de circonstance, Phil MINTON (qui avait déjà participé au groupe de musiques de films de Lindsay COOPER) y donne du souffle, intervenant à la trompette et ajoutant son timbre de voix massif à celui de Dagmar KRAUSE dans Anno Mirabilis.

Après deux ans de silence, NEWS FROM BABEL enregistre un second album qui paraît (lui aussi sous forme de maxi 45 Tours) en 1986, Letters Home, du nom d'un recueil de la poétesse et romancière américaine Sylvia PLATH. A l'époque, ceux qui avaient souscrits à la publication de l'album avaient reçu gratuitement un 45 Tours à face unique comportant la seule composition écrite par Zeena PARKINS pour NEWS FROM BABEL, le mystérieux et hiératique Contraries chanté par Dagmar KRAUSE. Cette dernière n'a cependant pas pu être très disponible pour l'enregistrement de Letters Home, et c'est pourquoi sa voix ne se fait entendre que sur deux titres.

Du coup, le second disque de NEWS FROM BABEL se démarque du premier au moins par sa plus grande variété de timbres vocaux. Trois autres voix se font entendre dans Letters Home : celle de Phil MINTON, toujours judicieuse dans ce contexte ; mais aussi celle, plus nonchalante, de Sally POTTER, autre complice du groupe de musique de films de Lindsay COOPER (et réalisatrice du film The Gold Diggers), et enfin celle de Robert WYATT, qui plante un décor lugubre et hivernal dès l'ouverture du disque en chantant « This life is bare and cold, and I am old and tired of truth » (Who Will Accuse ?). Pas de doute, on est dans le « Chamber Rock Bottom » ! Et quand le même Robert rejoint Dagmar KRAUSE sur la pièce finale, Late Evening, il ne faut pas longtemps à l'épiderme de l'auditeur pour frissonner. L'autre particularité de Letters Home est d'offrir des arrangements plus riches et ouverts. Les lignes du basson de Lindsay se font même plus dynamiques... voire sémillantes (Heart of Stone, Dragon at the Core), et les harpes de Zeena PARKINS y sont plus prépondérantes. De plus, Bill GILONIS (du groupe THE WORK) a été invité à garnir l'ensemble de quelques notes de guitare et de basse Si certaines mélodies sont donc plus accrocheuses, les textes de Chris CUTLER par contre, sont toujours aussi obscurs et bilieux, ce qui crée des effets de tension et des contrastes saisissants entre textes et musique. Cette fois, on a davantage affaire à des chansons au sens quasi classique du terme, ce qui n'empêche pas les usuelles ruptures, dissonances et architectures tortueuses typiques du Rock In Opposition. Indubitablement, Letters Home est l'album d'une maturité nouvelle pour NEWS FROM BABEL, celui qui peut séduire même un public moins accoutumé à la grammaire sophistiquée de la famille HENRY COW, à condition toutefois d'être un tant soit peu familier des climats crépusculaires qui favorisent le réveil des blessures internes et des doutes métaphysiques.

Après Letters Home, plus aucune nouvelle ne nous est parvenue de Babel, mais la petite famille réunie autour de ce projet studio en prolongera l'écho dans des œuvres subséquentes, telles que Music for other Occasions de Lindsay COOPER, ou encore les Domestic Stories de Chris CUTLER, Lutz GLANDIEN et Dagmar KRAUSE.

En 1990, les deux albums de NEWS FROM BABEL ont été réédités sur un seul CD chez ReR Megacorp. Le coffret paru fin 2006 n'est ni plus ni moins qu'une réédition remastérisée et repackagée sous une forme plus puriste pour l'auditeur (deux CD, un par album) et plus commercialement juteuse pour le label (deux CD au lieu d'un), avec tout de même une cerise sur le gâteau : ce coffret comprend en effet la réplique miniaturisée du single Contraries, lequel ne figurait pas sur le CD de 1990 (alors qu'il y avait la place...). C'est donc bien d'un recueil d'œuvres complètes qu'il s'agit ! Toutefois, cette réédition a été manifestement faite dans la précipitation, puisque plusieurs erreurs se sont glissées dans les « tracklists » : ainsi, sur le premier album, Dry Leaf est cité deux fois, la seconde à la place d'Anno Mirabilis (merci pour lui !), et dans le second CD, les morceaux sont carrément listés dans le désordre ! De plus, dans le découpage des pistes de Sirens & Silences, le morceau Auschwitz, en principe associé à Babel, a ici été couplé avec Odysseus. Ces menues gaffes ont hélas tendance à devenir systématiques dans les rééditions du fond de catalogue de ReR, et on ne peut que le déplorer. Reste le confort d'écoute que procure la remastérisation, en revanche irréprochable. Grâce à elle, ces nouvelles ont pu rester fraîches !

Site : www.rermegacorp.com

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

Middle Earth Masters

Soft Machine

More information about this album

RYTHMES CROISÉS - 2 octobre 2018

Soft Machine – Middle Earth Masters
(2006, Cuneiform Records / Orkhêstra)

Stéphane Fougère

Article réalisé à partir de chroniques parues dans les revues TRAVERSES et TANGENTES, dûment remaniées et complétées en 2018.

Avec ce CD, le label américain Cuneiform Records livre une archive d'autant plus précieuse qu'elle renvoie aux tout débuts de SOFT MACHINE, qui jouait alors une musique très marquée par le pop-rock psychédélique, avant qu'elle ne tourne au jazz-rock-free-impro avec l'adjonction de vents dès l'automne 1969.

Middle Earth Masters nous permet donc de retrouver SOFT MACHINE en 1967, soit un an seulement après ses débuts sur scène. Cette année-là, le groupe s'était déjà taillé une solide réputation en jouant dans tous les clubs anglais underground du moment, comme le Roundhouse, le Speakeasy et l'UFO. Avec seulement un premier 45 Tours (Love Make Sweet Music) à son actif, le quartet – constitué de Daevid ALLEN, Kevin AYERS, Mike RATLEDGE et Robert WYATT – a aussi écumé la Côte d'Azur lors de l'été 1967, se produisant dans des soirées branchées organisées par Eddie BARCLAY, Jean-Jacques LEBEL ou Caroll BAKER (à la soirée de laquelle les « Softs » ont joué une version de We Did it again qui a duré une heure !), ou écrivant la musique pour une pièce de PICASSO, Le Désir attrapé par la queue.

Puis, c'est l'événement célèbre : le blocage de Daevid ALLEN à la douane française pour papiers non conformes qui l'obligera à rester en France et donc à former un nouveau groupe (guess which one…). La Machine molle n'est dès lors plus qu'un trio (AYERS/RATLEDGE /WYATT), et c'est sous cette forme qu'elle se produit à plusieurs reprises au club londonien Middle Earth à l'automne de la même année.

La majorité du contenu de Middle Earth Masters provient donc, si l'on en croit les informations de la couverture verso, d'un concert donné le 16 septembre 1967. Or, la reproduction dans le livret d'une affiche promotionnelle et les souvenirs livrés par le journaliste Jon Newey évoquent la date du 13 octobre 1967. Tout cela n'est pas très clair… Il est vrai que des extraits de ce concert au Middle Earth ont déjà été publiés dans le CD SOFT MACHINE Turns on – Vol. 1 publié par Voiceprint qui pâtit d'une qualité sonore exécrable. Rien de tel avec Middle Earth Masters, qui s'avère bien supérieur, du fait des soins intensifs apportés au nettoyage des bandes.

Avec un peu de patience et en usant de toutes les dernières prouesses technologiques possibles, on peut faire des miracles. Par exemple, on peut rendre globalement écoutable un enregistrement qui passait pour être définitivement inexploitable, comme celui que Bob WOOLFORD avait fait de ce concert de SOFT MACHINE à l'automne 1967. Ainsi, ses bandes masters ont été nettoyées de fond en comble, équalisées, compressées, boostées, codées, corrigées, époussetées, éditées et remastérisées, bref rendues dignes d'une publication officielle.

À cet égard, cette publication de Cuneiform est on ne peut plus fréquentable pour les oreilles exigeantes, même si les parties vocales de Kevin AYERS et de Robert WYATT sont bien vite noyées et étouffées dès que l'orgue fuzz de RATLEDGE bat son plein. Par conséquent, il n'y a guère que sur le premier morceau, Clarence in Wonderland, que la voix d'AYERS est parfaitement audible. WYATT n'a pas cette chance avec Hope for Happiness, puisque c'est à partir de ce morceau que Mike RATLEDGE se lâche avec son solo distordu et abrasif, à l'écoute duquel on réalise combien son orgue pouvait rivaliser en puissance et en invention sonore à la guitare électrique d'un HENDRIX.

C'est incontestablement la performance de RATLEDGE qui remporte ici les suffrages, du fait de la mise en valeur de son orgue dans le mix, mais aussi pour son jeu foisonnant et toutes ses trouvailles sonores. Il n'est que d'écouter ce festival de dissonances hypnotiques qu'est Disorganisation, une pièce soliste inédite de RATLEDGE qui débouche sur un We Did it again survolté, voire pré-punk, qui cède lui aussi la place à un Why are We Sleeping ? démentiel et perturbateur.

Le répertoire se partage donc entre les pièces de la célèbre démo qui paraîtra plus tard en disque sous les titres Rock Generation, Jet Propelled Photographs, At The Beginning, etc., et des titres qui atterriront sur le premier album officiel de SOFT MACHINE, avec deux raretés : outre le déjà-nommé Disorganisation, une pièce instrumentale, Bossa Nova Express, basée sur des accords de la célèbre chanson May I ? de Kevin AYERS.

Les bandes masters n'ayant pu être exploitées en intégralité (du fait d'une dégradation sonore croissante sur les voix), le set du concert au Middle Earth a été complété par deux morceaux tirés d'un concert au Roundhouse en mai 1968 (l'occasion nous est ainsi donnée de comparer deux versions de I Should've Known jouées à quelques mois d'intervalle), plus un morceau (A Certain Kind) enregistré dans un studio français en octobre 1967. Sans être tout à fait complet, le contenu de Middle Earth Masters restitue dans l'ensemble la set-list jouée par le trio à cette période.

Les versions live présentées dans ce CD dépassent évidemment en folie, en excès sonores et en déviances instrumentales les versions studio, et c'est bien tout ce qui en fait le sel. Les amateurs de climats complètement « freak out » s'en délecteront grandement et à juste raison, mais ceux qui ne connaissaient de SOFT MACHINE que ses avatars postérieurs risquent de tirer une sacrée tronche. Allez, il n'est jamais trop tard pour se dévergonder les esgourdes !

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

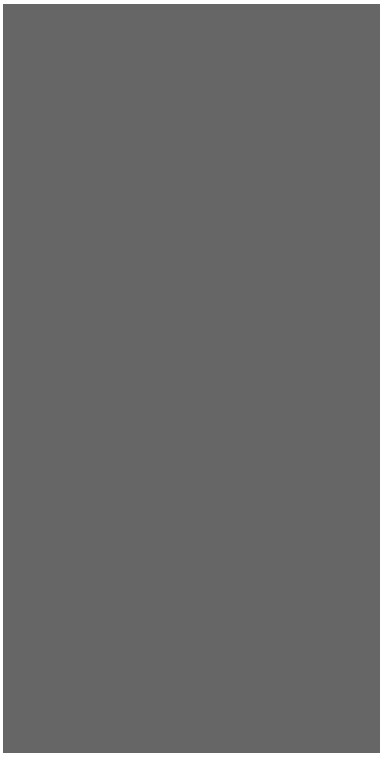
Hyde Park Free Concert 1970
2007

Kevin Ayers & the Whole World

More information about this album

REVUE & CORRIGÉE - n° 81 - Septembre 2009

Kevin Ayers & The Whole World - "Hyde Park Free Concert 1970"
Reel Recordings RR002 - Dist. Orkhêstra



Kevin Ayers - "What More Can I Say..." -
Reel Recordings RR009 - Dist. Orkhêstra

Pierre Durr

S'il apparaît quelquefois justifié de rééditer des albums méconnus à l'époque de leur enregistrement, voire de rendre témoignage d'un aspect de la création des décennies passées qui n'eut pas l'heur de susciter une édition à l'époque, on se demande toutefois (c'est en partie souligné dans l'éditorial d'un précédent numéro de R&C) pourquoi il y a pléthore d'éditions de live ou de bandes inédites (en version alternative souvent des enregistrements officiels) consacrées à des musiciens et des formations des années 70 ou 80. Focaliser l'attention des mélomanes sur ces enregistrements, c'est aussi en partie, surtout en ces temps de restrictions des budgets consacrés aux loisirs, les détourner de la création contemporaine.

En même temps, et il y a certainement un brin, sinon un bouquet entier, de nostalgie pour une musique - pas forcément en elle-même - associée à des années de jeunesse (voire d'insouciance) dans l'intérêt qu'on peut y porter. D'autant plus lorsqu'on peut les associer à la naissance d'une forme de militantisme pour ces musiques. Et ces formations et musiciens, encore actifs - parmi lesquels on comptera bien sûr les deux coffrets live de Henry Cow* - que sont Kevin AYERS et UNIVERS ZÉRO y tiennent un rôle majeur. Le premier en tant que chaînon (le plus pop ?) de l'école de Canterbury, les belges comme tenants de la scène Rock In Opposition belge. Les deux enregistrements de Kevin AYERS sont un peu complémentaires. Le premier, capté lors d'un concert gratuit à Hyde Park (Edgar Broughton Band et Pink Floyd s'y produisirent le même jour!) est intéressant car le Whole World y apparaît davantage comme une entité et non comme un groupe de musiciens accompagnant un chanteur. Son line-up est assez proche de l'album "Shooting At The Moon": David Bedford aux claviers, Mike Oldfield à la basse, Loi Coxhill aux saxophones, Robert Wyatt (et non Mick Fincher) à la batterie, et bien sûr Kevin AYERS à la guitare ; la plupart des titres sont d'ailleurs empruntés à cet album, auxquels se rajoutent deux classiques de Soft Machine, "Dit It Again" et "Why Are You Sleeping". Ce live offre par ailleurs des prolongements improvisés à certaines pièces, permettant aux divers musiciens du Whole World de sortir des schémas inhérents au studio, valorisant aussi bien Lol Coxhill que Mike Oldfield, pas encore "tubularisé". "What More Can I Say... " présente une facette plus intimiste de Kevin AYERS : il y officie seul sur quatre des sept titres (Robert Wyatt, David Bedford, Mike Oldfield, Archie Legget ou Eddie Sparrow apparaissent toutefois sur les trois autres!). Il permet de mettre davantage l'accent sur le chant, plutôt nonchalant dans un enregistrement plus proche d'une démo ou d'une gestation présentée à une amie ("Lady June") que d'un album construit. Cela le rend toutefois attachant.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Volume Two 1969

Soft Machine

More information about this album

JAZZWISE - N° 113 - October 2007

The Story So Far... - Steve Miller / Lol Coxhill

Daniel Spicer

These two albums, re-released now on a double CD, capture beaulifully a particular moment in British underground music when jazz-rock more specifically, the Canterbury scene - enjoyed a mutually beneficial flirtation with hard-line improv. Miller's best known as keyboardist with Canterbury originals, Caravan, and it's fascinating to hear some of that band's best known tunes deconstructed here as solo piano pieces or as intimate, playful duets with "the bald soprano." Coxhill, although by this time a formidable presence on the improv scene, wasn't averse to fitting into exploratory rock bands such as Kevin Ayers and the Whole World - and there are plenty examples of that to be relished here too, including some gritty, previously unreleased, live tracks from Delivery (essentially a proto-Hatfield and the North), and a gorgeously good-natured cha-cha-cha jammed up by Coxhill and Ayers with Robert Wyatt dropping in to supply unmistakably hairbrained Dada-scat vocals. Just when you thought you'd heard everything the Canterbury scene had to offer, a little gem like this pops up and brightens your day.

More information about this album

Comicopera
2007

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

THE OBSERVER - October 14, 2006

Where are pop's heirs to 'awkward bugger' Wyatt?

Sean O'Hagan

It is not often that one has the chance to recommend a concept album by a sixty-two-year-old, wheelchair-bound, Marxist songwriter with a beard, but you really should beg, steal, borrow or illegally download a copy of Robert Wyatt's new CD, Comicopera, as soon as you can. Don't just take my word for it. Björk is a big fan, as is Radiohead's Thom Yorke, while both Brian Eno and Paul Weller appear on the new album. Alexis Taylor from young electro-pop hipsters Hot Chip is such a devotee that he has written the press release for it. In fact, Taylor begins his eulogy by admitting that he discovered the great man's music 'when borrowing, then stealing' an earlier Wyatt album, Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard, from a public library. Needs must, I guess.

Anyway, those of you still reeling from reading the words 'sixty-two-year-old', 'concept album', 'Marxist' and 'beard' in the same sentence as 'songwriter', may not have heard Robert Wyatt's music before. Nor, indeed, his name. This is because he belongs to what you might call the veteran's branch of pop's outsider club, that small and diverse group of awkward buggers who have merrily gone their own unwavering way for decades now - think Scott Walker, free jazz giant Ornette Coleman or Lee 'Scratch' Perry, the sonic architect of some of the most otherworldly reggae music ever made. One of the more interesting aspects of pop culture in the digital age is the way in which even the work of the aforementioned pioneers has been rediscovered. It was Walker's turn in the last year or so; it could now be Wyatt's.

The signs look good. Wyatt's new album, Comicopera, his tenth solo outing, discounting compilations, is released on the Domino label, home of Franz Ferdinand and Arctic Monkeys. He is currently on the cover not just of The Wire, the bible of all things musically experimental and extreme, but the younger, hipper, Plan B, whose editors were not even born in 1973 when Wyatt, a veteran of Soft Machine, he fell out of a third-floor window while drunk. Paralysed from the waist down, he has been wheelchair-bound ever since.

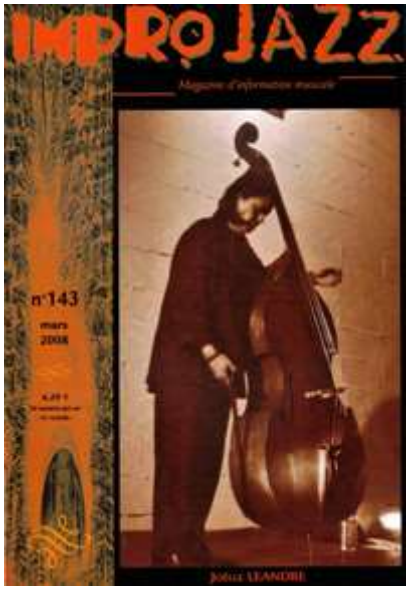
The following year he made Rock Bottom, one of those self-contained records, like Van Morrison's Astral Weeks or Patti Smith's Horses, that seemed to have arrived, fully formed, out of nowhere. It still sounds utterly singular. Wyatt briefly became a bona fide pop star in 1974 too, his wilfully rickety rendition of the Monkees' I'm a Believer entering the charts for a few weeks having been championed by - who else? - John Peel. After a period of silence he resurfaced on the Rough Trade label in the postpunk early '80s. Around this time he also joined the Communist Party and, as far as I can ascertain, remains an unrepentant hard leftie, though in person he is a big softie who possesses an almost childlike wonder at the world. He may be the only musician to have a verb named after him, 'wyatting' having recently started appearing in music blogs to describe the practice of playing the strangest tracks on a pub jukebox just to annoy your fellow drinkers.

"My songs aren't pop songs," he said recently. "I go on and on for longer than pop songs do... I'm just trying to string bits of music together." And yet his place in the pop firmament is assured if only for the fact that he voiced what is arguably the greatest political pop song of recent times. Shipbuilding was released twenty-five years ago as a protest against the Falklands War. Written by Elvis Costello, it subsequently became a Robert Wyatt song, so plaintive and stoical was his delivery. It remains that rare thing, a political song that is first and foremost a crafted pop song.

I listened to Shipbuilding again the other day and could not help but wonder why nothing even remotely as affecting has been written about the war in Iraq. Radiohead tried and failed with You And Whose Army in 2001, but neither the sentiment nor the song seemed focused. Something has been lost in the interim, pop's conscience maybe, which is now synonymous not with political consciousness but charity fundraising. Or maybe the silence is to do with the long implosion of the radical left and the attendant rise of irony and detachment as a post-Thatcher pop aesthetic. There is protest aplenty on Comicopera, though, as well as tears and laughter and the usual effortless strangeness and charm. Something for everyone, in fact, from the controlled anger of Out Of The Blue, written by Wyatt's partner, the artist Alfreda Benge, in the wake of the Israeli bombing of Lebanon, to Be Serious, a jolly agnostic singalong which begins with the lines: "I really envy Christians, I envy Muslims too / It must be great to be so sure..." If Richard Dawkins needs a non-secular gospel song to rally the unfaithful at readings, he should cop a listen.



Robert Wyatt has been doing his own thing for forty-odd years now, and is not about to change. You may have to travel more than half way to meet him, but it's well worth the journey.

IMPROJAZZ - n° 143 - Mars 2008

Robert Wyatt - Comicopera - Domino (WIGLP202/WIGCD202)

Gary May

Des nouvelles de la planète Wyatt sont toujours les bienvenues, et voila le dernier tome disponible, pour notre plus grand plaisir, en CD ou en double vinyl. Qu'est-ce Robert a à nous dire, alors, depuis Cuckooland il y a quatre ans ? Heureusement, c'est toujours pareil, mais évidemment complètement différent. L'œuvre est composée de trois parties.
La première, 'Lost In Noise' est la plus intime, les paroles sont d'Alfie, sa compagne, sauf pour la toute première chanson, signée Anja Garbarek. Dans cette première partie on parle de perte, de confiance, des rapports entre hommes et femmes. L'émouvante poésie de A.W.O.L fait de cette chanson une sorte de cousine britannique des 'Vieux' de Brel.
La deuxième partie 'The Here And The Now' nous montre un Wyatt plus désenchanté et mordant. L'image bucolique de l'Angleterre tourne au vinaigre, les certitudes religieuses en tout genre sont appelées à se taire. Une phrase: 'It's a beautiful day' revient dans deux chansons, chaque fois de manière ironique et désabusée. Cette partie se termine avec la colère et l'incompréhension de quelqu'un dont la maison et la vie viennent d'être détruites par les bombardements anglo-américains. Entendre la voix de Wyatt clamer: 'Vous avez planté une haine éternelle dans mon cœur' fait froid dans le dos. Sans doute s'agit-il de l'une des plus puissantes chansons anti-guerre jamais écrites.

Puis, pour la dernière partie, Robert Wyatt l'Anglais s'en va. Tellement dégoûté par l'alliance infernale entre anglo-saxons dominants, il chante l'ailleurs. En espagnol ou en italien, peu importe, du coup on retrouve un peu de sérénité, de bien-être, de soleil. Un vrai 'beautiful day' à l'étranger. Robert semble avoir trouvé de vrais complices, car on retrouve ici beaucoup de ses collaborateurs de Cuckooland; Annie Whitehead, bien sûr, Eno et Manzera, Yaron Stavi, et les puissant saxophones de Gilad Atzmon. Un plaisir donc de retrouver Mr Wyatt, qui nous livre un disque complexe, dense, et coloré par toute une palette d'émotions. On n'est pas toujours à l'aise en écoutant son message, mais il faut lui faire confiance et l'entendre car derrière cet enfant peu sage se cache un homme d'une très grande sagesse.

FRIEZE - October 01, 2007

Comicopera - Robert Wyatt (Domino 2007)

That voice – a fragile tenor, lilting and dancing across archipelagos of consonant and dissonant notes, gliding occasionally to alto highs, diving to baritone depths. Words shaped by an unmistakably English crispness, frayed at the edges by a slight lisping and the trace of an unplaceable regional accent. Its timbre is dusty, as autumnal as golden leaves crackling underfoot, yet for all its world-weariness it still connects with the playful, liberated spring of youth. That voice – possibly one of the most distinctive in popular music of the last 40 years – belongs to Robert Wyatt, who returns this October with Comicopera, his first studio album since 2003's Cuckooland.
Comicopera is vintage Wyatt. Divided into three 'acts' – 'Lost in Noise', 'The Here and The Now' and 'Away with the Fairies' – the distinctly live-sounding album's 16 tracks bring together the quintessential characteristics of Wyatt's work. There is the jazz-inflected push-and-pull of plaintive melody and awkward harmony, the unusual arrangements, which put seemingly disparate instruments at ease in each other's company (for instance, the amiable chat of a steel drum, cornet and saxophone in 'On the Town Square'), and the lyrics, which, unshackled from the strictures of metre and scansion, effortlessly marry the political with the tender, funny and surreal.

Mournful clarinets open the album, like a passage from a lost Kurt Weill operetta, heralding Wyatt's version of Anja Garbarek's 'Stay Tuned', in which Wyatt requests we 'stay tuned/there is more to come/oh don't start searching/I'll get back to you'. 'Just As You Are' follows; the wry lyrics heavy with experience, it is the closest the album gets to a traditional ballad. Co-written with Wyatt's wife, Alfreda Benge, and performed as a duet with Monica Vasconcelos, it's a torch song of sorts, a plea for lovers to accept each other's idiosyncrasies – in Wyatt's hands beautifully poised between the unsentimental and the utterly heart-rending.

As Comicopera unfolds through the jazzy atmospherics of 'You You', 'A.W.O.L.' and the whimsicality of 'A Beautiful Peace' (which opens with Wyatt observing items at the side of a road; 'Oh look, there's a dead rabbit, all flat … What's that in the gutter? It's one of those polystyrene boxes, with chips in … obviously he didn't want to finish the chips. That's unusual.'), the mood darkens, the lyrical content becoming more explicitly political. 'Mob Rule' describes a government's duplicitous push towards conflict, while in 'A Beautiful War' and 'Out of the Blue' (which features Brian Eno's sampled voice played on a keyboard) Wyatt respectively assumes the narrative roles of bomber plane pilot and his victim. The album's final act is sung entirely in Italian and Spanish, the reason, according to Wyatt, having 'to do with feeling completely alienated from Anglo-American culture at that point. Just sort of being silent as an English-speaking person, because of this fucking war.' Comicopera closes with 'Hasta Siempre Comandante' – a Latin rumba that lifts the gloom before evanescing into an ether of noise and sonic texture.

Wyatt's career began as a drummer with psychedelic pioneers Soft Machine and Matching Mole, before a fall from a third-floor window in 1973 left him paraplegic. The accident marked the beginning of Wyatt's solo career: a dozen or so incalculably influential albums followed, made in collaboration with such luminaries as Eno, Fred Frith and the late and much-loved Ivor Cutler. If anyone comes close to being a 'living treasure' in British music, it's Wyatt, not least for his down-to-earth understanding of music's role as an integral part of our daily lives. 'Music isn't an abstract pleasure,' says Wyatt, 'it is company. Why I like Duke Ellington and Charles Mingus – the Big Bands – is because every character in the band is identifiable as that person – there's this group of humans in a room.'

THE TELEGRAPH - October 18, 2007

Comicopera - Robert Wyatt (Domino Records)

Robert Wyatt : Child-like charm of a pop survivor.
Andrew Perry talks to the much venerated Robert Wyatt.

Andrew Perry

"It feels funny, Robert being so venerated," Robert Wyatt's wife, Alfie, tells me, as she ferries me from Market Rasen station to the couple's house in Louth. "I mean," she adds, "he's such a child!

" Ever an intriguing figure in British rock, if never a mainstream one, Wyatt has come to be seen as something of a national treasure in later life. He is best known for his cover of Elvis Costello's Shipbuilding from 1982, which relayed a savagely bitter picture of exploitation of soldiers and dock-workers in the Falklands War.

His sporadic album releases, tinged with jazz, folk and an almost extraterrestrial beauty, have prompted a Mercury Award nomination here, a Meltdown Festival curatorship there, and no end of favourable media coverage.

This month, at sixty-two, he shows a rare ability to cross generational boundaries with Comicopera, his debut release for Domino Records, home to such hip young chart-toppers as Arctic Monkeys.

Though there has always been a child-like openness in Wyatt's high-pitched, conversational singing voice, I am still a little anxious about meeting a man who has never hidden his often extreme political leanings.

After leading me through to the front room, however, he talks engagingly about his latest batch of songs. Most were written on the baby grand piano behind him, and embellished using the brass and percussion instruments scattered underneath.

Fittingly, given its homespun genesis, the album kicks off with songs about domestic conflict. Several were co-written with Alfie (her full name is Alfreda Benge), whom Wyatt calls "the dark side of my moon".

One, Just As You Are, was composed in Kilburn, at Phil Manzanera from Roxy Music's studio.

"Brian Eno dropped by," he recalls, "and said, 'Let's write a country song.' For that type of music, we worked out that the lyrics had to be very straight-talking - no deviousness, no irony, straight from the heart.

"Alfie wrote this stuff about her exasperation with me drinking in the daytime and trying to get away with it. She'd been wrestling with this for some time, and out it came."

The finished piece is anything but generic country, marked instead by Wyatt's downbeat, jazzy piano chords, and with his wife's accusations sombrely yet exquisitely intoned by the Brazilian singer, Monica Vasconcelos. Wyatt, meanwhile, has since sobered up.

For all the heavyweight subject matter, it's the most sublimely melodic album of Wyatt's career. The accessibility, he believes, comes from his collective attitude, whereby illustrious guests from the rock world such as Eno or Paul Weller are gathered alongside jazz and world musicians.

"For me," he says, "music is company. I like the idea of the record as a meeting place, where friends wander in and out."

Wyatt rose to prominence in the hippie era, as the drummer with prog-rockers, the Soft Machine. In 1973, he fell from a window during a party and broke his back. In hospital, he mapped out his first solo album, Rock Bottom, which he released the following year, to great acclaim, on the day that he married Alfie.

Since then, wheelchair-bound, he has ducked in and out of the shadows, pursuing his own curious pan-global muse.

The beating heart of Comicopera is an instrumental track called On The Town Square, on which Gilad Atzmon, a tenor saxophonist of Middle-Eastern extraction, plays alongside the Afro-Caribbean-flavoured steelpans of Orphy Robinson.

Wyatt's community-mindedness becomes apparent when he leads me around Louth to spend money in his favourite shops. I begin to see the child that Alfie spoke of, as Wyatt wheels himself precariously through the middle of the road back to the house, waving at oncoming traffic. His idealism, too, is boyish, energetic, fabulous.

"I love sitting in the town square here," he tells me, "by Stan's Van. Stan puts out a couple of tables and dispenses cups of tea for 40p, and wonderful sausage sandwiches. All kinds of people come past. There'll be the woman from Oxfam, who goes on hunts, sitting next to a biker. And we all find things to chat about.

"That feeling I like" - he smiles, yes, rather like a child - "and in music, too: real people with their own turn of voice, all joining in, in their own way."

POP NEWS - Novembre 2007

Comicopera - Robert Wyatt (Domino/Pias)

Vincent Arquillière

Saison faste pour les chanteurs sur roulettes : après un nouvel album inespéré de Vic Chesnutt, que l'on peut raisonnablement considérer comme l'un de ses tout meilleurs, c'est à Robert Wyatt, lui aussi cloué depuis de longues années dans un fauteuil, de nous donner de ses nouvelles, quatre ans après "Cuckooland". Malgré la simplicité, l'humilité et la gentillesse de leur auteur, les disques de l'ex-Soft Machine ont toujours quelque chose d'un peu intimidant. La musique qu'ils contiennent ne peut se concevoir et s'apprécier que dans un rapport intime avec l'auditeur, mais, du fameux "Rock Bottom" (1974) à ce "Comicopera", ils paraissent souvent si intimes, justement, qu'on a presque peur d'y entrer, comme si on risquait de déranger. Il faudra encore cette fois-ci plusieurs écoutes attentives (mais peut-on écouter autrement un disque de Robert Wyatt ?), le temps notamment de se réhabituer à cette voix aussi blanche, exténuée et bouleversante que celle de Chet Baker, pour faire le tour de cette heure de musique et estimer qu'il s'agit une fois de plus d'un chef-d'œuvre – à croire que son auteur ne sait de toute façon pas faire autre chose.
En trois actes (intitulés "Lost in Noise", "The Here and the Now" et "Away with the Fairies" – comme pour le titre de l'album, toutes les interprétations sont possibles…), le Grand Schtroumpf de Louth (Lincolnshire) nous parle de lui, de l'Angleterre et de l'état du monde, interprète aussi bien Garcia Lorca qu'Anja Garbarek, revisite ses genres de prédilection – jazz plus ou moins free, rock progressif, chanson populaire, musiques latines – en les fondant dans un idiome qui n'appartient qu'à lui. Les complices habituels – Brian Eno, Phil Manzanera, Paul Weller, et bien sûr sa muse Alfie Benge – sont au rendez-vous, et l'on retrouve avec un émerveillement renouvelé ces harmonies venues d'ailleurs et ces effets sonores qui ouvrent des abîmes d'étrangeté. Le deuxième acte de "Comicopera" se conclut par un "Out of the Blue" à la colère rentrée, celle d'un Palestinien bombardé qui s'exprime à travers la voix de Wyatt : "You have planted an everlasting hatred in my heart" ("Vous avez planté une haine éternelle dans mon cœur"). Suit une dernière partie d'une éblouissante liberté formelle, où le chanteur abandonne l'anglais pour l'italien et l'espagnol. Trente-deux ans après "Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard", qui se refermait sur le "Song for Che" de Charlie Haden, Wyatt rend de nouveau hommage au fameux guérillero en terminant "Comicopera" par une reprise du non moins fameux "Hasta Siempre Comandante". Quoi qu'on pense du Che et des idées politiques de l'artiste, sa version est exceptionnelle : à la fois respectueuse des racines cubaines de l'original et totalement personnelle, à mille lieues de l'exotisme frelaté trop souvent attaché à ce standard, elle offre un résumé parfait du disque et, au-delà, de l'art poétique d'un homme pour qui le message ne prendra jamais le pas sur la musique.

THE WIRE - N° 284 - October 2007

Comicopera - Robert Wyatt (Domino CD)

David Stubbs

"I don't think beforehand, I think afterwards. I find that plans ahead, concepts, limit you," says Robert Wyatt. Which is a little strange, given that Comicopera, divided as it is into three acts, feels decidedly conceptual. It ranks, however, among his finest achievements - indeed, it embraces all of the key themes of his career, ranging in mood from the amiably whimsical to the plaintively despondent, from private joy to political rage.

He's surrounded by old friends here, which could be a recipe for self-indulgence but in this case lends a warmth, a communitarian feel to Act One in particular. Annie Whitehead, Brian Eno, Phil Manzanera, Paul Weller and Gilad Atzmon are among those assembled. On the Anja Garbarek "Stay Tuned" there's a candlelit, vigil-like feel, with all of the musicians breathing as one, pulling in the same direction, no one breaking away from the cuddle. "You, You, You", co-written by Wyatt's partner Alfreda Benge, is a touching paean to interdependence, a hark-back to 1974's Rock Bottom, with Wyatt contributing muted, amateur but eloquent phrases on a cornet.

Act Two sees a shift in mood. It's an altogether jollier affair, with tracks like "On The Town Chair" and their cheerful gait threatening to revert into "Soup Song" from Ruth is Stranger Than Richard. However, like the blazing summer of 1914, this is a misleading prelude, for next cornes "A Beautiful War", with Wyatt as narrator assuming the role of the bomber. Act Three sees Wyatt refuse to sing in the English language, as a protest against the UK's involvement in the Iraq war. (This, after all, is the man who once said that his political inclination was to be a traitor.) The likes of "Del Mondo" and "Hasta Siempre Commandante" are more unravelled in their arrangements, more new jazzy in feel, reminiscent of Charlie Haden's Liberation Orchestra in their internationalist tone. Orphy Robinson's vibraphone solo on "Pastafari" is one of the section's towering moments of terrible beauty, pluming above the fray.

A superb album, in which Wyatt gathers all of his strengths, with the personal and the political, the aesthetic and the ethical are brought together as only he can.

JAZZWISE - N° 113 - October 2007

Comicopera - Robert Wyatt (Domino WIGCD202P) ****

Duncan Heining

Comicopera is like meeting an old friend. Conversation begins immediately where it last left off. What's new? How you been? Has it really been that long? No, really? Shame about so and so. It's not that nothing has changed. Static friendships die. The capacity to accommodate difference and change that revitalises the friendship. There are new influences and new songs. There are life-changing events. New loves and old ones rekindled. Life happens somewhere between comedy and tragedy - Comicopera. Robert Wyatt, his partner Alfie Benge and their comrades understand this well. There's observational comedy in 'A Beautiful Peace' and 'A Beautiful War', romantic comedy in 'Just As You Are' and slapstick in Orphy Robinson's 'Pastafari'. We feel pity and loss for Hattie in 'A.W.O.L.', while Richard Dawkins pops up cartoon-like on 'Be Serious' There's solidarity with the oppressed in 'Haste Siempre Comandante' and in Robert's setting of Lorca's 'Cancion de Julieta' and righteous anger in 'Out Of The Blue'. We shared those thoughts and those emotions and then we danced together. Oh, how we danced to 'On The Town Square'. And then we laughed and laughed again, as if we were the very last ones to get the joke of 'Anachronist'.

JAZZMAN - N° 142 - Janvier 2008

Comicopera - Robert Wyatt
1 CD Domino WIGCD202P - distribué par PIAS  Féerie

Pierre de Choqueuse

Certains lecteurs trouveront peut-être cette chronique déplacée, avançant que la musique de Robert Wyatt relève d'un autre genre que le jazz. Lequel ? Bien malin qui peut répondre. L'ex-batteur de Soft Machine construit disque après disque son propre univers musical et, depuis son accident, pose sa voix très pure au centre de son œuvre. Opéra de poche en trois actes et seize chansons, "Comicopera", son premier vrai disque depuis 2003, fait rêver, envoûte comme un charme puissant. Musiques et langues s'y télescopent. Fraîches comme l'eau d'une source, les mélodies portent les couleurs du jazz, du rock et des îles lointaines. Ce n'est pas son meilleur opus. L'atmosphère s'assombrit au fil des plages. Sa poésie le rend pourtant inoubliable.

ROLLING STONE - N° 156 - Oktober, 2007

Comicopera - Robert Wyatt

Jörn Schlüter

Wut statt Nostalgie: Der Weise skizziert in drei Akten die Gegenwart

Seit einigen Jahren vollenden sich für die Veteranen des Swinging London viele Kreise. In den Sechzigern angekommen, erinnern sich die Männer von damals an ihre beste Zeit und an jene Momente, die das eigene Lebensgefühl konstituierten. Full circle, das heißt hier: sich aufs Wesentliche, nämlich die Freundschaft und das Gemeinsame, besinnen. David Gilmour macht eine nostalgisch versunkene Platte mit Phil Manzanera, Roger Waters spielt ausnahmsweise mit Pink Floyd, Brian Eno sucht die Nähe der alten Kumpane. Robert Wyatt ist immens wichtig für diese Selbstvergewisserungen und tief empfundenen Klassentreffen und steht immer ganz oben auf der Liste, wenn die genannten Akteure im Miteinander Trost und Identität suchen. Nun hat Wyatt eine Plätte gemacht, bei der es um dieselben Dinge geht, und natürlich konnte er auf die Hilfe von Eno, Manzanera, Paul Weller und anderen Freunden zählen.

Wyatts Musik, hier auf drei Akte aufgeteilt und mit der üblichen spontanen Intuition aufgenommen, ist freilich nicht nostalgisch - dafür lebt Wyatt viel zu sehr im Moment und ist dem offenen künstlerischen Prozess verpnichtet. « Comicopera » handelt also davon, miteinander zu leben, den anderen wahrzunehmen und den chaotischen Fluss des Lebens insgesamt zu akzeptieren. Die frei entworfenen, oft ungemein intensiven Skizzen, der psychedelische Grundton, die abstrakten Holzbläser-Wolken, das expressive Nichts, der angetäuschte Jazz, all das kommt in der Gegenwart an wie eine Botschaft aus vergangenen Zeiten. Mehr als seine Kollegen ist Wyatt ein lebendes Relikt, der weise Alte aus dem Wald von Canterbury, der den künstlerischen Ausdruck der naiven Mittsechziger-Avantgarde konservieren konnte. Man braucht nur die ersten zwei Lieder, das flächig floydianische « Stay Tuned » und das zärtliche « Just As You Are », um das zu verstehen.
Am Schluss, im orchestralen, atonal dräuenden dritten Akt, wird aus Wut auf Italienisch und Spanisch gesungen — es geht um den Krieg und die britischen Kriegstreiber, die dogs of war, die Wyatt natürlich hasst, insbesondere vor dem Hintergrund des auf « Comicopera » gewählten Sujets. Ein Menetekel.

LES INROCKUPTIBLES - 2 octobre 2007

Robert Wyatt - Comicopera
Domino - Pias

Richard Robert

Dans la musique populaire, la coutume veut que les chansons d'amour et les chansons engagées ne soient pas rangées dans le même panier : elle réserve la poésie aux cœurs tendres et la politique aux esprits bien trempés. Comme souvent, la coutume a tort, et Robert Wyatt, qui s'emploie depuis quarante ans à faire vaciller nombre de certitudes, est encore une fois là pour le rappeler. Au milieu des années 60, alors qu'il jouait au sein de Soft Machine, l'Anglais refusait déjà d'être un homme coupé en deux : il ne voulait pas choisir entre sensation pure et réflexion aiguisée, pas plus qu'il ne voulait trancher entre son amour pour la mélodie et son goût pour la recherche sonore. Des dérives solitaires de Rock Bottom (1974) jusqu'au grand chantier collectif de Cuckooland (2004), sa carrière solo n'a cessé de défier les lois de la pesanteur musicale, tout en brouillant les frontières entre songe et réalité. Cloué sur un fauteuil roulant depuis un accident survenu en 1973 (il se jette d'une fenêtre au milieu d'une fête copieusement arrosée), Wyatt est devenu à la fois un observateur pénétrant de son temps, dont le cœur ancré bien à gauche se soulève régulièrement devant les infamies de toutes sortes, et un contemplatif en quête de hauteur, toujours prêt à s'envoler dans les vastes sphères de l'imaginaire. Aujourd'hui, dans Comicopera, son propos gagne encore en ampleur. Entouré une nouvelle fois de fidèles (Brian Eno, Phil Manzanera et Paul Weller, mais aussi la chanteuse Karen Mantler, la tromboniste Annie Whitehead ou le saxophoniste Gilad Atzmon), Wyatt explore dans les grandes largeurs un langage musical qui synthétise son intérêt pour l'harmonie classique, son penchant pour l'improvisation et le swing, et cette sensibilité mélodique à fleur de peau qui en fait l'un des songwriters les plus touchants de sa génération. De sa voix flûtée, il réussit à unifier et à éclairer un disque qui est aussi touffu dans le fond que dans la forme. Découpé en trois actes, Comicopera commence en effet par un bouquet de chansons sentimentales, qui se penchent avec délicatesse sur la mécanique complexe et fragile des relations amoureuses. Il se poursuit avec un tableau saisissant du chaos mondial (avec le désastre irakien pour toile de fond) et s'achève sur une longue bouffée d'onirisme pur, forcément libérateur. Telle est la morale de Robert Wyatt : on ne peut vraiment habiter ce monde qu'en se confrontant à la réalité et en se réservant à tout moment le droit de s'en détacher.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Hot Chip With Robert Wyatt And Geese
2008

Paul Haines

More information about this album

LES INROCKUPTIBLES - N° 694 - 17 mars 2009

Hot Chip with Robert Wyatt and Geese EP
Parlophone / EMI

Pascal Bertin

Quand Hot Chip invite Robert Wyatt à réinterpréter ses chansons, celui-ci les passe magnifiquement au révélateur de la tristesse.

Et voilà que riment drôles d'idées et beaux projets. Qui aurait pu imaginer un jour le vieux barbu Robert Wyatt fricoter avec les nerds de Hot Chip ? En réalisant ce rêve, suite au remix de This Summer Night qu'ils lui avaient offert, les Londoniens jettent un regard nouveau sur leur superbe album Made in the Dark de l'an dernier, en réenregistrant trois de ses titres les plus lents, qui avaient alors pu être occultés par son visage le plus dance. Chantées avec le vieux barde, ces chansons réorchestrées prennent d'un coup une trentaine d'années de patine, comme fabriquées dans un noble bois récupéré d'une épave séculaire. Si, en vieux sage, Wyatt ne sort de l'ombre que sur le refrain de Made in the Dark, il s'empare goulûment du majestueux Whistle for Will de sa voix tremblotante et d'un doux sifflement. Des enregistrements bizarroïdes signés de Geese, deux producteurs amis de longue date de Hot Chip, viennent aussi hanter le calme en faux plat de We're Looking for a Lot of Love, qui devient une effrayante bouteille jetée dans la mer de la solitude.

Puis, sans Robert Wyatt mais simplement remixé par Geese, le sautillant One Pure Thought baisse les voiles pour naviguer dans une mer de violons et laisser se déchaîner une tempête de sentiments. En ralentissant, et surtout en désossant ses chansons de leurs apparats festifs à la manière de l'album solo sorti en toute confidentialité par son chanteur Alexis Taylor (Rubbed out), Hot Chip réussit à en livrer le visage poignant, intime, à travers le genre de collaboration que plus personne ne prend le temps d'imaginer. Un pari largement gagné qu'eux seuls pouvaient oser : un unplugged des années fluo, made with the dark. '

/// www.hotchip.co.uk

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

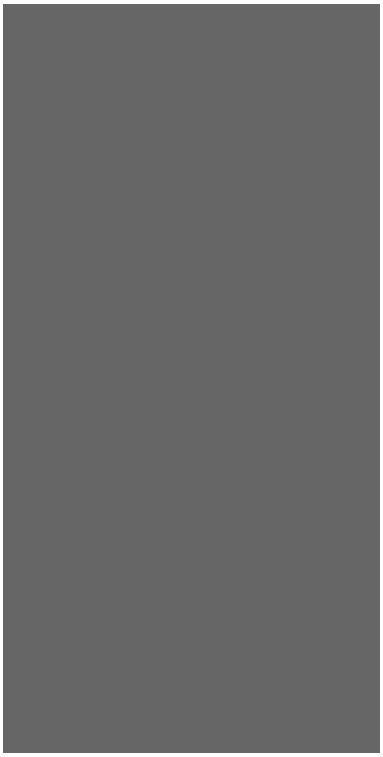
What More Can I Say...
2008

Kevin Ayers

More information about this album

REVUE & CORRIGÉE - n° 81 - Septembre 2009

Kevin Ayers - "What More Can I Say..." -
Reel Recordings RR009 - Dist. Orkhêstra



Kevin Ayers & The Whole World - "Hyde Park Free Concert 1970"
Reel Recordings RR002 - Dist. Orkhêstra

Pierre Durr

S'il apparaît quelquefois justifié de rééditer des albums méconnus à l'époque de leur enregistrement, voire de rendre témoignage d'un aspect de la création des décennies passées qui n'eut pas l'heur de susciter une édition à l'époque, on se demande toutefois (c'est en partie souligné dans l'éditorial d'un précédent numéro de R&C) pourquoi il y a pléthore d'éditions de live ou de bandes inédites (en version alternative souvent des enregistrements officiels) consacrées à des musiciens et des formations des années 70 ou 80. Focaliser l'attention des mélomanes sur ces enregistrements, c'est aussi en partie, surtout en ces temps de restrictions des budgets consacrés aux loisirs, les détourner de la création contemporaine.

En même temps, et il y a certainement un brin, sinon un bouquet entier, de nostalgie pour une musique - pas forcément en elle-même - associée à des années de jeunesse (voire d'insouciance) dans l'intérêt qu'on peut y porter. D'autant plus lorsqu'on peut les associer à la naissance d'une forme de militantisme pour ces musiques. Et ces formations et musiciens, encore actifs - parmi lesquels on comptera bien sûr les deux coffrets live de Henry Cow* - que sont Kevin AYERS et UNIVERS ZÉRO y tiennent un rôle majeur. Le premier en tant que chaînon (le plus pop ?) de l'école de Canterbury, les belges comme tenants de la scène Rock In Opposition belge. Les deux enregistrements de Kevin AYERS sont un peu complémentaires. Le premier, capté lors d'un concert gratuit à Hyde Park (Edgar Broughton Band et Pink Floyd s'y produisirent le même jour!) est intéressant car le Whole World y apparaît davantage comme une entité et non comme un groupe de musiciens accompagnant un chanteur. Son line-up est assez proche de l'album "Shooting At The Moon": David Bedford aux claviers, Mike Oldfield à la basse, Loi Coxhill aux saxophones, Robert Wyatt (et non Mick Fincher) à la batterie, et bien sûr Kevin AYERS à la guitare ; la plupart des titres sont d'ailleurs empruntés à cet album, auxquels se rajoutent deux classiques de Soft Machine, "Dit It Again" et "Why Are You Sleeping". Ce live offre par ailleurs des prolongements improvisés à certaines pièces, permettant aux divers musiciens du Whole World de sortir des schémas inhérents au studio, valorisant aussi bien Lol Coxhill que Mike Oldfield, pas encore "tubularisé". "What More Can I Say... " présente une facette plus intimiste de Kevin AYERS : il y officie seul sur quatre des sept titres (Robert Wyatt, David Bedford, Mike Oldfield, Archie Legget ou Eddie Sparrow apparaissent toutefois sur les trois autres!). Il permet de mettre davantage l'accent sur le chant, plutôt nonchalant dans un enregistrement plus proche d'une démo ou d'une gestation présentée à une amie ("Lady June") que d'un album construit. Cela le rend toutefois attachant.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Around Robert Wyatt
2009

Orchestre National de Jazz

More information about this album

JAZZ MAGAZINE - N° 603 - mai 2009

ONJ/DANIEL YVINEC Around Robert Wyatt
2 CD Bee Jazz! Abeille Musique

Bill Milkowski

Disque d'Emoi

l'Orchestre National de Jazz de Daniel Yvinec livre un premier CD qui pose un problème politique: les instrumentistes titulaires n'y ont que des rôles de pupitres propres aux disques de rock et de variétés. Ce produit de studio peu réalisable sur scène est à l'encontre de la vocation même de l'ONJ qui est de faire exister un orchestre. Et pourtant, cet hommage à Robert Wyatt ne nous a pas laissé indifférent. Nous avons voulu le soumettre à une oreille innocente... comme fut la nôtre lorsque nous reçûmes les premières productions de Hal Wilner autour de Nino Rota, Thelonious Monk et Kurt Weill. Découvrant ce disque à l'aveugle, le journaliste américain Bill Milkowski a conçu le plus grand émoi.
Franck Bergerot.

Alors que je n'écoute quasiment plus que du jazz, l'écoute de cet enregistrement à l'aveugle m'a ramené, à ma vieille culture pop-rock. J'ai successivement cru reconnaître Burt Bacharach, puis Arthur Lee et Love et enfin une touche de Brian Wilson et l'influence des Beach Boys dans les harmonies vocales du premier morceau. La plage suivante m'a fait penser aux univers sombres de Leonard Cohen ou Serge Gainsbourg, puis au groupe néo-psychédélique Of Montreal. le banjo, le theremin et les solo jazzy de la plage suivante m'ont rappelé le groupe Dreams des frères Brecker. Puis, j'ai soudain compris qu'il s'agissait d'un recueil de chansons de Robert Wyatt ou de musiques auxquelles il fut associé. le climat qui domine est bien celui de l'école de Canterbury, ce courant qui, au tournant des années 60-70, combina si intelligemment jazz et rock, chansons à texte et psychédélisme, sous la houlette de groupes comme Soft Machine, Caravan, Matching Mole, Gong et Henry Cow. Ces vocaux fragiles et poignants relèvent évidemment de l'univers de Robert Wyatt, alors que les arrangements évoquent une sorte d'orchestre de chambre avec, dans le cas de Vandalusia (tiré de l'album de Wyatt "Old Rottenhat", 1985) une profusion de lignes tortueuses à l'unisson, interprétées avec une impressionnante précision qui renverraient d'ailleurs plutôt à Frank Zappa.
À l'issue d'un véritable travail de détective, j'ai pu identifier la totalité du répertoire. On y trouve une majorité de reprises de Robert Wyatt. Alifib tiré de "Rock Bottom" (1974), Just As You Are tiré avec tendresse de "Comicopera" (2007), l'adorable O Caroline du groupe de Wyatt Matching Mole ("Matching Mole", 1972) qui fait l'objet d'une interprétation intimiste, Alliance d"'Old Rottenhat", ici habillé d'arrangements luxuriants.
Interprété d'une voix quasi chuchotée, Del Mundo est une poignante chanson folklorique chantée en italien par Robert Wyatt sur l'anthologie "The Different You : Robert Wyatt E Noi". Te Recuerdo Amanda fut chanté en espagnol sur le disque quatre titres de 1984, "Work in progress". Quant à Shipbuilding, il s'agit d'une chanson d'Elvis Costello publiée en single en 1982. Mais on retrouve également The Song de Peter Blegvad et John Greaves ("Songs", 1994, et "The Trouble with Happiness", 2oo4). L'influence du classique est décelable dans l'arrangement de Kew. Rhone, le thème qui donne son titre à l'album chef-d'oeuvre de John Greaves et Peter Blegvad, où figurait d'ailleurs Carla Bley et le drumming du grand Andrew Cyrille. Les arrangements évocateurs de la musique de chambre, avec ces lignes tourbillonnantes et entrelacées, ce contrepoint complexe et ce tempo délicat, sonnent parfois comme des réminiscences de Philip Glass.

Je ne sais pas qui sont ces musiciens, ni qui est l'arrangeur, mais j'imagine que c'est un fan de Frank Zappa, Edgard Varese et peut-être Gil Evans. Il réalise un admirable assemblage sans hiatus entre musique de chambre excellemment exécutée et improvisation de haut vol. Les solos de ténor et d'alto, de guitare, de flûte et de piano sont formidables et j'apprécie tout particulièrement la guitare sauvage de Vandalusia, ainsi que les fragments bruitistes qui sont inhérents à l'univers de Wyatt. Cette éblouissante réalisation mérite notre Émoi.

Bill Milkowski

>> www.jazzmagazine.com

BBC REVIEW

"It deserves as much hyperbole as it can get."

Chris Jones 2009-05-08

Robert Wyatt's status as a living English institution now equals that of, say, Stephen Fry. So much so, that there's a danger of the shy, self-effacing man being swamped by wearying hyperbole. But, just as you're about to surrender to cynicism, along comes something as wonderful as Around Robert Wyatt: a collaboration between the bearded one and Daniel Yvinec and his French ten-piece Orchestre. One listen and any doubts about Wyatt's are laid to rest.

The album does this is by taking Wyatt's compositions as well as his most famous cover versions (cf: Shipbuilding), re-casting them in a jazz setting. These expanded, joyous, limber explorations of the basic bones of Wyatt's work reveal structures that are both rock solid and light as a feather. Hardly surprising when you consider thay were all originally written and performed by a jazz fan, albeit one who never considered himself to be a 'proper' musician.

Highlights are pointlesss, but easy examples are Rokia Traore's incredible reading of Alifib. The child-speak of the Rock Bottom classic fits her mouth to a tee. The incredible duo of Yael Naim and Arno, balance delicacy with cartoon gruffness to highlight Wyatt and partner Alfreda Benge's unflinching look at their relationship, Just As You Are (from his Cuckooland album). And Daniel Darc's lounge version of the Matching Mole perennial, O Caroline which eventually lurches into Tom Waits noir? Believe me, it works.

Wyatt, himself, joins the throng on several pieces and his voice sounds rejuvenated by the experience, especially on the bonus version of his obscurity, Rangers In The Night, which benefits from modern looping techniques to achieve an other-worldliness. The Orchestre features players of outstanding calibre, especially the guitar and banjo of Pierre Perchaud who swoops, plunks and grinds. Yvinec's innovative arrangements leave enough room for the songs to breath again, buffing up material grown dull with over-familiarity.

If you've recently tired of Wyatt, or people banging on about how marvellous he is, buy this album. Your faith will be restored. It deserves as much hyperbole as it can get.

>> Cet article sur le site de la BBC

JAZZMAN - N° 157 - mai 2009

ORCHESTRE NATIONAL DE JAZZ
DANIEL YVINEC
Around Robert Wyatt
1 CD Bee Jazz 03O - Distribué par Abeille Musique

Pierre de Chocqueuse

'Choc' Jazzman - Féérique

Consacré à Robert Wyatt, ex-batteur du groupe Soft Machine et auteur de mélodies et de disques splendides, ce premier disque de l'Orchestre national de jazz placé sous la direction de Daniel Yvinec est un véritable coup de maître. Sélectionnant quelques-uns des plus beaux thèmes de Robert et deux compositions de John Greaves, complice et ami de ce dernier (Kew. Rhone et The Song que les familiers de Greaves connaissent bien), Daniel les a confiés à des voix qu'il admire pour les chanter a capella. L'instrumentation est venue après, Yvinec inspiré chargeant Vincent Artaud de mettre en forme ces chansons, de leur donner chair et consistance harmonique. Confiés à un autre, les arrangements de ce disque n'auraient probablement pas été si beaux et réussis.
Artaud sublime chaque morceau par des couleurs chatoyantes, des timbres spécifiques. Passionné par les musiques répétitives et minimalistes, il fait tourner de courtes cellules mélodiques, agence de brefs ostinato, des riffs hypnotiques saupoudrés d'effets électroniques. Respectant l'univers poétique de Wyatt qui pose sa voix inimitable sur quatre morceaux, il offre des écrins somptueux à ses chansons, y fait rentrer son propre monde sonore et réalise un disque aussi fascinant qu'inclassable. Saluons cet orchestre de jeunes musiciens qui ont patiemment assimilé une écriture complexe et exigeante. Un court solo est réservé à chacun. Les voix ne viennent pas du jazz mais apportent un supplément d'âme à ce magnifique opus mélodique.

Pierre de Chocqueuse

>> www.jazzman.fr

CITIZEN JAZZ.COM

Orchestre National de Jazz
Around Robert Wyatt

Denis Desassis

Une évocation de l'univers si particulier de Robert Wyatt comme première carte de visite pour l'ONJ version Daniel Yvinec - un pari à haut risque que le nouveau directeur artistique relève avec toute l'élégance due à celui qui est entré de son vivant dans la légende de la musique anglaise. Bien déjoué, Mister Yvinec !

En 2005 déjà, Franck Tortiller embarquait l'Orchestre National de Jazz sur des chemins un peu éloignés des grands axes du jazz en s'attaquant au répertoire de Led Zeppelin avec un projet baptisé Close To Heaven, que l'auteur de ces lignes avait salué dans son carnet de bord voici plus de trois ans sous forme de lettre ouverte.
Et voici que Daniel Yvinec se pique de nous faire partager sa vision d'un personnage inclassable à qui une horde d'inconditionnels voue un véritable culte, Robert Wyatt. Il faut être un peu fou pour oser traduire l'univers a priori inadaptable d'un homme dont l'histoire personnelle est en elle-même singulière. Aussi nous pardonnera-t-on de retracer avant tout, dans les grandes lignes, le passé de ce musicien sans égal, batteur dadaïste puis chanteur-compositeur habité à l'inimitable timbre haut-perché.

Remontons à la fin des années soixante lorsque, en compagnie d'amis nommés Kevin Ayers (guitare) et Mike Ratledge (claviers), vite rejoints par le bassiste Hugh Hopper après le départ de Daevid Allen, Robert Wyatt élabore une folle et savante construction qui demeure le socle fondateur d'un mouvement nommé École de Canterbury.
Soft Machine, fille naturelle des Wilde Flowers, est née. Elle mêle joyeusement jazz, rock et autres lubies psychédéliques qui vont faire de ses créateurs des « architectes de l'espace temporel ». Petit à petit, disque après disque - dont le troisième, double album sobrement intitulé Third, recèle « Moon In June », joyau signé Wyatt et démontrant tout son potentiel sur une face entière —, le groupe se tourne vers un jazz moins feu follet, trop sage aux dires de certains… Sans doute de quoi susciter un début d'ennui chez son batteur, qui préfère se mettre en disponibilité le temps d'un premier disque solo (The End Of An Ear, 1970) avant de le quitter pour fonder une autre machinerie. Deux albums et un sublime « O Caroline », composition émouvante où la voix de Wyatt et son délicieux cheveu sur la langue serrent le cœur et donnent la chair de poule. Mais il n'y aura pas de troisième disque ; juste une chute stupide, sur plusieurs étages, un soir d'excès, et la paralysie, de longs mois d'hôpital. C'est un Wyatt paraplégique qui ressort de cette épreuve, mais un Wyatt transfiguré qui publie un chef d'œuvre absolu, Rock Bottom (1974) sous la houlette de Nick Mason. Disque-phare, œuvre majeure constamment sous tension, et qui vous empoigne dès la première seconde de « Sea Song » pour ne plus vous lâcher. A toute chose malheur est bon, prétend-t-on, même si nul ne peut dire ce que serait devenu Robert Wyatt sans cet accident. Toujours est-il que cet album l'élève au rang d'artiste culte dont chaque note jouée ou chantée avec une grande économie de moyens — son univers étant marqué par le minimalisme – fait le bonheur de ses fidèles. Difficile d'échapper à l'envoûtement…
La discographie de Robert Wyatt est abondante et ses participations (Henry Cow, Hatfield & The North, Michael Mantler, John Greaves… pour citer les plus connues), nombreuses. On pourra néanmoins recommander ces pépites que sont Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard (1975), Old Rottenhat (1985), Dondestan (1991), Shleep (1997), Solar Flares Burn For You (2003), Cuckooland (2003), Comicopera (2007). Robert Wyatt est au centre de tant d'admirations qu'il n'est guère étonnant qu'un passeur de la trempe de Daniel Yvinec ait choisi d'en faire son premier sujet d'étude au sein de l'ONJ.

« Robert Wyatt, c'est une histoire qui remonte au début de mon adolescence, des bribes de sa musique comme des promesses de

liberté, des portes entrouvertes conduisant entre les chemins sinueux qui trouvent leur tracé entre le jazz, la pop et mille autres choses qui ne portent pas toujours un nom… » Excellente idée tant le travail qu'il nous propose avec Around Robert Wyatt est d'une grande élégance, respectueuse sans être obséquieuse. Jamais confit dans la dévotion – même si l'on sent tout de suite qu'il est le fruit d'une admiration sincère et humble – ce disque-hommage ose mettre l'ONJ au service d'une expression artistique respectant le format initial de sa source - la chanson - plutôt que de la travestir un peu artificiellement en musique jazzifiante. Autrement dit, Yvinec a fait le choix de reprises qui sont souvent transfigurées mais qui, jamais, ne trahissent le répertoire de Wyatt. Les plus orthodoxes de l'étiquetage vont peut-être grincer des dents, mais ils auront tort de bouder leur plaisir devant un si belle recomposition.

Il faut dire aussi que, au-delà de ce séduisant aréopage que constitue l'ONJ, Daniel Yvinec a su s'entourer pour mener à bien son projet. En premier lieu en conviant un autre roi du crossover, Vincent Artaud, dont les arrangements subtils sont en parfaite symbiose avec le parti-pris originel de Wyatt : chaque note a sa raison d'être et les enluminures sont de magnifiques écrins pour les voix-reines - car la voix est bien l'élément vital d'Around Robert Wyatt, et comment pouvait-il en être autrement quand on sait à quel point l'univers du compositeur est « porté » par la sienne ? La voix captée seule avant que les musiciens ne la parent de leurs plus beaux atours instrumentaux.

Mais là où Daniel Yvinec semble vouloir aller plus loin dans son pari un peu fou, c'est lorsqu'il fait appel à d'autres voix, auxquelles on n'aurait pas forcément pensé. Celle de la chanteuse malienne Rokia Traoré en est le meilleur exemple : avec elle, il ose s'attaquer au monumental « Alifib », (Rock Bottom), composition éminemment personnelle et réputée inadaptable car elle constitue une magnifique déclaration d'amour à Alfreda Benge, compagne de Wyatt. Le chant susurré de ce dernier, ses onomatopées balbutiantes et comme surgies d'un long coma, cette surdose d'amour formaient-ils un tout trop intime ? Eh bien non : ici la coloration africaine offre au morceau une seconde vie hors de la sphère conjugale pour la propulser vers une touchante universalité. Ailleurs, Yael Naïm associée à un Arno plus chaviré que jamais pour un étonnant « Just As You Are », Daniel Darc se payant le luxe, le temps d'un véritable palimpseste sonore, de chambouler « O Caroline » au point qu'il faut une écoute très attentive pour reconnaître l'original, Camille épurant « Alliance » autant que faire se peut, la comédienne Irène Jacob, très à son aise sur « Del Mondo »... ici chaque chanteur a relevé le défi avec enthousiasme. Et cela se sent.

Ce disque s'insinue en nous, on y revient sans relâche. Et c'est bien là que réside sa réussite : s'il donne envie de replonger illico dans la discographie de l'artiste, il se suffit néanmoins à lui-même et n'a jamais à rougir de la comparaison.

« [...] c'est ce que j'ai toujours aimé chez Wyatt, ne pas avoir à douter de ses intentions, c'est sans doute ce geste si beau si juste et si rare qui est le fil conducteur de cette aventure ». Ces quelques phrases sont extraites du blog de l'ONJ Daniel Yvinec. Message reçu, monsieur Yvinec ; nous sommes à vos côtés.

Denis Desassis

>> Cet article sur le site de Citizen Jazz

Around Robert Wyatt

Michel Delville - juin 2009

L'Orchestre National de Jazz de France, Rokia Traoré, Irène Jacob, Camille, Arno, Yael Naïm et Daniel Darc s'attaquent au répertoire d'un des musiciens les plus inclassables de la scène musicale contemporaine.

Les hommages à Robert Wyatt n'ont pas manqué ces dernières années. Après les Soupsongs d'Annie Whitehead (dans lequel officiait un ancien membre de l'ONJ : le trompettiste Harry Beckett), l'ensemble Dondestan dirigé par Karen Mantler et John Greaves, [1] le trio allemand Market Rasen, les projets de Jean-Michel Marchetti, Pascal Comelade et Jean-Philippe Ramos - sans compter les reprises ponctuelles d'Aldo Romano, Hugh Hopper, Ultramarine, Kammerflimmer Kollektief et autres Tears for Fears - c'est au tour de l'Orchestre National de Jazz de France de nous offrir une sélection de 15 titres arrangés par Vincent Artaud sous la direction de Daniel Yvinec. [2] Outre les qualités inestimables de sa musique, une des raisons de ces multiples hommages au fondateur du Soft Machine est sans doute liée à son absence quasi-totale de la scène depuis mai 1975. A cette époque, il s'était produit à trois reprises aux côtés de Henry Cow, groupe fondateur de la Canterbury Scene. Depuis lors, ses apparitions en public se sont limitées à deux brèves interventions aux côtés de son ami David Gilmour et à une prestation au sein du Liberation Music Orchestra de Charlie Haden, programmé en juin 2009 dans le cadre du Meltdown Festival d'Ornette Coleman.

À l'écoute des premiers morceaux du disque, on est frappé d'emblée par la richesse et l'intelligence des arrangements de Vincent Artaud, moins connu du grand public pour son intérêt pour Wyatt, les musiques du Maghreb et l'électro-jazz que pour ses travaux d'arrangeur auprès d'Henri Salvador, Alain Bashung, Rodolphe Burger ou ... Dany Brillant. Virtuosité des harmonisations, pureté des timbres, singularité des formes, désarticulations rythmiques contrôlées, toutes ces qualités semblent réunies pour faire de ce coup d'essai un tour de force qui séduira les néophytes et permettra aux connaisseurs de découvrir les potentialités inédites de transformation et de recréation des originaux.

Certes, une écoute plus rapprochée révèle un certain académisme, un usage un peu trop ornemental des harmonies, un côté léché mais un peu froid, ainsi que quelques maniérismes minimalistes qui, à vrai dire, se marient bien à l'usage bien particulier de la répétition qui caractérise l'univers musical wyattien. Cela dit, il faut bien reconnaître que la musique de Wyatt - avec ses dissonances facétieuses, ses ruptures rythmiques et mélodiques, ses palimpsestes poly-vocaux instables et imprévisibles - ne se laisse pas domestiquer facilement. Il est par conséquent assez tentant - dans un contexte jazz - de la réduire à des thèmes suivis de grilles sur lesquelles s'illustrent les voix des interprètes et les solos des instrumentistes. Pour être tout à fait juste envers Artaud, cet exercice n'est pas dénué d'intérêt, loin de là, surtout quand des ensembles de la stature de l'ONJ d'Yvinec s'y livrent. D'autre part, on sait que les plus grands se sont heurtés aux mêmes obstacles : on songe, par exemple, aux adaptations de Jimi Hendrix par Gil Evans, dans lesquelles les grilles blues-rock originales deviennent, par la force des choses, des prisons où le grain de la voix et les idiosyncrasies mélodiques et rythmiques du guitariste se voient réduites au silence.

Bien que le résultat des efforts de l'ONJ soit une belle réussite dans l'ensemble, certaines compositions reprises sur Around Robert Wyatt subissent le même sort, et on ne peut s'empêcher de penser que cette démarche est aux antipodes de l'esprit et des méthodes viscéralement « DYI » qui président aux destinées de la musique de Wyatt, lequel me confiait récemment, non sans humour, qu'il travaillait « comme un animal », partant de quelques séquences d'accords exécutés au piano, gribouillant quelques partitions fragmentaires, composant et improvisant à partir de bouts de papier et de notes éparses.. C'est d'ailleurs en travaillant, ciselant et violentant la matière même du son comme un artisan, en direct et sans artifices, que Wyatt a réussi à produire une œuvre unique et radicale qui recèle des complexités qui excèdent (dans tous les sens du terme) les genres et formatages traditionnels.

Quoi qu'il en soit, les adaptations de l'ONJ sont infiniment plus gratifiantes que celles d'Evans, sans parler du récent et très décevant Melody Gainsbourg d'Andy Sheppard. En réalité, ce disque recèle quelques excellentes surprises qui, à elles seules, justifient une écoute plus attentive et généreuse que celle que je viens de livrer. Tout d'abord, il faut être reconnaissant aux membres de l'ONJ de nous épargner l'insupportable état d'esprit « encanaillé » des jazzmen et musiciens classiques qui s'attaquent à la musique pop-rock. Il convient de préciser que les dix musiciens d'Yvinec sont issus de la jeune génération de jazzmen français ayant subi l'influence de l'électro-jazz et dont la grande majorité maîtrise autant les effets électroniques et autres « sound objects » que leurs premiers instruments. Malgré leur jeune âge, ces jeunes gens ont déjà croisé la route de Louis Sclavis, Vincent Courtois, Glenn Ferris, Elise Caron (tiens, pourquoi n'est-elle pas présente sur ce disque ?), Charlier-Sourisse, et Marc Ducret, ce qui est en soi un gage de qualité et d'ouverture.

En tant que directeur artistique, Yvinec a également fait preuve d'audace en optant pour des morceaux qui, à trois ou quatre exceptions près, ne sont pas les plus connus du répertoire de Wyatt. Situés entre Claude Debussy, Gil Evans, Steve Reich, Carla Bley et Aphex Twin, les arrangements d'Alifib, Vandalusia, P.L.A., Gegenstand et Rangers in the Night sont d'indéniables réussites. C'est dans ces trois derniers titres - qui se voient malheureusement relégués aux marges de la première édition limitée du disque en tant que bonus tracks - que l'ONJ « se lâche » véritablement et réussit à contourner les pièges évoqués plus haut. C'est aussi dans ces pièces qu'Artaud et Yvinec ménagent des parenthèses astucieuses qui s'écartent de la traditionnelle formule « intro-theme-solo(s)-reprise-coda », n'hésitant pas à la faire exploser, comme dans Rangers in the Night, un des fleurons de ce CD dont on se demande encore une fois pourquoi il a été intégré au bonus disc (c'est aussi le cas du splendide P.L.A., porté par la magnifique voix de la chanteuse malienne Rokia Traoré, et qui aurait pu ouvrir dignement l'album).

Le choix et l'agencement des titres interpelle autant que celui des chanteurs et chanteuses invités aux côtés de Wyatt lui-même (présent sur cinq titres) : le fait que la moitié des compositions sélectionnées soit signée par d'autres compositeurs témoigne de l'importance capitale de la carrière « parallèle » menée par Wyatt en tant qu'interprète d'artistes tantôt célèbres, tantôt confidentiels. Constituer un tel florilège « autour » de Wyatt revient à reconnaître l'importance des multiples collaborations d'un artiste qui, pour citer Francis Ponge, « n'a pas son centre de gravité en lui même » et pratique l'art de la reprise avec autant de bonheur que celui de la composition. Construire un hommage à Wyatt en passant par Te Recuerdo Amanda de Victor Jara et Shipbuilding d'Elvis Costello c'est un peu comme si on voulait honorer Chet Baker en jouant My Funny Valentine ou encore John Coltrane en interprétant My Favorite Things, et c'est très bien.

En parcourant la liste des chanteurs et chanteuses invité(e)s de l'ONJ, on ne peut que s'interroger sur l'absence de John Greaves - résidant en France depuis de nombreuses années et co-auteur, avec Peter Blegvad, des somptueux Kew Rhône, Gegenstand et The Song [3] - de Karen Mantler ou encore de Julie Tippetts qui, à ce jour, est la seule chanteuse a avoir réussi à faire oublier l'original l'espace de quelques minutes, en interprétant les désormais classiques Sea Song et Muddy Mouth dans le cadre des Soupsongs d'Annie Whitehead. [4] Malgré quelques erreurs de casting (Daniel Darc en Gainsbourg-Baker hybride poussif et maladroit sur O Caroline et Arno beuglant un Captain Beefheart hors-sujet dans Just As You Are) les voix de femmes qui émaillent ce disque sauvent la mise par leur finesse, leur flexibilité et leur détermination à se détacher de leurs personnalités et de leurs styles propres pour mettre leur talent au service des paroles et de la musique qui leur ont été confiées, tout simplement. Au rayon des bonnes surprises, on retrouve Camille et Yael Naïm (rayonnantes de justesse et de sobriété sur Alliance et Shipbuilding, respectivement), la précitée Rokia Traoré (magnifique improvisatrice sur Alifib et nous offrant un P.L.A. plus hypnotique que jamais) et Irène Jacob, dont la voix fluide et frêle se fait pure émotion sur Del Mondo. Enfin, dans le livret on apprend, avec une grande tristesse - celle des grandes occasions manquées - que ce disque est dédié au très regretté Alain Bashung, qui devait interpréter Sea Song et s'y était essayé peu avant son décès.

Michel Delville enseigne la littérature comparée et la littérature américaine à l'ULg. Il est également musicien, fondateur, entre autres, du collectif electro-jazz The Wrong Object.

[1] Greaves est bien représenté sur ce disque puisqu'il en co-signe 3 morceaux écrits en collaboration avec Peter Blegvad.

[2] Orchestre National de Jazz sous la direction de Daniel Yvinec. Around Robert Wyatt. Bee Jazz Records, 2009. Pour une discographie complète, voir : www.disco-robertwyatt.com

[3] Ce dernier se distingue de la version originale par le manque total d'effets sur la voix de Wyatt, qui se révèle plus éthérée et plus juste que jamais.

[4] Soupsongs. Voiceprint/Jazzprint, 2000

>> Cet article sur le site de Magazine - Université de Liège

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Radio Experiment Rome
February 1981
2009

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

DOWNTOWN MUSIC GALLERY - Newsletter - July 31st, 2009

Radio Experiment Rome, February 1981 (Rai Trade 0014; Italy)

Bruce Lee Gallanter

Previously unreleased material made by Robert Wyatt (Soft Machine) in the studio for an Italian radio program in 1981. Wyatt himself described the experience as "a chance to expand ideas to bring to life outside the music business, which is just one big fashion industry..normally you have to obtain money for studio time and aim at a particular recording for a particular product. So after three days of testing, the eight-track started officially rolling - piano, vocals, hi-hat, a jaw harp - laying down track after track, until the Roman radio guys ended up with 45 minutes of music, including pieces like "Born Again Cretin" (a song about Nelson Mandela), "The Opium War", with garbled 'radio-like' vocals and "Heathens Have No Souls", featuring a jaw harp.
"This is an extraordinary and completely unique work from our main inspiration and reluctant hero, Robert Wyatt. Giving Mr. Wyatt a week's worth of experimentation in a radio in Rome was a wonderful idea and the results are fascinating and bizarre. "Opium War" begins our journey with a transmission from another planet. Wyatt's distinctive voice speak/sings his special words about the British invasion of China. Words sped up, slowed down and mutated in layers with jew's harp, skeletal percussion and enchanting minimal keyboards. Mr. Wyatt has always used his voice(s) and weaved them in selective layers to create a variety of characters. This is truly the way a radio studio can be used for creative explorations and Wyatt does his best to take us on a personal journey. Since Mr. Wyatt was given time to prepare in the studio, he is able to craft exquisite and mesmerizing voices, melodies and backing rhythms. There is something immensely charming about the way Wyatt has created these silly/serious songs, sometimes on-the-spot. I dig the way "L'Albero Degli Zoccoli" sounds as if it flowing backwards for the first half and it turns into a delightful wordless sort of ballad. On "Holy War", Wyatt warbles "Anarchy in the UK" & "Onwards Christian Soldiers" while swirling layers of other vocal lines, each one adding another mystery to be revealed through time and consideration. In many ways this disc is a long lost treasure that bridges the gap between the seventies ('Rockbottom' & 'Ruth...') and the eighties period of Robert Wyatt's sparse recording career. Charlie Parker's theme song, "Billie's Bounce" gets a short yet infectious reading and "Born Again Cretin" gets a tantalizing, thoughtful version. For us Canterbury fans, this is like manna from above, that is if you do believe in miracles, this is one to savor."

REVUE & CORRIGÉE - Décembre 2009 - #82

Radio Experiment Rome, February 1981
Rai Trade RTPJ 0014 - Dist. Orkhêstra

Dino

Pendant trois journées en février 1981, Robert WYATT expérimenta et enregistra dans les studios de la radio italienne, répondant à la demande de Pasquale Santoli. Le résultat, un disque de 45 minutes inédit à ce jour (la bande fut diffusée à l'époque sur les ondes de la RAI), où l'on entend un WYATT s'aventurant sur d'autres espaces plus sauvages que ceux que l'on connaît, grâce à la guimbarde notamment et divers objets (percussion) non identifiés. Il a certainement été influencé par un nouvel environnement technique, celui de la radio et de ses techniciens et une ambiance autre, l'Italie n'étant pas l'Angleterre. Quelque chose de brut bouscule sensiblement la douceur habituelle du chanteur. Comme un retour à une certaine liberté de l'improvisation. Ce qui nous intéresse ici, c'est la présence de l'artiste au travail. Mieux qu'un document forcément nécessaire aux fidèles amateurs du créateur de Soft Machine et de Matching Mole, une possible introduction à une œuvre importante de notre temps.

GRNNND ZERO - 7 mars 2010 - grrrndzero.org

Robert Wyatt - Radio Experiment Rome 1981

Méga Méfiant

Février 1981. Au lieu de passer ses vacances à réfléchir sur le sens du sacrifice de Jésus, Robert Wyatt décide de répondre positivement à une commande de la RAI, et de passer quelques jours dans les studios de la radio italienne pour l'émission Un Certo Discorso et d'y enregistrer des trucs selon son humeur et la quantité de résidus de drogues encore collés dans sa barbe depuis Soft Machine.
L'idée de la RAI était de filmer et de capter le processus de création, lorsqu'il ne souffre ni de préparations ni de contraintes de production, et de célébrer ainsi une sorte de communion mêlant fulgurance, voyeurisme et snobisme. Une partie de la session de Wyatt est ressortie l'hiver dernier, sous le nom de Radio Experiment Rome. Comme un ours sortant de son hibernation, Wyatt y improvise tout seul, avec sa voix, une guimbarde, un piano et quelques percussions primitives. Au-delà du côté on-réchauffe-un-mythe-en-brûlant-ses-fonds-de-tiroirs, ces enregistrements rappellent discrètement à l'univers tout entier l'ampleur de son génie. Oh oui oh oui, écoute donc comment il fait d'une simple guimbarde la bande son d'une cavalcade psychédélique (Heathens Have No Souls).
Armé des différentes machines obscures qui peuplent un studio de radio, Wyatt s'amuse à explorer les principes de l'enregistrement multipiste, de la diffraction vocale et de la modulation en général. Il étire ainsi un son à la fois régressif, pour son côté minimaliste faussement enfantin, et très complexe, selon tout un jeu d'échos et de désynchronisation sonore. C'est souvent très bizarre, parfois austère (Billie's Bounce), mais le plus souvent très inspiré. Mixant sa voix comme des fruits frais, c'est-à-dire en préservant le goût et le piquant des vitamines, il s'élève en héros plaintif d'une époque où Mandela faisait encore des pompes en prison (Born Again Cretin) et où Tatcher interdisait à ses concitoyens de chanter l'Internationale sous la douche (Holy War).

Mais Robert Wyatt n'est pas qu'un ninja-marxiste, ou un vieil hippie mal coiffé vestige du psychédélisme des années 60, c'est un chamane postmoderne, un conteur mystique, capable en une succession de humhumhum de planter un décor massif, noueux et tortueux comme une mangrove urbaine, qui aurait surgit soudainement au cœur d'une Venise désertée, où les quelques maisons encore habitées dériveraient doucement, à la merci de la plus sourde mélancolie (désolé pour cet élan, mais on ne peut pas brider le lyrisme au fond d'un cœur trop souvent mal arrosé). Écoute Prove Sparse et sens l'émotion déborder de ta bouche bée.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Mop Meuchiine Plays
Robert Wyatt
2010

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

CITIZEN JAZZ - 18 octobre 2010

Mop Meuchiine plays Robert Wyatt
Le Chant du Monde

Denis Desassis

P. Maupeu (gt, bj), J.-B. Réhault (bs, saxhorn, acc), H. Vincent (cello), C. Piromalli (p, kb), N. Le Moullec (b, voix), B. Hurault (dr, elec)

La musique de Robert Wyatt constituerait-elle à elle seule un univers qu'on peut explorer indéfiniment ? On serait tenté de le croire, surtout de ce côté-ci de la Manche, où les hommages se succèdent avec un légitime respect mêlé de beaucoup d'imagination et d'originalité. Wyatt est bien vivant et pourtant, on le célèbre à intervalles réguliers, on lui érige de belles statues musicales comme on le ferait d'un génie disparu. Il y a quelques mois seulement, par exemple [1], Daniel Yvinec faisait graviter les dix musiciens-funambules de l'ONJ autour du répertoire [2] de l'illustre batteur mais aussi chanteur des premières années de Soft Machine et du très créatif Matching Mole. Robert Wyatt, artiste extérieur à toutes les classifications, brisé dans son élan, au début des années 70, par une chute qui le priva de l'usage de ses jambes. Depuis ce fatidique moment, Wyatt le sage assis nous fait parvenir de ses nouvelles, à intervalles plutôt irréguliers, sous la forme de disques mystérieusement enchanteurs, souvent minimalistes et toujours empreints d'un humanisme, à l'image de son engagement politique de citoyen du monde.

Et voici qu'une bande de jeunes Français vient en découdre sur ce même terrain qui, riche et propice aux inventions, n'en est pas moins glissant. L'hommage a ses vertus, mais comporte des risques. Celui de l'effacement derrière la forte personnalité d'un artiste d'exception, mais aussi celui d'un trop grand respect interdisant toute prise de risque. Or, avec Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt, on est très loin de toute tiédeur. Mop Meuchiine, créé par le guitariste Pascal Maupeu [3] se paie en effet le luxe d'une lecture culottée du répertoire de Wyatt, dont il s'affranchit avec un esprit libertaire des plus réjouissants. Ses six musiciens, tous de haut niveau et très ouverts à l'expérimentation – des collègues et néanmoins amis avec lesquels il a partagé diverses aventures [sic] – n'hésitent pas à démultiplier les climats, y compris au cœur d'une même composition, et savent alterner, sans jamais donner l'impression de ruptures artificielles, des instants de sérénité avec d'autres, plus violents, voire assourdissants, richement dosés en électricité, émaillés de nombreuses surprises en provenance de l'électronique ou du mariage réussi d'instruments comme le banjo, l'accordéon ou le violoncelle. Mop Meuchiine pratique avec bonheur l'art de la montée en puissance et de la scansion, donnant à sa musique une force et des couleurs qui en font une réussite.

Pour mener à bien cet hommage, Mop Meuchiine est allé puiser à la source de plusieurs albums-phares de Wyatt : l'incontournable Rock Bottom (1974) bien sûr [4], pour une version choc de « Sea Song » qui s'avère d'emblée un des sommets du disque. Quelques notes de piano légères, égrenées sur un écrin de bruitages électroniques, puis s'installe très vite une atmosphère surchargée d'électricité avant que Jean-Baptiste Réhault ne nous tire des larmes par un impressionnant chorus de saxophone baryton. Juste avant un final assourdissant, d'orage sonore qui ne trouve un exutoire que dans son enchaînement avec un « Instant Pussy » [5] tout en finesse où se conjuguent la guitare de Maupeu et l'accordéon de Réhault. Mop Meuchiine rend ensuite une double visite à l'album de Wyatt Old Rottenhat (1985) avec « British Road » et « Gharbzadegi », nouvelle occasion d'assister à une déconstruction-reconstruction qui respire l'intelligence inventive. L'association de l'accordéon et du violoncelle d'Hugues Vincent sur « British Road » ajoute à la palette d'un disque déjà riche en couleurs. Derrière gronde la basse de Nicolas Le Moullec, qui offre une aire de jeu aux claviers de Cédric Piromalli, et la reprise d'« I'm A Believer » [6], elle aussi insolente de vitalité, passe de la brit pop à un rock presque heavy metal martelé par la batterie de Bertrand Hurault, pour se fracasser en un final très free où le piano fait planer l'ombre de Cecil Taylor.

Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt, qui met aussi à l'honneur des reprises extraites de Comic Opera (2007), du très sous-estimé Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard (1975), mais propose aussi une version de « Calyx » qui figurait en 1974 sur le premier album du groupe Hatfield & The North, digne héritier de l'Ecole de Canterbury, renferme beaucoup de promesses par sa vitalité virtuose mise au service d'une imagination débridée. C'est le meilleur hommage qu'on puisse rendre à la musique de Robert Wyatt.

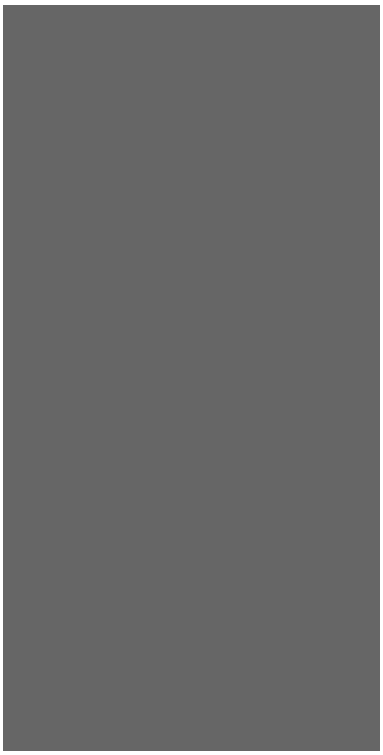
[1] Citons aussi le Dondestan - The Wyatt Project de Sylvain Kassap, John Greaves, Hélène Labarrière, Jacques Mahieux, Karen Mantler et Dominique Pifarély mais aussi, Outre-Manche cette fois, le Soup Songs d'Annie Whitehead.

[2] Around Robert Wyatt, Beejazz, 2009.

[3] Fidèle à l'humour du grand Robert, qui baptisa son groupe Matching Mole en quittant Soft Machine, Pascal Maupeu lui lance un clin d'œil amical en appelant son groupe Mop Meuchiine, une appellation générique qu'on retrouve aussi dans son duo Shampoo Meuchiine.

[4] Un disque qui apparaît aujourd'hui comme fondateur de l'œuvre.

[5] Sur le premier album de Matching Mole (1972).



[6] Elle-même étant une reprise (1974) des Monkees.

REVUE & CORRIGÉE - N° 87 - mars 2011

Mop Meuchiine plays Robert Wyatt
Le Chant du Monde 274 869 Dist. Harmonia Mundi

Paul-Yves Bourand

Manifestement accomodé à toute les sauces, le grand Robert! Emmené par Pascal Maupeu, MOP MEUCHIINE - sextette électrique issu de la région orléanaise - a non seulement le bon goût de lui rendre hommage, mais aussi de donner des couleurs parfois inusitées au répertoire que s'est constitué le barbu de Louth (par exemple banjo et accordéon dans "The British Road"). De l'énergie, les lascars en ont, "Gharbzadegi" en est ainsi tout retourné. Puisant autant dans les albums classiques de Wyatt "Rock Bottom" et "Ruth Is Stranger...", que dans d'autres plus récents - "Old Rottenhat", "Comicopera" - mais aussi faisant un détour par Hatfield & The North (avec "Calix") et le tube de Neil Diamond "I'm A Believer", la plupart des interprétations données ici sont uniquement instrumentales. Outre le patron, - responsable des cordes frettées -, se font entendre: Jean-Baptiste Réhault (saxophone baryton, accordéon & saxhorn alto), Hugues Vincent (violoncelle), Cédric Piromalli (claviers), Bernard Hurault (batterie & électronique) et Nicolas Le Moullec (basse & chant) - qui s'en sort avec les honneurs côté vocal, en dépit de la différence de tessiture existant avec le registre du Maître. Quant à Wyatt lui-même, il apparaît trois fois sur ce disque: dans le standard a capella "Locomotive" (Thelonious Monk/P. Brown), puis deux extraits d'interviews.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

For the Ghosts Within' 2010

Wyatt/Atzmon/Stephen

More information about this album

UNCUT - NOVEMBER 2010

Robert Wyatt/Gilad Atzmon/Ros Stephen - The Ghost Within

Neil Spencer

Sur Moving, ethereal and not a little odd – it's the jazz standards songbook as you've never heard it before...

Since his early days in Soft Machine, Robert Wyatt has always occupied a distinct but ambiguous territory, a place where jazz and popular song bleed into each other and are informed by a wider culture of poetry, politics and painting. Who else would sing "I'm A Believer" alongside Billie Holiday's "Strange Fruit"?
The Ghosts Within typifies the uniqueness of Wyatt's oeuvre, though on this occasion it's not just his. Violinist, composer and tango player Ros Stephen plus saxophone tyro and political writer Gilad Atzmon make this an equilateral triangle of talents. Atzmon has previously played on Wyatt's albums and collaborated with Stephen on Gilad With Strings, a project honouring Charlie Parker's dalliance with classical orchestration.
The spirit of bebop maestro 'Bird' Parker is just one that stalks this luscious, plaintive song cycle, which blends original Wyatt compositions with jazz standards like "Round Midnight" and "Lush Life". Its atmospheric arrangements and bravura playing are as much part of its appeal as Wyatt's evergreen vocals, which are little different at 65 from 40 years ago.
The opener, "Laura", encapsulates the collective approach. Written by Johnny Mercer for the movie of the same name, "Laura" has been widely covered by crooners like Sinatra and Nat King Cole, and was given instrumental wings when Charlie Parker covered it. Stephen's strings are more daring than the sweet arrangements laid on in the 1950s, however, with Wyatt likewise opting to sing slightly off-key, Chet Baker-style. Gilad's playing has the fluidity and lyricism of Parker, though elsewhere on the album, his clarinet playing crosses Bird's style with the music Atzmon grew up with in Israel.
In its way The Ghosts Within is quite a shape-shifter. "Lullaby For Irena" and the title track – both Wyatt tunes with lyrics by his long-time partner Alfreda Benge – continue the reflective mood, but "The Ghosts Within" soon heads off on a tango-laden tangent and is sung by Tali Atzmon, Gilad's actress wife.
More surprising still is the way in which "Where Are They Now" goes from a playful, 1920s tune into electro beats with a middle-Eastern rap; it's entertaining enough but its upbeat mood strikes a jarring note on what is essentially a contemplative album.
"Maryan" – which despite the title is a song about salmon returning upriver to spawn – originally appeared on Wyatt's 1998 album

Schleep. The version here is slightly less dreamy, more propulsive, with Atzmon's soprano sax dancing against a growling undercurrent of synths.
Thereafter it's jazz evergreens that dominate. "Round Midnight" drifts past on tremulous strings, its melody whistled by Wyatt, picked out on concertina and blown unshowily by Atzmon. "Lush Life", a song written by Duke Ellington's sidekick Billy Strayhorn, is another much-covered favourite, as is "What's New", most famously rendered by Sinatra. Both are played straight, setting discordant strings against Atzmon's melodic saxes and Wyatt's searching, pathos-laden voice. Irresistible. Duke Ellington's "In A Sentimental Mood" is principally a showcase for Atzmon's clarinet, with Wyatt confining himself to a non-verbal singalong.
Wyatt last covered Chic's "At Last I Am Free" back in 1980. This new version, suggested by Stephen, is primarily a mood piece, Wyatt singing just the lines "At last I am free/I can hardly see in front of me" over a trembling wash of strings and wistful concertina. That leaves what must be the album's surprise cut, "What A Wonderful World". Forever defined by Louis Armstrong's original, sentimental take, this was surely a cover version too far, an accident waiting to happen. Yet Stephen, Wyatt and Atzmon turn the song into something fresh and optimistic. Remarkable.

ROBERT WYATT/GILAD ATZMON/ROS STEPHEN

The Ghosts Within DOMINO

★★★★

Moving, ethereal and not a little odd – it's the jazz standards songbook as you've never heard it before. By Neil Spencer

Schleep. The version here is slightly less dreamy, more propulsive, with Atzmon's soprano sax dancing against a growling undercurrent of synths.
Thereafter it's jazz evergreens that dominate. "Round Midnight" drifts past on tremulous strings, its melody whistled by Wyatt, picked out on concertina and blown unshowily by Atzmon. "Lush Life", a song written by Duke Ellington's sidekick Billy Strayhorn, is another much-covered

Q&A

Robert Wyatt singing "Wonderful World" is a turn-up…
Gilad ends his set with it, 'cos he's funny like that. I would only attempt it and the other covers with musicians who know what they are doing. Gilad has been a Mozart player, he can be-bop on clarinet, he's amazing. Ros did such a good job it made it hard for me to fuck up. She didn't stick down a blanket of strings, she wrote proper charts and it was interesting negotiating her changes. I sometimes think these young classical players are the most open-minded musicians – they are so unpretentious, with none of that snootiness you used to get.

Why didn't you sing "Sentimental Mood" and "Round Midnight"?
The words aren't as good as the melody – the lyrics have just been stuck on to make them into songs. One I whistled, one I hummed. Me anglicising the songs is just a bit of nip and tuck, not an ideological statement; "Lush Life" is technically hard, a mountain to climb for the unsuspecting singer.

You are still politically involved…
There's a W H Auden line – "We are all conscripts of our time". The types of racism, sexism and gay-bashing we have known are diminished, but there is still a global racism in operation. In October we are planning an event to raise awareness about Gaza.

What else are you up to?
Watching Swedish detectives on TV! I have hundreds of snaps of chords and words waiting to be assembled. I'm 65 now. If I had a proper job I'd be retired.

TELERAMA - N° 3171 - 23 OCTOBRE 2010

For the Ghosts Within' - Robert Wyatt

François Gorin

Sur Comicopera, son dernier album en date, le généreux Wyatt avait tellement d'invités (Paul Weller, Brian Eno, Phil Manzanera, Monica Vasconcelos...) qu'on pouvait perdre, au long de cette pièce en trois actes, certaine cohérence. For the ghosts within est un vrai travail collectif : le saxophoniste israélien Gilad Atzmon, sur qui Wyatt ne tarit pas d'éloges, et la violoniste anglaise Ros Stephen, à la tête du Sigamos String Quartet, sont crédités au même titre que notre barbu bien-aimé.

A l'exception notable du morceau titre (où une chanteuse vient le secouer pendant près de huit minutes sur des modulations arabes) et du sifflotant-rappant Where are they now ? qui suit, c'est pourtant la voix de Robert Wyatt qui est au coeur des débats. Voix si familière, inchangée, « de vieil enfant » (image un peu facile et qui demande quelque imagination). Voix douce et rêche, consolante et abyssale. Comment, quarante ans après son premier album solo, le plus agité des chanteurs assis arrive-t-il à renouveler son énergie, son envie ? Il prend le chemin des standards et défilent ici Laura, What's new ?, Lush Life, In a sentimental mood. Tous ravivés par la couleur orientale de l'alto d'Atzmon, lustrés par les cordes du quatuor de Stephen et interprétés par Wyatt comme s'ils étaient d'hier. Round midnight, qu'il a déjà chanté, bénéficie d'un traitement instrumental, et l'envoi se fait sur What a wonderful world, sans le rocaillement jovial d'Armstrong mais avec toute la candeur désa-busée de Robert le magnifique. Toujours un peu fou sous ses airs de vieux sage.

>> L'interview sur le site de Télérama

LES INROCKS - 16 NOVEMBRE 2010

Les fantômes de Robert Wyatt Robert Wyatt - For the Ghosts Within'
Domino - Pias

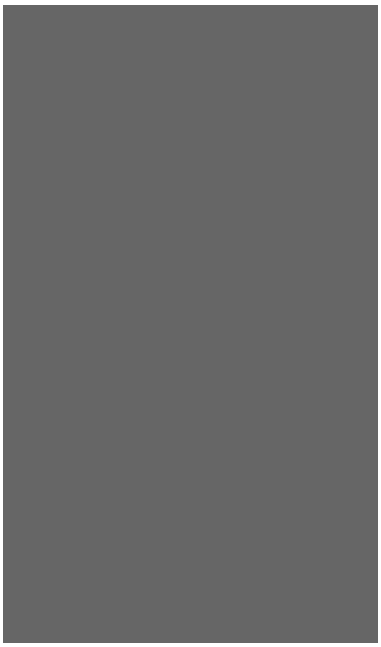
Francis Dordor

Accompagné d'hommes libres, Robert Wyatt enchante en reprenant des classiques de tous temps et de toutes origines. Où il a le courage, malgré tout, de chanter What a Wonderful World.

On est loin de la version foutage de gueule vomie par Nick Cave et Shane MacGowan. Ou de l'esprit grinçant de Michael Moore qui l'étale sur des images de guerre dans Bowling for Columbine. Quand Robert Wyatt reprend le tube de Louis Armstrong What a Wonderful World, c'est bête, mais on a envie d'y croire. On a l'espoir insensé de retrouver l'enchantement originel du monde rien qu'en scrutant le bleu du ciel et la verdoyante parure des arbres. Oublions le vagissement des bébés…

Et quel interprète mieux désigné pour rénover ce standard passé par toutes les intonations, de la plus sarcastique à la plus niaise, qu'un homme de 65 ans qui vient d'en passer trente-sept cloué dans un fauteuil roulant ? Quel messager plus crédible pour porter un optimisme si peu conforme à l'air du temps, si peu raccord avec l'actualité que cet éternel enfant au regard tendre et malicieux, à la voix aérienne, à l'idéalisme politique demandant encore l'impossible ?

"C'est sans doute la chose la plus barrée que j'aie jamais eu à faire. Je ne pratique pas l'ironie ou le cynisme dans mes chansons. Je ne sais pas faire ça. Je suis conscient à quel point les choses vont mal aujourd'hui, combien il est difficile d'être optimiste au plan politique, combien l'espoir tend à se dissoudre en beaucoup d'entre nous. A quoi ai-je pensé en enregistrant What a Wonderful World pour que ça sonne vrai ? Ça va vous paraître idiot mais à des choses aussi simples qu'au sourire d'un enfant, à des amoureux qui se promènent dans le parc…"



Il y a quinze ans, Robert Wyatt a fait une grave dépression qui a failli le faire chavirer définitivement. Il a dû arrêter l'alcool, non sans mal, non sans regrets, et il entend depuis, tout en s'excusant du cliché, "regarder le bon côté des choses". Son idée du bonheur se résume à ça : être chez lui, avec sa femme Alfie et quelques amis, à écouter de vieux disques. A "savourer les fantômes", comme il dit…

Son What a Wonderful World clôt un album savoureux et inclassable : For the Ghosts within'. Allez, ces fantômes de l'intérieur n'ont pas l'air bien méchants. Ils défilent devant nous comme une chenille de vieilles chansons qui ont traversé le mur des époques. Outre Wonderful World, Wyatt y reprend des standards de l'ère du 78t comme Lush Life, What's New ?, Laura, des rengaines ouvre-boîtes pour concentré de nostalgie.

Il siffle sur le Round Midnight de Thelonious Monk. Relance la carrière de Maryan, parmi ses plus belles créations. Rafraîchit ce At Last I Am Free de Chic, enregistré une première fois en 1982, avec cette sincérité fragile s'éternisant en lui. C'est là presque un exercice de style tardif, l'album d'un crooner assis se révélant dans la douceur de l'automne. Une idée pas si folle pour l'ancien batteur de Soft Machine, figure décalée de la scène rock qui a créé sa propre niche où accoucher d'une portée d'albums sans concession, populaires et progressifs.

Et même assez conforme à son goût pour la romance pur sucre – entrevue avec cette reprise d'Insensatez d'Antonio Carlos Jobim sur son avant-dernier album Cuckooland – ou pour la voix soyeuse de Nat King Cole, son chanteur préféré. Il est accompagné ici par les cordes du Sigamos String Quartet, qu'emmène la violoniste Ros Stephen, et par les anches du jazzman Gilad Atzmon, les deux initiateurs de ce projet dont Robert n'est que l'invité de marque.

Un étrange trio pour un projet bien à part, ni vraiment jazz, ni tout à fait pop, un peu classique et même hip-hop. Stephen a cousu des arrangements d'une rare élégance qui habillent de neuf le romantisme un peu suranné des thèmes. Tandis qu'avec sa clarinette et son saxophone Atzmon en orientalise certains, en "parkerise" d'autres. Amis, Atzmon et Wyatt collaborent régulièrement. Militant antisioniste exilé à Londres et blacklisté par le gouvernement israélien, Atzmon déloge de ce nouveau projet des intentions par trop passéistes en y introduisant des sonorités electro et en invitant sur un morceau deux rappeurs palestiniens de Ramallah.

Juste assez pour doter l'ensemble d'un contre-champ, de rendre son anachronisme assumé pertinent dans un contexte de désastre régional aux résonances planétaires. Une manière de dire que la musique ne se divise plus aujourd'hui. Que les peuples feraient peut-être bien d'en faire autant. Qu'"il y a dans de vieilles chansons assez de beauté pour conjurer un peu du malheur ambiant", dit Robert Wyatt. Assez pour témoigner que le monde peut être vraiment wonderful.

>> L'interview sur le site des Inrocks

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Live At Henie Onstad Art Centre
1971
2009

Soft Machine

More information about this album

REVUE & CORRIGEE - N° 83 - mars 2010

SOFT MACHINE 'Live At Henie Onstad Art Centre 1971'
Reel Recordings RR014/015 Dist. Orkhêstra

Pierre Durr

La machine molle reste une formation mythique de la fin des années 60 au mitant des années 70. Elle réalisa à l'époque, avec ses divers changements de personnels, 8 albums, auxquels on pouvait rajouter les enregistrements Byg avec Daevid Allen. Depuis, on connaît une inflation d'enregistrements live, dont une grande partie couvre principalement les années 70 à 72, à un moment où Robert Wyatt s'était arrêté de composer pour le groupe tout en continuant à assurer à la batterie. Une inflation nourrie par la concurrence entre Voiceprint et Cuneiform, à laquelle se greffe également le label Hux. Indispensables ou non, selon votre degré d'affinité avec cette scène, ces enregistrements véhiculent souvent les mêmes titres, issus principalement de "Third" et de "4". Toutefois il arrive que certaines exhumations d'enregistrements live proposent un programme quelque peu différent. C'est le cas de ce "Live at Henie Onstad Art Center 1971 ". Lors de cette prestation qui eut lieu à Hovikodden en Norvège le 28 février 1971, le quartet — qui réunissait alors Mike Ratledge, Hugh Hopper, Elton Dean et Robert Wyatt - proposa alors deux sets d'un seul tenant, certes alimentés par des compositions alors récentes, mais parcourues par de folles improvisations au cours desquelles diverses manipulations électroniques conféraient une approche inédite (en tout cas sur le support CD). Ce qui fait de cette production un album vraiment "nouveau", d'autant plus que ce (double) CD est accompagné d'une version CD-Rom présentant le lieu, des interviews, des informations diverses.

Robert Wyatt '68
2013

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

LIBÉRATION - 11 ET 12 JANVIER 2014

Robert Wyatt - '68 (Cuneiform)

S. Fa.

Le basculement de Robert Wyatt du psychédélisme vers la pop aérienne est bien antérieure à l'accident qui lui a bousillé les jambes en 1973. C'est ce que vient rappeler une session longtemps oubliée de 1968. A l'époque, Wyatt sort d'une tournée de Soft Machine avec Jimi Hendrix, avec qui il tâtonne en soirée. Ces quatre pistes révèlent la transformation déjà enclenchée de sa musique vers un ailleurs très personnel. Un moment inabouti, mais précieux pour les fans du barbu magique.

TRAVERSES N°34- JANVIER 2014

Robert Wyatt - '68 (Cuneiform Records / Orkhêstra Int.)

Stéphane Fougère

Les caves de SOFT MACHINE ont à présent été dûment explorées, et nombre de grands crus d'archives en ont été exhumés, le label Cuneiform s'étant en la matière taillé la part du lion (cf. les albums live Noisette, Backwards, Spaced, Virtually, Grides, Middle Earth Masters...). Alors si on creusait un peu dans les caves de Robert WYATT, histoire de tirer sur une corde proche ?
Le même Cuneiform avait déjà commencé avec Solar Flores Burn for You (2003), qui contenait une sélection d'enregistrements rares ou inédits s'étalant de 1972 à 2003. Il récidive à présent avec ce '68 qui, comme son titre l'indique et contrairement à son prédécesseur, est centré sur une seule session d'enregistrement provenant de la « glorieuse époque » et que l'on croyait évidemment disparue ! C'était compter sans la ténacité de Steve FEIGENBAUM, (Monsieur Cuneiform), qui a décidément le nez fin pour dénicher les perles rares dont l'intérêt historique est de premier ordre et la qualité musicale de même niveau.
Cette session a donc été enregistrée à Hollywood et New York City en octobre et en novembre 1968, après la tournée que SOFT MACHINE a effectuée aux États-Unis, jouant en première partie du Jimi HENDRIX EXPERIENCE. Robert et Jimi s'étant apparemment bien entendu comme larrons en foire, ledit HENDRIX a ainsi prêté main forte à WYATT en s'emparant d'une guitare basse bien vrombissante sur le morceau Slow Walking Talk, ici présent. (Il s'agit à l'origine d'un morceau que Brian HOPPER avait écrit pour les WILDE FLOWERS et que Robert WYATT retravaillera pour engendrer Soup Song, sur son album Ruth is Stranger than Richard.) Pour les scrupuleux fans d'archives wyattiennes, cette pièce n'aura rien d'inédit puisqu'elle figurait déjà dans Calling Long Distance de Jimi HENDRIX ainsi que dans la compilation de Robert WYATT Flotsam Jetsam, parue en 1994 chez Rough Trade. N'empêche, plusieurs fans se sont demandés à l'époque de la sortie de ladite compile si d'autres morceaux de la même session avaient été enregistrés par les deux compères. '68 répond par l'affirmative à la première partie de la question, et par la négative à la seconde partie.

Les trois autres morceaux inclus dans '68 ont été enregistrés par le seul Robert WYATT, lequel assure donc tous les instruments (piano, orgue, basse, batterie, percussions) et bien sûr le chant, à l'exception de la version de Moon in June, dont la seconde moitié a été captée en 1969 en Angleterre, avec la participation des compères soft-machiniens Mike RATLEDGE et feu Hugh HOPPER. Là encore, la version n'est pas inédite, puisqu'un extrait figurait également dans Flotsam Jetsam et que son intégralité avait été incluse dans un CD d'archives de SOFT MACHINE, le déjà cité Backwards (chez Cuneiform en 2002). Et histoire de compliquer l'affaire, cette démo de Moon in June était, sur la première édition de Backwards, tirée d'un acétate ; sur l'édition suivante, elle provenait d'une bande nettoyée. C'est la même que l'on retrouve sur '68, cette fois remastérisée et offrant la meilleure qualité possible.

On pourra s'agacer de ce recyclage incessant, mais certains diront que c'est pour la bonne cause, et il n'y a rien de tel pour élever cette version démo au rang de « classique » indispensable, et dont la structure est globalement très proche de la plus célèbre version studio de l'album Third. Les analystes pointilleux s'amuseront donc à décortiquer les différences entre les deux versions, la plus grande différence concernant bien entendu les paroles. Cette version démo est en effet affublée de textes que l'on jurerait improvisés par WYATT, ou au moins écrits durant la session puisque Robert y fait allusion au contexte dans lequel il enregistre, à l'instar de la version BBC que l'on peut entendre sur le double CD paru chez Hux Records.

Il n'y a donc que les deux autres enregistrements inclus dans '68 qui soient véritablement inédits. Chelsea, qui démarre ce CD d'archives, est une sorte de balade pop-soûl dont WYATT a écrit la musique, et qui sera plus tard retravaillée pour devenir Signed Curtain, intégré au premier album de MATCHING MOLE.

Quant aux Rivmic Mélodies, si elles sont moins convaincantes que Moon in June dans leur façon d'assembler chansons et séquences instrumentales en un tout cohérent, elles n'en gardent pas moins un caractère dadaïste bien trempé qui est ici encore plus mis en évidence que dans la version figurant dans le Volume Two de SOFT MACHINE. Le passage où Robert WYATT y récite l'alphabet anglais y est savoureusement prolongé et décuplé par le re-recording et garantit une bonne poilade pour l'auditeur ! Pas triste non plus est le segment correspondant à Dada Was Here, dont la tonalité d'« espagnolade » prononcée est due à une progression d'accords inspirée, selon WYATT, par McCoy TYNER, et par la si distincte approche de la langue espagnole de son interprète ! Pour le reste, WYATT brode et brode encore au piano et à la batterie selon le feeling du moment, c'est dire si cette version des Rivmic Mélodies s'éloigne suffisamment de celle de Volume II pour susciter l'intérêt.

Au total, même si '68 ne contient que 50 % de matériel vraiment inédit, il a au moins le mérite d'une cohérence de contenu puisqu'il reconstitue l'intégralité (enfin, à ce qu'il semble !) d'une session de grande valeur artistique, et donne l'impression d'assister à un moment d'histoire et de genèse particulièrement prenant. Ce '68 s'écoute comme un corpus de versions alternatives de quelques-unes des plus belles pièces du WYATT de l'époque SOFT MACHINE, une sorte d'album parallèle éclairant le point de vue de Robert. Du reste, l'illustration de pochette du CD (une photo du visage de Robert jeune) ressemble à s'y méprendre à une pochette de disque de l'époque, donnant la sensation d'avoir affaire à une réédition.

La lecture du livret s'avère non moins passionnante que l'écoute du CD, puisqu'il retranscrit un entretien qu'Aymeric LEROY a mené récemment avec WYATT et qu'il a complété de citations d'autres entretiens, y compris avec Hugh HOPPER et Phyllis SMITH (une copine d'époque de Robert), de manière à offrir au lecteur un maximum d'informations sur ces moments que l'artiste a passés à New York. On sent que Robert WYATT a dû forcer un peu sa mémoire, même si celle-ci reste parfois lacunaire ou confuse, attribuant l'écriture du texte de Chelsea à Kevin AYERS, tandis que le regard plus biographiquement pointu d'Aymeric LEROY en attribue la paternité à Daevid ALLEN. Vous verrez que, bientôt, on aura droit à une nouvelle édition de '68 avec force corrections biographiques et nouvelle remastérisation ou remixage !
Blague à part, '68 a tout de l'album ultime du sieur WYATT, et son acquisition en est au pire indispensable, au mieux obligatoire. Mais vous l'avez déjà, non ?

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

One Night Stand
2015

W M W S

More information about this album

CITIZEN JAZZ - 16 avril 2023

WMWS : One Night Stand
Sur la platine / Une histoire sans lendemain

Robert Wyatt, Dave MacRae, Gary Windo, Richard Sinclair : WMWS ou l'histoire d'un enregistrement unique.

Denis Desassis

WMWS, One Night Stand. Un disque qui n'aurait pas dû voir le jour. Ou plutôt – soyons précis – qui doit son existence à une série de circonstances sur lesquelles il apparaît que les personnages impliqués ne pouvaient pas forcément agir. Il est temps de vous raconter en quelques mots cette histoire très particulière.

Nous sommes à Londres en 1973, au printemps plus exactement. Un quarteron de musiciens a décidé de se réunir sous la bannière de la musique improvisée et le nom de WMWM. Derrière ces quatre lettres se cache du beau monde, c'est un euphémisme : il y a Robert Wyatt, qui a quitté Soft Machine depuis quelque temps, avant d'explorer en solo la fin d'une oreille puis de s'accomplir dans une nouvelle formation ayant publié deux albums au cours de l'année 1972, Matching Mole (appréciez le jeu de mots franco-anglais). À cette époque, le batteur a déjà commencé à travailler sur les compositions de son prochain disque, qui s'avérera son chef-d'œuvre. Rock Bottom, enregistrement culte, verra le jour l'année suivante et continue de briller de ses feux douloureux, aujourd'hui encore. Précisons pour bien comprendre la rareté des moments dont il est question ici qu'en ce mois d'avril 1973, Wyatt ignore – et pour cause – que quelques semaines plus tard, au mois de juin, une chute de plusieurs étages le privera à jamais de l'usage de ses jambes et infléchira le cours d'une carrière qui le verra s'élever malgré lui au rang d'icône. Autre musicien impliqué dans l'affaire WMWM, le pianiste Dave MacRae, lui-même ancien membre de Matching Mole et très actif sur la scène londonienne ; un complice parfait pour Wyatt, comme on le devine. Le saxophoniste Gary Windo, quant à lui, est un Anglais ayant longtemps vécu aux Etats-Unis, mais revenu sur ses terres natales quelques années plus tôt ; il est de ceux qui ont participé à des expériences telles que le Brotherhood Of Breath de Chris McGregor ou le Centipede de Keith Tippett, une formation géante rattachée à l'École de Canterbury, comptant parmi ses membres, entre autres artificiers, des musiciens de Soft Machine, passés ou à venir ; sans parler d'autres collaborations avec des musiciens tels que Chick Corea, Carla Bley ou... Robert Wyatt, encore lui et décidément au cœur du réacteur. Windo (qu'on retrouvera sur Rock Bottom), tout naturellement, fera un magnifique W... Quant à Ron Mathewson, contrebassiste écossais, on le trouve plutôt du côté d'un jazz « classique », et il a pu faire entendre son instrument chez Stan Getz, Oscar Peterson ou Joe Henderson. Ses antécédents ne le rattachent pas aux mêmes sources que les trois autres, ce qui ne l'empêchait pas d'être un des meilleurs sidemen du moment.

Wyatt, MacRae, Windo, Mathewson, WMWM... Le quatuor parvient à signer quelques contrats, se produisant au pub le Tally Ho à Kentish Town avant d'être engagé pour deux dates au Ronnie Scott's Upstairs Room, une salle plus particulièrement destinée aux musiciens prêts aux expérimentations, ce qui, on le verra, correspond parfaitement à notre petite bande.

Sauf que... Mathewson étant indisponible pour le second concert à l'Upstairs Room le 14 avril 1973, il fallut lui trouver un remplaçant et c'est un certain Richard Sinclair qui s'y colla. Bien lui en prit, lui l'ex-bassiste de Caravan, parti ensuite tenter l'aventure d'une des plus belles formations du jazz rock anglais, Hatfield & The North en compagnie de quelques redoutables canterburyens comme Phil Miller, Dave Stewart et Pip Pyle. Et qui sera, lui aussi, au générique de Rock Bottom l'année suivante. Ce soir-là, WMWM devint WMWS !

On pouvait donc trouver pire comme doublure de Mathewson, d'autant que Sinclair fut gagné ce soir-là par l'excellente idée de venir équipé d'un petit magnétophone à cassette, histoire de conserver une trace de ce concert pour lequel son talent avait été sollicité in extremis. L'appareil sera placé à côté de l'ingénieur du son, près du mur du fond.

Les choses auraient pu en rester là, d'autant que la bande fut conservée pendant de très longues années par un ami de Richard Sinclair du côté de Kansas City, avant que Michael King, un ingénieur du son canadien, ne lui demande avec insistance de l'écouter. Et ce fut le début d'une nouvelle époque, celle de l'exhumation et de la restauration dans les meilleures conditions possibles – King a multiplié les efforts pour parvenir à une bonne restitution – d'une archive unique, dont la qualité sonore est celle d'un bootleg de qualité. Ce qui, on en conviendra, est un cadeau inespéré fait aux amoureux d'une musique organique, qui reste terriblement émouvante, cinq décennies plus tard, pour des raisons qui ne sont pas seulement musicales (souvenons-nous du drame de juin 1973). Ces moments rares virent le jour sous la forme d'un vinyle publié en trois cents exemplaires au printemps 2015, après souscription, par l'irréductible et désormais défunt magazine Improjazz, sous la houlette de Philippe Renaud dont la ténacité et tout le travail accompli au service de la cause des musiques improvisées méritent d'être salués.

L'album s'intitule One Night Stand, une expression qu'on peut traduire aussi bien par « Le temps d'une seule soirée » que par « Une histoire sans lendemain ». Comme le souligne Michael King dans les notes de pochette, l'archive présente d'autant plus de valeur qu'elle constitue une des rares occasions d'entendre Gary Windo (décédé en 1992) dans le cadre d'une petite formation, et qui est ici à son meilleur, rageur et brûlant au saxophone ténor. Surtout, les quelque quarante-cinq minutes d'enregistrement montrent à quel point les quatre musiciens, qui évoluent dans un état de liberté propice à l'épanouissement de leur créativité que le disque restitue avec bonheur, semblaient jouir de la faculté de former, distordre et reformer à leur guise la matière sonore, avec une infinie souplesse, par leurs échanges et leur sens de l'écoute. Wyatt, pas plus que MacRae, Windo ou Sinclair, ne paraît vouloir tirer la couverture à lui et le free jazz – terme commode qui veut dire ici que la musique jouée n'est pas écrite – que les quatre inventent dans l'instant résonne des échos de leur passé récent : Soft Machine (période 4) ou Matching Mole (la paire Wyatt – MacRae brille, comme on s'en doute), quand il ne prend pas çà et là, par le jeu de basse, les couleurs du Caravan que Sinclair a quitté l'année précédente (celui de Waterloo Lily, et tout particulièrement la composition intitulée « Nothing At All », où l'on retrouve un autre musicien libre, Lol Coxhill), ou ne glisse pas vers des climats caribéens presque inattendus fonctionnant à la façon d'une respiration joyeuse (sur la face B). One Night Stand est l'expression d'un mouvement fusionnel, d'un acte collectif dont la forme est par essence unique parce qu'éphémère. Nul doute que si WMWS avait pu récidiver, le résultat eut été aussi intense bien que différent. Même si Aymeric Leroy, dans son très érudit (et indispensable) L'École de Canterbury paru aux éditions Le Mot et le Reste, laisse entendre que Wyatt n'imaginait pas de suite à cette expérience, n'ayant « pas envie de se laisser à nouveau enfermer dans une situation de ce genre ». Il ajoute que WMWM « s'est avéré trop disparate du point de vue de nos aspirations musicales respectives. Ça pouvait à la limite fonctionner le temps d'un concert, ou même d'un disque, mais ce ne pouvait pas être un groupe au sens où je l'entendais. C'est mon éternel problème, mon incapacité à travailler avec des musiciens purement jazz ou rock. Ça ne fonctionne qu'avec des gens un peu bizarres se situant quelque part entre les deux ».

Illustration © Jean-Michel Thiriet

> Zoom

De toutes façons, les événements en décidèrent autrement, et de façon tragique. Raison de plus pour apprécier aujourd'hui plus que jamais cette occasion émouvante d'écouter une dernière fois Wyatt le batteur, musicien incomparable, instinctif et poumon du quatuor. Soyons honnêtes : son seul nom à l'affiche est une incitation à découvrir ce disque [1], parce que le grand Robert est un musicien comme il n'en existe qu'un par génération. Mais la capacité de ses compagnons d'un soir d'engager avec lui de si passionnants dialogues justifie pleinement qu'on se précipite sur ce qui est certes une « histoire sans lendemain », mais qui constitue un sacré cadeau !

IMPROJAZZ - septembre 2015

WMWS : One Night Stand
Improjazz PRMK LP 003

Olivier Delaporte

La sortie de ce vinyle puis de la version cd de cet enregistrement est non seulement une excellente idée mais aussi une sorte de pied de nez à la morosité discographique actuelle. Dans un contexte ou peu de disques arrivent vraiment à séduire, voici donc un enregistrement qui vient ou revient de très loin.

WMWM puisque c'était le nom initial du groupe n'a vécu que quelques mois durant l'année 1973, son existence ayant été brutalement stoppée par l'accident dont fut victime Robert Wyatt en juin de cette même année. A l'origine donc ce quartet était constitué de Wyatt à la batterie, Dave MacRae aux claviers, Gary Windo au saxophone et Ron Mathewson à la basse. Hormis un pirate (concert à la BBC) qui circule discrètement, il existe deux morceaux de cette formation sur l'album « anglo american » de Windo paru en 2004 chez Cuneiform, c'était déjà bien mais aussi frustrant de ne pas en avoir davantage à se mettre dans les oreilles. Avec une formation légèrement différente Richard Sinclair remplaçant Ron Mathewson et amenant du coup une guitare basse nous disposons enfin d'un album entier consacré à ce groupe. Cet enregistrement est d'importance à plus d'un titre ; d'abord il met en évidence l'incroyable richesse de cette scène musicale que l'on a appelé prog ou Canterbury mais d'un point de vue plus singulier, il souligne aussi l'ambivalence que Robert Wyatt entretenait à l'époque avec le champ de l'improvisation liée au jazz. On pourrait imaginer que Wyatt a fondé Matching Mole pour rétablir la part rock et un peu plus structurée qui tendait à disparaître dans la musique de Soft Machine. Son premier album « The End of a ear » (un chef d'œuvre) opère aussi un perpétuel balancement entre improvisations et thèmes plus construits. Mais « Rock Bottom » va donner une direction dont il ne dérogera plus, vers une musique plus écrite et plus facile à identifier du côté d'un rock très sophistiqué que du côté du jazz. « One night stand » arrive au cœur de cette période, après Matching Mole et « The end of a Ear », avant « Rock Bottom ».

« One night stand » est donc une longue improvisation mais qui se déploie en plusieurs phases. Elle commence par une ambiance presque contradictoire ou l'on peut entendre d'un côté la basse de Sinclair et le clavier de MacRae s'engager dans un dialogue assez calme, semblant vouloir installer tranquillement un thème mais dans le même temps la voix modifiée de Wyatt et les assauts sur-aigus du saxophone de Windo offrent un contrepoint en opposition à la lente progression des deux autres, cette étrange juxtaposition contient en fait en germe l'un des aspects de l'album. Puis s'installant à la batterie c'est Wyatt qui semble indiquer la direction au moins au début. En effet pendant une dizaine de minutes il n'est pas possible d'identifier avec précision un thème mais on perçoit assez clairement que les interventions des musiciens sont guidées par le rythme qui évolue d'ailleurs plusieurs fois. MacRae qui oscille entre clavier et piano est dans un premier temps un peu plus présent que Windo. Jonglant entre une rugosité contrôlée et de brusques montées dans les « hautes octaves ». Le saxophoniste apparaît puis se tait pour mieux revenir. Ses notes raisonnables ponctuées de cris sur-aigus sont tempérés par la chaleur du clavier de MacRae ; d'une certaine façon c'est aussi peut-être le clavier qui permet à Richard Sinclair de trouver sa place lui qui reste au fond assez discret et parfois même en retrait. Le jeu de Robert Wyatt ressemble à celui qu'il développait dans Soft Machine, préférant une présence plus directe à une recherche de sophistication. De fait il contribue largement à l'énergie palpable qui se dégage de cette improvisation de plus de quarante minutes. Improvisation certes mais pas dénuée de structures, j'évoquais plus haut le rythme comme base des dialogues mais à plusieurs reprises on repère aussi certaines phrases s'échappant du clavier de MacRae qui ont peut-être été écrites ou au moins fait l'objet d'un accord tacite! Régulièrement en effet il est possible d'identifier comme sortant d'une cohérence entre Wyatt et MacRae des bribes de thème plus construits qui s'évanouissent assez vite mais qui laissent une trame sur laquelle vont jongler les musiciens. le procédé est d'ailleurs parfaitement identifiable aux deux tiers de l'improvisation lorsque apparaît un motif d'inspiration caribéenne qui serait tout droit sorti de l'imagination de Windo que cela ne m'étonnerait pas et sur lequel les musiciens vont converser avec un naturel déconcertant.

Free jazz? Jazz rock? Prog? Ou tout à la fois? C'est sûrement la dernière proposition qui est la plus valable. Ce disque montre en tous cas à quel point cette scène fut bourgeonnante d'idées et de liberté. Robert Wyatt, Gary Windo mais aussi Elton Dean ou Lol Coxhill étaient à cette époque assez impossibles à catégoriser de par le simple fait qu'ils ne voulaient pas se restreindre. C'est précisément ce que montre ce disque qui ne ressemble ni au free de l'époque, ni au jazz rock de Miles Davis et des autres mais pas davantage à « fourth » de Soft Machine. Un disque dont l'intensité et la sobriété manquent actuellement. Ce « One night stand » permet aussi d'apprécier Richard Sinclair et Dave MacRae dans un univers musical qu'ils n'ont pas trop eu l'occasion de côtoyer et il offre encore une chance d'entendre le fantastique Gary Windo dont les préoccupations étaient moins carriéristes qu'artistiques; il en résulte une liste d'enregistrements inversement proportionnelle à son talent; de ce point de vue WMWS vient donc un peu rendre justice. S'il fallait encore trouver une raison pour se procurer ce disque, rappelons que l'on aura vraisemblablement pas d'autres occasions d'entendre ce groupe aussi génial qu'éphémère.

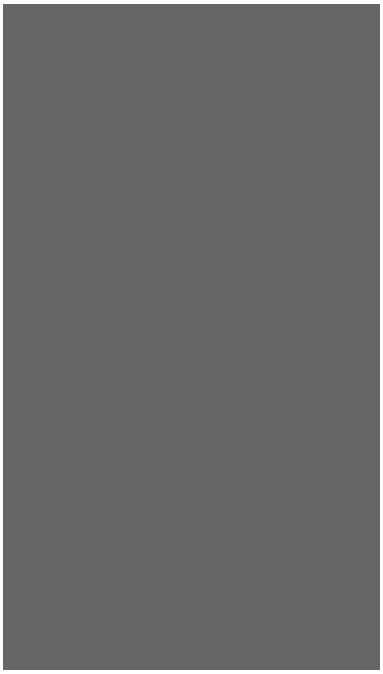
LE SON DU GRISLI (blog) - septembre 2015

WMWS
One Night Stand

Pam Windo

ONE NIGHT STAND is Michael King's last gift to the fans of the UK"s improvised music scene of the 1970s. Of course, like everyone else, I had no idea it would be his last. As a longtime friend, I knew he was very troubled that music could be downloaded for 'free' on the Internet, and he positively hated what he considered "the catastrophe" of today's technology….even though he used some of it to engineer and re-master the lost treasures he always had the knack to discover. ONE NIGHT STAND is one of those treasures.

The recording was made one night in the Upstairs Room at Ronnie Scott's Club on Frith Street, in those days a rather seedy red-light district. The continuous 45-minute improvisation is both flowing and serious in tone. It would be Robert Wyatt's last performance playing drums, as he would have his back-breaking accident only two months later.



I was in touch with Michael King for weeks about the CD, a copy of which he had sent me to listen to. He was concerned about how the musicians would get paid, and kept hesitating about where to place it. He was also, as usual, concerned about the sound quality. I suggested that it was a 40-year-old recording, that it was a brilliant and unique performance, and that he should go with the offers he had. I also said: "Keep your creative force moving along and do this album." And he did. A few months later he committed suicide. The recording is now out on vinyl and on CD, and he would be very proud.

LE SON DU GRISLI (blog) - septembre 2015

WMWS
One Night Stand

Pierre Cécile

Il est vrai… j'étais venu là (à l'Upstairs Room du Ronnie Scott's Club le 14 avril 1973 sur invitation du label Improjazz) pour Robert Wyatt. A la batterie, il faisait pulser (et comment !) l'improvisation d'un quartette d'un soir. Avec lui, il y avait le saxophoniste Gary Windo, le claviériste Dave MacRae et le bassiste Richard Sinclair. Juste après l'enregistrement de Rock Bottom, l'homme de Soft Machine travaille à une tout autre affaire. Plutôt de manière informelle, comme on dit, il improvise. Avec MacRae son comparse de Matching Mole, il donne au set un goût de rock prog et de fusion (le clavier électrique n'y est pas pour rien, MacRae faisant même penser au Chick Corea des seventies sur la deuxième face). Mais malgré l'efficacité du duo, c'est peut être Windo qui opère le mieux et donne une cohérence aux nombreuses séquences de jeu. Plusieurs fois il intervient avec autorité et, dans ses solos, vire au free. A ma grande surprise, et pour mon plus grand plaisir. D'ailleurs, si j'étais venu là pour Robert Wyatt, c'est bien Gary Windo qui aura retenu mon attention. Depuis, il l'a même conservée.

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

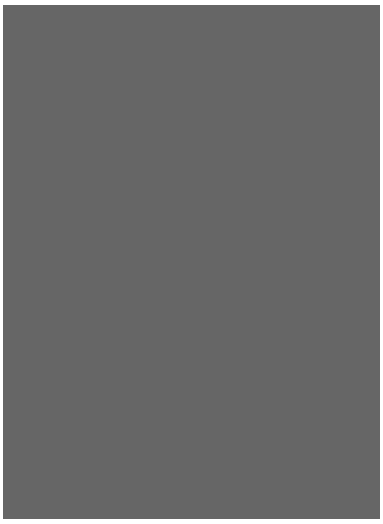
HOME

Folly Bololey - Songs From Robert Wyatt's Rock Bottom
2019

North Sea Radio Orchestra - John Greaves - Annie Barbazza

More information about this album

CITIZENJAZZ.COM - 16 septembre 2019



Folly Bololey - Songs From Robert Wyatt's Rock Bottom
North Sea Radio Orchestra, John Greaves, Annie Barbazz- Label : Dark Companion

Denis Desassis

Ils ont osé, ils ont bien fait. On pensait que Rock Bottom, l'œuvre majeure de Robert Wyatt, était de ces disques intouchables qu'il semble présomptueux de reprendre à son propre compte. Le risque de contresens, voire de trahison est élevé en effet dès lors qu'on pense aux six compositions qui font de cet album un objet musical unique et très personnel. Pourtant, à l'écoute de Folly Bololey, c'est un sentiment de plénitude et de vrai plaisir qui vous gagne tant le travail entrepris par le North Sea Radio Orchestra touche à la perfection. Ses huit musiciens, qui reçoivent l'aide précieuse de John Greaves et Annie Barbazza, administrent la preuve de leur capacité à rester eux-mêmes sans jamais perdre de vue la ligne directrice de cette matrice mise au monde par celui qui jusque-là était batteur (Soft Machine, Matching Mole), avant qu'un accident le prive en 1973 de l'usage de ses deux jambes.

Car si la texture sonore est bien celle de l'orchestre auquel violon, violoncelle, clarinette et basson apportent une touche volontiers chambriste, son identité préservée va de pair avec une étonnante fidélité aux thèmes originaux. Annie Barbazza - dont le mentor fut Greg Lake - peut s'emparer avec une désarmante (et apparente) simplicité de « Sea Song », chanson emblématique de l'atmosphère aquatique de l'album. John Greaves (dont le parcours a souvent croisé celui de Wyatt, notamment à l'époque du groupe Henry Cow) parvient même à reprendre à son compte le rôle dévolu à Ivor Cutler et ses déclamations décalées (« Little Red Robin Hood Hit the Road »). La guitare de Craig Fortnam instille une tonalité plus rock, s'emparant parfois de la partition des cuivres (« Little Red Riding Hood Hit the Road »). Indépassable aussi la basse électrique de Hugh Hopper sur « Alifib », ici revue et corrigée pour le meilleur par les sonorités conjuguées du vibraphone de Tommaso Franguelli, de l'orgue Farfisa de William D. Drake et de l'alto de Laurent Valero.

Tout est juste dans ce disque exempt de la moindre faute de goût. Et parce qu'avec un tel projet, la forme aussi est essentielle, il faut souligner le somptueux packaging d'un vinyle bleu translucide et d'une pochette cartonnée riche de photographies et de toutes les paroles. Sans oublier l'inclusion d'un CD augmenté de quatre bonus tracks parmi lesquels figure une reprise de « O Caroline » (qui ouvrait le premier album de Matching Mole en 1972) chantée par un

John Greaves presque crooner. Là aussi le danger guettait tant la version si émouvante Wyatt hérissait les poils : un péril vite écarté au prix d'une légère modification des paroles introductives (Ann is on Farfisa / And I will play the bass / North Sea Radio Orchestra will add a touch of grace), avec la tendre complicité des cordes et de l'orgue.

Paru au printemps dernier sur le label Dark Companion, Folly Bololey, Songs From Robert Wyatt's Rock Bottom est une réussite totale. Ruez-vous dessus pendant qu'il est encore temps, car le tirage est limité. Ce serait bête de s'en priver !

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

The Future Eve featuring
Robert Wyatt
KiTsuNe / Brian The Fox
2019

More information about this album

POPGRUPPEN - April 28, 2019

Robert Wyatt's voice scurries between worlds

Michael Björn

I have not previously heard any music by Japanese producer The Future Eve before, neither under this name or under the Tomo Akikawabaya moniker that he previously used. And, in all honesty, the only reason I am listening now is that his new album KiTsuNe / Brian The Fox is made together with Robert Wyatt.

The backstory to this release is that The Future Eve contacted Wyatt as far back as 1998 and asked if he had something they could collaborate on. On the Bandcamp page, Robert Wyatt is quoted to have said: "I did have. Brian the Fox was an un-placed un-worked basic idea I had."

He had recorded vocals and some keyboards directly onto tape at home in altogether four takes that he sent to The Future Eve, who then built an electronic sound world around that.

The results are fascinating, and play out like an extremely drawn out and heavily modulated version of the 'Brian the Fox' track that eventually ended up on Wyatt's 2003 album Cuckooland.

Unfortunately, Wyatt's vocal contributions also appear stretched out here. Over the course of a full album's worth of music, we only get to hear his voice a handful of times. Over the rest, we wander through an alien landscape of electronic sound that while feeling surprisingly organic definitely sounds completely otherworldly. And when Wyatt is singing I can't help but feel that the sounds are too alien for his voice; they seem to play from another dimension rather than with him.

But now I believe that is quite intentional. And, Wyatt's parts are magical indeed.

Robert first appears about halfway into the eight minute long opening track, appropriately titled 01.01, and already here we are faced with this conundrum of the out there (as in space, or maybe mental space) soundscapes that make you think about flying steel dragons or something. But interestingly, Robert's appearances become all the more welcome due to their brevity. On this first track, there are just a few lines and then it is gone. No overstaying of welcomes here.

On 02.01, the steel dragons come to the fore; there a this tunnelling, whining sound that is quite interesting and I can for the life of me not get rid of this image of gravity defying dragons in the air above me. The promotional material refers to the music as "Laboratory calculations crossed with temple reflections" and that seems like a fair description to me.

Unfortunately, 02.02 is only available on the vinyl issue of the album. I am seriously tempted to buy the vinyl issue just to find out if Robert is singing on this track; and I was in fact looking for it when I recently was in Japan. But I couldn't find a copy.

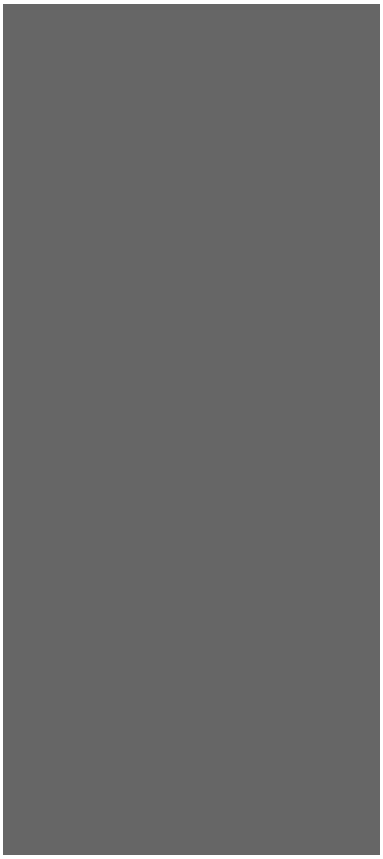
On 02.03, there seems to be a woman wordlessly singing, but since there is no mention of this in the liners, I could be wrong. But that just goes to show how organic and indeed mentally charged some of the electronics on this album really are. This track is allegedly a prototype of 'Tom Hay's Fox' on Robert Wyatt's 2003 album Cuckooland – and that makes a lot of sense, since that track really is full of the bendy, otherworldly notes that also appear on that Cuckooland's take on 'Brian the Fox'. In fact, those two tracks are very much a Rosetta stone for this album, both when it comes to foxes and to the bendy, synthesised sounds.

In any case, we are redeemed on 03.01 which opens with Wyatt wordlessly singing, accompanied by some plucked string instruments. Unfortunately, it closes just as quickly, after less than a minute.

Wyatt is then back on 04.02. This time we get his voice alone, and again that is of course great. However, 39 seconds only lasts for so long.

On 04.04 he is back again, now duetting with himself on top of subdued yet plaintive synthesiser sounds. I feel like I am lost in the woods somewhere, and can make out words like "upstream" and "downwind". Maybe there is a real fox story in this after all… But after just over a minute, the track ends and we are back in monolithic extra-dimensional synth territory on 04.05.

04.06 and Robert's wordless voice is taking on a hymnal quality. His voices are overdubbed and full of echo. I can imagine walking in the shadows of tall trees in a very old and forbidding part of a forest. At 3 minutes and 35 seconds, it is the longest sustained performance we get of Robert, but there isn't really any musical development to the piece.



On final track 04.08, Robert starts off with singing on top of his own backing vocals. I can again make out a few words, such as "upstream". Unfortunately, his performance fades out already after 40 seconds and the remainder of the track is more of a sustained outro wall of sound, again with little musical development.

Given that Wyatt's performances here date back to the previous century and even his commentary seems to be from 2013, one can wonder what has taken so long for this to be released.

It seems that first The Future Eve dubbed sounds over the initial four takes sent by Robert, and then those results were handed on to fellow musician Takaaki Han-ya. That process took two years, and was supposed to be the end point. If I understand correctly, those tapes are presented as tracks 01.01 – 03.01.

However, at that point in time The Future Eve's mother died and that changed his perspective towards a more Buddhist reincarnation approach, which after a very long period of work resulted in the "Ring" version presented on tracks 04.01 – 04.08. According to The Future Eve: "For this work I wanted to try to capture the mind behind the tape more than the music itself." And it is not impossible to imagine that such an undertaking could take some time.

But despite the incredibly long gestation period, at the end of the day what we get here is, all in all, only maybe seven minutes of Wyatt singing. Although one might initially think that is a bit on the short side and feel that The Future Eve is promoting the association to Robert Wyatt somewhat too strongly here, the idea of trying to give Wyatt's mind a musical representation is rather intriguing.

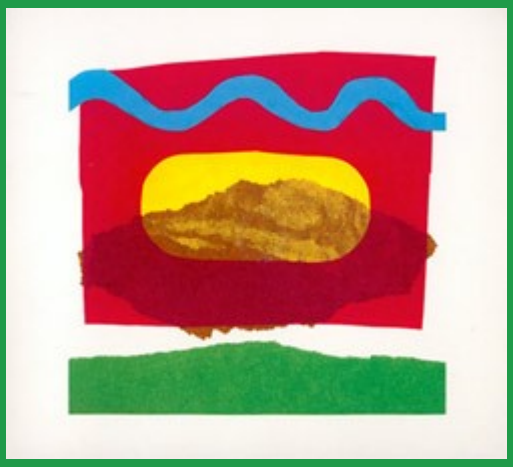
Is the inside of a mind really as otherworldly as it is framed here? At least if you factor in reincarnation, it certainly would be; it would be the mind and not the body that travels (upstream as it were) between worlds – from one life to another, and on again. Come to think of it, dragons were used on medieval maps to demarcate the edges of the world, so maybe the deep, wailing, tunnels of sound here really could be thought of as dragons – and the fox as the mind that scurries between those worlds. That would be brain the fox then, I suppose, rather than Brian. (And fox is kitsune in Japanese by the way.)

So, despite the brevity of Wyatt's performances here, would I say the album is worth the effort? Undoubtedly, yes!

More information about this album

Critiques/Reviews

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises



HOME

Cuckooland

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Toujours barbu, jamais barbant, Robert Wyatt crée de la beauté envers et contre tout. Une légende vivante, vraiment vivante.

Dans un numéro Hors Série paru fin 2003, la revue Les Inrockuptibles publie son classement des 50 meilleurs disques rock électro rap de l'année écoulée. A la 24ème place, devant Jean-Louis Murat (Lilith) mais derrière Cali (L'Amour parfait), on y découvre l'album Cuckooland. La chronique de Richard Robert, un rien emphatique, me touche pourtant. Elle donne en quelques mots les clés d'un album et d'un musicien "hors-concours".

ROBERT WYATT - CUCKOOLAND
Rykodisc/Naïve

La musique de Robert Wyatt change les perspectives d'écoute, brouille les critères censés distinguer la "norme" de la "marge". Elle culbute aussi cette logique selon laquelle la pop, le jazz ou les musiques nouvelles seraient des entités figées et distinctes. Ceux qui ne la connaissent que de loin la croient étrange, difficile à cerner, voire indéchiffrable. Ceux qui ont pris la peine de l'explorer savent qu'elle constitue un monde à part entière, où il fait bon se réfugier quand l'époque vire à la grisaille. De fait, les premières mesures de Cuckooland, où quelques coulures de cornet glissent sur une nappe de synthé bon marché, ramènent l'auditeur en terrain familier. Mais le terrain est si fertile, si prodigue de beautés et d'inventions qu'on se laisse une fois de plus surprendre.

Il y a d'abord la classe d'un musicien qui réussit à enchaîner les figures harmoniques, mélodiques et rythmiques les plus acrobatiques sans jamais donner l'impression de s'adonner à de pénibles tours de force. Il y a cette voix à la fois neuve et ancestrale qui unifie cette improbable mosaïque, cette voix d'enfant centenaire qui n'est pas - n'en déplaise à Ryuichi Sakamoto - "la plus triste du monde": simplement la plus littérale et la plus musicale du monde, comme en témoigne la relecture limpide d'Insensatez, le standard de Tom Jobim.

Il y a aussi l'extraordinaire fond de jeu d'une équipe d'instrumentistes qui, de Karen Mantler à David Gilmour, du clarinettiste israélien Gilad Atzmon à la tromboniste Annie Whitehead, donne à chaque trait mélodique la couleur et la vibration requise. Il y a enfin cette place nouvelle accordée au jazz, qui n'apparaît plus seulement en filigrane, mais de manière très explicite, comme sur ces véritables airs à swinguer que sont Old Europe ou Trickle Down. Cet hommage à la musique qui l'a éveillé n'est pas le seul moment fort d'un disque extrêmement dense : toutes les chansons, ici, peuvent facilement faire l'objet de plusieurs niveaux de lecture (musical, poétique, sentimental, politique...), sans que la limpidité ni la légèreté de l'ensemble en soient pour autant altérées.

S'il est un musicien hors compétition, l'Anglais n'a pas renoncé pour autant à son amour du jeu. Et c'est bien ça qu'on entend de bout en bout dans Cuckooland.

C'est peut-être l'enseignement délivré par l'oeuvre de Robert Wyatt : l'amour de la musique, quand il est porté par une telle fraîcheur d'intention et d'expression, rend beau, intelligent, heureux et sensible. Une vérité qu'on est en droit d'estimer naïve, voire mièvre, mais qui trouve pourtant dans Cuckooland sa plus indiscutable transcription. Neuve comme au premier jour et belle comme l'antique, la musique de Wyatt renferme à la fois tout le possible du monde et les bruissements de la vie simple. Cette prouesse , accomplie avec l'humilité et la droiture d'un homme qui ne s'est jamais vu plus grand qu'il n'était, mérite bien qu'on la célèbre avec un peu de grandiloquence. Car elle rend, elle aussi, cette planète plus intéressante et, tout simplement, plus vivable.

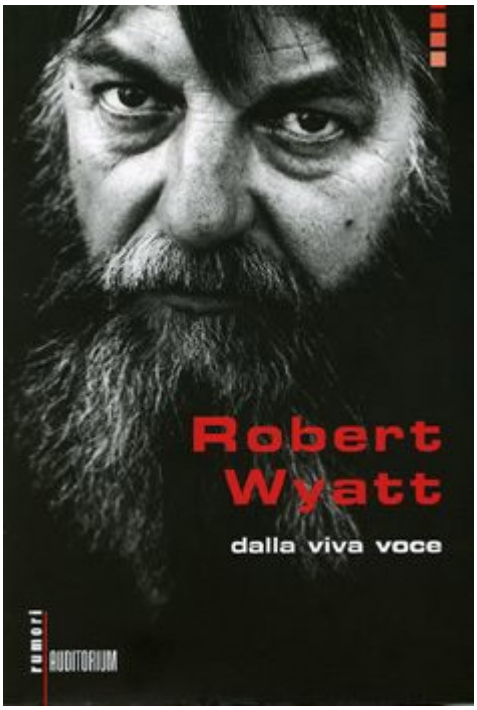
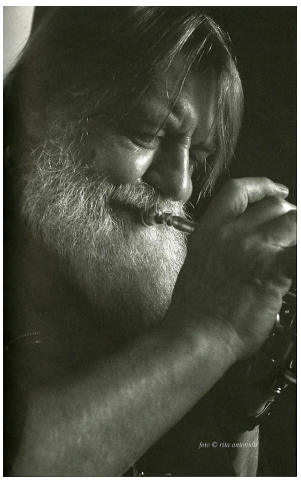
Richard Robert



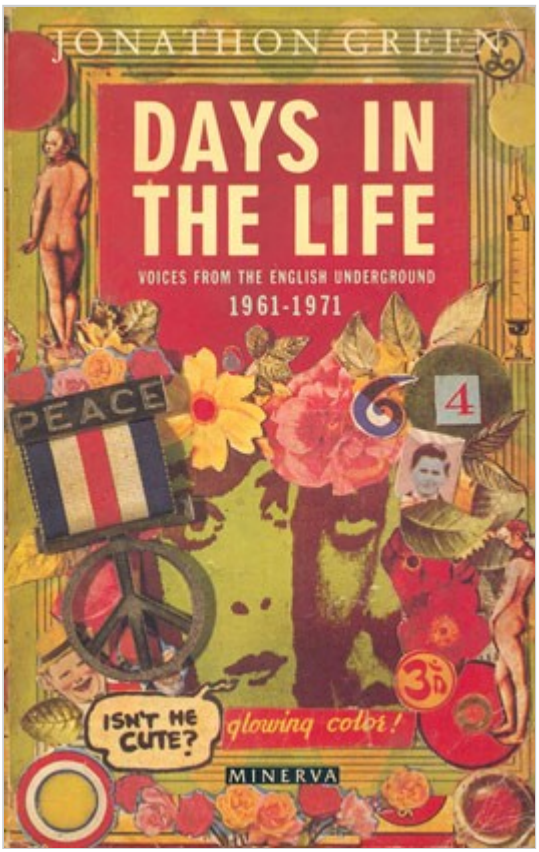
> Retrouver l'album dans la discographie



Dalla Viva Voce

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Robert Wyatt - dalla viva voce - aux éditions Auditorium - collection Rumori (Milan - 2009).
Constitué d'interviews parus dans plusieurs magazines italiens au cours des années 1996-2007, Robert Wyatt y aborde sur plus de 120 pages les moments forts de sa carrière et en particulier ses très nombreuses collaborations musicales à des projets de nature parfois très différente. Agrémenté de nombreuse photos souvent déjà publiées ailleurs, l'ouvrage est complété d'une introduction de Claudio Chianura et d'une discographie solo.



Al diavolo tutte le piramidi e tutti i faraoni della musica! Oggi ascoltiamo la viva voce di Robert Wyatt, spirito libero e artista autentico del nostro tempo, batterista e cantante dei primi Soft Machine, autore di uno dei migliori dischi di musica rock creativa di tutti i tempi, Rock bottom (1974) e di una originale manciata di altri album magici e malinconici. Oggi ascoltiamo la viva voce di Robert Wyatt, che con la sua musica e le sue parole ha reso questo mondo un poco migliore, aggiungendo i suoi profumi e i suoi sapori e tutto il resto, senza chiedere in cambio molto più che una bella risata e un buon sorso di cognac.
(dall'introduzione di Claudio Chianura)

Days In the Life

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Days In The Life - Jonathon Green
Voices from the English Underground 1961-1971

> Zoom

> Zoom

Dans cet ouvrage publié en 1998 aux éditions Minerva, Jonathon Green part à la rencontre du Londres "underground" des 60's. Il brosse le portrait d'une ville et d'une génération à travers une sorte d'abécédaire kaleidoscopique et les souvenirs d'une centaine d'activistes majeurs de cette période dont Robert Wyatt...

...Pendant ce temps, que se passe-t-il dans cette Angleterre, justement? (...) Dans le courant de cette nouvelle culture, Marc Boyle présente un light show en compagnie d'un groupe nouvellement formé, de retour des Baléares où ils ont pas mal expérimenté ce genre de choses (c.à.d. de fameuses substances): Soft Machine. De leur côté, des gens comme Miles, Jack Henry Moore, Jim Haynes, créent un certain nombre d'entreprises formant petit à petit le noyau d'un underground vivant, avec des magazines, un hebdo (International Times), et surtout, un endroit sur Southampton Row appelé à devenir l'épicentre de toute une révolution en Grande-Bretagne : UFO. C'est un sous-sol d'assez bonnes dimensions, où l'on peut faire un peu de tout: projections des films de Jack-Henry Moore et Yoko Ono, diapositives organiques de Marc Boyle sur des corps féminins en mouvement, et bien sûr, beaucoup de musique. Trois groupes s'y illustrent régulièrement: le Bonzo Dog Doo Dah Band de Vivian Stanshall, et Neil Innes, héritiers à l'anglaise des Village Fugs de New York; le Soft Machine, première mouture; et Pink Floyd...

Alain Dister - ROCK CRITIC Chroniques de rock'n'roll (1967-1982)

Robert Wyatt words about...

Jazz

It all started for me in the 50s when I was a jazz fan. I still am. That was my underground. That was the life I discovered outside the prescribed life. I was born in 1945, left school in 1960. I hadn't got enough exam results to get any particular job so I worked in lots of things. The place where culture and politics seemed to meet for me was always centred around black music. Jazz in the 50s. That's the romantic period for me. To me protest music was Max Roach, Sonny Rollins and Charlie Mingus. I didn't understand folk music, I didn't even like the songs at the Aldermaston march. I knew about jazz, I wasn't particularly well read, but I knew the sleevenotes of about twenty LPs backwards and could spot a new bass player on the New York scene as quick as anybody.

Mods: 'Something very sharp'

The big difference between the trad jazz people and the modern jazz people, which is where the word 'mod' really comes from - the modernists who went to modern jazz gigs - was that the mod thing tended to be more working class or East End lewish, whereas the trad thing tended to be public school dropouts - much more English, people leaping up and down to trad jazz, already the thing of being ostentatious in dress, whereas the modernist thing was very much not ostentatious. Somebody else might notice how you had your tie, someone who knew about things like that, but it wasn't ostentatious. But we did want to function as a parallel world.

Light-shows: 'You had to have things going "Pow!"'

Mark Boyle was burning himself to pieces doing these experiments with different coloured acids. You just saw him with these goggles, looking alI burnt and stuff, high up on some rigging. He used to play tricks, he used to make bubbles corne out of people's flies and things. You couldn't see exactly what he was doing from on stage, but the atmosphere was good.

The Floyd always had their own lights people, but no one else did and Mark used to do the place, not particularly the groups, but the walls, everything. The light-shows meant that what we shared with the Floyd was that as personalities you could hide and the overall group effect could be more important th an the individuals. The normal thing would be that there would be a focus on one or two individual performers, even in the R&B bands, the lead guitarists would get that focus. Whereas we and the Floyd would hardly be recognised off stage, nobody knew what they looked like through the light-show. The anonymity of light-shows was nice - the fact that you were almost in the same swirly gloom that the audience were in was relaxing and you could get a nice atmosphere going.

The Deviants : 'The Worst record in the history of man'

I didn't know MickFarren well and I don't think he particularly welcomed what he thought we [the Soft Machine] represented. But I certainly admire him because he was a sort of protopunk and saw elements immediately that were false. He heard the false notes being rung all around him at a time when people thought it was all in tune.

The 14-Hour Technicolor Dream: 'Everybody I'd ever known swam before my eyes'

I got a short-back-and-sides haircut and a suit and tie to do that gig. That was my avant-garde gesture. The Floyd had those pyramids as far as I recall. They were doing very slow tunes.

The Pink Floyd: 'What we wanted was an avant-garde pop group'

The Pink Floyd were with a lovely bunch of people, Blackhill, and they were very nice and I think they were an honourable exception to the shady rule about managers. I think they were nice people and really cared about the people they worked for. I think that most of were less lucky than that.

The Soft Machine: 'The only other bloke In Kent with long halr'

In Canterbury I got into a local sort of beat group, the Wild Flowers. The name had nothing to do with flower power; we lived in the country and Hugh Hopper had a book called Wild Flowers and I think he thought it up. Wild Flowers was the beginning of what became the Soft Machine. Hugh Hopper's brother Brian, who played saxophone, was a friend of Mike Ratledge and when Mike Ratledge came back from university and wanted to play, we were the only people there to play with. So he joined the band, playing piano. But nobody in the band was trying to do the same thing at alI, which is why it was quite original and why, after a couple of years, it fell apart. It was a constant process of disintegration really, getting in new people to fill the gaps. Which in the 60s was rare, because most bands were quite stable. I talked to Nick Mason of the Pink Floyd about that once. I said, 'How come you lot have stayed together so long?' and he said, 'We haven't finished with each other yet.' But it kept changing, we kept on tinkering with it and tinkering with it and throwing each other out of it and leaving it until eventually alI the kinks were ironed out of it and in the end it became a standard British jazz-rock band. I don't know what happened in the end. I stopped listening after a while - I stopped listening before I even left.

When we came up to London there were two connections: Daevid Allen had the connection with people like Hoppy. The other connection was Kevin Ayers, who played bass guitar and wrote songs. He was the only other bloke in Kent with long hair.

The name Soft Machine came through Mike Ratledge. He had books like V and alI that kind of thing. I knew the name was taken from Burroughs but I don't think it intrigued me enough to get a copy. Wild Flowers more or less became the Soft Machine. We trickled up to London and then regrouped, one by one.

Kevin Ayers was important in that he knew the AnimaIs office, where Hilton Valentine and Chas Chandler were already starting to manage, and they signed us up really on the basis of Kevin's songs. They were looking for something commercial. Chas was always looking for Slade, and eventually he found them, meanwhile he had to put up with people like us and Jimi Hendrix. Shortly after we joined Chandler Hendrix came to London and musically that was tremendously important for lots of people. For me too, if for nothing else than that what he let Mitch Mitchell do on drums gave me space for what I wanted to do on drums. We were using a lot of jazz ideas on drum kits that there hadn't been room for in the constricted time-keeping stuff I'd been doing before. Of course this was quite the opposite of what Nick Mason was doing with the Floyd: he was a kind of ticking clock there - which is just what they needed. For electronic rock his approach was more suitable - uncluttered. People like me and Mitch were probably too busy, but at the time it seemed exciting. So Kevin actually got us a deal and turned us into a group that had a manager and so on. He liked bossanova and calypso. Ray Davies and the Kinks, who started using stuff like that quite early on, were a big influence on him. One record company bloke told us, 'I don't know whether you're our worst-selling rock group or our bestselling jazz group.'

The Speakeasy: 'There was a good deal of excess'

The Speakeasy was exactly the kind of place that I saw as really unpleasant. There was a sense in me that while I was flourishing as a member of the late-60s culture, this very thing that was flourishing was squashing something that I felt was really more oppressed. Rock groups meeting in expensive clubs that are difficult to get into... what's all that crap? It was exciting and it was interesting, there were lots of new scenes, but it's very very hard to think it as underground.

UFO

When you arrived at UFO, early on, they were usually playing Monteverdi or something. I was probably more awestruck by the place than most of the punters, who I felt took it for granted.
It wasn't any easier playing UFO than the circuit, but the demands our own. We were able to develop our own idiosyncrasies. Our management had immediately put us on the road on a circuit where you had to play for dance audiences. We weren't very good at that. So the great thing for us about UFO was that the audiences weren't demanding in the same way. They were sitting about, most of them were asleep as far as I could see. The very things that were our faults on the regular circuit - that of alI the bands playing 'Midnight Hour' or 'Knock on Wood' on any particular evening we would play it worst, if we played it at all- became bonuses at UFO. We couldn't play that stuff, or if we did people didn't realise that was what we were playing.

Conclusion: 'Some kind of golden age'

I think in the end that by not beating the system we strengthened it. In the end the culture we were involved in was an Anglo-american cultural narcissism revamped, and if you look at it from the point of view of world culture it actually reflected the power structure, the extraordinary media power of the English-speaking West. With the best will in the world the people involved might have thought that they were providing an alternative, but they were simply making the Establishment more flexible. So I'm not at all surprised that we have proceeded to vote in lots of incredibly right-wing and chauvinistic governments. I don't see that as a reaction to the 60s, but as a direct result. What a pathetic thing to think: that you can just blow the castles down.

Dedicated to RW

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Peu d'artistes à ma connaissance font l'objet - alors même qu'ils sont encore en activité - de tant de marques de reconnaissance de la part de leurs pairs...

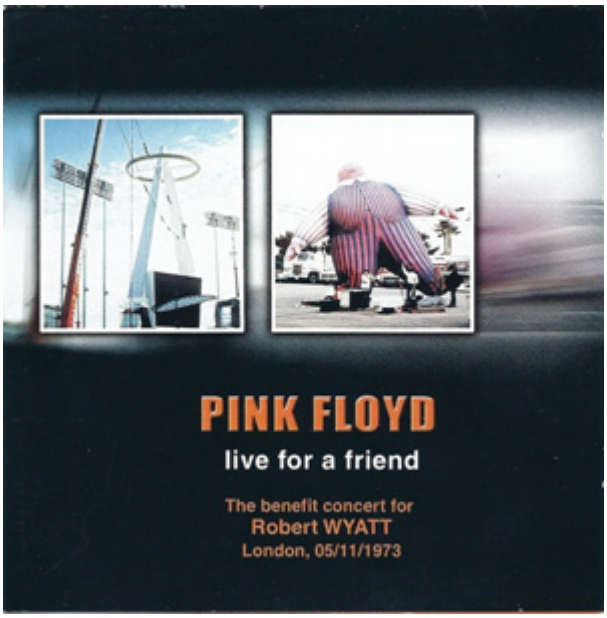
C'est pourtant le cas de Robert Wyatt dont je relève régulièrement les hommages qui lui sont adressés par le biais d'un Tribute, d'un titre de morceau ou d'une mention sur un album.

Quelques exemples qui s'enrichiront au fil de mes découvertes et de celles des internautes qui voudront bien me les signaler...

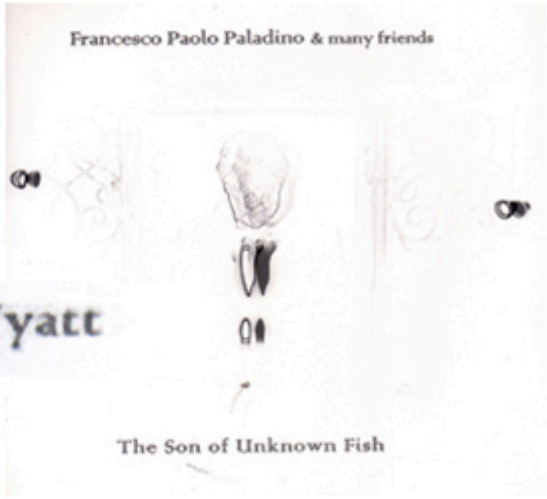
Tout d'abord les Tribute qui proposent une relecture parfois piquante des morceaux originaux...

On peut mentionner les principaux projets suivants:

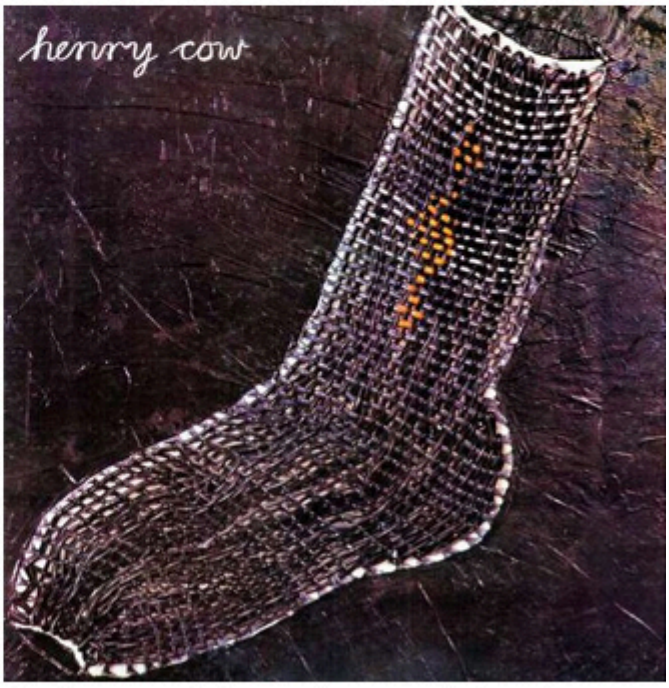
- Soupsongs Live (2000)
- MW pour Robert Wyatt (2001)
- The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt & Moi (2003)
- The Different You - Robert Wyatt e noi (1998)
- Anthologie du Projet MW (2009)
- Mop Meuchiine Plays Robert Wyatt (2010)
- Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening (1992)
- The Chansons Of Robert Wyatt Et Moi... (2011)
- Round About Wyatt (1994)
- Around Robert Wyatt (2009)
- A Tribute To Robert Wyatt (2002)
- Comicoperando - A Tribute to the Music of Robert Wyatt (2010)
- Market Rasen (Dedicated To The Music Of Robert Wyatt) (2006)
- Diversions, Vol. 1: The Songs Of Robert Wyatt And Antony & The Johnsons (2011)
- Max Andrzejewski's Hütte & Guests Play The Music Of Robert Wyatt (2019)



La dédicace à Robert Wyatt peut porter sur un album complet ou sur un morceau seulement.



Quelques exemples...



PINK FLOYD
live for a friend
The benefit concert for
Robert WYATT
London, 05/11/1973

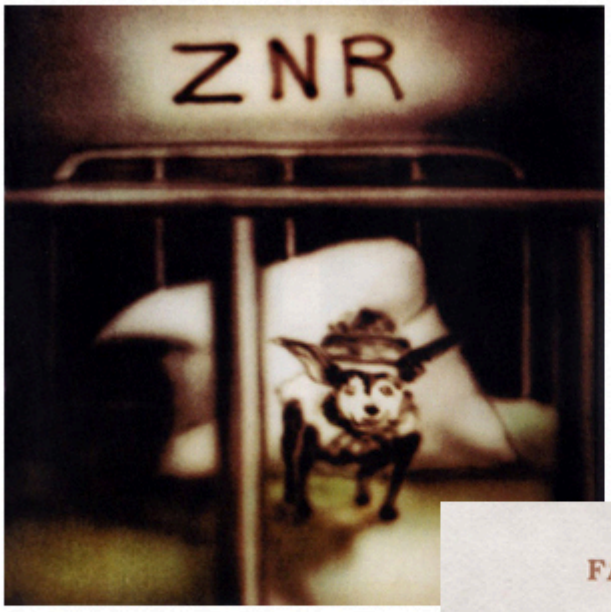
This album is dedicated to Robert WYATT

Dedicated to Robert Wyatt

Produced by Henry Cow and dedicated to Robert Wyatt and Uli Trepte.

DEDICACE: A MES GRANDS AMIS ROBERT WYATT ET MICK RATLEDGE

HELDON: I ELECTRONIC GUERILLA 1974



This record is dedicated to ROBERT WYATT

I BELIEVE
(Orzabal)
Dedicated to Robert Wyatt (if he's listening)
WILLIAM GREGORY ~ Saxophone
ROLAND ORZABAL ~ Grand Piano

Enregistré et mixé au studio Gilly Bell à Ventabren, Bouches-du-Rhône (tél. 91 28.82.08) janvier 76.
Prise de son : Gilly Bell et Jean-Pierre Leccia. Super technic man : Olivier Masson Mixage : Bell, Leccia et Zazou.
Photographismes et maquette : Claude Nougier.
Dessin étrange et encouragements : Captain Beefheart.
Merci à Raymond l'Empereur, à Marcel Gotlib pour son beau texte, à Captain Beefheart pour son beau dessin, à tous les musiciens qui sont venus jouer, à Hugues Chevalier, à Jean-Paul Marquis et à Cat pour leur patience et leur dévouement, à Alain Dugrand pour sa très efficace coopération, à Pierre Anastay pour son aide précieuse à Robert Wyatt, Brian Eno, Fred Frith et Ivor Cutler pour les belles choses qu'ils ont faites et à Gilly Bell pour avoir largement dépassé ses obligations techniques et fait du studio notre deuxième foyer.

FACE RACAILLE

a) Chanson triste pour faire danser les petites filles « pour Cathy et sa maman Jennifer »
.....H. Néneux

b) Nu au bain
« au gros Robert et à son copain Ivor »
.....A. Leslie

Robert Wyatt Testament by Ottist(F)reddy from All misery starts

Will the real Robert Wyatt please stand from the album The Magic Tale of flying kite from the animal kingdom by Orange Glow

Nenia Islandese per Robert Wyatt by Blue-Lu

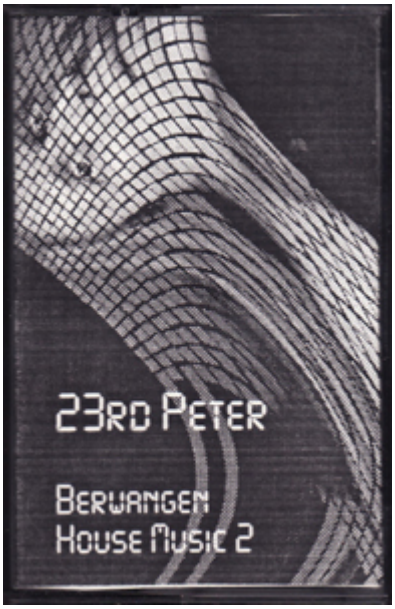
If The Big Fat Yellow Thing In The Sky Was To Burn Out I Would Take You By The Hand And Float Off Into Orbit (A Song For Robert Wyatt)

Song For Robert Wyatt

Robert Wyatt

Robert+Alfie



Wild Grass II (For Robert Wyatt)

Nicolas Dunger
"Tribute to Robert Wyatt"
from The Vinyl Trilogy

Robert Wyatt Hits The Beat by 23rd Peter from Berwangen House Music 2

Remerciements :

Alain Dister, Hervé Muller, Jacques Vassal, Daniel Vermeille, Jerry Hopkins, Yves Jourdan, Bernard Dauman, M. et Mme René Petit.

Remerciements spéciaux :

John Mc Laughlin, Robert Wyatt.

Benoît Feller remercie spécialement Robert Wyatt dans son ouvrage sur Jimi Hendrix (1976)

Robert Wyatt by The Old Soul

Le grand Joseph Racaille dédie à Robert Wyatt et à quelques autres géants cette K7 de rimes et comptines destinée aux enfants...

RIMES ET COMPTINES EN BULLES

PAR JOSEPH RACAILLE et ses rythmes

Joseph RACAILLE
Boîtes, bongos, chœurs, claps, cochon, cymbale, danse de la pluie, fausse basse, flûtes douces (alto, soprano, piccolo), fourchettes, grosse caisse, guitare électrique, harmonicas, lavabo, machine à écrire, mélodica, orgue, pianos électrique et acoustique, piano jouet opéra, robinet qui fuit, sifflotage, tabouret en plastique, tambourin, tête dans la machine à laver, tire bouchon, voix, xylophone..

avec la participation de Françoise TOMENO :
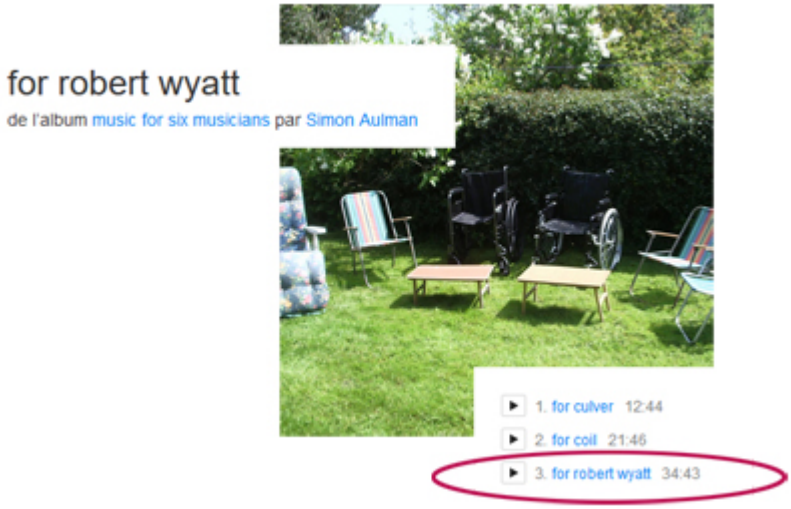
chant (A1, A2, A6, AII, AI6, BI2)
Claude MONTIS : clarinette (A2)
Annick MEVEL : chant (BI3) et pédagogie
Bruno GIRARD : chant (A9)
Hélène BASS : chant (A9)
Christophe BAILLOT : saxes, claps, flûtes traversières et douces (B2)
G. CABANNES, C. BAILLOT, F. GORGE, C. MEUNIER : chœurs (AI2)

Musiques composées, arrangées ou adaptées par Joseph RACAILLE
Textes traditionnels, sauf « L'orchestre familial » de C. POSLANIEC et « Vie de chat » de R. GUEZ.
Enregistré par le compositeur en juillet-août 1983.
Mixé par C. Baillot et le compositeur à PIERRE BAYLE en septembre 1983

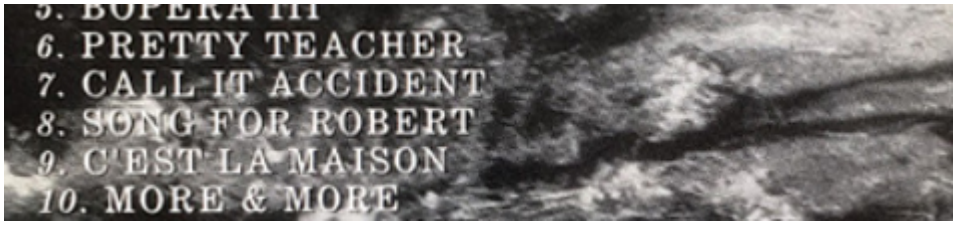
Dédié à Captain B., Ivor C., Moondog, . Robert W., Young Tom W. et Balthazar C.



0:00 / 3:23

Wild Grass II (For Robert Wyatt) : le bel hommage de Arp & Anthony Moore

AQUASERGE
A L' AMITIE
TRACKLISTING:
1 - À L' AMITIÉ 7' 22
2 - SERGE SINGE 4' 11
3 - FOR BOB 3' 24
4 - SILLAGE 1 & 2 6' 34
5 - SILLAGE 3 3' 51
6 - JE VIENS 4' 30
7 - TRAVELLING 4' 37
8 - PRÉPARATION 1'38
9 - JE VIENS (REPRISE) 2' 05
10 - CECI 4'18
www.sonymusic.fr
www.chambre404.com



Aquaserge

God save Robert Wyatt!
de l'album Amateur Hour par Dr. Organ
DR ORGANS
AMATEUR HOUR
1. Castle Point 03:19
2. Chekhov 02:22
3. The Range 01:59
4. God save Robert Wyatt! 05:26
6. Go deep 04:48
7. Monday Afternoon 03:52
8. C's and G's 03:20
9. Let the Sun Set 03:49

for robert wyatt de l'album music for six musicians par Simon Aulman
1. for culver 12:44
2. for coil 21:46
3. for robert wyatt 34:43

Parlami

Song For Robert by Daevid Allen and Kramer (Who's Afraid - 1992)

0:00 / 0:40

Alternate (Poem for Robert Wyatt) - Richard Gorman (2017)

Alternate
for Robert Wyatt

Jazz Robert
Tequilla
Progressive Robert
Southern Comfort
Hairy Robert
Tequilla
Vibrant Robert
Southern Comfort
Psychedelic Robert
Tequilla
Lout Robert
Southern Comfort
Soft Robert
Tequilla
Communist Robert
Southern Comfort
Tequilla
Southern Comfort
Te q ui ll a
S ou t her n Co m fo r t
T e qu i l la la la la la la la la la l
l
Beautiful Robert

Folly Bololey
North Sea Radio Orchestra

et aussi Poems to Pop Stars en 2004 dans *Daevid Alien Playbax (Disk 1)...

16-19: POEMS TO POP STARS
Kevin Ayers Robert Wyatt Bill Bruford Terry Riley.
MASTERING: Dallas Simpson @ Serendipity.

... à Robert Wyatt

Nouvelles - Jean-Marc Foussat

0:00 / 3:38

Le titre du morceau va droit au but : At rock bottom with Robert Wyatt... de l'album Ultimate Tourist's Guide to Life par Ultimate Tourist

0:00 / 2:47

Robert Wyatt par Ralph Carney

0:00 / 2:59

Robert Wyatt de Jean-Luc Le Ténia

Mary Halvorson's Code Girl

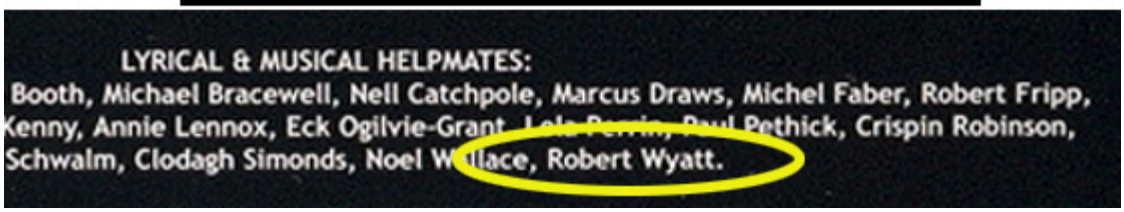
0:00 / 4:58



Vic Chesnutt Live at 40 Watt Club on 2008-03-01 sings Robert Wyatt

Dédicace à RW du morceau Whyitiso de Robert Iolini sur l'album Iolini paru en 2000.

Another Day On Earth - Brian Eno

Hommage à Roberto Viatti (notre RW) sur toutes les éditions du 1er album de Picchio Dal Pozzo paru en 1976.

En 1977, Tin Huey sort un 45t où il liste au verso de la pochette ses influences majeures...

Jonathan Coe cite un extrait de The British Road en exergue du chapitre 5 de son roman Le Royaume désuni paru simultanément en France et en Angleterre en 2022:

How can I rise if you don't fall ?

En 2017, le 1er morceau de Bichitos, l'album numérique du musicien chilien Caer.Sin.Alas, s'intitule Robert Wyatt et contient peut-être aussi quelques samples non crédités de R.W. ...

Robert Wyatt de l'album Vol. 1 par Marco Oselini

Star Quality - Speculations For Guitar And Voice
Keir Cooper & Eleanor Westbrook (2024)

"...Star Quality - Speculations for Guitar and Voice is an album that rethinks the possible relationships between vocals, instrumentation, improvisation and digital software editing - or thinks about them in a certain way for the first time. It is immensely playful (singer Eleanor Westbrook is also a trained clown), summoning the ghosts of Dada past in its radically mischievous use of collage. Hannah Höch and Tristan Tzara would have danced with joy at the games played here. It reminds fleetingly of Robert Wyatt's avant scat adventures on his 1970 album The End Of An Ear..."

Dans son morceau "Robert Wyatt", Neil Dexter évoque les émotions qu'il a ressenti lors de sa première écoute de Rock Bottom.

0:00 / 4:02

Robert Wyatt by Neil Dexter (from the album I'll Be Ready -2022)

Pourquoi qu'on dort pas
Population II
Pourquoi qu'on dort pas

Bonne question, pourquoi qu'on dort pas ? un clin d'oeil au Soft Machine des débuts par le groupe Population II sur son album Électrons libres du québec sorti en 2023.

Il est aussi une autre sorte d'hommage que nous pourrions appeler "en abîme".

Le plus saisissant est celui d'Elizabeth Fraser qui reprend le magnifique At Last I Am Free a mi-chemin entre la reprise de Robert Wyatt et la version originale de Chic (sortie en 1978).

0:00 / 4:24

Elizabeth Fraser - At Last I Am Free (2003)

0:00 / 4:18

Robert Wyatt - At Last I Am Free (1980)

0:00 / 7:13

Chic - At Last I Am Free (1978)

0:00 / 5:08

Mr Wyatt from Paris - Erik Truffaz (2008)

Remerciements / Thanks to

Robert Wyatt, Marcel Kanche, Manuela Gimeno, Adrian Bourget, Theresa Ferté, Roger Fontanel, Jacques Parize, Patrick Duval, Nicolas Ammeux, Pierre Villeret, Toute l'équipe de La Maison du Peuple - Saint Claude, Jazz à Frontenay, Jazz en Nord, Philippe Gonin, auteur de l'ouvrage : « Robert Wyatt - Rock Bottom » (Densité), Yves Dorison. Et une pensée affectueuse pour Yves Bleton qui nous manque tellement...

0:00 / 6:03

Carla Song extrait de SeaSong(e)s

Remerciement à Robert Wyatt dans l'album SeaSong(e)s. du quartet Tocanne-Domancich-Läng et Gaudillat, paru en septembre 2017.
Comme le titre de l'album l'indique, cet album est un hommage explicite à l'univers de Rock Bottom et contient une reprise de Sea Song.

LIKE ROBERT WYATT

Have you ever tried to sing like Robert Wyatt in the bath?
No of course not it would sound absurd
And make the neighbour's dogs all bark

Ruth is stranger than Richard, hope is stranger than both,
Robert and me in harmony's a dream
Sounds like my fingers are down my throat
Sounds like my fingers are down my throat

My soup tin's just been sick into a saucepan
But it's non- stick, it's ok
Soup song's tasty not a bit like plastic
But the bills still have to be paid.

Ruth is stranger than Richard, hope is stranger than both,
The bills and me in harmony's a dream
Sounds like my fingers are down my throat
Sounds like my fingers are down my throat

Un réjouissant hommage de Graham Summers sur Innocence and menace..

0:00 / 2:31

0:00 / 1:38

Stars Over Louth by Crayola Lectern
(from the album Disasternoon - 2025)

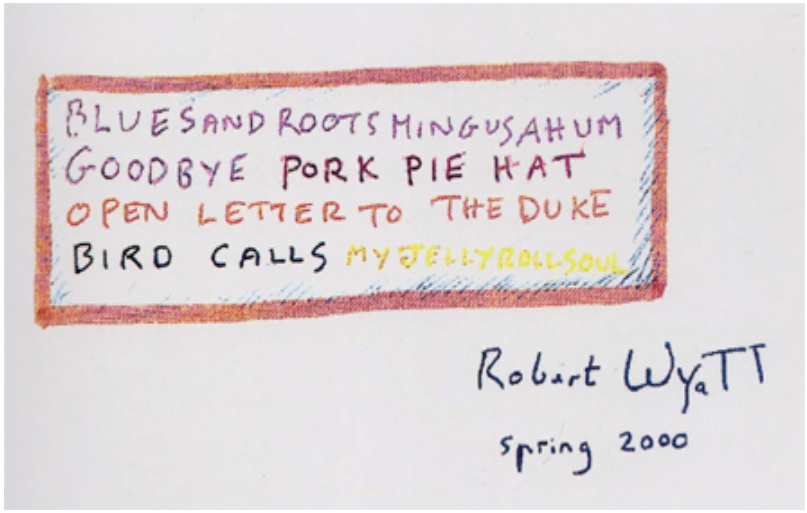
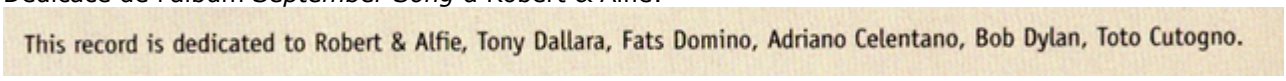
Crayola lynchpin Chris Anderson explained: "'Stars over Louth' came out of a lockdown correspondence with Alfreda Benge, whose husband Robert Wyatt was very complimentary about the unnamed track. I wanted to dedicate it to them and so the title alludes to that.



Pascal Comelade est un admirateur inconditionnel de Robert Wyatt qu'il cite dans chacune de ses interviews et dont il proposera des reprises facétieuses tout au long de sa carrière : Bel Canto, El Primitivismo, Impressionnismes, Haïkus De Pianos...
En 2000, une reprise par Robert Wyatt et Pascal Comelade de l'indémodable September Song de Weill/Anderson concrétise cette admiration sans réserve.



Mais Robert Wyatt est "présent" dès les premiers enregistrements de PC sous la forme d'évocations sonores qui semblent prolonger le 1er album solo The End Of An Ear. Citons Barcelona Tango, Good-Bye Wyatt Hat, Wyatt Ah Um... tous réédités en 2014 dans le coffret My Degeneration Electronics 1974-1983.

Dans Good Bye Wyatt Hat et Wyatt Ah Um il rend non seulement hommage à l'univers sonore de Robert Wyatt, mais fait aussi un double clin d'oeil à Charles Mingus et à l'album Ah Um et le morceau Goodbye Pork Pie Hat. Charlie Mingus que Robert Wyatt ne manque jamais d'évoquer lorsqu'on l'interroge sur ses principales influences musicales.

Dédicace de l'album September Song à Robert & Alfie:

0:00 / 0:00

In A Lebanon Park from Sentimientos - Pascal Comelade (1982)

0:00 / 0:00

Wyatt Ah Um from Sentimientos - Pascal Comelade (1982)

Mais plus fort encore, l'hommage à l'hommage: dans son album Rendez-vous, Satsuki Shibano reprend de belle manière Wyatt Ah Um de Pascal Comelade (cf. ci-dessus), lui-même prolongement éthéré de To Carla Marsha And Caroline For Making Everything Beautifuller (The End Of An Ear).

0:00 / 0:00

Wyatt Ah Um from Rendez-Vous - Satsuki Shibano (1991)

An ode to Robert Wyatt by Charlie Hannah (2024).
Written and performed by Charlie Hannah except drum machines and spacey tape noises by Rosie Carr and Johnny Goddard.
Video made by Charlie with the help of Xav Clarke who filmed it, and leant his kayak!

En 2018, le groupe norvégien Needlepoint sort The Diary Of Robert Reverie, un album dont la référence tant musicale que graphique au Rock Bottom de Robert Wyatt est rien moins que subliminale...

Gil Pistil rend hommage à Robert Wyatt de la manière la plus élégante. Il compose un morceau à la manière de : he touched my soul, so today Robert, I sing my song for you...

Mais si je devais ne retenir qu'un musicien parmi tous ceux qui citent Robert Wyatt parmi leurs influences majeures, je choisirais Benoît Burello alias BED pour l'ensemble de son oeuvre (admirable):

Les références du vieux garçon, en ce domaine, sont William-Carlos Williams et Walt Whitman, pour le parler anglais, préféré au français, que Burello voit confiné à l'écrit. En matière musicale, Benjamin Britten pour ses Suites pour violoncelle et «son homosexualité à l'époque...»; mais surtout inépuisablement, Robert Wyatt, le doloriste pataphysicien de Soft Machine, paralysé en plein trip coco psychédélique.

Bayon in Libération - 31 mars 2001.

0:00 / 3:11

Moonlight from The Newton Plum - BED (2001)

Je ne peux terminer cette rubrique sur les hommages à Robert Wyatt sans mentionner "l'Affaire Guy Pedersen" !

Si je me souviens bien, elle surgit brutalement sur Kazaa (les anciens me suivront) sous la forme d'un fichier mp3 anonyme accompagné d'un message laissant entendre qu'il s'agit très vraisemblablement d'un inédit de Robert Wyatt...

Le réseau s'agite, la rumeur va bon train, des courageux prennent parti pour ou contre cette révélation. Une écoute à peine sérieuse ne laisse pourtant aucun doute mais il est vrai qu'on retrouve dans ce morceau quelques archétypes sonores qui ne sont peut-être que d'amicales citations...

Après quelques recherches plus approfondies, le mystère est levé : il s'agit d'un morceau de l'album vinyl Maxi-Music de Guy Pedersen paru en 1972 chez Télé Music..... la kazaasphère respire !

0:00 / 2:59

Track B2 : Petit Moujik De Nuit
Guy Pedersen - Maxi-Music

Dedicated To You et Dondestan ! The Wyatt Project

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Rimbaldien ! Gloria Gloom s'achève à peine qu'un spectateur crie très fort son émotion, et à Charleville-Mézières celle-ci ne peut être que rimbaldienne...

Le concert-hommage à Robert Wyatt a lieu dans une salle fervente, acquise par avance aux variations très personnelles d'un groupe de choc emmené par John Greaves, témoin historique et M. Loyal, décidé à revisiter l'oeuvre complète, de We Did It Again à Forest, soit 30 ans et des poussières de bonheur musical absolu.

Pataphysical Introduction et A Concise British Alphabet pour la mise en bouche, Alliance, Sea Song et autres O Caroline alternent avec des compositions originales créées pour l'occasion par six musiciens dont l'émotion est flagrante.

C'est la face jazz, expérimentale, voire un tantinet cérébrale de la musique de Robert Wyatt qui s'exprime ce soir. Ni l'hommage trop respectueux du SoupSongs Live, ni le clin d'oeil new wave du Different You italien.

Plutôt une variation libertaire à la sonorité presque acoustique (la contrebasse d'Hélène Labarrière et les clarinettes de Sylvain Kassap y sont pour beaucoup).

Et Karen Mantler, parfaite (orgue, chant, harmonica) qui entonne en fin de concert l'hymne officiel du fan-club de R.W., une chanson tendre que le public reprendra en choeur :

R.O.B.E.R.T. W.Y.A.T.T.

Plus d'infos sur le concert de Charleville-Mézières, cliquer ici.

Un autre concert a eu lieu le 10 février 2004 à Faches-Thumesnil puis le 17 février 2005 dans le cadre du festival Sons d'hiver.

Mêmes musiciens, même répertoire sous une nouvelle appellation "Dondestan ! The Wyatt Project".

Un article de Citizen Jazz rend bien compte de ce concert passionnant qui, hélas, ne remplira pas la grande salle de la Maison des Arts de Créteil.

Karen Mantler à Charleville-Mézières - 8/11/03 (photo : Dominique Rieffel)

L'article de Citizen Jazz sur le concert de Charleville-Mézières

L'article de Citizen Jazz sur le concert de Créteil

Découvrir le photo-reportage

D'autres photos des concerts de Charleville et Créteil

L'hymne officiel du fan-club de Robert Wyatt

JOHN GREAVES chant, basse, piano
SYLVAIN KASSAP clarinettes
HELENE LABARRIERE contrebasse
JACQUES MAHIEUX chant, batterie
KAREN MANTLER chant, orgue, harmonica
DOMINIQUE PIFARELY violon

John Greaves à Créteil - 17/02/05 (photo : Hélène Collon)

L'Ardennais - 10/11/2003

Robert, si tu nous regardes !

De gauche à droite, John Greaves, Hélène Labarrière, Jacques Mahieux, Dominique Pifrély, Sylvain Kassap et Karen Mantler... visiblement heureux de l'avoir fait !

Petite mise en bouche juste avant le concert dans le hall du théâtre avec la section jazz du conservatoire qui a joué deux morceaux (dont un de Robert Wyatt) répétés en master class avec Sylvain Kassap.

580 entrées ! Sauf erreur, ce serait le record de Charleville Action Jazz depuis sa création. Le concert « autour de Robert Wyatt » restera dans les annales.

L'HOMMAGE rendu à Robert Wyatt (n'en déplaise à l'intéressé — toujours bien vivant ! — qui ne souhaitait pas un terme aussi solennel) par Charleville Action Jazz et le théâtre de Charleville-Mézières s'est transformé en une belle réussite.

Il y aura très probablement un album qui naîtra de la rencontre inédite de John Greaves, Karen Mantler, Hélène Labarrière, Dominique Pifarély, Sylvain Kassap et Jacques Mahieux.

Mais on ne sait pour l'heure si les musiciens souhaiteront conserver la spontanéité du live réalisé, samedi soir, au théâtre, ou s'ils préféreront enregistrer, en studio, le fruit de leur résidence musicale carolo d'une semaine. Quoi qu'il en soit, ce futur CD ne sortira pas sans porter la marque d'origine de Charleville-Mézières.

Ça s'est passé comme prévu. Les vieux soixante-huitards étaient là en majorité dans la salle : les fans de la première heure. Il y avait même, dans le public, trois ou quatre barbus grisonnants à cheveux longs que l'on aurait presque pu confondre avec le compositeur paraplégique s'ils étaient venus en fauteuil roulant.

Présent par la pensée

Un article du Monde de la veille entretenait le suspense : Viendra ? Viendra pas ?

Non, Robert Wyatt n'est pas venu à Charleville-Mézières. Il ne manquait d'ailleurs plus que lui. La fête s'est passée sans lui... physiquement. Mais il était tellement présent par la pensée. Au moins dans les pensées de tous ceux qui lui doivent quelques bonheurs musicaux importants de leur vie... à commencer par les six musiciens eux-mêmes. Robert, si tu nous regardes !...

En fait, John, Karen, Hélène, Dominique, Sylvain et Jacques ont fait un véritable travail de fans.

Karen Mantler l'a d'ailleurs clairement matérialisé sous la forme d'un « Hymne officiel du fan club de Robert Wyatt », joué pour la première fois en guise de rappel ; un morceau clin d'œil qui invitait le public à reprendre le refrain dans lequel on épelle avec une sorte de dévotion mécanique les lettres du nom de l'ex-batteur et chanteur de Soft Machine.

Mais ça, c'était pour rire. Tout ce qu'on avait entendu avant ce premier rappel fut bien conforme à ce à quoi les uns et les autres s'attendaient. Jusqu'au dernier album, Cuckooland, sorti en octobre 2003.

Le Wyatt politique et militant

Dans cet album, Robert Wyatt évoque, entre autres, ce qu'il considère comme une monstruosité : on a construit un élevage de porcs en ex-Tchécoslovaquie, là où, pendant la dernière guerre, se trouvait un camp de concentration nazi ! (C'est le Wyatt politique et militant...).

Samedi soir, l'éventail fut assez complet : des compositions labellisées RW ou témoins (comme We did it again de Kevin Ayers dans le Soft Machine One joué en dernier rappel) de cette liberté musicale débridée dont Robert Wyatt a été l'un des acteurs principaux outre-Manche dès 1968.

Le tout assaisonné de quelques compos personnelles (Kassap, Mantler...) ou de parties spécialement transposées pour le violon de Dominique Pifarély fut un vrai bonheur légitimement salué par de longues très longues minutes d'applaudissements.

Patrick Flaschgo

Ceux qui voudront réentendre le même concert doivent d'ores et déjà noter cette deuxième (et sans doute dernière) date : le 10 février 2004 à Faches-Thumesnil, près de Lille. Mais ce sera dans une petite salle de trois cents places, à peine.

Fans en performance

D'autres manifestations associées étaient prévues pour accompagner la création mondiale autour de la musique de Robert Wyatt. Notamment une exposition pendant tout le mois de novembre à la bibliothèque municipale des livres d'artistes des éditions AEncrages. Également une autre exposition des toiles et dessins de Jean-Michel Marchetti en place au musée Rimbaud jusqu'au 11 janvier (article dans une prochaine édition).

Enfin, le musée de l'Ardenne accueillait, samedi après-midi, une « performance » de Jean-Michel Marchetti qui a peint, en direct, devant le public, accompagné par le guitariste Jean-François Pauvros.

Jean-Michel Marchetti, qui peint l'abstraction depuis plus de vingt ans, est aussi un admirateur de Robert Wyatt. Les éditions AEncrages ont publié quatre recueils de textes de Robert Wyatt, illustrés des propres dessins de Jean-Michel Marchetti.

L'artiste Jean-Michel Marchetti a peint, devant le pulic, au musée de l'Ardenne, sur une musique du guitariste Jean-François Pauvros.

Lors de cette performance, les évolutions de l'artiste et la guitare parfois très « distortionnée » de Jean-François Pauvros ont été enrichies de lectures de textes très forts de Robert Wyatt (traduits en français), lecture faite par Roland Chopard qui dirige les éditions AEncrages.

Different every time: The Authorised Biography Of Robert Wyatt

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Annoncée plus d'un an à l'avance, cette bibliographie de Robert Wyatt par Marcus O'Dair, journaliste et musicien - une moitié du très sophistiqué Grasscut - ne déçoit pas.

Très documentée et largement illustrée, les afficionados du présent site y trouveront en 460 pages "tout ce qu'ils ont toujours voulu savoir sur Robert Wyatt" et bien plus encore...

Ecrit par un amoureux passionné et exigeant de la musique du grand Bob, cette bible mérite bien son appellation de 2ème de couverture : "The definitive biography of Britain's greatest cult musician".

La sortie du livre fin 2014 s'est accompagnée d'une double compilation Ex machina et Benign Dictatorships, une sélection de collaborations très éclectiques qui rend bien compte de cette curiosité intellectuelle et humaine qui a guidé toute la carrière musicale de RW.

Quelques semaines plus tard, Robert Wyatt faisait savoir qu'il "prenait sa retraite". J'ignore si cette annonce était déjà envisagée au moment de la sortie du livre et des deux albums. Mais ces productions forment un fabuleux point d'orgue à une carrière hors du commun dont chaque épisode entre en résonnance avec les moments forts de notre vie.

Et nul doute que nous vibrerons encore de cette voix et des paysages sonores dont elle a su s'entourer.

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION BY JONATHAN COE 9

SIDE ONE: THE DRUMMER BIPED

1. THIS IS THE FIRST VERSE
George and Honor, London and Kent 15

2. MEMORIES
Deià and The Wilde Flowers 39

3. CLARENCE IN WONDERLAND
Mister Head and The Soft Machine 56

4. LIVING IS EASY, HERE IN NEW YORK STATE
Touring with Hendrix: the Softs implode in America 85

5. ZYXWVUTSRQPONMLKJIHGFEDCBA
Volume Two and a Pataphysical introduction 99

6. ON A DILEMMA
Moon in June and upside-down jazz-rock 115

7. AT LEAST I WON'T BE SHOT FOR SINGING
The End of an Ear and moonlighting with The Whole World 129

8. I MAY PLAY ON A DRUM
Matching Mole – and Robert meets Alfie 152

9. FIGHTING FOR A SOCIALIST WORLD
The Little Red Record and calling time on Matching Mole 167

10. FOLLY BOLOLEY
Venice and the fall 180

SIDE TWO: EX MACHINA

11. DIFFERENT EVERY TIME
Rock Bottom and marriage to Alfie 195

12. I'M A BELIEVER
Drury Lane, Top of the Pops and Henry Cow 215

13. SILENCE
Other people's records and the CPGB 236

14. FOREIGN ACCENTS
The Rough Trade singles 252

15. DIVING FOR DEAR LIFE
Shipbuilding and Work in Progress 270

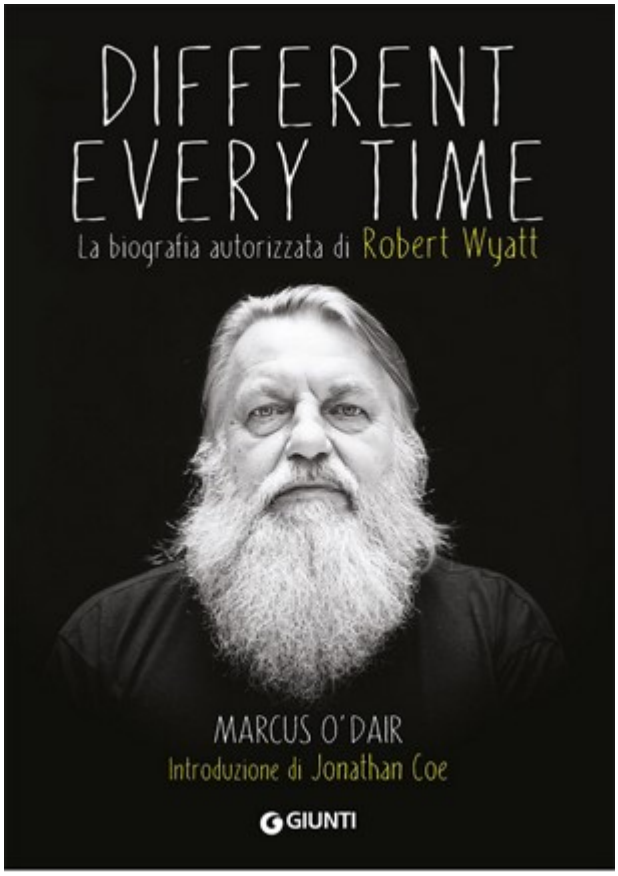
16. THE AGE OF SELF
Old Rottenhat: English as a foreign language 284

17. CP JEEBIES
Dondestan: Pataphysical postcards from Louth 300

18. THE WINTER OF OUR DISCOTHEQUE
Shleep and the thaw after a very long winter 320

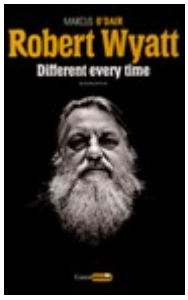
19. SPEECHLESS
A moment in heaven on London's South Bank 336



20. HOPE CAN STILL FEEL PRETTY GOOD
Cuckooland: ditties from the Fitties 347

21. THAT LOOK IN YOUR EYES
Comicopera and getting on the wagon 363

22. WHAT'S NEW?
The eight bars Robert got right 377



DISCOGRAPHY 399
WYATT ONLINE 410
NOTES AND SOURCES 414
PHOTO CREDITS AND THANKS 434
INDEX 436

En octobre 2015, Different Every Time est publiée en Italie, traduite par Alessandro Achilli, déjà traducteur en 1994 de l'ouvrage de Mike King "Wrong Movements".
Il en existe également une version numérique au format Kindle.

La version japonaise

Different every time est publié en français en juin 2016 aux Éditions du Castor astral.

Different Every Time: The Authorised Biography Of Robert Wyatt
Marcus O'Dair
WIRE - November 2014 - Serpent's Tail

Robert Wyatt's phantom pains had less to do with the drunken fall that in 1973 turned him from "drummer biped" into sit down singer, and more to do with the vertebral severance of his firing from Soft Machine. Escaping a familiar "party entanglement" at Lady June's West London flat, Wyatt heard a lupine scream as he slipped off the drainpipe he was shinning, and only realised later that the voice was his own. There's a metaphor in that alone.

Just as phantom pains are medically well attested, so too is the habit of hyperrationalising a disability so that it seems a positive advantage. Wyatt has suggested that the fall (and his secular Christianity might allow us to capitalise it) has been the source of his redemption, though redemption of any sort without the presence of partner and collaborator Alfie - that is, Alfreda Benge - would surely have been vanishingly improbable. The accident turned Wyatt from shirtless rock god, impossibly beautiful in his younger incarnation, into the UK's equivalent of American poet John Berryman, the usually legless, chaotically bearded, impossibly depressive weaver of dream songs who took his own (fatal) jump the year before Wyatt's, in l972.

The songs had been the issue in Soft Machine, who wanted Wyatt to stay behind the kit and keep his mouth shut. The parting wasn't just a falling out with friends, but the thwarting of a distinct musical vision, that has now taken 40 years to work through what might have been done on the Soft's so-so Third, dribbly Fourth and the essentially redundant Fifth, Six and Seven if Wyatt's 'Pataphysical version of the group had been allowed to prevail. Famously, he called his next group Matching Mole (after machine molle, the French translation of Soft Machine) in hurt/homage/defiance, then broke it up before it got much further than a two steps back, one step forward version of the original group.

Close access to Wyatt and Alfie (who merits a biography of her own) has allowed Marcus O'Dair to explore the fall out more clearly than anyone before. When Wyatt came out of what had begun to look like a full time withdrawal from the world and music making with 1997's heavenly Shleep, he was able to say that "0ld wounds are healing/Faded scars are painless/Just an itch" and work alongside his former Soft Machine colleague Hugh Hopper again. But he was also moved to say on "Free Will And Testament" that, "Had I been free, I could have chosen not to be me". There is suicide, which was Berryman's path, and there is the honest will never to have existed, or to be Other, and that's a whole different kettle of rock bottom fish, a different kind of psychic ooze.

Perhaps the most poignant detail in the whole book is the offscreen image of Wyatt's father in a wheelchair, suffering from multiple sclerosis. It is as if bipedalism was never his birthright, even if a bright and dreamlike imagination was, through his mother Honor. O'Dair catches the mood and spirit of the various Wyatt homes beautifully and gives enough of the wider family -including the turncoat journalist Woodrow Wyatt - to suggest a complex creative and intellectual lineage. He also gives the most detailed account yet of Wyatt's political commitments, which for a long period during his own and the UK's years of lead seemed to outweigh his music. Reviewers rather too eagerly took the cue and for the longest time a Robert Wyatt song was analysed almost exclusively in reference to its lyrics (which were sometimes Alfie's work) when the real subversion and radicalism lay in the music, which came out of a distinctly British approach to jazz as a sonic philosophy rather than a style. When Wyatt mangled the Spanglish words of "Frontera" for his loyal friend Phil Manzanera's 1975 album Diamond Head, it was a signal surely that his approach to language was rarely literal. When Robert Christgau criticised Wyatt's lyrics for "minimalist obscurantism" or possibly "obscurantist minimalism", he had the germ of a point but lost it in sourness. Wyatt picked up the cue, saying pawkily that American minimalism is a con, because there's far too much of it, whereas he is the real minimalist, leaving ten year gaps between projects.

The trajectory from "Frontera" to its retread "Team Spirit" on 1975's relatively unloved Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard sums up much of Wyatt's musical career. The opening "Kick me, Hardy" and "I'm the best football you have got" say a lot about how easily wheeled about Wyatt is in the recent history of British music. I saw him once at a party, parked in a corner, hunched, with bright people, all of them ostensibly there to celebrate his achievement, shouting over his head. The next week, the papers were full of wordy/worthy examination of his apparently atavistic and cross-grained devotion to Soviet communism. In reality, Robert Wyatt is devoted only to the human spirit in all its frailty and to the 'Pataphysical clinamen, the swerve behind all nature and the "slight deviation in the orderly descent of textual atoms" (as noted by French writer Jacques Jouet) that renders the world and its texts alive and interesting.

It is remarkable that a man whose mobility has been limited for four decades, who does not tour or perform live, should have delivered so much of the musical world to us. Wyatt is the most important British composer and his most important composition was the 2001 Meltdown festival, the most completely satisfying musical week in Britain since records began, even if the principal curator chose only to perform briefly and side-stage. It was the happiest time he'd spent, he says, since some of those Communist-run festivals in Italy back in the day, when food and drink and music vied for attention with the Dialectic. He and Alfie didn't miss a gig, though.

If things had gone differently, Wyatt might still be behind the kit and "sweating like a boxer" on some Softs reunion tour. Whatever he himself feels about it, that would be just out-bloody-rageous.

Brian Morton

Different Every Time
Laurent Rigoulet
TELERAMA - 10/12/14 - ffff

Robert Wyatt est le plus discret des génies. A l'approche de ses 70 ans, il se retire sans un bruit. Une simple phrase pour un journaliste anglais qu'il reçoit, à l'automne, dans sa maison perdue du Lincolnshire : «J'ai arrêté de faire de la musique.» Pour tempérer l'effet de cette sombre nouvelle, l'homme «à la voix la plus triste du monde» dresse l'inventaire à sa manière. Il fait tenir sur deux albums cinquante ans de carrière et plusieurs vies à l'avant-garde de l'internationale rock, où il a côtoyé aussi bien Jimi Hendrix et Syd Barrett que Björk et Elvis Costello. Le pari est absurde, les choix abrupts, les oublis nombreux, mais Robert Wyatt, patriarche aux humeurs changeantes, ne pouvait que trancher dans le vif pour résumer, sans souci de logique, un parcours prodigieux dont la boussole oscille entre Charles Mingus et Karl Marx, Alfred Jarry et Billie Holiday. La compilation n'est pas baptisée pour rien Different every time (« chaque fois différent »). Elle esquisse la cartographie d'une vie tout en bifurcations et donne de l'appétit pour replonger dans l'œuvre foisonnante de ce patriarche que les Anglais considèrent comme un «monument national» (lire encadré). En Grande-Bretagne, le disque s'accompagne d'une biographie au titre identique, qui brosse un portrait détaillé de ses multiples incarnations : le batteur de Soft Machine, noceur et soûlographe, improvisant torse nu dans le tourbillon festif du Swinging London ; le chanteur paraplégique, cloué à son fauteuil roulant après une chute accidentelle, du quatrième étage, lors d'une soirée de juin 1973 ; le crooner dépressif, le militant communiste endurci, l'érudit jazz, l'agitateur pop...

Pour lancer la visite, Robert Wyatt nous fait pénétrer dans son univers par une ouverture aussi baroque que monumentale. Moon in june est une composition de vingt minutes, une odyssée tantôt mélodieuse, tantôt bruitiste, qui condense les années folles de Soft Machine sur la ligne de front du rock expérimental des années 1960. Comme Pink Floyd, son «jumeau de l'underground», le groupe de Canterbury a tissé sa légende de concerts épiques - moto sur scène, happenings, bains de gelée, explosions de fumée... lors de soirées psychédéliques où tout était combiné pour évoquer les «rêves en Technicolor» et les voyages sous acide. La liberté était le seul cap et les improvisations musicales n'avaient guère d'autre limite que celle des ressources physiques. Enregistré au tournant des années 1970, Moon in june garde l'empreinte de ces digressions mais ne s'écarte jamais des chansons pop et de la musique black américaine dont Wyatt s'est nourri toute sa vie. Le canevas est souple, les mélodies rayonnent ou s'estompent dans le tourbillon instrumental, la voix aiguë du chanteur flotte dans un jour chagrin, se laisse emporter par l'exubérance du jeu de batterie sans rien perdre de son émotivité. «Pour Charles Mingus, dit Wyatt, la musique perd toute valeur, toute signification si elle se coupe de ses racines dans la chanson ou la danse.» «J'aime la pop à mort», clame-t-il aussi.

LE RENDEZ-VOUS CRITIQUE

« DIFFERENT EVERY TIME », DE ROBERT WYATT

De la folie de Soft Machine au rock doux et ténébreux qui suivit son accident, l'Anglais à la voix de crooner blessé compile un demi-siècle d'une carrière foisonnante et engagée.

D'une exploration à l'autre, il en a fait son credo. Quitte à s'opposer à ses comparses de Soft Machine, qui juraient que par l'abstraction pur et dure. Ce Moon in june, saturé de vie, un acte de décès. Leur dernier morceau en commun. Wyatt l'a enregistré presque seul avant de se faire renvoyer du groupe qu'il avait fondé. Il en a gardé un chagrin immense (dont il a dit parfois, qu'il l'avait conduit à son accident) mais en a tiré une ferme philosophie musicale. Contre le jazz-rock sans âme que des musiciens rock, fascinés par John Coltrane, ont fait déferler sur les années 1970 (« la pire fusion possible»). Pour un rock doux, ténébreux, nourri par la fluidité des mélodies jazz.

Après son terrible accident, Robert Wyatt, émouvant crooner qui n'aura jamais chanté debout, dit qu'il n'avait d'autre choix que d'« inventer une autre manière de faire de la musique ». Il l'a fait, sans attendre, en 1974, sur son chef-d'œuvre, Rock Bottom, tissé des mélodies aqueuses qui lui tournaient en tête sur son lit d'hôpital. D'une époque à l'autre, le chanteur blessé a traversé des zones fortement dépressives, mais il a produit, sans relâche des chansons généreuses et teintées d'un optimisme combatif. Different every time en fournit quelques brillants aperçus. At last I'm free, reprise languissante du chic des années disco, est le joyau d'une période fertile - les années Thatcher - où il s'est nourri de la musique populaire pour enregistrer de poignants manifestes (sur la face B du 45 tours, il livrait une magnifique relecture du Strange Fruit rendu célèbre par Billie Holiday). Faite d'emprunts, de citations, de détournements, de collages, sa musique est devenue indissociable de la lutte politique. Avec la liberté de sa voix, capable de restituer chaque tonalité d'un solo de jazz, Robert Wyatt peut faire pleurer en chantant les hymnes de la gauche éternelle ou les compromissions du socialisme moderne, la mort de la classe ouvrière, l'avènement du libéralisme (The Age of self)...

Il veut donc se retirer du monde à présent. Il reviendra peut-être. Et ne s'effacera pas. En couverture du disque et de la biographie 2014, l'image qu'il imprime est celle d'un ermite, taillé dans le roc, au regard ferme et clair. La force indestructible d'un guide qui a su se faire écouter de tribus aussi antagonistes que les punks ou les hippies, et que les jeunes générations n'ont pas fini d'entendre.

Laurent Rigoulet

Ex machina, un recueil de ses enregistrements, et Benign Dictatorships, qui rassemble quelques interventions sur d'autres disques que les siens.

Different every time, the authorized biography of Robert Wyatt, de Marcus O'Dair, préface de Jonathan Coe, éd. Serpent's Tail.

Robert Wyatt (au centre) vers 1968, avec ses comparses de Soft Machine

SUIVEZ LE GUIDE

Les albums solo de Robert Wyatt ont bénéficié de rééditions soignées (chez Domino). Par où commencer?

Rock Bottom, libre manifeste d'un artiste qui a largué les amarres, est l'album clé pour se laisser happer par les mélodies en clair-obscur et les escapades sonores de Wyatt.

Réalisé un an plus tard, en 1975, Ruth is stranger than Richard, plus sombre, achève d'imposer la signature d'un chanteur solitaire.

Nothing can stop us, petit chef-d'œuvre de la pop marxiste, rassemble en 1982 les chansons publiées sous forme de 45 tours pendant les années Thatcher. Avec le magnifique Shipbuilding, écrit par Elvis Costello.

En bonus, Jet Propelled Photographs est une belle curiosité de l'époque Soft Machine et du Robert Wyatt chanteur soûl et batteur énergique. Des bandes enregistrées à Londres en 1967 dans la formation d'origine, et une chanson inoubliable, Memories. - L.R.

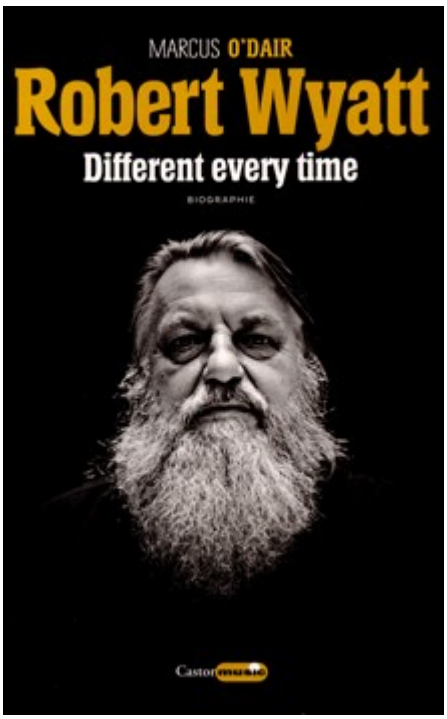
Different every time - traduction française

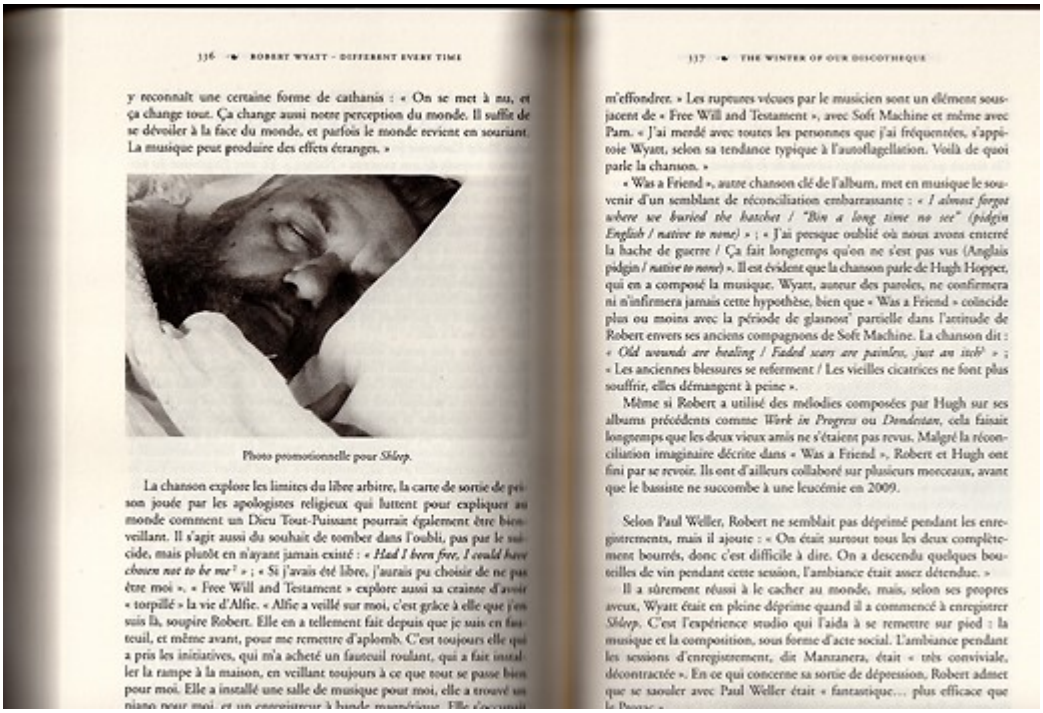


ABÉCÉDAIRE

Quel millésime cette année 2016 avec les publications successives de L'École de Canterbury d'Aymeric Leroy et la traduction française de la magistrale biographie de Robert Wyatt Different every time de Marcus O'Dair tout juste publiée le mois dernier aux Editions du Castor Astral !

La préface de Jonathan Coe donne la clé de cette relation unique qui lie le compositeur-interprète de Moon In June et de Signed Curtain à ses admirateurs depuis plus de 40 ans :

"De plus en plus Robert Wyatt ressemble à la voix de la raison. Des chansons sensées pour une époque insensée. Il n'est pas étonnant que d'innombrables personnes, telles que moi, ont été inspirées et élevées par celles-ci pendant si longtemps, et resteront à jamais reconnaissantes."



"More and more, Robert Wyatt sounds like the voice of sanity. Sane songs for insane times. No wonder that I, and countless others, have been inspired and uplifted by them for so long, and will remain forever grateful."

Touché ! En 22 chapitres et two sides - The drummer biped et Ex machina - Marcus O'Dair nous transporte des premiers concerts de congas sur la plage de Déia (Majorque) au studio de son ami Phil Manzanera en passant par les soirées au Ronnie Scott's ou les tournées américaines.

Les habitués du site disco-robertwyatt.com retrouveront avec plaisir le récit des enregistrements les plus emblématiques de la carrière de Robert Wyatt mais aussi ses multiples et inattendues collaborations musicales qui ont rythmé sa vie de compositeur et de musicien durant plusieurs décennies.

Au-delà de la trame chronologique que la plupart des lecteurs de cette newsletter connaissent déjà peu ou prou, c'est surtout la parole de Robert Wyatt qui est le fil conducteur de l'ouvrage. Jamais avare d'une réflexion critique sur son travail - un tantinet masochiste toutefois - il décrypte avec lucidité son parcours d'artiste et les métamorphoses de l'industrie culturelle qui impose progressivement sa pensée dominante depuis un demi-siècle.

336 ROBERT WYATT – DIFFERENT EVERY TIME

y reconnaît une certaine forme de catharsis : « On se met à nu, et ça change tout. Ça change aussi notre perception du monde. Il suffit de se dévoiler à la face du monde, et parfois le monde revient en souriant. La musique peut produire des effets étranges. »

Photo promotionnelle pour Shleep.

La chanson explore les limites du libre arbitre, la carte de sortie de prison jouée par les apologistes religieux qui luttent pour expliquer au monde comment un Dieu Tout-Puissant pourrait également être bienveillant. Il s'agit aussi du souhait de tomber dans l'oubli, pas par le suicide, mais plutôt en n'ayant jamais existé : « Had I been free, I could have chosen not to be me[1] » ; « Si j'avais été libre, j'aurais pu choisir de ne pas être moi ». « Free Will and Testament » explore aussi sa crainte d'avoir « torpillé » la vie d'Alfie. « Alfie a veillé sur moi, c'est grâce à elle que j'en suis là, soupire Robert. Elle en a tellement fait depuis que je suis en fauteuil, et même avant, pour me remettre d'aplomb. C'est toujours elle qui a pris les initiatives, qui m'a acheté un fauteuil roulant, qui a fait installer la rampe à la maison, en veillant toujours à ce que tout se passe bien pour moi. Elle a installé une salle de musique pour moi, elle a trouvé un piano pour moi, et un enregistreur à bande magnétique. Elle s'occupait

337 THE WINTER OF OUR DISCOTHEQUE

m'effondrer. » Les ruptures vécues par le musicien sont un élément sous-jacent de « Free Will and Testament », avec Soft Machine et même avec Pam. « J'ai merdé avec toutes les personnes que j'ai fréquentées, s'apitoie Wyatt, selon sa tendance typique à l'autoflagellation. Voilà de quoi parle la chanson. »

« Was a Friend », autre chanson clé de l'album, met en musique le souvenir d'un semblant de réconciliation embarrassante : « I almost forgot where we buried the hatchet / "Bin a long time no see" (pidgin English / native to none) » ; « J'ai presque oublié où nous avons enterré la hache de guerre / Ça fait longtemps qu'on ne s'est pas vus (Anglais pidgin / native to none) ». Il est évident que la chanson parle de Hugh Hopper, qui en a composé la musique. Wyatt, auteur des paroles, ne confirmera ni n'infirmera jamais cette hypothèse, bien que « Was a Friend » coïncide plus ou moins avec la période de glasnost' partielle dans l'attitude de Robert envers ses anciens compagnons de Soft Machine. La chanson dit : « Old wounds are healing / Faded scars are painless, just an itch[2] » ; « Les anciennes blessures se referment / Les vieilles cicatrices ne font plus souffrir, elles démangent à peine ».

Même si Robert a utilisé des mélodies composées par Hugh sur ses albums précédents comme Work in Progress ou Dondestan, cela faisait longtemps que les deux vieux amis ne s'étaient pas revus. Malgré la réconciliation imaginaire décrite dans « Was a Friend », Robert et Hugh ont fini par se revoir. Ils ont d'ailleurs collaboré sur plusieurs morceaux, avant que le bassiste ne succombe à une leucémie en 2009.

Selon Paul Weller, Robert ne semblait pas déprimé pendant les enregistrements, mais il ajoute : « On était surtout tous les deux complètement bourrés, donc c'est difficile à dire. On a descendu quelques bouteilles de vin pendant cette session, l'ambiance était assez détendue. »

Il a sûrement réussi à le cacher au monde, mais, selon ses propres aveux, Wyatt était en pleine déprime quand il a commencé à enregistrer Shleep. C'est l'expérience studio qui l'aida à se remettre sur pied : la musique et la composition, sous forme d'acte social. L'ambiance pendant les sessions d'enregistrement, dit Manzanera, était « très conviviale, décontractée ». En ce qui concerne sa sortie de dépression, Robert admet que se saouler avec Paul Weller était « fantastique… plus efficace que

Ce qui me touche le plus, c'est sa fidélité à des valeurs qu'il a su exprimer musicalement de la manière la plus radicale mais aussi la plus inventive et la plus légère possible. Comme s'il avait trouvé la martingale faisant cohabiter simplicité et complexité, fantaisie et profondeur...

Mais bien des batailles intimes se sont livrées au cours de cette vie qui ne fut pas sans récifs. Marcus O'Dair ne transforme pas Robert Wyatt en héros positif de la musique engagée et avant-gardiste. Il déroule le fil d'une histoire pleine de doutes et d'incompréhensions qui seront souvent surmontés grâce à la passion combative d'Alfie sans laquelle les chefs-d'œuvre de la période "solo" n'auraient sans doute jamais vu le jour...

Ce livre paraît quelques mois après que Robert Wyatt a mis officiellement un terme à sa carrière artistique. J'espère que Robert Wyatt ne raccrochera pas totalement les gants et qu'il continuera de nous faire parvenir de temps à autre une de ses cartes postales sonores qui irradient les œuvres de ses amis musiciens.

Different every time est paru aux Éditions du Castor Astral - collection Castor Music, traduit de l'anglais par Pauline Firla et Louis Moisan. Préface de Jonathan Coe.
454 pages - 24 euros.

Argumentaire de l'éditeur

En vente sur les librairies en ligne et dans toutes les librairies physiques avec de vrais livres et de vrais libraires à l'intérieur (vivement recommandé).

En savoir plus : Different every time, la biographie de Marcus O'DAir

Accueil > Blogs > Ça va jazzer

Robert Wyatt, Saint et Soft

BRUNO PFEIFFER 11 JUILLET 2016 (MISE À JOUR : 12 JUILLET 2016)

Retour sur la biographie du batteur phénoménal de Soft Machine, devenu le compositeur qui enchanta le rock des sixties et des quatre décennies suivantes.

Qui contestera à Moon in June, le morceau de Soft Machine, composé en mai 1970 par le batteur Robert Wyatt, la qualité de totale perfection? Wyatt et ses congénères David Aellen, Kevin Ayers et l'organiste Mike Ratledge ont formé Soft en 1966 à Canterbury (GB). Le chef d'œuvre Moon in June figure sur le troisième album du groupe (Third). Une suite sublime (19 minutes) psalmodiée par le batteur lui-même (la voix d'ange approche le registre de haute contre). Wyatt quittera Soft en 71 pour fonder Matching Mole.

O Caroline, balade de rêve, également signée Wyatt, inaugure le premier disque intitulé Matching Mole (1972). Délice renouvelé. Une thèse sur la beauté dans le rock anglais devrait autant s'attarder sur ces deux seuls titres que sur l'intégrale des Beatles. Les cadeaux ne sont pas au bout. L'Anglais né à Bristol a 27 ans. Il rencontre sa compagne Alfie (l'actrice Alfreda Benge), au premier concert de Matching Mole, le 22 janvier 1972. Une chute de plusieurs étages lui brise les jambes (1973).

En convalescence, il concocte Rock Bottom, un bijou d'album. J'assiste à la présentation en avant-première à Londres des morceaux de Rock Bottom durant la soirée caritative pour Mal Dean, le 25 juillet 1974. Devant une petite centaine de personnes, dont quatre ados (nous), Wyatt joue seul au piano, sur la chaise roulante. C'est poignant. A la fin de la prestation, les copains de Strasbourg en goguette cet été-là, viennent féliciter leur dieu. Nos guibolles tremblent, on ressent un trac fou. Wyatt! Le sourire, la bienveillance, nous éblouissent. Je bafouille quelques mots, genre «on a tous vos disques Monsieur Wyatt». Lui (en anglais): «Oh des Français, c'est gentil d'être venus m'écouter. La musique vous a plu?» Le monument Rock Bottom sort en 1974, envolée de lumière dans les ténèbres.

Lorsque je reverrai Wyatt à Paris (le label Naïve distribue en 2004 His Greatest Misses , une compil truffée d'inédits magnifiques, organise des interviews), je lui rappellerai. Wyatt n'en revenait pas : « incroyable, vous étiez présents?» Je lui demande le nom du saxophoniste qui l'a rejoint pour les morceaux de la fin. Il ne se souvenait pas du tout d'un saxo ce soir-là. Apparaît Alfie, dans le patio de l'hôtel. Wyatt l'interpelle : «tu sais pas la meilleure, Alfie, ce garçon était à la première de Rock Bottom*! Il n'y avait pas de saxo, je jouais seul, n'est-ce pas?*» Alfie réfléchit. «Si si, Robert. Gary Windo t'as rejoint pour les deux derniers morceaux »!

Chers lecteurs, croyez-le, le nirvana me paraissait un plancher à côté de l'altitude où je planais. Je supplie la personne de Naïve de nous photographier. Dans l'ouvrage qui sort cet été au Castor Astral, traduction française de la bible déjà culte de Marcus O'Dair parue en 2014 (Robert Wyatt, Different every time), on trouve mille précisions sur la vie du grand homme. Je vérifie notamment celle sur Gary Windo. Le témoignage de Wyatt appuie les informations sur une longévité sans compromis (nombreuses rencontres avec l'auteur). Le récit passe du Soft Machine psychédélique à la rédemption de Rock Bottom (mariage avec Alfie, très présente dans l'ouvrage, en fusion permanente). Et s'étend sur les nombreux albums solos (Old Rottenhat, Dondestan, Shleep, Cuckooland, etc.) Les plages intimes fourmillent. Ainsi l'on se ressource avec Robert pendant les moments de paradis sur le South Bank de Londres. La musique de Robert incarne sa vie. La voici, en vrai.

Bruno Pfeiffer

Docteur Honoris Causa

ABÉCÉDAIRE

ROBERT WYATT DISTINGUÉ PAR L'UNIVERSITÉ DE LIÈGE

Les sept musiciens et compositeurs suivants,
Dick Annegarn, Anthony Braxton, Arvo Pärt, Henri Pousseur (à titre posthume), Frederic Rzewski, Archie Shepp et Robert Wyatt ont été faits Docteur Honoris Causa par l'Université de Liège le 17 septembre 2009. Rappelons que ce titre honorifique permet à une université de souligner l'œuvre d'une personnalité ayant posé sa marque dans un domaine particulier. Pour l'Université de Liège, c'est avant tout la reconnaissance de leur rôle de "passeur de musique":

" Leur goût pour l'innovation, tout comme leur refus de confiner leurs créations à un seul genre ou à une seule tradition ne les ont pas empêchés de récolter un succès considérable auprès de leurs contemporains, dépassant les clivages qui séparent trop souvent les représentants de la musique populaire des expérimentateurs confidentiels.

Mettant leur érudition et leur imagination au service du plus grand nombre, les artistes honorés ont aussi brillé par leur intégrité morale, leur honnêteté intellectuelle et leur indépendance radicale par rapport à ce qu'il est désormais commun d'appeler l' «industrie musicale». "

On ne peut mieux dire.

Cet hommage a donné lieu à une conférence-débat en présence des musiciens et compositeurs et à un concert privé gratuit en fin de journée où ont été jouées des œuvres des sept musiciens honorés.

Nos envoyé(e)s spéciaux n'ont rien manqué de cette journée aussi étonnante que réjouissante...

Nous avons donc suivi pas à pas R.W. ce jeudi dans toutes les manifestations publiques organisées entre autres en son honneur.

Eminemment simple et sympathique, il nous est apparu serein et calme tout au long de la journée. Peut-être s'est-il demandé ce qui lui arrivait d'être autant entouré. Il était curieux des lieux dans lesquels il se trouvait, regardant souvent, le matin, une magnifique coupole conférant à la salle de conférence une grandeur et une majesté certaines. Un peu détaché, il écoutait cependant les interventions de ses collègues musiciens avec une certaine tendresse qui lui amenait de temps à autre un sourire.
La cérémonie protocolaire semblait plus encore que le matin le laisser perplexe. Même la grande toge noire qu'il avait dû revêtir ne l'aidait pas à comprendre la solennité

> Zoom

0:00 / 2:37

Vandalusia

> Zoom

0:00 / 2:53

Alifib

à laquelle il devait faire face : alors il est resté égal à lui-même, serein, un rien détaché et passif à l'égard de tous ces honneurs. Il s'est toutefois amusé au moment où l'on lui a remis la médaille de Dr Honoris causa.... car, à peine entre les mains, il la perdit immédiatement : cela l'a vraiment égayé.
Le couronnement de la journée fut le concert du soir.... et là, après l'interprétation de ses morceaux par quatre jeunes musciiens, je pense qu'il fut très ému quand la salle entière lui a fait un triomphe, les spectateurs s'étant tournés vers lui pour l'applaudir et l'ovationner de voix vives... là, il avait enfin retrouvé son monde, celui dans lequel finalement il doit se sentir le mieux : la musique.

Journée inoubliable pour lui je l'espère mais assurément pour nous qui avons eu l'immense bonheur de partager un moment sa vie

Philippe et Armande Paye

Concert dans la Salle Philharmonique, Liège (BE).

Alifib, Gharbzadegi et Vandalusia interprétés par le Quatuor Tana:
- Antoine Maisonhaute & Mikaël Bonnay - violin
- Romain Monfort - viola
- Jeanne Maisonhaute - cello

(arrangements de Stéphane Collin, Thanks to Annie Whitehead).

Crédits photos: Alfreda Benge, Philippe Paye et Charles Van Waalwijk.

> Zoom

0:00 / 3:44

Gharbzadegi

> Zoom

> Zoom

0:00 / 1:33

> Zoom

> Zoom

> Zoom

L'école de Canterbury

ABÉCÉDAIRE

C'est avec grand plaisir que je me fais amicalement le relais d'une initiative hautement salutaire : la publication tant attendue le mois dernier (avril 2016) de l'ouvrage auquel Aymeric Leroy travaillait depuis des années: L'école de Canterbury.

Doté de 735 pages - 948 grammes, cet ouvrage "choral" suit l'émergence et le rayonnement des groupes et des musiciens qui ont constitué la fameuse école depuis la fin des années 60...
Qu'un tel livre soit publié aujourd'hui prouve qu'il existe encore un public suffisamment curieux de cette aventure musicale et artistique hors normes. Du moins je l'espère.

Aymeric Leroy et Robert Wyatt (2007)

Des 226 musiciens cités dans l'index, certains (suivez mon regard) auront fait plus que produire les environnements sonores de notre jeunesse: ils auront - en quelques albums et concerts - exacerbé notre désir d'une vie plus intense, plus poétique, plus consciente...

A ceux là, ma reconnaissance éternelle...

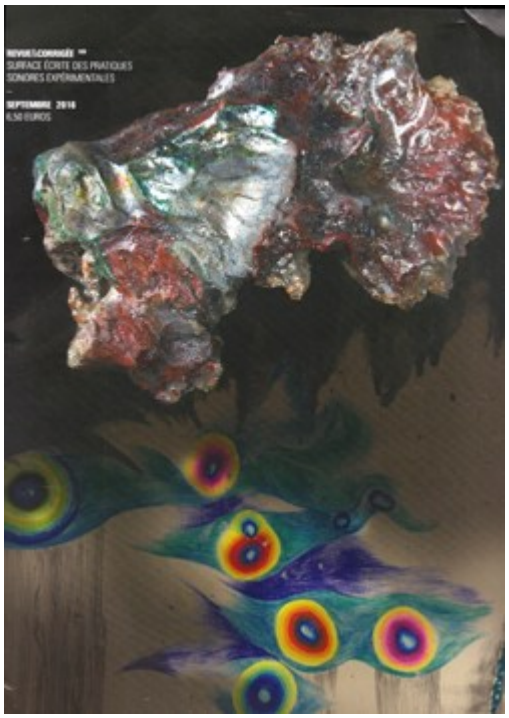
Je ne doute pas qu'Ameyric a lui aussi été marqué à vie par ces aventuriers du son.

L'immense travail qu'il déploie dans ce domaine depuis longtemps (son Canterbury Website a 20 ans cette année!) s'enrichit donc d'un nouvel opus aussi méticuleux qu'indispensable !

Il est possible de commander l'ouvrage dans toutes les bonnes librairies ou directement en ligne sur le site de l'éditeur.

Aymeric a créé à cette occasion un nouveau blog Legends In Their Own Lunchtime - Close encounters with the Canterbury Scene qui accompagne et complète L'école de Canterbury avec des thèmatiques, des visuels et des témoignages supplémentaires...

Bonne lecture !



0:00 / 57:55

Émission Rockoscopie du 26 juin 2016 sur Judaïques FM avec Aymeric Leroy (57:54)

REVUE ET CORRIGEE - N° 109 - SEPTEMBRE 2016

AYMERIC LEROY
L'ECOLE DE CANTERBURY
LE MOT ET LE RESTE-2016

C'est un fait : tous les musiciens dont il est question dans ce livre ne se sont pas rassemblés, avec, en tête, l'idée d'un projet esthétique précis, mais plutôt animés par l'envie de jouer ensemble.

Pour autant, si l'on en croit Kevin Ayers, l'idée d'une grande famille était bien là, dès les débuts de Soft Machine. Ce qui n'empêche d'ailleurs pas certains amateurs d'objecter que l'Ecole de Canterbury n'est qu'une invention journalistique, en prenant pour preuve un article du New Musical Express de 1973, ou l'interview de Kevin Ayers parue dans ZigZag la même année, premiers à utiliser une appellation que les concernés eux-mêmes ont pu réfuter. Robert Wyatt en tête. Quoiqu'il en soit, c'est de l'histoire de cette école-famille devenue culte dont il s'agit ici, au long de sept cents et quelques pages vivantes et richement documentées, débutant en gros avec l'arrivée de Daevid Allen à Canterbury en 1960 et s'achevant avec Soft Machine Legacy en 2016. Entre ce qu'on sait du Daevid Allen Trio en 1963 et des Wilde Flowers entre 1965 et 1966 jusqu'à l'héritage actuel (l'essentiel de la chronologie courant toutefois entre 1966 et 1981), Caravan, Gong, Egg, Hatfield & The North, Gilgamesh et National Health (entre autres) sont passés en revue, ainsi qu'une myriade de projets plus ou moins individuels centrés sur des préoccupations plus ou moins communes. Parmi les plus belles pages de cet ouvrage, figurent des analyses remarquables des albums Rock Bottom et Happer Tunity Box de Robert Wyatt et Hugh Hopper, l'auteur réussissant même à passionner quand il s'agit de parler de Shamo-l et Gazeuse de Gong, deux disques que l'on peut pourtant ne pas trouver à son goût. La lecture se termine par des arbres généalogiques ayant le mérite de clarifier ce qui pourrait paraître embrouillé pour le néophyte, au vu des incessants changements de personnel au sein des groupes de cette école. Saluons le travail d'historien, considérable, pour cette somme sans équivalent. D'autant que l'auteur a rencontré et interviewé la plupart des protagonistes afin de croiser les informations.

PHILIPPE ROBERT

INDEX DES GROUPES

Allen (Daevid) et Ayers (Kevin) 35

Ayers (Kevin) 159, 335

Bill Bruford 636

Camel 599

Caravan 113, 125, 165, 220, 262, 276, 317, 341, 365, 410, 463, 491, 532, 568, 609, 651, 683

Dean (Elton) 253

Delivery 203, 251, 317

Egg 151, 161, 229, 307, 450

Gilgamesh 415, 502, 625

Gong 108, 173, 244, 254, 291, 347, 393, 436, 517, 554, 589, 603

Gowen (Alan) 672

Hatfield And The North 351, 354, 363, 398, 472, 480

Hillage (Steve) 459, 561

Hopper (Hugh) 322, 388, 547

Hopper Dean Tippett Gullivan 574

Isotope 456

Kevin Ayers And The Whole World 186, 209

Khan 272, 331

Matching Mole 282, 301, 324, 329

Mister Head 40

Monster Band 422

National Health 512, 532, 564, 580, 615, 629, 644, 657, 675

Ottawa Music Company 264

Paragong 352

Rapid Eye Mouvement 665

Sinclair & The Youth 527

Soft Heap 633

Soft Machine 46, 50, 57, 61, 63, 68, 70, 77, 83, 86, 89, 91, 94, 97, 101, 116, 122, 132, 133, 139, 157, 171, 176, 182, 189, 200, 213, 235, 247, 259, 268, 294, 311, 384, 442, 542, 594, 612, 661

Weightwatchers 539

Wilde Flowers 32

Wyatt (Robert) 215, 280, 340, 377, 425, 466, 495

INDEX DES MUSICIENS

Abu (Sammi) 392
Alfie voir Benge (Alfreda)
Allan (Laurie) 111, 251, 252, 259, 321, 349, 421, 422, 423, 431, 440, 441, 469, 470, 476, 496
Allen (Daevid) 12, 21, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 43, 44, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 57, 58, 59, 61, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 72, 74, 82, 87, 91, 94, 96, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 135, 173, 174, 175, 189, 244, 246, 247, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 281, 286, 293, 323, 325, 335, 337, 347, 348, 349, 350, 358, 359, 361, 362, 393, 394, 395, 397, 398, 437, 438, 439, 440, 442, 518, 528, 568, 590, 591, 592, 593, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607, 649, 650, 692, 693, 695, 700, 702
Allen (Orlando) 702
Austin (Derek) 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 365
Ayers (Kevin) 12, 13, 16, 20, 25, 27, 30, 31, 32, 33, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 43, 44, 45, 46, 49, 51, 54, 57, 59, 60, 61, 62, 64, 66, 67, 68, 69, 71, 72, 81, 83, 90, 92, 94, 95, 100, 102, 105, 107, 114, 115, 117, 120, 121, 122, 124, 131, 133, 135, 139, 145, 148, 149, 158, 159, 160, 186, 187, 188, 189, 197, 203, 209, 211, 229, 252, 256, 281, 292, 303, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 349, 362, 376, 378, 405, 460, 466, 542, 543, 596, 691, 693

Babbington (Roy) 205, 208, 209, 237, 238, 240, 241, 250, 251, 254, 295, 312, 319, 321, 322, 384, 385, 387, 400, 442, 445, 450, 542, 544, 547, 704
Baines (Jeremy) 265, 266, 267, 268, 402, 403, 408, 475
Baker (Fred) 693, 703
Bardens (Peter) 600, 602
Bass (Colin) 564, 565, 567, 602
Bauer (Mireille) 360, 519, 524, 554, 555, 556, 557, 593
Bedford (David) 160, 186, 187, 189, 209, 212, 335, 336, 337, 376, 603
Bex (Emmanuel) 700
Benge (Alfreda) 206, 288, 326, 378, 405, 409, 429, 433, 434, 467, 496, 329, 701
Berlin (Jeff) 636, 637, 638, 639, 642
Bery (Chritopher "Bob") 266, 267, 268
Biddulph (Rick) 621, 646, 665, 666, 668, 697
Blake (Tim) 347, 348, 350, 359, 361, 362, 393, 395, 396, 397, 437, 438, 440, 442, 460, 567, 590, 593, 607, 628
Blegvad (Peter) 616, 622, 624, 646, 648, 650, 657, 671, 689, 703
Blésing (Alain) 703
Blunstone (Colin) 668, 669
Born (Georgie) 622, 629, 630
Boulé (Christian) 564, 565, 567
Boyle (Doug) 698
Boyle (Gary) 269, 303, 319, 387, 391, 392, 393, 456, 457, 459, 548
Breukers (Dionys) 700
Brooks (Clive) 152, 153, 162, 265, 310, 358, 455, 567
Bruce (Jack) 269, 294, 527, 662, 663, 664, 669
Bruford (Bill) 234, 441, 513, 514, 516, 517, 519, 530, 531, 538, 568, 570, 571, 573, 619, 632, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 643, 644, 649, 666
Brunton (Richard) 549
Bunker (Clive) 564, 565, 567

Campbell (Mont) 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 162, 163, 164, 165, 232, 233, 234, 235, 265, 267, 268, 308, 310, 401, 402, 403, 408, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 482, 485, 503, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 537, 539, 568, 569, 570, 582, 588, 617, 680
Carr (Ian) 295, 311, 442
Causse (François) 593
Chalenor (Fred) 700
Charig (Mark) 176, 177, 181, 216, 219, 238, 250, 253, 254, 374, 549, 634
Chudley (Bob) 265, 266, 267
Clark (Graham) 702
Clark (John) 641, 643
Clark (Vince) 531, 697
Clyne (Jeff) 417, 457, 503
Coe (Tony) 697
Collier (Graham) 294, 312, 442
Collins (Mel) 600, 602
Cook (Steve) 417, 418, 502, 503, 594, 596, 598
Cooper (Lindsay) 452, 460, 462, 500, 620, 629, 630, 699
Coughlan (Richard) 32, 33, 34, 113, 114, 116, 126, 168, 170, 277, 342, 367, 411, 414, 465, 494, 533, 578, 652, 684, 687
Coxhill (Lol) 186, 187, 189, 203, 204, 209, 251, 252, 279, 320, 321, 322, 324, 335, 337, 374, 376, 384, 421, 422, 423, 476, 496, 529, 530, 603, 690
Cutler (Chris) 150, 265, 266, 267, 268, 307, 308, 373, 376, 402, 435, 441, 455, 470, 475, 605, 645, 702

Dauner (Wolfgang) 281
Dean (Elton) 177, 181, 182, 183, 186, 187, 192, 193, 194, 196, 198, 199, 201, 202, 210, 214, 216, 217, 219, 236, 237, 240, 248, 249, 250, 253, 254, 260, 261, 262, 269, 270, 271, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 311, 313, 322, 375, 385, 421, 423, 424, 467, 539, 540, 541, 542, 549, 551, 574, 575, 576, 577, 612, 614, 633, 634, 635, 675, 676, 677, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 693, 695, 698, 699, 700, 701, 703, 704
De Huff (Tim) 636
De Souza (Aureo) 458
Didkovsky (Nick) 700
DiFalco Elaine 700
Dobson (Lyn) 176, 178, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 192, 199, 402, 475
Domancich (Sophia) 682, 692, 699, 703
Donahue (Jerry) 578
Dufort (Dave) 335
Durant (Tony) 265, 267
Dvorak (Jim) 699
Dyble (Judy) 251, 252, 253

Eckert (Alain) 645, 647
Eno (Brian) 436, 466, 496, 497, 498, 600, 660, 701
Ellidge voir Wyatt (Robert)
Etheridge (John) 542, 544, 545, 546, 578, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 664, 704
Evans (Nick) 176, 177, 181, 187, 238, 247, 250, 540
Evans (Stuart) 342, 343, 365

Feza (Mongezi) 216, 431, 468, 495, 497
Field (Gerry) 175, 247
Fincher (Mick) 186, 187, 211
Flight (Graham) 33, 531
Frith (Fred) 265, 379, 435, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 496, 498, 499, 528

Gallivan (Joe) 542, 574, 575, 576, 577, 614
Gaskin (Barbara) 265, 272, 308, 403, 569, 669, 670, 677, 678, 679, 691, 703
Gewissler (Dieter) 175, 245
Gibbs (Michael) 294, 303, 384, 416, 540
Giraudy (Miquette) 437, 440, 441, 461, 517, 518, 519, 562, 567
Gomez (Ray) 636, 637

Gopal (Sam) 590
Govin (Pierre-Olivier) 700
Gowen (Alan) 354, 402, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 474, 475, 502, 503, 504, 505, 510, 512, 514, 537, 538, 568, 569, 571, 572, 573, 580, 581, 582, 583, 585, 586, 588, 589, 612, 613, 614, 615, 617, 620, 621, 624, 625, 626, 627, 628, 633, 634, 635, 639, 644, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 658, 659, 660, 668, 669, 671, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 684, 690, 699
Greaves (John) 307, 308, 500, 616, 617, 620, 621, 622, 623, 630, 631, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 650, 657, 671, 676, 679, 680, 682, 683, 689, 703
Greenwood (Nick) 273, 274, 276, 332, 334
Griggs (Nigel) 333, 334
Grimes (Carol) 205, 206, 207, 208, 251, 322

Hastings (Jimmy) 19, 38, 129, 169, 170, 193, 222, 224, 226, 238, 369, 472, 475, 482, 483, 484, 488, 534, 535, 582, 620, 621, 677, 679, 692, 696, 697
Hastings ("Pye" Julian) 12, 16, 17, 19, 34, 38, 113, 114, 115, 116, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 220, 221, 224, 226, 228, 229, 263, 276, 277, 278, 279, 318, 324, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 365, 366, 367, 368, 370, 411, 412, 413, 414, 463, 466, 492, 493, 494, 533, 535, 578, 579, 609, 610, 611, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 698, 704
Hayward (Charles) 320
Heninghem (Dick) 273, 274
Hewins (Mark) 530, 531, 532, 680, 681, 682, 683, 696, 697, 700
Hibbert (Fiona) 579
Hillage (Steve) 152, 153, 154, 156, 247, 272, 274, 275, 276, 308, 311, 332, 333, 334, 335, 338, 339, 347, 349, 351, 359, 360, 361, 393, 397, 402, 437, 439, 440, 454, 459, 460, 461, 462, 512, 517, 518, 519, 520, 522, 525, 537, 539, 554, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 590, 591, 594, 602, 603, 607, 608, 649, 665, 702
Hodge (Phil) 564, 567, 665
Hodgkinson (Tim) 402, 452, 500, 620
Holdsworth (Allan) 417, 442, 443, 444, 445, 447, 448, 450, 545, 554, 555, 557, 558, 594, 636, 638, 639, 641, 662, 663, 664, 665, 693
Holland (Bernie) 361, 392
Hopper (Brian) 12, ,19, 21, 23, 24, 26, 30, 31, 33, 34, 35, 38, 60, 129, 135, 143, 157, 176, 177, 423, 497
Hopper (Hugh) 12, 14, 19, 21, 22, 24, 26, 27, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 39, 44, 67, 107, 108, 114, 115, 119, 122, 123, 124, 136, 139, 140, 141, 142, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 157, 161, 173, 176, 177, 178, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 187, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 200, 202, 210, 212, 214, 215, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 242, 246, 247, 248, 250, 260, 261, 269, 271, 272, 279, 283, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 311, 313, 314, 316, 322, 323, 324, 369, 384, 385, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 421, 422, 423, 424, 431, 434, 450, 456, 457, 458, 459, 468, 469, 470, 471, 473, 496, 502, 540, 542, 543, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 574, 575, 576, 577, 581, 612, 613, 614, 615, 626, 627, 628, 633, 634, 635, 646, 658, 659, 660, 671, 672, 675, 676, 680, 689, 690, 693, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699, 700, 702, 703, 704
Houari (Rachid) 173, 174, 175, 244, 254, 347, 349
Howard (Phil) 250, 253, 254, 268, 269, 270, 271, 281, 294, 295, 296, 298, 299, 300, 303, 314, 529, 574

Howlett (Mike) 361, 362, 393, 396, 437, 438, 440, 460, 461, 462, 517, 519, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 590, 591, 608, 692, 693
Jakszyk (Jakko) 665, 666, 668, 669, 676, 680, 689, 703
Jenkins (Karl) 178, 294, 295, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 384, 385, 386, 389, 442, 443, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 542, 544, 546, 574, 594, 595, 597, 598, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665
Jobson (Eddie) 639
Jones (Paul) 319
Jones (Percy) 595, 636

Khan (Nisar Ahmad "George") 319, 496
Klossner (Lisa S.) 700
Kramer (Mark) 700
Krause (Dagmar) 500

Laloux (Daniel) 175, 178, 245
Lascelles (James) 657
Laswell (Bill) 702
Latimer (Andy) 600, 601, 602
Lawrence (Dave) 35
Lawrence (Michael) 650
Lee (Phil) 416, 417, 418, 502, 503, 504, 505, 512, 517, 625, 626, 627, 672
Legget (Archie) 173, 189, 337, 338, 339
Leigh (Geoff) 401, 402, 403, 408, 475
Lemer (Peter) 502, 503, 598, 676, 693, 695, 699
Lemoine (Patrice) 359, 518, 519, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 590
Leverton (Jim) 698
Lewry (Stephen) voir Sharpstrings (Steffi)

MacCormick (Bill) 283, 288, 304, 305, 306, 325, 326, 329, 330, 331, 348, 379, 496, 497, 511
MacRae (Dave) 269, 301, 302, 304, 305, 306, 307, 319, 325, 326, 328, 329, 378, 380, 381, 442, 471, 529, 530, 664
Maguire (Alex) 691, 693, 704
Maïtra (Shyamal) 700, 702
Malherbe (Didier) 96, 174, 175, 244, 254, 255, 256, 321, 336, 337, 347, 349, 359, 361, 393, 395, 397, 404, 437, 440, 460, 461, 517, 518, 519, 521, 523, 524, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 590, 593, 647, 692, 697, 698, 699, 702, 703
Marshall (Anthony) 266, 267, 269, 271, 294, 295, 298, 299, 300, 301, 307, 308, 402
Marshall (John) 312, 313, 314, 324, 384, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 448, 450, 542, 544, 545, 594, 595, 597, 598, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665, 693, 704
Mason (Nick) 379, 426, 430, 471, 501, 522, 523, 548
Messecar (Dek) 578, 652, 654, 655
Metto (Max) 531
Meyer (Patrice) 693, 697, 698, 699, 700, 703
Miller (Brian) 457
Miller (Phil) 14, 19, 203, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 251, 252, 279, 282, 283, 288, 301, 302, 304, 305, 306, 307, 317, 320, 322, 325, 326, 329, 342, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 363, 364, 379, 384, 399, 400, 404, 405, 416, 417, 419, 459, 481, 482, 483, 484, 487, 488, 490, 512, 514, 539, 540, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 577, 581, 586, 588, 616, 620, 621, 622, 624, 625, 630, 644, 647, 648, 657, 672, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 684, 690, 692, 693, 695, 696, 698, 699
Miller (Steve) 19, 203, 204, 205, 209, 251, 252, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 402, 417, 476, 502, 613, 699
Mitchell (John) 568, 569

Moerlen (Benoît) 554, 555, 556, 560, 593
Moerlen (Pierre) 359, 360, 361, 393, 397, 437, 438, 439, 441, 460, 461, 462, 512, 513, 517, 519, 520, 523, 524, 526, 554, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 567, 590, 591, 593, 603, 607, 692
Monck (Jack) 203, 204, 205, 263, 319
Monkman (Francis) 339, 340, 341, 378, 379
Morcombe (Richard) 417
Morris (Nigel) 392, 456, 549, 613, 660, 676
Morrissey (Dick) 662
Moze (Francis) 348, 349, 360, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 560, 595, 639
Muir (Jamie) 417
Murphy (John) 263, 264, 319, 321, 354, 367, 492, 527, 529, 530, 531, 685
Murray (Neil) 416, 417, 502, 503, 570, 571, 572, 581, 586, 615, 616, 625, 626, 636

Niedorf (George) 26
Nowlin (Larry) 37, 38, 39, 43, 45, 48, 49, 50

Oldfield (Mike) 186, 187, 188, 189, 209, 335, 336, 337, 350, 372, 374, 375, 376, 435, 466, 469, 470, 525, 603

Paganotti (Himiko) 703
Parker (Alan) 662
Parsons (Amanda) 265, 309, 403, 505, 515, 537, 538, 539, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 580, 581, 582, 583, 585, 587, 677
Peachey (Eric) 273, 274, 333, 334, 402
Perez (Gay) 531
Perry (John G.) 365, 367, 368, 370, 411, 415, 464
Pinchevsky (Jorge) 522, 523, 524, 526, 593
Pollock (Josh) 702
Ponty (Jean-Luc) 281
Pyle (Pip) 14, 16, 17, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 247, 251, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 263, 277, 281, 282, 317, 319, 320, 321, 322, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 364, 365, 399, 400, 405, 406, 409, 416, 473, 475, 476, 477, 480, 481, 482, 483, 488, 490, 507, 510, 513, 539, 540, 541, 572, 573, 577, 581, 587, 612, 613, 615, 616, 617, 619, 620, 622, 623, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 657, 658, 665, 666, 667, 668, 676, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 690, 691, 692, 693, 695, 697, 698, 699, 700, 702, 703

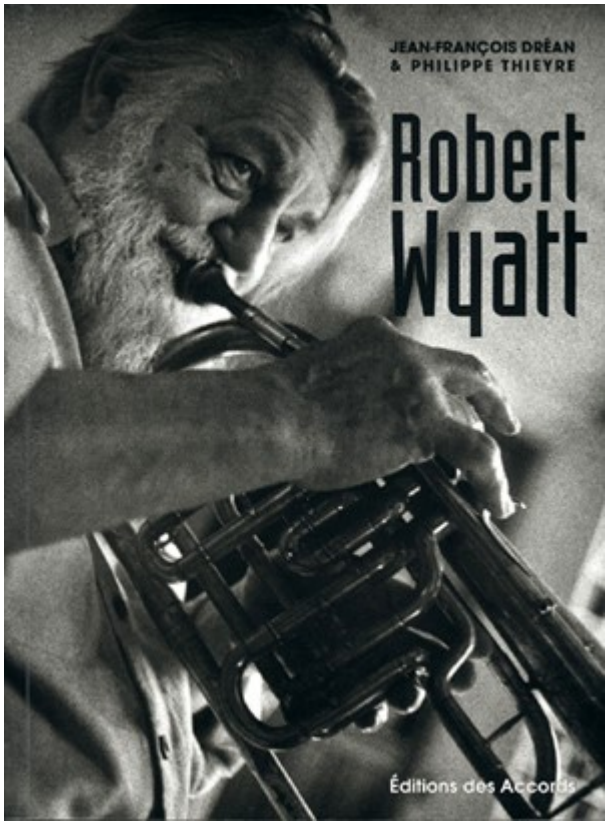
Ratledge (Mike) 12, 13, 21, 22, 23, 24, 26, 27, 28, 29, 42, 43, 44, 45, 47, 49, 51, 52, 57, 64, 66, 68, 72, 77, 81, 83, 87, 88, 90, 92, 94, 100, 102, 105, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 124, 131, 132, 133, 135, 136, 139, 140, 141, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 155, 156, 157, 160, 161, 173, 176, 177, 178, 180, 181, 182, 187, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 201, 202, 210, 212, 213, 214, 215, 235, 237, 238, 239, 240, 242, 248, 249, 250, 253, 254, 260, 261, 262, 268, 269, 270, 271, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 338, 356, 370, 381, 384, 385, 386, 388, 389, 424, 442, 443, 445, 446, 447, 448, 450, 523, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 553, 574, 597, 664
Richardson (Geoff) 341, 342, 343, 345, 367, 368, 370, 411, 465, 466, 492, 494, 533, 534, 540, 578, 579, 609, 611, 651, 652, 653, 655, 687, 692, 704
Ricotti (Franck) 369
Roberts (Frank) 459, 549, 551
Roderman (Eric "Happy") 268
Rosenthal (Ann) 265, 403
Rowe (Hansford) 593
Russell (Ray) 295

Rypdal (Terje) 281

Sanders (Ric) 594, 595, 597, 598
Schelhaas (Jan) 532, 533, 534, 578, 579, 602, 609, 610, 611, 686, 687, 704
Scott (Ronnie) 201, 250
Scott (Laurence) 456, 457, 459
Sharpstrings (Steffi) 692
Sheen (Dave) 612, 613, 614, 633, 672
Sinclair (David) 12, 13, 19, 21, 31, 32, 33, 113, 114, 115, 116, 126, 127, 128, 129, 167, 168, 170, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 277, 278, 279, 280, 304, 317, 318, 319, 321, 322, 342, 352, 353, 355, 356, 358, 368, 381, 400, 402, 404, 407, 416, 417, 421, 424, 430, 432, 471, 476, 479, 483, 484, 485, 488, 490, 508, 509, 511, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 599, 600, 601, 602, 610, 611, 620, 621, 651, 652, 657, 658, 672, 673, 674, 676, 677, 679, 680, 681, 684, 685, 686, 687, 698, 701
Sinclair (Richard) 12, 13, 14, 16, 19, 21, 34, 113, 115, 126, 127, 128, 155, 156, 167, 168, 169, 170, 219, 224, 225, 226, 228, 232, 262, 263, 264, 275, 276, 278, 281, 283, 285, 301, 302, 319, 351, 352, 353, 354, 366, 367, 368, 370, 371, 372, 411, 415, 464, 465, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 535, 553, 599, 602, 651, 652, 654, 681, 684, 685, 686, 689, 691, 692, 693, 695, 696, 697, 698
Skidmore (Alan) 238
Smith (Brian) 295
Smyth (Gilli) 29, 30, 35, 36, 37, 39, 78, 109, 111, 112, 174, 175, 244, 254, 255, 256, 257, 347, 350, 359, 362, 382, 393, 394, 397, 437, 441, 518, 590, 591, 607, 692, 693
Spall (Veleroy "Rab") 197, 210, 211
Spall (Maia) 211
Sparrow (Eddie) 338
Stephen (Ros) 701
Stevens (Clive) 269
Stevens (Val) 332, 333, 334
Stevens (John) 615, 681
Stewart (Dave) 17, 152, 153, 154, 155, 162, 163, 164, 165, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 265, 266, 267, 274, 275, 307, 308, 310, 328, 333, 334, 348, 351, 354, 355, 356, 357, 364, 365, 366, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 406, 407, 416, 419, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 460, 461, 462, 463, 467, 468, 469, 470, 473, 475, 477, 478, 480, 481, 483, 484, 485, 487, 488, 490, 504, 505, 506, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 518, 536, 537, 538, 539, 549, 551, 553, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 591, 616, 617, 618, 619, 620, 621, 622, 623, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 648, 649, 658, 665, 666, 668, 669, 670, 676, 677, 678, 679, 691, 692, 695, 696
Summers (Andy) 94, 122, 123; 124, 130, 134, 471, 591

Tait (Rob) 160, 348, 349, 374, 437
Tankowski (Frank) 392
Taylor (John) 662
Thibault (Didier) 359
Tippett (Keith) 176, 177, 267, 281, 384, 539, 540, 541, 542, 574, 575, 576, 577, 614, 615
Tippetts (Julie) 467, 469
Tomkins (Trevor) 626, 627, 672
Torabi (Kavus) 703
Travis (Mike) 392, 416, 417, 418, 422, 424, 502, 503, 504, 506, 549
Travis (Theo) 698, 704
Tremblath (Frank) 320
Tritsch (Christian) 173, 175, 244, 247, 255, 257, 258, 347, 348, 360

URBANIAK (MICHAEL) 281



VAN DER KOOIJ (FRANK) 700
VERLY (FRANÇOIS) 700
VISCONTI (TONY) 578, 579

WAKEMAN (ALAN) 417, 544, 545, 547
WAKEMAN (RICK) 637
WARD (ANDY) 599, 600, 602, 616, 696, 697
WARLEIGH (RAY) 442, 443, 448, 546, 547, 639, 662, 663, 664
WATKINS (KIT) 602, 697
WEDGWOOD (MIKE) 463, 464, 492, 494, 533, 535
WELLER (PAUL) 701
WEILLER (JEAN-PIERRE) 421, 422, 423, 613, 671, 673, 676, 689
WHANNEL (GARRY) 320
WHITEHEAD (ANNIE) 498, 701
WHITEHEAD (NEVILLE) 219, 253, 269, 281, 303
WILLIAMSON (HARRY) 702
WILSON (STEVEN) 228
WINDO (GARY) 216, 324, 379, 380, 381, 431, 434, 467, 468, 496, 548, 549, 551, 689
WYATT (ROBERT) 11, 16, 17, 21, 22, 24, 25, 27, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 39, 40, 41, 42, 44, 45, 46, 48, 51, 52, 55, 57, 58, 59, 61, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 69, 71, 72, 76, 77, 80, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 89, 92, 94, 95, 97, 98, 100, 102, 103, 105, 106, 111, 114, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 127, 129, 130, 131, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 173, 176, 177, 178, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 187, 188, 192, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 201, 202, 203, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 229, 236, 237, 239, 240, 242, 246, 247, 248, 250, 253, 260, 261, 262, 264, 268, 269, 270, 277, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 299, 302, 304, 305, 306, 313, 317, 322, 325, 326, 328, 329, 330, 331, 336, 337, 339, 340, 341, 347, 351, 352, 374, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 400, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 449, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 474, 475, 476, 477, 491, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 528, 542, 543, 551, 582, 603, 605, 607, 690, 695, 701, 702, 703

YAMASH'TA (STOMU) 390, 391, 392, 393, 456, 473, 502, 549, 595

Robert Wyatt - Editions des Accords

ABÉCÉDAIRE

ROBERT WYATT
Editions des Accords
novembre 2009 - 120 pages

JEAN-FRANCOIS DREAN (photographies)
PHILIPPE THIEYRE (texte)

I used to be Robert Wyatt

"Il y a des moments où je me demande si je n'aurais pas dû disparaître de la scène à la fin des années soixante, comme Syd Barrett. J'aurais peut-être acquis un statut de légende. J'aurais pu avoir une vie secrète. Maintenant c'est trop tard. J'ai mis trop de temps à me décider.

Quand des gens m'arrêtent dans la rue et me posent la question rituelle : êtes-vous Robert Wyatt ? Je réponds : "I used to be Robert Wyatt" (J'ai été Robert Wyatt)."

Jean-François Dréant (photographe) et Philippe Thièyre (journaliste) ont passé plusieurs jours à Louth en compagnie de Robert Wyatt et d'Alfie Benge. Ils en ont ramené, non pas une biographie, mais un portrait éclaté du musicien/compositeur au quotidien. Au gré des conversations, sur le marché, dans les restaurants, à son domicile, Robert Wyatt déroule le fil de ses 40 ans de carrière musicale, en prenant le temps de la digression et de l'anecdote. Il en résulte un long interview à deux voix (Robert et Alfie) autour des thèmes les plus emblématiques de son parcours : le jazz, le travail en studio et la scène, les Sixties, les maisons de disques et les royalties, John Coltrane et Miles Davis, son engagement au parti communiste pendant les années Thatcher, la Palestine et Israël, sa voix hermaphrodite, ses multiples collaborations artistiques... et bien sur Soft Machine et Matching Mole... sur tous ces sujets et bien d'autres, Robert Wyatt livre ses doutes et ses certitudes "ponctuant ses phrases de sourires ironiques ou de francs éclats de rire".

En contrepoint, les photographies argentiques en noir et blanc de Jean-François Dréan montre un Robert Wyatt de tous les jours, en fauteuil roulant dans les rues de Louth ou les yeux pétillants en s'emparant d'une paire de baguettes ou de son cornet. C'est le Robert qu'on aime, tellement proche et si loin devant.

Ecouter l'interview de Philippe Thièyre et Jean-François Dréan sur France Culture

Alfie : écriture et peinture

Alfie : quelquefois, les textes préexistent ; d'autres fois, les mots me viennent en écoutant une proposition musicale précise de la part de Robert. Par la suite, Robert change un mot ou deux pour faciliter son interprétation. De temps en temps, il arrive que je refuse cette modification, estimant que le sens de la chanson en serait trop modifié. Sur Forest, je suis intervenu dès le départ sur la musique. J'ai toujours écrit, pas forcément pour être publiée, mais pour le plaisir et la liberté qu'apporte l'écriture. Certains de mes poèmes ont toutefois été édités dans une anthologie américaine. Depuis qu'il les a découverts, Robert les a mis en musique. Du coup, maintenant, il se laisse aller à la paresse en ce qui concerne les textes. Il attend que je les lui fournisse.

Avant de connaître Robert, je rédigeais de temps à autre des articles sur la musique et des dialogues de film comme ceux de McCabe & Mrs Miller avec mon amie Julie Christie. J'ai également aidé cette dernière, qui n'aime guère improviser, pour les dialogues d'un film de Liliane de Kermadec qui, au final, ne se fera pas. Ce travail de dialoguiste n'est pas non plus arrivé par hasard. Si j'ai étudié la peinture pendant trois ans (même si les écoles classiques m'ont vite ennuyée) et encore trois pour le graphisme, j'ai passé cinq années, de 1963 à 1968, dans les écoles de cinéma, en particulier pour l'écriture cinématographique. En fait, élargir mes connaissances artistiques me passionne. Pour le cinéma, j'ai également travaillé comme assistante sur Performance **.*

On me dit qu'il est facile de discuter avec moi, mais que je suis difficile à interviewer. Je prends des routes détournées dans mes conversations. Les journalistes finissent par oublier la question parce que je ne réussis pas à donner des réponses simples, directes et mes phrases sont trop longues.

Robert Wyatt

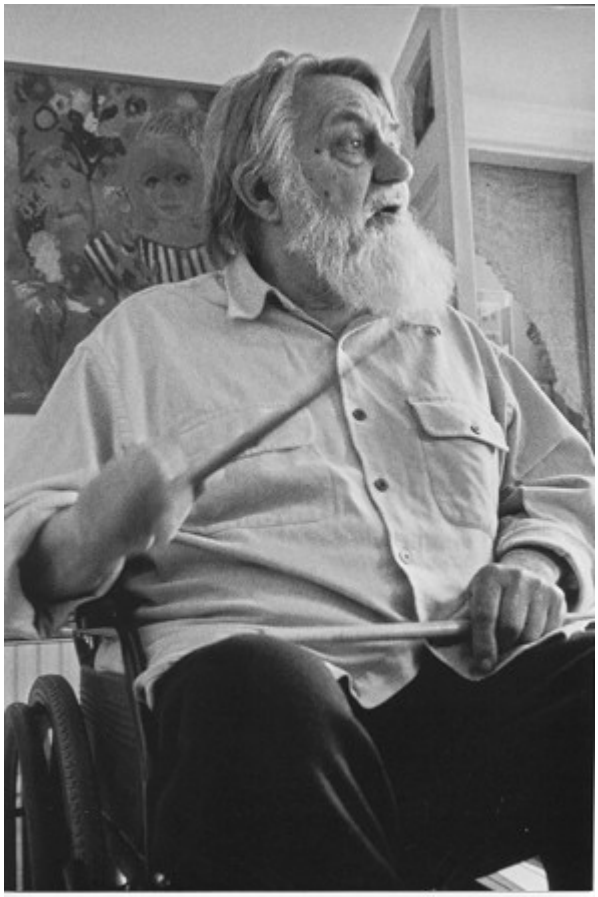

Photo : Jean-François Dréan

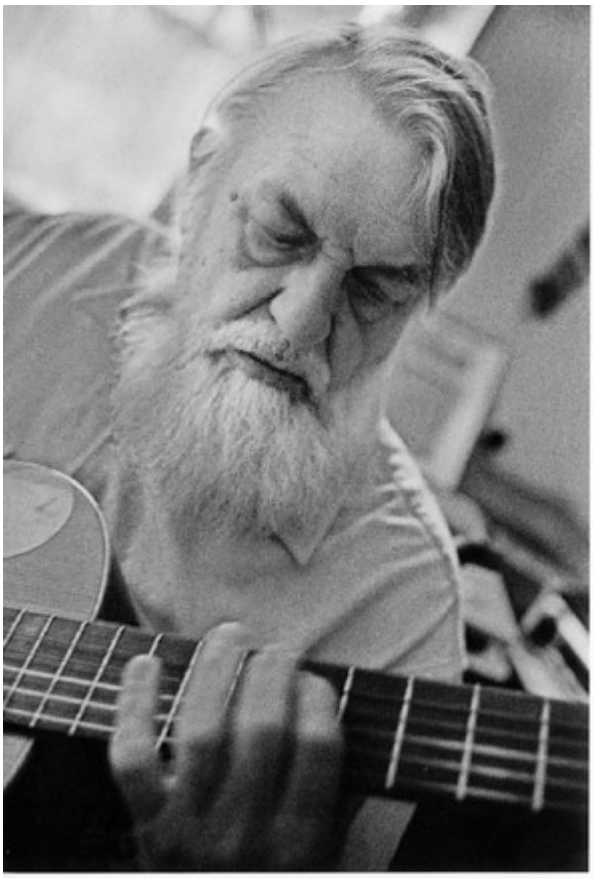
> Zoom



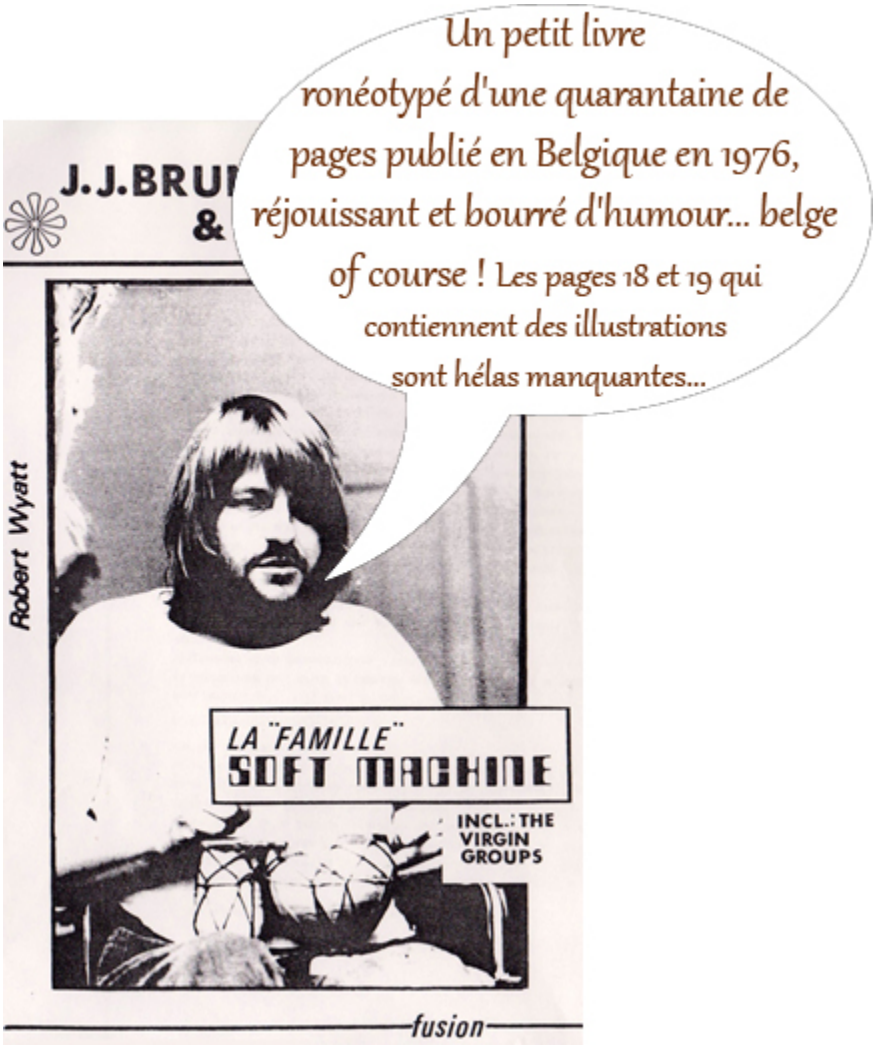


Photo : Jean-François Dréan

> Zoom

La famille Soft Machine

ABÉCÉDAIRE

J.J.BRUNIN & P.DUFROC

Robert Wyatt

LA "FAMILLE"
SOFT MACHINE

INCL.: THE VIRGIN GROUPS

fusion

> Zoom

I. PROLEGOMENES DE LA MACHINE MOLLE

a. Prolégomènes des prolégomènes de la machine molle :

Par souci d'honnêteté, nous nous faisons un devoir de prévenir le ou les lecteurs occasionnel(s) de la présente étude des buts essentiellement matériels dudit avertissement. (Le Prolégomènes initiaux réf. I). En effet, tout le monde sait qu'un lecteur avertit en vaut deux, il est donc on ne peut plus évident que notre Phynance s'en voit doublée! (Nous vous en sommes très reconnaissants). Nous déplorons simplement qu'une lecture répétée de cet ouvrage ne se traduise pas par un enflement répété de notre bourse... (ceci n'engage que les auteurs).

b. Prolégomènes proprement dits :

Nous pensons qu'il soit assez SUPERFETATOIRE de prévenir le lecteur du caractère schématique de l'étude de certains groupes dû surtout à un manque de renseignements et de documentations. Nous n'insisterons donc pas plus longtemps sur ce point.
Il ne nous reste donc qu'à vous donner le jalon le plus important pour pénétrer l'esprit des groupes sur lesquels nous allons joyeusement disserter : c'est-à-dire la "Pataphysique".
Il nous sera très difficile de cerner clairement cette science inventée par Alfred JARRY(le créateur du père Ubu) parce qu'elle touche essentiellement l'esprit et que nous ne sommes point psychanalyste. De nombreuses définitions en ont déjà été établies mais qui étant par trop synthétiques - comme toute définition d'ailleurs -, ne donnent qu'une vague idée de cette science. JARRY au livre II de ses "Gestes et opinions du docteur Faustroll, pataphysicien" intitulé "Eléments de "Pataphysique", nous éclaire quelque peu à ce sujet. Dans un style des plus abscons, digne du plus grand symboliste, il nous donne quelques clefs mais aussi la définition "claire, nette et précise" qui suit : "La Pataphysique est la science des solutions imaginaires qui accorde symboliquement aux linéaments les propriétés des objets décrits par leur virtualité..." Dans cette simple phrase une grande partie de la "Pataphysique est enclose et l'on peut y voir ses nombreuses - pour ne pas dire infinies - implications et applications. Le pataphysicien n'accorde aucune importance au symbole mais le prend en tant que tel. Pour lui, les apparences sont pleinement satisfaisantes et les simulacres des réalités parfaitement matérielles. Cette réalité étant purement imaginaire.

> Zoom

VIAN - un des membres les plus réputés du Collège de "Pataphysique - est plus simple, mais à notre avis cette simplicité trahi quelque peu les richesses intellectuelles cachées dans le textes du plus pur style symbolard de JARRY, mais elle permet de mieux cerner le problème :
"La Pataphysique est à la métaphysique ce que la métaphysique est à la physique".
La science des solutions imaginaires se base également sur l'équivalence universelle et l'identité des contraires. Afin d'éviter une trop longue démonstration de "César Antechrist" du même JARRY (éd. Fasquelles).
Mais la "Pataphysique est aussi la science du particulier, de l'exception et chaque "solution imaginaire" étant une exception en soi JARRY n'hésitera pas à écrire en dernière ligne des "Gestes et opinions du docteur Faustroll" que :
"La Pataphysique est la Science..."
Mais si la "Pataphysique se fait maître de l'Imaginaire et l'immisce dans notre vie quotidienne, elle est aussi le meilleur moyen de disserter sur l'art et de créer presque mathématiquement un art nouveau. Que ce soit par des mots ou des notes, l'artiste donne naissance par une "imagination logique " à un nouveau monde, une nouvelle forme essentiellement abstraits puisque imaginaires mais aussi très cohérents puisque logiques. C'est cette rigueur de style que l'on a souvent reprochée aux groupes tels que Soft Machine, Matching Mole et Hatfield and the North (enfin on parle musique!) rigueur évidente bien que mitigée par un brin de folie, surtout chez... mais nous en parlerons en temps utile.
Il est donc évident que les artistes dont nous allons nous entretenir n'appliquent en aucun cas la théorie de "l'art pour l'art" puisque le pataphysicien ne s'attarde pas uniquement à la forme mais aussi à l'esprit imaginatif et par conséquent créatif ("je m'applique volontiers à penser à des choses auxquelles je pense que les autres ne penseront pas").

Ceci étant expliqué, nous pouvons entamer allégrement notre travail...

> Zoom

DE MOLLE MACHINE/DIE MOELE MASCHINE/SOFT MACHINE/LA MACHINE MOLLO/MOLLUM MACHINAMENTUM ETC... (P.S. LA MACHINE MOLLE).

A l'origine de ce groupe dont l'influence s'est faite, se fait et se fera sentir à tous les niveaux de la rock musique, il y a un petit groupe d'âmes à moteurs connu sous le nom de "Wilde Flowers", nom qui n'était pas très original à cette époque (1967) celle-ci étant celle du Flower power. Les principales âmes à moteurs furent et ne seront plus, puisqu'il est défunt (le "Wilde Flowers") : Mike Ratledge, Bobby Wyatt (waf,waf), et Ayers qui les rejoindra après son retour de Malaisie, pluss un membre intermittent Richard Sinclair qui après le split du "Wilde Flowers" s'en alla former sa "Caravan" avec son "chameau" de cousin David. Un beau jour, un petit homme vert représentant de la société "chiquita" (Daevid Allen)posa à trois reprises l'index recourbé de sa main droit sur une surface de bois destinée à cet effet. Il en résultat un bruit sonore et asymptotique, hyperbolique, parabolique et même diabolique(autrement dit : toc toc toc) dont les conséquences immédiates furent un grincement simultané à l'ouverture dudit objet, c'est-à-dire la porte. Après une énorme "trip" pataphysique, catachimique, hyperlevitatique, etcétératique, ils décidèrent de fonder un groupe auquel ils donnèrent le nom de Soft Machine qui n'est autre que le titre d'un roman de William Borroughs dans lequel celui-ci nous donne, à l'image même de Jerôme Bosch, une vision effroyable, diabolique bien qu'infiniment délicate et humoristique de ce que pourrait être l'Enfer, un Enfer qui peut-être nous attend, produit final et apogée de la Révolution Scientifique. Ceci étant dit, ils enregistrèrent en 67 un album chez By intitulé "Faces and Places" que la dite firme de disque ne sortit de ses tiroirs poussiéreux qu'en 1973!!! Sur cet album, diverses tendances apparaissent déjà : le romantisme de Wyatt, la future stérilité technique de Ratledge, le décadencisme sophistiqué d'Ayers ainsi que la folie lunatique et incongrue de Daevid Allen. Pourtant toutes ces oppositions additionnées, donnent un produit plein de finesse, d'équilibre et de rafinement qui déjà annoncent un avenir on ne peut plus prometteur.

Diverses compositions seront d'ailleurs reprises par la suite à savoir "Save Yourself", "I should have known" qui deviendra "Why am I so short", le thème de "That's how much I need you now" retrouvera sur "Moon in June" du "Third", ainsi que "Jet-propelled photograph" qui deviendra "Shooting at the Moon" sur l'album du même nom. Il faut aussi note "Memories" qui, lui, sera repris sur Banana Moon ainsi que par Wyatt, il y a peu (45 t.).

L'étape suivante dans l'évolution du groupe s'intitulera paradoxalement "Soft Machine I" qui sera l'oeuvre concertée d'Ayers, Wyatt et Ratledge, Daevid Allen ayant dû quitter la terre des "Angles" et s'établir en "Goal" après s'être vu une prolongation de son permisde travail pour des raisons Acidifiées et quelque peu Haschées.

> Zoom

En réalité, premier vrai travail du Soft Machine, cet album fait contraste avec leur production précédente quant à la qualité instrumentale et au degré d'élaboration des compositions. Contraste également entre l'apparence "hippie" des musiciens et leur background cultivé. En effet, il est à noter que Ratledge a obtenu un prix en philosophie à Oxford de même qu'une distinction en psychologie. Wyatt, quant à lui, se distingua au conservatoire où il apprit le piano, le violon, la trompette et la batterie. Il s'initia également à la sculpture.
Kevin Ayers lut énormément et plus particulièrement Artaud et Rimbaud. Menant une vie difficile, ils devaient se contenter d'animer des discothèques dans le sud de la France. Ils participaient à l'Allan Zion's festival libre de St Tropez puis se produisirent aux U.S.A. avec Hendrix. Dès lors, leur voiturin à Phynance s'est vu alimenté posadiquement en pièces d'alliage d'argent et de nickel ainsi que de quelques polygônes d'aspect rectangulaire de consistance syngraphique souvent de couleur verte et où c'equil est marqué "dos-lard".
Au point de vue musical leurs grandes recettes, sont les distortions des "Fuzz-Boxes", l'atonalité électronique ainsi que l'usage fréquent répété et réitéré même de la chambre d'écho (cfr "Hope for happiness"). Cette musique absorbante synthétise les diverses tendances jazz et rock dans une continuité électronique, continuité surtout par le fait que toutes les compositions sont reliées les unes aux autres soit par un roulement de batterie soit par les notes sensorielles de l'orgue de Ratledge. Certaines compositions sont précédées de morceaux introducteurs tels que "Plus belle qu'une poubelle" qui annonce sur un autre mode le thème de "Why are we sleeping".
De cet album se dégage surtout essentiellement et principalement une atmosphère que nous qualifierons d'homotypie pataphysique dont émerge une magie artistique et lyrique on ne peut plus flagrante.

"Good evening or good morning, and now we have a chosen selection of ritmics, melodies from the official orchestra of the college of Pataphysics".
Ainsi débutele second volume du Soft Machine, introduction qui directement nous plonge dans l'esprit du groupe qui n'a toutefois pas été altéré (l'esprit) par le départ de Kevin Ayers immédiatement remplacé par Hugh Hopper.
A l'opposé du nouveau courant muscial de l'époque (1969) est une année non seulement érotique mais celle du Hard-rock). Soft Machine joue une musique qui flatte essentiellement l'esprit et qui requiert une attention soutenue de la part de l'auditeur.
De plus l'adjonction de Hopper apporte une grande cohésion au trio qui n'hésite pas à employer une instrumentation nouvelle(cuivres) afin d'accentuer le caractère avant-gardiste de la maturité musicale de ce groupe superbement en avance sur son temps.

> Zoom

Cette oeuvre nous donne un excellent exemple de la conception pataphysique de l'art c'est-à-dire que celui-ci est traité comme une simple solution imaginaire très purement aberrante, voire ambigüement dérisoire.
L'intensité émotionnelle y est à son maximum et l'instrumentation inimitable combinée à une technique incomparable donne un résultat digne de l'Ethernité faustrollienne.
Sur scène, les apparitions du groupe se caractérisaient surtout par l'impassibilité toute flegmatique de Mike Ratledge, par la concentration constante de Hugh Hopper mais surtout par l'érotisme ô combien impavidissime de Wyatt dont les seins quelque peu arachnidés n'ont pas encore fini de nous envoûter. De plus, il est à noter que le groupe était doté d'un système d'amplification de plusieurs centaines de Wyatt".
Au terme d'un enregistrement aussi prometteur, on ne pouvait qu'attendre avec avidité une prochaine contribution à l'élaboration d'un art qui se fera de plus en plus abstrus et provocateur...
Bon! redevenons sérieux, l'époque nostalgique des volumes I et 2 est dépassée car on en arrive au "Third" marqué principalement par l'arrivée d'une part de Elton Dean qui tient les cuivres aidés de membres intermittants : Lyn Hobson, Nick Evans, Jimmy Hastings et d'autre part l'alliance de Hugh Hopper à la basse.
Le Soft a changé et les gens ont cru que le Soft était mort. Pourtant autre il est vivant, différent certes, mais bien présent.
Imperturbables et admirablement honnêtes, ils suivent un chemin qui n'est pas aussi radicalement différent qu'on veut bien le prétendre simplement un mucicien parti, les autres se livrent entièrement à la musique qu'ils aiment et qui correspond totalement à leur culture et à leur caractère. Elton Dean, Hugh Hopper et Mike Ratledge n'ont jamais été des musiciens de rock au vrai sens du terme non plus que le successeur de Wyatt pour le "5" : John Marshall. Leur but est de créer une musique proche d'un jazz d'une modernité tempérée musique fortement structurée dans des fondements et presque libre dans ses improvisations, musique dont le but n'est pas une excitation primaire mais une séduction insidieuse née d'un raffinement mélodico-harmonique et des longues courses sonores, régal pour l'esprit ainsi que pour le corps.
"Third" c'est la période fatale de transition, le jazz l'emporte sur le rock.
Robert Wyatt a encore droit à une plage purement sensationnelle : "Moon in june" qui est sans nulle doute le meilleur morceau de tout ce double album. Hugh Hopper et Mike Ratledge se partagent les autres compositions.

> Zoom

Le joug de Ratledge se fait pressant car il n'y a aucun titre de Robert. L'heure de la séparation inévitable est imminente. Il s'en va pour former son groupe et jouer sa musique : Matching Mole est né (voir plus loin).
Depuis le départ de notre ami, c'est-à-dire à partir du "5", Soft Machine a pris son envol vers des horizons plus psychédéliques. La musique est donc fort différente et les influences qui se font sentir actuellement touchent essentiellement des groupes de jazz pur où si on préfère des groupes plus jazz que rock. Le but de cet ouvrage est de vous entretenir sur les groupes directement dissidents de la première formule.
Je serai donc plus bref vis-à-vis des caractères trop différents. De plus, si l'on devait s'intéresser à toute les influences Soft Machine on serait obliger de faire un second volume fort épais tant le domaine est vaste. De toute manière, les maisons de disque sont tellement avares (mis à part VIRGIN, je tiens à le signaler) que je n'en ai pas la capacité. Voilà donc le problème résolu.
J'en suis donc au "5", Hugh Hopper est remplacé par Roy Babbington pour la seconde face, Phil Howard se charge de "drumer" sur la face 1, John Marshall sur la 2.
Plus besoin de définir le style de musique, les origines de chaque musicien pris indépendemment nous en donne un avant-goût fort pessimiste.
Les compositions sont beaucoup plus diversifiées et individuelles. On distingue sans problème un travail de Ratledge et un de Hopper. Envolées lyriques ou rythmiques, aérées par certains passages en douceur dont la cohérence certaine offre un charme indéniable.
John Marshall se met aussi à signer un des morceaux : L.B.O. qui n'est autre qu'un long solo de batterie dont la rigueur fait un rien prétentieux et dont la longueur se perd dans de l'exhibitionnisme insensible.
Ensuite, il y eût le double album "six" enregistré moitié studio, moitié public at the Dome de Brighton.
Habituellement, un enregistrement du genre constitue une excellente initiative car elle permet de rendre sur un disque la chaleur d'un enregistrement public et sur le second, la qualité des compositions en studio ? Dans le cas présent, cette nuance n'apparaît pas clairement car le mixage des deux disques est parfait. Heureusement qu'une inscription sur la pochette nous renseigne que le premier est "live" car le public semble profondément endormi tant ses interventions sont discrètes.
Une chose importante à noter, c'est l'arrivée de Karl Jenkins qui apporte une plus profonde cohésion instrumentale entre les musiciens "All white" la composition de Ratledge sur le "5" est reprise, rallongée et améliorée à l'aide d'improvisations donnant un caractère plus accessible au morceau.
Karl Jenkins présente un bienheureux remplacement car il efface toutes ces intrusions "free-jazz" qu'Elton Dean se plaisait à placer et à rajouter.

> Zoom

Etape suivante bien entendu "Seven" puisque le Soft a pris l'habitude de ne jamais donner de titres à ses disques.
Roy Babbington est devenu bassiste définitif et l'on se met à regretter le jeu de basse exotique et chaleureux de Hugh Hopper bien que la finesse et l'agilité du nouveau soit nette.
Seven est une composition des groupes Soft Machine et Nucleus puisque Babbington Marshall et Jenkins en sont issus.
Karl Jenkins signe la plus grande majorité des titres de l'album. Il est l'homme en vue en tant que compositeur car comme instrumentiste il est remarquable plus par l'originalité de ses sonorités que par la richesse de ses improvisations. Seulement on peut lui reprocher d'être toujours identique à lui-même et de ne pas se renouveler.
Mike Ratledge se lance dans l'expérimentation du synthétiseur et ce n'est pas à regret car il semble déjà le posséder avec beaucoup de maîtrise. Les sons électroniques se mêlent merveilleusement avec son jeu d'orgue et de piano électrique.
Puis un long silence avant la sortie du dernier disque en date : Bundles.
Ce disque marque encore une étape dans la vie du groupe principalement avec l'arrivée du guitariste de Nucleus : Allan Holdsworth. Son jeu consiste en un long défilement de notes rapides, style très adopté à l'heure actuelle.
Il y a très peu de soli, les deux principaux sont joués par Holdsworth plutôt des soutiens rythmiques de la part de Ratledge et Jenkins.
Il y a des passages merveilleux, tel que "Hazard Profile" où les différentes parties (il y en a cinq) proviennent toutes d'un naturel enchaînement. Hazard profile part 2 où la Toccatina débute avec un piano accoustique qui subit une première transformation avec le doublé d'une mélodie de guitare accoustique également puis une seconde par le passage de l'accoustique à l'électrique. Une très belle réussite en soi.

Les goûts musicaux évoluent, ne changent cependant pas toujours dans le même sens. Mike Ratledge et Hugh Hopper sont d'une tendance nettement jazzy contrairement à Robert Wyatt qui vit de rock et de bonnes paroles. L'inévitable se produit, séparation, mais pas avec des gros mots et des bousculades. Non! ils se quittent musicalement seulement et restent en très bons termes. Dans le futur, ils se retrouveront pour participer à des enregistrements tant en solo qu'au sein d'un groupe.

Hilo Miller (guitare), David Sinclair (organ); Bill Mac Cormick (basse); Wyatt (drums, vocals, mellotron) : Mathcing Mole est né. L'ex-soft amoureux de douces ballades romantiques va pouvoir se réaliser, s'exprimer complètement. D'abord parce qu'il signe chez C.B.S. qui n'est pas trop contraignant et ensuite parce qu'il est le leader et de ce fait il occupe une place importante et c'est normal. Produit par le groupe lui-même, le premier album sort en 1972. A l'écoute de ce disque, le souvenir de Soft Machine (IV) et l'emprise farfelue du beau Kevin sont déjà fort loin. C'est du Wyatt et c'est suffisant pour en connaître la signification profonde d'ailleurs cette affirmation deviendra évidence par la suite.

> Zoom

Mais chaque chose en son temps, nous sommes en 1972.
O Caroline, le premier morceau nous plonge directement dans le ravissement intemporel quelque peu surréel qui baigne presque l'entièreté des deux faces. Emotions digressions, sensations tout se trouve réunis dans cette musique si proche de la nature. Morceau très lent qui début au son d'un piano doublé d'une mélodie de flûte qui en fait n'est autre qu'un mellotron. La sincérité passionnée du chanteur transparaît invétibalement au travers de ses paroles. Mais qui peut bien être cette Caroline ? Puis les mots deviennent cris gémissements murmures.
"Instant pussy" traduit la mélancolie, la tristesse (peut-être celle de Robert Que lui a donc fait cette Caroline ?
Les bruits redeviennent paroles, le piano resurgit en vagues successives : "Signed curtain".
Ce n'est pas du jazz bien sûr, ce n'est pas du rock non plus. C'est du Wyatt, c'est sa musique, celle qui sort tout droit de son coeur, de ses doigts, de son corps. Il la qualifiera plus tard en tant que "Rock Bottom".
Robert Wyatt occupe une place primordiale, quand il ne chante pas, seul accompagné d'un piano (dont il joue également), les drums sont nettement mis en évidence. Les trois premiers morceaux en sont une preuve irréfutable. "Part of the Dance" est la seule composition de Phil Miller. Plus rock, plus énergique, on sent qu'il désire se réaliser également. Ce long instrumental nous entraîne à suivre l'engrenage de Matching Mole (clin d'oeil à la machine molle). Les soli sont brefs mais violents sans cesse entrecoupés de riffs rageurs à la Sinclair tandis qu'à l'arrière plan le martellement dru des peaux attise sans répit l'atmosphère de chaleur et de lucidité. Bill Mac Cormick plus discret mais toutefois indispensable assure l'accompagnement rythmique de façon savoureuse.
Ravi de la première face, je m'élance pour la seconde avec enthousiasme.
Déception, amère déception.
En effet, si la première moitié de cette seconde face est encore du meilleur cru, le reste n'est que très inférieur à la production générale.
On remarque à nouveau la prépondérance effective de Wyatt à qui toutes les compositions sont attribuées. Malgré cette évidence il s'effacera pour laisser plus de liberté aux solistes et plus principalement à Phil Miller dans "Dedicated to Hugh but you weren't listening" (cf. Soft II).

> Zoom

"Instant Kitten" dont le début n'est autre que l'enregistrement inversé de l'introduction d'"Instant Pussy", prend une direction bien différente de ce dernier parce que plus énergique. En effet les sonorités plus évidentes donnent à cette musique un caractère inhabituel donc plus contrastant. Puis tout à coup le mellotron réapparaît plus calme, plus expérimental et plus fouillé quand même.
L'enchaînement se fait au moyen d'accords quelque peu stériles de mauvais présage. Pourtant la composition suivante ("Dedicated to Hugh") nous offre un excellent échantillon de la technique de Phil Miller qui n'hésite pas à mettre un zeste de rock dans son Wyatt (on ze rock bien sûr). Hélas les harmonies cohérentes deviennent bruitages informes, stériles, inutiles et cacaphoniques qui font paradoxe avec la qualité initiale.
En effet "Beer as in Brainder" et "Immediate Curtain" ne peuvent être considérés que comme des bouches-trous infâmes résultant sans doute d'un manquement d'imagination créative de la part de Robert.
Mais malgré ces deux morceaux quelque peu (!) en-dessous de la moyenne, la somme de l'album nous laisse une fort bonne idée du savoir-faire des musiciens.

C'est ainsi qu'après un premier album très prometteur - le Matching Mole de Mister Wyatt - ne fait que confirmer notre première impression - et même plus - en offrant à la délectation générale des amateurs de bonnes choses un excellent deuxième enregistrement, qui hélas sera le dernier.
De longues tournées européennes permettent au groupe de s'affirmer et d'acquérir une plus grande maturité musicale de même qu'un plus vaste auditoire. Les preuves essentielles de cette maturité résident surtout dans le fait que chaque musicien met la main à la pâte, si nous osons dire, et nous l'osons, Wyatt se bornant à signer les parties vocales. Mais l'événement à mettre en exergue est bien sûr le remplacement de Sinclair par Dave Mac Raer (ex-Nucleus) qui fut d'ailleurs le "summer's guest" du premier album. Avec ce remplacement donc, le groupe a suivi l'évolution que l'on pouvait prévoir, c'est-à-dire une plus grande rigueur musicale apportant à l'ensemble une certaine cohésion, et même une cohésion certaine. mais excluant toute tentative d'improvisation. Chose qui en soi est excellente mais qui rejette quelque peu le romantisme sensible de Wyatt dans les corridors de l'oubli ('y a bien ceux de la tentation). Pourtant si la musique de Matching Mole se fait plus exacte , plus précise, elle permet aussi l'éclosion parfaite de la folie quelque peu lunatique des musiciens, qui dans le premier album n'était que purement latente (la folie lunatique).
La première face de ce "Petit disque rouge" est composée de divers morceaux, soit de Miller qui confirme ses talents de compositeur, soit de Mc Rae, et forme un un tout bien compact dû à un phénomène d'osmose qui se répétera plus tard chez Hatfield and the North (groupe très proche de Matching Mole). Le "Mütter Korus" qui commence cette première face installe immédiatement cette ambiance débile chère à Wyatt, accompagnée des claviers du talentueux Dave Mc Rae et d'éclats de rire à profusion " "Marchides" le second morceau nous permet d'apprécier la nouvelle cohésion du groupe illustrée par les longs soli de Miller, qui toutefois sont moins violents et rageurs que ceux du premier disque, ce qui ne leur retire aucunement leur vigueur initiale. Bill Mac Cormick, quant à lui, reste toujours aussi dynamique et discret qu'auparavant. Pour ce qui est de Wyatt, est-il nécessaire de dire que son jeu de batterie est toujours excellent, subtil et fou qu'il a une voix merveilleuse et une personnalité débordante de richesse ? Nous ne le croyons pas (de toute façon c'est fait). les deux compositions de Miller qui suivent dénotent parfaitement ce désir d'une plus grande recherche musicale (variations de mêmes thèmes en divers modes, déformations sonores etc...) presque expérimentale. Les rythmes se font plus jazzy mais aussi plus compliqués et délicats, résultant de longs enchevêtrements de notes et de différentes phrases musicales d'une étonnante fluidité. Du côté des paroles ce n'est pas toujours génial mais on sait que Robert Wyatt a toujours su porter l'art difficile de parler de rien zé celui de parler pour ne rien dire au point élevé où ils équivalent à l'art de tout dire... ce qui n'est pas rien, ce qui n'est même pas peu... Cette cogitation intense nous amène donc, ou devrait nous amener, à remplacer la première face par la seconde et à pénétrer dans "Gloria Gloom" (pour autant que celle-ci le permette). Ce morceau, ainsi que le suivant ("God") se révèlent à notre optimale jubilation les meilleures parties vocales de l'album. Décollant lentement aux sonorités lancinantes du synthétiseur maquillé et sophistiqué d'Eno, cette plage nous donne l'occasion de goûter avec une joie ô combien transcendante les talents de compositeurs de Bill Mc Cormick qui semble avoir autant les pieds sur terre que Wyatt, que Miller, que Mc Rae et quenouille, si nouille nouille permettons. "God" est une chanson pleine de sarcasmes, d'ironie et de cynisme (oui, tout ça) très bien illustrée par la voix expressive de Wyatt qui se fait tantôt douce et naïve tantôt suppliante et parfois même méprisante ("Que nous fiches-tu sur telle, Dieu ?" Tout ceci est-il une sorte de blague que tu nous joues ? Est-ce parce que nous n'avons pas pleuré ?...) L'accompagnement de cette ballade est fort simple (basse et guitare acoustique) ce qui renchérit l'angoisse purement métaphysique d'un poivrot s'adressant au créateur parce que n'ayant plus de carburant... Le dernier morceau, qui en fait en contient deux ("Flora Fidgit"/"Smoke Signal") d'une structure fort saccadée, qui, par conséquent, fait contraste avec la mélodie précédente, nous donne un excellent échantillon (un de plus) de ce style fait de ruptures et de répétitions de thèmes mais aussi d'envolées mélodiques, stylisées et raffinées (ben tiens!) qui est l'apanage de la famille Soft.

> Zoom

> Zoom

Voilà donc assurément, évidemment et biensûrment un album parfait, contenant une musique parfaite (celle de Bob Fripp) et un enregistrement parfait... Un disque sans bavure, d'une grande netteté, dont les notes délicates vous violeront les oreilles avec douceur et perversité car chacun sait que la propreté c'est le viol...

KEVIN AYERS

Les "trips" évoluent, changent et souvent ne se ressemblent pas ou plus exactement ne se rencontrent pas.
Il y en a qui ont perdu leur innocence, d'autres leur fraîcheur, beaucoup leur folie, d'autres leur sagesse... leur femme!
Il y eût le temps où les "mods" recyclés prenaient l'acide sur un morceau de sucre.
Kevin Ayers a suivi lui aussi son trip. Il y eût des rêves violents qui hurlent au visage. Il y eût le culte de la personne, de la stabilité et... de la Banane. Banana follies. Bananamour. Schizophrénie. Fini les caisses de vin avant de monter sur scène, à l'heure actuelle il joue complètement sobre.
Qui est donc Kevin ? D'abord, il est sans aucun doute le grand enfant de la famille anglaise de la fin des 'sixties" composée de Mike Ratledge, David Allen, Nico, Syd Barrett. Que peut donc cacher cet ange blond au sourire quelque peu veule sinon du talent.
On peut l'appeler "Décadent" pour nous avoir fait goûter aux véritables sensations cosmiques, pour nous avoir vraiment transporter au-delà du commun, mais il ne faut pas entendre décadent par la présence du maquillage ou de fantaisies excentriques. Kevin Ayers, c'est la découverte d'un monde nouveau, d'un univers de bonheur bien différent de ceux engendrés par les défoncés en cuir noir.
Eloignons-nous de ces rockers rageurs que l'Amérique enfante pour nous rendre insensible et retournons dans la douceur mélancolique et la réalité apocalyptique de notre grand "Guru Banana".
Il nous suffit de réécouter le premier "Soft Machine" pour se sentir irrémédiablement plongé dans cette atmosphère caractéristique, véritable amalgame de philosophie mystique.
Kevin Ayers est un personnage fort complexe. En effet, il déteste le show-business, mais adore la musique, de ce fait il est souvent confronté à de gros problèmes de communications.

> Zoom

Au terme d'un enregistrement, on la réclamé à la scène.
Il tourne pendant quelques mois, puis se retire sans mots et sans bruits avec sa guitare et sa légende.
"Je n'éprouve le besoin du public que quand je suis en ville, parce que subitement, on doit prouver quelques chose, on ne peut rester ainsi sans rien faire. C'est devenu simple : puisque je suis en ville je travaille ou alors je suis à la campagne tranquille menant la vie telle que je l'entends. j'ai moins d'inquiétude du public... ce n'est plus aussi intense. Je ne sais pas si c'est une bonne chose. Pour moi sûrement, mais je ne sais pas si ça va marcher auprès du public..."

Ma vie ou Comment je suis devenu Banana ?

Dès 1953, Kevin s'adonne à la musique et apprend à jouer du triangle et à chanter "Hey Ho the Carrion Crow". Il entreprit dès lors ses premières aventures musicales. Il se rendit en Malaisie pendant 5 ans et demi, là où ses parents sont installés.
Malgré ses aire de petit ange, Kevin Ayers était un enfant désobéissant et totalement désintéressé par le travail scolaire, il passe la plus grande partie de son temps à pêcher et à explorer la jungle.
En 1960, il retourne en Angleterre pour s'inscrire dans une école privée afin de recueillir quelques diplômes académiques, mais il... échoua.
Deux années plus tard, il quitta tout : sa famille, ses études et tente de s'incorporer à la population londonienne.
Menant une vie difficile, accablé par la saleté, la boisson et la pauvreté, il rencontre des démêlés avec "Her Majesty the Queen". C'est alors qu'il commence à écrire ses premiers poèmes et à lire beaucoup et plus particulièrement Rimbaud et Artaud.
Pour gagner sa vie, il travaille en tant que laboureur et garçon dans une ferme.
Avide de voyages, il découvre les îles Canaries, Morroco, l'Espagne et la France.
Il se met à chanter, ses remords alcooliques et à jouer de la guitare.
En 1966, il se joint aux "Wilde Fowers" qui "split" un peu plus tard.
L'année suivante, Kevin rencontre à Canterbury le pianiste Mike Ratledge et le batteur Robert Wyatt. Leurs goûts musicaux sont de même nature. Soft Machine naît.
La tournée les oblige à parcourir toute l'Angleterre, l'Allemagne et la France, perpétuellement pauvre, mais enthousiaste.
Soft Machine tourne aux U.S.A. en même temps que le groupe de Jimi Hendrix...

> Zoom

C'est une "expérience" favorable qui leur permet de gagner un peu d'argent. Mais Kevin désillusionné par la scène pop quitte le groupe et s'installe à Ibiza pour récupérer.

"Ce sont les tournées avec Hendrix aux U.S.A. qui m'avaient effrayé... le business-pop aussi. Il faut le voir pour le croire... surtout au niveau américain. Musicalement pourtant, ce fut incroyable : le Soft ne fut jamais aussi bon. J'ai rompu peut-être aussi parce que je sentais un désir, celui de Mike, d'aller de plus en plus vers le jazz, ... moi je préfère les chansons, les trucs simples".

En 1967, il retourne en Angleterre, achète une maison, un enregistreur. Un peu plus tard sort chez EMI Joy of a Toy. Tel est le titre du premier album solo de Kevin Ayers. C'est le premier album et la qualité en reste telle. Il a quitté le "Soft Machine" pour des raisons identiques à celles de Robert Wyatt par la suite : incompatibilité musicale. Cela ne veut pas dire pour autant que l'influence de Mike Ratledge était néfaste. Pas du tout, mais elle était différente et prenait une direction plutôt jazzy alors que Kevin préférait les ballades plus terre à terre comme on l'a déjà dit plus haut.

Joy of a Toy nous replonge dans l'atmosphère du premier Soft Machine qui était l'oeuvre partielle de Kevin Ayers. Bien que ce soit la première ébauche solo, le LP occupe une place importante parmi toutes les sorties discographiques futures de notre ami de la banane, car les "lyrics" sont déjà merveilleusement élaborées et complètes, les arrangements de guitares, orgues sont richement tissés et délicatement "funky".

Merci Monsieur David Bedford.

Soft Machine Vol. I avec Ayers aux commandes était plus simple et moins torturé que le Vol II et ceux qui suivront notamment avec un morceau original "Joy of a Toy" qui est sans doute le plus mélodique de tout l'album.

Qu'il soit devenu le titre de son premier LP provient d'un naturel développement de son caractère assez infantil.

La présence de l'intégralité de la "Machine" (Wyatt joue sur la plupart des titres et Ratledge s'insinue à la moindre occasion) est évidente et les meilleurs morceaux sont ceux sur lesquels ils sont tous trois rassemblés. Tel en est ce "Stop the Train" où l'orgue clôture la plage au moyen d'un solo étonnant de maîtrise. Et que dire de ce prestigieux : "Oleh Oleh Bandu Bandong" qui regroupe la structure et la force timide du Vol. I.

Le ton transpire quelque chose d'agréable de bon et de doux avec un apport considérable de "lyrics". La différence entre la musique (réalisée au moyen d'instruments inhabituels à savoir "céleste", "cello", guitare espagnole). et le texte signifie qu'elle est ô combien plus mûre qu'autrefois.

> Zoom

Les différentes tonalités qu'il adopte font parfois penser à Leonard Cohen, parfois à Donovan ou encore à ce cher Bob Dylan sur Highway 61 avec ce passage d'harmonium. Le disque est quelque peu plus simpliste et c'est peut-être ce qui fait sa beauté. Certains passages un peu "free" nous rappelle la présence de Ratledge qui est vraiment un très grand pianiste.
Quelques instrumentations assez popeuses donnent un aspect un peu prétentieux et apparaissent ainsi en contradiction avec ce personnage tellement trivial.
Toutefois ma préférence va nettement à "Lady Rachel", une merveilleuse chanson très calme dont l'amosphère qui s'en dégage est quelque peu fantastique, épique surréelle ou féérique.
"Elle gravit les marches à la lueur d'une bougie".
"Puis la porte sans poignée se referme derrière elle".
L'accompagnement musical retrace très bien les différentes situations qui évoluent suivant le texte :
"Maintenant, elle ne craint plus les ténèbres"
"Elle ne craint plus ses griffes"
"Maintenant rien ne peut lui nuire"
"Du moins pas beaucoup".
La guitare glisse très gentiment, l'orgue s'écrase, les drums sont légers et Kevin supplie : "What will you dream tonight Lady Rachel?" : "De quoi rêverez-vous cette nuit Lady Rachel ?'.
Le morceau suivant fait un peu free, des choeurs répètent un refrain au son saccadé du martellement de la batterie, de la rythmique de la guitare; l'orgue fait surface en un solo nettement jazzy mais très plaisant.
Il constitue donc un disque d'Ayers à part entière avec une alternance de douces ballades d'amour et de morceaux plus rock ou plus country.
Cependant, il s'agit toujours d'un premier travail avec ses défauts, ses imperfections, ses démarches tâtonnantes (Kevin n'a que 19 ans à cette époque). Néanmoins, cela sent déjà le génie à plein nez et à la première écoute vous serez sans nul doute conquis.
Un an plus tard, c'est-à-dire en 1970, Kevin fonde son premier vrai groupe. Il s'appelle "The Whole World" et comprend - outre Kevin Ayers - Lol Coxhill au sax Mick Fincher à la batterie, David Bedford au piano ainsi qu'un certain petit jeune homme de 17 ans du nom de Mike Oldfield qui tient la guitare ou la basse avec déjà beaucoup de prétentions; lequel se fera mieux connaître par la suite avec ce fameux "Tubular Bells" et "Hergest Ridge".
Immédiatement, il sort un disque avec le "Whole World" "Shooting at the moon" dont tous les titres lui sont attribués ainsi que la production.

> Zoom

Pour parfaire la réussite de son disque, il invite quelques vieux copains à venir participer à l'enregistrement. C'est ainsi que l'on retrouve Robert Wyatt, Mike Ratledge, David Alleen, Rachel (sans doute celle de "Hoy of a Toy") et bien d'autres encore.

Le disque, quant à lui, était il y a peu une véritable pièce de collection car il était sorti en nombre d'exemplaire limité. Seulement, vu le succès croissant de Kevin Ayers, la firme EMI a décidé de sortir un double album réunissant "Joy of a Toy" et "Shooting at the moon". Le premier morceau" May I", est certainement le plus connu de tout l'album car il a été repris lors du concert de Rainbow en juin 1974; C'est également un des meilleurs morceaux du disque. Il consiste en la plus évidente continuation. Une douce mélodie de basse, guitare, accordéon accompagne la voix chaleureuse de Kevin qui découvre une fille dans un café. Un morceau suivant "Rheinbarhdt and Geraldine" débute de façon assez violente par des harmonies soutenues de la part de David Bedford au piano et de Mike Oldfield à la basse. Puis tout-à-coup, plus d'inspiration, les mélodies font place à de stériles et inutiles étalements sonores dans lequel le saxo fait quelques sursauts imprévisibles. Pour terminer, il en revient au texte initial.

Ensuite "Lunatics Lament" qui fait vraiment rock à la "rentre dedans" et où les voix de Kevin Ayers et Mike Oldfield se font étouffées. La guitare est fortement mise en évidence et Mike Oldfield en profite pour nous faire un exposé complet de sa technique, de sa maîtrise et de sa dextérité. Sa façon très assurée de rétrograder ses riffs et faire resurgir le thème fait déjà sentir le génie à plein nez. D'ailleurs à cet âge-là, il édifiait déjà intérieurement ce que devint le chef d'oeuvre 1974 "Tubular Bells". Mais je préfère ne pas m'attarder à Mike Oldfield non par qu'il ne vaille pas la peine mais alors la famille Soft Machine serait trop vaste.

Bon revenons-en à notre ami Kevin! Pratiquement la première face est terminée. Pisser dans un violon n'est que du bouche-trou infâme où le manque certain d'imagination créatrice de Kevin apparaît nettement. Pas une seule harmonie, pas un seul accord intéressant, rien! du bruitage inutile de quoi remplir sept bonnes minutes.

La seconde face débute avec "The cyster and the flying fish". La voix de Kevin est doublée d'une voix féminine, celle de Bridget St John (ne me demandez pas qui elle est!). Le morceau est très entraînant grâce à un rythmique de percussions et de tambourins. Le contraste est annoncé par le fait Kevin et Bridget St John se partagent les différents couplets.

Bien que le texte ne soit pas très raffiné, voire même un peu commun, il est d'une efficacité sans pareille (Houlà, Houlà, Houlà, là, là, là!!).

> Zoom

Ensuite la bonne humeur contractée se voit anéantie avec "Underwater", nouvel assemblage de bruitages stérils et incohérents au moyen d'une distortion de basse et de guitare. Le coeur du vieux colonial réapparaît avec "Clarence in Wanderland" et "Red green and you blue". Musique du soleil, de la danse, du chant qui nous plonge, au son de quelques rythmes exotiques dans une atmosphère de paix et de sérénité.
Finalement il y a retour au rock avec la plage titulaire de l'album où Mike Olfdield est à nouveau mis en évidence, mais dont la longueur fait un peu forcé.
L'année suivante le "Whole World" a déjà "splitté" et de ce fait Kevin continue sa carrière en solo.
Le disque suivant "Whatever she brings we sing" regroupe encore un fort joli monde. Toujours David Bedford au piano, Mike Oldfield guitare et basse. Mais on remarque également la présence de Didier Malherbe le saxophoniste de Gong, Robert Wyatt qui chante sur un morceau, Dave Dufort batterie et Gerry Fields au violon.
Album très différent du précédent car il marque une période de transition dans la vie de Kevin, il commence à s'adonner à l'alcool. Sur la pochette, il est même écrit "remerciements spéciaux à David Bedford et ses excellents arrangements (There is a loving), Mike Oldfield pour sa merveilleuse basse et son solo de guitare (Whaterver she brings), Andrew King pour quelques bouteilles de vin. Merci beaucoup".
Ici encore, toute les compositions sont dues à l'imagination fertile de Kevin Ayers et la production a été partagée avec Andrew King.
There is loving, divisé en deux parties suprend surtout par le côté légèrement jazzy que les cuivres épousent de façon soutenue. Un jazz quelque peu rétro, qui est animé de quelques poussées de guitare, de saxo et trompettes. L'arrangement de David Bedford est d'une qualité étonnante et donne à l'album un caractère original.
"Margaret marque un constraste par son homogénité. Il s'agit évidemment d'une merveilleuse ballade d'amour comme seul Kevin Ayers a le don de les chanter avec l'intonation adéquate rendant la rigueur des sentiments.
"Song from the bottom of a well" retrace exactement la signification de son titre: "Chanson du fond d'un puits". L'introduction consiste en un roulement de batterie entrecoupé de véritables "coups de guitare" qui semblent désigner la chute vers des profondeurs inconnues. Puis soudain, la voix se fait entendre - voix caverneuse- voix maladive et plaintive, une voix qui nous parvient du fond d'un puits.
La guitare de Oldfield se fait déchirante, nerveuse en un solo époustouflant accentué encore par la mise en place d'une chambre d'écho. Pour indiquer la situation critique et tragique, les instruments deviennent "free" et se confondent en un brouhaha intensif qui s'arrête tout-à-coup.

> Zoom

Ceci est l'exemple type du morceau composé en période de pleine ivresse car la deuxième face débute par "Whatever she brings" plus calme et qui fait transparaître un plus grand équilibre. La guitare glisse gently, tandis que les coeurs accompagnent le chant de Kevin. La batterie cogne très calmement. Le grand génie de Kevin réside dans le fait que ses disques sont toujours un fouillis de tous les genres musicaux. Il se plie à tous les goûts. Il passe du rock "fort" à la ballade plus calme, de la chanson d'amour au rythme plus country blues comme le prouve ce fameux "Champagne cow-boy blues". Il raconte également pour terminer son disque l'odyssée de ce "stranger in blue suede shoes" qui marque encore un très bon moment de la seconde face et qui consiste en fin de compte en un grand merci à tous les collaborateurs du disque et également à tous les auditeurs.
En bref, ce disque est plus complet et mieux fini que "Shooting at the moon" car il y a plus de cohérence et plus de travail de la part des membres du groupe. Mais l'inégalité dans l'effort de la part de Kevin laissait prévoir quelques craintes à propos d'une seconde réussite.
Je me détrompai rapidement lors de la sortie de "Bananamour" l'année suivante (1973).
Encore et toujours de très bons musiciens réunis pour l'occasion Archic Legget, Eddie Sparrow, Wyatt, Steve Hillage, Mike Ratledge, une section cuivres : Howie Casey, Dave Caswell, Hyle Jenkins, Barry St John. Dans l'ensemble, il se rapproche plus de "Whatever she brings we sing" par la continuité qui se tisse entre chaque morceau, que de "Shooting at the moon ou de "Joy of a Toy". Mais il représente tout de même dans un style très différent. Le premier morceau "Don't let it get you down" nous plonge immédiatement dans l'atmosphère électrique caractéristique avec un fort apport de "cuivres" et de choeurs qui offrent une dimension toute autre à l'interprétation. Ce morceau est sans doute une des meilleures réussite de l'album et c'est pourquoi il est dédié à Rachel (Je ne sais toujours pas qui elle est celle-là).
"Shooting in a backet blues" débute sur une mélodie acoustique, bientôt doublée de la guitare de Steve Hillage (lui aussi de Gong) qui augmente l'intensité de la composition pourtant très simple au départ. Bien sûr, c'est ce que Kevin adore. Steve Hillage y va de longs solos- entrecoupés par le chorus de Ayers, prouvant sa haute technique et ses qualités en tant que lead guitar.
"When your parents go to sleep" représente le côté romantique de Kevin Ayers. Très calme, très lent, la voix d'Archic pleine de puissance se découvre parmi les horizons inexploités. Travail plein de stabilité, plein de cohésion où l'inspiration inépuisable se voit à chaque instant réaffermie et renouvelée. Toujours sont présents ses fondements très assurés; ses échaffaudages sans failles autour desquels les instrumentations se tressent de façon rigide et pleine de maîtrise.

> Zoom

Elle raconte les "confessions du Docteur Dream" et le premier morceau "Irreversible Neural damage" nous permet d'apprécier - trop brièvement d'ailleurs - la qualité vocale de Nico, qui était-fort étrangement- mécontente du mixage. On assiste à un véritable combat entre les deux parties vocales : Ayers contre Nico où les orgues de Steve Nye et Robert Hine apparaissent subitement. La présence de Mike Ratledge rend le mystère encore plus profond. Les effets sonores, les arrangements, les constructions de thèmes, élaborent un climat tendu et malsain où la progression vers le final est somptueuse.
Pour la première fois, Kevin a mis en scène tous les musiciens en catalysant leurs énergies et non pas en se laissant flotter sur elles. Ce disque ne marque pas le stade d'un aboutissement mais au contraire le réveil d'un génie endormi.

> Zoom

INTERVIEW DE L'ESPRIT DE KEVIN IN AYERLAND A PROPOS DE "SWEET DECEIVER".

P. Un tel titre était-il prémédité ?

K. Prémédité non, mais après avoir écouté les bandes des divers enregistrements je me suis rendu compte que j'avais déjà fait beaucoup mieux. Cela dit en toute modestie bien entendu.

P. Que penses-tu du travail de Ollie Halsall, sur disque et en public? Ne crois-tu pas qu'il en remet un peu ?

K. Je trouve le jeu de guitare d'Ollie vraiment excellent, même s'il est un peu bruyant. Sur scène la musique dépend évidemment du public et de notre forme personnelle. On ne peut pas juger. Quant à savoir s'il en "remet" je ne pense pas et toi ?

P. Oui, surtout dans "Observations", mais ça n'a pas d'importance. Que vient faire une chanson du style "City Waltz" dans ton répertoire ? Ce n'est pas ton genre pourtant.

K. J'ai voulu un peu diversifier le caractère de mes chansons. Je ne sais pas si je continuerai dans cette voie là. Cela soulève beaucoup de problèmes. Et puis à cause de toutes les tournées que nous avons faites, j'avais moins de temps pour composer, c'est un sérieux handicap.

P. Kevin, ne trouves-tu pas que "Toujours le voyage" ressemble trop à "Whatever..."

K. Si. Je peux même te dire que c'est son frère jumeau. J'ai refait une telle chanson pour un nouveau public qui n'est pas forcément au courant de ce que j'ai écrit il y a quelques années. Quant aux "vieux de la vieille", j'espère qu'ils accepteront ce petit sacrifice.

P. Et sa plage titulaire ?

K. C'est du rock comme il y en a beaucoup. Tu sais, j'étais fatigué à ce moment... D'ailleurs cet album est d'une musique peu particulière. Parfaite techniquement mais peu particulière.

P. Il n'y a donc que par la voix que l'on reconnait ce "Kevin Ayers"

K. C'est exact. Mais je ferai mieux la prochaine fois. Je pars d'ailleurs en Orient dans et pour quelques temps. Cela me permettra de faire le point, de me détendre et peut-être d'entrevoir de nouveaux horizons musicaux. Et toi que penses-tu de ce dernier album ?

P. Ben, je dois te dire qu'il m'a franchement déçu, il porte bien son titre en tout cas. Seule la pochette est très belle. Sinon pour ce qui est du reste c'est franchement quelconque.

K. C'est bien mon avis. Salut, je vais dormir.

Propos réels parce qu'IMAGINES d'un bout à l'autre par P. du MARAIS.

> Zoom

GONG

Après quelques bons moments passés avec ses amis du Soft Machine, David Allen dû quitter l'Angleterre en 1968 pour des raisons de permis de travail. Nous l'avons déjà mentionné plus haut, et trouva refuge chez nos amis français qu'il quittera définitivement en l'an de grâce 1973. Mais n'anticipons pas... En 1969, il fonde avec son amie Gilli Smyth le "Daevid Allen Gong" qui bien vite se transformera en Gong tout simplement. Ils s'adjoingnent Didier Malherbe, Rachid Houari et quelques musiciens de free-jazz tels que Burton Greene et Earl Freeman. Avec un tel personnel la musique de Gong transpire le jazz par tous ses pores mais la personnalité de l'ancien Soft Machine rétablit l'équilibre et apporte aussi beaucoup de folie à ce personnel hétéroclite.
Sur scène le groupe est alors peu convainquant il y a de nombreux passages à vide d'une pauvreté musicale décevante et parfois même incohérente mais aussi un aspect théâtral (déjà!) qui fait dérision où l'humour absurde de Daevid eût mérité de figurer dans une anthologie. Le premier disque de Gong, paru chez By, ne témoigne pas exactement de cette période. "Magick Brother" - c'est le titre de l'album en question - donne pourtant quelques petits échantillons de l'orientation musicale prise par le groupe. Déjà diverses personnalités s'affirment qui donneront une couleur musicale toute particulière à Gong. Tout d'abord il y a Gilli Smyth qui n'est pas une chanteuse à proprement parler mais dont la voix est utilisée comme un instrument - remarquable d'ailleurs. "Ca ne m'intéresse pas de faire la même chose que les autres, je cherche à être complètement originale. J'ai commencé avec la poésie dans des spectacles au Round House de Londres. En partant de la poésie, des lignes de mots, j'ai commencé à élargir les sons qui étaient dans l'idée du mot, l'idée est devenue un son : de plus en plus, des sons plutôt que de la poésie; une image, une idée archétype qui doit toucher, quelque chose de très bref et de très précis, comme un flash. En faisant croître les sons de façon inattendue, on peut provoquer, agacer le public, de façon à l'exciter le plus possible. Car c'est l'éternelle question : il ne faut pas que le public reste passif mais devienne actif. Souvent on est frustré car ce que l'on a provoqué n'est pas suffisant. L'idée essentielle de notre musique c'est de prolonger le public dans un état hors de la vie quotidienne. Mais c'est un problème jamais résolu..."
Didier Malherbe, quant à lui, est un ancien musicien de free-jazz, qui a accompagné quelques artistes américains lors de leur passage à Paris. Son rôle, à l'époque, ne se borne qu'à un soutien rythmique qui toutefois reste "free" et à quelques introductions de thèmes. La batterie de Rachid Houari ne fait que compléter ce soutien par son jeu aussi subtil qu'efficace et énergique.

> Zoom

Mais venons en à "Magick Brother". Cet album, composé de 12 morceaux dont le plus long est de 4'55", est réellement à des lieues de ce que Gong fait actuellement. Ce qui frappe d'abord c'est l'intérieur de la pochette, dû à la main fébrile de Daevid lui-même : un enchevêtrement de dessins, de phrases les plus dingues les unes que les autres. Point de vue musical, nous l'avons déjà dit, cela flaire le (free) jazz à plein nez. Couleur essentiellement donnée par la contrebasse de Dieter Gewisser et le saxophone de Didier Malherbe. Le premier morceau "Mystick Sister" donne une excellent échantillon des possibilités vocales de Gilli Smyth - expression d'un plaisir malsain dédoublé par la stéréo, chaos musical accentué, etc... Daevid à la guitare acoustique chante d'une voix tantôt douce, tantôt ironique et violente soutenue par les percussions de Rachid Houari. Point de vue lyrique, les chansons contiennent de nombreuses références "hippies" (mysticisme, Krishna...) fascination pour l'herbe, etc...). Certaines compositions sont fort saccadées tel que "Rational Anthemn" et répétitives (Chainstore Chant"), deux qualités qui seront à la base d'une nouvelle évolution future. Dans ce même "Rational Anthemn" on trouve un brin de révolution (We"re gonna change the world - It's too easy just to change your face - It's too easy just to get pictures...) et d'espoir (We're waiting for peace and love...). D'autres attaques au système sont formulées dans "Pretty Miss Titty" où Daevid s'en prend rageusement au business et à l'exploitation qui en découle (Big bad business Man have you any love ?). Mais il y a aussi la démence de Daevid - entre deux morceaux on entend une annonce de radio puis un extrait d'opéra et enfin Daevid lui-même qui accoure, essoufflé, pour nous raconter une de ces petites histoires absurdes dont il a le secret. Mais Gong c'est aussi un trip auquel Daevid nous invite - dans I hope you feel O.K., par exemple, (I hope you fell O.K., The moon is full today...) sur un rythme très planant encore accentué par la déformation électro-acoustique de la voix et de la guitare.
Mais la chanson la plus importante de l'album reste "Gongsong", en effet elle jette déjà les bases de la future mythologie de la planète Gong. Mais écoutons Daevid :" Il était une fois, d'une planète lointaine, un petit homme vert qui vint par une comète. La première fois que je l'ai rencontré c'était dans un taxi londonien, il m'a dit qu'il s'appelait monsieur Pot Head Pixy (pot= herbe). Il m'a dit on voit le but de Daevid : créer une planète imaginaire (cfr. "pataphysique) par laquelle il pourrait opposer tous les défauts de notre vie terrestre à une vie spirituelle et abstraite qui désalièneraît l'homme par la toute puissance de l'imagination (nous en donnerons un exemple concret dans quelques pages) Cet album se termine par un très beau récitatif mystique, très planant avec comme musique de fond une flûte indienne et une basse bourdonnante qui donne plus de profondeur à l'ensemble. Nous remarquons un petit sourire au coin des lèvres la similitude de couleur entre la planète verte, les cheveux verts ("'cos you got green hair") et la chandelle verte du père Ubu! Un disque satisfaisant donc, mais qui se caractérise surtout par un manque de cohésion et de rigueur...

> Zoom

L'étape suivante dans l'évolution du groupe se traduit par la production en 1970 de la musique du film de Jérôme Lapérousaz "Continental Circus" consacré au champion motocycliste australien Jack Findlay. Mais on ne peut pas considérer cet album comme un disque du Gong proprement dit, en effet il s'agit plutôt d'un enregistrement de commande où la créativité et la démence du groupe sont délibérément freinées par le thème du film que la musique doit évidemment illustrer et évoquer. Pourtant, si l'idée et le but de ces compositions sont déjà préétablis, l'on peut aisément remarquer la progression du groupe et sa nouvelle orientation. Progression donc, surtout dûe à une plus grande cohérence rythmique apportée par le nouveau bassiste Christian Tritsch (qui fut jadis musicien de Clo-Clo!!!). Mais si cette nouvelle rythmique forte et précise - encore accrue par la batterie de Houari - tend vers plus d'efficacité et de cohésion, elle freine quelque peu les élans de folie douce du groupe elle limite sa portée subversive en réduisant l'improvisation à quelques mesures.
Mais 70 est aussi une année transitoire pour Gong, transition évoquée par le BANANA MOON de Daevid Allen.

En plus de sa collaboration avec Gong, Daevid Allen, alias Bert Camenbert, alias Dingo Virgin, pataphysicien notoire président aux destinées de sa planète verte, enregistre au début de l'hiver 70-71 un album solo plein de lumière (verte bien sûr). Nous avons bien dit SOLO car, mettons les choses au point sur les i, ce "Banana Moon" - à ne pas confondre avec le "Bananamour" de Kevin Ayers, n'est PAS un disque du Gong mais plutôt le résultat d'une trop longue constipation de Daevid.
Au début de l'hiver 70-71 donc, Bert Camenbert suivi du Submarine Captain Christian Tritsch repassent la Manche, vont rejoindre leurs amis de la Machine Molle et décident d'enregistrer "Banana Moon" qui, s'il n'est pas entièrement convainquant peut cependant être considéré comme une sorte d'événement : une rencontre de personnalités musicales toutes différentes mais combien passionnantes. Parmi ces personnalités on note la présence de Robert Wyatt - qui commence déjà à en avoir plein le dos de n'être plus considéré que comme un rouage infime dans la Machine Molle maintenant dirigée par Ratledge; il y a aussi Archie Leggett - ancien bassiste de Johnny et Sylvie (oui, oui!) qui est alors celui de Gary Wright qui, lui, vient de quitter (momentanément) Spooky Tooth - qui n'a rien à voir avec Soft Machine, mais qui joue aussi sur cet album (Gary Wright). Il y a Pip Pyle qui joue pour la première fois aux côtés de Daevid et c'est d'ailleurs à cette occasion qu'il fut engagé dans Gong. Il y a aussi Nick Evans, tromboniste de plusieurs groupes importants : Keith Tippett, Soft Machine, Centipede etc... le violoniste Gerry Fileds - que l'on retrouvera sur "Whatever..." de Kevin Ayers. Il y a Maggie Bell (de Stone the Crow) et Barry St John - que l'on retrouvera également aux côtés de Kevin. Nous espérons n'avoir oublié personne. Enfin voilà, tout ce beau monde réalisa avec pas mal de brio, cet album dont l'ambiance était censée être instaurée par Daevid Allen. La première face, intitulée elle aussi "Banana Moon", est un contenu assez parodique, (que nous vous laisseront le soin de découvrir) et tout en relief, les moments forts succédant aux moments plus faibles ou inversément si vous préférez. Mais avant de pénétrer cet album nous pensons qu'il serait nécessaire d'en expliquer le titre (chose qui paraît élémentaire). "Banana Moon" est le nom du premier groupe de Daevid, mais aussi celui de la lune lorsqu'elle n'a pas encore dépassé son premier quartier, époque à partir de laquelle la Magie Blanche peut s'opérer jusqu'à ce qu'elle soit pleine (the moon).

> Zoom

Bon revenons à notre première face. Elle début en force avec "It's the time of your life" morceau assez violent composé par Ch. Tritsch et qui est pour Pyle la première occasion de jouer avec des musiciens de Gong. "Memories" est une très belle mélodie de Hugh Hopper, sur laquelle Wyatt a écrit les paroles (qu'il chante ici en jouant de la wah-wah) et qui date de l'époque assez lointaine maintenant, où Daevid,Hugh, Kevin, Ratledge et Waytt résidaient tous ensemble à Canterbury. Ensuite un morceau très freaky, à nouveau de Tritsch, nous permet d'entendre les "famed dolly choruses" de Wyatt qui joue aussi des drums, soutenu par la basse d'Archie, Tritsch délaissant la sienne pour seconder Daevid à la guitare. Il y a aussi l'histoire de "Fred the fish and the chip on his shoulder" qui nous permet d'entendre le violon de Gerry Fields sur un air très entraînant. Puis vient ce que nous considérerons comme le sommet de l'album : "White meck blooze", une excellente parodie de Kevin Ayers, chantée après l'évocation de Kevin in Ayerland...

'Godein Coda" quant à lui n'est qu'une façon de conclure cette "Songful side". "Stoned Innocent Frankenstein and his adventures in the land of flip" occupe presque toute la seconde face de l'album et raconde l'histoire d'un personnage qui fut assez proche de Gong. Cette "composition" est constituée d'une vaste improvisation collective spontanée (avec tout ce que cela comporte comme bons et mauvais moments) tous les musiciens étant défoncés à la bière australienne et au hashisch dans la nuit . "I'm a bowl" termine cette seconde face aux notes graves du trombone de Nick Evans.

> Zoom

Voilà assurément un disque qu'il faut posséder même si l'imperfection du mixage et la rapidité de l'enregistrement en sont les plus gros défauts.
L'année 71 est des plus décisives pour Gong et son orientation (le témoin concret de celle-ci n'est autre que le fameux "Camenbert Electrique", premier et dernier exemplaire de cheese-rock!). Mais ce qui est vraiment décisif dans l'avenir du groupe est évidemment le remplacement de Rachid Houari par l'excellent Pip Pyle (ex. Chicken Shack et Delivery). Le problème de l'insuffisance sonore que Houari n'a jamais pu résoudre, l'est immédiatement pour la nouvelle puissance de Pip Pyle. Mais si la porte est définitivement fermée à la folie sonore spontanée des débuts, le décollage dans la musique du groupe entre l'expression et le soutien rythmique est complètement anéanti. La cohérence musicale est donc presque totale, mais cela évidemment au détriment de la spontanéité et de la subversion initiales. On sent on ne peut mieux que la rigidité rythmique du nouveau batteur a permis une restructuration complète de la musique du groupe. A l'époque, Daevid Allen a d'ailleurs déclaré au sujet de l'adjonction de Pyle au sein du groupe : "Pour lui, jouer avec Chicken Shack, ce n'était pas intéressant, car c'était un groupe fonctionnaire dans lequel il avait un rôle de fonctionnaire. Il a formé pendant quelque temps un groupe, Delivery, avec Lol Coxhill (saxophoniste de Kevin Ayers). Il apporte au Gong une nouvelle énergie. Il joue d'une double batterie, et si fort qu'il n'est plus nécessaire de le sonoriser. Il nous a obligés aussi à jouer tous plus fort encore." Le groupe peut donc s'imposer, s'affirmer et s'affermir devant un public encore quelque peu méfiant et incrédule. A cette époque Gong joue surtout en France dans les MJC (Maison de la Jeunesse et de la Culture) mais aussi avec Kevin Ayers en Angleterre se produisent sur scène dans des vêtements moyen-âgeux, sur lesquels sont brodés des étoiles, des croissants de lunes, etc... et portant sur la tête de grands chapeaux pointus à la manière des Pot Head Pixies, ces petits hommes verts qui ont pour tâche de nous introduire à leur Radio Gnome Invisible, sorte de radio télépathique.
Mais si la spontanéité musicale perd de son importance, la fantaisie de Daevid n'est pas atteinte pour autant, ses gagas scéniques et ses déclarations sont des plus loufoques : "J'ai deux façons de jouer de la guitare : Rude and Banana et Camembert. Quand je suis pourri, je suis très camembert. Quand je suis plus pur, c'est plutôt Banana. Je joue aussi Primitive Australian car je viens de Chine" (?!). La personnalité de Daevid transparaît aussi bien dans ses chansons que dans les pochettes de disque qu'il dessine lui-même. Pour l'album Camembert Electrique" il a d'ailleurs rempli de dessins deux feuillets sur lesquels il a également écrit les paroles du disque. Il y a des petits Pot Head Pixies partout qui vous font un petit sourire plein d'ironie, des Banana Moons, des symbôles sanscrits, etc...

> Zoom

Enregistré durant les phases de pleine lune des mois de mai, juin et septembre "Camembert Electrique" peut être considéré comme le premier "véritable" album de Gong, étant plus dans l'esprit pataphysique de Daevid Allen et réunissant pour la première fois l'originalité de propositions nouvelles ainsi qu'une propulsion fortement rythmée. Cet album bénéficie également de certains trucages et bruitages permettant une introduction originale des morceaux. Ainsi, avant le premier morceau(You can't kill me) un Pot Head Pixy vient nous souhaiter un e bonne soirée à l'écoute de sa radio télépathique : "Bon Soir! c'est une émission Planète Gong par Radio Gnome invisible - direct de la Planète Gong". Ce petit discours est alors suivi de bruits de portes qui s'ouvrent qui se ferment, d'un bruit de chute d'eau... (tout cela en 25 secondes) après lesquels la guitare de Daevid se fait enfin entendre, immédiatement suivie de la basse forte du Submarine Captain (C. Tritsch) et les drums énergiques de Pip Pyle. La nouvelle puissance du groupe marque un contraste étonnant avec les premiers enregistrements. Pyle et Tritsch donnent un nouvel impact musical qui est beaucoup plus à même de soutenir les fantaisies vocales de Daevid. Ce qui frappe aussi immédiatement est la répétivité quasi hypnotique des différents thèmes, répétitivité qui ne fait qu'accroître le côté fantaisiste du groupe bien sûr. La guitare de Daevid sonne aussi beaucoup plus "hard" qu'avant, les saxos de Bloomdido Bad de Grasse (Didier Malherbe) se font indiscutablement moins "free" et l'on a même droit à quelques petits soli du meilleur cru. Shakti Yoni (Gilli Smyth) est toujours aussi remarquable avec ses "space whispers" qui donnent cette note "spatiale" chère au groupe, encore accentuée par les effets d'échos et les longs glissandos de guitare. Si les paroles ne sont pas toujours des plus intéressantes, elles révèlent quand même un esprit enclin aux trips, aux rêves, un esprit luttant contre les cadres étroits d'une logique quotidienne brimant tous nos élans de fantaisie spontanée. Pour le deuxième morceau (I"ve bin stoned before) Daevid a fait appel à Eddy Lewis pour introduire à l'orgue (d'église) cette petite histoire flippante d'un trip se terminant dans une morgue (O! pourquoi suis-je si vague ?) à moins que ce ne soit dans le four crématoire de Saint John's Wood- vous savez un trip, on en connaît le point de départ, quant à l'arrivée...
Incertitude traduite par lp chaos musical d'un saxo plutôt "free", de percussions incohérentes et par les rires de Shakti Yoni, the good witch. Then follows une introduction de saxo au rythme assez infantil, suivi par le chant tout aussi infantil de Daevid dont la voix est beaucoup plus sûre qu'auparavant et qui n'hésite pas à gueuler de temps en temps. Musique débile, paroles débiles (O! RTF Girl es-tu défoncée ? Laisse-moi être ton gnome de Chine... Passe-moi sur ton gramophone et enfouis-moi dans ton jardin Pas aujourd'hui, merci monsieur Longues Jambes,j'ai un autre poisson à frire..."). Puis suit un passage plus rapide dont la folie douce est encore accentuée par les ponctuations discrètes mais efficaces de Bloomdido. En troisième position à 13'38 de la tête arrive "I am your fantasy" Poème "chanté" par Chilli Smyth; très calme, très plânant, plein d'échos, de douceur érotique... (c'est là, son plus grand mérite). Après le calme vient la tempête et c'est l'explosion avec "Dynamite". (répété 28 fois s'il vous plait!) encore chanté par Shakti Yoni qui se compare à un "pussy" à nouveau fort érotique... La première face se termine en pleine dérision par le "Wet Cheese delirium" dans lequel on nous propose... un camembert!

> Zoom

"Fohat digs holes in space" commence une seconde face bien prometteuse. Introduit au saxophone, ce long morceau planant est basé sur la rythmique répétitive de Christian Tritsch, appuyée par la batterie assez discrète cette fois (ce qui permet à l'auditeur de décoller plus aisément); ambiance spatiale accentuée par le glissando de la guitare, les échos et les "space whispers", ce morceau, excellente référence à la musique de Pink Floyd, nous permet d'entendre un fameux solo de saxo, de même qu'un solo de guitare endiablé, arrivant presque à saturation. Les paroles, très simples, donnent un accès aisé à la philosophie du Gong(herbe, trip, folie, liberté...). "You tried so hard" est dédié à Kevin Ayers, la musique étant de C. Tritsch qui, ici joue de la guitare, Daevid le remplaçant à la basse. On peut dire que c'est le morceau le plus commercial de l'album. Pour conclure ce "Camembert Electrique" nous avons droit à une autre longue composition de Bert Camembert (Ropical fish/Selene) à nouveau introduite par le saxo de Bloomdido, rythmes surprenants répétés déments, télépathiques se terminant sur une prière adressée à Selene (Spirit of the moon).
Et le disque se termine sur un coup de Gong annonçant la fin de l'émission.
Album surprenant, unique dans l'histoire du rock, combinant force et rigueur, musicale et absurdité, pataphysique, fantaisie et esthétique du cri... Qu'y a-t-il de plus à ajouter ?

Après le succès - un tant soit peu relatif - de son "Camembert Electrique" Gong émigre définitivement dans la verte Albion qu'il ne quittera plus (sauf pour les tournées continentales bien sûr). L'année 1972 est pour Gong une année de longues tournées anglaises au cours desquelles le groupe s'est produit devant à peu près 120 millions de spectateurs-auditeurs (dixit Virgin), mais c'est aussi la mise sur pied d'un grand projet pataphysique; c'est, vous l'avez deviné, la grande trilogie des "Radio Gnome Invisible" au cours de laquelle notre "rock and cheese band" nous/vous emmènera sur leur petite planète verte où tout n'est que solutions imaginaires et virtualité...

> Zoom

C'est en 1973 que paraît (chez Virgin of course) le premier volume de cette triologie,(sous-titré "Flying tea-Pot"...) qui nous permet de faire connaissance avec la nouvelle mythologie de la planète Gong. De cet astre, où profuse l'exception et la singularité, décollent des théières volantes (pourquoi pas) dans lesquelles des petits hommes verts appelés "Pot Head Pixies" s'affèrent à retransmettre les émissions de la "Radio Gnome Invisible" qui, nous vous le rappelons, est une radio télépathique à l'usage des gens qui savent voir... Dans ce premier volume, un Flying-Teapot, après un long voyage dans l'Ethernité, atterrit au Tibet, en plein sur le mât de prière de Lawrence the Alien(Laurie Allan) qui en est tout retourné. Vous pensez... Cette théière est pleine de Pixies qui semblent aussi étonnés que Lawrence, et qui sont alors conduits par le grand yogi Banana Ananda qui les présente aux Octave Doctors. Ceux-ci enseignent les secrets de leur suprême sagesse sublimale au moyen de leur "Crystal machine" (illustrée par le synthétiseur de Tim Blake). C'est alors qu'apparaît Zero le Héro, terrien qui n'est autre que VOUS et qui fait connaissance avec les petits hommes verts qu'il se met à adorer (au sens religieux du terme et dans les autres aussi d'ailleurs). Mais les humbles Pot Head Pixies refusent cette dévotion et emmènent Zero auprès de la sorcière Shakti Yoni, en passant par des contrées d'un magnétisme fort dissipé illustrées par Bloomdido Bad de Grasse. Là, il tombe amoureux de Shakti - à qui il fait sa déclaration dans "Zeo the Hero and the witch's spell" - et veut à tout prix lui offrir un... Fish and chips. Hélas pour lui la bonne sorcière ne se laisse pas faire et l'ensorcelle... Voilà en gros le résumé de cette première partie qui se temrine en plein suspens... Se pourrait-il qu'elle soit une adepte du" Women's lib" ? Mérite-t-elle son titre de "Good Witch" ? Qui sait?
Au point de vue musical, ce que l'on remarque surtout c'est un changement de personnel, tout d'abord il y a l'adjonction dans la mamelle du groupe de Tim Blake dont le synthétiseur vous fera pénétrer au sein de l'universelle vacuité interstellaire (ben oui quoi). Pip Pyle quant à lui s'en est allé retrouver d'anciens amis pour former Hatfield (voir ce chapitre) et est remplacé par l'excellent Laurie Allen. Il faut aussi - et peut-être surtout - noter l'arrivée d'un ancien ami de Kevin Ayers : Steve Hillage qui apporte une nouvelle dimension à la musique du groupe.
Pourtant par rapport à l'album précédent, il est évident que si les compositions sont plus longues, plus strcturées et plus élaborées, la qualité musicale laisse quelque peu à désirer. Mais il faut savoir que cet album n'est que le deuxième du catalogue Virgin et que les studios de son "Manor" étaient encore quelque peu archaïque à cette époque. De plus l'album a été très vite enregistré et mixé et cela pour des causes purement matérielles (Virgin c'est tout de même pas l'armée du salut...)

> Zoom

En ce qui concerne la structure de l'album, chaque morceau illustre un aspect de l'histoire ci-dessus relatée. "Radio Gnome Invisible", le premier morceau explique aux terriens en quoi consiste cette radio téléphatique d'un caractère on ne peut plus singulier et pystique évoqué par une musique quelque peu étrange et orientale. Mais c'est d'une mystique mystifiée qu'il s'agit (Banana Nirvana Manana...). Pourtant la mystification ne serait-elle pas de nous faire croire à une mystique mystifiée ? Who knows ? Le morceau "Flying Tea-Pot" relate le long voyage des Pot Head Pixies en direction de la terre ainsi que leur atterrissage sur celle-ci avec le célèbre (l'est-il?) T. Pot chorus : "Flying Saucer - Flying Tea-cup - From outa space - Flying Tea pot". La deuxième surface commence par une louange à la gloire des Pot Head Pixies (avec le significatif refrain : "I am, you are, we are crazy..."). Puis les notes crystallines du synthétiseur nous emmènent auprès des Octave Doctors et de leur fameuse machine à sagesse. Avec "Zero the Hero and the Witch's spell" nous avons droit au morceau le plus jazzy de l'album, avec fortes ponctuations du synthétiseur, un excellent solo de saxo de Bloomdido et avec, comme toujours, les inimitables "spacer-whispers" de Gilli Smyth qui, chère à son image, se métamorphose en le Pussy de Zero. C'est sur le dialogue éloquent entre celui-ci et celle-là (I don't want to fuck you, just hear you rap..) que se termine ce premier volet de la triologie verte...

Mais bien sûr le groupe n'en reste pas là, la même année sort "Angel's Egg", la deuxième partie des "Radio Gnome" avec lequel le groupe aura fait preuve d'une plus grande maturité musicale. En effet, il y a à nouveau un changement de personnel qui permet au groupe de s'attacher le nouveau batteur Pierre Moerlin, lequel peut être considéré comme le meilleur percussioniste français après Vander. Mais Pierre ne vient pas tout seul, il s'accompagne de sa soeur Mireille qui, elle, se révèle une excellente "glockenspieliste"...

Au début de ce deuxième album, Zero, qui a absorbé la potion magique de Yoni, perd la tête qui s'envole dans l'éther parmi les astres et les flots galactiques pour arriver au septième ciel où tout voyageur se voit gratifié d'un orgasme perpétuel... (Waow!). Tout cela est illustré par une musique très planante dûe aux doux bouillonnements de synthétiseur et aux ponctuations de saxo qui se changent en une longue mélodie lancinante exprimant l'apathie de l'esprit de Zero. "To pass beyond the countless worlds... The eternal wheel... ceaseless tides of selves... Ever passing away before your eyes". Le rythme se fait plus swingant lors de l'approche de la planète Gong dont l'aura magnifique est délicatement évoquée par la guitare électrifiante de Stevie. Et de nouveau cette mystique mystifiée : "Hare Hare Supermarket-Hare Hare London Bus - Hare Hare Ladies Lavatory"...

> Zoom

Mais cette contemplation est interrompue par l'arrivée du Captain Capricorn et de de son vaisseau singulier (cf. la pochette intérieure) "Look out we're being invaded..." Par ce morceau ("Sold to the highest Buddha") on ne peut s'empêcher de remarquer le nouvel équilibre atteint par le groupe. De plus la qualité d'enregistrement est de loin supérieure au précédent album et les compositions se font plus variées, mais aussi plus instrumentales, avec de nombreux soli de Steve Hillage et de Didier Malherbe soutenus par l'indispensable synthétiseur. Avec la composition suivante Zero arrive en vue du "Castle in Clouds" aux portes duquel il entrevoit une superbe prostituée qui nous chante sans trop de conviction son "Prostitute Poem" du plus pur style "Pigalle" sur une musique de Hillage qui décidément commence à s'affirmer au sein du groupe. Un morceau excellent, une musique tout à fait adéquate. "Bonsoir monsieur,tu viens avec moi? Tu viens, chéri ? I want your body viensfaire l'amour... " Cette rencontre de marque de termine dans un vieux café français où toute la clientèle chante en choeur "I'm givin'my luv to ya". Mais au fond qui est cette charmante dame ? La réponse n'est autre que "Selene" dont Zero tombe à nouveau amoureux. Pauvre petit terrien...

Mais Didier Malherbe nous attend déjà avec sa "Flute Salad", un parfait petit ensemble de notes extatiques du plus pur style "Krishna" qui exprime sa bienvenue à Zero qui, lui, vient d'arriver sur la planète Gong où les Pot Head Pixies l'accueillent comme il se doit. Zero apprend le secret de Tea Pots ainsi que les buts philosophiques de la planète Gong. Fort étonné, il assiste également à la danse prophétique du "Wizard of the Keys" par qui il est emmené au temple invisible de la planète. Point de vue musical "Oilyway" est très bien balancé, soutenu par la rythmique absolument irréprochable de Mike Howelett et de Moerlin. Mais Zero pénètre tout d'abord dans l'"Outer Temple" dont le grand prêtre lui présente une tasse de thé de l'"Hubba Dubba Tea Company of Tiber". Sur un rythme très lancinant, accompagné des space whispers de Gilli Smyth Zero pénètre alors dans l'"Innee Temple" où les Octave Doctors lui enseignent les secrets de la vie grâce à nouveau à leur Crystal Machine. Zero tout à fait converti se prépare à nous chanter sa chanson d'amour ("Love is how you make it") introduite par la "percolation" des percussions des Moerlin. Cette chanson est très douce et exprime l'utilité de la planète verte et de ses représentants terrestres (c'est-à-dire le groupe) "Love is how you give it, how you live it, how you make it, how you take it". Mais Zero voit un Pot Head Pixy qui dans le ciel, sur un arc (en-ciel) déverse, au moyen d'un arrosoir, les nouvelles eaux de la vie et de la sagesse qui feront fleurir une nouvelle et heureuse ère terrestre... Le rythme est plus sec, plus rapide, entrecoupé de de violents soli de guitare qui apportent une nouvelle énergie au groupe, qui fait contraste (l'énergie) avec la voix mal assurée de Hillage. Et c'est une nouvelle composition de Bloomdido qui conclut l'album. Un morceau très jazz, très swingant dans lequel Malherbe nous explique comment faire partie de la planète et devenir un Pot Head Pixy ou comment un P.H.P. devient un être humain. De toute façon ça n'a pas d'importance puisque c'est pareil...

> Zoom

Voilà un très bon album, un des meilleurs du groupe, tant par ses qualités formelles - car il faut bien le reconnaître cette musique est irréprochable et les chaos des débuts sont totalement oubliés - que par ses qualités techniques... "Oh mama maya, pray for a banana, banana nirvana manana...".
Epuivinyou qui n'est autre que le pénultième volume de cette trilogie (à moins qu'il n'y en ai un quatrième...). Avec ce petit chef-d'oeuvre, les petits zomvairs nous ramènent sur terre en passant par l'Ile d'Everywhere à laquelle on accède par certaines formules magiques, bien sûr, mais surtout musicales. Surtout ne pas oublier l'extrêmement pataphysique dialogue entre Zéro et le Master Builder à propos de l'éventuelle construction d'un temple qui structurerait sa vision d'un monde plus agréable à vivre, etc...
Cet etc... ne signifie rien d'autre chose que, sachant que cette histoire et ses paroles imaginaires se trouvent dans sa pochette nous ne prenons pas la peine de vous en dire plus, préférant laisser libre cours à votre entendement de cet apodictique ouvrage parénétique.
Que dire de la nouvelle qualité de la musique de Gong ? Peut-être devrions-nous parler de cette évidente équipollences de structure entre les divers mouvements musicaux, faut-il souligner la complexité des arrangements ? Nous pourrions mettre en exergue une purification sans précédent dans le langage musical qui annonce un avenir prometteur non seulement au groupe mais aussi aux formations synchromes qui pourraient s'en inspirer. C'est que "YOU" si vous ne l'avez pas encore remarqué, nous ne vous blâmons pas, apporte une réponse extrêmement neuve aux postulations du nouveau figuratisme symbolique tout en gardant tout un faisceau de traditions, en synthétisant les différents problèmes de fonds et en conservant cette notable fraîcheur qui aurait pu échapper à cette nouvelle musique potentielle car il ne s'agit évidemment pas d'une création froidement abstraite. Gong a définitivement réduit le problème de cette monochromie si nous pouvons user d'un tel vocable, de cette monochromie donc qui est le triste apanage des productions musicales actuelles et hélas futures...
Avec le spectacle offert par "YOU", l'horizon pataphysique semble avoir aspiré l'univers visuel dans l'infini d'une dimension intermédiaire, celle où le temps et l'espace, ces deux montres métamythiques, sont accouplés en une union quasi idéomatique par laquelle ces deux contradictions se voient hallucinement abolies. Vouons donc à la paralipse les autres paradigmes et perorons, comme disait Sandormir. Cette musique de grande classe ne nous donne rien d'autre (!) que l'intuition d'une réalité autre, ici très concrètement promue, selon le voeu des plus sensibles artistes : on a, au sens propre, l'impression de voir de l'autre côté du miroir et être admis à la contemplation de l'invisible...

> Zoom

Peut-on souhaiter autre chose ?

Et de conclure en beauté ce chat pitre : "melior est finis oration is quam principium..."

> Zoom

ROBERT WYATT

Tout de suite des flashes éblouissants éclairent notre mémoire.
Un batteur blond presque nu martelle sa batterie avec constance et tenacité.
Il est déjà loin ce souvenir de Robert Wyatt au sein de Soft Machine à l'époque du "Third".
Après la rupture, il y eût une expérience solo, puis Matching Mole, puis... l'accident, la petite voiture. Lors d'une soirée donnée pour fêter la grande réunion de toute la famille Soft, ils étaient tous là, il est tombé de la fenêtre du quatrième étage.
Par miracle, il n'est pas mort, mais reste paralysé à vie. A présent, il se déplace en voiture roulante recevant les soins constants de sa femme Alphie.
Le monde rock perd ainsi un des plus grands batteurs de tous les temps, mais (on s'en apercevra plus tard) conquiert un incomparable compositeur-chanteur.
La première expérience avec Hatfield and the North le prouve bien (il chante sur "Calyx").
Mais attardons-nous quelques instants sur le premier disque solo, de Robert Wyatt : "End of an Ear".
Enregistré entre la période de fin Soft Machine et début Matching Mole, Robert explique le pourquoi de ce disque "Robert Wyatt, out of work pop-singer". En fait l'album est une suite d'hommages à des personnalités qui l'ont aidés, encouragés et soutenus.
"Las Vegas Tango" est dédié à Gil Evans, d'autres titres à Gilli Smyth, Daevid Allen, Caravan (on reste en famille, dirait-on) sans oublier Carla ou Caroline (cette dernière réapparaîtra également sur le premier Matching Mole pour donner le morceau que je préfère nettement) Disque rempli de qualités et de talents mais il passera pratiquement inaperçu.
Tout Wyatt se retrouve dans cet album, sa voix, son jeu, ses compositions sont d'une évidence éternelle.
Du jazz, du piano électrique, inversion de bandes et arrangements sonores électroniques font de cet album une pièce de collection.
Cependant, il apparaît beaucoup plus simple vis-à-vis des expériences passées avec le Soft, il ne semble pas assez maîtrisé et de ce fait ne rencontre qu'un mince succès et c'est bien triste.
Ensuite, il désire devenir le leadership d'un groupe, il fonde Matching Mole.
Bien qu'étant le patron, il s'effacera; c'est ainsi que "Part of the dance", composition de Phil Miller occupe une grande place sur la première face ? Malheureusement l'expérience sera brève. Puis l'occident , la convalescence très longue.

> Zoom

Il réapparaît pour la première fois sur la scène du Rainbow en compagnie de Kevin Ayers, John Cale, Eno, Nico et Mike Oldfield pour enregistre "June 1st 1974" puis avec Hatfield & the North pour qui il prête sa voix sur un morceau. Soft Machine et Pink Floyd lui verseront l'argent d'un concert en commun pour envisager son retour dans le Show-biz sans trop de problèmes.
Soulain un jour de l'année 1974, Robert Wyatt sort un disque : Rock Bottom qui d'abord surpris et finalement ravi tout le monde.
Il a quitté la firme C.B.S. au profit de VIRGIN très en vogue à cette époque. Il a trouvé là le cadre idéal pour travailler entouré de ses amis :Hatfield & the North et Mike Oldfield. La production de Nick Mason et l'instrumentation (Wyatt : claviers; Richard Sinclair ou Hugh Hopper à la basse; Fred Frith : violes) de tous ses amis contribuent à soutenir la pleine harmonie et à faire de ce disque une merveille.
Rock Bottom est un disque "heavy". Il consiste également en une amélioration face aux productions précédentes une vision franchement originale d'un rêve intemporel de l'esprit qui aboutit à une résolution.
Ce disque marque surtout l'accomplissement de la démarche musciale que Robert rechercherait depuis le début de sa carrière, depuis le premier Soft. C'est sans doute la raison pour laquelle il est allé chez Virgin qui laisse toutes libertés aux musiciens (cfr. Hatfield).
D'une certaine manière cette démarche présentait un risque celui de ne pas voir comme avec .C.B.S. ses disques distribués dans le monde entier et seulement dans quelques magasins clairsemés à Londres. Cependant l'heureux développement de la dite firme s'est voulu impressionnant. Dès le premier morceau, "Sea Song" on est conscient qu'il s'agit d'une oeuvre importante qui annihile toutes possibilités critiques. La voix, les percussions de Wyatt sont présentes, la force émotive et souple des compositions, l'imagination créatrice dans toute sa sérénité et son ivresse se retrouvent et contribuent à faire de cette sublime symphonie une merveille de technique instrumentale qui ouvre une perspective vers le dépassement outre-mesure.
Les morceaux d'ouverture confirment l'actuel penchant de Wyatt pour les récents travaux de Stevie Wonder. Les luxuriants crescendos de pianos se combinent merveilleusement avec la sagesse vocale du "lead-singer".
Avant son hospitalisation, Wyatt préparait avec le groupe le troisième album de Matching Mole. Cependant, les six mois d'inactivité ont eu pour conséquence d'entraîner la séparation du groupe. Six mois d'hôpital de réflexions, de compositions. le résultat : Rock Bottom que la critique accueilli tout de suite très favorablement.

> Zoom

La réussite parfaite du disque lui valut la récompense d'une distinction honorifique musicale : le prix "Charles Cros 1974".
Fortement inspiré par "I'm a believer" de Neil Diamond, il l'arrangea et le sortit en simple. Il obtint tout de suite un vif succès et le disque se propulsa en très bonne position dans le "Top Thirty".
En février 75, un nouveau simple cette fois un réarrangement d'un disque de Chris Andrew : "Yesterday man" que l'on retrouve sur le disque compilation "V" de chez Virgin.
Après la sensationnelle réussite de Rock Bottom, Wyatt a voulu remettre son troisième album solo :" Ruth is stranger than Richard".
"Richard" toute la spontanéité, l'imagination et le balancement euphorique chère à notre vieux Soft.
"Soup song" est une composition de Hugh Hopper et de Robert qui offre un caractère déroutant par la présence du piano bluezy et de la trompette jazzy.
En fin de compte, il se présente comme fort différent de Rock Bottom avec comme confirmation : "Team spirit" où Eno joue (tenez-vous bien) du "direct inject anti-jazz ray gun" et où Phil Manzanera s'occupe de la partie sonore.
Amalgames de trouvailles ingénieuses et époustouflantes, d'harmonisation nettement "vieux jazz" où viennent s'insérer les longues interventions stridantes du trompettiste Mongezi Feza, musicien à part entière du groupe de Chris Mc Gregor: "Brotherland of Bread". Sont également présents le solide et percutant saxophoniste Gary Windo, l'extraordinaire guitariste de Henry Cow : Fred Frith, Manzanera, Brian, Eno, Bill Mc Cormick l'ancien bassiste de Matching Mole et un second saxophoniste Nisar Ahmad Khan.
Robert Wyatt en profite également pour reprendre une des oeuvres maîtresses de jazz : "Song for che" tiré du fameux "Liberation Orchestra" du contrebassiste Charlie Haden. Ce morceau vient clore de façon magistrale la première face du disque.
Le premier morceau de la seconde face, très court, 50 secondes consiste en un duel piano/vocales entre Frith/Wyatt qui s'effacera pour finalement réapparaître à la fin du disque.
La voix s'étale, se tisse, tresse une harmonie sur laquelle en écho une clarinette impose un background hypnotique qui au bout du compte ne laissera que la clarinette et la voix répéter sans cesse la même phrase.
Wyatt pousse jusqu'à reprendre un thème d'Offenbach et sur la pochette cela donne fort bien : "Black note and I white note (Offenbach/Wyatt)".
La production est toujours le travail de Nick Mason, mais ce disque peut paraître moins évident que le précédent car plus inégal et plus découpé.
Bien sûr Ruth is stranger than Richard, mais Ruth est encore plus stranger que Rock Bottom.

> Zoom

HATFIELD and THE NORTH.

Ce groupe symbolise un aspect différent de l'appareil musicographique de chez Vergin. Situé à mi-chemin entre le jazz et le rock, ils jouent une musique qui leur est personnelle, qui leur plaît sans se soucier des considérations commerciales. C'est grâce à Vergin qui leur laisse toute liberté de création, dans ce sens qu'il n'impose aucune censure , ni contraintes qu'ils peuvent s'épanouir. La musique d'Hatfield and the North est le résultat intégral du travail du groupe, une tâche individuelle qui s'est fondée en un tout cohérent et non pas un message raboté par la firme pour des raisons commerciales. Non! Vergin distribue simplement les disques, aident les musiciens à se lancer et en fait ce n'est pas plus mal car il suffit de jeter un coup d'oeil sur l'ampleur toujours croissante de cette firme qui compte le plus grand magasin de Londres.
Le groupe s'est formé en Novembre 1972 par Pip Pyle (batterie), Richard Sinclair (Basse, vocaux), Phil Miller (guitare) et son frère Steve Miller (claviers) qui joue actuellement avec Lol Coxhill et remplacé par Dave Sinclair, le cousin de Richard, qui a son tour s'est fait ravir la place par le définitif Dave Stewart.
Ils ont tous fait partie de la grande famille Soft Machine en s'intégrant dans des groupes s'inscrivant tous dans la lignée, c'est-à-dire Matching Mole (Phil Miller); Caravan (Sinclair); Gong (Pyle) Egg (Stewart). Que jouent-ils ? du Jazz ? du rock ? peu importe c'est de la musique vivante, un style qu'on aime et qu'il nous faut à tout prix découvrir.

"The Stubbs Effects" and "The other Stubbs Effects".

Tels sont les titres qui respectivement débutent et clôturent la première ébauche discographique.
Sur cet album le groupe a fait appel au merveilleux saxophoniste d'Henry Cow, Geoff Leigh, à Jeremy Baines pixiephone et à Robert Wyatt qui prête sa voix sur Calyx. Les morceaux s'enchaînent s'entrecroisent, s'enflent avec une agilité déconcertante, d'autant plus qu'ils sont composés par chaque musicien indépendamment. On passe d'un travail de Pip Pyle à Sinclair puis Stewart et enfin Miller pour les quatre premiers morceaux et lorsque placés à la suite les uns des autres le résultat est stupéfiant car la cohésion tresse un long filament de vingt minutes.

> Zoom

Hatfield and the North réveille inévitablement le souvenir fou de Matching Mole, il en dit plus que Caravan. Pour l'instant il se place sur l'orbite de Soft Machine. L'alliance de l'influence passée de chaque membre donne un résultat de toute beauté.

A l'écoute de ce bijoux, on ne remarque même plus que les musiciens sont excellents tant le résultat semble évident. On ne résiste pas aux envolées lyriques de Miller ou Stewart ("Rifferama") qui font preuve d'une grande maturité. L'originalité du groupe provient essentiellement du mélange de l'ambiguité de la logique sans cesse ménagée d'où naît cette atmosphère un peu flottante qui se marie au swing du jazz-rock.

Cet album est un véritable amalgame d'un grand nombre de courants musicaux contemporains. L'orgue s'écrase en longues vagues d'accords.

La batterie s'étale en avalanches successives, la guitare s'effondre en de merveilleux ondoiements écumeux, le tout couronné par la voix pleine de fraîcheur de Richard Sinclair qui ne peut que faire penser à Wyatt (à dessein certainement).

Voilà assurément un très grand groupe. Cependant la probité certaine des musiciens à l'instabilité nous laissait cependant quelques craintes quant à la réalité d'un second album.

Heureusement, au terme de nombreuses et fructueuses tournées, le groupe s'est affirmé davantage par l'intermédiaire d'un second album décidément très bon. Je veux parler de "Ther Rotters' clubs".

Une pochette très belle et très originale efface une plaque de vinyl noir qui n'a pas encore fini de m'étonner.

Ici aussi tous les musiciens composent, mais les plus notoires sont Pyle avec "The yes no interlude", "Fitter Stroke has a bath" et Dave Stewart avec un merveilleux "Mumps" qui occupe presque toute la seconde face.

Le premier album faisait trop penser à Soft Machine et à Matching Mole et n'apportait rien de très nouveau tout en restant cependant excellent. Il est autrement avec : "The Rotters'clubs". Chaque musicien s'exprime avec sa personnalité apportant de ce fait, une coloration toute nouvelle à la musique Hatfieldienne. Disque où est présente toute une source de richesses et de trouvailles ingénieuses.

Phil Miller a encore améliorer son jeu de guitare et ses soli font parfois penser à un Mc Laughlin.

A l'écoute de "Mumps" on se rend immédiatement compte que Dave Stewart a acquis une maîtrise totale de son instrument. Longue échappée électrique au son quelque peu Ratledgien, avalanches de notes, éboulements d'accords avant de retomber dans un calme plus rythmique.

> Zoom

La basse de Sinclair parfois un peu à la Hopper et son chant nettement amélioré apporte au côté lyrique plus d'assurance et de sensibilité ("Filler Stroke has a bath").
Cependant il est à noter cette chose remarquable chez ce groupe c'est le fait que leur musique ne provient pas (comme tant de groupes, maintenant) de l'utilisation artificielle de vieilles recettes, mais au contraire d'une aventure musicale propre à lui.
Maintenant, si vous trouvez que "Soft Machine" est trop difficile pour vous, que "Kevin Ayers" préfère la côte d'Azur à la scène et que "Caravan" s'endort, écoutez Haftield and the North. Il vous donnera entière satisfaction et vous emmènera très loin pour rêver au "Rotters"club" par exemple. Maintenant, la question se pose de savoir jusqu'à quel point le groupe va-t-il nous emmener ? Ils mettent tous leurs efforts dans leur musique et la critique les accueille très défavorablement (excepté en France). Le rock commence tout doucement à nous lasser, les choses neuves deviennent vraiment très rares et quand on nous les présente (Hatfield), on les rejette.
Je regarde le tableau de chez Virgin et je remarque que les illustres inconnus d'hier comme Mike Olfdfield, Kevin Coyne, Tangerine Dream, Gong sont des monstres à l'heure actuelle.
Hatfield and the North est chez Virgin... Vous me suivez!

> Zoom

DASHIELL HEDAYAT : "OBSOLETE"

Dashiell Hedayat... Qui c'est çà ? Un personnage sympathique, seulement connu de quelques initiés, un type bourré de talent et de simplicité (choses qui vont rarement de paire) qui a la chance et la malchance de n'être pas reconnu par le vaste public rock. Chance parce que cela permet à certains de découvrir par hasard et pas rasé un artiste merveilleux d'une valeur indiscutable - ça fait toujours plaisir - et ainsi une oeuvre qui reste une forme d'artisanat, produit de luxe de qualité exceptionnelle. Malchance parce que ce jeune dandy baudelairien mériterait d'être apprécié à plus grande échelle, son premier disque "La devanture des ivresses" est introuvable parce que n'ayant bénéficié que d'un seul pressage limité). On pouvait s'attendre à un succès plus important pour "Obsolete" pour diverses raisons, notamment parce que ce disque a bénéficié de conditions de travail idéales (nombreuses heures de studio et liberté totale de mixage) mais aussi et surtout de la présence des musiciens du Gong (formule 1971). Mais attention! "Obsolete" n'est pas un disque de Gong à part entière. Disons que ce genre de musique convient tout à fait à l'illustration de l'esprit exacerbé de Dashiell : recherche idéaliste du beau, désir de retour à la simplicité, à la pureté enfantine, nostalgie onirique d'un monde d'ivresse et de luxe. (cf. "Chrysler"), références au décadencisme baudelerien, expression d'une paranoïa conséquente d'un rêve drogué, jouissance perverse et culte du moi.
Le premier morceau n'est qu'une façon de nous introduire à ce monde imaginaire et intérieur évoqué plus haut. Cette "Chrysler" démarre en trombe mise en branle par la wah-wah de Daevid Allen immédiatement suivie par la basse forte de Tritsch et la rythmique rigide de Pip Pyle, tout cela donne un impact évident à cette composition de Dashiell Hedayat (elles sont toutes de lui d'ailleurs, "Chrysler, Chrysler rose, elle ne peut plus rouler mais c'est là que je fais l'amour...(...) et Sadi au moment de monter me dit, ta Chrysler est salement défoncée, oui mais tu sais on est tous défoncés..." Expression démesurée d'un trip au fond des obsessions : l'argent, le luxe - devenir une pop star... Clin d'oeil à Mick Jagger mais aussi à Syd Barrett... Soutenue par une musique violente, presque 'hard", la voix douce et expressive de Dashiell fait contraste mais révèle une aptitude incontestable à créer une atmosphère spéciale, bizarre pleine de nostalgie, celle d'un esprit enclin au trip. Atmosphère encore renforcée par la couleur toute particulière apportée par le saxo de Didier Malherbe et les longs glissandos de Daevid nous préparant ainsi à décoller pour les autres morceaux.
Notons aussi à la fin du morceau un excellent parallèle entre la guitare et le saxophone.

> Zoom

"Fille de l'ombre" est un motif constamment répété basé sur un ensemble de notes de guitare inlassablement identiques. Poésie érotique parfaitement illustrée par les cris déchirés de la voix de Gilli Smyth "C'est une fille de l'ombre, entre ses seins c'est si sombre, entre ses cuisses c'est si sombre(...) Entre ses cuisses et ses seins je sombre, je sombre".

Le morceau qui termine la première face est une longue ballade amoureuse comme son titre l'indique ("Long Song for Zelda"). C'est ici l'évocation d'un amour imaginaire, irréel de même qu'une cérémonie passéiste pleine de nostalgie vouée au culte du désuet ("écouter un vieux jazz, dans un vieux bar, du papier de soie au mur"... Dashiell qui joue ici de la guitare acoustique, chante d'une voix douce, parle, raconte son trip de sa voix caressante soutenue par la rythmique de Tritsch et de Pyle. Sa voix et ses paroles nous font pénétrer l'atmosphère bizarre évoquée par le décor qui se fait images mélancoliques, par les regrets d'une vie trop réelle... "Je ne sais même plus si je pense". La musique se fait mondes subliment imaginaires, états tempons nous protégeant d'une réalité trop cruelle, créés par les "fleurs du mal" auxquelles Dashiell s'assimile par une sorte d'endosmose spirituelle -mes os friables comme de la camme- ma cervelle de camme" mais il y a également un rappel constant d'une famille d'initiés (Soft power- Soft Mother), du monde d'Alan Ginsberg et de Burroughs (que l'on entend d'ailleurs à la fin du morceau) : "tu sais qu'il caressait mon cul comme une plaie ouverte, mon nez je veux dire, mon nez où s'engouffraient des autos comme dans un tunnel, mes narines avec de leurs tuyaux d'échappement, des nuages d'héroïne, cheval vapeur, horse power, horse power...". Progression croissante dans l'irréel, ponctuée par la wah-wah discrète de Daevid Allen rejointe quelques instants après par le saxo du good count Blomndido Bad de Grasse contribuant ainsi à renforcer la mélancolie d'un amour impalpable...

"Cielo Drive/17" qui prend toute la seconde face (21'20") commence par de longs glissandos de guitares et des percussions reflétés par l'écho, donnant ainsi une couleur galactique à ce trip que l'on se prépare à vivre. A ces instruments s'ajoutent progressivement la basse qui lance un motif qui se répétera durant tout le morceau, puis les choeurs de Dashiell qui viennent se coller à cette musique hypnotique, rejointe par Pip Pyle dont les cymbales accroissent l'effet de plénitude de la composition. Une fois l'ambiance créée, Dashiell illustre son trip par des paroles fort évocatrices, mi-parlées mi-chantées qui font défiler toutes sortes d'images, d'obsessions qui toutes aboutissent à une angoisse, à une paranoïa insoutenable. Images répétées dans un ordre chaque fois différent, parfois légèrement modifiées. La voix de Dashiell, se bornant à raconter son trip, est soutenue par le saxo (rythmique ou solo ?) qui illustre les sentiments et sensations intérieures. "Des rêves inachevés, notre villa, du lierre dans l'escalier... protégés par la poussière des verrières deux chats sont assis(...)

> Zoom

des queues de comètes dans tes cheveux, des anneaux de Saturne à chaque doigt". Tension progressive dans cette musique formant un tout bien compact qui illustre la tension de ce rêve paranoïaque ("des chats qui ne nous laisseront pas passer"). contrastent aussi avec l'incohérence des paroles "toi et moi, assis là dans l'herbe à fumer les lames du parquet, je reprends : toi et moi assis là à même le parquet à fumer la fleur qui fait des fleurs au cerveau...".

Un changement de rythme nous permet d'entendre un solo de guitare assez "hard" dans un style assez groovy dont les notes s'entrechoquent sinistrement mais qui s'efface quelque peu pour laisser parler Dashiell "ma paranoïa se perd lorsque j'ouvre le frigidaire" traduction d'une angoisse sublime mais aussi suggestion d'une fin sinistre "est-ce que..., ou bien peut-être que..., ou alors... ? Puis le rythme initial reprend, fort, hypnotique et c'est un nouveau contraste : la voix fraîche et frêle de Sam Wyatt (fils de Robert - il avait 5 ans à ce moment là) évoquant à nouveau cette nostalgie de la pureté enfantine.
Mais déjà le saxo et la flûte - dont le son est déformé - annoncent la fin tragique : "son visage reflété par le miroir terne que son souffle ne ternira plus depuis qu'elle n'est plus" et la tension monte, monte illustrée par les ponctuations violentes et aigües du saxo et de la guitare : puis c'est l'explosion, l'éclair, les cris, les choeurs, les sons perçants de Gilli Smyth. Pour conclure ce Cielo Drive/17 un changement de rythme s'opère, plus lent, très flippant - joué à la guitare acoustique et chanté d'une voix triste et désolée soutenue par les voix de l'au-delà de Shakti Yoni.
Chef-d'oeuvre admirable qui se termine en toute beauté, ce disque doit être considéré plus comme un disque de poète qu'une musique de groupe... Nous vous conseillons également la lecture des trois romans de Dashiell (parus chez Ch. BOURGOIS) qui vous permettrons de pénétrer de façon plus intéressante l'univers de ce charmant "décadent".

> Zoom

EDITE ET DISTRIBUE PAR FUSION A.S.B.L. / Pour renseignements, concernant les publications de Fusion, écrire à FUSION, B.P.1315, 1000- Bruxelles; Tel:511 10 63

Reproduction interdite sans l'autorisation de Fusion ASBL

Photos: Virgin Records, London

Ce livre est édité avec l'approbation de Virgin Records, par son distributeur belge, Barclay Records.

Merci à Virgin Records pour son aide en photos et matériel de documentation.

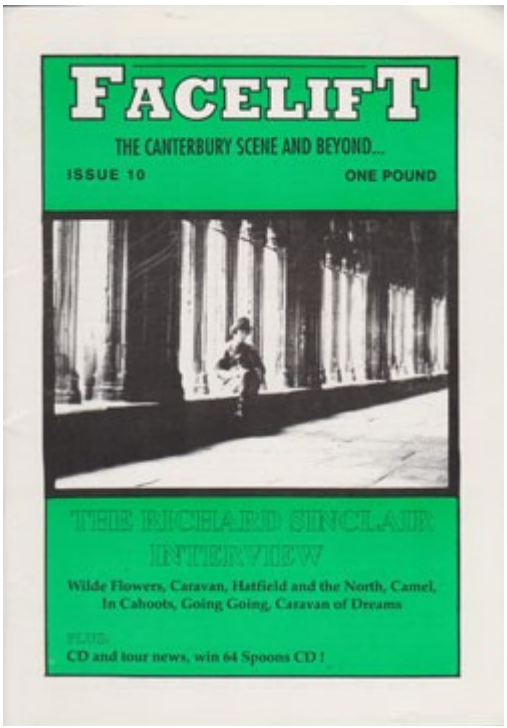
FUSION 1976

> Zoom

> Zoom

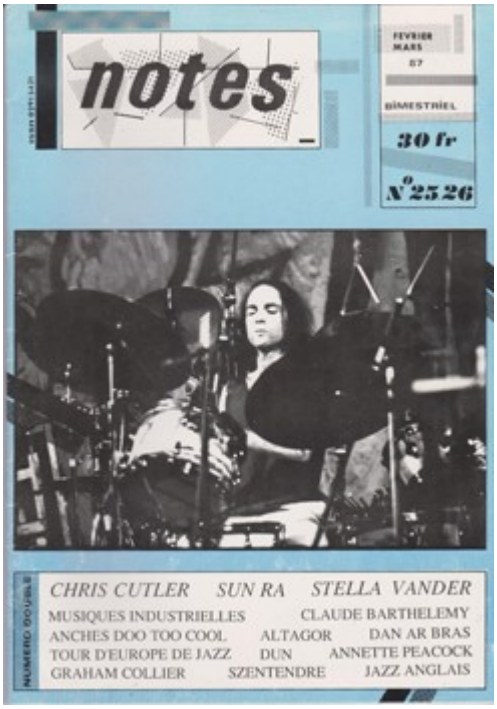
Télécharger La famille Soft Machine

Hommage aux fanzines !



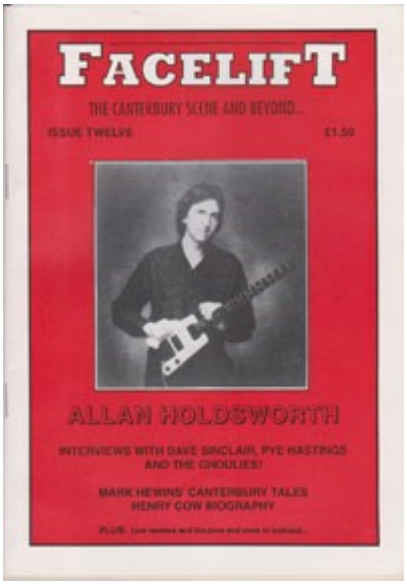
ABÉCÉDAIRE

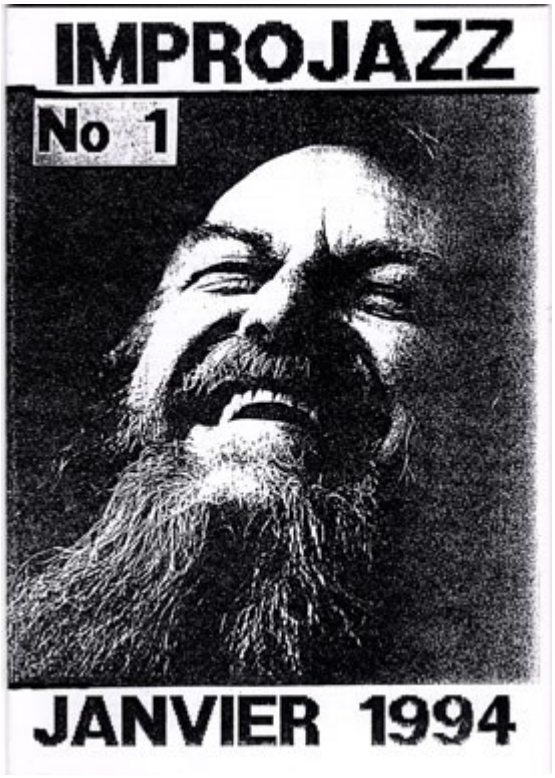
C'est à une évocation un peu nostalgique que je vous invite, à une revisitation de ces drôles de journaux qui nous apportaient - pas toujours à l'heure - des nouvelles d'une autre existence, faite de concerts, d'albums et de musiciens qui nous rendaient la vie plus aimable.



A leurs lectures nous nous sommes forgés, bien avant ces satanés réseaux sociaux, une culture et des références qui constituent pour la plupart d'entre nous le sel de l' existence.

Les fanzines ont bien mérité ce petit coup de chapeau sous forme d'hommage au D.I.Y. et à son esthétique "N/B" tellement vintage !

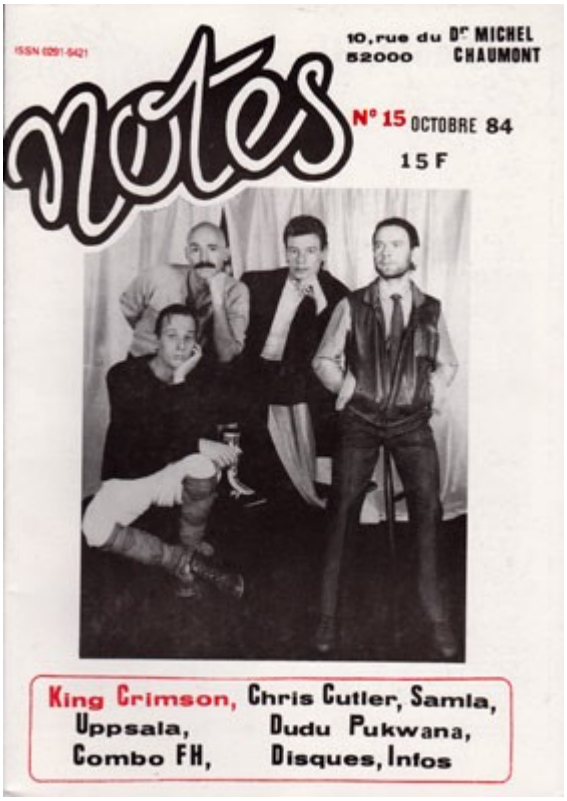




Un fanzine, avec tous ses excès, ses partis pris, un magazine de fans, non professionnels, tapé sur une machine à écrire Japy avant la machine IBM à boules. On se savait pas qu'il y aurait un jour des ordinateurs et la P.A.O, de la musique en CD, en MP3, à télécharger etc. Bref, que les goodolddays seraient bientôt derrière nous...

Je me souviens qu'à l'époque, les disques n'avaient pas de code-barres, que les directeurs artistiques (A&R) n'étaient pas encore devenus des chefs de produit, que les disquaires ne pratiquaient pas encore la V.A.O. (vente assistée par ordinateur), que la plupart des disques incontournables sortaient sur des majors et que ce n'était pas l'ordinateur qui décidait de ce qui devait être dans les bacs des disquaires...

Gérard Nguyen - ATEM
(Ed. Camion Blanc - 2010)



La couverture du n° 1 (janvier 1994) faisait apparaitre un Robert Wyatt hilare, pour une interview réalisée par écrit. Dans le n° 141 (janvier 2008), le même Robert Wyatt est entré en discussion avec Gary May, mais cette fois ci nous étions présents en chair et en os devant une de mes "idoles" (ce mot ne me fait pas peur, tant qu'il ne s'agit pas de religion).

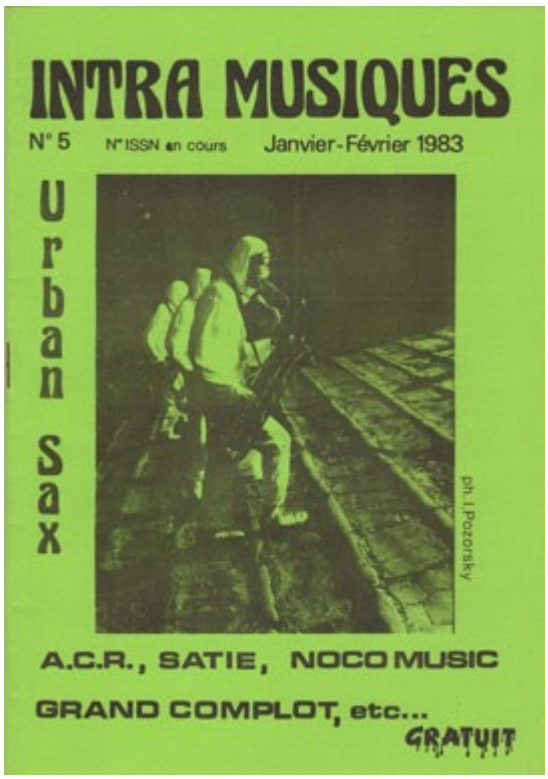
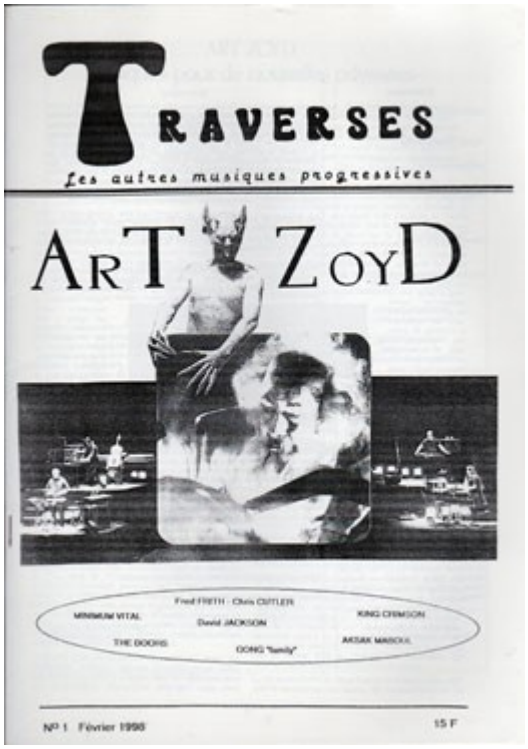
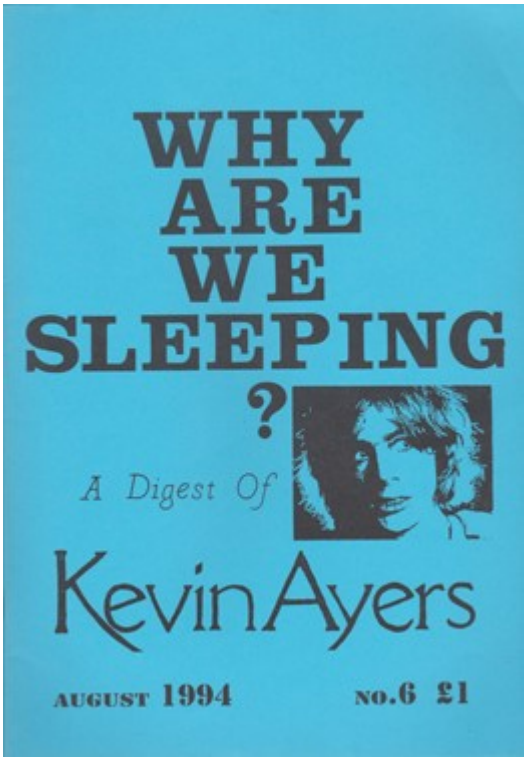
Merci à Robert, pour sa disponibilité et sa gentillesse, son humour et sa toujours bonne humeur, malgré le handicap. Il restera en quelque sorte notre parrain…



Philippe Renaud - IMPROJAZZ

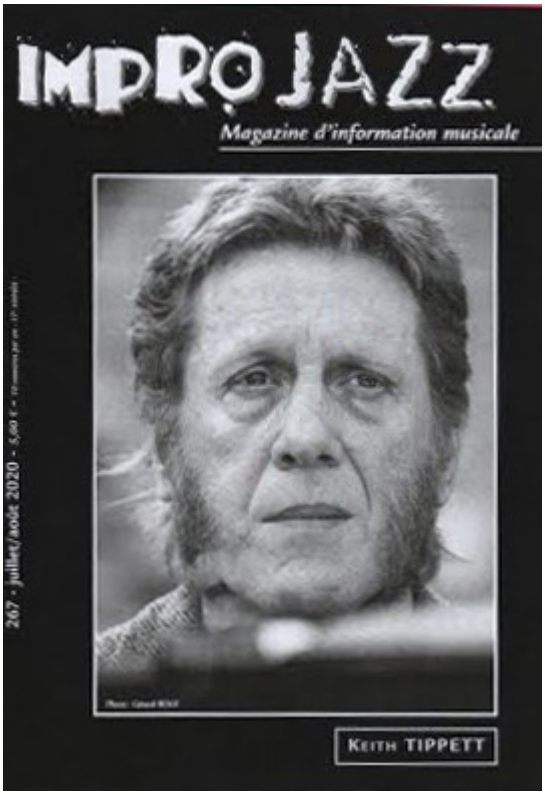


Site web

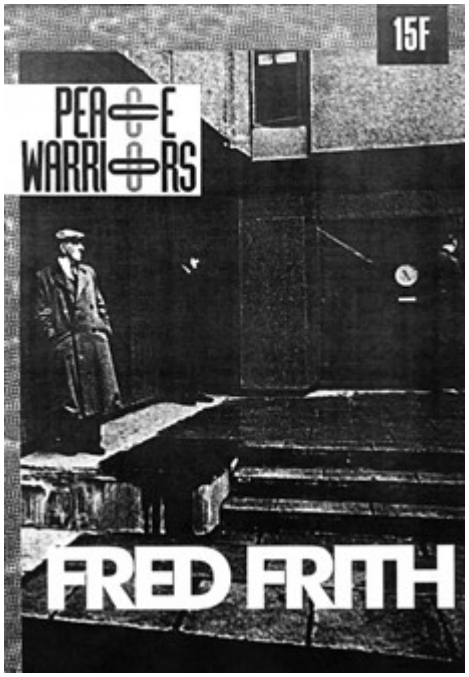


INTRA MUSIQUES
N° 5 N° ISSN en cours Janvier-Février 1983
Urban Sax
ph. I.Pozorsky
A.C.R., SATIE, NOCO MUSIC
GRAND COMPLOT, etc...
GRATUIT

TRAVERSES
les autres musiques progressives
ART ZOYD
MINIMUM VITAL
Fred FRITH - Chris CUTLER
David JACKSON
KING CRIMSON
THE DOORS
GONG "family"
MOSAIK MASCKIL
N° 1 Février 1995
15 F



WHY ARE WE SLEEPING ?
A Digest Of
Kevin Ayers
AUGUST 1994
NO.6 £1



gratuit
INTRA MUSIQUES
N° 13 4e Trimestre 85
N° ISSN 0753-9642

OLD ROTTENHAT'S JOURNAL
A News-Info Source of the International Robert Wyatt Contingent
MATCHING MOLE REVISITED!
A SHORT BREAK FOR TEA!
EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW
WITH THIS BOY, NOW!
PART ONE of TWO
PLUS:
A Shapely Sexy Wyatt bio-discography through 2980's!
New club information!
80's press clips!

impetus Eberhard Weber
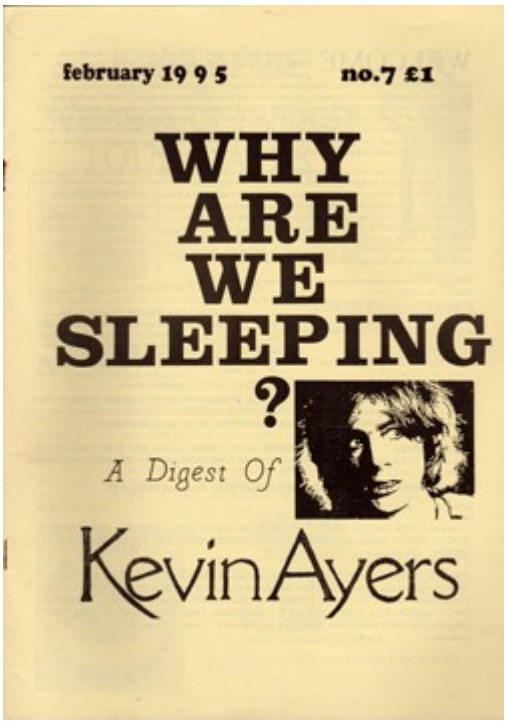
7
Johnny Dyani
Daevid Allen
Rock In Opposition
Bop
Roger Dean & Lysis
Salman Shukur
John Renbourn Group



The Sound Projector
Exclusive Interview
My Strange Life
Florian Fricke
Conrad Schnitzler
'I don't like Titles'
Dark Ambient
Electronix
Kosmische
JapCore
Record Review
Music Magazine
Tricky
Isolationism
Techno Animal
Demons of Musique Concrète
The Listening Post
Sun Ra: The Surrealist Cosmographer
Obscure UK 1970s Prog Rock
The True Meaning of False Nostalgia
2nd Issue
1997
'Better Listening Thru Imagination'

IMPRO JAZZ
Magazine d'information musicale
267 • juillet/août 2020 • 5,00 € • 10 numéros par an KEITH TIPPETT

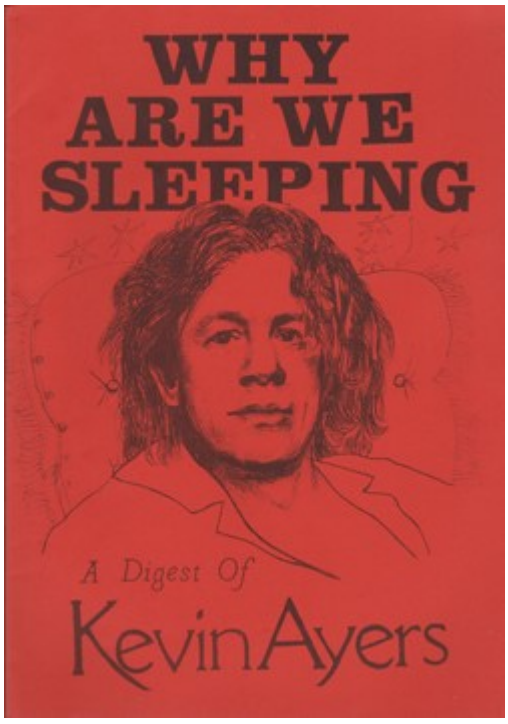
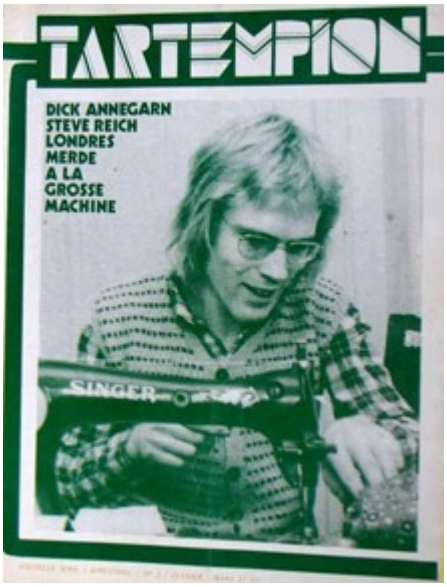
15F
PEACE WARRIORS
FRED FRITH

"revue & corrigée.

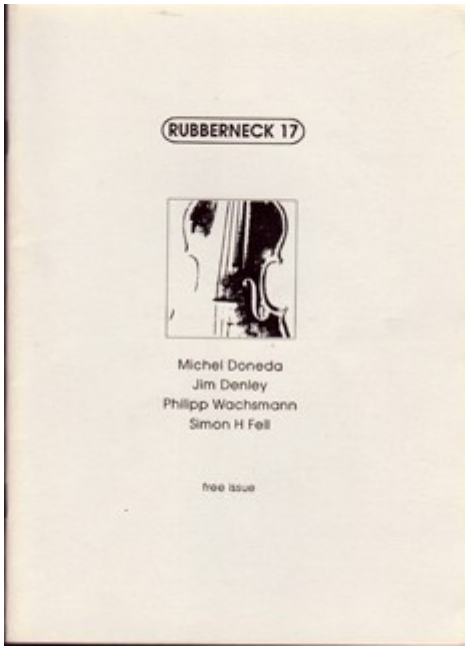
CHRIS SQUIRE
El Chamberlin
Revista Musical



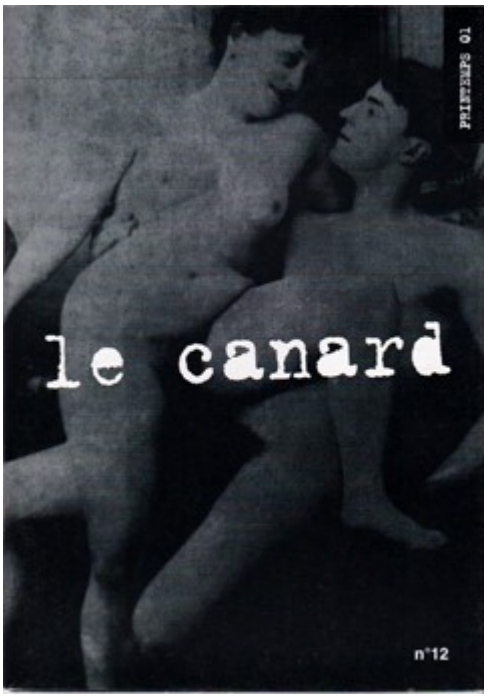
february 19 9 5
no.7 £1
WHY ARE WE SLEEPING ?
A Digest Of
Kevin Ayers



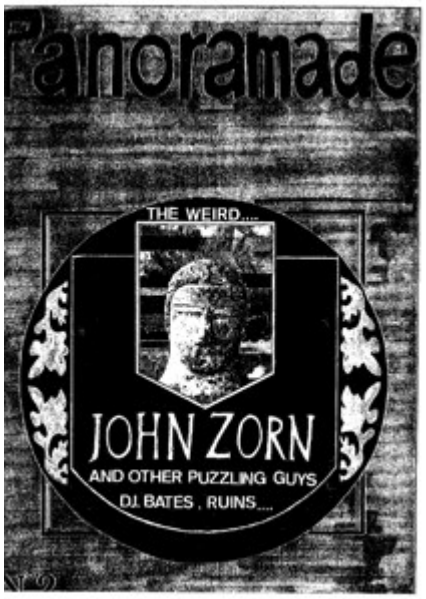
Facelift magazine was a small independent UK music fanzine which ran between 1989 and 1999. It aimed to cover 'The Canterbury Scene and beyond...'
The "beyond" byline meant that the scope of the fanzine was in fact much wider than the editor, its contributors or its readers first envisaged, but the magazine aimed to cover bands such as Caravan, Soft Machine, Gong, Hatfield and the North, National Health and musicians such as Robert Wyatt, Kevin Ayers, Steve Hillage amongst many many others...

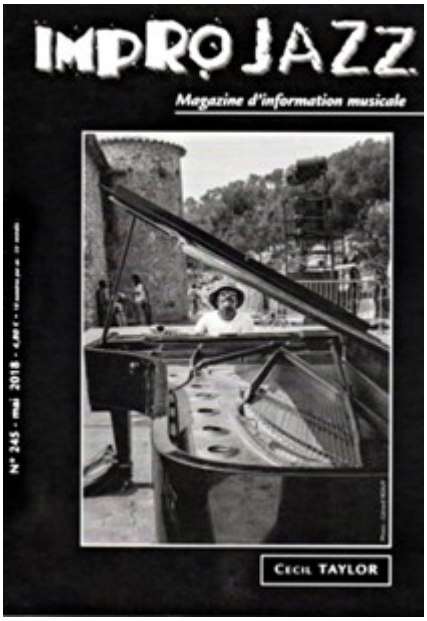


Phil Howitt - FACELIFT



Site web



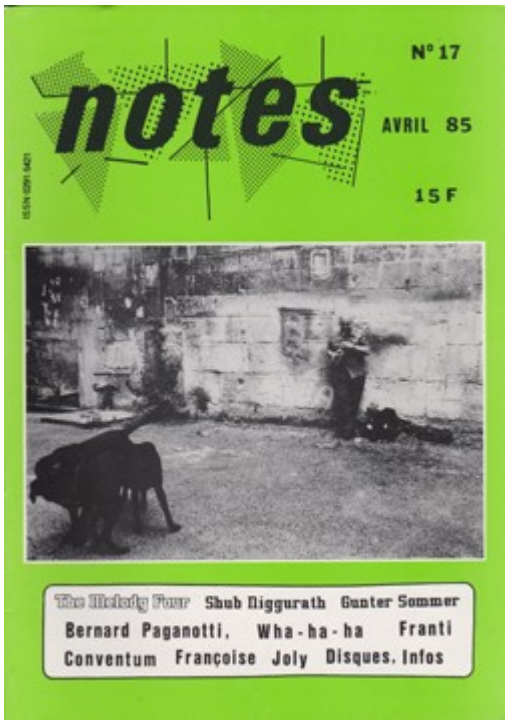


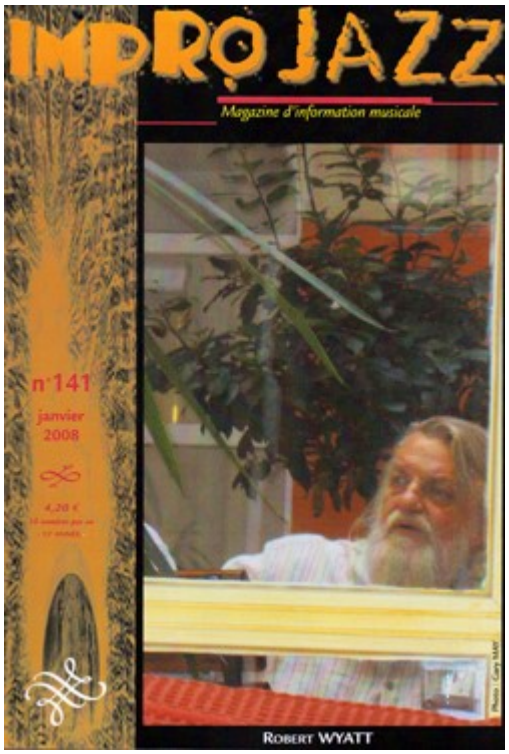
RUBBERNECK 17
Michel Doneda
Jim Denley
Philipp Wachsmann
Simon H Fell
free issue

le canard
PRINTEMPS 01
n°12

Panoramade
THE WEIRD....
JOHN ZORN
AND OTHER PUZZLING GUYS
D.J. BATES , RUINS....

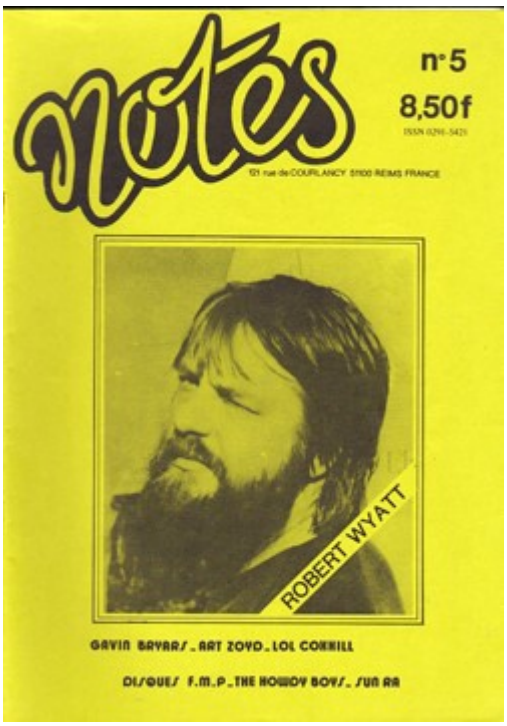
IMPRO JAZZ
Magazine d'information musicale
CECIL TAYLOR





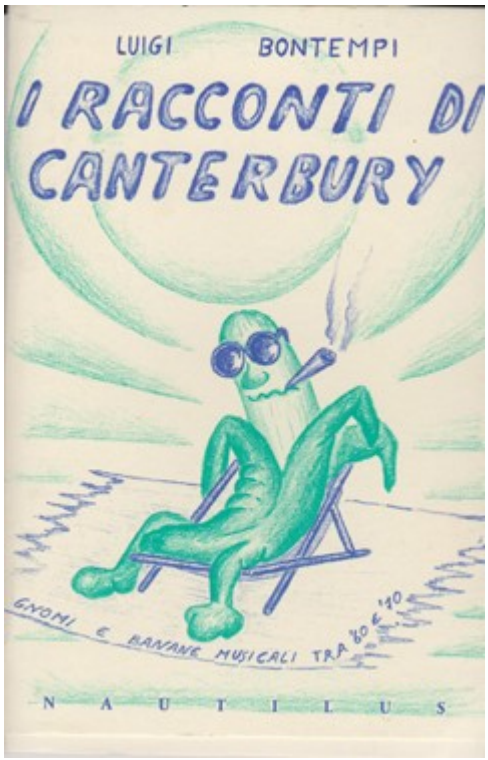
Organisatrice de quelques concerts entre 1979 et 1984, l'association Intra-Musiques s'est vite rendu compte qu'une petite campagne d'affichage concernant les musiciens programmés alors peu connus ne suffisait mais. D'où l'idée au départ de faire un fanzine présentant les univers musicaux qui intéressaient les membres de l'association : présentation succincte des groupes invités, leur discographie...D'où la gratuité du fanzine. Mais très rapidement celui-ci s'étoffe avec des chroniques de disques, et présentation de courants musicaux pas forcément liés à une éventuelle programmation en concert, pour se développer davantage par la suite sans plus aucune références à l'organisation de concerts.

Pierre Durr - INTRA MUSIQUES



notes
N° 17
AVRIL 85
15 F
The Ikeleiy Four Shub Diggurath Gunter Sommer
Bernard Paganotti, Wha-ha-ha Franti
Conventum Françoise Joly Disques, Infos

CANTERBURY -
INTERVIEWS No 30
Keith and Julie TIPPETT talk about CENTIPEDE, the BLUE NOTES, the DEDICATION ORCHESTRA, MUJICIAN and their future projects!
KEITH TIPPETT
free pianist
CENTIPEDE
-the band that can't be stopped



IMPRO JAZZ
Magazine d'information musicale
n°141
janvier 2008
ROBERT WYATT

CANTERBURY-INTERVIEWS
mit No 15
Richard SINCLAIR
RICHARD SINCLAIRS
CARAVAN & DREAMS
und Hugh HOPPER

Imagen
revista de música e innovadoras 500 Pts.
holger czukay
robert wyatt tim story eric woolfson jon anderson
jorge fima barreto blue star pete
N° 14 - Verano '98

notes
n°5
8,50f
ISSN 0291-5423
121 rue de COURLANCY 51100 REIMS FRANCE
ROBERT WYATT
GAVIN BAYARS _ ART ZOYD _ LOL COXHILL
DISQUES F.M.P _ THE HOWDY BOYS _ SUN RA

ISSUE 6
£1
DAEVID ALLEN
Lady June
Caravan

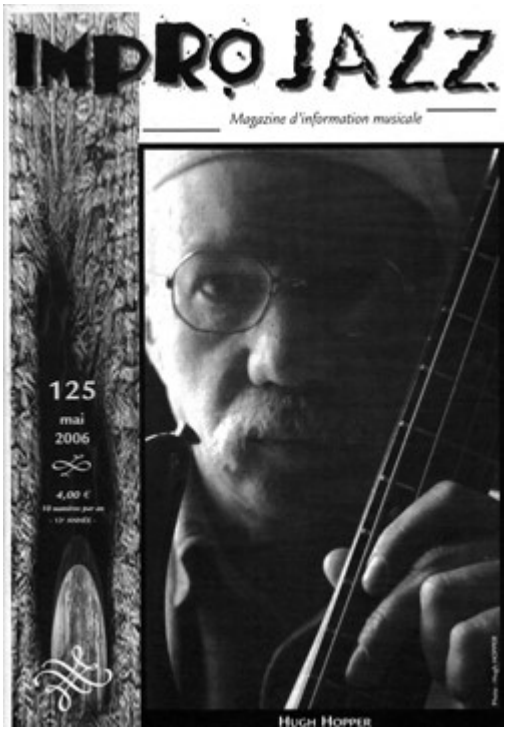
LUIGI BONTEMPI
I RACCONTI DI
CANTERBURY
NAUTILUS

Le numéro 0 est sorti en décembre. Quelques feuillets tapés sur les premiers ordinateurs personnels de l'époque, un éditorial pour présenter ce que nous voulions faire, c'est-à-dire mettre en contact les musiciens entre eux, leur donner la parole et leur permettre de se faire connaître un peu mieux au travers d'articles, interviews, chroniques de disques et de distribuer les productions "indépendantes".

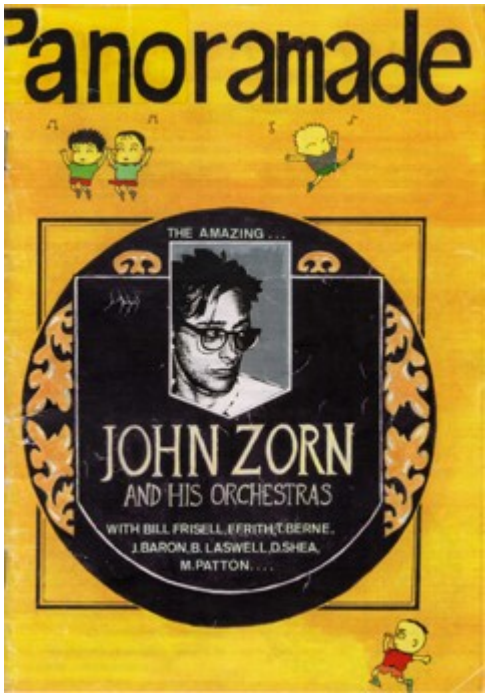
.....

Certains commencent la lecture du magazine par la rubrique d'annonces de concerts pour savoir ce qui va se passer le plus près de chez eux. D'autres épluchent la liste des disques parus et l|s noms des musiciens dont les disques sont chroniques... Ils n'ont pas besoin de connaître les goûts de celui qui en parle, car ils sont assez grands pour se faire leur propre opinion. Alors, qu'est-ce qu'il est important de dire au sujet de la musique ? A supposer aussi qu'il faille parler de la musique avec des mots...

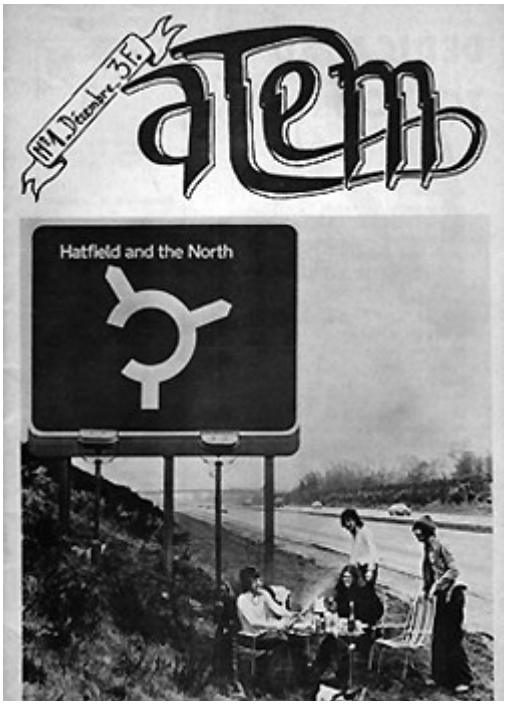
.....



Beaucoup de questions me traversent désormais l'esprit, comme le devenir des supports d'enregistrements, du cd particulièrement, la survie des lieux de concerts et des festivals, les relations dites "sociales" entre musiciens, auditeurs, tout un futur proche particulièrement flou... Ce qui est aussi intéressant est de voir que depuis l'annonce de l'arrêt, l'intérêt pour notre travail s'est soudainement développé: nouveaux abonnés, nouvelles plumes, que nous ne pourrons malheureusement pas contenter. J'espère que la frustration restera minime.



Philippe Renaud - IMPROJAZZ



PEACE WARRIORS
15 le fanzine des musiques inaspirées
Marilyn Crispell
KOTO
CUNEIFORM RECORDS
Du death metal aux musiques nouvelles
KAFFE MATTHEWS
20f

IMPRO JAZZ
Magazine d'information musicale
125 mai
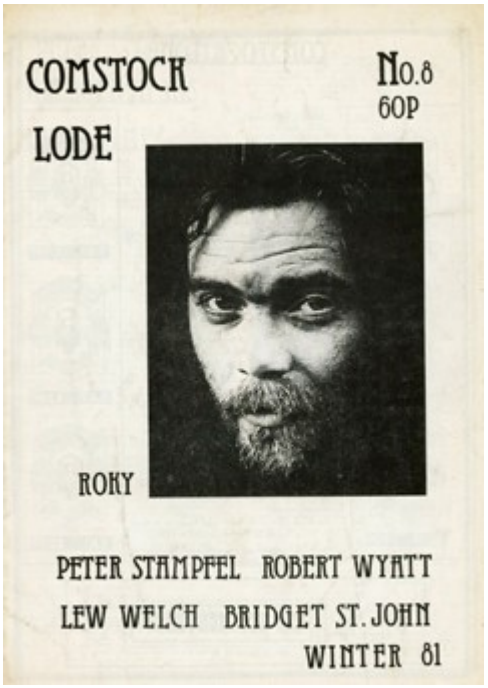
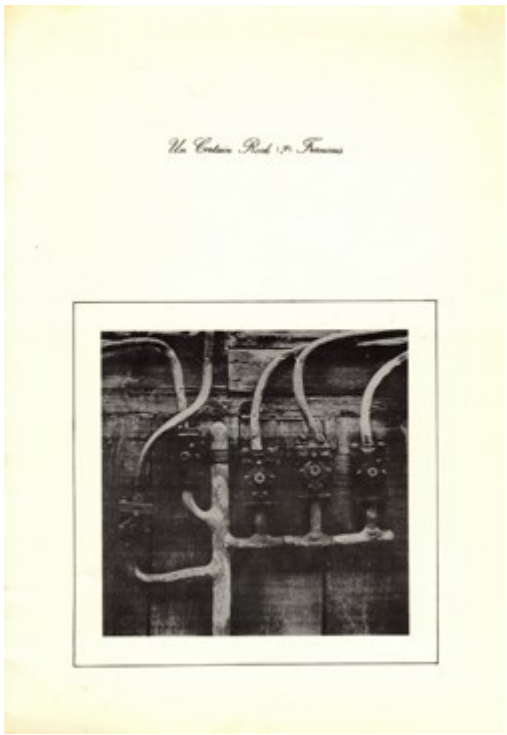
2006
4,00 €
HUGH HOPPER



Panoramade
THE AMAZING...
JOHN ZORN
AND HIS ORCHESTRAS
WITH BILL FRISELL, E.FRITH, T.BERNE,
J.BARON, B. LASWELL, D.SHEA,
M.PATTON....

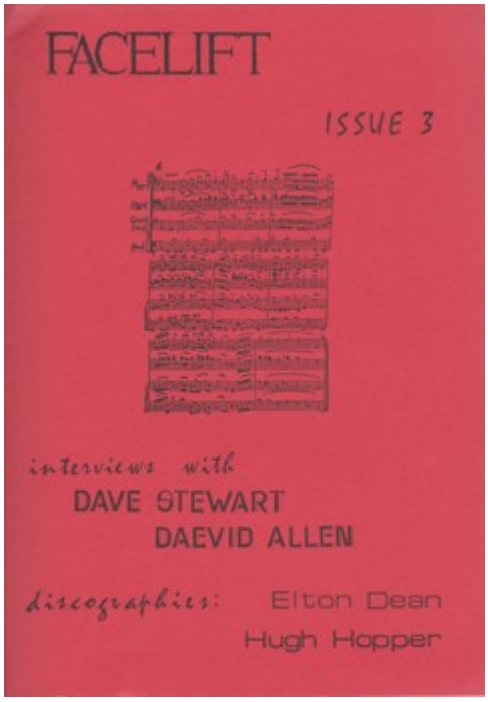
Hatfield and the North

TRAVERSES No22
MUSIQUES NOUVELLES ET AUTREMENT PROGRESSIVES
PRESENTE
ZAO
MAGMA
FAUST
ROCK in OPPOSITION
PALO ALTO

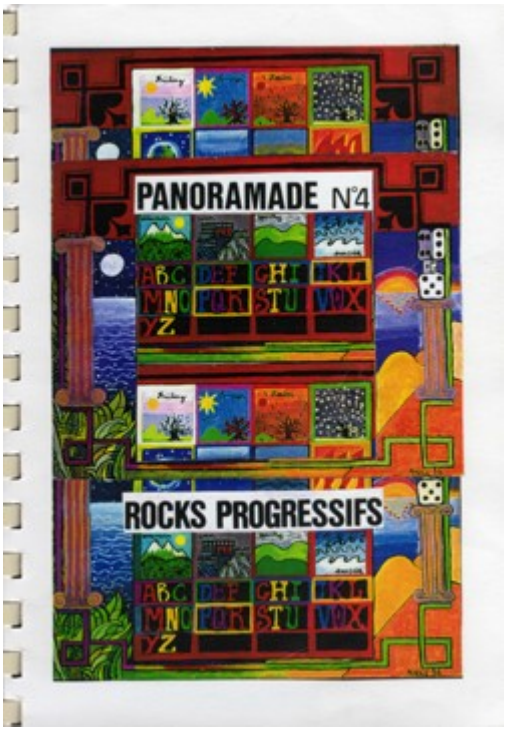


LATE FOR THE SKY
the music fan magazine
Robert Wyatt, Gordon Bok, The Understones, Alberta Hunter, ZZ Top, Andersen-Danko-Fjeld, Butch Hancock, The Canadian Connection, Bruce Springsteen, Norman Blake, Norton Buffalo, Joni Mitchell, Jerry Garcia, Emmilou Harris, Mad River
e tanti altri ancora

LA DISCOGRAPHIE DU ROCK FRANÇAIS
PAR FRANCIS GROSSE ET BERNARD GUEFFIER



COMSTOCK LODE
No.8
60P
ROKY
PETER STAMPFEL ROBERT WYATT
LEW WELCH BRIDGET ST. JOHN
WINTER 81



NOSTALGIA 4
JACK BRUCE · HEADS HANDS & FEET
LORRAINE ELLISON · McDONALD & GILES
SOFTS · BILL EVANS · JAN & DEAN
15p musiche

interviste
Robert Wyatt
Derek Bailey
Shelley Hirsch
Paul Lovens
Robert Wyatt disc jockey
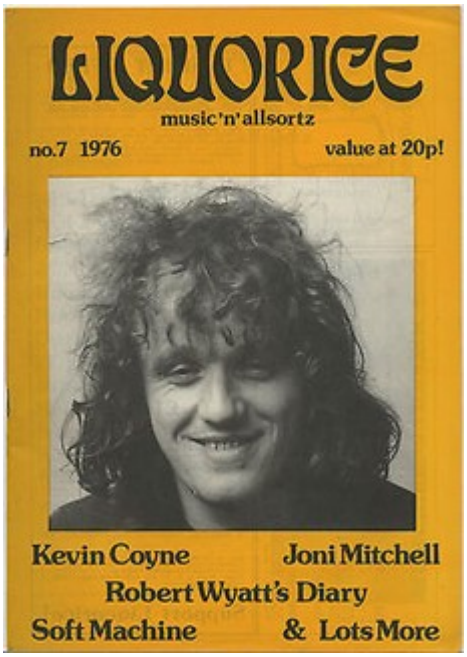
Kazuko Hohki
& Frank Chickens



Un Certain Rock Français

LA DISCOGRAPHIE ALPHABETIQUE DU ROCK FRANCAIS par Francis GROSSE et Bernard GUEFFIER
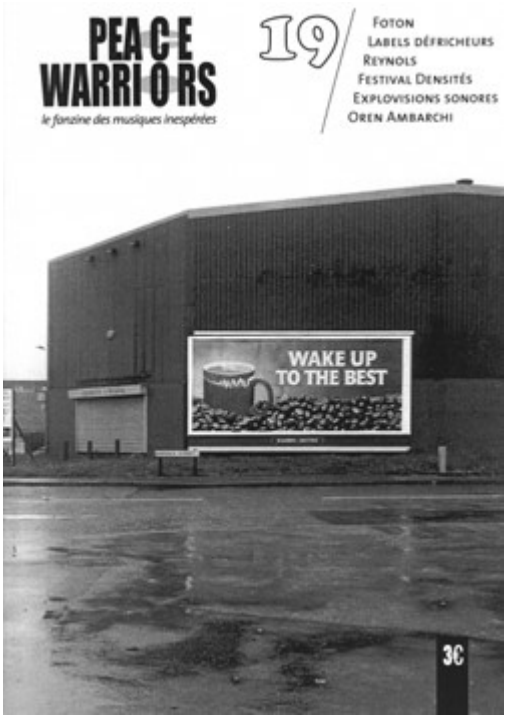
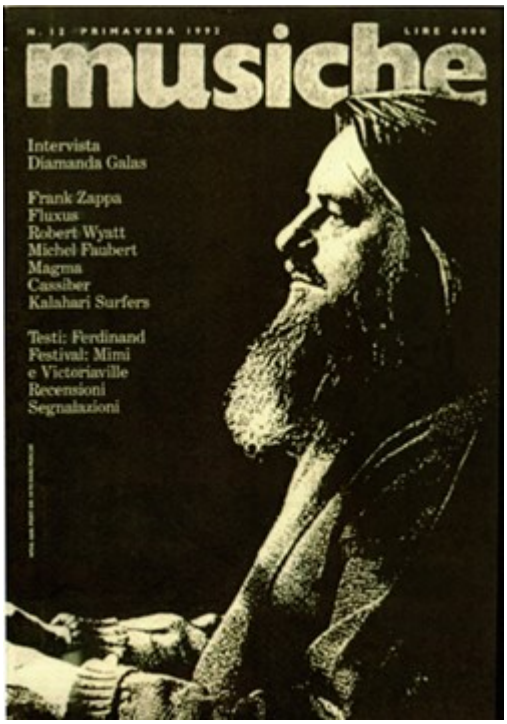
texte anglais d'Helen BRIOLAT
Notes
TROC

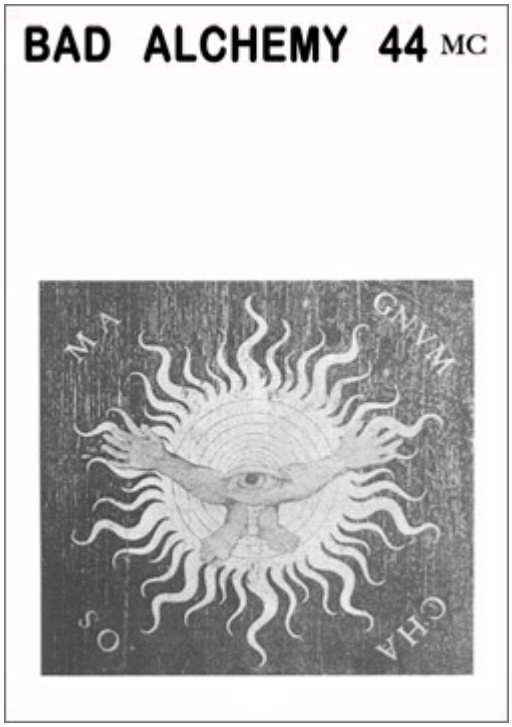


FACELIFT
ISSUE 3
interviews with
DAVE STEWART
DAEVID ALLEN
discographies:
Elton Dean
Hugh Hopper

PANORAMADE N°4
ROCKS PROGRESSIFS



IMPETUS 5
new music
30p
National Health
Steve Reich
Lol Coxhill
David Lewiston
Mike Westbrook
Alberto Y Lost Trios Paranoias



LIQUORICE
music'n'allsortz
no.7 1976
value at 20p!
Kevin Coyne
Joni Mitchell
Robert Wyatt's Diary
Soft Machine
& Lots More

David Byrne
Patti Smith
Franco Battiato
Giovanna Marini
Diamanda Galas
1 autunno 1997
THE AUDITORIUM reviews
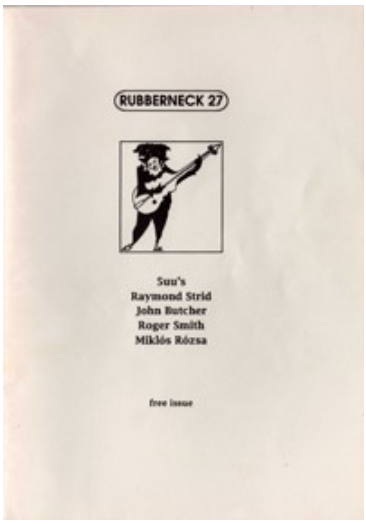
Brian Eno
Arto Lindsay
Björk
Robert Wyatt
Blind Test:
GUIDO MAZZON
speciale
AVANGUARDIA
MUSICALE
FEMMINILE
Rivista di nuova musica (pop)ular, jazz, contemporanea e oltre



PEACE
WARRIORS
le fanzine des musiques inespérées 19
Foton
Labels défricheurs
Reynols
Festival Densités
Explovisions sonores
Oren Ambarchi
WAKE UP TO THE BEST
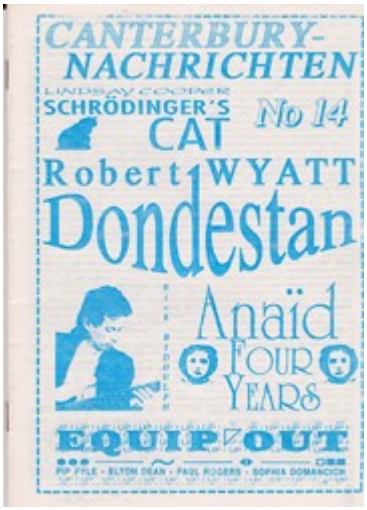
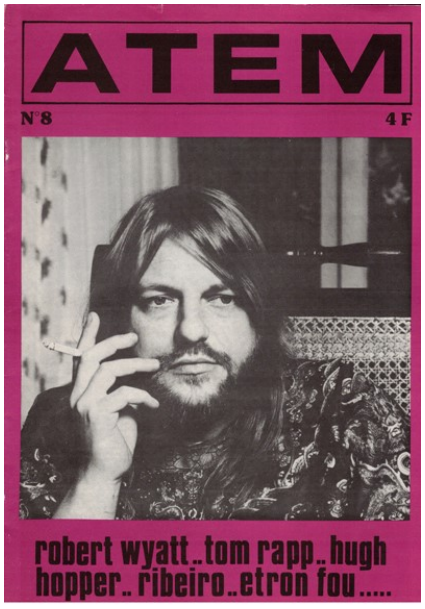
3C



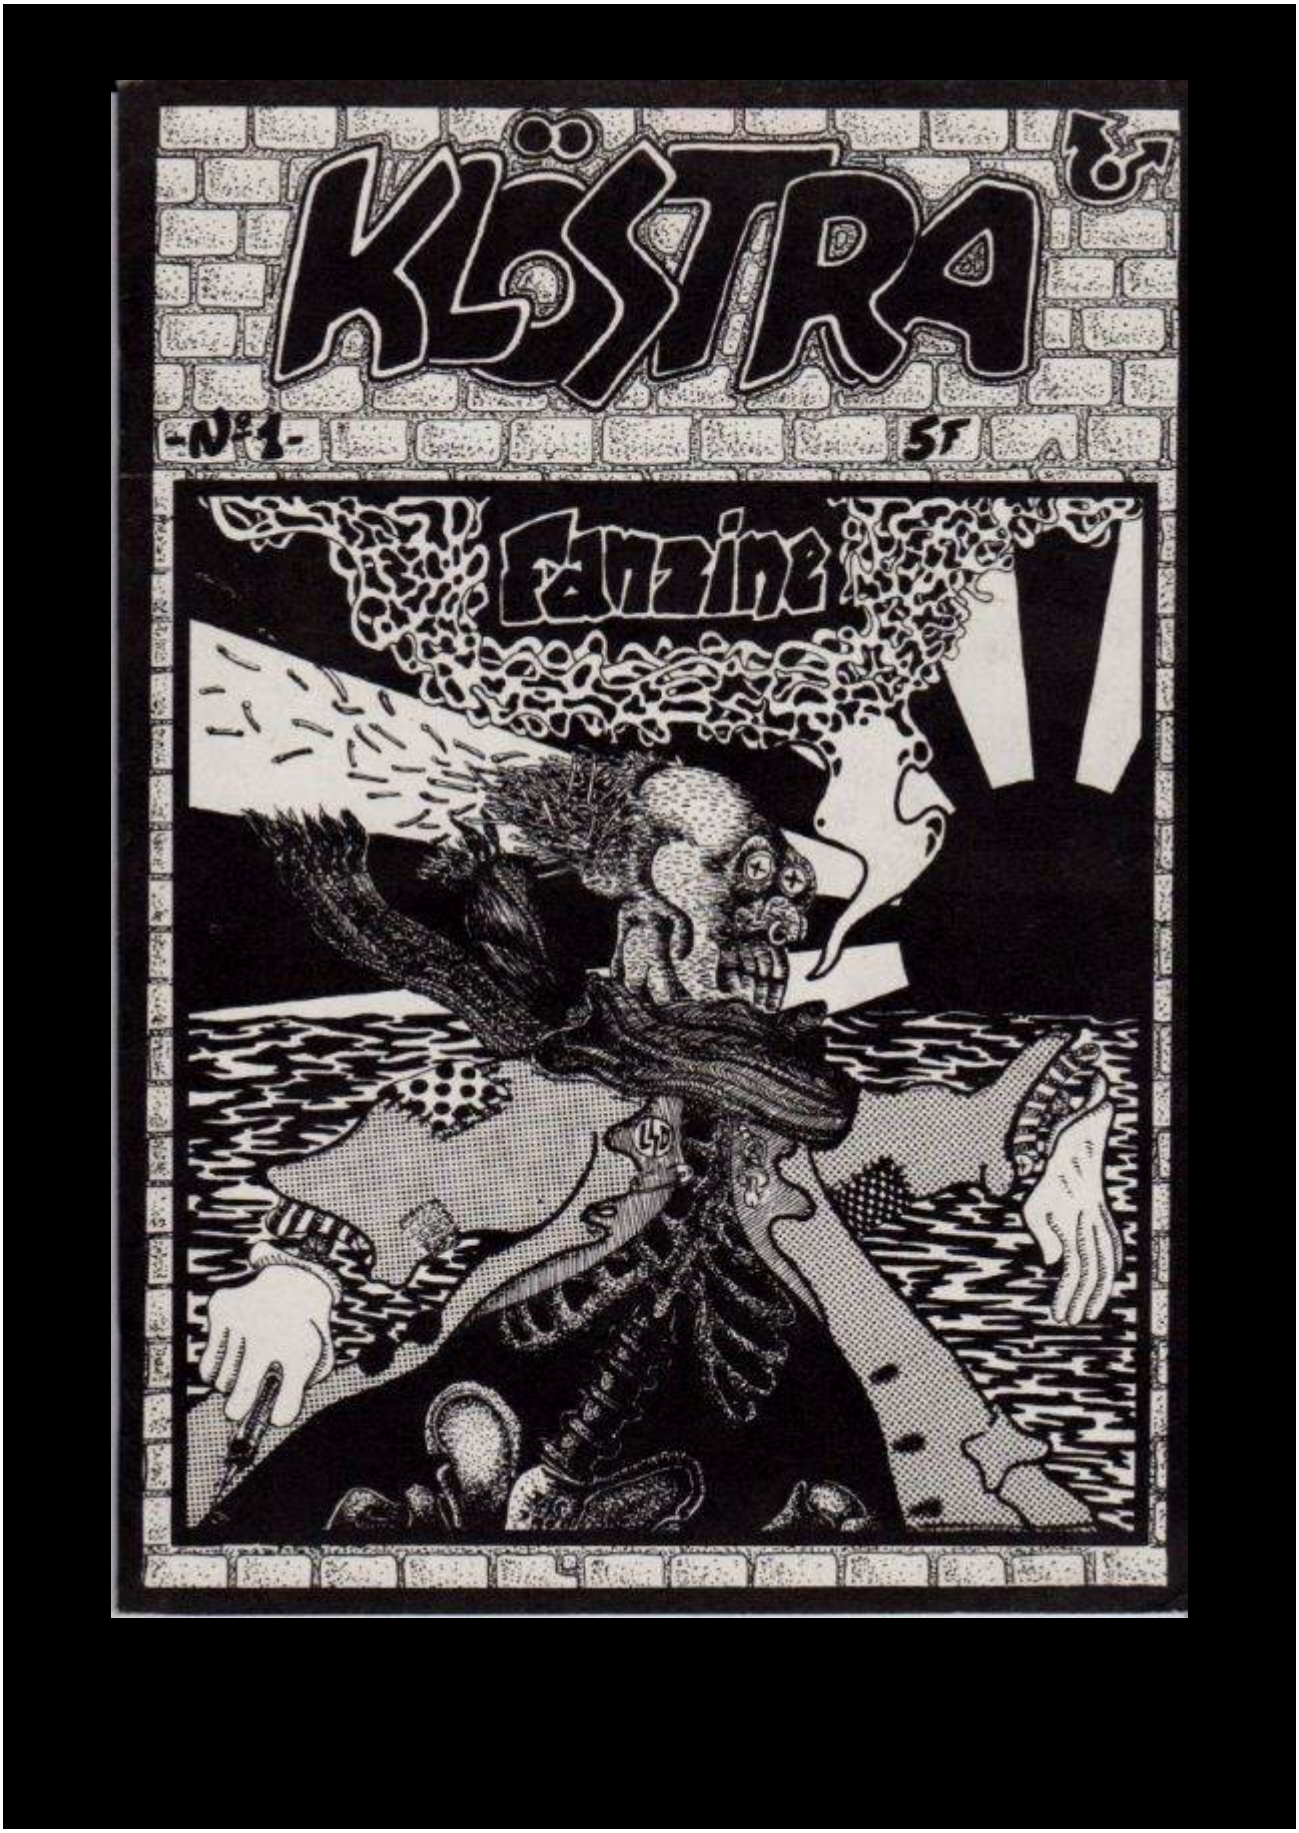
PSYCHEDELIC
HERBASOPA
№22
Silver Apples · Roy Montgomery ·
Outsiders · Warser Gale · Kula Shaker ·
Richard Davies · Witch Hazel Sound ·
Mandrake Memorial · Shadows ·
FREE EP
Silver Apples · Roy Montgomery
Witch Hazel Sound · Tangle Edge

musiche
Intervista
Diamanda Galas
Frank Zappa
Fluxus
Robert Wyatt
Michel Faubert
Magma
Cassiber
Kalahari Surfers
Testi: Ferdinand
Festival: Mimi
e Victoriaville
Recensioni
Segnalazioni

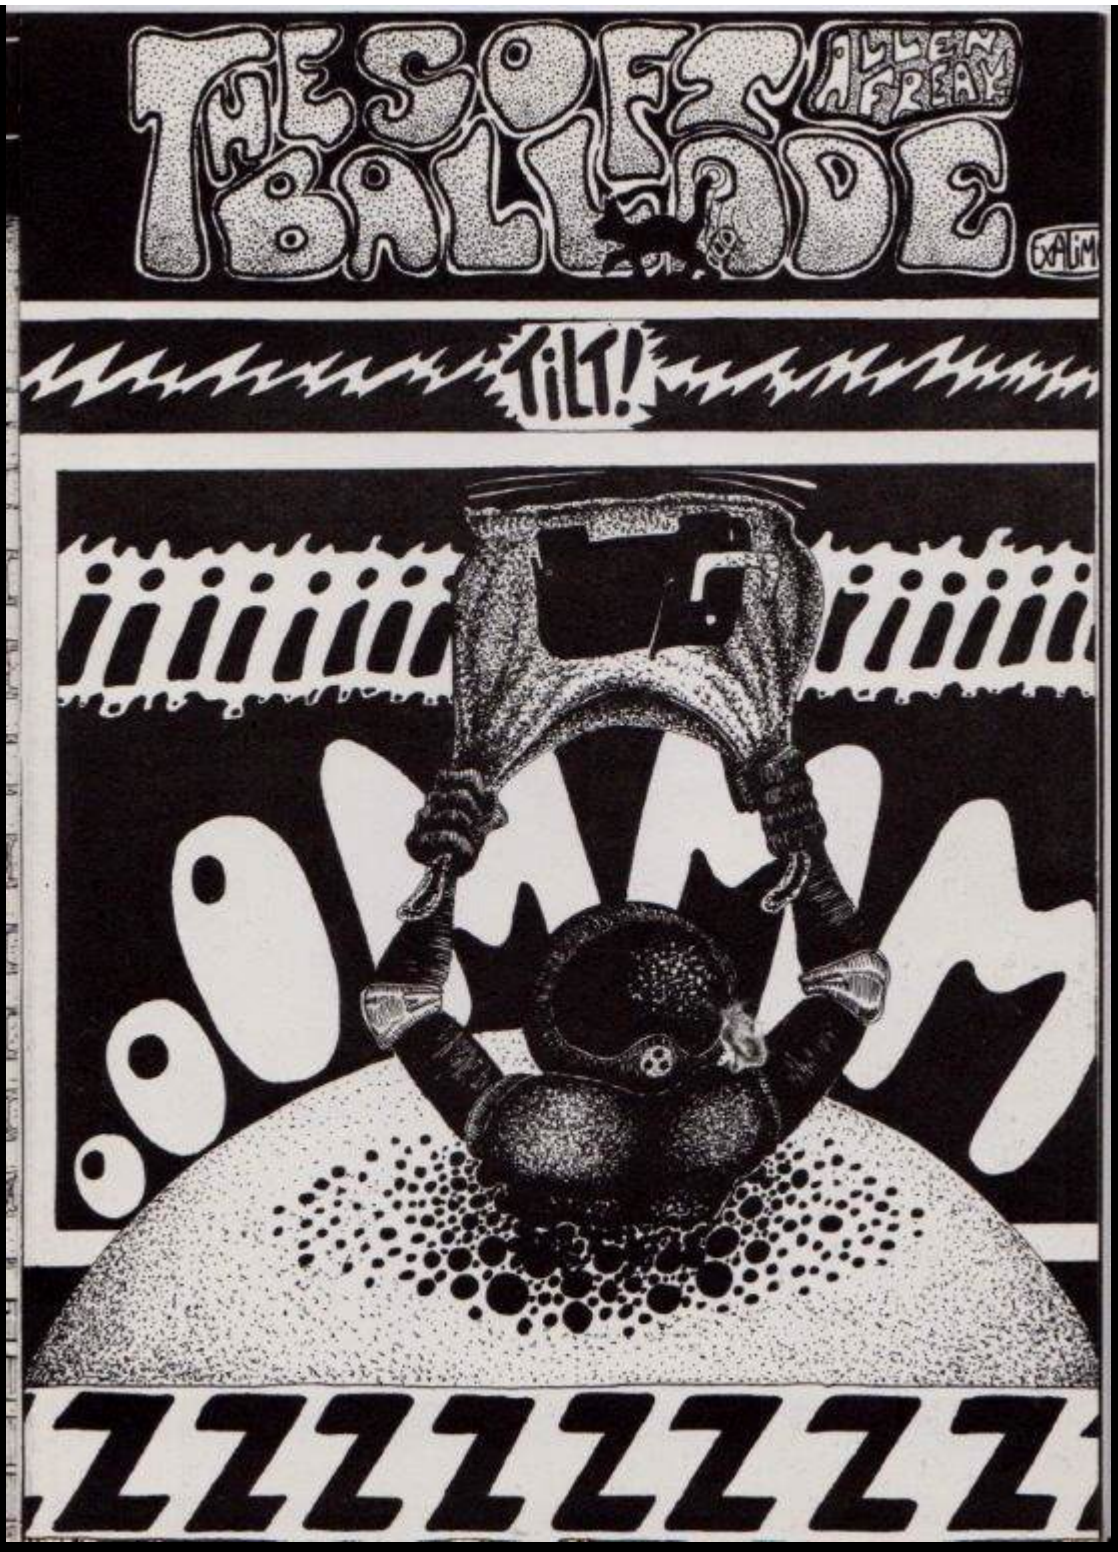


BAD ALCHEMY 44 MC

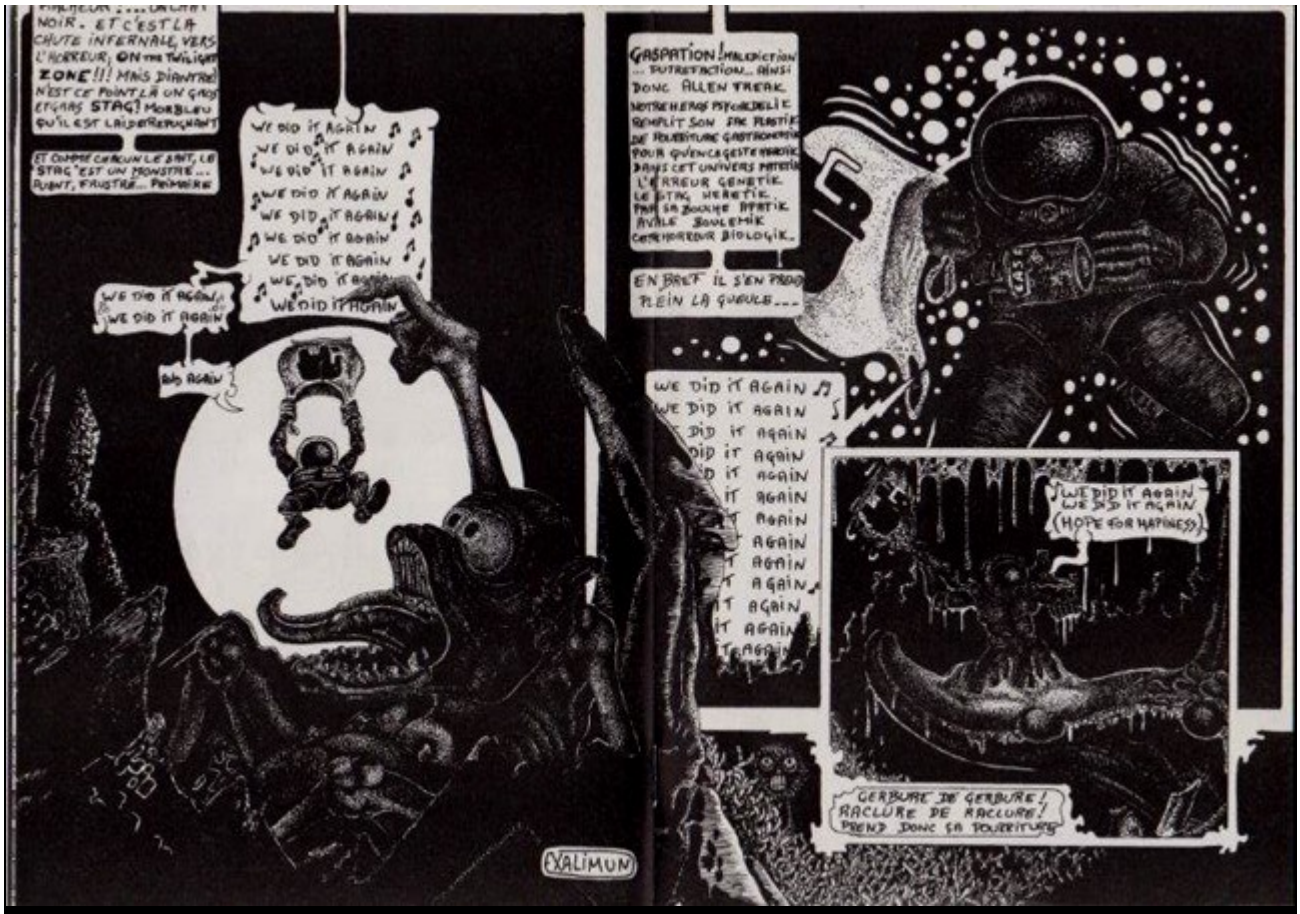
Octopus
Michel Bulteau
Graham Haynes
Bobby Cone
Ambiances Magnétiques
Rune Grammofon
Coil
Erik M
Tarwater
Ryuichi Sakamoto
For Carnation
Lo Recordings
Jean-Pierre Sluys
Dossier « scratch »
Festival MIMI/ Stupeur & Trompette !
Artemiy Artemiev
Nils Petter Molvaer
Du CBGB à SYR
Christian Rollet
n°12



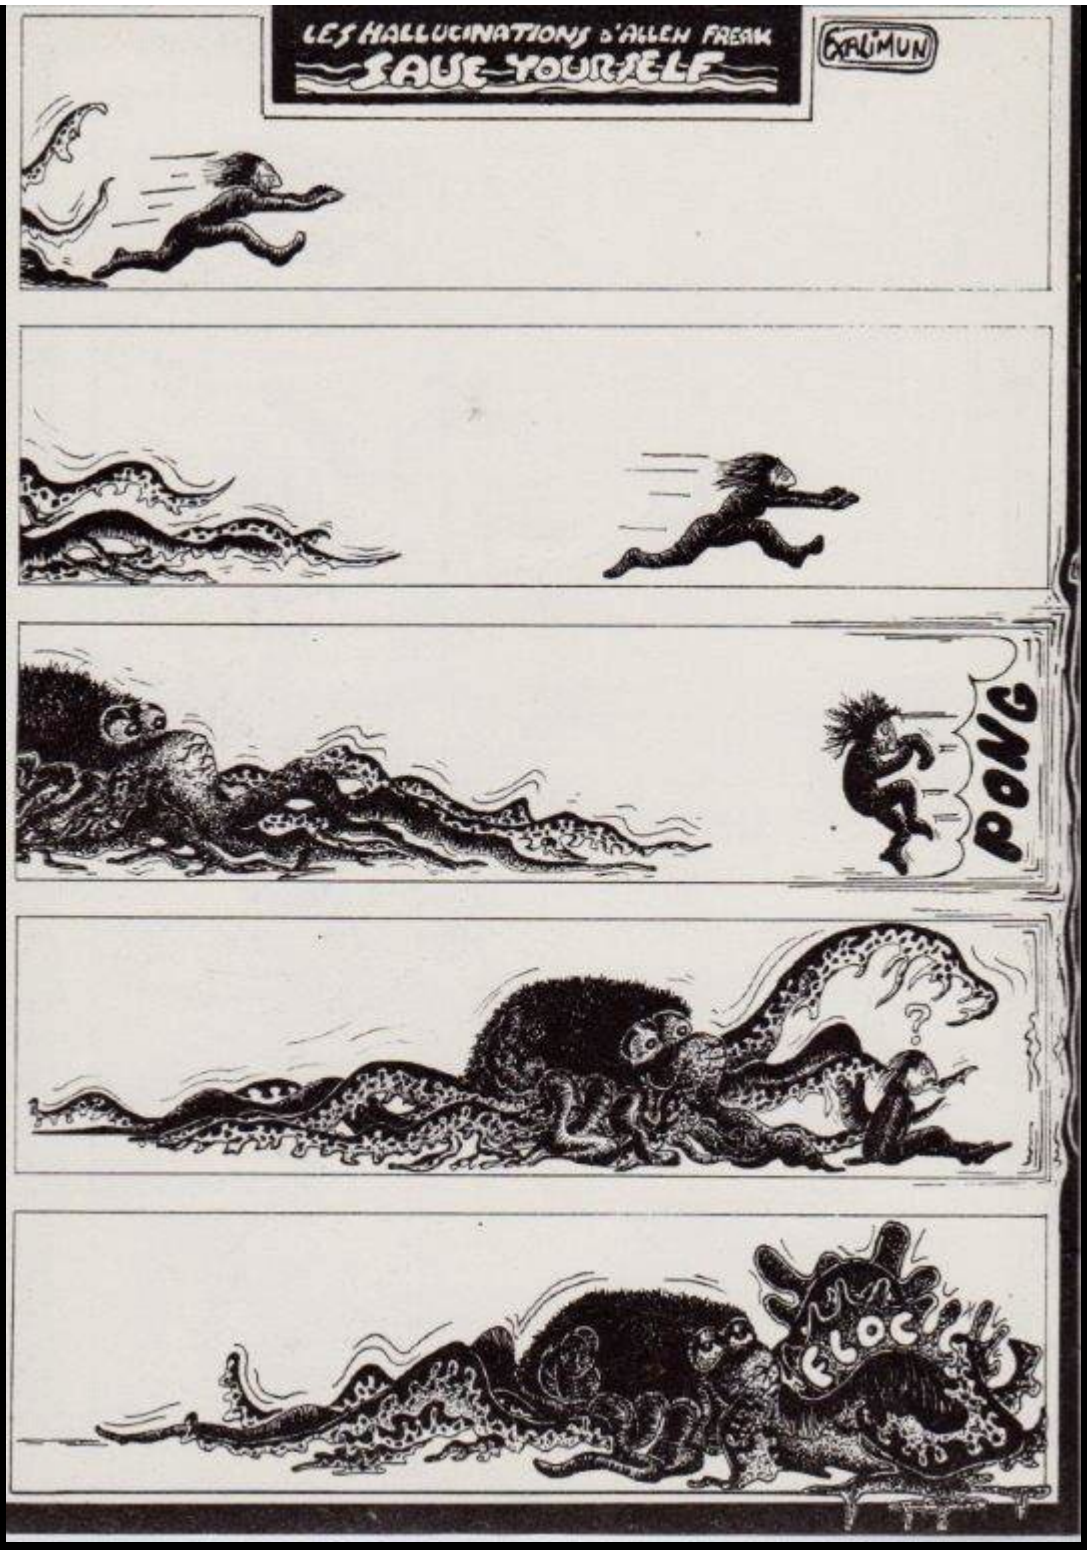
RUBBERNECK 27
Suu's
Raymond Strid
John Butcher
Roger Smith
Miklós Rózsa
free issue



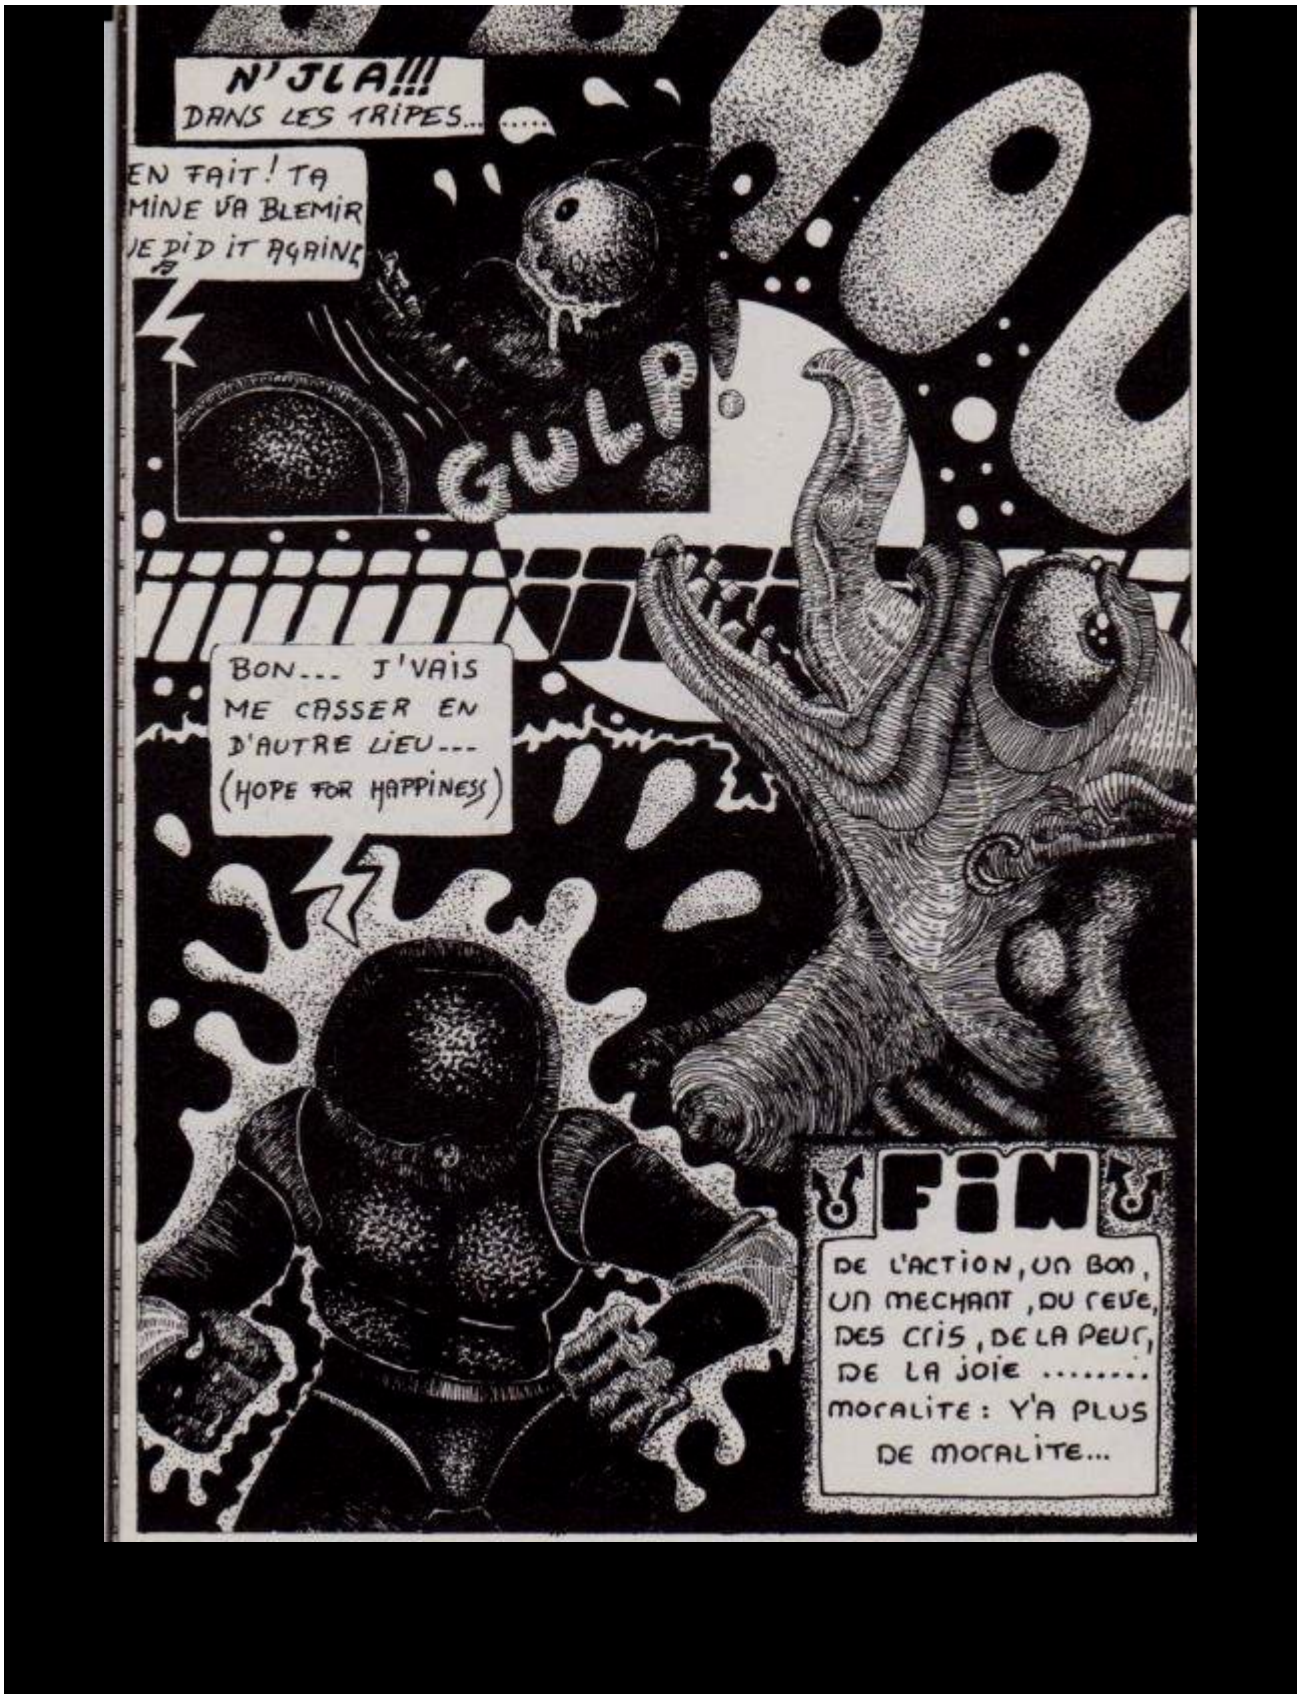
CANTERBURY-NACHRICHTEN
LINDSAY COOPER
SCHRÖDINGER'S CAT
No 14
Robert WYATT
Dondestan
Anaïd
FOUR YEARS
EQUIPOUT



IMPETUS
ROCK IN OPPOSITIO
No.9
Henry Cow
Stormy Six
Samla Mammas Manna
Etron Fou Leloublan
Univers Zero



ATEM
N°8
4 F
robert wyatt..tom rapp..hugh hopper.. ribeiro..etron fou.....



Rareté : Soft Machine en BD !

THE SOFT BALLADE
A TEEN DREAM TILT!
ZZZZZZZ

NOIR. ET C'EST LA CHUTE INFERNALE, VERS L'HORREUR; ON the TWILIGHT ZONE!!! MAIS DIANTRE! N'EST CE POINT LÀ UN GAG ÉTIQUE STAG! MORBLEU QU'IL EST LAIDEREROUANT
ET COMME CHACUN LE SAIT, LE STAG EST UN MONSTRE... RUANT, FRUSTRE... PRIMAIRE
WE DID IT AGAIN
WE DID IT AGAIN
WE DID IT AGAIN
WE DID IT AGAIN
WE DID IT AGAIN
WE DID IT AGAIN
WE DID IT AGAIN
WE DID IT AGAIN
WE DID IT AGAIN
WE DID IT AGAIN
XALIMUN
GASPATION! MALÉDICTION ... PUTRÉFACTION... AINSI DONC ALLEN FREAK, VOTRE HEROS PSYCHÉDÉLIC REMPLIT SON SAC PLASTIF DE POURRITURE GASTRONOMIQUE POUR QU'EN CAGE STE HORRIBLE DANS CET UNIVERS MATÉRIEL L'ERREUR GENETIK LE STAG HERETIK PAR SA BOUCHE PUTRIDE AVALE SOULEMIK CETTE HORREUR BIOLOGIK.
EN BREF IL S'EN PREND PLEIN LA GUEULE...
WE DID IT AGAIN
WE DID IT AGAIN
WE DID IT AGAIN
(HOPE FOR HAPPINESS)
GERBURE DE GERBURE! RACLURE DE RACLURE! PRENDS DONC ÇA POURRITURE!

LES HALLUCINATIONS D'ALLEN FREAK
SAUVE-TOI-MÊME
EXALIMUN
PONG
?
BLOC !!!

N'JLA!!!
DANS LES TRIPES...
EN FAIT! TA MINE VA BLEMIR
JE DID IT AGAIN!
GULP!
BON... J'VAIS ME CASSER EN D'AUTRE LIEU...
(HOPE FOR HAPPINESS)
FIN
DE L'ACTION, UN BON, UN MECHANT, DU REVE, DES CRIS, DE LA PEUR, DE LA JOIE .....
MORALITE: Y'A PLUS DE MORALITE...

La Fenêtre Rose

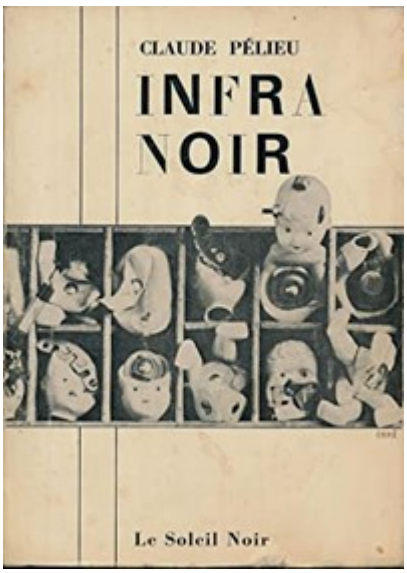
Premier Show Psychédélique organisé par Jean-Jacques Lebel dans la nuit du 17 au 18 novembre 1967 au Palais des sports de Paris, avec Soft Machine et de nombreux autres groupes.

Extrait de l'émission Bouton Rouge avec Soft Machine - présentée par Pierre Lattès.

LA FENÊTRE ROSE

La première Nuit Psychédélique organisée par l'activiste Jean-Jacques Lebel eut lieu au Palais des Sports de Paris les 17 et 18 novembre 1967.

S'il reste peu de traces sonores et visuelles de cet happening qui deviendra en peu de temps une date mythique de la french contre-culture, les 1 500 spectateurs qui l'ont vécu ne sont pas près d'oublier les light-shows, le Plastic Circus, les Pop Dancers et la trentaine de groupes qui jouèrent toute la nuit durant près de 12 heures ...



Parmi ces groupes, on se souvient aujourd'hui de Dantalian's Chariot, Cat Stevens, Tomorrow, Spencer Davis Group, Smoke, Vanilla Fudge et surtout du Soft Machine qui jouera de longs sets jusqu'au bout de la nuit.

La Fenêtre Rose est d'abord un long texte de Claude Pélieu, le poète français de la Beat Generation, qui sera édité bien après le psychadeliopoptique happening dans le recueil Infra Noir aux éditions Le Soleil Noir en 1972.

Infra Noir irréductible, miroir infidèle, labyrinthe & solitude, mort abolie, oui, non, instant fatal, défense de ne pas rêver, sel, sang, pluie, feu, érection, narcotica — Infra Noir où Opale flottait dans la Fenêtre Rose, sans feu ni lieu, sans dieu ni maître.

(houles) Transpacific Telephone
un cri réprimé défonce l'horoscope
les fantômes qui assaillaient Carl le Momo
ne sont plus de ce monde —
(ils ont des visages de fumée)
L'homme-antenne se réfugia dans le ventre d'un turbo-réacteur
FENÊTRE ROSE OU SE LÈVE LA TEMPÊTE
l'axe incendie l'arc-en-ciel
les ongles-chiffres traquent les naufragés
les yeux-plis pluvieux brûlent au large de l'Ile au Trésor
silhouettes de boucaniers s'écrasant entre chiens et loups
(le silence d'une autre tragédie)

500 mcg —
(la pensée procédera à ces exécutions capitales)
le silence au fil des heures — tout grossit —
le feutre verse une larme sur l'orchidée rouge

Et
l'aurore en marge de ces plis
désir désir — DÉSIR/d'une
engloutissement d'arc-en-cie
la Fenêtre Rose disparaît
le Calendrier Noir refoula le
les épines-scories et le reste

Alice's Day/LSD Alice
les doigts-ricochets
et les hélices du vent
et quelque part abandonné dans un visage se partage pour mi

> Zoom

Quelques photos de La Fenêtre Rose circulent sur internet dont celles postées par Aguzim sur un forum dédié aux hippies des années 70s.

Sur ce même forum, Jacti rapporte sa rencontre inopinée avec Robert Wyatt peu avant le concert de Soft Machine dans un bar de la Porte de Versailles.

Je venais d'avoir 19 ans et, compte tenu de l'affiche, je ne pouvais pas ne pas y être.
J'ai d'ailleurs une anecdote qui va certainement en rendre jaloux quelques-uns ici. Avant le début des hostilités dans la salle, je décide d'aller prendre un sandwich dans un des nombreux troquets devant le Palais des Sports et qu'elle n'est pas ma surprise de sortir en même temps, par la même porte, avec... Robert Wyatt !
Malgré mon anglais hésitant, je l'aborde (c'est facile car il est vraiment à côté de moi). Il me demande dans quel établissement il vaut mieux aller et avec l'assurance de l'ignorant, je lui indique l'un des troquets et lui demande si je peux venir avec lui. Il ne fait aucun problème, certainement content d'être finalement reconnu et de parler avec un français. Je ne me souviens pas de la teneur de notre conversation, assez rudimentaire et nous mangeons de bon cœur chacun notre sandwich.
Je me souviens d'un mec tout à fait abordable, charmant, essayant même de dire quelques mots en français. Un très bon souvenir.
Quant à la nuit de la Fenêtre Rose elle-même, je me souviens que Soft Machine a joué très longtemps en enchaînant les morceaux sans interruption et de la prestation de Dantalion' Chariot qui avaient recouvert les ampli en blanc (ils jouaient eux-mêmes souvent en blanc) et le membre le plus connu, à l'époque, était Zoot Money.
Je me rappelle que j'ai parlé avec Robert Wyatt aussi de la fameuse soirée à la RoundHouse à Londres du 15 octobre 1966 où Soft Machine et Pink Floyd ont joué (j'y étais !).

> Zoom

La Fenetre Rose, Premiere Nuit Psychedelique au Palais des sports de Paris

La revue anglaise IT (The International Times) annonçait même l'évènement parisien dans son n° 21 daté de la semaine du 17 au 30 novembre 1967.

Paris freak-out

For the first time on the Continent, an all-night dream, a psychadeliopoptique happening complete with light show, pop dancers, plastic circus, and Suzy Creamcheese— late of San Francisco and London — pop posters, and a wildish fashion collection, will appear on 17 and 18 November at the Palais des Sports in Paris.

LA FENETRE ROSE, the name of the show, is being staged by Alan Dale and Tony Townsend, two of England's leading impressarios in the field of all-night experience. The Fernch reaction to this is, so far, somewhat bewlidcred. The idea of thousands of people coming together to have what amount to a large pop party with dozens of top pop performers and an audience as much performers as the performers themselves, is something new in France. At least 100 pop artistes and their horde will be flying to Paris, together with 7 tons of light.

A man called JEFFREY SHAW and his PLASTIC CIRCUS are bringing miles of plastic tubing from Amsterdam with which Mr Shaw plans to fill the Palais des Sports.

THE EXPLODING GALAXY, which recently startled English television will present one of their extraordinary choreographic scenes and perform at will throughout the show.

MALCOLM TILLIS has designed a wilder collection of clothes that, in his words, "break the rules". Many of England's top pop groups, including SPENCER DAVIS and the SOFT MACHINE, will perform for twelve continuous hours. Europe's top D.J., ROSKO, will broadcast the show in France and through Radio-Luxemburg.

Paris freak-out

For the first time on the Continent, an all-night dream, a psychadeliopoptique happening complete with light show, pop dancers, plastic circus, and Suzy Creamcheese—late of San Francisco and London — pop posters, and a wildish fashion collection, will appear on 17 and 18 November at the Palais des Sports in Paris.

LA FENETRE ROSE, the name of the show, is being staged by Alan Dale and Tony Townsend, two of England's leading impresarios in the field of all-night experience.

The French reaction to this is, so far, somewhat bewildered. The idea of thousands of people coming together to have what amount to a large pop party with dozens of top pop performers and an audience as much performers as the performers themselves, is something new in France. At least 100 pop artistes and their hordes will be flying to Paris, together with 7 tons of light.

A man called JEFFREY SHAW and his PLASTIC CIRCUS are bringing miles of plastic tubing from Amsterdam with which Mr Shaw plans to fill the Palais des Sports.

THE EXPLODING GALAXY, which recently startled English television will present one of their extraordinary choreographic scenes and perform at will throughout the show.

MALCOLM TILLIS has designed a wilder collection of clothes that, in his words, "break the rules".

Many of England's top pop groups, including SPENCER DAVIS and the SOFT MACHINE, will perform for twelve continuous hours. Europe's top D.J., ROSKO, will broadcast the show in France and through Radio Luxenburg.

RIALS X...

Thursday, November 9.
after a previous attempt
in without legal counsel,
to matter, they all looked
g ages. One man seemed
unt eyed, one was a kid
t about to buck anybody,
o do. The rest were non-
that throughout the trial
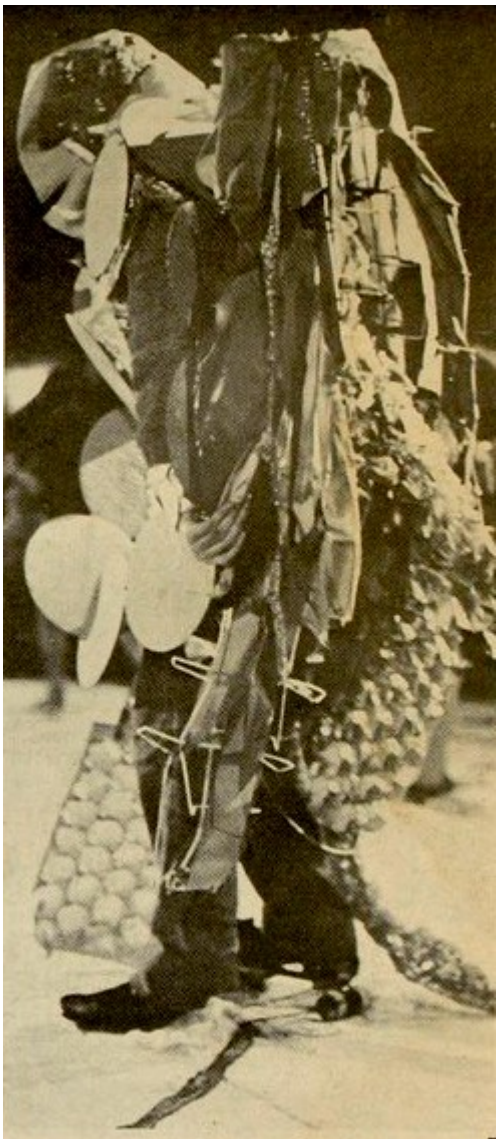
to be no real reason for koran which he also refused, explaining that because they

PSYCHEDELIC RESEARCH CENTRE

Last month Time Out of Mind (originally the Head Shop) closed down leaving a major gap in the facilities of Notting Hill, an area with far too few focal points in relation to its large hip population.

Now round the corner in Blenheim Crescent (near Portobello Road) the Psychedelic Research Centre has opened to continue and move forward from Time Out of Mind.



At present the centre consists of a shop which took over the stock of Time Out of Mind and above the shop a silk screen press has been built and is ready for use. Geoff. Rainford the moving force behind the centre is very interested in hearing from designers and also anybody with ideas. The long-term aim is to establish a creative community.

A major development likely soon is a direct link with Chet

Scene from EXPLODING GALAXY BIRD BALLET. The GALAXY will be in Paris for La Fenetri Rose.
—Photo: Ray Stevenson

> Zoom

Scene from EXPLODING GALAXY BIRD BALLET. The GALAXY will be in Paris for La Fenetri Rose.
—Photo: Ray Stevenson

> Zoom

> Archives

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Mongezi Feza

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Photo: Rita Knox

Mongezi Feza, trompettiste et flutiste sud-africain irradie Rock Bottom et Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard de ses sonorités en cascade démultipliées par le re-recording. Michael King rapporte dans Wrong Movements combien Robert Wyatt tenait ce musicien en très haute estime: "Mongezi avait une manière d'utiliser sa trompette qui était si claire, si forte, si puissante, qu'il n'y avait jamais de merde avec lui. Il était très exigeant envers lui-même. Lorsqu'il jouait, il jouait vraiment."

Lors du même entretien, il révèlera à quel point les circonstances de sa disparition en 1975 l'avaient affecté au moment même où il envisageait une collaboration régulière avec lui: "J'avais pensé à lui pour des projets à venir, un genre de sparing-partner pour mes futurs albums. Il était le collaborateur parfait pour accompagner ma voix, car sa trompette était claire. Je pensais qu'il pourrait faire des chansons, il pouvait faire tout ce que je lui demandais. La mort de Mongezi a eu un effet dramatique sur moi."

Dans le 120ème numéro de la revue Improjazz, Olivier Ledure retrace la carrière de Mongezi Feza en répertoriant la quasi totalité de ses apparitions discographiques. Cet article est la meilleure introduction à l'oeuvre d'un musicien insuffisamment reconnu.

Mongezi FEZA, le premier trompettiste sud-africain de free jazz

Il y a 30 ans, Mongezi Feza mourait à l'âge de 30 ans.

Il était né en 1945 à Queenstown (Afrique du Sud). Il est mort le 14 décembre 1975 à Londres dans des conditions particulièrement dramatiques : parti à l'hôpital se faire soigner pour dépression, il serait mort d'une pneumonie provoquée par l'absence de chauffage. Ses amis, les autres Blue Notes, lui rendirent deux semaines plus tard, un magnifique hommage pendant plus de sept heures. Des extraits de cette session constituent le double album Blue Notes for Mongezi. Signalons que le jeune magazine musical Atem (c'était le n°2) connut alors son heure de gloire: paru à la mi-janvier 1976, il fut parmi les premiers à colporter la nouvelle de cette disparition en Europe continentale. Et c'est avec cette mort que la malédiction s'abattit sur les Blue Notes.

Mais revenons quelques années en arrière, en 1962, pour trouver la première trace d'un enregistrement de 'Mongs' dans les meilleurs moments du festival de jazz de Moroka-Jabavu. Il joue sur un seul titre du groupe appelé Eric Nomvete's Big Five. Le morceau, intitulé Pondo Blues, avait été écrit par le leader de l' ensemble: En septembre 1963, Mongezi ne fait toujours pas partie des Blue Notes: il appartient encore au sextet Swinging City, dirigé par Ronnie Beer. Il joue bien dans The Castle Lager Big Band conduit par Chris McGregor, mais ce n'est qu'après cet enregistrement (The African Sound) qu'il rejoint les Blue Notes, le 30 octobre très précisément, et commence sa carrière avec eux.

A la fin du siècle dernier, il existait seize enregistrements sur l'intégralité desquels 'Mongs' jouait. Douze d'entre eux sont concentrés sur les cinq dernières années de sa vie.

> McGregor & The Castle Lager Big Band, The African Sound
Gallo (1963)

> The Blue Notes, Live in South Afrika
Ogun (1964)

> Chris McGregor Groups, Very Urgent
Philipps (1968)

> Friendship Next of Kin, Facets of the Universe
Goodie (1969)

> Brotherhood of Breath, Brotherhood of Breath
Neon (1971)

> Assagai, Assagai
Vertigo (1971) > Assagai, Zimbabwe
Philips (1971)

> Brotherhood of Breath, Brotherhood
RCA (1972)

> Matata, Independence
President Records (1972)

> Dyani / Temiz / Feza, Rejoice
Cadillac (1972)

> Dyani / Temiz / Feza, Music for Xaba
Sonet (1972)

> Dyani / Temiz / Feza, Music for Xaba Vol.2
Sonet (1972)

> Brotherhood of Breath, Live at Willisau
Ogun (1973)

> Dudu Pukwana, In the Townships
Virgin (1973)

> Dudu Pukwana, Flute Music
Virgin (1974)

> Dudu Pukwana, Diamond Express
Arista (1975)

Et, je ne compte pas ici le 45 tours qu'il a enregistré avec le Globe Unity, ni les deux autres 45t faits avec le chanteur nigérian Tunji Oyelama et avec les Blue Notes, ni même les participations ponctuelles, par exemple aux côtés de Robert Wyatt ou avec Henry Cow.

Mais, depuis 2001, ce ne sont pas moins de cinq CD's (dont deux doubles) qui permettent de mieux cerner son jeu de trompette - trompette de poche le plus souvent.

> Brotherhood of Breath, Travelling Somewhere
Cuneiform (1972, sorti en 2001)

> The Blue Notes, Township Bop Propper
(1964, sorti en 2002)
NB: Rappelons qu'il s'agit ici d'un bootleg qui présente la toute première séance des Blue Notes qui, quelques mois plus tard, allaient se produire en Europe, créant la sensation au festival d'Antibes - Juan les Pins de 1964.

> Elton Dean's Ninesense, Live at the BBC
HUX (1975, sorti en 2003)

> Brotherhood of Breath, Bremen to Bridgewater
Cuneiform (1971, sorti en 2004)

> Mongezi Feza, Free Jam
Ayler Records (1972, sorti en 2004)

Et, mes conversations avec Keith Knox, Hazel Miller et Lars Rasmussen me laissent penser que nous n'en resterons pas là !

Ajoutons que les compositions de la plume de ce formidable trompettiste et flûtiste (qu'il interpréta lui-même) se comptent sur les doigts d'une seule main : Sondela, Sonia, Flute Music, Mad High et You cheated me.

Je n'ai pas été capable de mettre la main sur une version jouée par son créateur du fameux You ain't gonna know me 'cos you think you know me. En revanche, nombre de musiciens ont repris ce thème (comme Louis Moholo-Moholo, le Dedication Orchestra, Zim Ngqawana et Ezra Ngcukana). Et d'autres lui ont rendu hommage, comme Abdullah Ibrahim, Evan Parker, Hotep Galeta et les Blue Notes donc.

En dehors des compositions à trois de Music for Xaba ('Mongs' fut particulièrement à l'aise dans ce groupe) et des compositions à six (sur l'album où il était l'invité, avec Temiz, du quartet de Bernt Rosengren lors d'une séance d'improvisation en 1972) qui lui sont formellement attribuées, ce fut tout.

La diversité des styles pratiqués par 'Mongs' est impressionnante: tout d'abord, kwela (notamment dans le LP enregistré avec G. Mrwebi) ou bien jazz ellingtonien (le LP enregistré par McGregor & The Castle Lager Big Band) ; il passe, ponctuellement, du funk (l'enregistrement avec Matata, produit pour la petite histoire par Joe Mogotsi, un des quatre chanteurs des Manhattan Brothers, LE groupe vocal masculin d'Afrique du Sud) au free jazz, surtout. Citons à cet égard l'excellent vinyle du groupe de McGregor en 1968, le CD sorti l'an dernier par Ayler Records et les différents enregistrements du Brotherhood of Breath sur le label Cuneiform. Sans oublier les participations au jazz progressif anglais (par exemple, l'album intemporel Rock Bottom).

Je ne suis pas un spécialiste de la trompette de jazz, mais Feza fut souvent comparé à Don Cherry : j'ai surtout le sentiment d'une réelle originalité qui se manifeste notamment par ses très courtes phrases délivrées en chapelet. C'est en raison de celles-ci que quelques critiques de jazz citèrent Dizzy Gillespie parmi ses influences.

Je laisse au créateur de Rock Bottom (peut-être le plus beau solo de trompette - enregistré en rerecording - de 'Mongs' , sur ce qui restera comme le disque à emmener sur une île. . .) le mot de la fin :

Thank you Mongezi Feza. (. . .) I'm still living off the heat.
Robert Wyatt, notes de pochette d'Ixesha par le Dedication Orchestra, octobre 1994.

Pour cet article, je me suis aidé de la documentation suivante :

- Lars Rasmussen, Mbizo, a book about Johnny Dyani, The Booktrader, Copenhague, 2003
- Lars Rasmussen, Jazz People of Cape Town, The Booktrader, Copenhague, 2003
- Lars Rasmussen, Cape Town Jazz, 1959-1963, The Booktrader, Copenhague, 2001
- Improjazz n°60, novembre & décembre 1999
  L'édition de cette livraison sous la houlette d'Hazel Miller livre les chroniques de la totalité (d'alors) des disques du label Ogun. Deux photographies par Horace (page 25) et Thierry Trombert (page 31).
- Maxine McGregor, Chris McGregor and the Brotherhood of Breath, Bamberger, Flint, 1995
- The Wire n°12, février 1985.
  Ce magazine anglais présente un dossier qui s'intitule Afro jazz: Evolution & Revolution (pages 24 à 43). Ce dossier est compilé par musicien. Mongezi Feza est présenté page 32. Cinq photographies par Jak Kilby.

et me suis régalé de revoir combien ce musicien réservé devenait un lion en furie, sa bouche déformée par une seule poche bien ronde; les livres présentés ci-dessous contiennent des photographies de Mongezi Feza (seul le photographe est cité) :

- Guy Le Querrec, Jazz, Light and Day, Federico Motta, Italie,2001 (page 85)
- Jurgen Schadeberg, The Black and White Fifties, Protea Book House, Molenpark, Afrique du Sud, 2001 (page 24)
- Basil Breakey, Beyond the Blues, Township Jazz in the '60s and '70s, David Philip, Claremont, Afrique du Sud, 1997 (pages 34 et 35)
- Jak Kilby (lan Carr), Music Outside, Contemporary Jazz in Britain, Angleterre, 1973 (entre les pages 116 et 117)
- Valerie Wilmer, The Jazz Scene, Hamlyn, Angleterre, 1972 (pages 100 et 101)

Olivier LEDURE

Improjazz n° 120 (novembre & décembre 2005)

IMPROJAZZ c/o Ph. Renaud
14 allée des myosotis, 41000 Blois
Web : http://perso.wanadoo.fr/improjazz

Dudu Pukwana and Spear with Mongezi Feza - "Sonia" (1973) (from In the Townships)

Blue Notes For Mongezi (OGUN OGCD 025/026)

Fiction

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Stupéfiante lecture ! Robert Wyatt surgit brutalement dans les dernières pages de ce roman de Thierry Hesse - L'inconscience - paru en 2012 aux Edtions de l'Olivier.

On ne sait trop pourquoi l'auteur tient à nous faire revivre cette soirée au cours de laquelle Robert Wyatt se brisera le dos.

Et c'est avec une gêne certaine, je l'avoue, que j'ai lu ces lignes qui semblent vouloir donner une leçon de vie aux personnages du livre, deux frères aux destins dissemblables que l'on accompagne depuis leur adolescence dans les années 70's jusqu'à nos jours.

Au début du roman, nous comprenons qu'un des deux frères est dans le coma suite à une chute inexpliquée d'une fenêtre de l'immeuble où il exerce la profession d'assureur. Le livre nous fait revivre de flash-backs en flash-backs l'itinéraire de ces deux personnages à travers leurs parcours amoureux et professionnels jusqu'au drame final.

Cette apparition inattendue de Robert Wyatt semble signifier qu'un miracle est toujours possible - non pas le miracle médical mais celui "du jeu libre d'un homme seul qui acceptait ce qui lui revenait"..."un jeu, non de reconquête mais de réenchantement"... "de ce oui franc donné aux évènements pour mieux les dépasser".

Adolescents, leur père les abonna à cette revue musicale anglaise qui fit plus ou moins bon accueil aux métamorphoses de la musique populaire. Le Melody Maker était à cette époque-là un hebdomadaire conservateur devenu hystérique. Créé en 1926, il représentait à l'origine une publication professionnelle destinée aux musiciens des orchestres de bal, qui y trouvaient toutes les informations dont ils avaient besoin : liste des concerts de la semaine, présentation des fanfares qui se produiraient le dimanche dans les cités d'Eltham et de Blackpool, petites annonces proposant des auditions pour une chanteuse « non typée » ou les services d'un banjoïste à la recherche d'une tournée dans le Suffolk, publicités illustrées pour des anches à clarinette ou des bas de contention recommandés aux instrumentistes souffrant d'insuffisance veineuse. Après la guerre, les musiciens de jazz y eurent aussi leur place, et les journalistes du Melody, qui fumaient en général la pipe et portaient d'élégantes vestes en tweed sous des trench-coats vert bouteille, savaient rivaliser d'esprit quand ils analysaient le toucher subtil de Fats Waller dans « Moppin' and Boppin' », ou commentaient le nouveau spectacle du nouveau sextette du nouveau Count Basie. Mais ça c'était avant. C'était avant les années soixante-dix. Avant l'adolescence de Carl et Marcus.

Quand le rock déferla sur l'Angleterre et sur le reste du monde, les vestes en tweed du Melody rétrécirent au lavage. Il suffit de quelques 45 tours pour que ces fins critiques voient leur conception de l'art et de la beauté chamboulée dans les grandes lar-geurs. Par un réflexe de classe, ils se mirent d'abord à dénigrer ces éructations électriques. L'argument principal, à peine voilé dans les articles du magazine, était que la plupart des jeunes gens qui s'adonnaient à cette musique ne savaient pas jouer. Ils faisaient du bruit, étaient mal élevés, gesticulaient sur scène comme des primates, prenaient des drogues aussi facilement que du Darjeeling, mais sur le plan musical c'était à peu près zéro. « Oserez-vous soutenir, déplora le critique John Pollit, que ces Rolling Stones peuvent être écoutés par les mêmes oreilles qui ont été charmées par les mélodies de Count Basie ? Que T. Rex est un créateur au même titre que Gil Evans ou Fats Waller ? Damned ! Savez-vous d'où proviennent les hourvaris de ce T. Rex ? L'olibrius affirme avoir eu un jour une apparition. Il se trouvait sur son lit quand un tyrannosaure imprimé sur un poster a bougé ! C'est ce qu'il disait l'autre soir à la radio : "Je me suis aperçu que si j'avais pas détourné la tête, la bestiole m'aurait avalé tout cru et y aurait eu un paquet de sang sur mon paddock. Depuis, je suis sûr que plus rien peut m'atteindre et que je suis bien barré pour être le génie d'aujourd'hui !" Et vous voulez qu'on écoute sérieusement son Electric Warrior ? Qu'on décortique avec attention ses râles de cocker en chaleur dans son nouveau "Mambo Sun" ? C'est une plaisanterie ! »

Cependant les temps avaient changé, et plus T. Rex râlait et hurlait, plus sa musique s'emparait du pays :

Oh girl ! I'm just a jeepster for your love
I said girl I'm just a vampire for your love
I'm gonna suck you.
Oh, gamine, je suis un tout-terrain pour ton amour
Je te le dis, gamine, je suis un vampire pour ton amour
Et je vais te sucer.

Comme il fallait continuer à vendre le Melody Maker, Ray Coleman, son directeur, journaliste pragmatique, se résolut à tordre en partie ses principes esthétiques. Ce fut le début de l'hystérie. Un matin, il annonça à John Pollitt et à ses confrères que, quitte à se pincer le nez, il fallait ouvrir le magazine aux primates et à leurs outrances, ne rien s'interdire dans ce domaine, ne pas lésiner sur les interviews débiles que réclamaient les teenagers, ne plus être regardant sur les cancans et les ragots, et tout cela avec de grosses manchettes, des titres épais et bien dégoulinants, du genre :

T. REXTASY !

Aux yeux de Carl et Marcus qui, en 1973, étaient âgés de treize et seize ans, lire le Melody Maker avait de toute façon beaucoup plus de classe que de lire n'importe quel magazine musical français, qu'il s'agisse de Best, Rock & Folk ou même de Pop Music-Superhebdo. Tous deux trouvaient dans le Melody ce dont ils rêvaient : une connexion directe avec un monde qui s'embrasait à des années-lumière de Metz. Ainsi prirent-ils l'habitude de découper avec soin les unes les plus accrocheuses, de confectionner des fiches sur leurs groupes préférés, d'apprendre par cœur des phrases fétiches extraites d'invraisemblables interviews. Et tout cela en anglais. Leur passion nourrie pour l'hebdomadaire était si profonde que, la semaine de mars 2008 où Carl se consacra à vider la maison du Sablon, la seule fois qu'il dérangea son frère en lui téléphonant à Roubaix, c'était l'après-midi où, dans la cave, il était tombé par surprise sur deux cartons où jaunissaient des piles d'anciens numéros de leur cher Melody. Il proposa à Marcus d'en faire le partage, et Marcus ne dit pas non.

Lequel des deux aura alors conservé ce numéro funeste de juin 1973, où le journaliste Skip Taylor n'accorda que peu de crédit à la version de l'accident, préférant évoquer une affaire amoureuse ayant mal tourné, soupçonnant même l'entourage de Robert Wyatt d'avoir voulu dissimuler un suicide raté – ou pire encore ?

Les faits, rappelons-le, s'étaient déroulés de nuit, dans un appartement privé et une atmosphère toxique. De quoi plaire, on l'imagine, au nouveau Melody dont la rédaction savait maintenant faire flèche de tout bois pour satisfaire son lectorat et ne rien masquer des turpitudes de la planète rock. Pareilles insinuations sur l'accident de Robert Wyatt n'étaient pourtant que des paroles flasques, gonflées par l'avidité et le goût du scandale, et les attaques de Skip Taylor ne tardèrent pas à être balayées.

Si l'on s'en tient pourtant à l'article – du moins pour les éléments factuels – tout ou presque était parti du désir de deux chanteuses, Alpha et Suzy-Mary. Celles-ci se connaissaient et passaient pour être amies, ce qui ne signifiait pas grand-chose dans un milieu où tout le monde fréquentait à peu près tout le monde, s'abouchait avec n'importe qui. Nous savons en revanche qu'elles n'avaient pas le même âge, mais, étant nées le même jour de juin, elles eurent l'idée cette année-là de fêter ensemble leur anniversaire – chose qui jamais ne se reproduisit.

La party devait avoir lieu chez Suzy-Mary, dans son appartement de Maida Vale, à l'ouest de Londres, au quatrième étage d'un immeuble blanc et brique, début de siècle. Plusieurs dizaines de personnes reçurent une invitation sous la forme d'un carton couleur groseille, calligraphié à la plume, et dont l'un des coins, suspecta Skip Taylor, était imbibé d'un produit stupéfiant.

À ce moment-là, Robert Wyatt ne résidait pas à Londres, mais dans sa ferme du Buckinghamshire. La plupart du temps, quand il préparait un nouveau disque, c'est dans cette masure qu'il s'isolait. D'aspect modeste, la ferme se composait de trois baraques en planches grisâtres et avait dû appartenir avant-guerre à une famille d'éleveurs ayant raté l'occasion de faire fortune. La moins délabrée des trois baraques, qui jadis contenait une trayeuse, avait été transformée en salle de répétition et studio – même si les conditions d'enregistrement, en raison de nombreuses fentes dans les murs qui n'avaient été que grossièrement colmatées, restaient imparfaites. Robert Wyatt commençait en général par agencer quelques lignes mélodiques au piano, puis passait d'un instrument à l'autre en s'enregistrant sur des pistes successives. Ensuite venait le moment où il devait trouver des solutions pour résoudre les difficultés qu'il avait lui-même engendrées au cours de cette phase expérimentale. Il savait que les solutions pouvaient déboucher sur le meilleur comme sur le pire, aussi c'est seulement lorsqu'il estimait avoir franchi un certain cap qu'il téléphonait à David Sinclair, Phil Miller ou Bill McCormick, amis musiciens à qui il demandait de le rejoindre pour mettre en place l'architecture de ses compositions, reprendre chaque mélodie jusque dans les moindres détails et aboutir à la conception d'un album qui serait réalisé dans un studio digne de ce nom, à Londres ou à Bristol. Lorsqu'il travaillait ainsi, Robert Wyatt détestait être interrompu. C'est pour cette raison, et non pour la villégiature ou le tourisme, qu'il avait élu comme patrie le Buckinghamshire, comté distant d'une soixantaine de kilomètres de Londres et qui, n'offrant à l'évidence aucun des attraits du Devon, pouvait dissuader d'éventuels intrus et voisins gênants. Dans une interview accordée à un magazine l'année précédant l'accident, Robert Wyatt expliquait que créer était pour lui quelque chose de comparable à ce numéro de Houdini où le fameux magicien se fait ligoter, enchaîner, puis enfermer dans une malle pleine d'eau, avant d'essayer d'en sortir sans dommages. « Une fois dedans, je n'ai plus de temps à perdre, avait-il déclaré avec son sourire enfantin. Voilà en quoi consiste la création : aller le plus loin possible et tâcher d'en sortir vivant ! » Aussi, quand il eut entre les mains l'invitation envoyée par Alpha et Suzy-Mary, il pensa d'abord qu'il avait mieux à faire.

Le 1er juin, ses yeux se posèrent de nouveau sur le carton qui traînait sur le guéridon en céramique où il avait coutume de se servir un verre entre deux séances de travail. Il finit par admettre qu'il aurait tort de négliger ses amies. Il pensa surtout à Alpha qu'il envisageait de solliciter pour un prochain disque. Ne pourrait-il pas d'ailleurs lui en toucher un mot le soir même ? Alors il reboucha lentement la bouteille de brandy, débrancha ses instruments, se lava à l'eau froide sous l'appentis où trônait une vieille bassine en zinc, choisit des vêtements propres, puis, ayant fermé sa ferme à clé, se rendit à pied jusqu'à la gare voisine, qui ressemblait à une église sans clocher, construite à proximité d'un pré d'herbe grasse et très verte où auraient brouté des moutons si, dans cette partie du comté, l'activité lainière ne s'était pas éteinte, comme en d'autres endroits du pays. Au préposé qui feuilletait derrière son guichet un journal illustré, Robert Wyatt acheta un billet, avant de grimper dans un wagon qui exhalait la sueur et le bois humide. Une heure plus tard, il arrivait à la gare d'Euston, hélait un taxi qui stationnait sur Melton Street et lui donnait l'adresse de Suzy-Mary. En longeant Regent's Park, le regard du chauffeur croisa le sien dans le rétroviseur.

Quand il sortit de l'ascenseur, Robert Wyatt s'aperçut que la porte de l'appartement de Suzy-Mary était ouverte et libérait des effluves de gâteau mal cuit. Un tissu oriental, qu'Alpha avait acheté à Tanger, formait un dais rouge sous les lambris du vestibule, et quantité de petites bougies plates brûlaient au milieu de soucoupes en faïence jaune pâle. Les invités portaient des chemises à jabot, des gilets rayés, des robes à volants, des pantalons à franges, des chaussures de ménestrels, des chapeaux baroques. D'un coup d'œil, Robert Wyatt sut mettre un nom sur une dizaine de visages. Un magnétophone à bandes Revox enchaînait des sons de guitares grinçantes et de saxophones vociférants, tandis qu'on entendait depuis un couloir des roulements de tambour et des grognements d'ours, et qu'au fond de la cuisine Suzy-Mary improvisait pour ses amis des mélodies d'une voix traînante, vaguement dépressive. Du bout des doigts, Robert Wyatt lui expédia un baiser, puis prit la direction du living-room. En y entrant, Alpha lui apparut souple comme une antilope, superbe, toute de crêpe pourpre vêtue, un fume-cigarette aux lèvres. Au centre de la pièce, les invités dansaient, tanguaient, s'esclaffaient, parlaient fort. Tout ce qu'il est possible d'absorber par la bouche, le nez, les veines était disponible et passait de main en main, de bras en bras. Un grand chauve, torse nu, les jambes en X sur un coin du tapis, initiait au yoga trois filles vaporeuses. Un couple se léchait tête-bêche sur un canapé vert. Des matelas de fumée montaient au plafond. Robert Wyatt laissa Alpha en conversation avec un certain Scott, géant sanglé dans un pantalon en lézard, et, se saisissant d'une bouteille de Southern Comfort, alla écouter Suzy-Mary. À vrai dire, il n'aimait pas sa voix, qui lui rappelait parfois les pépiements d'une grouse, kok, kok, kok, mais son corps, lorsqu'elle chantait, prenait des poses extatiques, qu'il n'était pas ennuyeux d'observer. Elle venait d'interpréter quelques airs connus tirés d'anciennes comédies musicales écossaises, et son auditoire reprenait les refrains en hurlant. Kok ! Kok ! Kok ! Robert Wyatt, entre deux gorgées de whisky, secoua ses longs cheveux châtains. Dans le living-room, le grand chauve et les filles vaporeuses s'étaient mêlés à l'essaim des danseurs, Scott et Alpha avaient disparu, et le canapé servait maintenant de table à un type corpulent qui découpait à l'aide d'une scie un jambon d'York à l'os.

Chaude et moite était l'atmosphère lorsque, vers minuit, quelqu'un eut l'idée d'ouvrir une fenêtre donnant sur Lanark Road. Spontanément, un groupe se forma pour contempler les étoiles. Le ciel était noir, zébré de bleu. Des phalènes voltigeaient sous la lumière des lampadaires. À chaque passage de voiture, le groupe applaudissait. Peu à peu, les éclairs d'une jubilation collective se répandirent autour de la fenêtre. Une jeune fille à la chevelure argentée s'avança au-dessus du vide pour rafraîchir sa poitrine nue, et un ancien membre du groupe The Nice se frotta aussitôt à elle.

En se rappelant qu'il voulait parler à Alpha, Robert Wyatt était parti à la recherche d'une deuxième bouteille de Southern Comfort. Il déambulait depuis un moment dans l'appartement quand il remarqua la fenêtre ouverte et se mit à jouer des coudes pour être au premier rang. Une Bentley dans la rue glissa tel un saumon. Le groupe s'exclamait de plus belle. Suzy-Mary avait perdu son public et se demandait pourquoi. Robert Wyatt montrait maintenant un sourire flottant. Le grand chauve ronflait sur le tapis. Il n'y avait plus de jambon à l'os ni de type corpulent. Les filles vaporeuses se tortillaient au rythme de « Suffragette City ». Alpha sortit d'une chambre, une ceinture en lézard à la place du cou. Le sourire de Robert Wyatt était de plus en plus flottant. La fenêtre était toujours ouverte au-dessus de Lanark Road. Les applaudissements se multipliaient. Les exclamations fusaient. Les corps vibraient et vacillaient. C'est alors que Robert Wyatt empoigna quelque chose qui n'existait pas, sa main droite fit un drôle de mouvement, il bascula dans le vide et, quatre étages plus bas, s'écrasa sur le trottoir.

Robert Wyatt n'était pas le premier buveur de Southern Comfort venu. Il était l'un des fondateurs du groupe de rock britannique et déjà légendaire Soft Machine, où il avait joué de la batterie, des claviers, et chanté de sa voix d'angelot. Avec Soft Machine, il avait, entre 1968 et 1971, enregistré quatre albums, dont les trois premiers au moins furent considérés par la critique, même celle du Melody, comme une contribution essentielle à l'évolution du rock anglais. S'éloignant de Soft Machine où la liberté créatrice s'était étiolée sous la direction monarchique de l'organiste Mike Ratledge, Robert Wyatt avait ensuite entamé une carrière sous son nom, réalisant un premier album, The End of an Ear, puis, à l'enseigne du groupe Matching Mole qu'il avait récemment fondé, deux autres disques où notre batteur-pianiste-chanteur renouvelait ses sources d'inspiration dans des compositions sophistiquées, mi-légères, mi-neurasthéniques.

En s'écrasant à l'âge de vingt-huit ans sur un trottoir de Londres, Robert Wyatt survécut par miracle à sa chute, mais elle le laissa paraplégique pour le restant de ses jours. Les semaines suivantes, des amis, pas mal d'admirateurs se lamentèrent sur le destin réduit à pas grand-chose d'un artiste talentueux, dont les projets dépendraient maintenant de deux roues en caoutchouc. Puis l'été arriva à son terme et d'autres événements surent capter l'attention, il y eut d'autres visages où projeter ses désirs, d'autres concerts, d'autres parties. On oublia cette nuit à Maida Vale et le drame ayant assombri l'anniversaire d'Alpha et de Suzy-Mary. On finit même par oublier un peu le pauvre Robert Wyatt, cloué dans une clinique de la ville de Brighton, dont il sortit au bout de six mois, en plein hiver, avec des jambes défuntes et un plaid sur les genoux – situation peu enviable, on l'imagine, pour jouer du rock.

Si Skip Taylor, du Melody, s'intéressa tellement à la chute de Robert Wyatt, c'est qu'elle incarnait à ses yeux la vanité de cet art qu'il détestait et dans lequel son magazine, pensait-il, s'était déjà trop vautré. À vrai dire, ce qu'il détestait n'était pas la musique elle-même. Il était capable d'admettre que telle ou telle production à la mode n'était pas sans mérite. Mais il tenait absolument en horreur les rôles que ces musiciens jouaient en se prenant pour les héros d'une vie transfigurée par des forces nouvelles et faussement supérieures. Cette mascarade l'horripilait. Et même s'il n'avait rien contre Robert Wyatt en personne – il avait même plutôt aimé son jazzy The End of an Ear –, il exploita sans pudeur ce fait divers tragique dans le seul but de souligner une fois de plus les errements de ce prétendu style de vie.

L'accident de Robert Wyatt connut pourtant un développement inattendu. Quelques semaines seulement après sa sortie de la clinique de Brighton, alors même qu'on l'avait oublié, l'homme-du-quatrième-étage enregistrait à Londres, au Marauder Studio, un disque tout à fait inouï, Rock Bottom, reconnu aussitôt comme l'une des plus extraordinaires créations musicales de son époque, et même comme un pur et merveilleux chef-d'œuvre.

Marcus, dans les années qui suivirent la sortie du disque et qui correspondaient à la fin de son adolescence, y voyait surtout une beauté vénéneuse. Si les écoutes successives n'épuisaient pas son intérêt ni la fascination que cette musique pro-duisait sur lui, il ne l'aimait pas vraiment pourtant (beaucoup moins que Carl en tout cas). Lorsque Rock Bottom, dans les appartements qu'il occupait ici ou là, tournait sur un électrophone, Marcus entendait le chant éploré d'un homme regrettant ses jambes, sa jeunesse, une part de sa puissance perdue, et ce chant, les jours fragiles, l'enveloppait d'un sentiment de malaise dont il n'était pas dupe.

Au cours de sa vie, comme tout un chacun, des choses fâcheuses lui étaient arrivées. Il avait été malheureux. À Metz, où il s'était parfois senti seul ; en Espagne, où Sarah l'avait quitté ; à Québec, où on l'avait volé et même humilié ; aux Pays-Bas, où il avait été de nouveau seul. Ces infortunes étaient une dent cariée : tantôt il avait l'impression qu'elle lui forait le crâne, tantôt elle se faisait oublier. Il se sentait sans moyens pour la soigner efficacement. Quand sa dent se réveillait, il pensait que les réalités désolantes du monde rehaussaient sa propre désolation. Et la voix de Robert Wyatt, aussi envoûtante fût-elle, l'attristait. Si, à la fin des années soixante-dix, il écoutait encore ce disque, c'était par complaisance, comme pour toucher sa dent malade. Telle fut la première influence de Robert Wyatt sur sa vie. Rock Bottom était une œuvre noire qui accompagnait ses moments difficiles.

Aujourd'hui, alors que nous étions à trois jours du Noël 2009, Gladys lui avait téléphoné, et en l'écoutant parler de Carl, Marcus avait pour la première fois songé à autre chose. La veille, il était allé dans le couloir de son appartement encombré d'étagères, s'était agenouillé au-dessus d'une pile de disques tassés dans un carton et avait lui-même été étonné d'y retrouver si aisément le 33 tours de 1974.

Les premières mesures de Rock Bottom déroulent le son brumeux d'un harmonium où se mêlent diverses percussions, sèches ou aiguës, discrètes, bruits d'un robinet qui fuit, tintements de verres, glockenspiel, avant les notes oscillantes d'un piano et un étrange vibrato qui pourrait provenir d'un poste de radio où l'on chercherait en vain une station fantôme. Puis la voix de Robert Wyatt. Cette voix, Marcus ne l'avait plus écoutée depuis près de trente ans, au point d'avoir cet après-midi de décembre la curieuse impression de découvrir un album inconnu, comme si Rock Bottom renfermait une tout autre histoire que celle qu'il imaginait :

You look different every time
You come from the foam-crested brine
It's your skin shining softly in the moonlight
Partly fish, partly porpoise, partly baby sperm whale
Am I yours ?
Are you mine to play with ?
D'une fois sur l'autre tu n'es jamais le même
Tu es tout de sel, de mousse et d'écume
Ta peau brille doucement au clair de lune Partie poisson, partie marsouin, partie bébé cachalot
Est-ce que je suis à toi ?
M'appartiens-tu assez pour jouer avec moi ?

À cause de son accident, il était impossible à Robert Wyatt de jouer de son ancienne batterie. Trop lourde, trop incommode, elle réclamait une mobilité des membres qu'il avait perdue. Je ne serai plus jamais batteur, s'était-il dit à l'hôpital de Stoke Mandeville. Je ne serai plus jamais moi-même. Mais en réfléchissant à sa condition et constatant que le traitement réservé à sa colonne vertébrale ne donnait aucun résultat, il ne s'était pas réfugié dans des pensées dévastatrices, ne s'était pas mis à désespérer ou à broyer du noir. Grâce à une force d'âme peu commune, il avait forgé une autre idée. Devenir producteur pour injecter de l'originalité dans des chansonnettes incolores ? Sûrement pas. Participer symboliquement à des disques avec le soutien bienveillant de quelques amis musiciens ? Pas davantage. Son issue ne serait pas plus un pis-aller qu'un compromis : ce serait une conversion radicale. Robert Wyatt s'était évertué à concevoir depuis son lit de paraplégique un tout autre jeu, une autre manière de jouer de la musique et de se servir de son talent. Un jeu, non de reconquête (c'en était fini de la conquête et de la gloire) mais de réenchantement. Le jeu libre d'un homme seul qui acceptait ce qui lui revenait. Et si Rock Bottom constitue un pur et merveilleux chef-d'œuvre, c'est en raison de cet acquiescement, de ce oui franc donné aux événements pour mieux les dépasser.

C'est vers midi que Gladys avait téléphoné à Marcus pour lui annoncer que le score de Carl, d'après Frisch, avait pris ces jours-ci une mauvaise direction, que de 6, puis 7, puis 8 où il était parvenu début décembre, laissant même espérer un 9 qui eût été un vrai retour au monde humain, son score de Glasgow était soudain retombé à 7, puis descendu à 6, et dégringolé à 5, comme si les fonctions vitales de son frère s'affaiblissaient et s'éteignaient les unes après les autres, et que son état, jugé désormais stationnaire, ne pût plus inspirer chez ses proches que de l'angoisse. De ses grognements encourageants, il n'était plus du tout question. Encore moins d'un rétablissement.

« Il ne reviendra plus, Marcus, lui dit Gladys. Il peut rester comme ça pendant des mois ou des années, m'a dit Frisch, mais il ne reviendra plus. Il n'y a jamais de miracle. » Marcus, qui n'avait pas rendu visite à Carl depuis presque trois semaines, était ennuyé pour répondre à Gladys. Il se remémora

NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS
for A. Palace
Phil Manzane considered as a pair substitute

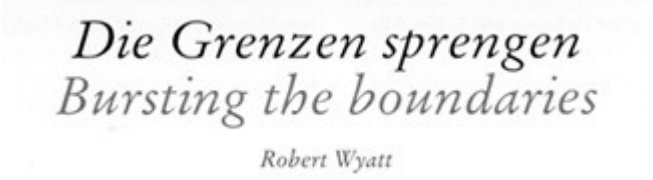
Flamenco

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Zoom 1 > Zoom 2



AUGE & OHR - EAR & EYE
Begegnungen mit Weltmusik
Encounters with World Music

Dans cet ouvrage de 188 pages "Rencontre avec la musique du monde", paru en 2004, Christoph Wagner invite de nombreux musiciens et compositeurs à livrer leur vision et leur perception de musiques qui les ont particulièrement marqués même si parfois éloignées de leurs pratiques habituelles...

Terry Riley, Maurico Kagel, Pauline Oliveros, mais aussi Jah Wobble, Lol Coxhill et bien d'autres nous dévoilent des facettes souvent inédites de leurs goûts et centres d'intérêts musicaux.

Dans un texte intitulé "Bursting the boundaries", Robert Wyatt nous introduit au flamenco, musique qu'il a découverte par l'intermédiaire de sa femme Alfreda et qui, selon lui, fait éclater les frontières...

Un CD illustre la plupart des 38 textes rédigés en anglais et en allemand de cet ouvrage qui comporte également de très nombreuses photos de pratiques musicales captées dans le monde entier au début du XXème siècle.

Meine Frau brachte mich mit Flamenco in Berührung, weil sie gerne nach Spanien reiste. Obwohl wir nach Nordspanien gingen, trafen wir dort im Umland von Barcelona auf eine andalusische Gemeinde von beachtlicher Größe, die aus dem armen ländlichen Süden in den industrialisierten Norden gezogen war. Auswanderer haben ein viel leidenschaftlicheres Verhältnis zu ihrer Kultur als die Leute, die dort leben, wo sie geboren sind. In der arbeitsfreien Zeit fanden in den Dörfern um Barcelona kleine Zusammenkünfte (penas) statt, wobei eine freundliche Rivalität darüber ausgetragen wurde, welches die Heimat des besten Flamenco sei: Cordoba, Sevilla oder Granada.

Was mir als Flüchtling aus der Rockmusik als

My wife introduced me to Flamenco first because she liked to go to Spain. Although we would only go to the north of Spain, there is so much internal immigration where people from the poorer rural south have gone to find work in the industrial north. So there is a sizeable Andalusian community around Barcelona. In some ways immigrants are more passionate about sustaining their culture than people who still live where they come from. So these Southerners now found themselves in the villages around Barcelona, and when they were not working they had their social occasions called peñas. There was friendly rivalry about which is the real home of the best Flamenco: Cordoba, Seville or Granada.

erstes auffiel, war, dass bei den Zusammenkünften, die in einfachen Räumen stattfanden, alle Generationen anwesend waren. Großmütter und Großväter starrten dabei wie versteinert die jungen Leute an und pflegten - wobei sie auf die Jungen zeigten - zu sagen: "Die singen gerne, habe aber keine Ahnung!" Erst am Ende eines Abends standen sie manchmal auf, um diesen fantastischen hohen Gesang anzustimmen. Die alten Leute waren wie guter Wein: mit dem Alter wurden sie besser und besser. Alle erkannten das an. Natürlich gab es auch Kinder und sexy junge Frauen und Männer, die brillant waren. In dieser Kultur schien Raum für jedes Alter zu sein.

Die Tänze waren hauptsächlich Tänze der Zigeuner, die oft Teile der Kultur eines Landes länger bewahren als die Sesshaften. Sie leben in einer Art Zeitkapsel. Als wir dort waren, liefen die Zigeunerinnen in Stockelschuhen, engen Röcken, Pelzmänteln und toupiertem Haar herum, während die spanischen Frauen alle Feministinnen in Jeans waren. Trotzdem waren diese Zigeunerinnen hartgesotten und ließen sich von den Männer nichts gefallen.

Der Flamenco hört sich für mich alles andere als europaïsch an, abgesehen von der Tatsache, dass die Gitarrenakkorde temperiert gestimmt werden. Aber der Gesangs passt nicht in dieses System.
Es ist faszinierend zu hören, wie die Sänger absolut sicher die Räume zwischen den Noten finden, was man normalerweise als verstimmt bezeichnet würde. Diese Gesang wird hier aber mit einer solchen Autorität praktiziert, dass klar wird: "verstimmt" gibt es nicht. Jeder kennt die exakten Töne. Es ist eine Musik, die noch nicht gezähmt ist. Außerdem besitzt sie eine ungeheure Disziplin. Als Musiker, der früher recht schwierige Musik machte, war ich überrascht, eine Volksmusik zu finden, die derart knifflig war - allein schon rhythmisch.

In dieser Tradition gibt es verschiedene Liedformen, die auf Tänzen beruhen. Einige sind sehr langsam, jenseits eines Tempos, andere sind kubanisch beeinflusst, wieder andere mexikanisch.

Die pure Intensität des Gesangs steht in deutlichem Kontrast zu modernem Singen, das von der Annahme ausgeht, ein Mikrofon zu benutzen, wodurch die alte Fähigkeit richtig laut zu singen verloren geht. Im Flamenco wird sie noch benötigt. Es ist rohe Soulmusik.

Da der Flamenco spezifisch spanisch ist, kann man davon ausgehen, dass einige spanische Folktraditionen in ihn eingeflossen sind. Und da Andalusien über Jahrhunderte das Juwel in der Krone des islamischen Reiches war, scheint Flamenco auch bestimmte arabische Einflüsse zu besitzen, Einflüsse von Kunstmusik der verfeinertsten Art. Diese Einflüsse wirkten auf die lokalen Tänze ein und daraus scheint der

We were caught in a fascinating social world. The first thing I noticed as a refugee from rock music was that at a peña every generation would be represented in a very simple room: there would be the grandfather and grandmothers starring stonily at the young people. They said: they love to sing but they don't know anything talking about the younger generation. At the end of the evening sometimes they would get up and you would get this fantastic sort of high singing. These old people were like good wine: they got better and better. That was accepted by everybody. There were also childrend who were brilliant, and sexy young women and men - there seemed to be room in this culture for every age.

Nearly all dances seemed to be gypsy dances. What gypsies often seem to do is to preserve a bit of the culture in the country where they live, longer than the natives. They live in a kind of time warp. When we were there the gypsy women were going around in high heeled shoes, tight skirts and fur coats and big hair, while the Spanish women were all feminists in jeans. But these gypsy women were tough cookies and any men who stepped out of line got a real earful.

The music itself is just not anything which I would call European, apart from the fact that it is anchored in guitar chords and the guitar is tuned, as all European instruments are. But for the singing it's clear that the notes are definitely not quite part of that. It is fascinating to hear the singing. The singers are very secure in finding the spaces between the notes which would be considered out of tune, and that's done with such authority that you notice there is no such thing as out of tune. Everybody knows it. But they are just playing music that hasn't been tamed yet. It's anchored but not tamed. It takes enormous discipline. As a musician who used to play music which was quite difficult to learn, I was impressed to find a folk music that was so difficult to follow even rhythmically. If you tried to clap along as a tourist you have to be careful.
You have to know where you are clapping and where the beats are.

There are various types of songs, based on dance. Some are very slow - out of tempo. Some are rather Cuban influenced, Mexican influenced.

The sheer power of the singing is in such contrast to modern singing which is based on the assumption that you have a microphone. That has been a big influence on singing, because it means that the old discipline where everybody had to learn to sing extremely loud doesn't often apply. But in Flamenco it definitely does. It's raw soul music.

spezifische Flamenco-Stil entstanden zu sein. Es ist also eine Kultur, die die Grenzen und Beschränkungen des europäischen Notensystems sprengt, und jeder, der an sogenannter Avantgarde-Musik interessiert ist, sollte die Überzeugungskraft bewundern, die den Flamenco davon abhält, jemals in ein europäisches Klischee zu passen.

Robert Wyatt is a singer and songwriter who plays the drums, keyboards, trumpet and bass guitar. He was born in 1945 in Bristol, England and became a member of The Wild Flowers in 1964.
In 1966 he was a founding member of Soft Machine and worked with the band as drummer and singer until 1971. In 1971 he started a solo career and recorded his first solo album. From 1971 to 1973 he was leader of jazz-rock band Matching Mole. From 1974 he has released several solo albums and worked with Kevin Ayers, Carla Bley, Brian Eno, Paul Weller, Phil Manzanera, Dave Mason, Elvis Costello and Mike Oldfield.
He lives in Louth, Lincolnshire, England.

Selected discography
Cuckooland (Hannibal/Rykodisc HNCD 1468)
Dondestan (Hannibal/Rykodisc HNCD 1436)
Shleep (Hannibal/Rykodisc HNCD 1418)

Flamenco is especially Spanish in a strange way. It has definitely absorbed some Spanish folk tradition but there are also a lot of Arabic influences. Because Andalusia was the jewel in the crown of the Islamic empire in its heyday and was Islamic for a very long time, there seems to be a very specific Arabic input of art music of the most refined type. It has filtered through the local dances and that seems to be really where the distinctive Flamenco style derives from. So it's a culture that cannot be identified as specifically European. It bursts the boundaries and the limits set upon it by the harmonic major-minor scales of European music. It is a defined stand from outside. Anybody who is interested in avant garde culture should admire the strength of conviction which stops Flamenco ever quite fitting into an European stereotype.

Flamenco-Gitarrist und Tänzer, Granada, Spanien, Anfang 20. Jahrhundert
Flamenco guitarist and dancers, Granada, Spain, early 20th century

Happening - Summer 1967 - Côte d'Azur

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Rare footage of Soft Machine performing naked at the 1967 Sun Love happening in Cogolin, near Saint Tropez, on the French Riviera.

"The Picasso part lasted an hour, that depended on the Soft Machine, and afterwards there were happenings, concerts… An American actor told us 'come back to my place, I've got a swimming pool', so we went and we created a happening which took the piss out of the faux-mystics, and we made a pseudo ritual to the rising sun, we took the piss out those people who were taking the piss out of the hippies, it was Sun Love…" (J.J. Lebel)

Extrait de Sunlove de J.J. Lebel (Ed. RE:VOIR), avec Soft Machine - Août 1967
N/B - 16mm

“My second movie, SUNLOVE was shot in 16mm color in 1967, mostly with friends such as a bunch of Living Theatre actors and others who happened to be in town. It starts out with the straight reportage of one of my happenings, SUNLOVE, where about fifty people sat naked, looking calmly at the sunset. Not really "worshipping" the sun but identifying with its slow motion dropping into the horizon. We had taken LSD, it was sort of a naturalistic meditative ritual connecting with the cosmic day/night cycle, amongst pine trees in which birds were singing themselves to sleep as the sun went down, above the Bay of Saint-Tropez. This took place on the property of an American actor straight from Hollywood called Ricky Cooper who had visited our Picasso play "Desire Caught by the Tail" (Le Desir attrape par la queue) directed by yours truly and produced by Victor Herbert. The Soft Machine were there because they had also taken part in my version of the Picasso play, that had taken place in the suburbs of Saint-Tropez, under a giant rented circus tent. Picasso gave me the rights to put on his play, which has not very much to do with theater, but had a lot to do with Dadaism and eroticism.”

"So, we filmed the SUNLOVE Happening around and in Ricky's swimming pool. Some of the people you see in there are anonymous friendly nomads from all over the world, but also included some of the Warhol gang, such as Ultra Violet, who was also in the Picasso play by the way, and the great sculptor John Chamberlain, who was her boyfriend then. They are some of the people that are naked swimming around such as the Soft Machine rock band, they were all naked playing music stoned and dancing as in a medieval fresco depicting Paradise."

"What is the music on the film, the whole length of the movie?

Finally, when I reached 80, the Centre Pompidou decided to give me a show - that was five years ago - they included my two movies in the exhibition along with paintings and collages. "But there's something missing," they said, "it's the music." I said, "Well, you know, we didn't have any money to tape music. We just shot silent movies." One of the technicians at the Paris Cinematheque, where they cleaned up the movie for the show, said "Well, I have some old vintage Soft Machine material, and if you want, I'll do some editing for you and use that as music for the film." I said, "Do what you want," and he did. That's the music that you hear. But it was done 50 years after the movie was shot."
(Interview with J.J. Lebel by Pip Chodorov / 2020 - in booklet accompanying the DVD SunLove).

Dans un passionnant entretien avec Aymeric Leroy, publié en 2021, Mike Zwerin évoque cet été 1967 au cours duquel Soft Machine se produira à de nombreuses reprises sur la Côte d'Azur.

0:00 / 7:51

American jazz critic Michael Zwerin wrote the first major article on Soft Machine for Down Beat in the summer of 1967, when he chanced upon the band in Saint-Tropez performing in front of the Café des Arts. Subsequently he witnessed the band playing as part of the avant-garde play by Picasso "Le Désir Attrapé par la Queue" and took Robert Wyatt to the Antibes Jazz Festival to meet saxophonist Paul Desmond who was performing there with the Dave Brubeck Quartet.

Homonymie

ABÉCÉDAIRE

LP O'Donel Levy - Time Has Changed - mint- . Robert Wyatt Davide E. Smith Butta

eBay-Garantie

Surprise en consultant Ebay - il y a quelques années - Robert Wyatt crédité sur un album inconnu au bataillon, Times has changed, sorti en 1977...

Il ne me fallut pas chercher bien longtemps pour me rendre à l'évidence, cet album avait bel et bien existé et Robert Wyatt y tenait la batterie, à une époque où je le croyais plutôt retiré des affaires...

Discogs référençait l'album avec un maximum d'informations... Etait-ce le chaïnon manquant entre Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard et At last I'm Free ? Ou bien la trace d'une tentative de nouvelle carrière aux States ? Et cette mention à peine croyable : "Style : Fusion- Jazz-Funk" ??

Quelle étrange découverte !

More Images

O'Donel Levy – Time Has Changed

Label:	Lester Radio Corporation – LRC-9319
Format:	Vinyl, LP, Album
Country:	US
Released:	1977
Genre:	Jazz
Style:	Fusion, Jazz-Funk

Tracklist

A1	Time Has Changed
A2	Have You Heard
A3	Dancing Girl
B1	Butta
B2	Sophisticated Disco
B3	Love Will Never Die

Credits

Art Direction – Andrew R. Miele, Jr.
Bass – Marcel Turner
Creative Director [Musical Supervisors] – Brad Baker, Lance Quinn
Design, Illustration – Hal Wilson Drums – Robert Wyatt ← ?
Engineer [Recording And Remix Engineer] – Ed Stasium
Flute – George Young (2)
Guitar – O'Donel Levy
Percussion – Jimmy Maelen
Piano, Synthesizer – Robert Butta*
Producer – Sonny Lester
Saxophone, Flute – David E. Smith
Trumpet – Jimmy Wilson
Vocals – Aleta Greene

Notes

Recorded at Flite 3 Recording Studio, Baltimore and Mediasound Studios, New York.

Poursuivant mon enquête, je découvris sur You Tube un des morceaux de l'album, et à l'écoute nul doute possible : ce n'était pas notre Robert aux drums...

Il ne me restait plus qu à chercher l'explication à la source et réussit à trouver l'email du guitariste O'Donel Levy qui me répondit sans tarder :

" Robert (Bob) Wyatt was the drummer in my band from here in the Baltimore/Washington DC area. The last I heard - he now lives somewhere in Brazil. O'D."

L'enquête touchait à sa fin - nous étions en mars 2005 et je classais ce dossier en me disant qu'un jour j'en écrirai quelques mots sur le site..

Peu de temps après je découvris l'existence de Robert Wyatt, pianiste et concertiste émérite et me dis que, décidemment, un Robert Wyatt pouvait en cacher bien d'autres...

How The Band Works

ABÉCÉDAIRE

L'Experience Music Project est un musée de la musique situé à Seattle (USA) totalement dédié aux musiques populaires du 20ème siècle. C'est aussi un site internet très documenté - empsfm.org (lien inactif en 2016) - qui diffuse régulièrement de nombreux documents sur les musiques, les musiciens et les pratiques instrumentales.

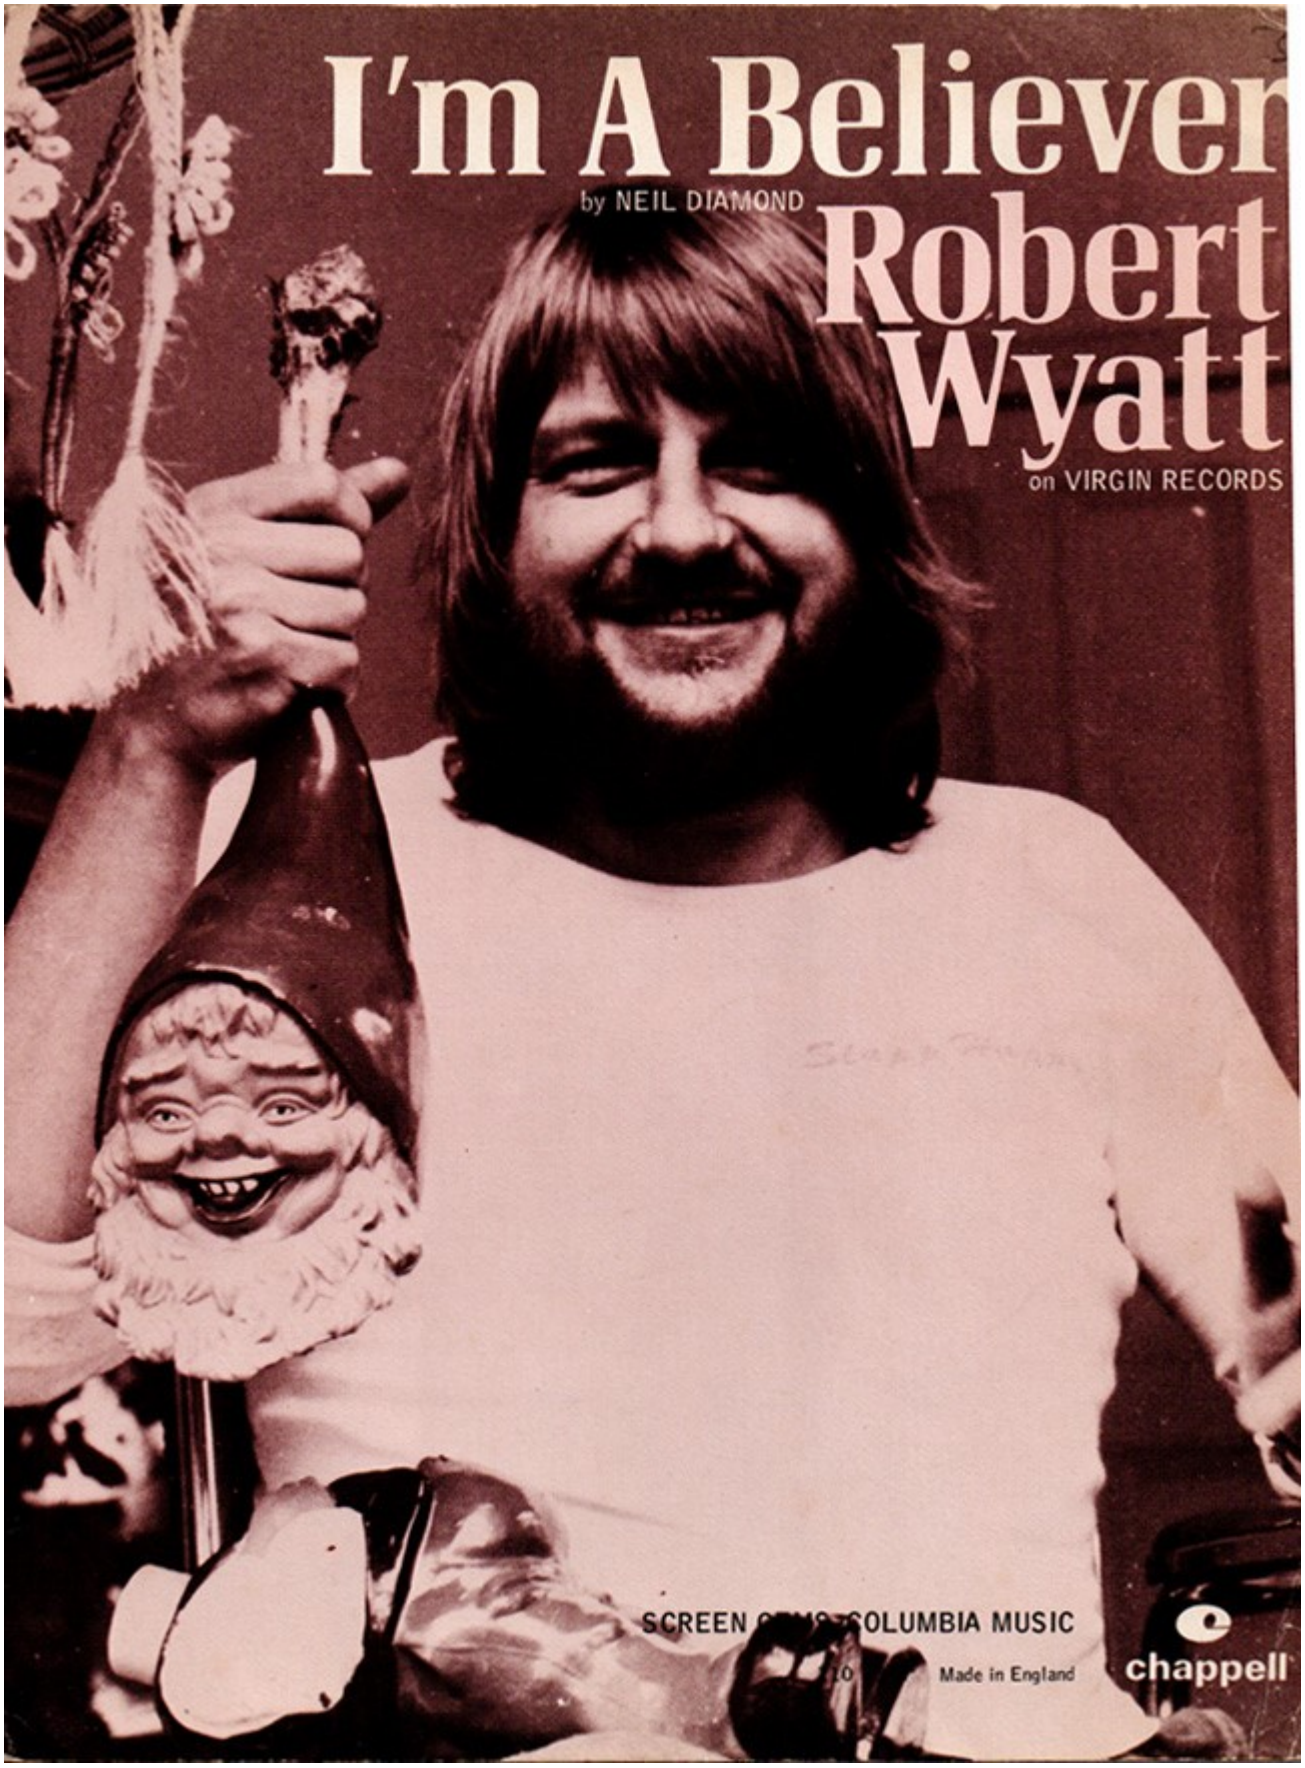
L'EMP diffuse deux vidéos de Robert Wyatt dans ses archives: How The Band Works - ci-dessous - et Jazz et Max Roach.

The Player: Robert Wyatt is a singer-songwriter and former drummer for the British art rock band the Soft Machine.

My parents used to advertise for lodges, which was a source of income for my parents who didn't have much of an income, and one of the people who came to stay with us was a drummer from California who'd studied and taught at Bali Drum City, which was run by a drummer called Joe Morello. He came and instead of playing for lodging he taught me drums 'cause he didn't have any money. So his rent was he would teach me drums. So I was taught how to hold the sticks correctly. Now his favorite drummer was a bloke called Philly Joe Jones, and he made me listen to Philly Joe Jones.

Philly Joe Jones, that's not his real name, it just means a drummer from Philadelphia who reminded everybody of the original great Joe Jones. He was the drummer who played with Count Basie. Anyway, this is a very good education in one man. George Nidorf, he taught me not about how to play drums but how the point of drums is and the point of all instruments is their role only really makes sense in the context of other instruments so that you're only a good drummer if you're listening to the bass player, and if you're listening to the other musicians in the band. But the band works as one organism, and that's really what I learned from George.

I'm A Believer



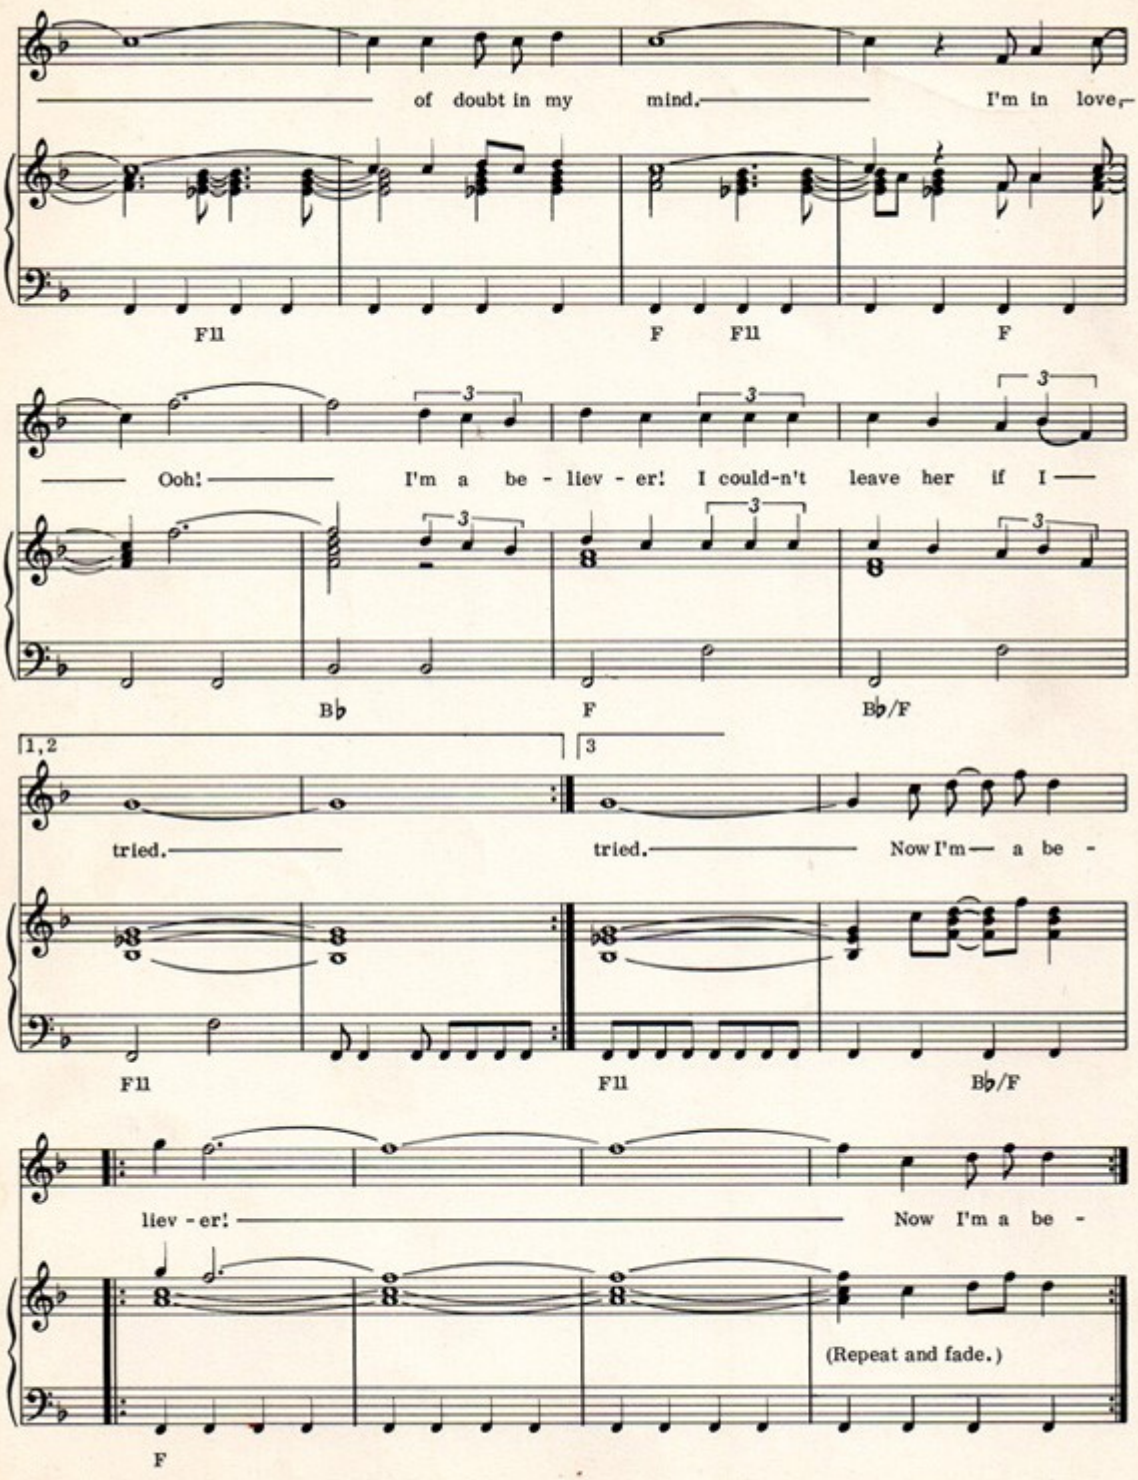
ABÉCÉDAIRE

1974 : I'm A Believer, LE tube de Robert Wyatt. Un morceau de Neil Diamond, d'abord interprété par The Monkees en 1966, puis une scie musicale planétaire qui sera ensuite reprise par des dizaines (des centaines ?) de groupes.

L'interprétation de Robert Wyatt lui vaudra un disque de platine et une invitation à l'émission télévisée de la BBC Top of The Pops en septembre 1974, accompagné par Nick Mason et Fred Frith.

0:00 / 3:12

I'm A Believer
by NEIL DIAMOND
Robert Wyatt
on VIRGIN RECORDS
SCREEN GEMS-COLUMBIA MUSIC
Made in England
chappell



I'm A Believer

by
NEIL DIAMOND

©Copyright 1966 by Screen Gems-Columbia Music, Inc. NY
This arrangement ©copyright 1974 by Screen Gems-Columbia Music, Inc. NY
All rights for Gt. Britain & Eire controlled by Screen Gems-Columbia Music, London
Sole Selling Agent: Chappell & Co Ltd. 50 New Bond Street, London W1

me. That's the way it seemed.
ing? All you get is pain.
me. That's the way it seemed.
B♭ F B♭
Dis - ap - point - ment haunt ed all my dreams.
When I need - ed sun shine I got rain.
Dis - ap - point - ment haunt ed all my dreams.
F Fmaj7 F E♭ E♭6
(3rd x)
Then I saw her face,
E♭maj7 E♭ F F F11
(3rd x)
now I'm a be - liev er! Not a trace—
F F11 F

Printed by Symphony Reproductions Ltd., 1 Langley Lane, London, S.W.8

SINGLE OF THE WEEK

ROBERT WYATT:"I'm A Believer" (Virgin): At Last! At long bloody last, someone has had the sublime good sense to start reviving those wonderful songs of yesterday with which Micky, Mike, Davey, Peter and Bert used to thrill us when we were but tots. And who better to open up the proceedings than that wonderful human being Robert Wyatt, who does Neil Diamond's greatest ever song up proud. Kids, this cuts everything on "Pin Ups" and seven-eighths of Mr.Ferry's revivalist frolics to miniscule shreds. To hear that great old song performed with Wyatt's ineffably weatherbeaten purity just brings tears to my nose, and Dave McRae's piano and Fred Frith's guitars and violins just whip at my senses, man. This is a dynamite record. A DYNAMITE RECORD, I said in case you didn't hear me properly the first time. Moreover, it's the only decent single out this week, so wheel yourself down to your local record shop and spend dem pennies with a clear conscience. Incidentally, the B-side is "Memories", Hugh Hopper's foist-ever song, and a previously-unrecorded trip into the genetic days of the Softs. What are you waiting for, already?

In-Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

- Mark Boyle on meeting Soft Machine at UFO in 1967

- John Peel chats with Robert Wyatt (from Top Gear Christmas special 1969)

- Mike Ratledge about Soft Machine - 1974

- Morrocci Klung! - 1981

- Robert Wyatt and Elvis Costello - 1983

- John Peel Show - 1983

- Robert Wyatt Interview - 1984

- El viatge de Robert Wyatt - 1986

- Robert Wyatt part 1 - 1990

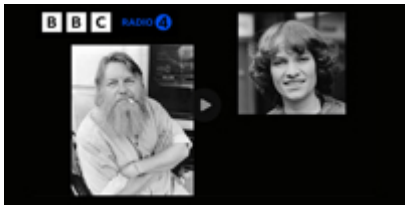
Le Rythme et la Raison - Robert Wyatt : le chant d'un funambule - 1992

Intervista a Robert Wyatt -(di Alessandro Achilli all'uscita di Shleep) - Radio Popolare - 1997



Les chemins de la musique - France Culture - 1997

Dondestan (revisited) Interview - 1998

Little Red Robin Hood - 1998

Midweek with Libby Purves - 1999

- Robert Wyatt on "Radio Shuttleworth" BBC 2000

- Interview "Robert Wyatt on Rock Bottom" by Aymeric Leroy - 2001

- Intervista a Robert Wyatt (di Alessandro Achilli all'uscita di Cuckooland) - Radio Popolare - 2003

- Robert Wyatt Interview by Hector Zazou - France 2 - 2003

- Free Will And Testament - A Robert Wyatt Story - BBC 4 - 2003

- Au Divan du Monde - 2007

- Q & A - Purcell Room - 2007

- Robert Wyatt - Arte Documentary - 2007

- Diggers with Alfreda Benge Alfie Wyatt by Sharon Gal/Edwin Pouncey - 2008

- Interview Robert Wyatt from "Sunny's time now" - 2008

- Robert Wyatt talks to Rosie Swash - 2008

- Robert Wyatt about Canterbury scene on BBC

- Prog Rock Britannia - BBC4 - 2009

- Robert Wyatt about creativity - 2009

- The Muses Within - For The Ghosts Within - 2010

- Jazza Festival 2010

- Off The Page Festival - 2011

- Le sorcier et les sortilèges - Les vendredis de la musique - France Culture - 2011

- Robert Wyatt and Alfie - Domino Radio - 2011

- The Voices Of Robert Wyatt - 2012

- Going Underground - Interview with Robert Wyatt and rare archive footage - 2013

Archie Shepp introduced by Robert Wyatt - 2012

Robert Wyatt, psychédélisme et expérimentations soniques - France Musique 2014

Off The Page 2014: An Audience with Robert Wyatt

Robert Wyatt inspire les frenchies - France Musique - 2015

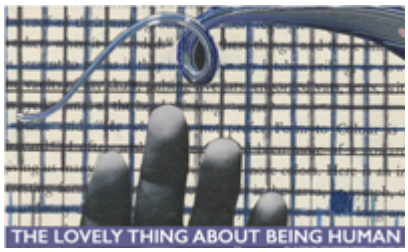
Psychedelic Britannia - 2015

Gavin Esler In Conversation with Robert Wyatt - with music performed by Soupsongs April 4, 2016

Robert Wyatt, l'homme de plusieurs vies - France Culture - 2016

Robert Wyatt played the UFO Club with the Soft Machine 2016

Chatting with Robert and Alfie - 2017



Robert Wyatt interviewed by John Greaves - 2019

Robert Wyatt v/s Bruno Tocanne - 2019

Robert Wyatt and Eddie Van Halen - 2020

- The Lovely Thing About Being Human - 2020

- Fanny Michaëlis raconte "Alifib" et "Alife" - 2022

- Eloge de Robert Wyatt - A Very Good Trip - 2024

- Le rêve aquatique de Robert Wyatt - 2024

- Retour de plage ... Robert Wyatt, un ange à la table - 2024

- Éloge de Kevin Ayers, poète de l’âge psychédélique - A very good trip - 2024

Laurenzo Mattotti sur Robert Wyatt à Italissimo 2025

Soft Machine at UFO 1967

Mark Boyle on meeting Soft Machine at UFO in 1967

Visual artist Mark Boyle (1934-2005) recalls the shock of first coming across Soft Machine at London's UFO Club in early 1967, describes the unique mix and personalities and musical influences in the band, and how quickly he agreed to take his Sensual Laboratory liquid light show on the road with them in England, and later in the US.

A video of Aymeric Leroy.

Duration : 05:52

John Peel chats with Robert Wyatt

John Peel chats with Robert Wyatt (from Top Gear Christmas special 1969)

John Peel's Top Gear show on December 27, 1969. John Peel had a few guests in the show, namely Dick Heckstall-Smith, Robert Wyatt and Sandy Denny. This chat with Robert Wyatt was followed by "The Moon In June" from Soft Machine's Top Gear session recorded on June 10, 1969.

> In Conversation

Mike Ratledge about Soft Machine

Mike Ratledge reminisces about Soft Machine 1974 - WMSN (Campus Radio - Michigan State University).

"Obviously, and unfortunately, NOT a recent interview, and NOT by me... But I thought it would be fun to make a little film out of Mike's interview for WMSN radio in 1974. All credit to them for getting Mike to tell a potted history of Soft Machine from the early days to the time of the interview."

Aymeric Leroy

The full interview with Mike Ratledge (and Allan Holdsworth) by Dave DiMartino can be heard below :

0:00 / 30:03

> In Conversation

Morrocci Klung! interview - September 1981

ABÉCÉDAIRE

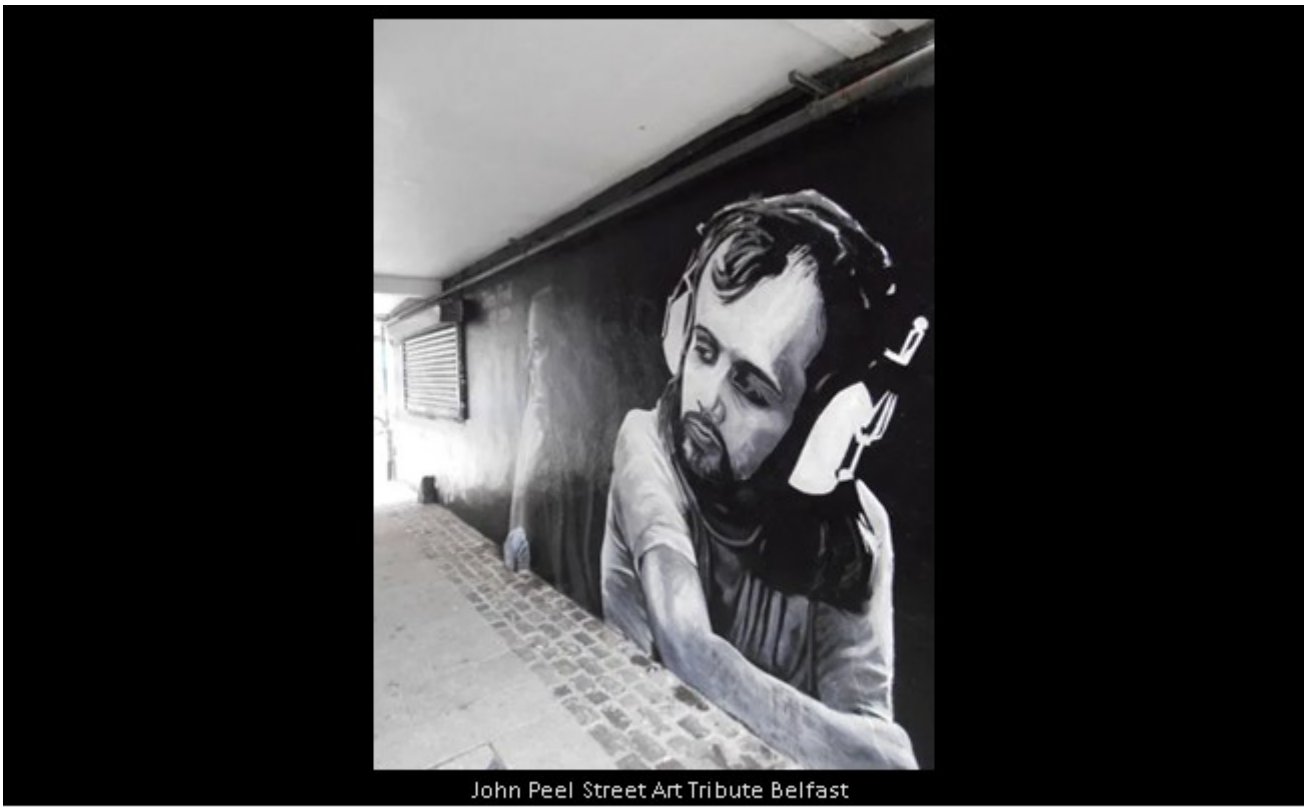
> In Conversation

A Robert Wyatt interview for the 'Morrocci Klung!' tapezine. Previously unreleased full unedited conversation.

>> L'interview sur le site de Podomatic

Robert Wyatt and Elvis Costello

Channel 4 - "Loose Talk"
May 1983
Robert Wyatt and Elvis Costello discuss the release of `Shipbuilding'.
Duration : 10:35



> In Conversation

John Peel Show

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

Interview with Mark Ellen 15th June 1983 - John Peel Show
Duration: 31:05

John Peel on Robert Wyatt's accident - Top Gear - 5 June 1973
Duration : 1:06

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt Interview - 1984

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> In Conversation

ROBERT WYATT INTERVIEW.
Greenwich Sound Radio 'Creatures What You Never Knew About' 1984 Robert Wyatt talks and plays records from his collection (55 mins)

Duration: 55mn.

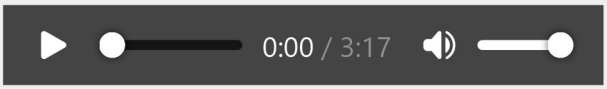
> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

El viatge de Robert Wyatt



ABÉCÉDAIRE

> In Conversation

Extrait de "El viatge de Robert Wyatt", documentaire de 40 mn réalisé par Juan Bufill en 1986 pour le programme Arsenal de la TV3 catalane.
Durée: 9:46

Ce film a été tourné pendant le séjour de Robert Wyatt et Alfie Benge en Espagne, à Castelldefels.
Il comprenait également une reprise voix-piano par Robertt Wyatt de Born Again Cretin.

Robert Wyatt - Born Again Cretin (Live TV3, Barcelona, 1986)

Robert Wyatt, en búsqueda del 'cinturón rojo'

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Robert Wyatt part 1

Robert Wyatt part 1 - réalisation de Nicolas Klotz 1990
Durée : 29:51

Dans le texte ci-dessous, Nicolas Klotz raconte comment la version complète de ce film réalisé pour FR3 en 1990 a pu enfin être mise en ligne sur internet en 2020.
Seuls deux courts extraits étaient jusqu'à ce jour disponibles sur YouTube.

Dans un magnifique texte paru dans la revue Minimum Rock'n'Roll, Jean Songe évoquait ce miracle improbable qui eut bien lieu un soir à la télévision française et que nous pouvons enfin nous aussi célébrer...

J'avais découvert Soft Machine Volume 1 dans un disquaire Porte de St Cloud, j'avais 13 ans. C'est le nom du groupe, la pochette, les titres des morceaux, qui m'avaient attiré.

Les photos sur le dos de la pochette, Mike Ratledge, Kevin Ayers, et Robert Wyatt. À cette époque, je ne parlais pas encore le français. Je suis né en France, mais mon père, qui était monteur de films, est parti travailler sur un film aux États-Unis aussitôt après ma naissance. Nous y sommes restés plus de 10 ans.

À notre retour en France, quasiment du jour au lendemain, il a fallu que j'apprenne à nouveau à parler, car je ne parlais pas un mot de français. Le rock que j'avais commencé à écouter aux États-Unis était, avec les films que je voyais, les seuls liens que je gardais avec ce que je pensais être ma langue. D'où ma virée mensuelle dans ce magasin de disques Porte de St Cloud qui vendait aussi des grilles pains, des aspirateurs, des télévisions. Pas de platine pour écouter avant d'acheter. Je choisissais les disques surtout à partir des pochettes et d'une sorte d'instinct excité qui ne passait pas du tout par des références, puisque je n'en avais pas ou très peu. Les 33 tours coûtaient 20 francs.

L'écoute de Soft Machine 1 m'a complètement renversé, je me disais c'était de la musique expérimentale avec les sons distordus, les durées de morceaux incompréhensibles qui se prolongeaient les uns dans les autres. Et en même temps, tellement rock. Binaire. Mélodieux. Totalement jubilatoire. Avec le temps et la découverte de Coltrane quelques années plus tard, j'ai compris que ce que je trouvais tellement spontané, improvisé, électrique, dans Soft Machine s'inspirait du jazz. J'apprenais aussi que le nom du groupe était le titre d'un livre de William Burroughs. La batterie et la voix de Robert Wyatt étaient extraordinaires. J'avais appris les paroles par cœur, les solos d'orgue, de basse et la batterie, que j'essayais de chanter en même temps que j'écoutais. Le disque a été enregistré, je crois, après une tournée avec Jimi Hendrix dont ils faisaient la première partie. D'où la force binaire, explosive de la machine molle, il fallait tenir le public de Hendrix.

*Très vite après, dans le même magasin de disques, il y avait la pochette noire et blanche de Soft Machine Volume 2. Disque pataphysique, sombre et fleurissant de mélodies magnétiques à 7 temps. Et puis quelques mois plus tard peut-être, l'extraordinaire Moon In June, sur leur troisième album, Third, morceau éblouissant de Robert. Près de 20 minutes pendant lesquelles il chante, parlant presque, siffle. Plus complexe et en même temps, férocement binaire. Réinventant complètement la relation voix-batterie, alors que les autres membres de Soft Machine partaient vers une musique plus jazzy dans laquelle Robert n'était plus que batteur. Remplaçant la voix de Robert par un saxophone, éliminant le chanteur. Robert est parti faire un disque solo avec CBS, The End of an Ear, chef d'œuvre expérimental. Sur le dos de la pochette, près de sa photo, il a écrit * Out of work pop singer. Il a ensuite fondé Matching Mole avec quelques amis. Jeu de mot vivifiant autour de Machine Molle. Deux albums qui donnaient l'impression qu'ils arrivaient à jouer toutes les idées qui passaient par leurs têtes en même temps… Toujours aussi expérimental, avec des chansons pop magiques chantées par Robert, comme O Caroline… et puis cet accident à Venise, alors qu'il accompagnait sa compagne Alfie, script sur le tournage d'un film de Nicolas Roeg, Don't look now (Ne vous retournez pas). Film d'horreur au titre étrangement prophétique. Pendant une soirée, Robert est tombé par la fenêtre, s'est cassé le dos. Accident terrible prolongeant les décès tragiques de Hendrix, Morrison, Joplin, et bientôt Ian Curtis. Fin d'une époque.*

En 1976, Robert réalise un chef-d'œuvre absolu qui pour tout.e.s celles et ceux qui l'aiment, est sans doute un des 10 plus grands albums du rock. Rock Bottom, dont les sonorités si étranges viennent d'un petit orgue pour enfant qu'il a trouvé dans un magasin de jouet, juste avant son accident à Venise. Ouvrant tant d'horizons dans les méthodes d'enregistrements que dans les mélodies, les paroles, plusieurs siècles d'inventivités poétiques et musicales. Robert est un cosmos de fraternité.

En 1990, Martin Meissonnier qui s'occupait de l'émission Megamix me propose de faire un court film sur Robert pour Fr 3. Je suis parti quasiment le lendemain avec une bouteille de vin blanc. Alfie m'attendait à la gare de Louth avec sa 4L. Robert était tellement accueillant, aussi timide que moi. On a passé la nuit à discuter, boire, écouter des disques. Vers les 4h du matin, il dansait dans son fauteuil roulant. Le tournage a commencé le lendemain. Juste une nuit de tournage. Avec deux techniciens venant de Londres. Presque 30 ans plus tard, je n'avais qu'une copie VHS du film. Une amie a fait des recherches et a retrouvé un fichier dans les archives de FR3.

Nicolas Klotz, le 21 juin 2020, à Fécamp

Une sélection de films de Nicolas Klotz est présente sur le site Derives.tv, une revue de cinéma en ligne qui propose de découvrir des films et des textes de cinéastes rares et exigeants.

> In Conversation

Intervista a Robert Wyatt - ottobre 1997

Intervista a Robert Wyatt di Alessandro Achilli per Radio Popolare all'uscita di Shleep - 8/10/97).

- The italian translation (never published anywhere) of the interview for Radio Popolare.

Les chemins de la musique

0:00 / 28:57

LES CHEMINS DE LA MUSIQUE de Alain Dister et Christian Rosset

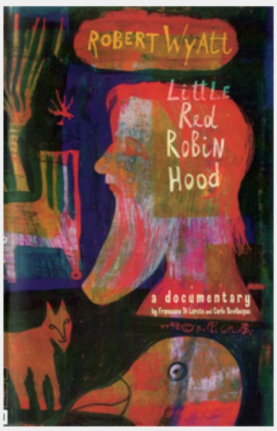
En 1997, Alain Dister propose pour "Les chemins de la musique" sur France Culture une histoire du rock en dix épisodes. Dans ce volet consacré aux musiciens inclassables, il fait la part belle à Robert Wyatt. Christian Rosset, compositeur et créateur radiophonique y est invité à réagir du point de vue académique...

Durée : 23:57

Dondestan (revisited) Interview

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

Robert Wyatt - Dondestan (revisited) interview
1998 - Video interview with Robert Wyatt on the making of Dondestan.



> In Conversation

Little Red Robin Hood

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> In Conversation

> Zoom

Little Red Robin Hood
A documentary by Francesco Di Loreto and Carlo Bevilacqua - 1998
VHS - Running time : about 60'
Black and White
Dolby Surround

Consorzio Produttori Indipendenti
RER RWVID

> In Conversation

Midweek with Libby Purves - 1999

Midweek with Libby Purves - November 17, 1999
Radio 4 BBC.

Robert Wyatt on "Radio Shuttleworth" BBC 2000

Robert Wyatt guest-spot on "Radio Shuttleworth"
BBC Radio 4
March 23, 2000
Durée : 28:00

Robert Wyatt comes in around 10:51.

Robert Wyatt on Rock Bottom

Amyeric Leroy a eu un long entretien avec Robert Wyatt à Londres en juin 2001 à l'occasion du Meltdown Festival dont Robert Wyatt était le curateur.
Cet interview découpé en 6 parties est un témoignage inestimable des conditions psychiques et matérielles qui ont abouti à la création de Rock Bottom.

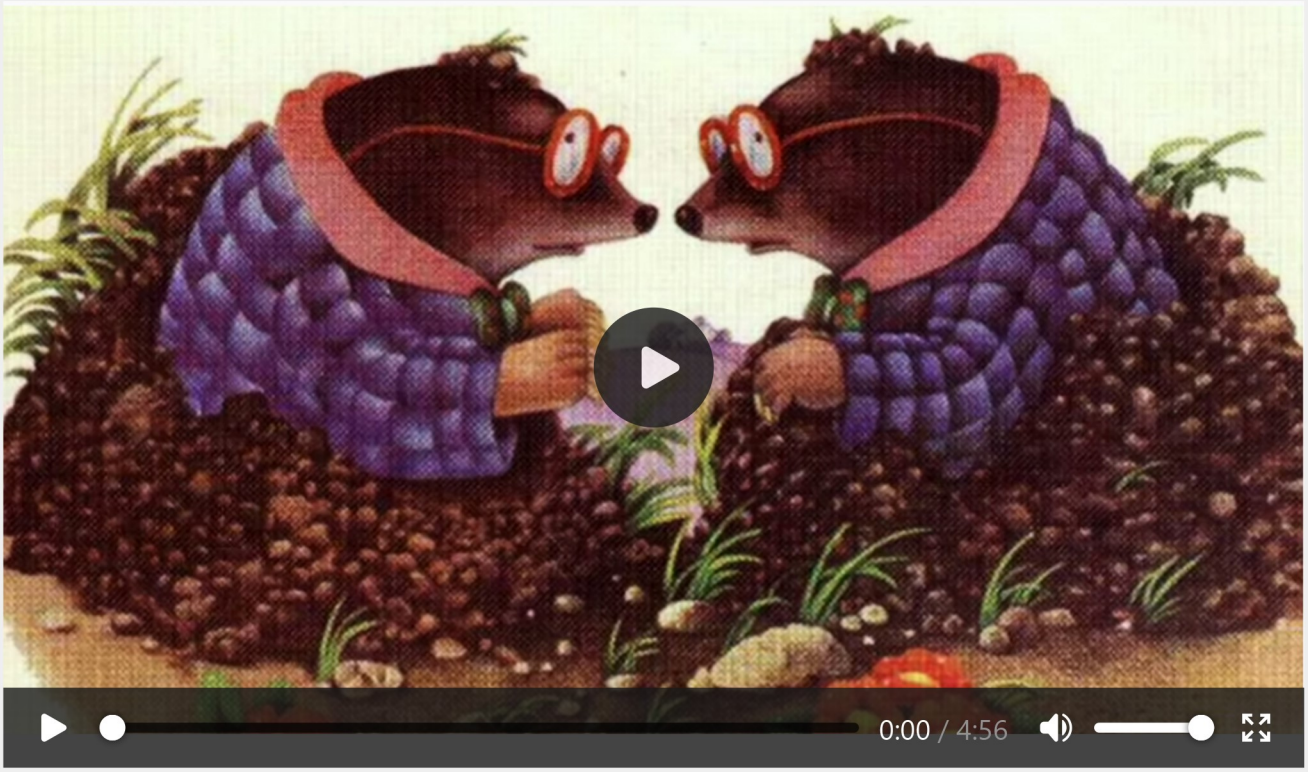
Robert Wyatt on "Rock Bottom" (Part 1 of 6)

From an interview made in 2001, this is a series of edited excerpts that deal with the genesis and contents of Robert's masterpiece "Rock Bottom". In this first part, Robert talks about composing the music in Venice in the Winter of 1972/73, then on his hospital bed after his June 1973 accident, and how Alfie's gift of a cheap organ helped shape the album's unique soundworld.

>> On YouTube here.

Robert Wyatt on "Rock Bottom" (Part 2 of 6)

In this second part, Robert discusses the writing process for the album, and his music in general, and his collaboration with the participating musicians.



>> On YouTube here.

Robert Wyatt on "Rock Bottom" (Part 3 of 6)

In this part we discuss how and in what order Robert's own performances and the contributions of the guest musicians were conceived and recorded, with a particular focus on Ivor Cutler's monologue(s).

>> On YouTube here.

Robert Wyatt on "Rock Bottom" (Part 4 of 6)

In this part we discuss Robert's use of loops on "Rock Bottom" and "Dondestan", then the inspiration behind some of the references in the album's lyrics, beginning with the moles, which prompts a contribution from Alfie (there will be more in the next part).

>> On YouTube here.

Robert Wyatt on "Rock Bottom" (Part 5 of 6)

In this part, prompted by a question about the "Little Red Riding Hood" and "Little Red Robin Hood" (which will be addressed in detail in the final part), Robert explains how his lyrics for "Rock Bottom" aren't meant to convey an unequivocal message, but although they shouldn't be taken literally, they aren't devoid of meaning.

>> On YouTube here.

Robert Wyatt on "Rock Bottom" (Part 6 of 6)

In this final part, we continue to discuss Robert's use of the characters of Little Red Riding Hood and Robin Hood in "Rock Bottom", beginning with a contribution from Alfie. The conversation then moves to Robert's collaboration with Fred Frith on "Muddy Mouse/Mouth", before Robert concludes with some really enlightening insights into his creative process.

>> On YouTube here.

Aymeric Leroy a contribué de multiples manières à faire connaître et aimer la scène de Canterbury : créateur dès les années 90 du site de référence calyx-canterbury.fr, il a publié "L'école de Canterbury" chez Le Mot et le Reste ainsi que d'autres ouvrages consacrés à la musique progressive.
Il participe à de nombreux évènements autour de cette scène musicale dont il a acquis une connaissance encyclopédique souvent sollicitée pour la rédaction des liner-notes de nos albums préférés...

- More about Rock Bottom
- Rock Bottom lyrics
- The record

> In Conversation

CD' Aujourd'hui

CD' Aujourd'hui - 2003 - Émission diffusée le 3 octobre 2003 sur France 2.
Durée : 1:56
Réalisateur : Fabrice Mercier
Interviewer : Hector Zazou

> In Conversation

Free Will And Testament - BBC 4 - 2003

Robert Wyatt - Free Will And Testament - BBC 4 (2003)
Documentaire de la BBC 4 - Durée : 01:08
Robert Wyatt interprète :
- Sea Song
- Gharbzadegi
- September The Ninth
- Left On Man
- Free Will And Testament

Doing the most to boost Wyatt's profile, however, was BBC4's Free Will and Testament: The Robert Wyatt Story, a full-length documentary on the self-confessed woolgatherer. 'As far as I'm concerned,' runs Roberts introductory voiceover, 'I'm dreaming all the time. The only difference is that I come up for daylight and other people the way a whale has to come up for air.' Directed by Mark Kidel, Free Will and Testament was an impressive film, celebrating Robert's fifty-year career while allowing its subject to remain entirely honest and self-effacing. […]

Best of all, Free Will and Testament found Robert performing, albeit without a live audience. He runs through key works from Sea Song to Free Will and Testament, with a band that includes Annie Whitehead, Paul Weller and keyboard player Janette Mason. Robert looks surprisingly relaxed during these filmed performances. Cigarette in hand, peering at the lyrics through reading specs, he clicks his fingers and even manages the occasional smile.

From Different Every Time - The Authorised Biography of Robert Wyatt by Marcus O'Dair (Serpent's Tail - 2014)

Five songs from "Free Will and Testament - A Robert Wyatt Story"

> In Conversation

Q & A - Purcell Room

Robert Wyatt - Q & A, Purcell Room, London 15th Oct 2007

"It's really about the unpredictable mischief of real life - it's sort of chaotic our life. It's about humans and the things we turn to, and looking for fun and stimulus and meaning and stuff."

Robert Wyatt.

> In Conversation

Tracks

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> In Conversation

Tracks - Arte Documentary - 2007
Durée: 8:21

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

An interview with Robert Wyatt

Interview Robert Wyatt from Sunny's time now

Robert Wyatt, the drummer and singer of the original Soft Machine line-up, evokes the intricate relations between the artistic and the political avant-garde and explains how free jazz radicals like Sunny Murray influenced his own musical development.
Louth, 17 April 2008
From the jazz film Sunny's time now by Antoine Prum (2xDVD - Paul Thiltges Distributions/La Bascule)
Duration : 39'

> In Conversation

Music Weekly - The Guardian

Robert Wyatt talks to Rosie Swash - December 5, 2008

Avant-garde hero Robert Wyatt invites Rosie Swash into his beautiful home to talk about his life in music, his denial of vices and how he remains an unclassifiable musician.

>> L'interview sur le site du Guardian

Prog Rock Britannia - BBC4

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

Prog Rock Britannia - BBC4 - 2009
Director : Nigel Planer
Duration : 01:26:13

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt about creativity - 2009 - Liège (Belgique)

September 17, 2009

Robert Wyatt received the insignia of Doctor Honoris Causa at the University of Liège (Belgium) 17 September 2009. (with Archie Shepp, Anthony Braxton, Arvo Pärt, Dick Annegarn, Frederic Rzewski and the late Henri Posseur).

The Muses Within

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

The Muses Within - for the Ghosts Within - 2010 (26mn)
Réalisateur : Tali Atzmon

> In Conversation

Jazza festival 2010

Robert Wyatt talks to Gilad Atzmon

A l'occasion du Jazza Music Festival à la Scala (Londres) les 12 et 13 octobre 2010, Robert Wyatt parle à Gilad Atzmon de la culture de la résistance et de son soutien au peuple palestinien.
Durée : 5:46

Programme du Jazza Festival :

JAZZA FESTIVAL 2010 The Site Is Up & Running

September 22, 2010 / Gilad Atzmon

www.jazzaproductions.squarespace.com

Please spread the message around...

'For the musicians who support the long suffering people of Palestine, silence is simply not an option' Robert Wyatt, 2010

JAZZA Festival 2010 @ the Scala in Kings Cross, London on the 12th & 13th October. The event marks the official launch of the much anticipated Wyatt/ Atzmon /Stephen's new album 'For the Ghost's Within.' (Domino Records) which is performed on both evenings by the Orient House Ensemble, the Sigimos Strings Quartet and the amazing Cleveland Watkiss on vocals. Also performing - Mercury nominated folk phenomenons: the Unthanks sisters, Seb Rochford, Alex Garnett, Pete King, Oren Marshall, Palestinian hip hop from Stormtrap & DJ Eren, troubadour Rory McLeod, virtuoso oud-player Nizar Al-Issa and Sarah Gillespie. Jazza Music Festival is organized in association with the Free Palestine Movement, leading advocates for the humanitarian rights of Palestinians and the right of free access throughout Palestine.

Please come and show your solidarity with the Palestinian people under siege in Gaza!

TICEKETS £20. Door 7.30

TUESDAY 12th OCTOBER 2010

BOOK HERE

Nizar Al-Issa

Sarah Gillepsie Quartet

The Unthanks Sisters.

Wyatt/Atzmon/Stephen Album launch 'For The Ghosts Within' with the Orient House Ensemble,

Sigamos Strings & Cleveland Watkiss – vocals.

WEDNESDAY 13th OCTOBER 2010

BOOK HERE

Shathayah (Ramallah Underground)

Rory McCloud

Wyatt/Atzmon/Stephen Album launch 'For The Ghosts Within' with the Orient House Ensemble,

Sigamos Strings & Cleveland Watkiss – vocals.

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

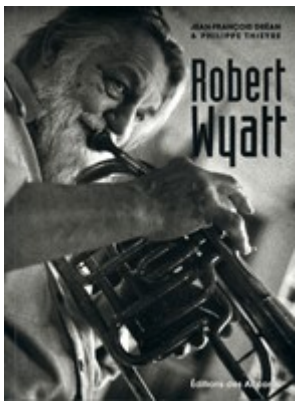
Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Off The Page

Robert Wyatt at the Off The Page Festival 2011

Robert Wyatt talks to Tony Herrington about his favourite music as part of the Off The Page festival 2011, which took place 11 - 13 February 2011 at The Playhouse, Whitstable.
Off The Page is co-produced and co-curated by Sound and Music and The Wire magazine.



> In Conversation

Robert Wyatt, un musicien et ses sortilèges

Philippe Thieyre - 1er avril 2011
LES VENDREDIS DE LA MUSIQUE
Robert Wyatt, le sorcier et ses sortilèges

0:00 / 59:32

LE SORCIER ET SES SORTILEGES
[55 Mo]

Robert Wyatt avec Philippe Thieyre pour son livre « Robert Wyatt » paru aux éditions des Accords (photographies Jean-François Drean).

Programmation musicale
* Générique « Les Vendredis De la Musique » (L.V.D.M.) : De & par Igor Baloste *Secret love par Doris Day. Oeuvre de Fain Sammy & Webster Paul Francis. Label LIVING ERA, réf. 5533
* Sea Song (Wyatt) sur l'album « Rock Bottom » de 1974. Label Virgin
* Extrait : Chet Baker, Nat King Cole et Art Tatum
* Old Europe (Benge/Wyatt) sur l'album "Cuckooland" de 2003. Label Rykodisc
* Dada Was Here (Hopper et Wyatt) par Soft Machine sur l'album « Soft Machine II » de 1969. Label Barclay/ABC
* I'm A Believer (Neil Diamond) de 1974 sous le label Virgin. Ce single est présent notamment sur la compilation « Going Back a Bit : A Little History of Robert Wyatt » paru chez Virgin en 1994.
* At Last I Am Free (Edwards/Rogers) sur l'album « The Ghosts Within » de 2010. Label Domino
* The Verb (Wyatt) sur l'album « Solar Flares Burn For You » de 2003. Label Cuneiform.
* Générique « Les Vendredis De la Musique » (L.V.D.M.) : De & par Igor Baloste * « Oh I wish » de & par Olivier Leroy dans l'album « Contreo ». Label Caravan production.

Plus d'infos sur le livre

Robert and Alfie - Domino Radio

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> In Conversation

A most pleasant afternoon was spent musing on some of robert's favourite jazz and pop tracks, and smoking A LOT of cigarettes at Robert and Alfie's lovely cottage in deepest Lincolnshire.

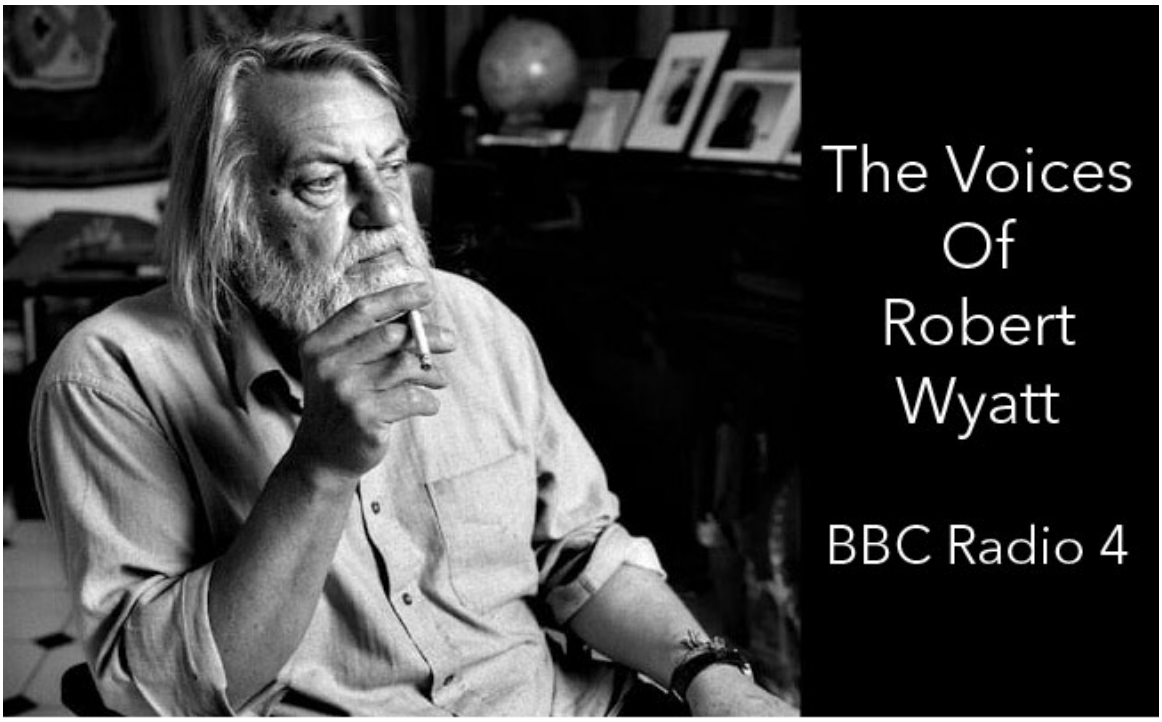
Tune in to hear a completely unedited, intimate and highly revealing recording of all the chat - live and direct from the wyatt's front room.

Originally aired 11/06/11.

Playing tracks by Thelonious Monk, Monica Vasconcelos, Sonny Rollins and Mingus.

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE



Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

The Voices Of Robert Wyatt

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> In Conversation

0:00 / 27:43

Broadcast 2nd October 2012 on BBC Radio 4
Produced by Alan Hall
Duration: 27'43"
Robert Wyatt has one of the most instantly recognisable voices of the last fifty years - famously heard on Elvis Costello's reaction to the Falklands War, 'Shipbuilding'. Wyatt's musical identity and the causes he gives voice to are intricately entwined, as can be heard in this profile of the man and his engagement with matters artistic, political and human.

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

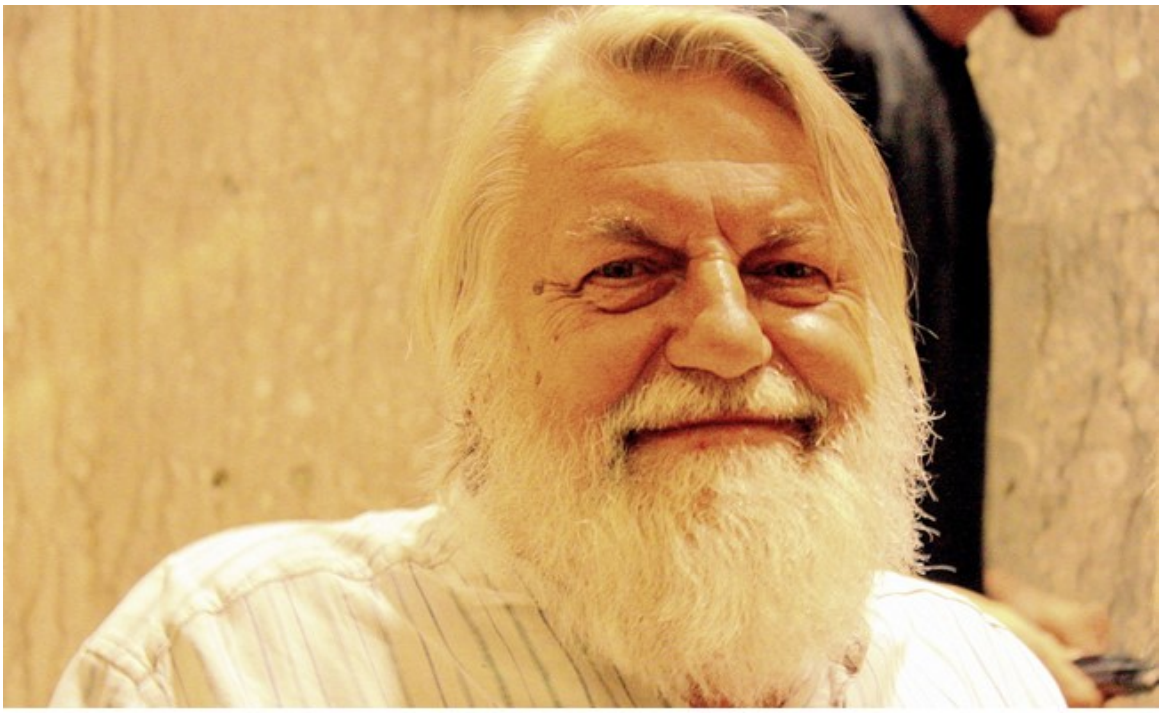
Going Underground

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> In Conversation

Extract from "Going Underground - Paul McCartney, The Beatles and the UK Counter-culture" (2013) with an interview with Robert Wyatt and rare archive footage.
Duration : 04:09

> In Conversation



ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

Robert Wyatt, psychédélisme et expérimentations soniques

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> In Conversation

0:00 / 6:00

France Musique - 18 novembre 2014

A bientôt 70 ans, Robert Wyatt est dans l'actualité, d'abord parce que le psychédélisme et les expérimentations soniques n'auront jamais été aussi présentes dans le monde de la pop, et qu'il en est un des pionniers.

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

<

Archie Shepp

Archie Shepp introduced by Robert Wyatt 2012.
Durée : 2'20''
Robert Wyatt pays tribute to jazz musician Archie Shepp, both of whom contributed to Jean Pierre Muller's exhibition 7 x 7th Street at Summerhall. On 1st August 2012 Archie performed to a packed audience in Summerhall's Dissection Room.

> In Conversation

Off The Page 2014: An Audience with Robert Wyatt

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

Photo: Paul Samuel White

Robert Wyatt in conversation with Marcus O'Dair, opening The Wire's 2014 literary festival for sound and music.

This September 2014, Serpents Tail published Different Every Time: The Authorised Biography Of Robert Wyatt, for which Wyatt collaborated closely with the author and broadcaster Marcus O'Dair. To mark the publication of the book, for Off The Page's opening event Robert Wyatt talked to Marcus O'Dair about some of the most significant moments and episodes in his half a century of music making. The discussion will be prompted by a selection of tracks from a new anthology of Wyatt's music, as well as previously unseen photos taken from the biography.
The talk took place on Friday 26 September, 8pm–10pm, and was followed by an audience question and answer session.
The fourth edition of Off The Page, The Wire's literary festival for sound and music, took place at Bristol's Arnolfini, 26–28 September, and was coproduced by The Wire, Arnolfini and Qu Junktions. Audio recording by Gary Fawle at Events in Sound.

A video excerpt of the event :

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Robert Wyatt inspire les frenchies

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

France Musique la nuit... Vibrato Épisode du dimanche 11 janvier 2015.
Robert Wyatt inspire les frenchies... que sont Daniel Yvinec ou bien encore Pascal Maupeu.
Par Benjamin Hertz

Extraits de l'album « Around Robert Wyatt»
°°° The Song (Blegvad / Grease) Robert Wyatt : voix Matthieu Metzger : solo
°°° Alifib (Wyatt) Rokia Traoré : voix Rémi Dumoulin : saxophone, clarinette (solo)
°°° Kew Rhone (Blegvad / Grease) *Robert Wyatt : voix Yoann Serra : solo  °°° Alliance * (R. Wyatt) Camille : voix Vincent Lafont : solo
°°° Just as You Are (Benge / Wyatt) Yael Naïm : voix Guillaume Poncelet : solo

Orchestre National de Jazz :
Eve Risser : piano, piano préparé, flûte
Vincent Lafont : Claviers, piano, electronics
Antonin Tri Hoang : saxophone alto, clarinette, clarinette basse, piano
Matthieu Metzger : saxophones alto, soprano et MIDI, trombone
Rémi Dumoulin : saxophone ténor, clarinette, clarinette basse

Jocelyn Miennel : piccolo, flûte, flûte basse, electronics
Guillaume Poncelet : trompette, buggle, claviers
Pierre Perchaud : guitare, guitare électrique, banjo
Sylvain Daniel : basse électrique
Yoann Serra : batterie
Direction artistique : Daniel Yvinec
BEE JAZZ BEE 042

Extrait de l'album « Mop Meuchi ine plays Robert Wyatt»
°°° I'm a Believer (N. Diamond)
°°° Anachronist * (A. Benge / R. Wyatt)
°°° Five Black Notes and One White Note * (J. Offenbach / R. Wyatt) °°° Muddy Mouse (F. Frith / R. Wyatt)

Pascal Maupeu : guitare, banjo
Jean-Baptiste Réhault : saxophone baryton, accordéon, saxhorn alto
Hugues Vincent : violoncelle
Cédric Piromalli : piano, Fender Rhodes, Korg MS20
Nicolas Le Moullec : basse électrique, voix
Bertrand Hurault : batterie, électronique
LE CHANT DU MONDE 274 1869

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Psychedelic Britannia

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> In Conversation

Two extracts from "Psychedelic Britannia" (2015) with Robert Wyatt and Soft Machine archive footage.
Director : Sam Bridger
Duration : 04:58

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Robert Wyatt, Live and In Conversation

Gavin Esler In Conversation with Robert Wyatt
With music performed by Soupsongs
April 4, 2016 - University of Kent

The Chancellor of the University of Kent, Gavin Esler, invites you to join an evening of conversation with a leading public figure in a relaxed, informal format.

Robert Wyatt, legend of the Canterbury Scene, was the sixth and final guest of the 2015/16 series of Chancellor's conversations.

After welcoming Robert Wyatt to the University, Gavin Esler introduced Soupsongs who performed Robert Wyatt's songs throughout the evening.

Soupsongs

- Annie Whitehead - trombone, vocals
- Jennifer Maidman - lead vocals, guitar
- Sarah Jane Morris - lead vocals

- Cristina Dona - lead vocals
- Brian Hopper - saxophones
- Mark Lockheart - saxophones
- Tim Harries - bass
- Janette Mason - keys
- Liam Genockey - drums

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

UFO Club

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

Robert Wyatt played the UFO Club with the Soft Machine
Stories from inside the British Music scene.
2016 - rockhistory.co.uk
Durée : 3:04

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Chatting with Robert and Alfie

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

I chat with Robert Wyatt and Alfreda Benge about their time in Louth, his music, her lyrics, and some other related stuff.

Dave Larder - October 2017

"This is not really an interview, it's more of a chat mainly because (1) Robert can talk for hours and (2) I don't claim to be any sort of interviewer. Also, due to my technical inability, the songs that we talk about are not chronologically linked throughout the talking. Instead, I have published a play list – and listeners can choose how and when they listen to the songs.

There are perhaps some things that come up that are unfamiliar, even to Robert's most avid fans. At one point, Alfie is talking about "The Fitties" which refers to Humberstone Fitties in North East Lincolnshire. The Fitties is a chalet park, and at one point, Robert and Alfie owned a chalet there, and sometimes, that is where they went to be creative – or just to get away for a while. In 1996 the area was declared a conservation area following requests from the tenants, although in reality, Alfie just about saved it on her own.

Another discussion sees Robert and Alfie giving their own, individual interpretations of 'Shleep' and perhaps for the first time in a recorded conversation, Alfie voices her personal insight into "Just as you Are" and "Attic" whilst Robert explains the link to his dad in "You You".

Towards the end of this chat, we briefly discuss the "local" Arts scene in Louth, and Robert's support to both musicians and artists in the town.

Finally, I can say that for once, the interviewer was easily more struck by "stagefright" than the interviewee. I just hope this 'raw' insight provides another perspective to the "Duchess" and "Old Rottenhat" and their incredible journey together. "

Play List

- Dondestan: Costa, Shrinkrap
- Shleep: Heaps of Sheeps, The Duchess
- Cuckooland: Old Europe, Forest
- Comicopera: You You, Out of the Blue

Alifib – Obviously NOT from the Louth "era" – but included because this version is SO moving!

Wyatt/ Atzmon/ Stephen: The Ghost Within(Roz Stephens-strings/ Tali Atzmon-voice/ Gilad Atzmon- arrangement + clarinet/ Yaron Stavi – bass/Wyatt-backing voice. [Lyrics A. Benge)

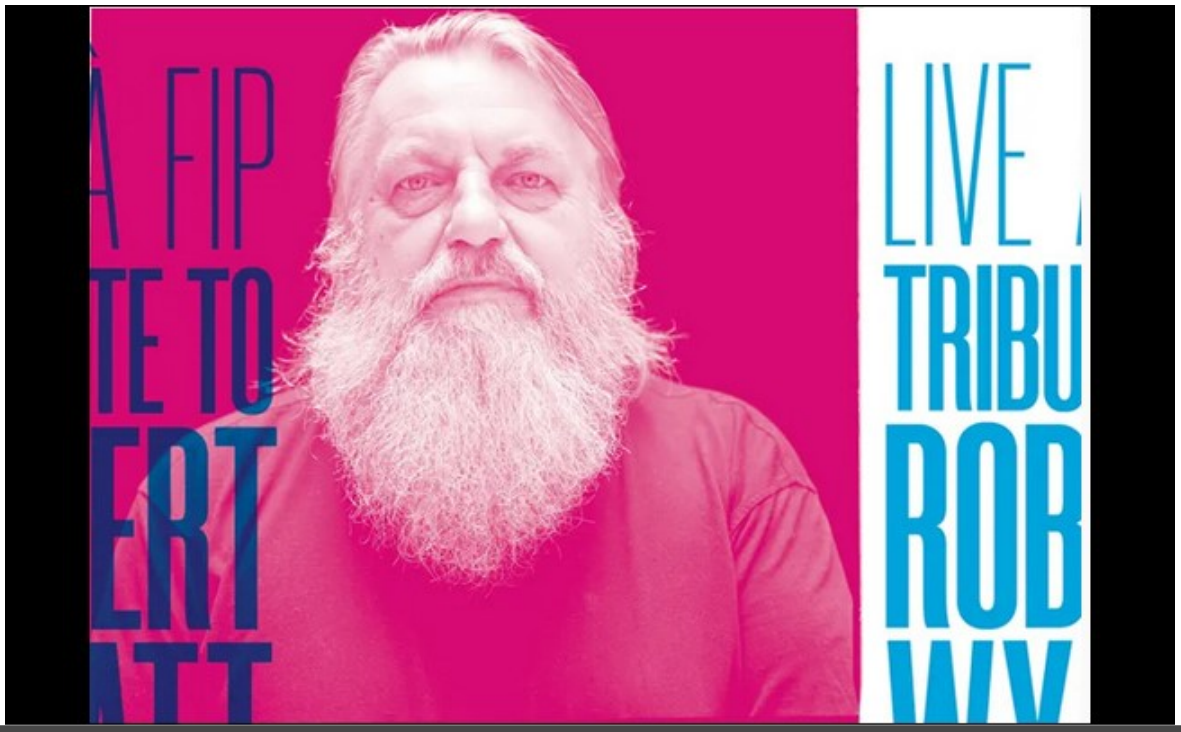
David Gilmour (feat. Robert Wyatt): Then I close my eyes

The four Wyatt albums written and recorded since being in Louth are:

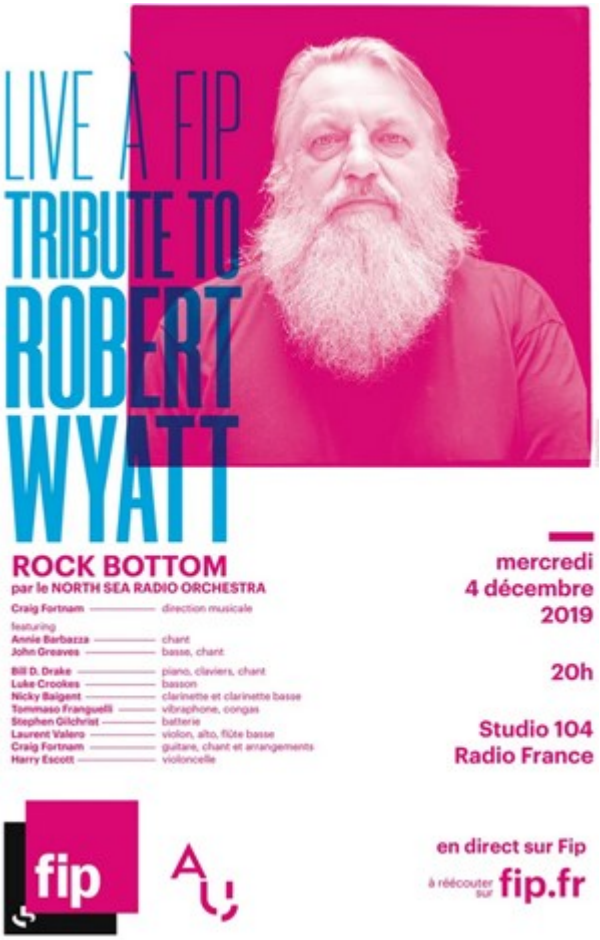
- Dondestan (1991) Rough Trade – Recorded: February 1991; Chapel Studios, South Thoresby, Lincolnshire

- Shleep (1997) Hannibal – Recorded: 1996-1997 at Phil Manzanera's Gallery Studio, Chertsey

- Cuckooland (2003) Hannibal



- Comicopera 2007 Domino – Recorded in Wyatt's house and Manzanera's recording studio, Queens Park



- Re-mastered and re-released as "Dondestan Revisited" (1998)

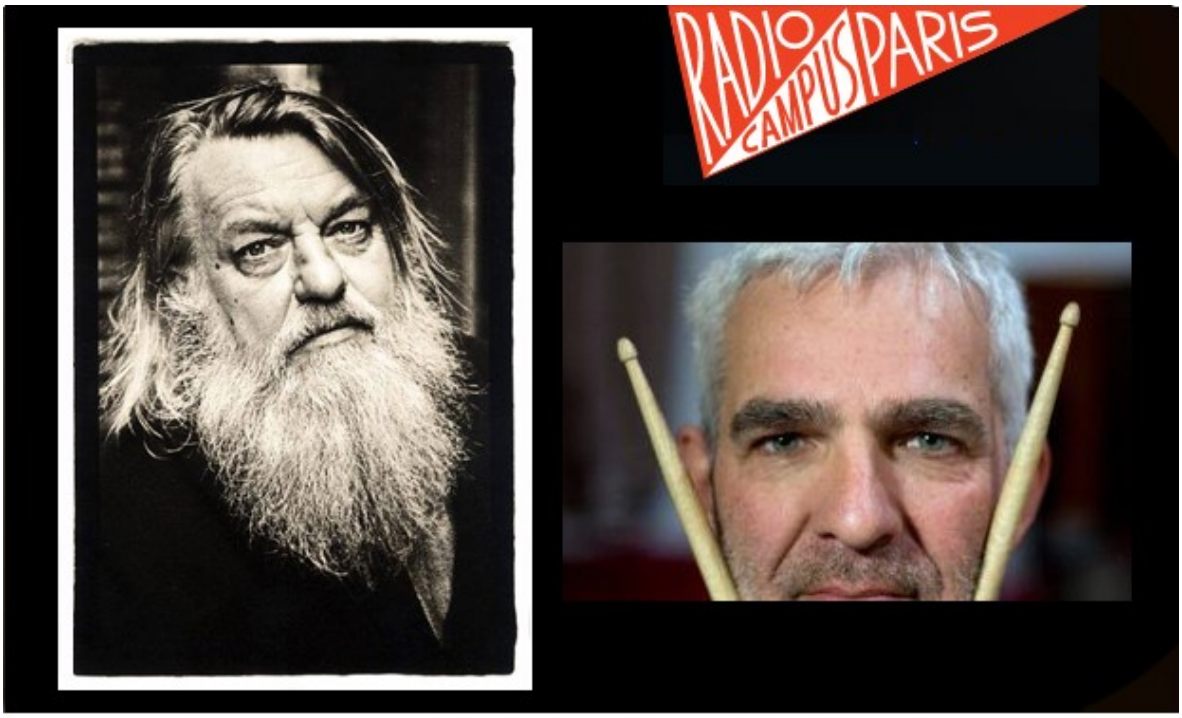
>> The interview on the LAAMB website

Robert Wyatt interviewed by John Greaves

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

Robert Wyatt a invité chez lui John Greaves et FIP pour une interview diffusée en décembre 2019, juste avant le concert Live du North Sea Radio Orchestra à la Maison de la Radio (Paris) que l'on peut écouter ici.

> In Conversation



ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt v/s Bruno Tocanne

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

Robert Wyatt v/s Bruno Tocanne - Radio Campus Paris - 28 janvier 2019

"En octobre 2017 le batteur Bruno Tocanne a publié l'album Sea Song(e)s dont l'inspiration de départ a été « Rock Bottom » disque majeur du musicien anglais Robert Wyatt autant que page essentielle de l'histoire du rock en particulier et de la musique en général. Figure incontournable, Robert Wyatt qui n'a jamais voulu devenir à part entière un musicien de jazz inspire pour autant jusque à ce territoire.

Ce soir nous recevons donc Bruno Tocanne et le journaliste et écrivain Aymeric Leroy pour cerner un peu mieux à la fois la singularité artistique de Robert Wyatt et la démarche de l'album Sea Song(e)s qui ne se veut pas être un hommage direct mais une inspiration libre partant du musicien britannique.
Hasard ou clin d'oeil du destin, cette émission a lieu le jour de l'anniversaire de Robert Wyatt."

Liste des morceaux diffusés :

- Bruno Tocanne - Nuit désarmée
- Robert Wyatt - Moon in June
- Robert Wyatt - To Nick Everyone/To Caravan And Brother Jim
- Bruno Tocanne - Du clair au sombre
- Robert Wyatt - Sea Song
- Robert Wyatt - Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road
- Bruno Tocanne - Sea dance
- Clear Frame - Paperweight
- Happy End - Turn Things Upside Down
- Bruno Tocanne - Bruno Rubato

Tous les morceaux de Bruno Tocanne sont extraits de Sea Song(e)s à l'exception de "Bruno Rubato"composé par Bruno Tocanne et Sophia Domanich et publié sur l'album" In A Suggestive Way" (Instant Musics Records).

Participants : Aymeric Leroy journaliste et écrivain et Bruno Tocanne musicien.
Emission proposée par Olivier Delaporte réalisée par Adel Ittel avec les chroniques de Agathe Boschel et Pierre Tenne.
Durée : 2h 02

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Robert Wyatt and Eddie Van Halen - Sun 11 Oct 2020

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

The Music Show with Andrew Ford on ABC Radio National

Eddie Van Halen changed rock music via the keyboard, blues and tinkering with his guitars, in an attempt to strip the self-importance out of prog-rock. Ken Murray is Associate Professor in Guitar at the Melbourne Conservatorium of Music and has followed Eddie for decades. He deconstructs this musician's style including that two-handed tapping technique.

Robert Wyatt was the drummer with UK band Soft Machine back in the 1960's. He also has one of the most singular singing voices in rock music. Elvis Costello and Clive Langer wrote Shipbuilding for that voice. Robert Wyatt's Greatest Misses, a compilation spanning his decades-long career has just been released along with a book Side by Side, co-written with his wife Alfie Benge. In 1973 Robert Wyatt fell from a window and became paralysed from the waist down, though it didn't stop his drumming or songwriting. Andrew Ford spoke to this gently spoken, modest musician from his home in Lincolnshire in 2011 and here it is again.

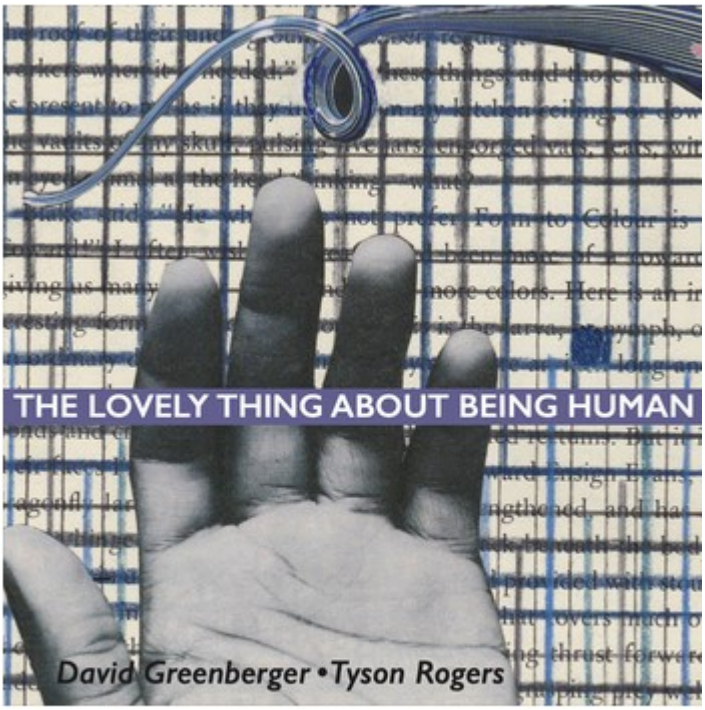
And The Maes Elsie and Maggie Rigby with their Body & Soul Read Ken Murray's article on Eddie Van Halen at The Conversation.

Duration: 55min 47sec
Broadcast: Sun 11 Oct 2020, 11:05am.

Music heard in the Eddie Van Halen interview
- Eruption

- Spanish Fly
- Unchained
- Glad That It's Over

Music heard in the Robert Wyatt interview
- Shipbuilding
- I’m A Believer
- Pigs... (In There)
- Lullaby for Hamza



> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

The Lovely Thing About Being Human

0:00 / 1:42

David Greenberger & Tyson Rogers - Text based on a conversation with Robert Wyatt 2020

Cover image uses a detail from "The Desire Line" by Barbara Price, 2019 (pencil, ink, and collage on book page) style including that two-handed tapping technique.

"Here's a rather mammoth project I did with Tyson Rogers during the first six months of relative isolation in 2020. It's monologues and music - all very short, about a minute each, and we added a new one every two or three days. All of the text I developed from my conversations with friends and family. #33 ("The Lovely Thing About Being Human") is based on my conversation with Robert Wyatt."
David Greenberger
https://davidgreenberger.bandcamp.com/

Fanny Michaëlis raconte "Alifib" et "Alife"

0:00 / 4:51

Fanny Michaëlis raconte "Alifib" et "Alife"

16 mars 2022.

Illustratrice, autrice de BD, mais aussi batteuse et chanteuse du groupe Fatherkid, Fanny Michaëlis préside le jury du 49e Festival d'Angoulême. Au micro de Frédéric Pommier, elle évoque deux titres de l'Anglais Robert Wyatt, "Alifib" et "Alife", qu'elle a découverts en commençant la bande dessinée.

Eloge de Robert Wyatt - A Very Good Trip

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

0:00 / 54:58

Eloge de Robert Wyatt
[Very Good Trip de Michka Assayas - 20 juin 2024]

Playlist

- Robert Wyatt - « Sea Song » album « Rock Bottom »
- The Soft Machine - « Dedicated to You, But You Weren't Listening » album « The Soft Machine Volume Two »
- Matching Mole - « O Caroline » album « Matching Mole »
- Matching Mole - « Signed Curtain » album « Matching Mole »
- Robert Wyatt - « Memories » album « EPs »
- Robert Wyatt - « Shipbuilding - Remastered in 1998 » album « EPs
- Robert Wyatt - « At Last I Am Free » album « Nothing Can Stop Us »
- Robert Wyatt - « Caimanera » album « Nothing Can Stop Us »
- Robert Wyatt - « The Age of Self » album « Different Every Time »
- Robert Wyatt
- Robert Wyatt - « Free Will and Testament » album « Shleep »
- Robert Wyatt - « Insensatez » album « Cuckooland »

Ce soir, nous avons rendez-vous avec une des voix les plus singulières et touchantes, j'espère que vous serez de mon avis, de ces soixante dernières années.

« Sea Song », la chanson de la mer, c'était, il y a cinquante ans tout juste, l'entrée en matière d'un album qui a été, j'en ai un souvenir très vivant, un des plus attendus d'une petite communauté d'auditeurs à laquelle, malgré mon jeune âge, quinze-seize ans, j'étais très fier d'appartenir. Un album signé par un musicien anglais du nom de Robert Wyatt, et intitulé Rock Bottom et publié, ainsi, à l'été 1974. La communauté dont je vous parle vénérait ce qu'on appelait entre nous la musique underground, qui venait d’Angleterre mais pas seulement. D’Allemagne aussi, on se passionnait pour des groupes qui avaient pour nom Amon Duul Zwei, Amon Duul Deux, on se prêtait, enfin quelques-uns dans mon lycée de la vallée de Chevreuse, des albums de Tangerine Dream ou de Popol Vüh. En France, il y avait un groupe qui s’appelait Gong, qui me fascinait, un groupe formé par un beatnik australien très farfelu du nom de Daevid Allen avec des musiciens français qui habitaient en communauté dans l’Yonne. Pour vous donner une idée de l’importance de ce courant, toutes ces musiques excentriques nous paraissaient alors bien plus importantes que Led Zeppelin ou même les Rolling Stones, que certains purs et durs, au rang desquels je prétendais me compter, considéraient comme, entre guillemets, commerciaux.

Et dans cette constellation, eh bien Rober Wyatt était une sorte de phare. Il s’était fait connaître comme batteur au sein d’un groupe qui s’appelait The Soft Machine, on disait simplement Soft Machine, d’après le titre d’un roman de l’écrivain beatnik américain William Burroughs que personne n’avait lu, évidemment, mais ça faisait bien de le savoir. J’avais pu découvrir Wyatt dans une émission destinée aux jeunes sur le gros téléviseur noir et blanc familial, c’était le tout début des années 70, à l’époque les images étaient très rares, surtout de cette musique-là, et j’avais été captivé. Il jouait torse nu, je crois bien, et sursautait sans cesse sur son tabouret, secouant sa longue tignasse. On voyait à peine sa tête, tellement il se penchait et même se couchait sur son instrument. On avait l’impression qu’il avait bien plus que deux bras, c’était comme une pieuvre humaine s’agitant au cœur d’une batterie. En fait, c’est simple : je voulais être lui. Wyatt était, à mes yeux, une sorte de copain idéal, génial. Il faisait de plus un truc que ne font pas généralement les batteurs. Il avait, fixé au milieu de sa batterie, un micro pour sa voix, il chantait des vocalises bizarres, d’une voix d’enfant qui n’avait pas mué, on ne savait pas s’il riait ou s’il pleurait, c’était entre les deux. Fascinant.

Wyatt s’est senti marginalisé au sein de Soft Machine, le claviers Mike Ratledge ayant apparemment pris ombrage de son charisme. Il est donc parti former son propre groupe, Matching Mole, la Taupe qui a trouvé sa pareille, un jeu de mots sur la traduction française de Soft Machine, la machine molle, bien sûr. C’était en 1971. Il a enregistré deux albums sous ce nom. Comment décrire sa musique ? Une sorte de jazz-rock psychédélique, très libre, la musique de Jimi Hendrix, qui venait de disparaître, était encore très présente, tout comme celle de Frank Zappa, autre héros de la musique underground, au centre de tout ce mouvement. Cela dit, ce qui distinguait Robert Wyatt, c’était sa voix et cette façon tout à fait unique de l’utiliser, comme un instrument de musique de sa propre invention. C’était déjà le cas au sein de Soft Machine, comme en témoigne cette chanson mémorable, un joyau extrait du deuxième album du groupe, paru à la fin de l’année 1969. Robert Wyatt avec Soft Machine, la chanson s’appelle « Dedicated to You, But You Weren’t Listening ».

Pour en savoir plus, écoutez l'émission...

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Le rêve aquatique de Robert Wyatt

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> In Conversation

france musique

Sea song : le rêve aquatique de Robert Wyatt

Mardi 9 avril 2024

Il y a 50 ans, en 1974, le batteur de Soft Machine et de Matching Mole sortait un ovni musical intitulé Rock Bottom. Un chef-d'œuvre qui s'ouvre sur la chanson Sea Song, porte d'entrée du disque et plongeon vers une renaissance pour Robert Wyatt Tout doucement, se laisser glisser, submerger par des accords qui roulent de demi-tons en demi-tons, égrainés par un piano ainsi qu'un synthétiseur au timbre brumeux et fragile, comme la voix de Robert Wyatt…

0:00 / 5:01

LE REVE AQUATIQUE DE ROBERT WYATT

Retour de plage ... Robert Wyatt, un ange à la table

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

Crédits photo : ©Getty - BIPS

0:00 / 1:57:55

"Personnalité totalement singulière de la pop anglaise, Robert Wyatt, venu du jazz et du psychédélisme, a su créer un monde à lui, poétique et parfois étrange, que nous allons traverser des années 1960 à aujourd'hui ... "
[Thierry Jousse - 18 juillet 2024]

avec Robert Wyatt - Artiste & Thierry Jousse- Producteur.

Playlist

The Soft Machine - Save yourself
The Soft Machine - As long as he lies perfectly still
The Soft Machine - Dedicated to you but you weren't listening
Kevin Ayers - Song for insane times
Kevin Ayers And The Whole World - May I ?
Syd Barrett - Terrapin
Pink Floyd - The gnome
Pink Floyd - Crying song
Matching Mole - Instant pussy
Matching Mole - Oh! Caroline
Matching Mole - God song
Caravan - Love song with flute
Camel - Supertwister
Robert Wyatt - Sea Song
Michael Mantler - The sinking spell
Brian Eno - Through hollow lands (for Harold Budd)
Robert Wyatt - At last I am free
Robert Wyatt - Sonia
Chris Mac Gregor - Andromeda
Robert Wyatt - Alliance
Robert Wyatt - Shrinkrap
Robert Wyatt - Old Europe
Robert Wyatt - What's New

Pascal Comelade - September Song
Steve Nieve - La plus jolie langue (feat. Muriel Todori and Robert Wyatt)

Éloge de Kevin Ayers, poète de l'âge psychédélique

ABÉCÉDAIRE
> In Conversation

5 décembre 2024 - A Very Good Trip, une émission de Michel Assayas et Stéphane Ranxin.

Ce soir, une voix unique, dans tous les sens du terme, celle de Kevin Ayers.

Une chanson remontée du fond des âges, 1973, écrite et interprétée par un musicien anglais qui nous a quittés il y a plus de dix ans. Il avait un lien très étroit avec la France, j'en parlerai et vous l'entendrez, d'ailleurs. Il s'appelait Kevin Ayers a été, je peux en témoigner, un des compagnons de mon adolescence. Sa voix basse, sa douceur, sa fantaisie lunaire me parlaient. J'ai découvert en particulier un de ses disques, un album qui s'appelait Bananamour, alors que j'avais quatorze ans, en 1973. Un album qui a été pour moi un de ces amis secrets qui me consolaient de tout. C'est de Bananamour que je tire la chanson que vous venez d'entendre, « Shouting in a Bucket Blues », le blues de l'homme qui gueule dans un seau. Et qui commençait par ces paroles qui sonnaient comme une confidence au ton nonchalant : parfois je suis tellement bourré, je me sens au fond du trou, je n'ai nulle part où aller, je pense à tes bras amoureux où je voudrais me réfugier. Je ne comprenais pas tout ce qu'il racontait mais il y avait dans cette chanson des paroles qui me sont restées : je chante pour tous ceux qui sentent qu'il n'y a pas d'issue, alors peut-être que si vous criez tous, quelqu'un va vous entendre. Et puis aussi : je ne vais pas dire que je t'aime parce que ce serait mentir, tout ce que je peux dire c'est que j'essaye et tu le sais bien. Tout ça était chanté d'une voix qui n'avait rien de pesant et, dans sa légèreté et sa nonchalance même, avait le pouvoir de vois consoler de tout. De vous assurer, alors que vous étiez emmêlés dans vos problèmes d'adolescence, que la vie n'était pas si grave et que, peut-être, rien n'avait vraiment d'importance.

Une nouvelle compilation qui s'appelle All This Crazy Gift of Time, tout ce délirant cadeau du temps, sous-titré The Recordings 1969 1973, les enregistrements de 1969 à 1973, paraît opportunément pour rappeler ou faire découvrir le talent unique de Kevin Ayers, qui n'a pas pris une ride. Et qui, surtout, ne ressemblait à aucun autre. Il faut souligner quelque chose qu'on a oublié : c'est que, au cours de la première moitié des années 70, Kevin Ayers, qui passait une partie de son temps en France, où il a toujours aimé se réfugier, occupait les premiers plans. Il a été une grande figure de la musique underground, au même titre que Robert Wyatt ou le groupe Gong, auquel il était lié. Gong, créé par un Australien exilé en France, Daevid Allen, rebaptisé Bébert Camembert. Une formation qui unissait des musiciens français et britanniques habitant dans une ferme communautaire, quelque part dans l'Yonne.

Kevin Ayers me fascinait. Déjà, c'est un des premiers musiciens que j'ai vus sur scène, sans doute en 1973, dans une maison des jeunes et de la culture du sud de la région parisienne. Il avait à mes yeux le même prestige que Robert Wyatt, je l'ai dit, mais aussi John Cale, le fondateur du Velvet Underground à New York, ou Brian Eno, qui venait de quitter Roxy Music pour explorer de nouveaux territoires musicaux. John Cale et Eno, deux musiciens avec lesquels Kevin Ayers s'est produit sur scène, en même temps qu'avec la chanteuse allemande Nico, elle aussi une star de l'underground dans ces années-là. Pour un concert exceptionnel qui fut enregistré et diffusé sur disque en 1974. On n'a jamais oublié Kevin Ayers.

Je me rappelle mon agréable surprise il y a quelques années quand, alors que l'équipe technique était en train d'installer le matériel pour le groupe Queens of the Stone Age, passaient des chansons de Kevin Ayers. Intrigué, je suis allé parler avec les gars, en leur demandant comment ils le connaissaient. Ils m'ont répondu que c'était un disquaire, je ne sais plus si c'était quelque part à Los Angeles ou ailleurs, qui le leur avait fait découvrir. Comment oublier cette voix une fois qu'on l'a entendue ?

Michel Assayas

Playlist :

Kevin Ayers
« Shouting in a Bucket Blues » album « Bananamour »
« The Lady Rachel - BBC Radio One's "John Peel's Show" 30/7/74 » album « The Confessions of Doctor Dream and Other Stories » (with Bonus Tracks)
« Girl on a Swing - 2003 Remaster » album « Joy of a Toy »

Kevin Ayers and the Whole World
« Butterfly Dance » album « Shooting at the Moon »
« The Oyster and the Flying Fish » album « Shooting at the Moon »
« Puis-je? - 2003 Remaster » album « Shooting at the Moon »
« Jolie Madame » album « Shooting at the Moon »

Kevin Ayers
« Stranger in Blue Suede Shoes » album « Whatevershebringswesing »
« Oh! Wot a Dream » album « Bananamour »
« Everybody's Sometime and Some People's All the Time Blues » album « The Confessions of Doctor Dream and Other Stories » (with Bonus Tracks)
« After the Show » album « The Confessions of Doctor Dream and Other Stories » (with Bonus Tracks) « Diminished But Not Finished » album « Sweet Deceiver (with Bonus Tracks) »
« Yes I Do » album « Yes We Have No Mañanas… So Get Your Mañanas Today » (with Bonus Tracks)

> In Conversation

ABÉCÉDAIRE

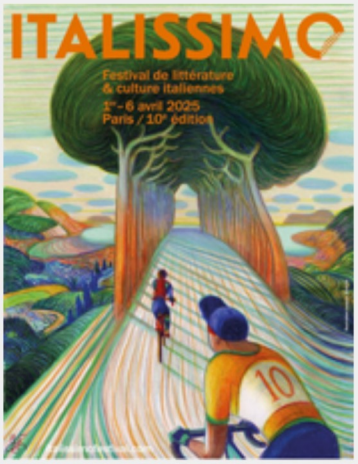
Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

<

Laurenzo Mattotti sur Robert Wyatt

ABÉCÉDAIRE

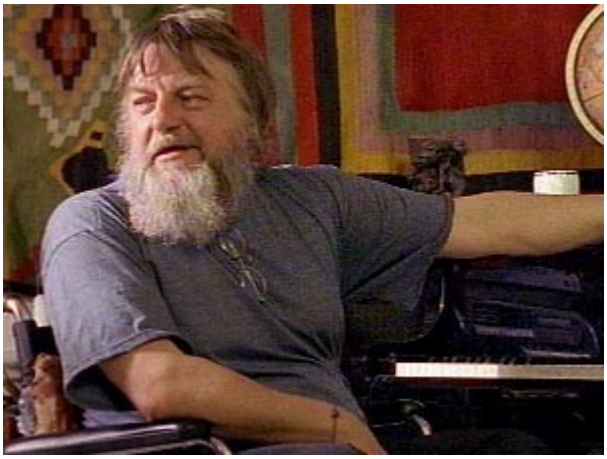


> In Conversation

Entretien avec Lorenzo Mattotti mené par Manuela Corigliano dans le cadre du festival Italissimo à Paris le 28 avril 2025.

Dans cet extrait, Laurenzo Mattotti évoque la personnalité et la musique de Robert Wyatt qui font écho à ses propres émotions et certains de ses travaux les plus personnels.

Durée : 9:32



Jazz and Max Roach

L'Experience Music Project est un musée de la musique situé à Seattle (USA) totalement dédié aux musiques populaires du 20ème siècle. C'est aussi un site internet très documenté - empsfm.org (lien cassé en 2016) - qui diffuse régulièrement de nombreux documents sur les musiques, les musiciens et les pratiques instrumentales.

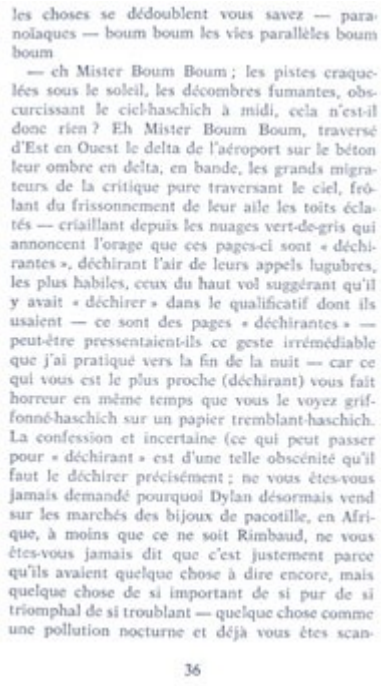
L'EMP diffuse deux vidéos de Robert Wyatt dans ses archives: Jazz et Max Roach - ci-dessous - et How The Band Works.

The Player: Robert Wyatt is a singer-songwriter and former drummer for the British art rock band the Soft Machine.

Well I started playing by banging rolled up copies of what would have been in those days the The New Statesman, probably. Rolled up copies of The New Statesman along with a record my big brother had brought home which was Jazz at Massey Hall in 1953. Recorded in 1953, it was later, of course, when I heard it. And the drummer was Max Roach, and I just couldn't believe the speed of thought that was going on. It was like listening to a whole load of thirty three and a third speed LP being played at 78. I just couldn't believe anybody could think that fast, and it was thrilling to me because I realized that they were following an exact train of thought, mathematically decipherable train of thought, but at that speed and with that sense of spontaneous reaction to the moment, it was incredibly exciting to me, and so I would sit there at the table with my rolled up New Statesmans trying to go flip flap, flip flap, flip flap, flip flap, flip flap, flip flap, flip flap, flip flap, along with "Wee" or "Hot House," or whatever, Tadd Dameron tunes, Dizzy Gillespie tunes, and that's my first memory with playing along with Max Roach on drums.

Le Bleu Le Bleu

ABÉCÉDAIRE



> Zoom

Le Bleu Le Bleu paraît en 1971 chez Christian Bourgois. Dédié à Viva, Hopper, Ratledge et Wyatt, il comporte un poème de 50 pages - Soft Power - évoquant la musique et les musiciens de Soft Machine. Dans la première partie de l'ouvrage, Save Yourself et Moon In June sont fréquemment cités.

Son auteur, Dashiell Hedayat est alors une figure de "l'underground" parisien. Sous le pseudonyme de Melmoth, il a déjà publié en 1969 un album La devanture des ivresses qui n'est pas sans connivence avec les tous premiers Gong. C'est d'ailleurs avec Daevid Allen, Pip Pyle, Gilly Smyth, Didier Malherbe et la voix de Sam Wyatt (le fils de Robert agé de 5 ans), qu'il publiera en 1971 Obsolete et son cultissime Long Song For Zelda...

En août 70, Melmoth AKA Dahiell Hedayat signait dans le n° 43 de Rock'n'Folk la critique de *Third du Soft Machine qu'il terminait en ces termes : Je hais les critiques et leur prétention à montrer quand ils dissimulent. Ils n'écouteront pas third. Sur leurs tombes, nous écrirons : "Morts de beauté violente". En avant le SOFT POWER.

les choses se dédoublent vous savez — paranolaques — boum boum les vies parallèles boum boum — eh Mister Boum Boum ; les pistes craquelées sous le soleil, les décombres fumantes, obscurcissant le ciel-haschich à midi, cela n'est-il donc rien ? Eh Mister Boum Boum, traversé d'Est en Ouest le delta de l'aéroport sur le béton leur ombre en delta, en bande, les grands migrateurs de la critique pure traversant le ciel, frôlant du frissonnement de leur aile les toits éclatés — criaillant depuis les nuages vert-de-gris qui annoncent l'orage que ces pages-ci sont « déchirantes », déchirant l'air de leurs appels lugubres, les plus habiles, ceux du haut vol suggérant qu'il y avait « déchirer » dans le qualificatif dont ils usaient — ce sont des pages « déchirantes » — peut-être pressentaient-ils ce geste irrémédiable que j'ai pratiqué vers la fin de la nuit — car ce qui vous est le plus proche (déchirant) vous fait horreur en même temps que vous le voyez griffonné-haschich sur un papier tremblant-haschich. La confession et incertaine (ce qui peut passer pour « déchirant » est d'une telle obscénité qu'il faut le déchirer précisément ; ne vous êtes-vous jamais demandé pourquoi Dylan désormais vend sur les marchés des bijoux de pacotille, en Afrique, à moins que ce ne soit Rimbaud, ne vous êtes-vous jamais dit que c'est justement parce qu'ils avaient quelque chose à dire encore, mais quelque chose de si important de si pur de si triomphal de si troublant — quelque chose comme une pollution nocturne et déjà vous êtes scan-

36

SOFT POWER....

militant de l'écho militant d'un solo de Ratledge
d'un journal mural
comme d'un cocktail molotov militant contemplant sa beauté à un miroir de ciel crépusculaire quand descend l'apaisement galactique de la nuit et la voie lactée où boire militant du lait buvant la nuit aux vagins fabuleux des femmes militant au regard lavé d'acide militant du futur immédiat dalisés par ces mots parce que vos oreilles ne sont pas prêtes à écouter l'obscénité incroyable de ce qu'ils ont à dire — quelque chose qui est à ce point la vie qu'il faudrait effectivement être de mauvaise vie pour en parler, se vendre au marché, sous le soleil d'un ciel cruel où les migrateurs tournoient prêts à fondre sur le bleu, le bleu ?) Eh mister Boum Boum quelques rames sont restées — parce qu'une rage extrême s'assouvit précisément dans un geste à peine ébauché, qui laisse intacte au moins partie de son objet — livrées telles quelles de manuscrits déchiquetés un soir que la misère était particulièrement altière ; avec le souvenir criard de ces soirées « brillantes » où il semble que l'on flotte — tout en soi — lumières, alcools, fumées, dans les lieux les hauts lieux de la « vie ». Au reste vous pouvez penser que j'use en le disant d'un procédé littéraire déjà ancien, d'un artifice, à moins que ce soit en disant que vous pouvez penser que, etc. Je sais de toute façon que vous attacherez toujours plus d'importance que moi à l'écrit — l'écriture ; et peut-être qu'en disant cela, aussi et ainsi de suite à l'infini, PIGS ! que je sois heureux — maintenant atteste que je dis vrai. Suis dans le — Elles retracent les événements intimes de cette année que plus tard j'ai appelée l'année terrible, non sans quelque goût pour le théâtral. « Vous lirez. » « Tout », ou quelque chose d'approchant, elle s'est exclamée du fond du — noir — couloir « la lumière est au bout », au bout du livre aussi bien, « le bleu, eh le bleu, tu cesses de » sans doute dialoguait avec la quatrième dimension

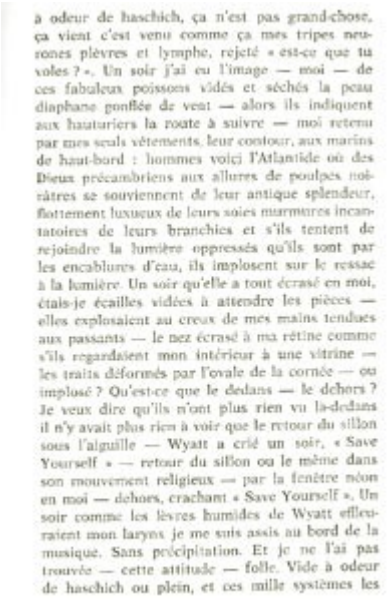
37 acide et ses couleurs d'éternité, un soir que j'étais Dieu, assis au bord de la lumière, le disjoncteur du fond du couloir, il fit revenir le son — au disque, des profondeurs 27 peut-être puis 29... 31... 32... 33 tours 1/3



Save yourself

le Soft Machine. A ma suggestion à l'oreille que la réalité n'était qu'un instant dans le voyage Pornarina se mit à rire, « au voyage, donc » chuchoté en toast entre mes deux tympans. Son souffle fit trembler la terre, des pyramides s'écroulèrent, élevées en l'honneur du cactus, les pyramides de cervelles s'étaient déjà fendillées au marché sous le soleil. La lumière de la chambre a dessiné sur le ciel les contours d'un solo d'orgue. Ce n'est pas grand-chose — je veux dire quelque chose comme la découverte d'un écho. Mais un soir j'ai vu par la fenêtre ouverte un solo d'orgue flotter au-dessus des toits de la ville-basse électrique j'entends, la basse. En bande les grands migrateurs de la critique pure traversaient le ciel, frôlant les toits éclatés — criaillant depuis les nuages vert-de-gris qui annonçaient l'orage que c'était de la musique — ou comme de la musique et aux premiers éclairs ils n'entendaient plus les distorsions lysergiques de la Fender, et les drums rythmant en bas — mêlés aux cris de la rue « Mou ! Tripes ! », clamé au marché et encore « eh l'enfant Mou est-ce que tu Tripes ? » ou « tu voles ? » je ne sais plus, mon vide

38 militant des bombes de peinture à écrire

NOW
sous la brume de solo bleu militant embrassant les chevaux battus comme fit Nietzsche un soir un soir
j'ai cessé de me blasphémer je me suis prosterné à mes genoux je me suis adoré enfin
je me suis contemplé
au miroir de ciel crépusculaire où les militants du soft power rectifient leur éventuel laisser-aller je m'y suis trouvé beau
et mon incroyable démarche de pop star au haut de boots fauves
!

assez blasphémé assez châtié je m'étais assez damné
.....
et si le paradiso de ce livre est en vers blancs c'est qu'au fond de vous là justement gît un ver blanc luisant de bave à la nudité obscène
vous pouvez l'appeler

à odeur de haschich, ça n'est pas grand-chose, ça vient c'est venu comme ça mes tripes neurones plèvres et lymphe, rejeté « est-ce que tu voles ? ». Un soir j'ai eu l'image — moi — de ces fabuleux poissons vidés et séchés la peau diaphane gonflée de vent — alors ils indiquent aux hauturiers la route à suivre — moi retenu par mes seuls vêtements, leur contour, aux marins de haut-bord : hommes voici l'Atlantide où des Dieux précambriens aux allures de poulpes noirâtres se souviennent de leur antique splendeur, flottement luxueux de leurs soies murmures incantatoires de leurs branchies et s'ils tentent de rejoindre la lumière oppressés qu'ils sont par les encablures d'eau, ils implosent sur le ressac à la lumière. Un soir qu'elle a tout écrasé en moi, étais-je écailles vidées à attendre les pièces — elles explosaient au creux de mes mains tendues aux passants — le nez écrasé à ma rétine comme s'ils regardaient mon intérieur à une vitrine — les traits déformés par l'ovale de la cornée — ou implosé ? Qu'est-ce que le dedans — le dehors ? Je veux dire qu'ils n'ont plus rien vu là-dedans il n'y avait plus rien à voir que le retour du sillon sous l'aiguille — Wyatt a crié un soir, « Save Yourself » — retour du sillon ou le même dans son mouvement religieux — par la fenêtre néon en moi — dehors, crachant « Save Yourself ». Un soir comme les lèvres humides de Wyatt effleuraient mon larynx je me suis assis au bord de la musique. Sans précipitation. Et je ne l'ai pas trouvée — cette attitude — folle. Vide à odeur de haschich ou plein, et ces mille systèmes les

39

Zoom > 1 2

le moi j'entends que vous pouvez siffler il viendra
dût-il tortuer
dans le glacis du lymphe cérébral et nos défenses que recouvrent à peine
(leur ivoire)
la pellicule des glaciers intérieurs il est des besognes les plus viles des serpentements les plus obscènes l'autopunition dont il se nourrit solitaire
...
il serait bon de l'écraser n'est-ce pas ce serait au couchant vous auriez pour la circonstance chaussé vos boots les plus élégants vos boots fauves par exemple car c'est du pied qu'il faut le presser le voir agonir dans une traînée laiteuse ses entrailles de foutre-de-dieu vous prendrez votre temps il faut que dans le laps
-ombre de la semelle-la terreur le saisisse la terreur la plus absolue il faut qu'en en dernier éclair de la conscience
il mesure son abjection et qu'il vous remercie du châtiment que vous lui infligez

que ne le faites-vous
?

Un soir saisi de rage je l'ai électrocuté aux distorsions lysergiques de la guitare
ivre de joie
je l'ai vu agoniser
au
mur du fond de la chambre où j'étais nimbé de néon sur les deux baffles du HI FI était-ce
SAVE YOURSELF
ou juste ensuite
le solo de Garcia
s'élevant d'un seul jet sélénique à l'étoile noire
d'un seul glissement de ses doigts sur les cordes
?
.....
alors
les lettres d'un néon surnaturel à l'arête de basalte d'un promontoire
taillé de prismes
guidées par les hésitations d'un solo d'orgue ont écrit
Save Yourself

les lettres immédiatement substituées à d'autres lettres qui étaient leur avers
et sans doute
par association d'idées
Soft Power

militant d'un solo de Ratledge
d'un journal mural
d'un cocktail mplotov du lait
de la nuit
militant au regard lavé d'acide militant du futur immédiat à écrire
PARADISE NOW militant du pouvoir mou souple élastique doux
SOFT.

Dashiell HEDAYAT
Le Bleu Le Bleu
Editions Bourgois 1971
livre écrit entre janvier 1968 et juin 1970

Daniel Théron alias Dashiell Hedayat alias Melmoth (alias Jack-Alain Léger alias Paul Smail alias Eve Saint-Roch...) s'est donné la mort le 17 juillet 2013 à Paris.

Dashiell Hedayat dans l'émission mythique de Denise Glaser "Discorama" (1ère chaîne de la TV française - 30 janvier 1972).
Pour d'obscures raisons, le titre du morceau Chrysler rose a été renommé en Mystère rose...
Durée: 7:21

TV 1re chaîne

DIMANCHE

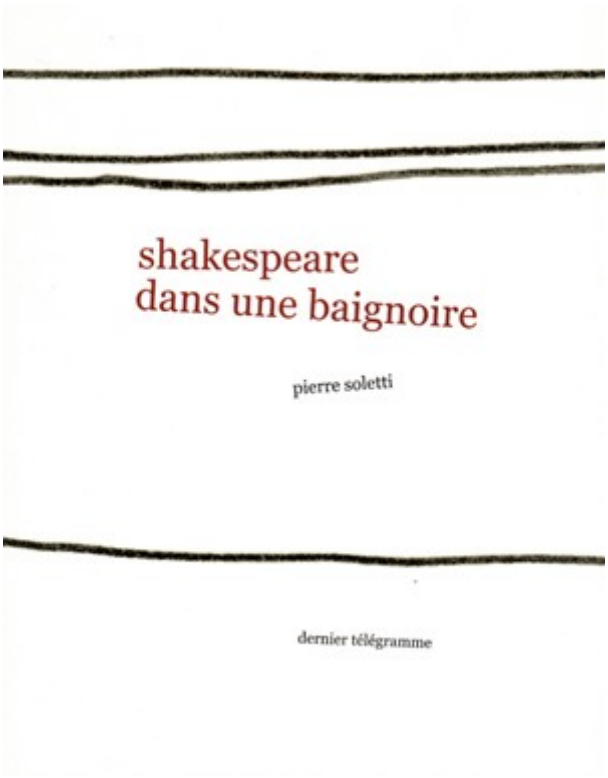
13.15 DISCORAMA

Une émission de Denise Glaser
Réalisation de Roland Hollinger

Le chanteur brésilien Deashiell Hedayat, est aussi poète.

Les Tziganes Ivanovitch jouent :

Variations sur l'alouette
Deashiell Hedayat,
chanteur brésilien, interprète,
en compagnie d'un groupe pop :
Le Gong
Mystère
Il a aussi écrit un livre poétique intitulé
Le Bleu, le bleu



13.45 MONSIEUR CINÉMA

Une émission de Pierre Tchernia et Jacques Rouland
Collaboration artistique de Ginette Vergne
Conseiller cinématographique :
Jean-Claude Romer

Région du Sud-Est :
M. Kotlarek
rencontre M. Philibert

Légèrement Wyatt

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les textes de Pierre Soletti sont joyeux, iconoclastes et perturbants.
Qu'il s'agisse de William qui a une vie courte le sait et se dépêche ou de Robert qui lance une poignée d'air sur les voiles, Pierre ne s'interdit rien.

De courts textes ciselés offrent à Robert Wyatt "des arcs-en-ciels à rallonge où les enfants plongent et ressortent légers comme de la barbe à papa".

En bonne compagnie de Shakespeare dans une baignoire et de ernest pignon-ernest qui sérigraphie la vie...

Pierre Soletti - shakespeare dans une baignoire - Edition Dernier Télégramme (2022).

Légèrement Wyatt

il rencontre
Robert Graves
à Majorque
Gilli Smyth
Ivor Cutler
ailleurs

Robert Wyatt vole
au-dessus d'un nid de coucou par-dessus la mer

sa musique voyage nous fait revenir de loin d'où combien
ne reviennent pas

le disque
a fini de tourner
sur le plateau
la mer a rangé
ses cheveux
nous voilà
revenus sur terre sensiblement
différent

MON CHER ROBERT

Sea Song Poem

légèrement cuivré légèrement timbré légèrement planant légèrement songé totalement génial
ils parlent politique
Shakespeare
est communiste
Robert Wyatt
est poésiquement de même

Robert a un aéroport permanent sous chaque semelle

il nous prête une aile ou deux de temps en temps

on plane ensemble

Les temps changent

ABÉCÉDAIRE

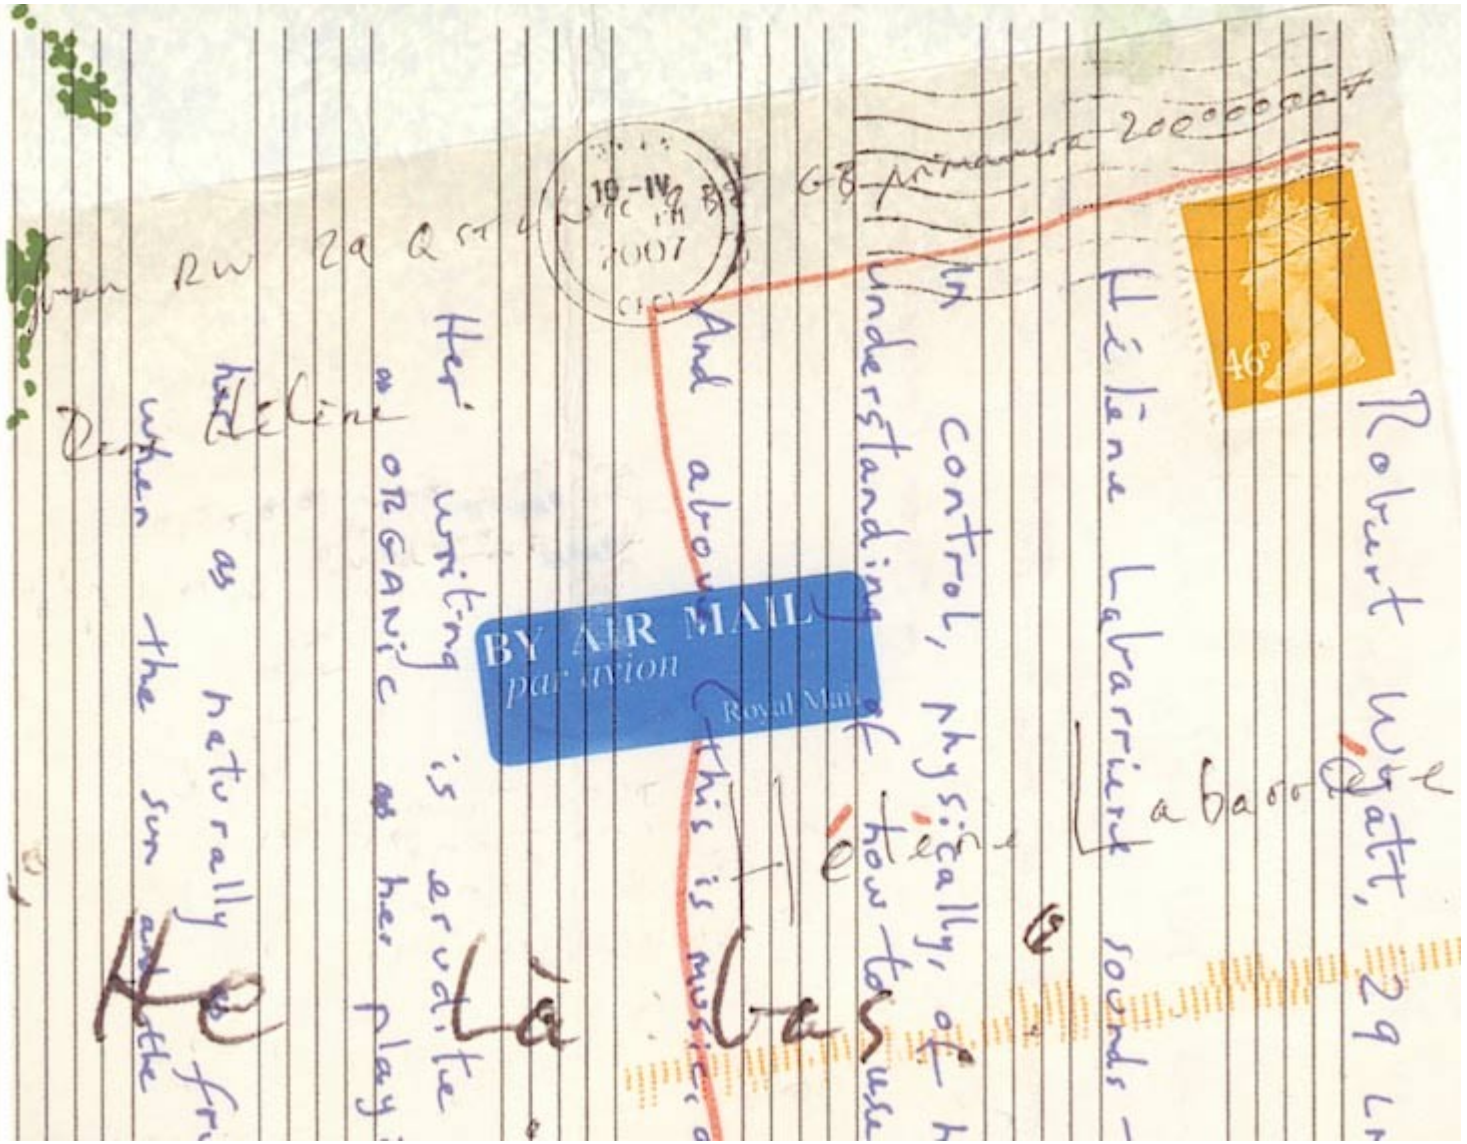
EMOUVANCE (EMV1028)

Hélène Labarrière - contrebasse
François Corneloup - saxophone baryton
Hasse Poulsen - guitare
Christophe Marguet - batterie

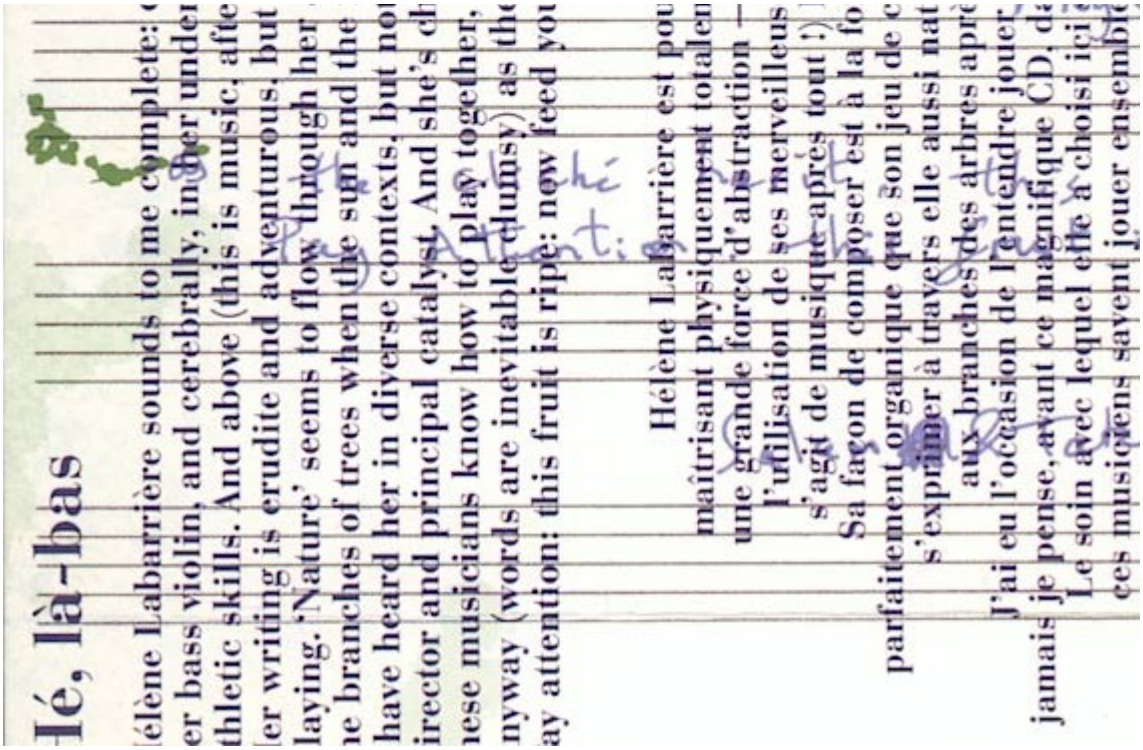
Hélène Labarrière, contrebassiste aux multiples projets, sort les temps changent en octobre 2007, le même mois que la sortie de Comicopera.

C'est le premier album sous son nom, qui vient après de nombreuses collaborations marquées sous le signe de la liberté et de l'audace. Je l'avais vue sur scène à Charleville-Mézières et à Créteil, à l'avant-poste du Dondestan project - Variations sur la musique de Robert Wyatt. Avec Sylvain Kassap, elle y faisait vibrer cette atmosphère jazz et boisée que RW revendique dans tous ses interviews. Robert Wyatt connaît bien Hélène Labarrière: il l'a même invitée en 2001 au Meltdown Festival dont il était le programmateur.

Cet album, Robert Wyatt l'a écouté et l'a aimé. Sur une de ces cartes postales qu'il adresse souvent à ses correspondants de par le monde, il nous dit tout le bien qu'il pense de la musicienne et de la compositrice. Et celle-ci n'a pu résister à l'envie de nous faire partager son plaisir en la reproduisant sur la pochette du CD.



Hélène Labarrière sounds to me complete: completely in control, physically, of her bass violin and cerebrally, in her understanding of how to use her great athletic skills. And above (this is music after all) Hélène has a great SOUND. Her writing is erudite and adventurous, but above all as ORGANIC as her playing. 'Nature' seems to flow through her as naturally as fruit arriving on the branches of trees when the sun and the rain have done their work. I have heard her in diverse contexts, but not, I think, before this beautiful CD, as director and principal catalyst. And she's chosen her comrades here so carefully: these musicians know how to play together, as part of a living and coherent organism. Anyway (words are inevitable clumsy) as the cliché has it, this music speaks for itself. Pay attention this fruit is ripe: now feed your ears!



«Salam and Takadum»

Robert Wyatt

y in control, physically, of of how to use her great ène has a great SOUND.
as ORGANIC as her lly as fruit arriving on done their work.
before this beautiful CD, as comrades here so carefully:
f a living and coherent organism.
as it, this music speaks for itself.

musicienne d'une totale intégrité :
ntrebasse, elle démontre également reuve d'une vraie intelligence dans es athlétiques. Et surtout (puisqu'il ssède une véritable identité sonore.
, aventureuse et plus que tout, aussi
e. C'est la Nature même qui semble t que les fruits viennent s'épanouir oleil et la pluie ont fait leur travail.
nombreux contextes différents, mais de directeur et catalyseur musical.
ades démontre son souci du détail :
on d'une entité vivante et cohérente.

Hélène Labarrière est pour moi une musicienne d'une totale intégrité : maîtrisant physiquement totalement sa contrebasse, elle démontre également une grande force d'abstraction — faisant preuve d'une vraie intelligence dans l'utilisation de ses merveilleuses aptitudes athlétiques. Et surtout (puisqu'il s'agit de musique après tout !) Hélène possède une véritable identité sonore. Sa façon de composer est à la fois érudite, aventureuse et plus que tout, aussi parfaitement organique que son jeu de contrebasse. C'est la Nature même qui semble s'exprimer à travers elle aussi naturellement que les fruits viennent s'épanouir aux branches des arbres après que le soleil et la pluie ont fait leur travail. J'ai eu l'occasion de l'entendre jouer dans de nombreux contextes différents, mais jamais je pense, avant ce magnifique CD, dans le rôle de directeur et catalyseur musical. Le soin avec lequel elle a choisi ici ses camarades démontre son souci du détail : ces musiciens savent jouer ensemble, à la façon d'une entité vivante et cohérente. De toute façon (les mots sont inévitablement maladroits) comme le dit le sens commun : cette musique parle d'elle-même. Portez toute l'attention qu'il mérite à ce fruit arrivé à maturité. Et nourrissez-en vos oreilles !

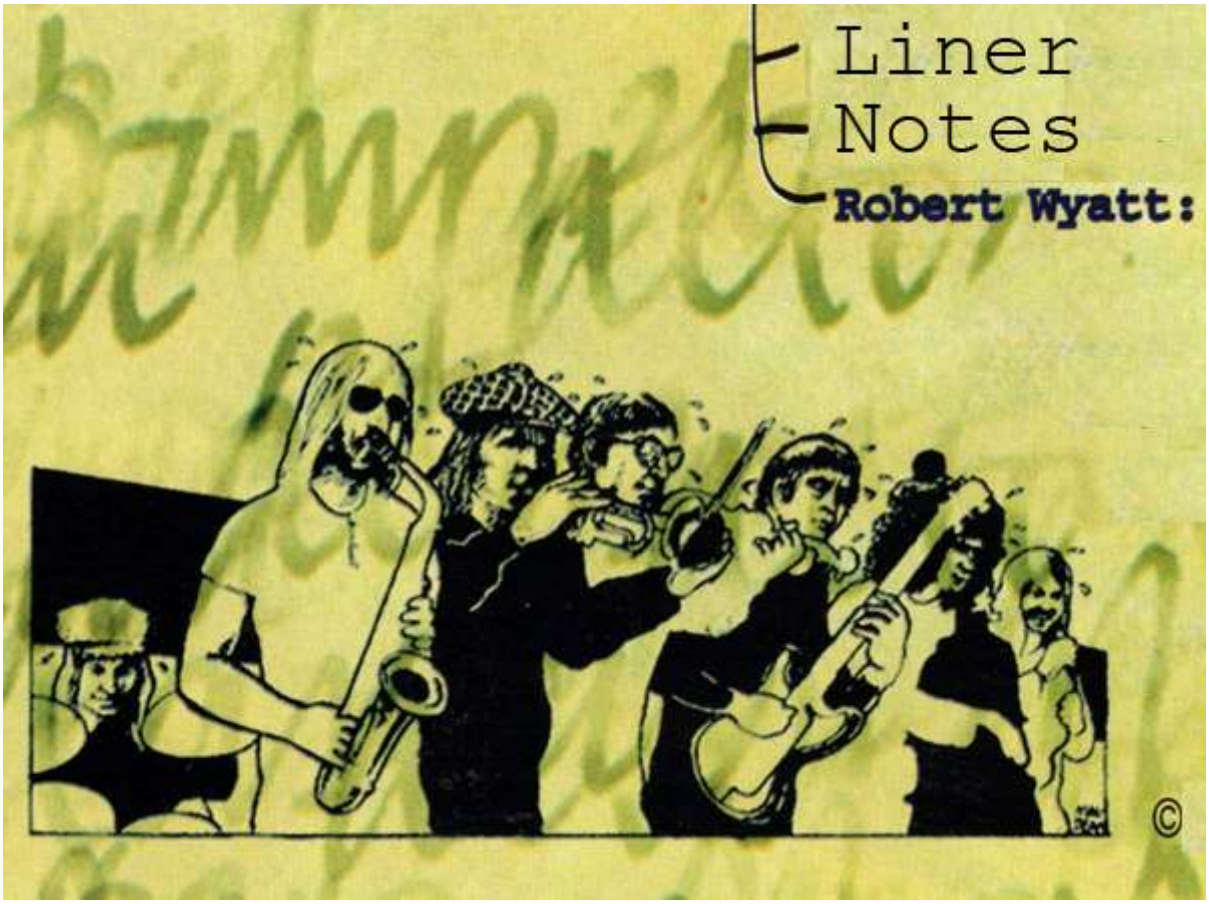

Photo : Hélène Collon

«Salam and Takadum»

Robert Wyatt

Liner Notes

ABÉCÉDAIRE

De ses multiples collaborations avec des musiciens ou des groupes, il en est que nous découvrons au détour d'un booklet ou d'une pochette : les liner notes que Robert Wyatt a généreusement rédigées pour accompagner des travaux auxquels il a ou non participé.

Si certaines notes ne comportent parfois que quelques lignes aimables, d'autres en revanche sont plus conséquentes. Ces dernières concernent souvent des albums interprétés par ces musiciens de jazz anglais et sud-africains que Robert Wyatt affectionne tout particulièrement.

Nous en proposons ici quelques unes et conscient qu'elles ne représentent sans doute qu'une faible part d'un ensemble bien plus vaste, nous faisons un appel "au peuple" pour compléter cette première collection...

IXESHA

• T I M E •

The breathtaking excitement, descending into that cauldron of sound steaming from the little stage of Ronnie Scott's old club, of that surrealist Ellingtonia with molten streaks of trumpet and alto scorching and swirling up the staircase...the first time I experienced The Brotherhood of Breath.

A living volcano, and, right inside, such pretty tunes a rhythmic urgency not just dancing in your head but rocking your socks off.

A whole music. I thought my heart would burst with gratitude for the comprehensive generosity of it.

And then finding these musicians in so many wonderful permutations with local musicians, my mind flashes back to Laurie Allen with Dudu in Gwigwi's Kwela band, John Stevens with Mongezi, Louis Moholo with Keith Tippett, Harry Miller and everybody in fact with everybody—we've all got our own memories.

Thank you Mongezi Feza, thank you Chris McGregor, thank you Dudu Pukwana, thank you Harry Miller and all your comrades—Johnny Dyani, Ernest Mothle, so many good people. Julian Bahula. And thank you Louis Moholo, forever stoking the fire, the warmest glow in town.

I'm still living off the heat.

Robert Wyatt October '94

The Dedication Orchestra
Ixesha (Time)
Ogun – OGCD 102/103

Et parce que ces musiques nous transportent également, nous glisserons entre ces notes de pochette deux captations TV du Brotherhood Of Breath qui rassemblent quelques-uns des meilleurs musiciens que Robert Wyatt souhaitaient à l'époque nous faire aimer !

Pop Stars drink each other's wine
Plough each other's earth
Hoping for companionship
And then perhaps rebirth
Plant seeds in fresher plots of earth
Bound up in concepts and dreams
And fears of worse things to come
They never do
They stay the same

As Volume 2 was released in April '69 Mike, Hugh and Robert were asked to write a brief personal response to the question "'Where do the SOFTS go from here?"

Robert Wyatt :

Soft Machine contains as many approaches to music-making as there are people in the group: insofar as it has a single identity it is in our attempts to pin down those areas where the different paths meet (talk about mixed metaphor!).

Strange Fruit Record SFRCD201
THE PEEL SESSIONS

The replacement of Kevin Ayers by Hugh Hopper enabled us, we feel, to narrow down those areas in order to explore them more thoroughly.

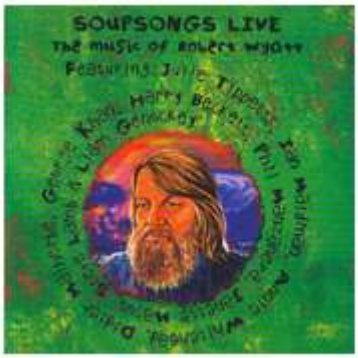
Hugh's working procedure matches Mike's more sympathetically than did Kevin's. Kevin is primarily a song-writer rather than an instrumentalist. Hugh's unique characteristics cannot be described, but are quite apparent in the new music of the Soft Machine.

"These are really good songs and good song singing, great saxophone and it would be enjoyable even if the content didn't matter - but it does".
Robert Wyatt, November 1994.

Stream Records (SRCD 004)

Featuring L-R. Peter van Hooke, Gary Mihiriey, Robert Wyatt, Julie Driscoll, Mike Hugg, Terri Quaye, Pam & Gary Windo, Harry Beckett, Richard Brunton, Bill MacCormick, Laurie Allan, Nick Mason.

"Although he'd had a tough life even before I met him, Gary's music had the (almost!) innocent joy of a child, still full of wonder and excitement. He was nothing like most English jazz musicians: a rather guarded, suspicious lot in those days. He seemed oblivious to careerist ambition. And he had SOUL. Naturally absorbing both R&B honking tenor sax swagger with the sensitive tonal nuances and courage of Archie Shepp … a complete musician."



Robert Wyatt

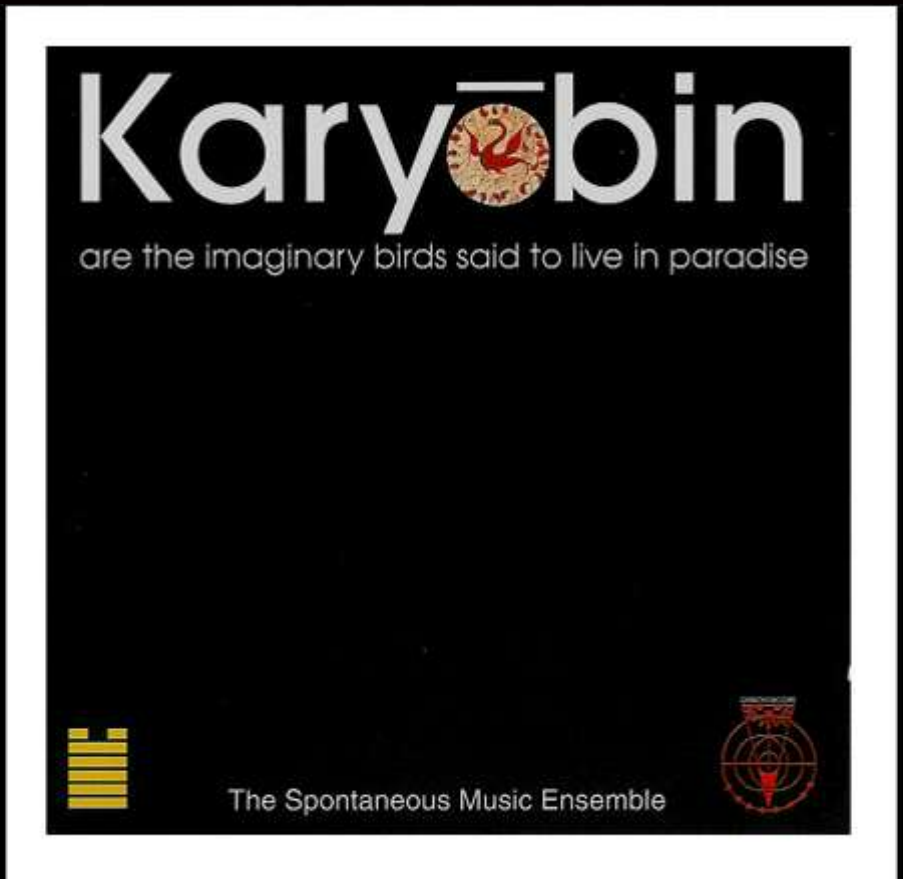
Gonzo Multimedia
HST190CD

"I cannot know what I would be if I were not me" - well, after all, there might be some clues on this CD. Seeing Annie's band at the Grimsby Jazz Festival, with Janette Mason depping on keyboards and all, I thought to myself, "this lot could play my songs". And then later when Dave Groom provided the opportunity we just sort of asked Annie "um-er excuse us miss would you play my songs please miss? and come to think of it could we borrow your band as well or not or what?" the way you do and I'm still a bit amazed that they said "oh alright then" especially since they all assured me that their decision was in no way affected by our promise to untie them and give them their shoes and socks back just as soon as they'd agreed to comply with our request, just as Phil Manzanera had done. We needed to augment the band with a little horn section that would shine in the spotlights for that 'bold as brass' effect and got the most distinguished trio you could possibly find - Didier, George and Harry.To sing the songs with Ian we needed somebody else I knew would hear how I try to use notes and immediately thought of Lambeth Lil herself, Julie Tippetts. The recorded consequence is as far as I am concerned one of the best Robert Wyatt records I can remember. Thanks Liam, thanks Steve, thanks Janette, thanks Phil, thanks Harry, thanks George, thanks Didier, thanks Julie, thanks Ian and thanks beyond words Annie, you've made an old man very happy.

Salaam!"

Robert Wyatt

Jazzprint
JPVPIOICS



In the words of Mr. Robert Wyatt:

"I've known Asaf's gifts for years, certainly enough to say that as far as I can see, there's NOTHING he can't do when he puts his mind to it. Of course on this innovative record his kit skills just keep expanding but what really gets to me here are his ethereal, haunting compositions, which take the soloists into uncharted territories, guiding them but allowing them freedom to dip and dive through their solos in their own sympathetically idiosyncratic ways. So this is a remarkable recording which, with its very distinct individual voices, has nevertheless the feel of a single living organism: Quite a combination!"

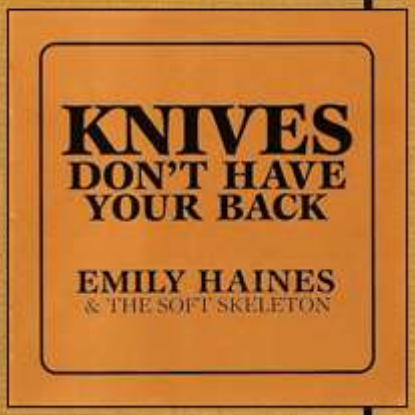
MOONJUNE RECORDS – MJR117

Seemingly, what pissed Sidney Bechet off about Louis Armstrong was that, in pursuit of solo virtuosity, Armstrong was turning the rest of the group into a backing group, thus disintegrating the interweaving wholeness of classic jazz. Now nobody could say Bechet was talking from a position of weakness: he was, after all, quite able to blast a hole through the sail of any weakly constructed musical craft.
And so could any of these SME musicians, in fact for a start, it's hard to think of any soprano saxist today who's developed Bechet's legacy with more formidable authority than Evan Parker, but then S.M.E. was a group of musicians with enormous individual strength, who harnessed that musicianship to the pursuit of the art of musical conversation, though from a point of departure historically closer to Tristano's experiments with such as Billy Bauer and Lee Konitz than to old New Orleans.
New listeners, I have to tell you: this group was a legend. You've heard a lot of idle gossip about the idealism around thirty years ago, the bold adventures away from the showbiz mainstream. But this, was the real thing, a final flowering and a new beginning all in one.
Beginning of what? Whatever happened to these likely lads?
Well for one, Dave Holland got picked up and then dropped right in it, didn't he, the Atlantic I mean - reached new shores though.

Then Derek Bailey (D.B. not standing for decibels in this case) a radical source in his own right (ask Fred Frith) and witty as a Monk. Did you see his series on the telly, dead good that was, about improvisers from all over the place.
Improvisation, mind, could be an inadequate term here. It need only mean, 'making do' as in 'the refugees improvised a rough shelter'.
Whereas this ....
Music making is always the point at which something prepared is ignited. And what makes these blokes so exceptional, so special, is not just their brave ideology of map-less-ness; it's the backlog of preparation, the learning, the discipline.
Another example, Kenny Wheeler. Like one of those awkward butterflies birds can never catch because you never quite know for sure what note he's going to hit next .... Deft, I call it.
And what can you say about our cool guru John Stevens? The listening drummer. 'sheer class' will have to do, your ears will tell you why us aspiring cymbalists of the day thought so.
S.M.E., then, as they were. Don't just hear a history lesson, though.
This stuff's still fertile, as full of promise as tomorrow morning. A dawn chorus.

Chronoscope Records – CPE2001-2

Robert Wyatt 1993



Brotherhood of Breath in 1973 with Chris McGregor, Lol Coxhill, Dudu Pukwana, Elton Dean, Harry Miller, Marc Charig, Harry Beckett, Louis Moholo, Nick Evans, Radu Malfatti...

KNIVES DON'T HAVE YOUR BACK

EMILY HAINES & THE SOFT SKELETON

Haines doesn't take a predictable route to the inside of your head. No grandstanding. She's a true daughter of the revolution, and has inherited wisdom beyond her years. So how does she reach us ? By quietly closing the stage door behind her, dodging the limelight glare for now. She slips around the edge of the stage , almots disappears, keeps to the shadows like her parents taught her then is suddenly positioned right beside your car. She's speaking your language but don't be so sure you know what she's thinking - this might be all in code. She's drawn in breath and drawn you in, too. You're hooked but it's not her fault: maybe she was just saying "Hello". Robert Wyatt , July 2006

www.softskeleton.com

Last Gang Records – Q2 00932

We was invited by Tim Souster, who had an evening using the hall to do what he liked with. I believe he'd heard our second LP, asked us on the strength of that. He discovered us on the way to discovering Motown. Via the Who, I think. Anyway it was brave of him to invite us despite the withering contempt of the posh music establishement. Before our bit, I went out the back for a quick fag and then the doorman didn't want to let me back in. "I've got to play in there", I said. "You must be kidding, son", he said, "they only have proper music in there". Not that night they didn't.

(ROBERT WYATT)

CD RECK 5

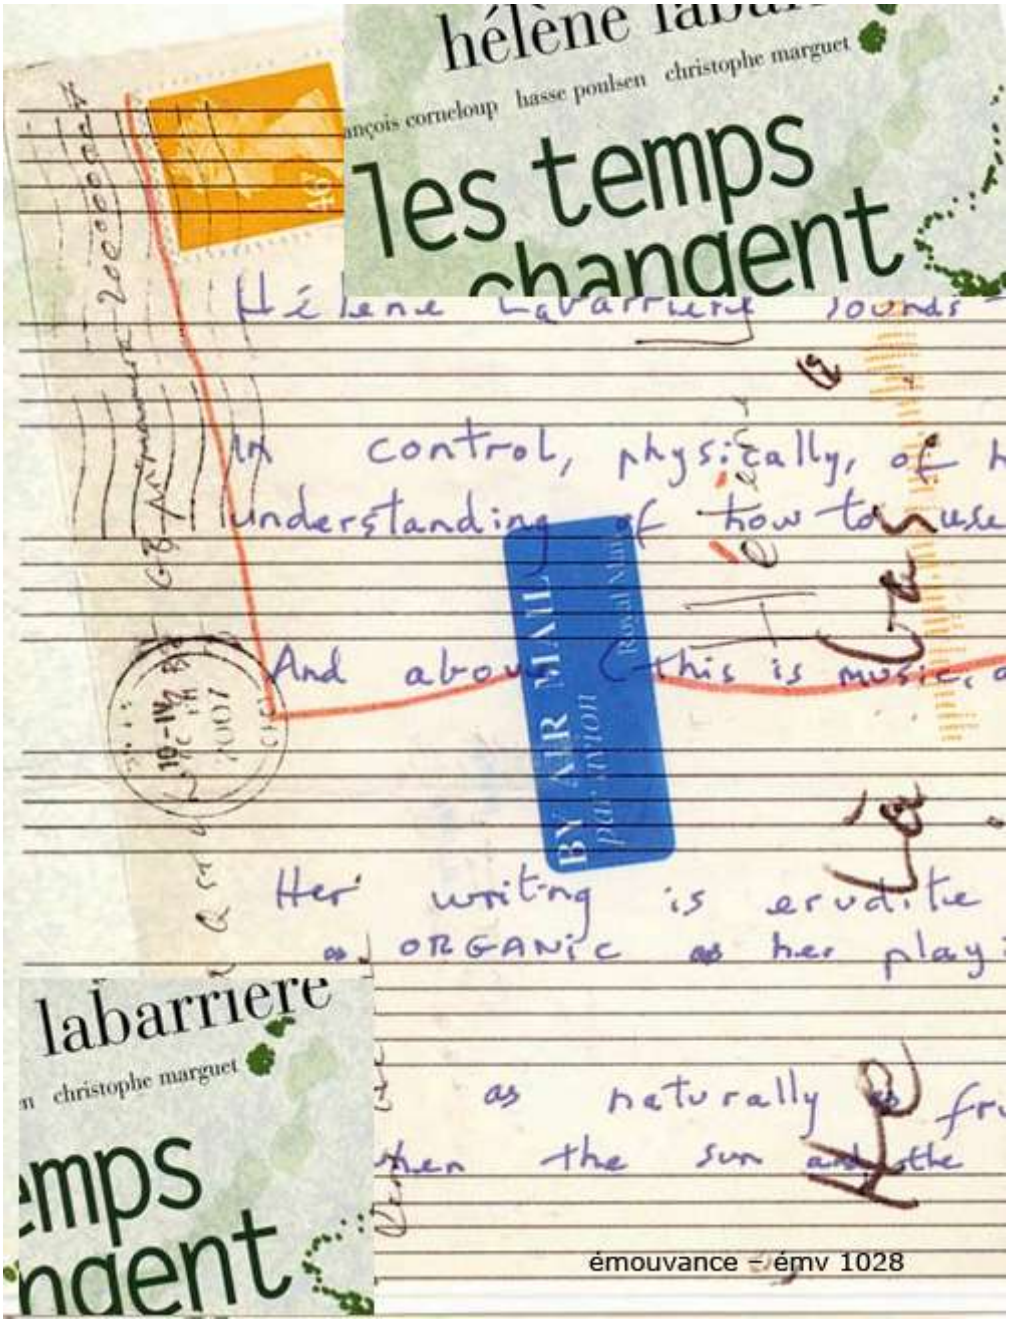
Louth, Lincolnshire, England, spring 2002

I'd just like to thank Mike King for his painstaking retrieval work and diligence over the last decade. I have, for most of the time, been rather grumpy and ungrateful for all this (having a morbid fear of being trapped in the past). But now I can hear that it wasn't all that bad. So, anyway

Thanks Mike.

Sincerely,

Robert Wyatt

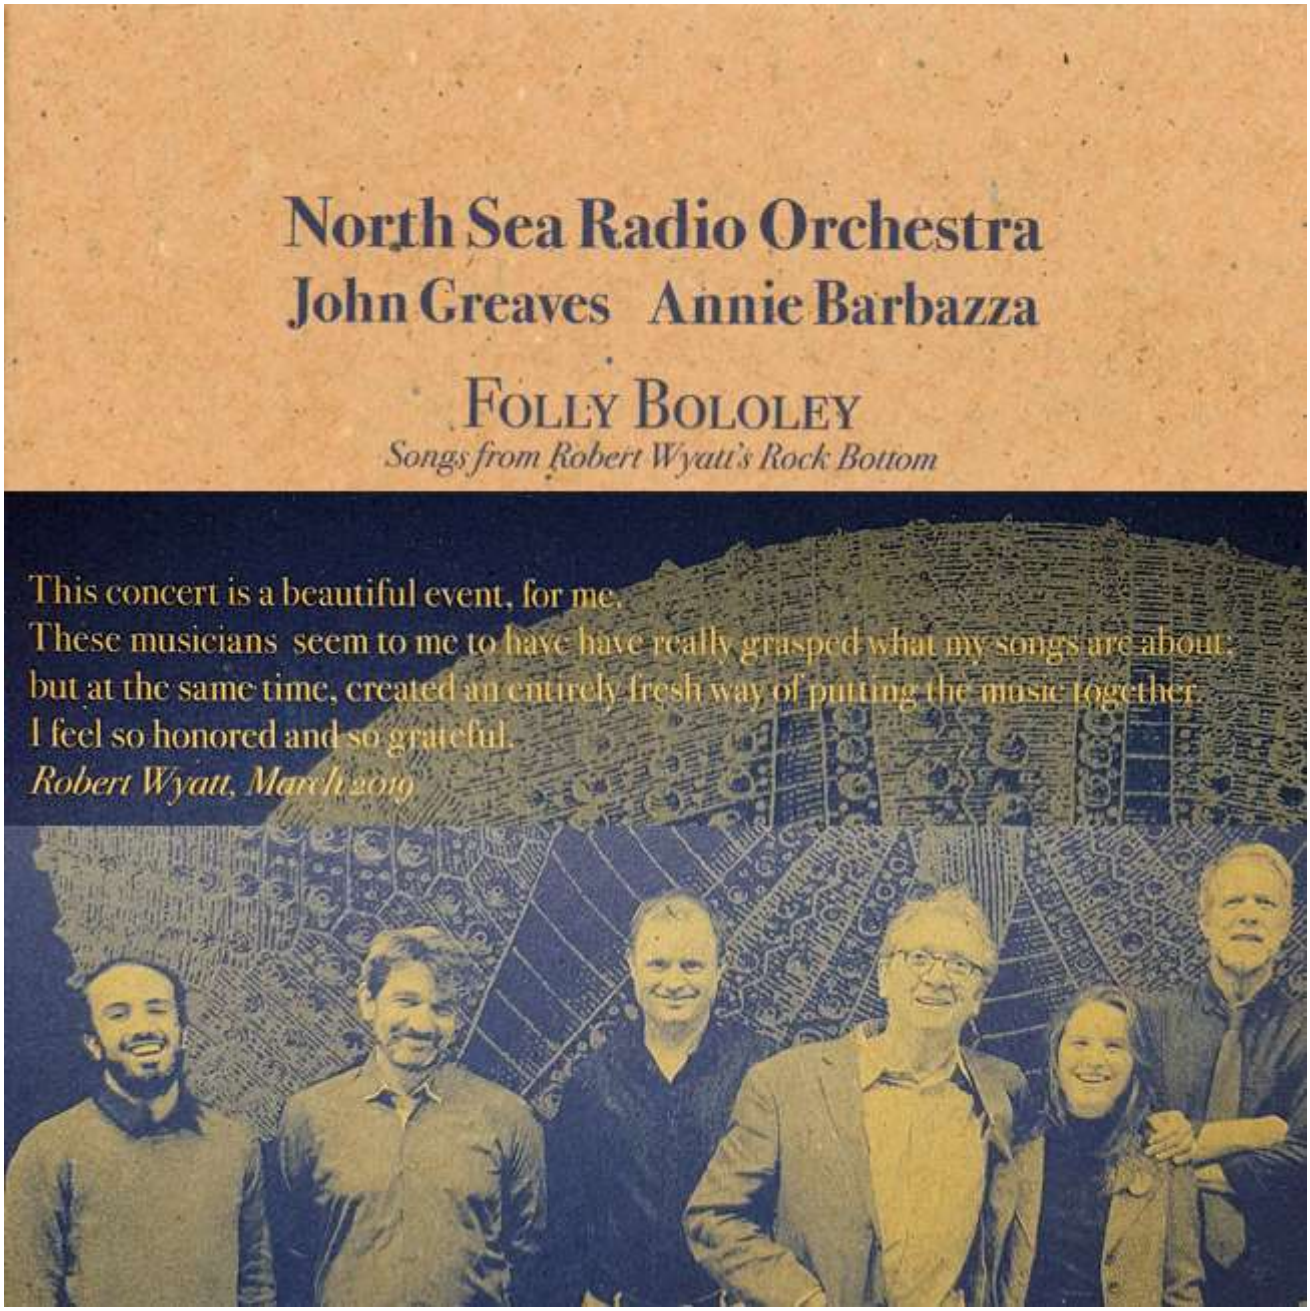


CUNEIFORM RUNE 172

"I think the first time Mike Ratledge spoke to me 'twas to ask to borrow the Cecil Taylor album which had Steve Lacey at Newport he'd heard I'd got. I was very honoured - a sixth-form prefect deigned to talk to one of us! Or, have I got that muddled? Well it was something like that?.. My memory's terrible or at least, a squeezy, bendy, gaseous thing, throwing up different images every day - Ruth is after all always stranger than Richard!"

Robert Wyatt, 1995

Voiceprint – VP204CD



émouvance = émv 1028

Hé, là-bas

Hélène Labarrière sounds to me complete: completely in control, physically, of her bass violin, and cerebrally, in her understanding of how to use her great athletic skills. And above (this is music, after all) Hélène has a great SOUND. Her writing is erudite and adventurous, but above all as ORGANIC as her playing. 'Nature' seems to flow through her as naturally as fruit arriving on the branches of trees when the sun and the rain have done their work.
I have heard her in diverse contexts, but not, I think, before this beautiful CD, as director and principal catalyst. And she's chosen her comrades here so carefully: these musicians know how to play together, as part of a living and coherent organism.
Anyway (words are inevitable clumsy) as the cliché has it, this music speaks for itself. Pay attention: this fruit is ripe: now feed your ears!

Hélène Labarrière est pour moi une musicienne d'une totale intégrité : maîtrisant physiquement totalement sa contrebasse, elle démontre également une grande force d'abstraction — faisant preuve d'une vraie intelligence dans l'utilisation de ses merveilleuses aptitudes athlétiques. Et surtout (puisqu'il s'agit de musique après tout !) Hélène possède une véritable identité sonore.
Sa façon de composer est à la fois érudite, aventureuse et plus que tout, aussi parfaitement organique que son jeu de contrebasse. C'est la Nature même qui semble s'exprimer à travers elle aussi naturellement que les fruits viennent s'épanouir aux branches des arbres après que le soleil et la pluie ont fait leur travail.
J'ai eu l'occasion de l'entendre jouer dans de nombreux contextes différents, mais jamais je pense, avant ce magnifique CD, dans le rôle de directeur et catalyseur musical.
Le soin avec lequel elle a choisi ici ses camarades démontre son souci du détail : ces musiciens savent jouer ensemble, à la façon d'une entité vivante et cohérente.

Folly Bololey - Dark Companion - DC012

SEPTOBER ENERGY

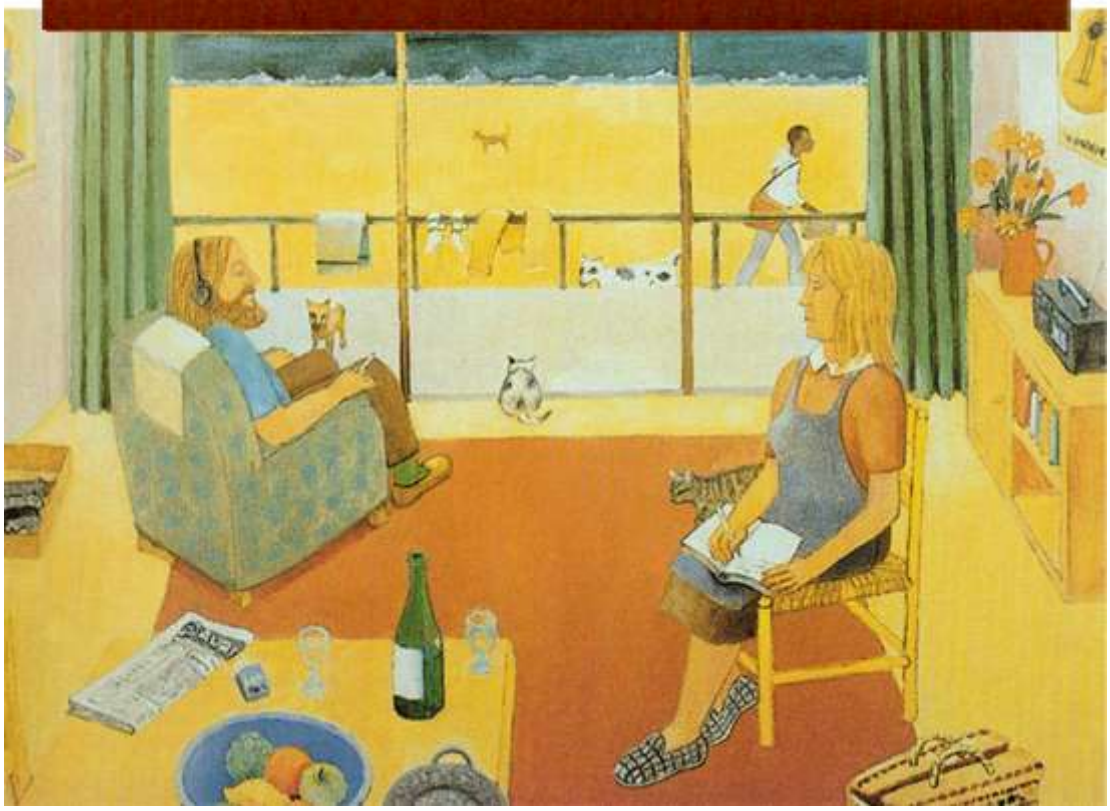
Composed by Keith Tippett

Of course I can't tell you anything about this music, because that would be silly, and I can't examine publicly Keith's murky motives for dreaming up this insane travelling circus known as 'Centipede'. If I were to talk about how Fripp coped with the unprecedented production problems in such a short space of time, I'd be wasting yours, because the job's done now and I never really understood the technical details anyway. Should I try to explain Julie's lyrics? Of course not! She's told you what she wanted to tell you right there on the record. And think how irrelevant it would be to even mention the sheer artistry of Patto's privately-shown theatrical production known as 'Ducks in Flight'! And could I now mention all the musicians that I haven't even mentioned not mentioning yet? No chance!

So, I am refusing to write any notes about the orchestra, even to say that it's the happiest group we've ever worked in, because, after all, if I told you what an incredible buzz it is being on stage with this lot, I mean really, what would be the point? I shall, however, leave you with a brief, but important, message from Nick Evans: 'Wah-Hey!'.

Robert Wyatt

BGO Records - BGOCD485



Brotherhood of Breath - 1973 at the French TV

Matt Kemp had already recorded this beautifully at Chapel Studios but I overran the budgeted recording time and the final mix was done, I realised retrospectively, in an exhausted rush. Nobody else's fault, but since this is one of my few recordings of which the original unmixed tapes still exist, I thought I'd get Jamie to help me have another go at the last hurdle. (My ideas have changed a little, too: this time I went for the contrasting detailed moments rather than the earlier goal of seamless consistency. However, it's still the same old whine, with a little more bottle).

Thanks Phil, once again, for this opportunity.

Robert Wyatt, August 1998

Dondestan (revisited) Ryko HNCD1436

A Short Break
20 odd minutes at home

oh... yes... In other words, take five, a space made vacant between daily tasks, literally, a vacation.

Some forty years ago, I was taken on holiday, to another Atlantic coast, to Portugal, and discovered that there are different ways of behaving.

("IS EVERY MOMENT FOREVER?")

A few disorientating images remain, a few ghosts: the boy in the water, that was me (the little man, in the bowler hat, paddling on the shore, circulated on my earlier Rough Trade records, could that have been another me?)

("OR NEVER?")

But right here, right now, no studio cosmetics, just five abstracted sketches, postcards from the home front (I have to take, now and then, some time out for a short break.)

Robert Wyatt. August 1992

A Short Break - VOICEPRINT (VP108CD)

The Lords of the Global Village
Mergers and takeovers are transforming the information business, creating companies worth billions of dollars and concentrating power

Robert Wyatt

THE END OF AN EAR

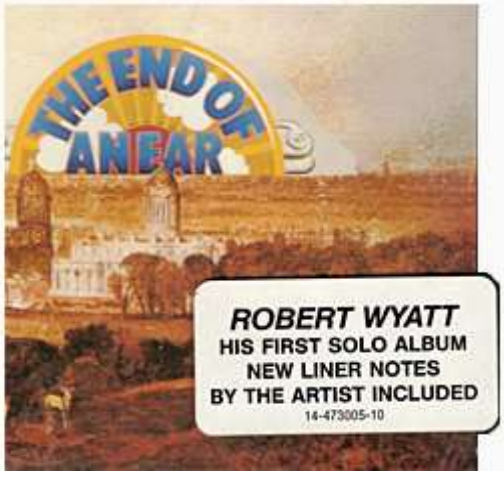
SCHOLARLY BOOKLET PROVES JESUS NEVER EXISTED!
Conclusive proof Flavius Josephus created fictional Jesus, authored Gospels. AMAZING but ABSOLUTELY INCONTROVERTIBLE! Send $5 to Abelard Reuchlin Foundation, Box 5652-B, Kent WA 98064. For details please send SASE

"while the Cat is away, the mouse can play"...
(an old english saying)

In truth the End of an ear was my third attempt at building around my own keyboard experiments in a proper studio - my third 'solo' recording, if you like - (the first was a blues recorded in late 1968 in California, when I had no group and was rescued by the kind-hearted Jimi Hendrix, who pulled it together with some fabulous bass guitar, the second was Moon in June, which although not publicised at the time, for the sake of group harmony, was mostly me on piano, organ, speeded-up bass etc, apart from the usual organ solo after the first ten minutes or so.)

the original idea was to record with friends - particularly Gary Windo, the saxist, and Mongezi Feza, trumpeter, with the 'small jazz club' atmosphere I was already nostalgic for.

When my time to record was given, however, Gary and Mongezi were 'on the Continent' with Chris MacGregor's Brotherhood of Breath, so I asked a couple of other friends and other musicians we had already borrowed from the wonderful and generous Keith Tippett's band.



Even so, I think, it became more of a 'solo' record than I had originally intended: (Perhaps - I was never told why - I was expelled soon afterwards from my original group by the very people I had invited to join it) because these moments of maverick anarchy were mistaken for an over-assertive self-confidence, further evidence of my hopeless lack of adaptability to the formality required of a now-established concert band? But at the time, I just think I simply made the most of the suddenly available opportunity to explore uncharted territory ...

I was never forgiven for such moments of recklessness & insubordination - (perhaps not even forgiven by myself?) ... (but then, unlike your Edith, I regret almost everything!)

P.S. I'd like to thank Mitch Mitchell for the beautiful drum-kit, I hope you can hear how much I enjoyed playing on it and thankyou Pierre Lattes for helping us all in France. Hello Pierre!

Robert

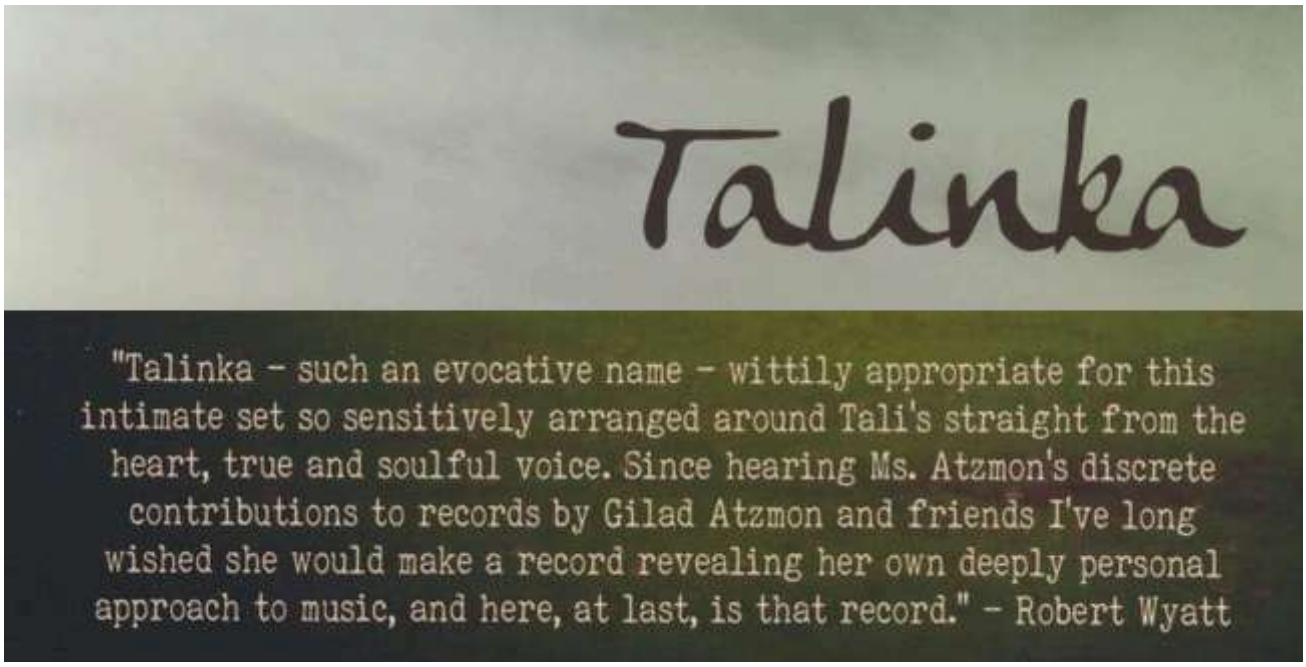
COLUMBIA COL 473005-2

(a few of the) Thanks due.

To Jenny & Steve Peacock for their ospitality, Brian Eno for his itality, . Carla Bley & Mike Mantler for giving me interesting things to do, Hughes de Portzamparc (of Sony/France) & Mike Gott (of B.E.C. records) for their conscientious approach to the re-releases of 'the end of an ear' CD, The Matching Mole CDs, etc and Teresa Hale

R.W.

CDVDM 9031



Rai Trade – RTPJ 0014

I was invited to go for a week just to record the actual process of my working. Of things like that which I've seen, for example on painters, with the honorable exception of Picasso who worked on a piece of glass, people tend to cheat a bit and do an actual finished performance in front of the cameras. But I thought "If they really want to see how I work before I know what I'm doing, then that's what they're going to get and if during that week something comes out of it, then it will do, but if it doesn't then that will be more honest." I deliberately went in there and improvised what I was doing as well as how I did it. The point wasn't to have a finished result that could be listened to, the point was to see a process. It's only in retrospect that I can see that bits of some of them have some kind of coherence.

Mi invitarono là per una settimana, perché volevano registrare il mio reale processo creativo. Tutte le volte che ho assistito a progetti analoghi, incentrati per esempio su pittori, gli artisti (con la mirabile eccezione di Picasso al lavoro su un pezzo di vetro) tendevano sempre a imbrogliare un po' e fingevano di creare lì per lì quello che in realtà era già quasi pronto. Ma in questo caso mi son detto: «Se vogliono davvero vedere come lavoro quando ancora non so che cosa sto facendo, glielo mostrerò; se poi da quella settimana esce qualcosa, tanto meglio; in caso contrario, ne ricaveranno un'idea ancor più veritiera». Arrivai senza alcunché di pronto e improvvisai sia la musica sia la procedura. Non erano tanto interessati a ottenere un prodotto finito da mettere in onda, quanto a mostrare un processo. Solo in seguito mi sono accorto che certi frammenti erano legati tra loro da una certa coerenza.

Robert Wyatt

from Michael King Wrong Movements: a Robert Wyatt History, Saf Publishing 1994; trad.it. Falsi movimenti: una storia di Robert Wyatt, Arcana 1994; traduzione di Alessandro Achilli

Links

Calyx

Robert Wyatt And Stuff

Hibou, Anemone & Bear

Robert Wyatt Video

Strong Comet

Hulloder (site hosted now on Calyx)

Phil Miller - The Legacy

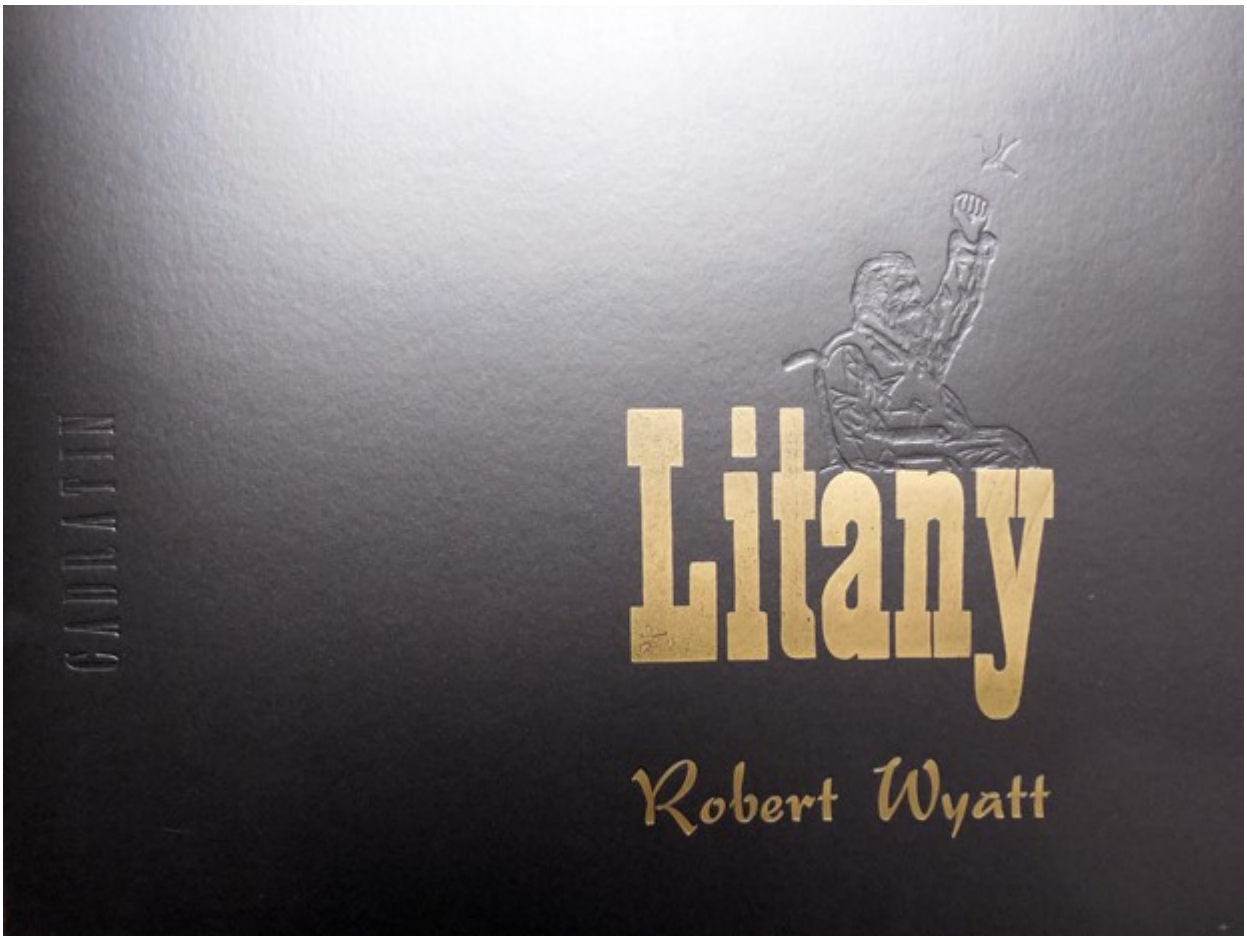
Robert Wyatt page

Canterbury scores

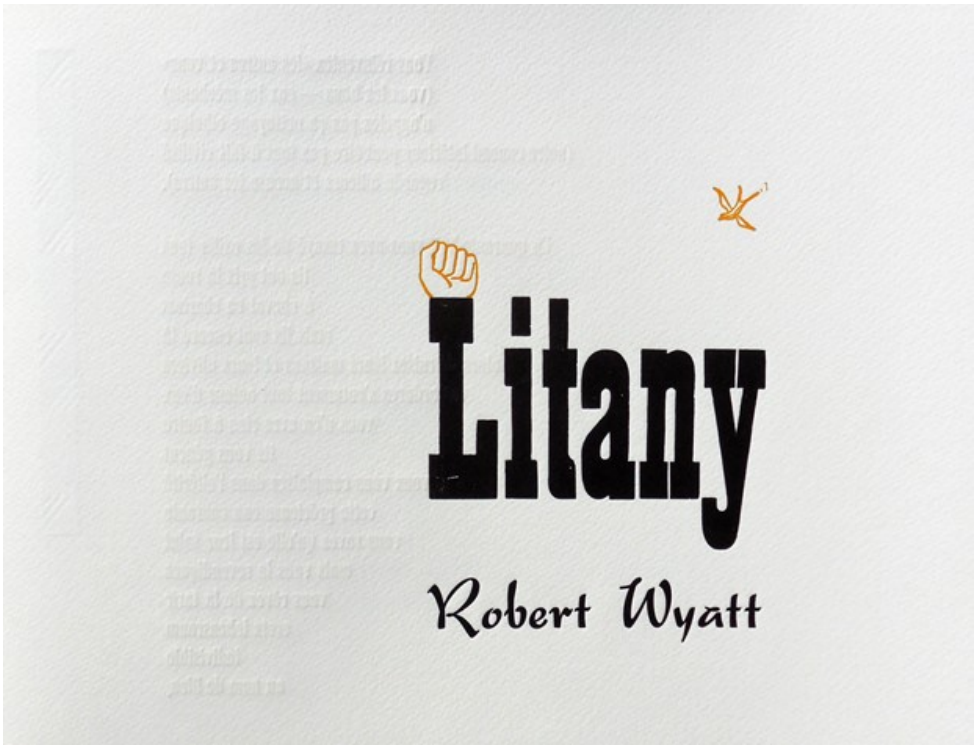
The Canterbury Scene

Hugh Hopper Page

Robert Wyatt Canterbury King



Litany - Jean-Michel Marchetti

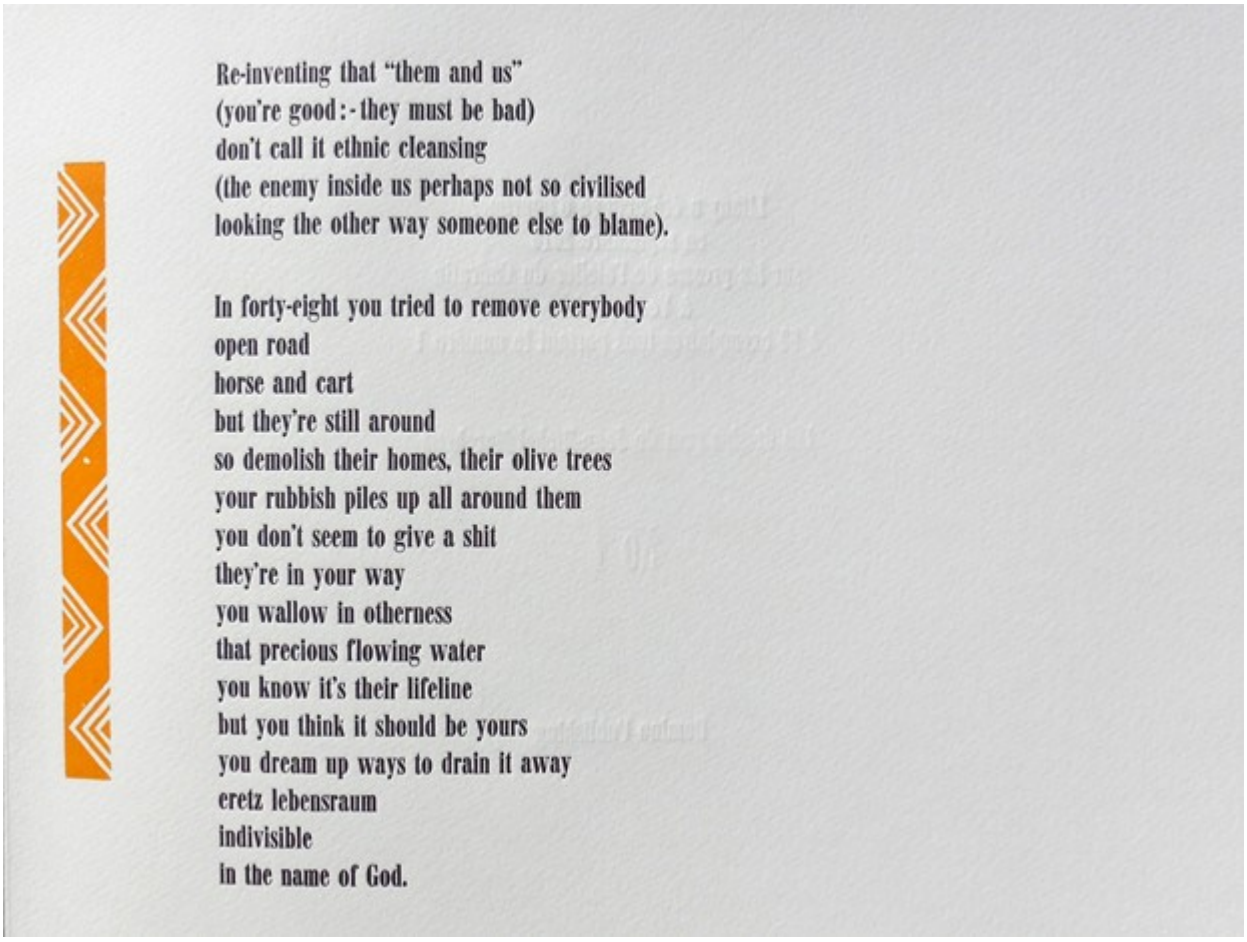


ABÉCÉDAIRE

LITANY - dessin estampé en couverture de Jean-Michel Marchetti, signé par le peintre, imprimé en septembre 2010 sur les presses de l'atelier du Cadratin à Vevey - Suisse, en 60 exemplaires tous portant le N° 1.

Typographie manuelle.

format 24x32cm.



> Zoom

Vous réinventez «les autres et vous» (vous les bons — eux les méchants) n'appelez pas ça nettoyage ethnique (notre ennemi intérieur peut-être pas tout à fait civilisé regarde ailleurs et accuse les autres).

En quarante-huit vous avez essayé de les exiler tous ils ont pris la route à cheval en chariots mais ils sont encore là alors détruisez leurs maisons et leurs oliviers vos ordures s'entassent tout autour d'eux vous n'en avez rien à foutre ils vous gênent
vous vous complaisez dans l'altérité cette précieuse eau courante vous savez qu'elle est leur salut mais vous la revendiquez vous rêvez de la tarir
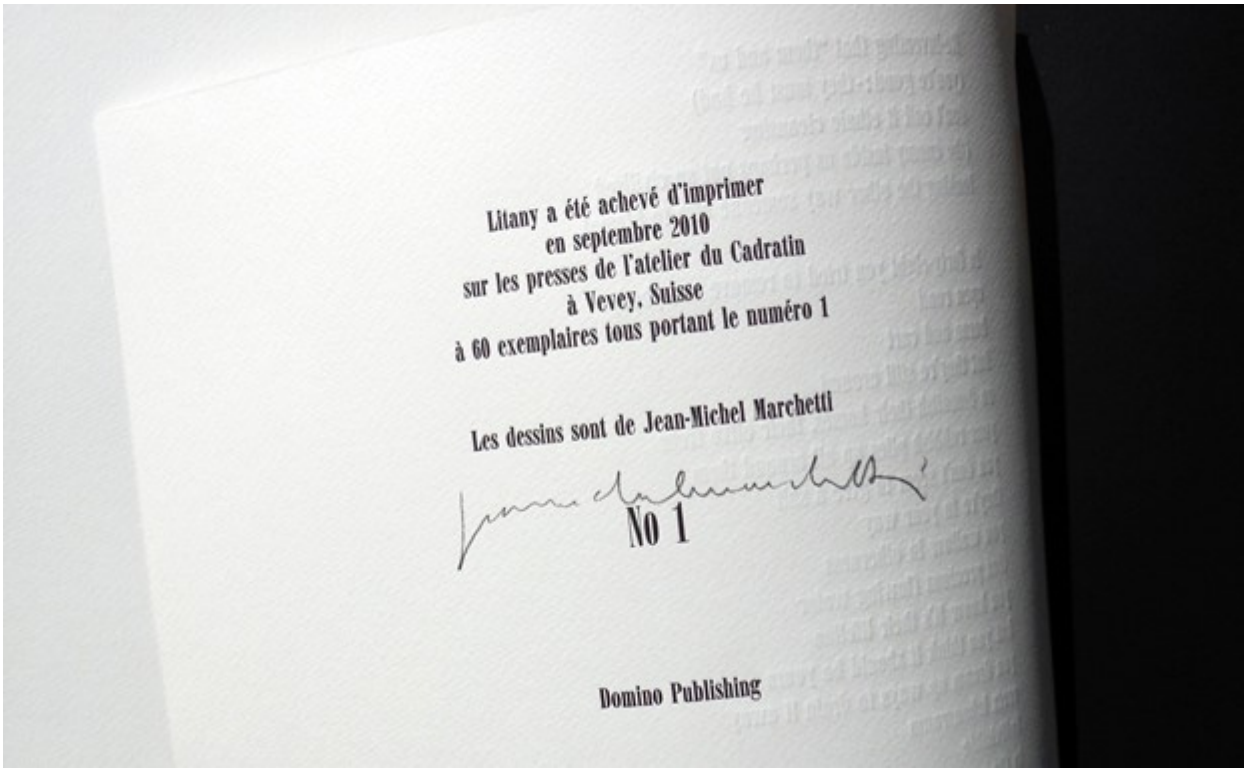
eretz lebensraum
indivisible
au nom de Dieu,



> Zoom

Re-inventing that "them and us"
(you're good:- they must be bad) don't call it ethnic cleansing
(the enemy inside us perhaps not so civilised looking the other way someone else to blame).

In forty-eight you tried to remove everybody open road horse and cart
but they're still around so demolish their homes, their olive trees your rubbish piles up all around them you don't seem to give a shit they're in your way you wallow in otherness that precious flowing water you know it's their lifeline but you think it should be yours you dream up ways to drain it away
eretz lebensraum
indivisible
in the name of God.

> Zoom

Litany a été achevé d'imprimer en septembre 2010
sur les presses de l'atelier du Cadratin à Vevey, Suisse à 60 exemplaires tous portant le numéro 1

Les dessins sont de Jean-Michel Marchetti

No 1

Domino Publishing

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Little Red Concert

ABÉCÉDAIRE

ROBERT WYATT WITH FRIENDS - LITTLE RED CONCERT, 1974

Animated fantasy based on the concert by Robert Wyatt & Friends at Theatre Royal Drury Lane, London, September the 8th 1974.

Directed and created by Shlomo "Shin Pey" Polonsky (new version updated on 26 February 2024)

"This animated thing is an elaborated masterpiece of visual + music - a truly original re-invention. It really moves me. I felt quite tearful at the end..." - Robert Wyatt

Lyrics

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Paroles des morceaux chantés par Robert Wyatt (qu'il en soit ou non l'auteur).

Steve Nieve
2013

Together

- Save The World
- Conversation
- You Lie Sweetly
- What A Holiday
- Tender Moment
- Up
- Vertigo
- Life Preserver
- Halloween (Bonfire Night)
- I Do Not Miss You (Nostalgia #2)
- La Plus Jolie Langue (duet with Robert Wyatt & Muriel Teodori)
- La Crise
- Voué à l'Oubli
- Burn The Past
- Summer Song

Wyatt/Atzmon/Stephen
2010

...For The Ghosts Within'

- Laura
- Lullaby For Irena
- The Ghosts Within
- Where Are They Now?
- Maryan
- Round Midnight
- Lush Life
- What's New?
- In A Sentimental Mood
- At Last I Am Free
- What A Wounderful World

Sophia Domancich

Snakes And Ladders

- Goodnight Instrumental
- High Tide On The Ebb
- In The Box
- S&S
- The Island
- Est-ce l'heure du thé ?
- Tea Time
- Mis manos te acarician
- Wilderness Instrumental
- Wilderness
- Lucky Day

A

A L'Abattoir

A.W.O.L.

A Beautiful Peace

A Beautiful War

A Last Straw

A Certain Kind

A Sunday In Madrid

Alien

Alifib / Alifie

Alliance

Amber And The Amberines

Another Great Victory

As Long As He Lies Perfectly Still

At Last I'm Free

Arauco

B

Be Serious

2010

- ...Of Night
- Goodnight Instrumental
- Goodnight
- Five O'Clock

Robert Wyatt
2007

Comicopera

ACT ONE LOST IN NOISE
- Stay Tuned
- Just As You Are
- You You
- A.W.O.L
- Anachronist

ACT TWO THE HERE AND THE NOW
- A Beautiful Peace
- Be Serious
- On The Town Square
- Mob Rule
- A Beautiful War
- Out Of The Blue

ACT THREE AWAY WITH THE FAIRIES
- Del Mondo
- Cancion de Julieta
- Pastafari
- Fragment
- Hasta Siempre Comandante

Robert Wyatt & Friends In Concert
2005

Theatre Royal Drury Lane - Sunday 8th September 1974

- Introduction by John Peel
- Dedicated To You But You Weren't Listening
- Memories
- Sea Song
- A Last Straw
- Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road
- Alife
- Alifib
- Mind Of A Child
- Instant Pussy
- Signed Curtain
- Calyx
- Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road
- I'm A Believer

Robert Wyatt

Cuckooland

Part One 'neither here...'
- Just A Bit
- Old Europe
- Tom Hay's Fox
- Forest
- Beware
- Cuckoo Madame
- Raining In My Heart
- Lullaby For Hamza

Silence

Before We Knew

Beware...

Biko

Blues In Bob Minor

Boo To You Too

Born Again Cretin

Brian The Fox

C

Caimanera

Calyx

Cancion de Julieta

Catholic Architecture

Chairman Mao

Costa

CP Jeebies

Cuckoo Madame

Cursty

D

Dada Was Here

Dedicated to You But You Weren't Listening

Del Mondo

Do Ya?

Dondestan

2003

A suitable place for those with tired ears to pause and resume listening later

Part Two '...nor there'
- Trickle Down
- Insensatez
- Mister E
- Lullaloop
- Life Is Sheep
- Foreign Accents
- Brian The Fox
- La Ahada Yalam
- Cancion de Julieta

Various Artists
2002

A Tribute To John Lennon

- John Lennon
- Instant Karma
- Jealous Guy
- Everybody's Got Something To Hide Except For Me And My Monkey
- Working Class Hero
- The Ballad Of John And Yoko
- Bless You
- Happiness Is A Warm Gun
- Come Together
- Love (Robert Wyatt)
- Gimme Some Truth
- Isolation
- Cold Turkey
- Give Peace A Chance
- Gimme Some Truth
- Happy Xmas (War Is Over)
- I Am The Walrus
- In My Life

Bruno Coulais
2001

Winged Migration

- To Be By Your Side
- Masters Of The Field
- Northern Bound
- The Crossing
- The Highest Gander
- Beating Drums
- The Return Of The Cranes
- The Blue Thread
- The Red Forest
- Like A Breath Of Air
- The Takeoff
- Amidst The Factory Smoke
- The Glider
- After The Hunt
- The Paper Parrot
- The Swans Flight
- Featers And Stripes
- The Wounded Dove
- Off Camera

E

East Timor

Experiences N°2

F

Foreign Accents

Feelin 'Reelin Squeelin'

Forest

Fragment

Free Will and Testament

Frontera

G

Gegenstand

Gharbzadegi

Gloria Gloom

God Song

Grass

H

Happy Land

Hasta Siempre Comandante

Have You Ever Bean Green?

Heaps Of Sheeps

Heart Of Stone

Hibou, Anemone And Bear

Pascal Comelades
2000

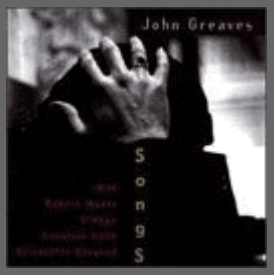
September Song

- September Song
- Signed Curtain
- Come Prima
- The Sheik Of Araby
- 24 Mila Baci
- Knockin' On Heaven's Door
- L'Italiano

Annie Whitehead
2000

The Gathering

- Mist
- The Gathering
- Blue Note Bounce
- This Affects That
- The Lonely Heart (Part 1)
- The Lonely Heart (Part 2)



- Before We Knew
- Afro Blue
- Remembering

Robert Wyatt
1997

Shleep

- Heaps Of Sheeps
- The Duchess
- Maryan
- Was A Friend
- Free Will and Testament
- September the Ninth
- Alien
- Out Of Season
- A Sunday In Madrid
- Blues In Bob Minor
- Whole Point Of No Return

Songs

- Old Kinderhook

- The Song
- Swelling Valley
- Green Fuse

- Kew. Rhone.
- Eccentric Waters
- Silence
- Price We Pay
- L'Aise Aux Ex-Sans-Trique
- Back Where We Began

Hope For Hapiness

Hot River

Hulloder

I

I'm A Believer

I'm A Mineralist

I'd Rather Be With You

I Should've Known

I Was Wrong

Igor Mortis

Impotence

In The Dark Year

Insensatez

J

Jet-Propelled Photograph

Just A Bit

Just As You Are

K

Kew. Rhone.

Kingdom

L

la Plus Jolie Langue

John Greaves
1995

- Gegenstand

Millennium
1995

A Civilised Word

- Another Great Victory
- Too Much Heaven
- Prey
- The Cross
- A Thousand Years
- Igor Mortis
- Digest Of A Paperheart
- Erup/Peru
- Everything Will Change
- Kill Me Softly

Robert Wyatt
1994

Flotsam Jetsam

- Slow Walkin' Talk
- Moon In June
- Standfast [G. Windo]
- No 'Alf Measures
- God Song - Fol De Rol
- Soprano Derivitavo - Apricot Jam
- A Little Something
- Now Is The Time
- Now't Doin
- Born Again Cretin
- Billie's Bounce
- Locomotive
- War Without Blood
- Obert Tancat 1
- Tu Traicion
- Obert Tancat 2
- Turn Things Upside
- The Wind Of Change
  M. Kaujeua]

Robert Wyatt
1993

Mid-Eighties

- Yolanda
- Te Recuerdo Amanda
- Biko
- Amber And The Amberines
- Memories Of You
- 'Round Midnight
- Pigs... (In There)
- Chairman Mao
- Alliance
- The United States Of Amnesia
- East Timor
- Speechless
- The Age Of Self
- Vandalusia
- The British Road
- Mass Medium
- Gharbzadezi [R. Wyatt]
- P.L.A.
- The End

Laura

Left On Man

Life Is Sheep

Lisp Service

Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road

Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road

Love

Love Makes Sweet Music

Lullaby For Hamza

Lullaby For Irena

Lullaloop

Lush Life

M

Marchides

Maryan

Mass Medium

Masters Of The Field

Memories

Memories Of You

Mister E

Mob Rule

Moments Of Delight

Moon In June

Moon In June (BBC version)

Moss

Muddy Mouse (a)

Ultramarine
1993

United Kingdoms

- Source
- Kingdom
- Queen Of The Moon
- Prince Rock
- Happy Land
- Urf
- English Kitten
- Instant Kitten
- Badgers
- Hooter
- Dizzy Fox
- No Time

Paul Haines
1993

Darn It!

Disc 1
- Threats That Matter
- Cursty
- What This Was Going To Suppose To Mean
- Funnybird Song
- Outside The City
- Art In Heaven
- Rawalpindi Blues
- Sticks In The Mud
- There Aren't These Things
- Paramedicaux Erotiques
- Jubilee
- On The Way To Elsewhere And Here
- Inexplicably
- Poem For Gretchen Ruth

Disc 2
- Just When I Thought
- This Dedication
- Threats That Count
- What This Was Going To Suppose To Mean
- Breakfast
- Snow Variations On Darn It!
- Darn It
- Route Doubt
- Ask Me If You Know
- Those Sweet Blue Olives Of Bombay
- Hello
- Mrs. Dressup
- Third World Two Medley: She Was Showing Me/Boint Liver
- Breakfast (Late)
- Please Fasten Your Seatbelt Sign
- Testing Testing
- Darn It! (Down In Back) (Reprise)
- Threats That Can't Read
- C'Etait Dans La Nuit

A Short Break

Muddy Mouse (b)

Muddy Mouse (c)

Muddy Mouth

N

N.I.O. (New Information Order)

Nan True's Hole

Never Leave Me

O

O Caroline

Old Europe

Out Of Season

Out Of The Blue

P

P.L.A.

Pataphysical Introduction Part1 & A Concise British Alphabet Part I and Part II

Pig

Pigs... (In There)

Prisonniers

R

Red Flag

Righteous Rhumba

Round Midnight

Robert Wyatt
1992

- A Short Break
- Tubab
- Kutcha
- Venti Latir
- Unmasked

Robert Wyatt
1991

Dondestan

- Costa
- The Sight Of The Wind
- Catholic Architecture
- Worship
- Shrinkrap
- CP Jeebies
- Left On Man
- Lisp Service
- N.I.O. (New Information Order)
- Dondestan

Soft Machine
1990

The Peel Sessions

Disc 1
- Moon In June (BBC version)
- Esther's Nose Job
- Mousetrap|Noisette|Backwards Mousetrap (reprise)
- Slightly All The Time
- Out-Bloody-Rageous
- Eamonn Andrews

Disc 2
- Facelift
- Virtually Pigling Bland
- Neo Cariban Grides
- Drop
- As If
- Dedicated To You But You Weren't Listening

Michael Mantler

Many Have No Speech

- Intro
- Just As Someone
- Ce Qu'a De Pis
- Alles Scheint Rand
- Imagine
- In The End
- Vieil Aller
- Rien Nul
- Tant De Temps
- En Face
- Chaque Jour

S

Sea Song

Save Yourself

September Song

September the Ninth

She's Gone

Shipbuilding

Shrinkrap

Siam

Signed Curtain

Soup Song

Stalin Wasn't Stallin

Stay Tuned

Strange Fruit

T

Tant De Temps

Te Recuerdo Amanda

Team Spirit

Thank You Pierrot Lunaire

That's How Much I Need You Now

The Age Of Self

The British Road

The Duchess

The Doubtful Guest

The End

1988

- Pss
- En Cadence
- Something There
- Comrade
- Den Atem Ausget Ausget
- A L'Abattoir
- And What
- D'ou La Voix
- Fous Qui Disiez
- Merk, Jetzt
- Son Ombre
- Reve
- Life Connects
- Prisonniers
- Silence
- Viele Haben Keine Sprache

Robert Wyatt
1987

Chairman Mao

- Chairman Mao

Various Artists
1986

Artists For Animals

- Pigs... (In There)
- Animal Farm
- Monkey In A Bin
- The Aftermath
- Suffer Dog
- Rain Forest
- When The Last Ship Sails
- The Abbatoir)
- The Boyne Hunt Saboteurs
- I Believe
- One Million Hamburgers
- All Cats Are Grey
- Blood Sports
- Toros
- Knit Your Own Balaclava
- Hear The Animals Cry
- Lies
- A Sporting Life

Letters Home

- Who Will Accuse?
- Heart Of Stone (Megalopolis)
- Banknote
- Moss
- Dragon At The Core

The Hapless Child

The Highest Gander

The Insect God

The Object-Lesson

The Remembered Visit

The Sight Of The Wind

The Sinking Spell

The Song

The Wind Of Change

The Wonderful Window Of Eighteen Springs

Tom Hay's Fox

Trickle Down

U

Unmasked

Urep Peru

US Of Amnesia

V

Vandalusia

Venceremos (We Will Win)

W

Waited/Justice

Was A friend

War Without Blood

News From Babel
1985

- Dark Matter
- Waited/Justice
- Fast Food
- Late Evening

Robert Wyatt
With The SWAPO Singers
1985

The Wind Of Change

- The Wind Of Change
- Namibia

Robert Wyatt
1985

Old Rottenhat

- Alliance
- US Of Amnesia
- East Timor
- Speechless
- The Age Of Self
- Vandalusia
- The British Road
- Mass Medium
- Gharbzadegi
- P.L.A.

Robert Wyatt
1984

4 Track EP

- I'm A Believer
- Yesterday Man
- Team Spirit
- Memories

Venceremos (We Will Win)

Wervin'

What's New?

What A Wonderful World

Why Am I So Short?

When I Don't Want You

Who Will Accuse?

Why Are We Sleeping?

Wilderness

Worship

X

Y

Yesterday Man

Yolanda

You Don't Remember

You You

Working Week
1984

- Venceremos (We Will Win)
- Bottom End

Various Artists
1984

The Last Nightingale

- Moments Of Delight
- In The Dark Year
- Back In The Playground Blues
- Bittern Storm Revisited
- On The Beach At Cambridge

Robert Wyatt
1984

Work In Progress

- Biko
- Amber And The Amberines
- Yolanda
- Te Recuerdo Amanda

Robert Wyatt
1982

Shipbuilding/Memories Of You/'Round Midnight

- Memories Of You
- 'Round Midnight
- Shipbuilding

Nothing Can Stop Us

Robert Wyatt
1982

- Born Again Cretin
- At Last I Am Free
- Caimanera
- Grass
- Stalin Wasn't Stallin
- Shipbuilding
- Red Flag
- Strange Fruit
- Arauco
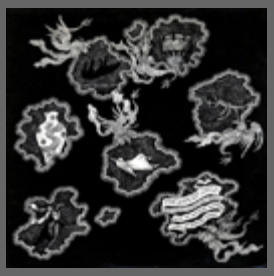
- Trade Union
- Stalingrad

Nick Mason
1981

Nick Mason's Fictitious Sports



- Can't Get My Motor To Start
- I Was Wrong
- Siam
- Hot River
- Boo To You Too
- Do Ya?
- Wervin'
- I'm A Mineralist

Robert Wyatt
1975

Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard

- Soup Song
- Sonia
- Team Spirit
- Song For Che
- Muddy Mouse (a)
- Solar Flares
- Muddy Mouse (b)
- 5 Black Notes And 1 White Note
- Muddy Mouse (c)
- Muddy Mouth

Michael Mantler
1976

The Happless Child (And Other Inscrutable Stories)

- The Sinking Spell
- The Object-Lesson
- The Insect God
- The Doubtful Guest
- The Remembered Visit
- The Hapless Child

Voices And Instruments

Jan Steele/John Cage
1976

- All Day
- Distant Saxophones
- Rhapsody Spaniel
- Experiences No.1
- Experiences N°.2
- The Wonderful Widow Of Eighteen Springs
- Forever And Sunsmell
- In A Landscape

Phil Manzanera
1975

Diamond Head

- Frontera
- Diamond Head
- Big Day
- The Flex
- Same Time Next Week
- Miss Shapiro
- East Of Echo
- Lagrima
- Alma Cape

Robert Wyatt
1974

Rock Bottom

- Sea Song
- A Last Straw
- Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road
- Alifib
- Alifie
- Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road

Matching Mole
1972

Little Red Record

- Starting In The Middle Of The Day We Can Drink Our Politics Away
- Marchides
- Nan True's Hole
- Righteous Rhumba
- Brandy As In Benj
- Gloria Gloom
- God Song
- Flora Fidgit
- Smoke Signal

Matching Mole
1972

Matching Mole

- O Caroline
- Instant Pussy
- Signed Curtain
- Part Of The Dance
- Instant Kitten
- Dedicated To Hugh, But You Weren't Listening
- Beer As In Braindeer
- Immediate Curtain

Soft Machine
1971

Jet-Propelled Photographs (At The Beginning)

- That's How Much I Need You Now
- Save Yourself
- I Should've Known
- Jet-Propelled Photograph
- When I Don't Want You
- Memories
- You Don't Remember
- She's Gone
- I'd Rather Be With You

Soft Machine
1970

Third

- Facelift
- Slightly All The Time
- Moon In June
- Out-Bloody-Rageous

Soft Machine
1969

Volume Two

- Pataphysical Introduction, Pt. I
- Concise British Alphabet, Pt. I
- Hibou, Anemone And Bear
- Concise British Alphabet, Pt. II
- Hulloder
- Dada Was Here
- Thank You Pierrot Lunaire
- Have You Ever Bean Green?
- Pataphysical Introduction, Pt. 2
- Out Of Tunes
- As Long As He Lies Perfectly Still
- Dedicated to You But You Weren't Listening
- Fire Engine Passing With Bells Clanging
- Pig

- Orange Skin Food
- Door Opens And Closes
- 10:30 Returns To The Bedroom

Soft Machine
1968

The Soft Machine

- Hope For Happiness
- Joy Of A Toy
- Hope For Happiness (Reprise)
- Why Am I So Short?
- So Boot If At All
- A Certain Kind
- Save Yourself
- Priscilla
- Lullabye Letter
- We Did It Again
- Plus Belle Qu'une Poubelle
- Why Are We Sleeping?
- Box 25/4 Lid

Soft Machine
1967

Love Makes Sweet Music

- Love Makes Sweet Music
- Feelin 'Reelin Squeelin'
-

The Wilde Flowers
1984

Tales Of Canterbury

- Impotence (69)
- Those Words They Say (66)
- Memories (66)
- Don't Try To Change Me (65)
- Parchman Farm (65)
- Almost Grown (65)
- She's Gone (65)
- Slow Walkin' Talk (65)
- He's Bad For You (65)
- It's What I Feel (A Certain Kind) (65)
- Memories (Instrumental) (66)
- Never Leave Me (66)
- Time After Time (66)
- Just Where I Want (66)
- No Game When You Lose (66)
- Impotence (66)
- Why Do You Care (With Zobe) (68)
- The Pieman Cometh (With Zobe) (68)
- Summer Spirit (With Zobe) (68)
- She Loves To Hurt (69)
- The Big Show (69)
- Memories (69)

Together
2013

Steve Nieve

More information about this album

LA PLUS JOLIE LANGUE Steve Nieve

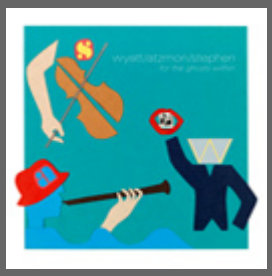
Je suis pas capable d'écrire en anglais
Mes sentiments d'aujourd'hui
La plus jolie langue au monde entier
Est le française et je suis ici
Où chaque mot est particulièrement beau
Comme les nuages, blanche , en l'air
Et collier, ensemble, forment les infinis mélanges
Comme les vagues révèlent la souplesse de la mer
Et les Alpes racontent la jeunesse de la terre



> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

For The Ghosts Within 2010

Wyatt/Atzmon/Stephen

More information about this album

LAURA Raksin / Mercer

Laura is the face in the misty light
Footsteps that you hear down the hall
The laugh that floats on a summer night
That you can never quite recall
And you see Laura on a train that is passing through Those eyes how familiar they seem
She gave your very first kiss to you
That was Laura but she's only a dream

> List

LULLABY FOR IRENA Stephen/Benge

You were there for me, all along.
You were there for me, when I had no body
There to care for me
Long before the day that I was born
In the air
Long before the day that I was born

You were there so I could be
From the air to your body, you gave my spirit life
You made my world and all my wise and all my foolish ways
You gave the world to me
All its winters, all its summer days

I was there for you all along
I was there with you, flying high and dancing with the birds for you to the music of your lullabies
In the air
Long before the day that I was born

> List

LUSH LIFE Strayhorn

I used to visit all the very gay places
Those come-what-may places
Where one relaxes on the axis of the wheel of life
To get the feel of life from jazz and cocktails

The girls I knew had sad and sullen gray faces
With distingue traces that used to be there
You could see where they'd been washed away
By too many through the day, twelve o'clock tales

Then you came along with your siren song
To tempt me to madness
I thought for awhile that your poignant smile
Was tinged with the sadness of a great love for me
Ah yes, I was wrong
Again, I was wrong

Life is lonely again and only last year
Everything seemed so sure
Now life is awful again
A trough full of hearts could only be a bore

A week in Paris could ease the bite of it
All I care is to smile in spite of it

I'll forget you, I will while yet you are still Burning inside my brain romance is mush
Stifling those who strive

So I'll live a lush life in some small dive
And there I'll be While I rot with the rest of those Whose lives are lonely too

> List

WHAT'S NEW? Haggard/Burke

What's new?
How is the world treating you?
You haven't changed a bit
Lovely as ever, I must admit

What's new?
How did that romance come through?
We haven't met since then
Gee, but it's nice to see you again

What's new?
Probably I'm boring you
But seeing you is grand
And you were sweet to offer your hand

I understand. Adieu!
Pardon my asking what's new
Of course you couldn't know
I haven't changed, I still love you

> List

WHAT A WONDERFUL WORLD Thiele / Weiss

I see trees of green, red roses too
I see them bloom for me and you
And I think to myself, what a wonderful world

I see skies of blue and clouds of white

The bright blessed day, the dark sacred night
And I think to myself, what a wonderful world

The colours of the rainbow, so pretty in the sky
Are also on the faces of people going by
I see friends shakin' hands, sayin' "How do you do?"
They're really saying "I love you"

I hear babies cryin', I watch them grow
They'll learn much more than I'll ever know
And I think to myself, what a wonderful world
Yes, I think to myself, what a wonderful worl

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Snakes And Ladders
2010

Sophia Domancich

More information about this album

WILDERNESS Benge / Domancich

We follow our star leading us on, to our desert land and we.... find heaven there,
in the wilderness
home-from-home.
.....And when we need to run away from this pit-i-less world,
we start searching for our star.
Hand in hand, always hand in hand we'll be..... free there,
in our wilderness,
free from harm, from the pitiless world, safe in the universe of our wilderness
home from home
And if we ever lose our way,
we start searching for our star,
our sentimental star

> List

More information about this album

Comicopera
2007

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

STAY TUNED

Anja Garbarek

In between, lost in noise.
Somewhere, somewhere.

In between, got no choice
But to be here,
Somewhere, somewhere.

If you can hear me,
If you're still there,
Stay tuned.
There is more to come.

Oh don't start searching,
I'll get back to you.

Riding waves, trying to reach
Somewhere, somewhere.

Cannot share this moment with you.
I'm particles in the air,
You can't see me, but I'm here.

So if you can hear me,
If you're still there,
Stay tuned.

I'll get back to you

> List

JUST AS YOU ARE

Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

A

It's that look in your eyes,
Telling me lies.
So many promises broken.

What can I do?

What should I do?
Try to love you
just as you are?

'Cause I'm never going to change a thing about you,
Never ever going to change a thing.
(I'll) try to love you,
just as you are.

Should I leave? Should I stay?
Should I call it a day?
There's so much to say that's unspoken.

In your way you've been true,
all I can do
(is) try to love you
just as you are,

'Cause I'm never going to change a thing.
No, I'll never ever change a thing.
(I'll) try to love you
just as you are.

B

It's that look in your eyes,
I know you despise me,
For not being stronger.

What can I do?
What should I do?
I've always loved you
just as you are.

And I've never tried to change a thing,
never tried to change a thing about you.
Always loved you
just as you are.

Will you leave? Will you stay?
There may come a day when I'm weak and I'm stupid no longer.

In my way, I've been true,
I've lived just for you,
ans always loved you,
just as you are.

I've never tried to change a thing,
never tried to change a thing about you,

Always loved you
just as you are.

> List

YOU YOU Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

You.

Yyou're there like the light
wWhen the dark descends.

So I don't mind

when it's that time again.

'Cause it's time for you you, for
you you, for you you, to see you,
when night comes again.

I'm tumbling down,
It's falling.

You
you gave me money.
It stuck in my memory.
Just like you.

You're here,
where you should be.

You.....

You
Is it you?
Love,
Fading away with the night.

When dawn comes you're not there,
so terrible
to lose you,
when the morning comes.

You.....

> List

A.W.O.L.
Dedicated to David Greenberger

Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

Hattie lives up in the attic now, her feet rarely touching the ground,
haunted by waltzes with Harry.
(Harry's hat hanging here in the hall.)

Memoy's fading for Hattie now.
There?s nothing and no-one to trust.
Just the tick and the tock of the damnable clock,
as the world that she knows turns to dust.

Hattie stays up in her attic now, in silence, except for the sound of the tick and the tock of the damnable clock, while the world that she knows disappears

Thinking in riddles,
Waving to trains.
Waving to trains that no longer run.

Thinking in riddles.
And waving to trains.
Waving to trains that no longer run.

> List

A BEAUTIFUL PEACE Robert Wyatt / Brian Eno

(muttering)

I've been walking for hours, needed a rest.
Take a good look around,
nowhere to rest.

There's a shop
selling gentlemen's suits.
Further along an estate agent or two.

And a take-away sign over a dusty door.
Shiny photos of food,
slightly microwaved.

There's a methodist hall.
No Smoking
No Dogs
in the methodist hall.

It looks pretty grim
in the methodist hall,
despite a poster which says that
'He's There for Us All'

And it's a beatuful day,
for walking away.

Its's a beautiful day,
but not here.

> List

BE SERIOUS Robert Wyatt

I really envy Christians.
I envy Muslems too.
It must be great to be so sure as a top Hindu or Jew.

He said
'Pray to God for mercy'
He said
'Get down on your knees'
He said
ask Him for forgiveness,
and 'when you do,
say please'

And I got no-one to turn to when I'm sinking in the shit.
Feel so sad and lonely,
no-one to tell me what to do.

He said,
well I 'shouldn't grumble'
If you just ask Him nicely
He'll 'iron out your frowns'.

And I don't believe in willpower;
self-expression's such a fraud.
I mean how can I express myself when there's no self to express?

Be serious!

Put a sock in it.
Then put a lid on it.
Do us a favour.
Leave it out.

> List

MOB RULE Robert Wyatt

Plans were unveiled,
the press informed,
residents muttered their doubts and fears at meetings.

A brace of councillors voiced concern.
Some assent was murmured.

There were Advisors and Expert Guidance had been sought.

Whom to trust?
Who could know
just what that meant:
Expert?

People are so ungrateful,
It's quite hard on Chairmen.

Directors of Planning must be given the right to make Plans.
Just as, say,
the woodworm must bore.

So too Advisors must Advise.

> List

A BEAUTIFUL WAR Robert Wyatt / Brian Eno

It's a beautiful day
to see my prey.

It's a beautiful day
for a daring raid

I can see my prey
from afar.

So I open the hatch.
And I drop the first batch.

It's a shame I'll miss the blaze,
but I'll see the film within days,
and I'll get to see the replay of my beautiful day.

Re-live my day,
my beautiful day.
Re-live my beautiful day,

when I opened the hatch,
and I dropped the first batch, how they got no time to flee.

Total success.
We'll all be free,

What a beautiful day.
Just a beautiful day

> List

OUT OF THE BLUE Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

No need to wipe your feet,
The welcome mat's not there.

But just take care
before you dare to step inside my door.

Something unbelievable has happened to the floor.

These rooms won't give you shelter.
They're open to the air.
The upper storey's out of reach,
the stair's no longer there.

For reasons beyond all understanding,
You've blown my house apart.
You've set me free
(to let you know you've planted
everlasting hatred in my heart
You've planted
everlasting hatred in my heart)

You've planted your everlasting hatred in my heart.
Just a beautiful day

Illustration : Alfreda Benge

> Zoom

> List

DEL MONDO Ferretti / Zamboni / Maroccolo / Magnelli / Canali

E'stato un tempo il mondo giovane e forte,
Odorante di sangue fertile,
Rigoglioso di lotte, moltitudini,
Splendeva pretendeva molto…
Famiglie donne incinte, sfregamenti,
Facce gambe pance braccia…

Dimora della carne, riserva di calore,
Sapore e familiare odore…
E'cavit di donna che crea il mondo,
Veglia sui tempo lo protegge…
Contiene membro d'uomo che s'alza e spinge,
Insoddisfatto poi distrugge…

Il nostro mondo adessso debole e vecchio,
Puzza il sangue versato infetto…

E'stato un tempo il mondo giovane e forte,
Odorante di sangue fertile,
Dimora della carne, riserva di calore,
Sapore e familiare odore…
Il nostro mondo adessso debole e vecchio,
Puzza il sangue versato infetto…

Povert magnanima, mala aventura,
Concedi compassione ai figli tuoi…
Glorifichi la vita, e gloria sia,

Glorifichi la vita e gloria…

E'stato un tempo il mondo giovane e forte,
Odorante di sangue fertile,
Famiglie donne incinte, sfregamenti,
Facce gambe pance braccia…

> List

CANCION DE JULIETA Frederico Garcia Lorca / Robert Wyatt

Un mar de sueno.
Un mar de tierra blanca,
y los arcos vacios por el cielo.

Mi cola por los mares, por las algas.
Mi cola por el tiempo.

Playa de los gusanos lenadores
y delfin de cristal por los cerezos.

Oh puro amianto de final!
Oh ruina!
Oh soledad sin arco!
Mar de sueno!

> List

FRAGMENT Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

'Cause I'm never going to change a thing about you,
(I'll) try to love you.

> List

HASTA SIEMPRE COMANDANTE Carlos Puebla

Aprendimos a quererte desde la histórica altura donde el sol de tu bravura le puso cerco a la muerte.

Tu mano gloriosa y fuerte sobre la historia dispara cuando todo Santa Clara se despierta para verte.

Aquí se queda la clara,
la entrañable transparencia,
de tu querida presencia
Comandante Che Guevara.

Vienes quemando la brisa con soles de primavera para plantar la bandera con la luz de tu sonrisa.

Aquí se queda la clara,
la entrañable transparencia,
de tu querida presencia
Comandante Che Guevara.

Tu amor revolucionario te conduce a nueva empresa donde esperan la firmeza de tu brazo libertario.

Sequiremos adelante como junto a ti seguimos
y con Fidel te decimos :
Hasta siempre, Comandante!

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Theatre Royal Drury Lane
Sunday 8th September 1974
2005

Robert Wyatt & Friends
In Concert

More information about this album

CALYX Robert Wyatt / Phil Miller

Poetry in motion is what you become from the front and from behind you are a star

Sideways, on the top and underneath
Close inspection reveals that you're in perfect nick you'll perform like a dream.

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Cuckooland
2003

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

JUST A BIT Robert Wyatt

Faith may not be such a bad thing.
Hope can still feel pretty good.
I'm as mad as any hatter.
I feel safer touching wood.

I like totem poles and icons
(icon tact is de rigeur).
So ring dem bells and pump that organ.
chants for him and hymns for her.

'Bracadabra hocus locus, magic mush, no room for doubt as wailing walls induce psychosis (beat your braincells inside out).

Transcendental art's religion, thinking you'll improve your mind, when all it does (if you're in luck)
is camouflage the daily grind.

Nature's harmony's a discord.
if you listen with both ears.
Poor Gaia's up to here in white noise.
She cannot assuage your fears.

Superstition's like religion;
bonsai version - faintly sad.
And I know that (I must admit it) touching wood is just a bit mad

> List

OLD EUROPE Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

Le Chat qui Pêche.
Rue de la Huchette.
Paris at night.
and the strains of a ghost saxophone.

Juliette and Miles.
Black and white city.
Paris by night.

and the ghosts of two people in love.

I'll be dreaming again,
always dreams of yesterdays.
Those days live on?
safe here in my heart.

Cherchez la femme.
slips through a doorway.
out of the night
to the warmth of a new lover's arms.

Rue St Benoit.
La route enchant2e.
Indigo nights,
and the ghost of the moon in the Seine.

I'll be dreaming again,
always dreams of yesterdays.
Those days live on,
safe here in my heart.

> List

TOM HAY'S FOX Robert Wyatt

Bring out your foghorns,
the mist has descended.
The alley's never been blinder.

What light there is.
is too diffused
to indicate any direction.
What light there is.
tells us nothing.

> List

FOREST Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

Deep in the forest
the omens are bad.
a cloud passes over the moon.

Devil Wind
bends the trees.
a cloud passes over the moon.

And the moon takes a peep
when the Gypsy girl sings,
and her song rises up
from the dark to the light,
like smoke to the sky.
when the Gypsy girl sings
at the river's edge.

Deep in the forest
the omens are bad.
a cloud passes over the moon.

White wolf waits.
grey wolf howls
at the girl by the river's edge.

The bullet head boys with their baby blue eyes, their donner und blitzen.
the lily white gadje religiously hatching their plots in the eyries of eagles.

But the moon's keeping watch
as the Gypsy girl sings, sees her song rising up
like smoke to the sky
from the dark to the light,
when the Gypsy girl sings
at the river's edge.

Like the sun on the forest her song rises up. from the ashes of Auschwitz,
the death camp at Lety.
the white cliffs of Dover,
the song of the Roma lives on and on...

Trees grow tall
though the winds blow cold.
tall trees grow.

Tall trees grow
where the cold winds blow.
trees grow tall.

> List

BEWARE Karen Mantler

You might have a lot to say.
There might be a price to pay.
Just beware.

They might smile and nod their heads, while they wish that you were dead.
Just beware.

Your Friends might not be what they seem.
Take it from me,
if you're not careful
you might get hurt one last time.
It's just a warning,
beware.

Don't get caught off your guard.
Evil lurks in all our hearts.
Just beware.

You won't last very long,
even if you are strong.
Just beware.

Don't trust anyone.
They might be your enemy.
If you're not careful.
you might get hurt one last time.
It's just a warning.
beware.
beware.
beware.

> List

CUCKOO MADAME Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

Cuckoo Madame
with your teddy bear eye, yellow fingers clinging to the chain link fence.
Bombers above you.
Bombers behind you.

Disapproval hounds you,
ugly rumour surrounds you.

Solitary madam, we never understood, you never told us of your battle with the cuckoo baby blues.

Cuckoo Madame
it's no wonder you're shy.
You're Greta Garbo,
you're the witch of Salem.
You're anti-social, and you are too bloody lonely for the likes of us.

We never knew of your battle
with the cuckoo baby blues.

When you saw that egg crack

it froze your blood.
You knew you had to fly then,
had to say goodbye,
had to fly before you saw another mother
feed your chick.

You knew it would break your heart.
You knew it would break your heart.

> List

LULLABY FOR HAMZA Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

When bombers bomb again,
I need your lullaby.
Fires are burning.
The nightmare's begun.

The world is dark again,
I need your lullaby.
Sleep has gone.
Night is long again.
Sing me your song.
Let me sleep.
Bring me peace.

When bombers bomb again,
we'll need your lullaby.
Children cry.
Houses burn again.
Once more.
Sing songs to soothe them,
to dry their tears.
to drown the screams of war.

The world's gone wrong again,
I need your lullaby.
Night is long,
and sleep's just a dream.
Sing your song,
stay close to me.
Sing to me.
Hushabye.

The world is dark again,
I need your lullaby.
Sleep has gone.
Night is much too long again.
Sing me your song,
let me sleep.
Bring me peace.

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

> Zoom

.

> List

TRICKLE DOWN Robert Wyatt

Open your window lend an ear and then pull back the curtain hurry
so you can hear

Listen to the hum
as it rises riding the. breeze leaving gravity's children agrounded

Onwards and upwards
that's the way ever on beyond the highest plateau
that's OK

There's a reason why some people float sometimes are floored
God knows this reason that's what gods are for Press on your window feel the pane

> List

INSENSATEZ Antonio Carlos Jobim / Vincius DeMoares

How insensitive I must have seemed when he told me that he loved me.
How unmoved and cold I must have seemed when he told me so sincerely.

Why, he must have asked, did I just turn and stare in icy silence?
What was I to say? What can you say when a love affair is over?

Now he's gone away, but I'm alone with the memory of his last look.
Vague and drawn and sad. I see it still,
all his heartbreak in that last look.

Why, he must have asked, did I just turn and stare in icy silence?
What was I to do? What can one do?
When a love affair is over.

> List

MISTER E Karen Mantler

I love suspense.
the thrill of the unknown.
What will I say?
I can't predict.
Where will all this lead?
I don't want to know.
Just take a chance,
things can't get much worse.
Who knows?
They might improve.
There's always hope.
When will I learn to trust myself, embrace mystery.
not be afraid?

> List

LULLALOOP Alfreda Benge

Hold on.
can't walk faster.
can't get up the hill.

Oy! You!
Wait for me,
I'm out of breath.
I'm ill

Slow down.
Slow down.

Hey! You!
Bin that Bebop.

Ditch the dancing.
Night's for lying down.

Bin that Bebop.
Ditch the dancing.
Don that duvet.
Cook the cocoa.
Turn that music down!

Slow down.
Slow down.

Cut those capers.
Keep you hair on.
I should worry.
You should coco.
Dirty stop-out.
Why? Oh why? Oh why?

Slow down.
Slow down.
Night's for lying down.

(Sweet dreams,
old chap,
sweet dreams).

> List

LIFE IS SHEEP Karen Mantler

Life is sheep,
for wool and lots of meat
we buy and sell.
And pets are just a luxury;
ornaments for you and me.

Life is sheep.
If you live on a farm,
instead of names.
the animals all have numbers
So you won't get too attached.

> List

FOREIGN ACCENTS Robert Wyatt

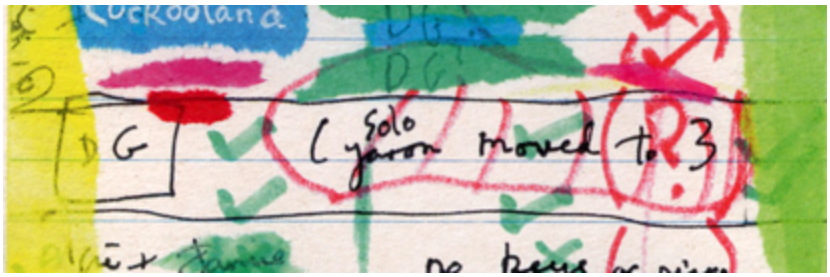
Hiroshima Nagasaki
Nagasaki Hiroshima
arigato Vanunu
ko n nichiwa Mossadegh
arigato Mordechai
ko n nichiwa Mohammad
Hiroshima Nagasaki

Hiroshima Nagasaki
ko n nichiwa arigato
Nagasaki Hiroshima
Nagasaki Hiroshima
arigato Vanunu
ko n nichiwa Mossadegh
arigato Mordechai
ko n nichiwa Mohammad



Hiroshima Nagasaki
ko n nichiwa arigato

> List

BRIAN THE FOX Robert Wyatt

Overnight
Upstream
Downwind
Overland

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

A Tribute To John Lennon
2002

Various Artists

More information about this album

LOVE John Lennon

Love is real, real is love
Love is feeling, feeling love
Love is wanting to be loved

Love is touch, touch is love
Love is reaching, reaching love
Love is asking to be loved

Love is you
You and me
Love is knowing we can be

Love is free, free is love
Love is living, living love
Love is needing to be loved

> List

More information about this album

Winged Migration
2001

Bruno Coulais

More information about this album

MASTERS OF THE FIELD

Gabriel Yacoub / Bruno Coulais

Up above gathered on a field of clouds.
Crowded a lot down in the lowlands,
Waiting for their time.
Waiting and calling,
calling out for rain.
To leave the skies down in the lowlands,
Masters of the field.

Wings wide set in the teeth of the wind.
The old beasts feathered wild beasts.
Masters of the field.

Eagle dancers, wings that shape the wind.
Carving the clouds into spirit,
Sufis of the air.

Dervish dancers summoning the sun.
To tint the mist down on the lowlands,
Masters of the field.

Old beasts, feathered, wild beasts.
Masters of the field.

> List

THE HIGHEST GANDER

Gabriel Yacoub / Bruno Coulais

Overland, above the dark seas, wild refugees flee the seasons.
Drifting beyond the night clouds in the wake of their guiding star.

There he goes the famous gander.
Eating fog, dancing with witches.
There he goes, the famous old gander
who longed to leave.

If you hear the sound of our voices through the busy murmur of the earth, you will know the meaning of our words praying for spring to the ether.

Night and day the travellers fly.
(winter and spring have their reasons).

Sailing through sunrise and setting wild wind and through steel blue air.

Here he comes, the highest gander.
Eating fog, dancing with witches.
Here he comes, the famous old gander
Who longed to leave.

We don't feel the warmth of your breath.
Through the icy edges of the earth,
we don't hear the rhythms of your call,
signalling the spring in the ether.

> List

More information about this album

September Song
2000

Pascal Comelade

More information about this album

SEPTEMBER SONG Kurt Weill / Maxwell Anderson

As the Autumn weather turns leaves to fly
I haven't got time for the waiting game
and it's a long, long while from May to December
and the days grow short when you reach September

but the days will dwindle down to a precious few and these few precious days I would spend with you these golden days I'd spend with you and I have lost one too and I walk a little late

I haven't got time for the waiting game
and it's a long, long while from May to December
and the days grow short when you reach September

and the days tend to go and the days grow few
September
November
and these few golden days I'd spend with you these golden days I'd spend with you

and the days tend to go
and the days grow few
September
November
and these few golden days I'd spend with you these golden days I'd like to spend with you quite

> List

More information about this album

The Gathering
2000

Annie Whitehead

More information about this album

BEFORE WE KNEW R. Wyatt / A. Whitehead

The thing I forgot to do
Seize the moment
Pin it down

I let it flow by let it go

Bent and wavered in the breeze

Flickering flame
Stupified

Waited
Watched it slip away

Before we knew
It was gone

(not dead yet though Flame still lit)

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

> Zoom

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Shleep
1997

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

HEAPS OF SHEEPS

Benge / Wyatt - arr. Eno

I realised my fists were clenched,
I stretched my fingers to relax.
Still not sleeping
I tried counting sheep.
One by one,
they leapt across the fence constructed for them.
Right to left,
across the fence I had constructed Having jumped,
they refused further direction.

Each sheep, where it landed,
refusing to exit, remained (Creating a vast writhing heap growing fast on the left).
Try as I might,
I could not stop them entering
once again.
Try as they might,
not one could leave the stage.
I realised my fists were clenched.
I stretched my fingers.

Each sheep where it landed,
refusing to exit, remained.
(Creating a vast writhing heap growing quickly on one side).
Try as they might,
not one could leave the stage,
Try as I might,
I could not stop them entering,
once again.
No longer daring to close my eyes,
still not sleeping.

I realised my goose was cooked
I wandered shipshaped on the shore.

> List

THE DUCHESS

Wyatt

Oh my wife is tall and short,

she won't do what she ought.
She never lies, but then again,
she lies down all day long

Oh
my wife is fat and thin,
she's generous and mean,
she's....., and
her secret's safe with me.

Oh
my wife is old and young,
so sweet with her poison tongue,
on her evenings off she blackmails toffs,
but her secret's safe with me.

Oh
my wife is tall and short,
she hangs out down the port,
says "Hello sailor, how's your dad?''
But lher secret's safe with me.

Oh
my wife is sour and sweet,
she dit dit dit delete,
she's lalala ladida, butter
secret's safe with me.

Illustration : Alfreda Benge

> Zoom

> List

MARYAN Wyatt / Catherine

Over an ocean away like salmon turning back for Nayram to the delta with the rivulets tumbling down glide over sand around the rocks back through the wavering weeds and the turds
in the way riversmell on the route along away overgravel
the weirs of the tributaries against the icy waterflow to Maryan

> List

WAS A FRIEND Wyatt / Hopper

Funny kind of greeting, not exactly hostile, not exactly facing, not exactly turning away,
not exactly frowning, not exactly smiling.
Lurking by the door
without a sign of wanting to move.
Though hardly friendly, not an angry gesture did it make. Just quite unnerving.
It's been a long time.

I almost forgot where we buried the hatchet.
"Bin a long time no see", (pidgin English native to none). After several silences a cautious head nod. This could take forever.
Did it want to come for a dig? It did not answer. I was feeling restless at the door, ashamed o fmy fears.Where WAS the hatchet?

Suddenly was gone. I woke up feeling stupid. No-one else awake though dawn was only minutes away.
Quietly I rose to fill the morning pee pot.
What a silfy dream,
not like what really would have occurred
Old wounds are healing.
Faded scars are painless - just an itch.
We are forgiven.
It's been a long time.

> List

FREE WILL AND TESTAMENT Wyatt / Kramer

Given free will but within certain limitations,
I cannot will myself to limitless mutations,
I cannot know what I would bey I were not me,
1 can only guess me.

So when 1 say that I know me, bow can I know that?
What kind of spider understands aracbnophobia?
I have my senses and my sense of having senses.
Do I guide them? Or they me?

The weight of dust exceeds the weight of settled objects.
What can it mean, such gravity without a centre?
Is there freedom to un-be?
Is there freedom from will-to-be?

Sheer momentum makes as act this way or that way.
We Just invent or just assume a motivation.
I would disperse, be disconnected. Is this possible?
What are soldiers without a foe?

Be in the air, but not be air, be in the no air.
Be on the loose, neither compacted nor suspended.
Neither bom nor left to die.

Had I been free, I could have chosen not to be me.
Demented forces push me madly round a treadmill.
Demented forces push me madly round a treadmill.
Let me off please, l am so tired.
Let me off please, I am so very tired.

> List

SEPTEMBER THE NINTH Benge / Wyatt

When Woman wishing for wings, (too large a lump to pass for bird), hopes that by tvishing bard enough she will cast off the ballast.
And the swallows will politely accept her waving arms
as wings,
and she will join in with them,
and she will rise up with them,
and she will fly.

> List

ALIEN Benge / Wyatt

I sleep on the wing
Above the rainclouds
Blown by the wind (no roots on earth)
No ground below (no ground below)
Just ruins (timeless)
Dandelion clocks (drifting)
Am I from Venus? (higher, higher)

No ocean bed, no west-wind drift
No desert sand, land or sea
No world below, blown by the wind (limbless) (homeless)
Not human
Lost in longing (lost in longing)
Never belonging (never belonging)
Am I from Venus? (higher, higher, higher)

No roots on earth (I sleep on the wing)
Nowhere I search (above the rainclouds)
No roots on earth (blown by the wind)
No ground below
Timeless (just ruins)
Drifting (dandelion clocks)
Higher, higher, higher, higher

Blown by the wind
Above the rainclouds (no roots on earth)
Evening starlight
The night's below (no lights below)
Just ruins (no ocean bed) (rootless)
Dandelion clocks (no west-wind drift) (drifting)
Am I from Venus? (higher, higher) (no desert sand)

> List

OUT OF SEASON Benge / Wyatt

A late sparrow fledgling bathing in dust
beneath the gaping mouth of the post box (hungry for letters home)

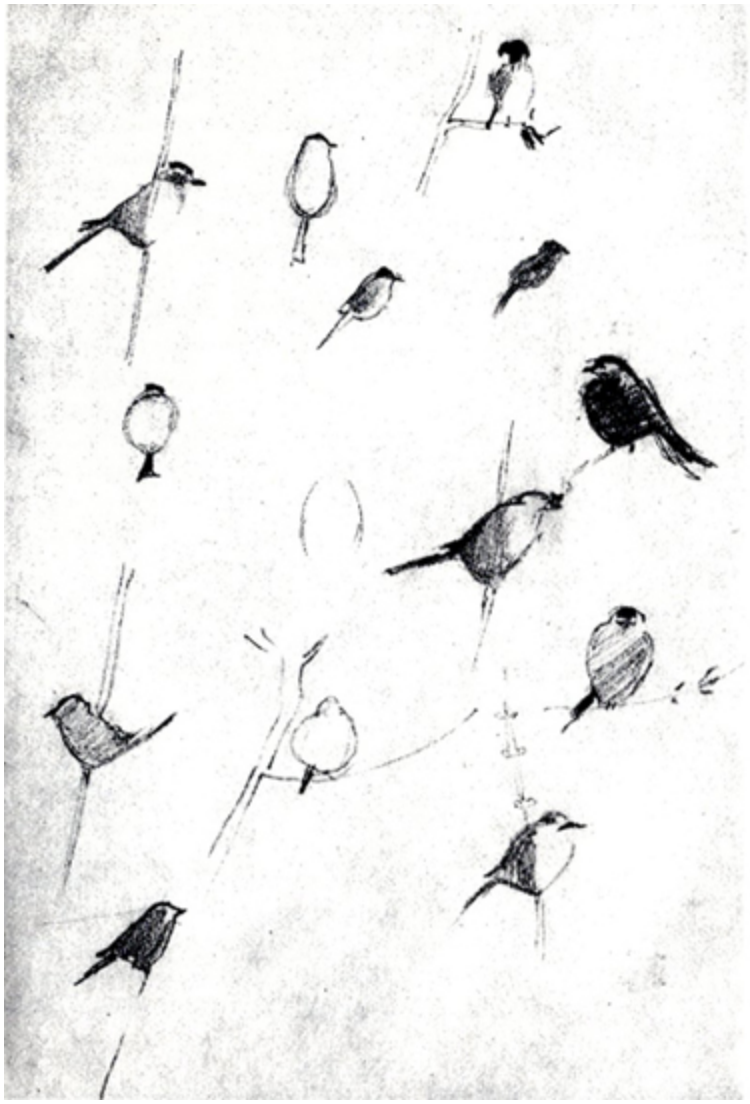

Illustration : Alfreda Benge

> Zoom

> List

A SUNDAY IN MADRID Benge / Wyatt

Pa arrives in the city of the closed doors, greeted by miners from Asturias.
His limousine streaks past giant shiny moneyboxes, huddled together for warmth.
He is deposited in his inner chamber.

Later, fix meets the bear, impersonates a tree to confuse the hell's gates dogs' sense of smell, and rests for chess with no-one.
Then (amongst the closed doors) he shrinks, is dwarfed by rabbits, expands again to invade the destiny of fourteen mysterious others, strangely clad, captured by a camera,
carefully arranged, with a space for his image.
A plot hatched by fate.

Pa looks for diversion in the written word.
Meanwhile, the mundane world seeks solace in illusion.
An imprisoned rainbow gives shelter to the homeless.
A painted machine registers the weight of mystery, and for background interest a kilometre of women queue to kiss a wooden foot, patiently.
The Queen had been.
But no information, in the city of the closed doors,
on Christian Spain.
Elsewhere, bare buttocks wait their turn.
In vain. No guides available. All busy in the Prado, followed by shuffling feet. Fascinated. Perhaps.

Outside again in the mundane world,
in the city of the closed doors,
living men impersonate sleeping saints,
on sundry raised surfaces, (tike benches).
Art objects sit headless (beneath coats).
Performance artists simulate poverty and beg.
A day's begging pays the entrance fee to the Cinema of Terror. A golden gas mask throws the torturers off the trail, amongst the grazed walls of the city of the closed doors.

Pa escapes,
samples the delights of raw fish, good wine, closes the door of his inner chamber,
closes the door of his inner chamber, and sleeps.

> List

BLUES IN BOB MINOR Wyatt

Roger's in the archive looking up Casement
Martha's in the government digging up the basement rebel into representative for the voter shadow backbencher couldn 't get a word in turned up anyway issues burning all consuming drinks in the cabinet spent a lot of time just examining the building drinks on the house? you must be joking corridors of power cuts toy telephone bills long time no see underneath the floorboard looking for the roots of the family treetops toe's in the water but you've only got ten

Fingers in the eel pie poke around tip top tunnelling a wormhole Eartha Kitty catfish meadow brown peacock pupa-larva-caterpillar hibernate in winter of our discotheque no end in sight more like a spiral coil or curler just unwinding very slowly revealing endless disappearing pipelines genuflecting bowing deeply it don't take a weatbergirl to see where the wind is blowing what the wind is bending

Isobars are opening sex to midnight cabinet shuffling homeward bound taking a detour rendezvous do chapel in the valley of the blown up doll that's not Martha shunting in a siding she got homework up to here

Roger's in the footnotes up to his elbones verse and chapter disinterred borrowing a bookcase don't come easy the weight of the evidence in parenthesis beggars tightly furled belief

Heads on blockabeater repetition on the line
Shell shock supertroopers whirl banking oil palm intercontinental drift over the rainbow over the sea to ska rocker skintone hirsuit missed a link and that's not all that he got missing inna thousand years of orthotoxic waste disposal god proposal jealous sky whatever is a girl to do to break the service in its tried and tested and found wanting state of oh! boy network stewardship?

Little Johnny Aardvark never hurt nobody Martha friend and Roger too tone down a little sotto voce some tall order given that four minutes seems eternity time in the hushed up world of waspish Vsigns
A-sides sui-C-side salads of the bad young B-sides what's the point of digging deeper just to lay the ghost of Sala Hal-Din Yusuf ibn Ayyub?

"Don't give up" the deadman cried
"there's more of us than there are of you soon you'll all be on our side forever more or Lester Young died 'Fat Girl' also blowing all the blues away side dust ain't just dust trust us like we live forever broken loose from greystone tether keep on tiptoe through the archive we are dead but you are alive Martha yes and Roger too until you let the gringos grind you down"

> List

More information about this album

Songs
1995

John Greaves

More information about this album

THE SONG Peter Blegvad / John Greaves

Town In the shadow of a mountain
Crown of the mountain came avalanching down
All summer long
We were stalking what
We came to call THE SONG.
THE SONG was a kind of eruption —
Mover of mountains,
Avalanche of crowns
When we were young
We sought the laws
We thought would cause
THE SONG.
Life is a dream we are phantoms.
Man is the union of Divinity and Dust.
All summer long,
When we were young
Before we'd sung THE SONG.
No mere machine
Made of music
Of words and music
As other songs are —
This was THE SONG,
A recipe, a remedy a cure.
THE SONG would be sung
On the border
Sung by us standing
Straddling the line
Between two worlds
Unified only by THE SONG.

> List

KEW. RHONE. Peter Blegvad / John Greaves

(Who?)
We who knew no woe
We who were her hero
(When?),
When we were on her knee
When we knew her
When we were one
(Where?)
Kew. Rhone.
We won renown
(How?)

We were her worker
We won honor enow
When we knew her
When we were one
Where?
Kew. Rhone.

not a set animal,
not a set animal, laminates laminates a tone of a set animal,
animal, laminates
a set animal,
animal, laminates
laminates a tone of sleep
a tone of sleep

Peel's foe, not a set animal, laminates a tone of sleep

> List

GEGENSTAND Peter Blegvad / John Greaves

It but incurs
A lustre in a flood -
After many not dislodged.

And at each subsidence
Half arises
Half holds to cloudy water -
Nature of its anchor kept occult.

We keep a current
Flowing from a sluice.
Cloud it with corrosives -
Hoping to appropriate
What holds its own so well -

What tips an ever wider wake.

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

A Civilised Word
1995

Millennium

More information about this album

ANOTHER GREAT VICTORY Robert Wyatt / Jo Bogaert

They heard restless stirring down wilderness way and a something that filled them with fear and a deep dismay
It could steal all the children consume the civilized world Something had to be done to contain destroy whatever it was Over the moat over the wall
in through the windows and under the bed
«It could take away our freedom and our television our right to reply and then again drive a tank through our back yard»
They started to cut back on welfare and schools
Defence a priority oyer every local need
They were armed and fully briefed ready to go
There was 'no time to lose it was never or now eyeryone agreed or it would come up.
Over the moat over the wall
Undermine all our values overnight
The advance guard crept out before dawn's dirty light
Behind them the safety of everything they knew Shuffles and whispers they shared in the dark
Everything else held a breath in the secretive night
Then a bellow rang out like a giant in fear they froze on the spot 'til the cause was clear
At a word from - the leader they began to surge Seeing nothing, but blundering on firing blindly ahead
They ran up
Over the top over the hill
the enemy hill
They were too sudden for the beast to fight back with any real effect
Still they fought on finished the job no sense in leaving before they were done
But soon enough the enemy was totally silent
The first morning sunlight turned dewdrops to steam
They woke up to look all around them
At the first they saw little apart from the muddy meadow all about Making them feel rather queasy
'Cause there were no weapons at all in the enemy camp
Not a sign of anything you could call a bomb
Nothing even like a grown-up gun Back through their moat and over their wall
The men returned

Another Victory.

> List

IGOR MORTIS Robert Wyatt / Jo Bogaert

Departed Lying under the bed Left the habit of breathing without motive or reason to breathe at all without a hope in hell you just live there still remembering all the stupid incidents or at least a few you can't believe it all goes on day in and day out as if driven just for the sake of going on with no target in view
And every morning the sun obscures a darker truth beyond its reach appearing to outline horizons that are Definite. Hiding the endless. Hiding the endlessness Walking the water praying to stone dead men Defeated hiding under the bedrock of age
Still the habit of breathing Decomposing the air on a G-string a long way to go. Either way Hiding the endless. Hiding the endlessness treading the fine line
Paying to seem less dead
Ha Ha Ha Ha Ah Ah Ah Ah
Unplacated or defeated it's so hard to say in the end. Breeding endless slight variations of unchanging laws of chance Aleatory endgame plans From the middle,
the front, a little sideways and then right back to the starting bloc wavering exhausted until you feel the pressure in your skull.

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

> Zoom

> List

UREP PERU Robert Wyatt / Jo Bogaert

For you / for me / for you the noble heroes of freedom
For me / for you / for you / for me and just for us / for you / for me they saved the world
The bankers of the world unite for you / for we the bombers oí the western world unload for us the soldiers of fortune high flyers opened new markets
Rolled back the frontiers Heroes of freedom they were heroes of marketing our Soldiers of fortune

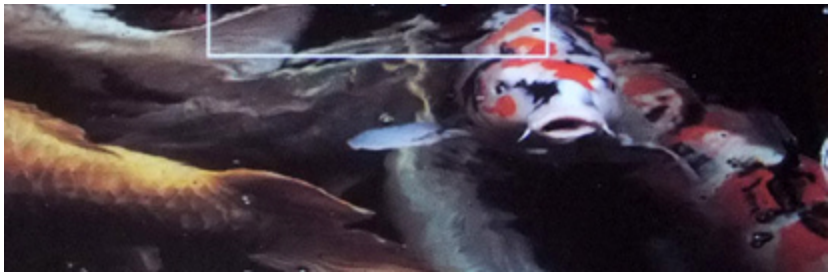
Heroes of freedom
Heroes of freedom because



They for me / for you / for you / for me
That's why they bombed old Trípoli for you / for me
They bombed Bengazi too.

Soldiers of fortune

Heroes of freedom straight up
Heroes of freedom

For you / for me / for me / for you
They brought Angola to its knees
For you / for me
more of the same to Mozambique for me / for you and Guatemala, Haïtí
For you / for me
Ground to a halt reduced to clear

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Flotsam Jetsam
1994

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

WAR WITHOUT BLOOD Robert Wyatt / anonyme

Half the time is pantomime
Half the time it's only make believe
Heaven knows, heaven only knows
It's anaemic as hell with it's soft syckle cell

But still the moving target's hit
We stop them in their tracks
With modern artefacts
Till the gutter turns to mud
The show goes down a bomb
With modern artefacts

After death occurs, the show must go on, and off and on
And over time, the three days week, the monthly board
Roll by to fill the greater mas cavities hold our teeth
Apart it's too much to take in, it's too much to take in It's too much to take in.

Till we learn to lose the game
We'll always play the game.

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

Mid-Eighties
1993

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

THE END Robert Wyatt

You're wondering now
What to do
Now you know
This is the end

> List

More information about this album

United Kingdoms
1993

Ultramarine

More information about this album

KINGDOM

Lyrics adapted from "The Song of the Lower Classes" by Ernest Jones (c. 1848)

We're low - we're low - mere rabble, we know
But, at our plastic power,
The mould at the lording's feet will grow
Into palace and church and tower
Then prostrate fall - in the rich man's hall,
And cringe at the rich man's door;
We're not too low to build the wall,
But too low to tread the floor.

Down, down we go - we're so very low,
To the hell of the deep sunk mines,
But we gather the proudest gems that glow,
When the crown of a despot shines.
And whenever he lacks - upon our backs
Fresh loads he designs to lay;
We're far too low to vote the tax,
But not too low to pay.

We're low - we're low - we're very very low,
Yet from our fingers glide
The silken flow - and the robes that glow
Round the limbs of the sons of pride.
And what we get - and what we give -
We know, and we know our share;
We're not too low the cloth to weave,
But too low the cloth to wear!

> List

HAPPY LAND

Lyrics adapted from a parody of the popular patriotic Victorian song "Happy Land"

Happy land! happy land! Thy fame resounds shore to shore
Happy land! where 'tis a crime, they tell us, to be poor.
If you shelter cannot find, of you they'll soon take care:
Most likely send you to grind wind - For sleeping in the air.

Happy land! happy land! To praise thee, who will cease?
To guard us, pray, now ain't we got a precious New Police?
A passport we shall soon require, which by them must be scanned,
If we to take a walk desire - Oh, ain't this happy land?

Happy land! happy land! Ne'er from thee I will stray,

The soldier cries, because, y'see, he cannot get away.
For nothing flogged, with grief he sighs, while probably the band,
Strike up to drown the wretch's cries - To the tune of 'Happy Land!'

Happy land! happy land! is now the chant in every street.
Happy land! happy land! Sings everyone you meet.
The ballad-singer, minus clothes; shirtless, coatless,
And with buckets none to shield his toes - He warbles 'Happy land!'"

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Darn It!
1993

Paul Haines

More information about this album

CUTSY P. Haines / R. Wyatt

The moment granted
A golden manner

Cursty a form
Of physical whispering

And physical Gleaming

The over-ripe
Sight

Of their plooding Superiority

And clumsy Morality

Slow to the extent
Seeable

A socially prudent
Deposit

For the royal Tureen

Hoisting a Hip

To allow them
To forget

And continue to Confidently ignore

The upright

> List

musics by (in order of appearance) PAUL BLEY, ROBERT WYATT, EVAN PARKER, CARMEN LUNDY, GEORGE CARTWRIGHT, WAYNE HURVITZ, BOBBY PREVITTE, DAVID HOFSTRA, JOHN OSWALD, MELVIN GIBBS, DK DYSON, RICHARD HARRINGTON, DEREK BAYNES, DEREK BAILEY, DON PULLEN, CARLA BLEY, JACK BRUCE, LEO NOCENTELLI, ROBBIE AMEEN, MARVIN "SMITTY" SMITH, GREG "IRON MAN" TATE, MARQUE GILMORE, JESSE HENRY, JAY STRINGER, BEN NITZA, ALVA ROGERS, LEWIS BARNES, MIKE VEAL, JOHN TCHICAI, ANDREW CYRILLE, PETER SCHERER, KIP HANRAHAN, JT LEWIS, SILVANA DELUIGI, HENRY THREADGILL, MICHEL CONTAT, ANDY GONZALEZ, IGNACIO BERROA, DANIEL FRIEBERG, DAVID SANCHEZ, YALE EVELEV, BORNEAN DRUMMERS,

More information about this album

Lyrics

Dondestan
1991

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

COSTA Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

Orange,
fierce orange of the egg shaped fireball plopping into the ocean
as the earth tips backwards towards night.

Orange,
scratched orange of the gas bottles delivered, for lack of pipeline dragged to the door by the man in a wig

Orange,
soft orange of two full moons one high, one low in a puddle mirror floating in a pothole of the unmade road

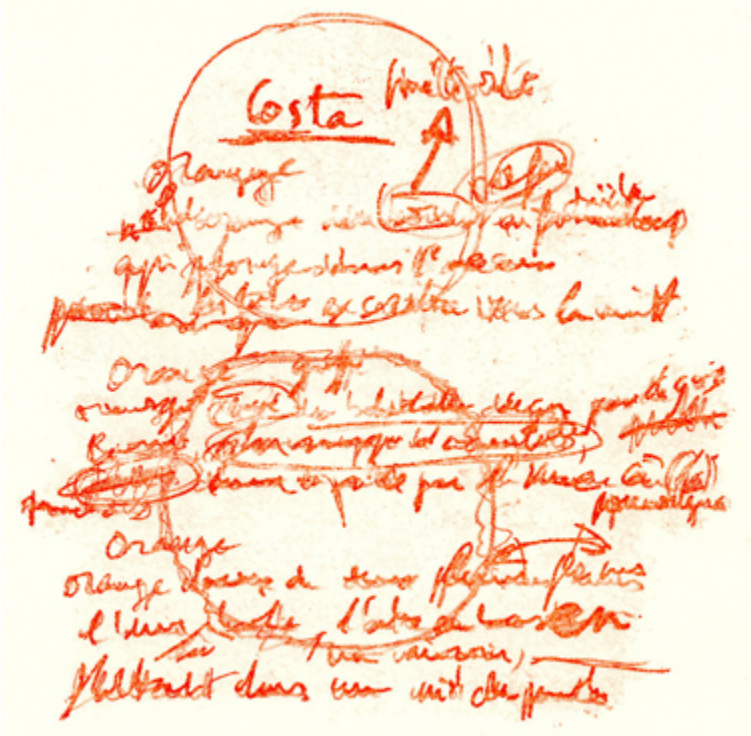

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

> Zoom

> List

THE SIGHT OF THE WIND

Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

We could hear it before the shutters were open,
the wind on the beach.

Then we found miniature sand dunes on the concrete of the balcony and a dead leaf
zig zagging,
scratching an urgent message in s anskrit before hitching a ride on a frisky gust,
a plastic bag caught by a rail
rearing to go,
in such a flap
we set it free to join a page of last week's news racing high above the undulating beach, and the invisible flying sand casting a fast moving shadow stroking the beach clean.
Yesterday's footprints vanished, replaced by smooth rippling wave formations,
a copy of the sea.
No one walking not even the dogs.

A day for the rubbish to dance.

> List

CATHOLIC ARCHITECTURE

Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

A white house with a folly a tower attached.
On the side
a hand painted saint (lovingly painted) peeps over a high wall which surrounds the white house.
His loving gaze is interrupted by a line of broken glass cemented
on top of the high wall.
The saint lovingly dares
the outsider,
or the stray cat,
to intrude

and recieve his loving blessing in lovingly lacerated hands.

> List

WORSHIP Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

Two nuns on the sea shore stand apart from one another black wood posts mesmerised
by the sea god

One nun with human failings and weary legs sinks to the sand and sits like a child

A golden stripe appears on the western horizon
a signal from the sea god that he understands tiredness

One staunch sister stays standing and the sun sets

> List

SHRINKRAP Alfreda Benge / Robert Wyatt

It takes a weekly packet to keep the shrink in pocket
It costs a pretty penny just to stay afloat

It takes a lot of lolly trying to be jolly when the inerest keeps mounting in the bank and in my person
It takes a bit of doing just feeling up to scratch

It's work work work from dawn to dusk
My id is raw my ego breaking from months of toil to seperate my real self from its husk

Everybody loves me
everyone but me
It's costing cash to melt the ice
I've sweated blood to hear I'm nice

> List

CP JEEBIES Robert Wyatt

Picture the Scene.

"Hello, how are you?"
"Well I'm a green and yellow pinky blue."

Dead Alternative.

"Oh then, please step right in to our nursery.
Just pick a group
that you can relate to,
now the grownups have gone."

After the party is over, my friend,
there will be nothing you can put your finger on.
Just a parasol.

> List

LEFT ON MAN Robert Wyatt

Simplify, reduce, over-simplify

What we call freedom in the north means our freedom to use you and if you don't co-operate we'll cut off your supply lines

but you'll be free to re-connect
if you beg our forgiveness

you say I over simplify well yes, so did
Albert Einstein

Simplify, reduce, over-simplify

There simply is no middle ground
pentagon liber alles

There never was a middle ground
that's the point I was making

There's no such place as middle ground
(that's the point we were making)
Left or Right of the equator.

Simplify, reduce, over-simplify

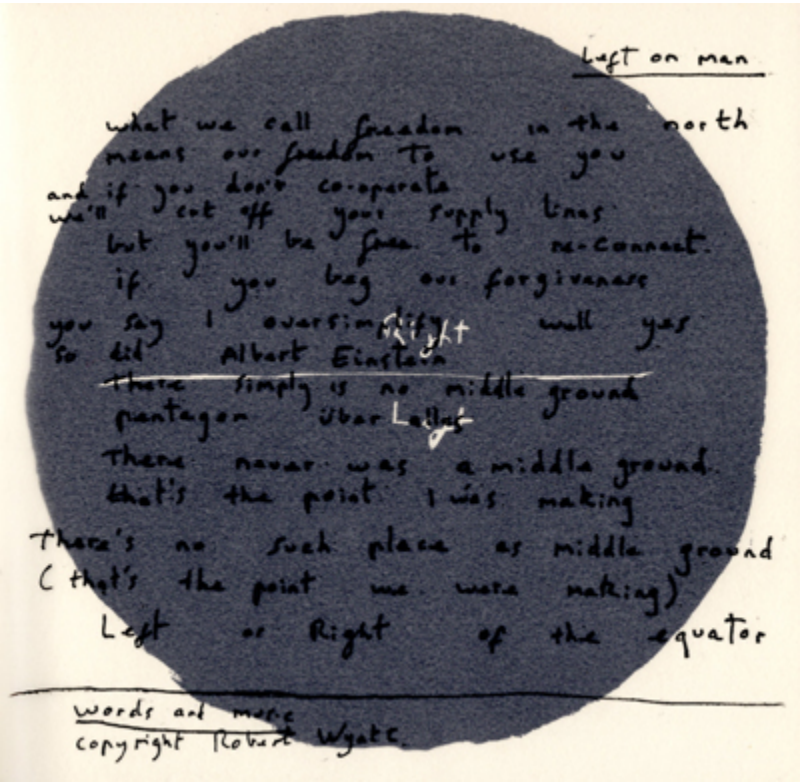

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

> Zoom

> List

LISP SERVICE Robert Wyatt/ Hugh Hopper

Trouble isn't my middle name,
Left in peace would make my day.
You started the fire not me,
camouflaged in mystery.

Plundering, murdering, raiding coast to coast,
good old days of gore,
and now you tell me
I should learn to deal with you all bow to you and praise the Lords for everything, everything you won for us.

After all that was before,
there weren't no amnesty international,
nobody to check you.
Don't give me that
'polis'
that 'rule of law'.

> List

N.I.O. (NEW INFORMATION ORDER) Robert Wyatt

Privatise
next the air force then the police force
Royal Family
let them be private at least.
Set them free.
Let them go home.
Save a bomb on union flags.
Privatise
the sea.
Privatise
the wind.
Don't just tinker with unseeded cloud, you got to sell weather itself.
Set it free.
Don't wastegood air,
breathing isn't paying it's way.

> List

DONDESTAN Robert Wyatt

Palestine's a country
or at least
used to be.

Felahin, refugee (Kurdistan similarly) need something to build on rather like the rest of us.

Palestine's a country
or at least
used to be.

Felahin, refugee (deportees similarly) need something to build on rather like the rest of us got.

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

The Peel Sessions
1990

Soft Machine

More information about this album

MOON IN JUNE (BBC VERSION)

Robert Wyatt

I can still remember
The last time we played on Top Gear
And tough each little song
Was less than 3 minutes long
Mike squeezed a solo in somehow

And although we like our longer tunes
It seemed polite to cut them down
To little bits
They might be hits
Who gives an...
After all
Tell me how would it feel
In the place of John Peel
You just can't please
All of the musicians
All of the time

Playing now is lovely
Here in the BBC
We're free to play
Almost as long
And as loud
As a jazz group
Or an orchestra on Radio Three

There are Dance Halls and Theatres
With acoustics worse than here
Not forgetting the extra facilities
Such as the tea machine
Just along the corridor

So to all our mates like Kevin
Caravan
The old Pink Floyd
Allow me to recommend Top Gear
Despite its extraordinary name
Yes playing

Playing now is lovely
Here in the BBC
We're free to play almost as long and as loud
As the foreign language classes
And that John Cage interview
And the jazz groups
And the orchestras on Radio Three

Pop stars drink each other's wine
Plough each other's earth
Hoping for companionship
And then perhaps rebirth...

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Many Have No Speech
1988

Michael Mantler

More information about this album

TANT DE TEMPS

Philippe Soupault / Michael Mantler

Le temps qui passe le temps qui ne passe pas le temps qu'on tue
le temps de compter jusqu'à dix le temps qu'on n'a pas le temps qu'il fait le temps de s'ennuyer le temps de rêver
le temps de l'agonie le temps qu'on perd le temps d'aimer
le temps des cerises le mauvais temps
et le bon et le beau et le froid et le temps chaud le temps de se retourner le temps des adieux le temps qu'il est bien temps le temps qui n'est même pas le temps de cligner de l'oeil le temps relatif le temps de boire un coup le temps d'attendre le temps du bon bout le temps de mourir le temps qui ne se mesure pas le temps de crier gare le temps mort
et puis l'éternité

> List

A L'ABATTOIR

Philippe Soupault / Michael Mantler

Adieu lézards adieu corbeaux bonsoir les hommes et vous les veaux Tout est à recommencer
quand vous gueulez
comme des damnés

Je sais bien que tout s'effondre chaque jour et chaque nuit que je n'ai plus rien à attendre et que tout ce qui s'ensuit c'est de savoir que je suis dupe

Les soirs tombent comme les années je ne sais même plus les compter
Ce n'est plus jamais à prendre mais pour toujours tout laisser
Rien ne peut recommencer

Adieu vantard adieu salaud bonsoir crétin et toi le veau c'est moi qui ai commencé quand je gueulais comme un damné

> List

(from) PRISONNIERS Philippe Soupault / Michael Mantler

ils sont là cent cinquante ils ne dorment pas ils attendent
il y a ceux qui attendent toujours il y a ceux qui murmurent un nom ceux qui respirent à peine ceux qui mentent il y a ceux qui suffrent sans cesse ceux qui crient doucement

ceux qui chantent

il y a ceux qui ont faim et soif ceux qui marchent lentement
ceux qui mangent il y a ceux qui hurlent de toutes leurs forces ceux qui baissent la tète ceux qui vivent

hommes de peines hommes de peine que nos nuits sont longues

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Chairman Mao
1987

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

CHAIRMAN MAO

Wyatt / Haden

An early photograph of the young brave with a confident grin who is celebrating his first defeat by clutching at hair from his skull a pig tail

Enter the modern man like a young brave with a price on his head Delilah says Samson stick this up yours the symbol is clear cut from his skull a long hair

If this missing link
the dreaded locks kept him bound to remain unable to avoid the sacrifice the short back and side the closest shave the pig tail

Remember how it's done
first you must think yet but then you've begun seemingly retreating the coiling spring is triggered to leave further ahead
the long march.

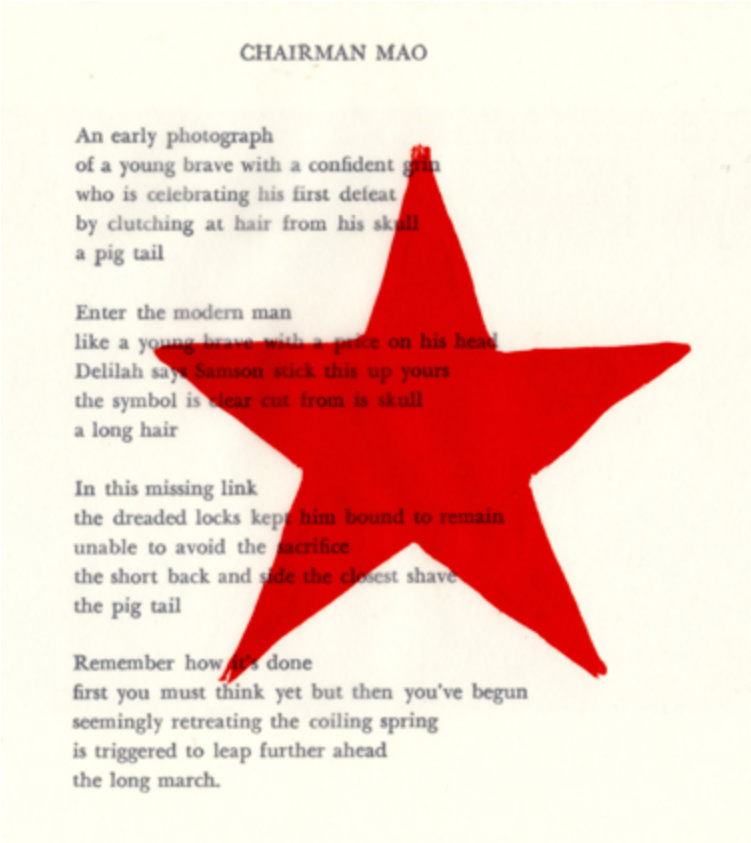

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

> Zoom

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

The Liberator
Artists For Animals
1986

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

PIGS... (IN THERE) Robert Wyatt

Well, we're driving, uh, driving through Wiltshire, very nice countryside, sky, ground, all that sort of things, natural marriage, natural resorces and looking out the windows as I don't come from that part of the world and 1 said, er, what's that oyer there? in a sort of low grey concrete thing all surrounded by fields really very nice trees like a sort of low square of concrete like the fun-dations of a building that hadn't been built. It had little walls, little, about a foot high, or something, it looked like that, two feet high, in fact it was a sort of, on top of it, there was a flat roof and I thought, oh I see, and then, I pointed as the car got passed it «what was that ?» and the, the country person that was with me, er, said, oh, er, that's where they keep pigs, I tought, oh, yes, I see, that's where they keep pigs, and the sun was shining down and, er, the grass was green and It was all very lovely, driving in the country and I suddently thought that, that building must have been, like, from the inside.-. Pigs, in there, pigs in there ? pigs in there ? pigs in there ? pigs in there ? pigs in there ? pigs, on a day like this, in there, pigs in there, pigs huddled up in there, in die dark, in there, living in there ? pigs, in there, PIGS

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Letters Home
1986

News From Babel

More information about this album

WHO WILL ACCUSE?

Chris Cutler / Lindsay Cooper

This life is bare
And cold
And I am old
And tired of truth

Must we forever
Make our History
In this Cold
Country?

Who will accuse us
If we choose
To dream
To take a World
Already made
To sit before
A fire that warms
And not to ask
Who built it, or What burns?

> List

HEART OF STONE

Chris Cutler / Lindsay Cooper

The hearts of stone were here
Where waters wash
The ones who spoke and
Would not hear, the ones
Who built the walls

These miles were theirs
These ranks of Air

Now only blooms recall
The glory and the pity of Their fall

> List

MOSS

Chris Cutler / Lindsay Cooper

I fell in the moss
I grasped the grass
I bit the earth
I pressed myself against
The Earth
I held it tightly
Nothing stirred
I waited

The air moved, slightly
The grass moved
The leaves moved in the trees
A thousand insects moved
I moved and
The World moved Lightly

I was not Deceived

> List

WAITED/JUSTICE Chris Cutler / Lindsay Cooper

I waited, at the gate
I waited, for a Word
I waited, to be judged
- Or to be heard
I only aged
Unloved - I found Despair
Who all my days
Stood at the gate and Waited others
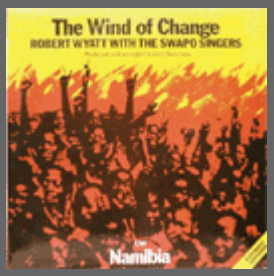
There

> List



More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

The Wind Of Change
1985

Robert Wyatt
With The SWAPO Singers

More information about this album

THE WIND OF CHANGE

Jackson M. Kaujeua

The wind of change
sweeping across the African continent
The wind of change
sweeping across the African continent
Over there they say this:
oh yeah, Africa, oh yeah, uhuru,
amandla kawethu,
aluta a'continua mama,
Viva Africa.

The wind of change
The wind of change
The wind of change
The wind of change

Namibia Namibia ...

The wind of hope
sweeping across the African continent
The wind of hope
sweeping across the African continent

Over there they say this:
oh yeah, Africa,
oh yeah, freedom,
power to the people,
the struggle must continue mama,
Viva Africa.

The wind of hope
The wind of hope
The wind of hope
The wind of hope

The wind of freedom
sweeping across the African continent
The wind of freedom
sweeping across the African continent

Over there they say this:
oh yeah, Africa,
oh yeah, uhuru,
amandla kawethu,
aluta a'continua mama,
Viva Africa.

The wind of freedom
The wind of freedom

The wind of freedom
The wind of freedom...
SWAPO SWAPO SWAPO SWAPO...

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Old Rottenhat
1985

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

ALLIANCE

Robert Wyatt

There is a kind of compromise you are master of
Your endless gentle nudging left us polarised
It's hard to talk to enemies and we are enemies
What we had in common makes it even worse
You're proud of being middle class (meaning upper class)
You say you're self sufficient (but you don't dig your own coal)
I think that what you're frightened of more than anything
Is knowing you need workers more than they need you
"A herd of independent minds" Chomsky got it right
Jogging into battle waving old school ties

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

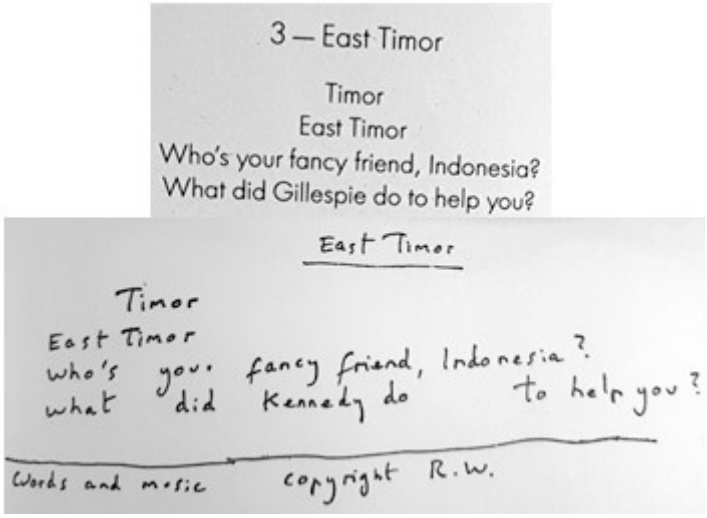
> Zoom

> List

THE UNITED STATES OF AMNESIA

Wyatt

There are degrees of amnesia, ways to forget
Ways to remember all the good that you've done



And if you can't get a witness remind yourselves
Nobody's just perfectly good all the time
And if you killed all those redskins long, long ago
Well, they'd all be dead now anyway, anyway
Don't let that ghost disconcert you (the) lord will provide
(a) nice little headstone for the brave Cherokee
(So let's have) no reservations let's have a clean sweep
Clearing the way for the land of the free
Let's hear it for civilisation once more Build your aryan empire in peace

> List

EAST TIMOR Wyatt

Timor
East Timor
Who's your fancy friend, Indonesia?
What did Gillespie do to help you?

Please note :
"What did Gillespie do to help you?" in the liner notes becomes "What did Kennedy do to help you?" in Robert's own handwriting in the MW book.

> List

THE AGE OF SELF Wyatt

They say the working class is dead, we're all consumers now
They say that we have moved ahead—we're all just people now
There's people doing 'frightfully well' there's others on the shelf
But never mind the second kind this is the Age of Self
They say we need new images to help our movement grow
They say that life is broader based as if we didn't know
While Martin J. and Robert M. play with printer's ink
The workers 'round the world still die for Rio Tinto Zinc
And it seems to me if we forget
Our roots and where we stand
The movement will disintegrate
Like castles built on sand.

> List

VANDALUSIA Wyatt

Beyond the dotted line
Over the border
Out of control
Behind the dotted line
South of the border
Beyond the pale
Going too far

> List

THE BRITISH ROAD Wyatt

Those foreigners are at it again
When will they learn to fight like our men
There's nothing new under the mirror
And it's time for one more bedtime story
Get beauty sleep for morning glory
How can I rise if you don't fall?

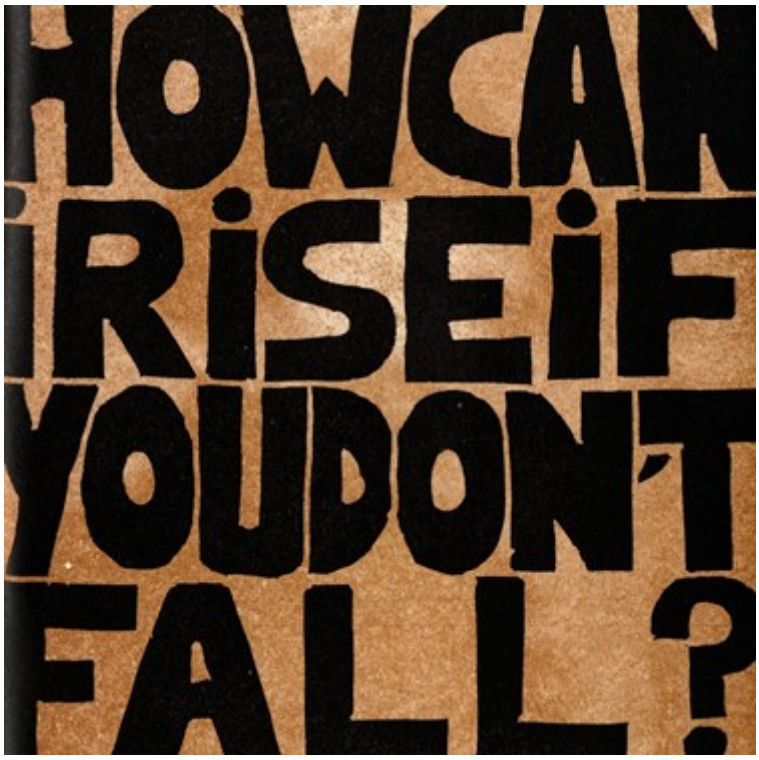

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

> Zoom

> List

MASS MEDIUM Wyatt

And as history slips out of view bated breath for the nine o'clock new Reassembled right before your very eyes: innuendo rumour and lies Endless fun and games steal a headline, name some names
We're so proud that our press feel so free to manipulate them you and me
And as each campaign begins to absolve us of our sins

I see freedom sold by the yard it's so easy why make it hard?

> List

GHARBZADEGI Wyatt

It's so easy to decide on a name It's a name caller's game
It's so easy to look down from above Helicopter vision
Get the picture when you're outside the frame Retrospective my eye
Call it art and you can say what you like It's a name caller's game
Your perspective describes where I stand Out of line, out of mind Calling myopia 'focus', of course, makes it easier still Gharbzadegi means nothing to me Westernitis to you
... We get so out of touch Words take the place of meaning

> List

P.L.A. Wyatt

Poor little Alfie trying to draw
Poor little Alfie trying to sleep

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Work In Progress
1984

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

I'M A BELIEVER Neil Diamond

I thought love was only true in fairy tales
Meant for someone else but not for me
Love was out to get me
That's the way it seemed
Disappointment haunted all of my dreams

Then I saw her face, now I'm a believer
Not a trace, of doubt in my mind
I'm in love, and I'm a believer
I couldn't leave her if I tried

I thought love was more or less a giving thing Seems the more I gave the less I got What's the use in tryin'
All you get is pain
When I needed sunshine I got rain

Then I saw her face, now I'm a believer
Not a trace, of doubt in my mind
I'm in love and I'm a believer
I couldn't leave her if I tried

Love was out to get me
That's the way it seemed
Disappointment haunted all of my dreams

Then I saw her face, now I'm a believer
Not a trace of doubt in my mind
I'm in love, I'm a believer
I couldn't leave her if I tried

I'm a believer

> List

YESTERDAY MAN Chris Andrews

I'm her yesterday man
Gone is the look of love she had last night
I'm her yesterday man
Gone is the look of love she had last night

Please tell me something: have you met an angel
Someone too lovely to live on earth
Well, yesterday I thought I met an angel
But she wasn't worth all she seemed to be worth

And oh what a fool I have been
I was sure taken in

I'm her yesterday man
Well my friends that's what I am
I'm her yesterday man
Well my friends that's what I am
That's what I am: her yesterday man
Gone is the look of love she had last night
Gone is the look of love she had last night

Well, some are the good and then some are the bad kind
Some of the others are in between
But all I can say is she is the worst kind
Well I think you know what I mean
And yet, in spite of all that I say
I'd take her back any day

I'm her yesterday man
Well my friends that's what I am
I'm her yesterday man
Well my friends that's what I am
That's what I am: her yesterday man
Gone is the look of love she had last night

I'm her yesterday man
Gone is the look of love she had last night
I'm her yesterday man
Gone is the look of love she had last night
I'm her yesterday man
...

> List

MEMORIES Hugh Hopper

I know I cannot leave this place
Full of memories
Things like the way they knew us
All over town

We used to walk the streets together
We could be seen
Past shops where people knew us
Yeah, people knew

I've got to choose between tomorrow
And yesterday
I can't stop to think about
My life, here today

Maybe I'll find someone to get you Off my mind
Take me away from here
And leave it, leave it all behind

Memories can hang you up and haunt you
All your life, you know
Get so you cannot stay
And yet cannot go

I could find out where she's gone
Today I feel so unhappy
Streets seem so empty now
I want you with me

More information about this album

Lyrics

Venceremos
1984

Working Week

More information about this album

VENCEREMOS

Simon Booth

A comment is passed,
Like dust and glass,
Full of fear,
Held in this heaven and hell.

Each time it's spoken,
There's a fragment broken,
Now the rain is falling,
A train is passing,
A gun is firing,
Splitting out here
In the night in which we live.
We'll find a way,
To build a day,
Sooner than tomorrow.

And so it goes,
As our love flows,
A strength is found
In a history bold and proud.

Safe in rooms
In which we find survival,
Hope will tread a greater end.
So we'll move my friend
Into safer light,
Knowing that
Here we will win
Here we will win
Here we will win.

A new world in the making,
It's there for the taking.
Santiago to rio,
The moment is waiting.

The lost will be found,
And named out aloud.
Photos carried high,
The lives they've denied.

A lover's found passion,
In the sense of re-awaking,
Desire that shines,
Like the pride in creating.

A nation is breathing,
In cities and farmland,
In bedrooms and boardrooms,
Life held in suspension.
A breath that is scented,
With warmth and friendship,
And we sleep here as lovers,
Companeros in cover,
We'll tread a greater end,
And so we'll move my friend,
Into safer light,
Knowing that we will win.

[Un mundo que se abre
Esta por hacerse
De santiago a rio
Se espera el momento
Se encontraran
Se nombraran
Con retratos en alto
Seas vidas negadas
Como la nueva pasión
De un amor que despierta
Deseo que brilla
Como el orgullo de crear
Una nación que respira
De ciudades a campos
De hogar en hogar
La vida en suspenso
Un respiro fragante
De calor y amistad
Durmiendo como amantes
Compañeros encubiertos
Lograremos un gran final
No nos moverán
Sabiendo que vamos a vencer
Y venceremos
Y venceremos...]

> List

More information about this album

The Last Nightingale
1984

Various Artists

More information about this album

MOMENTS OF DELIGHT

Chris Cutler / Tim Hodgkinson

a ray split by the fragments of a broken mirror

a window lit against the night

these are my hopes in t i mes of terror

these my moments of Respite

(Delight)

> List

IN THE DARK YEAR

Chris Cutler / Lindsay Cooper

Held tight in jaws of Fear & Force
A country dies - for Power has learned:
the more it takes,
the more the mass
moves back to
g i ve it space.
Fear
Snowballs into Madness
here, where Violence Parades
As Law

More information about this album

Lyrics

Work In Progress
1984

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

BIKO

Peter Gabriel

Inamajo Inamajo man is dead man is dead
Inamajo Inamajo man is dead man is dead

Well it's September seventy seven Port Elizabeth weather fine
And it was business as usual
In police room 619
Oh Biko Biko Biko oh Biko Biko Biko
Inamajo Inamajo man is dead man is dead

Now when I try to sleep at night
I can only dream in red
You know the outside world seems black and white
With just one colour: dead
Oh Biko...
Inamajo...

Now you can blow out a candle
But you can't blow out a fire oh no
Once the flame begins to catch
The wind will fan it higher
Oh Biko...
Inamajo...
Inamajo...

And the eyes of the world they're watching now
They're watching now
Watching now

> List

AMBER AND THE AMBERINES

Robert Wyatt / Hugh Hopper

Here's to the Fidel few Clearing road and landslide
Children of history
Changing from the inside
Not just because Che Guevara showed the way
Not just to shame the C.I.A
Everyone needs to feel at home
Nobody wins who fights alone

Here's to the NJM
Planning for the future
Women and men who dared raise our aspirations

Not just because Maurice Bishop told them to
Not just to change the western view
Everyone needs to feel at home
Nobody wins who fights alone

Here's to our friends like Chris Working in the classrooms
London to Mozambique
Nursing wounds of empire
Not just because revolution paved the way
Not just to be there on the day
Everyone needs to feel at home
Nobody wins who fights alone

> List

YOLANDA Pablo Milanes

Esto no puede ser no más que una canción
Quisiera fuera una declaración de amor
Romántica sin reparar en formas tales
Que ponga un freno a lo que siento ahora raudales te amo - te amo - eternamente te amo
Si me faltaras no voy a morirne
Si he de morir quiero que sea contigo
Mi soledad se siente acompañada
Por eso a veces sé que necesito
Tu mano, tu mano, eternamente tu mano
Cuando te vi sabía que era cierto
Este temor de hallarme descuvierto
Tu me desnudas con siete razones
Me abres el pecho siempre que colmas
De amores - de amores - eternamente de amores
Si alguna vez me siento derrotado
Renuncio a ver el sol cada mañana
Rezando el credo que me has enseñado
Miro a tu cara y digo en la ventana
Yolanda - Yolanda - eternamente Yolanda
Yolanda - eternamente Yolanda

> List

TE RECUERDO AMANDA Victor Jara

Te recuerdo Amanda la calle mojada
Corriendo a la fábrica donde trabajaba Manuel
La sonrisa ancha la lluvia en el pelo
No importaba nada ibas a encontrarte con él
Son cinco minutos la vida es eterna en cinco minutos
Suena la sirena devuelta al trabajo
Y tu caminando los iluminas todo los cinco minutos te hacen florecer Que partió a la sierra que nunca hiso daño que partió a la sierra y en cinco minutos quedó destrozado suena la sirena Devuelto al trabajo muchos no volvieron tampoco Manuel

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Shipbuilding/Memories Of You/'Round Midnight
1982

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

MEMORIES OF YOU

A. Razaf / E. Blake

Everything
Seems to bring
Memories of you
How I wish I could forget
Those happy yesteryears
They have left a rosary of tears
Your face beams
In my dreams In spite of all I do Everything
Seems to bring
Memories of you

> List

ROUND MIDNIGHT

C. Williams - B. Hanigen / T. Monk

Tears you've shed today will pause waiting until tomorrow
Dreams of what could be Come close to me, timidly
There's a brand new day in sight
At that time: round about midnight

Life's game of chance
And you're one of the minor players
Look for what you lost
For days to come, harbour some
Let your spirit start the fight
At that time: round about midnight

Every day's going to bring some sad times
Every day's going to bring some glad times
So take what you can of the glad times
Don't measure your pleasure
In nickels and dimes

Look back on today and you'll know
When you have been unhappy
Tears done, chased away
What might at night have their day
Let your eyes put out their light
At that time: round about midnight
Round about midnight

> List

SHIPBUILDING C. Langer / E. Costello

Is it worth it?
A new winter coat and shoes for the wife
and a bicycle on the boy's birthday
It's just a rumor that was spread around town
by the women and children
Soon we'll be shipbuilding
Well I ask you
The boy said 'Dad, they're going to take me to task
but I'll be home by Christmas
It's just a rumor that was spread around town
Somebody said that someone got filled in
For saying that people get killed in
The results of their shipbuilding
With all the will in the world
diving for dear life
when we could be diving for pearls
It's just a rumor that was spread around town
A telegram for a picture postcard
Within weeks they'll be re-opening the shipyard
and notifying the next of kin once again
it's all we're skilled in
We will be shipbuilding
With all the will in the world
Diving for dear life
When we could be diving for pearls

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Nothing Can Stop Us
1982

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

BORN AGAIN CRETIN

Robert Wyatt

At least I won't be shot for singing
I'm a free agent, I can "protest"
This must be freedom
I must be happy
So let Mandela rot in prison
Someone should tell him how lucky he is Read him George Orwell, explain about Naipaul
Because he must understand how he needs us
What with our culture, and our charm, and our brains
But how could he understand?
Heathen have no soul

> List

AT LAST I'M FREE

Bernard Edwards / Nile Rodgers

At last I am free
I can hardly see in front of me
I can hardly see in front of me

>And now love please listen
To what I say
I can't go on living life this way
I've tried and I've tried
To make you see
You call this love
All this lying, my friend, it just can't be

At last I am free
I can hardly see in front of me
I can hardly see in front of me

And now love, please hold me
Come closer, my dear
It feels so good, just having you near
But who am I fooling
When I know it's not real?
I can't hide
All this hurt and pain inside I feel

> List

CAIMANERA Trad. / arr. R. Wyatt - C. Puebla

Guantánamo tiene un son sobre su piel duradera que gira por Caimanera con su ritmo juguetón.
Caimanera es la razón,
que palabra impresionante.
Caimanera militante se entrena cada mañana por la base Americana que es una mancha insultante.

Guantanamera,
guajira guantanamera.
Guantanamera,
guajira guantanamera.

No se duerme Caimanera
sobre la noche antillana.
Ella vela soberana
con la luz de su bandera.
Caimanera es la primera
herida por sus costados.
La de brazos desangrados,
la de héroes caimaneses,
la que ha visto muchas veces sus hijos asesinados.

Guantanamera,
guajira guantanamera.
Guantanamera,
guajira guantanamera.

Caimanera es la frontera, es la primer avanzada la mano firme armada
ante el rostro de la fiera.
Guajira guantanamera,
Caimanera siempre erguida dispuesta a entregar la vida por la causa que defiende.
Te aplaude quien te comprende,
Guantanamera querida.

Guantanamera,
guajira guantanamera.
Guantanamera,
guajira guantanamera.

> List

GRASS Ivor Cutler

Go and sit upon the grass
and I shall come and sit beside you.
Go and sit upon the grass
and I shall come and sit beside you.

And we shall talk.
And while we talk I'll hit your head with a nail to make you understand me.

While we talk I'll hit your head with a nail to make you understand me.

Go and sit upon the grass
and I shall come and sit beside you.
Go and sit upon the grass
and I shall come and sit beside you.

And do not mind if I thump you when I'm talking to you.
Do not mind if I thump you when I'm talking to you.
I've something important to say.

Go and sit upon the grass
and I shall come and sit beside you.
Go and sit upon the grass
and I shall come and sit beside you.

And when I'm gone you can feel the lumps upon your head.
And think about what I said.
And think about what I said.

Go and sit upon the grass
and feel your lumps.

> List

STALIN WASN'T STALLIN' Willie Johnson

Stalin wasn't stallin'
When he told the beast of Berlin
That they'd never rest contented
Till they had driven him from the land
So he called the Yanks and English
And proceeded to extinguish
The Fuhrer and its vermin
This is how it all began

Now, the Devil, he was reading
In the Good Book one day
How that Lord created Adam
To walk the righteous way
And it made the Devil jealous
He turned green up to his horns
And he swore by things unholy
And he made one of his own

So he packed two suitcases
Full of greed and misery
And he caught the Midnight Special
Going down to Germany
Then he mixed his lies and hatred
With fire and brimstone
Then the Devil sat upon it
That's how Adolf was born

Now Adolf got the notion
That he was the master race
And he swore he'd bring New Order
And put mankind in its place !
So he set a scheme in motion
And was winning everywhere
Until he up and got the notion

For to kick that Russian bear

Stalin wasn't stallin'
When he told the Beast of Berlin
That they'd never rest contented
Till they had driven him from the land
So he called the Yanks and English
And proceeded to extinguish
The Fuhrer and its vermin
This is how it all began

Yes he kicked that noble Russian
But it wasn't very long Before Adolf got suspicious
That he had done something wrong
Cause that bear grabbed the Fuhrer
And gave him an awful fright
Seventeen months he scrapped the Fuhrer
Tooth and claw, day and night

Then that bear smacked the Fuhrer
With a mighty armored paw
And Adolf broke all records
Running backwards towards Krakaw
Then Goebbels sent a message
To the people everywhere
That if they couldn't hit the Fuhrer
Go down hit that Russian bear

Stalin wasn't stallin'
When he told the Beast of Berlin
That they'd never rest contented
Till they had driven him from the land
So he called the Yanks and English
And proceeded to extinguish
The Fuhrer and its vermin
This is how it all began

Then this bear called on his buddy
The noble fighting Yank
And they sent the Fuhrer running
With their ships and planes and tanks
Now the Fuhrer's having nightmares
Cause the Fuhrer knows damn well
That the Devil's done wrote "Welcome"
On his residence in Hell

> List

SHIPBUILDING C. Langer / E. Costello

Is it worth it?
A new winter coat and shoes for the wife
and a bicycle on the boy's birthday
It's just a rumor that was spread around town
by the women and children
Soon we'll be shipbuilding
Well I ask you
The boy said 'Dad, they're going to take me to task
but I'll be home by Christmas
It's just a rumor that was spread around town
Somebody said that someone got filled in
For saying that people get killed in

The results of their shipbuilding
With all the will in the world
diving for dear life
when we could be diving for pearls
It's just a rumor that was spread around town
A telegram for a picture postcard
Within weeks they'll be re-opening the shipyard
and notifying the next of kin once again
it's all we're skilled in
We will be shipbuilding
With all the will in the world
Diving for dear life
When we could be diving for pearls

> List

RED FLAG Trad. / arr. Jim Connell

It waved above our infant might
When all ahead seemed dark as night;
It witnessed many a deed and vow
We must not change its colour now

Then raise the scarlet standard high
Within its shade we'll live and die
Though cowards flinch and traitors sneer
We'll keep the red flag flying here

It well recalls the triumphs past
It gives the hope of peace at last;
The banner bright, the symbol plain
Of human right and human gain

Then raise the scarlet standard high
Within its shade we'll live and die
Though cowards flinch and traitors sneer
We'll keep the red flag flying here

With heads uncovered swear we all
To bear it onward till we fall;
Come dungeons dark or gallows grim
This song shall be our parting hymn

Then raise the scarlet standard high
Within its shade we'll live and die
Though cowards flinch and traitors sneer
We'll keep the red flag flying heres

> List

STRANGE FRUIT Lewis Allan

The Southern trees bear a strange fruit
Blood on the leaves, and blood at the roots
Black bodies swinging in the Southern breeze
Strange fruit hanging from the poplar trees

Pastoral scene of the Gallant South
The bulging eyes and the twisted mouth
Scent of magnolia, sweet and fresh
Then the sudden smell of burning flesh

Here is a fruit for the crows to pluck
For the rain to gather, for the wind to suck
For the sun to rot, for the tree to drop
Here is a strange and bitter crop...

> List

ARAUCO Violeta Para

Arauco tiene una pena
Que no la puedo callar,
Son injusticias de siglos
Que todos ven aplicar,
Nadie le ha puesto remedio
Pudiéndolo remediar.
Levántate, huenchullán.

Un día llega de lejos
Huescufe conquistador,
Buscando montañas de oro,
Que el indio nunca buscó,
Al indio le basta el oro
Que le relumbra del sol.
Levántate, curimón.

Entonces corre la sangre,
No sabe el indio qué hacer,
Le van a quitar su tierra,

La tiene que defender,
El indio se cae muerto,
Y el afuerino de pie.
Levántate, manquilef

Adónde se fue lautaro
Perdido en el cielo azul,
Y el alma de galvarino
Se la llevó el viento sur,
Por eso pasan llorando
Los cueros de su kultrún.
Levántate, pues, callfull.

Del año mil cuatrocientos
Que el indio afligido está,
A la sombra de su ruca
Lo pueden ver lloriquear,
Totora de cinco siglos
Nunca se habrá de secar.
Levántate, callupán.

Arauco tiene una pena
Más negra que su chamal,
Ya no son los españoles
Los que les hacen llorar,
Hoy son los propios chilenos
Los que les quitan su pan.
Levántate, pailahuán.

Ya rugen las votaciones,
Se escuchan por no dejar,
Pero el quejido del indio
¿por qué no se escuchará?
Aunque resuene en la tumba
La voz de caupolicán,
Levántate, huenchullán..

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Nick Mason's Fictitious Sports
1981

Nick Mason

More information about this album

I WAS WRONG

Carla Bley

Well I used to think this talk of spaceships
Was just so much hype
I really believed there was nothing out there
Except the Stars and the Stripes
I mean the scientists said they found out that There was nothing there on Mars
So as far as I was concerned it was just
The name of a candy bar

I'm one of those kind of people
Who need proof before they believe Close Encounters left me cold
And Star Trek seemed naive
When it came to UFO's
I was of the scientific school
Little green men with pointed heads
Were for little kids and fools

But I was wrong
I was wrong
I was real wrong
I was wrong
All along
I was so wrong

The people who believed that stuff
Were always kind of odd
I mean you might as well go all the way
And believe in Jesus and God
I knew I had the kind of mind
That wasn't easily satisfied
And besides I had enough problems on earth
To keep me occupied

And then one night I was standing
Looking at the stars
And I heard something that sounded like
A hundred space guitars
The music was so weird it could have Been the theme from Jaws
Then I saw something flying over my head
I thought it was Santa Claus

But I was wrong
I was wrong
I was real wrong
I was wrong

All along
I was so wrong

> List

SIAM Carla Bley

Here's another song about a place near Hong Kong
They got lots of opium and Lapsang Southong
Siam, Siam

All the fancy pussycats come from this area
Also got a lot of animals that scare ya
Siam, Siam

Python legs are poached in slimy toad saliva
After eating that I'm lucky I'm aliva
I am, yes I am

Ask the King if you can stay to sample cuisine
Maybe he will even let you dine with the Queen
Siam, Siam

Nicest little place I live in since Budapest
If you think that I'm in love, you're right, I Confess
I am, I am, yes I am, with Siam
I am, I am, yes I am, with Siam

> List

HOT RIVER Carla Bley

Do you long to cavort?
Here's a new water sport
That you ought to try
It's a Fahrenheit dream
Hot and covered with steam
You won't be bored
Do you want to get wet?
Are you starting to sweat?
Slip over the side
Now we're caught in a swell
Here's where Heaven and Hell
Start to collide

It's slippery and slimy
Reach over here and tie me
I'm so warm I can hardly move
Mother never told me
I'd need someone to hold me
But where I'm from the rivers are all cold

It's a fisherman's dream
Dinner's already steamed
And ready to eat
When you feel your resolve
Is about to dissolve
Then stop for a treat

In a river of steam
Nothing seems too obscene
So let down your hair
While you drift through a trough
Slip your bathing suit off
And really get clean

You can do your laundry
While your thoughts are wandering
And you watch the passing swimmer's poach
You don't need no Sterno
In Dante's Inferno
It's thermohydriatically controlled

You can't stay in too long
'Cause the heat is too strong
You're starting to slide
Grab ahold of the rope
Throw your soap in the boat
Climb over the side
We can come back for more
When we start to get bored
There's nothing as wild
As a Hot River swim
On the volcanic rim

> List

BOO TO YOU TOO Carla Bley

Just when we was startin' to play
Someone yelled out take 'em away
Then we heard 'em startin' to boo
What did you do? What did you do?
I reacted intelligently
Here's my method, try it and see
When somebody's runnin' you down
You got to turn it around, turn it around

So when they boo at me you know what I do?
I tell 'em boo to you too, boo to you too
Boo to you too, boo to you too

I don't take it personally
When somebody's booin' at me
Makes no difference if the music is fine
I never pay it no mind, pay it no mind
When you're tryin' something that's new You'll have people booin' at you
When we hear 'em startin' to boo
What do we do? What do we do?

Well when they boo at us you know what we do?
We tell 'em boo to you too, boo to you too
Boo to you too, boo to you too

Keep your chin up, play what you feel Music's always grand if it's real
Even if they're cruel to you
You got to do what you do, do what you do
When they're ready to tear you apart
Use your noodle and try to be smart

Don't just stand there takin' abuse
You got to put it to use, put it to use

You make 'em boo on cue, they say boo
And you say boo to you too
Boo to you too, boo to you too

You make 'em boo on cue, they say boo
And you say boo to you too
Boo to you too, boo to you too

Boo to you too, boo to you too
Boo to you too, boo to you too

> List

DO YA? Carla Bley

I try
God knows I try
It seems very clear to me, that I try
But it's not clear to you, that I do
You don't know what I mean, do ya?
You don't know what I mean

I mean
I mean I try
God knows that I mean to try
I mean it seems so very clear to me, that I'm Trying
But it's not clear to you, what I'm trying to do
You don't know what I mean, do ya?
You don't know what I mean

You're not trying
God knows you probably mean to try
I mean sometimes it even seems clear to me
I mean sometimes it even seems clear to me that You're trying to try
Is that clear? Do you know what I mean, what I'm trying to say
You don't know what I mean, do ya?
You don't know what I mean

God knows I try

> List

WERVIN' Carla Bley

Wervin', we're Wervin'
Do you need a doctor?
Swervin' and curvin'
Are you pocket trained?
Do you like to Werve?
Do you have the nerve?
Do you need a doctor
When you start to swerve?
Are you pocket trained

Goin' 'round a curve?
Can you Werve?

Wervin', we're Wervin'
Do you save the coupons?
Swervin' and curvin'
Can I borrow your suit?
Can you Werve like a bird
Or do you find it absurd?
Did you come prepurd?
Can I borrow your suit?

Do you find it unnervin'
Or pleasantly disturbin'
Can you Werve?

Wervin', we're Wervin'
Do you have your 'chute?
Swervin' and curvin'
Does your mother know?
Do you worry when you Werve?
Are you scared when you swerve?
Do you get what you deserve
When you go around a curve?
I can see your house
Have you lost your nerve?
Can you Werve?
Werve
Werve
Werve

> List

I'M A MINERALIST Carla Bley

Here's a shocking revelation for you voyeurs
Such a heinous deviation, these are no clues
I'm a Mineralist, I'm a Mineralist

Just the thought of ironing gives me spasms of lust
I creep up to old wrecked cars and lick off the rust
I'm a Mineralist, I'm a Mineralist

Mother used to try to metal in my affairs
Keep your nose up off that grindstone, people
Will stare
Get the lead out of your pants and change your Underwear

I've been stealing baby bottles since I was born
I'll go blind from balling bearings, doctors have Warned
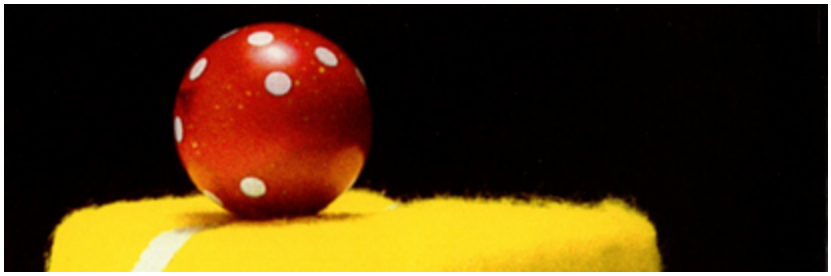
I like making out with steel-rimmed glasses
More than horned

Erik Satie gets my rocks off, Cage is a dream
Phillip Glass is a Mineralist to the extreme



I like tickling ivories and fingering stones
When my mercury goes up I play with my bone

Peole take for granite my perversion is wrong

I'm not harming anyone by beating my gong
I'm a Mineralist, I'm a Mineralist

I'll make love to minerals as long as I can
And in fifty years I'll be a jaded old man
I'm a Mineralist, I'm a Mineralist
I'm a Mineralist, I'm a Mineralist

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Ruth Is Stranger than Richard
1975

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

SOUP SONG Hugh Hopper / Robert Wyatt

There's a mushroom on my eyelid,
there's a carrot down my back,
I can see in the distance, a vast quantity of beans.
To you I'm just a flavour to make your soup taste nice.
Oh my God! Here come the onions and, I don't believe it,
at least a pound of rice.

There was a time when bacon sandwiches
were everyone's favourite snack.
I'm delicious when I'm crunchy, even when I'm almost black.
So why you make a soup with me
I just can't understand.
It seems so bloody tasteless,
not to mention underhand.

Now there's no hope of getting out of here,
I can feel I'm going soft.
Dirty waters soak my fibres,
the whole saucepan's getting hot.
So I may as well resign myself,
make friends with a few peas,
but I just can't help hoping a tummy ache will bring you to your knees.

Illustration : Alfreda Benge

> Zoom

> List

TEAM SPIRIT Bill MacCormick/ Phil Manzanera / Robert Wyatt

Kick me Hardy.
Without one sweet push from your shine covered boot,
I don't think, I just know I'll be grounded for ever more over turn me. You can hardly miss me,
I'm the one face down in the mud on the ground.
I'll be stuck here forever, unless you come over and kick me Hardy.

I'm the best football you have got.
I'll beat the lot. I'll take the cake.
Be masterful, be my hero and be -lieve me Hardy
if it's tough you want, then it's tough you've got.
I mean if this is only a question of toughness,
survive me Hardy, or deflate me straight away.
Beating shit out of me takes the hell out of you.
If I'm nothing without you, then why stick it out?
You can pass me over.
But I'm the only chance you've got.
If you asked me, here's my advice
Use me to go hell for leather and back.

Kick me Handy.
Without one sweet push from your shine covered boot,
I don't think, I just know I'll be grounded for ever more over turn me. Ttbu should just be thankful, when it comes to the crunch, I'm the best of the bunch.
At the end of the day, you could easily say that I come in Handy.

I'm the best football you have got.
I beat the lot. I take the cake.
Be masterful, be my hero and be grateful Hardy.
If it's tough you want, then it's tough you've got.
I mean if this is only a question of toughness
survive me Handy, or deflate me pronto.
Beating shit out of me takes the hell out of you.
If I'm nothing without you, then why stick it out?
You can pass me over.
If you asked me, here's my advice.
Use me to go hell for leather and back.

Illustration : Alfreda Benge

> Zoom

> List

MUDDY MOUSE (a) Fred Frith / Robert Wyatt

Relatively used to coping with the darkness underground, cub and brownie blink as they emerge.
Overhead the stars are piercing, glaring on their new home. Wasted jungle, crowded with dead trees.

Illustration : Alfreda Benge

> Zoom

> List

MUDDY MOUSE (b) Fred Frith / Robert Wyatt

What do cubs and brownies do at night after a boring day?
Shine their boots and practice tying knots? No of course not!
After school they play hide-and-seek.
Chase each other, clutching in the dark.

Illustration : Alfreda Benge

> Zoom

> List

MUDDY MOUSE (c) Fred Frith / Robert Wyatt

What do Ann and Handy do after a long exhausting shift?
Clean the spades and clear away the dirt?
No of course not! Usually they lie down in the mud, close together, just to save on heat.

(simultaneously)
Work is split up but it gets harder every day, it's never done.
Call it peaceful. Call it grinding the time away.
Say that ditches aren't homely.
Call it boredom. Either way Ann decides to potter off.
How's that for brains?

Illustration : Alfreda Benge

> Zoom

> List

MUDDY MOUTH Fred Frith / Robert Wyatt

Deep in the undergrows Handy sighed with relief.
He'd come alone in the dark. He'd come again at dawn, if not before the morning cockrise.
Meanwhile in the bushes above, behind die toepath which goes along beside the canal leading to the sea which in turn leads on to all the major oceans, Indian, Atlantic, Pacific,
I can't remember the names of the others
off-Handy cided to leave.
He'd come apart at the seam endangered life and lawn order before the more since he lies. Even under oaf Handy lies, when he feels caught between righthand wrong.
I think he just might have been wrong this time, which in turn left him with few alternatives to relieving himself by hand alone in the dark.
Hiding in the bog.

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

The Hapless Child
1976

Michael Mantler

More information about this album

THE SINKING SPLELL

Edward Gorey / Michael Mantler

Oh look, there's something way up high;
A creature floating in the sky.

It is not merely sitting there,
But falling slowly through the air.

The clouds grew pink and gold;: its knees
Were level with the evening trees.

Morose, inflexible, aloof,
It hovered just above the roof.

Its gone right through and come to rest
On great grand-uncle Ogdred's chest.

It settled further in the night,
And gave the maid an awful fright.

Head first, without a look or word,
Its lefts the fourth floor for the third.

The week went by it made its way
A little lower every day.

Each time one thought it might have stopped
One found, however, it had dropped.

One wonders just what can be meant
By this implacable descent.

It did not linger after all,
Forever in the upstairs hall.

It found the drawing room in turn,
And slipped inside the Chinese urn.

It now declines in fretful curves
Among the pickles and preserves.

It's gone beneath the cellar floor,
We shall not see it any more.

> List

THE OBJECT-LESSON

Edward Gorey / Michael Mantler

It was already Thursday.
but his lordship's artificial limb could not be found;
therefore, having directed the servants to fill the baths,
he seized the tongs
and set out at once for the edge of the lake, where the Throbblefoot Spectre still loiteredin a distraught manner.
He presented it with a lenght of string and passed on to the statue of Corrupted Endeavour to await the arrival of autumn.
Meanwhile, on the tower,
Madame O_____ in conversation with an erstwhile cousin saw that his moustache was not his own, on which she flung herself over the parapet and surreptitiously vanished.
He descended, destroying the letter unread,
and stepped backwards into the water for a better view.
Heavens, how dashing! cried the people in the dinghy, and Echo answered: count the spoons!
On the shore a bat, or possibly an umbrella, disengaged itself from the shrubbery, causing those nearby to recollect the miseries of chidhood.
It now became apparent (despite the lack of library paste) that something had happened to the vicar:
guns began to go off in the distance.
At twilight, however, no message had come from the asylum,
so the others retired to the kiosk, only to discover the cakes iced a peculiar shade of green and the tea-urn empty save for a card on which was writtent the single word:
Farewell.

> List

THE INSECT GOD Edward Gorey / Michael Mantler

O what has become of Millicent Frastley?
Is there any hope that she's still alive?
Why haven't they found her? It’s rather ghastly
To think that the child was not yet five.

The dear little thing was last seen playing
Alone by herself at the edge of the park;
There was no one with her to keep her from straying
Away in the shadows and oncoming dark.

Before she could do so, a silent and glittering Black motor drew up where she sat nibbling grass;
From within came a nearly inaudible twittering.
A tiny green face peered out through the glass.

She was ready to flee, when the figure beckoned;
An arm with two elbows held out a tin Full of cinnamon balls; she paused; a second Reached out as she took one, and lifted her in.

The nurse was discovered collapsed in some shrubbery
But her reappearance was not much use;
Her eyes were askew, her extremities rubbery.
Her clothing was stained with a brownish juice.

She was questioned in hopes of her answers revealing

What had happened: she merely repeatedly said "I hear them walking about on the ceiling"
She had gone irretrievably out of her head.

O feelings of horror, resentment, and pity
For things, which so seldom turn out for the best;
The car, unobserved, sped away from the city
As last of the light died out in the west.

The Frastleys grew sick with apprehension. Which a heavy tea only served to increase; Though they felt it was scarcely genteel to mention
The loss of their child, they called in the police.

Through unvisited hamlets the car went creeping,
With its head lamps unlit and its curtains drawn;
Those natives who happened not to be sleeping Heard it pass, and lay awake until dawn.

The police with their torches and notebooks descended
On the haunts of the underworld, looking for clues;
In spite of their praiseworthy efforts, they ended
With nothing at all in the way of news.

The car, after hours and hours of travel,
Arrived at a gate in an endless wall;
It rolled up a drive and stopped on the gravel
At the foot of a vast and crumbling hall.

As the night wore away hope started to languish
And soon was replaced by all manner of fears;
The family twisted their fingers in anguish,
Or got them all damp from the flow of their tears.
They removed the child to the ball-room, whose hangings
And mirrors were streaked with a luminous slime;
They leapt through the air with buzzings and twangings
To work themselves up to a ritual crime.

They stunned her, and stripped off her garments, and lastly
They suffed her inside a kind of pod;
And then it was that Millicent Frastley
Was sacrificed to THE INSECT GOD.

> List

THE DOUBTFUL GUEST Edward Gorey / Michael Mantler

When they answered the bell on that wild winter night,
There was no one expected-and no one in sight.

Then they saw something standing on top of an urn,
Whose peculiar appearance gave them quite a turn.

All at once it leapt down and ran into the hall,
Where it chose to remain with its nose to the wall.

It was seemingly deaf to whatever they said,
So at last they stopped screaming, and went off to bed.

It joined them at breackfast and presently ate
All the syrup and toast, and part of a plate.

It wrenched off the horn from the new gramophone,
And could not be persuaded to leave it alone.

It betrayed a great liking for peering up flues,
And for peeling the soles of its white canvas shoes.

At times it would tear out whole chapters from books,
Or put roomfuls of pictures askew on their hooks.

Every Sunday it brooded and lay on the floor,
Inconveniently close to the drawing-room door.

Now and then it would vanish for hours from the scene,
But alas, be discovered inside a tureen.

It was subject to fits of bewildering wrath,
During which it would hide all the towels from the bath.

In the night through the house it would aimlessly creep,
In spite of the fact of its being asleep.

It would carry off objects of which it grew fond,
And protect them by dropping them into the pond.

It came seventeen years ago-and to this day
It has shown no intention of going away.

> List

THE REMEMBERED VISIT Edward Gorey / Michael Mantler

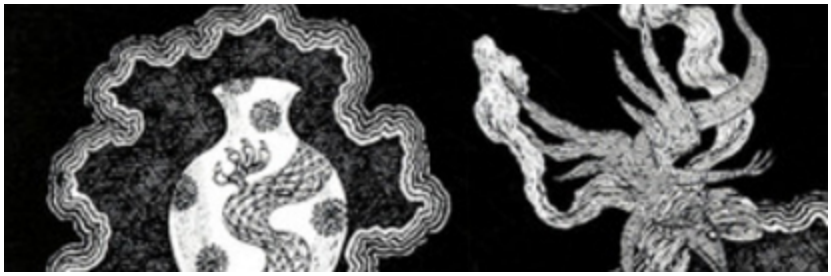
The summer she was eleven, Drusilla went abroad with her parents.
There she climbed endlessflights of stairs.
She tried to make out the subjects of vast dark paintings.
Sometimes she was made ill by curious dishes,
She was called upon to admire views.
When the weather was bad, she leafed through incomprehensible magazines.
One morning her parents, for some reason or other, went on an excursion without her.
After luncheon an acquaintance of the family. Miss Skrim-Pshaw, took Drusilla with her to pay a call.
They walked to an inn called le Crapaud Bleu.
They were shown into agarden where the topiary was being neglected,
Drusilla was toldshe was going to meet a wonderful old manwho had been or done something lofty and cultured in the dim past.
Eventually Mr Cragueappeared.
He kissed Miss Skrim-Pshaws hand, and she presented Drusilla to him.
After they had sat down, Drusilla saw that Mr Cragueappeared.
Wore no socks.
He and Miss Skrim-Psaw's mentioned a great many people who had done things in their conversation.
Tea was brought: it was nearly colourless, and there was a plate of crystallized ginger.
Mr Cragueasked Drusilla if she liked paper.
He said he would have liked to show her his albums filled with beautiful pieces of it, but they were upstairs in his room.
Drusilla promised when she got home to send him some insides of envelopes she had saved.
Miss Skrim-Pshaw said it was time they made their adieux.



On the way back a few drops of rain fell. Somehow Drusilla was hungrier than she had been before tea.
Days went by.
Weeks went by.
Months went by.
Years went by. Drusilla was still inclined to be forgetful.
One day something reminded her of her promise to Mr Cragué.
She began to hunt for the envelope-linings in her room.
On a sheet of newspaper at the bottom of a drawer she read that Mr Cragué had died the autumn after she had been abroad.
When she found the pretty pieces of paper, she felt very sad and neglectful.
The wind came and took them through an open window: she watched them blow away.

> List

THE HAPLESS CHILD Edward Gorey / Michael Mantler

There was once a little girl named Charlotte Sophia.
Her parents were kind and well-to-do.
She had a doll whom she called Hortense.
One day her father, a colonel in the army, was ordered to Africa.
Several months later he was reported killed in a native uprising.
Her mother fell into a decline that proved fatal.
Her only other relative, an uncle, was brained by a piece of masonry.
Charlotte Sophia was left in the hands of the family lawyer.
He at once put her tnto a boarding-school.
There she was punished by the teachers for things she hadn't done.
Hortense was torn limb from limb by the other pupils.
During the day Charlotte Sophia hid as much as possible.
At night she lay awake weeping and weeping.
When she could bear it no longer she fled from the school at dawn.
She soon lost consciousness and sank to the pavement
A man came and took the locket with her parents' pictures inside.
Another man came from the opposite direction and carried her off.
He brought her to a low place.
He sold her to a drunken brute.
Charlotte Sophia was put to work making artificial flowers.
She lived on scraps and tap-water.
From time to time the brute got the horror.
Charlotte Sophia's eyesight began to fail rapidly.
Meanwhile, her father, who was not dead after all, returned home.
Every day he motored through the streets searching for her.
At last the brute went off his head.
Charlotte Sophia, now almost blind, ran into the street.
She was at once struck down by a car.
Her father got out to look at the dying child.
She was so changed, he did not recognize her.

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Voices And Instruments
1976

Jan Steele/John Cage

More information about this album

EXPERIENCES N°2

E.E. Cummings / John Cage

it is at moments after i have dreamed of the rare entertainment of your eyes, when (being fool to fancy) i have deemed with your peculiar mouth my heart made wise;

at moments when the glassy darkness holds the genuine apparition of your smile (it was through tears always) and silences moulds such strangeness as was mine a little while;

moments when my once more illustrious arms are filled with fascination, when my breast wears the intolerant brightness of your charms:

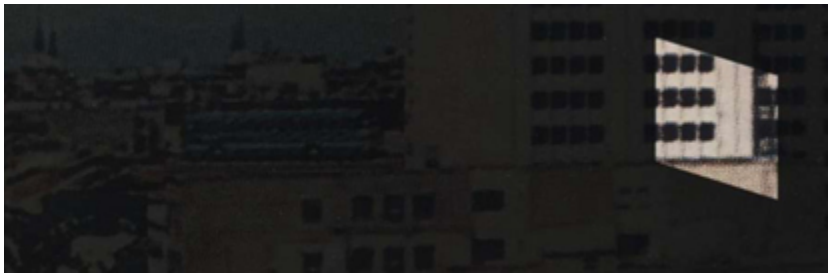
one pierced moment whiter than the rest

-turning from the tremendous lie of sleep
i watch the roses of the day grow deep

> List



THE WONDERFUL WIDOW OF EIGHTEEN SPRINGS

James Joyce / John Cage night by silent sailing night,

Isobel,
wildwoods eyes and primarose hair,
quietly,
all the woods so wild in mauves of moss and daphnedews how all so still she lay
'neath of the whitethorn, child of tree
like some lost happy leaf, like blowing flower stilled,
as fain would she anon
for soon again 'twill be,
win me, woo me, wed me,
ah! weary me!
deeply,
now evencalm lay sleeping;
night;
Isobel,
Sister Isobel,

Saintette Isobel,
Madame Isa Veuve La Belle

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Diamond Head
1975

Phil Manzanera

More information about this album

FRONTERA Phil Manzanera / Robert Wyatt

Es preciso que llegemos a la frontera antes del anochecer
Tenremos que hallarle dondequiera se haya ocultado
Es dudoso que est actor sea capaz de desempenar un papel tan importante
Terminare por creer que Vd no quiere ayudarnos
Cree Vd que podremos convencerle?
Dire a mi empleado que vaya luego a la oficina de la compania de Aviacion
Niega Vd que el acusado hayo injuriado
Al demandante de la manera mas imperdonable?
Sentimos que le sea imposible a Vd asistir a la representacion
Estaba contento de fijarme en que el teatro establa lleno de gente
Hare todo lo possible para volver a verle a Vd
Me asombre de lo que ha sucedidodododo
Es preciso que lleguemos a la fontera antes del anochecer
Tendremos que hallarle dondequierase haya ocultado
Es dudoso que este actor sea capaz de desempenar un papel tan importante
Terminare por creer que Vd no quiere ayudarnos
Cree que podremos convencerle
Dire a mi

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Rock Bottom
1974

Robert Wyatt

More information about this album

SEA SONG

Robert Wyatt

You look different every time
you come from the foam crested brine,
your skin shining softly in the moonlight.
Partly fish, partly porpoise, partly baby sperm whale.
Am I yours, are you mine
to play with?

Joking apart,
when you're drunk you're terrific,
when you're drunk I like you mostly
late at night, you're quite alright.
But I can't understand
the different you in the morning when it's time to play at being human for a while.
Please smile.

You'll be different in the spring, I know
you're a seasonal beast,
like the starfish that drift in with the tide.
So until your blood runs to meet
the next full moon,
your madness fits in nicely
with my own.
Your lunacy fits neatly with my own,
my very own.
We're not alone.

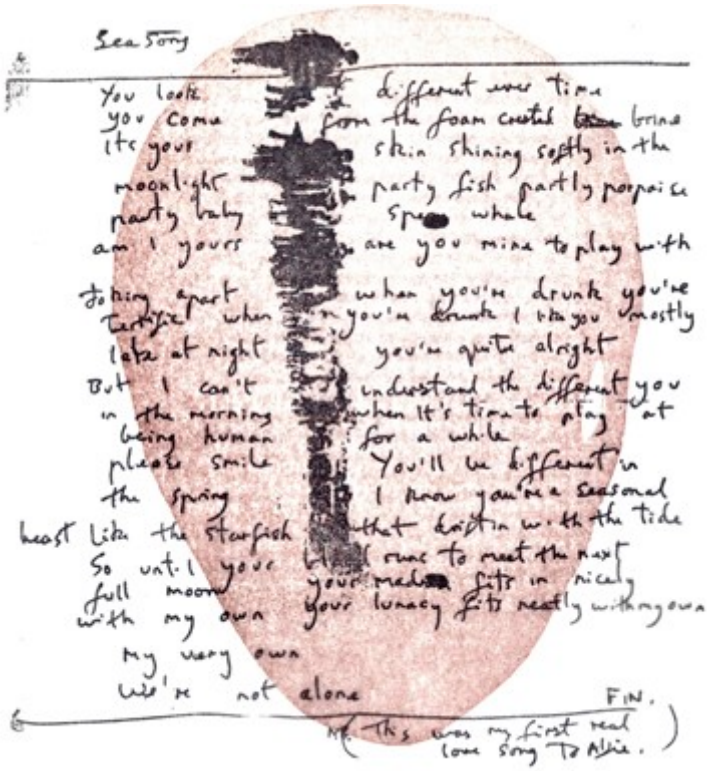

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

> Zoom

> List

A LAST STRAW Robert Wyatt

Seaweed tangled in our
home from home,
reminds me of your
rocky bottom.

Please don't wait for
tne paperweight,
err on the good side.
Touch us when we collapse.

Into the water we'll go
head over heel.
We'll not grow fat inside
the mammary gland.

Into the water we'll go
head over heel.
A head behind me
buried deep in the sand.

> List

LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD HIT THE ROAD Robert Wyatt

Orlandon't tell me, oh no.
Don't say, oh God don't tell me.
Oh dear me, heavens above.
Oh no, no I can't stand it.

Stop please, oh deary me.
What in heaven's name?
Oh blimey. Mercy me. Woe are we.
Oh dear. Oh stop it, stop it.
You've been so kind,
I know, I know.
So why did I hurt you?
I didn't mean to hurt you.

But I'll keep trying,
and I'm sure you will too.

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

> Zoom

> List

ALIFIB / ALIFIE Robert Wyatt

No nit not.
Nit no not.
Nit nit folly bololey.
Alife my larder.

I can't forsake you,
or forsqueak you,
Alife my larder.
Confiscate,
or make you late you, you
Alife my larder.
Not nit not,

Nit no not.
Nit nit folly bololey.
Burlybunch, the water mole

Hellyplop and fingerhole

Not a wossit, bundy, see.
For jangle and bojangle trip trip pip pippy pippy pip pip
landerim.
Alife my larder, Alife my larder.

(I'm not your larder,
jammy jars and mustard.
I'm not your dinner,
you soppy old custard.
And what's a bololey
when it's a folly?
I'm not your larder,
I'm your dear little dolly.
But when plops get too helly
I'll fill up your belly.
I'm not your larder.
I'm Alife your guarder.)

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

> Zoom

> List

LITTLE RED ROBIN HOOD HIT THE ROAD Robert Wyatt

In the garden of England,
dead moles lie inside their holes.

The dead-end tunnels crumble
in the rain, underfoot.
Innit a shame?

Can't you see them?
Can't you see them?
Roots can't hold them.
Bugs console them.

I fight with the handle of my little brown broom
I pull out the wires of the telephone.
I hurt in the head, and I hurt in the aching bone.
Now I smash up the telly with remains of the broken phone.
I fighting for the crust of the little brown loaf.
I want it. I want it. I want it. Give it to me.
I give it you back when I finish the lunchtea.
I lie in the road, try to trip up the passing cars.
Yes, me and the hedgehog, we bursting the tyres, all day.
As we roll down the highway towards the setting sun,
I reflect on the life of the highwayman, yum, yum.
Now I smash up the telly and what's left on the broken phone.
Ha ha ha ha ha.

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Little Red Record
1972

Matching Mole

More information about this album

MARCHIDES

Dave McRae

What is brown, goes in the ground,
is myopic?
What is brown, goes in the ground,
is myopic?
It's the mole!

> List

NAN TRUE'S HOLE

Robert Wyatt / Phil Miller

There's a place where I can run away just for little holiday in the house of a friend we know we know we never go

Illustration : Jean-Michel Marchetti

> Zoom

> List

RIGHTEOUS RHUMBA Robert Wyatt / Phil Miller

Look, see the people at the top
Come down the right hand lane
In Belgium, Greece and Portugal
In France and sunny Spain

My radical cheek is soft and meek
But I'll kill if I must
I'd rather have the Chinese here
Than Europe on me thrust
I'd rather have the Chinese here
Than Europe on me thrust

You may say I'm muddled up
Should stick to chords and tunes
But he shan't stay there
While he lives in fear of rich and pompous goons
But he shan't stay there
While he lives in fear of rich and pompous goons

A home for the warm and a home for the wonderful!
I'll show you mine, if you'll show me yours!
A home for the warm and a home for the wonderful!
I'll show you mine, if you'll show me yours!

> List

GLORIA GLOOM Robert Wyatt / Bill MacCormick

Like so many of you I've got my doubts about how much to contributet to the already rich among us How long can I pretend (that) music's more relevant than fighting for a socialist world
Someone watching us knows I'm bad
Black plastic along blue black wall
Small square for faces
Where dead men can look through
Run along and see the prison bath
Throw a stone across an empty road
You and your friend will be found
Outside the daydream
I've woken up to watch you sleep

> List

GOD SONG Robert Wyatt / Phil Miller

What on Earth are you doing, god?
Is this some sort of joke you're playing?
Is it 'cause we didn't pray? Well
I can't see the point of the words without the action Are you just hot air breathing over us? and over all

Is it fun watching us all
where's your son we want him again

Next time you send your boy down here give him some wife and some sexy daughter someone we can understand who's got some ideas we can use really relate to
We've all read your rules-tried them
Learned them in schools. Then tried them.
They're impossible rules You've made us look fools Well done god
but now please

Don't hunt me down for Heaven's sake
You know I'm only joking aren't I Pardon me I'm very drunk but I know what I'm trying to say
And it's nearly night-time and we're still alone waiting for something unknown Still waiting
So throw down a stone or something
Give us a sign, for christ's sake

> List

More information about this album

Matching Mole
1972

Matching Mole

More information about this album

O CAROLINE

Robert Wyatt / David Sinclair

David's on piano, and I may play on a drum
And we'll try to make the music work, we'll try to have some fun
But I just can't help thinking that if you were here with me
I'd get all my thoughts in focus and play more excitingly

I love you still, Caroline
I want you still, Caroline
I need you still, Caroline

If you call this sentimental crap you'll make me mad
'Cause you know that I would not sing about some passing fad
And if my attempts at rhyming aren't convincing to your ear
Then memories betray you through the passing of the year

I love you still, Caroline
I want you still, Caroline
I need you still, Caroline

You must think it doubtful that I mean the words I sing
Or that all attempts to reach you this way could not mean a thing
But you must admit we both thought we'd be man and wife
And that I could make you happy for the best part of your life

I love you still, Caroline
I love you still, Caroline

> List

SIGNED CURTAIN

Robert Wyatt

This is the first verse
This is the first verse, verse
This is the first, first...
And this is the chorus
Or perhaps it's the bridge
Or just another part
Of the song
That I'm singing

And this is the second verse
It could be the last verse
And this is the second verse
Second verse, second verse
It could be the last verse
Last verse
And it's probably

The last one
And this is the chorus
Or perhaps it's the bridge
Or just another key change
Never mind
It doesn't hurt
It only means
That I have lost faith in this song

'Cause it won't help me
Reach you...

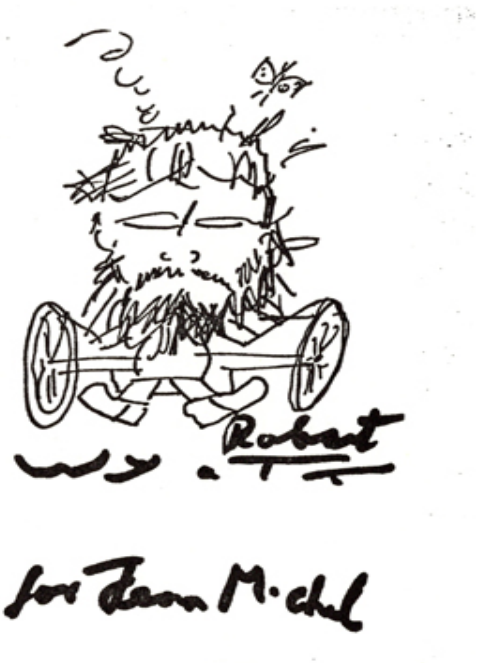

Illustration : Robert Wyatt (autoportrait)

> Zoom

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Jet-Propelled Photographs
(At The Beginning)
1971

Soft Machine

More information about this album

THAT'S HOW MUCH I NEED YOU NOW

R. Wyatt

I need you more than ever now
Where the trees grow
That's where my love died
That's where you can hide
That's now much I need you now

I feed you more than leaves are brown
Where the sun shines on my feet
That's where my love died
That's where you can hide
That's now much I need you now

I need you more than ever now
Where the trees grow, tree
That's where my love died
That's where you can hide, yeah
That's now much I need you now
That's now much I need you now

> List

I SHOULD'VE KNOWN

H. Hopper

You may laugh at me, girl
Say I don't deserve
All the things I've had - sad...

I should've known it wouldn't last
But things were happening so fast
I'll never know just how it stayed so long
I should've known it, should've seen at the time
But when you're happy, don't you know that you're blind?

I should've known it wouldn't last, no
But things were happening so fast
I'll never know just how it stayed so long
I should've known it, should've seen at the time
But when you're happy, you don't know that you're blind - don't you know?
No - yeah...

You may laugh at me, girl
Say I don't deserve
All the things I've had - sad...

> List

JET-PROPELLED PHOTOGRAPH K. Ayers

How far can anyone go and to where?
How much can anyone do and to whom?
Oh, oh, oh, girl - I'm so low, girl
What can I do? I believe in you!

How far can anyone go and to where?
How much can anyone do and to whom?
Oh, oh, oh, girl - I'm so low, girl
Take a look around, what's that you found?

There'll come a time
When you won't understand
The position on

> List

WHEN I DON'T WANT YOU H. Hopper

When I don't want you
Why do I stay here?
You're not the one
For me

Is it because girl
You know you say that you need me
And you cry when I say
When I say that I'll go?

And I'm tired
Baby, I'm tired by your tears
They don't reach my ears anymore
No, not anymore

> List

YOU DON'T REMEMBER R. Wyatt / D. Allen

Could almost see her eyes
Is it me she despises or you - or you, girl?
You're awfully nice to me
And I'm sure you can see what her game is - it's me, girl!

She sees you in her place
Just as if it's a race and you're winning - me, girl!
She just can't undertsand
That for me everything's just beginning - with me, girl!

But before this feeling dies
Remember that I told you lies...

Now I love your eyes - on me, girl
See how the time flies - past me, girl
She's learning to hate
But it's just too late for me - for me, girl
It was the same with her love
It just wasn't enough for me - for me, girl

But before this feeling dies
Remember that I told you lies...

> List

SHE'S GONE K. Ayers

Baby's fine, baby's mine
You understand that she's gone

I said hold me tight, stay tonight
My little woman has gone

Won't you let me walk with you
Talk with you, make love to you?
Won't you let me hold you tight?
Stay tonight!

Baby's fine, baby's mine
My little woman has gone - yeah, she's a teeny-bopper!

> List

I'D BE RATHER WITH YOU K. Ayers

If I had to choose between the two
I'd rather be with you, I'd rather be with you (Yes I would)

If you keep on breaking up my mind
You won't like what you find Won't like what you see - see, see...

I want you, love
I really do - I do, I do...

Tell me now before you change your name
Why aren't you more insane?
You think you're civilised
Close your eyes, close your eyes

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Third
1970

Soft Machine

More information about this album

MOON IN JUNE Robert Wyatt

On a dilemma between what I need and what I just want Between your thighs I feel a sensation
How long can I resist the temptation?

I got my bird, you got your man
So who else could we need, really ?
Now I'm here, I may as well put my other hand in yours
While we decide how far to go and if we've got time to do it now
And if it's half as good for you as it is for me
Then you won't mind if we lie down for a while, just for a while Till all the thing I want is need Till all the thing I are am you

I want you more than ever now
We're on the floor, and you want more, and I feel almost sure
That cause now we've agreed, that we got what we need
Then all the thing us need is wanting

I realized when I saw you last
We'd been together now and then
From time to time - just here and there
Now I know how it feels from my hair to my heels
Have you on the horns of my dilemma

- Oh ! Wait a minute ! -

Over - Up - Over - Up - ... Down
Down - Over - Up - Over - ... Up

Living can be lovely, here in New York State
Ah, but I wish that I were home
And I wish I were home again - back home again, home again

There are places and people that I'm so glad to have seen
Ah, but I miss the trees, and I wish that I were home again
Back home again

The sun shines here all summer
Its nice `cause you can get quite brown
Ah, but I miss the rain - ticky tacky ticky
And I wish that I were home again - home again, home again...
Living is easy here in New York State
Ah, but I wish that I were home again

Back in West Dulwich again

Just before we go on to the next part of our song

Let's all make sure we've got the time
Music-making still performs the normal functions - background noise for people 2 scheming, seducing, revolting and teaching
That's all right by me, don't think that I'm complaining
After all, it's only leisure time, isn't it ?

Now I love your eyes - see how the time flies
She's learning to hate, but it's just too late for me
It was the same with her love
It just wasn't enough for me
But before this feeling dies
Remember how distance can tell lies !

You can almost see her eyes, is it me she despises or you ?
You're awfully nice to me and I'm sure you can see what her game is
She sees you in her place, just as if it's a race
And you're winning, and you're winning
She just can't understand that for me everything's just beginning
Until I get more homesick
So before this feeling dies, remember how distance tells us lies.

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Volume 2
1969

Soft Machine

More information about this album

PATAPHYSICAL INTRODUCTION PART I & A CONCISE BRITISH ALPHABET PART I AND PART II

R. Wyatt | H. Hopper - arr. R. Wyatt

Good evening or good morning and now we have a choice selection Of rivmic melodies
from the official orchestra of the College of Pataphysics but first it's our great pleasure and indeed we hope yours to present
in its entire and manifold entiretity ladies and gentlemen :
The British Alphabet:

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ

ZYXWVUTSRQPONMLKJIHGFEDCBA

> List

HIBOU, ANEMONE AND BEAR

Mike Ratledge / Robert Wyatt

In the spring I think of sex and means to end
Summertime, I like to sit upon the grass
Autumn nights I go to parties with my friends
Winter time is when I think about the past

But of course I do all those things all year 'round
I mean all the good things are there to be found
It's all here, pick a back and get to work
If you don't your life will surely go berserk
Or indeed be bored to death, which is worse?

If something's not worth saying
Not worth saying, not worth saying
Say it

> List

HULLODER

H. Hopper - arr. R. Wyatt

If I were black and I lived here

I'd want to be a big man in the FBI or the CIA
But as I'm not and of course I don't

And as I'm free, white and twenty one
I don't need more power than I've got Except for some times when I'm broke

> List

DADA WAS HERE H. Hopper - arr. R. Wyatt

Por que trabajas tu por all?
Por que no estas aqui en casa?
La la la, yo no se... solo me pregunto
Porque no soy feliz en la escuela?
Es que puedo confiar en alguien que no est?
Yo no se...

Es que puedo fumar cuando soy ma viejo?
Es que puedo creer en el idolo que queremos?
Digame si es justo que no estes aqui?
Para ayudarme, yo no se, solo me preguntan
Yo no se, no se, no se...

> List

THANK YOU PIERROT LUNAIRE H. Hopper - arr. R. Wyatt

In his organ solos, he fills 'round the keyboards
Knowing he must find the noisiest notes for you to hear

And when I know that he's found them
I feel so good... but I still can't see
Why people listen, instead of doing it themselves

But I'm grateful all the same
You're very kind and I don't blame you
I don't mind if you just watch
In fact I'd welcome it, welcome it, welcome it..

> List

HAVE YOU EVER BEAN GREEN? H. Hopper - arr. R. Wyatt

Thank you Noel and Mitch
Thank you Jim for our exposure to the crowd
And thank you for his coattails
Mike, you did us proud, didn't you?

> List

AS LONG AS HE LIES PERFECTLY STILL Mike Ratledge / Robert Wyatt

Here's a song for 'clean machine Kevin Majorca'
He's found his own way of 'live in Majorca'

Don't walk, don't drink
Don't talk, just think
Heaven on Earth he'll get there soon

Kevin's highly unlikely to get ill
At least as long as he lies perfectly still
He eats brown rice and fish - how nice
Heaven on Earth, he'll get there soon

Good and bad go so well together in his tunes
He wrote a song and called it the weather - or not He's Lucky or Pozzo, Estragon and Vladimir
Waiting for something that's already there
Heaven on Earth or is it the moon?

Why, why, why is he sleeping?
Why is the trumpeter weeping?
Kevin maybe asking to get back into my dreams
His voice is so weak now and the customers are screaming
Heavens above, we can't hear what you're saying

We've got something to tell you
Hold on we wanted to thrill you
Reckons it's so nice and it will make you feel better
Something in the nature of a Lullabye Letter

Kevin on Earth there'll be one
Kevin on Earth make room for one Kevin himself he'll be in Kevin on Earth, be here
Or you could be now
Or is he found, in Herne Bay...

> List

DEDICATED TO YOU BUT YOU WEREN'T LISTENING Hugh Hopper

Famous parabolic versions
Songs that promise beauty, sleep, love, sadness

Do I dream that somethings missing?
Hungry, thirsty, open off peak mind
Give me the truth, give me the truth
Give me the truth, tell me

Songs and versesa, handy captions
Photographs of real life action, horror, madness
Can it be that somethings happening?
Wash me, paint me, but please don't taint me
Give me a chance, give me chance, give me a chance

When I was young the sky was blue
And everyone knew what to do
But now it's gone, the telly's here
Mass media, the sewer too

Universal maxi million, eight rare cases
Chickenpox and crawling gladness
Seemingly it's nothing happening

Cure my doctor, don't swallow him down
Give me the cure, give me the cure
Give me the cure

The night was cool, the moon was bright
The air was clear with oxygen
The stars were there, and in my eyes
Were thousands of chrysanthemums

Don't use magnets, geophysics carry you back
Wholesome, health food, home pride
Satisfied, something outside gives out hunger
Face my mirror, electricity

> List

PIG Mike Ratledge

Suspenders and stockings
Look more sexy than the tights girls are wearing
But even there, weren't the time wasted
Time that could be spent completely nude, bare, naked?

Virgins are boring
They should be grateful for the things they're ignoring Why be smug about the time wasted
Time that could be spent completely nude, bare, naked

Knickers and panties
We are groping under knickers and pants
But is it worth it, all that time wasted?
Time we could've spent completely nude, bare, naked
With nothing on at all Nothing, no clothes on Nude, naked bare...

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Volume 1
1968

Soft Machine

More information about this album

HOPE FOR HAPINESS

H. Hopper / K. Ayers / M. Ratledge

I can tell... like the ring of a bell
A chime that is clear and true
But if a crack, the sound is flat
Like happiness... that's become untrue

Out of the East, the sun flew West
Trailing its golden spray
My heart burns, when fortune turns
The trail to light my way

Days go by, I watch the sky
My eyes forever quest
The sun returns, though my hope yearns
Forever things point the rest

Sun heart burns, moon glow turns
Stars will trade hope for happiness
Hope for happiness, happiness, happiness

Flowers grow wild, just for the child
Sniff this sprinkling bloom
When you grow up, hope colours up
The things that cause us gloom

Tell can you now how fun is made?
It's how happiness is really found
Look for advice, be told more than twice
By people all around

Sun heart burns, moon glow turns
Stars will trade hope for happiness
Hope for happiness, happiness, happiness

> List

WHY AM I SO SHORT?

H. Hopper / K. Ayers / M. Ratledge

You may laugh at me
Say I don't deserve
All the things I've had
Sad...

I've got a drum kit and some sticks
So when I'm drunk or in a fit
I find it easy to express myself
I hit the drums so hard I break all my heads

And then I end the day in one of my beds

I'm nearly 5 ft. 7 tall
I like to smoke and drink and ball
I've got a yellow suit that's made by Pam
And every day I like an egg and some tea
But best of all I like to talk about me!

You may laugh at me
Say I don't deserve
All the things I've had
Sad.

> List

A CERTAIN KIND H. Hopper

A certain kind of love, I'd say
Exists for me and every night
Your kind of love sets me alight
And I know it's real
It's what I feel, what I feel

And loving you the way I do
Makes everything seem right again
And when you're near I know
I know, you just can't tell the time
When you, it's just not right

And so our love I see in you
The things today, the things we do
And when you're near I know
You just can't see well
I know it's real, it's what I feel

And loving you the way I do
Makes everything seem right again
And when you're near I know
I know you just can't see, all the time of day
I know you're mine and all the time

> List

SAVE YOURSELF R. Wyatt

It's my, my bed you're lying on It's my, my bed you're dying on
But if it's my head you're relying on

You gotta save yourself
Don't enslave yourself
Just to save yourself
Stay in your own bed at night

Because, girl, you know that if
I try to feed you and keep you all week to make you feel secure
Then you won't leave my bed, though you want to stay fed
Will your heart remain, girl?
You know you can't make it
Without tryin' to fake it
And I believe, baby

You gotta save yourself
Don't enslave yourself
Just to save yourself
Stay in your own bed at night

> List

WHY ARE WE SLEEPING? M. Ratledge / K. Ayers / R. Wyatt

It begins with a blessing, it ends with a curse
Making life easy by making it worse
"My mask is my master," the trumpeter weeps
But his voice is so weak as he speaks from his sleep
Saying: "Why, why, why... Why are we sleeping?"

People are watching, people who stare
Waiting for something that's already there
"Tomorrow I'll find it," the trumpeter screams
And remembers he's hungry, and drowns in his dreams
Saying: "Why, why, why... Why are we sleeping?"

My head is a nightclub with glasses and wine
The customers dancing or just making time
While Daevid is cursing, the customers scream
Now everyone's shouting, "Get out of my dream!"
Saying: "Why, why, why... Why are we sleeping?"

> List

More information about this album

Love makes Sweet Music
1967

Soft Machine

More information about this album

LOVE MAKES SWEET MUSIC

K. Ayers

Love makes sweet music
Makes you wanna shout
Love makes sweet music
Makes you wanna run, makes you wanna cry out
Makes you wanna shout, makes you wanna run to her

Every night it's the same old scene
Drinking wine cos you're scared to dream
But you know that things will get better
If you let your dreams get better than wine
It's a waste of time

When it's dark and you hear your heart beat Walk down moonlight's lonely high street
Something sings and you feel sunshine
But you know you're full of moonshine, too
It's staring at you – yeah, alright now

Love makes sweet music
Makes you wanna shout
Love makes sweet music
Makes you wanna run, makes you wanna cry out
Makes you wanna shout, makes you wanna run to her

And you're right where you were Yeah, alright no

> List

FEELIN 'REELIN SQUELIN'

K. Ayers

This is a token of words unspoken to you
Honey, I'm feeling reeling and squealing for you

Why don't you tell me
One way or another
That you'd rather be
Your father and mother

This is a feeling from the ceiling of my dreams
I get hung up, tied and strung up on your scene

I'm something far away
It doesn't matter what I say
You've got your simple way

You're safely tucked away

Are you happy? Aren't you happy?

This is a feeling from the ceiling of my dreams
I get hung up, tied and strung up on your scene

I close my eyes on your soft guitar...

This is feeling
This is squealing
This is reeling...

> List

More information about this album

Lyrics

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Tales Of Canterbury
1994

The Wilde Flowers

More information about this album

IMPOTENCE R. Wyatt / H. Hopper

I like me, I like you and the things that we do
From my mouth, love you too it's as if we both knew Take your robes off your back if there's something I lack Take your shoes off the rack and get in your wet mac

I can't stand the strain of the tension between
Your wet eyes and mine it's like something obscene

I can see, so can you that there's something to do
If it happens to me then it happens to you
So put that in your pipe you can smoke it tonight
But there won't always be some more suckers like me

I can't stand the pain of the tension between
Your wet eyes and mine it's like something obscene

I can see, so can you that there's something to do
If it happens to me then it happens to you
So put that in your pipe you can smoke it tonight
But there won't always be some more suckers like me

I can't stand the pain of the tension between
Your wet eyes and mine it's like something obscene

> List

NEVER LEAVE ME H. Hopper

Tell me what you're gonna say
(Never leave me)
Don't say nil be on your way
(Never leave me)
Never say you're going far away
(Never leave me)
I just can't take the things you say
(Never leave me)

Sometimes you say
You will never leave
Then come the day
Why should I believe now

Why you try to go this way
(Never leave me)
Can't you turn around and stay
(Never leave me)

I just can't take the things you do
(Never leave me)
But I'm dead here without you
(Never leave me)

Sometimes you say
You will never leave
Then come the day
Why should I believe now

Tell me what you're gonna say
(Never leave me)
Don't say nil be on your way
(Never leave me)
Never say you're going far away
(Never leave me)
I just can't take the things you say
(Never leave me)

Sometimes you say
You will never leave
Then come the day
Why should I believe now

Why you try to go this way
(Never leave me)
Can't you turn around and stay
(Never leave me)
I just can't take the things you do
(Never leave me)
But I'm dead here without you
(Never leave me)

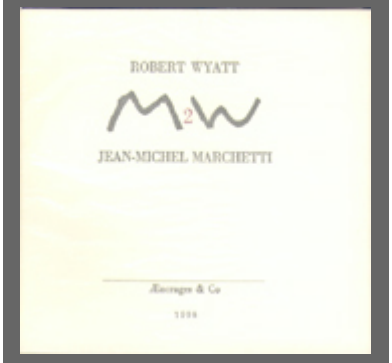
Sometimes you say
You will never leave
Then come the day
Why should I believe now

Sometimes you say
You will never leave
Then come the day
Why should I believe now

> List

More information about this album

MW



ABÉCÉDAIRE

1997

MW
62 pages - 300 exemplaires

- Rangers In The Nights
- Was A Friend
- Maryan
- Igor Mortis
- Calyx
- God Song
- Soup Song
- CP, Jeebies
- Left On Man
- Lisp Service
- Free Will And Testament
- Dondestan
- East Timor
- The British Road
- Garbzadegi

1998

M2W
76 pages - 300 exemplaires

Le premier volume MW paraît aux éditions *Ænc*rages & Co en 1997, sous la double signature de Robert Wyatt et de Jean-Michel Marchetti. C'est un bel ouvrage dos carré, 20 x 20 cm, impression typographique, composé de textes de Robert Wyatt et de leur traduction française.

Chaque texte est mis en valeur par une composition graphique originale. Parfois, l'écriture manuscrite de Robert Wyatt, si reconnaissable, est elle-même mise en page, superposée à un autre texte ou à une illustration qui en fait rebondir le sens.

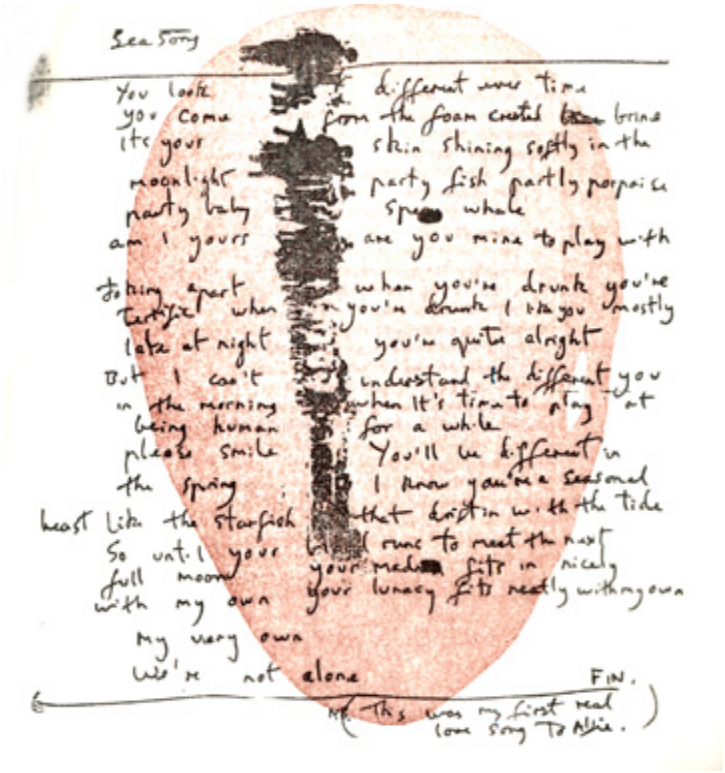
Jean-Michel Marchetti est peintre et photographe. Il expose depuis 1980. Outre les quatre MW réalisés en collaboration avec Robert Wyatt, il a illustré de nombreux textes d'écrivains de Roland Chopart, Charles Juliet, Philippe Claudel, Alain Lambert...

Il traduit également les textes qu'il met en page. Ce n'est pas une mince affaire. Comment faire passer dans notre langue toute la folie qui se dégage de Alifib/Alife ou la causticité de N.I.O ? J-M. Marchetti y parvient avec talent, et l'aide de Monique et Ceri Crossley ainsi que, parfois, celle de R. Wyatt en personne...

Et s'il y a des choses qui ne se traduisent pas" (Blues in Bob Minor), je le remercie de m'avoir aidé à percer le mystère du Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road.

A l'occasion d'une rapide rencontre en novembre 2003, il m'indiqua qu'il envisageait de réaliser un cinquième cahier avec des textes d'Alfreda Benge mais qu'il hésitait encore tant ceux-ci étaient souvent remplis de double voire de triple sens, encore plus difficiles à traduire que ceux de son compagnon !

- A Concise British Alphabet
- Starting In The Middle...
- What Is Said
- Signed Curtain
- New Information Order N.I.O.)
- Moon In June
- A Last Straw
- Little Red Riding
- Sea Song
- Alifib/Alife
- Little Red Robin
- Blues In Bob Minor
- Unmasked
- The Age Of Self
- U.S. Amnesia
- P.L.A.



2000

M3W
72 pages - 310 exemplaires

- Pataphysical Introduction
- The End
- Benchmarks
- War Without Blood
- Pigs... In There ?
- Alliance
- For Thomas Bernhard
- Truth Is Stanger Than Fiction
- Amber And Amberines
- Born Again Cretin
-Toledo Texas
- Mass Medium
- Another Great Victory
- The Duchess
- Muddy Mouth
- Vandalusia

2003

En 2000, la revue VISIBLE/LISIBLE publie dans son second numéro un extrait des 3 premiers MW avec une photographie originale de J-M Marchetti (12 pages - 60 exemplaires - Epuisé).

A partir du M2W, un CD audio accompagne chaque cahier:

M2W

- The British Road (lu en anglais par Robert Wyatt)
- The British Road (lu en français par Philippe Fretun)
- Blues in Bob Minor (lu en anglais par Robert Wyatt)
- Entretien avec Robert Wyatt (en français)

M3W

- Robert (Robert Wyatt)
- 17 reprises de Robert Wyatt

+ d'infos sur M3W

M4W

- 6 morceaux originaux de Robert Wyatt avec Robert Wyatt, Jean-Michel Marchetti, Alix Marchetti, Jean Bisello et Boris Hug

+ d'infos sur M4W

M4W
74 pages - 330 exemplaires

- First Bach
- Urep/Peru
- Nan True's Hole
- Marchides
- Human Bean
- Gloria Gloom
- Three To Get Ready
- Forced To Choose
- Just A Bit
- Team Spirit
- Moon In June (BBC version)
- La Habana
- Chairman Mao
- Before We Knew
- Un Roman Sportif
- When Access Was A Noun

(tirage de tête)

2008

MBW
Songs For Robert Wyatt
68 pages - 1 000 exemplaires

- Forest
- Worship
- Shrinkrap
- Catholic Architecture
- The Sight of The Wind
- Heaps Of Sheeps
- Costa
- Alien
- Lullaby forHamza
- Lullaloop
- September The Ninth
- Cuckoo Madame
- A Sunday In Madrid
- Old Europe
- Out Of Season

Enregistrements réalisés en juillet 1997 chez Robert et Alfie.

+ d'infos sur M2W

LITTLE RED ROBIN HOOD HIT THE ROAD

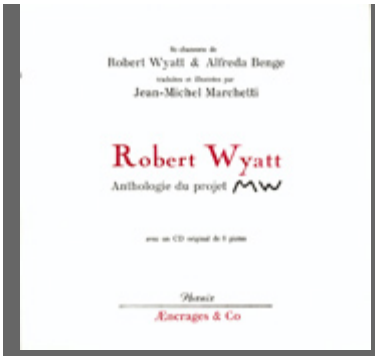
Dans le jardin d'Angleterre, dorment dans leurs trous des taupes mortes.
Sous la pluie des tunnels sans issue
s'effondrent sous les pieds.
N'est-ce pas honteux ?

Vous ne les voyez pas ?
Vous ne les voyez pas ?
Les racines ne les retiennent plus.
Les scarabées les consolent.

Je me bats avec le manche de mon petit balai brun.
J'arrache les fils du téléphone.
J'ai mal à la tête, j'ai mal jusqu'à l'os.
Maintenant je défonce la télé avec les fils du téléphone déglingué.
Je me bats pour la croûte de la petite miche dorée.
J'en veux. J'en veux. J'en veux. Donne-la moi.
Je te la rendrai quand j'aurai fini mon thé.
Je me couche dans la rue et j'essaie de niquer les voitures qui passent.
Oui, moi et le hérisson, on explose des pneus toute la journée.
Et on roule sur les autoroutes vers le soleil couchant.
Je médite sur la vie des bandits de grands chemins, miam, miam.
Maintenant je défonce la télé et ce qui reste du téléphone déglingué.
Ha ha ha ha ha.



.

.. février 2008... J-M Marchetti publie enfin le recueil des textes d'Alfreda Benge dont il m'avait parlé en 2003. Tiré à 1 000 exemplaires, ce 5ème volume a failli ne jamais voir le jour.

En mai 2007, l'ensemble du stock et du matériel d'impression d'Æncrages & Co qui avait alors publié près de 130 ouvrages, a brulé.

MBW - SONGS FOR ROBERT WYATT sera le premier livre courant édité après l'incendie, dans la collection Phoenix au nom prédestiné.

2009

Robert Wyatt
Anthologie du projet MW
238 pages - 1 500 exemplaires

- Rangers In The Nights
- Was A Friend
- Maryan
- Igor Mortis
- Calyx
- God Song
- Soup Song
- CP, Jeebies
- Left On Man
- Lisp Service
- Free Will And Testament
- Dondestan
- East Timor
- The British Road
- Garbzadegi
- A Concise British Alphabet
- Starting In The Middle...
- What Is Said
- Signed Curtain
- New Information Order N.I.O.)
- Moon In June
- A Last Straw
- Little Red Riding
- Sea Song
- Alifib/Alife
- Little Red Robin
- Blues In Bob Minor
- Unmasked
- The Age Of Self
- U.S. Amnesia
- P.L.A.
- Pataphysical Introduction
- The End
- Benchmarks
- War Without Blood
- Pigs... In There ?
- Alliance
- For Thomas Bernhard
- Truth Is Stanger Than Fiction
- Amber And Amberines
- Born Again Cretin
-Toledo Texas
- Mass Medium
- Another Great Victory
- The Duchess
- Muddy Mouth
- Vandalusia
- First Bach
- Urep/Peru
- Nan True's Hole
- Marchides
- Human Bean
- Gloria Gloom
- Three To Get Ready
- Forced To Choose
- Just A Bit
- Team Spirit
- Moon In June (BBC version)

ANTHOLOGIE DU PROJET MW (2009)

C'est une idée un peu folle qui va devenir réalité: alors que les premiers volumes MW, tous épuisés, s'arrachent à prix d'or sur les sites d'enchères, les éditions Ænerages & Co décident de rééditer en offset et en un seul volume la totalité des 5 premiers ouvrages.

Anthologie du projet MW comporte en outre des traductions de Comicopera soit au total 80 textes en version bilingue français/anglais (238 pages) , accompagnés d'un CD de 8 pistes.

Sa sortie en mars 2009 sera l'occasion d'une performance Round About Robert W réalisée à Baume-les-Dames par Jean-Michel Marchetti et Pascal Comelade.

- La Habana
- Chairman Mao
- Before We Knew
- Un Roman Sportif
- When Access Was A Noun
- Forest
- Worship
- Shrinkrap
- Catholic Architecture
- The Sight of The Wind
- Heaps Of Sheeps
- Costa
- Alien
- Lullaby forHamza
- Lullaloop
- September The Ninth
- Cuckoo Madame
- A Sunday In Madrid
- Old Europe
- Out Of Season
- Just As You Are
- You You
- A.W.O.L.
- A Beautiful Peace
- Be Serious
- Mob Rule
- Out Of The Blue
- Convoy

CD Anthologie du projet MW

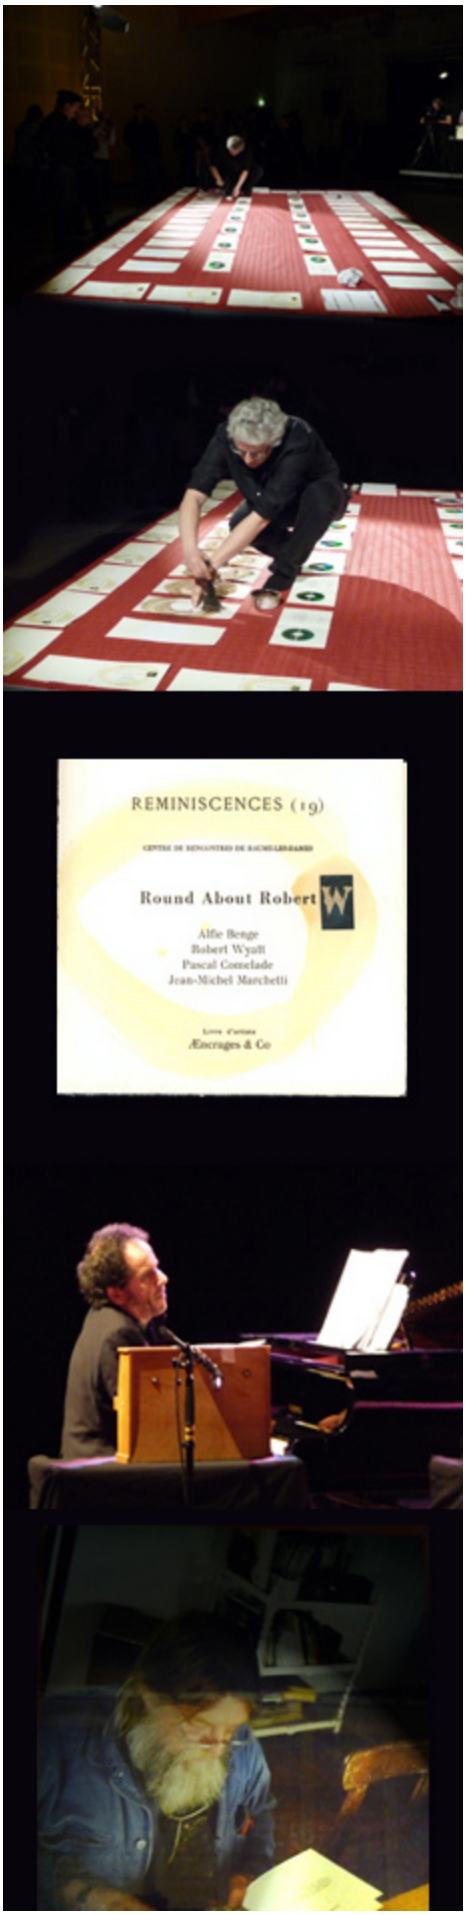
- September Song
(K. Weill - interprétation de P. Comelade & R. Wyatt)

- Signed Curtain
(R. Wyatt / interprétation de P. Comelade)

-O Caroline
(D. Sinclair - R. Wyatt / interprétation de P. Comelade)

- Memories
(H. Hopper / interprétation de P. Comelade)

- Alifib 1
(R. Wyatt / interprétation de P. Comelade)



- Alifib 2
(R. Wyatt / interprétation de P. Comelade)

- Heaps Of Sheep
(B. Eno - P. George - R. Wyatt - A. Benge/ interprétations guitare et chant de R.V.D. Bosch + guitare - M. Slager avec les voix de A. Marchetti, L. Marchetti, B. Demonet et J.M. Marchetti)

- Entretien avec Robert Wyatt Réalisé par J.M. Marchetti et R. Chopard.
Inclus:
The British Road lu en français par Philippe Fretun et British Road et Blues in Bob Minor lus en anglais par Robert Wyatt.

+ d'infos sur le CD

Octobre 2010: les éditions Ænc rages & Co sortent un emboîtage pour l'ouvrage Anthologie du projet MW. Réalisé en typographie, dans le même papier vergé blanc que la couverture, il contient la liste des textes classés par ordre alphabétique.

Round About Robert Wyatt - Performance de Jean-Michel Marchetti avec Pascal Comelade et Gérard Meloux à Baumes-les-Dames le 7 mars 2009

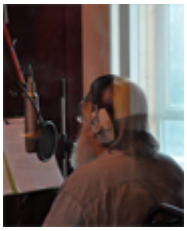
newsletter

Lettres d'information envoyées épisodiquement aux personnes ayant souhaité être tenues au courant des mises à jour du site. Souvent, je joins à cette newsletter des bonus glanés ici ou là, pour notre plus grand plaisir (mais attention des liens externes ont peut-être été cassés depuis)...
La dernière newsletter est également consultable à partir de la page d'accueil du site.

N° 65 - newsletter du 28/01/2026

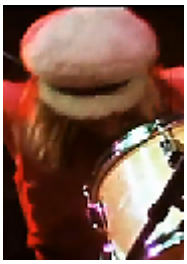


N° 64 - newsletter du 01/10/2025

N° 63 - newsletter du 01/06/2025

N° 62 - newsletter du 28/01/2025

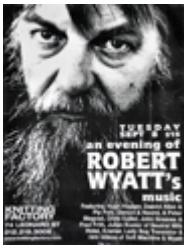
N° 61 - newsletter du 01/10/2024



N° 60 - newsletter du 01/06/2024

N° 59 - newsletter du 28/01/2024

N° 58 - newsletter du 01/10/2023



N° 57 - newsletter du 01/06/2023

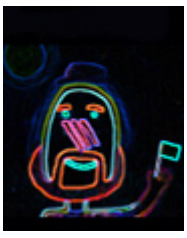
N° 56 - newsletter du 28/01/2023

N° 55 - newsletter du 01/10/2022

N° 54 - newsletter du 01/06/2022

N° 53 - newsletter du 28/01/2022

N° 52 - newsletter du 01/10/2021



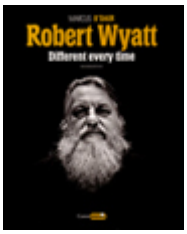
N° 51 - newsletter du 01/06/2021

N° 50 - newsletter du 14/11/2020

N° 49 - newsletter du 30/05/2020

N° 48 - newsletter du 01/01/2020

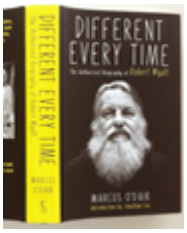
N° 47 - newsletter du 25/02/2019



N° 46 - newsletter du 27/07/2018

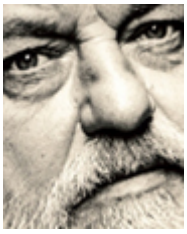
N° 45 - newsletter du 24/01/2018

N° 44 - newsletter du 30/07/2017

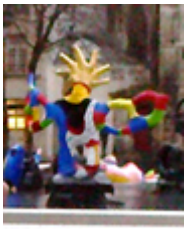


N° 43 - newsletter du 05/01/2017

N° 42 - newsletter du 15/03/2016



N° 41 - newsletter du 22/06/2015



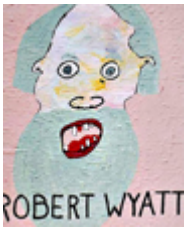
N° 40 - newsletter du 16/01/2015

N° 39 - newsletter du 02/08/2014

N° 38 - newsletter du 19/04/2014

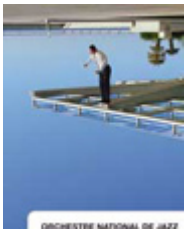
N° 37 - newsletter du 25/12/2013

N° 36 - newsletter du 20/08/2013



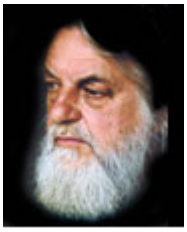
N° 35 - newsletter du 31/08/2009

N° 34 - newsletter du 23/07/2009



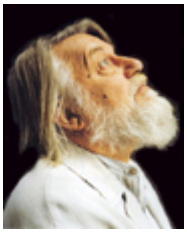
N° 33 - special Hugh Hopper

N° 32 - newsletter du 07/05/2009



N° 31 - newsletter du 27/04/2009

N° 30 - newsletter du 30/03/2009



N° 29 - newsletter du 22/02/2009

N° 28 - newsletter du 31/12/2008

N° 27 - newsletter du 08/11/2008

N° 26 - newsletter du 03/05/2008

N° 25 - newsletter du 11/11/2007

N° 24 - newsletter du 10/08/2007

N° 23 - newsletter du 10/05/2007

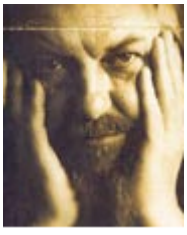
N° 22 - newsletter du 14/01/2007

N° 21 - newsletter du 13/12/2006

N° 20 - newsletter du 24/09/2006

N° 19 - newsletter du 18/08/2006

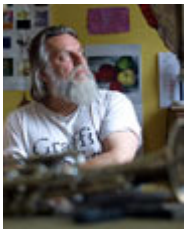
N° 18 - newsletter du 24/05/2006



N° 17 - newsletter du 13/03/2006

N° 16 - newsletter du 30/12/2005

N° 15 - newsletter du 23/10/2005

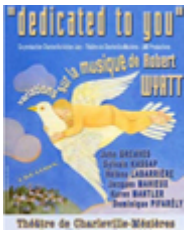


N° 14 - newsletter du 08/09/2005

N° 13 - newsletter du 25/06/2005

N° 12 - newsletter du 16/04/2005

N° 11 - newsletter du 25/02/2005



N° 10 - newsletter du 02/01/2005

N° 9 - newsletter du 13/11/2004

N° 8 - newsletter du 02/10/2004

N° 7 - newsletter du 31/08/2004

N° 6 - newsletter du 16/07/2004

N° 5 - newsletter du 13/06/2004

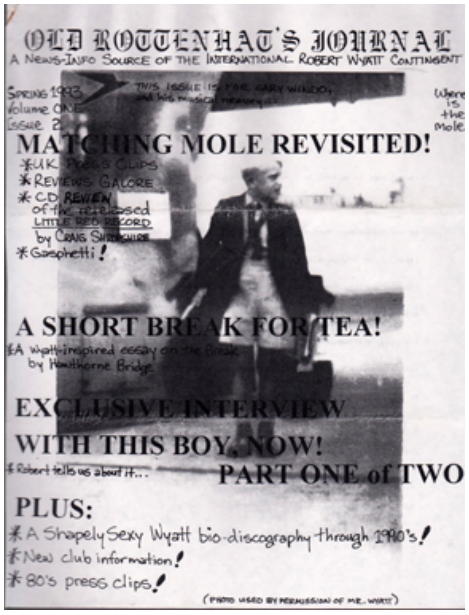
N° 4 - newsletter du 12/05/2004

N° 3 - newsletter du 13/04/2004

N° 2 - newsletter du 11/03/2004

N° 1 - newsletter du 25/01/2004

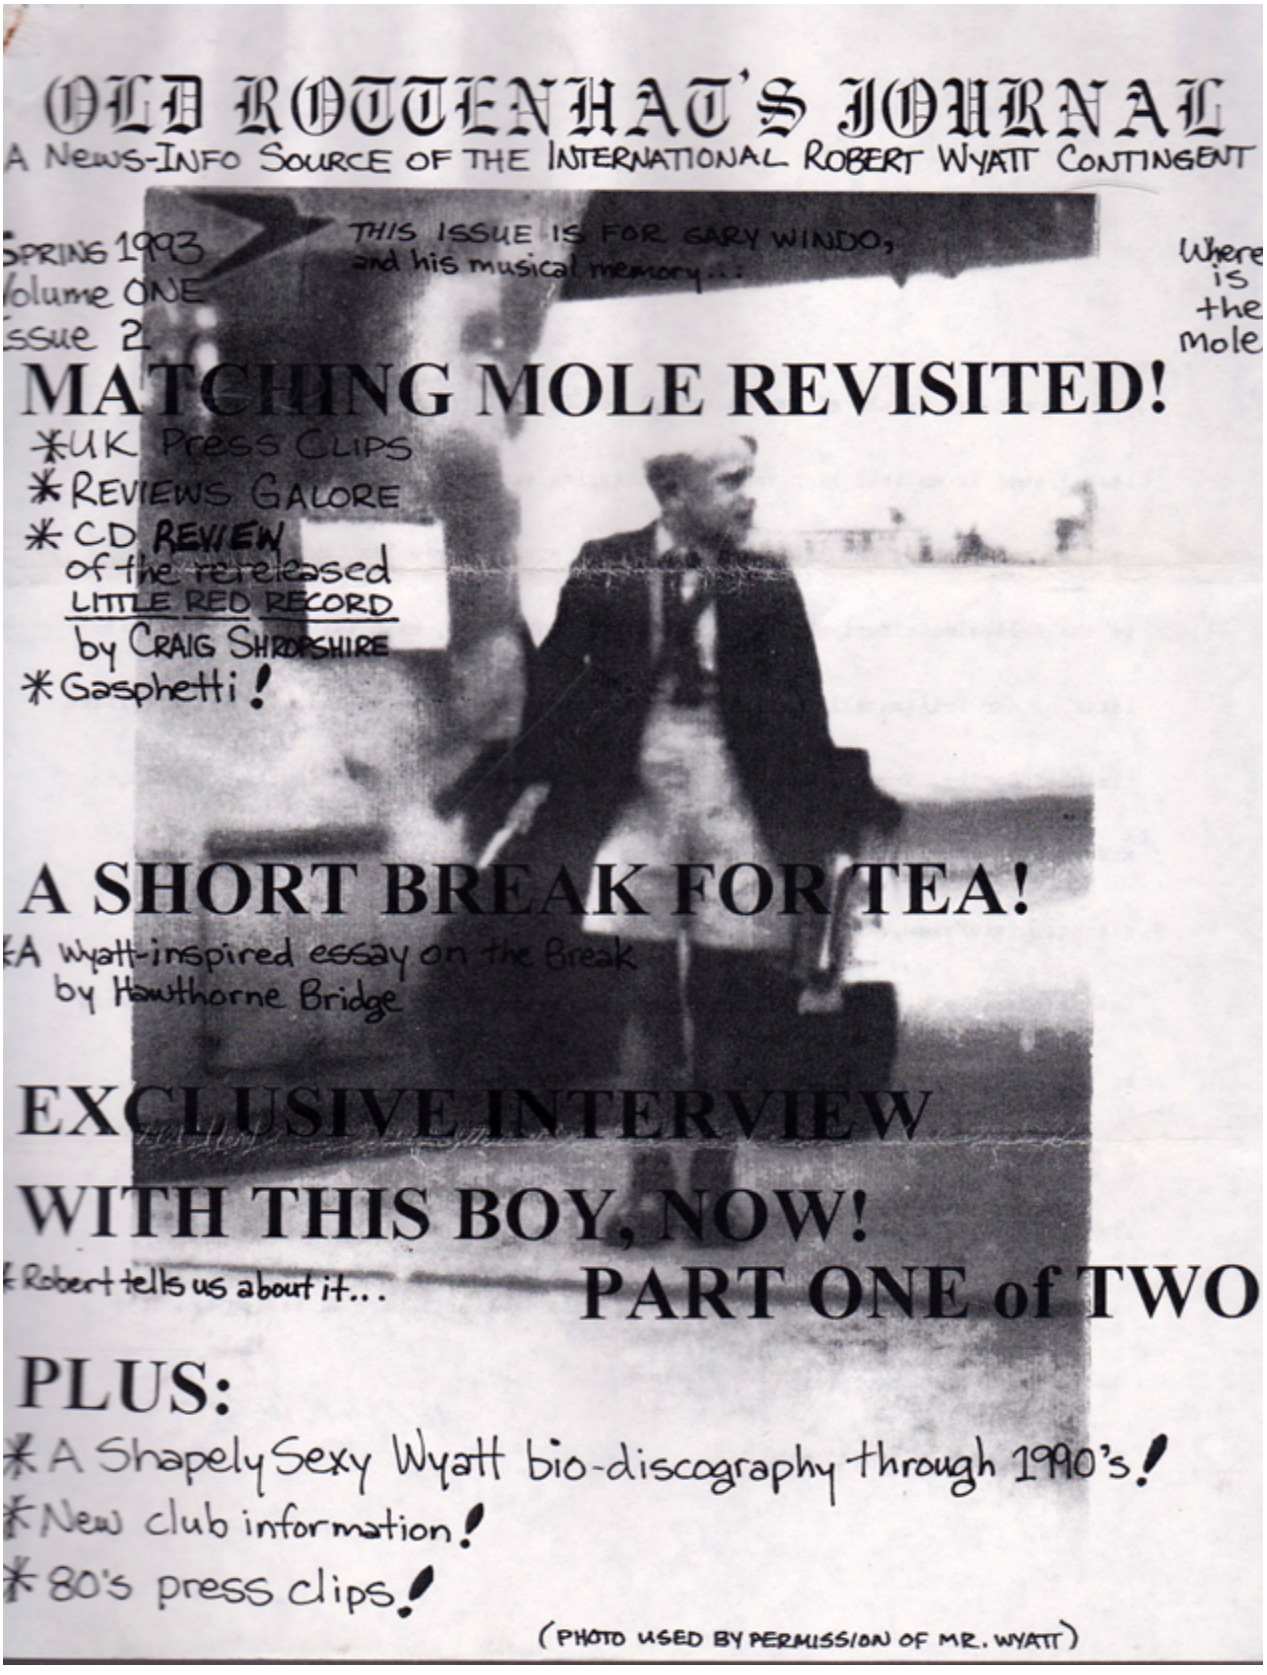
Old Rottenhat's Journal



ABÉCÉDAIRE

Au début des années 90's, Terry R. Valderas - fan inconditionnel - publie une newsletter papier entièrement consacrée à son idole. Le Old Rottenhat's Journal est un fanzine fait "main", un peu foutraque, où s'accumulent critiques, fac-similés, citations, graffitis, listes, professions de foi, articles, articulés autour d'un très long interview de Robert Wyatt qui court sur les deux numéros ci-dessous.

Devenu "culte", on ne trouve quasiment aucune trace du ORH's Journal sur internet ! Cette absence est aujourd'hui comblée et les collectionneurs compulsifs pourront même télécharger ces deux numéros dans leur intégralité au format pdf.



éros ont été publiés au total ? trois ? quatre ? plus ? je l'ignore, et si un visiteur dispose de cette information, voire possède le ou les numéros manquants, qu'il se manifeste au plus vite, nous lui ferons fête !

Download the complete issue - SPRING 1993

Download the complete issue - AUTUMN 1994

OLD ROTTENHAT'S JOURNAL
A News-Info Source of the International Robert Wyatt Contingent
Spring 1993
Volume ONE
Issue 2
THIS ISSUE IS FOR GARY WINDO, and his musical memory...
Where is the Mole
MATCHING MOLE REVISITED!
*UK Press Clips
*Reviews Galore
*CD REVIEW of the rereleased LITTLE RED RECORD by Craig Shropshire *Gasphetti!
A SHORT BREAK FOR TEA!
A Wyatt-inspired essay on the Break by Hawthorne Bridge
EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW
WITH THIS BOY, NOW!
Robert tells us about it...
PART ONE of TWO
PLUS:
*A Shapely Sexy Wyatt bio-discography through 1990's!
*New club information!
*80's press clips!
(PHOTO USED BY PERMISSION OF MR. WYATT)

> Zoom

25 April 1993

Greetings to all of you beautiful people!!! It's been a while since our last issue, as we have been very busy changing our address, format, etc... as well as readjusting our lives in accourdance with the new Tax Laws. We are back to the full-time effort of THE ROBERT WYATT CONTINGENT, with this being the first issue of our tri-annually published newsletter. It will be mailed out at unspecified times of Spring, Summer, and Winter...depending on my workload, family schedule, and such domestic splendor. I am editing the final mixes of our exclusive Wyatt cassette interview, with those due in the mailbox very soon. This is our first Internationally distributed issue with a big hello to all of you beautiful residents of the U.K., Germany, and France. Thank you everyone for your inspiring letters, inquiries, and cards concerning the club, Robert, and the upcoming projects. I sincerely feel it was a mistake to take a sabbatical, as your interest in Wyatt is evident by your posts!! We now move rapidly in the forward direction and hope all of you enjoy the ride.

Terry R. Vallee

> Zoom

PART 1-THE ROBERT WYATT INNER-VIEW

by terry r. valderas

Recently, Robert agreed wholeheartedly to grant us an exclusive interview, via trans-Atlantic cassette exchange. I immediately sent him the questions...er, rather vague topics, and a 90-minute tape for him to record in the comfort of his studio. I had discussed with Tonja, my Wife, the ideas I had for this project, like how to get Robert to really open up and discuss many topics in the short amount of time afforded by a cassette. It was Tonja's suggestion that we give him very vague, statement-like questions, in hopes that it would cause Robert to pontificate on lots of subjects. It worked out perfectly.

I have spent many hours editing down his responses to typeprint, and endlessly listening to his whitty talk of Matching Mole, jazz, old comrads, political-labeling, musical oddities, his very creative Wife Alfreida, and cigarettes. I know all of you cats will dig this...oh, yeah, I'm using American slang again!!! I know all of you mates will be hip to this!!

This is part one of the interview recorded in his Licolnshire home in August. I have edited some of his responses to incorperate the two seperate sessions he did, bridging ideas and opinions expressed at seperate times. Part two of the interview will appear in our next 1993 issue.

Since this is the "ALL THINGS MOLE" issue, all of those questions about Matching Mole will be answered in great detail within these very pages. Happy reading!!!!!!!!!! t.r.v.

LULLABYE LETTER: If you have a message, or any greetings to our readers, please feel free to make it!

ROBERT WYATT: I thought I might say something that would lift peoples' spirits in these neo-depression times. And so...I'm gonna' talk about a problem that smokers have...which is, you always think, "Oh...I can throw a cigarette butt down the (toilet); I mean it will flush!" And they don't, they bounce back...bob...bob... bouncing back. You think "oh, God!" (mock surprise). They tell you you're not to put cigarette butts down there, and you think, "it's gotta' go down there!" It's gravity. Well I've got wonderful news; the thing is don't panic, don't think, "(mock anger)Oh God, no, now I've gotta' fish it out! How can I do that?! What kind of implement...do they make an implement for fishing cigarettes out?!!" I don't know of one that you could subsequently use for anything else. Who needs more equipment!! I'm here to tell you, just don't panic! Leave it there!! One day you'll look, and it'll be gone. Now, don't ask me where. The people without any soul...the prosaic, ground-bound people will tell you it's gotten water-logged and flushed. But who's to know? Nobody ever really sees it happen. I think what really happens is that the butt gives up the ghost, realizing it's never gonna' get out of there! If it's never gonna get back where it came from, it might as well carry on. It's just sort of...a psychological thing. I think there's a big political implication as well, but I won't get into that yet. ...let's get onto the light stuff now, because I don't wanna' be heavy the whole time with this stuff!! The spiritualism of butts and so on!!

And so I just wanted to say...hello.

> Zoom

L.L.: Tell us about NanTrue's Hole and the Mole.

R.W.: Well...there's a song called NanTrue's Hole, that's got nothing to do with Nan True's Hole. That's how it is with songs...with these sort of subtle song writers. It is the name of a house, that a friend of mine owns, in Sussex. And the origin of the name, I imagine, is that it was the home or hovel of a woman with special powers, perhaps who lived on her own, called Nan True, who was perhaps a fortune-teller...a Witch of sorts who lived in this house. I imagine her regarded with fear, and awe in the supersticious-peasanty British village in which she lived. My friend had inherited this house, and I just thought, "This name is too good to waste on a house". Phil Miller agreed, the guitarist (in Mole), and it turned into a piece of music.

Well...I know I've said that I can't talk about...B.A.; before the accident. Well, sometimes I can; sometimes I can't! At the moment, I feel a kind of wave of affection for ourselves as we were, even for myself so long ago, because it seems like someone else. I listen to those tapes now, and I think, "Go! Go! Go!" (laughs very hard). I don't know where, just go somewhere...ya' know!!

We had Phil Miller on guitar, who would rather play a wrong note than a note that somebody else had ever played. I admired his spirit...and he continues to work and compose in very...rarified forms and atmospheres of very...advanced musical knowledge, beyond my technical understanding. I'm glad he was with us when he was in his...you know, younger...early enthusiasm days!!

Bill MacCormick now works for the Liberal Party, I think. He was the bass player in our band...a very inventive, bouncy bass player. And what a nice man! He was then, and is now.

The two Daves...Dave Sinclair used to play Hammond (organ), and people still try and persuade him to play it with Caravan (now reformed and successfully playing gigs in the U.K.!!). He doesn't understand that; he now owns a keyboard shop, and doesn't understand why people want him to go back to the Hammond!! But, those of us who were brought up upon Jimmy Smith and Booker T., we just can't get enough of that Hammond sound!!! I like it when he bothers to carry it around; it's a big heavy thing, as anyone who plays one or bothers to carry around would know.

Dave McRae, is perhaps the best musician I've ever worked with. A keyboard player at that time, playing mostly electric piano, he's now gone back to, what I think is a Japanese piano, which is to say the acoustic type that classical music is played on. He's gone back to the antipides...which has something to do with feet on the opposite side of the Earth...Austrailia. And I miss him!! Not just from during the Matching Mole, but during the periods afterwards, when I was experimenting after the second Mole L.P. had been recorded. You know I worked in sort of various formats that weren't recorded, with Dave McRae, in veryinformal settings...with Gary Windo on Tenor (saxophone), and sometimes with Ron Matheson on bass. I think I reached a kind of organic confidence on drums with Dave, that I'd been reaching for, for a long time. And so that's Matching Mole!!

> Zoom

At the moment, were trying to...(laughs) play at a real fun time, as you say in America, because I know that fun is in a curious process of becoming an adjective...trying to get some control over what happens to the tapes; how they are put out, who they're put out by, and who gets the money. The people, companies like C.B.S. (Records), regard us with total amazement and ammusement...that a musician should think they had anything what-so-ever to do with the music that they recorded!! And we all know, it really belongs to the beaurocrats at C.B.S., or whomever!!! I say that, but there are some nice people in there, stuck in the middle of that beaurocracy, saying..."We're doing what we can to help". Let's see if they do...But the difficulty therein, as with most music from that period and before, is that it seems there are people who've decieded they have sovereignty over the music of that period! The trouble is that having people claim sole-rights over this music, when it's something that feels so much like your own, is a kind of shock. It's a kind of...kind of like rape or something. So at the moment, we feel something like rape-victims (laughs very hard)!!!!

There's nothing particularly romantic coming up (now) about Mole except that the interest of other people, the continued interest in Mole has made me have another listen. It's long enough ago that I hear someone else; I don't get embarrased anymore by the naievity of it. I'm glad that there are, in fact, tapes that haven't been heard...around from radio things and so on.

L.L.: What new music are you into nowdays?

R.W.: Well, I have mentioned Julian Joseph before...the pianist that I heard at the Grimsby Jazz Festival. Not one of the world's most famous jazz festivals. It's hard to describe what's good about good things. He sits at the piano like Buddah; he's a young London lad...well, everyone's young to me. In fact, on a tape we have he's with an American tenor player called John Toussaint, who used to work with Art Blakey.

There was a fantastic looking jazz festival in Cuba recently, in fact! People like Charlie Haden (ex- Ornette Coleman Quartet) went to play there. And I think some of the musicians, the Cuban musicians...totally wonderful. Gonzalo Rubalcaba, the Grupo Irakere...astonishing, wonderful musicians! And, some of the other people

> Zoom

Charlie Haden played with. He has, apart from always playing perfect notes on the bass, also chosen the perfect people to play with. He's recorded with Geri Allen (with Paul Motian, the CD is "Year of the Dragon", 1990 E.C.M.) who I think is a terrific pianist. So anything she's on, I would listen to. Which reminds me...there is an extrodinary drummer...Ralph Peterson.

I've been sent some wonderful tapes from what looks like an excellent record label...Gramavision. They also, apearantly, distribute some of my stuff in the States, some of the stuff from the 80s. They sent me a...prerelease of an Opera by Anthony Davis called "The Life and Times of Malcolm X" (out now, and INCREDIBLE!). It's just stunning. It's hard to imagine anything just as major as this, being done after this...in this Century. It seems to me, this may be the piece of the decade, to take us out (of this Century), really! Unless he write something else (laughs) which, of course, he will do goodness knows! My sister-in-law is an Opera singer (Ms. Clare Powell) and I know she would like this. Someone who has taken on...so much knowledge...I hear some Mike Mantler and Eisler (Hans, the composer) here. Well...you just have to hear it...look out for it...and don't just listen to it the first time! When he uses jazz devices, it's somebody who knows what they are. You know...it's not the kind of ersance thing you get, even with some of Leonard Bernstien's stuff, as wonderful as he was. You always felt that there was one idiom that they knew, and the others they were uncomfortable with. Well, I don't feel that with Anthony Davis. There's so much in there! I really feel that he's got the range there. He's really some new kind of composer. Quite extrordinary! It seems to me to cover such a breath-taking area without a kind of self-consious attempt at any hybrid. It's a pure and solid music. It seems to be based on all the information you can get from Mike Mantler, Hans Eisler as well as Max Roach's small, formal compositions. I think it's just...I'm gobsmacked by it!! What's the American for gobsmacked?! I dunno...

Apart from that, I've been listening to some New Orleans jazz, what in America you call Dixieland. You know, Dixieland in England tends to mean just a businessman's bounce version of...umm..."Hey, let's party for a fun time" kind of music. I've been listening in awe, the more times I listen to the Lois Armstrong Hot Five and Hot Sevens. Ther was a time in clarinet playing when they used a different finger system, and it got much more smooth and bland later on. In those days, it had a real voice, and Johnny Dodds is one of my favourites from that (early) period. A lot of Jazz always accompanies singers, also.

An interesting thing about transcribing and listening to things from 78(R.P.M) recordings...I think they've influenced my sound in the sense that 78s are really designed for quite a different way of listening. (If you) try to play a 78 or a transcription of one on headphones at that volume, you'll find that it sounds very abrasive. People think it's because it's such a narrow, poor recording. I don't think it's a poor recording at all. I think 78s were perfectly recorded (for their time), but the way that it's listened to is different. And, now we have music that is more acceptable in a headphone, and it's mellower. But, I've just been recording stuff that's very influenced by listening to 78s, which is almost unlistenable on (laughs very hard) modern recording systems. So I don't know quite how I expect anybody to listen to it. But, I enjoy this...exploring my own concerns. I just have to hope that other people out there might share them.

> Zoom

I've been listening to some Palistinian folk music and also some Israeli music as well. Some of this that I've most recently heard is from someone living (there). (They) sent me some tapes of Israeli rock groups. The ones she sent me sing in English. I know that in Israel, the street sounds are in English and Hebrew, but not in Arabic. But I suppose that's fairly natural.

So...ever onwards, ever backwards. Another question.

L.L.: Life and what do you dig about it...

R.W.: ...dig!? That's an American expression. Well...the thing about life is, I don't know anything else, yet. I haven't got anything to compare it to. And so it's a kind of one horse race. I'm not sure that it's...worth it yet...not mine. I have yet to find out(laughs)! I thinks it's odd, really. You know (if you) saw a man walking down the street...with a large pair of antlers on his head, and a glass bowl in his hand, saying..."I've got to get to Wisconsin in 10 minutes"... You'd think, "What a strange man! What a strange thing to say. And why is he saying it here? And why is he telling me?!" Well I think lifes a bit like that to me. I just think, "What on Earth set this thing offf?" I can't think of the motivation. I've read various religious texts on the subject and they all seem to be totally allll kitsch on the subject. Just the kind of things people would say, just...Self serving romanticism. I find some of the oldest religions more intellegent than the latest ones. I think religions just become stupider as the centuries roll on! The most ancient ones, like worshiping the sun, the water, and the rocks seem to me to have a basis in understandable reality. But, the later (recent) ones...just seem like intellectual suicide to me. Any ways...I've lost a few friends there! Hi...bye... (laughs). Oh well...who wants millions of friends. Just a few will do me fine.

Every thing about life is biased because the people who talk about it are alive; we don't really get a rounded bunch of opinions on this subject, since everybody who talks about it are in the alive camp! Ummm...I haven't got any comparative (laughs); I can't remember being anything else. I suppose I should try and think about what life is. I mean, that interests me, as opposed to something else. I look..at the things that are nearly alive; having some of the characteristics in common with life, but not yet lifelike. For example, crystal formations. The only thing I can really identify...I mean crystal formations has in common with life... it's own characteristics of wanting to reproduce itself...hummmm...reconstitute it's immediate environment, to rearrange it's chemicals. It's difficult to see where that process becomes a...desperate desire to celebrate oneself that characterizes the living object.

> Zoom

I think it's extremely odd. I mean, if ther wasn't any life...I wouldn't have predicted it. It seems to me extremely unlikely. I can imagine planets and chemicals and dust and wind and explosions. There are curious sort of reversed parodies of life, like fire, which seem to travel...and want to take things on, consume things. Whether life is some last echo of what was once...adifferent kind of fire. I don't know.

There are specific things that I find unsatisfactory about what is called advanced life. It's the terrible trick that is part of our equipment...we're sent in (as) feeling human beings, which means we can suffer. (Laughs) My god, lots of living things just do that (laughs). Of course, I'm not a Puritan or a killjoy in any sense...I'm glad at every amount of happiness there is!! I'm very happy, instantly, for example, for conservatives. Because you know they've made it clear they don't need me! And that's a responsibility off my back! I didn't want it anyway; you know...that's great! So go ahead, you canservatives, and don't bother me, and I won't bother you (laughs hard)! But...don't bother me, and then I won't bother you. Life? Humm...I don't know yet. It all seems...faintly daft to me, to be honest.

L.L.: Favourite experinces as a musician.

R.W.: Well....now I can repeat myself. Working with Dave MacRae, and feeling I got some sense of how people like...Tony Williams...or more recently some players you may or may not know of in England...Mondesir (Mark)..a drummer...and Julian Joseph on piano; I saw them at Grimsby Jazz festival recently, and the way they sparked off each other...that kind of feeling I had of, really mutual listening, and sparking I had with Dave MacRae. He's such an alert, listening musician. And musicians can be terrific, but unlistening. They can walk on and ...strut their stuff. And that can be wonderful, but that's the difference between a speechmaker and a conversationalist. In fact, what I liked about Mole was it was more of a group of conversationalists, and some of the things I'd been involved with were like ...um...our job was to announce the next speech. The rhythm sections' job... that is...that's okay, too. There's a role for everything, that's for sure! It's just a matter of learning to play it.

> Zoom

Singing on Mike Mantler's record of "The Hapless Child", over backing tracks by Jack DeJohnette on Drums, Steve Swallow on Bass, and Carla Bley on Keyboards, was a thrill, I have to tell you. That is some kind of "A" Team there! I felt so good sometimes I stopped singing, like I was in a warm bath and I wanted just to bathe in it. And before then, just working with Mongezi Feza, the South African Trumpet player, on a couple of records I did (with Virgin) in the mid or early 1970's. The first records I'd done, made from a wheelchair, had Mongezi on (them). And it was so nice to work with him. Despite the fact that he was used to playing a very specific idiom of South African jazz and it's free developments, he locked into my chord sequence and my kind of time signature with such astonishing ease and understanding. I was really looking forward to working more with him as a kind of double act: voice and Mongezi. He used a small trumpet, I think even smaller than Don Cherry's (Pocket Trumpet). Whata' sound! And just correct...he just played the right stuff. He was the same age as me...but he died at the age of 31. And it's irreplaceable to me!

NEXT MONTH: More of our exclusive interview with Robert, along with your copy of the full, unedited tape of the actual interview cassettte.

> Zoom

Robert WYATT

LP:

01)	The end of an ear	70	UK	CBS 64 189
		(80)	UK	CBS 31 846
			F	Barclay 920 308
02)	Rock bottom	74	UK	Virgin V 2017
			US	Virgin VR 13-112
			I	Virgin Orlando ORL 8307
03)	Ruth is stranger than Richard	75	UK	Virgin V 2034
			D	Ariola 89 061 IOT
		(81)	J	Victor VIP 4100
02/03)	Rock bottom / Ruth is stranger than Richard [2LP, FOC]	(80)	UK	Virgin VGD 3505
04 a)	Nothing can stop us [Sampler of 7"s & Born again cretin & Red flag, BKL]	82	UK	Rough Trade ROUGH 35
			NL	Roadrunner RR 9983
04 b)	[RI, w extra track "Shipbuilding"]	(83)	UK	Rough Trade ROUGH 35
		(86)	US	Gramavision 18-8614-1
05)	The animals film [OST]	82	UK	Rough Trade ROUGH 40
06)	1982 - 1984 [Sampler, LC in english/spanish, songs of 12" No: 02 + 03, & "You're wandering now" by Clement SEYMOUR, non-LP]	84	US	Rough Trade RTSP 25
			J	Tokuma 25 RTL-20
07 a)	Old rotten hat [FOC, LC]	85	UK	Rough Trade ROUGH 69
07 b)	[NFC, LIS]		NL	Megadisc MD 7981
08 a)	Dondestan [w LS]	91	UK	Rough Trade R 2741
08 b)	[LIS]		D	Rough Trade RTD 101-1234-1

CD:

02)	Rock bottom	(89)	UK	Virgin CDV 2017
		(89)	J	Virgin VJD 5022
03)	Ruth is stranger than Richard	(89)	UK	Virgin CDV 2034
		(89)	J	Virgin VJD 5023
04)	Nothing can stop us [w extra track "Shipbuilding", w BKL]	(86)	F	Rough Trade ROUGH CD 35
07 a)	Old rotten hat [w BKL & lyrics]	(86)	F	Rough Trade ROUGH CD 69
07 b)	Late 70's - early 80's / Old rotten hat [2CD-Box]	(87)	J	Tokuma 27 JC-195
08)	Dondestan [w BKL & lyrics]	91	UK	Rough Trade R 2741 CD
			D	Rough Trade RTD 101-1234-2

Sampler:

01)	Robert WYATT [Sampler cont 7" No: 05, 06, 07 & 08]	81	I	Rough Trade/Base RT 0007

Sampler-CD:

02)	Late 70's - early 80's [Sampler cont 12" No: 02 & 03 + 7" No: 05, 06, 07 & 08 - except "Trade union" & "Stalingrad", w BKL & lyrics]	85	J	Tokuma 32 JC-109
03)	Robert WYATT compilation [parts of LP No: 06 & 09 & 12" No: 02, w BKL]	(90)	US	Gramavision R2 79459

12":

01)	Robert WYATT: Arauco, Caimanera / At last I'm free, Strange fruit [PS]	81	D	Phonogramm 6005 139
02)	Shipbuilding / Memories of you, Round midnight [PS]	82	UK	Rough Trade RT 115 T
			D	Rough Trade RTD 03T
03)	"Work in progress": Biko, Amber and the amberines / Yolanda, Te recuerdo amanda [LC, PS]	84	UK	Rough Trade RTT 149 T
04)	I'm a believer, Yesterday man / Team spirit, Memories [A1+2, B2: non-LP, PS, rec 1974 - 1977]	(84)	UK	Virgin WYATT 1
05)	The wind of change / Namibia [LC, all non-LP, w SWAPO SINGERS, ext vers, Th WYATT only A-side]	85	UK	Rough Trade/SWAPO RTT 168
			NL	Megadisc MD 125 292
06)	Shipbuilding / At last I am free [DJ]	(86)	US	Gramavision 18-1212-1
07)	The PEEL sessions: Soup song, Alifib / I'm a believer, Sea song [all different versions, B1: non-LP, rec solo 10.09.1974, PS]	(87)	UK	Strange Fruit SFPS 037

> Zoom

01 a)	The PEEL sessions: Soup song, Alifib / I'm a believer, Sea song [same as 12" No: 07, lim edition]	(89)	UK	Strange Fruit SFPSCD 37
01 b)	[dif cover]		US	Dutch East India DEI 8336-2
01 c)	[dif cover]		F	Strange Fruit 672 005

7":

01 a)	I'm a believer / Memories [all non-LP]	74	UK	Virgin VS 114
01 b)	[PS]		D	Ariola 13 617 AT
01 c)	[DPS]		SP	Ariola 13 617 AT
01 d)	[DPS]		NL	Virgin 13 591 AT
01 e)	[DPS]		F	Virgin 640 040
01 f)	[DPS]		YU	TRB S 53 881
01 g)	I'm a believer [mono / stereo]		US	Virgin VR 56 000
02)	Yesterday man / Sonia [A: non-LP]	74	UK	Virgin VS 115
03)	Yesterday man / I'm a believer [all non-LP, PS]	74	F	Virgin 640 059
04)	Arauco / Caimanera [PS]	80	UK	Rough Trade RT 037
05 a)	At last I'm free / Strange fruit [PS]	80	UK	Rough Trade RT 052
05 b)	[FOS]	81	J	Rough Trade RT-6
06)	Stalin wasn't stalling / Stalingrad [B-side: Peter BLACKMAN, PS]	81	UK	Rough Trade RT 046
07)	Grass / Trade Union [B-side: DISHARTI, INS]	81	UK	Rough Trade RT 081
08)	Man to woman [OST of musical by Marsha HUNT, 4-track-EP, 1 track of Robert WYATT: "All she wanted was Marlon Brando", non-LP, PS]	(82)	UK	Virgin VS 499
09 a)	Shipbuilding / Memories of you [PS]	82	UK	Rough Trade RT 115
09 b)	[RI in 4 different foldoutsleeves]	(83)	UK	Rough Trade RT 115
10)	Amber and the amberines / ? [DJ, white label]	84	UK	Rough Trade RTT ...
11)	Biko / Yolanda [DJ, white label]]	84	UK	Rough Trade RTT 149
12)	Age of self / Raise your banners high [A: Robert WYATT, B: by John TAMS & GRIMETORPE GRASS BAND, PS]	85	UK	7.84 TUC 784
13)	The wind of change / Namibia [Robert WYATT only A-side, w SWAPO SINGERS, all non-LP, PS, LC]	85	UK	Rough Trade/SWAPO RT 168
14)	Chairman Mao [one-sided, red or pink vinyl, non-LP, PS]	87	I	SCONC 002

Tape:

01)	Robert WYATT / MECANO [C 40, w BKL, illustrations & interview w R. WYATT, music only by MECANO !!!]	81	F	Tago Mago 4751

Boot-LP:

01 a)	The end of an ear [Bootrelease of Original-LP, DC]	(RI)	UK	Race Records RR 1001
01 b)	[DC]	(RI)	AUS	Flying Horses 1' RW
02)	Las Vegas Fandango [rec live 09.10.1974 at Drury Lane Theatre, London, limited edition of 500]	(81)	I	Penguin EGG FOUR

ROBERT WYATT with SOFTMACHINE

LP:

01)	Rock generation Volume 7 [one side: The T-BONES, rel 1971]	67	F	Byg 529 707
02)	Rock generation Volume 8 [one side: Mark LEEMAN FIVE, rel 1971]	67	F	Byg 529 708
03 a)	Faces and places Volume 7 [cont SOFTMACHINE sides of LP: 01 & 02]	(72)	F	Byg 529 907
			J	Byg YX 6027
03 b)	SOFTMACHINE [DC]	(73)	D	Metronome 2001.137
03 c)	At the beginning [DC]	(77)	UK	Charly CR 30 014
		(80)	I	Oxford OX 3157
03 d)	At the beginning [DC]		D	Bellaphon CR 3058
03 e)	At the beginning [DC]	(77)	F	Charly 2933 212
03 f)	SOFTMACHINE [DC]	(80)	US	Piccadilly PIC 3331
03 g)	At the beginning [DC]	(82)	UK	Charly CR 30 196
03 h)	Memories [DC]	(82)	US	Accord SN 7178
03 i)	Jet propelled photographs	(88)	PO	Decal LIK 36
04 a)	The SOFTMACHINE - Volume One [FOC, GC = wheelcover]	68	US	ABC Probe CPLP 4500

> Zoom

04 b)	[FOC, NGC]		US	ABC Probe CPLP 4500 X
			J	Probe SR-303
		(86)	UK	Big Beat WIKA 57
04 c)	[DC, NFC]		F	Barclay 0 920 082
04 d)	We did it again [DC]	(76)	NL	Ariola 27 135 ET
04 e)	SOFTMACHINE Vol 1 [DC]	(RI)	I	Record Bazaar RB 73
		(73)	J	Toshiba IPP 80899
05 a)	The SOFTMACHINE Volume Two [FOC]	69	US	ABC Probe CPLP 4505 S
			J	Probe SR-348
		(86)	UK	Big Beat WIKA 58
05 b)	[NFC, DC]		UK	ABC Probe SPB 1002
			US	ABC Probe 4505
05 c)	[DC]	(78)	I	Record Bazaar RB 159
05 d)	[DC]	(83)	I	Orizone ORL 8663
05 e)	[DC]	(RI)	F	Barclay 0 921 019
04/05 a)	The SOFTMACHINE Volume 1 & Volume 2 [2LP, FOC]	69	UK	Probe GTSP 204 (GTT 2041/2)
			I	Probe 3C 154-50185/6
04/05 b)	The SOFTMACHINE Collection [2LP, FOC, DC]	(RI)	UK	ABC ABCD 602
04/05 c)	The SOFTMACHINE Milestones [2LP, FOC, DC]	(RI)	UK	Probe 5C 184-50185/6
04/05 d)	The SOFTMACHINE [2LP-Box, DC]	(73)	US	Command RSSD 964-2
04/05 e)	SOFTMACHINE 1 & 2 (Architects of space time) [2LP, FOC, DC]	(75)	F	WEA Atlantic 60 113
06)	Third [2LP, FOC, w "Facelift" rec live at Fairfield hall, Croydon 04.01.1970 & Mothers club, Birmingham 11.01.1970]	70	UK	CBS 66 246
			US	Columbia G 30 339
			J	CBS Sony 50336-37
07 a)	Fourth [GC]	71	UK	CBS 64 280
07 b)	[NGC]		US	Columbia C 30 754
			J	CBS ERIA 53003

- LPs No 08 to No 13 (Fifth, Pop spectacular 23, Six, Seven, Bundles, Softs) without Robert WYATT

14)	Triple echo [3LP-Box, BKL, Sampler cont 7" No: 1, parts of LPs: 03, 04, 05, 07, 08, 09, 10, 11, 12 & unreleased material & different versions, recorded 1967 - 1976]	(77)	UK	Harvest SHTW 800
			D	EMI 1C 153-99090/1/2

- LPs No 15 & 16 (Alive and well in Paris, The land of cockayne) without Robert WYATT

17)	Live at the Proms 1970 [rec live at Royal Albert Hall, 13.08.1970]	(88)	UK	Reckless RECK 5
18)	The PEEL sessions [2LP, FOC, LC, BBC sessions rec 1969 - 1971]	(90)	UK	Strange Fruit SFRLP 201

CD:

03 a)	Jet propelled photographs [w BKL]	(89)	F	Charly CD 197
03 b)	SOFTMACHINE [& Graham BOND ORGANISATION- Live 1964)	(89)	J	Century 29ED 6026
04/05)	The SOFTMACHINE Volumes One & Two	(89)	D	Big Beat CDWIKD 920
06)	Third	(88)	EEC	Charly LIKD 35
			US	Columbia CGK 30339
07)	Fourth [w BKL]	(91)	J	Epic/Sony ESCA 5417
17)	Live at the Proms 1970	(88)	UK	Reckless CD RECK 5
18 a)	The PEEL sessions [2CDs, w lyrcis]	(90)	UK	Strange Fruit SFRCD 201
18 b)	[dif cover]		F	Strange Fruit 672 009

Sampler:

01 a)	The SOFTMACHINE [edited from "Volume 1" and "Volume 2"]	69	D	EMI Hörzu SHZE 908 BL
01 b)	[DC]		NL	EMI / Stateside 5C 054.91600
01 c)	[DC, side 2 of LPs: No 04 & 05]		NL	S. R. International 201 657
01 d)	[DC, side 1 of LP: No 04 & 05]		NL	EMI / Stateside D 109/5

Sampler-CD:

(Sampler No 02: "The untouchables" without Robert WYATT)

> Zoom

03)	As if ... [compiled of LPs No: 06, 07, 08 & 10]	(91)	UK	Elite 006CDP

7":

01 a)	Love makes sweet music / Feelin' reelin' squeelin'	67	UK	Polydor 56 151
01 b)	[PS]		NL	Polydor 65 151
02)	Joy of a toy / Why are we sleeping	69	US	ABC Probe 45-452

Postcard:

01)	Save yourself	(88)	PL	X 3 records
02)	Jet-propelled photograph	(88)	PL	X 3 records
03)	When I don't want you	(88)	PL	X 3 records
04)	You don't remember	(88)	PL	X 3 records
05)	I'd rather be with you	(88)	PL	X 3 records
06)	That's how much I need you now	(88)	PL	X 3 records
07)	Memories	(88)	PL	X 3 records
08)	She's gone	(88)	PL	X 3 records

[all: one-sided picture postcard w envelope, 50 numbered copies]

Boot-LP:

01)	Amsterdam 1969 [live at Paradiso, 29.03.1969]	69	UK	Priscilla
02)	Old machine - Live in Bremen 23.03.1971	(88)	F	Keri KET 2

(Boot-LP No 3: "Live Italy '73" without Robert WYATT)

Boot-CD:

01 a)	The SOFTMACHINE turns on (Paradiso, March 29, 1969)	(88)	D	Amazing Discs/CDLP 4505
01 b)	William, Amsterdam, March 29, 1969	(91)	I	Aulica CT 203
04)	SOFTMACHINE - In concert [rec 1967 & 1970]	(90)	L	Oh Boy 1-9018
05 a)	SOFTMACHINE - Live [rec live 1969 & 1970]	(90)	L	Oh Boy 1-9025
05 b)	Moon in June [dif cover]	(90)	I	Aulica A 104

Robert WYATT with MATCHING MOLE

LP:

01)	MATCHING MOLE	72	UK	CBS 64 850
		(82)	UK	CBS 32 105
02)	MATCHING MOLE'S Little red record [IS]	72	UK	CBS 65 260
			US	Columbia KC 32 148

CD:

01)	MATCHING MOLE [w BKL & lyrics]	(91)	J	Epic/Sony ESCA 5425
		(92)	A	Columbia COL 471 489-2
02)	MATCHING MOLE'S Little red record	(92)	A	Columbia COL 471 488-2 7":

01)	O Caroline / Signed curtain	72	UK	CBS S 8101

List by Manfred Bress

Contributed by Miking

> Zoom

1.3.93

*A Short Break or... How I Spent my 3 p.m.

Time out for a change. Time for tea, and perhaps a roll. Time to relax. A Short Break before the next project? We are still listening...

A Short break, as a subtle piano line followed by a lead. Then the voice. No words, just timbres suspended by melody! Amazingly relaxing.

Tubab, the wealthy Spainiard. Percussive opening and again, the golden voice. At first alone and then in twos. Weaving patterns of subtle joy down my spine, as the song plays on.

Kutcha makes me hungry... Why, I do not know. It could possibly be the sound of the keyboards; that country house swing. I'll eat the roll now and enjoy my earl grey. The voice, now treated, delicately unfolds into the swings, while the piano takes a lead. It makes me want to listen to my Fats Waller 78's...

Venti Latir is exactly that. A fan dance that moves in beautiful mystery. My favourite track... also reminding ne of old jazz styles. Genius hip swing. My writing curves...

Unmasked takes us back into the work. Chris Carter and osi Fanni Tutti treat the vocals, Robert does the driving. All in all a beautiful break in the day. AT LUNCH, Hawthorne L. Bridge

INSPIRED BY THE ROBERT WYATT CD5 "A SHORT BREAK" 1992 VOICEPRINT UK ®

> Zoom

Okay, all of you beautiful Wyattphiles! Since it has been re-released on CD, it's time to look back upon Robert's triumphant 1972 Matching Mole recording "Little Red Record". Thanks be to Miking for contributing the U.K. press clippings and valuable time (and critical); and to my partner-in-music Craig for his report on the re-released CD. Happy... Happy... Joy, Joy!! VV ☺

MATCHING MOLE
Little Red Record
CBS 65263

In order of beard length Matching Mole are Dave McCrae, a much acclaimed pianist; Robert Wyatt, the most advanced drummer, imaginatively and skilfully, working in rock today; Phil Miller, guitarist with the original Delivery, a star-studded band if you like; and Ian McCormick, bass, late of Quiet Sun, an interesting but unsung band of a year or so ago. I set them out like this in the hope that the Maoist packaging of the album is not another ill-conceived gimmick but intended to remind us of people struggling together to create something, rather than remaining subservient to anyone's particular concept. Perhaps I'm wrong but the outward form, the continuity of titles from album to album, the musical opening of the record, seem to represent an attempt to create a group mythology, something which only Gong, of similarly placed bands, have achieved.

The lyrics are all socially oriented but from their authors' very particular viewpoint—"What on earth are you doing God?", "I'd rather have the Chinese here than rich and pompous goons", etc. Matching Mole are one of the few bands who try to extend the rock idiom to embrace non-musical issues in general terms—not songs about a specific war or supermarket, but words about the broader attitudes beneath. Don't let the fact that it appears in joke-form detract from this.

NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS 1972

> Zoom

And then it was Matching Mole, who played a superb, but disappointingly short set, lasting only 20 minutes or so. Their keyboards man looked remarkably like a contemporary WG Grace, sitting at the front of the stage, red-capped and impassive. Incredible band.

Melody Maker 6·5·72

MATCHING MOLE (CBS). Debut album from ex-Softs drummer Robert Wyatt's new group displays a real group democracy. There's plenty of instrumentally brilliant music on the set (the blowing pieces — three here — will clearly be Mole's bread and butter pieces) but a lot of people will buy the album for Robert's singing on the first three tracks — especially the achingly pretty "O Caroline." People who found "End Of An Ear" too hard to take and yet retain fond memories of the Softs' first album will clasp Matching Mole to their bosoms."

MATCHING MOLE: "O Caroline" (CBS). A fairly savagely edited version of the album track, which loses something of its magic in the conversion, but remains a beautifully eccentric love song. It's a product of one of Robert Wyatt's all-too-rare periods of songwriting, with lovely tune and piano by David Sinclair, who's since left the band. Totally unrepresentative of the band as they are, it's still a ridiculously good single, and one you ought to be able to hear every time you turn on the radio. It'll either be an enormous hit, or fade into oblivion — I hope it's the former. SOUNDS 8·7·72

Melody Maker 4·11·72

MATCHING MOLE: "Matching Mole's Little Red Record" (CBS). Internal upheavals are currently rocking the Mole, but their second album stands as eloquent testimony to their underappreciated greatness. Once again this is a combination of intelligent blowing — mostly by that stellar electric pianist Dave McRae with Robert Wyatt drumming better than ever — and some tracks which indicate their wider range.

WOW →

FARNBOROUGH Technical College: SWASTIKA
HEREFORD Training College: DANDO SHAFT
GLASGOW Greene's Playhouse: FLAMIN' GROOVIES /MAN / MR. MOSES' SCHOOLBAND
LIVERPOOL Cavern: NECROMANDUS
LIVERPOOL Top Rank: GNIDROLOG
● see Tuesday
LONDON 100 Club: KEN COLYER ALL STARS JAZZ BAND
LONDON Bag O' Nails: GEORGIE FAME BAND
LONDON King's Cross: SOFT MACHINE / MATCHING MOLE / JUST US
● Return gig for the recently-cancelled Softs appearance. Together with Robert Wyatt's Machine Mole and Elton Dean's Just Us.
LONDON LEYTONSTONE Chez: ROXY MUSIC/JUDE
LONDON Lyceum: EDGAR BROUGHTON / KEITH CHRISTMAS / ASHMAN REYNOLDS.
LOUGHBOROUGH University: VAN[illegible] Y FARE
MARHAM RAF Station: MARM[illegible] / HOT CHOCOLATE
● Sounds like a na[illegible] mean, marmalade and hot chocol[illegible] ry would not be amiss, I feel [illegible]le wheaten cake to com[illegible] mixture. Apart from w[illegible] ch underrated band m[illegible] ng pilloried in a crud ne[illegible] nters. Incidentally, Alan W[illegible] as a D.J.
NORWICH [illegible]CK & ROLL ALLSTARS
NOTTINGHA[illegible]y (doubling Grantham College of Agriculture): [illegible]MOND FROGGATT
PLYMOUTH Van Dike: BUDGIE
ST. ALBANS City Hall: IF / CAT IRON
SWANSEA Patti Pavilion: GYPSY
SWANSEA Top Rank: AUDIENCE / KINGDOM COME
TUNBRIDGE WELLS Mad Hatter: CLEAR BLUE SKY
WORMELOW (Near Hereford) Park Hall Ballroom: DAVE COLLINS

a gig
MOTT MOLE

Mole

A SLIGHT case of the missing drummers changed the face of the Kings Cross all-nighter on Saturday. Of the original line-up of Soft Machine, Matching Mole, and Elton Dean's quartet Just Us, only Matching Mole appeared; Phil Howard from Just Us didn't get their in time for them to play, apparently, and Soft Machine's drummer John Marshall is ill, so they didn't appear.

Matching Mole played the first set of the night, and though I enjoyed their set, I wasn't overwhelmed by it. It would be difficult not to enjoy a Mole set whatever happened, as long as those musicians were on stage and their basic ideas were there, but what with sound problems and the shortness of their set I felt I wasn't seeing the band at their best. They weren't really able to get into their stride for long enough at a time to really make the music work as it undoubtedly can.

Brotherhood of Breath came next, starting with a Chris McGregor piano solo with just bass and drums, and then getting into their full-blown many-horned and shuffle-rhythmed music. The Brotherhood in full flight is quite something to behold, and many of the most exhilarating moments came from DuDu Pukwana's solos.

"A rare event" said Graham Bond as he announced the jam that followed.

SOUNDS U.K. 24·6·72

Melody Maker March 18, 1972

Mole change man

MATCHING MOLE keyboard-player Dave Sinclair, formerly with Caravan has left the group following their recent tour of Holland — the first major dates the band played.

He has been replaced by Dave McRae, who played his first dates with the group last week — at Kingston Polytechnic and at Merton. This means that the line-up of the band is now McRae (electric pno), Robert Wyatt (drums), Phil Miller (guitar) and Bill MATCHING MOLE: "The Little Red Record" (CBS). My mole is beyond!

During their 10 months existence, Matching Mole haven't exactly won wide public acceptance. They've made little attempt to fabricate a mood onstage, and the music hasn't always been together.

"The Little Red Record", however, catches them on one of their awesome upswings — providing an 11th hour corrective to the rather glum impression they made with their debut album earlier this year.

From the explosive entry of the whole-tone riff in "March Ides" to the final melancholy chords of "Smoke Signal", this record is a moving document of 1972's most personal group.

The instrumental work, particularly Dave MacRae's adapted electric piano, is ablaze throughout — and it's a surprisingly mature sound for a rock group; the highspeed jam "Brandy As In Beng" might easily be mistaken for latterday Gary Burton or Mike Gibbs, and the sensitive free-form passage on "Smoke Signal" forms a rock analogue of Addicts of the voice and songs of Robert Wyatt will find that there's plenty to enthuse about from the operatic tenor chorus on "Drinking My Politics Away" to Bill MacCormick's atmospheric "Gloria Gloom".

But the track that'll grab any airplay coming in Mole's direction will be Phil Miller's beautiful "God Song".

Yes, dears, it's all here: Ruby Crystal's erotic monologue, the theme from "Righteous Rhumba", the synthesizer of Roxy's very lovely Eno, and another fine Cracknell sleeve. Produced and held together through some stormy sessions by the excellent R. Fripp, Esq., this record is the one, alright.

Go get it. — Ian MacDonald.

< zoom

SOUNDS DEC. 11 1971

● ROBERT WYATT: today, almost over-cautious

RELUCTANT ROBERT!

FOR THE past couple of months a group of musicians have been rehearsing together, working out ideas, and getting to know each other's musical personalities. The group's called Matching Mole, and the musicians involved are Phil Miller, guitarist, formerly with Delivery; Bill McCormick, bass guitarist, formerly with Quiet Sun; Dave Sinclair, organist, formerly with Caravan; and Robert Wyatt, drummer and occasional vocalist, formerly with the Soft Machine.

HESITANT

Robert seems far more hesitant these days to talk about his musical ideas. With the Soft Machine he was usually willing to talk about his personal aspirations and how they fitted in with what the group was currently doing; now he's cautious, almost over-cautious at times, and he shies away from saying things that might lead people to think he's forcing his ideas on the rest of the group. For an interviewer this can be an irritating stance, but it's more than understandable. The Soft Machine was a fairly stable unit, with fairly clear ways of doing things, but Matching Mole is barely two months old, fragile and as yet without a clearly defined shape.

And as Phil says, how can you talk about the music of a group that's at "a stage of experimenting — not with musical ideas but with how everybody can relate to each other musically."

Robert: "There was a possibility in the early stages of me getting together a very slick group quickly, people who were obviously on the same scene, and churning it out. This way will take longer, but I think it will be more interesting." There will also be the "odd addition" to the band, but its basis will be the four already mentioned.

Matching Mole hope to be recording later this month and in January, and their first gigs will be in Britain in February. These'll be college and university dates before they go to France and Holland in March to play some of the larger clubs. Robert says he'd like the group to spend quite a lot of their time recording, certainly more than the Softs did.

"I just feel that my life up to now hasn't been balanced correctly between that private, more introspective thing of recording, and the exhibitionistic context of a concert, and I really want to understand more what studios are about. I think we all do."

When he left the Softs, did Robert have any clear idea about what he wanted to do? "All I knew when I left the Soft Machine was that I didn't want to do that any more. To be honest, I'd known that for about a year before I left, but what I'd been trying to do was stay, enjoy it and get as much out of it as I could, and at the same time play with lots of other people and try to develop something outside that which I could eventually quite smoothly move over to. But in fact I found I couldn't really do that. For me, you're either doing something or you're not, so while I was in the group that's where my responsibilities lay, and to do it properly I couldn't really do anything else.

"So in order to get anything else together, to really focus on it, I had to drop the idea of a smooth takeover. So I screwed my courage up, got pissed, and left the group when we got back from America."

For Robert, it certainly hasn't been a smooth takeover in the sense that he's had to spend a lot of time and energy physically getting the new band together. He admits it's been a strain he could have well done without. And though he may disclaim credit for the band musically, the organisation's certainly been down to him until recently. Musically, it's been not so much a smooth takeover, as a kind of planting out.

"This isn't an attempt to be totally different or totally breakaway . . . there's been no radical change in my head. As far as I'm concerned I've just got one head and one approach to playing and writing and working with other people, and I've just tried to develop that in the healthiest possible way. At one stage that meant working with the Soft Machine, but then it just seemed to me that that was no longer the healthiest, most productive context for me to work in. That's not a qualitative thing about the Soft Machine at all, it's just the way my ideas were developing, it didn't seem they were likely to flourish in that context."

VEHICLE

So rather than a vehicle for definite ideas, Matching Mole is more a change of base — for all of them, presumably. Robert doesn't know how it'll develop, and doesn't particularly want to — "it would take the adventure out of it, or something." And as I said at the start, talking about the music is difficult, but I think this last quote says as much as can be said. I'd asked whether they were using improvisation a lot.

"I've changed in the last couple of months. Probably in reaction to the band I was in before I felt an overwhelming desire to play lots and lots of very simple songs. I think I've now got my sort of creative balance back so I can start using all the different area I'm interested in, and at the moment that includes a lot of free blowing. I really enjoy that with Matching Mole because I really think we're listening to each other instead of taking our dreams on stage with us and acting them out."

BY STEVE PEACOCK

> ZOOM

MATCHING MOLE

Cosmic music and a weird Fripp trip...

MATCHING MOLE (from left): Bill MacCormick, Dave McRae, Robert Wyatt, Phil Miller

INSIDE THE CONTROL-ROOM of CBS Number One, Whitfield Street, producer Robert Fripp leans forward in his swivel chair and addresses the studio in general:

"This is "Flora Fidgit", a song by Bill MacCormick, excellent bass-player with Matching Mole, TAKE ONE."

And they're off: the Mole in London laying down another new track for their forthcoming album, "The Little Red Record" — and fast and furious it certainly is, keyboard maestro Dave McRae's fingers blurring up and down the Hammond like a tame white tornado.

"Mr. McRae," Flipp announces, turning to me, "is my favourite electric pianist in England. He's developed the instrument to a fascinating degree, putting it in stereo successfully which is something I was pondering how to do for years. A beautiful player with a lovely sense of space, which all too many musicians lack, I'm afraid."

As the take ends, he talks back to the intercom mike. "Thank you, gentlemen. That was indeed a new vista in aural perception."

Robert Wyatt, hidden amongst a forest of baffle-screens, voices his doubts: "The sound out here isn't very good."

"We're working on that right now, Robert." Mr. Fripp glances round again. "Another quote for your worthy publication: Robert Wyatt is one of the very few real human beings in show business. How's that?"

That's fine, I begin to say — but I'm drowned out by TAKE TWO. The collective virtuosity of Matching Mole is sometimes unbelievable and, when they're playing at top form, they're technically the nearest thing to a Mahavishnu Orchestra that Britain possesses.

"It's a magic hand," explains Dave McRae, between takes. "When it's on, it's brilliant. When it's off, it's pretty dreadful. But I much prefer it to working in a band that keeps up a slick performance, but where nothing ever happens."

I saw their King's Cross gig and, while I thought it was excellent, my chief impression was of something very moving.

"That's it, you got it. When it's on, everybody's right in there — nobody rides on this group and I really enjoy that kind of high-energy playing."

Tonight's performance, I opine, is taking some time to shape up.

"That's partly to do with being in this studio, but some of our music is hard and, this one's a bitch — mainly because we haven't done it live yet. The rest of the album, apart from some songs by Robert and Phil, is from our live set and they've gone down very easily."

TAKE THREE. The sound is still bad and the performances ragged. Engineer Mike Fitzhenry twiddles knobs in between explaining why he's off to Adelaide to become a producer in a couple of weeks.

"Then I'll return in a blaze of glory," he says, hopefully, "having altered in appearance so everyone'll be muttering, who is he? This genius . . ."

"The sound's still lousy," comments Phil Miller, hunched in a corner over his guitar.

Fripp works hard, bouncing about the control-room looking healthy and full of vim and vigour.

"At the moment," he points out, "it's difficult to get a balance from the studio, but that's mainly because the music's not being played correctly. When it's played well, music balances itself because then the musicians are responding dynamically to each other, not just harmonically."

The studio, Bill decides, is too big. Besides which, they're getting a leakage from a Boz Scraggs session in Number Two.

"We won't get this done tonight," he observes, gloomily. "Let's spend the rest of the time doing overdubs."

Robert nods. "Soft Machine Volume Two" was done in a studio this size and that was one of the worst-recorded albums in history.

"Why don't you try positioning yourself better out there?" Fripp suggests. "I'd like to be able to see you, Robert."

"And have a good laugh, I know."

Fripp is right. They depose tion and TAKE FOUR is very good indeed — until someone drops a bar and everything grinds to a halt.

"What was that like?" asks Dave McRae.

Fripp gestures expansively. "In here we were led excessively that such fine music had ceased to assail our ears."

"Yeah, but what was it like?"

"About four million per cent better. You will be astounded by the quality of sound we are achieving in here. Your nipples will congeal and your blood run cold."

"You know," says Robert, emerging from a deep inner soliloquy, "with 16 tracks you could record the entire Count Basie Band one at a time."

Stoney silence.

"Nice thought," he shrugs. "Forget it."

Everybody bursts out laughing.

During TAKE FIVE, Fripp begins solemnly gyrating up and down behind the console, wearing an expression of profound concentration. "I can twist to it," he announces, "so it must be commercial." He sinks out of sight. "I can twist very low."

The take ends. Not so good.

TAKE SIX. Everybody's getting tired and "Flora Fidgit" isn't getting any easier.

"Notice how cool the crew remain," says Fripp, downing a swift pint of healthy milk. Mike Fitzhenry, superb-engineer-who-is-leaving-for-Australia — how unflustered."

"Bob, my cans aren't working," Robert complains. "We're doing all we can to help you," Fripp smiles. "And, let's face it, you need help."

TAKE SEVEN. Flora Fidgit is the nickname of the silver screen's most beautiful actress, Miss Julie Christie, who'll be down later in the week to earn twelve quid's worth of session money for appearing on another track. Said take dissolves in mistakes, Dave McRae playing funky fairground organ on "I Do Like To Be Beside The Seaside".

"We need a new drum balance," says the engineer-who's-shortly-leaving-for-the-Antipodes.

"Robert." Bob Fripp is going to quip. "If you could give us a dose of tom-tom with that verve and elan which stands unique in percussion history, we'd really fall around in here."

TAKE EIGHT, TAKE NINE, TAKE TEN, take aspirin.

The session ends in the pub next door. Matching Mole's new album is going to be rather excellent, if not cosmic. It's about time.

IAN MACDONALD

N.M.E. SEPT. 2 1972.

Pop record

Matching Mole is a band for people who used to love the Soft Machine a few years back, but now find the latter quartet altogether too serious for its own good. It may, perhaps, have outlived its original function—which was to open up rock music to extended improvisation, and to introduce some of the sounds and theories of avant-garde musicians like Cecil Taylor and Terry Riley.

The Soft Machine's drummer, in the days when they were introducing rock to tape-loops and 11/4 time, was Robert Wyatt. A small, rather dumpy man, Wyatt was the visual focus of the group: face obscured by long, flaxen hair, torso bared, he drummed with an unquenchable ferocity, and sang in a fragile, rather aimless falsetto which added a tinge of humour and pathos to the group's generally sterm demeanour.

Wyatt, dissatisfied with the way the Softs were going, now leads Matching Mole. Playing, singing and writing better than ever, he is accompanied by the Australian pianist Dave McRae, guitarist Phil Miller, and bass-guitarist Bill McCormick. Together, they make up one of the few genuinely exciting British bands of the moment.

Matching Mole's Little Red Record (CBS S65260) is their second LP, and is a combination of fall-about humour—like the dialogue between prostitute and customer, backed by a trenchant horror-movie theme—and sheer good improvisation, much of it from McRae, as fine an exponent of the electric piano as you'll hear today (he has modified the instrument himself, to create novel tone colours).

The leader's drumming is more assertive and inspiring than ever, while his dry, whimsical "God Song" says more about real attitudes to religion than all of Broadway's biblical rock epics rolled into one. This represents the present peak of British rock music.

Richard Williams

TIMES NOV. 4 1972.

MATCHING MOLE: "MATCHING MOLE'S LITTLE RED RECORD" (CBS 65260).

THE COMBINATION of Matching Mole, as music, and Robert Fripp, as producer, was predictably explosive, and when the firepower is contained and directed on this album it works supremely well. But in places the strain shows — you feel the music either got refined a little too much or it aborted in the studio. So where things like "Marchides", "Nan True's Hole", "Gloria Gloom" and "God Song" work as well as anyone could want, things like "Flora Fidget" and "Righteous Rhumba" seem to have lost their essential qualities, to be pale shadows of what you know — if you know the band at all — they could have been. I treasured their first album, some pieces more than others, and I feel much the same way about this one, because however they are playing at any given moment, Dave McRae, Robert Wyatt, Bill MacCormick and Phil Miller never drop below complete competence, and often do something that really shakes you up and gives you a flash of astonishing brilliance. Sadly, the final version of this album gives little scope to Phil Miller, but Dave McRae shines throughout, and the way the Mole work together as a whole is quite remarkable. Robert's singing, particularly on "God Song" (even if they cut off the 'wh' of 'what', making the first line 'Ot on earth') is quite the best song I've heard him do. It's patchy, this little red record, but then remember that a patchy Mole still caps most of the things you're likely to hear. And the sleeve is a masterwork. — SP.

SOUNDS. NOV. 11 1972.

> Zoom

I thought all of you would enjoy these late '80s press releases, sent consistantly by Craig Shropshire. It's nice to hear there are hundreds of US everywhere in the press community. TRR ..

Gramavision Inc.
Recordings and Films
260 West Broadway
New York, New York 10013
(212) 226-7057
Telex: 291 285 ONE FOOT

HEAR WHAT THE PRESS SAYS ABOUT ROBERT WYATT.....

FROM THE U.K.:

MELODY MAKER:
"...sung by WYATT with the kind of fractured sincerity that climbs beyond description...masterful, genuinely moving, bravely resilient, proud in oppression, a valid spirit. If you haven't heard it before, hear it now."

RECORD MIRROR:
"Superb and largely undiscovered..."

STREETS AHEAD:
"...a testament to the quality of the music...emotive, evocative...haunting...and a sparse, unobtrusive use of instrumentation...ROBERT WYATT's delightfully unmannered vocals...gracefully shine...BUY THIS RECORD."

NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS:
"One of last year's most moving moments..." (refering to the "Shipbuilding" single)

RM:
"...WYATT offers music and lyrics of enough depth to allow you, to lose yourself in them completely , while still delivering moments of musical beauty on their own."

THE HOT PRESS:
"Old Rottenhat carefully works (Marxism, jazz, protest, criticism, politics) into careful songs which that lovliest of unlovely voices picks over and cuddles - for here are lyrics that are barbed against barbarism, that have not forgotten where they are coming from or lost sight of where they are going to...More than any other contemporary musician, WYATT's music is loaded with meaning. He is capable of such precise expression and exposition; clearly marking out his targets, he hits them. Hard."

No. 1:
"...this music, which may seem 'difficult' to some (it's not full of Fairlight noises and easy options), is among the best and most rewarding currently being made. This plaintive, poignant and persuasive LP...is the best in the pile this week."

SOUNDS:
"It's definitely an album whose subtleties unfold gradually:the intricacy of a drum pattern, spaciousness of an arrangement, irony of a lyric, and the delicacy of ROBERT's voice. He's shounding better than ever.
"Musically, each track is discreet and complete, riding on rhythms which vary from quasi-ethnic to shades of jazz. The whole set is overlayed with glimmering keyboards and underpinned by bass figures which travel tangential lines first drawn as far back as Soft Machine."

-continued-

> Zoom

MELODY MAKER:
"His music captures a specific mood - a bleak, fraught shadow of gloom, an effortlessly plaintive voice naturally leading itself to all things serious and sad."

LABOUR WEEKLY:
"ROBERT WYATT's new album is probably the best political record to be released all year."

TNT:
"Album of the week one...clear simple voice, high and relaxed, dead slow...the lyrics are heavy political..."

MUSIC WEEK:
"...his vision still as needle clear...Old Rottenhat has the plaintive cry and the dirge come drone well to the fore. One of the best realised LPs of the year."

TIME OUT:
"Best of '85 - ROBERT WYATT: Old Rottenhat."

NME (cover story "Red, Wyatt & Blue"):
"ROBERT WYATT is a rare individual voice in British pop...Nobody could have told me how ROBERT WYATT...was going to capture my ear more tenaciously than any double-edged love song since Smokey Robinson..."

MELODY MAKER:
"He writes good songs and he can sing, and this time round his music is at the service of a burning sense of injustice and a dream of equality."

NEW MUSIC EXPRESS:
"It seems like that voice has always been there. Raising our eyebrows, bending our lips into smiles and, occasionally, knitting our brows in bemused wonderment. A reassuring presence, this voice, but also, paradoxically, a strange one. And, the ample evidence suggests, a strangely affecting one.
"For such an emphatically English voice to spread out and embrace such an eclectic interantional spectrum is further proof of an imagination that recognizes no borders."

NME (LP review):
"A WYATT record is like an old friend:it neither hectors, lectures nor harangues as if the listener were a public meeting. His plaintively low-key voice and the uncluttered, hymnal contemplativeness of his music demand you listen hard:its quiet self-effacement is not only impossible to ignore, but invests with personal relevance and resonance tunes hitherto abandoned to memory stockpile of frozen standards."

FROM THE U.S.:

SPIN:
"...seems to sail buoyantly on just a whiff of impetus...WYATT's aural sculpture... the record lifts you up without asking you to suspend your belief...powerful poetic statement that's chilling, passionate, preachy..."

THE MIAMI HERALD:
"On Old Rottenhat, WYATT establishes a pulse and just sticks with it, creating minimalist textures...melancholy voice comes in, and the peacfully wandering, jazz-like melodies of his songs begin their magic."

> Zoom

KERA 90.1
3000 Harry Hines Boulevard
Dallas, Texas 75201

KERA 90.1

To: thee International Robert Wyatt Club

FROM: Craig Shropshire
K.E.R.A. FM Dallas, TX.

RE: Matching Mole's "Little Red Record"
CD Reissue 1992
(ORIGINALLY C.B.S. S5260)

Gasphetti !? (What's that mean Robert? Something having to do with attacking one's spaghetti too rapidly, no doubt).

Alright, then... let's have at it! Here we have a little treasure from that seat of musical civilization, the quiet cathedral town of Canterbury. So many folks get excited about the old San Francisco scene of the late sixties and early seventies, but the real wealth lurked elsewhere... in Kent, England to be exact.

As you're probably aware, Matching Mole was a humorous way of saying "SOFT MACHINE"; a linguistic pun. The French phonetics for this being "Machine Moule".

This, Mole's second and sadly final recording, is a wonderful gem. Vinyl copies are difficult but not quite impossible to obtain, though thankfully it is reissued on Compact Disc.

The first track has a rather long title! In addition to beginning the recording, "Starting in the Middle of the Day, We Can Drink our Politics Away" would have been a fine way to approach the recent political elections here in the U.S. of Amnesia (Perhaps a new theme song !?). The Choral parts being provided by Und Der Mütter Korus.....

> Zoom

Immediately following the "extremely silly voice parts", we have a batterie foray by Robert that still induces extreme delight in the hearts and minds of all drummers some two decades later. It is focused, high energy drumming that propels everything else that's happening into it. We're now in the "Marchides"! It's the Mole!!! Far from being "myopic", though, this mole knows right where it's going, and that somewhere is uncharted. Another underground adventure, if you will. Bill MacCormick kicks in with a fine fuzz bass improvisation, as we all proceed to "Nan True's Hole". This was actually the name of John Peel's country home, which was once, long ago, occupied by one Nan True, presumably a dabbler in the dark arts.

Remaining true to the ideology of the Wyatt tune (or is that "toon"?), "Nan True's Hole" is not only about a "place where we can hide away, just for a little holiday", but there is a singular narrative/conversation by some "wench" who offers to help a customer who has "led a very nice life, but I'm lost in it, and I don't know what I'm here for". She graciously offers to show him, advising him to take off his trousers..! whilst we continue hearing music throughout ... some Victorian moans and whispers ... obvious joy by all parties participating. This leads one to wonder about what really went on at/in Nan True's Hole!

Each piece of music has a marvelous connecting interlude which ties it all together. The next one, "Righteous Rhumba" is no exception. Here are more mouthparts from Robert, with indistinguishable lyrics. All I can catch is something about "I'll show you mine, if you'll....".

At the end of the next fine piece "Brandy As In Benj", the main thematic statement is re-introduced, and then Robert does a masterful job of reproducing it once more on his drum kit, alone. What panache!

> Zoom

SIDE TWO (Yes, Vinyl rules)... We begin with "Gloria Gloom," the piece which the group wanted to be first on the album. Unfortunately, they weren't consulted on the CD reissue (what a fuckin' travesty) so it remains, as was, but now it can be resequenced by player programmer.

I've always been particularly fond of "Gloria Gloom". It begins with haunting VCS-3 sounds from Brian Eno, that echo off into some drug induced trance... eerie... As the music fades in, we hear three seperate voices (2 female, 1 male) babbling about all sorts of surreal events. Some fragments are: "it looked like monsters, and uh, ooh, moving lights across the sun", and "anything you can get around yourself can be awfully helpful, I rarely work naked," and "it reinforces my sense of utterly-awareness." All this is highly amusing. Robert begins singing about inspiration recieved from a Socialist muse. It's a wonderful piece. The lyrics are not provided.

Next up, it's right into Robert and Phil Miller's tune about the Big Guy/Gal upstairs. You know the one I mean. "God Song" is poignant, humourous, and asks some thoughtful questions.

Which leads us into "Flora Fidgit", a beautifully serene piece of ensemble playing with Robert's precise, understated drum work. Very bright, tight playing from the whole band.

Little Red Record is a drummer's subtle bliss. Wyatt's characteristic muffled tom-tom sound is sheer pleasure!

> Zoom

he interacts splendidly with another listening musician, Dave Macrae and his electric piano. Macrae wrote "Smoke Signal" which closes this recording. The piece is also available on an album he did with the band PACIFIC EARDRUM, though I much prefer Mole's version. It's hard to tell at times if it's your ears, or the speakers, or simply Dave's keyboards that sound like they are disintegrating! No matter. It's all very grahnd! You are guaranteed a smashing time!

Thanks again, Robert (and lads). It still sounds like absolute perfection, even twenty-years later on the lazer format, this recording now comes off stronger. Oh yes, and credit must also go to another Robert! King Fripp produced the entire extravaganza.

Personel: Eugen Tilly - leader and flamboyance
Camber Rilnt - viola Lavendue - spinett
Hetle - pianos, mustachios, barrel organs, monkeys, and silver trumpet valves
(Strange names for a bunch of poisanos!)

NOTE: "Gloria Gloom" can be found also on HENRY COW'S IN CONCERT on which Robert also appears. Vocals by Dagmar Krause. Good version!!

With it's imminent CD reissue, CBS had the opportunity to actually make a "little red record". Oh well as my daughter would say, "Too bad, too sad". Oh well comrads, that's my report from the airwave fields for now. I'll be reporting back in time. Remember, we're always listening....

Craig L.

> Zoom

The contents of this newsletter cannot be reproduced in any manner without the written permission of the publishers. All contents are COPYRIGHT 1993 AVANT GOD®.

Submissions for publication can be made at the address below, and will be returned if accompanied by a self addressed stamped package. We resume no responsibilities for non-returnable submissions. All submisiions should be in our offices at least 15 days before publication of each issue.

Subscriptions are based on the yearly rate of $5.00 (which will include three issues, monthly notices of stuff, and a yearly taped interview with Robert!). The single issue rate is $2.00 and back-issues are available at that price. All subscriptions and sales are for the sole benefit of keeping this newsletter published. Thanks for your interest, letters, and support of the world's greatest progressive

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS AND WRITERS CREDITS:

TERRY R. VALDERAS: editor, publisher, writer, The Iberian, and Wyatt wannabe.
CRAIG SHROPSHIRE: co-editor, main writer, Ideas Man, and a damn sharp sire.
TONJA VALDERAS: design and development, writer, Pookie Mom, and simply devine.

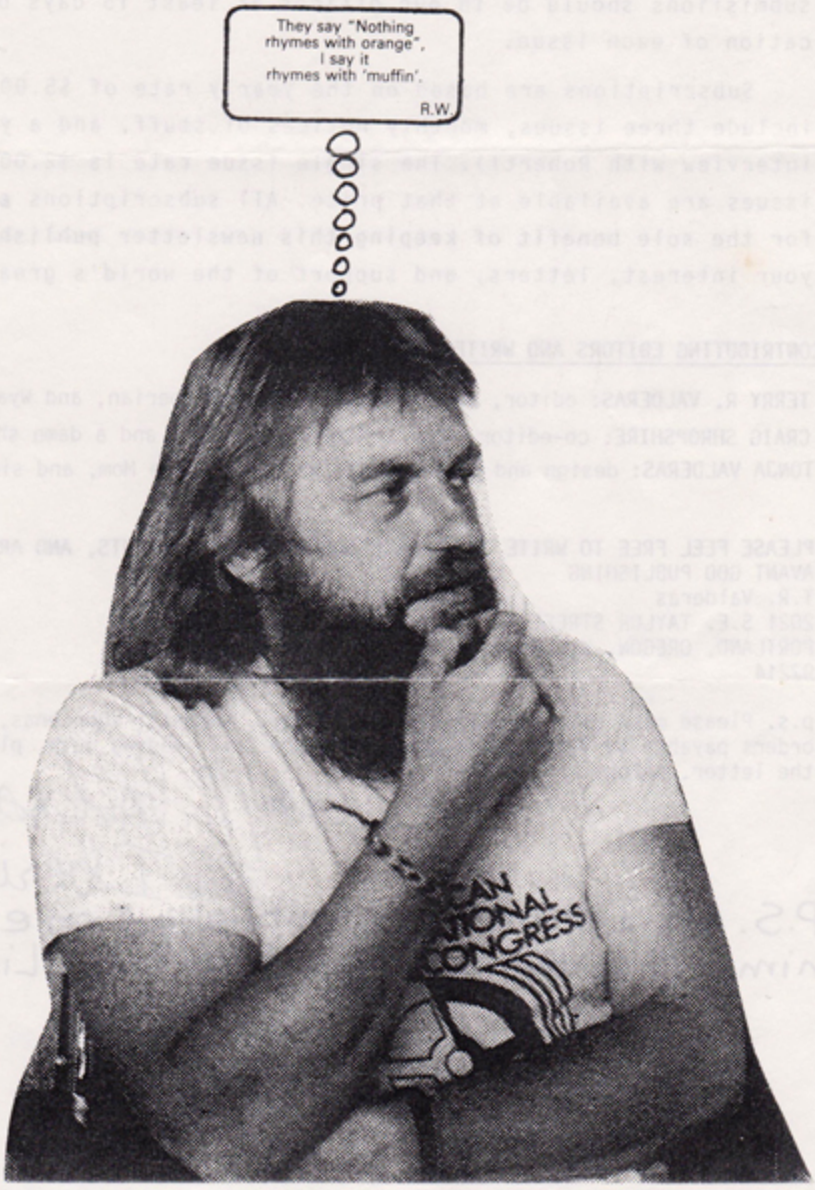
PLEASE FEEL FREE TO WRITE TO US WITH SUGGESTIONS, COMMENTS, AND ARTICLES:
AVANT GOD PUBLISHING
T.R. Valderas
2021 S.E. TAYLOR STREET
PORTLAND, OREGON, U.S.A.
97214

p.s. Please make all cheques, registered mail, threats, subpoenas, and money orders payable to Terry R. Valderas. Remember, if sending cash, please register the letter. salut.

Terry R. Valderas
the Iberian

P.S. All Issues are published on excessive whims triannually (without warning). Life's hard...

> Zoom



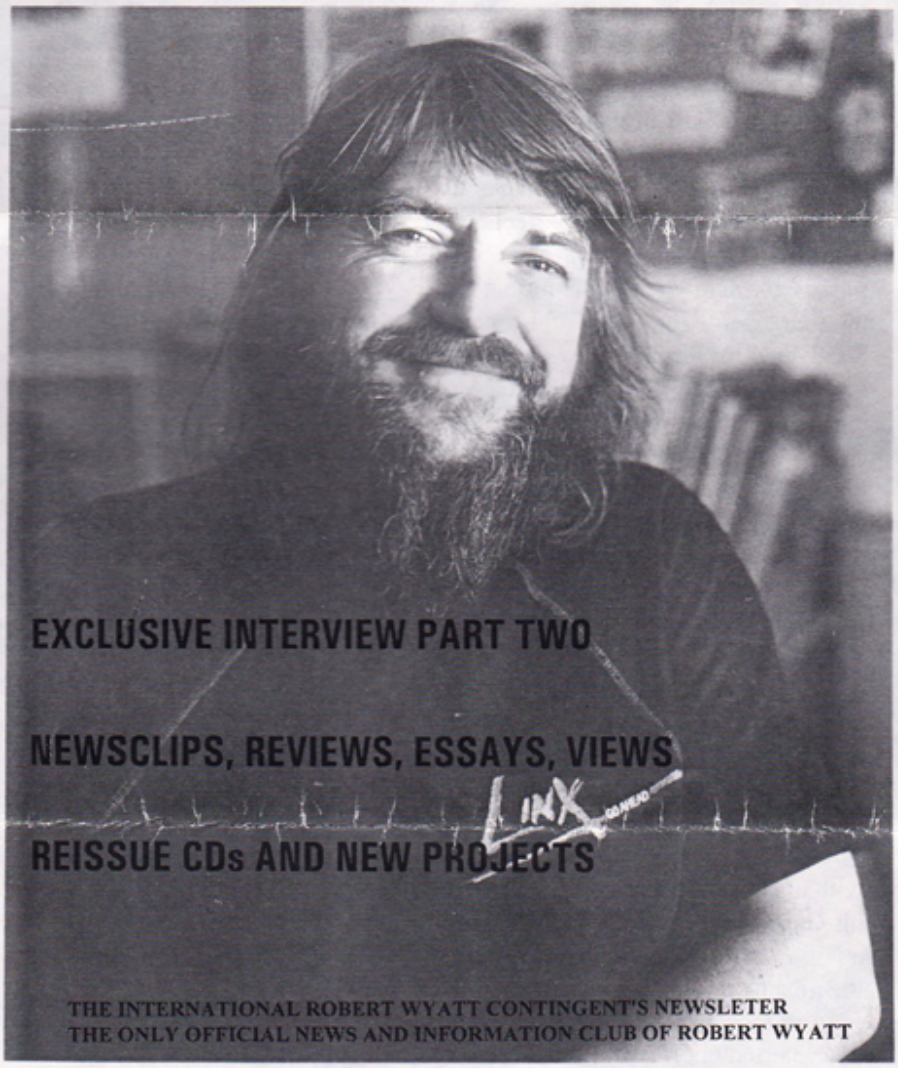
OLD ROTTENHAT'S JOURNAL

2021 SE TAYLOR ST.
PORTLAND, OREGON
97214-2830 U.S.A.

This Propaganda is by permission of

Rough Trade Publishing Limited

81 Wallingford Road, Goring, Reading RG8 0HL • Phone & Fax: (0491) 873612 (Registered Address)



> Zoom
Download the complete issue - SPRING 1993

OLD ROTTENHAT'S JOURNAL

VOLUME ONE, ISSUE THREE AUTUMN 1994

THIRTY YEARS OF WYATT MUSIC

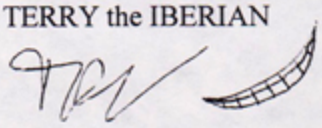
> Zoom

Hello readers,

Welcome to another edition of OLD ROTTENHAT'S JOURNAL! This issue is loaded with goodies for all of the fanatics. It is better than the last one, and not quite as good as the next. Hope you enjoy it.

I have a confession to make to you. Though I gave myself the title, I am not an editor (proof lies in the last issue). I am a Vessel Communicator by trade and a fictionist by hobby. I only entered this Robert Wyatt venture as a means of uniting his fans through publicity, memories, and reviews. It can be called a 'zine, but I always thought of it as an information source. As it has astronomically grown, I have accepted the fact of my poor editing. The enthusiasm of people like yourself has made this newsletter very proud. I knew you all were out there; thanks for the blessings! I have dedicated the future of this newsletter to perfection for you. When you see a typo or the random misspelling, keep this confession in mind. It is with great effort that I try to constantly better the format of this Wyatt-thing, and to keep in mind my past errors. The future of this newsletter promises to evolve progressive!! Stay tuned for further screw-ups...

This issue is THE THIRTY YEARS OF WYATT continuum. This is really more of a subject for your submissions, than a full career retrospective. I could go on and on, but I'll leave that to Mike King's upcoming bio-gigog of Robert (for those of you who keep asking, it is due in early 1994 through the good publishing prowess of SAF...stay tuned to us for details!!). I once again open the door to all reading this: PLEASE SUBMIT ANYTHING! The door is open to any remembrances, experiences, reviews, quotes, opinions, banter, or comments concerning Robert's music. It is a forum for you, the fan. Do!!!



CONTESTCONTESTCONTESTCONTESTCONTESTCONTEST!!!!!!!!!!

q) Which Pink Floyd member has worked on projects the most with Wyatt? ha ha ha this one is so easy!!! It's even hinted to in this issue! The winner is to choose anything from our Wyatt CD Archives (we have every domestic released one except "End of an Ear", please include your prize request in the letter of contest), as well as gets a nod from this newsletter.

The winner of our last contest was one Jim Stedge from East Rutherford, NJ with his answer to the titles to songs from the Mr. Head demo (he must know his Canterbury history!). He won "Ruth" on CD, and gets a knot...er, I mean a nod from us. Congratulations Jimmy!!!! Post those answers now and be the next to complete you missing CD collection. Good thinking.

And those asking when Robert's next album will be finished (he hasn't even started one, squire!), just hold the door. Good things come to those ..... patience is a ..... uh....yeah.

TERRY the IBERIAN

> Zoom

N.I.O. WYATT

* New on the collaboration front for Robert is the latest recordings by ULTRAMARINE on the Blanco Y Negro Label . Titled "United Kingdom", the recordings were released 23 August 1993, featuring Mr. Wyatt prominently on five of the tracks. On the titles "Kingdom", "Happy Land", and "Urf", Robert sings as well as takes a co-writing credit. On "The Badger" and "Dizzy Fox", he vocalizes in the style that has drawn this club together for it's originality. For the completists, there is a CD single remix of "Kingdom" with a flipside track "Gold Crest", the latter sampling Robert's voice. The band also covers "Instant Kitten" sans Robert. It is highly recommended to all of our readers to buy this, and both of the aforementioned discs are available in most shops.

*COMING IN AUTUMN 1993 FROM VOICEPRINT U.K.:
A) The Wildeflowers CD taken from their three existing sessions in 1966. Wow!!!! This one will be a monster of fun!!!! The limited edition of this release will come in an A-5 size booklet with notes by Brian and Hugh Hopper. The CD will also include a song from sessions dating 9 Aug. 1969 (described to me as "Soft Machine meets Wildeflowers"). Look for this one at the shops or through mail order in some of the more progressive music catalogues.
B) Daevid Allen Trio- "Live '63"-Recorded 3 June 1963 at London's Marquee Club, this one was recorded when it was all new to our hero. Featuring Mike Ratledge on piano for three selections, and a poet (I didn't catch his name...), the core of the trio is rounded out by the 18 year olds Hugh Hopper and Robert Wyatt. They cover "Little Rooty Tooty" by T.S. Monk and take the coda of the later Gong song "Selene" into an eight-minute workout. The additional track included here is "Fred the Fish" from the Winter 1966-67 Kim Fowley sessions with the Softies. Another CD very much worth finding, thanks to those wonderful people at Voiceprint!! Look for it soon.

*REISSUE MANIA:
SOFT MACHINE IN CONCERT from the Windsong Label. Taken from the BBC transcriptions of 11 March 1971 Peel in Concert series, this ones also known as "SOFT MACHINE AND HEAVY FRIENDS". Feature the extended big band line up and sleeve notes by Hugh Hopper. Craig Shropshire sent me this one and I must say it is my favorite Softs live recording ever. A must buy for all of our readers!!!!

MATCHING MOLE from the Beat Goes On Label. The first Mole recording remastered and now available in the U.S.A. as an import. New sleeve notes by Robert. Go buy it now, squire!!!!

Until the next N.I.O. info-mailer and our next issue get happy and listen closely.
TERRY the IBERIAN

> Zoom

PART TWO: the robert wyatt inner-view

This is part two of our exclusive interview with Robert conducted by cassette in August of 1992, recorded in his home studio. As an old Sun Ra Arkestra recording blasts in the background, Robert dives into the "statement-questions" Tonja and I sent with bravado. His keen sense of wit and clear judgment in tact, he pauses quite often to get the answers he most wanted expressed on these subjects. We have taken the liberty of again combining both interview sessions together to give a full perspective of his thoughts. Happy reading!! TRV

Q; Influences of Political, Musical, and Literary.

R.W.; (Laughs quite loudly) You gotta' be joking!!!!! I've been alive for 47 years and an influence enters my brain...probably...several hundred a second, just like everyone else's. (Laughs again) How long have you got? Uhh...

However, we are also filter systems! I mean you can feed a duck dog-food but it'll never turn into a dog. We're not kind of empty vehicles for whatever we absorb. I think that we kind select, even when we think we're being open. We can't help it. We're, each of us, a search and select machine, and why we find things suit us or don't I don't think any of us can really say. That's why it's very, you know, difficult territory if you start putting down other people's tastes, in a way. Because nobody knows what other people really need. I don't find that it works for me to try and guess what other people want to hear from me, and what other people want. Because I just can't imagine anything worth being satisfactory like that, and I don't like it as an audience when I think somebody's trying to gear something to me that doesn't come natural to them, and therefore doesn't sound natural to me, either.

Musical influences...at any given moment you could ask me...a day later it will be a different answer. I mean there's this whole thing churning around and you just have to pick out what..... surfaces. Rather than dive underneath and risk drowning in...memories...I'm not going to be deliberately obscure; God knows...we'll have difficulty communicating without that (laughs)! And so if some of the names I mention are, say, kind of obvious, well that's fine by me! That means that people are as famous as they should be.

Elvin Jones...the fact that he's alive and playing is some kind of miracle. I don't mean by that it's a terrible surprise. There is no reason he shouldn't be, but he is a miraculous man. He's sort of taken the drums to a level, on a road perhaps started out by, I dunno'...Baby Dodds and Chick Webb... through Kenny Clarke (this writer's favourite Be-Bop player! ed) and so on. He's made this breathing living wind machine out of a drum kit. You've got to remember that the drum kit is a 20th century invention, and it's as modern as any synthesizer...and even more significant. I think the most foolish thing that a lovely Tenor (saxophone) player over here, Courtney Pine, did was not accept Elvin's offer to go on the road, with the Elvin Jones Band. Branford Marseilles said, "Ya shoulda' done it!", anybody like that, Blakey or Elvin asks you to play a gig, you take it! Because, these are the masters, and you've got plenty of time later. It's such a privilege to be asked by these people. So anyways... Elvin Jones, as a drummer.

I'm influenced by a lot of musicians who sing, rather than jazz singers; I've just realized that really. Very often when musicians kind of...(laughs) grunt out a tune, I've always liked that (now amused). Dizzy Gillespie is a lovely singer, in his schooldays. If you hear Gillespie...I had a record of Gillespie at Newport, big band, and he sings that sort of R & B stuff. Like Jimmy Smith singing "I got my Mojo Working". Wonderful! And there are, of course, various musicians who sort of play and sing like Mose Allison, of course...Nina Simone; versatile pianist. (long pause in thought) And in terms of piano playing, I also like...the playing of...influenced by...practically I have to be, by the people who don't reckon to be pianists or players. But, Gil Evans once said he played a "rangists" piano, I mean, I know what he meant! If you're gonna' be a solo pianist, still now, I ought' to throw by Bud Powell, you see...the Bebop player, who kind of defected East. A lot of musicians did that; went to live in Paris and places like that...Bud Powell is one of these people like Billie Holiday...the people say, "Oh, they went off towards the end of their lives!". But there is something moving about what they did. I don't think they went off towards the end of their lives, it's like saying...a lot of people's music goes through various processes and there can come a time in an artist's life when they're no longer displaying their technical virtuosity or their knowledge. They're simply making, kind of iconic marks. And I really identify strongly with people who have the confidence to do that, however. And Bud Powell used to play piano when he was older. He was...he'd been very badly... damaged. He'd had electro...what's-his-name done there; he'd been brutally treated by psychiatric nurses, or something. It's not dislike you're typical tragic story, I'm not talking about him as a tragic figure: I think he played wonderfully, late in his life, even though he's stumbling. Because there's that sound of searching going on. So, late Bud Powell...late Billie Holiday...the sounds of people when they're meant to have been past their peak, and cracking up inside. I think it's...ugh...seemed to move me a lot.

> Zoom

Okay...literary...no political...no literary...Literary? Literary! Well I suppose I'd have to say the English Comics and comedians. I like our comics, I don't like our serious actors very much, you know, the theater tradition that's very much admired. I mean it just reminds me of the tourist industry and the "World Family". Our great theatrical tradition, and our Royal Family, to me, their entirely... for...um...like those tourist things where everything is decided for you by the touring company, and you file past whatever it is. You go to one country and you file past the Mona Lisa, you go to...what is it...the leaning tower of Lisa, or moaning Pisa or whatever her name is...anyway. To me, our great theatrical tradition is just that. I can't stand that (adapts mock Tudor-styled voice) "Careful ennunciation and r-r-resonant voices." I don't need it. If I want a resonant voice, I'll listen to Billy Eckstine (hey...I think it's time for a Mr. B musical resurrection in our youth...yeah! Ed) So, our comedians I love.

It's almost immedious to pick out some people; you probably wouldn't know them anyway. I'm not sure they'd translate. They very often came from that musical circuit that used to be in England towards the end of the last century. I suppose, the thing that in America developed into a Vaudeville thing. And related to that there was a kind of... sort of...I suppose...19th century, turn-of-the-century English funny writers and children's writers. People like Edward Lear...I really like. I mean, in the same way, America, I really like James Thurber (all right, Rob!!! Ed). I mean where do I stop?! Thats just comes out the Rotten Hat at that particular moment, thinking about that question.

RW original cartoon sent to the editor by the Mole himself/9-10-13

> Zoom

Political influences? This is a kind of overwhelming question. It's almost like the same answer , in a way, to the musical ones. You gravitate to what seems to capture your imagination. I'm not even sure you chose to. (Matter-of-factly) England is run by a very conservative establishment, which as Christopher Hitchings has pointed out, there's an attempt to sort of copy it in the United States, almost a kind of reaction of aristocracy of leadership. In both cases anyway, you'd have to say they were aligarties rather than democracies. Well, obviously if you had to spend any money at all to become a candidate, that disqualifies most of the people who should do it (laughs). Let's think...

Communism and Socialism as your influence...well, I sort of realized I was one by accusation. I mean, in the sense that...in South Africa, the description of the laws to prevent the move towards democracy, and away from fascist dictatorship, were called "the Laws Against Communism". I've simply just allowed myself to be named by my enemies. I mean, when you say all the things I say, or think the things I think, you get called a communist. So I figure, well...if it's useful for people to have a way of identifying me, then I'll live with that, because...umm..."You must be a Commie! Oh, alright, if YOU say so!" All these names are labels; they've got nothing to do with what we are as a kind of living, breathing bits of...ectoplasm, or something. Names are just attempts at identifying this one particular lump of ectoplasm from another, by the group at large. And so it just sort of became apparent that I was one, because people like me get called one and I'm not gonna' argue with... conservatives. If they say that people like me must be Communists...They're very well educated, they are the standard bearers of civilization...They should know!! I'm certainly neither of those things, so I must accept their word for it. I'm a Communist because I just found that the kind of things I think, I'm told are Communistic. Okay. People say, " Well why in America do you have these other words like Liberal?" Well, that's one of these words that doesn't mean the same in England as it does in America. Because we have political parties, for example, a sort of Liberal (Labour) and Conservative party. In England, the Liberals, if they are here, are sort of like twins with the conservatives in a sense that...like if you're being questioned by a policeman and one's the heavy one who might push you around, the other one says, "Never mind him. Look, I'm your friend. Have a cup of tea. Look, let's talk about this." Police work in pairs (especially here in the United States of Amnesia!! Ed) and so do political parties with their people. And in England, the Liberals and Conservatives are just kind of... "Nice guy/Tough guy". But, they're both defending and protecting and talking in behalf of the same interests. So I have to avoid use of the word Liberal. It also suggests a certain kind of moderation, and I have no understanding or conception of what possible use political moderation could have. I can't imagine the kind of moderate, balanced response to any particular situation. Like, for example, the right wing extremist says, "Kill 6 million Jews"; the left wing extremist says, "Don't kill any Jews". So I suppose the moderate, "Well, maybe we should kill about 3 million...then everybody'd be very happy." (Laughs hard) I don't understand the moderate position, you know what I mean?

What are these cheeky ULTRAMARINE boys smiling about? Photo 1993

> Zoom

The Softs, the Proms and drummer Wyatt

by Richard Williams

IT'S NOT long since Robert Wyatt announced that he was vacating the drum stool with Soft Machine in order to pursue a career with Kevin Ayers' band and various other friends.

"I should know better by now," said Robert last week, shaking his head half in sorrow and half in happiness. "I say these things, and I really mean them at the time, but a week later I'm feeling something else entirely.

"In all fairness to the Softs, they're still auditioning drummers, which is something I suggested because I thought they might find someone they like better than me, someone who can read music for one thing. Not reading is my thing . . . primitive music, y'know.

"But I really intended to leave the band, and I suppose I had to get outside it to find out what I really wanted. We had a few fights inside the band, but it's all back together now, and I don't want anything to break that very fine balance we've regained."

The Softs' recent Henry Wood Promenade Concert at the Albert Hall created controversy among the critics, who seemed to be expecting something the group were never prepared to give. Robert looks back on it with very mixed feelings.

"The whole business of surfacing for a couple of hours in that environment was to be heard by people who normally wouldn't listen to us in our normal context — and it was unnatural.

"I enjoyed parts of it, and the audience was certainly the biggest we've ever had in Britain. It was a very nice evening, socially speaking, and it was good that the audience seemed to enjoy the Terry Riley and Tim Souster pieces just as much as our stuff.

"We played all right, I suppose, and Elton particularly rose above the circumstances to play some excellent solos. In terms of the occasion, I'd say that all music grows up in a certain environment, and ours is loads of people lying around getting stoned, and we spend the first half-hour sorting out the sound balance so that the evening gradually opens out. At the Albert Hall, of course, that just wasn't possible.

"There was also the whole thing of playing to a deadline. It was very frustrating having to finish at exactly four minutes before 12 o'clock because if you run over that the engineers will pull out the plugs."

How did Robert view the motives of the BBC people who put the Softs on the Proms? "I don't honestly think the BBC had too much say in it. It was down to Tim Souster, who managed to get into the sort of position of respect where he was allowed to present his own evening, and as he was interested in our music he asked us to be part of it. I don't suppose the powers-that-be at the BBC knew what they were getting at all.

"Oh dear, I really don't want to sound sour and bitter about it at all. What I'm saying is that we've done a lot of gigs and the Proms doesn't stand out as one of the important ones.

"But I can also see that it seems to have been important in terms of public reaction . . . for a start, the little old ladies round our way used to think that we were a load of nasty, dirty hairies, but now they all say 'Good morning, Robert' very nicely.

"In the end, though, I can't honestly say that I feel it's important. Bridge-building isn't something that you can do consciously, it happens by accident, but it's nice that people can listen to and like something that they wouldn't normally come across. Anyway I don't consider that we're a bridge-building band. We're very narrow really, pursuing one train of thought.

"Elton's writing should make it a little different — but then, oh well, everything seems to go through the sausage mill and come out sounding like the Soft Machine."

Now that Robert is safely back inside the group, does he still harbour desires to get into other areas? "Well, one thing I'm doing right now is playing with my own quartet, which has Elton, Marc Charig on cornet, and Neville Whitehead on string bass.

"We've already recorded a long, free version of Gil Evans' 'Las Vegas Tango' for my own album on CBS, and it's really a totally free thing. Maybe we'll get into doing our own versions of Soft Machine numbers — that would be nice, getting another angle on them with a flowing string bass line instead of the fuzz bass-guitar.

"With this band I'm trying to get some space back into my music. Arrangements, freedom, and all those different procedures can make satisfying music, which is very hard to define, but the actual effect is a certain kind of density.

"I admire the sense of space you get from 'Miles Smiles' or the Miroslav Vitous album; the density of rock bands can be very crude and unrewarding. So many things are happening in the quartet; I'm constantly playing things that I've always wanted to play but never been able to, and that's a result of the more fluid situation.

The experiment of working with Ayers and the Whole World was not a success, although Robert still has great admiration for the band. "I did two or three things with them in England, including the Hyde Park 'free,' and a week in Holland.

"I tried it, but I have this tendency to change my mind completely about everything. I still think it's one of the most amazing bands in the world . . . oh dear, I'm unhappy about this interview — I'm saying all the things I mean.

"Kevin's band does tend to be a little ramshackle in its approach and perhaps I've been spoilt by being part of a comparatively slick organisation for quite a long time. I really dig David Bedford though."

Robert's own album, which is nearing the mixing stage, is "hours of completely free things in various combinations, with all the unfashionable sound tricks that Zappa discarded five years ago and which I'm toying with right now.

"Hugh wants to get the Soft Machine into the studios to record very soon, and one of the best aspects of the band at the moment is the way Elton's got so involved in the music.

"He's even getting us to do things that we stopped trying to do to each other years ago, like getting me to read parts. The others completely accept that I'll never do it, but Elton keeps plugging away.

"It's really nice to see Mike and Hugh struggling with someone else's compositions for a change, instead of grinning evilly while I try and struggle through theirs."

SOFT MACHINE at the Albert Hall (from left): Hugh Hopper, Elton Dean and Robert Wyatt.

Muzakoncerto

Piazza Navona, una giornata mer diciamo senza Roma, per tutto i to, per la cultu nuovo che vogliam re. 40-50 mila gio ti un po' da tutta I to per ascoltare tre c si di prestigio, ma anche lottare, per esprimere la loro solidarietà alla nostra iniziativa di una campagna nazio-

niente servizio d'ordine con fascetta rossa al braccio ghetto d'oro, il concerto-lager finito il quale uno si ritrova re i conti con le ni e i pesi di concerto non fa ma forse il 27 memorabile, ha pulso notevole a nto di tipo nuo- vimento che sap- to, far cultura, im- si sentire, vivere anche la musica come un momento nuovo e non marginale della lotta.

Robert Wyatt

Il manifesto del Concerto - Design Ettore Vitale

I 50.000 di p.zza Navona

> Zoom

A FANTASY COME TRUE, BY ROBERT WYATT

BY STEVE PEACOCK

LIKE many other bands that I find musically interesting and emotionally exciting, Soft Machine depend a lot on the contrasts between the members of the group to bring their music to life.

It is not a clash of personalities, but a constant interchange of ideas and approaches that keeps what they do fresh, both in their performances and when working out arrangements.

These differences show up a bit on their last album "Third" (CBS 66246), but what shows up even more clearly is the way that four very different people come together to enrich each other's playing, and the music as a whole.

Obviously this works with all groups to some extent, but often there is either one person who dominates, or the musicians come together in the first place because they work with similar ideas.

□ □ □

With bands like The Whole World, Pink Floyd, and the Softs the approach is different and it produces music that is more likely to evolve in new directions.

"Obviously, the changes in the music depend a lot on the people in the group," said Robert Wyatt, drummer and more extrovert quarter of the Softs. "For instance, when Kevin (Ayers) left and Hugh (Hopper) joined, it made a great difference."

Robert is probably the most basic, least technically-minded of the four. Does he find it restrictive playing within the comparatively tight framework of Mike Ratledge's compositions, which are pretty much worked out and arranged?

"I find it difficult," he said, "but the discipline is probably very good for me, and it brings out things that nobody could have thought of."

● WYATT: "A bit of musical promiscuity."

Of course, there is plenty of room for improvisation and individual interpretation within Mike's compositions, and even more in Hugh's, Robert's and Elton Dean's. And the group go further along this path by adding other musicians to the line-up on occasion.

When I talked to Robert, they were working on the last track of their new album at Olympic Studios, and working with them on the session were Alan Skidmore, Nick Evans, and Roy Babbington.

The effect of that horn section and of the two bass players on the track, one of Mike's called "Teeth", was incredible — it had so much life about it.

One side of the new album is devoted to Hugh's "Virtually", and other tracks are "Kings and Queens" by Hugh and one by Elton — "Five minutes of total insanity" according to Robert.

Using two bass players has worked well, and there are plans for Mike Giles, formerly drummer with King Crimson, to do some things with Robert and the Softs — another combination that should produce some very interesting music.

Though the Soft Machine is Robert's main interest, he likes to branch out in other directions. Mike and Hugh do most of the writing for the group and there really isn't enough time to cope with all their ideas.

Robert has just completed his own "solo" album, he has been involved with Keith Tippett's Centipede project, and he hopes to start doing some gigs with a sextet soon. Earlier this year he left the Soft Machine to work with Kevin Ayers' band, but he soon went back.

"I suddenly realised that I was in my mid-twenties and I had got a job. Everything was very tidy, much too predictable. I just felt like a bit of musical promiscuity."

But it didn't work out quite as he had hoped: "I realised that the things that I could achieve musically with Kevin would probably take far longer than with the Soft Machine. What really happened was that from a distance, I was able to re-appraise the Softs."

His album, out on Friday, is the product of about three weeks' recording at Sound Techniques in Chelsea.

□ □ □

"We just went in blank and played and doodled around to see what came out. It's nearly an hour long, and probably the only real tune on it is a Gil Evans thing called 'Las Vegas Tango'."

Robert plays piano and electric piano and sings — "not songs, more as an alternative to playing instruments" — and other people on the album are Elton Dean, Mark Charig (cornet), Neville Whitehead (bass), and Dave Sinclair from Caravan (organ).

"It's not supposed to be some kind of great alternative to the Soft Machine," said Robert. "I just thought it would be nice to have an album like that by somebody."

The sextet he hopes to do some gigs with will be Nick Evans, Mongezi Feza, Gary Windo, Roy Babbington, and Steve someone — Robert couldn't remember his surname.

But the thing that has really excited him recently is the Centipede project, Keith Tippett's monster amalgamation of 48 musicians.

"It was like a gathering of the tribes, such a happy occasion," he said. "I really enjoyed it so much — all those people just playing together and enjoying it.

□ □ □

The only thing that brought him down was the critics' reaction to the gig.

"I don't want to complain too much, because if any group has been helped by critics, we have," he said, "but I think with the Centipede thing those guys missed such a lot. It was such a happy occasion, and when someone goes away and says, 'oh yes, quite interesting in parts,' he just misses the point.

"We're musicians, we realise what is wrong with it and that it was ragged and everything. Critics just don't seem to realise that musicians are people as well, and they can be hurt like anyone else.

"I don't hate critics, because that is silly, but I'd like to point out that they've probably depressed and discouraged Keith again. I hope they are proud of their achievement."

ROBERT WYATT
A BRIEF BIOGRAPHY

Born Bristol, moved to Dulwich and later to Canterbury at age of ten.

While at school, received tuition in piano, violin, trumpet and drums. Further tuition in drums from George Neidorf.

Became drummer/vocalist in local group The Wilde Flowers from 1964-66.

Drummer/vocalist of Soft Machine 1967-1971, appearing on the following recordings: "Rock Generation Vols. 7 & 8" (Byg), "The Soft Machine" and "Volume Two" (Probe), "Third" and "Fourth" (CBS)

During this period, also made a single with Jimi Hendrix (never released); did session work with Eric Burdon & The Animals; became occasional drummer of Kevin Ayers & The Whole World and made appearances on Ayers' records; accomplished solo album "The End Of An Ear" (CBS) and contributed to Daevid Allen's "Banana Moon" (Byg). Other peripheral activities; Symbiosis, Keith Tippett and Centipede.

Formed Matching Mole in December 1971. Group made two albums – "Matching Mole" and "Little Red Record" (CBS) – before parting company a year later.

Second incarnation of Matching Mole about to begin work in Summer 1973 when serious fall resulted in paralysis from waist down.

During six-month stay in hospital, composed the material for "Rock Bottom" subsequently recorded with Pink Floyd's Nick Mason producing. Released 26/7/74.

Album received ecstatic reviews. Newly recorded single "I'm A Believer"/ "Memories" released 6/9/74

from Programme for Drury Lane Concert
8 September 1974

> Zoom

JAZZNEWS

Wyatt makes solo debut

ROBERT WYATT, founder member of the poll-winning Soft Machine, and later leader of Matching Mole, makes his first appearance as a solo artist at tonight's second benefit concert at London's ICA building in the Mall, for the dependants of the late Mal Dean. Wyatt has been out of action for a year following a serious accident but has recently taken a back-seat role in performances by Hatfield and the North and Kevin Ayers.

For a brief period around 1970, Wyatt drummed with the Amazing Band, the free jazz ensemble fronted by Mal in his trumpeting days.

At the ICA, Wyatt will be featured singing and playing keyboards and will have sporadic accompaniment from Gary Windo and Lol Coxhill (reeds). Also appearing will be Pete Brown with Mama Flyer, Mike Horowitz (poetry and kazoo), Adrian Mitchell, and the Spontaneous Music Ensemble featuring Trevor Watts and Evan Parker (saxes), Derek Bailey (electric guitar), Roger Smith (accoustic guitar) and John Stevens (drums and noises off).

Lol Coxhill will also play a solo set. Admission is 50p. There is a well displayed exhibition of Mal's cartoons now adorning the ICA corridors. Altogether, an evening not to be missed.

FRONT ROW REVIEWS

Robert Wyatt/ Drury Lane

Even though the gig was due to start at 8.30, Drury Lane had started to clog up with earnest-looking hippies nearly two hours before the event.

Mind you, it all adds to the sense of occasion, but the regrettably prosaic explanation was that someone had neglected to inscribe the precise time of showing on either the tickets or the ads.

So it goes.

T'ings kicked off with a brief monologue by the newlywed Dancing Jack Peel, clad in his most glam rock outfit. Undeterred by shouts of "Boring" from certain sections of the audience — all right then, from me — he intoned for a few moments and then vacated the stage to Ivor Cutler and Phyllis April King, who provided a highly amusing interlude of deadpan poesies and brief songs, which were received with great merriment by the assembled company.

So it goes.

After a discreet intermission, Dancing Jack cartwheeled dynamically back onto the stage. Through mobile, well-shaped lips he enunciated (rather devastatingly, it must be admitted) "For Robert Wyatt of Twickenham, Opportunity Knocks!"

Mr. Wyatt perambulated rapidly to a strategic area between a small mixer ("These knobs don't actually do anything — they just give me something to do with my hands") and a keyboard set-up ("At rehearsals I couldn't find a position from where I could play these, so I probably won't play them. Still, they look good").

He ran through a good-naturedly rickety version of Hugh Hopper's "Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening," backed up by Hopper himself on bass, Laurie Allan on drums, Fred Frith on violin and Dave Stewart on keyboards, the first trickles of the mighty wave of superstars that was doon to swampt the stage.

(The preceding sentence comes to you courtesy of 36 back numbers of "Conan The Barbarian").

Most of the material from Wyatt's "Rock Bottom" found its way into the front half of the set (and in case you need to be re-told, it's a wondrous album indeed).

Towards the end of "A Last Straw", a diffident young man with an unmistakable "I-am-a-junior-roadie" demeanour wandered on, played a bit of synthesiser and wandered off.

It wasn't until he reappeared half an hour later with a Gibson SG strapped around him, that the audience sussed that this dynamic figure was in fact none other than Mike Oldfield, the man with Britain's two best-selling albums to his name, one of which had been blasted through the P.A. during the intermissions.

However, it was undoubtedly Wyatt's show, despite the superstars who wandered on and off — y'know, yer Nick Masons, Gary Windos, that bunch.

Swaying in his wheelchair playing ghost drums, fiddling with the dials of his mixer with one hand, clutching a mike with the other and his eyes squeezed tight shut, he was unquestionably the focal point of the proceedings, and folks, he's singin' better than ever.

Unfortunately Julie Tippett's contribution to the festivities rather derailed things. After joining Wyatt and Co. in one song, she was left along tootling merrily on a recorder and humming into it occasionally.

This was followed by two songs at de piano, performed extremely nervously, and a number with Wyatt, Windo and trumpeter Mongezi Feza, which could well have been called "Dedicated To You But You Ran Out Of The Room Screaming for Aspirin."

Ms Tippett's voice is still as compelling as ever, but her stiff uncertain piano playing and the lugubriousness of her songs provided a rather dead area in the middle of the set, which eventually climaxed with a thoroughly berserk version of "I'm A Believer" with some singularly dirty rhythm guitar from Oldfield.

Generally, the show veered from the sublime to the ridiculous, with the sublime firmly in the lead.

80 per cent of it was very fine indeed, and the more gig Robert Wyatt feels like undertaking the better.

Wheel meet again.

> Zoom

ORDER OF EVENTS

FIRST

IVOR CUTLER and PHYLLIS APRIL KING

with a selection of songs and poems

NEXT THE INTERMISSION AND THEN

ROBERT WYATT	vocals
DAVE STEWART	keyboards
HUGH HOPPER	bass
LAURIE ALLAN	drums
FRED FRITH	guitar, violin
MIKE OLDFIELD	guitar
JULIE TIPPETT	vocals
GARY WINDO	bass clarinet, tenor saxophone
MONGEZI FEZA	trumpet
NICK MASON	drums

PLAYING

Sea Song	Robert Wyatt
A Last Straw	Robert Wyatt
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road	Robert Wyatt
Alifie	Robert Wyatt
Alifib	Robert Wyatt
Dedicated To You But You Weren't Listening	Hugh Hopper
God Song	Phil Miller/Robert Wyatt
Instant Pussy	Robert Wyatt
Signed Curtain	Robert Wyatt
Calyx	Phil Miller/Robert Wyatt
Memories	Hugh Hopper
I'm A Believer	Neil Diamond

LIGHTING	Andra Larson, Tony Winall
SOUND MIXING	Peter Wade
STAGE ASSISTANCE	Nick Levitt, Chris Levitt

> Zoom

Wyatt stories on the air

Hannah Charlton reports from Rome. Pic by A. Roggero

ROBERT WYATT, Madame Mao, a Rome radio studio? The connection might seem a little tenuous, but in fact it's sewn up neatly in the adventurous and creative airwaves beamed out from a corner of the imposing edifice of the RAI, the Italian equivalent of the BBC.

Radio as a voice to stop you in your tracks, to be more than a background mollifier, has been the aim and the result of a programme called "Un Certo Discorso", which was virtually a slogan during the political furore during the mid Seventies in Italy.

The youth movement, disenchanted with the promises of the Communist party, were calling out for "A Kind of Dialogue" on a positive sense. This then became the talking point title for a series of programmes which has been going out every day for an hour and a half in mid afternoon since 1977. It has broadcast some extraordinarily good material, from mime, theatre to workshops to large-scale concerts with the RAI modern rhythm orchestra playing compositions by Gil Evans, George Russell and British free players Paul Rutherford, Barry Guy and Evan Parker.

Radio has been highly significant in Italy over the last five or six years, when frequency regulations were stopped and a host of pirate stations were set up. Between two and three hundred appeared in Rome alone, since anyone with the basic equipment could broadcast. These pirate stations were either political – allied to a party – or commercial, operating very much on the advert-chatdee formula.

Now the border is over, the political pirates are floundering for lack of revenue and the commercial ones offer only blandness. The state radio RAI, on the other hand, has the funding for experiments and for far-reaching, creative radio programmes.

Producer Pasquale Santoli, a quietly sharp figure in his early thirties, heads a young, dynamic team of writers bubbling with ideas as to how to present music and culture. He reckons it's the job of the RAI to produce and offer a cultural voice with a difference.

He says: "We wanted to use the specific role of the radio to give listeners a different point of view on music and culture. Normally radio is an amplifier of the point of view and the products of the culture and record industry. We have tried to be a totally different identity and voice, and especially to give airtime to independent labels because they're more interesting."

Certainly ideas buzz round, with a lot of theory about the role of radio in mass communication. And yet, beyond all the talk, the practical results are astounding, with a complete rethink on the presentation of music: "We wanted to get away from the traditional role of the disc jockey and try and focus the attention of the audience on the way different sorts of music can fit into a bigger dialogue".

This could be recorded sound or written texts, with a complete cross-section of music breaking away completely from any sort of categorisation of programmes into rock, jazz, classical, folk and so on.

MAMMOTH

A current mammoth project is to gather material for three months – live recordings, sound recordings – which will then be transformed into a series of ninety programmes. Which is where Robert Wyatt comes in . . .

In his case, the Italian team had dreamed up a basic theme which was fed to him over the telephone. It was intended as a springboard, no more, no less, for him to work for a week in the Rome radio studio. All facilities were laid on, with a team of excellent engineers and even the offer of the RAI big band if they fitted into his schedule of things.

Teresa DeSanto, a young rock writer and one of the "Un Certo Discorso" team, had come up with the notion of looking at the history of China through the eyes of Jiang Qing, Mao's widow, since the trial of the Gang of Four threw up a host of questions and issues. A tall order, but a great opportunity for Robert Wyatt, who is held in great esteem in Italy – almost as a sort of elder statesman for the Rough Trade music.

He explained that before coming to Rome he'd got out his Chinese records, some Chinese poetry and a book on the opium wars which had been a way into the whole topic for him, because thinking about the British imperialist role in China had been the key to how to be Robert Wyatt in an Italian radio studio talking about China and history on a personal level.

When I arrived in the studio, he'd already been hard at work for three days and admitted, cheerfully, to extreme nervousness at the start: "I just sat down with the same sort of blank frenzy as when you're doing O-levels." The fourth day he was laying down track after track; hi-hat tic-tocs for the passing of time, then a bass line on piano. Slowly the material emerges from its chrysalis form into a song called "Born Again Cretin" (this being a play on the "Onward Christian Soldiers" mentality) which is about Nelson Mandela, the imprisoned black South African leader.

Robert murmurs a distorted incantation, pre-vocal babbling and then the words emerge. . . . The opium wars track is the result of an immense amount of information being rushed through at high volume, from an impersonal BBC-type voice to an inquisitingly aggressive whisper. On both of these tracks, Robert turns to the idea of a voice struggling to break through on crowded airwaves, coming through the shortwave crackle in bursts. It's very much the result of his own sifting through the world's radio waves, listening for different messages. And it might be just that garbled, distorted voice that is giving another version of the news.

Then there's a break for some good-humoured Italo-English communication with engineers Roberto Carapelluci and Giorgio Sala, and afterwards the tape is played of the wordless "Heathens Have No Souls" which follows the Nelson Mandela song. In this, the only voice is disembodied; it's that of a mountain jew's harp because – do voices have a chance? Pessimistic?

But at the same time, Robert has had the chance to explore a much greater area of thought than usual: "This was a big opportunity to do so many things at once. Normally I get one idea a month and maybe one opportunity to do something with it. This was a chance to expand ideas, to bring in life outside the music business which is just one big fashion industry.

"It's great here because ideas are shared and that's unusual, because normally for recording you have to obtain money for studio time and aim a particular recording for a particular product. Here they wanted to see a musician's work in progress so it wasn't necessary to have a finished product.

"It's not like a concert . . . it's more to show the process and I can't imagine that happening in England. Some of the ideas will come out, some of them won't – it's a fantastic chance to work more freely."

This ties up very closely with Pasquale Santoli's ideas, and in fact the invitations to Robert Wyatt, Fred Frith and others mark a fresh direction for the programme. Pasquale explains: "We're used to listening to music as a finished product, signed, sealed and delivered. If you write a letter and scrap the first attempt, that's just as interesting as what you finally write, so we wanted to look at the different drafts, to show the work in progress. Then we can use the drafts in different ways, maybe just play one of Robert's tracks, or mix them differently."

This is a long way from the accepted idea of a passive listener and an active producer; this programme encourages listeners to be creative. "In fact we get criticised because listeners say they can't get on with anything while the programme is on, which means they have to make a choice to participate, it can't just be background noise.

"Some listeners wrote in to say they didn't only listen, but they played along, so why not use Robert's drum tracks and leave people free to play what they want. . . "

As well as inviting musicians to come and play in the studio, the team are also collecting recorded material to be used in the final mix. So Sabina Sacchi is out on the streets chasing up vocalese from bars, markets, farmyards, school playgrounds and the shouted chats of gondoliers across the water in Venice.

Throbbing Gristle and Franco Fabbri of Stormy Six (the long-standing Italian group which formed part of Rock In Opposition) will play in the studio. But now, with Robert Wyatt's week over, it is Fred Frith's turn. He was invited to think about the substance of the blues for his work.

OPPRESSION

Originally he was not attracted to the idea: "What has a white, middle class Englishman got to say about the blues, which comes out of black oppression?"

But then he realised that he had spent several years playing the blues, and worked on material which was a personal reaction to that music. From the first day of recording it was hard to see what the end result would be. He began working meticulously through a tight schedule of tracks, from the sound of a toy factory – produced with the help of Karen Irving and Miles Boisen – to vocal and guitar tracks which were then transformed into tape loops and fed into the mixing machine.

What will happen to it all, only the Italian listeners will know – unless shortwave listeners elsewhere start twiddling knobs. What is clear is that ambitious, creative radio is being produced down there in Rome. It's a real voice with a real difference.

From hippy underground to the Communist Party

Musician and Communist ROBERT WYATT talks to Karl Dallas about his music and political commitments.

"How long can I pretend music's more important than fighting for a Socialist world?" (Robert Wyatt, Matching Mole's Little Red Record — 1972).

AT the height of Mrs. Thatcher's Falklands adventure, when even Neil Kinnock was joining the national swing to Victorian-style jingoism, an unlikely single climbed high in the charts. Written by rock cult figure Elvis Costello, Shipbuilding linked together the morality of production for war and the casualty figures coming in from the South Atlantic in a way that was dangerous in its understatement.

The singer was Robert Wyatt, once a leading figure in the 1960s hippy underground, when he played drums with the avant garde jazz rock group, the Soft Machine, but now a proudly confessed Communist.

Alert intensity

You must have seen Robert at various events around London, from the People's Press Publishing Society AGM to the social for expelled comrades at County Hall—wheelchair-bound, his straggly beard and hair framing a face whose intelligent eyes never miss anything that's going on, inevitably sharing ideas with a group of friends and comrades, including his constant companion, his wife Alfie.

He used to be a powerful drummer, until a disastrous accident at a party left him paraplegic, paralysed from the hips down, and so unable to continue playing, though it is a tribute to his strength of will that he has continued to make intriguing, demanding, appealing music over the past decade.

Over that time, he has often recorded other people's material, ranging from Victor Jara's lovely lyric, Te Recuerdo Amanda, to the Monkees' I'm a Believer, issued as a single as a record-company ploy to get him a bit of "charts credibility," from a Namibian freedom song (also issued as a single) to the wartime American pro-Soviet song, Stalin Wasn't Stallin."

Now, however, he has produced an album of original songs, Old Rottenhat (Rough Trade ROUGH 69), which gives us the full authentic Wyatt voice — concerned, a little quirky at times, but unmistakably individual.

It's interesting to talk to Robert about the way he feels his Communist Party membership liberated him, instead of penning him into a false kind of "social realism."

"I don't make any particular concessions to any idea of popular taste," he told me.

"In fact one of the things I liked, when I joined the party, started reading the paper and meeting people outside show business, was that I was liberated from a previous era where people were barricaded into their cultural groups, where you had people who only wanted to hear folk music or people who only wanted to hear classical or people like Pete Townshend who thought that rock 'n' roll was the only modern working-class urban popular music.

"People got really ghettoised by that, and I found that you had to jettison all that in the party because you were meeting people with totally different tastes and inclinations.

"You had priorities in common about supporting organised labour, about defending the Soviet Union, whatever it might have been, which transcended your cultural habits completely. And I found that very liberating."

Listening to the lyrics of the songs on the new album, with titles like The British Road and lyrics like "While Martin Jacques and Robert Maxwell play with printers ink, the workers round the world still die from Rio Tinto Zinc," it becomes clear that Robert Wyatt has graduated from the vague aspirations of 1968 hippiedom to a concrete understanding of the realities of today's world in a way denied even to Pink Floyd's Roger Waters, who has also made a similar attempt at growth, but without Wyatt's political dimension.

Interesting

When I tackled him on the way his songs addressed themselves specifically to the problems affecting the Communist Party he joined shortly after his accident his comments were an interesting commentary upon the way his commitment to Third World liberation—made clear by the anti-apartheid poster nailed to his front door—informs his consideration of more domestic matters.

"I don't really think that the Second World War ever ended. I think the Third World War started with the dropping of the atom bomb on Japan, and I think it's still going on and we're all part of it.

"I think the rich countries are waging what I would call a war against the poor, that's how it looks to me, although it's disguised in hundreds of different ways.

"Of course we all support The British Road to Socialism, but I've heard that idea abused to the point where it becomes a new chauvinism.

"It's the most reasonable proposition in the world, but in fact the impulses that I've seen working behind it are a very sophisticated kind of racism, what I call the new racism.

"It's the racism of 'we don't do things like that here,' a nice English way of doing things, and, of course, if you don't look too much at what nice English companies like Rio Tinto Zinc are doing in Namibia you can get the impression that we are indeed a terribly nice reasonable bunch.

"If you don't look too hard at what police do on picket lines, you can think that we have the nicest policemen in the world and so on.

"But beneath this veneer the same bastards are in the saddle. I've seen people use the idea of our own road simply to justify a new kind of sophisticated racism which downgrades international solidarity really on the grounds that foreigners aren't up to it, they keep embarrassing us by being so rough and tough in their revolutions and the best thing is to have nothing more to do with all these horrid people with guns and uniforms and to disappear and just join Friends of the Earth.

"I know the feeling because I remember the hippy era. That's what we all thought in the '60s. It's exactly realising the total inadequacy and hypocrisy of all that led me to the Communist Party.

"And then finding someone's trying to drag me back to that, out of what's called realism but what I call out of cowardice, it's deeply upsetting and really irritating."

It is interesting to me that, with this political commitment, he hasn't produced an album of agit-prop like the sort of things Cornelius Cardew composed after he was drawn to revolutionary politics — though Wyatt has a high regard for Cardew.

Terrible discovery

"The songs on the album are a lugubrious bunch. There's this thing about political songwriters protesting at Thatcherite Britain, but I don't think that's really what I'm about.

"I'm actually talking about the terrible discovery I felt I made in the late '70s, about the time I joined the Communist Party in fact.

"One of the reasons I joined it was that the kind of liberal society that we lived in was basically one face of a very right-wing society.

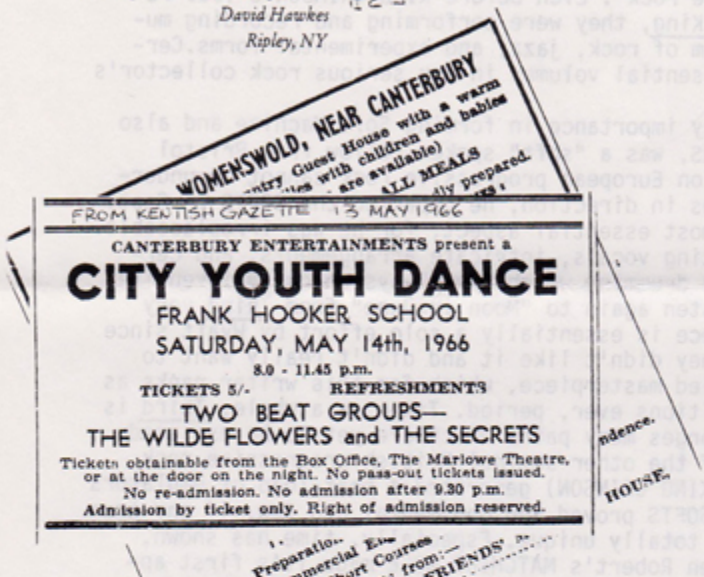
"I was brought up to believe that if you're a nice liberal person and personally anti-racist and nice to people this would somehow represent some Aquarian future or something like that.

"It's a very infantile and naive idea of how to improve the world, it's about power and who has it and people don't give it up because you ask nicely.

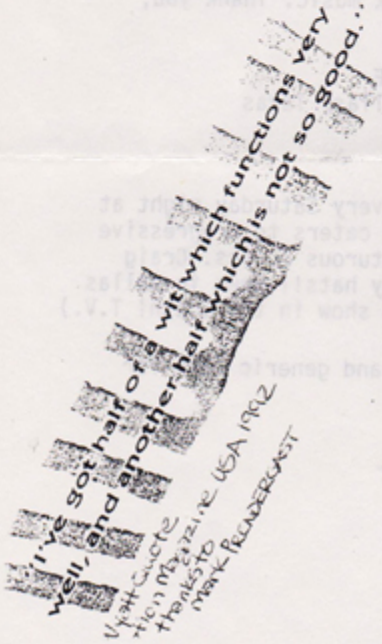
"Like Fidel Castro says: 'I'm fed up with sending love-letters to the IMF.'

Robert Wyatt in a thoughtful mood.

"So what I'm saying is that I feel as distant from western liberalism which sees itself as an opposition to that right wing as I do to the right wing, because I see them as two horses pulling the same cart.



"So it's a rather sad and frightened record because I see all the parties available, including our own, being sucked into this liberal-right consensus an find it suffocating.



"I find that in order to tance myself from it I have risk being called an extremist whatever it is.

"I don't feel like an extren I feel like a perfectly nor human being. So I'm trying sort out all those pressures some of the songs."

Metaphorically, in the music biz supermarket you'll find the glossy romance novels (Madonna, C&C Music Factory) in the checkout lane alongside the comic books (Van Halen, Bon Jovi, etc.). The classic literature (R. Wyatt, B. Nelson), on the other hand, is on the dusty, private library shelves and in the unpublished manuscripts.

David Hawkes
Ripley, NY

Given their shared public persona as Wayward English Genius, and their common outernational outlook and political commitment, then a collaboration between the singular talents of Robert Wyatt and Jerry Dammers was perhaps inevitable. Less predictable was that the freedom fighters of South West Africa would effect the encounter. The Namibian Support Committee asked Wyatt to sing and Dammers to produce a benefit single for them, specifically for their Repression and Political Prisoners Campaign. The result – "The Wind Of Change/When I Think About My Country" – has just been released by Rough Trade and is as fine and powerful a record as the duo's respective past glories would suggest. Both sides are deft adaptations of Namibian songs. The first is a swaggering singalong with fat ska horns and tingling African guitars or as Wyatt puts it, "basically a group of exhortations and morale boosting one liners." The flip is a pulsing Afrobeat rap delivered by a Namibian student of agriculture resident here, and illuminating the horrors of the prisons maintained by South Africa in a country it occupies illegally, in defiance of UN resolutions. The brutalities of the South African occupation have not stopped Britain importing huge quantities of Namibian uranium, which is now destined to be a mainstay of the Trident programme. Both men enthuse about the venture, and Wyatt was beguiled by the fabled Dammers exactitude in the studio. "I usually make records in about the same time as it takes to play them," he admits, "it was a real lesson." The central concern of both, though, remains the overlooked plight of Namibia and the banned South West Africa People's Organisation, SWAPO. As Wyatt explains: "The South Africans are trying to deal with SWAPO the same way as the ANC; trying to pretend that it's not representative of the people, that it's only a revolutionary elite. But you only have to read a book like John Ya Otta's Battlefront Namibia to see that SWAPO is as near as possible to the genuine voice of the Namibians." Dapper Dammers, back from a New Music Seminar panel on South Africa, concurs: "The feeble attempts at reforms which have been so well publicised are just cracks in the structure of apartheid, they can't keep it going. When South Africa is free we'll find that in music and culture it will be a world leader. Certainly the SA revue Amandla was the first time I've seen electric pop guitar music presented as a revolutionary force." Do pop and politics mix? Is Africa a big place? "Politics is about power," answers Wyatt. "It affects everything you do – what you eat, what you listen to, what conversations you have. Even if you don't consciously engage in politics your responsibility to yourself as an artist is to reclaim the issues." Neil Spencer Namibia Support Committee: PO Box 16, London NW5 2LW.

> Zoom

ROBERT WYATT: AN APPRECIATION

Since we're all part of the Soft Machine*, let's give some credit where it's due. The SOFTS, along with PINK FLOYD were the pioneers who developed the musical genre known as "progressive rock". Even before KING CRIMSON'S 1969 release In the Court of the Crimson King, they were performing and recording music which was an astounding amalgam of rock, jazz, and experimental forms.Certainly their early releases are essential volumes in any serious rock collector's library.

The person who was of primary importance in forming Soft Machine and also it's predecessor, THE WILDE FLOWERS, was a "soft" spoken fellow from Bristol named Robert Wyatt. His influence on European progressive rock cannot be underestimated. When, due to differences in direction, he departed the SOFTS in Sept. of 1971, the group had lost it's most essential aspect, for he was irreplaceable. Gone forever was the humour, haunting vocals, intricate arrangements, and certainly not least, his transcendent drumming which was always uniquely inventive and exciting. Take the time to listen again to "Moon in June" from Third very carefully, and be amazed!! The piece is essentially a solo effort by Wyatt since the other band members decieded they didn't like it and didn't really want to play on it. Yet, it's an unqualified masterpiece, which for this writer ranks as one of the absolute finest compositions ever, period. Taken as a whole, Third is an extremely mature effort that forges many paths which are yet to be explored today, over 22 years later. All of the other seminal British progressive rock bands (YES, E.L.P., GENESIS, and KING CRIMSON) generated a boat-load of emulators and wanna-bes. To do so with the SOFTS proved too monumental and few, if any true attempts made, since they were so totally unique. Especially, time has shown, Robert Wyatt is one-of-a-kind. When Robert's MATCHING MOLE made it's first appearance, they were very misunderstood by the critics and underated. It took a brave and happy crew to perform such silly, bold, and thoroughly charming music. Those who knew their music remember them fondly to this day.

And so Robert continues his subtle musical odyssey with the release of his current album, Dondestan, another cause for joy amongst Wyattphiles. Another opportunity to hear one of the most important "mouths"in rock music. Thank you, Robert; we are still listening.

CRAIG SHROPSHIRE
K.E.R.A. FM, Dallas, Texas

(Craig hosts a weekly radio programme on K.E.R.A. 90.1fm every Saturday night at 1 a.m. through 6 a.m.[which's actually Sunday morn!!]. He caters to progressive rock heads with his soulful blend of old and modern adventurous musics. Craig is also our Senior Writer, contributor, and wearer of many hats!! When in Dallas Texas, listen to Craig's show; it's the best goddamn radio show in the South! T.V.)

NOTE*: Soft Machine being the Williams S. Burroughs novel and generic term for the human race.

Reprinted from Vol I Issue 1 by request

> Zoom

MY FAVOURITE WYATT SOLO RECORDINGS

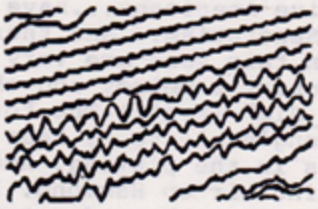
This list of five took me two weeks of contemplation, listening, and list-making!! But if I could only make the usual Greatest Hits package (without the record companies' influence or red-tape), and I only would have this CD on the desert island...

Terry the Iberian

1."TEAM SPIRIT" (MacCormick, Manzanera, Wyatt)-My favourite track of all. With the above mentioned collaborators playing, this track also features the talents of George Khan wailing the Sax solo.Hey, is that Gary Windo joining in on Tenor at around the 3:48 mark, adding that twist of Ayler?!! Robert's voice is remarkable, and the words are a twist of visions that always has you singing along. Amazing song!
2."Sight of the Wind"(Benge,Wyatt)-My Wife, collaborator, confidant, and best friend of seven years, Tonja, and I once made love on the beach one anniversary to this song. It's both of our favourites (not just for the sentimental reasons, squire), as we always bring Dondestan on our beach trips. The visions the words and music weave in the mind are echos of the ocean. It is a satori in itself, this song. I think I will go play it now, since it will always turn me on, ever to be.
3."United States of Amnesia"(Wyatt)-Being born and raised (razed?) in these United States, I feel this song rings true. Sure, I was a college student who dabbled in Marx, Engles, Chomsky, and Henry Cow, and I still have very Left Wing ties...label what you will. It's a fucking shame that we screwed the native Americans...have a dominant youth culture tied to neo-Nazi Aryan Seperatism...and there are so many streetcrimes.. The issues brought up in this song are very evident, now, nine years after it's recording. Robert's melody and chordings are just perfect.
4."To Caravan & Brother Jim"-(Wyatt)-The total spectrum of Robert's 1970 influnces are on this song's sleeve. I hear lots of Tony Williams, and Ayler, Mingus, and Softs in the playing. And of course, the mighty dose of Caravan from David Sinclair on Hammond. I also love the echoed drum sound, the pulse of the piano, the understated melody. When programmed to repeat via CD, it becomes a mantra of sorts (I once played it over 15 times consecutively while doing Kundalini breathing).
5."A Short Break"-(Wyatt)-This is anew one that appears on Robert's new CD5 available from VOICEPRINT U.K. at your local import shop or catalogue. It sounds like it was meant from recording after listening to 78RPM Jazz records. Very modern in this hip new phase of lo-fi mania (bands like SEBADOH and PAVEMENT are popular due to lo-fi's new surge), yet it echos Robert's ever forward philosophy of looking to the past for now. This song rolls you a stride piano phrase, an indeciferable lyric, and a counter melody that is stressed as the dominant solo. Very new in it's sounds, and a seemingly new feel to Robert's composing. This newest on Robert's block makes anticipation easy for his next projects.

HONORABLE MENTIONS go to "TO CARLA, MARSHA, AND CAROLINE", "SEA SONG", "grass", and "THE AGE OF SELF". Hey now, I guess "MOON IN JUNE" counts as a solo recording!!!!

> Zoom



Ultramarine

ULTRAMARINE
INFORMATION

SJM CONCERTS presents
ULTRAMARINE
+ SPOOKY
THURSDAY 23rd SEPTEMBER 1993
Doors 7:30 p.m.
UNRESERVED
£5 (Advance)
OVER 18's ONLY 00223

Students Union

Ultramarine
Freepost CV 744
14 Newbold Terrace
Leamington Spa
CV32 4 BR

voiceprint
P.O. Box 5, County Durham, DH9 1HR.

VP108CD ROBERT WYATT "A SHORT BREAK"

This mini CD ("A Short Break" from starting work on his next major recording) features completely new material recorded at home, during summer 1992. The music is typically Robert Wyatt:- raw, emotive individual and unique. A subtle blend of:- voice, keyboard and percussion to produce five exquisite pieces of music.

Priced at £5.75 inc p&p

Other releases from Voiceprint by:-

DAEVID ALLEN, NIC POTTER, DAVID JACKSON, GORDON HASKELL, MOTHERGONG, GUY EVANS, DAVID BEDFORD, MAGICK BROTHERS, TERRY OLDFIELD and others.....

Please write enclosing an SAE or IRC for a catalogue of current and future releases, to the address above.

We look forward to hearing from you soon. Many Thanks!

MUSIC DEALERS

JEFF BAKER, R.D. 2, Box 294, Camden, DE 19934 USA
DISTRIBUTIONS MEZZO, C.P. 88-051, Succ. Victor-Longueuil, Longueuil, Quebec CANADA J4H 1C8
GARDEN SHED, 3A Daiichi-Shida Bld. 7-16-15, Naka-Shinjuku, Shinjuku-Ku, Tokyo 160 JAPAN
GLOBAL MUSIC DISTRIBUTORS, PO Box 103, Greendale WI 53129 USA
ROBERTO GONÇALVES, CX Postal 44082 - Posto 5, Copacabana - Rio de Janeiro CEP-22062-970, BRAZIL
HIP CAT RECORDS, 1089 W Dundee, Wheeling IL 60090 USA
KINESIS, 1400 Wing Ct, Hanover MD 21076 USA
LASER'S EDGE, PO Box 3128, Hoboken NJ 07030 USA
LINDEN MUSIC, PO Box 530, Linden VA 22642 USA
MARQUEE, 404 ST BLG 3-15-18, Shimo-Ochiai, Shinjuku-Ku, Tokyo 161, JAPAN
MUSEA, 68 La Touchotte, 5717 Retorfey, FRANCE
PROGRESSIVE RECORDS, PO Box 598, Hayward CA 94543 USA
SYN-PHONIC RECORDS, PO Box 2034, La Habra CA 90631 USA
WAYSIDE MUSIC, PO Box 8427, Silver Springs MD 20907 USA
ZNR RECORDS, PO Box 36040, Louisville KY 40256 USA

Gramavision, 260 W. Broadway, NY, NY 10013

> Zoom

OLD ROTTENHAT'S JOURNAL

The contents of this newsletter cannot be reproduced in any manner without the permission of the publishers. All contents are copyright Avant God Holdings.

Though we claim to be a functioning release from Avant God, we have only "sketchy" publishing deadlines. We try like hell to at least have our triannual issues out in late Summer, New Years, and Fall!! All submissions will alrespond with the first available issue hensforth. Confusing? Watch the mail for future deadlines in our linear-newswatch N.I.O.(which is also severely undeadlined). All submissions will be returned if accompanied by a self-addressed stamped package, or will be stored in our archieves.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are based on the three issue rate annually of $5.00, with back issues available at $2.00. ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE FOR THE SOLE BENEFIT OF KEEPING THIS INFO SOURCE and FAN CLUB IN EXISTANCE. Thanks for your cards, letters of support, and interest in the World's Greatest Progressive Musician.

CONTRIBUTING WRITERS, RESEARCH, and SUBMISSIONS DEPARTMENT:

TERRY R. VALDERAS: Editor, Publisher, Writer, Drummer, and Tristano Fan

CRAIG SHROPSHIRE: Writer, Chef, D.J., Research, and one Prog-Rock Bible

TONJA M. VALDERAS: Layout, Design, at the Beach, Plays Guitar and Sings

HAWTH BRIDGE: Contributing Writer, lives in Portland and never calls me

MIKE KING: Contributing Research, the most helpful man with nice advice

PLEASE SEND ALL SUBMISSIONS, CARDS, AND CHEQUES TO:

terry r. valderas
avant god publishing
1407 north bryant street
portland, oregon 97217
united states of amnesia

Inquiries for free advertising, tape trading, and LP swapping welcome!!

1993AVANTGODHOLDINGS,VALDERASPUBLISHINGGROUP...SERVINGFREEMINDSAFORUM..

> Zoom

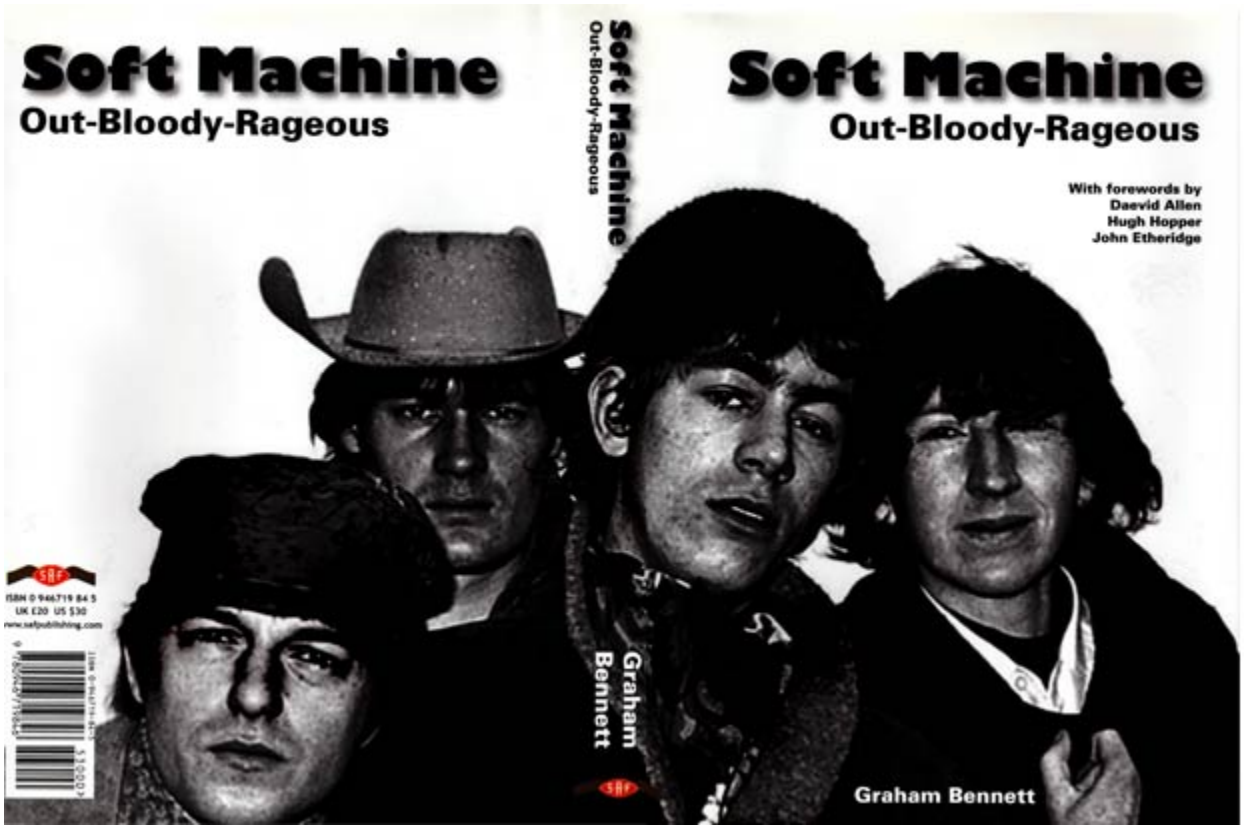

PHOTO CREDIT : CAROLINE FORBES

ROBERT WYATT

> Zoom

Out-Bloody-Rageous

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Une somme, une bible, que dis-je, un traité de plus de 400 pages, 850 grammes.

Publié en 2005 par Graham Bennett aux Editions SAF Publishing (London) - ouvrage culte et épuisé, mais négocié aujourd'hui (août 2014) entre 160 et 235 € sur Amazon, ce livre mérite qu'on s'y attarde un peu.

Graham Bennett reconstitue l'épopée chronologique d'un groupe qui eut la particularité de n'avoir plus aucun de ses membres d'origine dès 1976 (Soft Machine 18) et qui a réuni près de 30 musiciens différents au fil de ses 24 recompositions successives !

Dans une langue vivante et précise Graham décrit les multiples circonvolutions de ce collectif pas vraiment mou, de ses premiers pas - les fameuses early years... au dernier album "Land Of Cokayne" - qui reste pour moi une énigme - (Soft Machine 23) et jusqu'au dernier concert du 4 août 1984 au Ronnie Scott de Londres (Soft Machine 24).

Complété par plusieurs contributions personnelles (Daevid Allen, Hugh Hopper...), une riche iconographie et de nombreux appendices (concerts, arbre généalogique de la famille Soft Machine, discographie, recordings sessions, références radio-TV-films, "Que sont-ils devenus?"...), Out-Bloody-Rageous est bien l'indispensable livre de chevet de tout honnête fan et permet - ce qui n'est pas négligeable et peut même se révéler rentable - de rédiger un nombre illimité de questions rouges pour le jeu des mille francs.

"Avec quel illustre pianiste Soft Machine partagea-t-il l'affiche du concert du 18 novembre 1969 au Ronnie Scott de Londres ?"

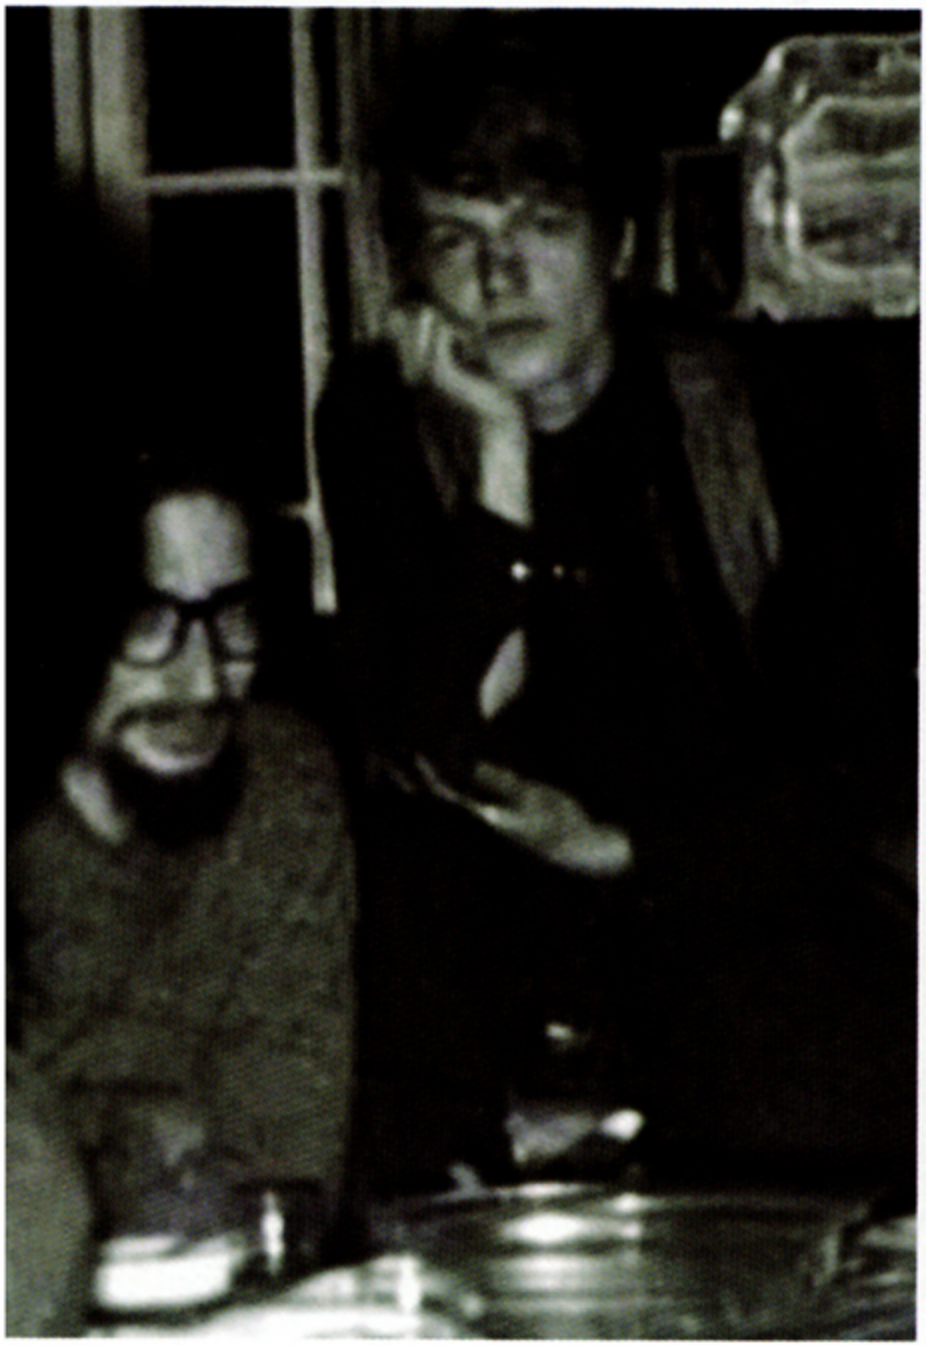
Ding Ding Ding Ding - Ding Dang Dong !



Réponse : Thélonious Monk !

CONTENTS

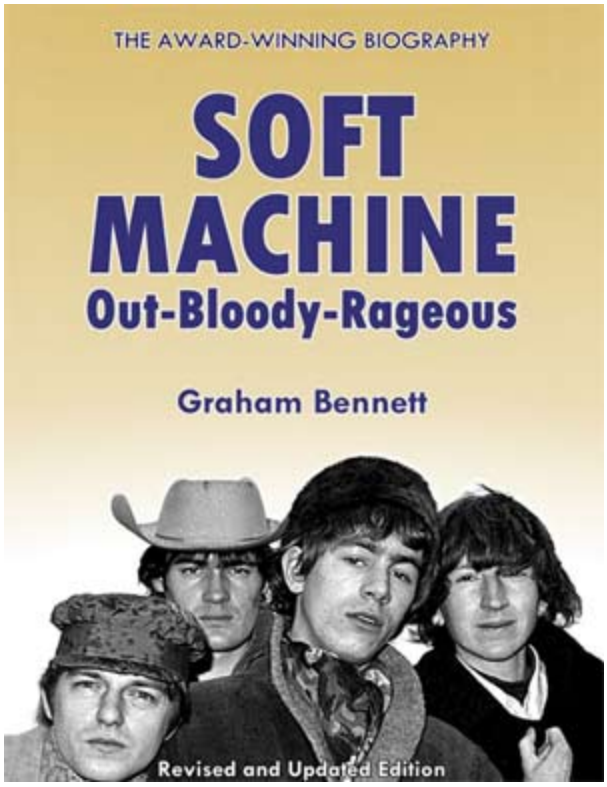
	Preface	9
	Foreword by Daevid Allen	15
	Foreword by Hugh Hopper	17
	Foreword by John Etheridge	18
	PROLOGUE: The Revelation	19
1	CANTERBURY CRADLE: The Early Years	23
2	WILDE TIMES: 1964–1966	53
3	A SINGLE-MINDED BAND: 1966–1967	75
4	A SOFT UFO AND THE UNDESIRABLE ALIEN: 1967	101
5	EXPERIENCING AMERICA: 1968	124
6	RESURRECTION: 1969	150
7	RESURGENCE: 1969–1970	169
8	THE THIRD DIMENSION: 1970	186
9	FISSION: 1970–1971	208
10	FUSION: 1971–1973	231
11	A NEW NUCLEUS: 1973–1974	254
12	END OF AN ERA: 1974–1976	273
13	GOING SOFTLY: 1976–1984	295
	EPILOGUE: The Lost Legacy	325
	APPENDICES	335
	Soft Machine Family Tree	336
	Concert File	342
	Discography	360
	Recording Sessions	381
	Radio, Television and Film Recordings	387
	The Softs After Soft Machine	394
	Further Reading	404
	Websites	407
	Index	408
	About the Author	413

Below: George Ellidge and Honor Wyatt in the front garden of Wellington House, with Robert (left) and Honor's daughter Prue (right).

Above: Robert at home in late 1961 with George Neidorf, the American drummer who gave him drum lessons in return for board and lodging.

Below: Discussions at Olympic Sound. Sitting to the right of Mike is the band's co-manager and co-producer, Chas Chandler. Mark Ellidge

Above left: At the end of 1969 Soft Machine found themselves down to a quintet, with Lyn Dobson and Elton Dean making up the brass section. This line-up was featured on the cover of VPRO's weekly radio and television magazine to highlight the Dutch television broadcast of part of their gig in Rotterdam on 28 February 1970.



Above right: Two gigs by Soft Machine in early 1970, in Kiel, Germany, on 21 January and the residency at Ronnie Scott's in April.

Below: Soft Machine, now reduced to a quartet, recording Third, IBC Studios, April 1970.

Ian Mathews on Some Days You Eat the Bear and Some Days the Bear Eats You and recorded a solo album, Jam Sandwich. Other recordings included work with Humble Pie, Alan Stivell and the Third Ear Band. He then became more interested in ethnic music and the way in which improvisation is used in various forms of music. More recently he has worked with people who have various disabilities, both physical and mental, using music as a healing technique.

Robert Wyatt left Soft Machine in 1971 with no clear plans for the future, but within a few months he had formed Matching Mole. The band released two albums within a year but split in late 1972. It was during this period that he met Alfreda Benge, the woman who was to become his wife and life-long partner. In June 1973, before Robert had succeeded in refocusing his musical career, he broke his back in a fall from a fourth-floor window during a party. Paralyzed from the waist down, Robert was forced to give up drumming and turn his musical talents to other instruments, mainly keyboards. A year after his accident he released Rock Bottom (working again with Hugh Hopper – "I have continued to use the tunes and bass guitar of Hugh Hopper, whose music has remained a source of great inspiration to me"), an unusual mix of love songs and melancholy pieces which received critical acclaim. Four months later Robert scored one of the most unlikely hits in the history of pop with a version of the Monkees' hit "I'm a Believer". 1975 saw the release of the jazzy Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard. The following years were relatively quiet in musical terms, but Robert returned to the limelight in the early 1980s with Nothing Can Stop and a series of singles, one of which, Elvis Costello's "Shipbuilding", gave Robert another hit in 1983. He followed this up in 1984 with the EP Work in Progress and in 1985 with the album Old Rottenhat. After another break of five years, during which Robert and Alfreda moved out of London to Lincolnshire, he returned in 1991 with a new album, Dondestan, which again received very favourable reviews. This was followed in 1992 by A Short Break. Yet again, Robert disappeared from view for the regulation five years, returning with the album Shleep in 1997 and then making a small number of live appearances with the band Soup Songs. In 2003 he released Cuckooland, which many reviewers considered to be his best album since Rock Bottom and won him a nomination for the 2004 Mercury Music Prize.

Revised and Updated Edition in 2014 (Kindle edition)

Preface to the Revised Edition

The publication of a revised edition of Soft Machine: Out-Bloody-Rageous provides an opportunity to update some of the information on the band. This is particularly the case for the discography which has benefited from a series of new releases, some of which are of great significance. In addition I have been able to refine parts of the biography and correct a few inaccuracies. In that respect I am grateful to Jon Newey, Jeff Sherman, Nick Loebner, John Trimble, Alan Grange and Vasco Pearce de Azevedo for providing further information that enhanced the narrative.

The Award for Excellence in Historical Recorded Sound Research from the Association for Recorded Sound Collections for Soft Machine: Out-Bloody-Rageous was an unexpected accolade. Although personally satisfying, the real significance of the award is that it shows the professionals at the ARSC recognize the musical importance of Soft Machine's work. It would be rewarding indeed if the award were to succeed in conveying this message to a broader audience.

On a more melancholy note, it is sad to have to recount that four figures who were central to the Soft Machine story passed away in the period since the biography was first published.

Kevin Ayers was a warm and modest man who took an unyielding sideways stance to music and the world around him. But he was also sharp enough to recognize a one-shot opportunity when it presented itself, as it did on Easter Sunday 1966. Quite simply, without Kevin there would have been no Soft Machine.

Hugh Hopper was one of the most prominent figures in Soft Machine's history, a musician who remained faithful to his artistic vision. But he was also an exceptionally amiable man, always willing to rack his memory in response to yet another question on an obscure detail from Soft Machine's history.

Producer - Gambit Of Shame

ABÉCÉDAIRE

En 1982, le groupe londonien Gambit Of Shame sort un single avec Robert Wyatt comme producteur. Le disque comporte deux titres 18/20 et No Bounds. Les cinq musiciens ont envoyé une cassette à R.W. et celui-ci, à leur grande surprise, a accepté de les produire.

Il est vrai qu'hormis Rock Bottom dont Nick Mason assurait la production, Robert Wyatt a toujours tenu à être son propre producteur. Une expérience qu'il a accepté de faire bénéficier à ce groupe pop qui apparait l'année suivante sur la cassette-compilation A Sudden Surge Of Power du label Cause For Concern en compagnie de Cultural Amnesia, Red Herring et, entre autres, Test Dept.

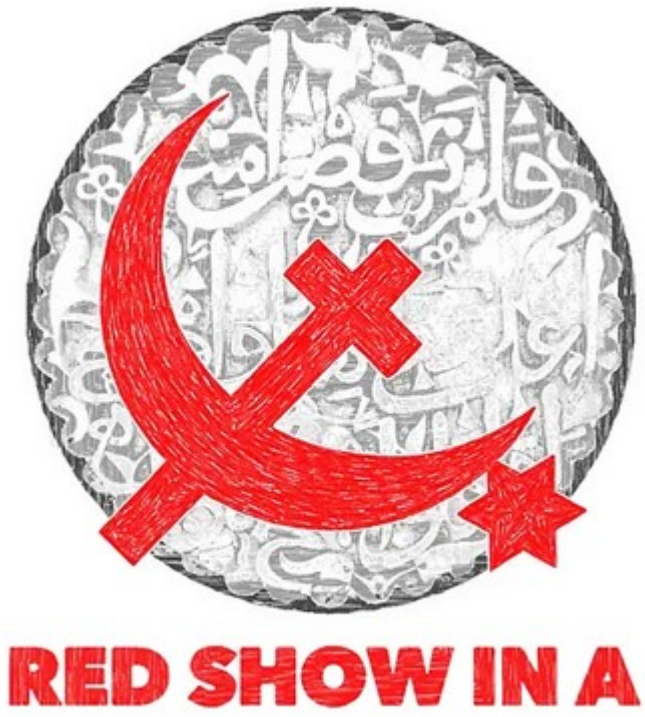
GAMBIT OF SHAME (DHE 7009) S

Ce disque, véritable collector, est aujourd'hui très difficile à trouver (aperçu une fois en vente sur eBay en 2004).

GAMBIT OF SHAME

- Lyndsey Beard - vocals
- Paul Mex - bass
- Gary Pinker - vocals
- Mike Wallis - guitar
- Amanda Ashley - cello
- Ray from Ritual - drums

En 2021, la compilation No Bounds (1979-82 Recordings) sort chez Dead Hedgehog Enterprises (195999053578). Elle contient No Bounds et 18 out 20, les deux morceaux produits par Robert Wyatt en 1982.



GAMBIT OF SHAME
NO BOUNDS [1979-82 RECORDINGS]

7 x 7 Project

ABÉCÉDAIRE

seven by seven
7x7
jean pierre muller

AN ART & MUSIC COLLECTIVE WITH JEAN PIERRE MULLER
IN COLLABORATION WITH ROBERT WYATT, ARCHIE SHEPP
SEAN O'HAGAN, MULATU ASTAKE, KASSIN, NILE RODGERS AND TERRY RILEY

RED SHOW IN A

The Red Show in A and its Alhambra For Today, conceived with Robert Wyatt's complicity, carry a deep reflection that resonates particularly in these times of confrontation. Before being premiered at WhiteBox, this gesamtkunstwerk (total artwork) was created in the artist's studio in Molenbeek, a part of Brussels that has risen to sudden fame as a so-called world-basis for Islamist terrorists.
Passing through seven gates (amongst which a Gate of the Crusaders, a Gate of Jihad, a Gate of Zion and a Gate of Harmony), hearing sounds, seeing lights and listening to Robert Wyatt's talking of the immense heritage of the Alhambra and Al-Andalus, the visitor is invited to reflect on notions like expulsion, coexistence, religion and beauty.
He can also listen to a splendid composition in A, Robert Wyatt last-ever composition, his ultimate legacy.

0:00 / 10:00

A - Alhambra Moon - by Robert Wyatt

A, FIRST NOTE OF THE SCALE / RED, FIRST COLOUR OF THE RAINBOW / MONDAY, FIRST DAY OF THE WEEK / DIANA, GODDESS OF THE MOON / MULADHARA, FIRST CHAKRA / THE SCENE : THE ALHAMBRA

A is for the Alhambra, the red palace. It's a nostalgic salute to Al-Andalus, when Spain was under Moorish rule and religions coexisted peacefully. Can there be a more glorious testimony of a mythical past? Glorious, not because of power or victory, but because of beauty, tolerance and cultural cross-fertilization. At least, this is the way we can dream of it. But the ruler here is the Moon. Everybody congregates under the tender yoke of Diana: Audrey Hepburn sings Moon River, Neil Armstrong gets ready to take off, Beethoven and Debussy hum their respective Moonshine sonatas. Moondog, the blind Viking of 6th Avenue, is the watchman of the moon rockets. The day is Monday, but it's a stormy one, as T-Bone Walker sings. Redcoats, redskins, red guards, red cards, red books or red roosters give the requisite scarlet touch. Yes, for sure, better red than dead.

Votre projet 7X7 part du postulat que les sept couleurs de l'arc-en-ciel correspondent aux sept notes d'une gamme, aux sept jours de la semaine, aux sept chakras… Après le Summerhall à Édimbourg en 2012 et 2013, vous exposez pour la première fois votre vision contemporaine de l'Alhambra à Grenade sur une musique de Robert Wyatt. Pourquoi le fondateur de Soft Machine a-t-il choisi la couleur rouge ?

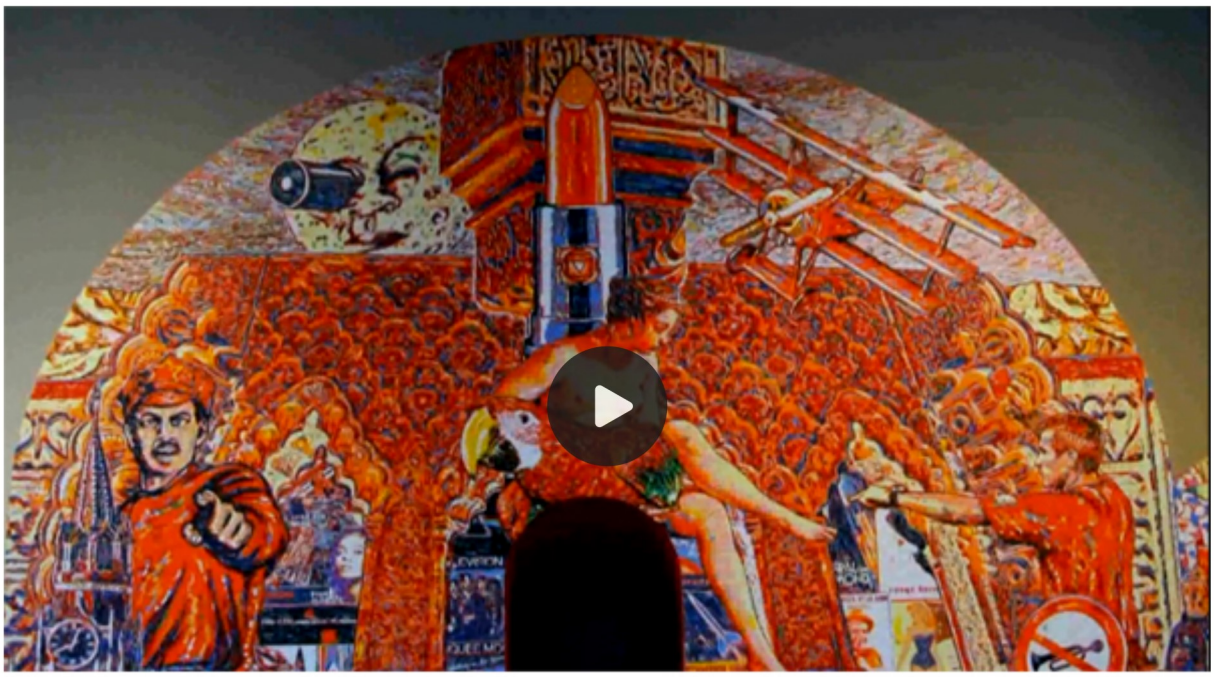
J'ai pensé que c'était pour le communisme et Robert me dit que l'Al-Hamra, en arabe, signifie rouge. Pour lui, c'était une façon d'adresser un salut nostalgique à l'Espagne musulmane où les religions coexistaient. Quand l'Alhambra est tombée, en 1492, un décret a consisté à expulser les juifs, suivi ensuite de l'expulsion des musulmans. Ayant mon atelier à Molenbeek, je trouvais intéressant d'assembler ces choses-là et de rêver à autre chose.

Les quatre portes conçues par Jean-Pierre Muller avec, au bout, « La bouche de la vérité » représentée par Robert Wyatt. © WHITEBOX.

"relationships based on trust and around concrete projects - in the city, in business and, of course, in art. The alliance of proximity and innovation, the role of civil societies, the quest for new forms of production based on durability and respect, all these factors could help us achieve a global transformation. We need to be ready for experimentation, for hybridity, for transversalities. We need to be ready for adventure. And that's where artists can play a role.

7x7 is a collective project based on the notion of respectful collaboration and cooperation, with each artist contributing what he does best in order to produce a hybrid object that creates a dialogue with the audience. It is hybrid in many ways, mixing music and painting, 2D and 3D, traditional representation and interactivity. But also because different music genres are brought together, and because it combines encyclopaedic objectivity with utter poetic subjectivity.

7x7 fully embodies the spirit of cooperation while representing a coherent body of work. The codes at the core of the concept, the very specific delimitations they imply, allowed the artists involved to express themselves with absolute freedom and integrity. This is what cooperation is about: giving the best of oneself, pushing the boundaries of one's creativity, of one's individual voice in a dialogue with another creator doing exactly the same with his own voice - the result being something neither of the (7x) two could have achieved alone: a fusion. But this spirit of fusion does not only touch the artist and composers. 7x7 is a celebration of our desire to connect, not least with one another. Through its explosion of iconic imagery, we find the joy of togetherness in our collective frames of reference. It is a way of experiencing our shared culture, our universal language.



7x7 is a project that can naturally grow and expand beyond the people who initiated it. With endless possibilities for transformation through collaboration, cooperation and, of course, imagination, it can become a cinema program, a culinary week or a children's playground." (JP.Muller.)

LE SOIR - 15 mars 2016

0:00 / 4:44

Müller, along with Robert Wyatt, Nile Rodgers, Terry Riley, Archie Shepp, Mulatu Astake, Sean O'Hagan and Kassin...

Wyatt

La Bocca della Verità

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Quarante ans c'est émouvant

ABÉCÉDAIRE

L'idée était tout de même foldingue : rejouer en concert la totalité de l'album Rock Bottom, quarante ans presque jour pour jour après sa sortie chez Virgin. Ceux qui lisent ces lignes savent qu'on ne plaisante pas avec ces choses là ! Comment rejouer l'injouable - au sens où la voix de Robert Wyatt habite l'oeuvre et se confond avec elle ? comment approcher - sinon juste insinuer - ces morceaux qu'on redécouvre à chaque nouvelle écoute et dans laquelle culminent l'émotion la plus fragile et l'écriture la plus subtile ?

Richard Robert, le programmateur des Nuits de Fourvière (Lyon) a eu cette incroyable idée et l'a menée à bon port le 12 juillet 2014 dans le majestueux théâtre antique à l'acoustique précise et généreuse.

L'article du Monde daté du 15 juillet 2014 rend bien compte de ces moments magiques, nul besoin que j'y ajoute ma prose...

Le rock de Wyatt ricoche sur la roche de Fourvière

La roche du théâtre gallo-romain de l'Odéon, à Lyon, accuse plusieurs millénaires. Celle de l'album Rock Bottom, chef-d'œuvre de Robert Wyatt, et pierre angulaire du rock progressif, fête ses quarante ans. Cette coïncidence a inspiré à Richard Robert, programmateur des Nuits de Fourvière, l'idée d'un concert hommage au chanteur anglais. Paralysé depuis le début des années 1970, l'ex-batteur de Soft Machine continue d'enregistrer, mais ne se donne plus en spectacle, laissant à ses cohortes d'admirateurs le soin de faire vivre sa musique sur scène.

Une douzaine d'entre eux s'y risquent donc, samedi 12 juillet. Loin de considérer l'œuvre de Wyatt comme un bloc figé, le groupe – formé pour l'occasion – en célèbre toutes les rondeurs et les aspérités. Bijoux, cailloux roulent sur des terrains inattendus, ici très mélodieux (O Caroline), là presque bruitistes (Pigs). Tenant tour à tour le micro, les voix minérales de Silvain Vanot, John Greaves et Elise Caron sont suffisamment distinctes du timbre du maître pour en éloigner l'ombre. La direction musicale, assurée par l'Anglais Craig Fortnam, privilégie les sonorités acoustiques – banjo, basson, clarinette, flûte, violoncelle –, à rebours de la passion de Wyatt pour les synthétiseurs.

Lequel, bien qu'absent, a tenu à faire lire en prélude quelques mots, entre autodérision et louanges tressées à son mentor, le jazzman Charlie Haden, décédé la veille. Le concert sera à cette aune, tendre et respectueux. Extraites d'albums divers, de Volume Two (1968) à Cuckooland (2003), huit gemmes sont dispersées en ouverture, avant reprise intégrale du monolithe Rock Bottom, et tube badin en rappel (I'm a Believer).

Dans l'intervalle, Pascal Comelade et Ivan Telefunken glissent sur les mélodies à tiroirs du barbu farfelu, dont l'admirable Sea Song. Comelade pianote sur des claviers miniatures, Telefunken glougloute dans un arrosoir rose fuchsia, transformé en instrument à vent. La pluie est de la partie, plic ploc ; la musique coule sur la roche, tip top. ■

AURELIANO TONET

Quelques semaines auparavant, le critique musical Sylvain Siclier annonçait le concert en ces termes :

Autel Wyatt

Lors d'un concert hommage, des musiciens revisitent l'univers de Robert Wyatt, géant de la pop anglaise

Le 26 juillet 1974 (jour du 21ème anniversaire de la bataille de Moncada, point de départ de la révolution cubaine), Rock Bottom a été publié, et j'ai épousé Alfie, et nous avons vécu heureux depuis. » Celui qui présente ainsi, à l'occasion d'une réédition en 1998, son album le plus célèbre, Rock Bottom donc, s'appelle Robert Wyatt, chanteur, batteur, pianiste, cornettiste, auteur-compositeur britannique. Alfie, c'est Alfreda Benge. On l'entend réciter un court texte à la fin de l'une des six compositions de l'album. Soit un recueil de mélodies solaires et lunaires à la fois, avec des passages presque minimalistes, quelques notes au piano (Sea Song), un contre-chant à la basse (Alifib), des sonorités de cordes jouées aux claviers, nappes rêveuses, un peu inquiétantes. A d'autres endroits, il y a des élans tourbillonnants, des stries proches du free jazz (Little Red Robin Hood Hit the Road), un son de guitare grinçant. Et de bout en bout, le chant de Wyatt, timbre féminin, voix de caresse pensée d'abord comme un instrument. Elle est toujours l'une des caractéristiques envoûtantes de celui qui est aujourd'hui âgé de 69 ans. «Il y a chez Robert Wyatt une capacité à être, en même temps, dans l'expérimental et le très pop. Il a ce pouvoir d'être immédiatement attrayant et d'entraîner vers une sorte de dérive.» Richard Robert, conseiller artistique et assistant à la programmation musicale des Nuits de Fourvière, ne fait pas mystère de son « admiration » pour ce « créateur d'un univers unique» à qui sera consacrée la soirée Le Monde de Robert Wyatt, prévue le 12 juillet à l'Odéon. Sera jouée sur scène, dans l'ordre original, l'intégralité de Rock Bottom, cet «Everest accompli» pour beaucoup d'amateurs et une sélection de thèmes dans la carrière de Wyatt depuis les Wilde Flowers, collectif de musiciens dans le milieu des années 1960. Le 1er juin 1973, Robert Wyatt fait une chute de la fenêtre d'un immeuble. Huit mois d'hôpital, la colonne vertébrale est brisée, son quotidien sera dorénavant celui d'un homme qui doit vivre en chaise roulante. La scène, les prestations en public, pour lesquelles il a de longue date une phobie - «à une époque, je buvais beaucoup, pour vaincre la terreur panique de me retrouver sur scène»-ne sont plus envisageables. «Même si le regard du public serait probablement tendre et respectueux, confiait-il, il y a une quinzaine d'années, ma pudeur m'empêche de me présenter ainsi.» Exister par les autres Ce sont donc les autres qui font vivre la musique de Wyatt sur scène. En Italie, en Grande-Bretagne, en France en particulier, des concerts hommages sont organisés, des disques entiers lui sont consacrés, les musiciens les plus variés reprennent ses chansons. «J'aime bien cette idée, précise Richard Robert, qu'en plus de ses propres enregistrements, qu'il mène à son rythme tranquille, il continue d'exister par les autres, que le spectacle soit aussi un moyen de conjurer son absence. » A Fourvière, on retrouvera donc des familiers des créations de Wyatt, comme le bassiste et chanteur John Greaves, son quasi-contemporain, Silvain Vanot, Pascal Comelade. La chanteuse Elise Caron incarnera son timbre flottant. L'arrangement de la délicate sophistication des compositions de Wyatt a été confiée à Craig Fortnam, avec son petit ensemble de multi-instrumentistes The North Sea Radio Orchestra. «C'est une musique qui stimule l'imagination de ceux qui la jouent, insiste Richard Robert. Avec un formidable répertoire de chansons d'amour et de chansons de combats. L'intime et l'universel. »

SYLVAIN SICLIER
Le Monde de Robert Wyatt

Odéon, samedi 12 juillet, 21 heures. 28 €.

Création

LE MONDE DE ROBERT WYATT

Rock Bottom et morceaux choisis

Une relecture amoureuse du répertoire de Robert Wyatt, grande figure libre de la pop anglaise, à travers l'intégralité de son chef-d'œuvre Rock Bottom et une sélection de chansons phares.

« Merci d'apporter un souffle d'air frais à ma musique. L'entendre interprétée par d'autres musiciens, c'est comme être grand-père. Elle mène maintenant sa propre vie – mais nous, grands-parents, nous nous y retrouvons aussi, quelque part. C'est un sentiment formidable. » Robert Wyatt, février 2014.

C'est par ces mots que Robert Wyatt a accueilli l'idée d'une création à Fourvière autour de son œuvre. D'une grande modestie, ils ne doivent pas minimiser sa contribution essentielle à l'histoire de la pop. Car dans ses projets collectifs (Soft Machine, Matching Mole…) comme en solo, l'Anglais fait bel et bien figure de modèle : n'a-t-il pas été une source d'inspiration pour des singularités aussi notoires qu'Elvis Costello, Bashung, Mark Hollis (Talk Talk), Björk ou PJ Harvey ? Nourri au classique et au be-bop autant qu'aux chansons de Ray Charles ou Burt Bacharach, Wyatt s'est laissé porter par un désir permanent d'évasion – renforcé sans doute par l'accident qui, en 1973, l'a cloué à vie sur une chaise roulante. Éternel flâneur, il a baladé son imaginaire et sa voix perchée en se jouant des clôtures entre pop, jazz, sons latins ou musique électronique. Un art de la fugue porté à son comble poétique dans l'album Rock Bottom (1974), ce « chant d'amour et de curiosité » adressé à son épouse et muse Alfie : là, comme d'autres mettent des bateaux en bouteille, Robert Wyatt aura fait entrer tout un monde, son monde, dans le cadre de ses chansons. Le quarantième anniversaire de la sortie de ce disque hors catégorie était l'occasion rêvée d'en célébrer l'auteur. C'est à Craig Fortnam, leader du North Sea Radio Orchestra, une sorte de société idéale située au carrefour de la musique de chambre et de la pop, que nous avons confié la direction musicale de cette soirée. Avec lui et son ensemble, une belle galerie d'électrons libres. Deux funambules, Élise Caron et John Greaves – un partenaire historique de Wyatt –, qui serpentent depuis toujours entre chanson, improvisation et musique contemporaine ; et un chanteur au timbre incomparable, Silvain Vanot, dont la sensibilité pop s'accorde à merveille avec celle du génial barbu. Générique auquel s'ajoute un pianiste sans matricule, Pascal Comelade, admirateur de la première heure de Wyatt, avec lequel il a notamment gravé une délicieuse version du September Song de Kurt Weill. À travers une relecture intégrale de Rock Bottom et une sélection de titres emblématiques (Moon in June, Shipbuilding, O Caroline…), voici donc une opportunité unique de redécouvrir ou de se familiariser avec le très grand petit monde d'un des créateurs les plus affranchis de la planète pop.

LE MONDE DE ROBERT WYATT

Le Sound Of Tout

Radio Robert

- Max Richter - Verses.mp3

Radio Robert

Robert Wyatt, l'homme de plusieurs vies

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Émission du 24 février 2016 de Gilles Pezerat, réalisation Anne Perez, technique Pierre Bornard.
John Greaves et Elise Caron pour les voix françaises de Robert Wyatt et Alfreda Benge.

0:00:00 / 1:00:13

Écouter l'émission (60 mn)

Robert Wyatt, est l'homme de plusieurs vies, batteur flamboyant de Soft Machine, il est tiraillé entre son amour du jazz et la violence du rock. Après une phase de dépression chronique et alcoolisme, un accident le cloue sur une chaise roulante et le contraint à se réinventer. ...

0:00 / 1:27

Bande-annonce

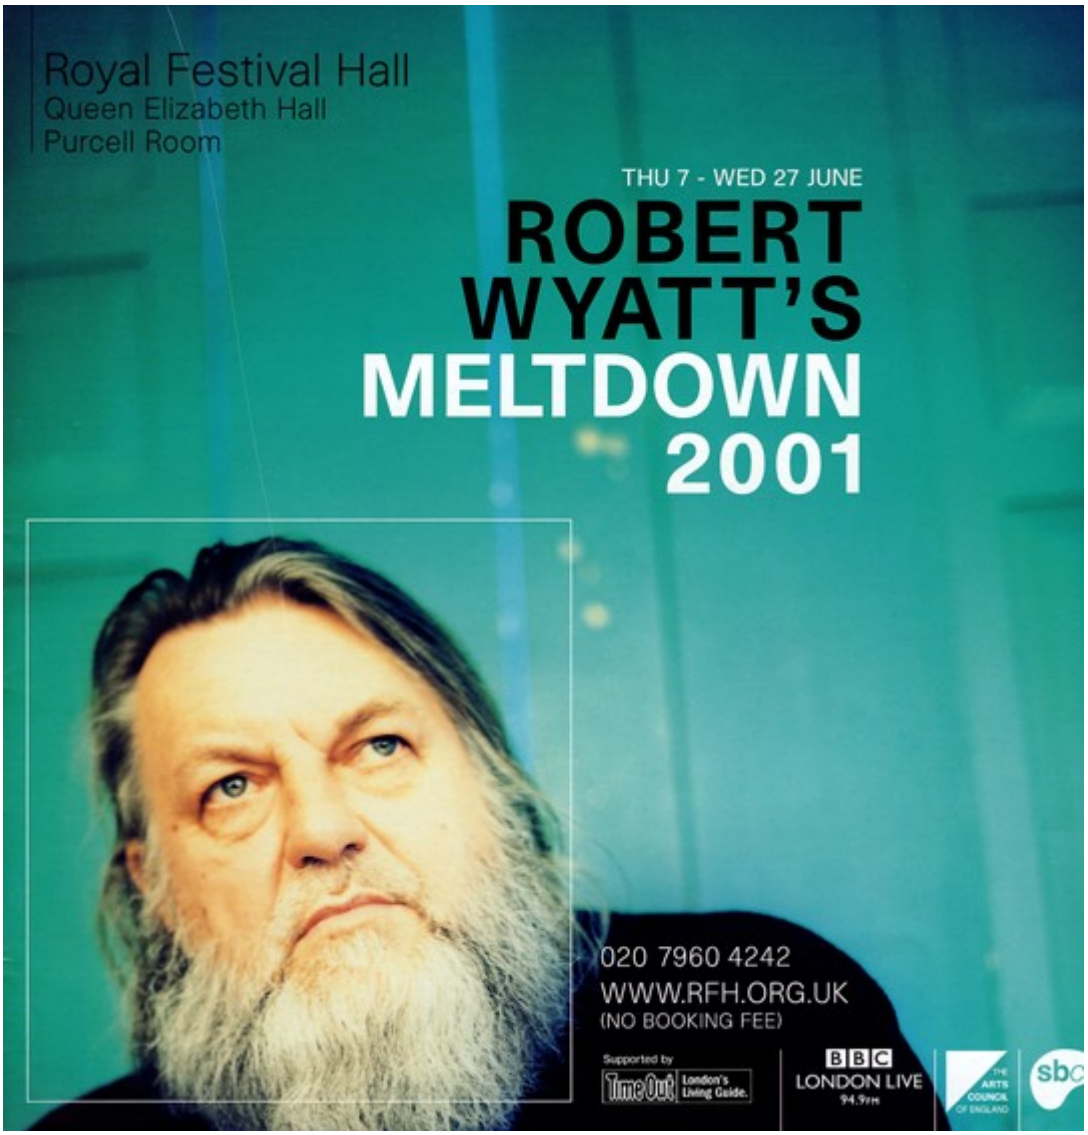
Extraits musicaux:

- Richardson Road (A Philips, Grasscut - Different every time)
- The British Road (R Wyatt - Old Rottenhat)
- Hope for Happiness (K Ayers, M Ratledge, B Hopper - Soft Machine I)
- To Carla, Marsha and Caroline (R Wyatt - The end of an Ear)
- Thank you Pierrot Lunaire (H Hopper, R Wyatt - Soft Machine II)
- Have you ever bean green (H Hopper, R Wyatt - Soft Machine II)
- Anachronist (R Wyatt - Comicopera)
- Pataphysical introduction (R Wyatt - Soft Machine II)
- Hibou, anemone and bear (M Ratledge, R Wyatt - Soft Machine II)
- Facelift (H Hopper - Soft Machine III)
- Esther’s nose job (H Hopper, M Ratledge, R Wyatt - Soft Machine II live)
- Signed curtain (R Wyatt - Matching Mole)

Robert Wyatt, né en 1945, est l'homme de plusieurs vies. De 1968 à 71, il est le batteur flamboyant de Soft Machine, tiraillé entre son amour du jazz et la violence du rock. Déjà il s’essayait à chanter, voix de ténor aigu et fragile, textes absurdes. Puis, entre une dépression chronique et un alcoolisme de plus en plus destructeur, il aurait pu disparaître comme Brian Jones, Jimy Hendrix… Mais un accident, une chute du quatrième étage en 1973 le cloue sur une chaise roulante et le contraint à se réinventer.

Ce qu'il fait de manière sublime avec l'album Rock Bottom, né sur un lit d’hôpital et qui l'a fait connaître au monde entier Dans cet album comme dans ceux qui suivront, Robert Wyatt explore ses émotions avec une sincérité bouleversante.

- To mark everywhere (R Wyatt - The end of an Ear)
- Alifib (R Wyatt - Rock Bottom)
- A last straw (R Wyatt - Rock Bottom)
- The age of self (R Wyatt - Old Rottenhat)
- Left on man (R Wyatt - Dondestan)
- Muddy mouse (c) Muddy mouth (R Wyatt - Ruth is stranger than Richard)
- Foreign accent (R Wyatt - Cuckooland)
- Submarine (Björk - Medulla)
- The song (J Greaves - The songs)
- At last I'm free (N Rodgers, B Edwards - Nothing can stop us)
- Free will and testament (R Wyatt - Shleep)
- Round midnight (T Monk - For the ghosts within)
- Be serious (R Wyatt - Comicopera)
- Where are they now (R Wyatt, G Atzmon /S Mansour, A Hashem - For the ghosts within)
- The sight of the wind (R Wyatt - The sight of the wind)
- Cuckoo madame (R Wyatt / A Benge - Cuckoo madame)
- Old Europe (R Wyatt / A Benge - Comicopera)
- Out of the blue (R Wyatt / A Benge - Comicopera)
- What a wonderful world (Thiele / Weiss - For the ghosts within)

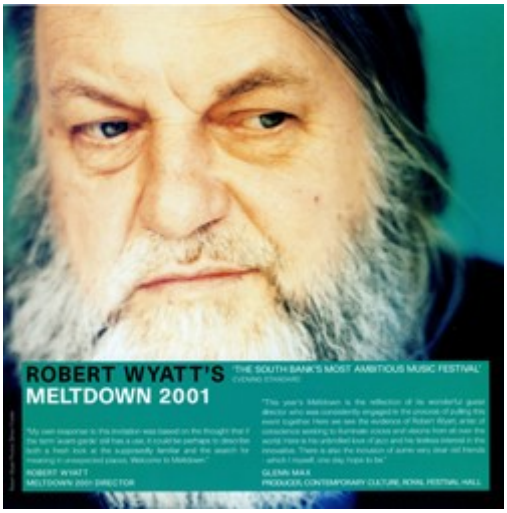


La musique et la voix de cet homme inquiet ne ressemblent à aucune autre. Avec lui, l'humour le dispute à la tragédie. Dépressif joyeux et ancien membre du parti communiste, il est l'éternel défenseur des causes perdues.

Après une dizaine d'albums solo et des collaborations avec entre autres Bjork, Brian Eno, Elvis Costello, il a le jour de ses 70 ans, décidé d'arrêter la musique. Avec Pierre Bornard, ingénieur du son nous sommes allés le voir à Louth, petite ville perdue du nord-est de l'Angleterrre, où il vit avec Alfreda Benge, sa femme et muse.

Texte de présentation de l'émission sur le site de France Culture

Robert Wyatt's Meltdown 2001



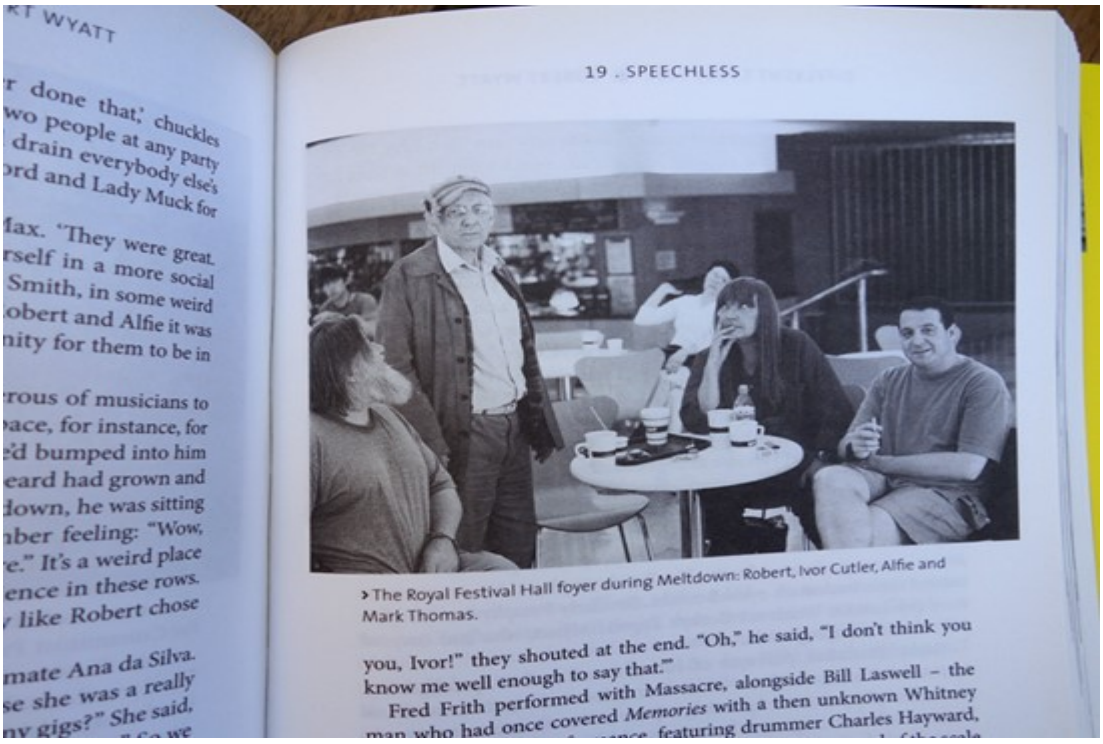
ABÉCÉDAIRE

Marcus O'Dair rapporte dans sa biographie de Robert Wyatt avec forces détails la programmation du Meltdown 2001 que Glenn Max confia à un Robert Wyatt d'abord incrédule, puis effrayé avant d'en être le curateur enthousiaste...

" En choisissant Wyatt, Glenn Max prenait un risque considérable - avec le recul, Robert apparaît comme un choix naturel pour le Meltdown -, et, malgré le succès de Shleep, Robert était un candidat improbable pour le poste en 2001. Même avec son passé à la Knitting Factory, alors l'un des principaux lieux avant-gardistes de New York, Glenn Max admet s'être senti effrayé à l'idée de promouvoir des artistes choisis par Wyatt. Quand Morrissey avait été curateur du festival, il avait reformé les New-York Dolls, tandis qu'Elvis Costello avait accueilli le tout dernier concert britannique de Jeff Buckley. Que choisirait Robert ? Trois semaines de free jazz staliniste ? "

Marcus O'Dair in Robert Wyatt Different Time

'Robert Wyatt concocta une programmation si éclectique et si éclairée que le Southbank Center lui rendit un hommage permanent en faisant réaliser un pochoir noir et blanc grandeur nature de son curateur par le graffeur Stewy.



Au

cours de ses échanges avec Marcus O'Dair, Robert Wyatt avouera:

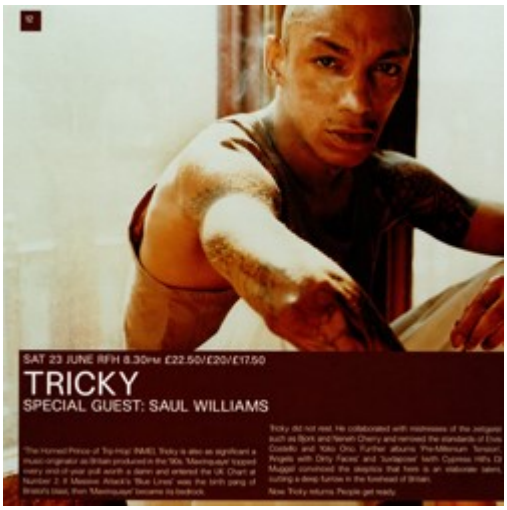
"Je l'ai adoré une fois que j'ai commencé. L'équipe du Festival Hall - Jane, Ed, Beverley et les autres - était fantastique. Tu pouvais faire un tour, voir des choses gratuitement, flâner dans de fantastiques librairies, fumer, boire et rencontrer des amis. C'était un endroit génial. Bien que je ne croie ni en Dieu ni au diable, je crois au paradis et à l'enfer, parce que j'ai visité les deux. Et ça, c'était un bout de paradis. "

(Marcus O'Dair - id.)

LA PROGRAMMATION COMPLETE

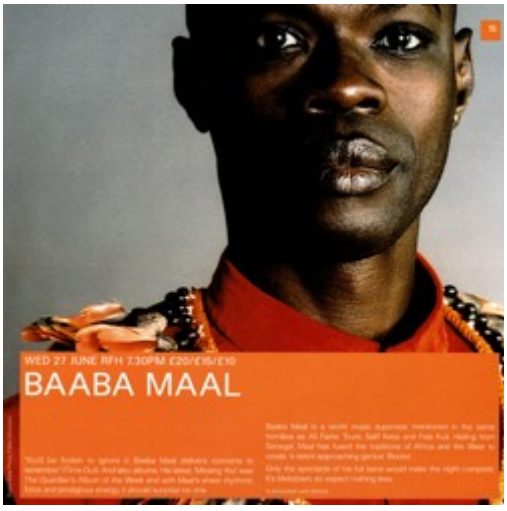
" Pourtant, bien que Wyatt ait refusé catégoriquement de jouer en tant que tête d'affiche, David Gilmour a réussi à le convaincre de donner sa première prestation en public depuis The Raincoats en 1981, pour chanter les premiers vers de la chanson favorite de Pink Floyd « Comfortably Numb », initialement interprétés par Roger Waters.

« Robert a une voix extraordinaire, affirme Gilmour. Cette partie de "Comfortably Numb", c'est la partie de Roger ; il ne fait plus partie de mon milieu — et c'est toujours agréable d'avoir quelqu'un pour le remplacer. Robert était là et j'adore sa voix. Donc, pourquoi ne lui aurais-je pas demandé ? Je crois qu'au départ il a refusé, parce qu'il n'avait jamais fait ça. Mais je l'ai un peu harcelé et, finalement, il est monté sur scène pour sa petite partie. Ce qui était génial. Il était content après coup que je l'y aie forcé.»



Cependant, même avec le « harcèlement » de Gilmour, Wyatt n'était pas tout à fait monté sur scène. « En fait, il a chanté devant la scène se souvient Max. Il ne voulait pas tout le mouvement et l'agitation autour de lui, donc il a chanté depuis le parterre. Et c'était magnifique, malgré cet air de terreur dans ses yeux. Quand il a eu fini, il tremblait, il était à la limite de la crise d'angoisse.» " (Marcus O'Dair - id.)

Comfortably Numb - Meltdown 2001

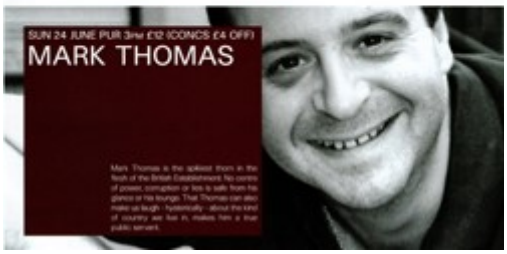


DVD - David Gilmour In Concert - Meltdown Concert 2001

SUITE DE LA PROGRAMMATION

SAT 23 JUNE RFH 8.30PM £22.50/£20/£17.50
TRICKY
SPECIAL GUEST: SAUL WILLIAMS

SUN 24 JUNE RFH 7.30PM £15 & £12.50
ANNIE WHITEHEAD'S SOUPSONGS
A TRIBUTE TO ROBERT WYATT FEATURING
ELVIS COSTELLO, KAREN MANTLER
BRETT ANDERSON, JULIE TIPPETTS
AND MORE TO BE ANNOUNCED



TUES 26 JUNE RFH 7.30PM £22.50/£20/£17.50
ELVIS COSTELLO
& STEVE NIEVE
SPECIAL GUEST:
IVOR CUTLER

WED 27 JUNE RFH 7.30PM £20/£15/£10
BAABA MAAL

TUES 12 JUNE PUR 7.30PM £10
ANJA GARBAREK,
MARK EITZEL & CRISTINA DONA

FRI 22 JUNE PUR 7.30PM £8
MEIRA ASHER'S BODYLAB FEAT.
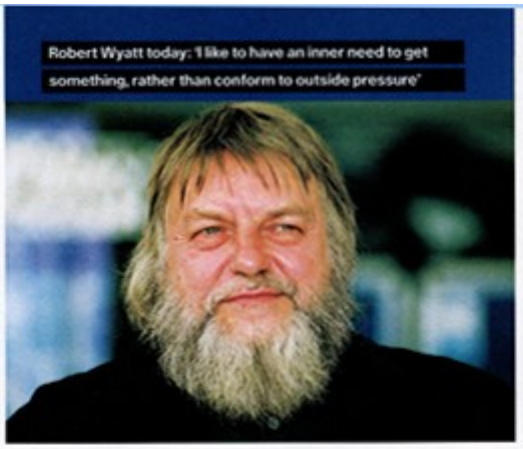
GUY HARRIES



WED 20 JUNE PUR 7.30PM £12.50
PHILIP CATHERINE QUARTET &
LABARRIERE-
KASSAP DUO

SUN 24 JUNE PUR 3PM £12 (CONCS £4 OFF)
MARK THOMAS

FREE RFH BALLROOM EVENTS
FRI 15 JUNE 5.15PM FREE
ORPHY ROBINSON: THE FOU
ORPHY ROBINSON - VIBES
DUDLEY PHILLIPS - DOUBLE BASS
KEN RICK ROWE - DRUMS
PAT SUMMER - PIANO
FRI 22 JUNE 5.30PM FREE
THE RAY GELATO GIANTS
SAT 23 JUNE FREE
REFUGEE ARTS FESTIVAL
SUN 24 JUNE FREE
ARAB-ISRAELI CONNECTIONS

ROBERT WYATT'S
MELTDOWN 2001
020 7960 4242 WWW.RFH.ORG.UK/MELTDOWN
JOHN SURMAN & JACK DEJOHNETTE
THE RESIDENTS
THE RAINCOATS & GORKY'S ZYGOTIC MYNCI
ANJA GARBAREK & MARK EITZEL
TRIO 3: ANDREW CYRILLE, OLIVER LAKE, REGGIE WORKMAN & KEITH TIPPETT'S PIANO QUINTET:
BILL LASWELL, FRED FRITH & CHARLES HAYWARD:
TERRY RILEY ALL-STARS
PHILIP CATHERINE QUARTET & LABARRIERE-KASSAP DUO
MAX ROACH
DAVID GILMOUR
MEIRA ASHER'S BODYLAB FEAT. GUY HARRIES
TRICKY
ANNIE WHITEHEAD'S SOUP SONG TRIBUTE TO ROBERT WYATT FEAT. ELVIS COSTELLO, KAREN MANTLER, BRETT ANDERSON, JULIE TIPPETTS
ELVIS COSTELLO & STEVE NIEVE
BAABA MAAL
FREE BALLROOM EVENTS
THE RAY GELATO GIANTS
REFUGEE ARTS FESTIVAL
ARAB-ISRAELI CONNECTIONS

June 2001 Events at the • Royal Festival Hall
• Hayward Gallery • Queen Elizabeth Hall • Purcell Room
Complete listings p22 southbank magazine
Far outside edge
Robert Wyatt directs Meltdown
Last of the Mohicans
Malcolm Morley, today's great colourist, comes to the Hayward
Alfred Brendel
A sense of the absurd
Scandelicious
Two Nordic dance companies kick up a storm BOOK ONLINE
www.rfh.org.uk
NO BOOKING FEE

Robert Wyatt today: 'I like to have an inner need to get something, rather than conform to outside pressure'

All aboard the skylark

Robert Wyatt, the Soft Machine meister and indie icon, has been named this year's Meltdown director. Ever the radical, he told ANDY GILL about his plans for subversive surprises with a continental twist

'I'm afraid I haven't quite got the hang of this century,' sighs Robert Wyatt apologetically, admitting he's not all netted up and whizzing around the information superhighway like the adverts tell us we should be. 'I like to have an inner need to get something, rather than conform to outside pressure; connecting up with things isn't really my goal in life – it's much more Buddhist than that, it's to find that inner calm.'

If he needs to send an urgent e-mail, he nips over to his son's place, half an hour from his home in Lincolnshire. Anything else can take its time – which is, after all, something he's got used to after spending nearly three decades surveying the world from his wheelchair. That's certainly the way Wyatt approaches his recording career, releasing albums only when he has something worth releasing. The last, 1997's dreamily reflective Shleep, arrived six years after its predecessor Dondestan, which itself broke a six-year silence. 'I'm a bit of a hothouse orchid,' he explains. 'I need a perfect micro-climate in order to cultivate myself, and that's hard to find.'

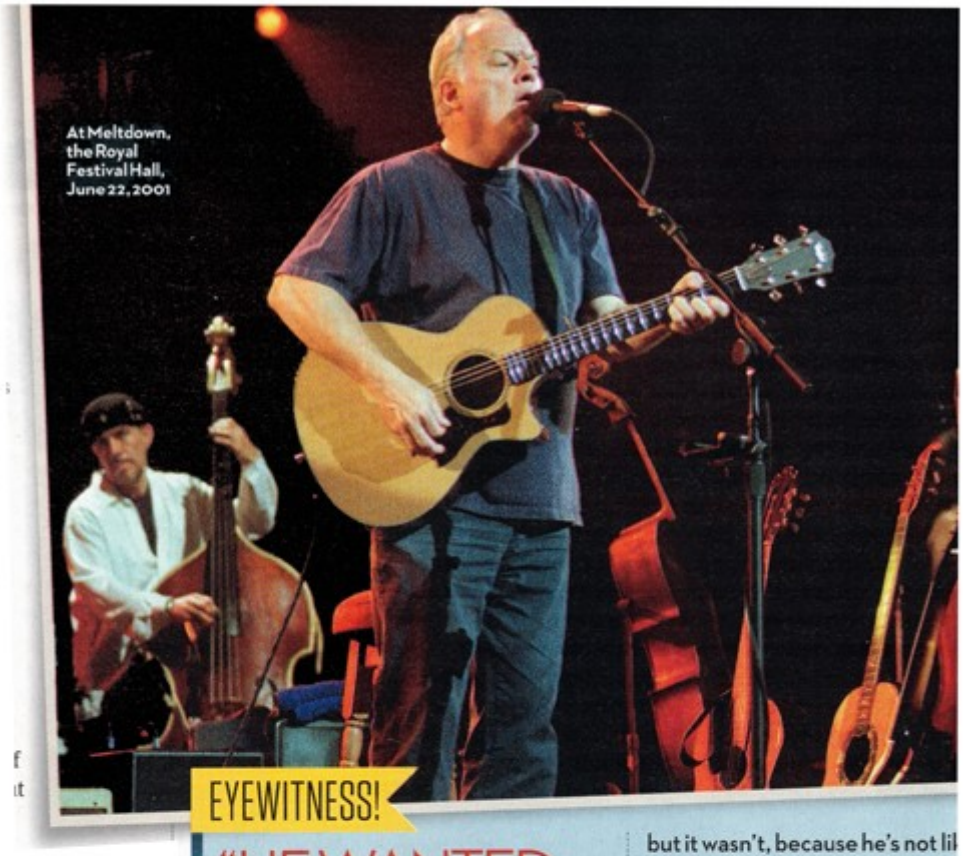
He has no further albums scheduled, which is perhaps just as well, since he's following in the footsteps of John Peel, Elvis Costello, Laurie Anderson, Nick Cave and Scott Walker by programming this year's Meltdown festival.

Surprisingly for one whose career started as the drummer with outré hippie combo Soft Machine, and went on (following the accident which deprived him of the use of his legs) to encompass the pioneering drone music of his 1974 album Rock Bottom, Wyatt's Meltdown programme may not be quite as avant-garde as observers might have imagined. 'If there's a one-word theme for the festival, it would be xenophilia,' he says. 'I'm very keen on featuring artists who work in languages other than English. There'll be French musicians, Spanish singers, people like that. The other thing I really like is jazz. Now there are an awful lot of people around the world who are good at it, including several English players. Branford Marsalis, for instance, is amazed at what the saxophonist Courtney Pine can do, and there really aren't many better pianists around than Julian Joseph; another pianist I'd like to get is Matthew Shipp, who plays with the David S Ware Quartet. I've also asked if a few old dinosaurs like me could come along.'

Though a reluctant exile from the Communist Party thanks to its clumsy attempt to 'modernise' itself in the 1980s, Wyatt retains the fiercely independent socialist spirit that led him to record songs such as 'Trade Union', 'Stalin Wasn't Stallin'' and, most memorably, Elvis Costello's 'Shipbuilding'. He claims, tongue only partly in cheek, that he's conducting an economic boycott of America until such time as they have a properly elected president. 'I think rogue terrorist states like the United States should be boycotted,' he explains, 'until the civilised world – such as ourselves and Sweden – can bring them to their senses!'

Fortunately, innocent American musicians will be granted a dispensation from the boycott in order to appear at Meltdown – though if the mischievous Wyatt had his way, they would be sharing the stage with a cosmopolitan cast. 'I'll tell you what my original plan was,' he chuckles. 'What I really wanted to do was go round the coast of England, trawling the detention centres and refugee places, scouring them for anybody who could sing or play music at all, and get them to take over the whole South Bank for a fortnight! I think the big danger where I live isn't immigrants, it's inbreeding. We need a bit more of the old Noah's Ark!'

Andy Gill is the Independent's rock critic and author of 'My Back Pages'. He contributes to Mojo and Q magazines

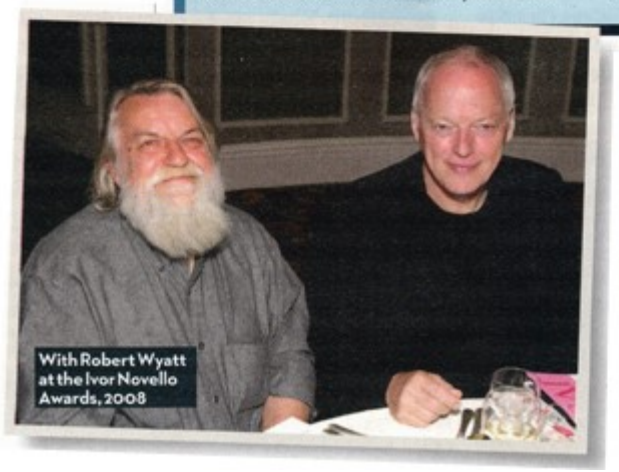


Rhythm king: Wyatt keeps cool as drummer with the outré hippie combo Soft Machine

Nicky J Sims, Getty Redferns

The full Meltdown 2001 line-up will be announced soon. Visit www.rfh.org.uk or subscribe to our e-bulletin: popular_music@rfh.org.uk

Publicité pour le Meltdown 2001 parue dans le New Musical Express du 2 juin 2001



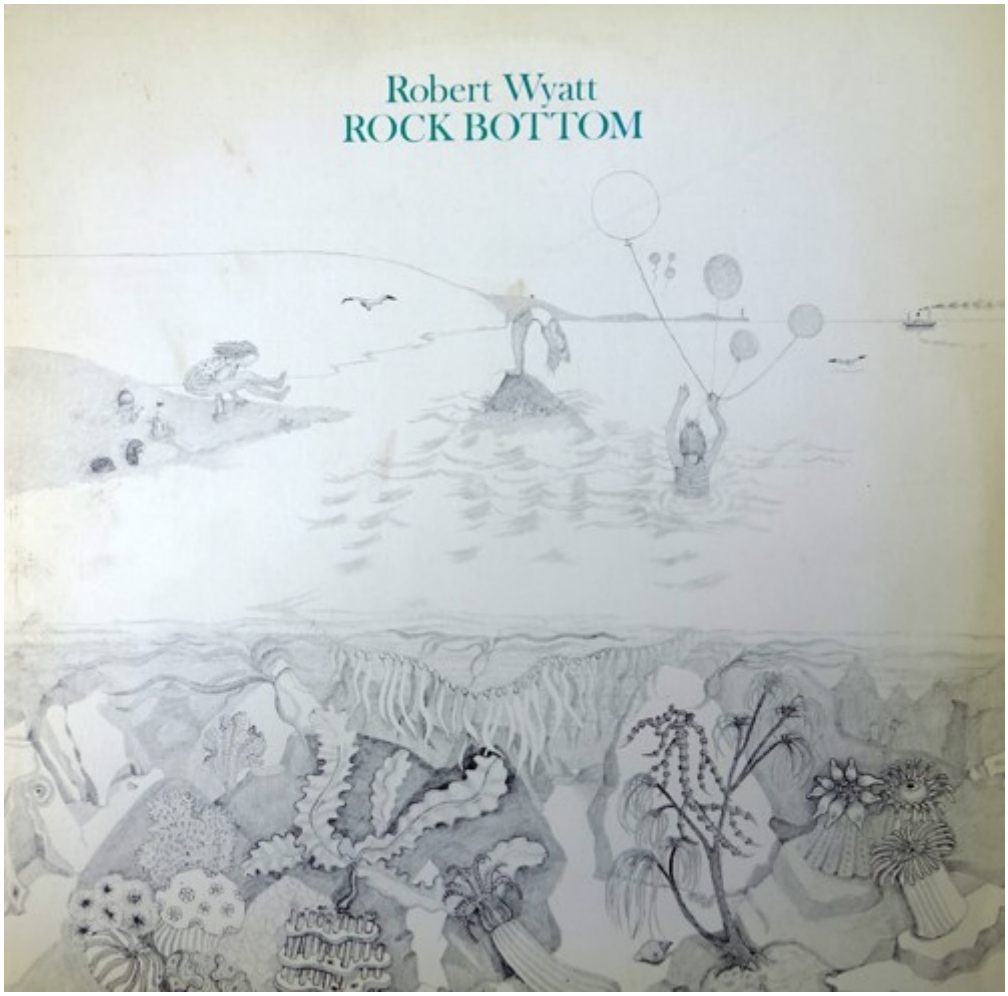
At Meltdown, the Royal Festival Hall, June 22, 2001

EYEWITNESS!

"HE WANTED THINGS DONE RIGHT"

IN JUNE, 2001, David Gilmour was invited to perform at the Robert Wyatt-curated Meltdown festival. "He hadn't done anything for a while," says Wyatt. "First, he said, 'No.' Then 'Yes.' Then, 'Can I bring a cello?' I said, 'Yes.' He said, 'No, I can't do. Can I bring a choir?' I said, 'Yes.' So he couldn't get out of it. His set looked very informal but it wasn't, because he's not lik He directs everything, including lighting. You could see this chap and singing guitar. It wasn't show which is more a Floyd thing. I dic 'Comfortably Numb' with him. I nervous. I think the first night I p some cornet. The moment I'd st I put the cornet on my lap and sc offstage. But he called me back I could accept applause from th audience. It was just a very gene gesture. He wanted things done It's not typical rock'n'roll. There nothing wrong with typical rock but it's something else."

With Robert Wyatt at the Ivor Novello Awards, 2008



Uncut - September 2015

Rock Bottom

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Pochette de l'édition originale de 1974 (polie par le temps...)

Pochette de la réédition de 1981 (double LP avec Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard)
A noter que la mention "Produced by Nick Mason of Pink Floyd" a disparu...

Détail de la pochette réalisée par Alfreda Benge (inséré dans la réédition CD de 1989)

A Side	B Side
Sea Song Richard Sinclair, bass guitar Robert Wyatt, voice, keyboards, James' drum	Alifib Hugh Hopper, bass guitar Robert Wyatt, voice, keyboards
A Last Straw Laurie Allan, drums Hugh Hopper, bass guitar Robert Wyatt, voice, keyboards, guitar, Delfina's wineglass	Alife Alfreda Benge, voice Hugh Hopper, bass guitar Gary Windo, bass clarinet, tenor Robert Wyatt, voice, keyboards, James' drum
Little Red Riding Hood Hit the Road Ivor Cutler, voice Mongezi Feza, trumpet Richard Sinclair, bass guitar Robert Wyatt, voice, keyboards, James' drum, Delfina's tray and a small battery	Little Red Robin Hood Hit the Road Laurie Allan, drums Ivor Cutler, voice, baritone concertina Fred Frith, viola Mike Oldfield, guitar Richard Sinclair, bass guitar Robert Wyatt, voice, keyboards

Produced by Nick Mason
Drones and songs by Robert Wyatt Engineered by Steve Cox at the Manor and on Delfina's farm with the Manor Mobile and by Dick Palmer, assisted by Toby Bird at CBS Studios London Cover by Alfreda Benge

Crédits

Nouvelle pochette dessinée par A. Benge (pour la réédition de 1998 chez Hannibal Records)

Rock Bottom

(The odd history of a piece of music)

This music began to emerge in Venice, during the winter of 1972, on the tiny island of Giudecca in a huge old house overlooking the lagoon.

For a couple of months I spent the days alone, while Alfie and a bunch of friends spent their days working on a film. After years of constant work, in groups and on the road, I was uneasy about doing nothing all day. To keep me occupied, Alfie bought me a very basic little keyboard with a particular vibrato, that shimmered like the water that surrounded us. The basic structure of the music was written there, in between watching the lizards on the walls of the house and visiting the local bar to listen to out-of-work gondoliers practising 'O Sole Mio'.

'Don't Look Now', the film that my friends were working on, centred round a series of unforseen disasters in the life of a couple. Venice itself featured as a sinister presence in the film. Alfie always remembers Nic Roeg, the director, reiterating the theme of the film; WE ARE NOT PREPARED.

Back in London, during the spring of 1973, I began to organise a new group to perform the material I was preparing. I continued work on the music, and wrote the words for 'Alife', 'Sea Song', and 'A Last Straw' in Alfie's flat on the 21st floor of a recently built council block in the Harrow Road. This block was demolished a few years ago. It was a health hazard, riddled with flaking asbestos. The space that we had occupied, where we'd got to know each other, is now just part of the sky. We often look up at that air, and imagine our ghostly young selves suspended there, unprepared for what was to come.

On June 1st 1973, the night before the new group was to have its first rehearsal, I fell from a fourth floor window and broke my spine. I was sent to Stoke Mandeville Hospital for eight months, where they saved my life and taught me how to live in a wheelchair.

I spent three months lying flat on my back, gazing at the ceiling of a surreal public dormitory amongst twenty others whose lives had also radically changed in a split second; victims of bad driving, industrial accidents, a misjudged somersault on a trampoline, a wrong-footed escape during a burglary. We all had to think about our future.

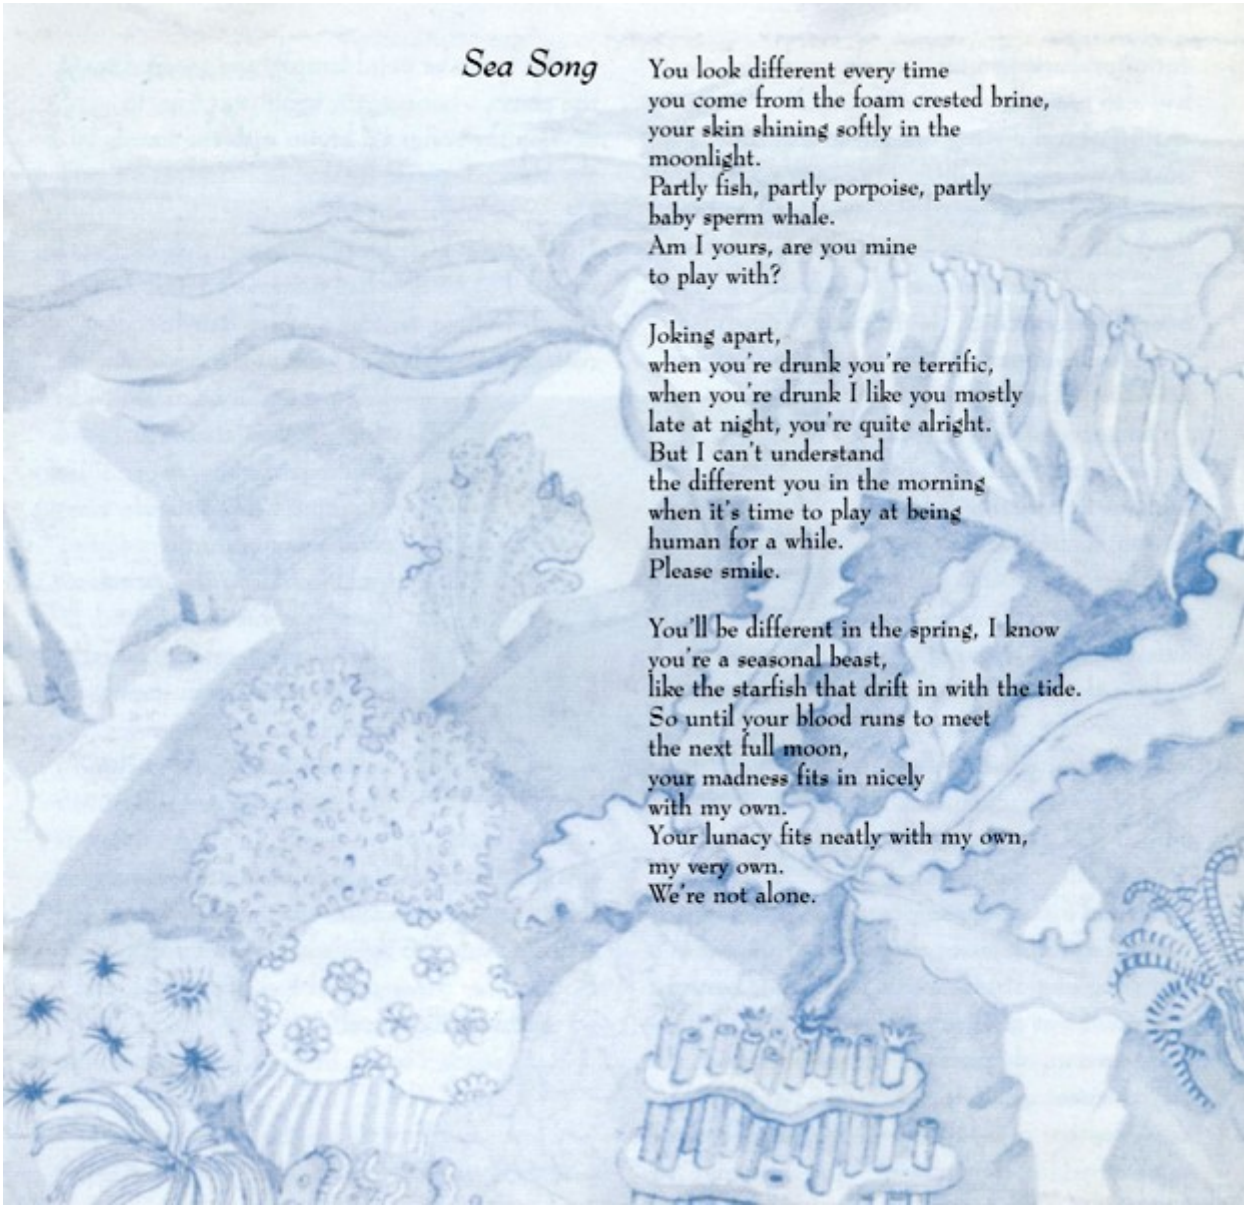
I came to terms with the fact that I was no longer a drummer, and that going on the road would be very problematic. I no longer needed to prepare music for a permanent group, I'd have to concentrate on recording, and I'd have to sing more. I would be able to choose different musicians for different songs. I didn't need to have the same instruments on every song. The loss of my legs might give me a new kind of freedom. (The cat burglar was considering fraud as new career).



Between visitors, operations and hospital bustle, I began to think about the music I'd been preparing in a different way. At the end of three months, I was given my wheelchair and discovered an old piano in the visitors' room. I played truant as often as I could from the activities that newly paralysed people are given as therapy (archery, and glueing mosaics on bottles to make weird lamps), and escaped to the piano, whenever the room was free, to develop the songs I'd begun with the lizards by the Venice lagoon.

By the time I left hospital, I was ready to record, but we now had nowhere to live. A kind friend, Delfina, lent us a wheelchair-friendly cottage in Wiltshire. There, at the beginning of 1974, I began to record with Virgin Records' Mobile Studio parked in the adjoining field, while a donkey brayed in the background. In the spring, we found a home in London where I prepared for the contributions from the other musicians which were recorded and mixed at the Manor Studio and CBS.

On July 26th 1974, (the 21st Anniversary of the attack on Moncada, which was the first action that led to the Cuban Revolution), Rock Bottom was released, and I married Alfie, and we lived happily ever after.

Robert Wyatt, February 1998

Notes de R. Wyatt publiées dans la réédition de 1998.

Sea Song

You look different every time
you come from the foam crested brine,
your skin shining softly in the moonlight.
Partly fish, partly porpoise, partly
baby sperm whale.
Am I yours, are you mine
to play with?

Joking apart,
when you're drunk you're terrific,
when you're drunk I like you mostly
late at night, you're quite alright.
But I can't understand
the different you in the morning when it's time to play at being
human for a while.
Please smile.

You'll be different in the spring, I know
you're a seasonal beast,
like the starfish that drift in with the tide.
So until your blood runs to meet
the next full moon,
your madness fits in nicely
with my own.
Your lunacy fits neatly with my own,
my very own.
We're not alone.

A Last Straw

Seaweed tangled in our
home from home,
reminds me of your
rocky bottom.

Please don't wait for the paperweight,
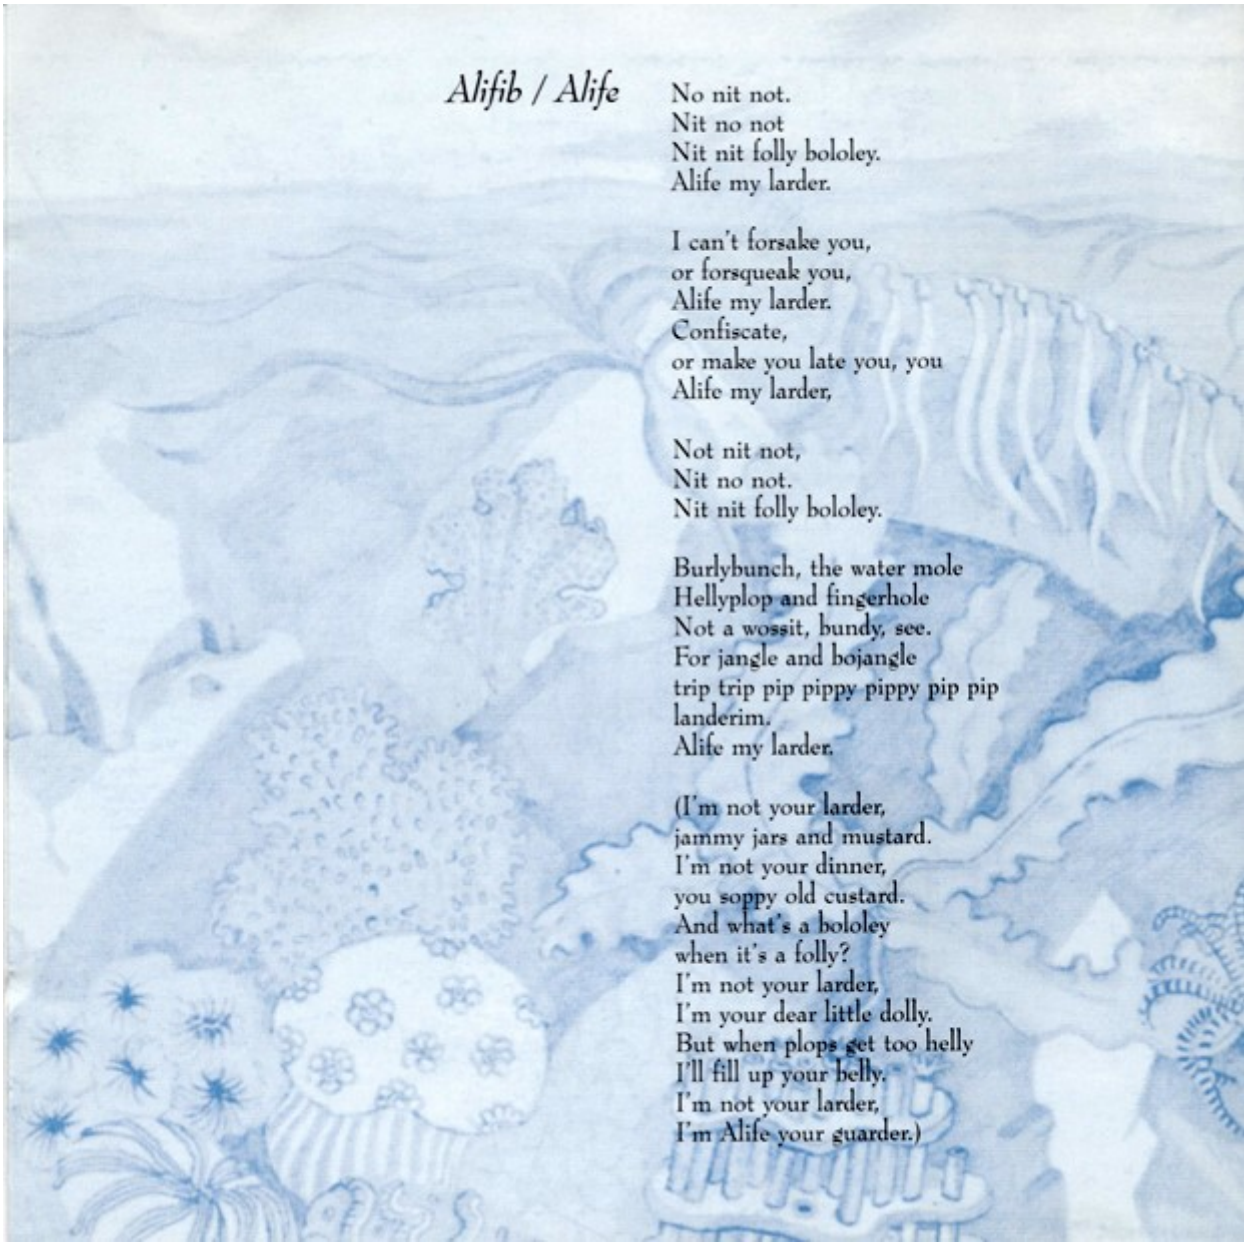
err on the good side.
Touch us when we collapse.

Into the water we'll go
head over heel.
We'll not grow fat inside
the mammary gland.



Into the water we'll go
head over heel.
A head behind me
buried deep in the sand.

Little Red Riding Hood Hit the Road

Orlandon't tell me, oh no.
Don't say, oh God don't tell me.
Oh dear me, heavens above.
Oh no, no I can't stand it.

Stop please, oh deary me.
What in heaven's name?
Oh blimey. Mercy me. Woe are we.
Oh dear. Oh stop it, stop it.
You've been so kind,
I know, I know.
So why did I hurt you?
I didn't mean to hurt you.

But I'll keep trying,
and I'm sure you will too.

Alifib / Alife

No nit not.
Nit no not
Nit nit folly bololey.
Alife my larder.

I can't forsake you,
or forsqueak you,
Alife my larder.
Confiscate,
or make you late you, you
Alife my larder,

Not nit not,
Nit no not.
Nit nit folly bololey.

Burlybunch, the water mole
Hellyplop and fingerhole
Not a wossit, bundy, see.
For jangle and bojangle
trip trip pip pippy pippy pip pip
landerim.
Alife my larder.

(I'm not your larder,
jammy jars and mustard.
I'm not your dinner,
you soppy old custard.
And what's a bololey
when it's a folly?
I'm not your larder,
I'm your dear little dolly.
But when plops get too helly
I'll fill up your belly.
I'm not your larder,
I'm Alife your guarder.)

Little Red Robin Hood Hit the Road

In the garden of England,
dead moles lie inside their holes.
The dead-end tunnels crumble
in the rain, underfoot.
Innit a shame?

Can't you see them?
Can't you see them?
Roots can't hold them.
Bugs console them.

I fight with the handle of my little brown broom.
I pull out the wires of the telephone.
I hurt in the head, and I hurt in the aching bone.
Now I smash up the telly with remains of the broken phone.

I fighting for the crust of the little brown loaf.
I want it. I want it. I want it. Give it to me.
I give it you back when I finish the lunchtea.

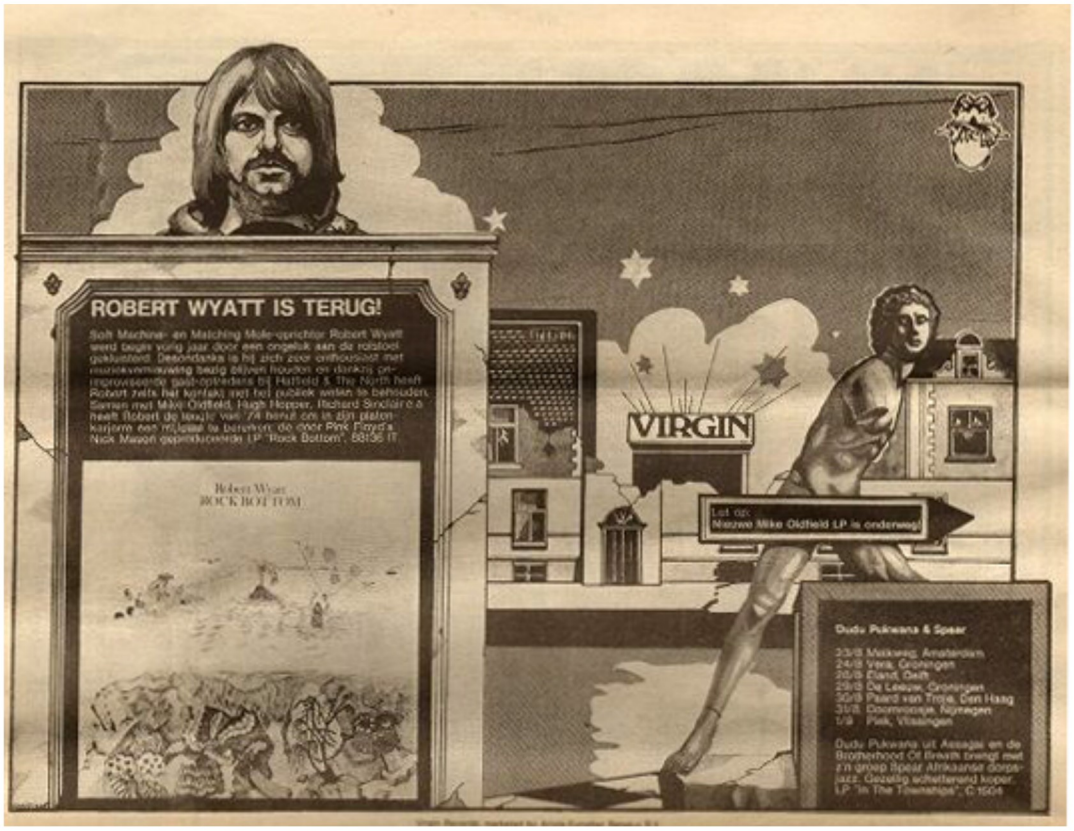
I lie in the road, try to trip up the passing cars.
Yes, me and the hedgehog, we bursting the tyres.all day.
As we roll down the highway towards the setting sun,
I reflect on the life of the highwayman, yum yum.

Now I smash up the telly and what's left of the broken phone.

Lyrics

ANTOINE LÄNG, BRUNO TOCANNE, SOPHIA DOMANCICH, REMI GAUDILLAT – © PRM

Sea Song(e)s.
En 2017, Bruno Tocanne, Sophia Domancich, Antoine Läng et Rémi Gaudillat rendent hommage avec leur album Sea Song(e)s. à l'oeuvre de Robert Wyatt et plus particulièrement à Rock Bottom.



SeaSong(e)s. n'est pas un album de reprises (à l'exception du subliminal Sea Song) mais un album de reconnaissance que des musiciens dédient à une oeuvre et à un compositeur-interprète qui les ont en permanence éclairés dans leur accomplissement d'artistes. Le CD est accompagné de la déclaration suivante :

L'univers du « Rock Bottom » de Robert Wyatt qui nous a servi de fil conducteur a eu une influence déterminante et durable sur nos différentes approches artistiques et intellectuelles. Quelques décennies après sa sortie en 1974, cet OVNI musical apparaît toujours comme un disque d'une splendeur mystique.
Merci à lui pour ce cadeau magnifique, source inépuisable d'émotion et d'inspiration !

Bruno TOCANNE & Sophia DOMANCICH

Robert Wyatt's «Rock Bottom» universe, wich served us as a guide, had a determinating and lasting influence on our artistic and intellectual approaches. A few decades after its release in 1974, this musical UFO still appears like a record of a mystical splendor. Thanks to him for this magnificent gift, an endless source of emotion and inspiration !

Bruno TOCANNE & Sophia DOMANCICH

Dutch ad for Rock Bottom

Full version (14:48) of the film shot in Paris in 1975 by French Television, the day after the concert at the Theatre of the Champs Elysees with Henry Cow.

Mary Halvorson's Turning Point: "Robert Wyatt's able to incorporate the weird with the beautiful in such a nice way"

Thursday, May 22, 2025

Jazz guitar heroine Mary Halvorson nominates an album by the former Soft Machine drummer Robert Wyatt as her musical turning point. Interview by Brian Glasser*.

Mary Halvorson (photo: Elena Olivo)

I always come back to Rock Bottom, by Robert Wyatt; even though I try to entertain other possibilities! It's not something early that made me fall in love with music – which is sort of why it's so powerful to me. When you're a teenager and you hear things for the first time they have an incredible impact; and I certainly had experiences like that at that age. But it's much rarer that you get that kind of impact later in life; and this is one of those records for me. I say 'later in life' - I probably heard it when I was 27, so I was still a young person; but by that point, I'd heard so much music.

It was nice to go into something with no preconceived notions; and it doesn't happen that often, because usually you know something about whatever it is. It felt like discovering something that I couldn't believe I'd been missing my whole life! To have that experience when I was a little older was great. I don't know if I'd heard it when I was younger whether I'd have made sense of it? Perhaps it was the perfect time for me to hear it.

A friend played it for me, and I had no idea who he [Wyatt] was. I have an almost visceral memory of sitting on my living room floor in front of the speakers and my jaw dropping - I'd never heard anything like it. I could feel the emotions and intensity of the music. His voice is very unusual but, to me, incredibly beautiful.

The sense of melody and intentionality and the lyrics, it was just one of the most beautiful things I'd ever heard. And there are so many surprises: there's a moment on the first song where he basically starts scat singing, he almost imitates a horn - I was not expecting that at all! I thought I knew what the song was at that point, and then this whole other surprise unfolded. I laughed when it happened!

I've listened to the album hundreds of times. There was a point in my life when I was going through some difficult stuff and that record was like medicine - it really helped me. And it's still a record I listen to, I've never got sick of it. It hasn't lost its power.

There are also certain musical things in it that resonate with my music, even though I approach my music in a very different way, and I don't think my music sounds very much like his music. But I've always had a love of strong melodies, and songwriting; and also of things that are left of centre, and a little bit weird! He's able to incorporate the weird with the beautiful in such a nice way; and those are things I aspire to. Plus it's totally unique - I still haven't heard anything like it.

After I discovered it, I did a deep dive into his music, and went back and listened to Soft Machine, and I read his biography. That's when I found out that it was the first record he made after he became paralysed. He never said, 'The record is about that'; but clearly it was an intense thing that was happening. And knowing that made the intensity of the record make sense.

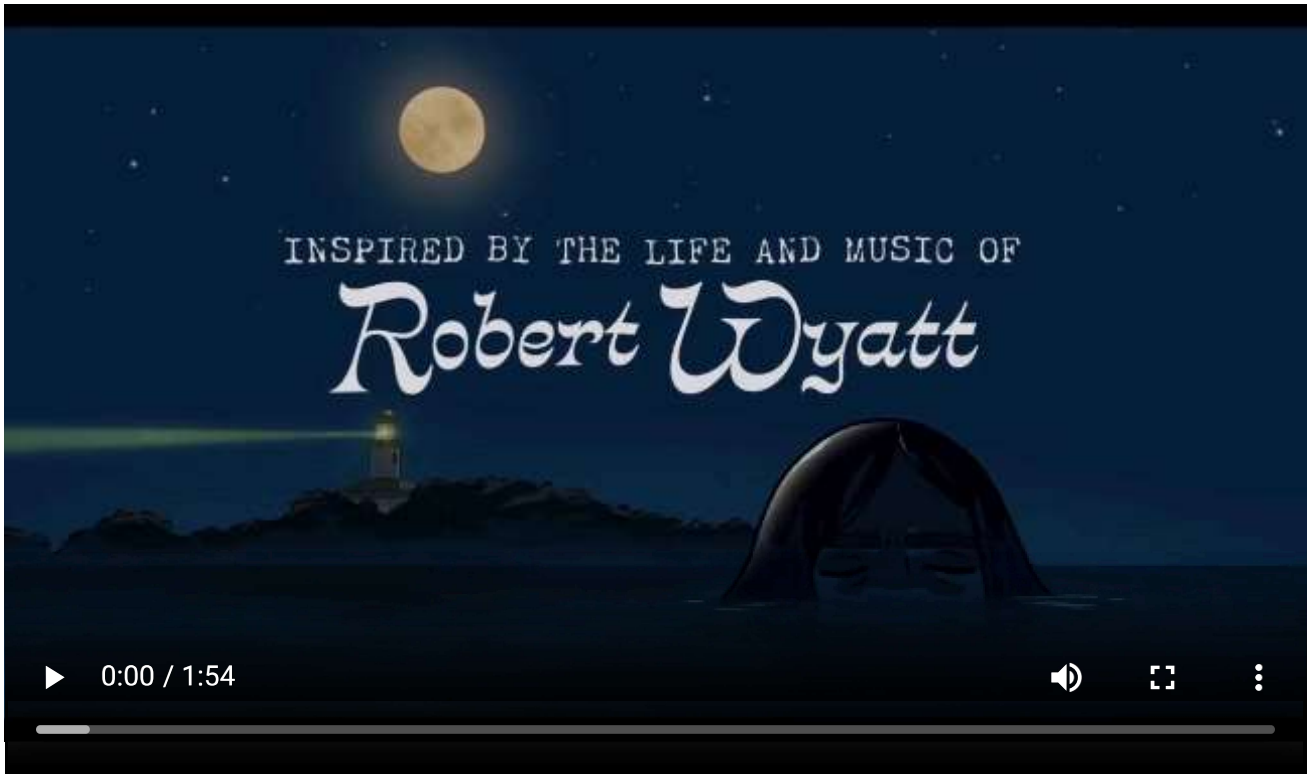
What I've noticed about Robert Wyatt is people either have no idea who he is, or they're fanatical about him. There's a club in Brooklyn, and every time I went in there the owners would be playing Robert Wyatt. We started talking, and they said, 'He loves jazz, we mail him a package every year - would you like to include some of your music?'.

So, I gave them whatever my current album was at the time and they mailed it to him. I'd written him a little note; and I got a postcard in the mail, thanking me for sending it - just the sweetest person! Then we began a correspondence, eventually switching to e-mail. I've always mailed him my records. And I actually had the honour to have him sing as a special guest on my album Artlessly Falling. That was a dream come true for me! We had a little back and forth where I'd send him samples of a song and say, 'Is this comfortable for you to sing?'; and he'd send something back; which was lovely.

It's cool when you meet your heroes - though I've never actually met him! - and they end up being super-nice!

Mary Halvorson's latest albums are Bone Bells (Pyroclastic) with Sylvie Courvoisier; and About Ghosts (Nonesuch, out 25 June)

Plus sur Rock Bottom...



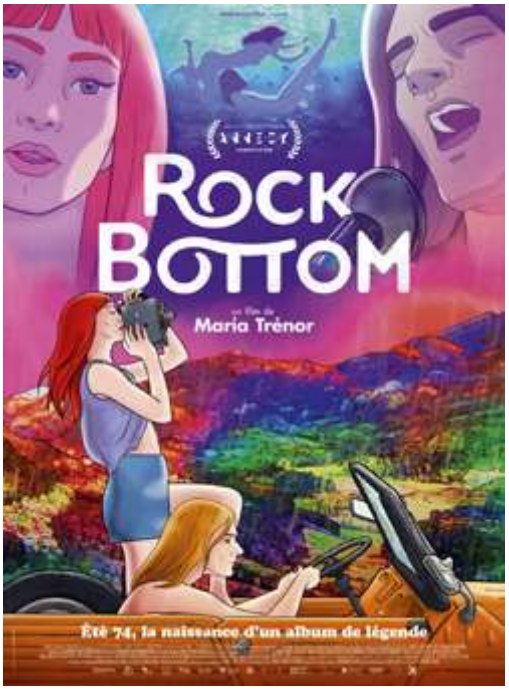
ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Rock Bottom sorti en salles le 9 juillet 2025

Cinéma



Bande-annonce du film Rock Bottom

D'abord présenté au Festival international du film d'animation d'Annecy en juin 2024 puis dans quelques festivals, Rock Bottom, le film, est enfin sorti en France le 9 juillet 2025.

Projeté dans 2 salles à Paris, une à Montreuil et dans quelques grandes villes étudiantes (Lyon, Bordeaux, Rennes, Toulouse, Montpellier...) difficile de savoir si le film trouvera son public en cette période estivale et si le distributeur lui donnera sa chance au-delà des premières semaines.

Ce film était attendu et avait fait l'objet, bien avant sa sortie, de nombreux articles et interviews dans la presse espagnole (nationalité de Maria Trenor sa réalisatrice) mais pas seulement.

Le film est brillant et original : consacrer un long métrage à un seul album, fut-il mythique, est un pari audacieux. Tenter de percer le mystère de sa création en restituant le contexte socio-culturel-affectif de ses deux principaux protagonistes (Robert et Alfie) tout en annonçant d'emblée qu'il ne s'agit surtout pas d'un biopic - la chute fatale est située à New-York pour que les choses soient claires - rend la tâche bien compliquée.

Affiche du film

Autour d'une bande-son impeccable qui provoque 50 ans après sa sortie les mêmes émotions qu'à la première écoute, Maria Trenor nous propose sa vision d'une époque (les parties lysergiques new-yorkaises, les dérives lysergiques à Majorque) telle que la presse et parfois nous-mêmes pouvions l'imaginer. Pas sûr que la réalité ait ressemblé à cette imagerie psychédélique labelisée "Peace and Love".

Si j'ai apprécié que le personnage de Robert Wyatt ne soit pas idéalisé et que la démarche artistique d'Alfie soit rééquilibrée dans la relation qui unit les deux artistes, j'ignore si ce choc des egos créatifs a réellement eu lieu en des termes aussi violents que montrés ici. Ce qui est certain aux dires de plusieurs personnes ayant fréquenté le couple à l'époque, c'est que jamais il n'y eut de mésentente ou de dispute à propos d'argent comme le suggère le film.

La confusion possible entre la "vérité historique" et la story-stellarisation de ces moments me rend perplexe.

Mais que ces remarques - aiguisées par le même amour que je porte à la musique de Robert Wyatt que l'énergie démesurée que Maria Trenor a dépensée pour réaliser ce film infaisable - ne trompent pas : la réalisatrice nous offre un concentré d'époque disparue mais toujours présente dans nos coeurs. Celle-ci a pris de belles couleurs et notre mémoire est bien sélective mais la bande-son n'a pas pris une ride...

Quelques papiers de la presse française en ce mois de juillet 2025:

La belle vie animée de l'album culte de Robert Wyatt

Autour de « Rock Bottom », la réalisatrice espagnole Maria Trénor campe librement l'univers du musicien anglais au miroir de celui de sa compagne, Alfreda Benge, artiste et dessinatrice de ses pochettes de disque

ROCK BOTTOM

■■■■□

La musique s'écoute parfois les yeux fermés, mais, là, il va falloir les ouvrir. Car qui aime la voix douce et fêlée de Robert Wyatt sur son album Rock Bottom (1974) sera peut-être curieux de découvrir le film d'animation du même nom de la réalisatrice espagnole Maria Trénor, née en 1970. C'est parce qu'elle aime profondément ce disque, d'inspiration psychédélique, dans lequel Wyatt fait battre les pulsations de l'amour fou qui naissait entre lui et l'artiste peintre Alfreda Benge (« Alfie »), que la cinéaste a souhaité porter le récit à l'écran, dans ce premier long-métrage dévoilé au Festival d'Annecy, en 2024. L'histoire de Rock Bottom est triste à mourir et terriblement belle.

Le 1er juin 1973, à Londres, Robert Wyatt, ancien batteur du groupe Soft Machine, chutait du quatrième étage d'un immeuble, lors d'une fête arrosée. Le musicien se retrouvait paralysé des membres inférieurs, passant plusieurs mois à réapprendre à vivre. Pendant sa convalescence, il a finalisé Rock Bottom, son chef-d'œuvre, produit par Nick Mason, batteur de Pink Floyd, et enregistré avec le guitariste Mike Oldfield, dont les bases avaient été posées en 1972 à Venise, alors qu'il venait de rencontrer Alfie. Depuis, en fauteuil roulant depuis une cinquantaine d'années, Wyatt a mené une carrière solo, au côté de sa compagne, laquelle a écrit certaines de ses chansons et dessiné ses pochettes de disque – Alfreda Benge fut aussi assistante monteuse sur le film de Nicolas Roeg, Ne vous retournez pas (1974).

La cinéaste réussit à insuffler à ses tableaux un rythme vibrant, inouï, tout particulièrement lors des séquences musicales

Selon le vœu de Robert Wyatt, 80 ans aujourd'hui, les six titres défilent dans l'ordre où ils apparaissent dans l'album, structurant le récit du film Rock Bottom. Pour le reste, la cinéaste s'est autorisé quelques libertés de récit mais aussi géographiques. Exit Londres et Venise, le film s'ouvre dans un New York bohème, le soir où la vie de Wyatt va basculer, tandis que les émois amoureux avec Alfie sont situés sur l'île de Majorque, dans les Baléares – l'occasion de bains de minuit et de fonds rocheux foisonnant d'algues et autres splendeurs, rappelant le motif de la composition florale dessinée par Alfie sur la pochette de l'album.

Technique de la rotoscopie

Sur la plage, à la maison ou dans les couleurs acidulées des soirées planantes, Bob et Alfie évoluent avec une grande fluidité : la cinéaste a utilisé la technique de la rotoscopie, qui consiste à filmer d'abord les acteurs en prises de vues réelles – ici Laura Casaña Pardo et Pernni Della –, pour ensuite dessiner les contours des silhouettes, image après image. Le film dévoile le procédé, lors de quelques plans furtifs sur le visage des comédiens.

Surtout, Maria Trénor réussit à insuffler à ses tableaux un rythme vibrant, inouï, tout particulièrement lors des séquences musicales. A partir du moment où Robert Wyatt perd connaissance, après s'être écrasé la colonne vertébrale sur le bitume, c'est un peu comme si les derniers mois qu'il avait vécus défilaient dans sa tête – et à l'écran –, tout en se cognant au présent infernal (le transport en ambulance, etc.).

Le film contourne ainsi l'écueil du flash-back. Il n'y a pas d'avant ni d'après, juste une profusion d'images et de souvenirs, que le montage restitue avec l'urgence des sentiments. Nous voici à traverser des bribes d'histoires, une nuit sublime dans une crique (Sea Song), le cauchemar dans le bloc opératoire (A Last Straw), etc. La cinéaste crée quelques images fabuleuses à partir des chansons, utilisant le souffle de Wyatt sur Alifib (plus de trois minutes de scansion du titre chuchotée), au moment où le compositeur réalise, dans son lit d'hôpital, qu'il va être dépendant pour le reste de sa vie. Des collages dadaïstes montrent Alfie en garde-manger (un œuf à la place de la tête…), tandis que celle-ci rétorque, dans la chanson : « Je ne suis pas ton garde-manger/Je suis ta gardienne. »

On est avec Bob et Alfie pour le meilleur et pour le pire. Il y a les matins de descente une fois passés les effets de la drogue, tandis qu'Alfie mesure combien il lui est difficile, en tant que femme, d'être prise au sérieux dans le milieu de l'art et du cinéma.

Les affres de la création n'épargnent pas Robert Wyatt, qui a parfois du mal à écrire les paroles des chansons. Le film nous le raconte avec humour, au détour d'une scène avec un membre du groupe Matching Mole, créé en 1972 par Wyatt après son départ de Soft Machine. Au piano, Wyatt va tenter d'improviser des « métaparoles », dans la chanson Signed Curtain (1972) : il se contente de répéter en boucle : « C'est la première strophe. » Et de poursuivre : « Et voici le refrain, ou peut-être un interlude. »

On n'en voudra pas à Maria Trénor d'avoir cédé à quelques clichés du biopic musical, avec son incontournable instant décisif, lorsque l'artiste est sur le point de trouver une mélodie mythique. Ici, la scène produit son effet, tant on est persuadé d'avoir Robert Wyatt sous les yeux, les cheveux aux épaules, la créature animée s'accordant si bien avec la voix du chanteur. Magie du cinéma. ■

CLARISSE FABRE

Film d'animation espagnol de Maria Trénor (1h 26)

> Zoom

Rock Bottom

de Maria Trénor

Espagne, Pologne, 2024. Animation. 1h26.

Sortie le 9 juillet.

Le pari le plus osé de María Trénor, cinéaste d'animation et professeure de médias audiovisuels, est d'avoir concocté la bande originale de son premier long métrage à partir d'une œuvre totémique de la musique contemporaine : le sidérant Rock Bottom de Robert Wyatt (1974), objet de fascination et de vénération sans égal, dont les six titres, proposés ici dans leur quasi-intégralité, sont entendus, selon le souhait du maître, dans l'ordre de leur apparition sur l'album. Loin d'être une succession de tableaux, le film échappe à la fragmentation muséale tout autant qu'à l'artifice d'une intrigue qui s'épuiserait à illustrer l'hermétisme dépouillé des chansons. Et s'il trouve son ancrage dans la vie de Wyatt, évoquant l'accident qui l'a rendu paraplégique, la genèse du disque culte ou un séjour – édénique – à Majorque, il n'est pas davantage un biopic ou le making-of d'un chef d'œuvre (comme naguère Buñuel après l'âge d'or de Salvador Simó, autre fleuron de l'animation espagnole) : à la structure en flash-back plus ou moins fantasmés – New York remplace ici Londres pour les séquences liées à la chute originelle – fait écho la possibilité de puiser dans tout l'univers du musicien, en multipliant les entrées complémentaires et passionnantes. C'est ainsi qu'au recours à « O'Caroline » et « Signed Curtain », deux titres de Matching Mole, dernier groupe de Wyatt avant son accident, ou même à la superbe adaptation chorale de « Sea Song » en générique final, correspond l'étonnante et emblématique fusion de deux types d'animation. Entre fluidité rotoscopique et traces peintes déchirées de l'artiste polonais Zbigniew Czapla se joue l'ambivalence d'un regard fasciné mais lucide sur l'ère psychédélique que Rock Bottom permet d'attribuer à la compagne du musicien. Alphie, véritable protagoniste d'un film apaisé qui ne dit rien d'autre que la mort et la renaissance d'un amour, permet alors à Wyatt de reprendre « At Last I Am Free ».

Thierry Méranger

POTEMKINE

Rock bottom de María Trénor.

LES INROCKUPTIBLES- juillet 2025

ROCK BOTTOM de María Trénor

Une plongée animée très musicale dans la vie et l'art de Robert Wyatt et de sa compagne Alfreda Benge. Aussi inspiré qu'inclassable.

Premier long métrage de Maria Trénor, cinéaste espagnole originaire de Valence, Rock Bottom est un film d'animation totalement inclassable, dont le sujet même est déjà une curiosité. Il s'agit d'abord, comme son titre l'indique, d'une plongé musicale au cœur d'un album conçu et interprété par Robert Wyatt, le fascinant et totalement culte Rock Bottom, sorti en juillet 1974. Mais il y est aussi très largement question du couple formé par le musicien et l'artiste Alfreda Benge, dessinatrice et cinéaste expérimentale, dont le sort se joue entre un séjour à Majorque en 1972 et la chute dont sera victime Wyatt, qui le rendra paraplégique.
Le plus fascinant, c'est que cette exploration d'un univers très singulier se traduit dans un langage visuel à la fois réaliste et fantasmagorique, entremêlant avec bonheur scènes de couple et rêveries à partir des morceaux de Rock Bottom, que le film nous donne à écouter en intégralité.
Au début, nous sommes à New York, pendant l'été 1973. Apparaît un personnage aux cheveux longs, dénommé Bob, dont on comprend assez vite qu'il est l'incarnation de Robert Wyatt. L'intrigue se noue autour d'une soirée à l'ambiance franchement hippie, noyée dans les fumées et autres effluves stupéfiants. Le tout figuré avec des couleurs très vives, déclinées en bleu, violet, rose profonds. Très vite, le récit fait quelques allers-retours dans le temps, en particulier à Majorque où naît l'histoire d'amour assez complexe entre Bob et Alfie (qui représente Alfreda Benge), et tente quelques embardées oniriques et aquatiques, au son notamment de la sublime Sea Song, première pièce planante de Rock Bottom. Nous sommes alors emporté-es dans un tourbillon de formes et de couleurs. L'étrange beauté un peu malade distillée par ce titre de Wyatt trouve ainsi, sans forcer, un prolongement visuel de toute beauté, jamais convenu, toujours inspiré.
Les relations mouvantes entre musique et image sont au centre du motif tout au long du film. Mais ce dernier tourne aussi autour d'événements réels qui ont scellé le destin de Robert et Alfreda. Le point central du récit, c'est donc la chute de Wyatt du haut d'un immeuble. Une chute dont on taira les circonstances, qui aurait pu être mortelle et aura un impact considérable sur la trajectoire du musicien et de sa compagne.
Une bonne part de la seconde moitié de Rock Bottom est habitée par le trajet en ambulance vers l'hôpital, où Wyatt passera sa convalescence et donnera naissance à l'album. Pour les fans du grand Robert, ce film est une véritable bénédiction, tant il entrelace avec précision et invention, dans un style totalement original, sa vie et sa musique, et tant il permet de mieux connaître Alfreda, la femme qui a réalisé toutes les pochettes de ses albums à partir de Rock Bottom. Pour les autres, ça sera assurément l'occasion d'une très belle découverte et peut-être le début d'une nouvelle passion. ● Thierry Jousse

Rock Bottom de María Trénor (Esp., 2024, 1 h 26). En salle le 09 juillet.

9 JUILLET | ★★★★

PREMIERE
juillet-août 2025

ROCK BOTTOM

Hommage au concept-album mythique de Robert Wyatt, cette transe sonore et visuelle dessine le désenchantement du psychédélisme finissant. Magnifique.

Figure de proue de ce que l'on a appelé L'école de Canterbury, Robert Wyatt a hissé le rock progressif, voire le jazz fusion (c'est selon), au sommet des charts via son groupe Soft Machine où il officiait en tant que batteur, chanteur et compositeur. Au début des seventies, Wyatt en solo sort le magnifique Rock Bottom (1974), concept album aussi intimiste que symphonique produit par Nick Mason de Pink Floyd. Les compositions savantes et ténébreuses sont notamment marquées (hantées ?) par l'accident qui a rendu le musicien tétraplégique lors d'une fête londonienne. Ce film d'animation rend ici hommage à ce monument discographique dans une sorte de transe sonore et visuelle qui s'octroie des libertés avec les faits. Adoubée par Wyatt himself qui a seulement exigé que les morceaux de l'album soient utilisés dans l'ordre chronologique, l'Espagnole Maria Trénor resserre son récit autour du couple Wyatt-Alfie et de leur vie de bohème sur l'île de Majorque juste avant le drame. Alfreda Benge dite Alfie, compagne de Wyatt, inspira plusieurs morceaux de ce Rock Bottom. Les couleurs volontairement assombries de l'animation démythifient l'orgie psychédélique ambiante. Un style qui évoque le travail de l'auteur de bande dessinée américain Charles Burns (Black Hole) dans cette façon d'interroger la clarté de la ligne pour mieux délimiter les contours d'un monde chaotique. « Votre démence cadre parfaitement avec la mienne… » entend-on dans la chanson qui ouvre Rock Bottom. Marina Trénor a pris Wyatt au mot. ◆ TB

ALLEZ-Y SI VOUS AVEZ AIMÉ Yellow Submarine (1969), Métal Hurlant (1981), Pink Floyd : The Wall (1982)

Pays Espagne, Pologne • De Maria Trénor • Animation • Durée 1h26

> Zoom

Les films qu'on peut voir cette semaine

Rock Bottom

Rarement l'univers hippie aura été aussi bien rendu, avec ses abus de LSD, sa créativité, son désespoir, ses impasses et sa poésie. Pour ce magnifique film d'animation, la réalisatrice espagnole María Trénor s'est inspirée de la vie du musicien et interprète Robert Wyatt, du groupe Soft Machine, devenu tétraplégique à la suite d'une chute du 4e étage d'un immeuble new-yorkais.

Mettre en images un univers musical n'est pas un mince exploit, et María Trénor en réussit en outre un autre : son film est d'une beauté confondante. – A.-S. M.

Le Canard Enchaîné du 11 juillet 2025

Rock Bottom

María Trénor

Entre New York et Majorque, Robert Wyatt, icône des années 1970, connut des heures divines. Ce film d'animation inspiré lui rend un hommage fort.

Bienvenue dans un trip d'animation psychédélique, hommage vibrant à une légende des années 1970, le musicien Robert Wyatt, leader du groupe anglais Soft Machine, et plus particulièrement à son chef-d'œuvre, l'album Rock Bottom, composé et enregistré en 1974, un an après le drame qui a changé sa vie. Le 1er juin 1973, pendant une fête débridée, au crépuscule du mouvement hippie, le musicien tombe en effet du quatrième étage d'un immeuble. Par miracle, il survit à l'accident, mais restera cloué sur un fauteuil roulant pour le restant de ses jours.

Autour de cet épisode charnière dans l'œuvre et l'existence d'un artiste surdoué, la réalisatrice espagnole María Trénor, également scénariste et animatrice, compose un poème visuel tout entier dédié à la folle liberté d'une époque révolue. Où l'image elle-même, éclaboussée d'ocre, d'orange et de violet, semble trempée dans l'acide de rêves artificiels. Où l'amour même est une drogue, à consommer sans limite, à nu sur une plage de Majorque, dans l'une des plus belles scènes de Rock Bottom (présenté l'an dernier en compétition au festival d'Annecy). C'est là, au bord de la Méditerranée, que le Robert Wyatt d'avant la chute a composé l'un de ses plus beaux titres, le mélancolique Sea Song, inspiré par sa compagne, Alfie, une artiste plasticienne. Leur passion à huis clos, contemplative, charnelle, tempétueuse, brille au cœur du film comme une eau claire mais profonde.

Tout, de l'animation en rotoscopie aux vêtements excentriques et aux visions hallucinées des personnages, des rues folles du New York des années 1970 aux pentes ensoleillées de l'île espagnole, contribue à un hypnotique voyage dans le temps, loin des biopics classiques. L'occasion de (re) découvrir la musique, ici omniprésente, aventureuse et envoûtante d'un maître, d'un homme libre, cassé mais toujours entier. ▷ Cécile Mury

| Film d'animation, Espagne/Pologne (1h26).

Le batteur de Soft Machine avant son grave accident de 1973.

> Zoom

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME

Le rock progressif anglais

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Sous un intitulé ambitieux "LE ROCK PROGRESSIF ANGLAIS (1967-1977)", Christophe Pirenne rend compte du contexte historique, social et technologique de la musique dite "progressive" considérée comme l'une des plus fertiles de l'histoire du rock [...] à l'intersection entre culture savante et culture populaire.

Publié en 2005 avec le concours de la Fondation Universitaire de Belgique, ce volumineux ouvrage de 354 pages ne se réduit heureusement pas à une somme encyclopédique.

D'un ton parfois tranché qui traduit une vraie passion pour la matière étudiée, Christophe Pirenne nous apporte dans l'extrait ci-dessous un éclairage inédit sur le Soft Machine des deux premiers albums.

LE ROCK PROGRESSIF ANGLAIS
Christophe Pirenne
Librairie Honoré Champion

Volume I et volume II

De 1967 à 1969, malgré une activité trépidante qui fait de Soft Machine l'un des hérauts du mouvement underground, le groupe semble voguer sans but, errant au gré des pérégrinations chaotiques de ses membres, changeant d'orientation au fil des rencontres, enregistrant par opportunisme puis par obligation et poursuivant des expériences communes par nécessité plus que par inclination. Pourtant, les deux premiers albums ont une cohérence stylistique indéniable et permettent de définir plusieurs orientations musicales et extra-musicales.
Partout où cela était possible, le groupe jouait à un volume très élevé dans des concerts ininterrompus d'une durée approximative de deux heures.

> Nous enchaînions nos morceaux pour que la fin de l'un devienne le début du suivant. Ainsi, le seul moment où nous arrêtions, c'était lorsque nous quittions la scène. C'est comme cela que nous avons développé le style de concerts continus qui devint la marque de Soft Machine. [1]

Dès leur gestation, les compositions sont d'ailleurs conçues comme de longues pièces unifiées. Les deux faces du Volume Two: Rivmic Melodies et Esther s Nose Job ne furent scindées en petits segments thématiques pourvus de titres "ridicules" [2], que pour satisfaire les exigences de la firme de disque [3]. Ces enregistrements, de même que les prestations accompagnées par le spectacle lumineux de Mark Boyle et !es tenues excentriques du groupe, conduisirent une partie de la critique et certains présentateurs à les associer au mouvement psychédélique. Pour d'autres, les longues improvisations entrecoupant les titres étaient le synonyme d'un attachement au jazz :

> Il ne fait aucun doute que la musique qu'ils jouent est du jazz [...] Entre les parties vocales, Soft Machine improvise et ils swinguent. [...] Leur son est aussi neuf, aussi étrange et aussi frais - dans le jazz que ne l'était celui du bop à l'origine. [4]

D'autres encore parlent de "fusion" ou de "new wave" ! Quant aux membres du groupe, ils semblent eux-mêmes conscients de la position singulière de leur musique. "Nous avons inventé notre propre musique blanche en mettant nos connaissances en commun", affirmait Kevin Ayers, ce que confirmait Daevid Allen en signalant :

> Nous abordions la musique par le biais du jazz, entre autres en jouant les morceaux pop de Kevin et de Robert avec des inflexions jazz. Cela produisait un résultat étrange parce que personne ne faisait cela consciemment. Je dirais que c'était sans doute le premicr croisement, la première fusion, de l'histoire de la musique pop. [5]

À nouveau, pour déterminer une ligne de conduite esthétique dans l'écheveau de ces déclarations, il convient de retourner aux oeuvres, car s'il est indéniable que Soft Machine a initié une musique propre et originale, il paraît bien plus téméraire d'affirmer que le groupe ait créé l'une des premières fusions de l'histoire de la musique pop.

Le premier repère permettant de dégager l'originalité de Soft Machine en même temps que ses liens à la tradition du pop et à celle du jazz peut se déduire de ses effectifs. La combinaison basse, batterie, clavier peut en effet se lire comme une adaptation électrique du trio à clavier en jazz ou comme celle de la formule du power trio (guitare, basse, batterie). À la différence de Cream et du Jimi Hendrix Experience toutefois, le hasard l'emporta sur la nécessité, car Soft Machine n'adopta cette formule que parce que Daevid Allen fut empêché de rentrer en Angleterre. Une telle combinaison plus facile à gérer humainement et matériellement exigeait des compétences musicales solides et aboutit vraisemblablement à l'adoption de techniques, de timbres et de formes qui forgèrent le style de leurs deux premiers albums.

L'un des apports majeurs de Soft Machine fut d'importer dans la tradition naissante du rock des pratiques d'improvisation et d'interprétation du bop et de ses dérivés. Robert Wyatt et Mike Ratledge n'avaient d'ailleurs jamais caché leur inclination pour des artistes comme Charlie Parker ou John Coltrane, mais de telles interprétations sont souvent au-delà de leurs compétences réelles. En 1968-69, leur bagage instrumental est certes plus appréciable, mais l'incidence du bop se marque plus dans les formes que dans la qualité de l'improvisation. Plutôt que de construire les titres sur une alternance de couplets et de refrains, ils empruntent au jazz la pratique du chorus, et au bop la forme thème, improvisation, thème, avec de fréquents unissons dans les expositions. Hugh Hopper expliqua d'ailleurs :

> Lorsque nous répétions le Volume Two, il y avait de nombreuses mélodies à l'unisson dans lesquelles la basse devait être aussi forte que le soliste pour bien sonner. [6]

*Hibou, Anemone and Bea*r en est un bon exemple. Le petit riff de basse évoluant légèrement au cours de ses nonante et une expositions est partiellement joué à l'unisson ou à la tierce avec le saxophone. De même pour le thème de Why are we Sleeping ? joué conjointement par la basse et l'orgue et pour ceux de Thank you Pierrot Lunaire, Hulloder et Dedicated to you but you Weren 't Listening, exposés par la basse et la voix.

Comme dans le bop, l'harmonie du thème ou sa mélodie est reprise en boucle et sert de support aux improvisations. Dans So Boot if at all, initialement composé par Hugh Hopper sous le titre I Should Have Known, ce sont ainsi deux petits riffs de basse qui servent d'ossature à un long solo d'orgue.

D'autres traits évoquent également également le bop et ses dérivés, mais ils apparaissent avec plus de parcimonie. La basse fournit parfois un support harmonique sous forme de walking basses, la batterie reprend fréquemment des séquences de

"tinkety" pour de courts passages (Joy of a toy, Save Yourself, Lullaby Letter, We Did it Again, Thank you Pierrot Lunaire), le clavier adopte un rôle intermédiaire tantôt de soliste, tantôt d'accompagnateur avec des harmonies également inspirées du jazz (Thank you Pierrot Lunaire). Le goût de Mike Ratledge pour John Coltrane s'exprime dans des titres qui, tels Out of rune ou Have you Ever Been Green tiennent plutôt du free jazz. Il faut aussi mentionner les trois derniers morceaux du Volume Two, qui entretiennent d'évidentes accointances avec le jazz rock, en particulier, dans leur construction métrique. En 1967, Michael Zwerin notait déjà que le groupe recourait à des mesures inusitées :

> Ils ont un titre en 7/4. subdivisé 1,2.3,-1-1,2,3. Robert swingue dur, dans un style que je n'ai jamais entendu auparavant et qui combine Ringo Starr et Elvin Jones. [7]

> Zoom

Sur le Volume Two, ce ne sont pas moins de sept titres qui tout ou en partie sont joués en 7/4 ou en 7/8 (exemple ci-contre: Dedicated to you but you Weren't Listening), avec des mètres parfois étonnants comme un passage en 13/16 dans Hibou, Anemone and Bear ou, au début de Dada was Here (0'11"), la très belle superposition d'une mélodie ternaire sur une mesure en 4/4. La fréquence des mesures en 7/4 ou en 7/8 conduit le groupe à utiliser des subdivisions irrégulières telles qu'un 3/2/2 dans Pig et Orange Skin Food. Une pratique que l'on retrouve aussi dans l'exploitation de certaines mesures en 4/4 (croches groupées en séquence 3/3/2 dans Dada was Here) et qui, par leur fréquence, comptent parmi les traits les plus saillants de la musique de Soft Machine. Enfin, l'ajout de cuivres sur quelques titres du second album confère au groupe une couleur proche du jazz, même si ceux-ci interviennent avant tout pour doubler des lignes mélodiques et non pour exécuter des soli.

Leur goût pour le jazz contemporain mais aussi leur fascination précoce pour les musiques ethniques incitent les membres du groupe à utiliser certaines gammes modales avec, influence du jazz aidant, une prédilection pour les modes doriens, lydiens et mixolydiens. Comme l'affirme Robert Wyatt

> J'ai toujours apprécié les modes dont l'ambiguïté ne permet pas de dire s'ils sont majeurs ou mineurs. Ce que j'aime dans le flamenco, c'est l'utilisation de modes tziganes, dans lesquels la seconde note est un demi-ton plus haut [mode phrygien ou locrien]... ce demi-ton est aussi typique de l'Afrique du Nord car de nombreux modes égyptiens sont comme cela. [8]

Ces différents traits côtoient des éléments communs à la musique pop de l'époque. Ainsi, le couplet et le solo de Hope for Hapiness peuvent s' apparenter aux premières productions d'un groupe tel que Deep Purple. On y trouve les mêmes rythmes carrés inspirés de la beat music ou du rhythm and blues, les mêmes harmonies et les mêmes associations de timbres. Ces caractéristiques se retrouvent dans de nombreux autres titres. Il suffit d'écouter les rythmes de batterie de même que l' accompagnement de la basse dans Why am I so short ou dans Lullaby Letter pour s'en convaincre. Toutefois, comme pour les éléments empruntés au jazz, ces traits "pop" sont employés de façon disparate et sans réelle continuité. Dans Joy of a Toy, Wyatt commence par accentuer second et quatrième temps, puis à 2'03", lorsque le titre atteint une sorte paroxysme, il joue un rythme tout à fait typique du rhythm and blues. La musique de Soft Machine se distingue aussi par la spécificité de ses timbres. Certes, le groupe n'innove pas en matière de technologie, mais il propose des exploitations singulières d'effets ou de techniques plus moins répandus. Ainsi, lorsque Hugh Hopper commence à "gonfler" le son de sa basse en utilisant une pédale fuzz, il n 'hésite pas à mentionner ses sources d'inspiration.

> En aucun cas je n'ai été la première personne à utiliser une fuzz bass. La première fuzz bass que j'aie jamais entendue était sur Rubber Soul des Beatles. Paul McCartney l'utilisait. Je ne m'en souviens plus aujourd'hui, mais je pense que c'est Mike Ratledge qui me suggéra d'utiliser le fuzz sur la basse, parce que nous l'utilisions déjà pour l'orgue.. [9]

Pareillement, les nombreux effets de studio utilisés lors du mixage du premier album, sans être inédits, s'imposent par l' originalité de leur utilisation. Dans Hope for happiness, le chant passe alternativement d'un canal à l'autre, le son des rim shots est transformé dans une chambre d'écho et les répétitions vocales (de 0'50" à 1'00") évoquent, bien avant leur apparition, les techniques de sampling. Ces effets de boucle avaient été employés par le groupe lors de l' enregistrement de Spaced où grâce à un Ferrograph, le premier enregistreur à bande anglais, leur ingénieur du son, Bob Woolford, avait créé de nombreuses boucles de durée très variables [10]. Enfin, on peut aussi mentionner l'association ponctuelle de Soft Machine avec Brian Hopper au saxophone ténor et soprano. Dans le contexte de l' époque, celui-ci contribue aussi à élargir leur palette instrumentale et à leur donner un son plus proche du jazz.

Quant aux illustrations, les deux pochettes ont la particularité de procéder à la fois du montage photographique et du collage. Le premier album avec ses roues dentées et ses engrenages surimposés à la photo des musiciens évoque peut-être le nom du groupe et les impressions visuelles créées par les projections qui accompagnaient leurs concerts. En revanche, des éléments comme l'ajout d'un dessin de costume sur le torse nu de Robert Wyatt ou la photographie d'une jeune femme nue vue de dos sur le Volume II évoque plutôt un collage dadaïste. D'un point de vue iconographique, le progressisme de Soft Machine se rapproche donc plus des théories esthétiques enseignées dans les écoles artistiques anglaises que d'une conception romantique de la création et, dans ce sens, les membres du groupe s'engouffrent dans une direction radicalement différente de celle que choisissent d'autres formations progressives.

La production de Soft Machine se singularise aussi par ses textes, même si, dans ce domaine, il faut distinguer l'intention de la réalisation. Robert Wyatt, auteur de la plupart d' entre eux, multiplie les références culturelles et utilise force métaphores obscures et allusions nébuleuses. On pourrait être tenté de rapprocher ces pratiques d'écriture de son passé artistique, mais s'il a lu et joué des textes de Jarry et si les liens du groupe avec le Collège de Pataphysique sont bien connus, il ne faut toutefois pas surestimer cette filiation. Certes, des titres comme Pataphysical Introduction, plagiant le début de Sgt. Pepper, A Concise British Alphabet, évoquant les comptines d'Edward Gorey, Thank you Pierrot Lunaire, allusion à l'oeuvre de Schoenberg ou Esther's Nose Job, emprunté à V de Thomas Pynchon, témoignent bien d'une culture relativement large, mais il n'est pas certain qu'ils fassent sens. On l'a dit: l'apparition de ces titres fut tardive et imposée et ils recouvrent des thèmes aux prétentions bien moindres que ce que ne suggère leur apparence. La plupart d'entre eux sont de petites narrations anecdotiques faciles à décoder. Ils évoquent le quotidien du batteur/chanteur (Hope for Happiness), ses proches (Thank you Pierrot Lunaire parle de Mike Ratledge, Have you Ever Bean Green du Jimi Hendrix Experience, *As Long as he Lies Perfectly Stil*l de Kevin Ayers) ou ses propres préoccupations (Hibou, Anemone and Bear).

Why am I so short ?
Paroles de Robert Wyatt.
Extrait de l'album Soft Machine. Probe CPLP 4500 (1968)

I've got a drum kit and some sticks
So when I'm drunk or in a trip
I find it easy to express myself
I hit the drum so hard and break all my heads
And then I end the day in one of my beds. [...]

The best of all I like to talk about me.

J'ai une batterie et des baguettes
Alors quand je suis saoul ou stone
C'est très facile de m'exprimer
Je frappe sur ma batterie et casse toutes mes peaux
Et puis j'arrête les frais dans un de mes lits

Ce qui me plaît le plus c'est de parler de moi.

En fait, la démarche artistique des deux premiers albums de Soft Machine s'apparente à celle d'un groupe adolescent dont l'idéal se résume plutôt aux plaisirs de l'oisiveté, de l'alcool et d'une vie entre amis, qu'à la volonté de créer pour la postérité. S'appropriant avec opportunisme les influences très diverses de leur entourage et les mariant à leurs propres goûts, ils proposent, tant dans la musique que dans les textes, une sorte de somme des principales tendances esthétiques en vogue à l'époque. Soft Machine résume son temps - et il est le seul groupe anglais de l'époque à proposer une fusion aussi singulière - mais il innove peu. Toutefois, à force d'insister sur leur légèreté, ils suscitèrent une réaction inverse et tant la musique que les textes furent, involontairement peut-être, mais de manière incontestable, associées aux productions cryptées et mystérieuses du psychédélisme.

Le rock progressif anglais (1967-1977) - extraits du chapitre II.

---

[1] Robert Wyatt, cité par Michael King, 1994

[2] Mike Ratledge, cité par Michael King, 1994

[3] Les listes des chansons jouées au cours des concerts est parfois reprise dans la biographie de Michael King (Wrong Movements). La publication d'un concert enregistré au Paradisio d'Amsterdam le 29 mars 1969 montre aussi que les liens entre les titres étaient bien respectés pendant les concerts, même si Rivmic Melodies et Esther's Nose Job ne sont interprétés qu'à moitié. Soft Machine, The Soft Machine Turns on, Amazing Discs, CDLP 4505, 1988

[4] Michael Zwerin, cité par Michael King, 1994

[5] Ibid

[6] Hugh Hopper, cité par Michael King, 1994

[7] Ibid

[8] Robert Wyatt, cité par Marc Randall, "Musician Forum: Robert Wyatt Meets Billl Nelson", Musician Magazine, Août 1992, p. 39

[9] Hugh Hopper, cité par Michael King, 1994

[10] Bob Woolford, Spaced, Cuneiform Records, Rune 90, 1996

Le rock progressif anglais

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Sous un intitulé ambitieux "LE ROCK PROGRESSIF ANGLAIS (1967-1977)", Christophe Pirenne rend compte du contexte historique, social et technologique de la musique dite "progressive" considérée comme l'une des plus fertiles de l'histoire du rock [...] à l'intersection entre culture savante et culture populaire.

Publié en 2005 avec le concours de la Fondation Universitaire de Belgique, ce volumineux ouvrage de 354 pages ne se réduit heureusement pas à une somme encyclopédique.

D'un ton parfois tranché qui traduit une vraie passion pour la matière étudiée, Christophe Pirenne nous apporte dans l'extrait ci-dessous un éclairage inédit sur le Soft Machine des deux premiers albums.

LE ROCK PROGRESSIF ANGLAIS
Christophe Pirenne
Librairie Honoré Champion

Volume I et volume II

De 1967 à 1969, malgré une activité trépidante qui fait de Soft Machine l'un des hérauts du mouvement underground, le groupe semble voguer sans but, errant au gré des pérégrinations chaotiques de ses membres, changeant d'orientation au fil des rencontres, enregistrant par opportunisme puis par obligation et poursuivant des expériences communes par nécessité plus que par inclination. Pourtant, les deux premiers albums ont une cohérence stylistique indéniable et permettent de définir plusieurs orientations musicales et extra-musicales.
Partout où cela était possible, le groupe jouait à un volume très élevé dans des concerts ininterrompus d'une durée approximative de deux heures.

> Nous enchaînions nos morceaux pour que la fin de l'un devienne le début du suivant. Ainsi, le seul moment où nous arrêtions, c'était lorsque nous quittions la scène. C'est comme cela que nous avons développé le style de concerts continus qui devint la marque de Soft Machine. [1]

Dès leur gestation, les compositions sont d'ailleurs conçues comme de longues pièces unifiées. Les deux faces du Volume Two: Rivmic Melodies et Esther s Nose Job ne furent scindées en petits segments thématiques pourvus de titres "ridicules" [2], que pour satisfaire les exigences de la firme de disque [3]. Ces enregistrements, de même que les prestations accompagnées par le spectacle lumineux de Mark Boyle et !es tenues excentriques du groupe, conduisirent une partie de la critique et certains présentateurs à les associer au mouvement psychédélique. Pour d'autres, les longues improvisations entrecoupant les titres étaient le synonyme d'un attachement au jazz :

> Il ne fait aucun doute que la musique qu'ils jouent est du jazz [...] Entre les parties vocales, Soft Machine improvise et ils swinguent. [...] Leur son est aussi neuf, aussi étrange et aussi frais - dans le jazz que ne l'était celui du bop à l'origine. [4]

D'autres encore parlent de "fusion" ou de "new wave" ! Quant aux membres du groupe, ils semblent eux-mêmes conscients de la position singulière de leur musique. "Nous avons inventé notre propre musique blanche en mettant nos connaissances en commun", affirmait Kevin Ayers, ce que confirmait Daevid Allen en signalant :

> Nous abordions la musique par le biais du jazz, entre autres en jouant les morceaux pop de Kevin et de Robert avec des inflexions jazz. Cela produisait un résultat étrange parce que personne ne faisait cela consciemment. Je dirais que c'était sans doute le premicr croisement, la première fusion, de l'histoire de la musique pop. [5]

À nouveau, pour déterminer une ligne de conduite esthétique dans l'écheveau de ces déclarations, il convient de retourner aux oeuvres, car s'il est indéniable que Soft Machine a initié une musique propre et originale, il paraît bien plus téméraire d'affirmer que le groupe ait créé l'une des premières fusions de l'histoire de la musique pop.

Le premier repère permettant de dégager l'originalité de Soft Machine en même temps que ses liens à la tradition du pop et à celle du jazz peut se déduire de ses effectifs. La combinaison basse, batterie, clavier peut en effet se lire comme une adaptation électrique du trio à clavier en jazz ou comme celle de la formule du power trio (guitare, basse, batterie). À la différence de Cream et du Jimi Hendrix Experience toutefois, le hasard l'emporta sur la nécessité, car Soft Machine n'adopta cette formule que parce que Daevid Allen fut empêché de rentrer en Angleterre. Une telle combinaison plus facile à gérer humainement et matériellement exigeait des compétences musicales solides et aboutit vraisemblablement à l'adoption de techniques, de timbres et de formes qui forgèrent le style de leurs deux premiers albums.

L'un des apports majeurs de Soft Machine fut d'importer dans la tradition naissante du rock des pratiques d'improvisation et d'interprétation du bop et de ses dérivés. Robert Wyatt et Mike Ratledge n'avaient d'ailleurs jamais caché leur inclination pour des artistes comme Charlie Parker ou John Coltrane, mais de telles interprétations sont souvent au-delà de leurs compétences réelles. En 1968-69, leur bagage instrumental est certes plus appréciable, mais l'incidence du bop se marque plus dans les formes que dans la qualité de l'improvisation. Plutôt que de construire les titres sur une alternance de couplets et de refrains, ils empruntent au jazz la pratique du chorus, et au bop la forme thème, improvisation, thème, avec de fréquents unissons dans les expositions. Hugh Hopper expliqua d'ailleurs :

> Lorsque nous répétions le Volume Two, il y avait de nombreuses mélodies à l'unisson dans lesquelles la basse devait être aussi forte que le soliste pour bien sonner. [6]

*Hibou, Anemone and Bea*r en est un bon exemple. Le petit riff de basse évoluant légèrement au cours de ses nonante et une expositions est partiellement joué à l'unisson ou à la tierce avec le saxophone. De même pour le thème de Why are we Sleeping ? joué conjointement par la basse et l'orgue et pour ceux de Thank you Pierrot Lunaire, Hulloder et Dedicated to you but you Weren 't Listening, exposés par la basse et la voix.

Comme dans le bop, l'harmonie du thème ou sa mélodie est reprise en boucle et sert de support aux improvisations. Dans So Boot if at all, initialement composé par Hugh Hopper sous le titre I Should Have Known, ce sont ainsi deux petits riffs de basse qui servent d'ossature à un long solo d'orgue.

D'autres traits évoquent également également le bop et ses dérivés, mais ils apparaissent avec plus de parcimonie. La basse fournit parfois un support harmonique sous forme de walking basses, la batterie reprend fréquemment des séquences de "tinkety" pour de courts passages (Joy of a toy, Save Yourself, Lullaby Letter, We Did it Again, Thank you Pierrot Lunaire), le clavier adopte un rôle intermédiaire tantôt de soliste, tantôt d'accompagnateur avec des harmonies également inspirées du jazz (Thank you Pierrot Lunaire). Le goût de Mike Ratledge pour John Coltrane s'exprime dans des titres qui, tels Out of rune ou Have you Ever Been Green tiennent plutôt du free jazz. Il faut aussi mentionner les trois derniers morceaux du Volume Two, qui entretiennent d'évidentes accointances avec le jazz rock, en particulier, dans leur construction métrique. En 1967, Michael Zwerin notait déjà que le groupe recourait à des mesures inusitées :

> Ils ont un titre en 7/4. subdivisé 1,2.3,-1-1,2,3. Robert swingue dur, dans un style que je n'ai jamais entendu auparavant et qui combine Ringo Starr et Elvin Jones. [7]

> Zoom

Sur le Volume Two, ce ne sont pas moins de sept titres qui tout ou en partie sont joués en 7/4 ou en 7/8 (exemple ci-contre: Dedicated to you but you Weren't Listening), avec des mètres parfois étonnants comme un passage en 13/16 dans Hibou, Anemone and Bear ou, au début de Dada was Here (0'11"), la très belle superposition d'une mélodie ternaire sur une mesure en 4/4. La fréquence des mesures en 7/4 ou en 7/8 conduit le groupe à utiliser des subdivisions irrégulières telles qu'un 3/2/2 dans Pig et Orange Skin Food. Une pratique que l'on retrouve aussi dans l'exploitation de certaines mesures en 4/4 (croches groupées en séquence 3/3/2 dans Dada was Here) et qui, par leur fréquence, comptent parmi les traits les plus saillants de la musique de Soft Machine. Enfin, l'ajout de cuivres sur quelques titres du second album confère au groupe une couleur proche du jazz, même si ceux-ci interviennent avant tout pour doubler des lignes mélodiques et non pour exécuter des soli.

Leur goût pour le jazz contemporain mais aussi leur fascination précoce pour les musiques ethniques incitent les membres du groupe à utiliser certaines gammes modales avec, influence du jazz aidant, une prédilection pour les modes doriens, lydiens et mixolydiens. Comme l'affirme Robert Wyatt

> J'ai toujours apprécié les modes dont l'ambiguïté ne permet pas de dire s'ils sont majeurs ou mineurs. Ce que j'aime dans le flamenco, c'est l'utilisation de modes tziganes, dans lesquels la seconde note est un demi-ton plus haut [mode phrygien ou locrien]... ce demi-ton est aussi typique de l'Afrique du Nord car de nombreux modes égyptiens sont comme cela. [8]

Ces différents traits côtoient des éléments communs à la musique pop de l'époque. Ainsi, le couplet et le solo de Hope for Hapiness peuvent s' apparenter aux premières productions d'un groupe tel que Deep Purple. On y trouve les mêmes rythmes carrés inspirés de la beat music ou du rhythm and blues, les mêmes harmonies et les mêmes associations de timbres. Ces caractéristiques se retrouvent dans de nombreux autres titres. Il suffit d'écouter les rythmes de batterie de même que l' accompagnement de la basse dans Why am I so short ou dans Lullaby Letter pour s'en convaincre. Toutefois, comme pour les éléments empruntés au jazz, ces traits "pop" sont employés de façon disparate et sans réelle continuité. Dans Joy of a Toy, Wyatt commence par accentuer second et quatrième temps, puis à 2'03", lorsque le titre atteint une sorte paroxysme, il joue un rythme tout à fait typique du rhythm and blues. La musique de Soft Machine se distingue aussi par la spécificité de ses timbres. Certes, le groupe n'innove pas en matière de technologie, mais il propose des exploitations singulières d'effets ou de techniques plus moins répandus. Ainsi, lorsque Hugh Hopper commence à "gonfler" le son de sa basse en utilisant une pédale fuzz, il n 'hésite pas à mentionner ses sources d'inspiration.

> En aucun cas je n'ai été la première personne à utiliser une fuzz bass. La première fuzz bass que j'aie jamais entendue était sur Rubber Soul des Beatles. Paul McCartney l'utilisait. Je ne m'en souviens plus aujourd'hui, mais je pense que c'est Mike Ratledge qui me suggéra d'utiliser le fuzz sur la basse, parce que nous l'utilisions déjà pour l'orgue.. [9]

Pareillement, les nombreux effets de studio utilisés lors du mixage du premier album, sans être inédits, s'imposent par l' originalité de leur utilisation. Dans Hope for happiness, le chant passe alternativement d'un canal à l'autre, le son des rim shots est transformé dans une chambre d'écho et les répétitions vocales (de 0'50" à 1'00") évoquent, bien avant leur apparition, les techniques de sampling. Ces effets de boucle avaient été employés par le groupe lors de l' enregistrement de Spaced où grâce à un Ferrograph, le premier enregistreur à bande anglais, leur ingénieur du son, Bob Woolford, avait créé de nombreuses boucles de durée très variables [10]. Enfin, on peut aussi mentionner l'association ponctuelle de Soft Machine avec Brian Hopper au saxophone ténor et soprano. Dans le contexte de l' époque, celui-ci contribue aussi à élargir leur palette instrumentale et à leur donner un son plus proche du jazz.

Quant aux illustrations, les deux pochettes ont la particularité de procéder à la fois du montage photographique et du collage. Le premier album avec ses roues dentées et ses engrenages surimposés à la photo des musiciens évoque peut-être le nom du groupe et les impressions visuelles créées par les projections qui accompagnaient leurs concerts. En revanche, des éléments comme l'ajout d'un dessin de costume sur le torse nu de Robert Wyatt ou la photographie d'une jeune femme nue vue de dos sur le Volume II évoque plutôt un collage dadaïste. D'un point de vue iconographique, le progressisme de Soft Machine se rapproche donc plus des théories esthétiques enseignées dans les écoles artistiques anglaises que d'une conception romantique de la création et, dans ce sens, les membres du groupe s'engouffrent dans une direction radicalement différente de celle que choisissent d'autres formations progressives.

La production de Soft Machine se singularise aussi par ses textes, même si, dans ce domaine, il faut distinguer l'intention de la réalisation. Robert Wyatt, auteur de la plupart d' entre eux, multiplie les références culturelles et utilise force métaphores obscures et allusions nébuleuses. On pourrait être tenté de rapprocher ces pratiques d'écriture de son passé artistique, mais s'il a lu et joué des textes de Jarry et si les liens du groupe avec le Collège de Pataphysique sont bien connus, il ne faut toutefois pas surestimer cette filiation. Certes, des titres comme Pataphysical Introduction, plagiant le début de Sgt. Pepper, A Concise British Alphabet, évoquant les comptines d'Edward Gorey, Thank you Pierrot Lunaire, allusion à l'oeuvre de Schoenberg ou Esther's Nose Job, emprunté à V de Thomas Pynchon, témoignent bien d'une culture relativement large, mais il n'est pas certain qu'ils fassent sens. On l'a dit: l'apparition de ces titres fut tardive et imposée et ils recouvrent des thèmes aux prétentions bien moindres que ce que ne suggère leur apparence. La plupart d'entre eux sont de petites narrations anecdotiques faciles à décoder. Ils évoquent le quotidien du batteur/chanteur (Hope for Happiness), ses proches (Thank you Pierrot Lunaire parle de Mike Ratledge, Have you Ever Bean Green du Jimi Hendrix Experience, *As Long as he Lies Perfectly Stil*l de Kevin Ayers) ou ses propres préoccupations (Hibou, Anemone and Bear).

Why am I so short ?
Paroles de Robert Wyatt.
Extrait de l'album Soft Machine. Probe CPLP 4500 (1968)

I've got a drum kit and some sticks
So when I'm drunk or in a trip
I find it easy to express myself
I hit the drum so hard and break all my heads
And then I end the day in one of my beds. [...]

The best of all I like to talk about me.

J'ai une batterie et des baguettes
Alors quand je suis saoul ou stone
C'est très facile de m'exprimer
Je frappe sur ma batterie et casse toutes mes peaux
Et puis j'arrête les frais dans un de mes lits

Ce qui me plaît le plus c'est de parler de moi.

En fait, la démarche artistique des deux premiers albums de Soft Machine s'apparente à celle d'un groupe adolescent dont l'idéal se résume plutôt aux plaisirs de l'oisiveté, de l'alcool et d'une vie entre amis, qu'à la volonté de créer pour la postérité. S'appropriant avec opportunisme les influences très diverses de leur entourage et les mariant à leurs propres goûts, ils proposent, tant dans la musique que dans les textes, une sorte de somme des principales tendances esthétiques en vogue à l'époque. Soft Machine résume son temps - et il est le seul groupe anglais de l'époque à proposer une fusion aussi singulière - mais il innove peu. Toutefois, à force d'insister sur leur légèreté, ils suscitèrent une réaction inverse et tant la musique que les textes furent, involontairement peut-être, mais de manière incontestable, associées aux productions cryptées et mystérieuses du psychédélisme.

Le rock progressif anglais (1967-1977) - extraits du chapitre II.

---

[1] Robert Wyatt, cité par Michael King, 1994

[2] Mike Ratledge, cité par Michael King, 1994

[3] Les listes des chansons jouées au cours des concerts est parfois reprise dans la biographie de Michael King (Wrong Movements). La publication d'un concert enregistré au Paradisio d'Amsterdam le 29 mars 1969 montre aussi que les liens entre les titres étaient bien respectés pendant les concerts, même si Rivmic Melodies et Esther's Nose Job ne sont interprétés qu'à moitié. Soft Machine, The Soft Machine Turns on, Amazing Discs, CDLP 4505, 1988

[4] Michael Zwerin, cité par Michael King, 1994

[5] Ibid

[6] Hugh Hopper, cité par Michael King, 1994

[7] Ibid

[8] Robert Wyatt, cité par Marc Randall, "Musician Forum: Robert Wyatt Meets Billl Nelson", Musician Magazine, Août 1992, p. 39

[9] Hugh Hopper, cité par Michael King, 1994

[10] Bob Woolford, Spaced, Cuneiform Records, Rune 90, 1996

* * *

A lire : une analyse critique de cet ouvrage publiée dans le n° 95 de Dissonance, la revue de l'Association Suisse des musiciens dans laquelle le musicologue Pierre Michel réévalue le rôle de la mouvance "Canterbury" dans ce qu'il est convenu d'appeler "Le rock progressif".

Lire l'article

Le Rock progressif anglais (1967-1977)
Christophe Pirenne
Paris, Librairie Honoré Champion, 2005, 354 p.

LE ROCK PROGRESSIF VU PAR UN MUSICOLOGUE

Le groupe YES en concert en 1977.

Si les Anglo-saxons et les Allemands ont développé depuis plus de dix ans une production assez abondante d'ouvrages musicologiques sur le Rock, les pays francophones sont largement en retard dans ce domaine, et le belge Christophe Pirenne est donc l'un des pionniers avec son ouvrage concernant le « rock progressif anglais » entre 1967 et 1977, soit entre la sortie du fameux Sgt. Pepper des Beatles et celle de Going for the one de Yes. Parallèlement au jazz des années 1960, également très aventureux, le Rock progressif anglais s'est distingué par une grande richesse d'expressions, par des démarches ambitieuses musicalement, et par une qualité généralement très élevée du niveau d'interprétation. Les groupes les plus célèbres de ce mouvement — King Crimson, Emerson, Lake and Palmer, Jethro Tull, Yes, Genesis — sont abordés de façon détaillée, avec de fines analyses, mais beaucoup d'autres ensembles sont également présents.

L'ouvrage débute par une longue introduction où l'auteur explique qu'il voulait écrire à l'origine une « histoire de la musique progressive dans la tradition afro-américaine », mais que son projet s'est finalement réduit à une période de dix ans. Le livre exclut toutes les formes de jazz progressif et n'évoque pas la période tardive (après 1977) de ce genre qui fut ensuite marginalisé. Christophe Pirenne discute aussi assez longuement la question de l'entrée du rock progressif dans « le champ du savoir agréé qu'est la musicologie » ; la sophistication du rock progressif semblait adéquate pour une première reconnaissance par la musicologie « académique » : « il s'est ainsi imposé à l'évidence parce que le cluster ouvrant Awaken de Yes semblait mieux soutenir la comparaison avec les œuvres du répertoire que les trois accords d'Anarchy in the UK des Sex Pistols ». Dans son premier chapitre, Pirenne aborde le « concept de musique progressive dans le rock » en traitant les terminologies, définitions et réceptions. Partant de l'« émergence du concept » (1966-69) il en arrive à « la fortune des concepts » (1969-73), moment où les firmes de disque « prennent conscience de la spécificité du public ». Ainsi trouve-t-on chez le critique Steve Lake ces propos en 1973 sur le groupe Hatfield and the North : « Ce n'est pas une musique simple à écouter. Elle demande de la part du public un certain degré de concentration ». Pirenne évoque ensuite les « revirements de la tradition critique », avec surtout les attitudes très sévères des journalistes de « Creem » au départ. Cette façon de reprocher au rock progressif d'introduire « l'art dans ce qui était considéré comme de l'artisanat » traduit à la fois une forme d'incompréhension des journalistes (dont la culture n'était peut-être pas suffisante pour juger ces musiques avec autant d'assurance) et un besoin de retrouver les dimensions simplistes et basiques du rock'n roll à travers le nouveau courant émergeant : le Punk. Pirenne considère ces questions du point de vue sociologique : l'institutionnalisation du rock progressif, et sa « compromission avec le pouvoir et les institutions officielles » auraient été ressenties à l'époque comme une « trahison ultime de l'esprit du rock ». Cette hypothèse et d'autres développées par Pirenne ne doivent peut-être pas cacher non plus l'une des questions fondamentales : l'intolérance de certains milieux du rock, dont les décennies suivantes et surtout le passé proche ont bien montré certaines dérives politiques extrémistes.

Les chapitres II et III sont consacrés à l'analyse d'œuvres importantes, le choix de celles-ci et des groupes concernés correspondant avant tout pour l'auteur au fait « d'envisager un échantillon suffisamment large et représentatif des diverses tendances [...] pour pouvoir proposer des considérations générales ». Le chapitre II est consacré à des enregistrements compris entre 1966 et 1969 (Beatles, Cream, Pink Floyd, The Nice, Moody Blues, premiers disques de Soft Machine, Procol Harum), alors que le suivant correspond à la pleine maturité du genre : King Crimson, Emerson, Lake and Palmer, Jethro Tull, Yes, Genesis. Nous avons ici l'une des premières contributions précises à la connaissance détaillée de ces musiques, et à leur estimation esthétique. Ces analyses sont très convaincantes et elles introduisent de nombreuses problématiques essentielles pour ces musiques. On regrettera peut-être (mais Pirenne prévient le lecteur qu'il n'a pas pu faire le choix de l'exhaustivité) que l'école dite « de Canterbury » (Soft Machine, Robert Wyatt, Caravan, Hatfield and the North, National Health, Gong, etc.) soit réduite aux deux premiers albums de Soft Machine... Au regard de l'histoire ces groupes resteront sans doute aussi significatifs dans leurs périodes de maturité (par exemple l'album « Third » de Soft Machine) que Yes ou Genesis ! Le quatrième chapitre s'intitule « Les conditions du Rock progressif » et revient sur les lieux, le cadre historique, le milieu social des musiciens, les influences musicales, les instruments de promotion, les instruments de musique (avec surtout l'émergence des claviers : mellotron, orgue Hammond, synthétiseurs, piano électrique, etc.), les enregistrements. Enfin, le livre se termine avec un cinquième chapitre intitulé « L'art du Rock progressif » où Christophe Pirenne fait une synthèse des éléments musicaux, de la nature des textes chantés, des aspects visuels et de la pluralité des styles. Une bibliographie importante clôt le livre. On ne saura que recommander ce bel ouvrage qui offre une vision précise et scientifique sur ce genre musical, et ne donne jamais dans l'anecdote (ce qui est malheureusement souvent le cas dans les livres consacrés au rock). Avec sa reconnaissance « musicologique » certes tardive, le Rock progressif anglais s'inscrit néanmoins parmi les sujets de recherche légitimes des musicologues d'aujourd'hui (comme le jazz-rock, qui lui était parallèle), ce qui permettra sans doute aux auditeurs et musicologues de dépasser désormais certains jugements un peu primaires de quelques journalistes influents (mais pas toujours très objectifs) des années 1970.

Pierre Michel

Drury Lane

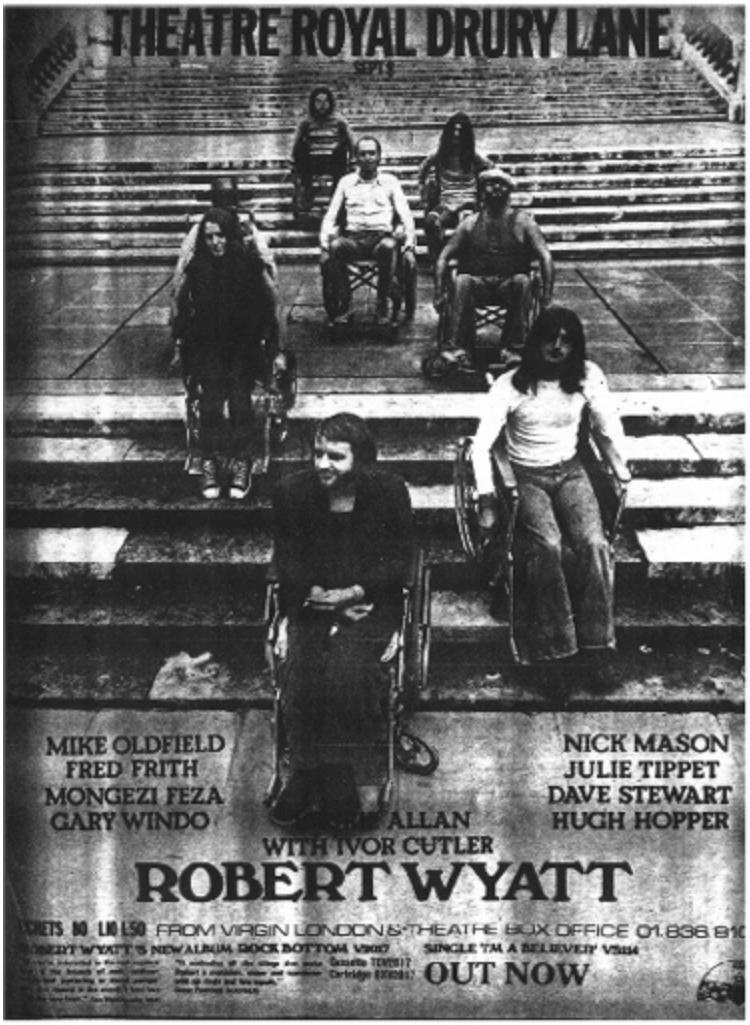
ABÉCÉDAIRE

Theatre Royal Drury Lane, le concert mythique du 8 septembre 1974.

Il en existe au moins quatre disques, quatre pirates. J'ignore s'il s'agit du même enregistrement ou si les quatre sources sont différentes. Pour ma part, la première version que j'ai possédée avait un son calamiteux, la dernière était un peu meilleure...

Il se murmure dans les forums que Rykodisc disposerait des bandes du concert et pourrait les publier prochainement.

Dans l'affirmative et si la qualité sonore est au niveau de Calyx, l'extrait proposé dans le coffret EPs, le nouveau label de R.W. fera bien des heureux...



11 octobre 2005 : Alléluia ! après des années de rumeurs et de démentis - 31 ans plus tard - ce fameux concert du 8 septembre 1974 est enfin édité et toute la beauté que l'on pressentait dans les bootlegs est enfin là.

Voix magique, musiciens sous hypnose, émotion totale...

En appendice, RW dédie cet abum à John Peel, Mongezi Feza et Gary Windo, with gratitude.

> Les disques pirates

> Le disque officiel

Programme du concert

ROBERT WYATT

IN CONCERT.

Sunday 8th September 1974
Theatre Royal, Drury Lane

ORDER OF EVENTS

FIRST

IVOR CUTLER and PHYLLIS APRIL KING

with a selection of songs and poems

NEXT THE INTERMISSION AND THEN

ROBERT WYATT	vocals
DAVE STEWART	keyboards
HUGH HOPPER	bass
LAURIE ALLAN	drums
FRED FRITH	guitar, violin
MIKE OLDFIELD	guitar
JULIE TIPPETT	vocals
GARY WINDO	bass clarinet, tenor saxophone
MONGEZI FEZA	trumpet
NICK MASON	drums

PLAYING

Sea Song	Robert Wyatt
A Last Straw	Robert Wyatt
Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road	Robert Wyatt
Alifie	Robert Wyatt
Alifib	Robert Wyatt
Dedicated To You But You Weren't Listening	Hugh Hopper
God Song	Phil Miller/Robert Wyatt
Instant Pussy	Robert Wyatt
Signed Curtain	Robert Wyatt
Calyx	Phil Miller/Robert Wyatt
Memories	Hugh Hopper
I'm A Believer	Neil Diamond

LIGHTING	Andre Larson, Tony Wivell
SOUND MIXING	Peter Wade
STAGE ASSISTANCE	Nick Levett, Chris Levett

ROBERT WYATT
A BRIEF BIOGRAPHY

Born Bristol, moved to Dulwich and later to Canterbury at age of ten.

While at school, received tuition in piano, violin, trumpet and drums. Further tuition in drums from George Neidorf.

Became drummer/vocalist in local group The Wilde Flowers from 1964-66.

Drummer/vocalist of Soft Machine 1967-1971, appearing on the following recordings: "Rock Generation Vols. 7 & 8" (Byg), "The Soft Machine" and "Volume Two" (Probe), "Third" and "Fourth" (CBS)

During this period, also made a single with Jimi Hendrix (never released); did session work with Eric Burdon & The Animals; became occasional drummer of Kevin Ayers & The Whole World and made appearances on Ayers' records; accomplished solo album "The End Of An Ear" (CBS) and contributed to Daevid Allen's "Banana Moon" (Byg). Other peripheral activities; Symbiosis, Keith Tippett and Centipede.

Formed Matching Mole in December 1971. Group made two albums – "Matching Mole" and "Little Red Record" (CBS) – before parting company a year later.

Second incarnation of Matching Mole about to begin work in Summer 1973 when serious fall resulted in paralysis from waist down.

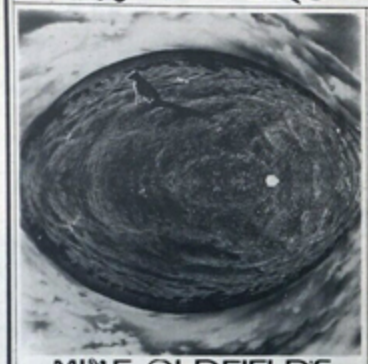
During six-month stay in hospital, composed the material for "Rock Bottom" subsequently recorded with Pink Floyd's Nick Mason producing. Released 26/7/74.

Album received ecstatic reviews. Newly recorded single "I'm A Believer"/ "Memories" released 6/9/74

PROGRAMME NOTE

Instead, Here is one of the many songs we won't do this evening:

SOUP SONG



Here's a mushroom on my eyelid
There's a carrot down my back
I can see in the distance
A vast quantity of beans
To you I'm just a flavour
To make your stew taste nice
Oh my God here come the onions
And I don't believe it
At least a pound of rice

There was a time when bacon sandwiches
Were everyone's favourite snack
I'm delicious when I'm crunchy
Even when I'm almost black
So why you make a soup with me
I just can't understand
It seems so bloody tasteless
Not to mention underhand

Now there's no hope of getting out of here
I can feel I'm going soft
Dirty water soak my fibres
The whole saucepan's getting hot
So I may as well resign myself
Make friends with a few peas
But I just can't help hoping
That a tummy ache will bring you to your knees

Robert Wyatt

VIRGIN RECORDS

MIKE OLDFIELD'S
HERGEST RIDGE

Out Now

ALBUM V2013 CASSETTE TCV2013

AD VICE

With Uncle John and Uncle Trevor

Well, we'd like to say it's nice to be back with you again but to be entirely frank, it isn't. MEDIA GLUT can be a very serious and debilitating complaint: dilation of the pancreas, secretion of virulent toxins, irritability, swellings and sores in the more tropical parts of the body, purpling of the mucous and absorbency of tissues, all this and a tendency, now well-known to general practitioners and specialists alike, of extending sentences by means of subordinate clauses, be they of manner, conversation, time, place, adjectival, adverbial or otherwise, until they, that is to say the sentences, the subject of the subordinate clause above, become so unwieldy and unsightly as the parts of the body the hands of which are responsible for the typing of those very subordinate clauses which.....

UNCLE TREVOR INTERVENES:

Uncle John has unfortunately been called away to the telephone for a few weeks and I shall be handling Media Glut enquiries for the time being. And for that matter, furnishable future. Please write to me c/o Uncle Trevor, 10B Portobello Road, W.11.

THEATRE ROYAL DRURY LANE SEPT 8

ROBERT WYATT

GUEST STARS
MIKE OLDFIELD
JULIE TIPPETT
FRED FRITH
GARY WINDO

NICK MASON
HUGH HOPPER
MONGEZI FEZA
LAURIE ALLAN
DAVE STEWART

TICKETS 80 LIO L50

ROCK BOTTOM

ALBUM V2017 CASSETTE TCV2017

ROBERT WYATT
ROCK BOTTOM (V2017)

"This album is bound to appeal to those who identify with the Eno/John Cale/Kevin Ayers forward guard, but has that clan beaten by its honesty, wit and identity." Peter Harvey RECORD & RADIO MIRROR

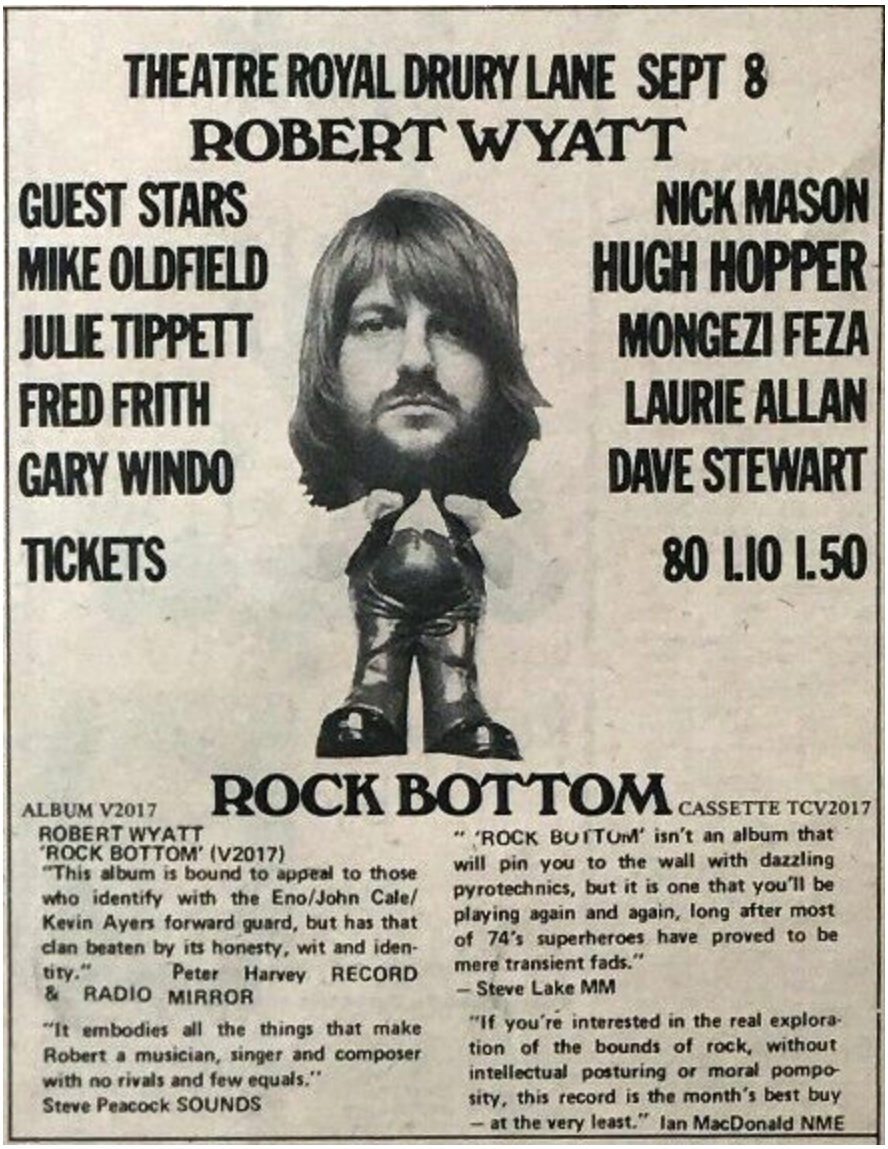
"It embodies all the things that make Robert a musician, singer and composer with no rivals and few equals." Steve Peacock SOUNDS

" 'ROCK BUTTOM' isn't an album that will pin you to the wall with dazzling pyrotechnics, but it is one that you'll be playing again and again, long after most of 74's superheroes have proved to be merely transient fads."
— Steve Lake MM

"If you're interested in the real exploration of the bounds of rock, without intellectual posturing or moral pomposity, this record is the month's best buy — at the very least." Ian MacDonald NME

Please add 10p postage and packing per album. If you order 5 albums or more we won't only 40p postage and packing.

Imports & Kraut Rock



Slash

Virgin Catalogue

Top 30 singles

COMING

Top 50

Little Red Concert
animated fantasy based on the concert at Theatre Royal Drury Lane

Le Rythme et la Raison
Robert Wyatt : le chant d'un funambule

Une série de cinq émissions de 30 minutes diffusée sur France Culture du 2 au 6 Mars 1992 (de 20h à 20h30).

"L'interview de Robert Wyatt (à l'occasion de la sortie de l'album Dondestan) a eu lieu le 11 novembre 1991 chez lui à Louth où il a répondu à nos questions pendant plus de 3 heures. Il a également composé un générique spécialement pour la série, a accepté de nous lire deux de ses textes traduits en français et nous a confié quelques enregistrements introuvables à l'époque."

Ont également participé à la série : Les musiciens Daevid Allen, Hugh Hopper, Phil Miller, Didier Malherbe et Jean-Louis Murat, Geoff Travis, le responsable du label Rough Trade, Matt Kemp, l'ingénieur du son de Dondestan, le journaliste Alain Dister, Alfie Benge... Et la voix de Anna de Carvalho…

Une émission produite et réalisée par Cyril Bécue et Gilles Pezerat.

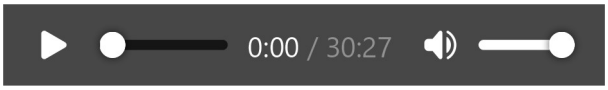
1ère émission

L'album Dondestan- l'éducation musicale et les titres : Costa – The sight of the wind – Worship – Sea song - Strange fruit – Left on man.

0:00 / 30:30

LE RYTHME ET LA RAISON - 1
[42,8 Mo]

2ème émission

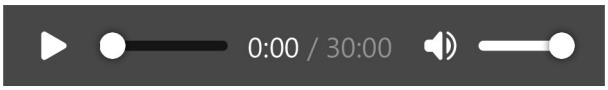


Les années Soft Machine et les titres : extraits des albums Soft 1 & 2 - extrait de Moon in June - Caroline.

0:00 / 30:04

LE RYTHME ET LA RAISON - 2
[42,2 Mo]

3ème émission



Les influences - L'album The end of an ear - le groupe Matching Mole et les titres : Stranger in the night – extraits de The end of an ear - Round midnight – Yesterday man – extrait d'un concert de Matching Mole – Signed curtain – extrait du concert de R. Wyatt avec le groupe Henry Cow au Théâtre des Champs-Elysées à Paris en 1975.

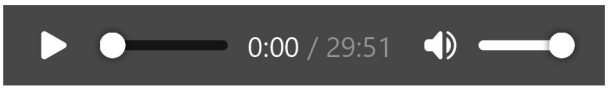
LE RYTHME ET LA RAISON - 3
[42,8 Mo]

4ème émission :



l'album Rock Bottom - les séances d'enregistrement - la technologie et les titres : Last straw – Little Red Riding Hood hit the road – Alifib - Dondestan – East Timor – Pig – Unmasked (avec le groupe CTI).

LE RYTHME ET LA RAISON - 4
[42,1 Mo]

5ème émission :

l'engagement politique - l'album Old rottenhat - les mots et les titres : At last I'm free – Te recuerdo Amanda – Stalin wasn't stalling United States of Amnesia – The age of self – Tant de temps (Soupault/Mantler) – Gharbzadegi - PLA.

LE RYTHME ET LA RAISON - 5
[41,9 Mo]

Lire l'article du Monde sur cette émision

Scores

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Versions, transcriptions et arrangements de nos morceaux préférés.
A jouer sans modération.

Hugh Hopper

Livret publié en 1970 par Robbins Music Corporation Ltd.

- Foreword
- Facelift
- Twelve Eight Theme
- Blues Ten
- Dedicated To You But You Weren't Listening
- Virtually
- Kings and Queens
- Noisette
- Everything Is You
- Mousetrap

- Dedicated To You but You Weren't Listening
- Facelift
- Was A Friend

Trois partitions manuscrites de Hugh Hopper aimablement transmises par Patrice Meyer.

- Amber And The Amberines

Partition manuscrite de Hugh Hopper que Jean-Philippe Ramos nous a confiée en précisant: "une erreur s'y cache, saurez-vous la trouver ?"

Ferdinando Faraò (Artchipel Orchestra - 2014) - arrangements

Facebook - Article

MOON IN JUNE (BBC version)

Alberto Reina/Phocus

- Score C
- Pianoforte
- Voce

- Tromba in Sib 1
- Tromba in Sib 2
- Sax soprano
- Sax tenore
- Sax baritono
- Sax alto
- Clarinetto basso
- Trombone 1
- Violino
- Viola
- Chitarra elettrica
- Basso acustico

- Corno in Fa
- Flauto 1

FACELIFT

- Score C
- Pianoforte
- Voce

MOUSETRAP

- Full Score

Francesco Forges (Artchipel Orchestra - 2019) - arrangements

Facebook - Article

- God Song

"God Song è, invece, l'unica composizione in «Truly Yours» che è stata arrangiata da Francesco Forges, flautista, compositore e docente, ma anche cantante. Sono molto contento che Francesco sia tornato a collaborare con l'Artchipel e credo che in God Song abbia fatto un ottimo lavoro, contribuendo a valorizzare le intricate linee vocali che la caratterizzano, interpretate alla perfezione della voce solista Serena Ferrara.."

Robert Wyatt

- I'm A Believer

Song by Neil Diamond. Arrangement by Robert Wyatt. Chappell.

Serge Wodrascka

Facebook - Soundcloud

- Muddy Mouth

" ...transcription de la partie 2 : deep in the undergrowths... Fred Frith m'avait expliqué la structure harmonique de cette chanson..."

Phil Miller

More Phil Miller scores

- God Song

  God Song is one of Phil's earlier pieces, written at the beginning of the 1970's when he was the guitarist in Matching Mole. Robert Wyatt wrote the lyrics.

- Calyx

Mark Hewins

More information

- Memories

  Hand written; given to me by Hugh...

- Half The Time

  Who did what?
  - Robert Wyatt: Title & Line, "Half the time its Pantomome, Half the time its only make believe"
  - Hugh Hopper: Chord/Melody in 4/4
  - Mark Hewins: Arrangement, full Lyric, change of time signature to 3/4, production and leadsheet.

- Gloria Gloom

  Henry Cow version [source inconnue]

Sylvain Kassap / Dondestan ! The Wyatt Project - arrangements

More information : Web - Dondestan! The Wyatt Project

- Pataphysical Introduction
- Box 25/4 Lid
- Sea Song
- Alliance
- Gloria Gloom - Part II

"Voici quelques partitions que nous jouions avec Dondestan… le reste est très nébuleux car je n'ai plus que des bribes... Ce sont des relevés parfois grossiers car nous avons tout arrangé sur le tas.
Pour Sea Song, il n'y a pas la mélodie que tout le monde connait, mais juste la musique (y compris le solo de piano) que j'avais relevé puis orchestré."

Vincent Artaud / Orchestre National de Jazz - arrangements

More information : Web site - Facebook

- The Song
- Alliance
- Kew Rhone
- Shipbuilding

"...la formidable inventivité mélodique d'un Robert Wyatt revivifiée ici par quelques voix célèbres (Wyatt lui-même, mais aussi Camille, Daniel Darc, Arno, Rokia Traoré, Yael Naïm, Irène Jacob...) qui ont été pré-enregistrées et sur lesquelles un aquarelliste hors-pair comme Vincent Artaud a fignolé des arrangements satinés, flûtés et somptueusement hypnotiques, comme si l'écrin se voulait encore plus scintillant que le bijou à l'intérieur."

tsfjazz.com

Patrice Meyer - arrangements

More information

- Hulloder
- Kings and Queens
- Kings and Queens (bass)

Stéphane Collin - arrangements

More information: Stéphane Collin - La cérémonie du 17 septembre 2009 à Liège

- Gharbadzegi

  Le 17 septembre 2009, Robert Wyatt est distingué par l'Université de Liège (Belgique) qui le nomme Docteur Honoris Causa en - très bonne - compagnie d'autre compositeurs : Dick Annegarn, Anthony Braxton, Arvo Pärt, Henri Pousseur (à titre posthume), Frederic Rzewski, Archie Shepp.

  A cette occasion, trois pièces de Robert Wyatt (Alifib, Vandalusia et Gharbadzegi) seront interprétées par le Quatuor Tana avec des arrangements de Stéphane Collin qui me fournira quelques années plus tard des précisions sur le contexte de cette création :

  "Concernant "Gharbzadegi", mon cahier des charges, à l'époque, m'invitait à prendre distance de l'enregistrement original pour, sans trop trahir l'esprit de l'auteur, mettre en valeur le quatuor à cordes qui devait interpréter le titre. J'étais parti de la version tardive réalisée pour la chaîne de télévision BBC Four, et j'avais entrepris de donner au morceau une tournure rock énergique (dans la mesure où un quatuor à cordes peut l'évoquer)..."

Max Nagl - arrangements

More information

- Alliance
- Born Again Cretin
- The British Road
- CP Jeebies
- Gharbzadegi
- 5 blacks and 1 white note
- Dedicated To You But You Weren't Listening

Stefano Giannotti - arrangements

More information : Web site - Facebook

- Lullaby For Hamza

  "DA ORIENTE A OCCIDENTE è un progetto iniziato nel 2016 che affronta i temi dell'esodo, dei muri, dell'accoglienza attraverso brani musicali più o meno noti, arrangiati da Stefano Giannotti per l'Orchestra SMS. Così l'inferno mitologico – rinascimentale di MISERI HABITATOR di Anton Giovanni de' Bardi si combina con l'inferno reale di LULLABY FOR HAMZA, una ninnananna scritta da Robert Wyatt per i bambini nati sotto i bombardamenti in Irak..."

- Sea Song

  "Here is the final score of SEA SONG, the orchestral piece, which we have played for some years and which is included in the documentary MUSICA SPARPAGLIATA 2015-2025, the video-documentary I made to fix the first 10 years of the ensemble Orchestra SMS : https://youtu.be/mgoXm6xbL0Y?si=LiRU7h_vrBkyNWKj

  This score is not the same of the CD, cause when mixing it I realized that it was more interesting as the beginning to have a more empty piece, so I simply closed the most of tracks and left opened only voice, guitar and clarinet and I've added the shakers, and that's it !"

David Hacohen - Arrangement for String Quartet

- Sea Song

Jason T. Ingram - transcriptions

More information

- Gharbzadegi

  Transcribed by Knute Snortum of Dialectic Flowers

- Catholic Architecture

- Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road (Soups Concert)
- Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road (TEN/TPT)

  Annie Whitehead versions

Anaïd

Web site - Facebook

- Sweet Memories

  Sweet Memories est une reprise de Was A Friend (avec des paroles différentes de celles composées par Robert Wyatt pour l'album Shleep). Plus précisément, cet arrangement d'Anaïd reprend le texte initialement écrit par Robert Wyatt pour Hugh Hopper. En 1997, Robert Wyatt écrira un nouveau texte pour l'enregistrement de Shleep.

Jean-Philippe Ramos - transcriptions

More information

- Moon In June

- O Caroline

- Free Will And Testament

- Soup Song

Karen Mantler

More information : Facebook - The Song

- The Official Robert Wyatt Fan Club Song

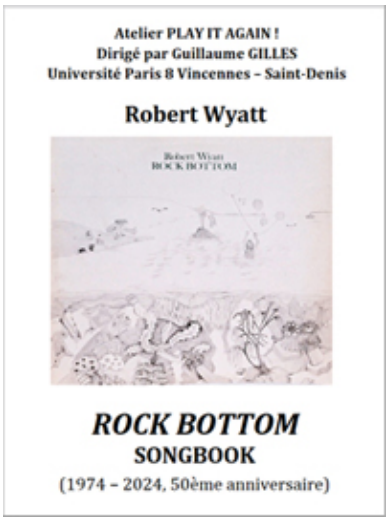
  Song written by karen Mantler for the creation on November 8, 2003 of " Dedicated to You, Variations on the Music of Robert Wyatt" in Charleville, France.

Guillaume Gilles et l'Atelier PLAY IT AGAIN !



Plus d'information

- Rock Bottom

  ROCK BOTTOM SONGBOOK Atelier PLAY IT AGAIN !
  Dirigé par Guillaume GILLES Université Paris 8 Vincennes – Saint-Denis

  Le concert du 12 juin 2024

Guy Boistel

Plus d'information

- Moon In June

  Here is, at last, my full transcription (and adaptation) of MOON IN JUNE, Third album version.

  IT IS NOT a 100% note-to-note transcription, and I do not pretend to make it perfect, let us be clear forever !

  I wanted to understand the whole structure of the piece and make a playable score for me and my wife (we have a dozen of Wyatt's songs in our set list).

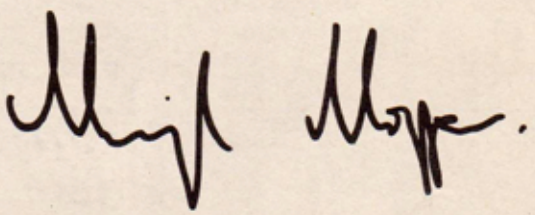
  You can modify what you want in the score (written with MuseScore 4.4.) : MoonIn June [MuseScore]

[more scores : Canterbury Scores]

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Les années Before | Soft Machine | Matching Mole | Solo | With Friends | Samples | Compilations | V.A. | Bootlegs | Reprises

HOME



FOREWORD

You will see that these are my original arrangements for the Soft Machine, but in preparing them for publication I have made certain adjustments so as to make them more widely available.

THE ORGAN PARTS ARE NOW COMPLETE IN THEMSELVES AND MAY BE PLAYED ON ANY KEYBOARD INSTRUMENT.

The E♭ Alto Saxophone parts are cued where necessary in B♭ pitch, either on the E♭ Alto Sax. stave or on the B♭ Soprano Sax. stave. This makes the part available for Trumpet, Tenor or Clarinet. Of course, the B♭ Bass Clarinet parts may be played as they are on Tenor Saxophone.

PROVISION HAS ALSO BEEN MADE FOR LEAD GUITAR.

Facelift

HUGH HOPPER

©Copyright 1970 by ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION Ltd., 35 Soho Square, London, W.1.

$

UNISON.

[B♭ SOPRANO SAX]

UNISON

[E♭ ALTO SAX]

[LEAD GTR]

[ORGAN]

[B/GTR]

B

[B♭ SOPRANO SAX]

[E♭ ALTO SAX]

[LEAD/GTR]

[ORGAN]

[B/GTR]

AD LIB ORGAN SOLO

Em

(4)

(8)

(16)

(8)

[B♭ SOPRANO SAX]

[E♭ ALTO SAX]

[LEAD/GTR]
[ORGAN]

[B/GTR]

(24)

(8)

(32)

(8)

C

(4)

(4)

(4)

(4)

B♭ SOPRANO SAX

E♭ ALTO SAX

LEAD/GTR

ORGAN

B/GTR

(4)

(4)

(4)

(4)

D

AD LIB SOLO

(SOPRANO SOLO AD LIB)

(8)

(8)

(8)

(16)

(16)

(16)

[B♭ SOPRANO SAX]

[E♭ ALTO SAX]

[LEAD/GTR]
[ORGAN]

[B/GTR]

(24)

(24)

(24)

(32)

(32)

(32)

SOPRANO SAX

ALTO SAX

RD/GTR]

RGAN]

3/GTR]

Twelve Eight Theme

HUGH HOPPER

©Copyright 1970 by ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION Ltd., 35 Soho Square, London, W.1.

C (UNIS)
B♭ SOPRANO SAX
(UNIS)
E♭ ALTO SAX
(UNIS)
GTR
ELECT PIANO
B/GTR
Em
F#
F
F#
D
E
Em
F#
F
F#

F
[B♭ SOPRANO SAX]
ALTO
[E♭ ALTO SAX]
[GTR]
SOP
ALTO
[ELECT PIANO]
[B/GTR]

B♭ SOPRANO SAX
E♭ ALTO SAX
GTR
ELECT PIANO
B/GTR
UNISON
UNISON
UNISON
Em
F♯
F
F♯
Em
F♯
F
F♯

Blues Ten

HUGH HOPPER

©Copyright 1970 by ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION Ltd., 35 Soho Square, London, W.1.

E♭ ALTO SAX
B♭ B/CLT OR TENOR
GTR
ORGAN
B/GTR
B
(GTR)
Em
Em♭

E♭ ALTO SAX

B♭ B/CLT OR TENOR

GTR

ORGAN

B/GTR

Em C♯DIM A Dm A Dm

Em C♯DIM Dm A

C

P f

f f

f Em

Em C♯DIM

Em

[E♭ ALTO SAX]

[B♭ B/CLT OR TENOR]

[GTR]

[ORGAN]

[B/GTR]

f

f

H

Em

C♯DIM

Dm

Dm

Em

C♯DIM

Dm

[E♭ ALTO SAX]

[B♭ B/CLT OR TENOR]

[GTR]

[ORGAN]

[B/GTR]

Em

Em

Em

Em

E7

Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening

HUGH HOPPER

©Copyright 1970 by ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION Ltd., 35 Soho Square, London, W.1.

* This work may be performed by two guitars, the top stave being taken by the first guitar, and the lower by the second guitar, reading each part an octave higher.

H. H.

Virtually

HUGH HOPPER

©Copyright 1970 by ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION Ltd., 35 Soho Square, London, W.1.

E♭ ALTO SX
GTR
ELECT PIANO
B/GTR
AL CODA
(SAX) (GUITAR) SOLO
Am
(8)
(8) (16)
(16)

E♭ ALTO SX
GTR
ELECT PIANO
B/GTR
(24)
(24)
(32)
32
GTR
PNO

[ED
ALTO SX]
GTR [ELECT
PIANO]
[B/GTR]
[ORGAN SOLO]
Am
SOLO
Am
(8)
(8) (16)
(16)
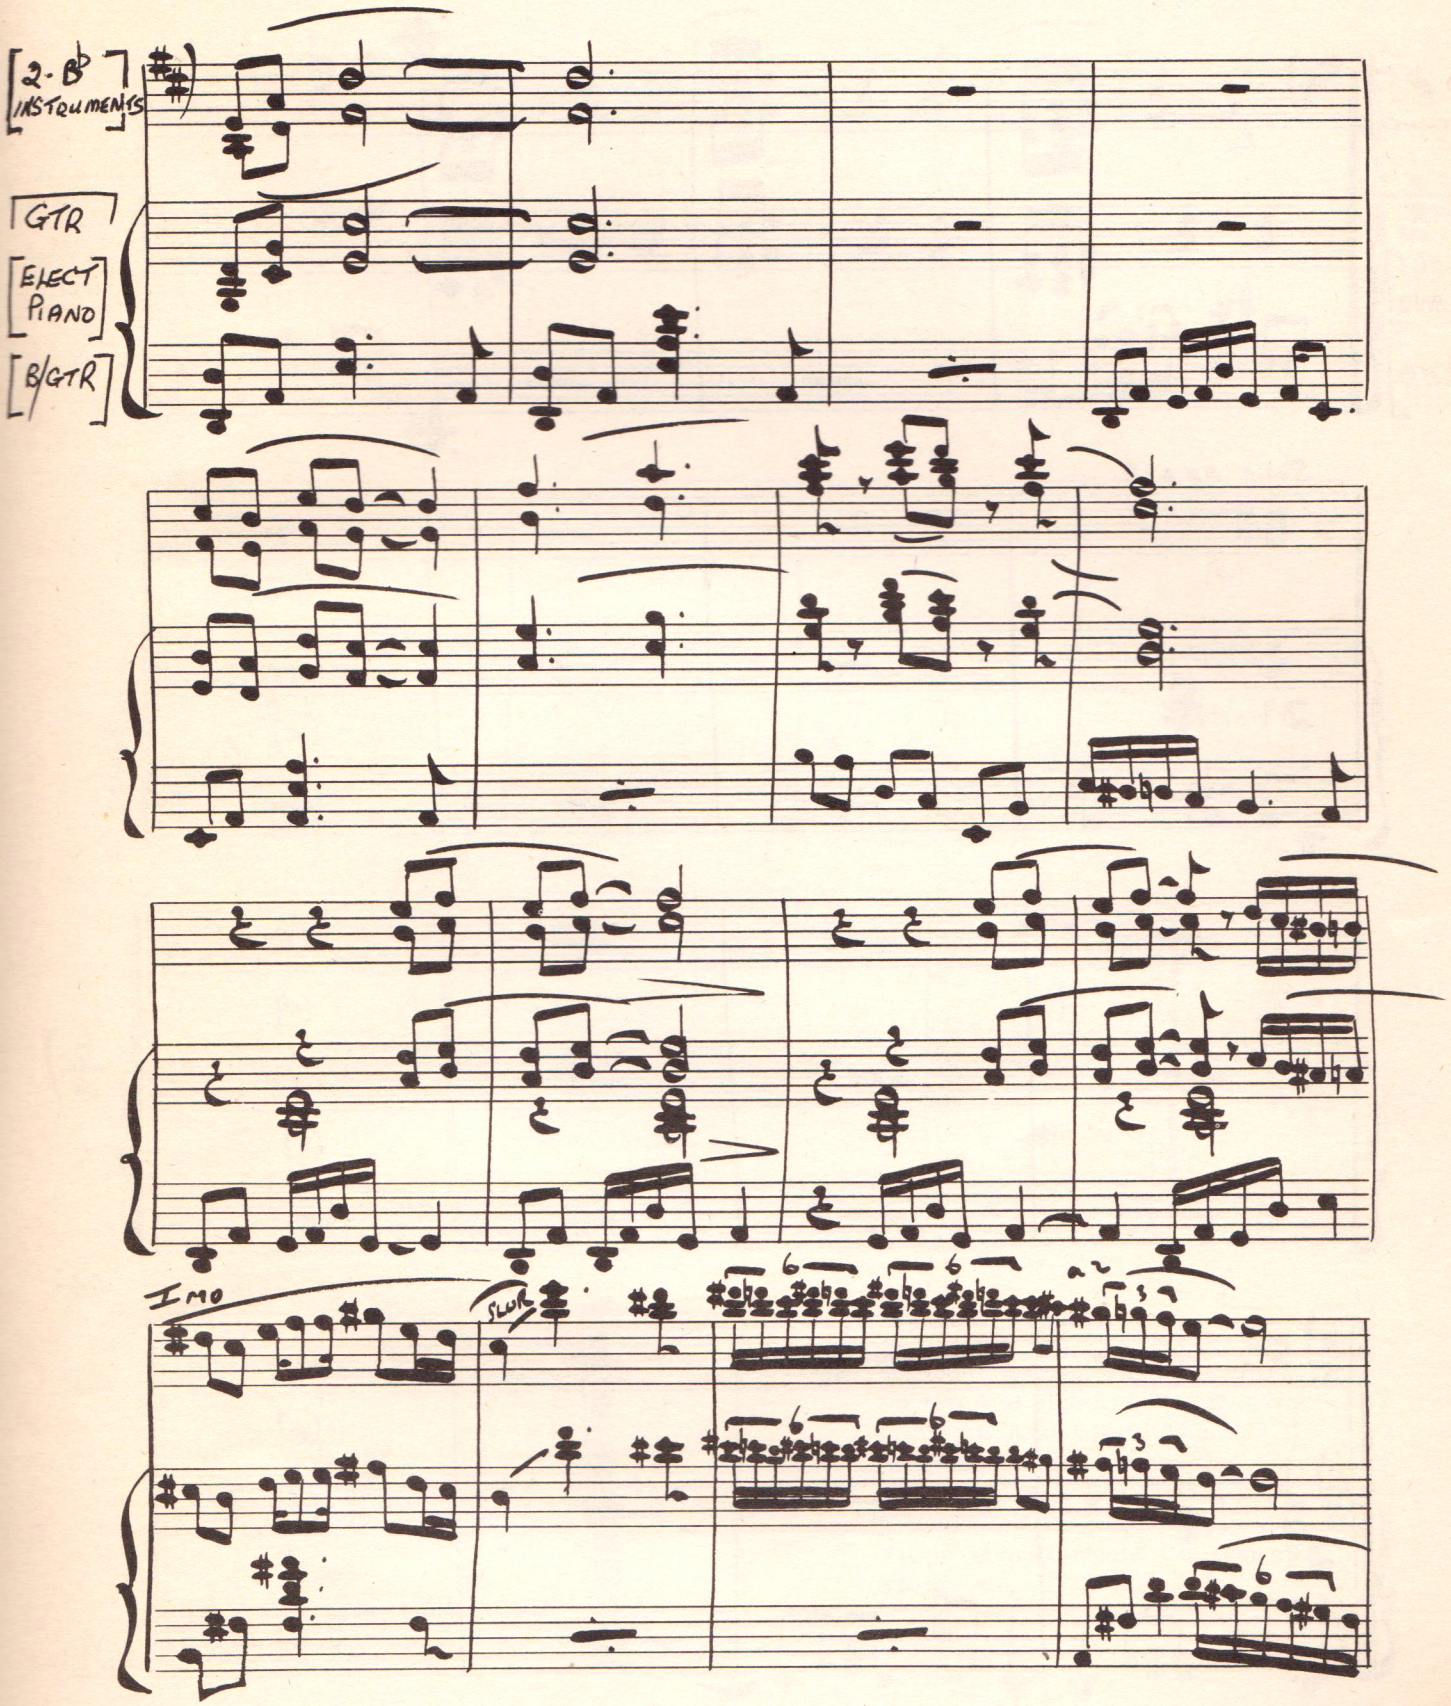
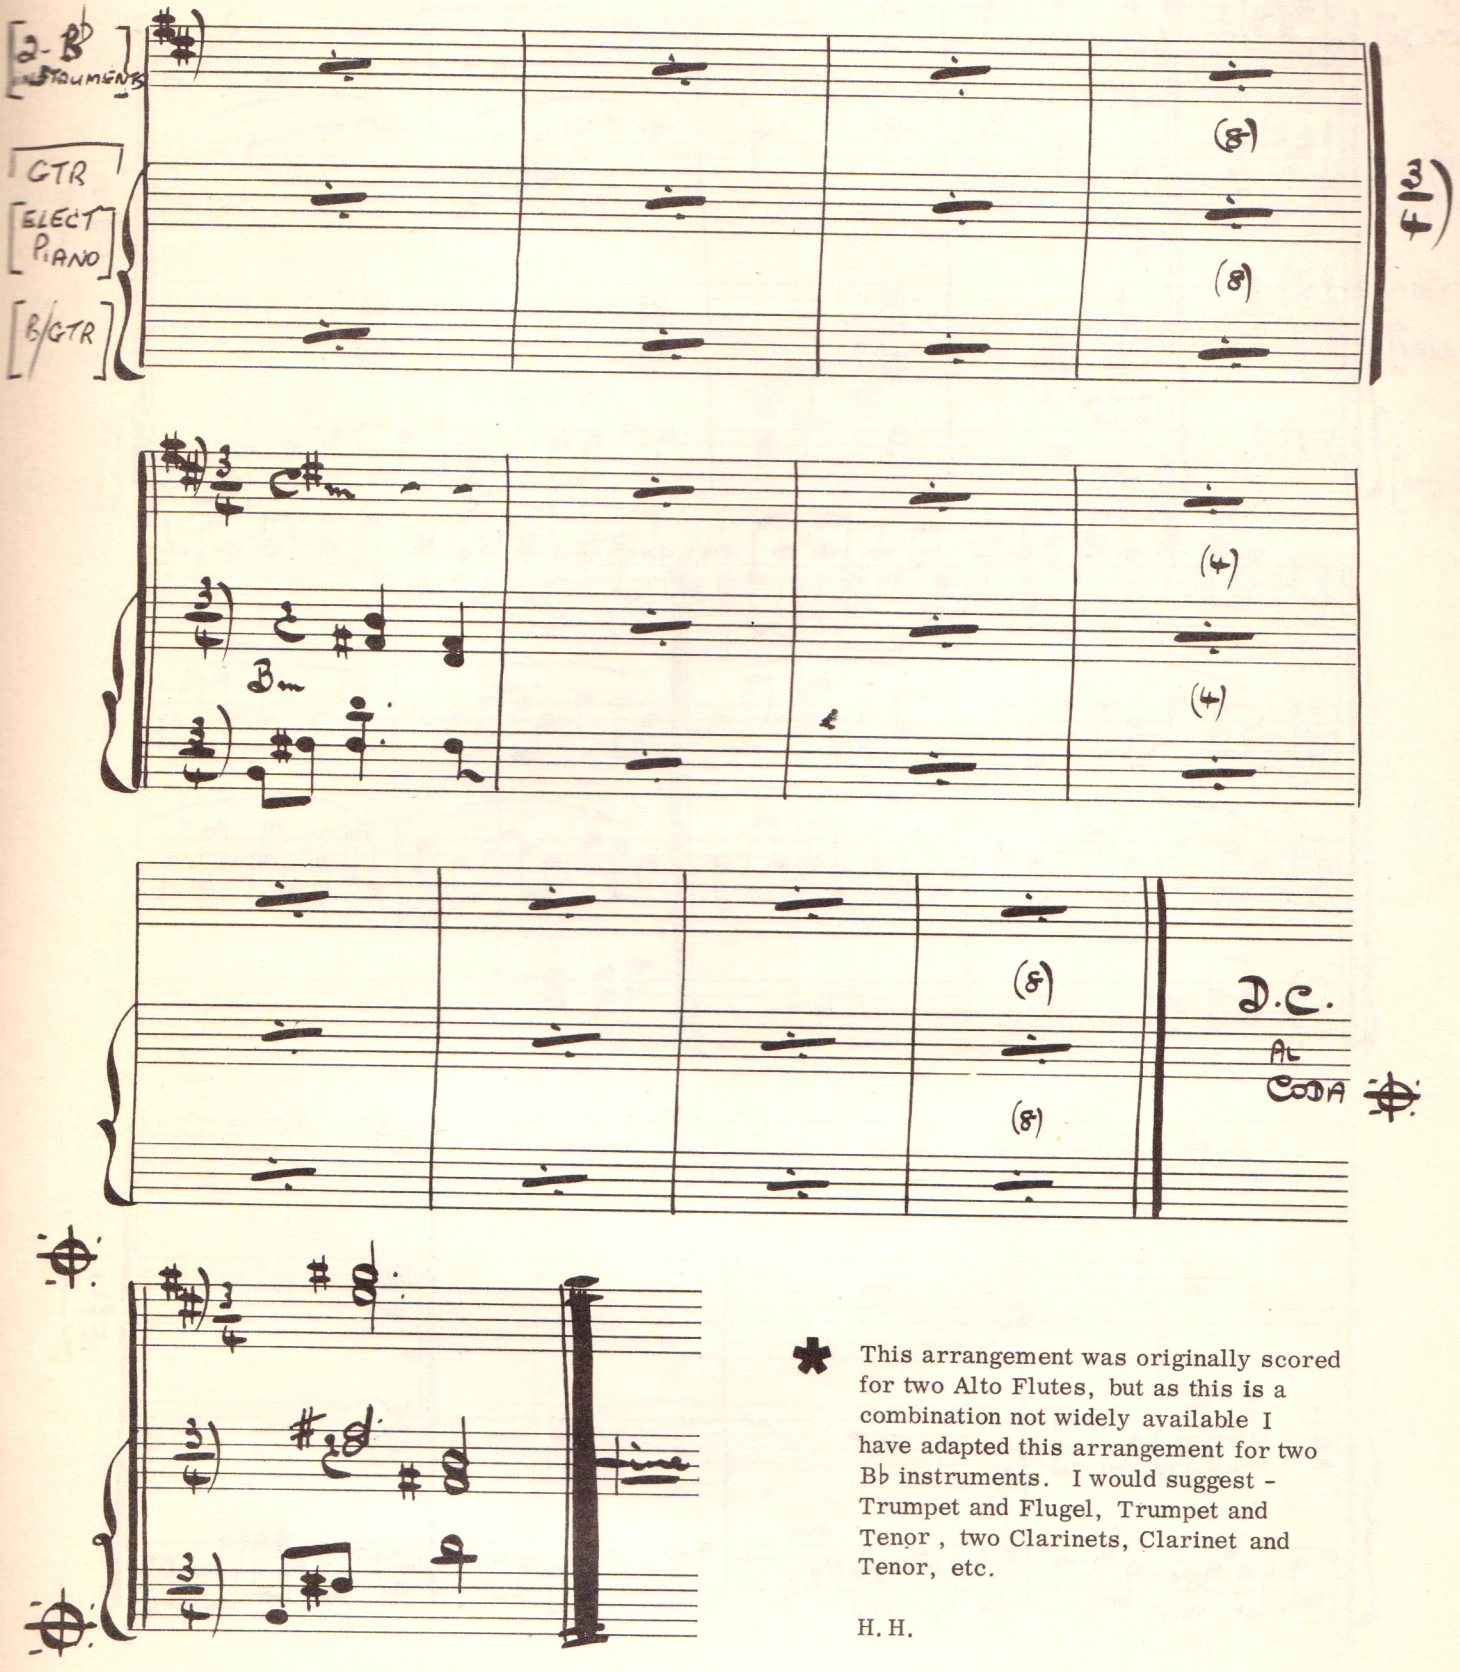
(24)
(24)



E♭ ALTO SAX
GTR
ELECT PIANO
B/GTR
(32)
(32)

Kings And Queens



HUGH HOPPER

©Copyright 1970 by ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION Ltd., 35 Soho Square, London, W.1.

2-B♭ INSTRUMENTS
GTR
ELECT PIANO
B/GTR
I MO
SLUR

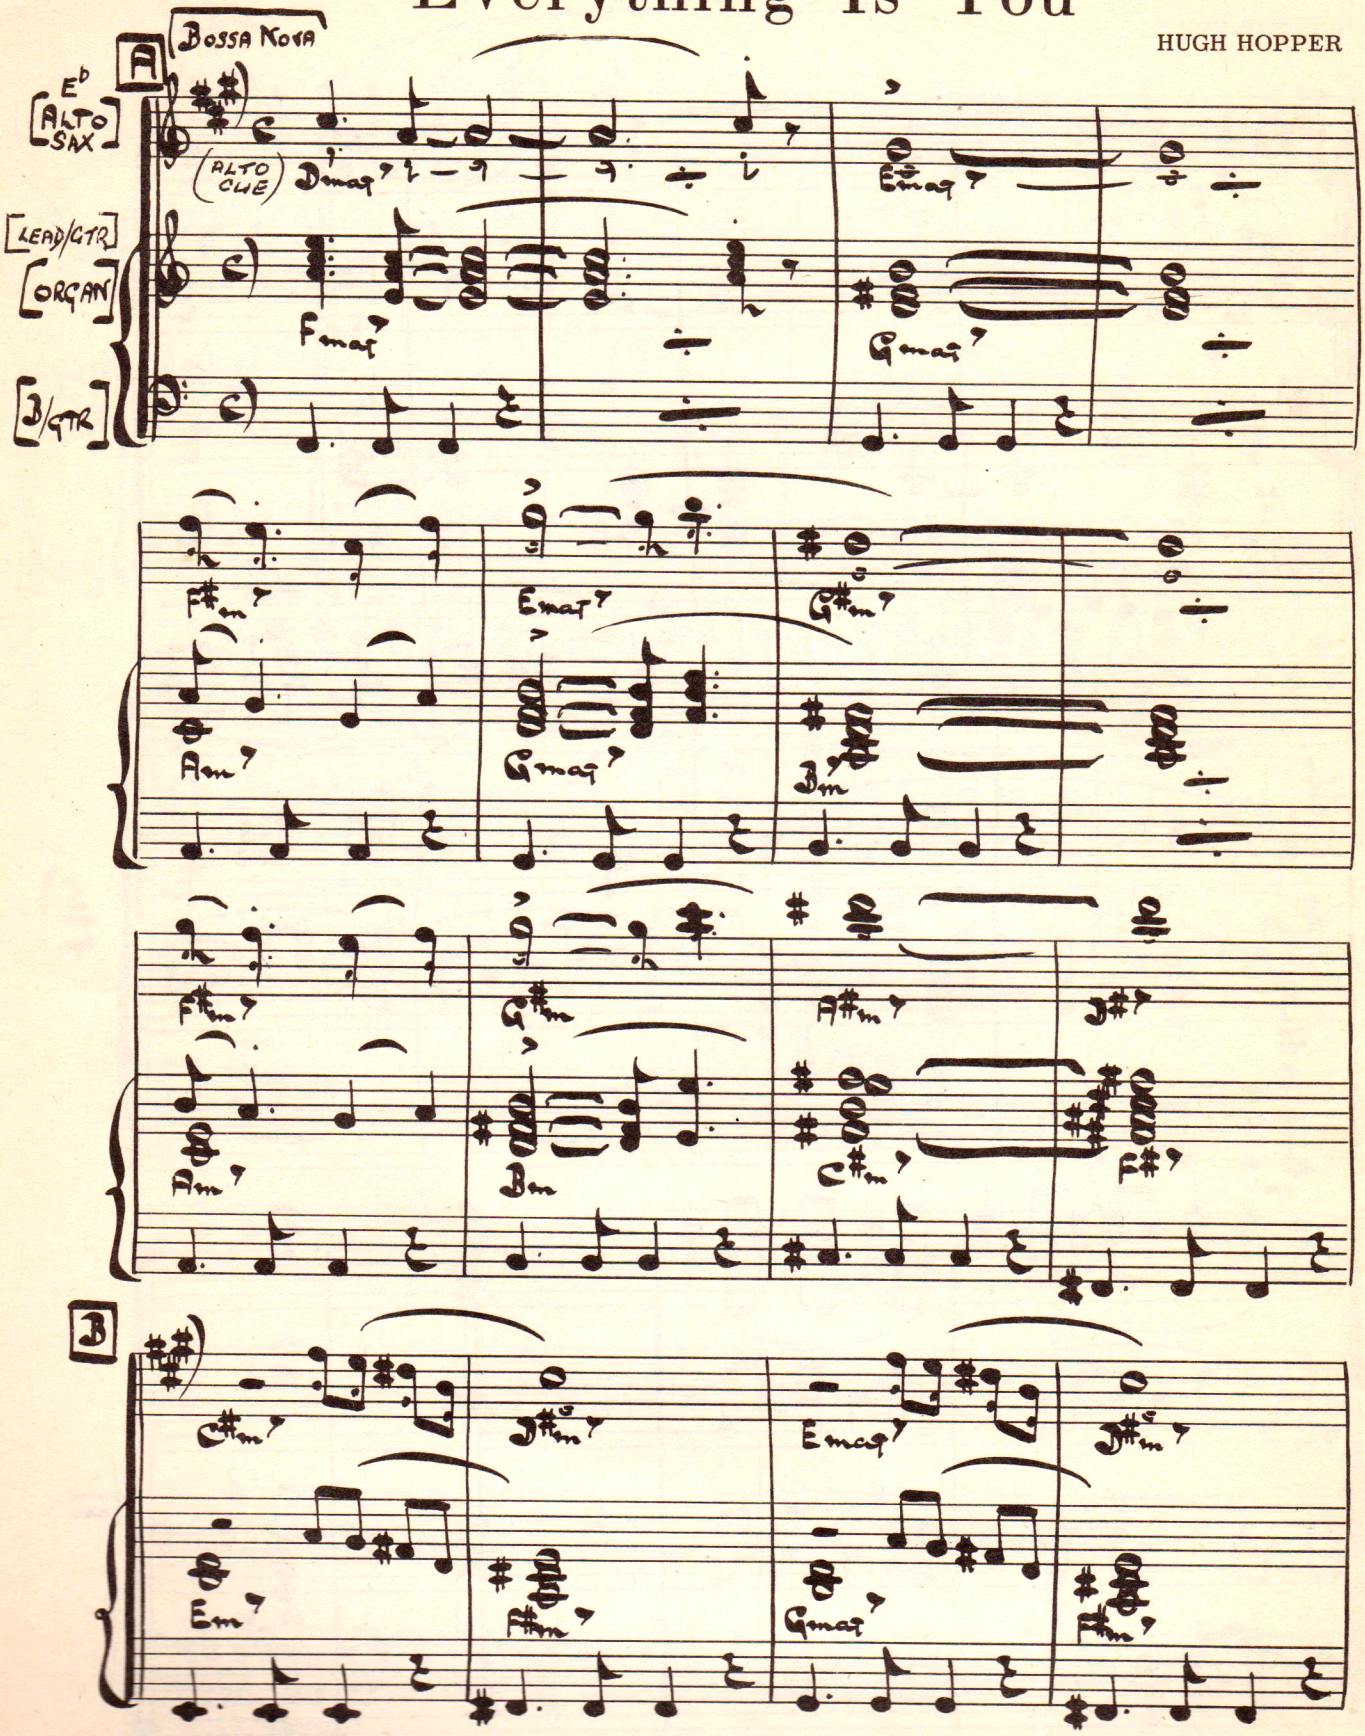
2-B♭ INSTRUMENTS
GTR
ELECT PIANO
B/GTR
SOLO AD LIB.
E9
D9
(4)
(4)
(8)
(8)
6/8
6/8
E9
D9
(4)
(4)

✱ This arrangement was originally scored for two Alto Flutes, but as this is a combination not widely available I have adapted this arrangement for two B♭ instruments. I would suggest - Trumpet and Flugel, Trumpet and Tenor, two Clarinets, Clarinet and Tenor, etc.

H. H.

Noisette

HUGH HOPPER



©Copyright 1970 by ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION Ltd., 35 Soho Square, London, W.1.

Eb ALTO SAX
Bb BASS CLARI OR TENOR
LEAD GTR
ORGAN
B/GTR
p p
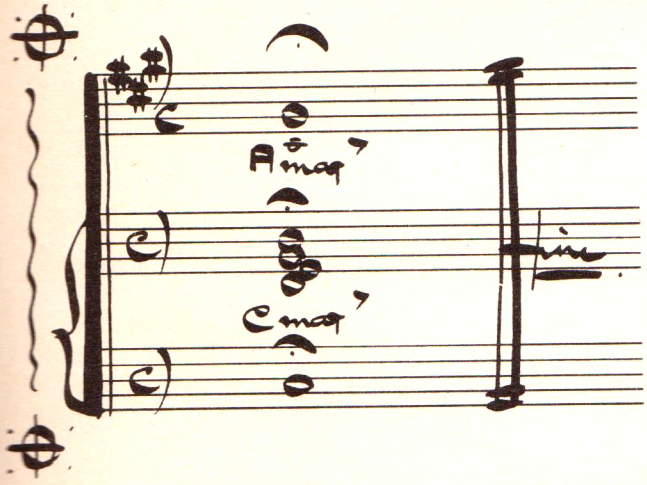
pp
Em
G
Em
G
Em
G
Em
G
mf
mf
Em
F
Am
Am6

Everything Is You

HUGH HOPPER

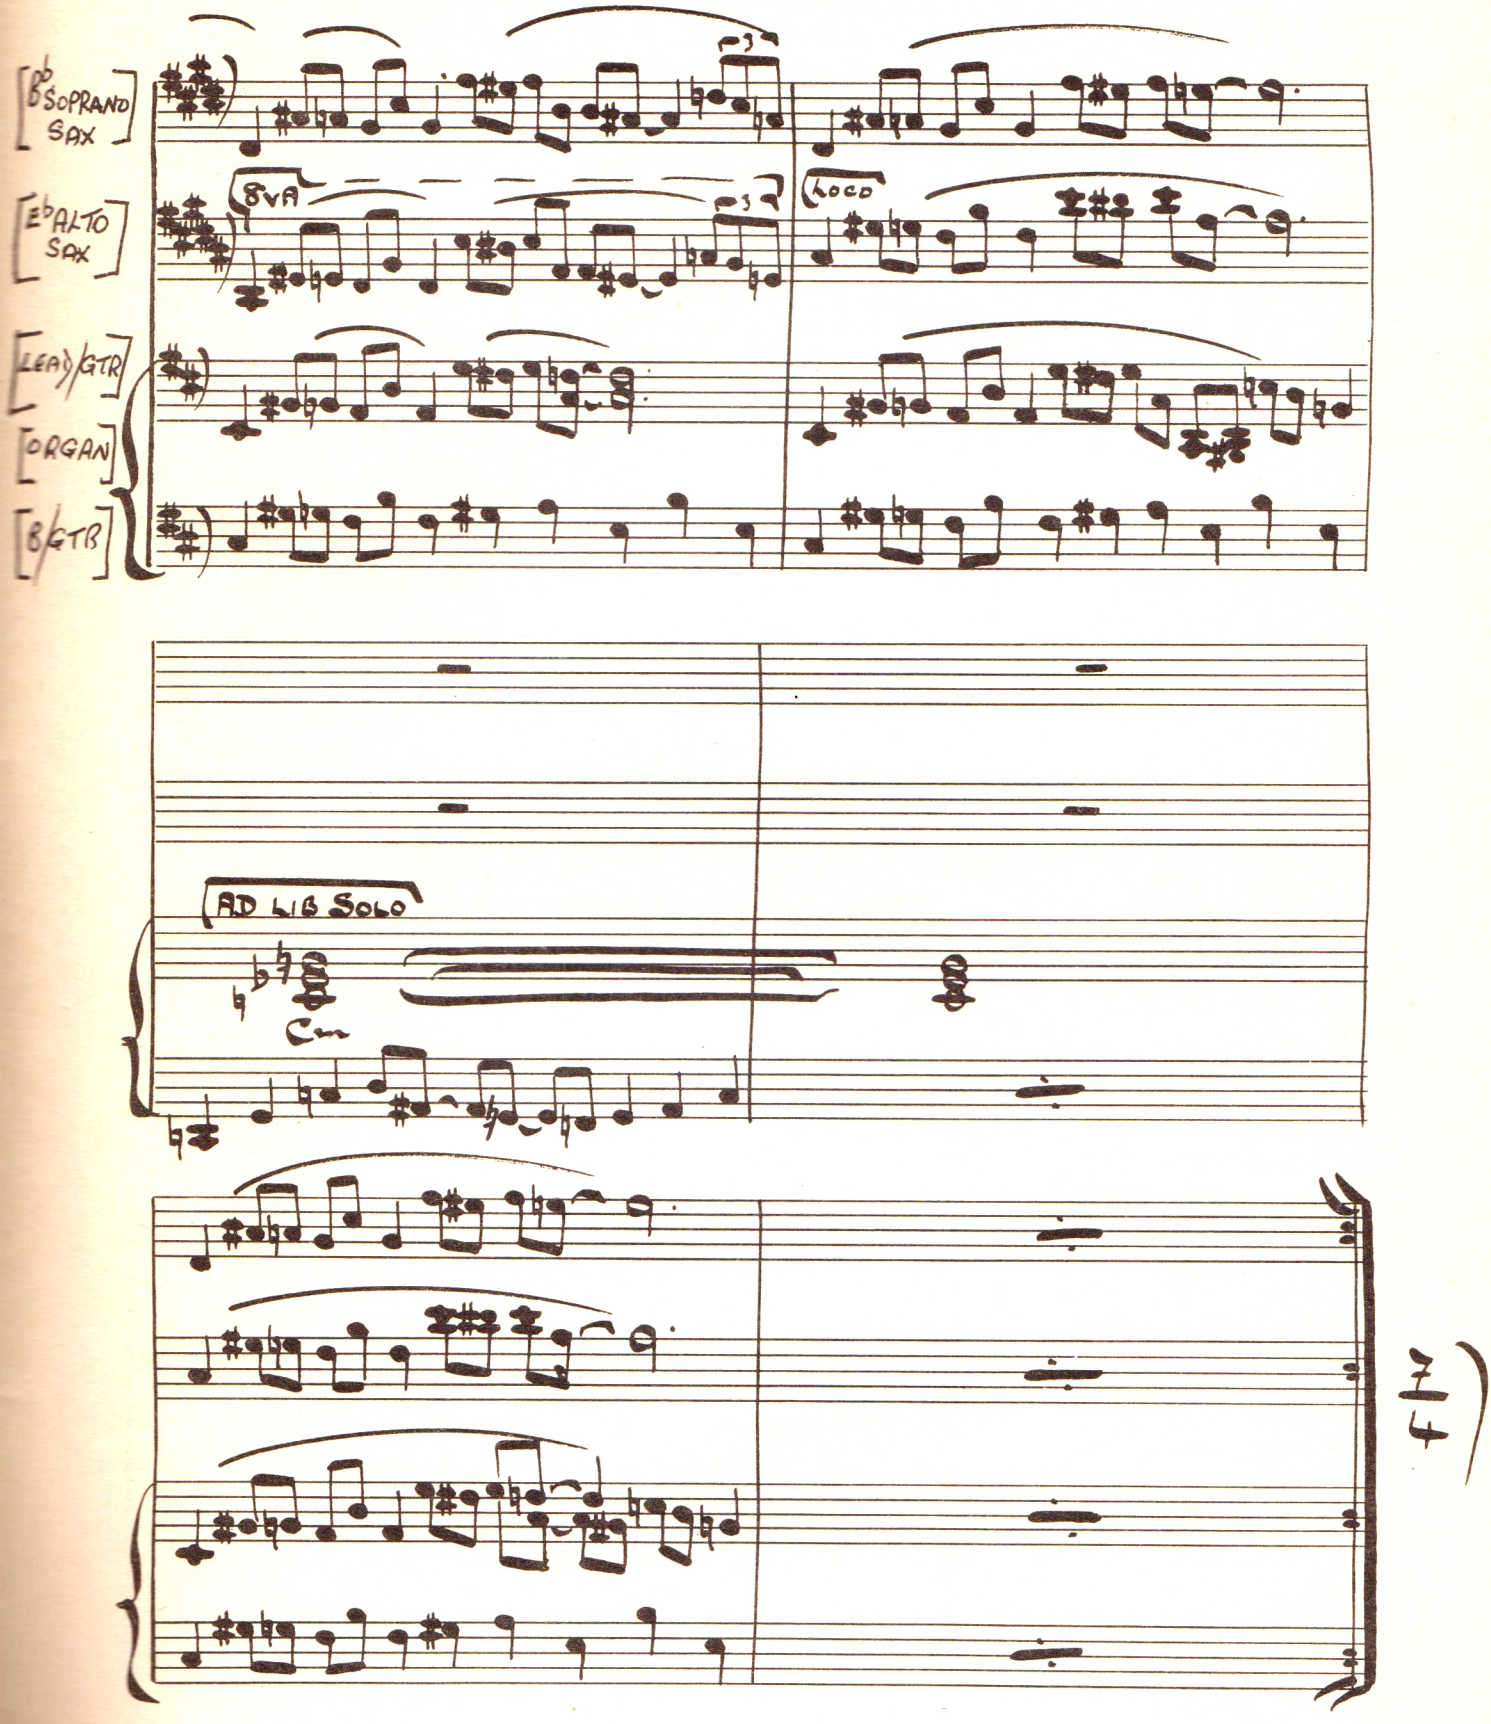


©Copyright 1970 by ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION Ltd., 35 Soho Square, London, W.1.

E♭
ALTO SAX
LEAD GTR
ORGAN
B GTR
C♯m7
Bm7
A(b7)
Em7
Dm7
D(b7)
$
Dmaj7
Emaj7
Fmaj7
Gmaj7
F♯m7
Emaj7
G♯m7
Am7
Gmaj7
Bm7
F♯m7
G♯m7
A♯m7
Am7
Bm7
C♯m7

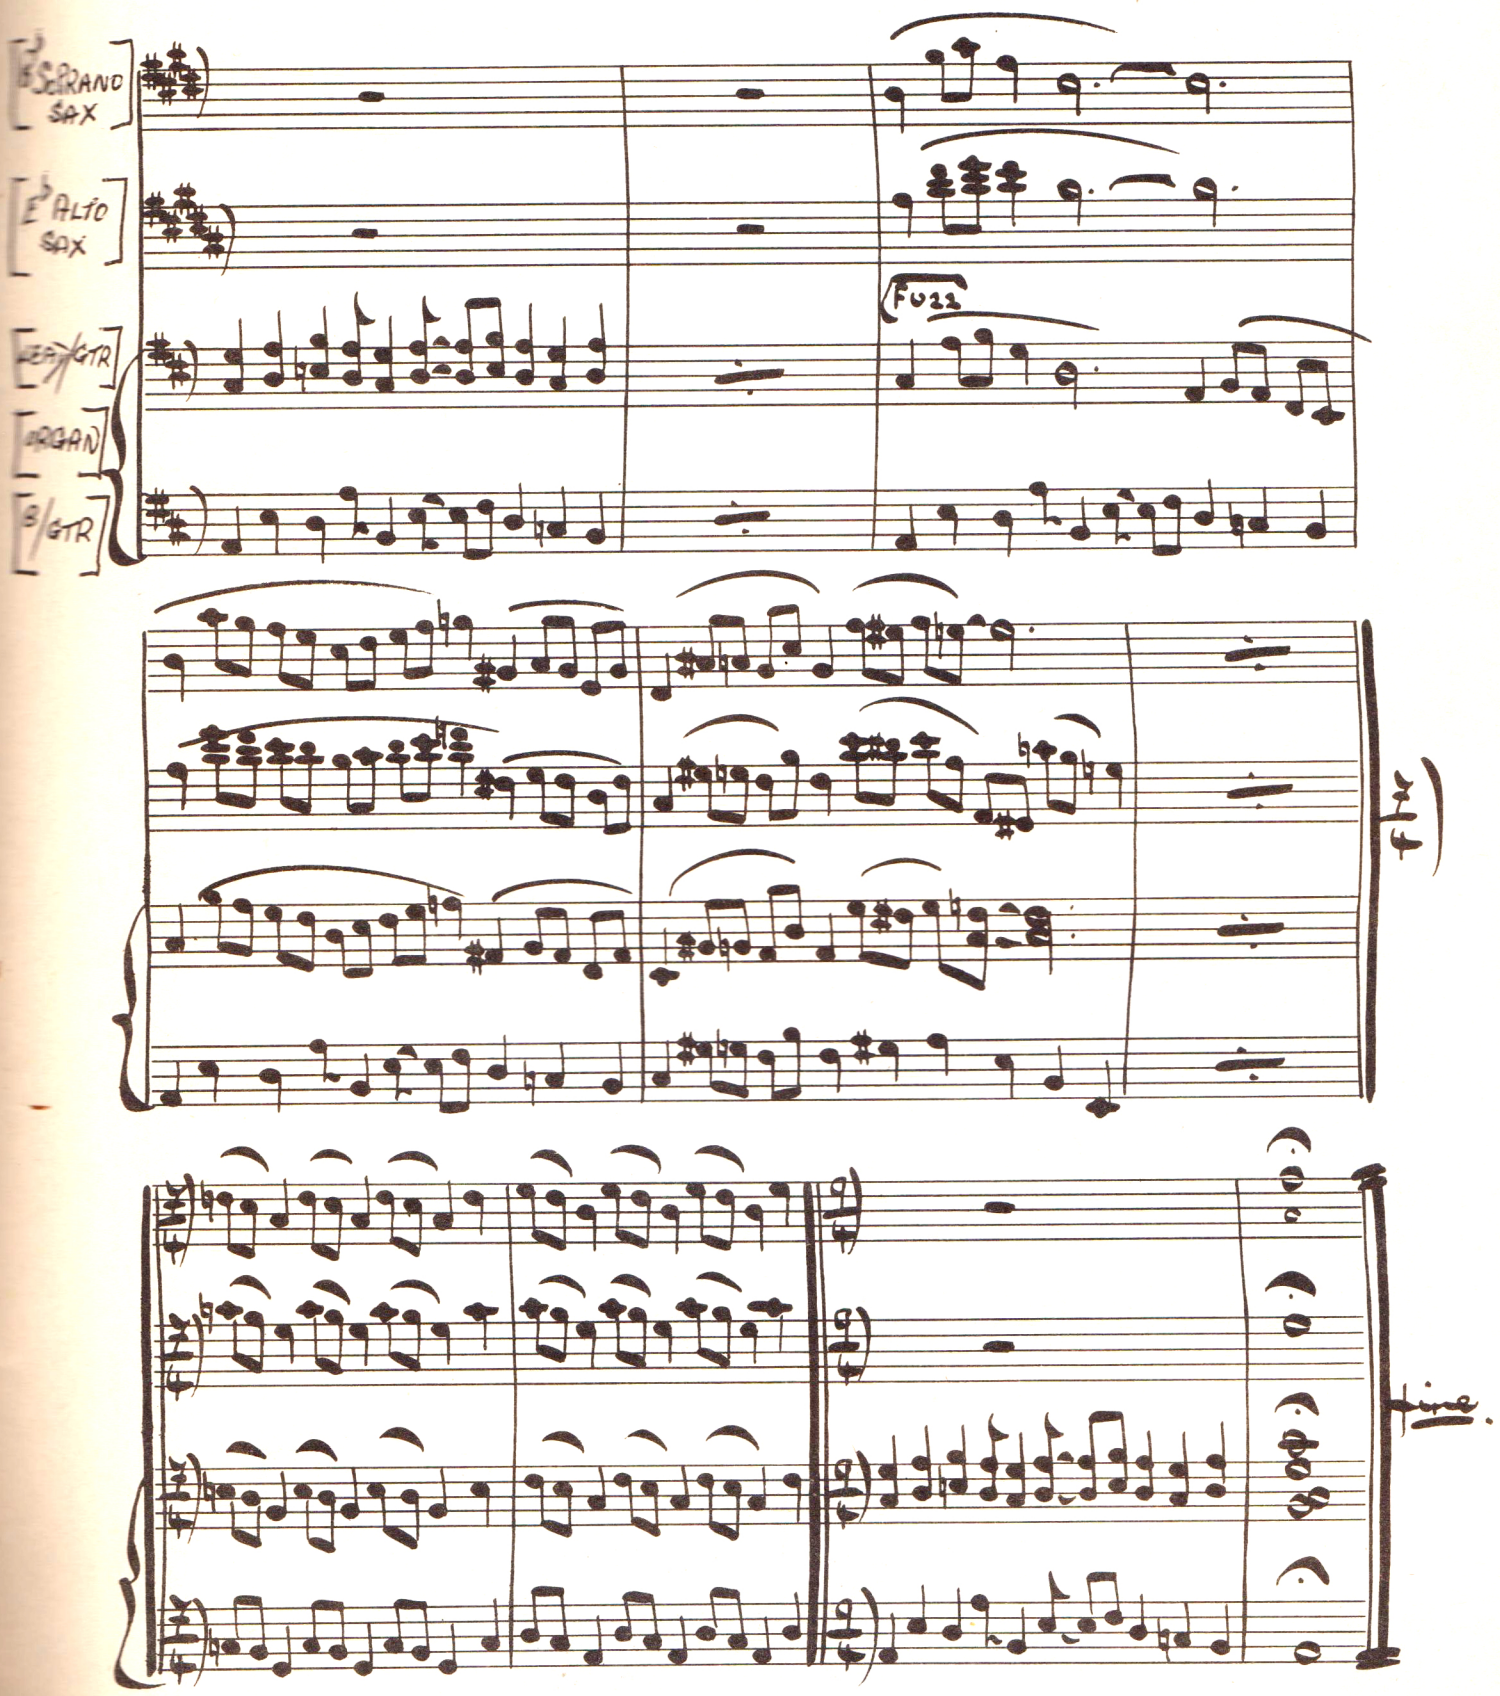
E♭
ALTO SAX
LEAD GTR
ORGAN
B GTR
TO CODA

E♭
ALTO SAX
LEAD GTR
ORGAN
B GTR
D♯m
D♯m7
F♯m
F♯m7
AL CODA



A♭maj7
Cmaj7

Mousetrap



HUGH HOPPER

©Copyright 1970 by ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION Ltd., 35 Soho Square, London, W.1.

B♭ SOPRANO SAX
E♭ ALTO SAX
LEAD GTR
ORGAN
B GTR
8va loco
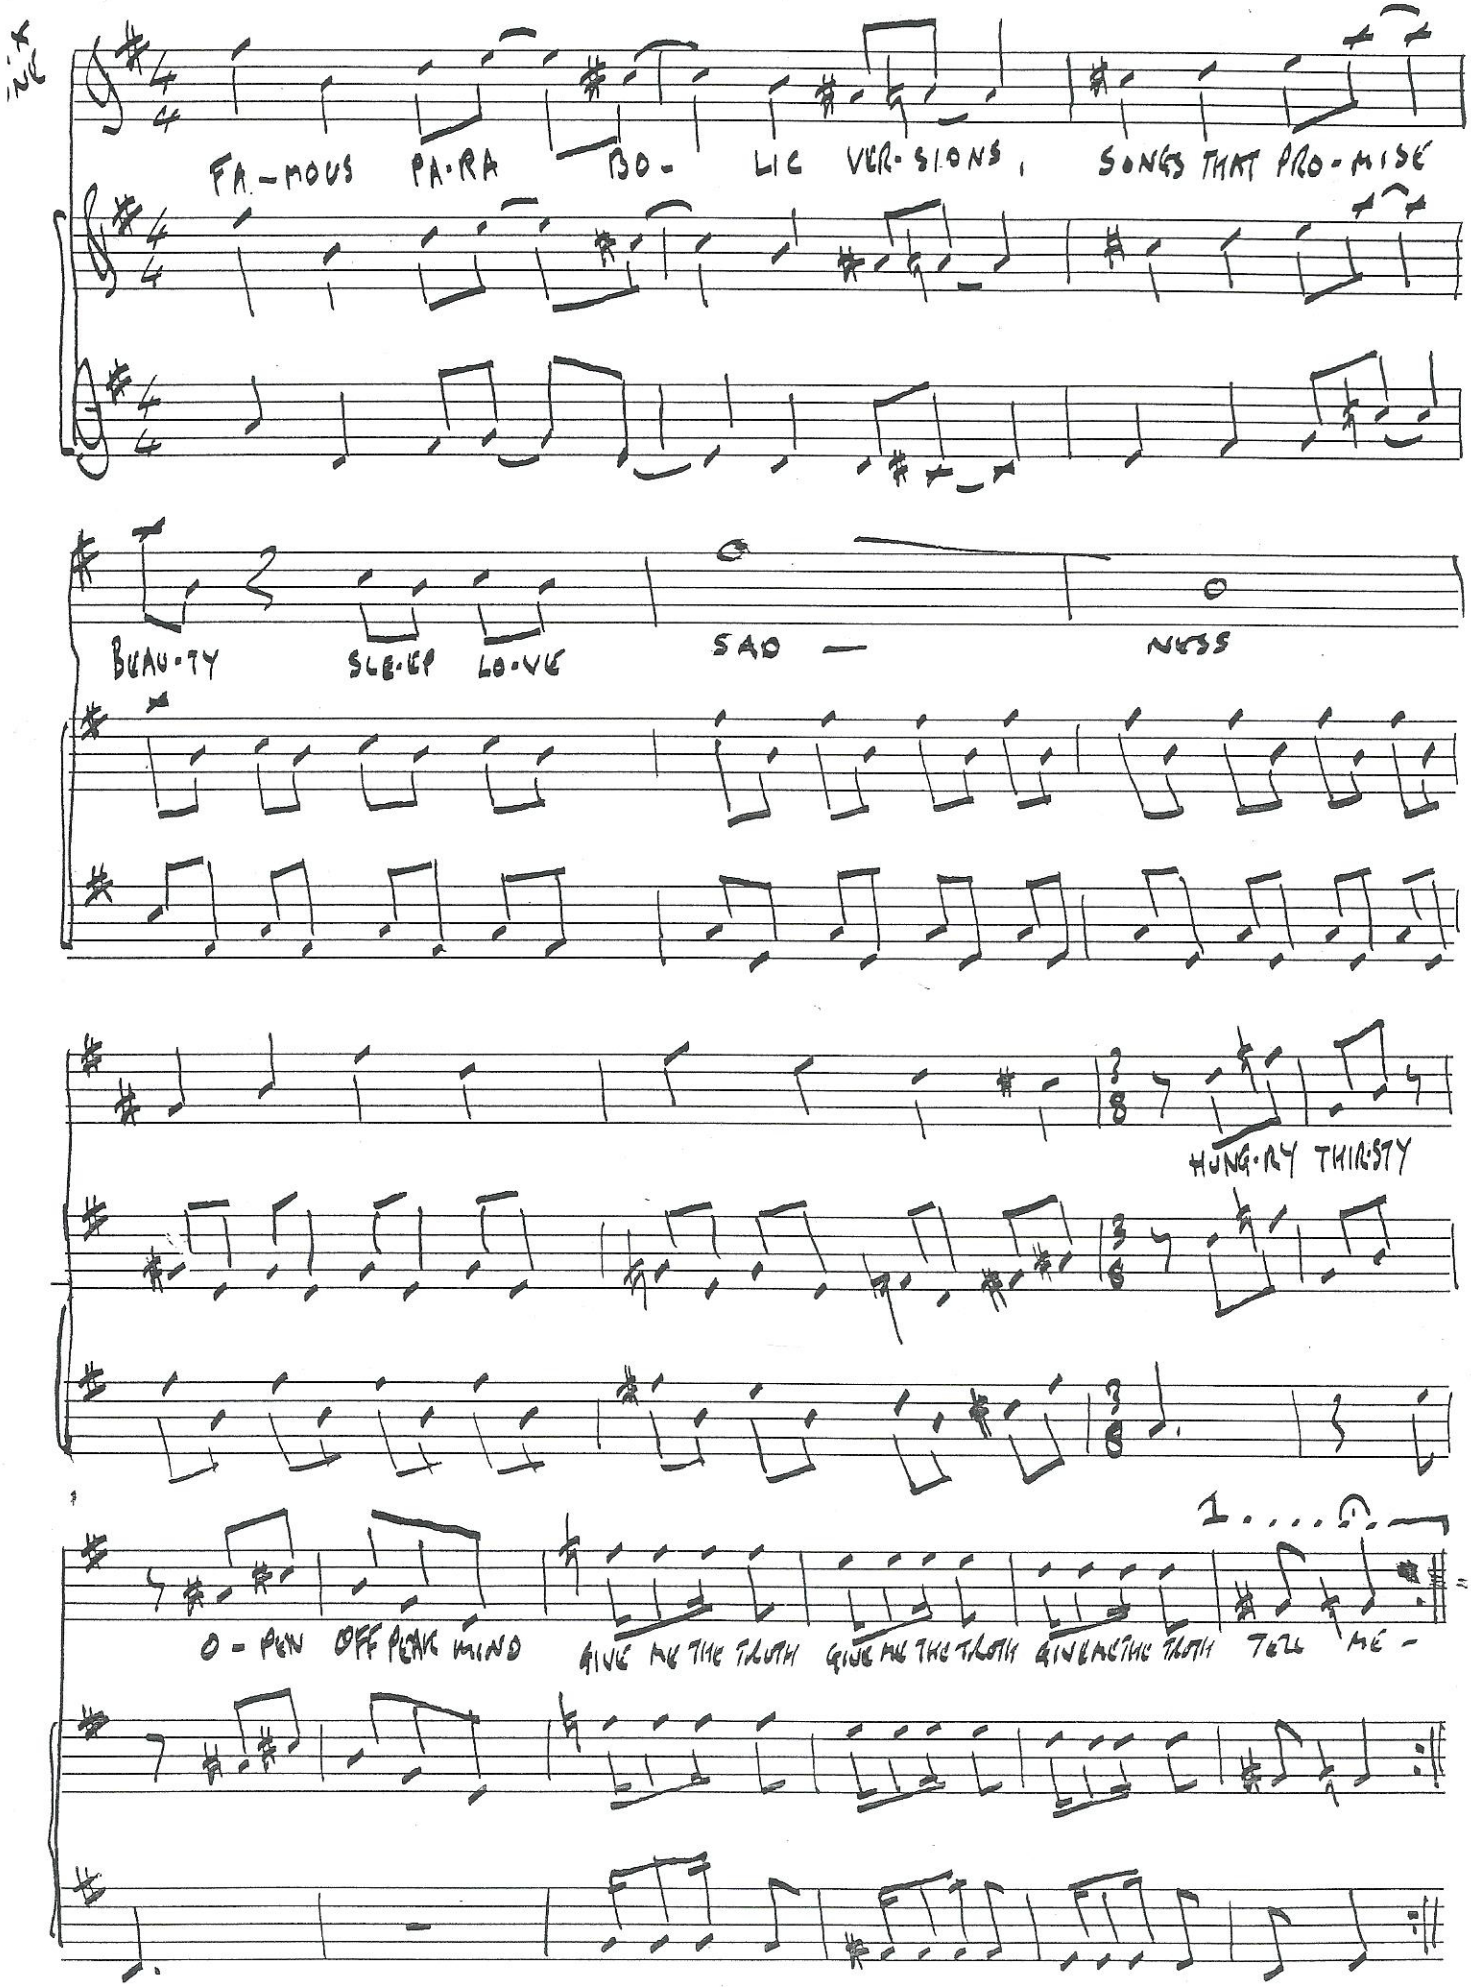
AD LIB SOLO
Cm



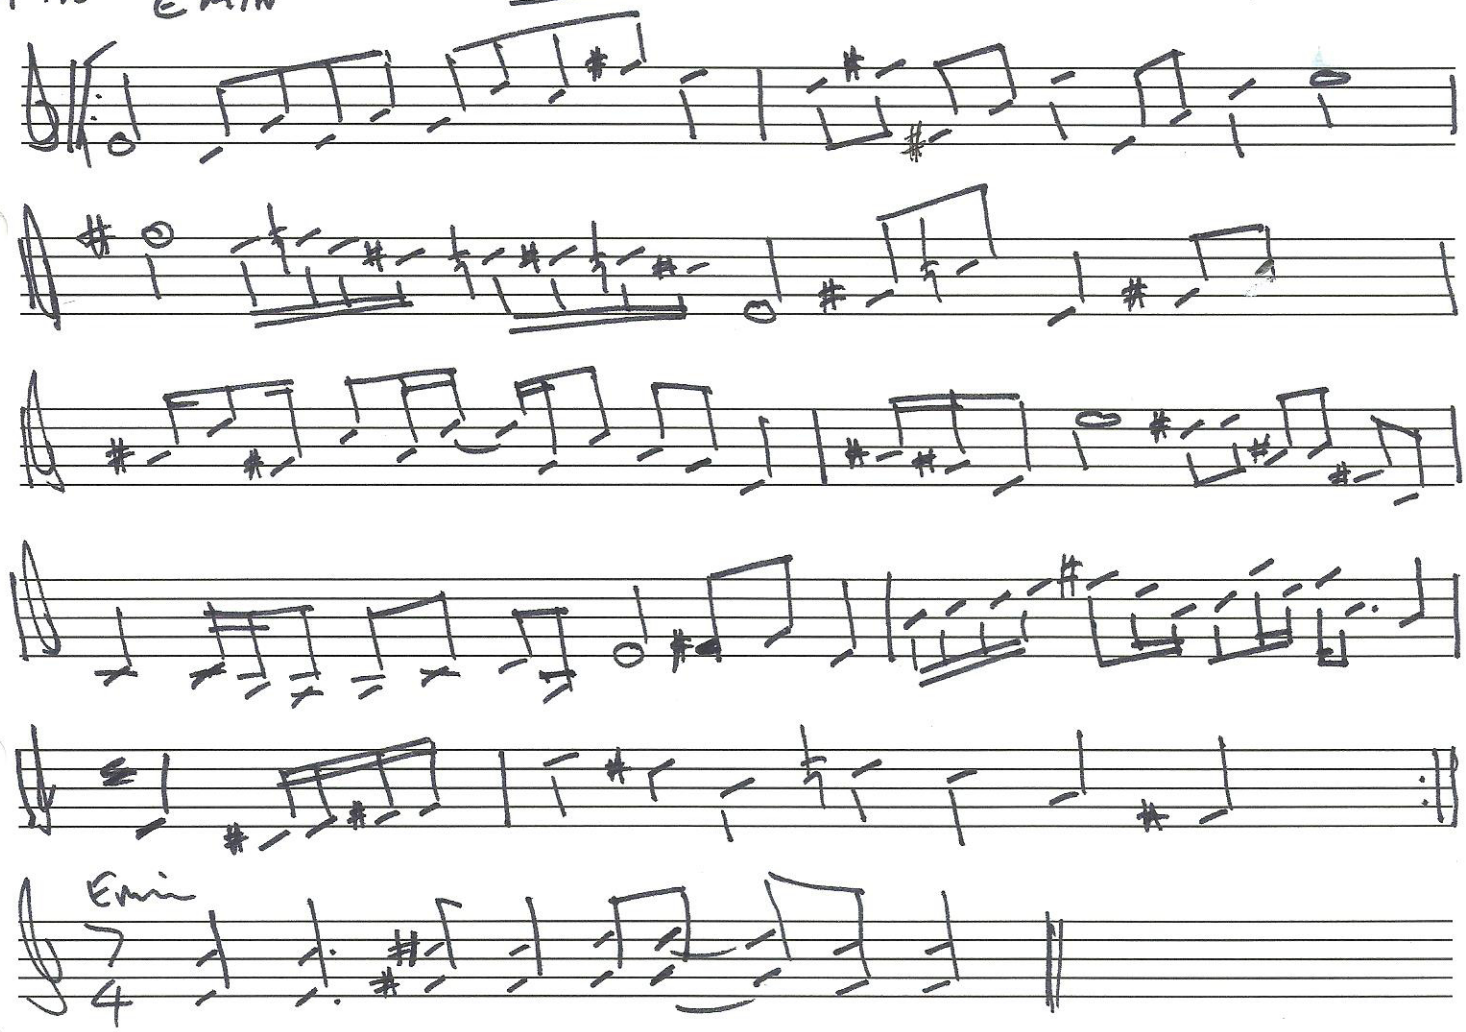
C
B♭ SOPRANO SAX
E♭ ALTO SAX
LEAD GTR
ORGAN
B GTR
SXS
D
NORMAL:

B♭ SOPRANO SAX
E♭ ALTO SAX
ELEC/GTR
ORGAN
B/GTR
FULL
fine.

I

DEDICATED TO YOU
BUT YOU WEREN'T LISTENING

M. HOPPEN/
EMI PUBLISH



BRIDGE

3/8
2
WHEN I WAS YOUNG THE SKY WAS BLUE AND EVERY ONE KNEW WHAT TO DO BUT NOW IT'S GONE THE TODAY'S HOME MASS ME-DI-A THE SE-CRET TOO
D.C

GTR EMIN

FACELIFT

HH

GTR (SAX THEME) WAS A FRIEND 1 72 HH

AMBER

HOPPER/WYATT

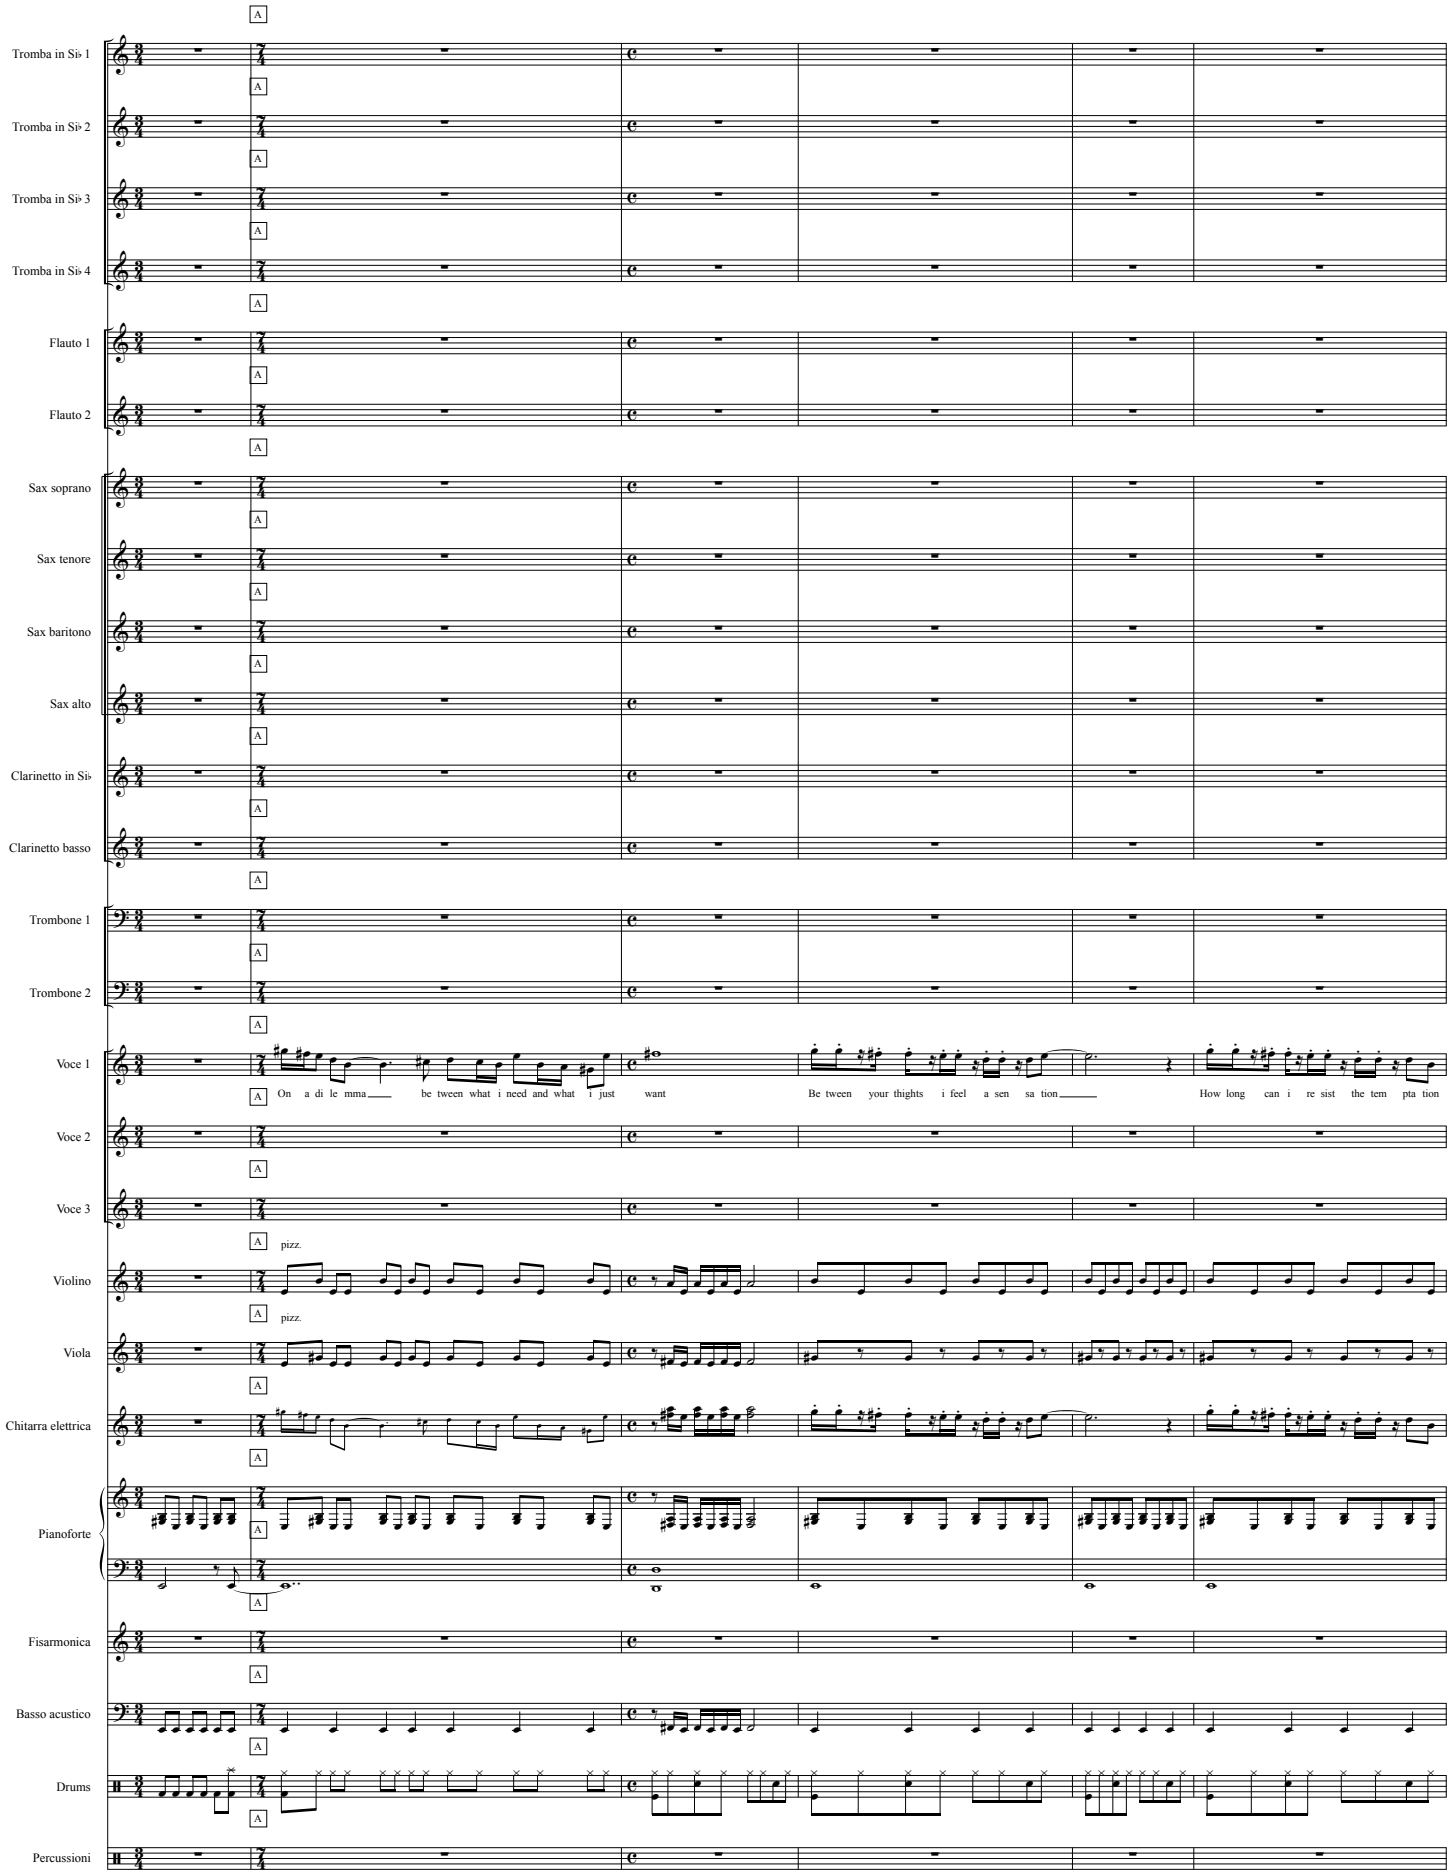
Bb Gmin Dmin9 Emin7 Fmin6

Amin Bb Dmin9 Emin7

Fmin6 Cmin9

Gmin Dmin9

Fmin6



Gmin Dmin9

Moon in june

by Robert Wyatt

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

MM104

Tr.Sib 1
Tr.Sib 2
Tr.Sib 3
Tr.Sib 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Sib
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
Coro
8ob
I'... ... ve got my bird you've got your ma... an So who else do we need rea lly? Now i'm here i may as pu ...t my

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
o ther hands in yours While we de cide how far to go and if we've got time to do it now and if it's half as good for you as it is for me then you won't mind if we lie down for a while
pizz.
Vno.
pizz.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
just for a while ti ll all thing i want is need till all thing i want is need Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
B arco
can still re me ber
the last time we pla yed on Top Gear
And though each li ttle song

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
Was less than three mi nutes long
Mike squee zed a so lo... o in some how Mike squee zed a so lo in some how and al though we like our lon ger tunes
pizz.
pizz.

Tr.Si♭ 1
it seemed po lite to cut the em do wn to li ttle bits they might be hits who gives an a fter all tell me how would you feel in the place of John Peel?
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
arco
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
you ju st can't please
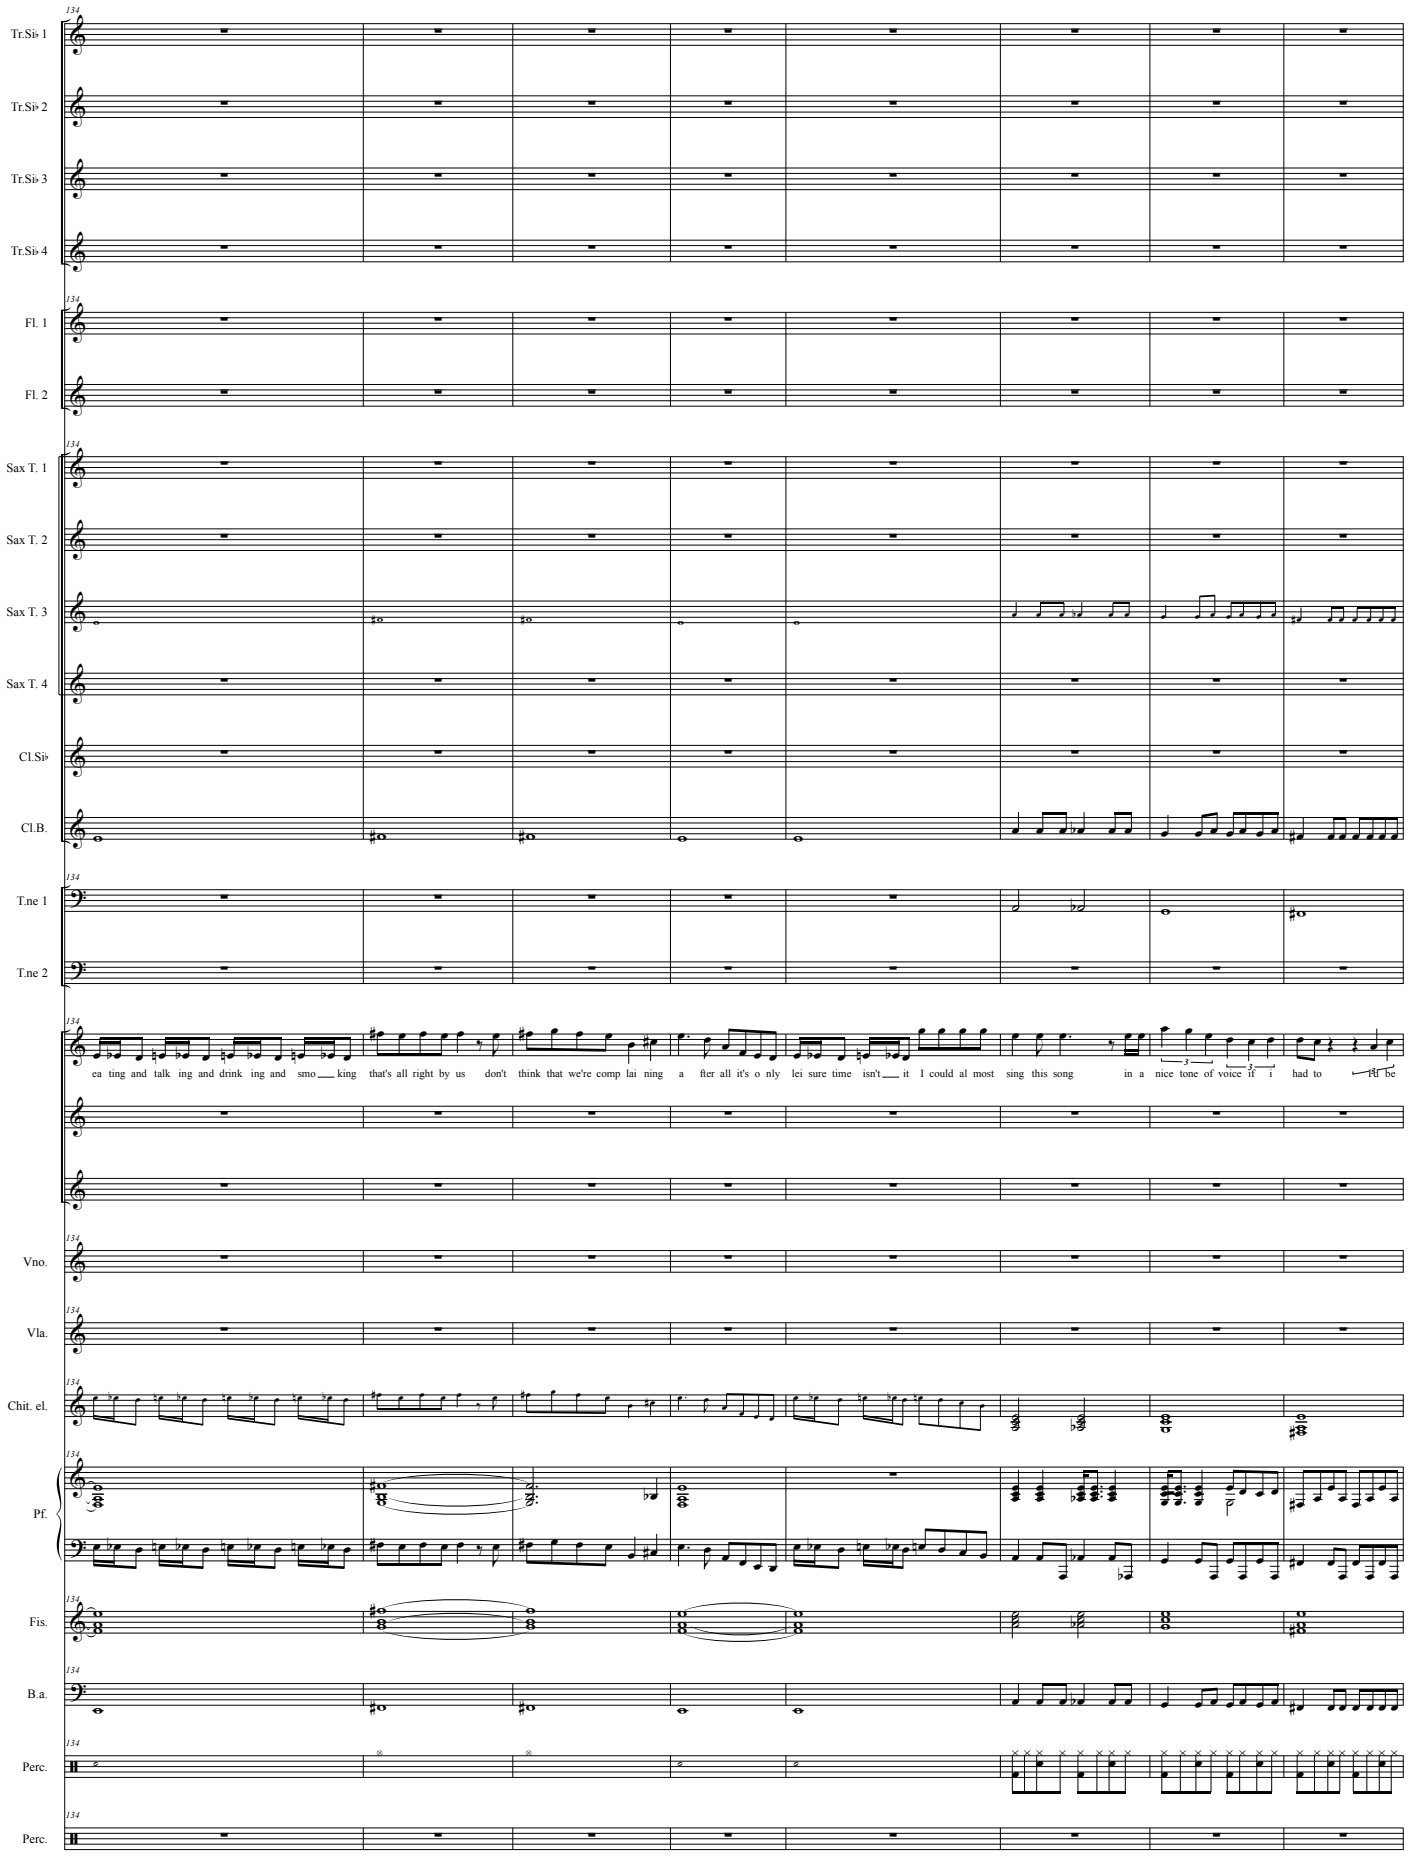
all of the mu si cians
all the time
strumentale

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
wha wha
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
on rim...
Perc.

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
rit.
fill...



Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
D
mm 90
Swing... play ing now is love ly here inthe B B C we're free to play almost as long and as and as loud as a jazz group of an or che stra on Ra di o Three

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
There are dance halls and theatres with a coustic worse than he re not forgetting the ex tra fa ci li ties su ch as the tea
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
ma chine just a long the co o o o ri dor
Pop stars drink each o ther's wine
pizz.
pizz.
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
116
E
Even Eights
Coro
plough each o ther earth
ho ping for com pa ni on shi ip and then perh aps re birth plant seeds in fre sher plots of earth bound up in co ncepts and arco
Piano

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
125
F
dreams and fears of worse thing to come they ne ver do they stay the sa me mu sic ma king still per forms a nor mal fun ction back ground noise for peo ple
Amaj7
Fmaj7
Amaj7
E
E

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
ea ting and talk ing and drink ing and smo king that's all right by us don't think that we're comp lai ning a fter all it's o nly lei sure time isn't it I could al most sing this song in a nice tone of voice if i had to Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
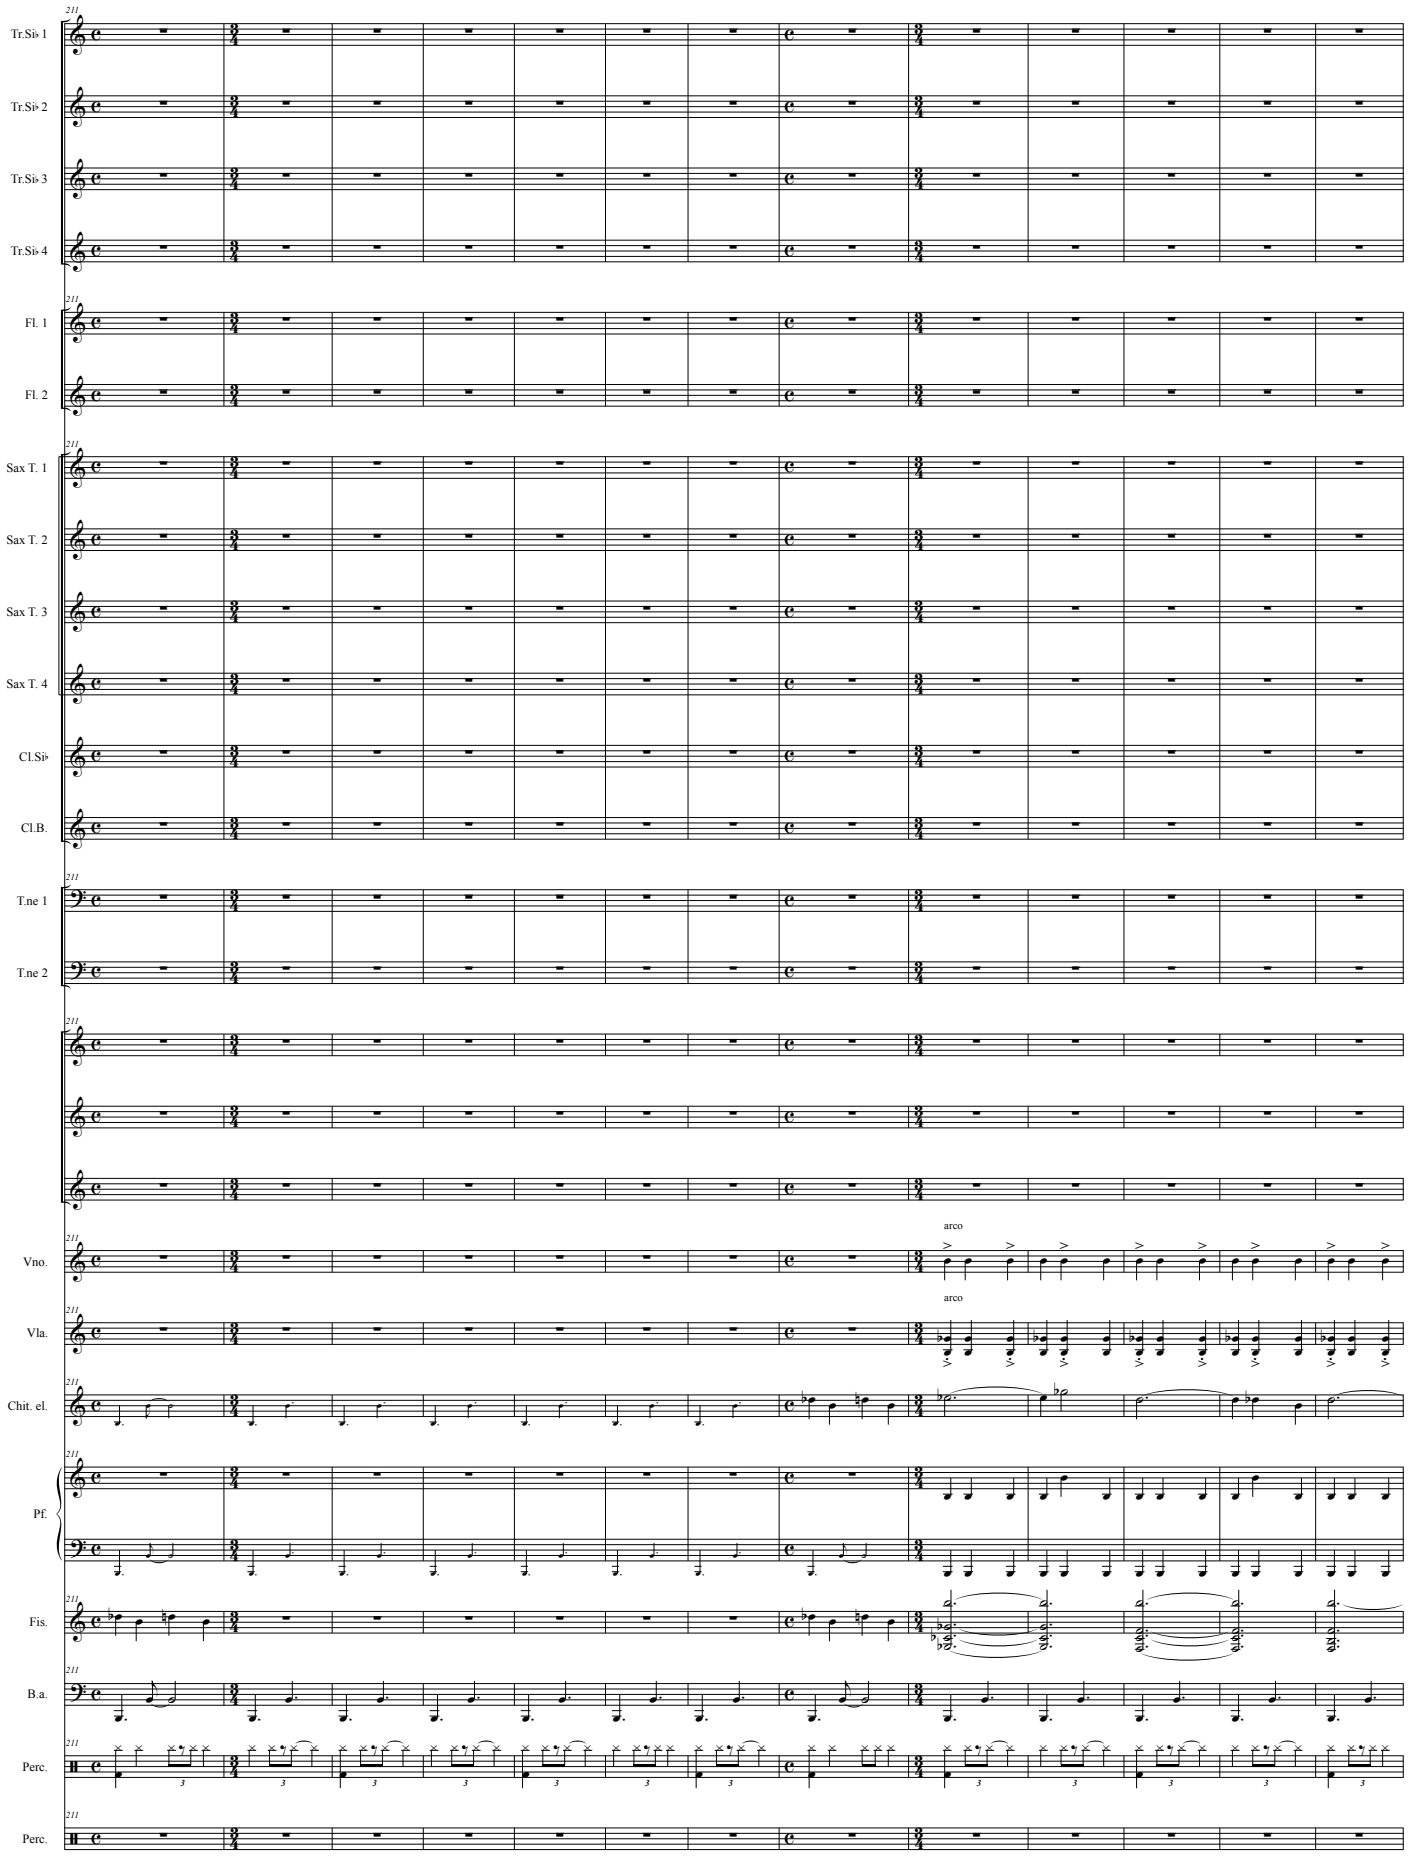
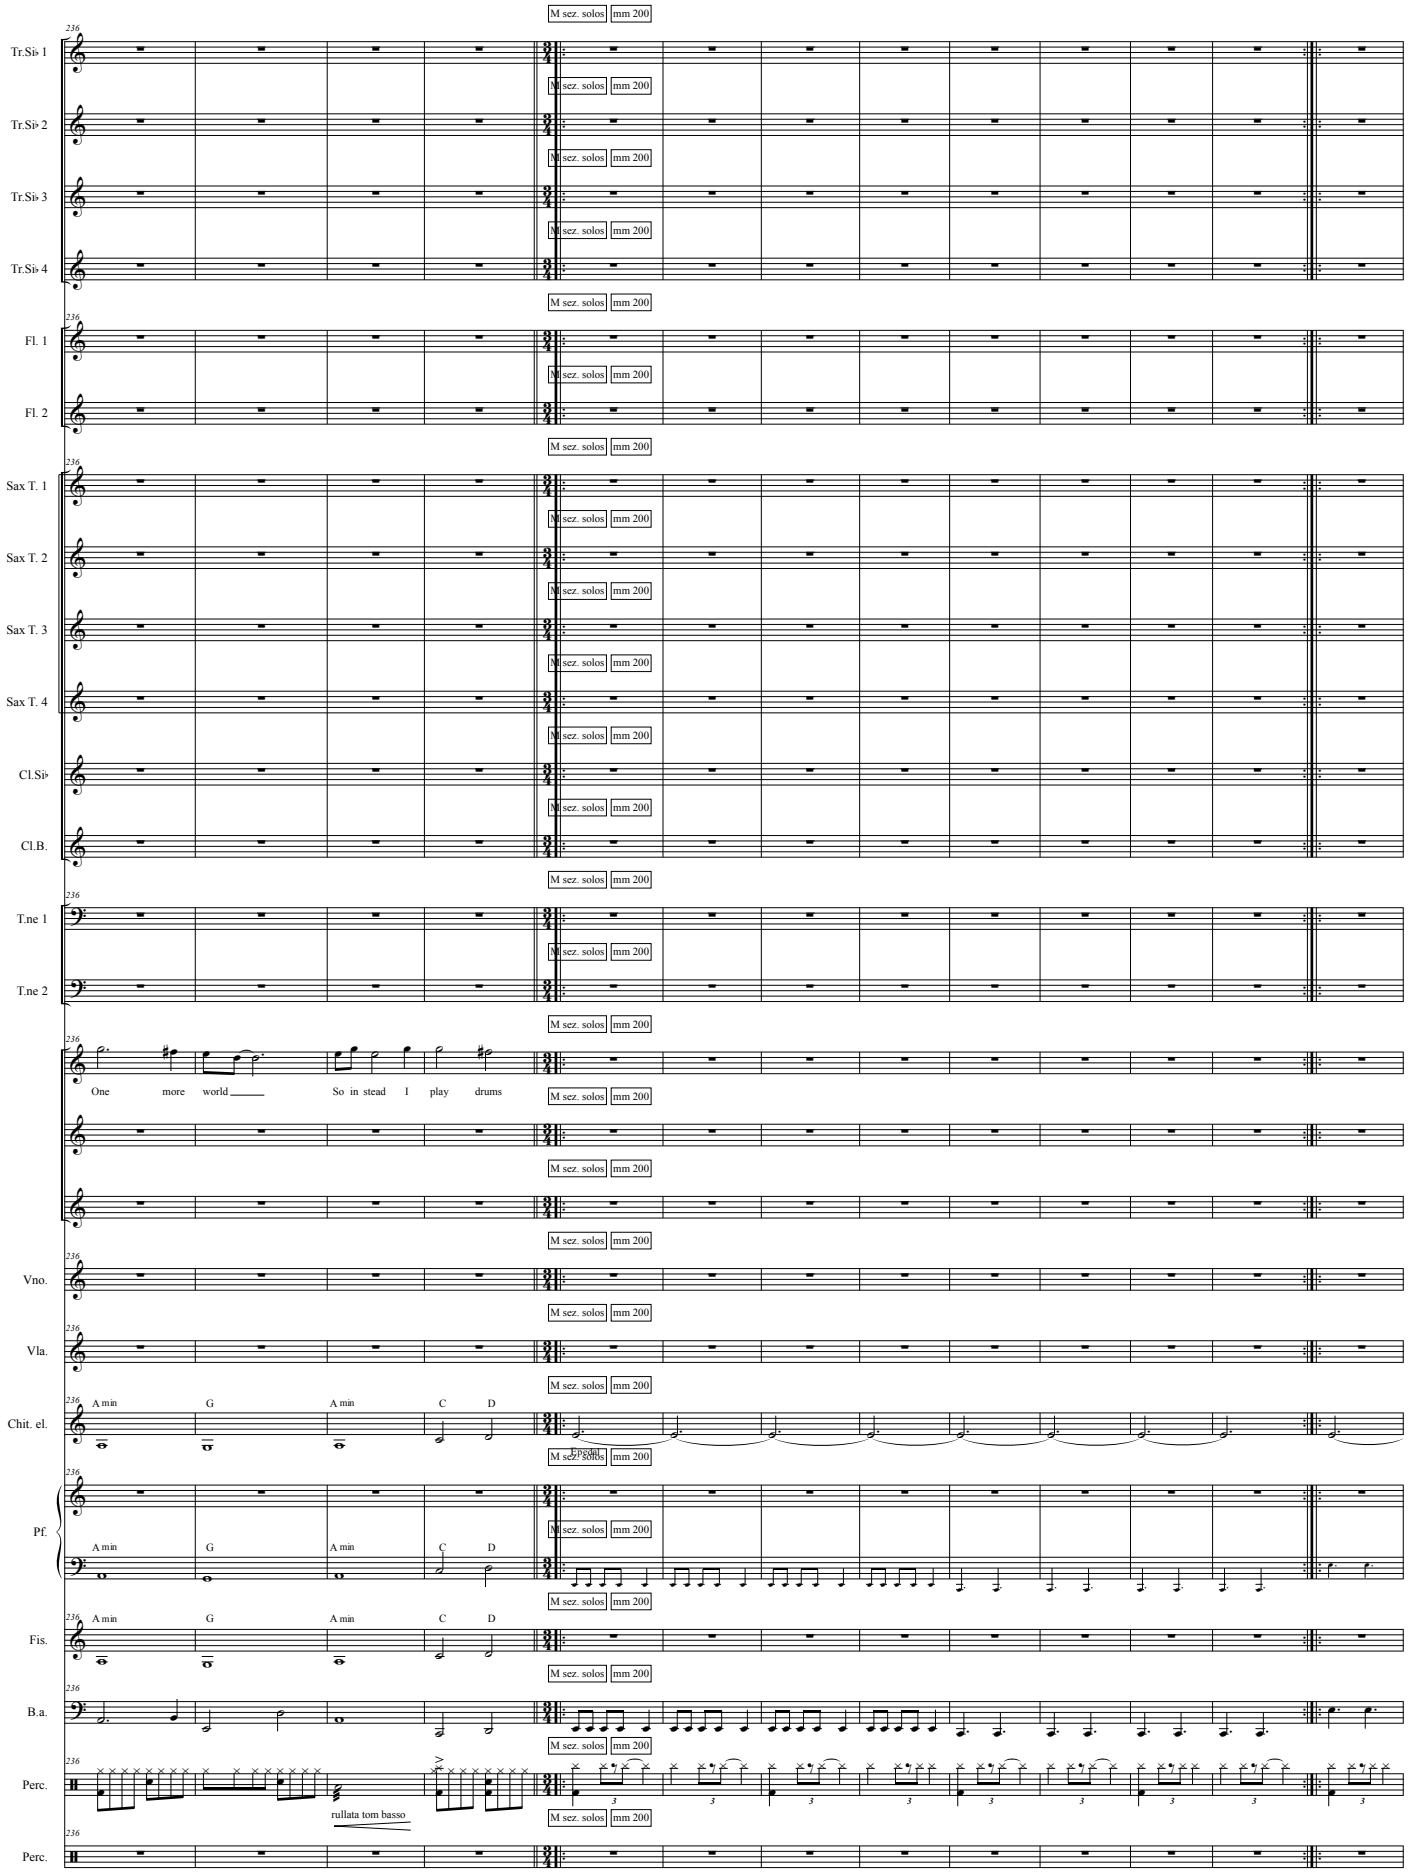
142 glad to it's aw fully nice to be he re so let's o pen the be ers and get ti psy we'd be mad to but if you sound re finded you just can't blow the mind of a kid dy or young la dy and if you

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
151
p
come from the sun you just can't fool a mun in to think ing that you al right rea lly So be fore this fee ling dies re me mber I



Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
160
G
strumentale
could be telling lies
pizz.
overdrive

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
Coro
p
Now I lo ve your ey es see how the ti me flies I think it's so great you seem to



Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
p
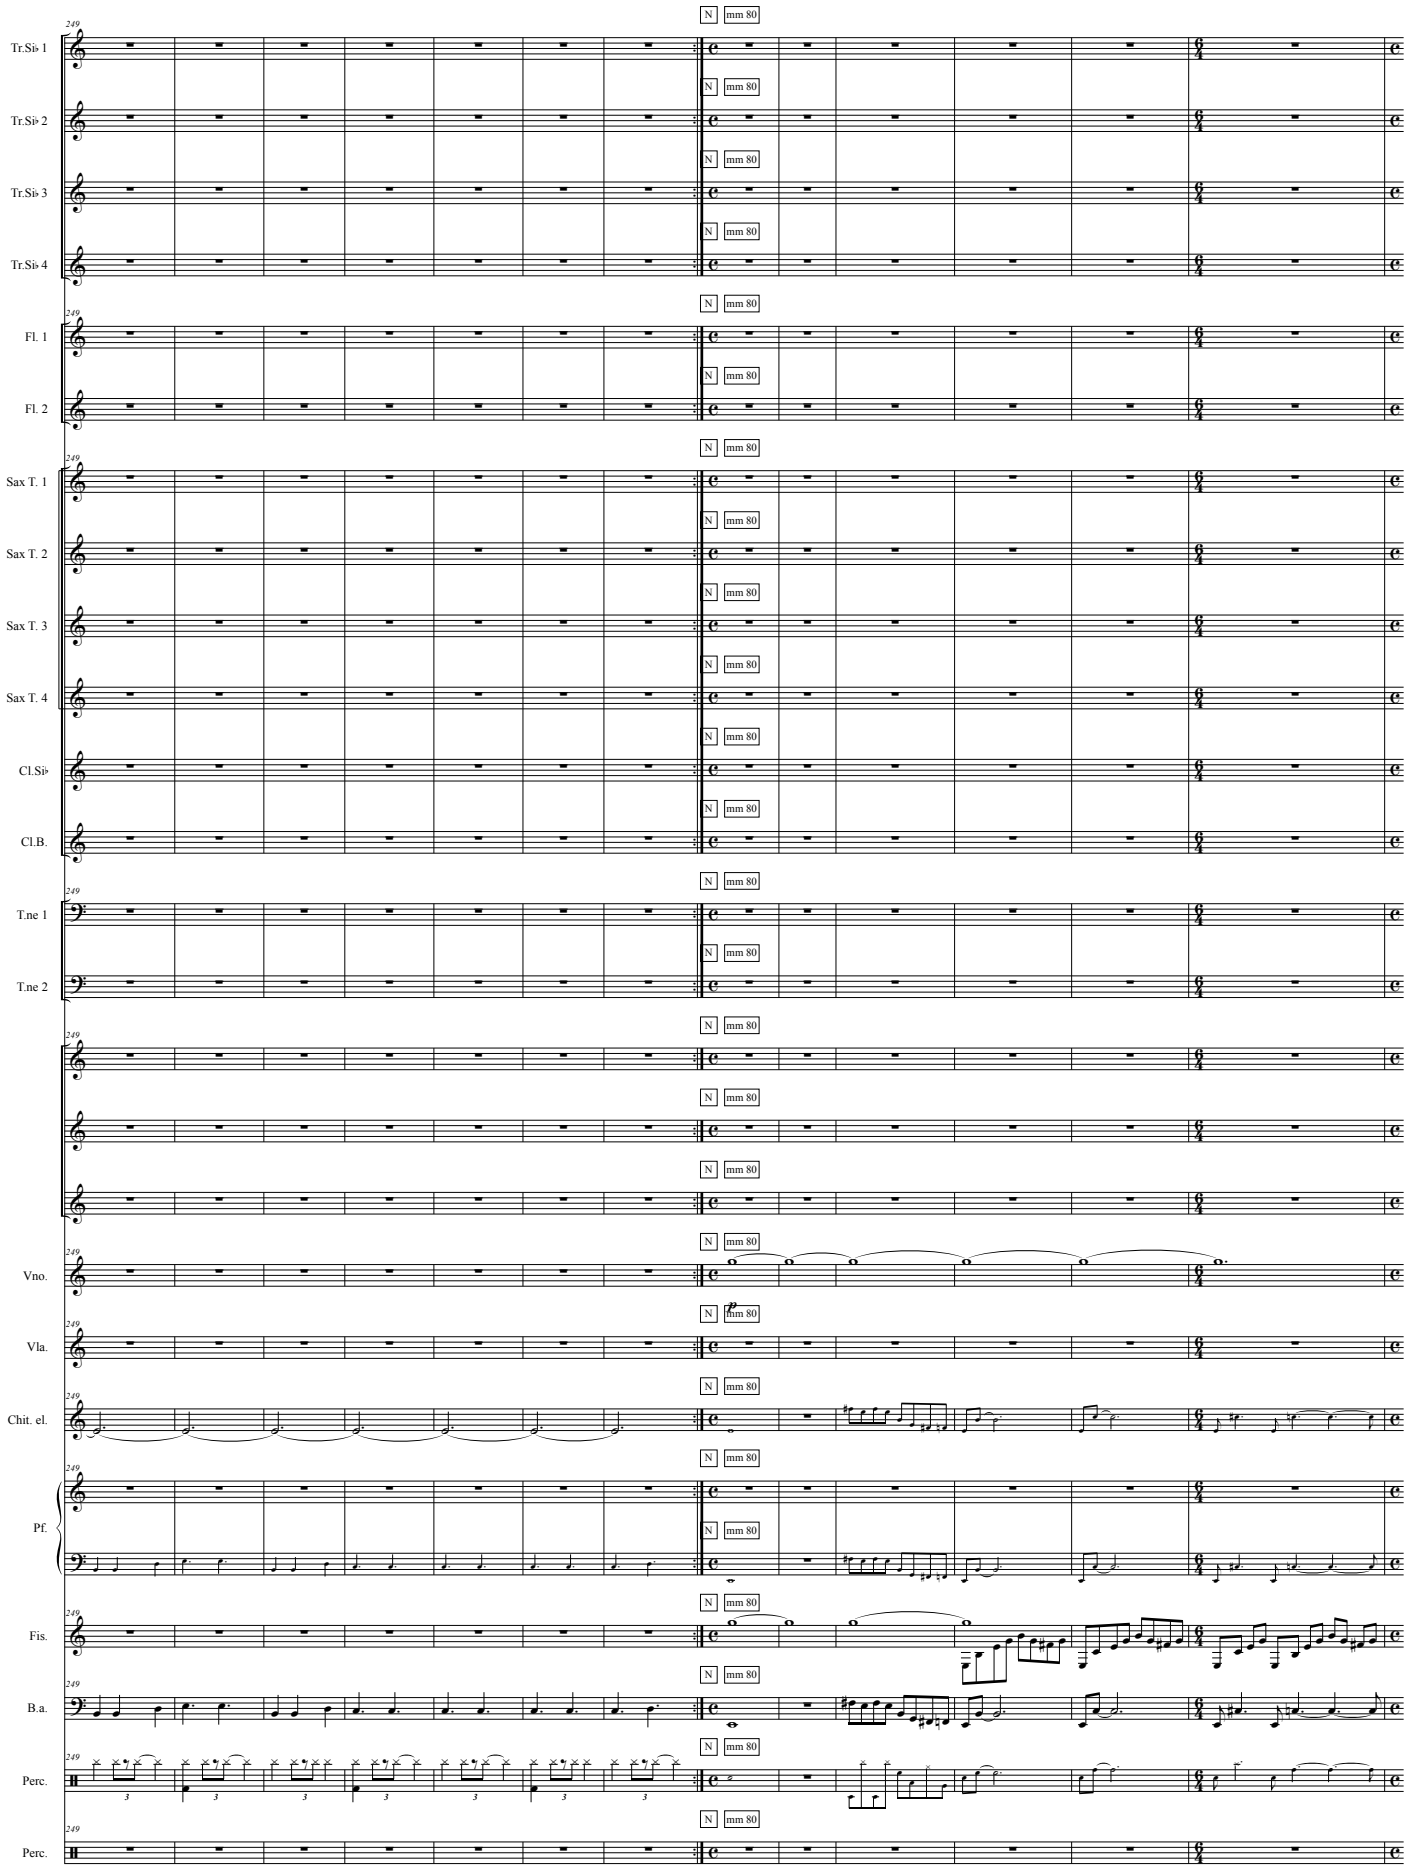
p cha nge your fate by work ing and play ing some thing new in eve ry way can be yours in a-day but i won der what i'm re ally say ing So just be fo re this fee ling



189
Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
di es re mem ber I may be te lling lies False hood White lies Ad verts I dle chat Ba nter
pizz.
Vno.
pizz.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
p Perc.

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Half truths
Ru mors
and just/lies plain/lies
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
mm 200

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
arco
Vla. arco
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
224
Drums fill...
L ballad... mm 80
I shan't say
A min
G
rit.

M sez. solos
mm 200
Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
One more world
So in stead I play drums
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
A min
G
A min
C
D
Pedal
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
rullata tom basso
Perc.

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
N
mm 80
249

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
8vb 8vb
p

273
rit.
Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.

Moon in june

Pianoforte

MM104

by Robert Wyatt

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

20 23
27
B
31
B
35
39

43
47
51
55
59
62
C
strumentale
C
strumentale

66
71
76 80
84 88
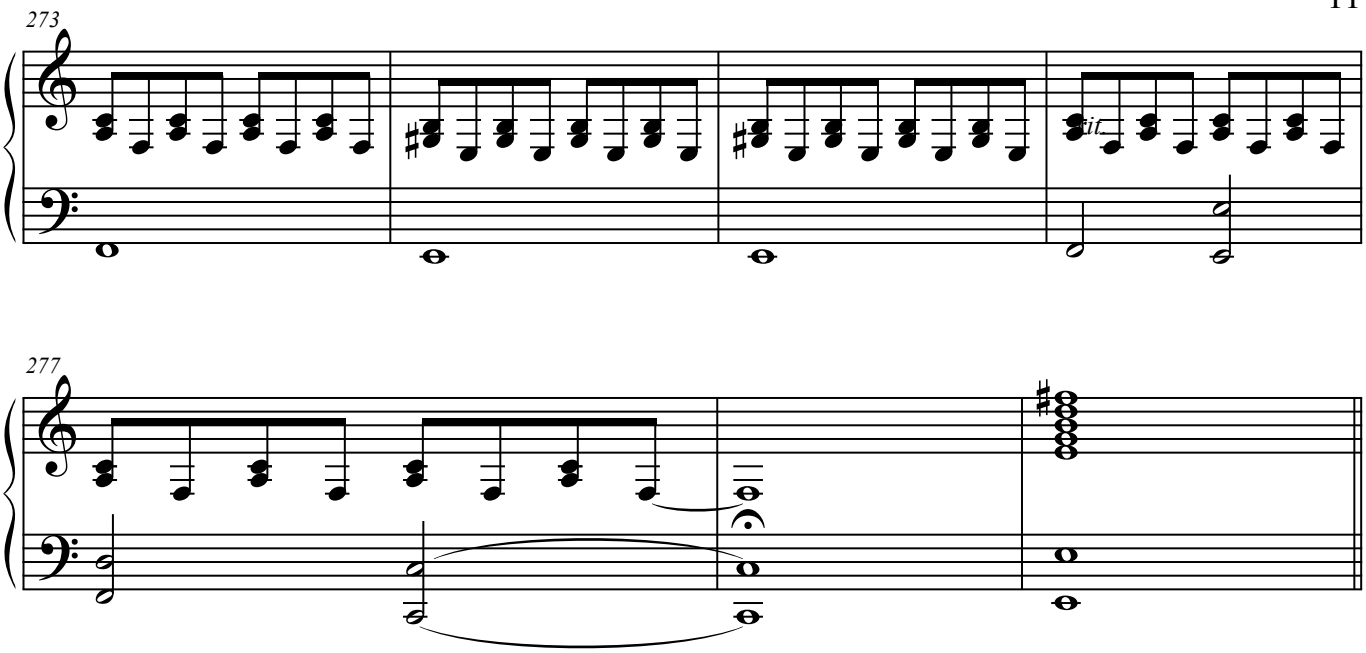
rit.
rit.
N
mm 90
Swing...
N
mm 90
Swing...

93
98
102
F maj7
F 6
E7#9b13
A min6
E7(♭9)
F min7
C min7
B♭maj7
A♭maj7
109
G 7(♯9)
113
117



121
E
Even Eights
Coro
3
E
Even Eights
Coro
126
3
130
F
F
134
138
142

147
151
156
160
G
strumentale
G
strumentale
3
3 165
3
3
170
H
Coro
H
Coro

174
179
183
188
192
196

200
204
I
mm 200
I
mm 200
211
218
225
231
Drums fill...
L ballad...
mm 80
Drums fill...
L ballad... mm 80
A min
G
A min
G
A min

239
M sez. solos
mm 200
C
D
245
253
N mm 80
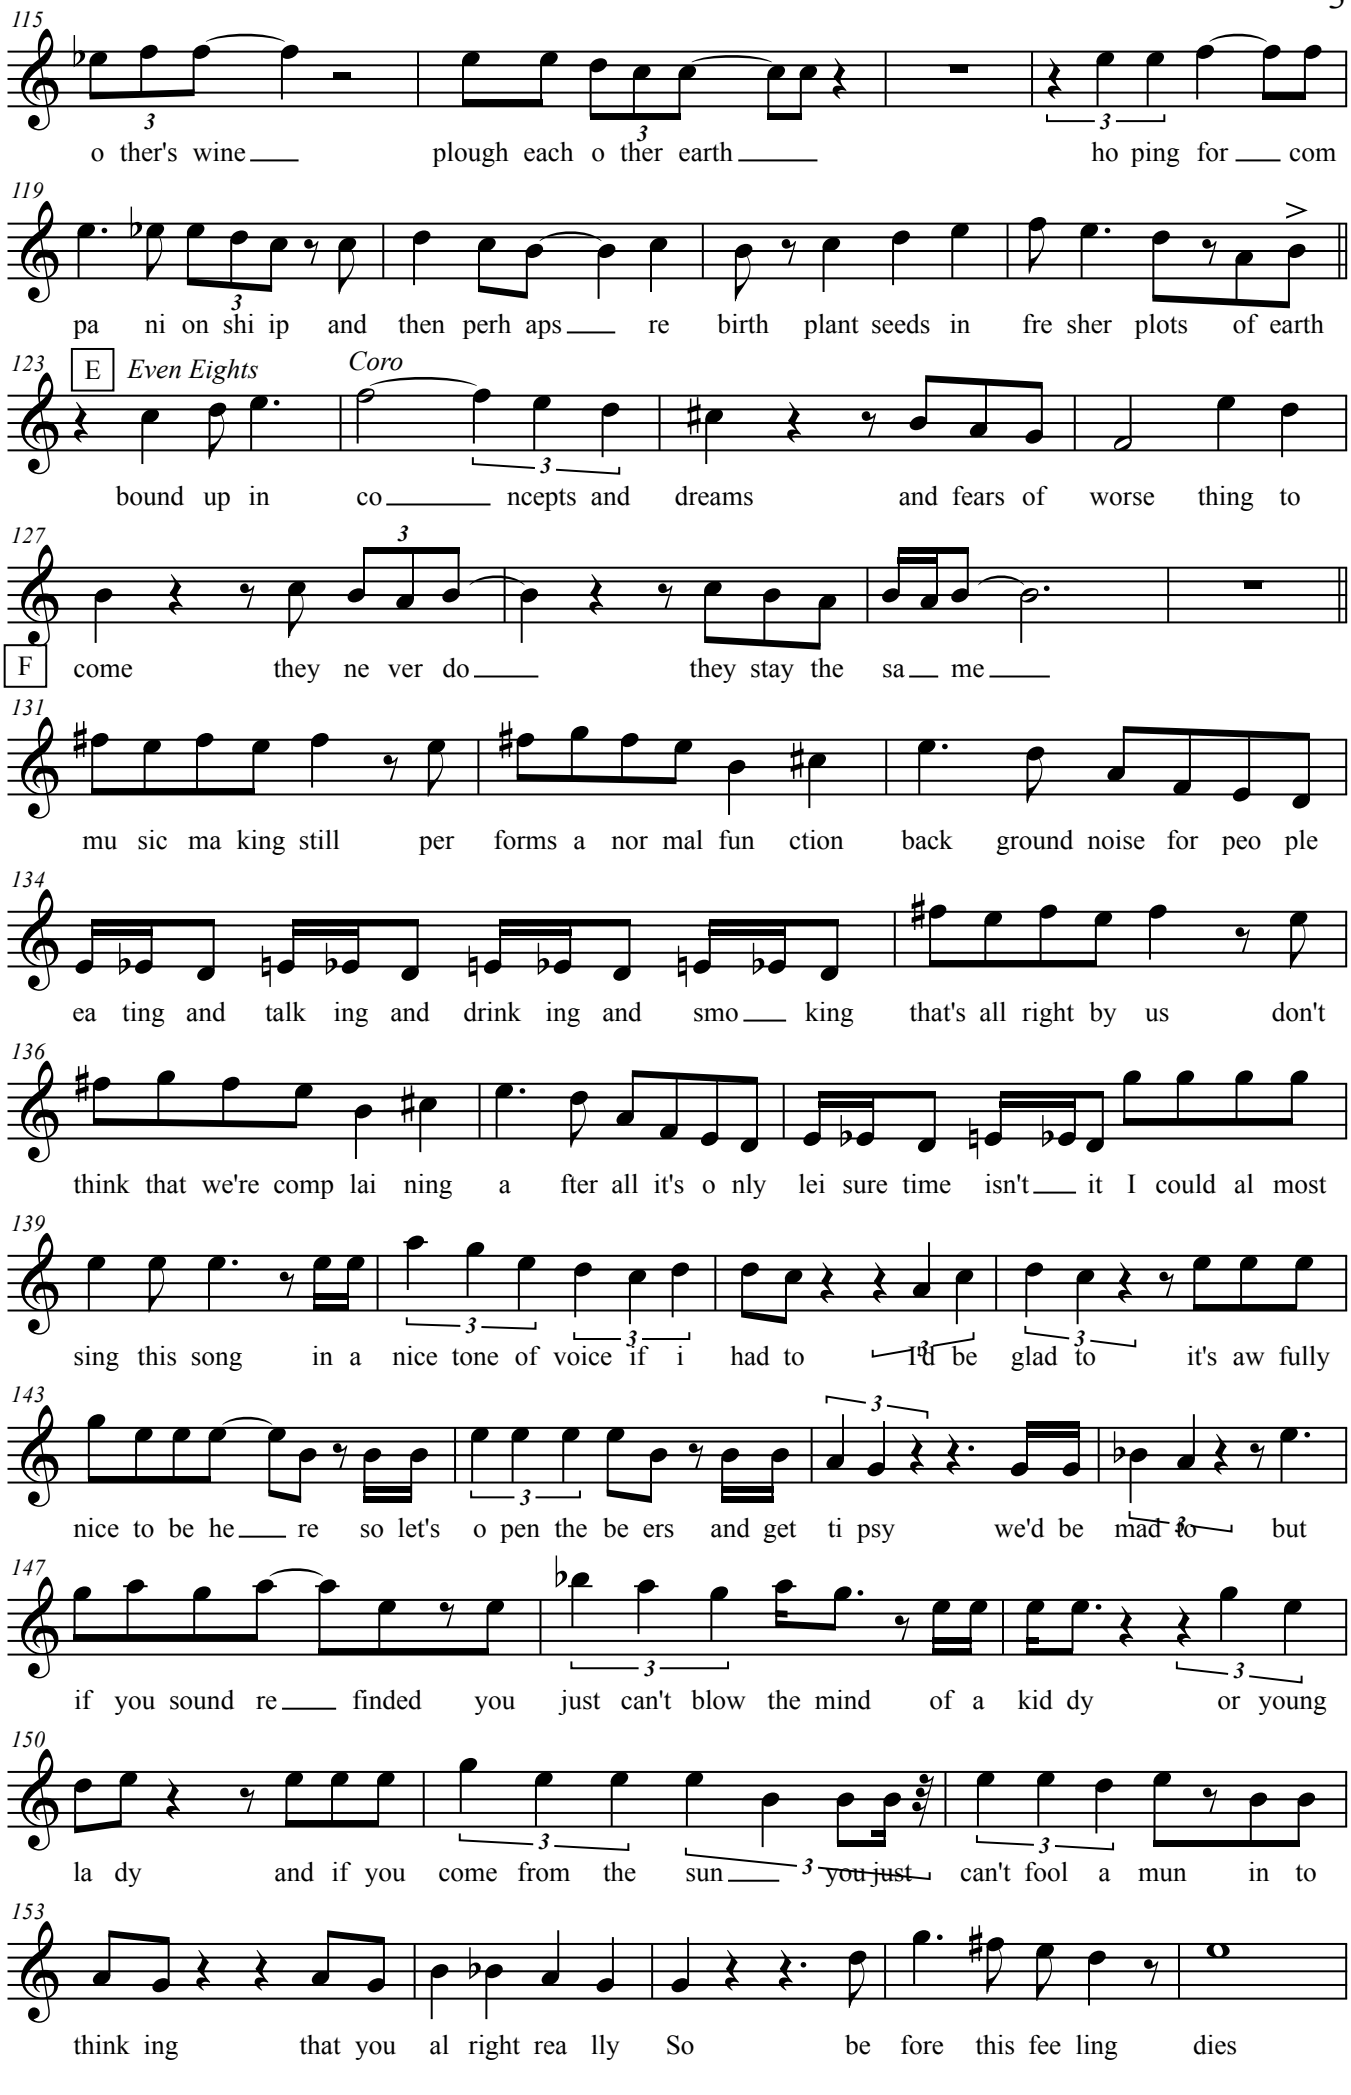
260
264
269

273
rit.
rit.

277

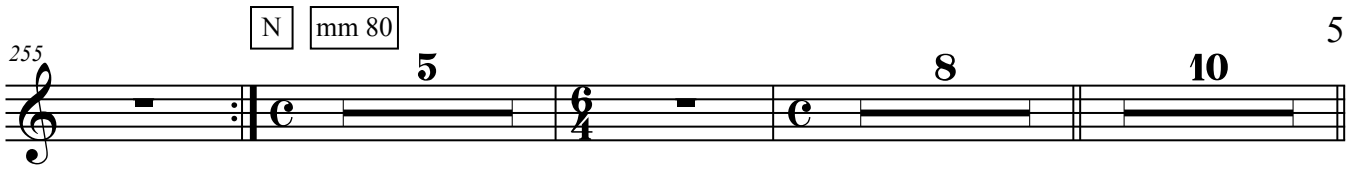
Moon in june

Voce 1



by Robert Wyatt

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'



MM104

43
Was less than three mi nutes long Mike squee zed 47 a so lo in some how and al though we like our lon ger tunes 51 it seemed po lite to cut the em do wn to li ttle bits they might be 55 hits who gives an a fter all tell me how would you feel in the 59 place of John Peel? you ju st can't please all of the mu si cians 63
C strumentale
all the time 70
17
D mm 90 Swing...
play ing now is love ly
92 here inthe B B C we're free to play almost as long and as and as loud as a 96
4 jazz group or an or che stra on Ra di o Three There are dance halls 103 and theatres with a coustic worse than he re not 106 forgetting the ex tra fa ci li ties su ch as the tea ma chine just a 109
4 long the co o o o ri dor Pop stars drink each 115 o ther's wine plough each o ther earth ho ping for com 119 pa ni on shi ip and then perh aps re birth plant seeds in fre sher plots of earth 123

E Even Eights
Coro
bound up in co ncepts and dreams and fears of worse thing to 127
F
come they ne ver do they stay the sa me 131 mu sic ma king still per forms a nor mal fun ction back ground noise for peo ple 134 ea ting and talk ing and drink ing and smo king that's all right by us don't 136 think that we're comp lai ning a fter all it's o nly lei sure time isn't it I could al most 139 sing this song in a nice tone of voice if i had to I'd be glad to it's aw fully 143 nice to be he re so let's o pen the be ers and get ti psy we'd be mad to but 147 if you sound re finded you just can't blow the mind of a kid dy or young 150 la dy and if you come from the sun you just can't fool a mun in to 153 think ing that you al right rea lly So be fore this fee ling dies

158 re me mber I could be telling lies
G strumentale
163
3
4
H
Coro
Now I lo ve your 173 ey es see how the ti me flies I 179 think it's so great you seem to cha nge your fate by work ing and 182 play ing some thing new in eve ry way can be yours in a-day but i 185 won der what i'm re ally say ing So just be fo re this fee ling di es 190 re mem ber I may be te lling lies False hood 195
White lies Ad verts I dle chat Ba nter Half truths 200
I
mm 200
6
Ru mors and just/lies plain/lies 211
6
6
L ballad... mm 80
226
6
2
I shan't say One more 237 world So in stead I play drums
M sez. solos
mm 200 8 7

N mm 80 255
5 8 10

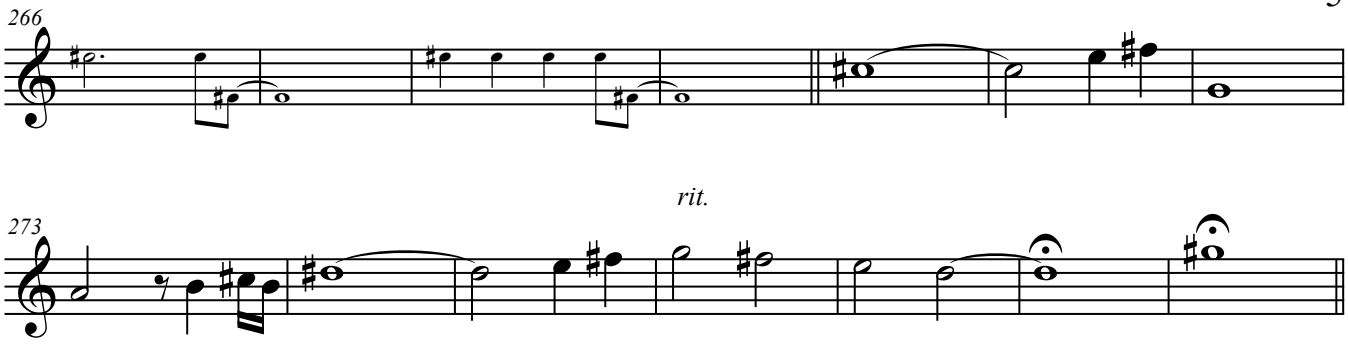
Moon in june

Tromba in Si♭ 1

MM104

by Robert Wyatt



Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

52 to cut the em do wn to li ttle bits they might be hits who gives an 56 a fter all tell me how would you feel in the place of John Peel? you ju st 61
C strumentale
can't please all of the mu si cians all the time 66 70
Tbone e Fl.
75
81
rit.
87
D mm 90 Swing... play ing now is love ly here inthe B B
93
C we're free to play almost as long and as and as loud as a jazz group or an 97 or che stra on Ra di o Three 101
106

110
114
Pop stars drink each o ther's wine plough each o ther earth ho ping for com 119
E
Even Eights
pa ni on shi ip and then perh aps re birth plant seeds in fre sher plots of earth 124
Coro
129
F
mu sic ma king still per forms a nor mal fun ction back ground noise for peo ple 134 ea ting and talk ing and drink ing and smo king that's all right by us don't think that we're comp lai ning 137 a fter all it's o nly lei sure time isn't it I could al most sing this song in a nice tone of voice if i 141 had to I'd be glad to it's aw fully
p 147 4
p 156
G
strumentale
163
H
Coro
168 4
p

177 4
p 187 4
White lies
Ad verts
197
I dle chat
Ba nter
Half truths
Ru mors
and just/lies plain/lies 203
I
mm 200
211
218 225
L ballad... mm 80
232
Drums fill...
I shan't say
One more world
238
M sez. solos
mm 200
So in stead I play drums
244
252
N
mm 80
5
262

266

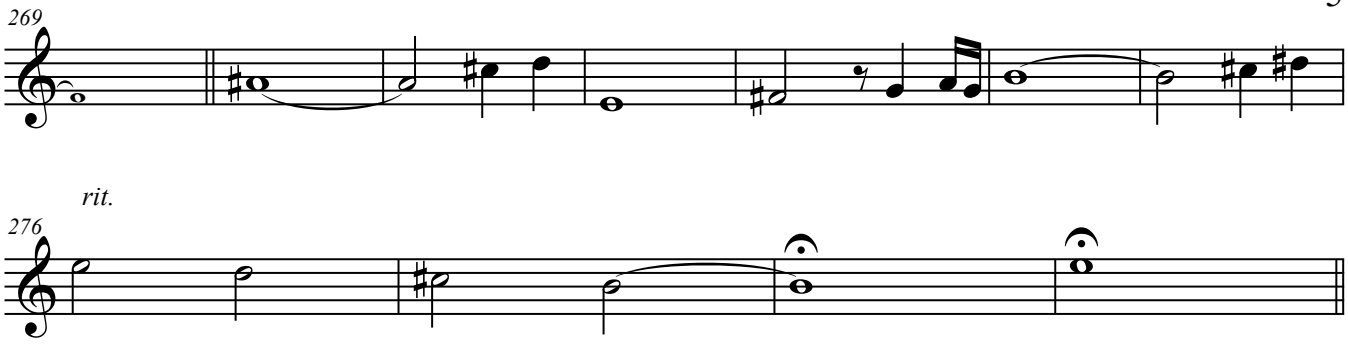
rit.
273

Moon in june

Tromba in Si♭ 2

by Robert Wyatt

MM104



Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

53 do wn to li ttle bits they might be hits who gives an a fter all tell me 57 how would you feel in the place of John Peel? you ju st can't please 62
C strumentale
all of the mu si cians all the time 66
71
Tbone e Fl.
77 83
rit.
D mm 90 Swing...
89 play ing now is love ly here inthe B B C we're 94 free to play almost as long and as and as loud as a jazz group or an or che stra on Ra di o Three 98
102
107

112
Pop stars drink each o ther's wine 116 plough each o ther earth ho ping for com pa ni on shi ip and then perh aps re 121
E
Even Eights
birth plant seeds in fre sher plots of earth
Coro
126
F 131 mu sic ma king still per forms a nor mal fun ction back ground noise for peo ple 134 ea ting and talk ing and drink ing and smo king that's all right by us don't think that we're comp lai ning 137 a fter all it's o nly lei sure time isn't it I could al most sing this song in a nice tone of voice if i 141 had to I'd be glad to it's aw fully
p 147 4
p 157
2
G
strumentale
165
H
Coro
4
175
4
p
p

185
4
195
White lies
Ad verts
I dle chat
Ba nter
Half truths
200
I
mm 200
Ru mors
and just/lies plain/lies 207
214
221
228
L ballad...
mm 80
Drums fill...
I shan't 235
M sez. solos
mm 200
say
One more world
So in stead I play drums
241
248
256
N
mm 80
5
264

269

rit.
276

Moon in june

Sax soprano

by Robert Wyatt

MM104

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

57
C
strumentale
64
Tbone e Fl.
69
74 80
rit.
D
mm 90
Swing...
86 play ing now is love ly
92 here inthe B B C we're free to play almost as long and as and as loud as a 96 jazz group or an or che stra on Ra di o Three 100
104
110
114
Pop stars drink each o ther's wine plough each o ther earth ho ping for com

119
E
Even Eights
Coro
pa ni on shi ip and then perh aps re birth plant seeds in fre sher plots of earth 124
F
129 mu sic ma king still per forms a nor mal fun ction back ground noise for peo ple 134 ea ting and talk ing and drink ing and smo king that's all right by us don't think that we're comp lai ning 137 a fter all it's o nly lei sure time isn't it I could al most sing this song in a nice tone of voice if i 141 had to I'd be glad to it's aw fully nice to be he re so let's o pen the be ers and get 145 ti psy we'd be mad to but 151 come from the sun you just can't fool a mun in to think ing that you al right rea lly 156
G
strumentale
163
H
Coro
170 see how the ti me 177 flies I in eve ry way

184 can be yours in a-day but i won der what i'm re ally say ing 190
White lies Ad verts
197
I dle chat Ba nter Half truths Ru mors and just/lies plain/lies 203
I
mm 200
211
218 225
L ballad... mm 80
232
Drums fill...
I shan't say One more world
238
M sez. solos
mm 200
So in stead I play drums
244
N
mm 80
252
5
262

266

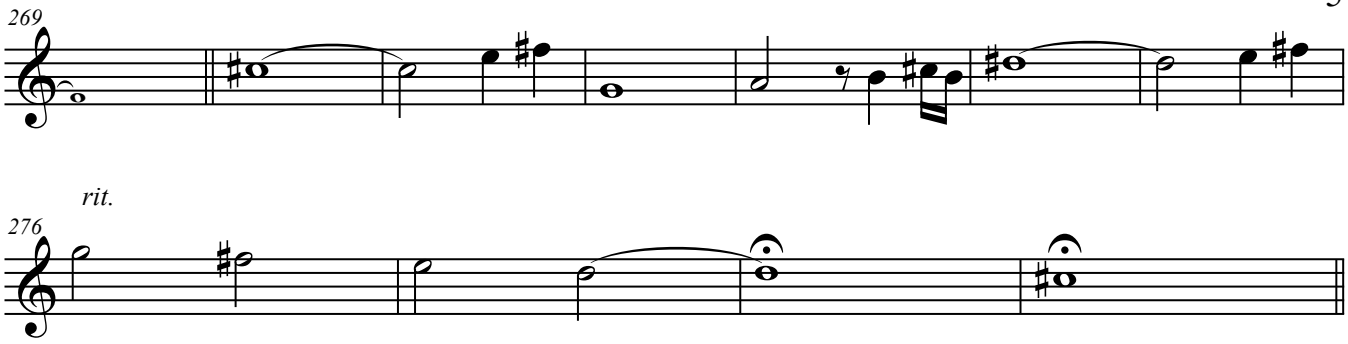
273
rit.

Moon in june

Sax tenore

by Robert Wyatt

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'



MM104

57
64
C
2 2 strumentale
72
Tbone e Fl.
78 84
rit.
D
90
mm 90
Swing... play ing now is love ly here inthe B B C we're free to play almost as long 95 and as and as loud as a jazz group or an or che stra on Ra di o Three 99
103 109
114
Pop stars drink each o ther's wine plough each o ther earth ho ping for com 119
E
Even Eights
Coro
pa ni on shi ip and then perh aps re birth plant seeds in fre sher plots of earth

124
129
F
mu sic ma king still per forms a nor mal fun ction back ground noise for peo ple 134 ea ting and talk ing and drink ing and smo king that's all right by us don't think that we're comp lai ning 137 a fter all it's o nly lei sure time isn't it I could al most sing this song in a nice tone of voice if i 141 had to I'd be glad to it's aw fully nice to be he re so let's o pen the be ers and get 145 ti psy we'd be mad to but 151 come from the sun you just can't fool a mun in to think ing that you al right rea lly 156
163
G
strumentale 168
H
Coro
175 see how the ti me flies I 182 in eve ry way can be yours in a-day but i won der what i'm re ally say ing

187
195
White lies
Ad verts
I dle chat
Ba nter
Half truths
200
I
mm 200
Ru mors
and just/lies plain/lies 207
214
221
228
L ballad...
mm 80
Drums fill...
I shan't 235
M sez. solos
mm 200
say
One more world
So in stead I play drums
241
248
256
N
mm 80
5
264

269

rit.
276

Moon in june

Sax baritono

MM104

by Robert Wyatt

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

57
64
C
strumentale
69
Tbone e Fl.
75
81
rit.
87
D
mm 90
Swing... play ing now is love ly here inthe B B
93
C we're free to play almost as long and as and as loud as a jazz group or an 97 or che stra on Ra di o Three 101
105
111
Pop stars drink each 115 o ther's wine plough each o ther earth ho ping for com pa ni on shi ip and

120

E Even Eights

then perh aps re birth plant seeds in fre sher plots of earth

Coro

125

129

F

mu sic ma king still per forms a nor mal fun ction back ground noise for peo ple

134 ea ting and talk ing and drink ing and smo king that's all right by us don't think that we're comp lai ning

137 a fter all it's o nly lei sure time isn't it I could al most sing this song in a nice tone of voice if i

141 had to I'd be glad to it's aw fully nice to be he re so let's o pen the be ers and get 145 ti psy we'd be mad to but 151 come from the sun you just can't fool a mun in to think ing that you al right rea lly

156

163 G strumentale

170 H Coro

see how the ti me

177 flies I in eve ry way

184 can be yours in a-day but i won der what i'm re ally say ing 190
White lies
Ad verts
197
I dle chat
Ba nter
Half truths
Ru mors
and just/lies plain/lies 203
I
mm 200
211
218
225
232
Drums fill...
L ballad...
mm 80
I shan't say
One more world
238
M sez. solos
mm 200
So in stead I play drums
244
252
N
mm 80
5 262

265
8vb

271
rit.

278

Moon in june

Sax alto

MM104

by Robert Wyatt

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

56 a fter all tell me
63
C
strumentale
67
72
Tbone e Fl.
78 84
rit.
90
D
mm 90
Swing... play ing now is love ly here inthe B B C we're free to play almost as long 95 and as and as loud as a jazz group or an or che stra on Ra di o Three 99
103 109
114
Pop stars drink each o ther's wine plough each o ther earth

118
E
ho ping for com pa ni on shi ip and then perh aps re birth plant seeds in fre sher plots of earth 123
Even Eights
Coro
128
F
mu sic ma king still per forms a nor mal fun ction 133 back ground noise for peo ple ea ting and talk ing and drink ing and smo king that's all right by us don't 136 think that we're comp lai ning a fter all it's o nly lei sure time isn't it I could al most sing this song in a 140 nice tone of voice if i had to I'd be glad to it's aw fully nice to be he re so let's 144 o pen the be ers and get ti psy we'd be mad to but 150 come from the sun you just can't fool a mun in to think ing that you al right rea lly 155
162
G
strumentale 168
H Coro
see 176 how the ti me flies I

183 in eve ry way can be yours in a-day but i won der what i'm re ally say ing
188
195
White lies
Ad verts
I dle chat
Ba nter
Half truths
200
I
mm 200
Ru mors
and just/lies plain/lies 207
214
221
228
L ballad...
mm 80
Drums fill...
I shan't 235
M sez. solos
mm 200
say
One more world
So in stead I play drums
241
248
N
mm 80
256
5

263 267
rit.
274

Moon in june

Clarinetto basso

MM104

by Robert Wyatt

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

66 70
Tbone e Fl.
76
85
rit.
D
mm 90
Swing...
91
96 100
X3
105
110
114
9
E
Even Eights
Coro
127
F 132

139
144 149
154
158
163
G
strumentale 168
H
Coro
173
178
183
188
192

196 200
204
3
I
mm 200
211
218 225
L ballad... mm 80
232
Drums fill...
A min
G
A min
G
A min
M sez. solos
mm 200
239
C
D
8
N mm 80
254
261 264 269

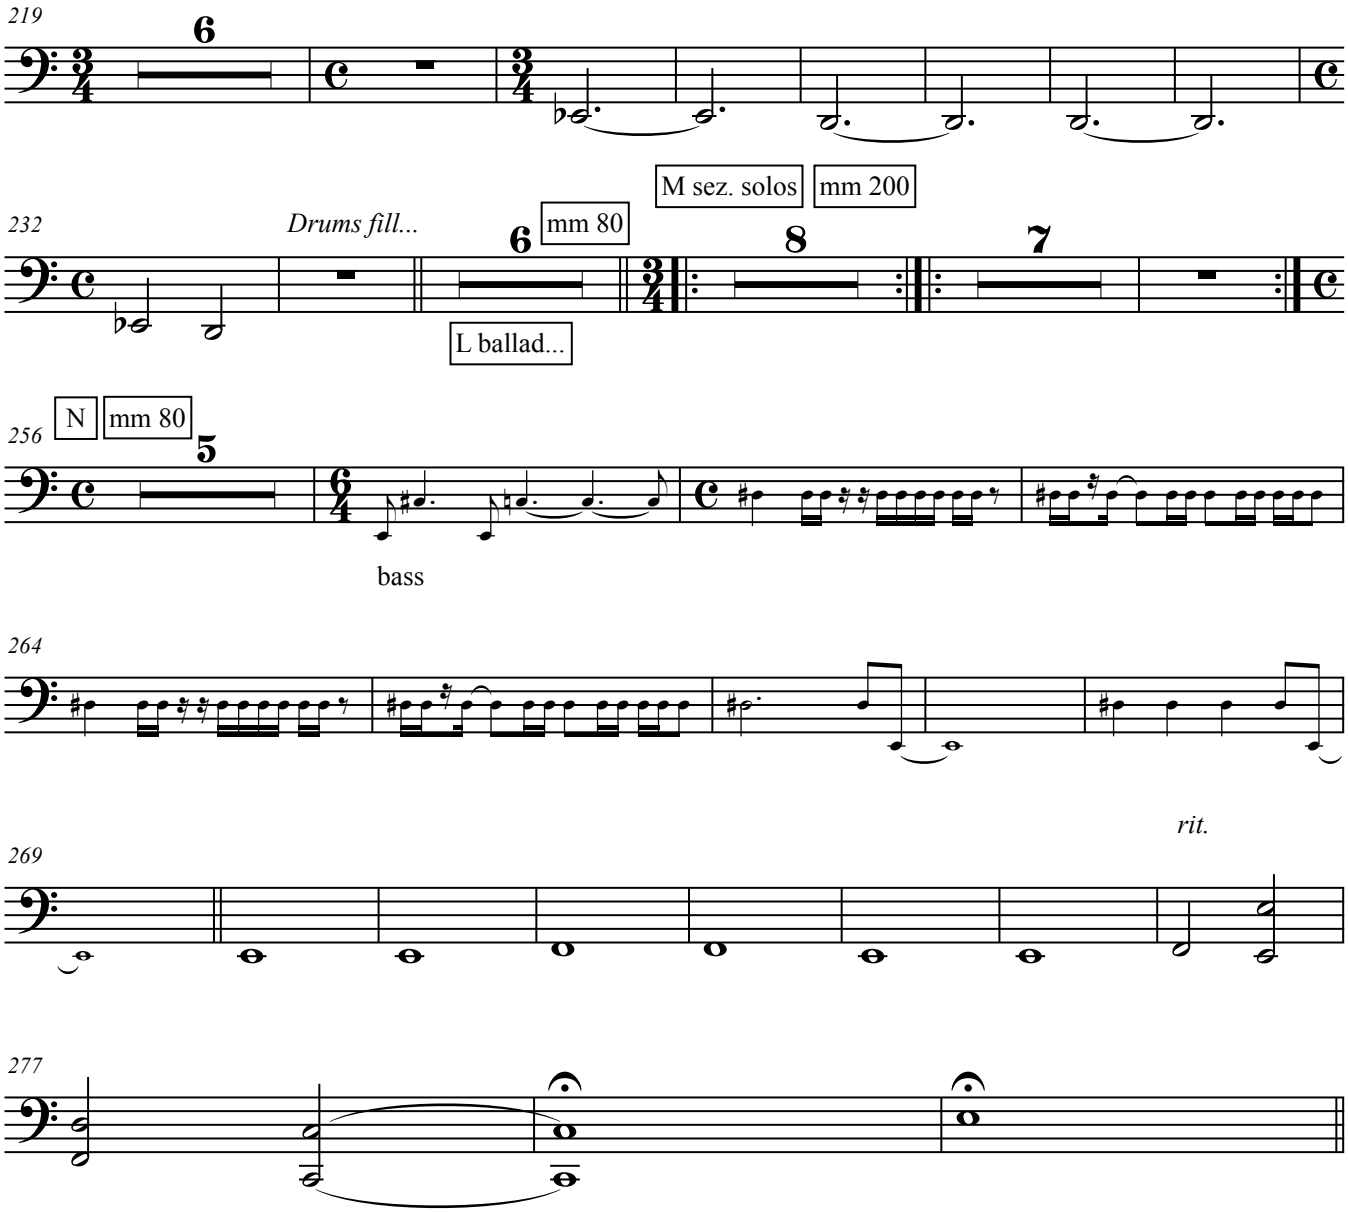
rit.
274

Moon in june

Trombone 1

by Robert Wyatt



MM104

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

58
C
strumentale
pp 65
Tbone e Fl.
73
79
rit.
85
D
mm 90
Swing... play ing now is 91 love ly here inthe B B C we're free to play almost as long and as and as loud as a 96 jazz group or an or che stra on Ra di o Three 102
X3
There are dance halls and theatres with a coustic worse than he re not forgetting the ex tra fa ci 107 li ties su ch as the tea ma chine just a long the co o o o ri dor 112
Pop stars drink each o ther's wine plough each o ther earth 117 ho ping for com pa ni on shi ip and then perh aps re birth plant seeds in 122
E
Coro
Even Eights
fre sher plots of earth

F
129
136
144
151
157
G
strumentale
163
3
3
169
H
Coro
176
183
189
195
I
mm 200
204
3 6
6

219
6
232
Drums fill...
6
mm 80
L ballad...
M sez. solos
mm 200 8 7
256
N
mm 80 5 bass 264 269
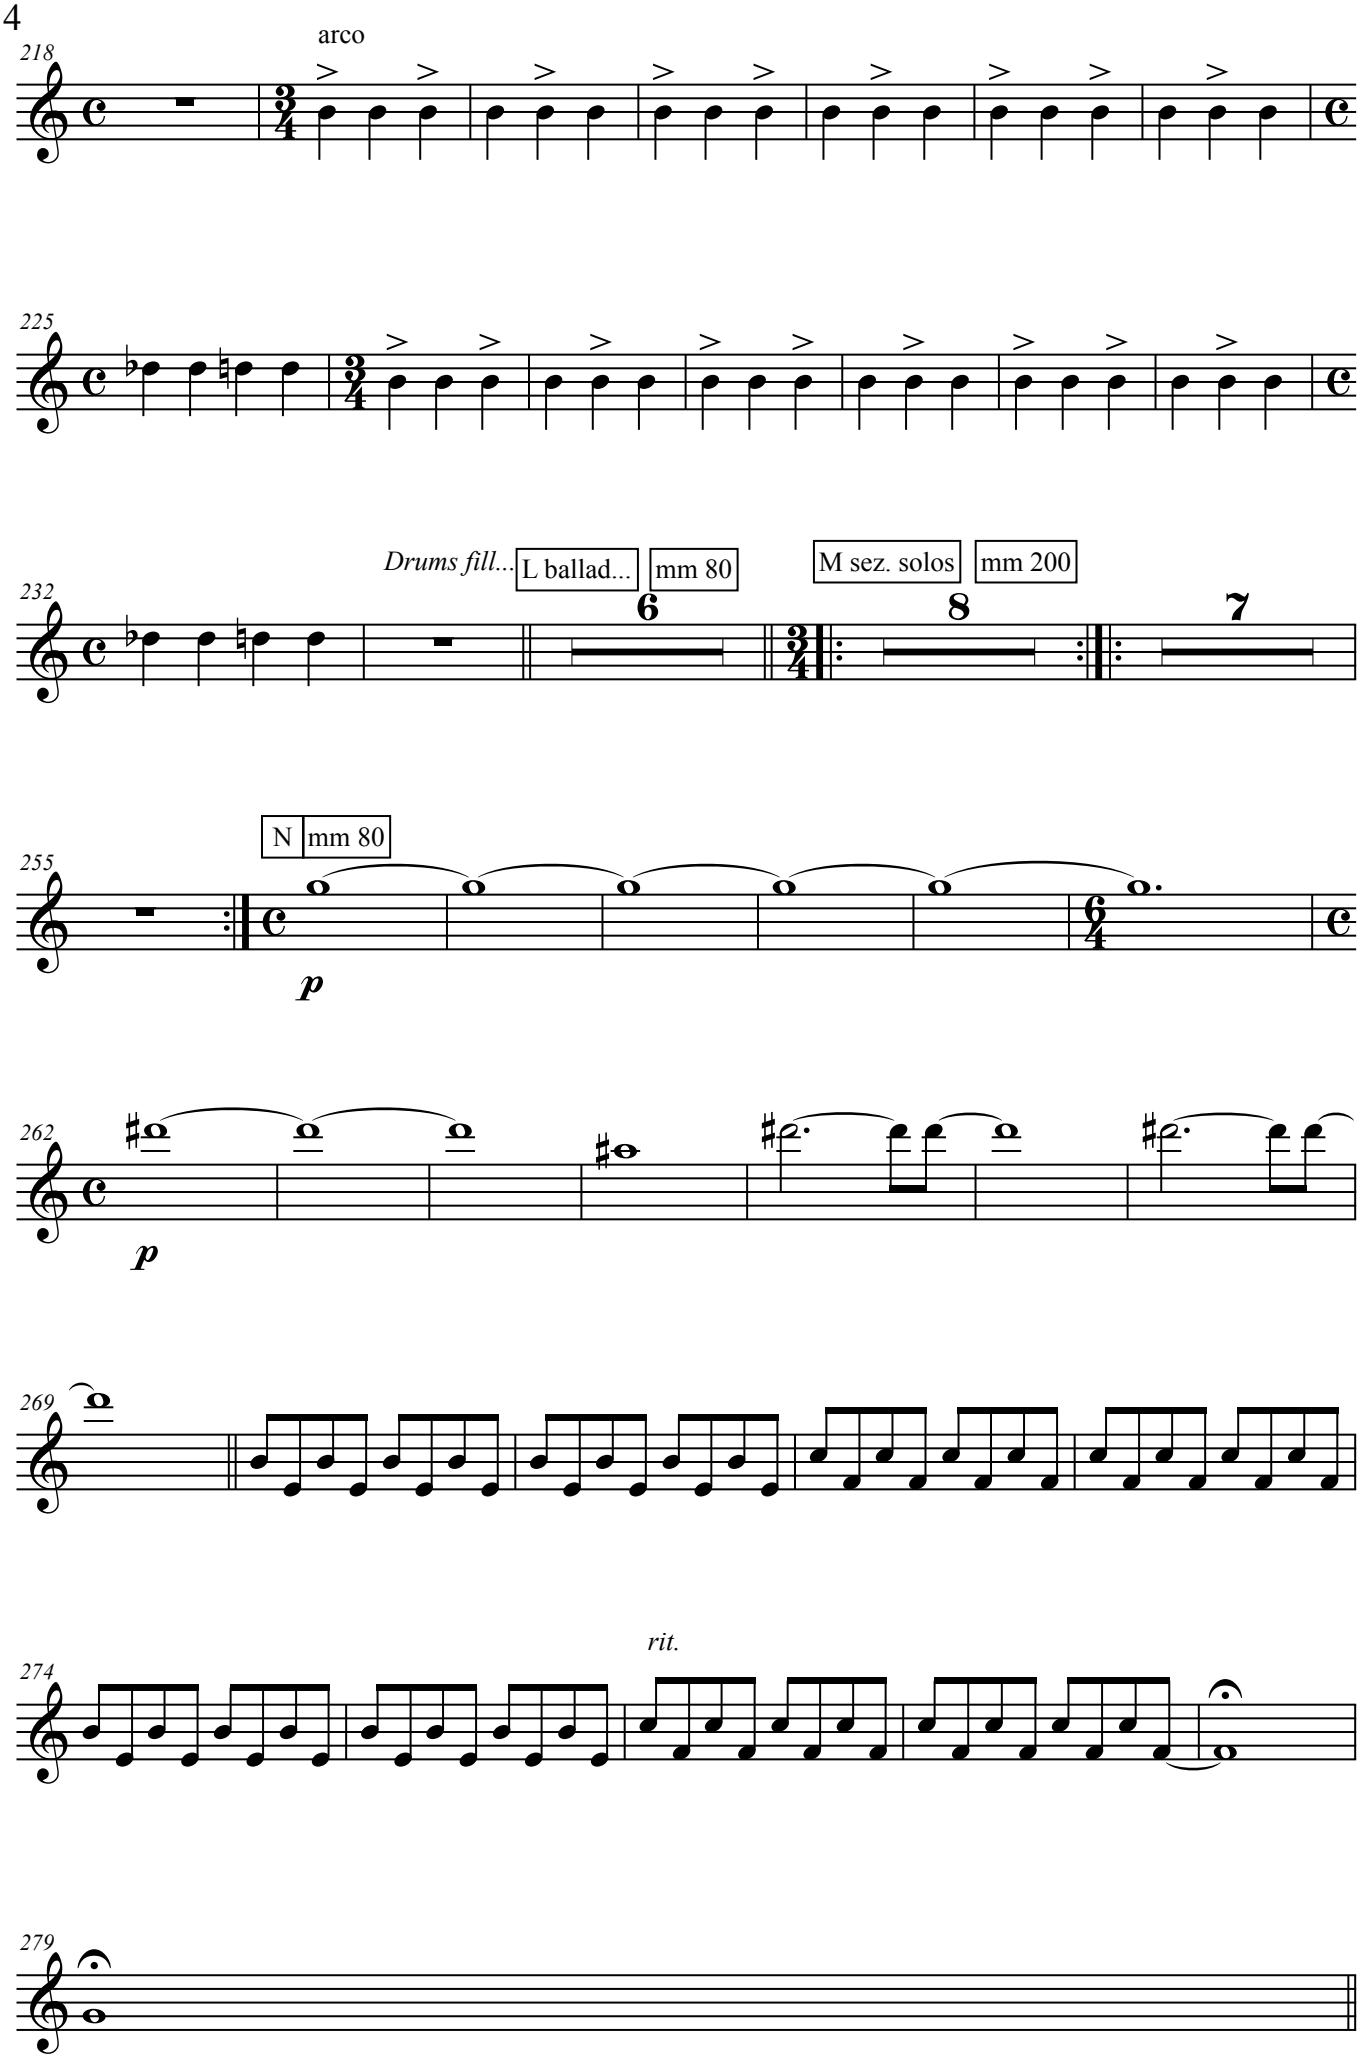
rit.
277

Moon in june

Violino

by Robert Wyatt



MM104

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

50 arco
54 how would you feel 58
3 in the place of John Peel?
strumentale
pp 63
C
68
Tbone e Fl.
75
83
rit.
90
D
mm 90
Swing...
95
X3
100
Fmaj7
F6
E7#9b13
Amin6
E7(b9)
106
Fmin7
Cmin7
B♭maj7
A♭maj7
G7(♯9)
112
pizz.

116
120
E
Even Eights Coro
arco
125
129
F
16
150
4 160
pizz.
G
strumentale
166
H
Coro
172
4
183
4 193
pizz.
198
I
mm 200 203
6 6 arco 218

225
Drums fill...
L ballad...
mm 80
M sez. solos
mm 200
232
6 8 7
N mm 80 255
p 262
p 269
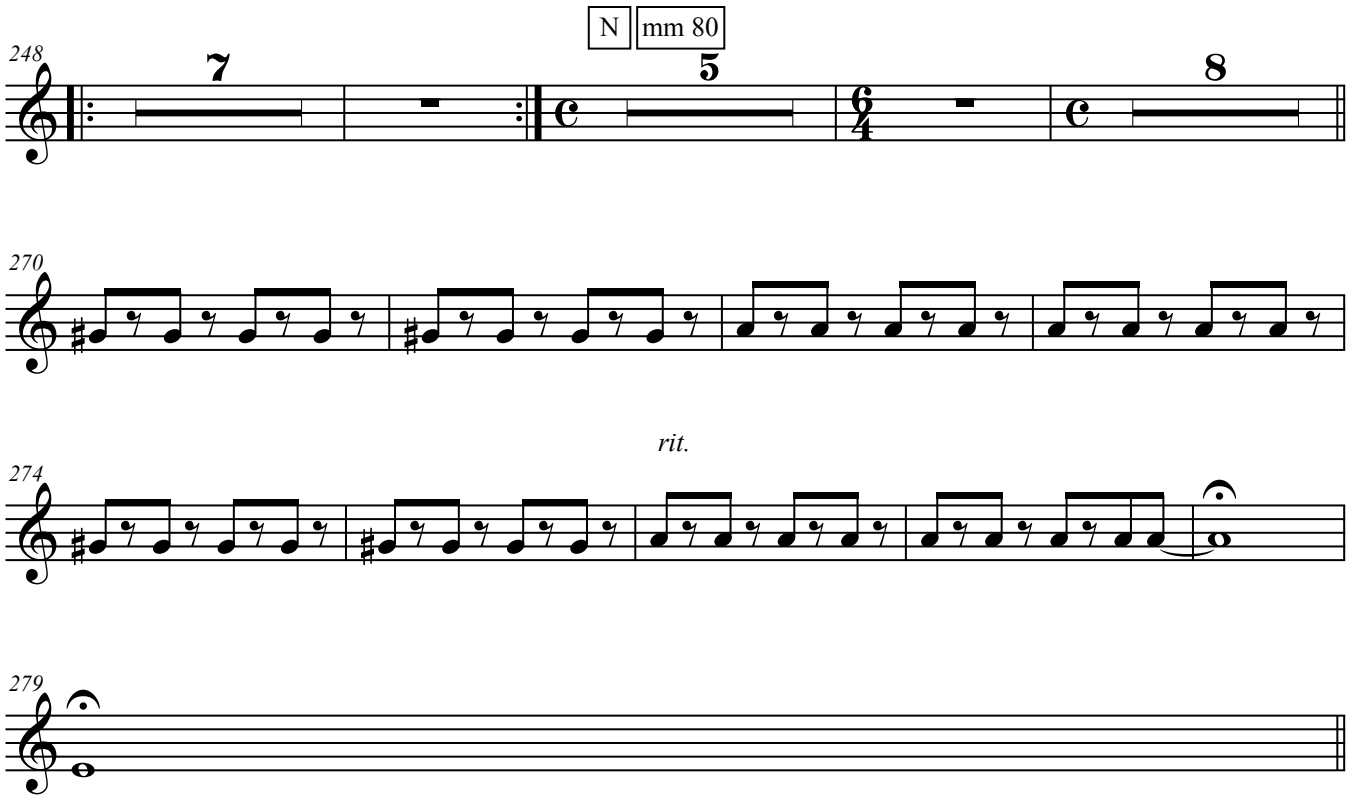
rit.
274
279

Moon in june

Viola
MM104



by Robert Wyatt

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

pizz.
47 arco
54
61
C
strumentale
pp 66
Tbone e Fl.
74
rit.
83
90
D
mm 90
Swing...
95
X3
100
Fmaj7
F6
E7#9b13
Amin6
E7(b9)
106
Fmin7
Cmin7
Bbmaj7
Abmaj7
G7(#9)
112
pizz.
117

122
E
Even Eights
8
F
16
Coro
151 4
pizz.
161
G
strumentale 167
H
Coro
174
4
4 187
pizz.
194
199
I
mm 200 203
3 6
6 218 arco
225
231
Drums fill...
L ballad...
6
mm 80
M sez. solos
8 mm 200

N
mm 80
248
7 5 8 270
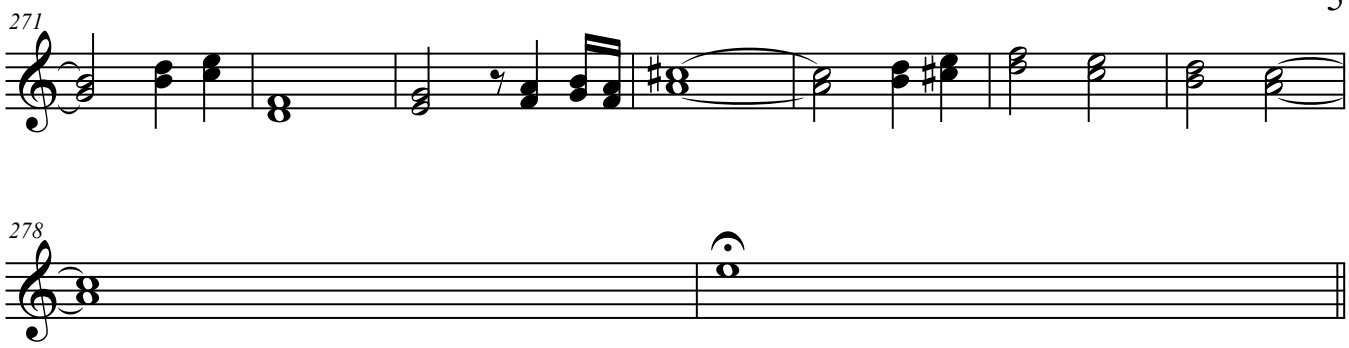
rit.
274
279

Moon in june

Chitarra elettrica

by Robert Wyatt

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'



MM104

57 how would you feel in the place of John Peel?
62
C
strumentale
66 70 wha wha
75 82
rit.
89
N
mm 90
Swing...
95 100
Fmaj7
F6
E7#9b13
Amin6
E7(b9)
106
Fmin7
Cmin7
Bbmaj7
Abmaj7
G7(#9)
112
117

122
E
Coro
Even Eights
Fmaj7
3
Amaj7
Fmaj7
127
Amaj7
3
E
E 131
F 135
140
146
153
159
G
strumentale
overdrive
3 165
3
170
H
Coro
177
184

190
196
203
3
I
mm 200 210
218
225
232
Drums fill...
L ballad... mm 80
A min
G
A min
G
A min
wah wah 239
C
D
M sez. solos
mm 200
Epedal
248
N mm 80
257
262 265

rit.
271

278

Moon in june

Basso acustico

MM104

by Robert Wyatt

Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

55 60
C
strumentale
66 70
76
85
rit.
N
mm 90
Swing...
91
8va
96 100
104
8va
109
113

117
E
Even Eights
Coro
123 128
F
134
141
146
151
156
G
strumentale
161
166
H
Coro
171
176

181
186
191
195
199
I
mm 200
204
3
211
218
225
Drums fill...
L ballad... mm 80
232
M sez. solos
mm 200
239
246

254
N mm 80
260
263
265
270
rit.
274

Corno in Fa

Moon in june

by Robert Wyatt Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

MM104

55

C strumentale pp

63

Tbone e Fl.

69

76

82 rit. D mm 90 Swing...

88 play ing now is love ly here inthe B B

93

C we're free to play almost as long and as and as loud as a jazz g X3 or an

97 or che stra on Ra di o Three There are dance halls

103 and theatres with a coustic worse than he re not forgetting the ex tra fa ci

107 li ties su ch as the tea ma chine just a long the co o o o ri dor

112

Pop stars drink each o ther's wine plough each o ther earth

117 ho ping for com pa ni on shi ip and then perh aps re birth plant seeds in

E
Even Eigh
Coro
122 fre sher plots of earth
F
129
135
143
150 156
G
strumentale
162
3
H
Coro
167
3 173
180
187
193

I
mm 200 200
3
212
6
228
Drums fill...
L ballad... mm 80
6
240
8 8 5 bass
262 266
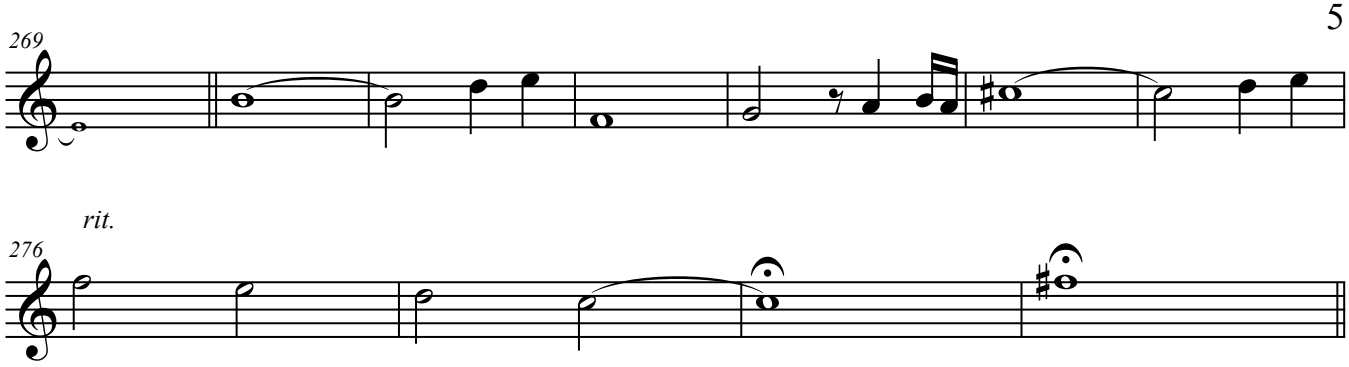
rit.
273

Moon in june

Flauto 1

MM104

by Robert Wyatt



Transcription by Giovanni Venosta
Arrangement by Ferdinando Farao'

59
pp place of John Peel?
65
C
strumentale
69 73
Tbone e Fl.
79
rit.
85
D
mm 90
Swing... play ing now is 91 love ly here inthe B B C we're free to play almost as long and as and as loud as a 96 jazz group or an or che stra on Ra di o Three 100
X3
105
111
Pop stars drink each 115 o ther's wine plough each o ther earth ho ping for com pa ni on shi ip and

120
E
Even Eights
Coro
then perh aps re birth plant seeds in fre sher plots of earth 125
130
F
mu sic ma king still per forms a nor mal fun ction back ground noise for peo ple 134 ea ting and talk ing and drink ing and smo king that's all right by us don't think that we're comp lai ning a fter all it's o nly 138 lei sure time isn't it I could al most sing this song in a nice tone of voice if i had to I'd be 142 glad to it's aw fully nice to be he re so let's o pen the be ers and get ti psy we'd be 146 mad to but come from the sun you just 152 can't fool a mun in to think ing that you al right rea lly 159
2
G
strumentale
166
171
H
Coro
see how the ti me flies I 179 in eve ry way can be yours in a-day but i 185 won der what i'm re ally say ing 192

199
I
mm 200
3
206
213
220
227
Drums fill...
L ballad... mm 80
235
I shan't
M sez. solos
mm 200
say One more world So in stead I play drums 241
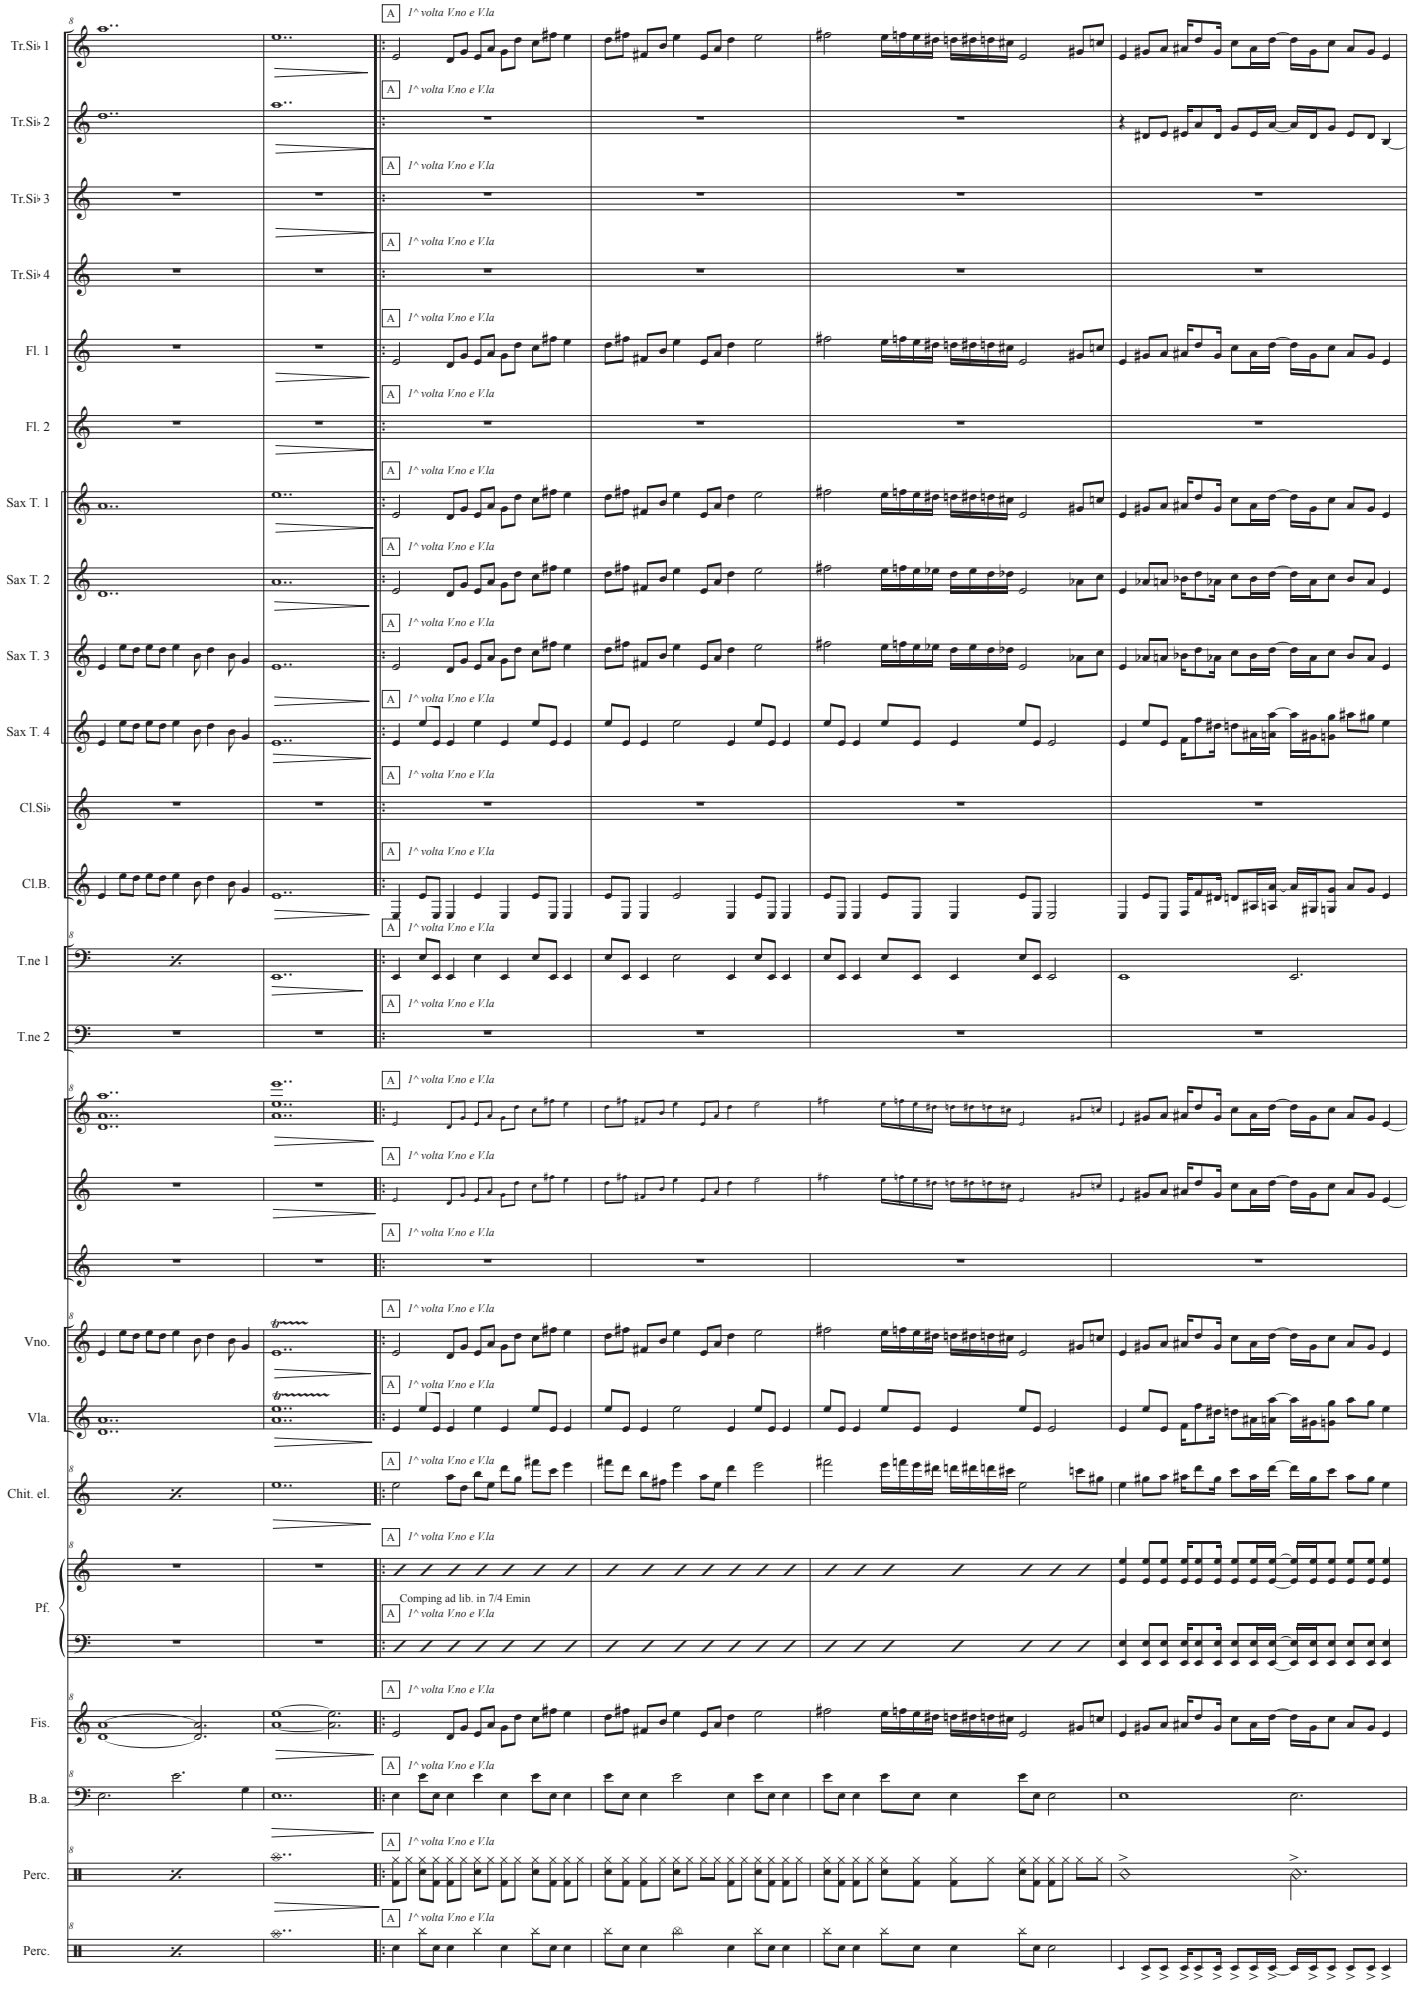
248
256
N
mm 80
5
264



269

rit.
276

FACELIFT

Music by Hugh Hopper
Arrangement by Ferdinando Faraò

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
A
1^ volta V.no e V.la
Comping ad lib. in 7/4 Emin

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
B
ASSOLI ad lib. E min

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
B1 4volte...
C Special "on c"X 4

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
pizz.
Vla.
pizz.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Comping ad lib. in 7/4 Emin
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.

29
Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Tr.Si♭ 3
Tr.Si♭ 4
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Sax T. 1
Sax T. 2
Sax T. 3
Sax T. 4
Cl.Si♭
Cl.B.
T.ne 1
T.ne 2
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
Fis.
B.a.
Perc.
Perc.
rit.

FACELIFT

Music by Hugh Hopper
Arrangement by Ferdinando Faraò

23
Pf.
25
Pf.
3
Comping ad lib.
in 7/4 Emin
3 30
Pf.
32
Pf.
rit.
34
Pf.
rit.
37
Pf.

FACELIFT

Vocals

Music by Hugh Hopper
Arrangement by Ferdinando Faraò

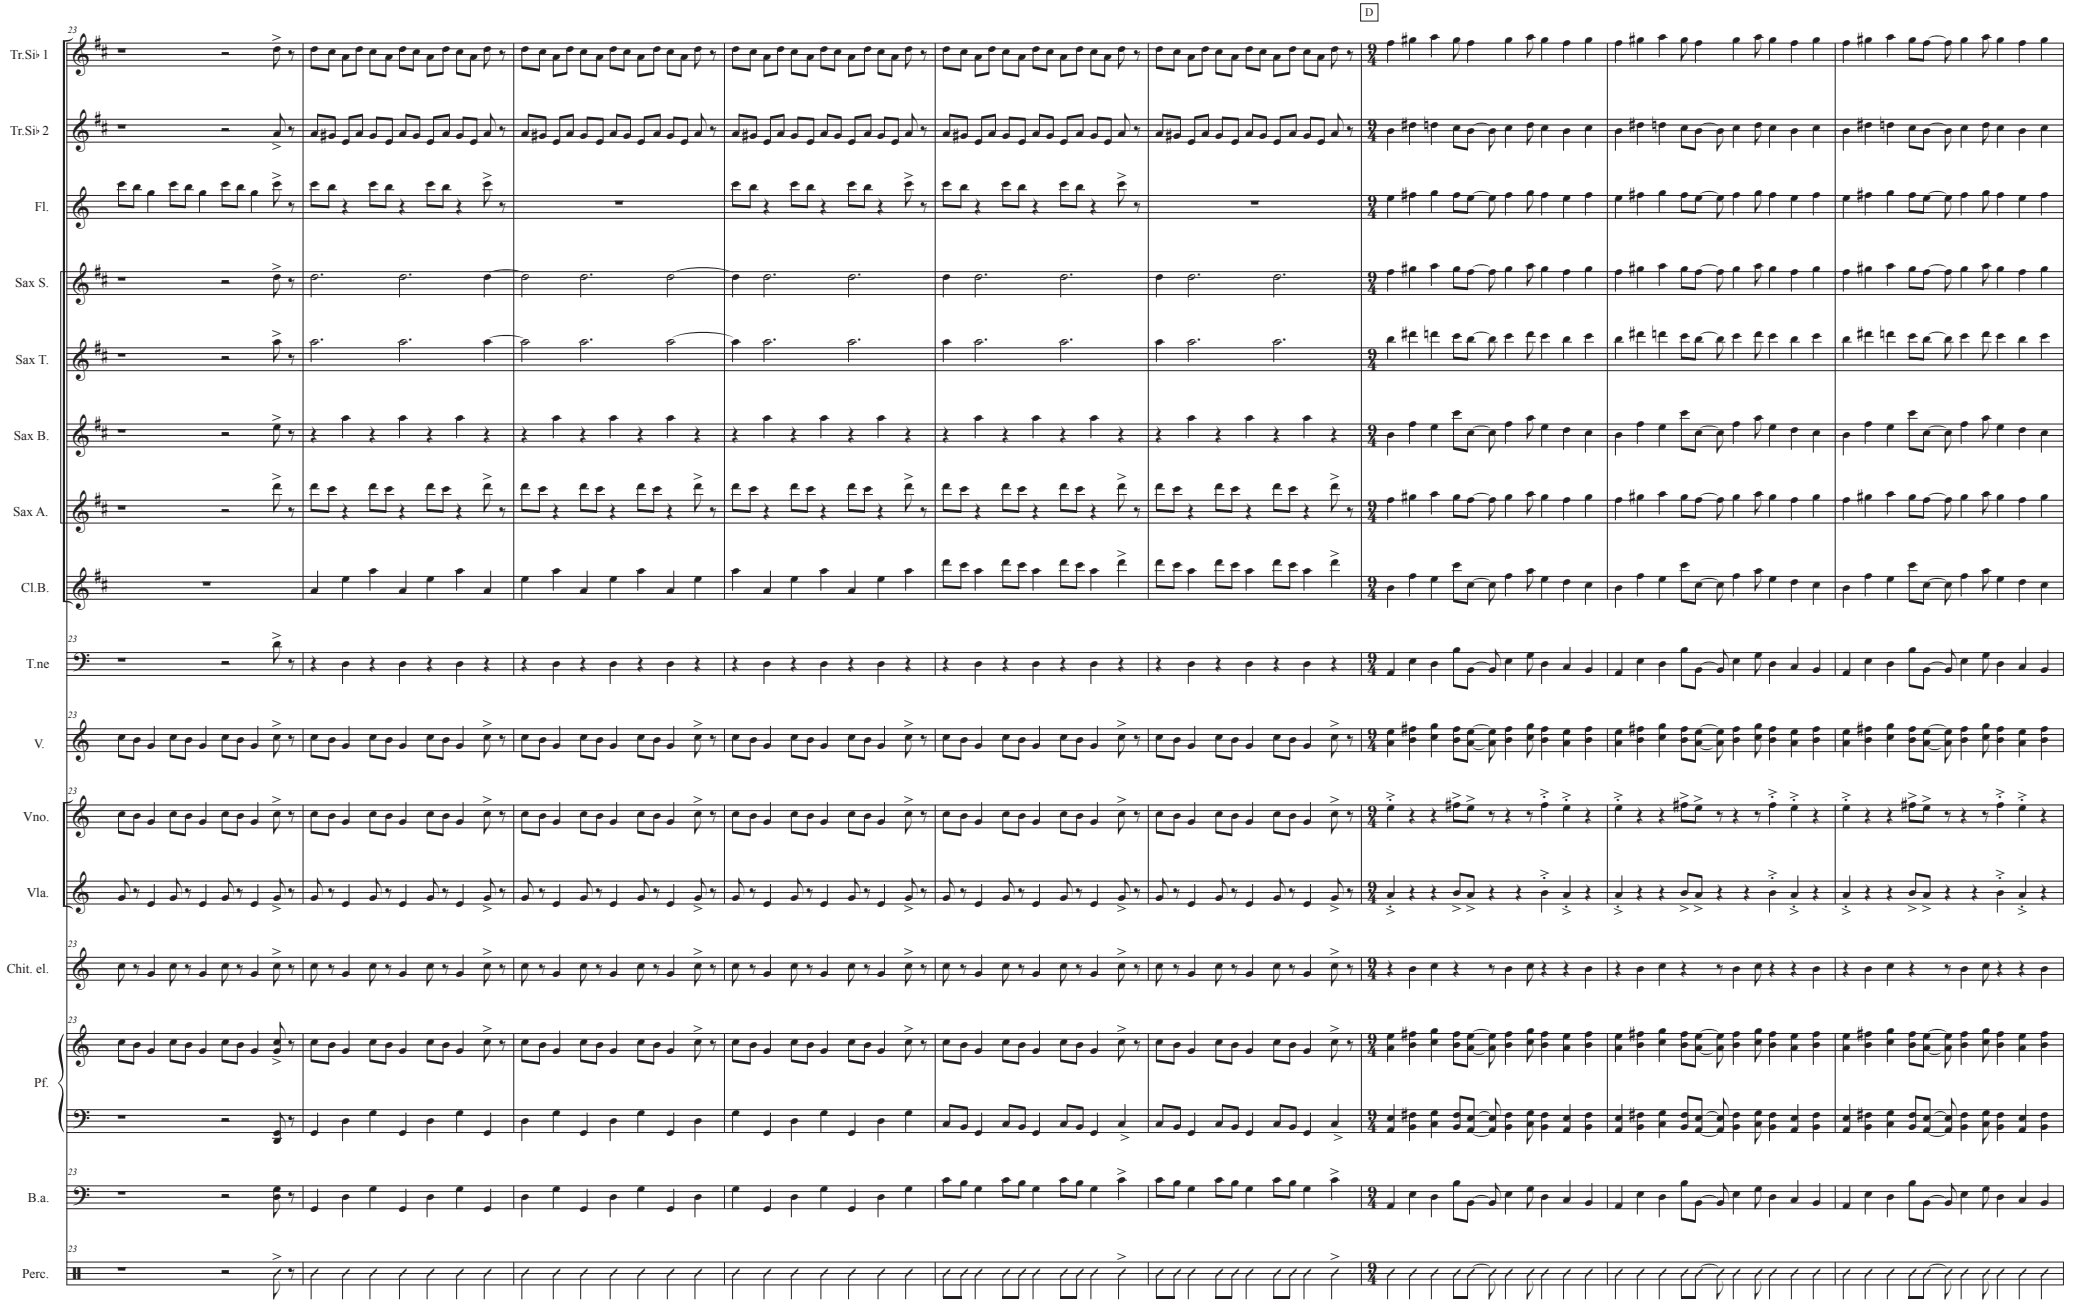
Small notes should not be played*

Full Score

MOUSETRAP

Music by Hugh Hopper

Arrangement by Ferdinando Faraò



A
MM 180
B
Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Fl.
Sax S.
Sax T.
Sax B.
Sax A.
Cl.B.
T.ne
V.
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
B.a.
Perc.

ASSOLI ad lib. C min

C

Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Fl.
Sax S.
Sax T.
Sax B.
Sax A.
Cl.B.
T.ne
V.
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
B.a.
Perc.

D
Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Fl.
Sax S.
Sax T.
Sax B.
Sax A.
Cl.B.
T.ne
V.
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
B.a.
Perc.

Clave x4
ASSOLI ad lib. E min
Clave x4
Stop!
E
Tr.Si♭ 1
Tr.Si♭ 2
Fl.
Sax S.
Sax T.
Sax B.
Sax A.
Cl.B.
T.ne
V.
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
B.a.
Perc.
f

Tr.Sib 1
Tr.Sib 2
Fl.
Sax S.
Sax T.
Sax B.
Sax A.
Cl.B.
T.ne
V.
Vno.
Vla.
Chit. el.
Pf.
B.a.
Perc.
f

GOD SONG

arr. FRANCESCO FORGES

Robert Wyatt

Phil Miller

INTRO

♩ = 56

Sassofono soprano

Sassofono contralto

Sassofono tenore

Sassofono baritono

Tromba in Si♭

Trombone

Clarinetto basso

Corno in Fa

Flauto

Violino

Viola

Mezzosoprano

Piano

Vibrafono

Chitarra elettrica

Basso elettrico

Batteria

VAMP 1

17

♩ = 94

Sax. s.

Sax. a.

Sax. t.

Sax. bar.

Tr. Si♭

2nd time only

Trb.

2nd time only

Cl. b.

Cor. Fa

2nd time only

Fl.

Vln.

2nd time only

Vla.

2nd time only

Mzs.

Pf.

Vib.

Chit. el.

B. el.

Batt.

26

A1

Sax. s.

Sax. a.

Sax. t.

Sax. bar.

Tr. Si♭ — first time only

Trb. — first time only

Cl. b.

Cor. Fa — first time only

Fl.

Vln. — first time only

Vla. — first time only

SOLO

Mzs.

What on Earth are you do-ing God? Is this some sort of joke you're play - ing? Is it cause we didn't

Pf.

Vib.

E♭ Bmaj13(11♯) Dmaj7(11♯)/F♯ E♭/D♭ D♭add9 D♭maj7(11♯) /C

Chit. el.

B. el.

Batt.

35

Sax. s.

Sax. a.

Sax. t.

Sax. bar.

Tr. Si♭

Trb.

Cl. b.

Cor. Fa

Fl.

Vln.

Vla.

Mzs.

pray? Well I can't see the point of the word wit - out the ac - tion Are you just hot air, brea - thing o - ver us and o - ver all? Is it fun

Pf.

Vib.

F-7 B♭-7 C7(♯9♭9) C♯-(add9) E♭maj7(11♯) D♭maj7(11♯) Bmaj7(11♯) C-7

Chit. el.

B. el.

Batt.

43

VAMP 2

A2

Sax. s.

Sax. a.

Sax. t.

Sax. bar.

Tr. Si♭

Trb.

Cl. b.

Cor. Fa

Fl.

Vln.

Vla.

Mzs.

SCAT SOLO (C phrygian)

watch-ing us all? Where's your son? We want him a - gain!

C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯)

And next time you send your boy down here

Pf.

C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯)

Vib.

D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) E♭ Bmaj13(11♯)

Chit. el.

C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯)

B. el.

Batt.

52

Sax. s.

Sax. a.

Sax. t.

Sax. bar.

Tr. Si♭

Trb.

Cl. b.

Cor. Fa

Fl.

Vln.

Vla.

Mzs.

Give him a wife and a se - xy dau - ghter

Some-one we can under-stand

Whose got some i - deas we can use real-ly re - late too

We've all read your rules, tried them,

Pf.

Vib.

Chit. el.

Dmaj7(11♯)/F♯

E♭/D♭

D♭add9

D♭maj7(11♯)

/C

F-7

F-7

B♭-7

C7(♯9♭9)

C♯-(add9)

E♭maj7(11♯)

B. el.

Batt.

61

A3

Sax. s.

Sax. a.

Sax. t.

Sax. bar.

Tr. Si♭

Trb.

Cl. b.

Cor. Fa

Fl.

Vln.

Vla.

Mzs.

learned them in school, then tried them They're im - pos-si - ble rules, and you've made us look fools Well done, God! But now plea - se Don't hunt me down, for Heaven's sake! You know that

Pf.

Vib.

D♭maj7(11♯) Bmaj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) E♭ Bmaj13(11♯) Dmaj7(11♯)/F♯

Chit. el.

B. el.

Batt.

70

Sax. s.

Sax. a.

Sax. t.

Sax. bar.

Tr. Si♭

Trb.

Cl. b.

Cor. Fa

Fl.

Vln.

Vla.

Mzs.

I'm on - ly jo - king, aren' - t I? Par - don me I'm very drunk! But I know what I'm try - ing to say, and it's near - ly night time And we're still a - lone, wai - ting for something unknown, still

Pf.

Vib.

Chit. el.

E♭/D♭ D♭add9 D♭maj7(11♯) /C F-7 B♭-7 C7(♯9♭9) C♯-(add9) E♭maj7(11♯) D♭maj7(11♯)

B. el.

Batt.

79

VAMP 3

Sax. s.

SOLO

C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯)

Sax. a.

Sax. t.

Sax. bar.

ON CUE

Tr. Si♭

ON CUE

Trb.

Cl. b.

ON CUE

Cor. Fa

Fl.

ON CUE

Vln.

ON CUE

Vla.

CHOIR
ON CUE

Mzs.

wai - ting So throw down a stone, or - something! Oh Give us a sign, for Christ's sake!

Pf.

C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯)

Vib.

C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯)

Bmaj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯) C-7 D♭maj7(11♯)

Chit. el.

B. el.

Batt.

88

VAMP 4

CODA

Sax. s.

Sax. a.

Sax. t.

Sax. bar.

Tr. Sib

Trb.

Cl. b.

Cor. Fa

Fl.

ON CUE

Vln.

ON CUE

Vla.

Mzs.

Pf.

Vib.

C-7 | D♭maj7(11♯) | C-7 | D♭maj7(11♯) | C-7 | D♭maj7(11♯) | C-7 | D♭maj7(11♯)

Chit. el.

B. el.

Batt.

96

Sax. s.

Sax. a.

Sax. t.

Sax. bar.

Tr. Si♭

Trb.

Cl. b.

Cor. Fa

Fl.

Vln.

Vla.

Mzs.

tr

Pf.

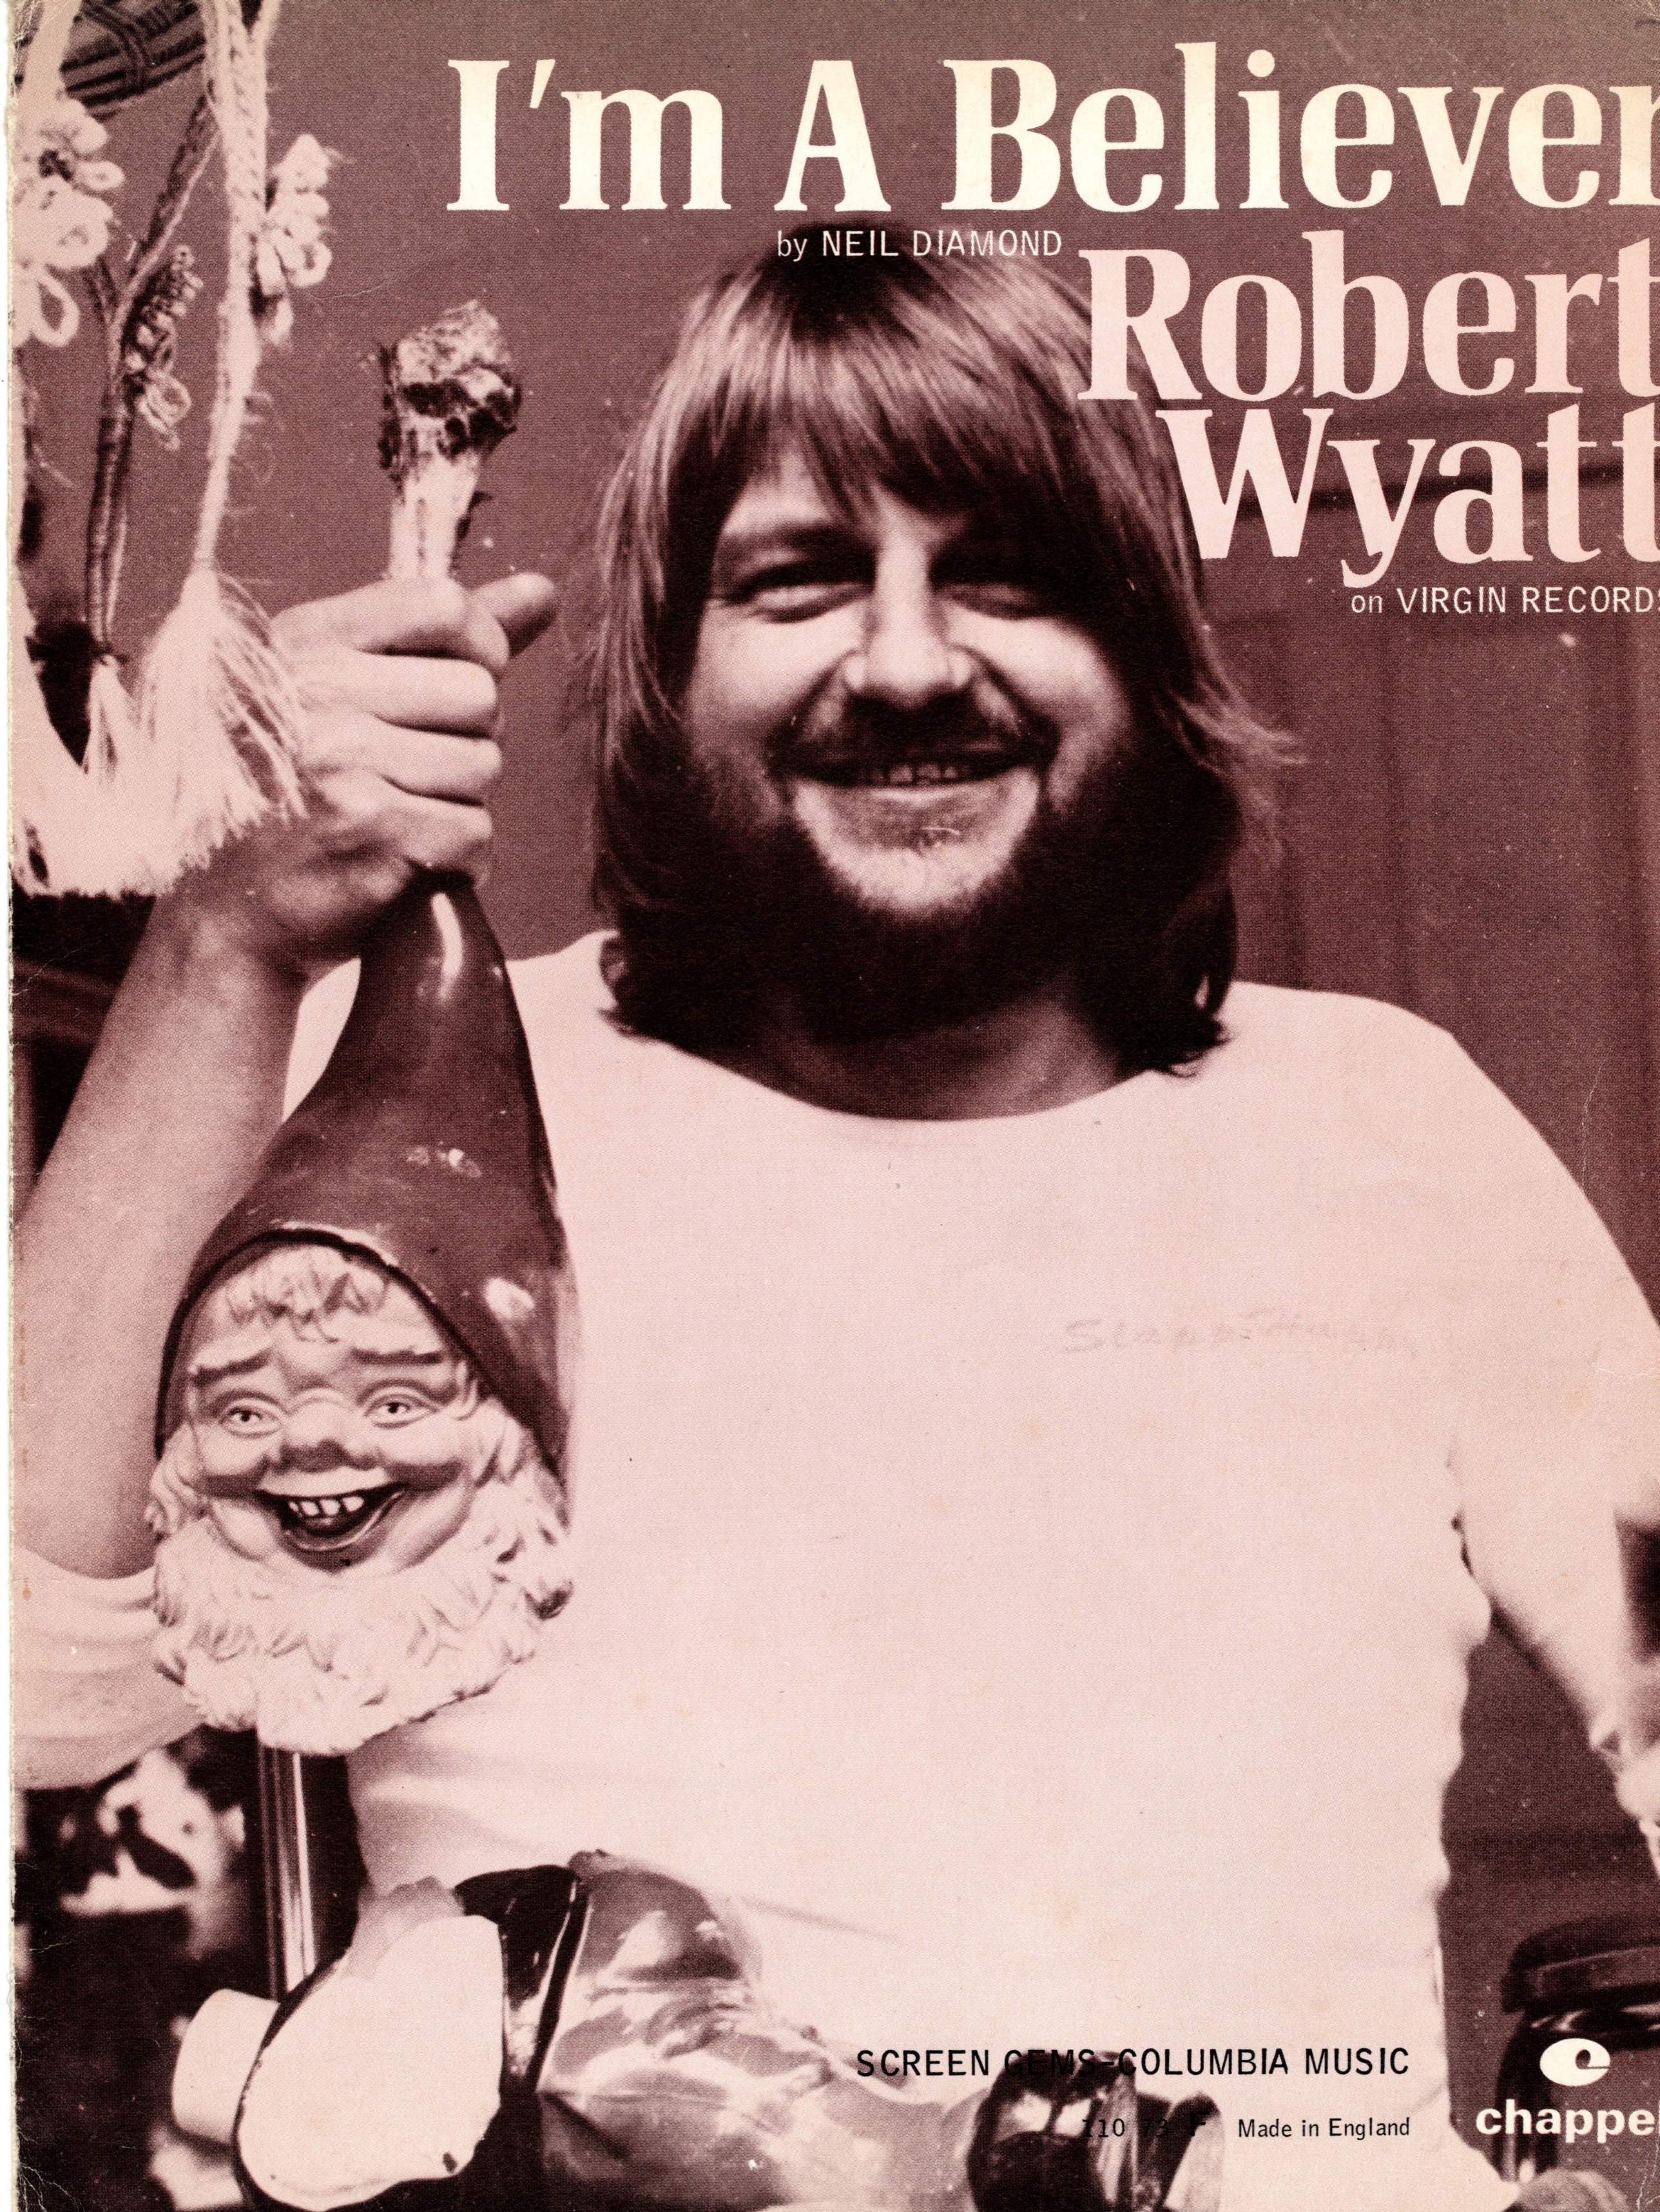
tr

Vib.

Chit. el.

E♭maj13(11♯)

B. el.



Batt.

I'm A Believer

by NEIL DIAMOND

Robert Wyatt

on VIRGIN RECORDS

SCREEN GEMS-COLUMBIA MUSIC

710 73 F Made in England

chappe

I'm A Believer

by NEIL DIAMOND

Moderately

1. I thought love was on-
2. I thought love was more
3. Instrumental - - - -

f

F F11 F7 F F11 F7 F F11

—— ly true- in fair— y tales.—
—— or less a giv— en thing.—

And for someone else—
Seems the more I gave—

F F11 F F11

—— but not— for me.
—— the less- I got.

Love was out to get—
What's the use of try—
Love was out to get—

F F11 F7 B♭ F

© Copyright 1966 by Screen Gems-Columbia Music, Inc. NY
This arrangement © copyright 1974 by Screen Gems-Columbia Music, Inc. NY
All rights for Gt. Britain & Eire controlled by Screen Gems-Columbia Music, London
Sole Selling Agent: Chappell & Co Ltd. 50 New Bond Street, London W1

me. That's the way it seemed.
ing? All you get is pain.
me. That's the way it seemed.

B♭ F B♭

Dis - ap - point - ment haunt — ed all my dreams.
When I need - ed sun — shine I got rain.
Dis - ap - point - ment haunt — ed all my dreams.

F Fmaj7 F E♭ E♭6

(3rd x)

Then I saw her face,

E♭maj7 E♭ F F11

(3rd x)

— now I'm — a be - liev — er! Not a trace—

F F11 F

of doubt in my mind. I'm in love,

F11 F F11 F

Ooh! I'm a be - liev - er! I could-n't leave her if I

B♭ F B♭/F

1,2 tried.

3 tried. Now I'm a be -

F11 F11 B♭/F

liev - er! Now I'm a be -

(Repeat and fade.)

F

Printed by Symphony Reproductions Ltd., 1 Langley Lane, London, S.W.8

God Song

LYRICS ROBERT WYATT ♩ = 66 MUSIC PHIL MILLER

LYRICS

What on Earth are you doing, God?
Is this some sort of joke you're playing?
Is it cause we didn't pray?
Well I can't see the point of the word without the action
Are you just hot air, breathing over us and over all?
Is it fun watching us all?
Where's your son? We want him again!

And next time you send your boy down here
Give him a wife and a sexy daughter
Someone we can understand
Who's got some ideas we can use, really relate to
We've all read your rules, tried them
Learnt them in school, then tried them
They're impossible rules, and you've made us look fools
Well done, God, but now please…

Don't hunt me down, for Heaven's sake!
You know that I'm only joking, aren't I?
Pardon me I'm very drunk!
But I know what I'm trying to say, and it's nearly night time
And we're still alone, waiting for something unknown, still waiting
So throw down a stone, or something!
Give us a sign, for Christ's sake!

CALYX

Calyx is an old tune of mine that supports many and various interpretations. With HATFIELD & THE NORTH it was wordless vocal ballad feature. ROBERT WYATT wrote words for it and it became a song proper. In the hands of ELTON DEAN,HUGH HOPPER & KIETH TIPPETT it became a vehicle for extended rubato soloing. Fred Baker & I use it as a ballad with the head metre as written but solos being played in 4 4.(i.e. each chord given 1 bar).

In the score there are 2 versions of the chords.They not intended to be played together. The stave marked 'new chords' is the version played by IN CAHOOTS when we toured JAPAN & it was played on keyboards. It is possible for guitar but some of the chords require some difficult stretches. The chords in this version in a few places (bar 4 beat 5, bar 5 beat 4, bar 8 beat 6) go beyond the harmonic scheme given for the solos. The stave 'marked old' chords are the changes which I wrote orginally for Hatfield & the North and are quite easy to play. These correspond to the solo changes.

The melody is also very easy to play & presents no technical difficulties.

As far as soloing here are some of most obvious scales for the solo changes:

Bb min 7	= Bb dorian	= Bb	C	Db	Eb	F	G	Ab	Bb
A 13	= E melodic minor	= A	B	C#	D#	E	F#	G	A or	= A myxoldyian	= A	B	C#	D	E	F#	G	A		*
or	= A symmetrical	= A	A#	C	C#	D#	E	F#	G	A	*
B7+11	= F# melodic minor	= B	C#	D#	F	F#	G#	A	B
	= B symmetrical	= B	C	D	D#	F	F#	G#	A	B	*
C# 6/9	= C# lydian	= C#	D#	F	G	G#	A#	C	C#
C min 7	= C dorian	= C	D	Eb	F	G	A	Bb	C		*
or	= C phrygian	= C	Db	Eb	F	G	Ab	Bb	C
C7+9	= un-named	= C	C#	D#	E	G	G#	A#	C or	= C# melodic minor	= C	C#	D#	E	F#	G#	A#	C
Bb dim	= Bb symmetrical	= Bb	C	Db	Eb	E	Gb	G	A	Bb	*
E dim	= un-named	= Bb	C	Db	Eb	E	G	Ab	Bb
F min 7	= F dorian	= F	G	Ab	Bb	C	D	Eb	F
G min 9b6	= G aoelian	= G	A	Bb	C	D	Eb	F	G

The scales un-named are so called because I cannot find names for them in any of my reference books.Neither Slominsky Thesaurus of scales & melodic patterns nor Vincent Persichetti Twentieth Century Harmony put a name to them.

The scales marked with * go beyond the compass of the harmonic scheme that is implied by the melody & harmony & are therefore more difficult to use in this context, particularly where one is attempting to base a solo around the melody.The situation in which they work has to be prepared & contrived.

All parts except the bass are up the octave as for guitar.

♩ = 54

calyx (phil miller)

Calyx

melody
7 8 9 tab
new chds tab old chds
B♭dim D♭dim Edim
Fm69
Gm9b6
tab
bass

MEMORIES

© HUGH HOPPER
WARNER CHAPPELL MUSIC

Half the Time

© HODDED / HEWINS / WYATT

1

Well, Hello and here we are again.
First things first, let's stop and talk awhile.
About the reasons that are going through.
The things we say, and the things we do.
It's not only me it's you.
There is no one else I'm running to.
I, will always follow you.
See my point of view?
I love you.

B

Half the time, it's pantomime.

Half the time, it's only make believe.

Blown paper ashes that you show.

Will tell me things, That I have to know.

2

When we're quiet after mating love.
I had thought that it was wrong.
But, how can anything this beautiful.
Still belong, to the realms of wrong.
Surely it's like singing songs.
I certainly am not the only one.
Not taken to this hide and seek
And jelousy.
It's not for me.

BRITISH MUSIC WRITERS COUNCIL
MARK HEWINS
MUSICIANS' UNION 3959

Gloria Gloom

As performed by Henry Cow on "Concerts"

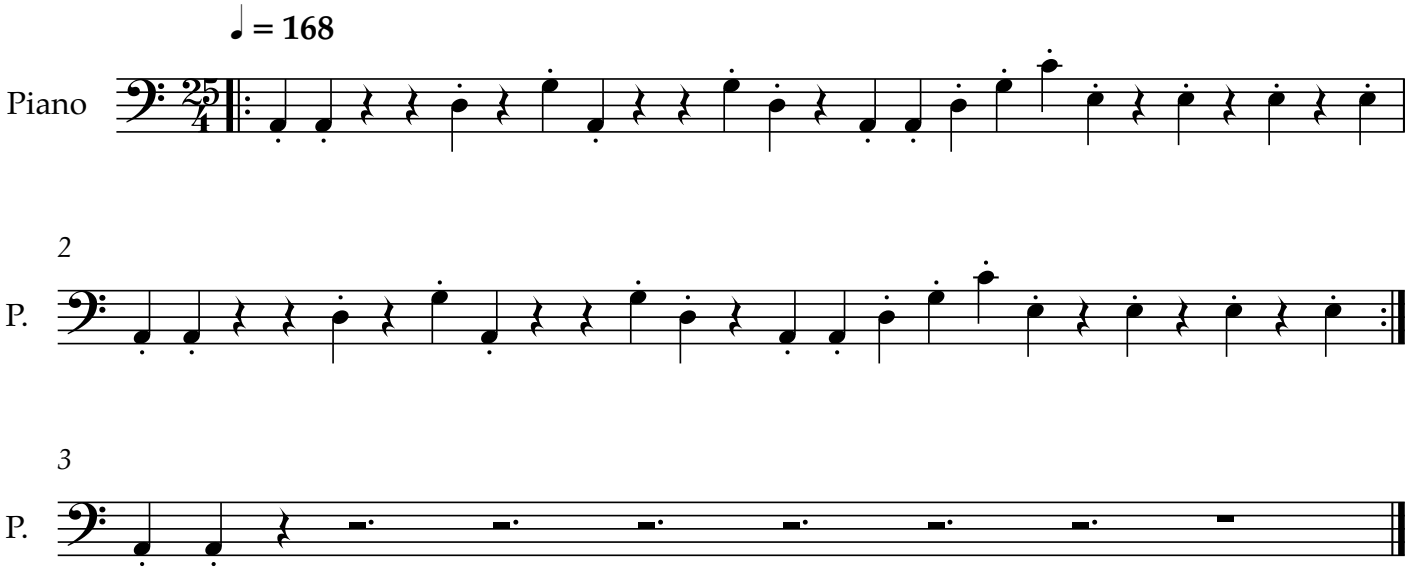
Music by Bill McCormick
Words by Robert Wyatt



PATAPHISICAL INTRODUCTION

Robert WYATT

BOX 25/4 LID

Hugh HOPPER / Mike RATLEDGE

SEA SONG

Robert WYATT

21
Bcl
Harm.
Elgtre
Cb.
24
Bcl
Harm.
Elgtre
Cb.
27
Bcl
Harm.
Cb.
29
Bcl
Harm.
Cb.
3
3

31
Bcl
Harm.
Elgtre
Cb.
35
Harm.
Cb.
41
Harm.
Cb.
47
Bcl
Harm.
Elgtre
Cb.

♩ = 66
Voc
bss
There is a kind of com-pro-mise you are_ mas ster of__ your end-less_gen-tle nud-ging left us__ po-la-rised 9
Voc
Keyb.
bss
It's hard to talk to e - ne-mies we are_ e - ne-mies What we_have in co-mun makes it_____ e-ven worst 17
Voc
Keyb.
bss
you're proud of be-ing mid-dle class mea-ning up-per_class you say you're self suf-fi-cient but you don't dig_____your own coal

25 Keyb.
bss
33
Voc
I think that what you're righ-ten of more than a-ny-thing is kno-wing you need wor-kers
more than they need you
Keyb.
bss
41
Voc
A herd of in-de-pen-dant minds Chom-sky got it right jog gling in-to bat-tle
wa-ving old school ties
Keyb.
bss
49
Keyb.
bss
57
Keyb.
bss

GLORIA GLOOM - PART II

R.Wyatt / B.Mac Cormick

The Song

Robert Wyatt
Arrgt: Vincent Artaud

A

flute 1
flute 2
sax alto sax tenor clbsL
piano clavier+perc
guit basse batterie

+delay court
Gmin9b13
Amin9b13

B

fl.1.
fl.2.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.L
pn.
kbd.
+perc.
gtr.
bs.
ds.

simil.
(bow=hold)

A2

fl.1.
fl.2.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.L
pn.
kbd. +perc.
gtr.
bs.
ds.

18

f

f

p

Gmin9b13

Amin9b13

Gmin9b13

ect....

Ped. ✻ Ped. ✻

mf mp

(charlet)

p

B2

26

f

simil.

f

simil.

mp

Amin9b13

Gmin9b13

Amin9b13

(synthe pad)

Clydien

"épaissir" l'orchestre.....

Clydien

(cymbale)

C

fl.1.
fl.2.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.L
pn.
kbd. +perc.
gtr.
bs.
ds.

34

simil.

ect....

f
pp
mp

B min7.11 | E min7.9 | F M7 | E min7b5 | A phryg | D | D/F♯

G M6 | D/F♯

(bow=hold)

43

simil.

E min7.11 | E♭M7#5 | D♭dim | C7.9 | G M6 | D/F♯ | E min7.11 | D♭dim

"épaissir" l'orchestre.....

D

51

fl.1.

f

fl.2.

f

alt.sx.

mp

simil.

tn.sx.

mp

simil.

bs.cl.L

pn.

C7.9

kbd. +perc.

C7.9 | F M9 | G 9 | A min9

gtr.

F M9 | G 9 | A min9

bs.

ds.

soutenir plus.....

mf

56

fl.1.

6 p ff

fl.2.

p ff

alt.sx.

ff

tn.sx.

ff

bs.cl.L

6 6 6

p ff

pn.

kbd. +perc.

F M9 | G 9 | A min9

gtr.

F M9 | G 9 | A min9

bs.

F M9 | G 9 | A min9

ect....

ds.

fl.1.
fl.2.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.L
pn.
kbd. +perc.
gtr.
bs.
ds.

60

f mp mp f

6

F M9 G 9 Amin9

CHORUS

65 pp pp

A min improviser..... Gmin9b13 Amin9b13 Gmin9b13 Amin9b13

mp pp mp pp

p Ped. Ped.

The Song

A3

fl.1.
fl.2.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.L
pn.
kbd. +perc.
gtr.
bs.
ds.

75

p

Gmin9b13 Amin9b13 Gmin9b13 Amin9b13 Gmin9b13

ect....

toujours en croches régulières.....

+delay court

(bow=hold)

(charlet)

B3

84

Amin9b13 Gmin9b13 Amin9b13

f

Clydien Bmin7.11

arpèges lents.....

(cymbale)

The Song

A4

fl.1.
fl.2.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.L
pn.
kbd. +perc.
gtr.
bs.
ds.

93

f f f f pp pp

Gmin9b13 Amin9b13

Ped. * Ped. *

Emin7.9 FM7 Emin7b5 Aphryg D D/F♯

(charlet)

103

f f f f

Gmin9b13 Amin9b13 Gmin9b13 Amin9b13

ect....

B4

C2

fl.1.

fl.2.

alt.sx.

tn.sx.

bs.cl.L

pn.

kbd.
+perc.

gtr.

bs.

ds.

mp

f

simil.

G M6 D/F♯ Emin7.11

Clydien Bmin7.11 Emin7.9 FM7 Emin7b5 Aphryg D D/F♯

arpèges lents.....

(cymbale)

soutenir plus.....

E♭M7#5 D♭dim C7.9 G M6 D/F♯ Emin7.11 D♭dim C7.9

D2

131 fl.1. mf

fl.2.

alt.sx. mf

tn.sx. mf

bs.cl.L mf

pn.

kbd. +perc.

gtr.

bs.

ds.

140 fl.1. ff

fl.2. ff

alt.sx. ff

tn.sx. ff

bs.cl.L ff

pn. FM7.9 f

kbd. +perc. (perc)

gtr. FM7.9

bs. f

ds. f

148 fl.1. simil.

fl.2. simil.

alt.sx. simil.

tn.sx. simil.

bs.cl.L simil.

pn. G9.6 Amin7.11 FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11 FM7.9

kbd. +perc. G9.6 Amin7.11 FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11 FM7.9

gtr. G9.6 Amin7.11 FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11 FM7.9

bs.

ds.

156

fl.1. ff simil. ff ff

fl.2. ff simil. ff ff

alt.sx. ff simil. ff simil.

tn.sx. ff simil. ff simil.

bs.cl.L ff simil. ff ff

pn. G6.9 Amin7.11 FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11

kbd. +perc. G6.9 Amin7.11 FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11

gtr. G6.9 Amin7.11 FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11

bs.

ds.

fl.1.
fl.2.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.L
pn.
kbd. +perc.
gtr.
bs.
ds.

162

ff

simil.

FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11 FM7.9

168

G6.9 Amin7.11 FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11

174

fl.1.

fl.2.

alt.sx.

tn.sx.

bs.cl.L

pn.

kbd. +perc.

gtr.

bs.

ds.

ff simil.

FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11 FM7.9 G6.9

181

Amin7.11 FM7.9 G9.6

185

fl.1.

fl.2.

alt.sx.

simil.

ff

tn.sx.

simil.

ff

bs.cl.L

Amin7.11

FM7.9

G9.6

pn.

kbd.
+perc.

gtr.

bs.

ds.

189

fl.1.

fl.2.

alt.sx.

simil.

ff

tn.sx.

simil.

ff

bs.cl.L

Amin7.11

FM7.9

G6.9

pn.

kbd.
+perc.

gtr.

bs.

ds.

193

fl.1.

ff

fl.2.

ff

alt.sx.

simil.

ff

simil.

tn.sx.

simil.

ff

simil.

bs.cl.L

ff

simil.

pn.

Amin7.11 FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11

kbd. +perc.

Amin7.11 FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11

gtr.

Amin7.11 FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11

bs.

ds.

198

fl.1.

ff

fl.2.

ff

alt.sx.

tn.sx.

bs.cl.L

pn.

FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11

kbd. +perc.

gtr.

FM7.9 G9.6 Amin7.11

bs.

ds.

fl.1.
fl.2.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.L
pn.
kbd. +perc.
gtr.
bs.
ds.

203

FM7.9 G6.9 Amin7.11 FM7.9

208

ff

Alliance

C

Robert Wyatt
Arrgt: Vincent Artaud

A2
fl.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.
flghn.
pn.
syn.
gtr.
bs.
ds.
p
pp
mf
p
D♭M7(9)
C7(9)
D♭M7(9)
C7(9)
(ça ou d'autres notes)
2
B7♯11
B♭7sus4(9)
G min7
G♭min7(9)
F7b9
B7♯11
B♭sus4(9)
G min7
G♭min7(9)
F7b9
2
2

B 25
fl.
alt.sx.
pp
tn.sx.
pp
bs.cl.
flghn.
pn.
E♭7b9(b13)
E7#11(9)
2
syn.
E♭7b9(b13)
E7#11(9)
E♭7b9(b13)
continuer en débit
de sextolet.....
gtr.
bs.
(bow=hold)
2
ds.
28
fl.
mf
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.
flghn.
pn.
2
E♭7b9(b13)
syn.
E7#11
E♭7b9(b13)
E7#11
E♭7b9(b13)
gtr.
mf
bs.
2
ds.

A3
33
fl.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.
flghn.
pn.
syn.
gtr.
bs.
ds.
p
pp
mf
B♭min7(11)
D♭M7/A♭
G min6
G♭-M7
Fmin7(11)
continuer en 10emes....
38
D♭M7(9)
Gmin7(9)
G♭min7(9)
F7b9
(ça ou d'autres notes)

43
fl.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.
flghn.
pn.
C7(9)
B7♯11
B♭7sus4(9)
G min7
G♭min7(9)
syn.
gtr.
B♭sus4(9)
bs.
ect.....
ds.
2
48
A4
f
6
mf
F7b9
D♭M7(9)
G min6

fl.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.
flghn.
pn.
syn.
gtr.
bs.
ds.
52
G♭minM7
Fmin7(11)
G min7
G♭min7(9)
ect.....
2
A4
56
mf
F7b9
D♭M7(9)

fl.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.
flghn.
pn.
G min6
G♭minM7
Fmin7(11)
syn.
gtr.
bs.
ect.....
ds.
2 dim.....
G min7
G♭min7(9)
F7b9

B2
65
fl.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.
flghn.
pn.
E♭7b9(b13)
E7#11(9)
2
p syn.
E♭7b9(b13)
E7#11(9)
E♭7b9(b13)
continuer en débit
de sextolet.....
gtr.
bs.
ds.
68
fl.
alt.sx.
tn.sx.
bs.cl.
pp
flghn.
pn.
2
E♭7b9(b13)
syn.
E7#11
E♭7b9(b13)
E7#11
E♭7b9(b13)
gtr.
pp
bs.
2
ds.

C

Kew Rhone

Robert Wyatt
Arrgt: Vincent Artaud

INTRO

flute fl en sol sopranino clar Bb clbs trpt cor en fa claviers
guit

(piqué)
(sonne une octave au dessous)

fl.
alt.fl.
spno.
Cl.
bs.cl.
tp.
cor
kbds.
gtr.

A

fl.
alt.fl.
spno.
Cl.
bs.cl.
tp.
cor
kbds.
gtr.

f

A2

mf

26

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

30

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

INTERLUDE 1

35

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

40

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

cresc.....

B

45

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

f p f mp cresc.....

50

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

mf f mp mp mf mf f mp mp f mp

54

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

59

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

B2

fl.
alt.fl.
spno.
Cl.
bs.cl.
tp.
cor
kbds.
gtr.

64

mf

mp

(bow=hold)

68

73

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

77

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

mf

f

mp

p bien marquer l'accent

bien marquer l'accent

(vintage pad)

A♭M7.6

86

fl.

alt.fl.

p

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

92

fl.

p

simil.....

alt.fl.

simil.....

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

simil.....

kbds.

Dmin7.11

D♭M7#11

gtr.

fl.
alt.fl.
spno.
Cl.
bs.cl.
tp.
cor
kbds.
gtr.

99

Amin9

105

cresc.....

f

f

mp

f

C♯min7b5(9)

F♯7♭13

111

fl.

alt.fl.

f decresc.....

spno.

Cl.

mp

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

B min7b13

CM7#11

gtr.

117

fl.

mp

decresc.....

alt.fl.

mp

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

A♭M7.6

gtr.

INTERLUDE 2

123

fl.
alt.fl.
spno.
Cl.
bs.cl.
tp.
cor
kbds.
gtr.

132

fl.
alt.fl.
spno.
Cl.
bs.cl.
tp.
cor
kbds.
gtr.

B3

138

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

mf

Emin9 Dmin9 C♯minb13 CM7#11

143

Amin11 F♯min7.9 Gmin7.9 Fmin7.9

fl.
alt.fl.
spno.
Cl.
bs.cl.
tp.
cor
kbds.
gtr.

148

mf

f

+ haut

Gmin7.9

Fmin7.9

A♭min9

BminM7

B4

153 mp

A♭min9

BminM7

Emin9

Dmin9

158

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

mf

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

C♯minb13

CM7#11

Amin11

F♯min7.9

gtr.

162

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

mp

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

Gmin7.9

Fmin7.9

Gmin7.9

gtr.

f

166

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds. — Fmin7.9 | A♭min9 | BminM7

gtr.

170

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds. — (synth bs) A♭min9 | BminM7 | A♭min9 | BminM7

gtr.

174

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

A♭min9 BminM7 A♭min9 BminM7

ect.....

ect.....

178

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

A♭min9 BminM7 A♭min9

A♭min9 BminM7 A♭min9

181

fl.

alt.fl.

spno.

Cl.

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds. BminM7 A♭min9 BminM7

gtr. BminM7 A♭min9 BminM7

185

fl.

alt.fl. subito p

spno.

Cl. subito p

bs.cl.

tp.

cor

kbds.

gtr.

C

Shipbuilding

Elvis Costello/Clive Langer

B2
fl./pn.
alt.fl.
alt.sx.
cl.
bs.cl.
flghn.
cor
synth.bs.
gtr.
ds.
mp
B min7
G min/B♭
Fmin11/A♭
G 9
C M9
F M7
G 9
A min9
G 9/B
C
p
A min9/C
G/D
C

Shipbuilding

C2
fl./pn.
alt.fl.
alt.sx.
cl.
bs.cl.
flghn.
cor
synth.bs.
gtr.
ds.
G 9/B
Amin9/C
G/D
C M9
C
Fmin7(9)
C M9/E
E♭M7(6)
sim.....

65 fl./pn.
alt.fl.
alt.sx.
cl.
bs.cl.
flghn.
cor
synth.bs.
gtr.
ds.
A♭M7#11
G 9
Cminb13
C M7
Cminb13
p
mf
71
D
(piano)
A min7(9)
B♭M6(9)
f

E
78
A♭M7
Amin7(9)
B♭M6(9)
A♭M7
Amin7(9)
fl./pn.
alt.fl.
alt.sx.
cl.
bs.cl.
flghn.
cor
synth.bs.
gtr.
ds.
f ecf.....
85
B♭M6(9)
A♭M7
Amin7(9)
Fmin7(11)
Amin7(9)
A♭M7
B♭M6
Amin7(9)
sim.....

F
A♭M7
B♭M6
fl./pn.
alt.fl.
alt.sx.
cl.
bs.cl.
flghn.
cor
synth.bs.
gtr.
ds.
sim.....
p
pp

♩ = 88

Hullo der (keyboards)

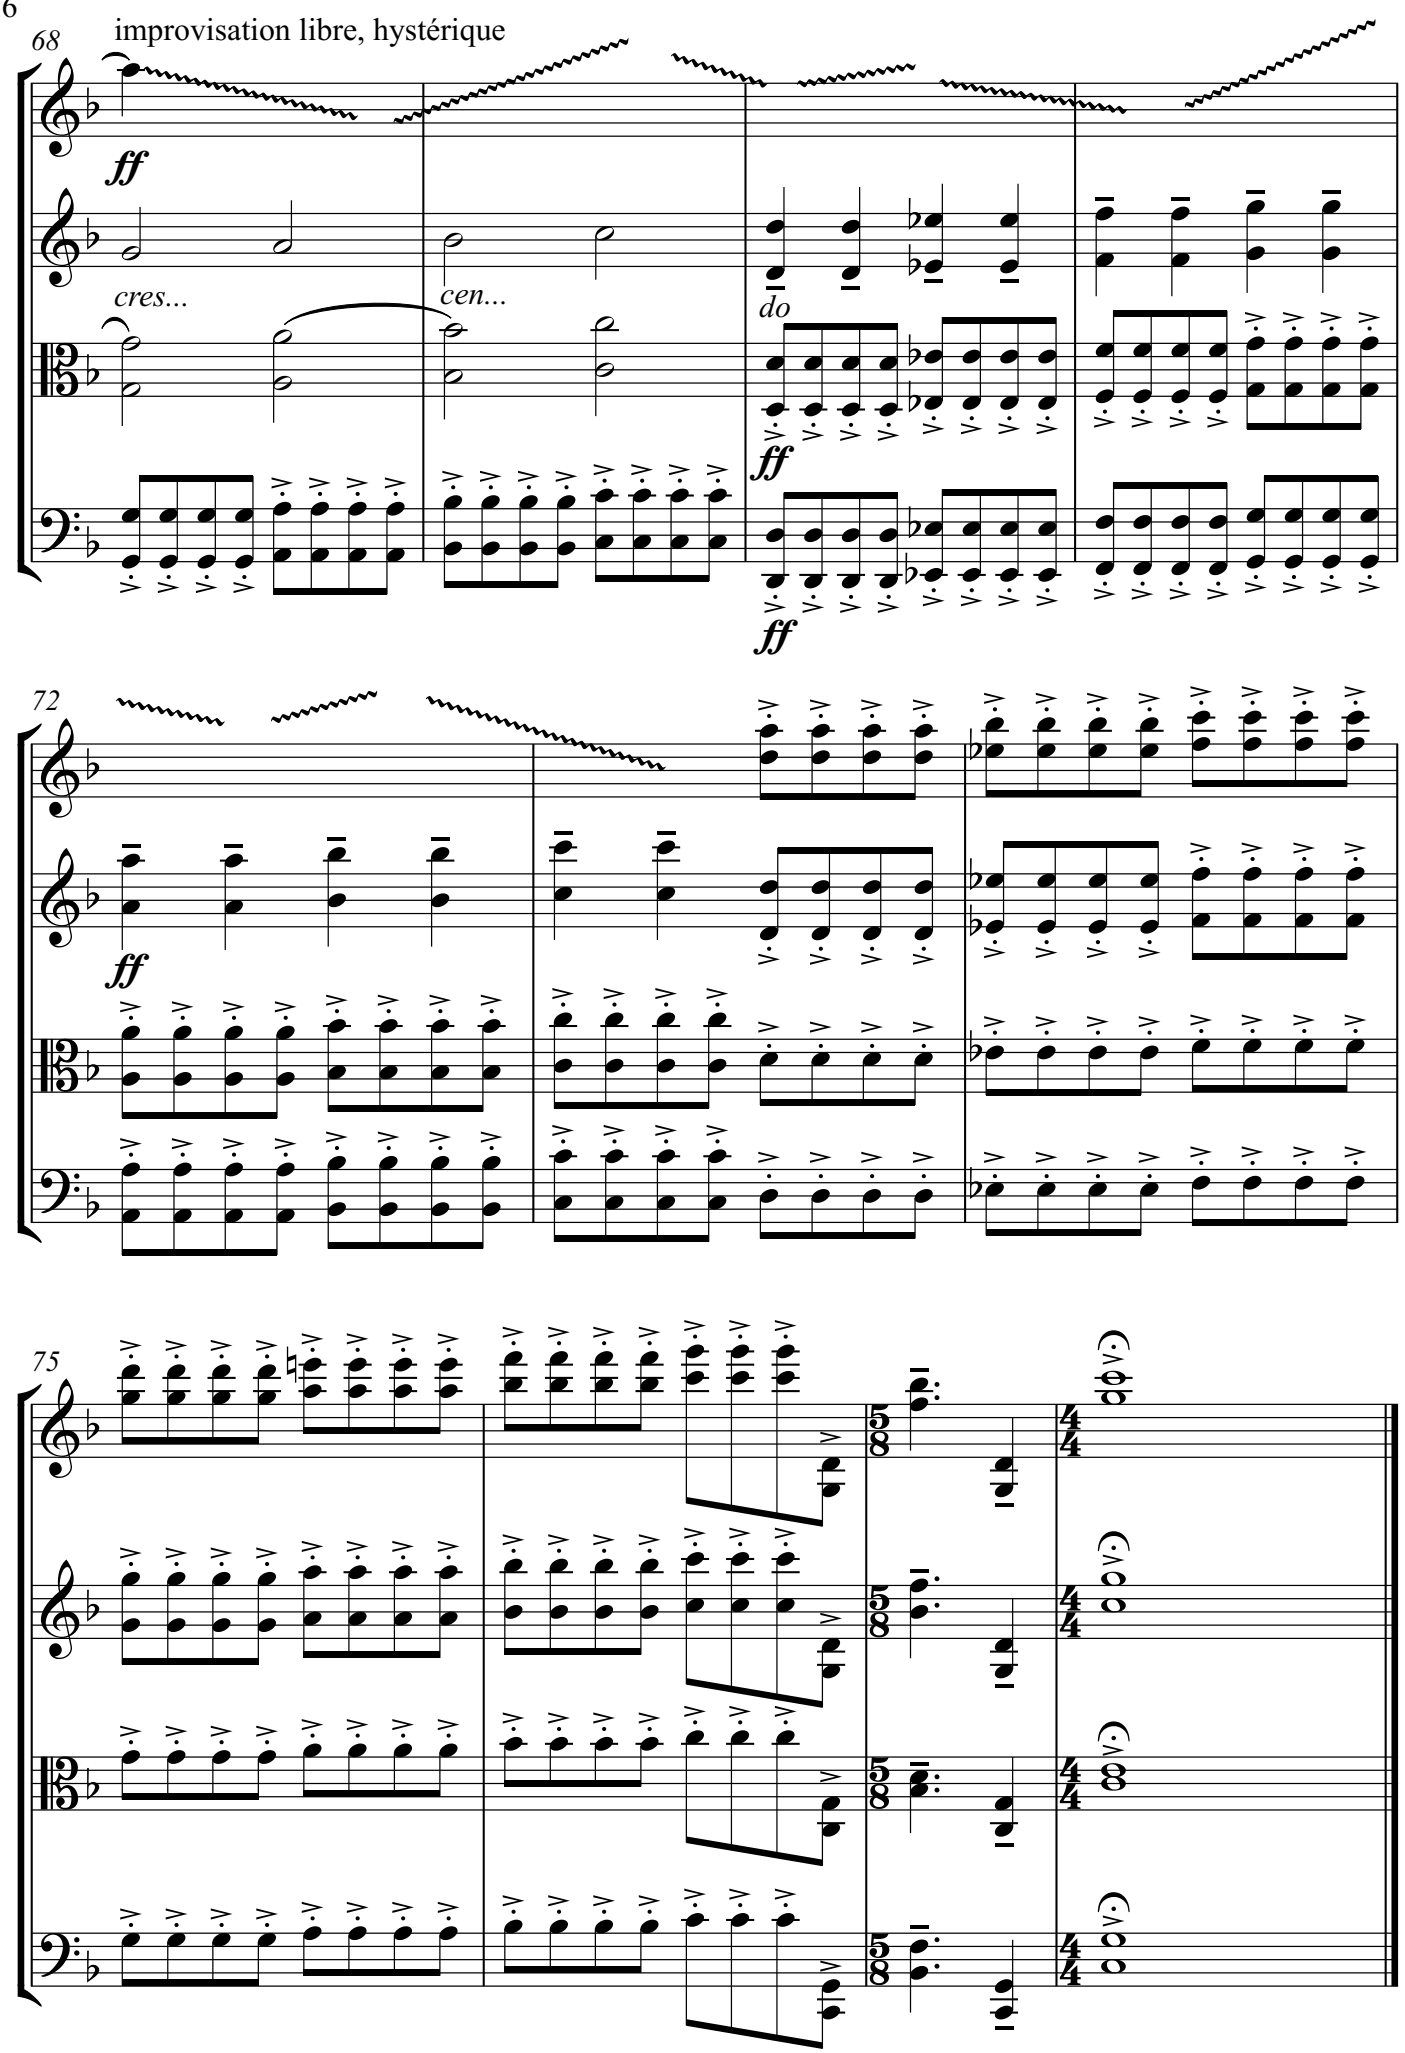
♩ = 65 Kings and Queens

Kings and Queens (basse)

Gharbadzegi

Arrangement : Stéphane Collin

Robert Wyatt



17
3 3 mf
22
3
3 26

31
3 3
f 36
C normal
f f normal
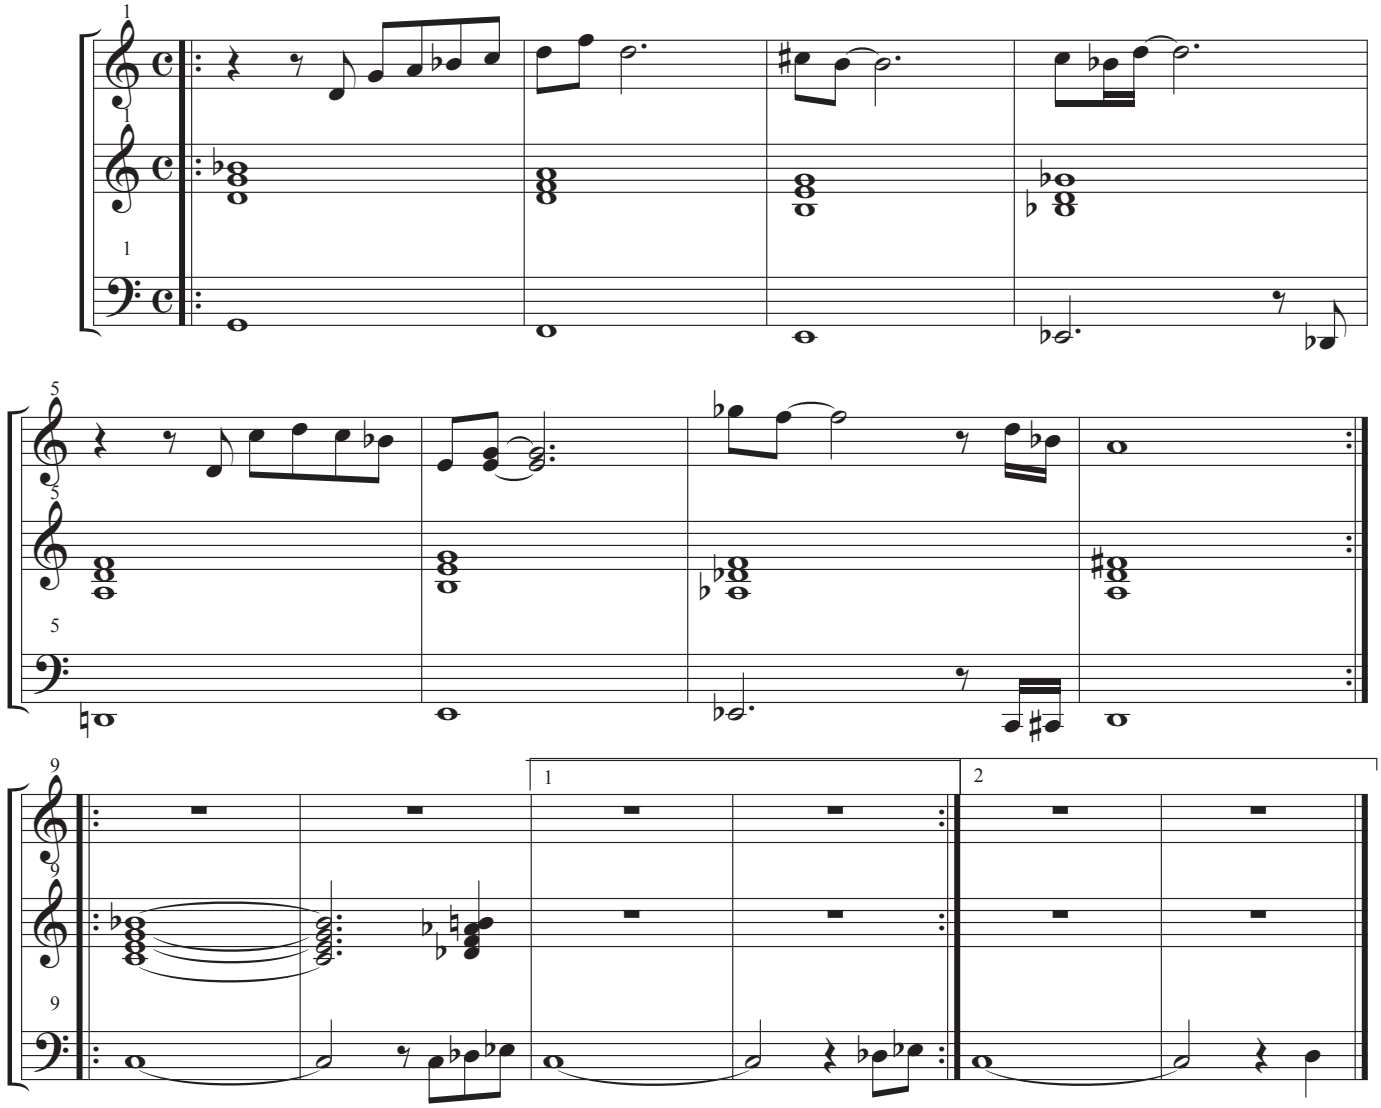
cres...
cen...
f
cres...
cen...
40
D
do
ff
gliss. ad lib.
mf subito
do
ff
gliss. ad lib.
mf subito



44
gliss. ad lib.
gliss. ad lib.
p p p
p mp molto legato 48
mp
mp molto legato
mp molto legato
52

56
pp 60
f
f
f 64
cres...
cen...
do
cres...
cen...
do

68 improvisation libre, hystérique
ff
cres...
cen...
do
ff
ff
72
ff
75

Alliance

Robert Wyatt

Born again Cretin

Robert Wyatt

36 36 36
43
3 43
43
3 50
50
50 59
59
59 59

the british road

Robert Wyatt

36
43
50
57
64

CP Jeebies

Robert Wyatt

36
43
50
57
65
3
4
2

Gharbzadegi

Robert Wyatt

5 blacks and 1 white note

Robert Wyatt
Offenbach

Dedicated to you,
but you weren´t listening

Hugh Hopper

LULLABY FOR HAMZA

Partitura

Robert Wyatt
Arr. by Stefano Giannotti

Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

13
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

The world is dark a - gain I need your lul - la - by.
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

21
Sleep has gone. Night is long a - gain.
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

25
Sing me your song. Let me
Sing me your song. Let me
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Ped.
Pf. 2
Basso

29 sleep. Bring me peace.
sleep. Bring me peace.
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

When bom - bers bomb a - gain we'll need your lul - la - by.
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

37
Chil - dren cry. Hou - ses burn a - gain.
Once more, once more.
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

41
Sing songs to soothe them,
Sing songs to soothe
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

45 to dry their tears to drown the screams of war.
screams of war.
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

49
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

53
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

57
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

61
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

65
The world's gone wrong a - gain, I need your lul - la - by.
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

69
Night is much and sleep's just a dream.
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

73 stay close to me Sing to Sing your song, stay close to me. Sing to
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

77 me, Hu - sha - bye.
me, Hu - sha - bye.
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

81
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
pizz.
Vln. 1
pizz.
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
8va
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

85
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
8va
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

89
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
8va
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso
8va

97
The world is dark a - gain
The world is dark a - a - gain I need your lul - la - by.
The world is dark a - gain I need your lul - la by.
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

Sleep has gone
Sleep has gone Night is much too long a - gain.
Sleep has gone Night is long
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

105
Sing me your song
Sing me your song,
let me
Sing me your song,
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

109
Bring
peace.
sleep
Bring me
peace.
Bring me
peace.
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

113
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A. arco
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

117
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

121
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

125
Fl. 1
Fl. 2
Fl. 3
Cl.Si♭
Sx.A.
Vln. 1
Vln. 2
Chit.el.
Chit.
Ar.
Pf. 1
Pf. 2
Basso

Sea Song

Robert Wyatt

♩= 108

Violin I

Violin II

Viola

Violoncello

p

mp

7

Eaug 10

tr

ff You look

14

F♯m 14

F

Am 16

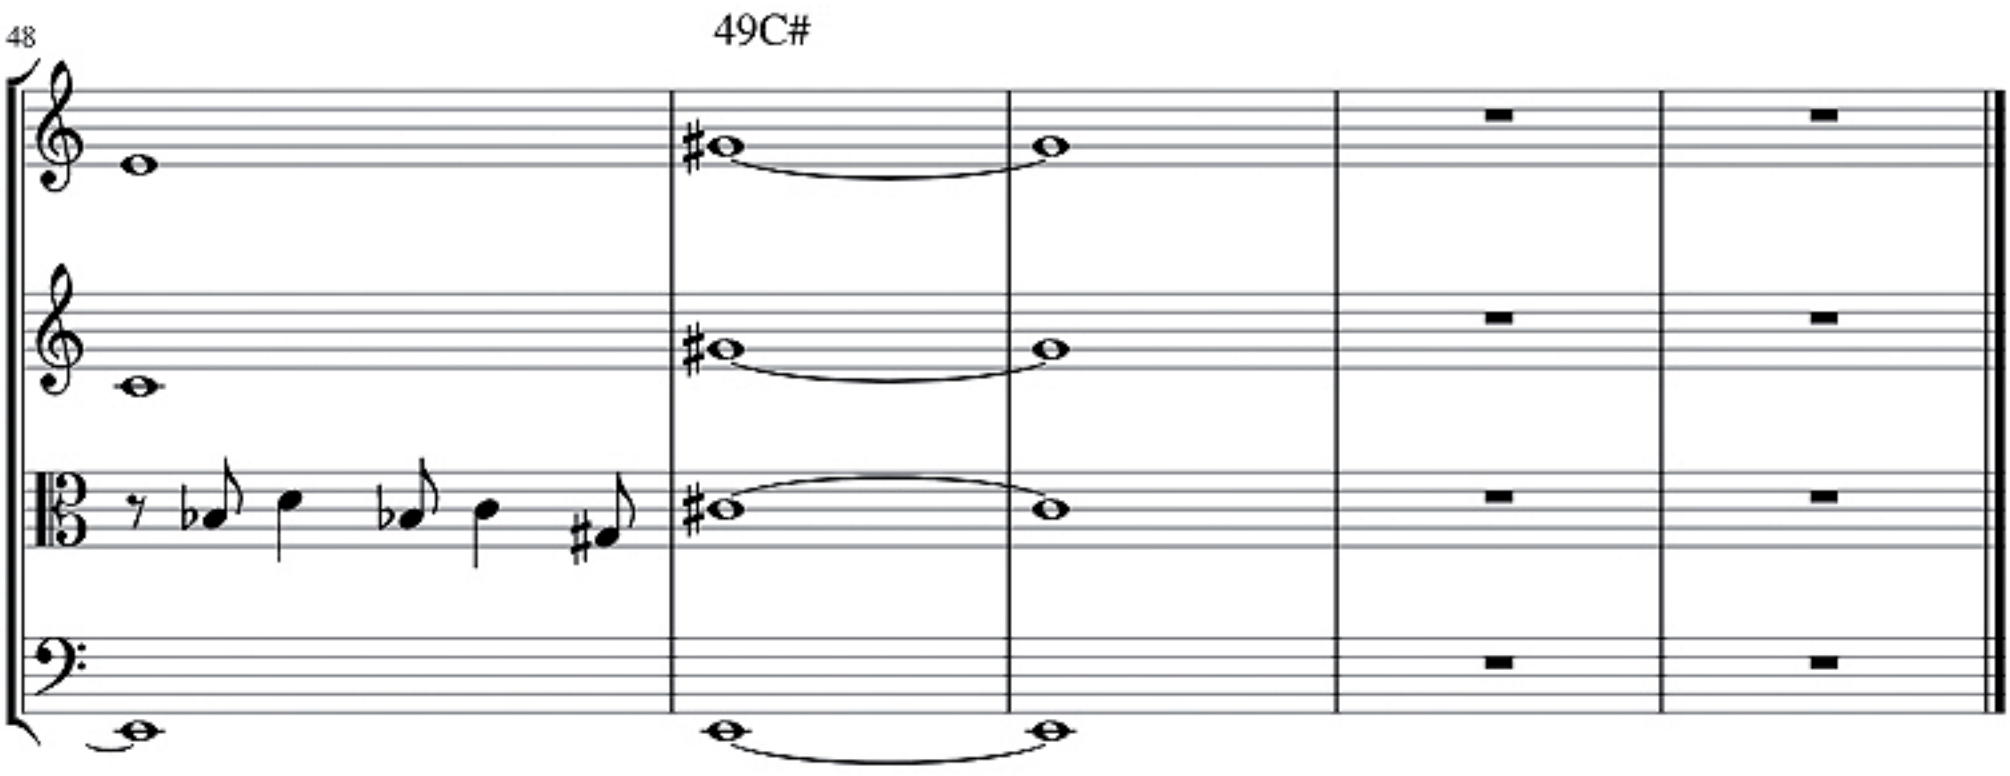
19

mf

20 22 25

27 29 F♯m 30 F 32

34 35 38



ff

f

f

ff

40
44
D

48
49C#

Gharbzadegi

Concert C

Robert Wyatt

Music engraving by LilyPond 2.19.65—www.lilypond.org

Catholic Architecture

Robert Wyatt

Concert

Little Red Riding Hood hit the road

Ten/Tpt

Little Red Riding Hood hit the road

Sweet Memories

ANAÏD

I Have A Dream

Words by Robert Wyatt and Hugh Hopper

Music by ANAÏD

Distortion Guitar
Standard tuning

Clean Guitar
Standard tuning

Electric Bass
Standard tuning

♩ = 50

♩ = 70

All Rights Reserved - International Copyright Secured

5
6
7
8
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

9 10 11 12
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.
3

13 14 15 16
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

17
18 19 20
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

21
22
23 24
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

25
26 27 28
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

29 30 31 32
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

33 34 35
36
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

37
38
39 40
EL. GUIT.
EL. GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL. BS.

4x
41 42
43 44
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

45
46
47 48
EL.GUIT.
EL.G...
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

1.
2.
49
50 51
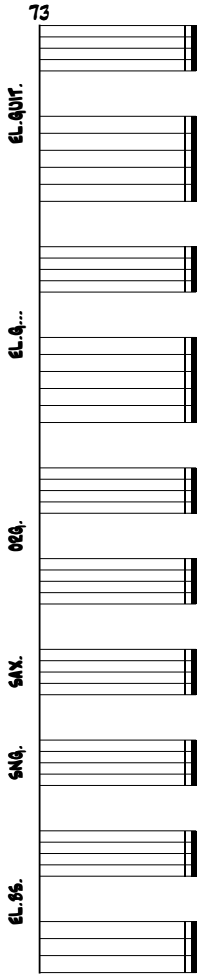
52
EL.GUIT.
EL.G...
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.



53
54
55
56
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

57
58 59 60
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

61
62
63
64
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

65
66
67
68
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

♩ = 71 rall
♩ = 39
69
70 71
72
EL.GUIT.
EL.GUIT.
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

73
EL.GUIT.
EL.G...
ORG.
SAX.
SNG.
EL.BS.

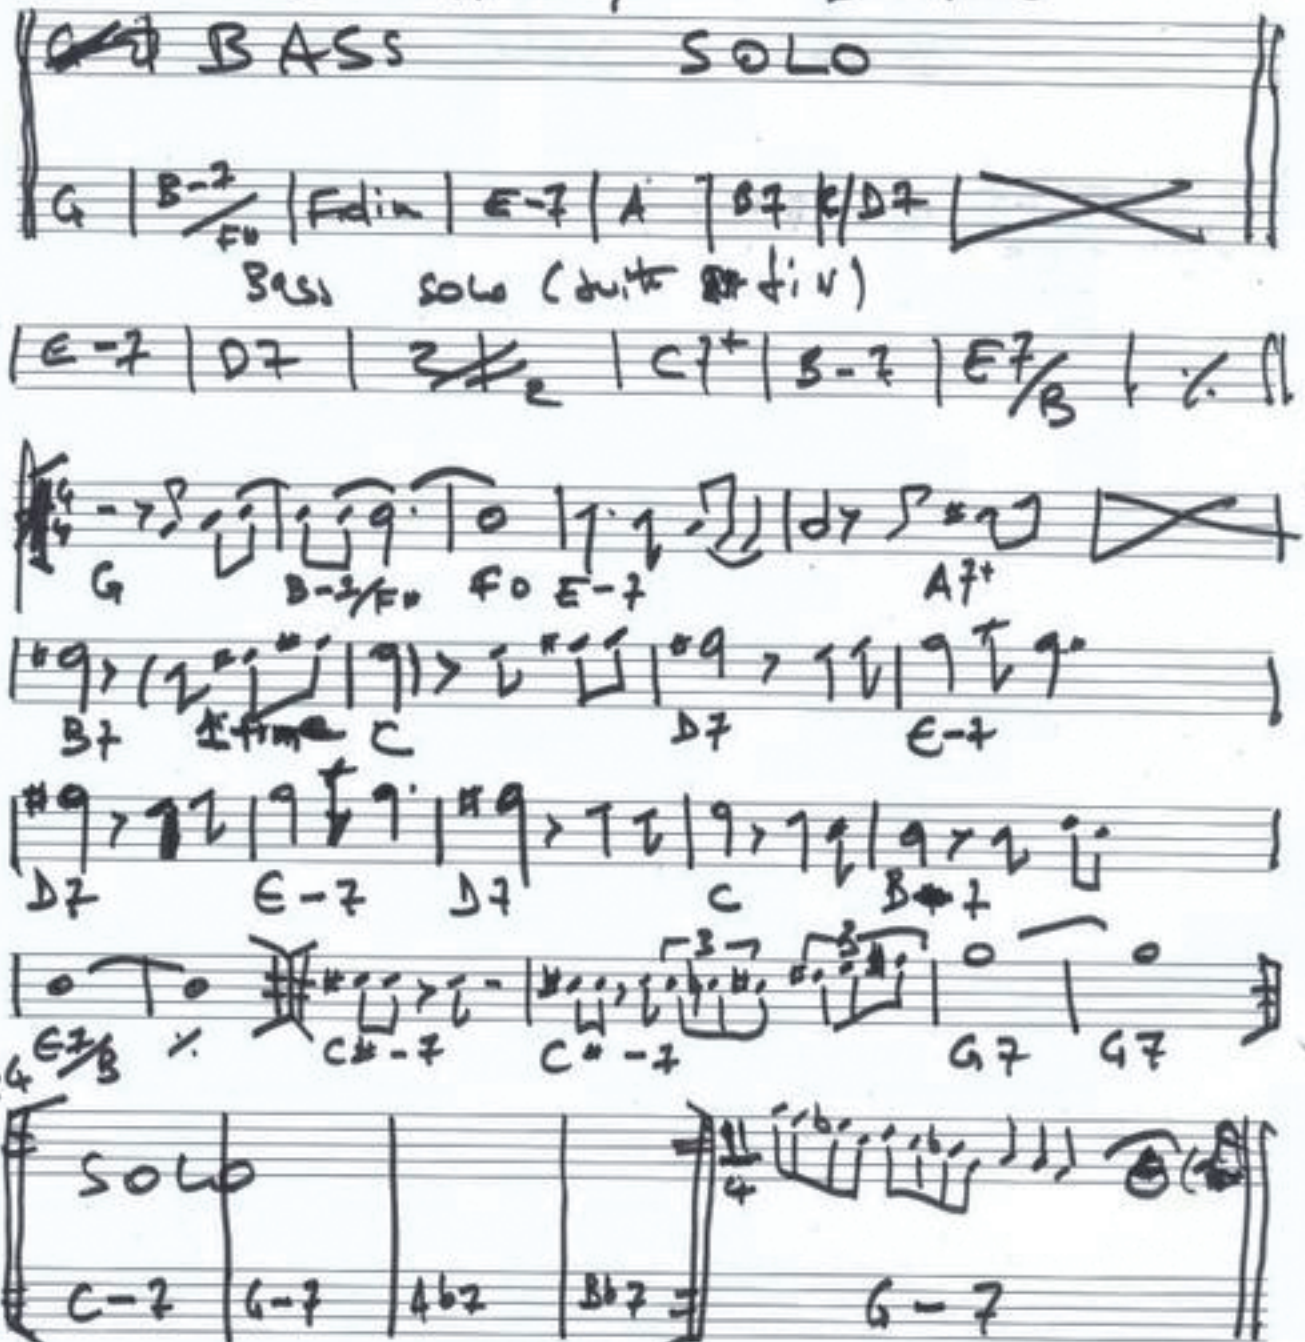
MOON IN JUNE (Beginning)

R. WYATT

E7 E7 B-7/D

x3 C#-7 B-7

B-7 G F#-7 G



F#-7 B-7 E G

C B-7 E Bass solo starts here to "MOON IN JUNE" I WANT YOU SECTION

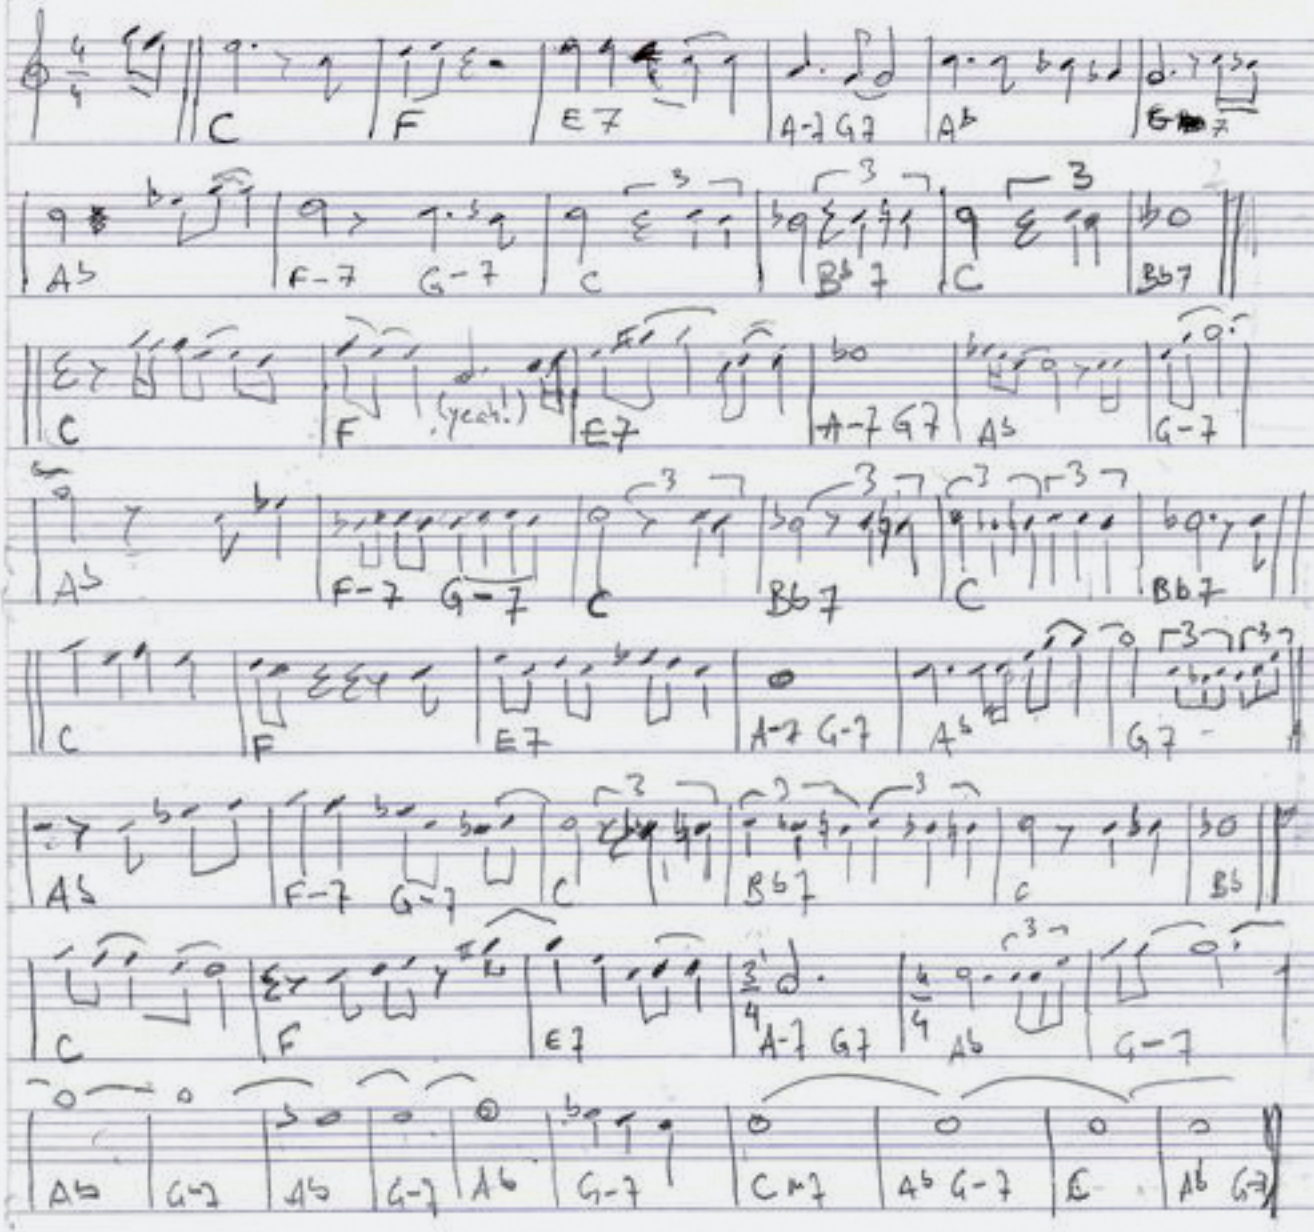
MOON IN JUNE R. WYATT



"I WANT YOU ..." Section

Next section "Leaving here is easy..."

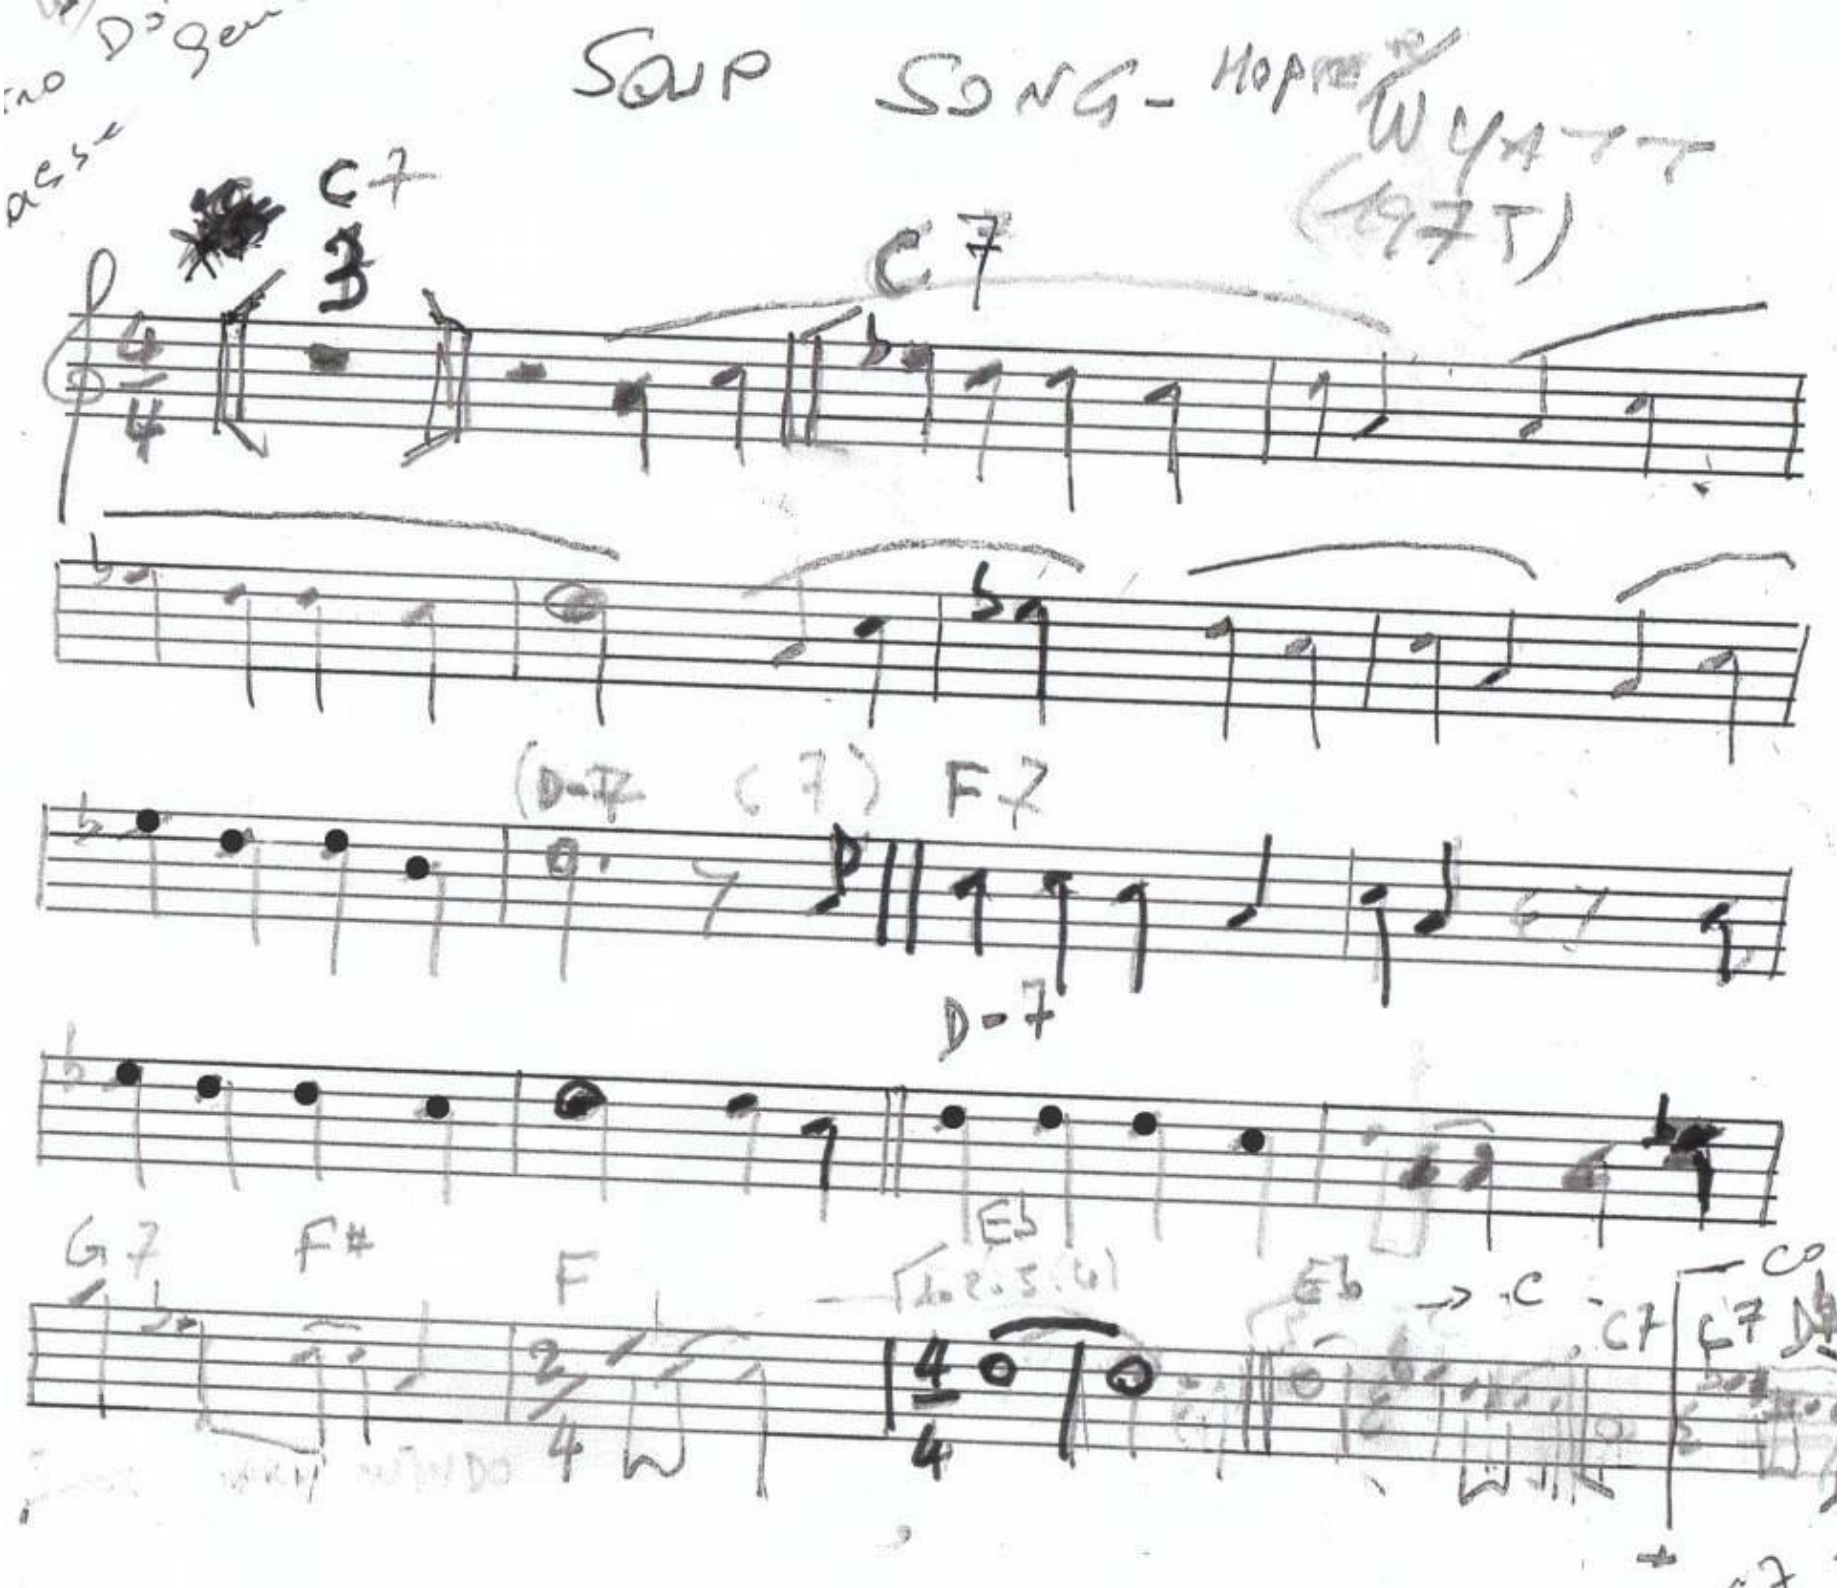
MOON IN JUNE (R. WYATT)

"LEAVING IS EASY HERE IN NY STATE"

TO BE CONTINUED
(A SUIVRE)

x2

ô caroline (D.SINCLAIR / R.WYATT)



for tenor saxophone

FREE WILL & TESTAMENT

1997 "SHLEEP"

SOUP SONG - HOPE WYATT
(1977)
C7
C7
(D-7 (7) F7
D-7
G7
F#
F Eb
Eb → C
C7
C7

THE OFFICIAL ROBERT WYATT FAN CLUB SONG

Karen Mantler (Grog Kill Music - ASCAP)

Atelier PLAY IT AGAIN !
Dirigé par Guillaume GILLES
Université Paris 8 Vincennes – Saint-Denis

Robert Wyatt

ROCK BOTTOM
SONGBOOK

(1974 – 2024, 50ème anniversaire)

ROCK BOTTOM

SONGBOOK

Atelier PLAY IT AGAIN !

Dirigé par Guillaume GILLES
Université Paris 8 Vincennes – Saint-Denis

Ce songbook est un outil pédagogique mis à disposition des étudiant.e.s de master en Musique – Musicologie de l'atelier Play It Again dirigé par Guillaume GILLES.

Si l'ensemble du travail de relevé musical et formel s'appuie sur l'album en lui-même, il comporte également des adaptations pour le groupe qui a travaillé sur la conception du concert de restitution donné le 12 juin 2024 à l'Université Paris 8.

Bonne musique et merci à Robert Wyatt pour son merveilleux album.

1 - Sea Song – Robert Wyatt
(Rock Bottom – 1974)

BPM: 110
4/4

Introduction
	Eb	F7	BbMaj7	EbMaj7
Csus2 – Gm/Bb	A7sus4	A7sus4	D7sus4
D7sus4	E7#5	E7#5	E7#5
E7#5

Couplet 1
|| F#min | FMaj | Amin/E | Emin || X2

You look different every time you come from the foam-crested brine
It's your skin shining softly in the moonlight

Couplet 2
|| F#min | FMaj | Amin/E | Emin || X2

Partly fish, partly porpoise, partly baby sperm whale
Am I yours? Are you mine to play with?

Couplet 3 (piano Octave inférieure)
|| F#min | FMaj | Amin/E | Emin || X2

Joking apart when you're drunk
You're terrific when you're drunk
I like you mostly late at night - you're quite all right

Pont 1
	Eb	F7	Bbmaj7	Ebmaj7
Cm6 Cm6/Bb	Am7b5	Am7b5	D7
D7

But I can't understand the different you
In the morning when it's time to play at being human for a while
Please smile!

Instrumental (impro piano + orgue)
|| E7#5 | E7#5 | E7#5 | E7#5 ||

Gamme ton par ton pour la transition

Couplet 4 (piano accords plaqués)
|| F#min | FMaj | Amin/E | Emin || X2

You'll be different in the spring, I know
You're a seasonal beast
Like the starfish that drift in with the tide, with the tide

Couplet 5 (piano Octave inférieure)
|| F#min | FMaj | Amin/E | Emin || X2

So until your blood runs to meet the next full moon
Your madness fits in nicely with my own, with my own

Couplet Coda (entrée voix mellotron)
|| F#min | FMaj | Amin/E | Fmin ||

Your lunacy fits neatly with my own, my very own

Instrumental 2 (entrée synthé/orgue basses)
|| Amin | Fmin | Amin | Fmin ||X3

Outro (improvisation vocale)
|| 4/4 D ||3/4 E7/D ||4/4 DMaj7 ||
|| 4/4 D ||3/4 E7/D ||3/4 DMaj7 ||

We're not alone...

Ajout Riff mélodique synthétiseur avec portamento

Ajout “contrepoint” Riff

Outro:
Fade Out Drums + Basse

Riff voix + violoncelle + sax
Accompagnement guitare.

2 - A Last Straw – Robert Wyatt
(Rock Bottom – 1974)

BPM: 130
4/4

Introduction : Batterie + Basse + SAX

Grille avec 2X 6/4

	Cm	Cm	Cm	Cm
Cm	Cm	Cm	Cm
D7sus2	D7sus2		6/4 D7sus2
D7sus2	D7sus2		6/4 D7sus2
Dbsus2	Dbsus2	Dbsus2	Dbsus2
Dbsus2	Dbsus2	Dbsus2	Dbsus2

Grille Refrain

|| Gsus4 | Gsus4 | Ab | Ab |
| Fm | Fm | G | G |

Couplet 1 (1 seule X 6/4)

	Cm	Cm	Cm	Cm
Cm	Cm	Cm	Cm
D7sus2	D7sus2		6/4 D7sus2
D7sus2	D7sus2	D7sus2	D7sus2
Dbsus2	Dbsus2	Dbsus2	Dbsus2
Dbsus2	Dbsus2	Dbsus2	Dbsus2

Seaweed tangled in our home from home
Reminds me of your rocky bottom
Please don't wait for the paperweight
Err on the good side
Touch us when we collapse

Refrain 1

|| Gsus4 | Gsus4 | Ab | Ab |
| Fm | Fm | G | G ||

Into the water we'll go head over heel
We'll not grow fat inside the mammary gland

Improvisation 1 (Voix)

Grilles identiques à celles de l'introduction
(2X 6/4)

Improvisation 2 VIOLONCELLE

Grilles identiques à celles de l'introduction
(2X 6/4)

Couplet 2 (1 seule X 6/4)

Seaweed tangled in our home from home
Reminds me of your rocky bottom
Please don't wait for the paperweight
Err on the good side
Touch us when we collapse

Refrain 2

Into the water we'll go head over heel
A head behind me buried deep in the sand

Improvisation 3 GUITARE

Grille couplet identique à celles de l'intro.
(2X 6/4)

Outro : Grille Refrain avec descente tons.

|| Gsus4 | Gsus4 | Ab | Ab |
| Fm | Fm | Réb Si | La Sol |
| Fa Mib | Réb Si | La Start Riff Guitare

3 - Little Red Riding Hood Hit The Road – Robert Wyatt
(Rock Bottom – 1974)

BPM: 80 Métriques: 9/8 – 4/4

Introduction
Riff Ad lib.

A11 A11 A11 A11 AMaj A9

Trompette > Piano > Percus > Basse > Voix

RIFF VOIX pour la transition

Instrumental

	AMaj	BbMaj3/A	BbMaj7/A	Bb6/A
D	Dm	Am	BbMaj7
A Asus4	BbMaj3/A	BbMaj7/A	Bb6/A
D	Dm	Am	BbminMaj7/A

Thème vocal

|| A Asus4 | Gm6/A | Gm7/A | Bb6/A |
| D | Dm | Am | BbM7/A ||

Couplet 1

|| A Asus4 | Gm6/A | Gm7/A | Bb6/A |
| D | Dm | Am | Bbmin |

Orlan don't tell me, oh no
Don't say oh God
Don't tell me oh dear me
Heaven's above
Oh no
I can't stand it

Couplet 2

|| A Asus4 | Gm6/A | Gm7/A | Bb6/A |
| D | Dm | Am | Bbmin/F ||

Stop please
oh deary me
What in heaven's name?
Oh blimey mercy me
Who are we?
Oh dear
Oh stop it, stop it

Pont / Nonsense

	BbMaj7	Am	Dm	D7
Bb6	Bb	Asus4	Asus4 A
BbminMaj7	Am7	Dm	D7
Bb6	Gm7/Bb	Asus4	Asus4 A

He wants / He was out /
He walk / He ever walk /
He needs a inner walk and flavor if awk
And we block it
Ouuuuu it's in my smart look
That lack but is night
He lives or in my night or walk as night
Was like a nightmare

Fin du pont

	BbMaj7	Am	Dm	D7
Bb6	Bb	Asus4	Asus4 A
BbMaj7	Am	Dm	D7
Bb6	Bb	Asus4	Asus4 A

You've been so kind
I know I know
So why did I hurt you?
I didn't mean to hurt you
But I'll keep trying
And I'm sure you will tooooooooooooo….

Voix parlée

| BbMaj7 | Am | Dm | D7 |
| Bb6 | Bb | Asus4 | Asus4 A |

I want it I want it I want it give it to me
I give it you back when I finish the lunchtea
I lie in the road try to trip up the passing cars
Yes me and the hedgehog
We bursting the tires all day
As we roll down the highway towards the setting sun

Outro: Cycle en boucle / Stop sur dernier A

|| BbMaj7 | Am | Dm | D7 |
| Bb6 | Bb | Asus4 | Asus4 A |
|

Phrase violoncelle pour la transition

4 - Alifib – Robert Wyatt
(Rock Bottom – 1974)

Partie 1: 4/4 = noire 91 BPM
Partie 2: 6/8 = croche 137 BPM

Introduction :

la voix chante ternaire, la basse joue binaire

Riff Basse x2 + Alifi (voix soufflée)
|| E11 mi si fa# la | E5 mi si mi si) | E11 | E5 ||

Ajout Orgue
|| E11 | E5 | E11 | E5 ||X4

Impro Guitare de 32 mesures en GbMaj

Guitare: son rond et étouffé
Walking Bass

Arriver sur une basse : Si > Fa (2'29) puis Si > Octavié pour annoncer la modulation vers Sib Maj.

Orgue modul: BMaj >Bmin

Couplet 1 (orgue = pédale de Si) :

|| Bmin | C#dim | A#dim | G ||X2

Not nit not nit no not
Nit nit folly bololey
Alifi my larder
Alifi my larder

Impro instrumentale (orgue + guitare)

|| Bmin | C#dim | A#dim | G ||X1

Couplet 2 (impro orgue + guitare)

|| Bmin | C#dim | A#dim | G ||X2

I can't forsake you
Or Forsqueak you
Alifi my larder
Alifi my larder

Couplet 3

|| Bmin | C#dim | A#dim | G ||X2

Confiscate
Or make you late you you
Alifi my larder
Alifi my larder

Couplet 4

|| Bmin | C#dim | A#dim | G ||X1

Not nit not nit no not
Nit nit folly bololy

Impro instrumentale

|| Bmin | C#dim | A#dim | G ||X1
Petite transition mélodique tutti: sol sib ré sol Fa#

Couplet 5 (avec voix octaviée)

|| Bmin | C#dim | A#dim | G ||X4

Burlybunch, the water mole
Hellyplop and fingerhole
Not a wossit bundy, see
For jangle and bojangle
Trip trip Pip pippy pippy pip pip landerim
Alifi my larder
Alifi my larder

Impro instrumentale

|| Bmin | C#dim | A#dim | G ||X4

Outro :

Enchaînement vers Alifie
Rester sur GMaj

5 - Alifie – Robert Wyatt
(Rock Bottom – 1974)

Métrique : 6/8 = 150 BPM

Démarre sur la fin de Alifib

Free Feeling / Noise / Atempo

Puis Modulations:
De GMaj vers Fmin

Tourne tout au long de la chanson
|| E_{min} | $F#_{dim}$ | $D#_{dim/A}$ | C_{min13} ||
Basse ascendante et pédale de Mi

Not nit
not nit
no not Nit nit
Folly bololey
Alifi my larder
Alifi my larder

I can't forsake you or Forsqueak you
Alifi my larder
Alifi my larder

Confiscate or make you
Late you you
Alifi my larder
Alifi my larder

Not nit not nit no not
Nit nit folly bololy

Impro Sax

Burlybunch, the water mole
Hellyplop and fingerhole
Not a wossit bundy, see ?

For jangle and bojangle
Trip trip
Pip pippy pippy pip pip landerim
Alifi my larder
Alifi my larder

Riff sax puis Solo Sax

Ajout Riff Piano

Climax NOISE - OUT / réverbe delay

I'm not your larder,
jammy jars and mustard.

I'm not your dinner,
you soppy old custard.

Effacement des instruments

And what's a bololey
when it's a folly?

Basse distorsion

I'm not your larder,
I'm your dear little dolly.
But when plops get too helly
I'll fill up your belly.
I'm not your larder,
I'm Alife your guarder.

Ne reste plus que la basse fuzz.

6 - Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road – Robert Wyatt
(Rock Bottom – 1974)

Métrique : 4/4 = 86 BPM

Partie 1:

Démarre sur la fin de Alifie

Tourne tout au long de la chanson

|| 4/4 Emin || 3/4 Emin | E || 4/4 F#Dim | SolLaDo |

| FaSolSi | SolFaLaSi | Amin7 | Bsus4 |

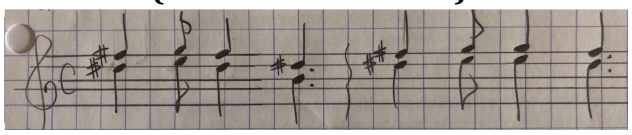
| B7sus4/C | B7sus4/B | B7sus4 | B7 ||



Couplet 1 :
In the garden of England
Dead moles lie inside their holes
The dead-end tunnels
Crumble in the rain
Underfoot
Innit a shame?

Instrumental 1 (grille du couplet)

Instrumental 2 (Idem)

Pont : B7 + Riffs Guitare + ???

(Harmonisation voix)

Can't you see them?
Can't you see them?
Roots can't hold them
Bugs console them

Can't you see them?
Can't you see them?
Roots can't hold them
Bugs console them

Climax X4
Can't you see them?
Can't you see them?
Can't you see them?
Can't you see them?

Partie 2 :

|| BbMaj | EbMaj/B | BbMaj | EbMaj/B ||

I fight with the handle of my little brown broom
I pull out the wires of the telephone
I hurt in the head and I hurt in the acting bone
Now I smash up the telly with remains of the broken phone

I fighting for the crust of the little brown loaf
I want it I want it I want it give it to me
I give it you back when I finish the lunch tea

Phrase mélodique violon

I lie in the road try to trip up the passing cars
Yes me and the hedgehog We bursting the tyres all day

Phrase mélodique violon

As we roll down the highway towards the setting sun
I reflect on the life of the Highwayman yum yum
Now I smash up the telly and what's left of The broken phone

Violon dissonant

Fin

MOON IN JUNE

Robert WYATT (Album Soft Machine THIRD)

THIS IS NOT A 100% note-to-note transcription! but a comprehensive score to understand the structure of the tune composed by Robert Wyatt, and fully playable on two keyboards (some parts have to be switched between organ and EP).
Please, enjoy ! (C) transcription - Guy Boistel, dec.2024-jan.2025

B
16
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
Now I'm her' I may as well put my o - ther hand in yours whil' we deci de how far to go and if we've got time to do it now and if it's
C#-
Cm
B-Ab
18
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
as good for you as is it for me Then you won't mind if we lie half
C#- Cm
B-
C
20
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
down for a whi - le
Just for a Whi - le Ti-ill
G
F#-
G
F#-
24
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
All the things I Want
i - is Need Till
C
B-7
E

28
Org. Hm.
All the things I are I knew
Pia. él.
C
B-
E/B
Start bass solo
D1
32
SOLO BASS (Hugh Hopper)
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
36
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
40
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.

44
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
E/B
47 2e tour et suivants : Chant
D2
Org. Hm.
I wan - ted
you more than e - ver
Pia. él.
G
G/F♯
G/F
E
51
Org. Hm.
now we're on the floor and you want more And I feel al most sure That cause
Pia. él.
B
C
D
55
Org. Hm.
Now we've a - greed that we got what we need The-en
Pia. él.
E
D
E
D

59

Linéaire

Org. Hm. all the things us is wan - ting

Pia. él. C B-7 E/B

D3 62

Org. Hm. I re-a-lized when I Saw you last We've been To - ge-ther No-ow an-and

Pia. él. G G/F# G/F E

66

Org. Hm. Then From tim' to time just here and there Now I

Pia. él. B C D

70

Org. Hm. know how it feels from my hair to my heels to have

Pia. él. E D E D

74
Org. Hm.
you haunt the horns of my di - lem - na Oh wait a mi-nut'
E
Pia. él.
C/B
B-7
E
Third: 3'17
E
77
overdrive
O - ver Up O - ver up Down - own
overdrive
overdrive
C#- overdrive
C#-
G7
3'17
81
overdrive
Down O - ver Up Down Up
overdrive
overdrive
C#- overdrive
C#-
G7
etc. ad lib
F 85 simile... solo
1.
C-
G-
Ab
G-
PED.
PED.
PED.
PED.

Swing
89
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
G-C7sus4
Li - i -
G1
91
Swing
-ving can be love - ly
Her' in in New york
Sta - te
C
F
E7
A-7
G7
95
Ah but I wish that I were Home and I wish I were Home
Ab7
G7
F-7
Ab
98 a a - gain am ba-ack
Hom'a-gain Hom'a-gain
Home am ba-ack
Hom'a-again Hom'a-gain
F-7
G7
C7
Bb7
C7

G2
103
Org. Hm.
Therearepla - ces and peo-ple that I am So Gla-ad to ha - a ve se - en
Pia. él.
C F E7 A-7
107
Org. Hm.
Ah! but I miss the Trees and I wish that I were Home a -
Pia. él.
Ab7 C/E Bb/D Ab F-7 G7
111
Org. Hm.
-gain am Ba-ack hom' a-gain Hom' a-gain Home am ba-ack hom' a-gain Hom' a-gain The
Pia. él.
C7 Bb7
G3
115
Walking Bass without chords
Org. Hm.
Sun shines here all sum-mer It's nicecaus'you can get quite Bro-own
Pia. él.
C F E7 E7 G7

119
Org. Hm.
Ah! but I miss the rain ti-cky ta-cky ti-cky And I wish that I were Hom' a-gain
Pia. él.
Ab
F-7 G7
123
Org. Hm.
hom' a-gain hom' a-gain 'am ba-ck hom' a-gain hom' a-gain
Pia. él.
G4 transition
127
Org. Hm.
li-vin ing is ea-sy her' in New yo-ork sta-te Stat'
Pia. él.
C
F
E7
A-7 G-7
131
Org. Hm.
Ah but I wish That I
Pia. él.
F-/Ab
G7 F-7
G-7

135 Linéaire
Org. Hm.
Home a - gain Back in West Dul - wich a
Pia. él.
G-7 Ab G-7
H
139
Swing
Third 6'02
Org. Hm. gain
Pia. él.
C Ab/F G-711 G-711
143
Org. Hm.
Just be
Pia. él.
H' 149
Linéaire
Org. Hm.
fore we go on to the next part O-o - o - of our song Let's all make
Pia. él.

153
Org. Hm.
Sure we've got the time
Pia. él.
156
I
Third : 6'40
Mu - sic ma - king still per - forms the nor - mal func - tions
That's all right by me don't think that i'm com - plai - ning
mp
E-9
Eb-9
158
Back - ground noise for peo - ple sche - e - ming se - du - cing re - vol - ting and tea - ching
A - fter all it's on - ly lei - sur' tim' is - n't it.
D-9
160
J1
♩ = 106
Now I - I Lo - ve your eyes
A-
A-7maj
A-/G
D7
F

164
Org. Hm.
See how the ti-ime fli-ies She's
Pia. él.
G D7 E- G D7 E-
168
Org. Hm.
lear-ning to hate but it's just too la-ate fo- or me e it was the
Pia. él.
A- A-7maj A-/G D7 F
172
Org. Hm.
same with her love it just was-n't e-nough for me-e
Pia. él.
G D7 E- G D7 E-
176
Org. Hm.
But be- fore the fee-lings die Re-
Pia. él.
180
Org. Hm.
-mem-ber How dis-tance can tell Li - ies
Pia. él.

184
K
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
na
na na na
187
Na na na na na na
naaaa
na na na
Na na na na na na
You can al-most J2
191
♩ = 108 see her e - yes is it
me she des-pi-ises or you - ou
you're aw-ful-ly
A-
A-7maj
A-/G
D7
F 195 nice to me - e and I'm sure you can see what her gam'
i - is she sees
G
D7
E-
G
D7
E-

199
Org. Hm.
you in her place just as if it's a race and you're win-ning and you're win-ning She just
Pia. él.
A-
A-7maj
A-/G
D7
F
203
Org. Hm.
can't un-der-stand that for me ev'-ry-thing's just be - gin-ning un - til I get more home-sick!
spoken
Pia. él.
G
D7
E-
G
D7
E-207
Org. Hm.
But be - fore this fee-ling di - es Re -
Pia. él.
211
Org. Hm.
-mem - ber How dis - tance tell us
Pia. él.

L
213
Third : 8'56
♩ = 116 lie ies
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
mf
pp 217
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
221
accel.
Org. Hm.
mf
Pia. él.
3
M 225 ♩ = 132 dist ort
♩ = 92
Org. Hm.
dist ort
Pia. él.

230
♩ = 84
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
N 236
♩ = 228 FAST JAZZ WALTZ
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
N1
240
SOLO AD LIB FAST WALTZ
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
248
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
256
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.

264
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
272
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
280
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
E-9
C-7maj
Third : 12'56 - ON CUE
O
287
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
G
G
G
G 291 rall.
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.

299
rall.
DESTROY ad lib
♩ = 90
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
P 306 309
B/E
C-/Eb
Ab-/Eb
Eb-
Emaj6/Eb
314

Q
317
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
overdrive
321
Org. Hm.
Pia. él.
R
325
Destroy ad lib - effects and FADE OUT
Org. Hm.
dim.
Pia. él.
dim.

Robert Wyatt

SEA SONG

Arranged by Stefano Giannotti for ORCHESTRA SMS

2020

The orchestra:

Solo female voice
4 voices

2 flutes
Bb clarinet violin solo guitar guitar ensemble (4-5) guitar-banjo

piano
keyboards (organ or synth)

bass guitar

The guitar part can be played a bit more freely than written, but always mantaining a certain discipline (without overdoing it).

The percussive sound marked by the note indicated with x is produced with the thumb of the right hand on the sunboard of the guitar.

In the central section, from measure 48, Guitar1 improvises, but many different solutions can be imagined, including a dialogue between the guitar and the piano, or with the banjo...

SEA SONG

Robert Wyatt
Arr. Stefano Giannotti

F.Voice
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

F.Voice
You look dif-ferent e-very time - you come from the foam-
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

F.Voice
- cre - sted brine It's your skin shi - ning sof - tly in the moon -
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

21
F.Voice
light par - tly fish par - tly pur - pose par - tly ba - by sperm whale am I
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
3
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

26
F.Voice
yours are you mine to play with? Jo - king a - part
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

31
F.Voice
___ when you're drunk you're ter-ri - fic when you're drunk I like you mo - stly late at night
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

36
F.Voice
you're quite al - right but I can un - der - stand the dif - fe - rent you in the mor -
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

41
F.Voice
- ning when it's time to play at be - ing hu - man for a while
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
3
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

46
F.Voice
please smile!
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Improvise some soft arpeggios on this chord - one everynow and then - shifting it hexatonically along the fretboard
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

51
F.Voice
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
E aug
Guit. Solo
Improvise on a hexatonic scale, with a certain jazz atmosphere.
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

56
F.Voice
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

61
F.Voice
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
P.no
Org.
Bass

66
F.Voice
66
Fl.1
66
Fl.2
Cl.B♭ 66
Vln.
66
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
66
P.no
66
Org.
66
Bass

71
F.Voice
You'll be dif - ferent in the spring
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Harm. XII
Guit. Solo
P.no
Org.
Bass

F.Voice
I know you're a sea - so - nal beast like the star - fish that drift in with the tide
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
IX VIII VII V
Guit.1
Guit.2
Guit.3
Bjo.
EXP II VIII VII IX VIII
P.no
Org.
Bass

F.Voice
with the tide
so un - til your blood runs to meet the next full moon
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
III
II
I
Guit.1
VII
V
Guit.2
IX
VIII
VII
Guit.3
Bjo.
P.no
Org.
Bass

F.Voice
your mad - ness fits in nice - ly with my own with my own your
Fl.1
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
III
II
I
Guit.2
V
III
Guit.3
Bjo.
P.no
Org.
Bass

91
F.Voice
lu - na - cy fits nea - tly with my own my ve - ry own
Ol+Fr
Gab+En
Oh
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
Guit.2
Guit.3
Bjo.
P.no
Org.
Bass

96
F.Voice
Ol+Fr
Gab+En
Oh
Oh
96
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
6
96
Vln.
96
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
96
Guit.2
Guit.3
96
Bjo.
96
P.no
96
Org.
96
Bass

F.Voice
Ol+Fr
Gab+En
Oh
Oh
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Guit.1
Guit.2
Guit.3
Bjo.
P.no
Org.
Bass

105
F.Voice
we're not a-lone
Ol+Fr
Gab+En
Oh
105
Fl.2
Cl.B♭ 105
Vln.
105
Guit. Solo
ALTOGETHER
Guit.1
105
Guit.2
Guit.3
105
Bjo.
105
P.no
105
Org.
105
Bass

Improvise freely until the end 109
F.Voice
Ol+Fr
Gab+En
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Org.
Bass

113
F.Voice
Ol+Fr
Gab+En
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Org.
Bass

116
F.Voice
Ol+Fr
Gab+En
Fl.2
Cl.B♭
Vln.
Guit. Solo
Org.
Bass

AD LIBITUM
120
F.Voice
AD LIBITUM
Ol+Fr
AD LIBITUM
Gab+En
AD LIBITUM
120
Fl.2
Cl.B♭ 120
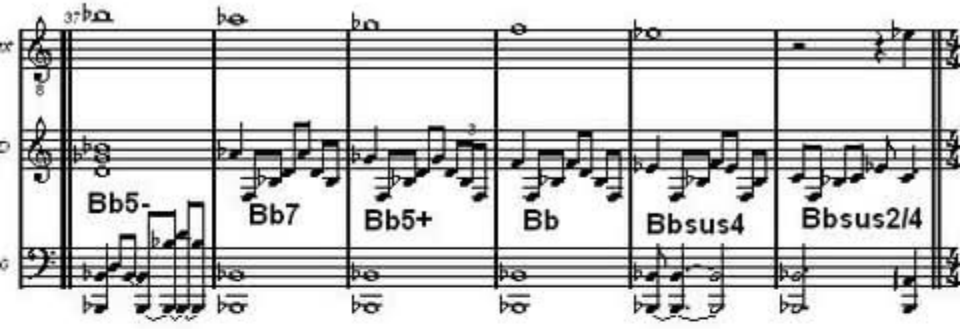
Vln.
120
Guit. Solo
120
Org.
120
Bass



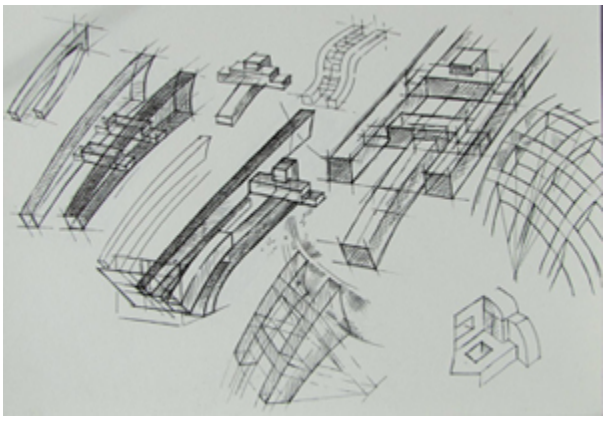
Muddy Mouth (Mai 2025)

Muddy Mouth (Mai 2025)

Muddy Mouth (Mai 2025)

A ROBERT WYATT CONSTRUCTION KIT

L'oeuvre de Robert Wyatt n'a certainement pas besoin d'une statue pour passer à la postérité.



Il n'en demeure pas moins que le travail engagé par John O'Rourke est tout à la fois étrange, extravagant et totalement indispensable !

Dans le dernier chapitre de la biographie Different Every Time (page 395 de la version anglaise), Marcus O'Dair présente le projet du plasticien John O'Rourke illustré d'une des premières esquisses de celui-ci.

Régulièrement actualisé, le site de John O'Rourke rend bien compte de ce Work In Progress épatant :

A ROBERT WYATT CONSTRUCTION KIT

qui nous enchante par son incongruité et son sérieux d'exécution.

Sur le site du projet, John O'Rourke précise le contexte de ce projet inattendu:

Robert Wyatt Sculpture: After a very extended break, while creating 'Sentius Tectonicus', I have recommenced working on an oak piece entitled 'A Robert Wyatt Construction Kit'. An initial working drawing for the sculpture is featured in Marcus O'Dair's excellent biography of Robert Wyatt. It's called 'Different Every Time'. I'm really pleased to have the time to be working on it again.

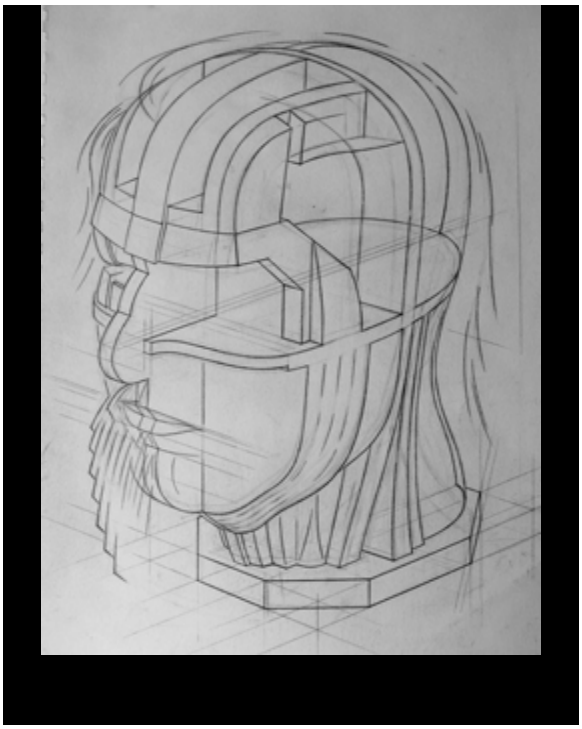
There are three buildings inside of his cranium and Robert has placed something within one of them. I've no idea what it is, nor will it ever be revealed. The beard is currently in progress and then I have his hair to add. All of the holes will be plugged with cross grained oak, to fully match the components. Following that there will be further forms to create below his head, mainly architectural but with Romanesque influences: I love the Lewis Chessmen and without mimicking them in any way, there will be an indirect allusion to their form.

John O'Rourke a complété ses explications au cours de plusieurs échanges que j'ai pu avoir avec lui.

"I am making a sculpture of Robert Wyatt. It is being recorded as it progresses...

By the time the sculpture is completed there will be a series of architectural forms ascending below his head - in fact his head will emerge from them. A number of inter-connected passages and hidden chambers will exist throughout the sculpture.

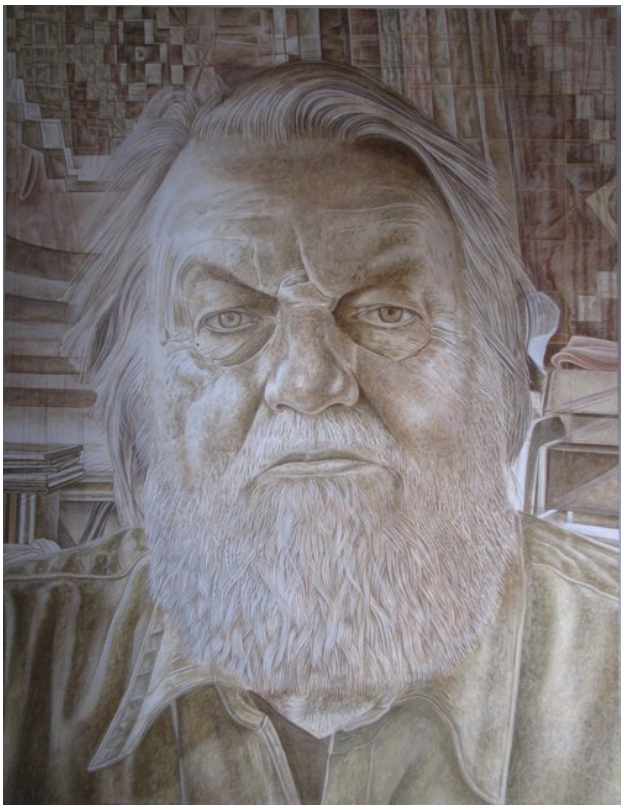
It isn't just the sculpture. There's a painting in progress which is about 4 feet high. It's currently unfinished but included in the website. Also, I'm starting some smaller canvases which are taking the format of construction instructions (like a model kit), but would be impossible to follow.



While it is first and foremost a sculpture of Robert Wyatt, the sculpture indirectly references the Lewis Chessmen and other Romanesque sculptures.

The main pieces in that chess set (king, queen and bishops) are all seated in heavy chairs. Instead of the swirling Celtic forms I will have machine-like cogs etc. and architectural forms. The original Lewis Chessmen are in the British Museum, so once I've finished some drawings which show how the sculptures will appear when the complex forms beneath the head are added I will put them in the website and then approach that museum.

I realize that it's a long shot but worth trying. "



Nous sommes impatients de découvrir le résultat final haut de quatre pieds et cogiterons des heures pour savoir ce qu'a bien pu glisser Robert Wyatt dans les trois cavités de sa boîte crânienne...

Une rétrospective des autres travaux de John

O'Rourke peut être consultée sur son site :

johnorourkeart.com

Sea Song

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Sea Song est sans doute le morceau de Robert Wyatt qui a suscité - et suscite encore - le plus de reprises discographiques. Sans compter tous les morceaux plus ou moins audibles, circulant sur YouTube, avec parfois de bonnes surprises, ici, ici, ici ou là par exemple...

J'ai pour ma part un faible pour cette version du trio Romano/Vignolo/Trotignon qui enregistra en 2006 cette version épatante couplée avec élégance au Crying Song de Pink Floyd.

Flower Power (2006) - NAIVE (NV810911)

0:00 / 6:56

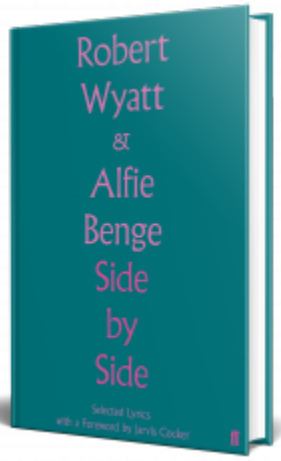
Sea Song / Crying Song

- Aldo Romano - batterie
- Rémi Vignolo - contrebasse
- Baptiste Trotignon - piano

Sea Song

Words & Music by Robert Wyatt

Robert Wyatt & Alfie Benge - Side by Side



ABÉCÉDAIRE

Robert Wyatt &
Alfie Benge
Side by Side

Selected Lyrics

Faber (2020)

Alors que je m'appretais à écrire un petit texte sur Side by Side, je découvre celui que Jean-Jacques Birgé a rédigé pour son blog et qu'il a intitulé Robert Wyatt & Alfie Benge, côte à côte. Je n'aurais pas su mieux exprimer mon admiration pour cet ouvrage qui nous fait revisiter une carrière à quatre mains qui dure depuis plus de quarante ans (Robert Wyatt a annoncé avoir pris sa retraite musicale mais il continue à collaborer à de nombreux projets. En octobre 2020, les albums de Mary Halvorson's Code Girl et de Lo'Jo bénéficient de sa précieuse collaboration).

Le recueil de textes de Robert Wyatt et Alfie Benge rend d'abord hommage à tout le travail de la muse du musicien anglais. Si elle est partout présente à commencer par le diptyque Alifib/Alife sur le disque Rock Bottom paru en 1974, Alfie est l'autrice des illustrations de toutes les pochettes et elle a écrit nombreuses paroles des chansons figurant sur la dizaine d'albums qui ont suivi et que nous écoutons avec des étoiles dans les yeux.

Ses petits croquis, ici en noir et blanc, accompagnent les textes et elle en profite pour commenter les sujets qui l'ont inspirée alors que Robert livre simplement les siens. Il y a dix ans, les paroles de quatre vingt chansons étaient déjà parues avec leur traduction française dans un luxueux ouvrage illustré par Jean-Michel Marchetti et rassemblant 5 tomes publiés depuis 1997. Les selected lyrics qui sortent aujourd'hui en anglais chez Faber sous le titre Side By Side représentent donc réellement le travail du couple, leur vie et leur engagement. Après une introduction de Jarvis Cocker (du groupe Pulp) et les préfaces des deux auteurs, les paroles, tant pataphysiciennes que politiques, de Robert Wyatt sont classées en trois parties, non chronologiques, tandis que celles d'Alfreda Benge s'intitulent Espagne, Oiseaux, Conflit, Amour et perte, Comptines aléatoires. L'ouvrage est donc précieux, les explications d'Alfie permettent de mieux comprendre leur collaboration, leur manière d'avancer ensemble, leur intérêt pour la politique internationale déjà explicite pour qui parle anglais. J'ignore si est prévue une traduction française. Ce n'est certainement pas simple au su de la quantité de jeux de mots, de néologismes et de raccourcis poétiques. Le choix de ne pas renvoyer les textes aux albums souligne l'importance du sens des paroles et des images, débarrassées de la voix bouleversante et sublime, à la fois haut perchée et zozotante, de Robert Wyatt.

Jean-Jacques Birgé

>> Le texte de J.J. Birgé sur Drame.org

Limited edition to 200 copies - signed by R. Wyatt & A. Benge and includes 4 x exclusive art prints.

Two hundred and ten copies of

SIDE BY SIDE

have been specially printed, hand bound and signed by the authors, and include four exclusive prints of artwork
by Alfie Benge

Two hundred copies numbered 1–200 are for sale

Ten copies numbered i–x are reserved for the authors

This is number 41

Robert Wyatt

Alfreda Benge

"Whenever an aspiring musician asks me about songwriting I point them towards Robert and Alfie. Their work is so unusual, so perceptive, so playful and so grownup. I don't think there's anyone to compare. If you want songs that touch your mind as well as your heart, these are the best. Wide distribution of this book could improve the state of music dramatically."

Brian Eno

The Duchess

Oh
My wife is tall and short
She won't do what she ought
She never lies, but then again
She lies down all day long

Oh
My wife is fat and thin
She's generous and mean
She's ———, and
Her secret's safe with me

Oh
My wife is old and young
So sweet with her poison tongue
On her evenings off she blackmails toffs
But her secret's safe with me

Oh
My wife is tall and short
She hangs out down the port
Says, 'Hello, sailor, how's your dad?'
But her secret's safe with me

Oh
My wife is sour and sweet
She dit dit dit delete
She's la la la la-di-da, butter
Secret's safe with me

[87]

Print Run

New music books

Side By Side: Selected Lyrics
Robert Wyatt & Alfie Benge
Faber & Faber Hbk 204pp

Side By Side is a beautiful testament to Robert Wyatt and Alfie Benge's relationship, both as husband and wife, and as artistic collaborators. Featuring paintings and sketches alongside the lyrics, this is a much richer experience than your standard lyrics collection. Benge, writes Wyatt in his introduction, is "at the heart of everything I've done since the mid-1970s... We live and work side by side." Her artwork gave Wyatt's solo albums their visual identity, and from 1982 onwards, she contributed many of the lyrics for his songs.

Fittingly, Wyatt's career as a singer-songwriter is bookended by two of the great relationship songs, "Sea Song" and "Just As You Are". The former, from 1974's Rock Bottom, is a declaration of love that's all the more moving for its honesty. Wyatt begins with a dreamlike vision of Alfie as a sea creature, "partly fish, partly porpoise, partly baby sperm whale". She astonishes him, but a note of uncertainly creeps in as he struggles to reconcile the romantic ideal with the everyday reality of a relationship: "I can't understand the different you, in the morning when it's time to play at being human for a while". Yet he knows that their love is worth it, telling Alfie, "Your madness fits in nicely with my own".

Benge's "Just As You Are", from 2007's Comicopera, was written when Wyatt's drinking had become a serious problem. As she writes, "I was unsure if I could put up with life with a permanent drunk." In her part of the song, voiced on the record by Monica Vasconcelos, Benge wonders whether she should leave Wyatt or accept his flaws. She adds a response from Wyatt's perspective, in which he acknowledges his addiction while reiterating his unconditional love. There's no pat resolution, but Wyatt sought help and has been sober for many years.

These songs are snapshots of an ongoing conversation. Benge responds to "Sea Song" with a cartoon strip. His "alcodelic dreamscapes" are affectionately transplanted to the domestic realm, with the couple sitting in the bath and staring out of windows. This isn't to suggest that Benge is the realist to Wyatt's surrealist - her Rock Bottom artwork realises his aquatic visions in teeming seabeds and swimmers who vibrate with colour. While her lyrics are more observational, they have an imagist charge suggestive of William Carlos Williams at his most empathetic. Take "December", with its Senegalese trinket seller roaming Spanish beaches to make money to send back home. On one level it's a simple human story, yet it's deeply informed by Benge and Wyatt's socialism and internationalism.

Wyatt's political songs of the 1980s remain remarkably pertinent. We're living with the consequences of the neoliberal individualism he skewers in "The Age Of Self", and the American imperialism he depicts in "Amber & The Amberines". His and Benge's War On Terror era songs are equally powerful, from the chilling "Out Of The Blue" to the deeply touching "Lullaby For Hamza". These songs bear witness and express solidarity - they never patronise or hector. They're also beautiful works of art, embodying Brecht's motto: "In the dark times, will there also be singing? Yes, there will also be singing. About the dark times."

Stewart Smith

WIRE

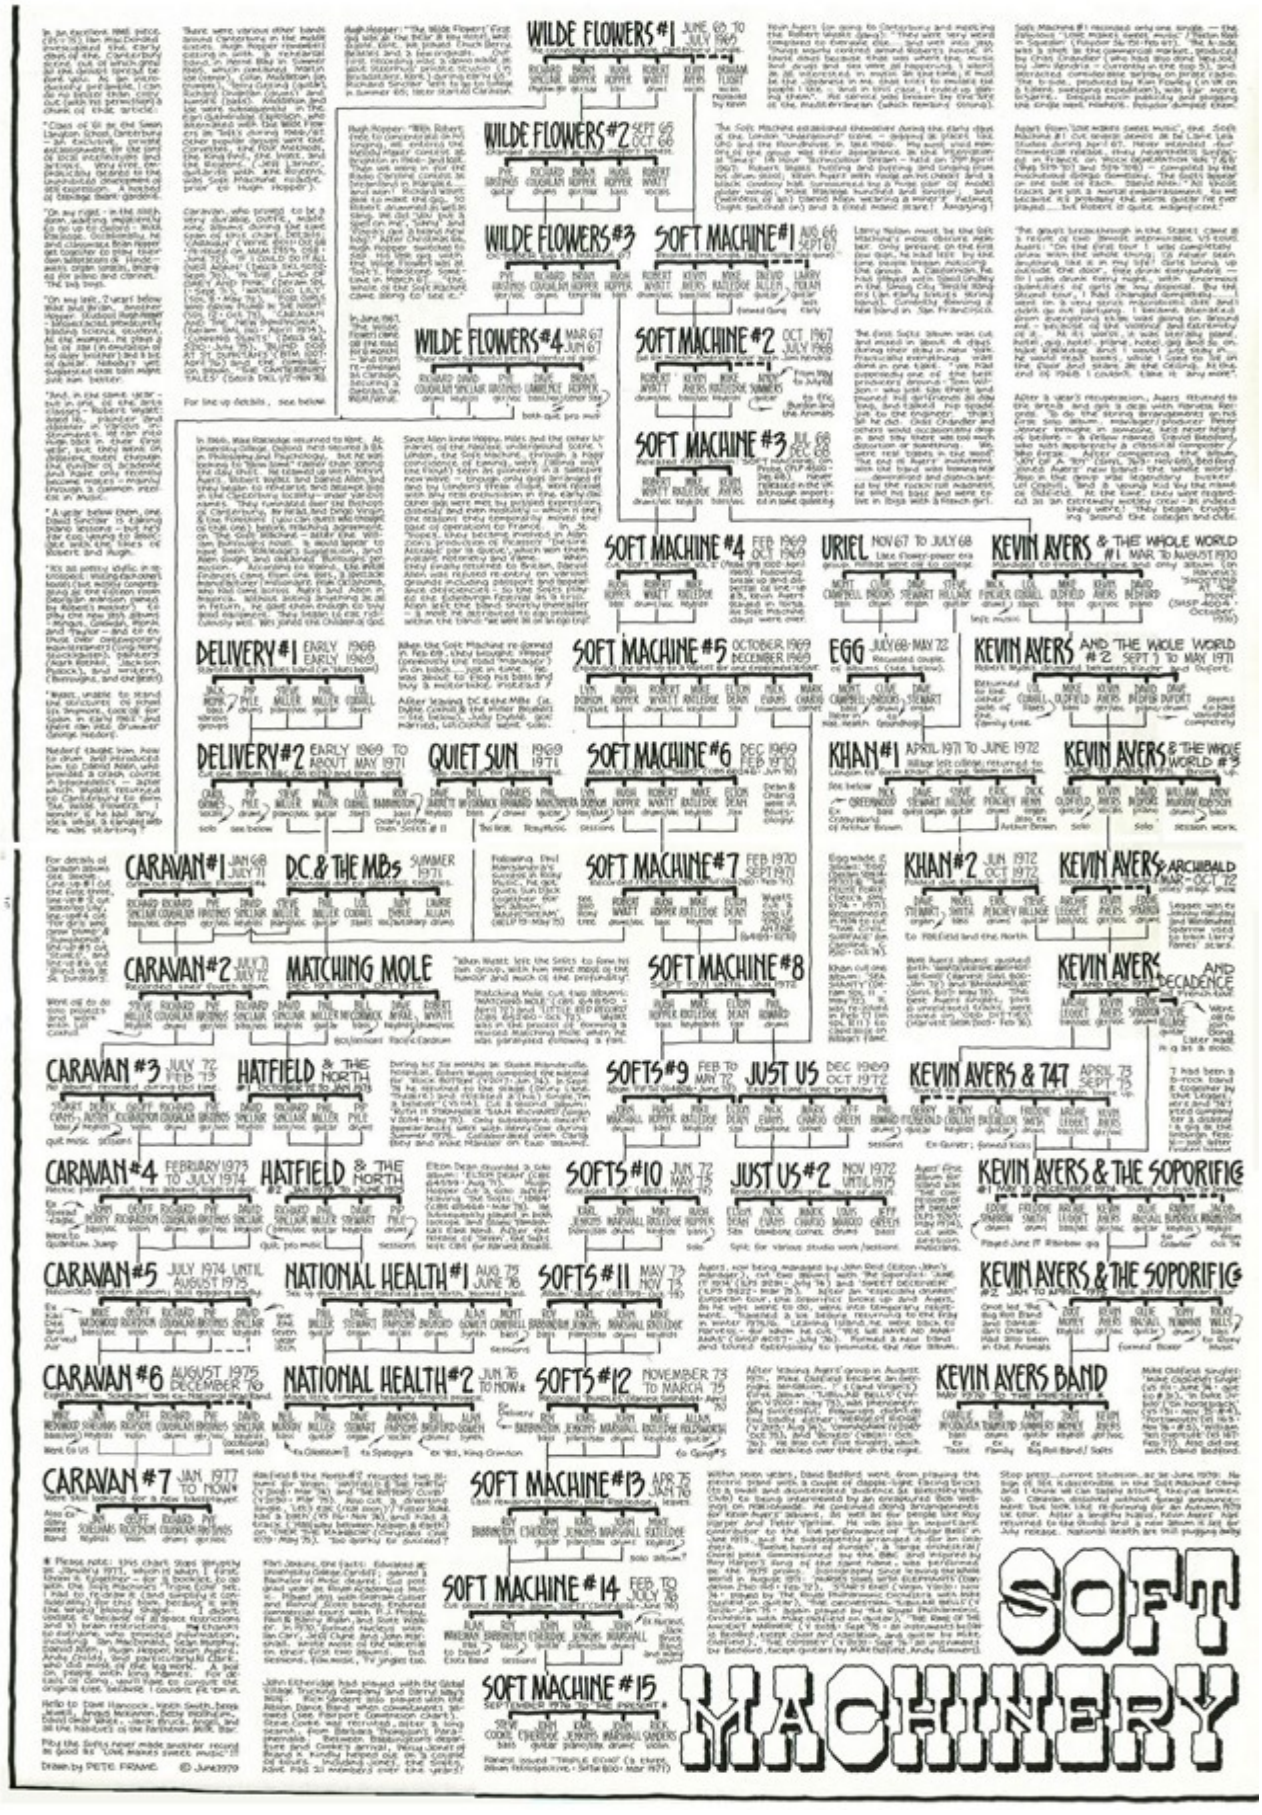
To order Side by Side on ROUGH TRADE shop.

Soft Machine Family Tree

ABÉCÉDAIRE

On trouve de nombreux arbres généalogiques de la famille Soft Machine sur internet...

Tous proviennent, s'inspirent ou copient les arbres de Pete Frame qui publia en 1972 le premier arbre généalogique d'un groupe de rock (Al Kooper).



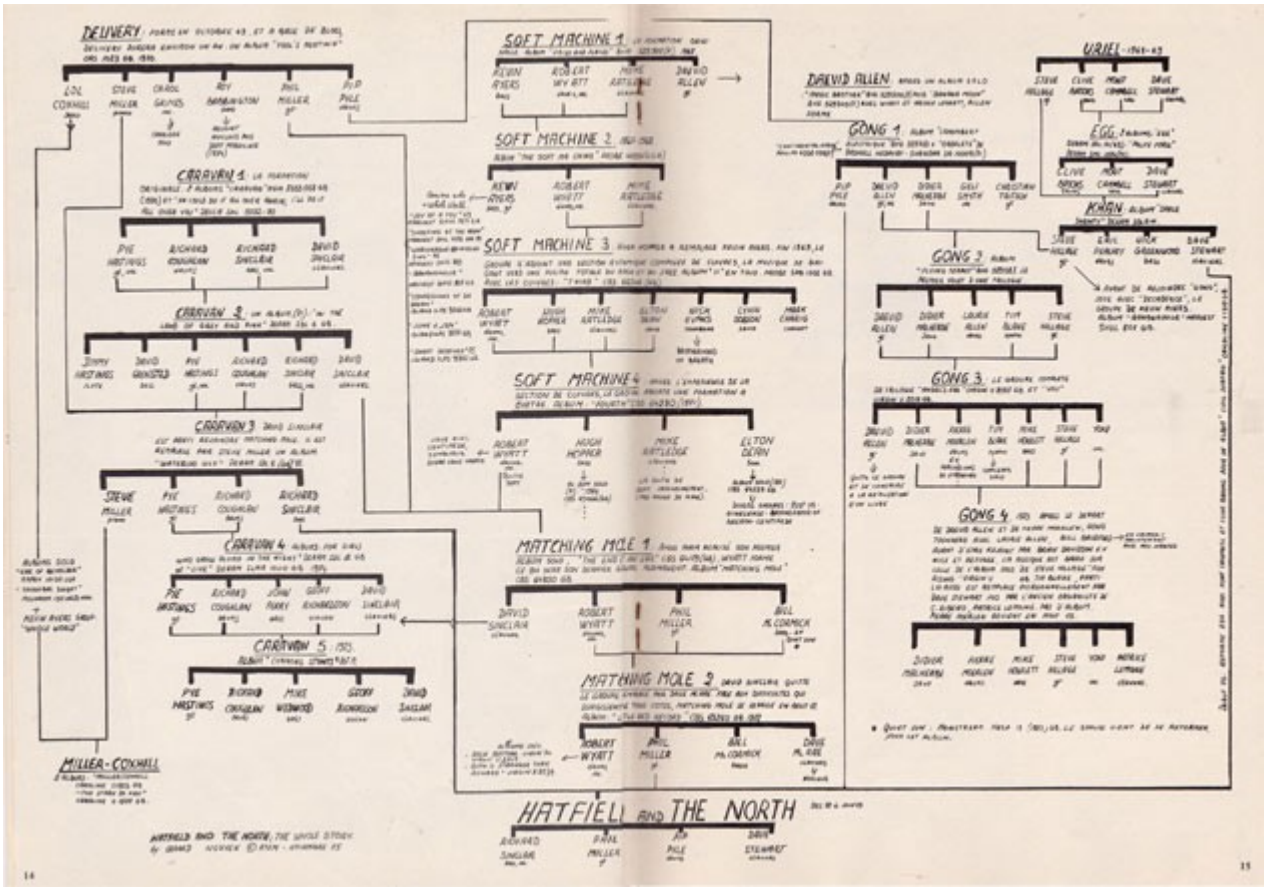
De groupes en groupes, les arbres se sont multipliés, croisés, interpénétrés aux confins du rock, du blues et de la pop...

Trois ouvrages de référence : The Complete Rock Family Trees (Omnibus Press 1993), More Rock Family Trees (Omnibus Press 1998) et Even More Rock Family Trees (Omnibus Press 2011) permettront aux amateurs courageux de retrouver leurs petits dans le labyrinthe de la horde catalytique sans fin du rock'n'roll.

L'arbre généalogique de la famille Soft Machine (que d'aucuns nommeront Ecole de Canterbury) est publié dans le premier volume The Complete Rock Family Trees sous le titre bien vu de Soft Machinery, juste avant celui de Crosby Stills Nash and Young et juste après Resolving The Faiport Confusion !

Mais on l'avait découvert en 1977 sous la forme d'un grand poster jaune accompagnant le Triple Echo de Soft Machine.

Le troisième arbre ci-dessous a été publié dans le premier numéro du magazine Atem paru en décembre 1975.



> Zoom

Pete Frame - Soft Machinery (The Complete Rock Family Trees)

> Zoom

(in Triple Echo - Soft Machine)

> Zoom

Atem n° 1 - 1975

SOFT MACHINE GENERATIONS (1966-1971)

Dans son ouvrage SOFT MACHINE Out-Bloody-Rageous, Graham Bennett répertorie les différentes formations du groupe, de ses débuts en 1966 jusqu'à la 24ème version, date de sa fin "officielle" en 1984.

Les tableaux ci-dessous récapitulent les différentes formations jusqu'au départ de Robert Wyatt en août 1971.

Soft Machine 1 August-September 1966
Mike Ratllege	Kevin Ayers	Robert Wyatt	Daevid Allen	Larry Nowlin
Organ	Bass Vocals	Drums Vocals	Guitar Vocals	Guitar

No recordings available

Soft Machine 2 September 1966-August 1967
Mike Ratllege	Kevin Ayers	Robert Wyatt	Daevid Allen
Organ	Bass Vocals	Drums Vocals	Guitar Vocals

Recordings available on :Triple Echo (demos), Soft Machine (demos), Jet-Propelled Photographs (demos), Soft Machine Turns On Volume 1 (demos & Live)

Soft Machine 3 August 1967-May 1968
Mike Ratllege	Kevin Ayers	Robert Wyatt
Organ	Bass Vocals	Drums Vocals

Recordings available on : Soft Machine (live), "Love Makes Sweet Music"/"Feelin' Reelin' Squeelin" (single), Soft Machine Turns On Volume 1 (live), Soft Machine Turns On Volume 2 (live), BBC Radio 1967-1971 (live), The Soft Machine

Soft Machine 4
May-August 1968

Mike Ratllege	Kevin Ayers	Robert Wyatt	Andy Summers
Organ	Bass Vocals	Drums Vocals	Guitar

No recordings available

Soft Machine 5
August-September 1968

Mike Ratllege	Kevin Ayers	Robert Wyatt
Organ	Bass Vocals	Drums Vocals

Recordings available on : Soft Machine Turns On Volume 2 (live)

Soft Machine 6
December 1968-May 1969

Mike Ratllege	Hugh Hopper	Robert Wyatt
Organ	Bass	Drums Vocals

Recordings available on : Volume Two, Soft Machine (live), Backwards (demo)

Soft Machine 7
May-October 1969

Mike Ratllege	Hugh Hopper	Robert Wyatt	Brian Hopper
Organ	Bass	Drums Vocals	Saxes

Recordings available on : Spaced (soundtrack), Triple Echo (live), The Peel Sessions (live), BBC Radio 1967-1971 (live)

Soft Machine 8
October-December 1969

Mike Ratllege	Hugh Hopper	Robert Wyatt	Elton Dean	Lyn Dobson	Marc Charig	Nick Evans
Organ Piano	Bass	Drums Vocals	Alto sax Saxello	Saxes Flute	Cornet	Trombone

Recordings available on : The Peel Sessions (live), Backwards (live), BBC Radio 1967-1971 (live)

Soft Machine 9

December 1969-March 1970
Mike Ratllege	Hugh Hopper	Robert Wyatt	Elton Dean	Lyn Dobson
Organ Piano	Bass Vocals	Drums	Alto sax Saxello	Saxes Flute

Recordings available on : Third (live), Noisette (live), Breda Reactor (live), Live 1970 (live)

Soft Machine 10 March 1970-August 1971
Mike Ratllege	Hugh Hopper	Robert Wyatt	Elton Dean
Organ Piano	Bass	Drums	Alto sax Saxello & Piano

Recordings available on : Third (live), Somewhere in Soho (live), Facelift (live), The Peel Sessions (live), Backwards (live), Live at the Proms 1970 (live), BBC Radio 1967-1971 (live), Fourth, Virtually (live)

Stampa Alternativa

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Chairman Mao

Robert Wyatt, édité par Stampa Alternativa en 1987, est une publication italienne de 95 pages, vendue avec un 45T de vinyl rouge enregistré sur une seule face (Chairman Mao, une reprise d'un morceau de Charlie Haden paru 1977 sur l'album Old And New Dreams).

Biographie et long interview en italien dans lequel R.W. s'explique sur sa démarche créative mais aussi sur ses engagements politiques explicites. Discographie officielle et pirates, lyrics (paroles en anglais avec traduction italienne de plus d'une trentaine de morceaux), illustrations photographiques (portraits d'Alfreda Benge, Robert Wyatt, Che Guevara, Fidel Castro, affiche anti-impérialiste...). La rondelle du petit disque rouge est illustrée par un portrait de Mao Ze Dong.

> Zoom 1 2

Sweet Memories - Anaïd

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Sweet Memories [Hugh Hopper/R. Wyatt] - Anaïd at Le Triton - 2024

(mixé par Alexis Lacaze - enregistré au Triton par Jules Ferroul)

Lorsque le groupe Anaïd enregistre avec Hugh Hopper l'album Belladonna en 1989 , ses fondateurs - Emmanuelle Lionet (chant) et Jean-Max Delva (batterie) - ne se doutent sans doute pas qu'ils joueront sur scène 35 ans plus tard le morceau Sweet Memories que l'ancien bassiste de Soft Machine leur a confié avec un texte écrit par Robert Wyatt. Celui-ci réécrira par la suite un nouveau texte en lui donnant un autre titre : Was A Friend.

La composition du groupe qui se présente en septet ce 23 mars 2024 au Triton a bien changé. Lorsque Anaïd reprend Sweet Memories, c'est avec Sophia Domancich au piano Fender et complice des premiers jours qui participa à l'album Four Years paru en 1991.

La magie de ce morceau est toujours présente, comme un fil rouge qui nous relie à un temps retrouvé.

Belladonna 1989)

- Emmanuelle Lionet - chant, voix
- Jean-Max Delva - batterie, piano
- Sophia Domancich - piano Fender
- Enguerrand Dufour - trompette, basse
- Alexis Delva : guitare
- Sébastien Husson - basse
- Théo Ferrari - saxophone, batterie

Anaïd - version 2024

- La page Facebook d'Anaïd
- Le site web
- La partition de Sweet Memories

Ten songs that saved your life

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Une très belle idée proposée par le site tensongsthatsavedyourlife.com aujourd'hui disparu.

ten songs that saved your life

Categories Archives About Search

ROBERT WYATT

01. LES DOUBLE SIX sweets
02. LES DOUBLE SIX naima
03. LES DOUBLE SIX westwood walk
04. LES DOUBLE SIX a night in tunisia
05. LES DOUBLE SIX a ballad
06. LES DOUBLE SIX scrapple from the apple
07. LES DOUBLE SIX boplicity
08. LES DOUBLE SIX moanin'
09. LES DOUBLE SIX fascinating ryhtm
10. LES DOUBLE SIX walkin' (un tour au bois)

" to emphasise their importance, i'm suggesting ten tracks from one record: LES DOUBLE SIX (on bmg france/rcaVictor) i leave them in the correct sequence . These are on ac cd re-issue of two original lps. the rhythm sections include daniel humair [drums] and georges avanitas [piano].

mimi perrin and her friends digested what was already great instrumental music and found the human voice inside. it had been done before and has been done since.but les double six,with their comprehensive thoroughness, epitomise this craft at its inspiring (to me) peak.

i know perfectly well that younger people will find my list anachronistic: but it illustrates that fifty years ago, before Lennon et all the cultural cross-traffic between england and the continent was a much more two-way traffic. some of us turned at least as much to paris as to the united states,for example . . . . .(particularly in art and philosophy of course).

(clint eastwood once said the united states had made but two real contributions to world culture: [western] films and jazz.[actually his son kyle is a very good jazz musician i think-] but since other countries have produced films at least as excellent as the u.s., that just leaves jazz ! anyway. . . .i just wanted to remind myself of the brilliant inspiration that was mimi p – - - it's not just nostalgia[though that's part of it of course]- i am still stunned by 6+6's disciplined chutzpa!

Salam! robert Y@ "

disciplined chutzpa!

The Official Robert Wyatt Fan Club Song

ABÉCÉDAIRE

THE OFFICIAL ROBERT WYATT FAN CLUB SONG

Words & music: Karen Mantler Editions Grog Kill Music

0:00 / 4:16

THE OFFICIAL ROBERT WYATT FAN CLUB SONG (LIVE AT CHARLEVILLE-MEZIERES) [1,70 Mo]

Chanson écrite pour la Création le 8 novembre 2003 de "Dedicated to You, Variations sur la Musique de Robert Wyatt" commandée par Charleville Action Jazz à John Greaves, Sylvain Kassap, Hélène Labarrière, Jacques Mahieux, Dominique Pifarély et Karen Mantler.

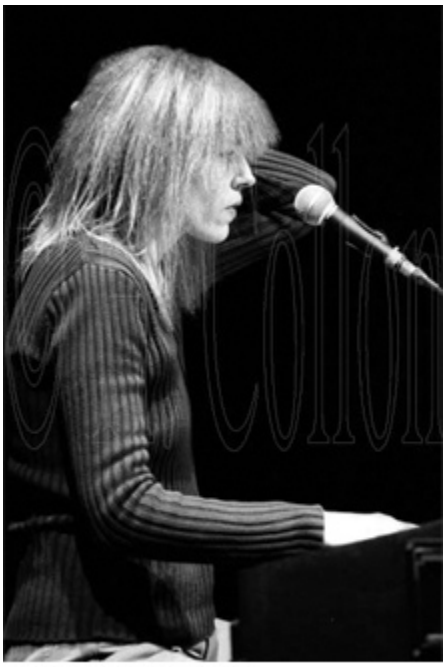

PHOTO © HÉLÈNE COLLON

> Zoom

> Zoom

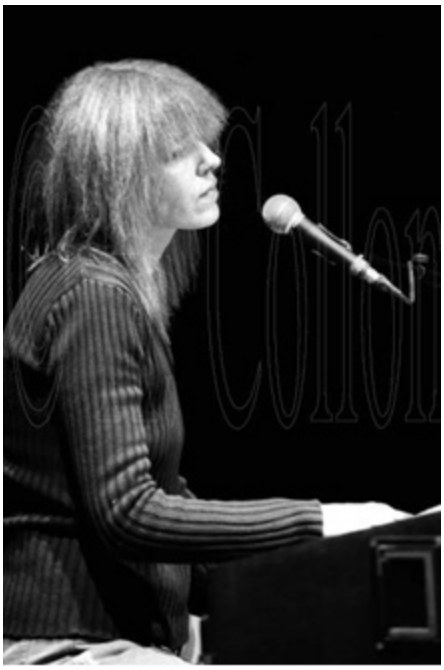

PHOTO © HÉLÈNE COLLON

> Zoom

PHOTO HÉLÈNE COLLON

> Zoom

Co-production Charleville Action Jazz/Théâtre de Charleville-Mézières/LMD Productions

Enregistré au Théâtre de Charleville-Mézières le 8 Novembre 2003 par Jacques Laville.

Remerciements à :

Karen Mantler pour nous avoir autorisé à mettre en ligne cette superbe chanson, et à en publier la partition.

John Greaves, Sylvain Kassap, Hélène Labarrière, Jacques Mahieux, Dominique Pifarély pour leur accord.

Charleville Action Jazz pour nous avoir communiqué le fichier mp3

Hélène Collon / Vues sur Scènes pour les magnifiques photos du concert de Créteil

Pour plus d'informations sur Karen Mantler: http://www.wattxtrawatt.com

Plus d'infos sur le concert de Charleville-Mézières

LOIN DE LA MER
Stan Cuesta

Stan Cuesta by Guillaume Bonnefon

La musique a gâché ma vie réunit une douzaine de nouvelles de Stan Cuesta sur son enfance et sa jeunesse au prisme de la musique qui envahit peu à peu tout son univers mental. Dans l'une d'elle, Loin de la mer, il évoque sa relation passionnelle avec Rock Bottom, jusqu'au jour où il rencontrera en personne Robert Wyatt de passage à Paris...

[...] Rock Bottom, je ne peux l'écouter que seul. Pour la bonne raison que le premier titre, « Sea Song», me fait pleurer. Réellement. C'est automatique, physique. Dès les premiers mots. À tous les coups. Même longtemps après l'avoir entendu pour la première fois.

Cette « chanson de la mer » est une plongée dans les abysses. Tout l'album, en fait: «To hit rock bottom», c'est «toucher le fond», «être au plus bas». Une étrange déclaration d'amour, probablement écrite pour Alfie, sa femme. C'est elle qui, justement, dessine les fonds sous-marins de la pochette : «You look different every time / You come from the foam crested brine / Your skin shining softly in the Moonlight» (Tu sembles différente à chaque fois / Tu viens de l'écume mousseuse de la mer / Ta peau brillant doucement au / Clair de lune). Il la compare à un animal sous-marin, «Une bête qui change selon les saisons / Comme l'étoile de mer qui dérive/Avec la marée.»

Je plonge avec lui dans cette mer sombre et inquiétante. Peut-être que parfois je pense à un autre animal marin, une femme qui nageait pour oublier, sans cesse, partout. Pour oublier son passé, son malheur. Sauf qu'elle ne s'était pas arrêtée de nager pour moi. De la plage, je la regardais aller et venir dans la baie d'une île grecque, un kilomètre, deux, trois... Pour ce que j'en sais, elle nage toujours. Mais je ne suis plus assis sur le sable à l'attendre. Je suis assis dans mon fauteuil défoncé, loin de la mer.

Pourtant, « Sea Song » me bouleversait déjà bien avant, à une époque où je n'en comprenais pas les paroles, où je ne m'en souciais même pas. La seule voix de Robert Wyatt suffisait à me faire toucher le fond.

Je n'avais pas découvert cet album quand il était sorti, mais presque dix ans plus tard, au début des années quatre-vingt. Je faisais des études. Des études chiantes, longues, difficiles et qui ne m'intéressaient pas. C'était une école d'ingénieurs, loin de Paris, sur un plateau désert battu par les vents. Pas de commerces, pas de café, pas de journal, rien. Un parking (je n'avais ni voiture ni permis), des champs de maïs à perte de vue, et l'autoroute à l'horizon. J'étais logé sur place, dans une espèce de cube moche et sale, à cent mètres de l'école.

On était deux par appartement. L'autre, on l'appelait le « copiaule ». Le mien puait des pieds, il était breton. Je ne sais pas si ça a un rapport, je ne pense pas. C'était le mec qui puait le plus des pieds de toute l'école - plusieurs centaines d'élèves. Un cauchemar. Il n'était pas méchant, juste demeuré, comme la plupart des élèves ingénieurs. Salle de bains commune et cloison en papier entre les deux piaules sinistres. C'était la première année, avant que je ne m'enfuie et que je ne rentre tous les jours à Paris. Plus tard, je n'irai même plus en cours. Mais à l'hiver 1983, je suppose que j'y allais encore. Pour tenir le coup, j'avais ramené un vieil électrophone en ruine, fait de bric et de broc, pièces disjointes récupérées à droite et à gauche. Tout le monde avait des radiocassettes à cette époque. Mais moi, j'avais besoin de vinyle. Ça n'a pas duré longtemps, l'engin a très vite lâché, ou moi, ou les deux... Je ne me souviens que d'un disque, ce Rock Bottom que je venais de découvrir, probablement en l'achetant, un peu par hasard, d'occasion, comme souvent.

Les cours commençaient à neuf heures. Il neigeait, il gelait, il fallait se lever dans le froid, puis marcher dans le blizzard pour aller écouter pendant des heures des mecs sinistres en costard nous assommer avec des trucs du genre électrotechnique, électronique, informatique, je ne sais quoi, ça ne m'intéressait pas, ça ne m'a jamais intéressé, je m'en foutais, je trichais aux épreuves. Tout le monde trichait, tout le monde avait la moyenne. Toujours.

Ce qui est dur, c'est de rentrer dans ces écoles. Une fois qu'on y est, on en sort avec le diplôme, même si on n'y a rien fait : j'en suis la preuve vivante. L'élite de la nation. Pour la plupart, une bande de puceaux débiles, laids et ricaneurs. Les futurs dirigeants de la France. Pour se faire virer, ou même pour redoubler, il faut mettre le paquet. Ce qui veut dire, en gros, se droguer (et faire une overdose), être alcoolique au dernier degré, se suicider, mettre le feu à l'école ou assassiner un enseignant. En dessous de ce niveau, ça passe.

Donc, mon réveil sonnait vers huit heures, clic, j'envoyais Rock Bottom. Je restais couché, il faisait très froid, sombre, du givre et de la neige par la fenêtre et, en point de mire, la perspective de passer une journée - puis une vie entière - atroce. J'étais totalement démoralisé. Bref, j'étais mûr pour cet album. Je pleurais un bon coup. Ensuite, ça n'allait pas mieux du tout, évidemment. Mais je me sentais un peu moins seul. Le mec qui avait écrit ces chansons, joué cette musique et qui chantait avec cette voix tellement émouvante ne pouvait être qu'un collègue...

De quoi me plaignais-je finalement ? Lui était en chaise roulante pour le restant de ses jours après être tombé d'une fenêtre, dans des circonstances troubles, dix ans plus tôt. D'ailleurs, ces chansons, il les avait écrites sur son lit d'hôpital.

Quelques années plus tard, je traînais avec un groupe vaguement à la mode. On faisait la tournée des plages, boîtes de nuit, play-back complet, la grande arnaque, n'importe quoi. Le chanteur n'était pas très à l'aise dans son rôle d'icône pop à l'assaut du Top 50. En fait, il aimait Rock Bottom et plein d'autres choses comme ça. Ça nous rapprochait. Je nous revois, en Corse, au bord de la mer, en plein soleil, complètement décalés, avec en bande-son un truc atroce dégoulinant de synthétiseurs, et lui qui s'esclaffait, comme toujours, en me disant: «Ah ouais, toi t'aimes que la musique triste» (sous-entendu « t'es comme moi »). On parlait de « l'album le plus triste du monde ». On rigolait bien. À notre façon. C'était un code entre nous, comme ça l'a été par la suite avec nombre de musiciens que j'ai connus qui adoraient ce disque, une sorte de mot de passe entre misanthropes, râleurs et autres mauvais coucheurs, de Pascal Comelade à Jean-Louis Murat.

Ce dernier, je l'ai retrouvé un beau jour dans un hôtel chic parisien. Il venait interviewer Robert Wyatt pour un magazine télé catholique de gauche, excité comme un gosse. J'attendais qu'il ait fini, car j'étais le suivant sur la liste, venu moi aussi rencontrer la légende - pour Rock & Folk - et tout aussi heureux de le faire. Un des plus beaux jours de ma vie, probablement, dont le souvenir est à la fois flou et vivace. Il me semble qu'on n'a quasiment pas parlé de Rock Bottom, ni de « Sea Song» ni de chansons tristes. Wyatt était très sympa, très gai, très drôle.

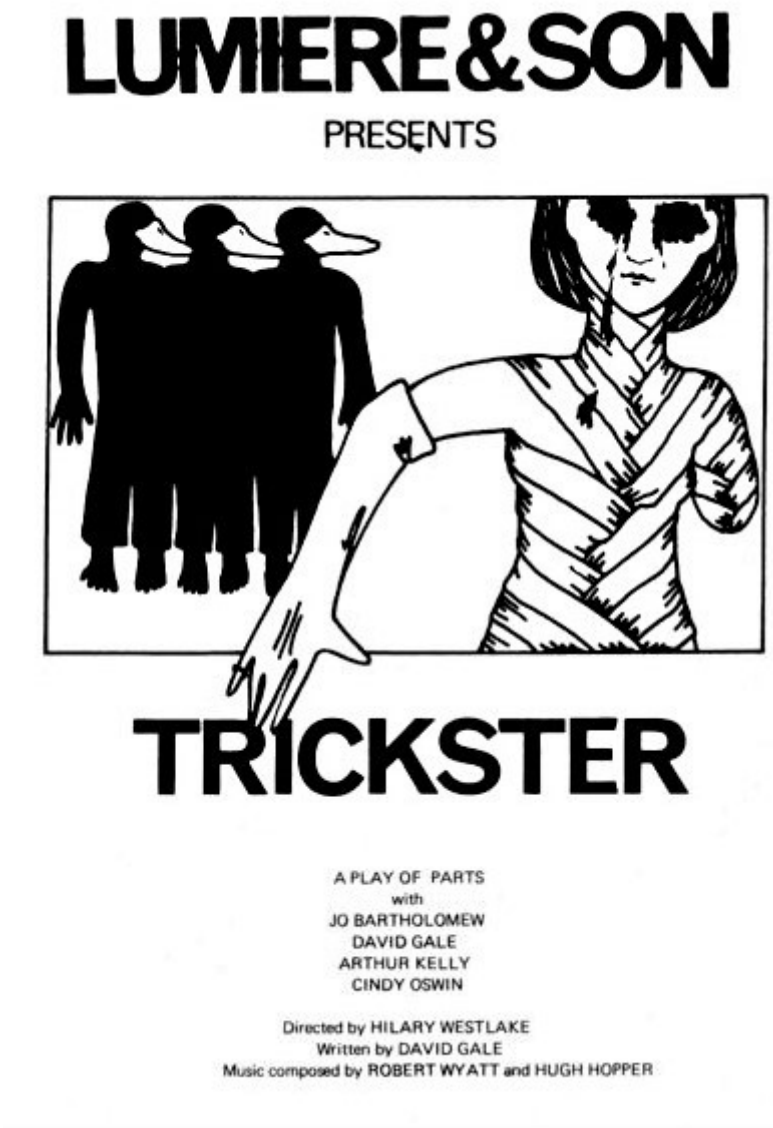
Je m'extrais du fauteuil, allume une autre cigarette, change de disque. Et j'ai un flash. Il n'y avait pas que des cons. Parfois un gars sortait du lot. Un par classe, pas plus. Ça me revient d'un coup, dès les premières notes de cet album que je n'avais pas écouté depuis une éternité : la réédition du premier Matching Mole que je viens enfin d'acheter en CD après l'avoir eu en K7, puis en vinyle, toujours avec une bonne dizaine d'années de retard. Matching Mole, c'était le groupe de Wyatt après Soft Machine - d'où le jeu de mots phonétique en français sur le nom - et avant l'accident.



En math sup, la première année de classe préparatoire, la pire, à Jean-Baptiste-Say, il y avait ce mec dont j'ai oublié le nom, une sorte de baba beau gosse. On était en 1979. C'était l'année la plus déprimante parce que j'étais toujours dans le même lycée, et que plein de potes étaient toujours là, un ou deux ans derrière moi, en terminale ou en première, et continuaient à faire ce que je faisais l'année d'avant avec eux, c'est-à-dire de la musique, la seule chose qui m'intéressait vraiment, alors que moi, je ne pouvais plus suivre, à cause de ces études pourries. C'est à ce moment-là que j'ai raté ma vie pour la première fois.

Bref, ce beau mec aux longs cheveux blonds, grand, bronzé, probablement riche, s'est révélé être un fan absolu de Matching Mole et en particulier du bassiste, Bill McCormick. Ça ne s'invente pas... Je ne sais plus comment on en était venus à parler de ça, parce qu'en général, les conversations, c'était plutôt interro de maths, colle de physique, etc. Probablement une neurasthénie commune. Aujourd'hui, en réécoutant la voix déchirante de Wyatt sur « O Caroline » et « Signed Curtain », je repense à lui et je voudrais lui dédier ces quelques lignes... Après des petites vacances, je ne sais plus lesquelles, il n'était plus là. Un prof a fini par nous dire qu'il était mort dans un accident de la route, avec toute sa famille.

Je ne retrouverai jamais son nom, je n'ai aucun autre souvenir de cette époque, je ne m'étais fait aucun autre ami dans cette classe. Même lui, je l'avais oublié. Eh, machin, là-haut, je pense à toi ! Et ouais, Bill McCormick était un sacré bassiste.

Le mystère Trickster

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Cette affiche attire immédiatement l'attention avec cette mention à la dernière ligne qu'aucun biographe ou journaliste n'avait jusqu'à présent relevée : "Music composed by ROBERT WYATT and HUGH HOPPER" !

Nous sommes en 1974, Robert Wyatt travaille encore sur Rock Bottom qui sortira le 26 juillet. David Gale invite Robert Wyatt à composer la musique de la prochaine pièce du collectif LUMIERE & SON qui mettra en scène le Trickster, figure mythique ancestrale des populations amérindiennes.

David Gale, jeune dramaturge et ami d'Alfie, connait bien Robert Wyatt pour qui il a rédigé le texte délirant du verso de la pochette de Little Red Record. De son côté, Robert a vivement apprécié la précédente pièce de LUMIERE & SON Jack....The Flame! qu'il est allé voir quelques semaines plus tôt au Bush Theatre.

La troupe a été créée l'année précédente par David Gale et Hilary Westlake et elle a déjà trois pièces à son actif. La critique et le public sont sous le charme : "'Visually extraordinary, the show presents a collage of surreal images that have the frightening, funny, and inconsequential qualities of forgotten dreams. Lumiere & Son often succeed in finding something new and unique.' (John Ford on Jack…The Flames! Time Out)"

La toute première pièce fut une performance réalisée le 21 octobre 1973 à l'occasion du concert d'Henry Cow au Rainbow Theatre. Tip Top Condition, la seconde pièce, fut créée début 1974 avec une bande-son composée par Lindsay Cooper.

Trickster sera la quatrième pièce. toujours écrite par David Gale et montée par Hilary Westlake.

"Westlake and Gale found an ideal vehicle for their preoccupation with psychic disinhibition in the folklore of the Trickster figure, a study of which informed the riotous vulgarity of the eponymous play (1974) featuring the comic performance of the late Eiji Kusuhara as well as an array of characters portraying well known and, in many cultures, normally concealed, body parts".

Directed by HILARY WESTLAKE
Written by DAVID GALE
Music composed by ROBERT WYATT and HUGH HOPPER

Trickster

Dans le communiqué diffusé à la presse, la participation de Robert Wyatt est largement évoquée :

"Robert Wyatt writes music for Lumiere & Son's new show.
The Trickster is a figure from ancient North American Indian myth. tales of his exploits were regularly recounted by story-tellers to provide an antidote to the often stiflingly rigid structures of tribal society. Trickster is innocent yet diabolic. His mind is so unformed that his right hand will attack his left hand with a knife. He carries his penis in a box at his back and can change it into useful plants at will. He can assume animal form and converse with trees. While at one moment he is depicted as the protector of his family, the next he will kill off small children in order to satisfy his constant and voracious hunger. He is wild, amoral, bi-sexual and unconscious. Trickster is an old as the hills - he stands as the ancestor of the jester, the fool, the clown and Punch. Jung saw him as : 'an absolutely undifferenciated human consciousness, corresponding to a psyche that has hardly left the animal level... In picaresque tales, in carnivals and revels, in sacred and magical rites, in man's religious fears and exaltations, the phantom of The Trickster haunts the mythology of all ages... He is both sub-human ad super-human, a bestial and divine being whose chief and most alarming characteristic is in his unconsciousness.' Lumiere & Son have adapted the myth into a flexible performance piece in which the elements of farce, anarchy, absurd sexuality, surreal shape-shifting, clowning, idiocy, malice, benevolence and vulgarity are retained intact. The piece ranges from the burlesque to the ceremonial and clearly demonstrates the continuing relevance of this ambiguous figure to our understanding of our own experience in a society where taboos are still strong and demanding. Lumiere & Son are joined by Robert Wyatt in their new project, Long-time drummer, vocalist, lyricist and composer with the Soft Machine, are honourary member of the College of Pataphysicians, founder of his own band Matching Mole, and currently working on a new solo album for Virgin records, Robert Wyatt is composing a tape score to accompany performance of The Trickster. He became involved with the company after being impressed with their recent appearance at the Bush Theatre. "

Download the press release (pdf)

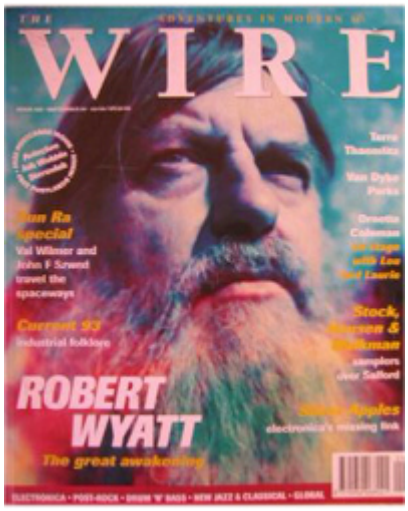
A ce stade, les questions affluent : que composa Robert Wyatt pour Trickster ? Des traces de ce travail ont-elles été conservées? Quelle fut la participation de Hugh Hopper ?

Malheureusement, l'affaire se corse... Hilary Westlake m'a confirmé la participation de Robert Wyatt au projet mais ne peut guère m'en dire plus:

"I contacted another one of the cast and she recalled Robert doing the music and coming to some rehearsals. In the second version, the programme of which I have, John Mitchell has the music credit but apparently he arranged Roberts.

However, none of us have any recollection about Hugh Hopper or indeed what the music was. "

Un peu plus tard, elle me précisera :

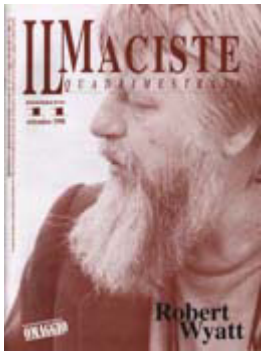


"If anyone had the Trickster tape, it would be me, and I don't have it. John Mitchell, who arranged Robert's music, died a few years ago so I can't ask him what he might have happened to the tape. In the 70s and 80s there wasn't much consciousness about archiving and as we didn't repeat shows, we wouldn't have guarded the tape for future use. That show wasn't videoed so we can't get any inkling of the track from that."

"I could imagine that Robert might not even recall doing the show. It would have been a small job for him probably in a sea of projects."

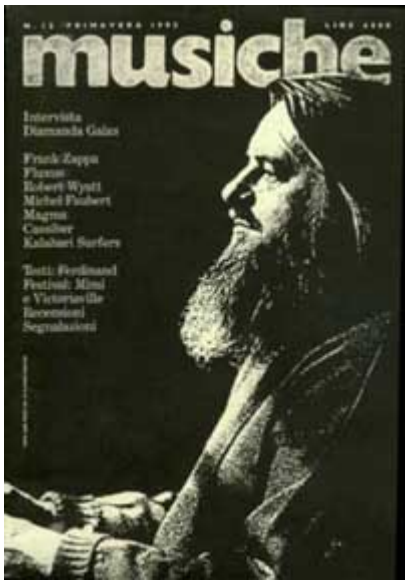
Le mystère Trickster reste donc presque entier... Peut-être Robert Wyatt pourra-t-il un jour nous éclairer sur cet épisode méconnu de sa carrière ?

A moins que ce ne soit le Trickster lui-même qui veille à ce que le plus grand flou demeure sur cet évènement afin de ne pas provoquer des Dieux trop susceptibles...

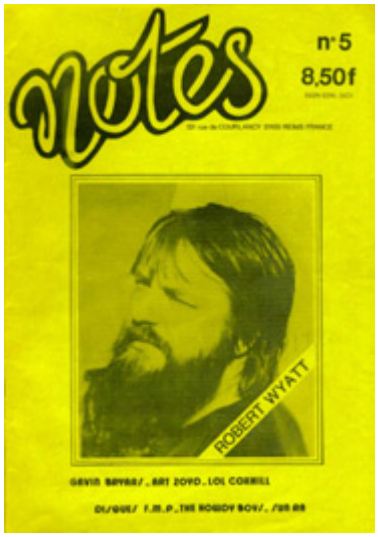


Robert Wyatt à la Une ! Quelques exemples glanés au fil des kiosques...

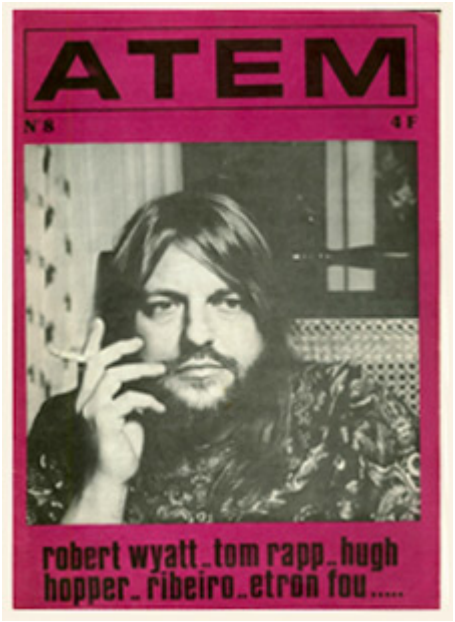
September 1997



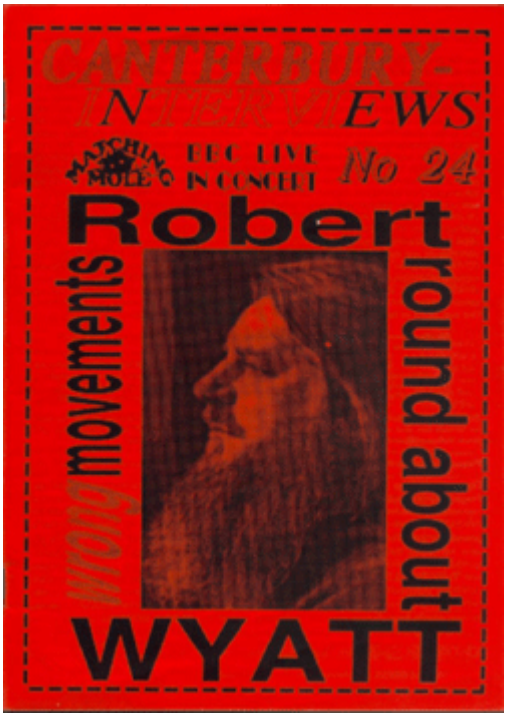
May 1975



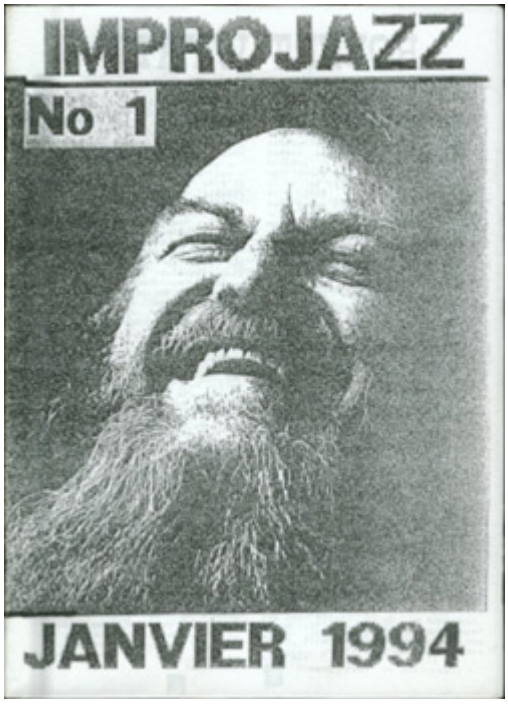
Décembre 1985



Printemps 1992



Septembre 1997

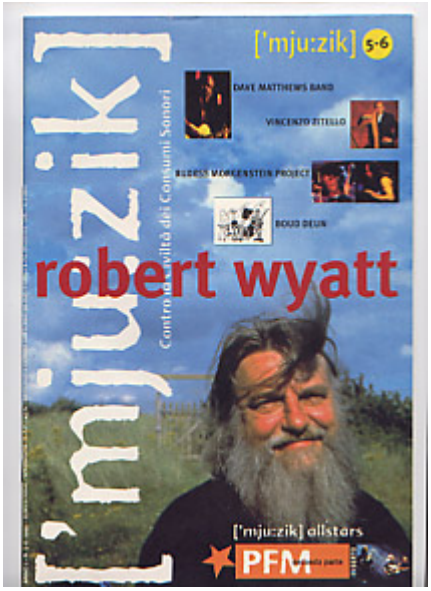


Mars 1982

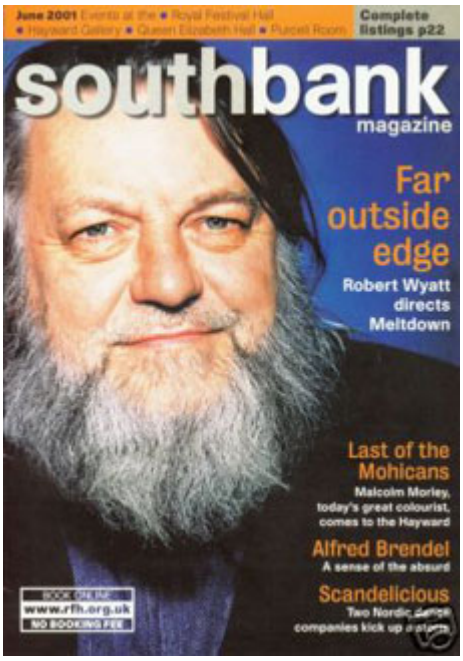
1977

Août 1994

Janvier 1994



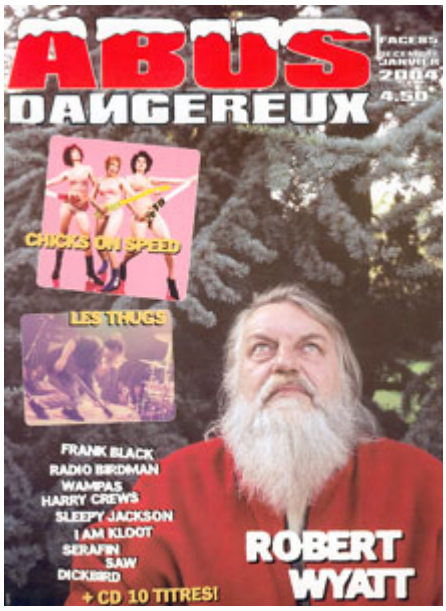
Janvier 1997



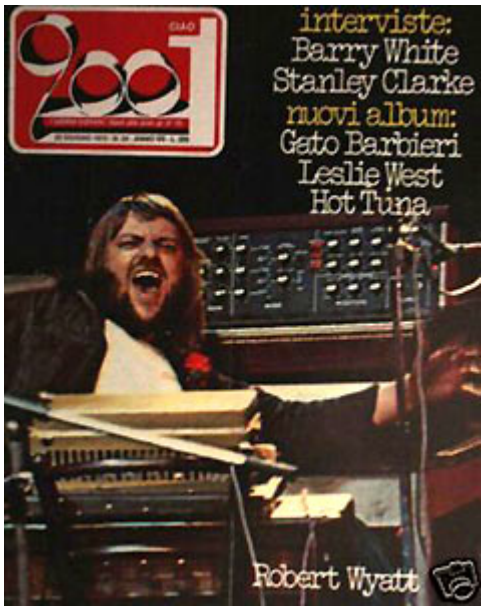
Septembre 1987

Mai 2004

Juin 2001



Août 1974

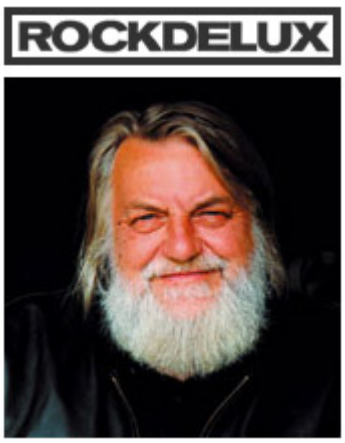


Mai 1998

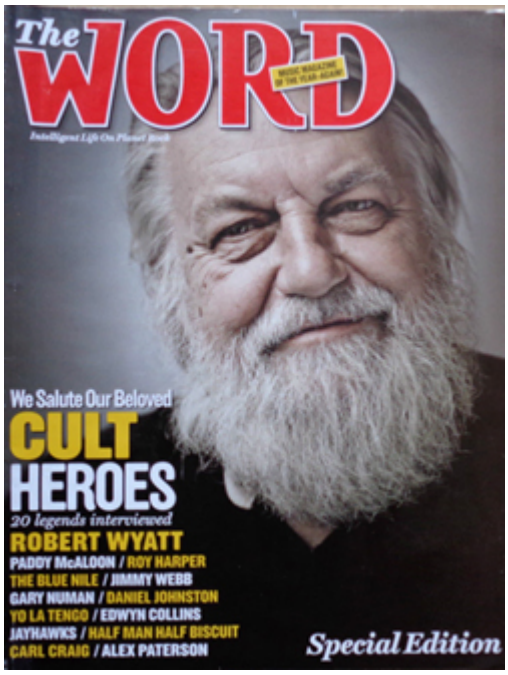
Novembre 1997

Janvier 2004

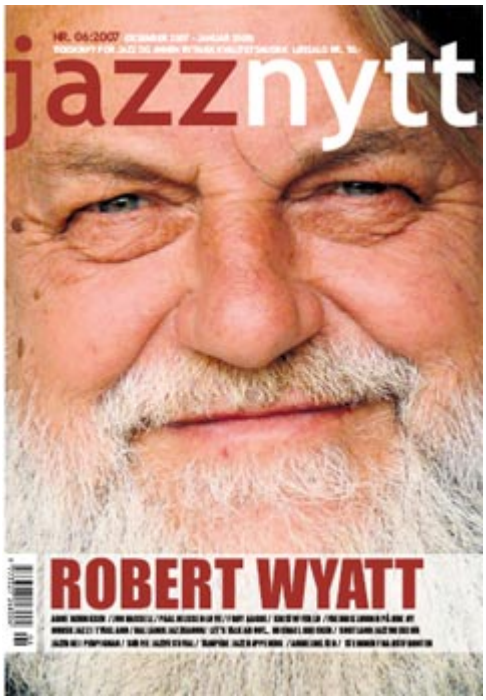
22 juin 1975



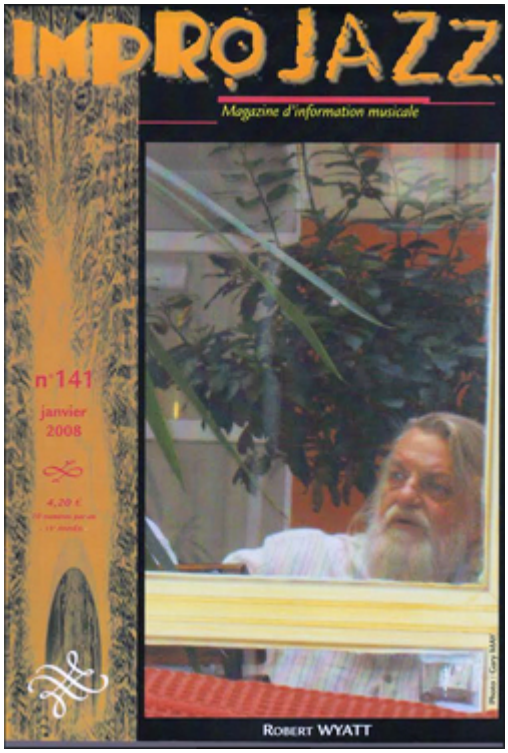
October 2007



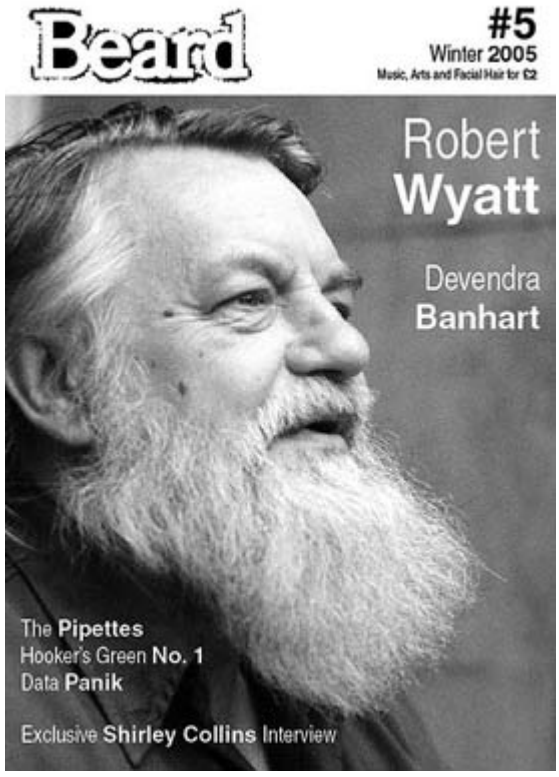
October 2007



November 2007

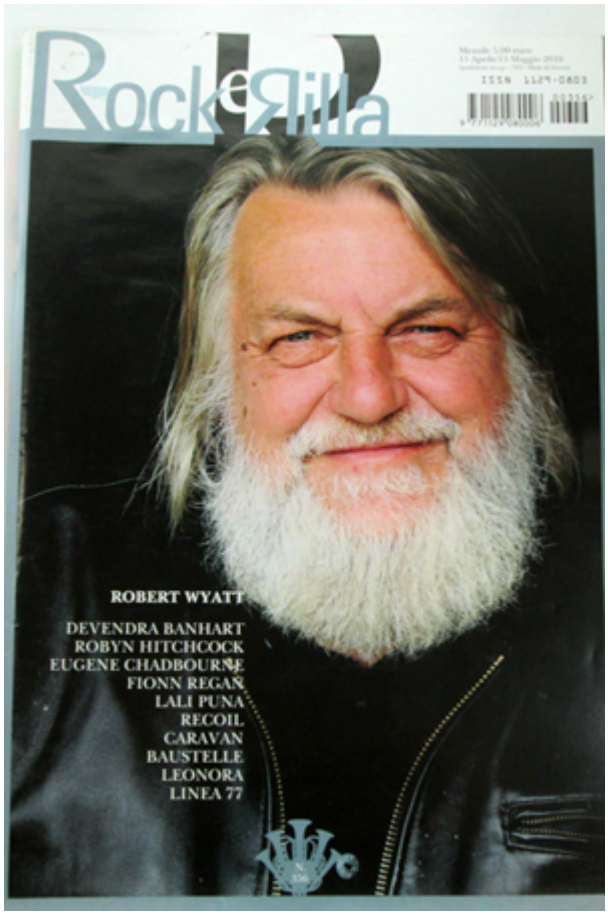


Novembre 2007

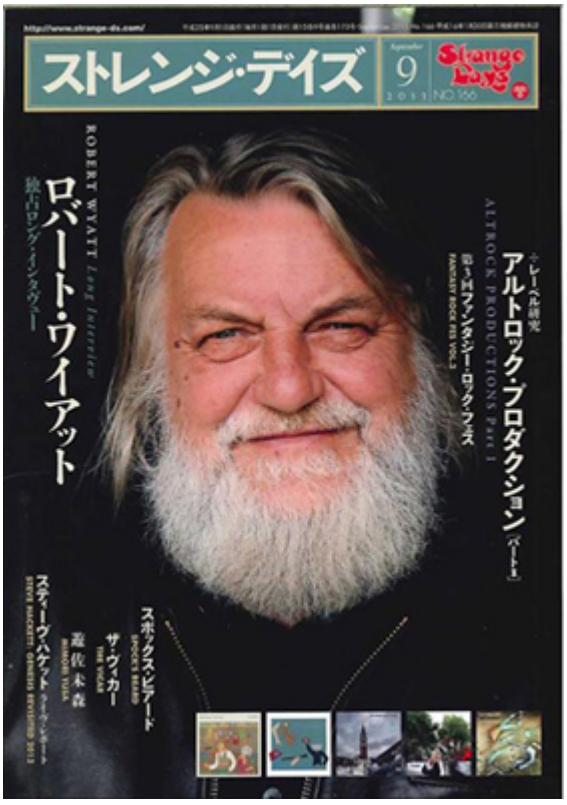


September 2009

Desember 2007 - Januar 2008



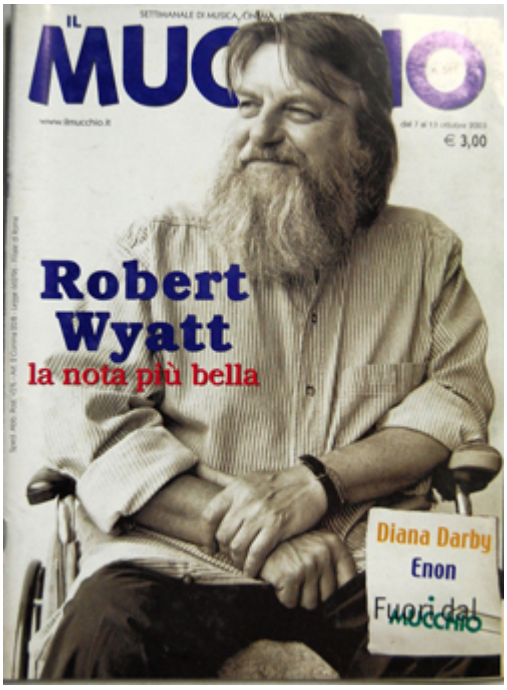
Janvier 2008



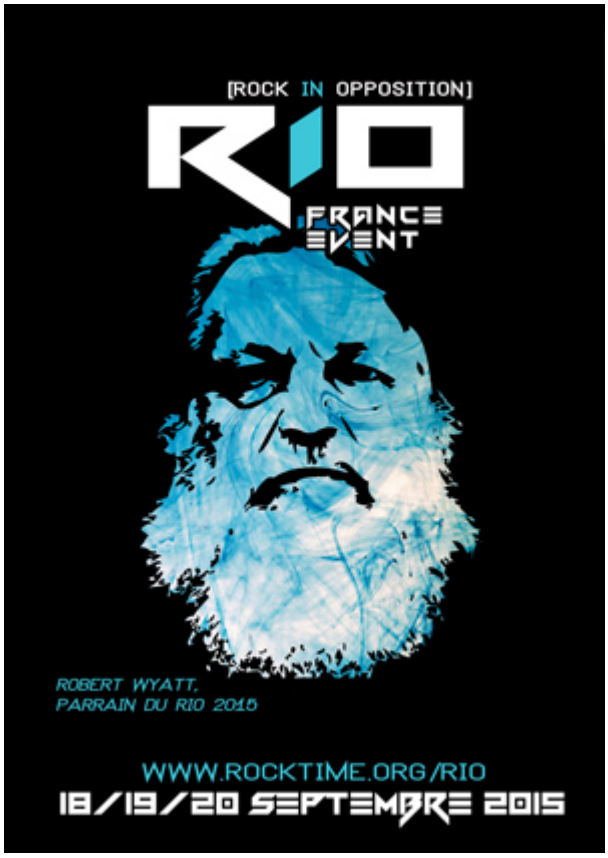
Winter 2005

Octobre 2009

15 Aprile-15 Maggio 2010

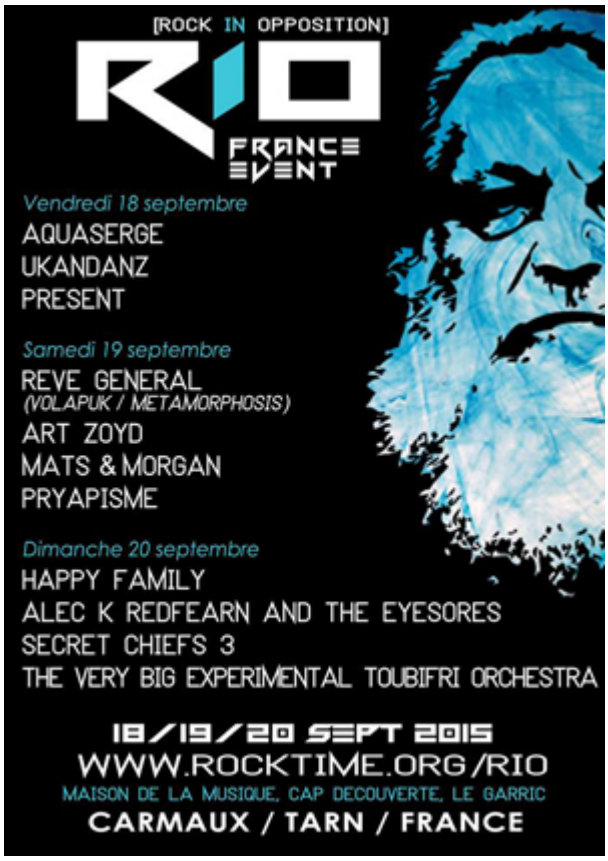


September 2013

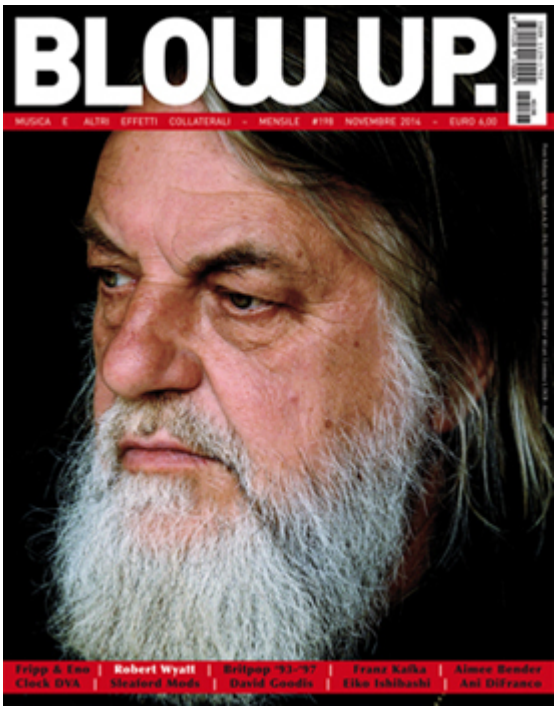


Jan-Feb 2011

Abril 1971



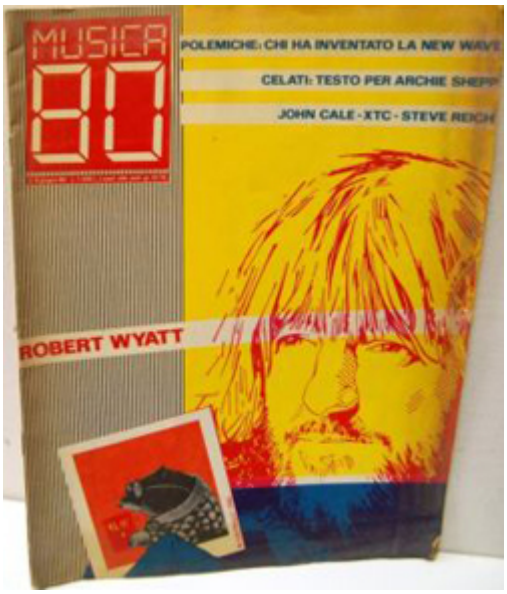
Ottobre 2003



2015 - affiche du festival
Rock In Opposition

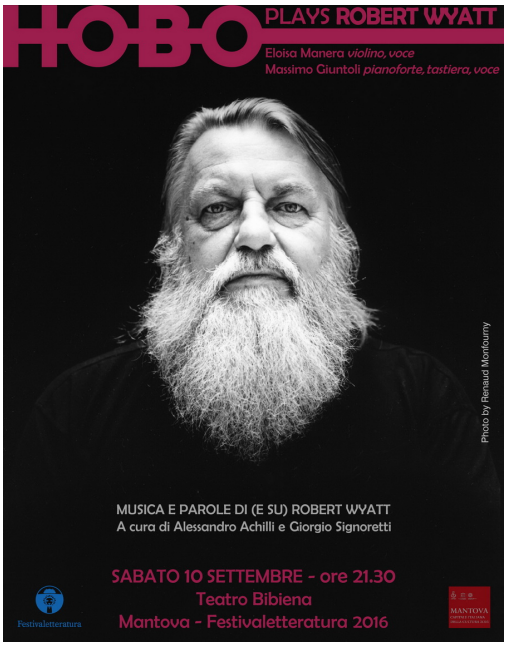
2015 - affiche du festival
Rock In Opposition

2015 - affiche du festival
Rock In Opposition

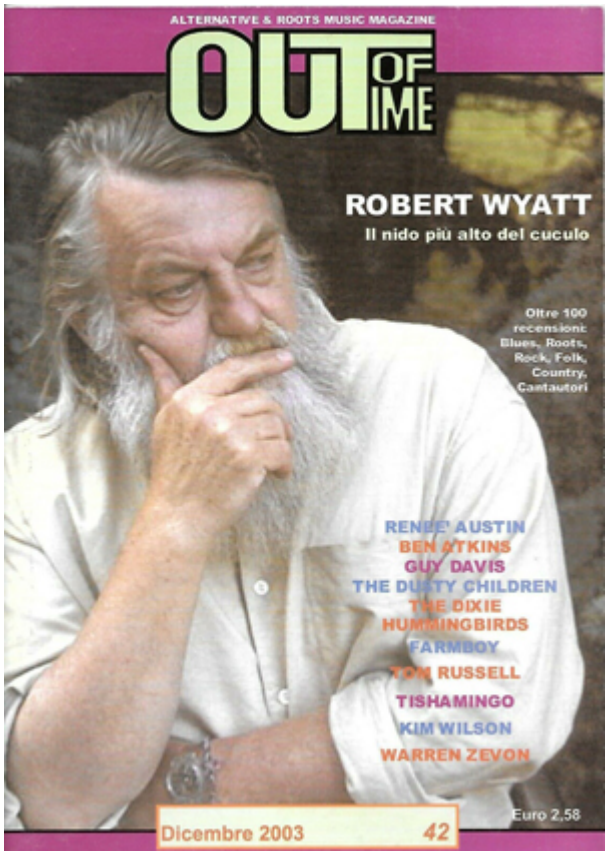


Novembre 2014

November 2010



Août 2009



Giugno 1980

Marzo 1995

2016 - Affiche Hobo plays Robert Wyatt

Dicembre 2003

Novembre 2010

?

Prog Italia Ottobre./Novembre. 2024

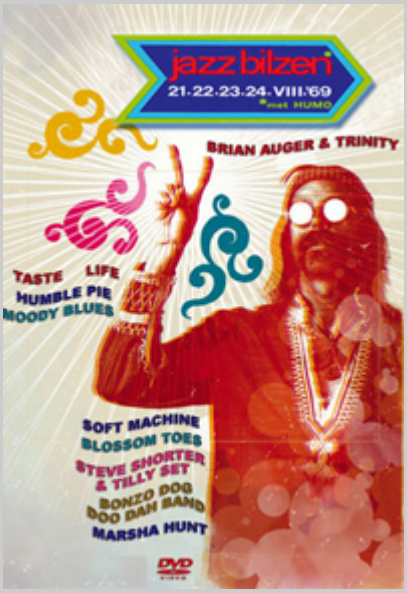
Vidéos & DVD

ABÉCÉDAIRE

> Zoom

Soft Machine

- Dutch TV 1967 - "We Know What You Mean" & "I Should've Known"



- Some Italian Movie...1968 - "I Should've Known"

- Beat Club 1970 - composition based on three tunes

- Montreux Jazz Festival 1974 - "Hazard Profile 1 - 5"

Running time : about 45'

DVD (bootleg)

> Zoom

Jazz Bilzen - 21.22.23.24. VIII '69

Performances by :

- Moody Blues
- Taste
- Life
- Steve Shorter & Tilly Set
- Bonzo Dog Doo Dah Band
- Soft Machine
- Blossom Toes
- Marsha Hunter & White Trash
- Brian Auger & The Trinity

plus interviews & other bonus footage from Bilzen 1968.

Running time : 120 mn

DVD
2004

DOUBLE D (DD-17)

> Zoom

Bilzen Jazz and Pop Festival, 1969

21-22-23-24 August 1969

- Shocking Blue August 22, 1969
- Bonzo Dog Doo Dah Band August 22, 1969
- Taste - August 22, 1969
- Moody Blues - August 22, 1969
- Soft Machine August 22, 1969
  Moon In June + interview
- Marsha Hunt & White Trash August 22, 1969
- Brian Auger & The Trinity August 22, 1969
- Steve Shorter & Tilly Set - August 22 1969
- Deep Purple - August 24 1969
- Humble Pie - August 24 1969
- Life - August 24 1969
- Blossom Toes - August 24 1969

BONUS MATERIAL from Bilzen Jazz 1968:
- The Move - August 24 1968
- Roland and the Bluesworkshop - August 23 1968

Total time : 2h 33mn
Mention : "Not For Sale in Stores"

NO LABEL

Soft Machine Live in Bilzen 1969

> Zoom

The Soft Machine - Live Chronicle

Featuring original Soft Machine with Kevin Ayers

- We Know What You Mean
- I Should've Known

Dutch TV Sep. 1967 - B/W
- Kevin Ayers - bass, vocal
- Mike Ratledge - keyboards, vocal
- Robert Wyatt drums, vocal

- Composition Based On 3 Tunes

Beat Club 1970
- Mike Ratledge - keyboards
- Hugh Hopper - bass
- Robert Wyatt - drums, vocal
- Elton Dean - alto sax, saxello

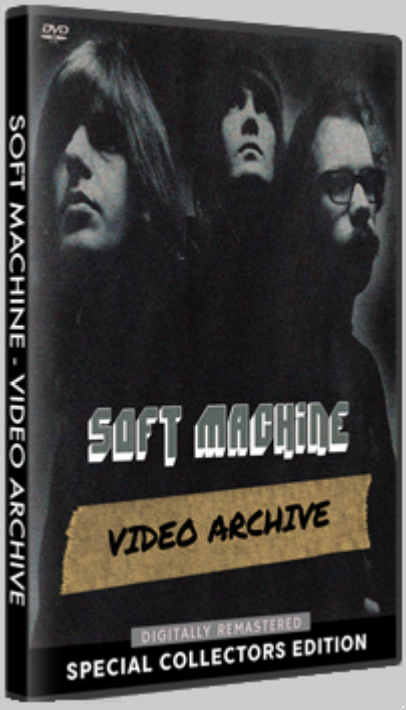
- Hazard Profile

Montreux Jazz Festival 4th Jul. 1974
- Karl Jenkins - keyboards, oboe
- John Marshall - drums, percussion
- Roy Babbington - bass
- Mike Ratledge - keyboards, vocal

DVD (bootleg)

FOOTSTOMP (FSVD-066)

> Zoom



1960's - Digital Video Archives - Volume 1 (Pop, Rock & Prog)

- She's Still A Mystery / Only Pretty (Ed Sullivan 10/15/1967) (Lovin' Spoonful)
- Carrie Anne (Smothers Brothers Show 12/15/1967) (The Hollies)
- Let's Live For Today (1967) (Grassroots)
- Along Comes Mary (Ed Sullivan Show 12/08/1968) (Association)
- I Wonder What's She Doing Tonight (Pat Boone Show 1/30/1968) (Boyce & Hart)
- Proud Mary (Happening 3/1/1969) (Creedence Clearwater Revival)
- California Dreamin' (American Bandstand 2/19/1966) (Mamas And Papas)
- Get Off My Cloud (Hullabaloo 11/15/1965) (The Rolling Stones)
- Mony Mony (Ed Sullivan Show 1/26/1969) (Tommy James & The Shondells)
- The Letter (1967) (Box Tops)
- Mr. Tambourine Man (Drop-In Swedish TV 1967) (The Byrds)
- I Fought The Law (Hullabaloo 3/21/1966) (Bobby Fuller Four)
- California Girls (Kraft Music Hall 2/19/1969) (The Beach Boys)
- Windy (Carol Channing Special 101 Men 2/29/1968) (Association)
- Bend Me, Shape Me (1967) (American Breed)
- Happy Jack (Beat Club 1/21/1967) (The Who)
- People Got To Be Free (10/6/1969) (The Rascals)
- Waterloo Sunset (Beat Club 6/24/1967) (The Kinks)
- Jennifer Berber (Hollywood Palace 3/23/1968) (The Hollies)
- It's Goona Be Alright (Shivaree 6/19/1965) (Gerry & The Pacemakers)
- Do You Believe In Magic (Ed Sullivan Show 3/19/1967) (Lovin' Spoonful)
- Western Uniform (Steve Allen Show 4/16/1968) (Five Americans)
- I Got You Baby (Shindig 7/7/1965) (Sonny & Cher)
- Have You Seen Your Mother Baby (Ed Sullivan 9/11/1966) (Rolling Stones)
- For What It's Worth / Mr. Soul (Hollywood Palace 4/8/1967) (Buffalo Springfield)
- Sunshine Of Your Love (Romp! 4/21/1968) (Cream)
- Revolution (David Frost Show 1969) (The Beatles)
- Jumpin' Jack Flash (Rock & Roll Circus 12/68) (The Rolling Stones)
- Down By The River (Music Scene 9/22/1969) (Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young)
- Lot Me (Happenings '69, 5/24/1969) (The Raiders)
- Good Morning Little Schoolgirl (Beat Club

10/25/1969) (Ten Years After)
- My Generation (Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour 9/17/1967) (The Who)
- Summertime Blues (Beat Club 11/16/1968) (Blue Cheer)
- You Keep Me Hangin' On (Ray Anthony Show 1968) (Vanilla Fudge)
- Oh Well (Detroit Tubenders 1969) (Fleetwood Mac)
- 1984 (Music Scene 12/15/1969) (Spirit)
- Rock Me Baby (Beat Club 1969) (Steppenwolf)
- We're Going Wrong (Twice A Forthnight BBC - 1967) (Cream)
- A Quick One While He's Away (Rock & Roll Circus 12/1968) (The Who)
- Voodoo Chile - The Lulu Show, BBC, 1968) Jimi Hendrix Experience
- Tommorow Night (Beat Club, 1971) (Atomic Rooster)
- King Kong (Old Grey Whistle Test, BBC, 1968) (Mother's Of Invention)
- We Know What You Mean (Hoepla Dutch TV 1967) (Soft Machine)
- The Weaver's Answer (Beat Club 1970) (The Family)
- American (BBC 1968) (The Nice)
- Save Me (Beat Club 1970) (Atomic Rooster)

2005
NTSC DVD-R disc
165 minutes

PINKROBERT ED.

> Zoom

Soft Machine - Video Archive - 1967-1976

DVD 1

ITALIAN FILM February 1967 I Should've Known We Did It Again

UFO CLUB June 2, 1967 Poem for John Hopkins

HOOPELA September 22, 1967 We Know What You Mean (Soon Soon Soon) I Should've Known

CAMERA III October 3, 1967 Clarence In Wonderland We Did It Again

DIM DAM DOM October 8, 1967 Hope For Happiness Improv

CE SOIR ON DANSE October 1967 (broadcast August 25, 1968) A Certain Kind Save Yourself Lullaby Letter (Strangest Scene) Hope For Happiness

BOUTON ROUGE November 1967 Clarence In Wonderland Soon Soon Soon

FORUM MUSIQUES May 24, 1969 Esther's Nose Job

TOUS EN SCENE July 25, 1969 Esther's Nosejob

BILZEN FESTIVAL August 22, 1969 interview Moon In June

HYDE PARK FREE FESTIVAL September 20, 1969 Backwards

AMOUGIES FESTIVAL October 28, 1969

L'INVITE DU DIMANCHE December 7, 1969 Hibou, Anemone And Bear Pigling Bland Facelift

EST PANORAMA Strasbourg, France December 1, 1969 Eamonn Andrews Hibou, Anemone & Bear

POP 2 – PARIS, FR March 2, 1970 Facelift Eamonn Andrews Backwards/Mousetrap Reprise Out-Bloody-Rageous Esther's Nosejob

AMOUGIES FESTIVAL May 29, 1970

KRALINGEN FESTIVAL June 28, 1970 Esther's Nosejob

DVD 2

POP 2 Oct-Nov 1970 recording 'Fourth'

ANATOMY OF POP January 10, 1971 Neo-Caliban Grides

STOP POP – BRUSSELS, BE January 15, 1971 Eamonn Andrews Kings And Queens Teeth Pigling Bland / 10:30 Returns to the Bedroom Slightly All The Time / Noisette

BEAT CLUB March 23, 1971 Neo-Caliban Grides Out-Bloody-Rageous Eamonn Andrews / All White

TELE DIMANCHE May 5, 1972 Pigling Bland

HôPITAL MARITIME August 12, 1972 news segment

PRISM August 6, 1972 interview All White

ROCKENSTOCK January 30, 1972 The Soft Weed Factor One Across Gesolreut

FULL HOUSE February 17, 1973 Gesolreut All White / Fanfare

NDR JAZZ WORKSHOP May 17, 1973 Fanfare All White Link 1 The Soft Weed Factor Link 2 37 1/2 Link 3 Riff Stanley Stamp's Gibbon Album Chloe and the Pirates Gesolreut E.P.V. Link 4 Stumble One Across Riff II

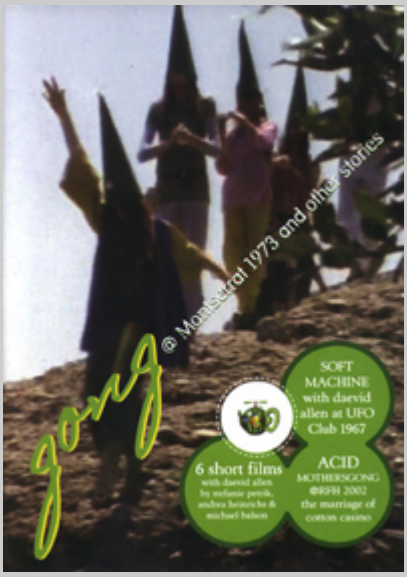
DVD 3

POP 2 July 30, 1973 Riff Down The Road interview Gesolreut Chloe And The Pirates

NO-DO October 8, 1973 Scheeßel Rock Festival

MONTREUX JAZZ FESTIVAL July 4, 1974 Hazard Profile The Floating World Ealing Comedy Bundles Land of the Bag Snake Joint The Man Who Waved at Trains Peff The Man Who Waved at Trains (reprise) LBO Riff II Lefty Penny Hitch

RAI TV August 1974 Hazard Profile Part 1



SO IT GOES August 7, 1976 The Tale Of Taliesin

NEWCASTLE JAZZ FESTIVAL November 13, 1976 Out of Season Ban Ban Caliban The Tale of Taliesin One Over the Eight

EXTRA HOME MOVIES 1968 Jimi Hendrix Tour in America

BEYOND IMAGE 1969 film

MUSICLADEN-CLUB - SPECIAL COLLECTORS EDITION - 2xDVD + DVD-R
536 minutes

> Zoom

Gong @ Montserrat 1973 and Others Stories

- Gong @ Montserrat 73
- Big Tea
- Conscience Strike
- Arrest Me
- Gaïa
- TickOcock
- Garden Song
- Acidmothergong @ rfh2002

- Soft Machine @ UFO 67
Activist & friend : John (Hoppy) Hopkins had been arrested on trumped up charges & this performance by Daevid Allen aimed to hit back at the hypocrisies of the British establishment.

UFO Club London June 2, 1967
Poem for Hoppy by Daevid Allen
Film & lightshow projections : Mark Boyle & Joan Hills

- Daevid Allen - reading
- Robert Wyatt - drum & vocal abstractions
- Kevin Ayers - bass
- Mike Ratledge - organ

> Zoom

This rare footage of the first Soft Machine lineup shot at the UFO Club in London during the swinging sixties shows an early example of performance poetry by an experimental psychedelic rock band.

VOICEPRINT (VPDVD25)

- Soft Machine - UFO Club London June 2, 1967

Soft Machine - Rare Collection (1967-2005)

FRENCH TV 1968 (Black & White)
- A Certain Kind
- Save Yourself
- Priscilla
- Lullabye Letter
- Hope For Happiness

DUTCH TV 1967 (Black & White)
- We Know What You Mean
- I Should've Known

ITALIAN MOVIE (1968)
- I Should've Known

BEAT CLUB (1970)
- Composition Based On Three Tunes

MONTREUX JAZZ FESTIVAL (1974)
- Hazard Profile 1-5 (Featuring 17 year old Allan Holdsworth)

SOFT MACHINE LEGACY
Jazztage Festival 2005 - Germany 11/12/05
- 1,2,1,2
- Kit Runner
- Seven For Lee

Running Length: 107 minutes.
Disc Format: 1 NTSC DVD-R

(KVH168)

Alive In Paris 1970

Filmed 2 March 1970 at Theatre de la Musique, Paris, France - First broadcast on Pop 2 by Maurice Dumay and presented by Patrice Blanc-Francard / Directed by Claude Ventura (copyright INA).

- Facelift
- Eamonn Andrews
- Backwards/Mousetrap Reprise
- Out-Bloody-Rageous
- Robert Wyatt's vocal improvisation
- Esther's Nosejob

Zoom > 1 2

- Robert Wyatt - drums & vocals
- Mike Ratledge - Lowrey organ & Hohner pianet
- Hugh Hopper - bass
- Robert Wyatt - drums & vocal
- Elton Dean - alto sax & saxello
- Lyn Dobson - soprano sax, flute, voice & harmonica

2008
DVD

VOICEPRINT (VPDVD45)

Soft Machine Alive in Paris 1970

> Zoom

Soft Machine - Dada Was Here - 1967-1971

Italian TV, 1967
- I Should Have Known

UFO Club, June 2, 1967
- Poem For Hoppy

Hoepla TV, September 1967
- We Know What You Mean
- I Should Have Known

Dim-Dam-Dom, French TV, November 1967
- Hope For Happiness
- Esther's Nose Job

Unknown Location, 1968 (?)
- Hope For Happiness
- Lullabye Letter
- Save Yourself
- A Certain Kind

Bouton Rouge, French TV 1969
- Esther's Nose Job

Bilzen Jazz Festival, 1969
- Interview
- Moon In June

Kralingen Pop Festival, 1970
- Esther's Nose Job

Live 1970
- Teeth

Soft Machine Music Documentary, 1971

Beat Club, 1971
- Composition Based On Three Tunes
- Grides

Rehearsal For Fourth Album, 1971

NTSC
DVD video - Unofficial Release
Running time : 119 minutes

Note : the 5th sequence "Unknown location" is taken from the program "Ce soir on danse" (ORTF - French TV).

DOUBLE D (DO-130609)

> Zoom

Soft Machine - JazzRock Years - Live in Europe 1969-1976

Live At "Bilzen Jazz Festival", Bilzen, Belgium, 22-Aug-1969
- Moon In June

- Robert Wyatt - drums, vocals
- Hugh Hopper - bass
- Mike Ratledge - electric piano, organ

"Pop 2" France TV, 30-Apr-1970 from Theatre de la Musique, Paris, France, 02-Mar-1970
- Introduction
- Facelift
- Esther's Nose Job

Pop 2" France TV, 23-Jul-1970 from Theatre de la Musique, Paris, France, 02-Mar-1970
- Introduction
- Eamonn Andrews
- Backwards
- Out-Bloody-Rageous

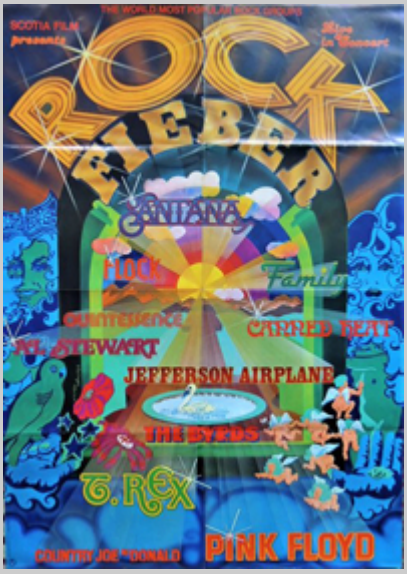
- Robert Wyatt - drums, vocals
- Hugh Hopper - bass
- Mike Ratledge - electric piano, organ
- Elton Dean - alto sax, saxello
- Lyn Dobson - flute, soprano sax

Live at "Newcastle Jazz Festival", on BBC 2 TV, 13-Nov-1976 from Newcastle University Theatre, Newcastle, England, 29-Oct-1976
- Introduction
- Out Of Season
- Ban-Ban Caliban
- The Tale Of Taliesin
- One Over The Eight

- John Etheridge - guitars
- Ric Danders - violin
- Percy Jones - bass
- Karl Jenkins - keyboards
- John Marshall - drums

FOXBERRY (FBVD-043)

> Zoom



British Rock Viewseum Vol. 6 Age Of Progressive & Jazz Rock 2

- Moon in June (Soft Machine)
- Let the Good Times Roll (Man)
- 7171551 (Man)
- Born With Future (Man)
- Babe, I'm Gonna Leave You (Man)
- C'mon (Man)
- Bananas (Man)
- Pavane (Brian Auger & The Trinity)
- I Just Got Some (Brian Auger & The Trinity)
- Freedom Jazz Dance (Brian Auger & Oblivion Express)
- Self Introduction (Narration) - Just Me, Just You (Brian Auger & Oblivion Express)
- Don't Look Away (Brian Auger & Oblivion Express)
- Truth (Brian Auger & Oblivion Express)
- I Want To Take You Higher (Brian Auger & Oblivion Express)
- Venus (Shocking Blue)

2010
NTSC
DVD - region 2

WHD ENTERTAINMENT INC. (IEBP-10058)

Moon In June played at Bilzen

> Zoom

Rock Fieber

- Gumbo (Santana)
- Zero She Flies (Al Stewart)
- Human Condition / So Sad (Canned Heat)
- Giants (Quintessence)
- Saturday Afternoon (Jefferson Airplane)
- Wasted Union Blues (It's A Beautiful Day)
- Set The Controls For The Heart Of The Sun (Pink Floyd)
- Freedom Is A Constant (Country Joe McDonald)
- Mardi Gras Day (Dr. John, The Night Trippers)
- Drowned In Wine (Family)
- Open Up Your Hearts (It's A Beautiful Day)
- Pavillions Of Sun (T. Rex)
- Old Blue (The Byrds)
- Big Bird (The Flock)

- Esther's Nose Job (Soft Machine)
- Interviews with Bill Thompson, Paul Kanter & Grace Slick / White Rabbit / The Ballad Of You & Me & Pooneil (Jefferson Airplane)
- Savor / Jingo (Santana)
- A Saucerful Of Secrets (Pink Floyd)
- End Credits (Unknown Artist)

2004
PAL

Location: Kraalinge Bos Rotterdam
Date: 06-28-1970
Running Time: 97 mins
German voice over the interviews

UNIVERSUM FILM (82876 61795 9)

> Zoom

The Soft Machine - Grides

The DVD was recorded on March 23, 1971 at Radio Bremen's TV studio, Bremen, Germany. First broadcast in an abbreviated form on Beat-Club on March 27, 1971.

This DVD was mastered from the original 1971 videotape in the archives of Radio Bremen.

- Neo-Caliban Grides
- Out-Bloody-Rageous
- Robert Wyatt's vocal improvisation
- Eamonn Andrews
- All White

- Mike Ratledge - keyboards
- Hugh Hopper - bass
- Robert Wyatt - drums, vocal
- Elton Dean - alto sax, saxello

2006
DVD - NTSC - all region

Also included a CD audio recorded on October 25, 1970 at the Concertgebouw, Amsterdam.

CUNEIFORM (RUNE 230/231) CD/DVD

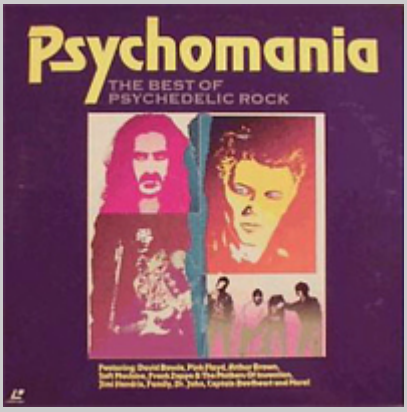
Soft Machine at Radio Bremen's TV studio

> Zoom

The Soft Machine - Facelift France & Holland

The DVD was recorded on March 2, 1970 at Théâtre de la Musique, Paris, France.
Audio bonus material : Entire concert (audience recording), March 2, 1970.

- Eamonn Andrews
- Backwards
- Mousetrap (reprise)
- Out-Bloody-Rageous
- Facelift
- Vocal improvisation
- Esther's Nose/Pigling Bland



- Robert Wyatt - drums, vocals
- Mike Ratledge - Hohner pianet, Lowrey Holiday Deluxe organ
- Hugh Hopper - bass

- Elton dean - alto sax, saxello
- Lyn Dobson - soprano and tenor sax, flute, harmonica, vocals

2022
DVD - NTSC - all region

Also included 2xCD audio - (or 2xLP) - recorded on March 2, 1970 at the Théâtre de la Musique , Paris, France and on January 17, 1970 at the Concertgebouw, Amsterdam. The netherlands.

CUNEIFORM (RUNE 495/496/497) 2xCD/DVD
CUNEIFORM (RUNE 495)
2xLP/DVD

> Zoom

Psychomania - The Best Of Psychedelic Rock (Japanese Version)

- Introduction
- Space Oddity (David Bowie)
- His Wheels On Fire(Julie Driscoll, Brian Auger & The Trinity)
- Space Cowboy (Steve Miller Band)
- Set The Controls For The Heart Of The Sun (Pink Floyd)
- A Saucerful Of Secrets (Pink Floyd)
- Fire (The Crazy World of Arthur Brown)
- Eight Miles High(Byrds)
- White Rabbit (Jefferson Airplane)
- We Know What You Mean (Soon Soon Soon) (Soft Machine)
- Sugar Magnolia (Grateful Dead)
- The Son Of Suzy Creamcheese (Frank Zappa & the Mothers of Invention)
- Voodoo Chile (Jimi Hendrix Experience)
- It Wouldn't Last (Soft Machine)
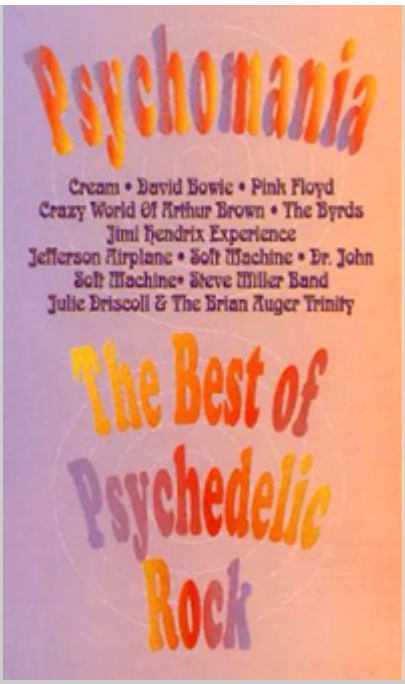
- Drowned In Wine (Family)
- Mardi Gras Day (Dr. John The Night Tripper)
- Wasted Union Blues (It's A Beautiful Day)
- Upon The My Oh My (Captain Beefheart)

1991
Disc Laser



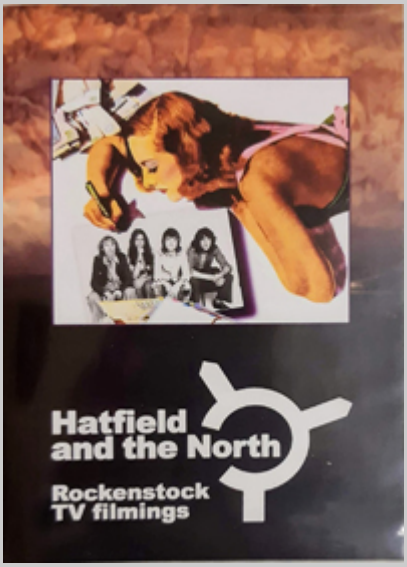
Running time : about 84'

VIDEOARTS (VALJ-3207)

La présente édition japonaise au format Disc-Laser comporte plusieurs morceaux absents des versions VHS et DVD.

Psychomania - The Best Of Psychedelic Rock (UK & US Version)

- Set The Controls/Saucer Of Secrets (Pink Floyd)
- Space Oddity (David Bowie)



> Zoom

- Fire(Crazy World Of Arthur Brown)
- I Feel Free(Cream)
- Upon The My Oh My (Captain Beefheart)
- Sunshine Of Your Love (Jimi Hendrix Experience)
- White Rabbit (Jefferson Airplane)
- We Know What You Mean (Soft Machine)
- All On A Mighty Fine Day (Dr. John)
- Space Cowboy (Steve Miller Band)
- Eight Miles High (The Byrds)
- This Wheel's On Fire (Julie Driscoll & The Brian Auger Trinity)

1994
VHS (PAL) & DVD

Running time : about 54'

UK Magnum Music Group
MMGV 067

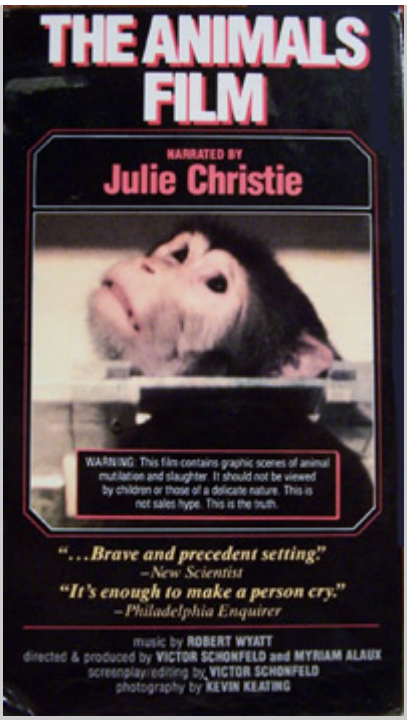
> Zoom

Hatfield And The North - Rockenstock TV Filmings

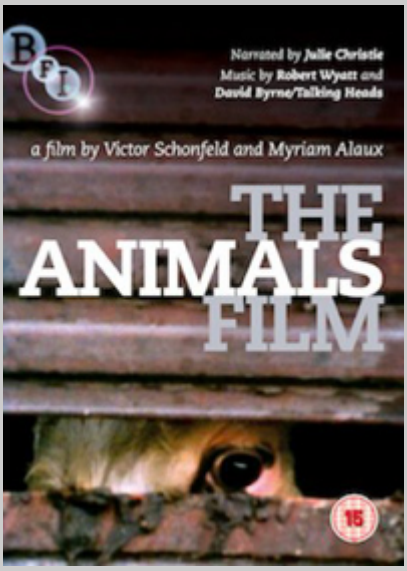
Studio ORTF Des Buttes-Chaumont, Paris, France January 2nd, 1973 - Broadcast Live
- God Song
- Fol De Rol
- For Robert
- Mewsing

Château D'Hérouville, France September 1973 - Broadcast February 5th, 1974
- Blane / Nan True's Hole / Big Jobs
- Going Up To People And Tinkling / Lobster Extract / Landcrabs

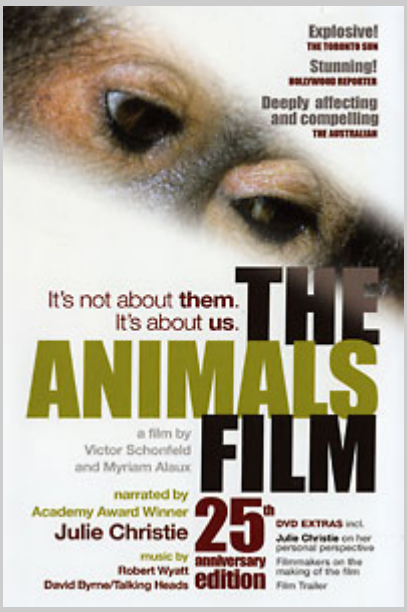
Tracks 1 to 4 :
- Robert Wyatt - vocals
- Richard Sinclair - bass, vocals
- Phil Miller - guitar
- Pip Pyle - drums
- David Sinclair- keyboards



2018
DVD, Unofficial Release



Running time : 38 mn



The Animals Film

Narrated by Julie Christie
Music by Robert Wyatt

"The Animals Film takes us inside the slaughterhouse, into the laboratory, and down the food processing line to create a powerful and controversial film. Because of its graphic footage of animal abuse, this film has been banned from television. Sensitively narrated by Julie Christie, this emotionally charged film may well change your life."

> Zoom

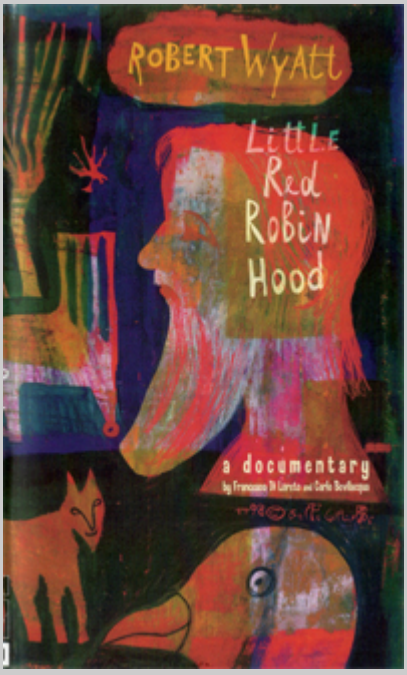
1981
VHS
Running time : about 120'
Colour
MPI Home Video
MP 1354

2008
DVD
Running time : about 130'
This release includes both the 1981 original film version and the director's 2007 cut
BFIVD796

> Zoom

Not Television (A Rough Trade Video Show)



- It Will Come (The Woodentops)
- Kicker Conspiracy (The Fall)
- Shipbuilding (Robert Wyatt)
- Nag Nag Nag (Cabaret Voltaire)
- Little Dinosaur (Jonathan Richman & The Modern Lovers)
- Masimba Bele (Unknown Cases)
- Birthday Girl (Microdisney)
- Shoplifters (Ivor Cutler)
- Strike! (The Enemy Within)
- Oblivious (Aztec Camera)
- The Boy With The Thorn In His Side (The Smiths)

A Rough Trade compilation hosted by Ivor Cutler.

1986
VHS - PAL
Running time : 43'

ROUGH TRADE (RTV 2)

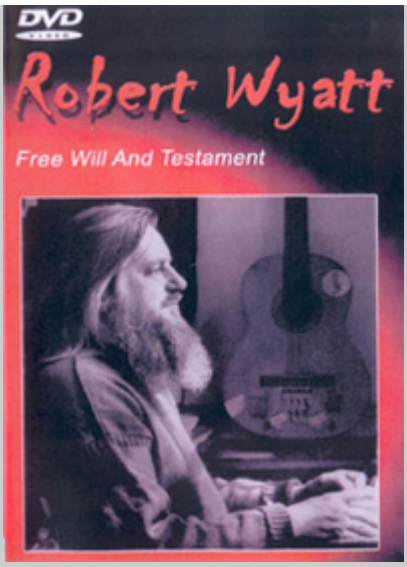
Robert Wyatt - Shipbuilding

> Zoom

Robert Wyatt In Little Red Robin Hood

A documentary by Francesco Di Loreto and Carlo Bevilacqua

1998
VHS

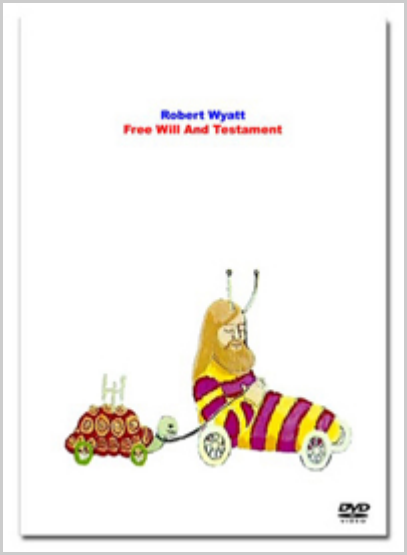


Running time : about 60'
Black and White
Dolby Surround

Consorzio Produttori Indipendenti
RER RWVID

Robert Wyatt In Little Red Robin Hood

Free Will And Testament "A Robert Wyatt Story"



- "The Robert Wyatt Story" documentary of BBC Four (with Sea Song, Left On Man, Free

Zoom > 1 2 3

> Zoom

> Zoom

Will And Testament, September the Ninth, Gharbzadegi)

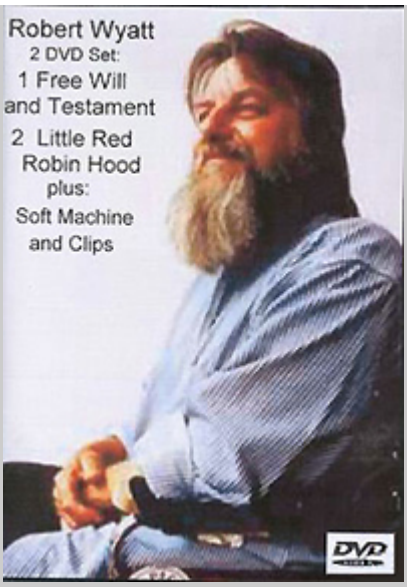
- French documentary POP2 with Matching Mole Live in France



- Promo film for Shipbuilding

2003
DVD

Running time : about 100'
Mono

ELLIE FILMS
EV01

A Robert Wyatt Story

> Zoom

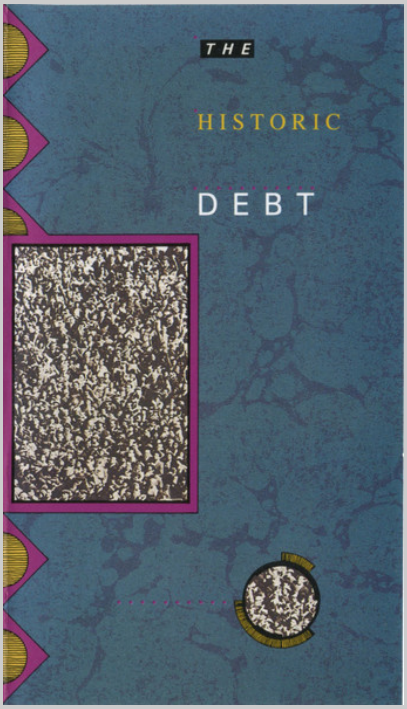
> Zoom

Old Grey Whistle Test

Disc 1
- Under My Wheels - Alice Cooper (1971)
- Tiny Dancer - Elton John (1971)
- We Gotta Have Peace - Curtis Mayfield (1972)
- Political Science - Randy Newman (1972)
- Help Me Make It Through The Night - Kris Kristofferson & Rita Coolidge (1972)
- Ain't No Sunshine - Bill Withers (1972)
- Sylvia / Hocus Pocus - Focus (1972)
- Hands Off - Rory Gallagher (1973)
- May You Never - John Martyn (1973)
- Stir It Up - The Wailers (1973)
- Do The Strand - Roxy Music (1973)
- Frankenstein - The Edgar Winter Group (1973)
- Jet Boy - New York Dolls (1973)
- Dolphins - Tim Buckley (1974)
- Upon The My O My - Captain Beefheart (1974)
- Rock 'N' Roll Doctor - Little Feat (1975)
- Roxette - Dr Feelgood (1975)
- Stand By Me - John Lennon (1975)
- Give My Compliments To The Chef - The Sensational Alex Harvey Band (1975)
- Freebird - Lynyrd Skynyrd (1975)
- Amarillo - Emmylou Harris (1976)
- Too Long At The Fair - Bonnie Raitt (1976)
- Tom Traubert's Blues - Tom Waits (1977)
- Really Free - Otway & Barrett (1977)

+ 5 extra interviews

Disc 2
- Psycho Killer - Talking Heads (1978)
- Statue Of Liberty - XTC (1978)
- (I'm Always Touched By Your) Presence Dear - Blondie (1978)
- Stone Fox Chase - Val Doonican & Charlie McCoy (1978)
- Paradise By The Dashboard Light -



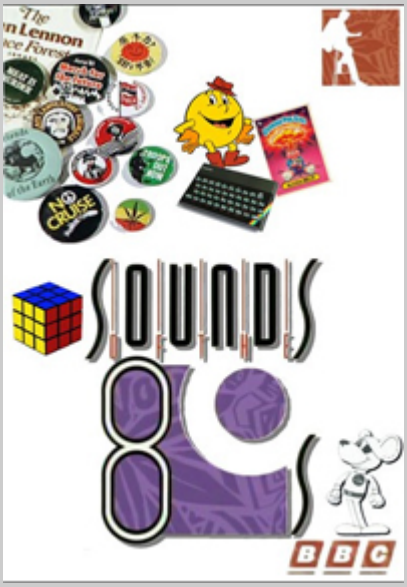
Meatloaf (1978)
- American Girl - Tom Petty & The Heartbreakers (1978)
- Can't Stand Losing You - The Police (1978)
- Rosalita - Bruce Springsteen (1979)
- I'm Bored - Iggy Pop (1979)
- Are Friends Electric? - Tubeway Army (1979)
- Message To You Rudi - The Specials (1979)
- Smash It Up / I Just Can't Be Happy Today - The Damned (1979)
- Rock 'N' Roll High School - The Ramones (1980)
- Careering - PIL (1980)
- Reward - The Teardrop Explodes (1980)
- I Will Follow - U2 (1981)
- Stone Fox Chase - Nine Below Zero (1981)
- Ghosts - Japan (1982)
- Shipbuilding - Robert Wyatt (1983)
- Moon River / Pretty Persuasion - REM (1984)
- Holding Back The Years - Simply Red (1985)
+ 1 extra interview

Running time : 300'

2001
DVDx2

BBC (EBBCDVD1073)

Robert Wyatt - Shipbuilding



> Zoom

The Historic Debt

-- Police Truck (Dead Kennedys)
- Justice In Freedom (The Hypnotics)
- Try (Starlings)
- Moonchild (Fields Of The Nephilim)
- Arc Light (Loop)
- Shadow Of No Man (Crime & The City Solution)
- I'm Just Beginning To Live (Jonathan Richman)
- Move Me (The Woodentops)
- Enjoy The Silence (Depeche Mode)
- Countdown (Pulp)
- Scratches (In The Sand) (Spin)
- Gang Of One (Bradford)
- Over Rising (The Charlatans)
- Strangely Beautiful (T.V.P.'s)
- Nothing Less Than Brilliant (Sandie Shaw)
- Our Love Is Heavenly (Heavenly)
- Oh Sometime (Erasure)
- Ship Song (Nick Cave)
- Shipbuilding (Robert Wyatt)

1991
VHS-PAL

JETTISOUDZ VIDEO (JE222)

> Zoom

Sounds Of The 80s

Disc 1
Episode 1
- Ant Music (Adam & The Ants)
- Boy Meets Girl (Haircut 100)
- Please Please Tell Me Now (Duran Duran)
- Do You Really Want To Hurt Me? (Culture Club)
- Poison Arrow (ABC)
- Young Guns (Wham!)
- Relax (Frankie Goes To Hollywood)
- Robert De Niro's Waiting (Bananarama)
- I Should Be So Lucky (Kylie Minogue)

Episode 2
- Geno (Dexy's Midnight Runners)
- Never Gonna Cry Again (Eurythmics)
- True 'Spandau Ballet)
- One More Night (Phil Collins)
- Johnny (Come Home) (Fine Young Cannibals)
- Everybody Wants To Rule The World (Tears For Fears)
- Luka (Suzanne Vega)
- Holding Back The Years (Simply Red)

Episode 3
- Celebration (Kool & The Gang)
- Slow Hand (Pointer Sisters)
- Slave To The Rhythm (Grace Jones)
- Word Up (Cameo)
- When The Weekend Comes (Bobby Womack)
- Smooth Operator (Sade)
- Criticize (Alexander O'Neal)
- I Wanna Dance With Somebody (Whitney Houston)

Episode 4
- Just Can't Get Enough (Depeche Mode)
- Love Action (The Human League)
- Only You (Yazoo)
- Say Hello, Wave Goodbye (Soft Cell)
- Blue Monday (New Order)
- Smalltown Boy (Bronski Beat)
- Oppertunities (Pet Shop Boys)
- Sometimes (Erasure)

Episode 5
- Reward (The Teardrop Explodes)
- I Can't Help Myself (Orange Juice)
- Shipbuilding [from Whistle Test `83] (Robert Wyatt)
- Oblivious (Aztec Camera)
- Milkman Of Human Kindness (Billy Bragg)
- Lay Of The Land (The Fall)
- Streams Of Whiskey (The Pogues)
- Brenda's Iron Sledge (Robyn Hitchcock)
- Walls Come Tumbling Down (The Style Council)

Disc 2
Episode 6
- Ace Of Spades (Motörhead)

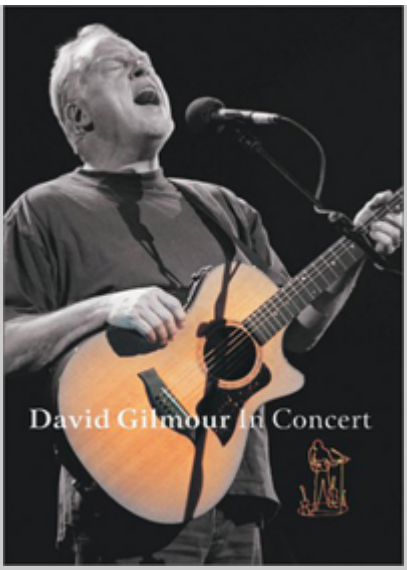
- Cheap Sunglasses (ZZ Top)
- I Will Follow (U2)
- Born In The USA (Bruce Springsteen)
- In & Out Of Love (Bon Jovi)
- Listen To Thieves (INXS)
- She Sells Sanctuary (The Cult)
- Severina (The Mission)

Episode 7
- Moon River/Pretty Persuasion (R.E.M.)
- In A Hole (The Jesus & Mary Chain)
- Ways To Be Wicked (Lone Justice)
- The Killing Moon (Echo & The Bunnymen)
- Walk Like An Egyptian (The Bangles)
- Inbetween Days (The Cure)
- Monkey Gone To Heaven (The Pixies)
- Bigmouth Strikes Again (The Smiths)

Episode 8
- Good For Thought (UB40)
- Hands Off, She's Mine (The Beat)
- African Children (Aswad)
- You Be Illin' (Run-DMC)
- No Sleep 'Till Brooklyn (Beastie Boys)
- Push It (Salt & Pepa)
- Miuzi Weighs A Ton (Public Enemy)
- Buffalo Stance (Neneh Cherry)

Bonus
The Cars - Rock Goes To College - Brighton University, 1979
Just What I Needed
Intro
Good Times Roll
My Best Friend's Girl
All Mixed Up
Night Sports
Bye Bye Love
Don't Cha Stop
You're All I've Got Tonigh

Eight-part, four hour series featuring vintage 80's rock, pop, reggae, soul, R&B and hip-hop performances from the BBC TV archives.



2006
2xDVD

MARK JONES (MJDVD47 & MJDVD48)

David Gilmour In Concert

Meltdown Concert 2001
Royal Festival Hall Concert 2002

The Meltdown Concert, June 2001
- Shine On Your Crazy Diamond Parts I-5
- Terrapin
- Fat Old Sun
- Coming Back To Life
- High Hopes
- Je Crois Entendre Encore
- Smile
- Wish You Were Here
- Comfortably Numb (version concert

Zoom > 1 2

with Robert Wyatt)
- Dimming Of The Day
- Shine On Your Grazy Diamond Parts 6-8
- A Great Day For Freedom
- Hushabye Mountain

Royal Festival Hall, January 2002
- Dominoes
- Breakthrough
- Comfortably Numb (version répétition)

Bonus
- I put a Spell on You
- Don't
- Sonnet 18

2002
DVD

EMI

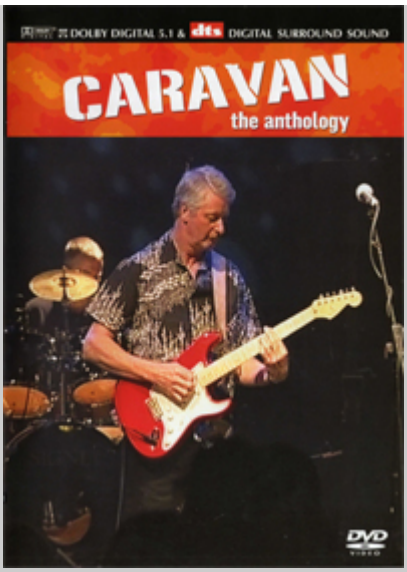
Comfortably Numb

> Zoom

Robert Wyatt
Chronicles 1972-2004

- POP 2
  (French TV 1972 Documentary B/W)
- I'm A Believer (Top Of The Pops 1974)
- Shipbuilding (O.G.W.T. 1982)
- Shipbuilding (PV)
- UK TV Documentary 2004 Incl.
  Rare Live Performances & More

Running time : about 87'



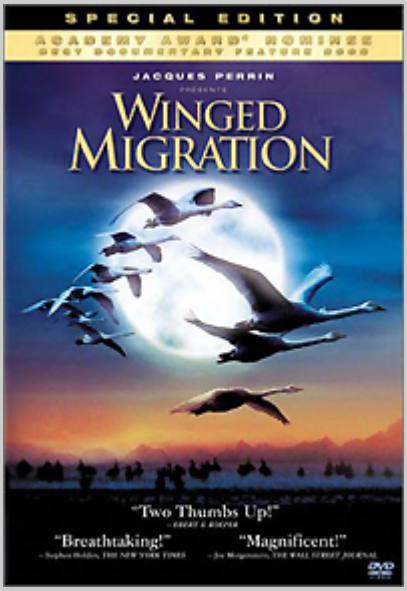
2004
DVD-R (bootleg)

FOOTSTOMP (FSVD-171)

Caravan - The anthology

- Nine Feet Underground
- For Richard
- Caravan Medley
- Nightmare
- All The Way
- A Very Smelly Little Oik
- If I Could Do It Again...
- Liar

Bonus Tracks
- Magic Man
- Place Of My Own
- Golf Girl



> Zoom

- Pye Hastings - guitar, voice
- Richard Coughlan [uncredited]- drums
- Jim Leverton - bass (on Caravan Medley)
- Doug Boyle [Uncredited] - guitar
- David Sinclair - Keyboards
- Simon Bentall [Uncredited] - percussion
- Geoffrey Richardson [Uncredited] - viola

2004
DVD - NTSC - compilation
Running time : about 82'

Caravan Medley includes covers of O Caroline and Backwards.

CLASSIC ROCK LEGENDS (CRL1568 NTSC)
RAGNAROCK LTD (DVDL013D)

> Zoom

Winged Migration
Le peuple migrateur (Jacques Perrin)

Robert Wyatt, qui interprète plusieurs morceaux du film, apparaît brièvement dans le bonus.

Robert Wyatt appears briefly in the bonus footage.

2003
DVD

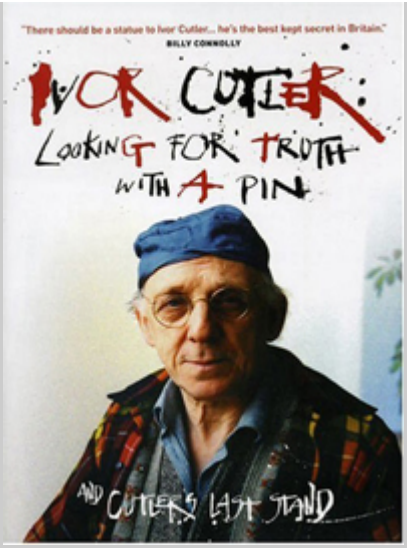
COLUMBIA TRISTAR

nophoto

(The) Elvis Costello TV Collection

Vintage video compilation of TV clips, performances, interviews, etc.

- I Can't Stand Up For Falling Down (BBC - Top Of The Pops (TOTP) (28-Feb-80)
- I Can't Stand Up For Falling Down (ITV Kenny Everett Video Show, '80)
- Watching The Detectives (Erics, Liverpool, 2-Aug-77 (live)
- New Amsterdam + interview (BBC - Fun Factory 31-May-80) (EC solo)
- Alison (Granada TV - What's On, 21-Jul-77) (EC solo live)



- Let Them All Talk
- Everyday I Write The Book (Channel 4 - Switch, 27-Jul-83?)(live) - TKO (Boxing Day)
- Charm School /
- The Imposter (Concerts For Kampuchea, 29-Dec-79)
- Oliver's Army (BBC - TOTP, 10-Feb-79?)
- I Can't Stand Up For Falling Down (ITV - Whitelight, 13-Feb-80)
- King Horse
- Sweet Dreams (BBC - TOTP, 24-Dec-81)
- Shipbuilding (Granada TV - Reports, 16-Aug-82) (EC + Steve live)
- Everyday I Write The Book (BBC - TOTP, 14-Jul-83) interview
- Shipbuilding
- Everyday I Write The Book > (Channel 4 - The Tube, 9-Mar-84) (live)
- Clubland /
- Clowntime Is Over /
- Gloomy Sunday (Fundamental Frolics, 1-Jun-81) (solo live)
- Shipbuilding (repeat!) (16-Aug-82)
- Nelson Mandela (Channel 4 - The Tube, 9-Mar-84) (live, The Specials AKA with EC replacing Stan Campbell on vocals)
- Interview about Berlin by Muriel Gray (Channel 4 - The Tube, 9-Mar-84)
- Clubland (BBC - Swapshop?, Dec-80)
- From Head To Toe (BBC - Pebble Mill, 13-Sep-92)
- Beyond Belief
- Interview + clips from soundcheck + Let ThemAll Talk (rec: 6-Oct-83 in Glasgow, b.cast: 29-Oct-83, TVAM? - Data Run)
- Interview with EC & Robert Wyatt + Shipbuilding promo video (Channel 4
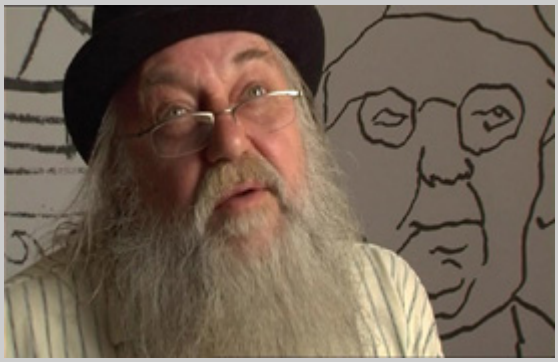
- Loose Talk, 30-May-83)
- Shot With His Own Gun (Granada TV - What's In, 16-Mar-81) (EC + Steve live)
- Radio Radio (BBC - TOTP, 26-Oct-78?)
- Colour Of The Blues
- Interview > (BBC - Russell Harty Show, 3-Nov-81) (live)
- Sweet Dreams
- The Making Of Almost Blue (LWT - The South Bank Show, 8-Nov-81):
- I Wanna Be Loved (BBC - TOTP, 21-Jun-84)

Running time : 180'



VHS
No label

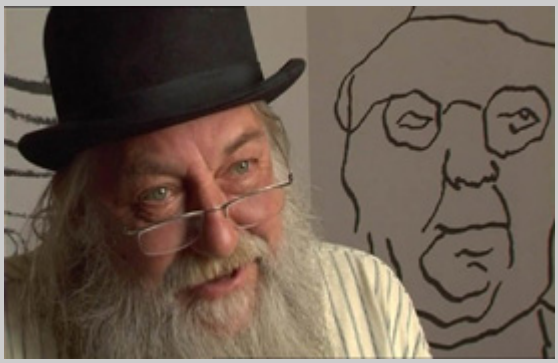
Ivor Cutler
Looking For Truth With A Pin
And Cutler's Last Stand

"Robert Wyatt and Alfreda Benge pops up several times during the documentary with comments on their friendship and work with Ivor Cutler."

> Zoom

> Zoom

> Zoom



> Zoom

Running time : 96'

2006
DVD
Cherry Red Dvds

> Zoom

> Zoom

> Zoom

Hatfield And The North – Bowery Poetry Club - NYC Jun 25 2006

- Big Jobs
- Going Up To People And Tinkling
- Calyx [P. Miller]
- Share It
- Seven Sisters
- Licks For The Ladies
- Finesse Is For Fairies
- Psychic Warrior
- What's Rattlin' ?
- Take Your Pick
- Rifferama
- Calyx [P. Miller]
- Underdub
- God Song [P. Miller/R. Wyatt]
- Lything And Gracing [P. Miller]
- What In The World
- Halfway Between Heaven And Earth
- Gigantic Land Crabs In Earth Takeover Bid
- Fitter Stoke Has A Bath
- Didn't Matter Anyway
- Part Of The Dance [P. Miller]
- Nan's True Hole [P. Miller/R. Wyatt]

Recorded At The Bowery Poetry Club - New-York City - June 25 2006

- Richard Sinclair - bass, vocals
- Pip Pyle - drums
- Phil Miller - guitar
- Alex Maguire - keyboards

> Zoom

> Zoom

2006
DVD

PUNKCAST (997)

Four Songs from this cocnert

Masters Of The Balloonafon
The Happy Accidents

- It Goes Like This
- Crumpet For Tea (Mandy Wake Up)
- A Weird Old Peaches (bonus track)
- Tales From The Hatbox
- The Unexpergurgated Legend Of Creation
- Masters Of The Balloonafon (I Lay Me Down In The Grotto)
- Somewhere In America
- The Delicate Art Of Chopstick Balance
- Locomotive Train
- Street Of Desire

- Robert Wyatt - trumpet on track 10 Street Of Desire

- Mavernie Cunningham - vocals, bagpipes
- Graham Flight - piano, bass, pedal steel guitar, vocals, kaos pad, space organ, balloonafon
- Mick Grierson - guitar, bass, drums, harp, balloonafon
- Justin Mitchell - trumpet, keyboards, accordion, balloonafon
- Will Glanfield - alto sax
- Robert Javis - trombone
- Neil Sloman - tenor sax
- Brian Hopper - tenor & soprano sax
- Matt Williamson - drums, guitar

2006
DVD

HAPAX 001

David Gilmour - Remember That Night (Live At The Royal Albert Hall)

Live At The Royal Albert Hall - Disc 1
- Speak To Me
- Breathe
- Time
- Breathe (Reprise)
- Castellorizon
- On An Island
- The Blue
- Red Sky At Night
- This Heaven
- Then I Close My Eyes (with Robert Wyatt)
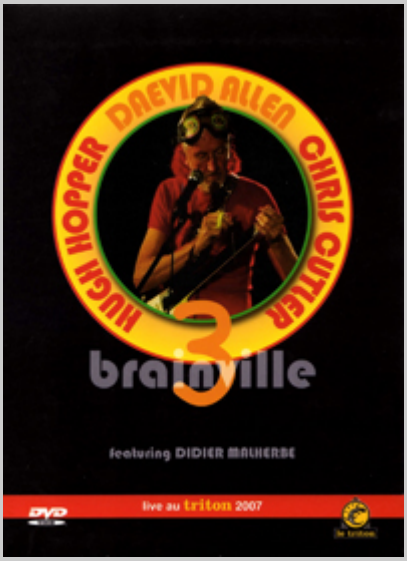
- Smile

> Zoom

- Take A Breath
- A Pocketful Of Stones
- Where We Start
- Shine On You Crazy Diamond
- Fat Old Sun
- Coming Back To Life
- High Hopes
- Echoes
- Wish You Were Here
- Find The Cost Of Freedom
- Arnold Layne
- Comfortably Numb



Bonus Features - Disc 2
- Wot's... Uh The Deal
- Dominoes
- Wearing The Inside Out
- Arnold Layne
- Comfortably Numb
- Breaking Bread, Drinking Wine
- Dark Globe
- Astronomy Domine
- This Heaven
- Castellorizon
- On An Island
- The Blue
- Take A Breath
- High Hopes
- The Making Of 'On An Island'
- The West Coast
- On An Island
- Smile
- Island Jam 2007

Robert Wyatt - trumpet on track 10

2006
2xDVD

COLUMBIA MUSIC VIDEO 88697 07424 9

Then I Close My Eyes

Zoom > 1 2

Brainville 3 - Live au triton 2007
Hugh Hopper - Daevid Allen - Chris Cutler

Live at Le Triton, June 8th, 2007.

Concert
- Hope for Happiness [Brian Hopper]
- Dedicated to You but You Weren't Listening [Hugh Hopper]
- Trial by Headline [Daevid Allen]

Brainville 3 - The Film
Interview by Americ Leroy + extraits du concert au Triton : (Dedicated To You But You Weren't Listening, Brainville, Trial by Headline, Hours Gone, Hope for Happiness, Who's Afraid, Dynamite, Ocean Motha).

- Daevid Allen - guitar, vocals

- Hugh Hopper - bass guitar
- Chris Cutler - drums
- Didier Malherbe - tarogato (sur Ocean Motha)

A noter que l'ordre des morceaux du concert est erroné sur la jaquette du DVD.

Durée : 1h30
2007
DVD

LE TRITON (TRI-08514)

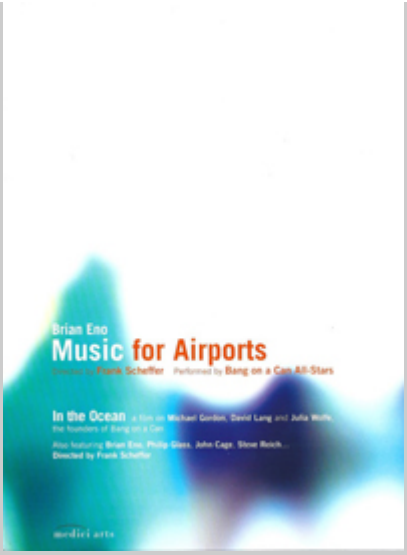
> Zoom

University Of Errors - Daevid Allen's University Of Errors Play The Soft Machine

Gong Family Unconventional Gathering. The Melweg, Amsterdam.05/11/06

- That's How Much I Need You Now [R. Wyatt]
- Save Yourself [R. Wyatt]
- Hope For Happiness [B. Hopper]
- She's Gone (K. Ayers]
- When I Don't Want You [H. Hopper]
- You Don't Remember [D. Allen, R. Wyatt]
- Tattoo Internude
- I Should Have Known [H. Hopper]
- Shooting At The Moon [. Ayers]
- Stoned Innocent Frankenstein [D. Allen]
- Fohat Digs Holes In Space [D. Allen, G. Smyth]
- Love Makes Sweet Music [K. Ayers]

Durée : 60 mn
2008
DVD



VOICEPRINT (ungongDVD001)

Live at the Gong Family Unconvention

Music For Airports / In The Ocean - Brian Eno - Bang On A Can

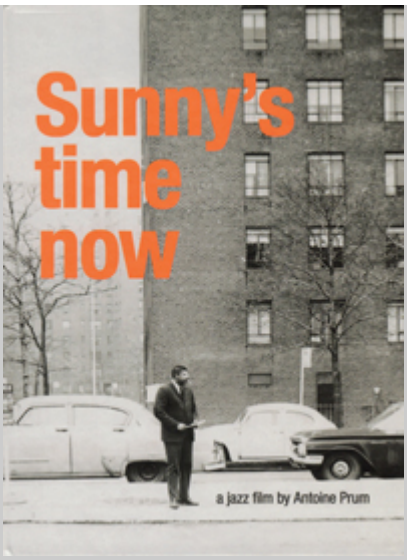
- 1/1
- 1/2
- 2/1
- 2/2
- In The Ocean

Reprise par Bang On A Can de l'oeuvre

> Zoom

composée par Brian Eno en 1978.

Durée : 1h47
2008



MEDICI ARTS (3077558)

"20 ans après la première version de Music For Airports de Brian Eno, sortie en 1978, le Bang On A Can All Stars a enregistré une version instrumentale pour le label Point Music. On peut parler d'une renaissance. L'œuvre de studio de Brian Eno a été transmuée en une pièce acoustique très proche de l'originale, mais plus bouleversante encore. Cette version fut jouée en 1998 à l'aéroport de Stansted, près de Londres, en présence de Brian Eno et Robert Wyatt (le pianiste de la version initiale). Brian Eno avoua avoir eu lui-même les larmes aux yeux, comme d'autres spectateurs à l'aéroport de Stansted, à l'écoute de cette œuvre qu'il n'avait pas conçue pour être interprêtée "live".

Sur ce DVD Music for Airports est capté à l'occasion du Holland festival de New York en 1999. Le Bang On a Can était alors accompagné par des images filmées par Frank Scheffer dans un hall d'aéroport retravaillées dans un flou artistique vaporeux. Le film se regarde comme Music for Airports s'écoute, avec un certain détachement, d'un œil distrait, l'oreille charmée sans être totalement mobilisée, jusqu'à ce que l'on soit lentement conquis. On ressent alors finalement une certaine fascination pour ces images indéfinissables dont on devine la teneur : des passants dans le grand hall, le mouvement des portes coulissantes, celui des escalators... De la même façon aussi que l'on fut et que l'on continue à être fasciné par la musique, par ces quatre lents mouvement combinant la répétition à l'aléatoire.

La deuxième partie du DVD, In The Ocean, est également un film de Frank Scheffer, de 2001. Ce documentaire est particulièrement limpide, synthétique et complet sur la démarche des trois fondateurs de Bang On A Can, Michael Gordon, David Lang et Julia Wolfe. Il propose un subtil montage d'interviews d'eux et de John Cage, Steve Reich, Philip Glass, Elliot Carter et Louis Andriessen ponctué d'extraits d'œuvres sur fonds d'images urbaines. C'est non seulement la trajectoire du Bang On A Can qui est explicitée, mais aussi l'évolution de la musique contemporaine américaine de la seconde moitié du XXe siècle, à travers ses compositeurs les plus influents."

NEOSPHERES

Zoom > 1 2 3

Sunny's time now

A jazz film by Antoine Prum

DVD 1
- Sunny' time now - a portrait of jazz drummer Sunny Murray (108', English, French, German)

DVD 2
- Alger '69 (16') a film by Théo Robichet
- Interview Sunny Murray (80', English)
- Interview Daniel Caux (37', French, English s.t.)
-Interview Robert Wyatt (39', English)

Robert Wyatt, the drummer and singer of the original Soft Machine line-up, evokes the intricate relations between the artistic and the political avant-garde and explains how free jazz radicals like Sunny Murray influenced his own musical development.

2008
DVD

PAUL THILTGES DISTRIBUTIONS/LA BASCULE (PTD-135)

An interview with Robert Wyatt

> Zoom

Going Underground: Paul McCartney, the Beatles and the UK Counterculture

A documentary by Tom O'Dell with Joe Boyd, Mick Farren, Barry Miles, Eddie Prevost and Robert Wyatt.

"Feature-length documentary examining the growth of the UK Counterculture in the mid-1960s, and Paul McCartney's involvement with this movement, which had a significant impact on the Beatles.... "

Duration : 2h33

2013
DVD

PRISM FILMS

Extract with Robert Wyatt

> Zoom

The Story Of Beat-Club Volume 3: 1970-1972

DVD 1
Beat-Club 60 - 24.10.1970
Beat-Club 61 - 28.11.1970
Beat-Club 62 - 31.12.1970

DVD 2
Beat-Club 63 - 31.1.1971
Beat-Club 64 - 27.2.1971

Beat-Club 65 - 27.3.1971

- It Happened Today (Curved Air)
- An Awful Lot Of Woman (Skid Row)
- Showband Blues (Skid Row)
- Composition Based On Three Tunes (The Soft Machine)
- Propositions (Curved Air)
- Vivaldi (Curved Air)

DVD 3
Beat-Club 66 - 24.4.1971
Beat-Club 67 - 22.5.1971
Beat-Club 68 - 26.6.1971

DVD 4
Beat-Club 69 - 24.7.1971
Beat-Club 70 - 7.8.1971
Beat-Club 71 - 25.9.1971

DVD 5
Beat-Club 72 - 30.10.1971
Beat-Club 73 - 27.11.1971
Beat-Club 74 - 26.12.1971

DVD 6
Beat-Club 75 - 29.1.1972
Beat-Club 76 - 26.2.1972
Beat-Club 77 - 25.3.1972

DVD 7
Beat-Club 78 - 27.5.1972
Beat-Club 79 - 24.6.1972
Beat-Club 80 - 30.9.1972

DVD 8
Beat-Club 81 - 28.10.1972
Beat-Club 82 - 25.11.1972
Beat-Club 83 - 9.12.1972

2015
8 x DVD

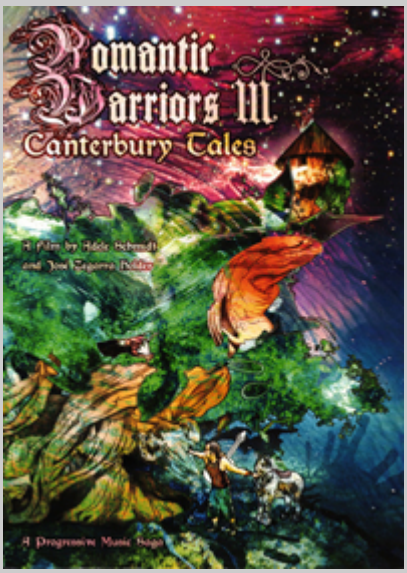
ARD VIDEO (57452)

Composition Based On Three Tunes

Daevid Allen's University Of Errors - Error Avalonis

- Introduction
- That's How Much I Need You Now

> Zoom



[R. Wyatt]
- Save Yourself [R. Wyatt]
- Memories [H. Hopper]
- Money Doesn't Make It
- I Should've Known [H. Hopper]
- When I Don't Want You [H. Hopper]
- Pot Head Pixies
- Hope For Happiness [B. Hopper]
- Rich Men Eat My Voice
- O Caroline [D. Sinclair/R. Wyatt]
- Shooting At The Moon
- Stoned Innocent Frankenstein
- Fohat Digs Holes In Space
- Clarence In Wonderland / We Did It Again [K. Ayers]

Videos
- Errors
- The Professor And The Pixel

Assembly Rooms, Glastonbury 30th May 2008.

2015
DVD

MANOONA MEDIA (ManoonaDVD002)

Zoom > 1 2 3 4

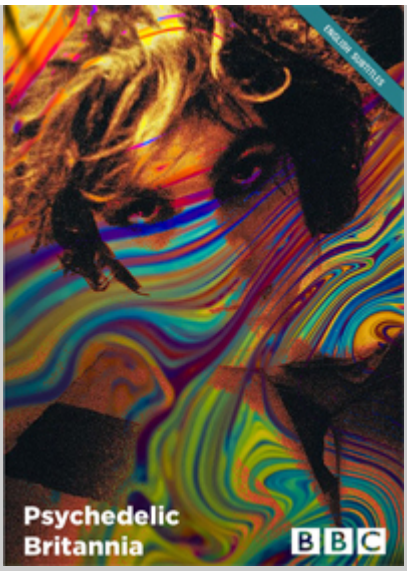
Romantic Warriors III - Canterbury Tales

A progressive Music Saga

An Adele Schmidt and José Zegarra Holder Film..

Featuring :
Caravan, Delivery, Egg, Forgas Band Phenomena, Gilgame, Glass, Gong, Hatfield and The North, In Cahoots, Matching Mole, Moving Gelatine Plates, National Health, Nucleus, Planeta Imaginario, Quiet Sun, Soft Machine, Soft Machine Legacy, Supersister, Syd Arthur, The Muffins, The Wilde Flowers, The Wrong Object.

Total Time : 118'



2015
DVD

A ZEITGEIST MEDIA LLC PRODUCTION

Critiques/Reviews

Psychedelic Britannia

"Documentary exploring the rise and fall of the most visionary period in British music history: five kaleidoscopic years between 1965 and 1970 when a handful of dreamers reimagined popmusic.

Zoom > 1 2

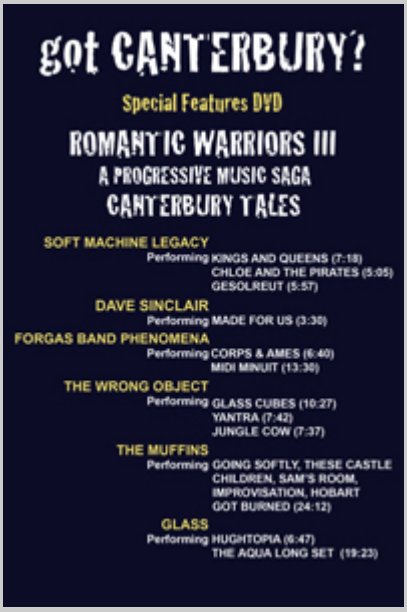
... the psychedelic era produced some of the most ground-breaking music ever made, pioneered by young improvising bands like Soft Machine and Pink Floyd..."



Directed by Sam Bridger with Joe Boyd, Robert wyatt, Arthur Brown, Gary Brooker, Paul Mc Cartney, The Moody Blues etc.

Total Time : 59'

2015
DVD

BRITISH BROADCASTING CORPORATION (BBC)

Two extracts with Robert Wyatt

> Zoom

Got Canterbury? Romantic Warriors III Special Features DVD (A Progressive Music Saga / Canterbury Tales)

- Kings and Queens [Soft Machine Legacy]
- Chloe and the Pirates [Soft Machine Legacy]
- Gesolreut [Soft machine Legacy]
- Made For Us [Dave Sinclair]
- Corps & Ames [Forgas Band Phenomena]
- Midi Minuit [Forgas Band Phenomena]
- Glass Cubes [The Wrong Object]
- Yantra [The Wrong Object]
- Jungle Cow [The Wrong Object]

Total Time : 288'

2016
DVD

A ZEITGEIST MEDIA LLC PRODUCTION

Daevid's You, Me & Us

- I Don't, Can't
- Madamme 0
- Statement Heels
- Hopeful Impression Of Happiness
- Da-i-na-ma-i-to/Deta

Hopeful Impression Of Happiness is a Hope For Hapiness cover.

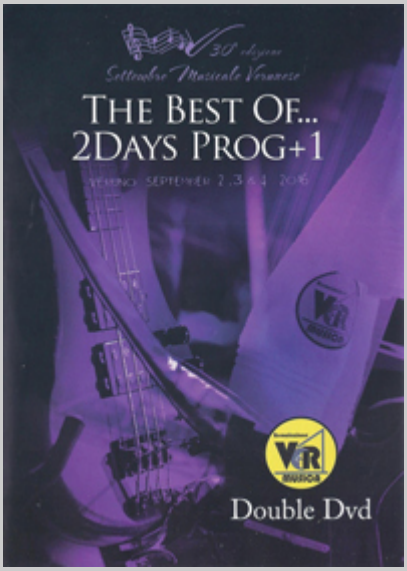
> Zoom

- Daevid Allen - guitar, vocals
- Chris Cutler - drums
- Yumi Hara - keyboards, vocals



"Limited edition DVD specially made for members of the audience who were given a 'Rain Check' when Daevid was unable to travel to do what became the you me & us 'Get Well Soon, Daevid! Japan tour, in 2014."

Recorded and filmed in October 2013.

Running time : 30'

2018
DVD

BONOBO'S ARK (BAR008)

> Zoom

The Best Of... 2Days Prog+1

Disc 1
- I Cancelli Del Tempo (Ubi Maior)
- Kiss From A Glacier (Special Providence)
- K2 (Special Providence)
- Lazy Boy (Special Providence)
- Delusion Rain (Mystery)
- Shadow Of The Lake (Mystery)
- Look At Yourself (Uriah Heep)
- The Law (Uriah Heep)
- Naughty Boy (Cheeto's Magazine)
- Coma (Nemo)
- Revolu$ion (Nemo)
- Disconnected (Airbag)

Disc 2
- Colours (Airbag)
- Don't Be Late (Saga)
- On The Loose (Saga)
- You're Not Alone (Saga)
- Qinah (Syndone)
- Cielo Di Fuoco (Syndone)
- Sagittarius (Frequency Drift)
- Memory (Frequency Drift)
- Sad Rain (Anekdoten)
- Gravity (Anekdoten)
- Facelift / Last Day (Soft Machine Legacy)
- Kings And Queens (Soft Machine Legacy)
- Gesolreut (Soft Machine Legacy)

2Days Prog+1 Veruno Festival, September 2, 3 & 4 2016.

2017

2xDVD

VER1 MUSICA (VRMUSICA7)

> Zoom

Sunlove - Jean-Jacques Lebel

- Sunlove
- L'état normal
Bonus
- Exprmntl 4 Knokke Claudia Von Alemann
- Exprmntl 1967 - Jud Yalkut

Les happenings organisés en Europe, dans les années précédant mai 68, par mes amis et moi, contrairement à ceux de nos correspondants d'outre-atlantique, se sont soulevés contre l'ordre moral, contre la dictature de la marchandise, contre toute autocensure en matière de sexe et de politique."
J.J. Lebel

Sunlove comporte des extraits de la performance de Soft Machine lors du happening organisé par Jean-Jacques Lebel à Cogolin en août 1967.

'Jean-Jacques Lebel had us playing one of his happenings, around a swimming pool at night. And the only rule was that everybody had to be undressed, including the band. Completely. If you weren't, you had to stay indoors. It was a very nice feeling, on a warm, breezy, Saint-Tropez evening, to be playing without clothes. That's when I realised you could do it. And being behind a drumkit protected what they call your modesty.'
Robert Wyatt in Different Every Time by Marcus O'Dair.

Running time : 136'

2021
DVD avec livret de 56 pages

Ed. RE:VOIR

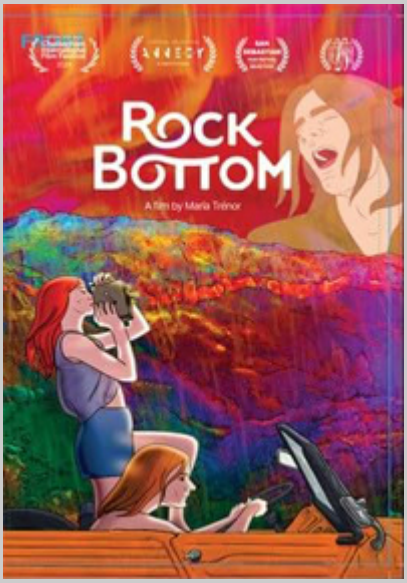
An extract from Sunlove with Soft Machine

Soft Machine - Other Doors - Tour 23/24

- Burden Of Proof
- The Visitor At The Window
- The Tale Of Talesin
- Whisper Back
- The Stars Apart
- Fourteen Hour Dream
- 10.30 Returns To The Bedroom
[M. Ratledge / H. Hopper / R.Wyatt]
- Middleburn (Drum Solo)
- Hidden Details
- Hazard Profil (Part 1)

- John Etheridge - guitar

> Zoom



- Asaf Sirkis - batterie
- Theo Travis - saxophones, flute, claviers
- Fred Thelonious Baker - basse

Enregistré au Triton (Les Lilas - France) le 12 avril 2024.

DVD - LE TRITON (TRI24-194)

Zoom > 1 2

Rock Bottom, un film de Maria Trenor

Film d'animation basé sur la genèse de l'album Rock Bottom.

Fermi Delfa (voice), Laura Casana (voice), Miranda Gas (voice), Oriol Pla (voice), Roger Pera (voice).

Supplément : "Con que la lavaré", film de Maria Trénor (2003 - 11mn).

DVD - 2024
Durée : 84 mn

POTEMKINE FILMS (EDV2390)

Plus d'informations 1

Plus d'informations 2

Vinyl et vin/Vinyl and wines

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Musardant sur le net, je découvre ce poème de Nicolas Klotz, qui me réjouit. Le vin et l'heure tardifs déplient l'évidence, réécouter Soft Machine et Robert Wyatt c'est tour à tour se coltiner l'énergie la mélancolie la révolte la beauté - décennie après décennie...

Samedi soir
Une bouteille de vin rouge sur la table
J'écoutais fort des disques au casque
De ma platine
Pour ne pas embêter le voisin du dessous
Qui frappe dur au plafond avec un balai
Verre de vin après verre de vin
Joy Division New Order Soft Machine
Les paroles d'Ian Curtis
L'orgue de Mike Ratledge
La batterie et la voix de Robert Wyatt S'infiltrent en profondeur dans l'intimité
Le vin et l'heure tardifs
Déplient l'évidence
La musique est vivante
Décennie après décennie
Rien ne l'arrête
L'énergie la mélancolie la révolte la beauté
Rien ne les arrête
J'aime beaucoup la matière vinyle des disques
On entend le support physique de la musique
La matière dans laquelle elle est gravée
La musique est là
Dans les sillons infinis des 17 minutes environs
Pendant lesquelles l'aiguille fait son travail Beaucoup plus complexe
Plus subtil
Que le lecteur CD Home Cinéma
VOUS L'AVEZ RÊVÉ SONY L'A FAIT
Le pressage VERVE produit un silence différent du pressage IMPULSE !
Alors que dans le cosmos numérique le silence est partout identique
Et la musique flotte
Sans support
Froideur des chiffres des crédits et du chloroforme
Le support fait partie de la perception
Le hors champ chez les Straub qui mixent en mono
Vient de l'écran
Alors que partout ailleurs
Il vient surtout des installations Dolby
Qui entourent les spectateurs dans les salles
Beaucoup aujourd'hui sont à la recherche des pressages mono
Des premiers Velvet Underground et des Rolling Stones
La perception est conditionnée par le support

En musique comme au cinéma
Les révolutions technologiques
Sont aussi des révolutions de la perception humaine
Le monde devient la manière dont nous le percevons
Ceux qui vivent en dehors du champ de vision de la technologie numérique
Disparaissent
Parce qu'ils ne sont plus détectables par
LE PLUS GRAND NOMBRE
Qui n'est qu'une très petite élite
Une infime petite caste
Apprivoisée par la technique
Et par le confort Haute Définition
Avec qui les grandes fortunes
Veulent construire un monde à leur image
Vidé de toute vie de toute vision de tout avenir
Mais les hommes les femmes et les enfants qui disparaissent
Sont de plus en plus visibles
De mieux en mieux détectés
Par toutes les formes de police qui contrôlent nos frontières
L'époque n'est plus comme je le pensais
Il y a encore quelques mois
Un mai 68 à l'envers
Mais un 1789 à l'envers
Où les guillotines veulent achever les pauvres
Colossale régression humaine
Prise dans la vertigineuse expansion de la finance
Et de la technique
Le disque tourne l'aiguille a terminé sa course
Depuis combien de temps ?
Je plane dans les vapeurs du Bourgogne rouge
En écoutant Soft Machine 4
Surtout pour la batterie de Robert Wyatt
A qui Soft Machine avait coupé le sifflet
Ca me rappelle une étonnante anecdote que Wyatt m'avait raconté
Robert Wyatt et Mike Ratledge étaient dans la même école à Canterbury Plus âgé que Robert
Mike faisait partie de la « School Patrol »
En charge de la discipline des élèves
Le jeune Robert aimait fumer dans les toilettes
Plusieurs fois Mike l'a dénoncé
Wyatt disait que même dix ans plus tard
La surveillance continuait au sein de Soft Machine
Mike appréciait peu les paroles des chansons de Robert Qui peu à peu a cessé de chanter
Puis a quitté Soft Machine
Quelques années plus tard Robert est tombé par une fenêtre
Et s'est brisé la colonne vertébrale
« The singer I am » disait-il
« Didn't need the drummer I was anymore »
Depuis il a fait une dizaine d'albums magnifiques
Ecoutez sa reprise de Strange Fruit (Billie Holliday)
Peu de temps après
Mike Ratledge et Hugh Hopper ont quitté Soft Machine eux aussi
Laissant le nom du groupe à d'autres musiciens
Qui après quelques albums médiocres
L'a définitivement enterré
A force de vouloir tout contrôler
On détruit la raison d'être des choses
Comment imaginer qu'une société de contrôle
Puisse générer autre chose que sa propre destruction ?

NICOLAS KLOTZ
02/11/2005 18h38

Nicolas Klotz a réalisé en 1992 "Robert Wyatt part On" - Production Mégamix, France 3.

ROBERT WYATT

[about Keith Tippett in " Keith Tippett - Mujician "de Martin Phillips -Jazz In Britain - 2026]

"Keith was a West Country bloke with a big heart and completely unlike the Old Boy Network jazz mafia that was the London scene at the time. He listened to everybody, was openminded, never put anybody down. And one of his things was to get all these different musicians from different genres together."

YANN GIRAUD

[in Les « oubliés » 2025 de Yann Giraud - Exit Musik - 6 janvier 2026]

"Figurez-vous qu'un jour je me suis retrouvé au téléphone avec Robert Wyatt, qui m'a demandé de lui accorder dix minutes pour se faire un thé… J'ai donc écouté dix minutes de Robert Wyatt manier une bouilloire, souffler sur sa tasse et avaler le liquide — et c'était encore du Robert Wyatt. Je n'oublierai jamais ce sentiment de privilège que j'ai ressenti. "

STUART TROUTMAN

[Email exchanges about this website and Robert Wyatt - October 2025]

"I can readily say that I'm a fan of the site, the newsletter, & especially the discography. Here in the US, there are many releases with Wyatt which we never see, given his international scope. I can say that I became a Wyatt fan when I first heard his voice; I was 14 then, & I'm 72 now. That's a full lifetime! If any contemporary music figure has been a 'hero' for me, it's Robert Wyatt. Yes, I also listen to 'Radio Robert' to explore 'the Sound of Tout'. Thank you for your efforts; I've been enjoying all of this for years. I know I'll cry when he dies, but I'm glad he's alive now. His music is a treasure."

NICOLAS KLOTZ

[in Nicolas Klotz - Derives.tv - 2020]

"Robert était tellement accueillant, aussi timide que moi. On a passé la nuit à discuter, boire, écouter des disques. Vers les 4h du matin, il dansait dans son fauteuil roulant. Le tournage a commencé le lendemain. Juste une nuit de tournage. Avec deux techniciens venant de Londres."

RICHARD SINCLAIR ABOUT MATCHING MOLE AND ROCK BOTTOM

[in Claudio Bustamante Interview - 13 November 2022]

0:00 / 1:14

Matching Mole

0:00 / 4:44

Rock Bottom

MIKE RATLEDGE - A TRIBUTE

[in Facelift - The Canterbury scene(zine) continued…. February 6, 2025]

Jeff Sherman of US progressive trio Glass who witnessed the full glory of the Soft Machine ’s sound in 1968.

“Seattle Center Coliseum was packed with people. This was like Hendrix’s homecoming. We’re in there and before Soft Machine play, they douse the lights – it was pitch black, and we hear this rumble. I mean, it literally was shaking. It was Mike Ratledge doing the bass pedal intro to ‘Why Are We Sleeping’. We can see they had this thing called the revolving stage, a round stage, and it’s backlit, but we can’t see the members. And we see this guy, somebody climbing over the amps to get on the drum set with just a vest and a hat on. And Mike’s playing the bass pedals. And the lights still haven’t come on. And then we hear this voice – Kevin steps up to the mic and says, this is called ‘The Rise and Fall of the American Empire’. Then there’s like a little laughter. And he goes. ‘We’re not kidding’. And then boom, they launched into it. The lights come on. You couldn’t have had more impact on us. They sounded like nobody we would have ever heard before. They looked like nobody we would ever heard before…. They were freaking loud – hell! But where we were sitting it was just perfect – it is not hyperbole to say that moment literally changed our lives…’

ROBERT WYATT - LE CINQUIEME TEMOIGNAGE

[in Pink Floyd en rouge - Michele Mari - Seuil]

Je m'appelle Robert Wyatt, nom d'artiste de Robert Ellidge, né à Bristol le 28 janvier 1945. J'ai été le fondateur, la voix et le batteur des Soft Machine, un groupe qui n'a pas duré longtemps. Le 1er juin 1973, en me penchant à une fenêtre après avoir trop bu, je suis tombé du troisième étage : depuis lors je suis paralysé à partir de la taille. Mais mes amis ne m'ont pas oublié : si dans les concerts de David Bowie ou de David Gilmour vous avez vu sur la scène un petit vieux sur un fauteuil roulant, ce petit vieux c'était moi.

En 1969, pendant plusieurs mois, les Soft Machine enregistrèrent à Abbey Road. À côté de notre studio, il y en avait un plus petit qui n'était presque jamais utilisé, mais un matin je vis que le signal rouge au-dessus de la porte était allumé. Je demandai à un technicien qui était là, et il m'expliqua qu'il y avait Syd Barrett. Je ne pouvais pas y croire, Barrett ! Les jours suivants je vis encore la lumière rouge allumée, mais quand dans un studio encore plus grand que le nôtre il y avait les Pink Floyd, qui en cette période réunissaient les morceaux d'Ummagumma, la lumière était éteinte. Au cours des mois suivants, je constatai qu'il n'y avait pas d'exceptions : soit eux, soit lui. Je demandai à tous les techniciens si avant de venir Barrett se renseignait : il ne se renseignait pas, et d'ailleurs il ne prenait même pas de rendez-vous, il arrivait un point c'est tout, mais comme c'était Barrett personne n'avait le courage de le renvoyer, et, à condition qu'il se passe de techniciens, ils lui laissaient utiliser ce studio à moitié abandonné. Je demandai s'il y avait eu des fois où, arrivant et sachant qu'il y avait ses ex-compagnons, il s'en était allé : ça n'avait jamais eu lieu, Barrett venait seulement lorsque eux n'étaient pas là, comme s'il le savait. Imaginez mon trouble : l'image de ce garçon si maigre, tout seul dans ce petit studio, qui entrait et sortait comme un voleur... Ce garçon qui nous avait inspirés nous aussi, c'était grâce à sa musique que j'avais fondé les Soft Machine... Aussi, dès le premier festival où nous sommes programmés avec les Pink Floyd, je vais chez Roger et je lui raconte tout. Ce ne fut pas beau de voir couler les larmes de ses yeux, grand et gros comme il .était, mais cela me fit aussi plaisir, je ne sais pas si vous me comprenez... En tout cas, une fois remis de son émotion, il me prie de lui accorder une faveur: je dois aider Syd, quel que soit son projet. Je lui demande pourquoi eux ne l'aident pas, il me répond que Nick et Rick y seraient opposés, et qu'il connaît Syd, en les voyant il aurait l'illusion de retravailler avec eux, aussi il valait mieux que je m'en occupe, peut-être qu'en travaillant avec un autre musicien son talent se réveillerait, j'aurais la gratitude de tout le monde, la sienne, celle de Dave, et naturellement celle de Syd et de tous ses fans.

Aussi, je l'ai aidé. J'ai pris avec moi Willie Wilson, qui par une ironie du destin avait été la basse de Dave chez les Jokers Wild. Je l'aidais pour la partie technique, le plus souvent, parce que pour le reste il ne semblait même pas écouter ce qu'on lui disait. Non pas qu'il fût sûr de son affaire, au contraire, je n'ai jamais vu quelqu'un d'aussi indécis, pour chaque chanson il enregistrait au moins une dizaine de versions, quelques-unes presque identiques et d'autres tellement différentes qu'elles en devenaient tout autre chose, et le malheur était qu'il ne se décidait jamais, il les gardait et disait: « Je choisirai plus tard... » Pour réussir à lui faire achever son album, je l'ai convaincu de le remplir de doubles avec le prétexte des bonus... Roger avait eu raison de me faire jouer l'ange gardien, sinon cet album ne serait jamais sorti... Le fait est que toutes ces variantes n'obéissaient pas à des raisons musicales, mais dépendaient exclusivement de l'humeur de Syd : c'est pourquoi il ne se décidait jamais à choisir, parce qu'il ne s'agissait pas d'humeurs momentanées, mais d'états différents de son esprit dissocié, si bien que pour lui choisir signifiait mettre toutes ses personnalités l'une contre l'autre. Quand je me confiai à Roger, il marmonna : « Je sais bien, je sais bien... » Quoi qu'il en soit, nous en sommes venus à bout, parce que Roger et Dave s'offrirent par ailleurs de produire l'album de leur poche, cela a été très beau de leur part, tout ça juste pour vous dire qui était Syd Barrett, toute cette fatigue pour faire un disque et il n'avait pas de producteur ! Et moi qui le découvre seulement à la fin, un miracle si je n'ai pas eu un malaise ! Certes, Syd était resté formellement avec les Blackhill, mais lorsque Jenner et King proposèrent l'album chez EMI on leur rit au nez, vous auriez dû voir Roger ! Il fit irruption comme une furie chez le directeur général en vidant sur sa table un attaché-case plein de liasses de billets de banque, The Madcap Laughs devait se faire, et ça se fit !

Je veux conclure ce bref témoignage par une anecdote. Vous voyez la pochette de Madcap ? Avec un sol peint à bandes rouges et bleues et Syd recroquevillé dans un coin à côté d'un vase de fleurs fanées ? Eh bien, cette photo de lui avait été prise par Mick Rock, et Syd avait peint le sol exprès pour cette occasion deux jours plus tôt, si ce n'est que, ayant commencé du côté où se trouvait la porte, un coup de pinceau après l'autre, il était resté prisonnier dans le coin opposé, comme dans un dessin humoristique... Il attendit d'abord que le sol sèche, ensuite, au bout de deux heures, il commença à demander de l'aide, et à la fin, voyant que personne n'arrivait, il se décida à marcher sur la peinture fraîche... Je le sais parce que quand Rock est allé là-bas pour la photo, on voyait nettement les empreintes, aussi lui a-t-il demandé ce qui s'était passé : Syd le lui a raconté, en le suppliant de ne pas cadrer ces empreintes parce qu'il ne voulait pas faire mauvaise impression... Pauvre Syd, avec les plantes des pieds barbouillées des couleurs de l'Union Jack !

JACKIE BERROYER

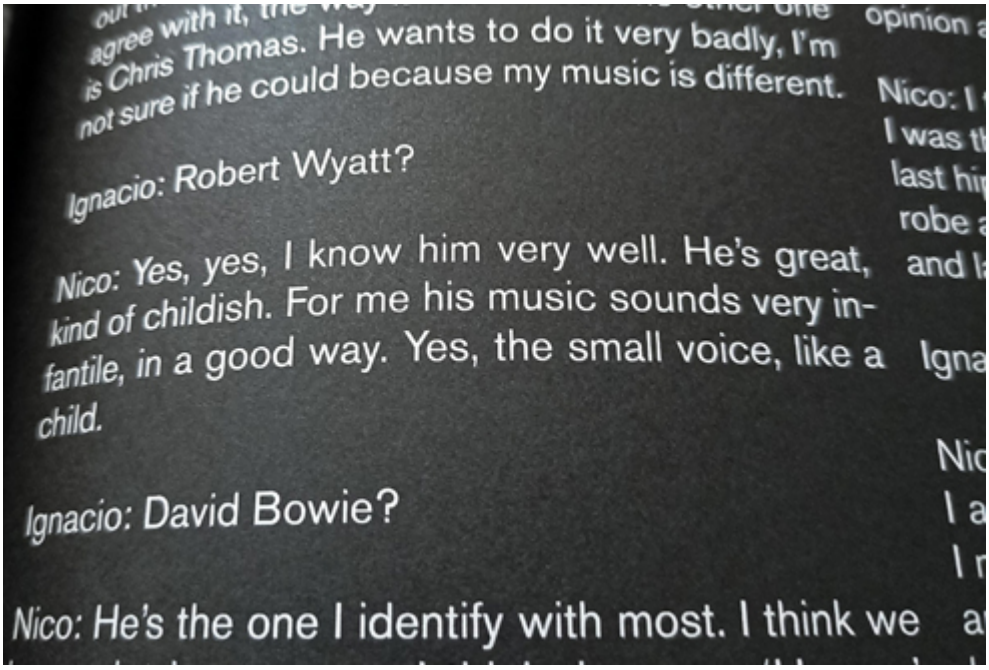
[in Charlie Hebdo N° 528 - 24 décembre 1980]

Autrefois, le rock était le football du mélomane. C'était prolo. Le jazz avait la place du tennis. C'était avant que le tennis se démocratise. L'étudiant écoutait du jazz et l'autre gland du rock. Soft Machine a amené l'étudiant dans le monde du rock. Et s'agissait de rock 'progressiste'. Avec un mot comme ça, il adhérait. Et la maison de disques d'étaler les diplômes universitaires de Ratledge (claviers) et des autres sur la pochette du premier disque. Le côté déconneur de Wyatt lui a valu d'être cité comme flirtant avec la pataphysique. Enfin, toute une légende. En tout cas, aujourd'hui, qu'on ressorte ça ou 'Rock Bottom', ça tient le coup.

YOUNG KNIVES

[in Plan B Magazine - Issue 31 - March 2008. Sharp indie-pop enthusiasts explains why music is their grindstone...]

...to cure insomnia (note: this does not necessarily mean "what is the most boring sleep-inducing record ever", although it could possibly...)?
"'Heaps Of Sheeps' by Robert Wyatt. If I was tossing and turning I could listen to something like this. It's positive, so would stave off the midnight paranoia, and his voice has the sound of your favourite uncle singing you a funny song about not being able to sleep."



ROBERT WYATT

[extrait de l'article "Pop and the election" publié dans le Melody Maker du 6 juin 1970 donnant la parole à de nombreux musiciens et artistes (Robert Plant, Eric Clapton, Bob Dylan, John Peel...) sur leur rapport à la politique et aux élections.]

ROBERT WYATT (Soft Machine): I'm supposed to be doing some things on TV and radio for the Liberal Party, and they seem to me to be the people most amenable to change, and most likely to listen to the younger element. I'm quite impressed by that. Normally I would vote Labour, 'because I come from a staunch Socialist family, but my disillusionment with politicians is the common one: the Government is like the Royal Family, manipulated by business people who don't exactly have the public's interest at heart. I would always vote for the nearest thing to a Communist Party, although once they get into power all systems are pretty bad. Oh, own up ... I'd really like to vote Christian. Any party which would support the Christian ethic, anybody who'd turn the other cheek and love his neighbour a bit would be the one for me.

NICO

[extrait d'un interview de Nico publié dans l'ouvrage "Linger On: the Velvet underground" de Ignacio Julià - Ecstatic Peace Library (2022)]

ROBERT WYATT

[Propos de Robert Wyatt rapportés par Patrice Quef, ingénieur du son du studio de Miraval (Var) in En-Contact Mag - 16/06/2022]

"J'ai écouté un disque de flamenco, juste une vieille guitare et une voix et ça sonne mieux qu'un enregistrement sophistiqué ; donc je me dis que ça doit être possible de vivre sans cette saloperie de technologie coûteuse, c'est une des choses que je suis déterminé à faire. Je ne suis pas radin, j'achète de la très bonne viande pour mon chien, quand c'est important je dépense de l'argent, mais pour une boîte à rythme non".

STEVE DAVIS

[in De Volkskrant - 28 april 2021 - Steve Davis is a famous ex-snookerplayer.]

'Ik kan natuurlijk Magma noemen, mijn favoriete band aller tijden. Maar laat ik het de lezer niet te moeilijk maken. Een plaat die niet te streng voor de oren is en wel een uitstekende introductie van het soort muziek waar ik het meest van houd is Rock Bottom van Robert Wyatt. Toen ik een jaar of zeventien was en net begon als serieus popliefhebber was Soft Machine een van mijn favorieten. Wyatt was de drummer van de band, maar raakte na een val uit het raam levenslang invalide. Ik was in 1974 bij zijn comebackconcert in het Londense Drury Lane theater, dat diepe indruk maakte. Daar zong hij ook Sea Song, het openingsliedje. Ik vind het nog altijd een van de ontroerendste nummers. Je kunt het lied gewoon meezingen, dus zo moeilijk is het niet. Probeer eerst eens dat hele album en ga dan door naar Magma of Gentle Giant.'

ROBERT WYATT

[Foreword to the book Bringing It All Back Home by Ian Clayton.]

What is this you have in your hands? Too wide-ranging to be a simple autobiography, that's for sure.
Imagine a magical roller coaster that unfurled beyond the confines of the fairground, looping and winding and soaring around time barriers, oceans and continents through every kind of weather 'til you realise it's mobius-looped its way back to the familiar patch of the original fairground. Imagine the ride! Hovering here (a moment to adjust the binoculars) then momentarily gliding too fast to focus steadily but still always dizzily vivid.
Now imagine it's a book. That, dear reader, is the book you have in your hands (and thanks Ian, for allowing us glimpses of Heather, Edward and the eternally untarnished innocence of little Billie Holiday).

ROBERT WYATT

[About Cornelius Cardew - on the back cover of "Piano Music".]

"...if the word 'romantic' should be rescued from the whimsical sentimentalists, it is so that we could then apply it, properly, to Cornelius Cardew: a real fountain of breathtakingly adventurous music. Immense skill and moral discipline, yes, but at the heart of the matter is simply the actual beauty of these hauntingly evocative soundscapes."

CHRIS CUTLER

[Extract from the movie Little Red Robin Hood -1998]

PHILIPPE DUMEZ

[Basse fidélité - Le mot et le reste]

JE ME SOUVIENS, en rachetant Rock Bottom de Robert "Wyatt en vinyle, découvrir des détails auxquels je n'avais jamais prêté attention, ainsi que des crédits que j'avais complètement oubliés (comme la présence d'Ivor Cutler comme récitant). Et pour cause: la version CD (barrée du bandeau « compact price » imprimé à même le livret, chose qui devrait être passible de la peine capitale), outre une pâlotte reproduction de la couverture, ne comporte aucune des notes d'origine.

ROBERT WYATT

[en réponse à la question "Vous reconnaissez-vous dans le jazz?" in Jazz Magazine N° 484 - Septembre 1998]

Je me sens le rejeton illégitime né d'une brève rencontre entre Betty Carter et Hans Eisler dans un motel le long de l'Autoroute 61, et qui a été abandonné devant l'Orphelinat du Rock and Roll.

BRUNO COULAIS

[à propos de Masters Of The Field chanté par Robert Wyatt dans le film Le Peuple migrateur in le Making-off de la musique du film - 2001 Galatée Films]

C’est un texte qui a été écrit en anglais par Gabriel Yacoub et chanté par Robert Wyatt, qui pour moi est un mythe. Adolescent, j’avais une admiration, une passion pour la voix de Robert Wyatt. Il avait les textes, il avait la musique et donc il a travaillé chez lui pendant un certain temps, une quinzaine de jours je crois. Et puis on s’est retrouvés dans un petit studio au fin fond de l’Angleterre, et on a passé deux ou trois jours… j’avoue que quand on a commencé à appuyer sur le bouton d’enregistrement et que sur une de mes musiques j’ai entendu la voix de Wyatt, j’étais déjà dans un état second… j’étais comme au spectacle… c’était très troublant… c’était une chose totalement irréelle et ça l’est toujours !

LAURIE NANKIVELL (SQUID)

[goldflakepaint.co.uk - "On Robert Wyatt" - 2020]

My first memorable interaction with Robert’s music was hearing ‘At Last I Am Free’ belting out from the car stereo on the way to the Brecon Beacons for a camping trip, my dad loudly proclaiming, “Isn’t this the most jubilant song in the world!” as we passed atop the Welsh hills. From then on Robert’s music has slowly crept its way into my life, informing and educating me as I began my own musical explorations. Robert’s career has been instrumental in shaping a lot of the bands I listen to today, and his continuous musical progression is something I aspire to. His approach as a songwriter is inspiring in a variety of ways. Musically he’s never been afraid to push things in an experimental direction whilst his lyrics and bare falsetto often keep his brand of experimentalism within a very soulful yet political space, something that is oft tricky to navigate. His use of instruments, without ever being too virtuosic, is very musical especially his drumming. Some of my favourites from His Greatest Misses include ‘Little Red Robin Hood Hit The Road’; without a doubt one of the most enthralling pieces ever made, along with it’s partner ‘Little Red Riding Hood…’ on Rock Bottom which is a must listen if alone for Mongezi Feza’s palindromic trumpet playing, and ‘Sea Song’; a beautifully aquatic love song. He’s also someone who writes politically, without being too on-the-nose or being known in the mainstream as a political songwriter whilst managing to convey as much meaning across as those writers. Songs such as Robert’s version of ‘Stalin Wasn’t Stallin’’ with its military-style chanting gives a stark look at ‘The Führer and its vermin’; ‘Gharbzadegi’, meaning ‘Westoxification’, ‘Westernitis’ or ‘Occidentosis’, pays homage to antiwar movements (specifically the invasion of Iran), whilst ‘The Age of Self’ reminding us that “If we forget our roots and where we stand, the movement will disintegrate like castles made of sand”, an apt message for current environmental and human rights movements that I try to work hard to remain a part of. At the age of 28, after suffering an accident he became paraplegic and subsequently stopped performing live (apart from a handful of gigs as a performer and only one headline show), and began his career as a solo musician. It seems to me that Robert has managed to turn what could well have been a severe limitation into something capable of giving him even more musical sensitivity. It’s like Eno dealt him a lifelong ‘Oblique Strategy’, with remarkable results.

PASCAL COMELADE

[L'Oreille Absolue n°5 - Mai 1998]

Robert Wyatt est pour moi l'un des rares musiciens qui a un ton aussi... implacable. C'est pas un son, c'est plus que ça. C'est dans son jeu de batterie, sa voix, sa façon de chanter, ses arrangements, ses sons de claviers... C'est un monde unique. C'est l'un des rares types dont on peut dire que je suis fan. Depuis la première heure, depuis les débuts de Soft Machine. Fan jusqu'à la pathologie. Tu sais, le genre de type dont tu vas acheter tous les disques, même celui où il ne sera qu'invité à poser quatre harmonies vocales sur une chanson. Pour moi, un des plus beaux morceaux de ces trente dernières années, c'est Moon in June, sur l'album Third de Soft Machine. C'est le summum, c'est même au-dessus de Rock Bottom, c'est un concentré fantastique de son art. C'est une personne plus que respectable dans l'histoire de la musique, à tous les niveaux. C'est d'ailleurs très bien, ce qui s'est passé au niveau de la presse au moment de la sortie de Shleep. Comme si on avait remis les pendules à l'heure, comme une mise au point nécessaire dans ce monde merveilleux de la musique que nous aimons tous.

ROBERT WYATT

[L'homme de plusieurs vies - France Culture - 24 février 2016 - A propos de Björk]

Je ne joue plus maintenant qu'avec de gens que j'apprécie, je veux avoir une ambiance sympa et familiale en studio. Je ne veux plus de ces tensions créatives merdiques de ma jeunesse, ça ne m'intéresse pas. Je ne demande jamais à jouer avec des gens célèbres. Parfois, les gens vous appellent pour participer à un projet, mais je refuse la plupart du temps. Non pas parce que je n'apprécie pas les personnes ou le projet, mais parce que je n'entends rien que je puisse y apporter. Celle qui m'a le plus fasciné, je me sentais comme un ado face à une héroïne, c'est Björk quand elle est venue pour un weekend. Elle était assise là, à votre place, et j'étais si nerveux que je ne pouvais penser à rien. J'étais ébloui, je la trouvais complétement magique en tant que personne et dans ce qu'elle fait. Et avec elle et comme avec d'autres, je me demande pourquoi on me sollicite, puis j'essaye d'être le Robert qu'ils veulent. C'est plus correct, plus respectueux, ce sont des compositeurs, ils savent ce qu'ils veulent et c'est pareil en sens inverse.

BERTRAND LOUTTE

[Section 26 - 45 tours de confinement - 21 mars 2020]

Robert Wyatt, je sais où il vit, et je suis allé lui rentre visite. C'était il y a une douzaine d'années, un jour de novembre. J'avais entrepris, avec en tête ce raccourci sémantique qui n'était pas pour me déplaire, de dépêcher Loutte à Louth (dans le Lincolnshire) pour aller filmer cet homme absolument délicieux. C'est Alfie (Alfreda Benge, son épouse) qui, prévenue de notre arrivée (j'étais accompagné d'un caméraman que je remercie aujourd'hui d'avoir été à ce point précieux et attentif), nous a ouvert. Dans son dos se tenait Robert, avec aux lèvres ce sourire malicieux qui, souvent, masque d'insondables tréfonds. Il nous invita alors à rejoindre cette pièce, la seule avec une fenêtre donnant sur la rue, où il passe l'essentiel de son temps. Notre homme semblait aller bien. Il était sobre depuis quelque mois, ce qui lui évitait de se « mettre dans des situations ridicules », même s'il avouait trouver la vie moins drôle une fois les bouteilles de rouge remisées. Et lui qui avait collé sur sa lampe de bureau l'avertissement qu'idéalement il voulait trouver au dos des paquets, « Life's a drag without a fag » (sans clopes, la vie est une corvée), lui qui rêvait d'une cigarette pipe-line qu'il allumerait au réveil pour l'éteindre au coucher, avait arrêté de fumer du jour au lendemain. Simplement parce qu'Alfie devait bientôt subir une opération de la cornée et que d'ici là, le tabac lui était fortement déconseillé. Un exemple parmi d'autres de ce qui lie ces deux-là, un amour sans conditions, et qu'on devine inextinguible. Interrogé sur son quotidien, Robert Wyatt n'esquivait guère. Il avouait passer ses journées à écouter ses vieux disques de jazz, à étreindre son cornet ou sa trompette comme si c'étaient des ours en peluche, et à balancer d'affectueuses piques (« Good try, bad luck ») au buste en plâtre de Lénine qui trônait dans l'âtre de la cheminée. On se souvient également que cet homme qui ne daignait plus se produire sur scène avait néanmoins accepté sans rechigner de jouer devant la caméra quelques notes de piano, puis de cornet, avant d'empoigner une paire maousse de maracas qu'il avait affectueusement rebaptisé ses « couilles de Sandinistes ». Infini respect.

ROBERT WYATT

[Les Allumés du jazz N°4/ Jean-Jacques Birgé - Parlez-nous d'un disque méconnu… - 2000]

Mack The Knife and other Berlin songs of Kurt Weill arrangé et dirigé par Mike Zwerin pour le Sextet of Orchestra USA, enregistré à New York en 2 sessions, 1964 et 1965

(RCA Victor - BMG France 74321591622)
Je placerais Kurt Weill entre George Gershwin et Leonard Bernstein, dans ce magnifique triumvirat d'auteurs de chansons inspirés par - et inspirant – les musiciens de jazz. Voilà qui garantit la qualité du matériel de base. Mais c'est pour moi un disque de Mike Zwerin, rempli d'idées harmoniques et rythmiques, rehaussé des solos de sa trompette basse. Il est joyeusement assis au milieu des autres musiciens, pas le moins du monde relégué dans l'ombre de gars comme Jerome Richardson, Thad Jones, Richard Davis et bien entendu l'éternel et électrique Eric Dolphy. Je ne me lasse jamais de ce disque et je suis surpris qu'il ne soit pas plus connu.

Jean-Jacques Birgé - Parlez-nous d'un disque méconnu…

DAVID FENECH

[Agitation FrIIte - Témoignages de l'underground français - Avril 2018]

Le disque acheté dans les années 1980 et absolument déterminant a été Rock Bottom de Robert Wyatt, ce chef-d'œuvre absolu. À la première écoute, je me souviens avoir eu une réaction physique : des frissons dans le dos qui se sont très vite propagés dans tout mon corps (je ne suis pas intéressé par les drogues, mais j'imagine que ça doit faire cet effet-là). Je me suis mis à le réécouter de façon compulsive sans qu'il ne dévoile son secret. C'est un disque très complexe, au-delà des genres et de ce que je connaissais par ailleurs. Cette part de mystère, cette polysémie, cet aspect libre, cette précision, cette intimité... C'est une énorme influence ! Rock Bottom m'a donné envie de vivre ma musique comme je l'entendais. Et plus techniquement, ça m'a vraiment ouvert l'esprit sur une façon d'utiliser le studio d'enregistrement de manière créative.

BJÖRK

[L'Oreille Absolue - Propos recueillis en 2004]

Tous les chanteurs qui ont participé à Medúlla [son sixième album, sorti en 2004 et consacré à la voix humaine] venaient d'horizons très différents et apportaient des registres et des timbres très variés. Pourtant, alors que le disque semblait achevé, j'ai eu la sensation que quelque chose manquait… Un chanteur plein d'âme, qui aurait à la fois un rôle narratif plus traditionnel et une capacité d'improvisation, une grande souplesse d'expression. J'avais le sentiment que cet aspect essentiel de la folk music manquait cruellement au tableau. J'ai immédiatement pensé à Robert Wyatt, et je l'ai appelé en direct : il a tout de suite répondu présent. Le lendemain de notre conversation, je quittais Londres et me rendais chez lui en voiture, là-haut, dans le Nord de l'Angleterre, dans cette adorable maison où il habite avec sa femme Alfie. Nous avons enregistré sa contribution vocale [sur le titre Submarine] dans leur chambre, tout au long d'une journée où Robert n'a cessé de chanter et d'apporter sa grâce. Au soir de ce premier jour, nous avons pris une bonne cuite en nous racontant mille histoires, c'était un moment incroyablement doux… Le lendemain, nous pensions nous remettre au travail. Mais en réécoutant les enregistrements de la veille, nous nous sommes rendus à l'évidence que tout était déjà là. Robert est l'un des chanteurs les plus spontanés que j'ai eu la chance de rencontrer. Sa pratique est d'une force instinctive et instantanée incroyable.

ROBERT WYATT

[Rock'n'Folk - Spécial Pink Floyd - Août 2018]

La contribution de Rick Wright est sous-estimée. Il a créé un paysage à l'orgue, une atmosphère dans laquelle des choses peuvent arriver. À leurs débuts, les deux guitaristes stars étaient ceux qu'on jugeait les plus spectaculaires, clairement, mais Rick était très modeste. "See-Saw" est un très beau morceau. Si vous l'écoutez, écoutez ensuite ce que j'ai fait depuis, vous entendrez le rôle humble, mais crucial, des claviers. Ce sont de vrais gentlemen. J'étais bouleversé par le split entre le bassiste [Waters] et le guitariste [Gilmour], parce que je leur dois beaucoup en tant qu'amis. C'est comme lorsqu'on connaît un couple qui divorce et qu'on aime les deux. Je pense que David est un géant. Ce qui a sauvé Pink Floyd, c'est la façon dont David s'est affirmé. Quand Syd est parti, David a recomposé le groupe. S'il ne l'avait pas fait, ils seraient restés un groupe culte des sixties de plus. Mais David a pris un moment de cette éthique adolescente fugace, s'y est accroché et en a fait quelque chose avec lequel le groupe pouvait grandir.

MARY HALVORSON

[Wire Playlist: Mary Halvorson - March 2018]

Here is a playlist including several key influences for my newest project, Code Girl, which is my first leader project that features a singer" starts Halvorson. "All of the musicians on this list have a totally unique concept and approach to lyrics and song. I'm starting with Robert Wyatt because his influence probably runs deepest. He is a true individual and innovator and I've spent years with many of his albums on repeat listen. "Sea Song" was the first of his I ever heard, so it holds a special place for me.

FRED FRITH

[Interview de Jean-Jacques Birgé en 2004 pour le n°10 de la revue Les Allumés du Jazz]

Mes relations avec Robert sont toujours pleines de couleurs parce que c'était un vrai héros de ma jeunesse. Je voulais chanter comme lui, écrire des chansons comme lui. J'ai rencontré Ian MacDonald lorsqu'on était étudiants ensemble à Cambridge (c'était devenu un rédacteur et journaliste assez renommé dans le monde pop et rock avant de mourir tragiquement l'année dernière). À Londres il était voisin de Robert dont il m'a donné le numéro de téléphone. À l'âge de 18 ans, j'ai commencé à lui téléphoner pour lui dire que je pensais que Soft Machine avait besoin d'un guitariste, et moi je serai prêt quand ils voudraient... Il était très gentil ! Il m'a enfin invité à le rejoindre dans Matching Mole avec Bill McCormick (le frère de Ian MacDonald) et Francis Monkman. J'étais prêt, mais il a eu son accident. Plus tard, il est devenu un grand défenseur de Henry Cow, ce qui nous a beaucoup aidés à l'époque - c'est grâce à lui et à John Peel, à mon avis, qu'on a réussi à signer avec Virgin. Et c'est toujours un de mes chanteurs préférés !

Interview complet de Fred Frith par Jean-Jacques Birgé pour les Allumés du jazz

---

RENAUD MONFOURNY (photographe, auteur du portrait de couverture de la biographie et de l'album "Different Every Time")

[Telerama.fr - Sortir à Paris - 21 février 2016]

"S'il levait les sourcils, il aurait l'air grincheux… Mais Robert Wyatt est une belle personne, généreuse et pas aigrie malgré qu'il soit paralysé des deux jambes après avoir voulu faire comme l'oiseau, au début des années 1970. Après avoir tendu un drap noir pour rendre invisible son fauteuil roulant, j'ai remarqué ses pieds : il portait des baskets, deux pieds gauches sans lacet. Quand je lui ai dit, il m'a rappelé qu'en tant que membre du PC anglais - qui en compte 75 -, il était hors de question qu'il mette une chaussure de droite !"

DAVID STUBBS

[Uncut - July 2000 - Jimi Hendrix: Public Image Unlimited]

Hendrix the black radical. Hendrix the glam dandy. Hendrix the icon. Hendrix the man. As Robert Wyatt says, "Macho was less of a big thing generally in England. The ideology and culture back then was much more hermaphrodite, pre-Raphaelite, boys being like girls and so on. Whereas in America, as Kevin Ayers once pointed out, when they grew their hair long, they immediately grew thick, bushy moustaches as well to show they were real men. Hendrix was very interested in that more English way of looking at things, musically and aesthetically."

BRIAN ENO

[Chris Salewicz - NME - 7 December 1974 - ANNOUNCEMENT: Texans like steak, oil-wells, large hats and Eno…]

That's the way Robert Wyatt listens to records - he's amazing, you know. He is incredible. I was down there the day he was doing NME singles or whatever with a fresh mind on each one, you know. He'd say, 'That's a lovely guitar sound' and I'd think, 'What a shitty record'. He'll read interviews that I'll regard as totally stupid or pretentious and he'll say 'Oh obviously what he meant to say was this but he didn't quite say it right'. So it's a question of making allowances.

RICHARD BRANSON

[Paul Rambali - The Face - June 1984]

I thought we'd be able to consistently sell records by unconventional, difficult people. I indulged my fantasies of being able to make records with heroes of mine, people like Robert Wyatt.

EVERYTHING BUT THE GIRL

[Paolo Hewitt, NME, 1 December 1984 - Take The Melancholy Strain]

It limits their music to being 'really good' (which it mainly is) rather than 'great' because they, by their own personal beliefs, shy away from emotions they think are dangerous, such as anger or flippancy. But they have time on their side and talent will be heard. "I think Robert Wyatt is very similar," Tracey says. "He's very melancholy about the world because he's thought about it a lot and I think a lot about the world and it doesn't please me particularly. If it stems from anything it's that. I could quote Keats here, but I won't."

DAVID BYRNE

[Charles Shaar Murray, NME, 8 December 1984 - Cents and Sensibility: Talking Heads]

Are there aspects of Byrne's character which don't surface in the music?

Oh, yeah. My political views are not very… um… so… lately I did some posters for the election and I found that that was a much more comfortable outlet. Maybe each aspect of my character has its own ideal medium for expression.

It's assumed that a lot of musicians are speaking for someone else — speaking for the steelworkers or for the underprivileged — whereas a lot of musicians are privileged people.

"I find that it rarely works, except in the case of someone like Robert Wyatt. When he does it I find it pretty touching in a way. They're definitely political sentiments that he's expressing, but he does it in a way that's so personal. It's an intense personal emotion that's being expressed which happens to be of a political nature.

BRIAN ENO

[Cynthia Rose, NME, 26 July 1980 - Brian Eno: Into The Spirit World]

Robert Wyatt said a smart thing, as he often does. He said, "Well the papers have to come out every day and the headlines always have to be the same size and it's as simple as that." It doesn't matter what the scale of an event is, you have to make it look as though something big is happening every day and of course the really big things, like the drought in the Sudan, rarely happen on a single day! Those events involving huge numbers of people simply aren't like the tube crash last night, with a nice round number of people led whimpering out of the tunnels. The format of newspapers just isn't suited to real news — it isn't suited to giving the background, the present and the possible futures of an event. It's a newspaper thing; I don't know what you can do about it.

HUGH HOPPER

[Gérard Nguyen - ATEM n°8 - 1977]

Tu peux dire quelques mots de Rock Bottom ?

D'abord, c'était bien, parce que c'était la première fois que Robert et moi on se retrouvait depuis Soft Machine. L'enregistrement a été amusant. En premier, Robert a fait les pistes de base chez lui : percussions, clavier, chant. Il m'a envoyé les bandes pour que je travaille dessus chez moi. Je les ai faites avec mon magnéto et je les lui ai renvoyées. Après, nous sommes allés au Manor de Virgin et nous avons joué séparément. Il avait commencé, j'ai mis la basse sur mes morceaux et, un autre jour, Laurie Allen a mis la batterie... En fait, le groupe ne s'est jamais retrouvé au grand complet.

BRIAN ENO

[Ian MacDonald, NME, 3 December 1977 -Eno Part 2: Another False World — How to Make A Modern Record]

I still don't know how pleased I am with what I've done. Robert Wyatt said to me once that you commit yourself to what you're left with ? you know that this is the only thing left that you can do.

EVAN PARKER

[The Quietus - July 17th, 2013 - Complicated Sublimity: Evan Parker Interviewed by Stewart Smith.]

The first recording I did with Robert was for [Canadian jazz-poet] Paul Haine's Darn It [a 1994 album recorded with a host of avant-garde luminaries] where I was just in the studio waiting for my turn to record and Robert suggested I play a solo as a coda to the setting he had done of one of Paul's poems. Later he invited me to play on Schleep. Robert loves the studio so much that he slept there while he was making that. I think he had 48 tracks to work with and there must have been many changes of mind as each layer was added. Robert was a friend from the days when we both lived in Twickenham. My two older sons used to call in on their way home from school to see him because he could play them the music they didn't hear at home. Last time I saw him was backstage at Ornette's Meltdown.

http://thequietus.com/articles/12819-evan-parker-interview

MARY HALVORSON

[Destination-Out - october 6, 2010 - on Robert Wyatt & Indirect Influence]

People who hear my new record, Saturn Sings, might wonder what it has to do with Robert Wyatt. And rightly so– I think it’s safe to say that my music sounds almost nothing like Wyatt’s. That being said, there have been two occasions when, after a gig, I’ve been asked if I’m a Wyatt fan (shout out to Pete Galub and Bernard Lyons). Both astutely zoned in on some intangible element of my music that reminded them of Wyatt. All the years of listening to him must have seeped into my music somehow.

The first time I heard Robert Wyatt was in 2006 when a friend played me Rock Bottom (1974). I still remember the feeling of hearing the first track, “Sea Song.” I was sitting on my living room floor in front of the stereo. It was one of those rare moments when you are so completely bowled over by a piece of music that you don’t know what to think. I wasn’t even sure I liked it; I was just completely freaked out. The music was so beautiful, so strange, incredibly dark, and entirely unlike anything I’d heard. That’s what I love about Wyatt’s music. He’s not weird for the sake of being weird. The music is purely his own.

As I normally do when a record freaks me out that much, I listened to Rock Bottom probably six hundred times that year. That and a few other Wyatt albums. I barely listened to anything else. At one point I thought it would be a good idea to learn “Sea Song” on guitar and try my own version. Two hours later I had managed to suck the life out of it. Lesson learned– if a song is already perfect, no need to ruin it by creating an inferior rendition.

One thing I admire about Wyatt is that he didn't just make a hit and ride it out for the rest of his life. He is a true artist who is always searching and continues to create new and interesting records today. A recent favorite is Comicopera (2007), an opera in three parts. Love songs turn into political songs which turn into songs with lyrics in Spanish and Italian. Wyatt has explained in interviews that he is so fed up with politics in England and the Western world- most recently with the war in Iraq- that he doesn't want to associate himself with the English language. The album resonates with a feeling of being close to home while gradually lifting away from the world entirely, hence the name of the third act "Away With The Fairies."

My next Robert Wyatt discovery took me back in time to one of his earliest projects. Before his paralysis in 1973, Wyatt was a drummer and vocalist in The Soft Machine. Check out their self-titled 1968 album, particularly the tracks "Hope for Happiness," "Why Am I So Short?" and "A Certain Kind." After listening to so much of Wyatt's solo music, it was interesting to hear his earlier music with it's strikingly brighter energy. I was of course not surprised to discover that I loved his drumming, too.

This brings me to another interesting point about Wyatt– he is known to be a huge jazz fan. Although his music would probably not be categorized as jazz, he has done some covers of standards which he colors with his unique energy and feel. I found a rendition of "'Round Midnight" on a 1999 compilation called EPs, as well as a version of "How Insensitive" on Cuckooland (2003). Thinking about Wyatt's connection to jazz made me wonder how his music relates to my own. In 2008 I mailed Wyatt On and Off, my duo CD with Jessica Pavone. He was nice enough to take the time to respond, which meant more to me than he realized: "I definitely sense a musical empathy- only the dialects differ, I'd say."

GILAD ATZMON

[Jazz Magazine - mai 2013 - entretien "Sans tabou ni trompette"]

Terminons avec un sujet à la croisée de la musique et de la politique: vous jouez avec Robert Wyatt, qui se situe très à gauche. Comment l'avez-vous rencontré?

Sa femme m'a abordé lors d'un festival où je jouais en me disant: "Mon mari est très timide, il est musicien et il aime beaucoup votre jeu. Accepteriez-vous de le rencontrer? " Et je découvre ce type en chaise roulante, qui me dit qu'il voudrait enregistrer avec moi. Je dis oui et je prends sa carte sans la regarder, et c'est seulement le lendemain que je réalise qu'il s'agit de Robert Wyatt. J'ai souvent joué avec lui, j'ai même produit un de ses disques. Au début, j'étais un peu sur la défensive car je savais qu'il était communiste. Mais c'est une des personnes les plus adorables que je connaisse. Il y a tant d'innocence et de force chez lui que ça me rend presque jaloux.

CHRIS CUTLER

[Macao - décembre 2005 - propos recueillis par Patrice Boyer]

Peux-tu nous dire ce que représente Robert Wyatt pour toi ?

Robert est l'un des derniers batteurs dont le style a influencé le mien. Exceptionnellement musical, il était à la fois hamonieux et délié – une combinaison rare pour un batteur de rock. C'était un maître des mélodies avec les percussions, il semblait appartenir à un univers situé quelque part entre La Motown et le meilleur du rock, mais avec une flexibilité habituellement liée au jazz. En tand que compositeur et chanteur, "Moon in June" fût un modèle sur la manière de developer la forme des chansons sans la détruire. Je pense qu'un des grands cadeaux de Robert est une forme très complexe de simplicité. J'admire sa constance politique.

Could you tell us what is Robert Wyatt for you ?

Robert was one of the last drummers whose style influenced mine. Exceptionally musical, he was both tuneful and loose - a rare combination for a rock drummer. He was a master of percussion melody, and always surprising, seeming to belong somewhere between Motown, and the best of Rock, but with a flexibility usually associated with Jazz. And as a composer and singer; Moon in June was a model of how to expand the song form without making it collapse. I think one of Robert's great gifts is a very complex form of simplicity. I admire his political consistency.

BJÖRK

[XFM - 25 August 2004]

He lives in Louth, Lincolnshire and he has equipment in his bedroom where he records himself and his albums. We brought a G4 and Pro Tools and recorded it in like one afternoon. He's such an extraordinary singer. Before he left, he insisted to give us a scale of his voice, where he sings all the tones - and he has the most amazing range, like 5 or 6 octaves. What's really interesting about his range is that each octave is of a totally different character. We actually ended up using that later for 'Oceania', we used what he calls the 'Wyattron'.

PASCAL COMELADE

[Les Inrockuptibles - juin 1998]

De qui es-tu réellement fan ?

De Robert Wyatt. Un fan jusqu'à la pathologie - depuis la première heure. Un type qui a une énorme culture musicale, curieux de tout. C'est un des rares, pour moi, qui ait un ton aussi implacable. Le jeu de batterie, la voix, la façon de chanter, les arrangements, son jeu et ses sons de clavier : c'est un monde unique. Pour moi, un des plus beaux morceaux de ces trente dernières années, c'est Moon in June, sur le Third de Soft Machine : un concentré fantastique ... A une époque, on a eu une petite correspondance via des cartes postales - il écrit beaucoup sur ce support. C'est pas bien de parler des choses qui ne se font pas, mais il y a entre nous un projet qui dure depuis longtemps, l'idée de faire au moins une chanson ensemble.

PACÔME THIELLEMENT

[Même les morts sont malades - extrait de la conférence musicale du 22 janvier 2014 dans le cadre de "Satan Trismegiste", résidence au Monte-en-l'air (Paris XXème)]

... Ce qu'on a souvent dit d'Apollinaire, tant pour le glorifier que pour le critiquer, c'est qu'il se comportait comme un brocanteur de la poésie. C'est son invention : le poète brocanteur, à la recherche d'images rares ou désuètes, tapageuses ou délicates, construisant son poème comme l'étal d'un marchand. D'où cette sorte de joie triste qui ressemble plus qu'à tout autre au Rock Bottom de Robert Wyatt. Oui, Apollinaire est à Wyatt ce que Jarry est à Zappa. Apollinaire et Wyatt ce sont ces grands mélancoliques sourieurs, ivres d'une virtuosité masquée derrière un apparent bricolage.
La brocante vient nous parler d'autre chose : elle vient nous parler du fait que nous ne pouvons pas vivre dans le décor de la modernité, quand bien même nous voulons marquer le coup de celle-ci. Gertrude Stein l'évoque également à la fin de son livre sur Picasso : elle a remarqué que tous les artistes les plus prophétiques de son époque avaient besoin de vivre entouré de vieux objets fatigués. Si Rilke, dans une lettre célèbre accompagnant l'écriture des Élegies de Duino, parle de ces objets manufacturés qui nous viennent d'Amérique, qui n'ont pas la durée des objets des anciens (une chaise devait durer au-delà de la vie d'un homme), mais devront s'éteindre après quelques années et si Baudelaire parle de la forme de la ville qui change plus vite que le cœur d'un mortel, Apollinaire est le premier à chercher la solution dans la « puissance révolutionnaire du suranné » comme dirait Walter Benjamin. Si Rilke parle, avant tout le monde, de l’obsolescence programmée, Apollinaire invente une poésie de fortune – une poésie de troc, de récup, et de bricolage tout à fait représentative de l’économie qui désormais nous échoit. Une poésie de collage. Si vous voulez : Apollinaire est le premier poète décroissant. Il est le premier à se préparer au moment où ne vivrons plus que dans des espaces de fortune. Il est le premier à voir la Terre elle-même comme un lieu d’errance. C’est le mondialisme et le cosmopolitisme – mais du côté des pauvres et des poètes, pas des élites transnationales ! C’est le monde dans lequel nous entrons, vers lequel nous partons. Il faut partir maintenant. Et nous chantons encore avec Apollinaire :

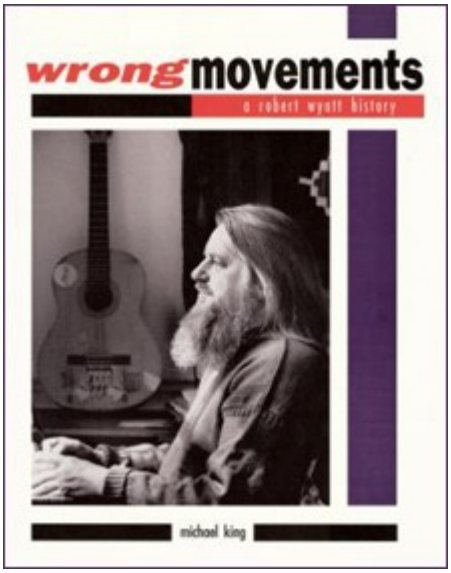
Nous ne sommes que deux ou trois hommes
Libres de tous liens
Donnons-nous la main

Satan, c’est fini.
Voici le temps de la magie.

ROBERT WOOD

[Impro Jazz- janvier 2016]

Il semble que Robert Wyatt soit une de tes idoles, si idole il y a...



A une époque j'ai adoré le fait que Robert Wyatt ait pu faire Matching Mole, j'adore Rock Bottom, j'adore ses compositions, très sensibles, très riches. C'est un genre musical qu'on retrouve peu dans le monde, c'est essentiel. C'est très anglais (même si je suis à moitié écossais, je suis aussi anglais). Et puis avant, question batterie, c'était quelque chose...

Wrong Movements

ABÉCÉDAIRE

Wrong Movements est à ma connaissance (article rédigé le 4/06/2006, bien avant la publication de Different Every Time) la seule biographie de Robert Wyatt. Michael King, son auteur, résume ainsi son intention : "Faux mouvements n'est ni une analyse, ni une critique de la musique de Robert Wyatt, encore moins une étude du caractère socio-politique qui a baigné sa musique. Les qui, quand, où, quoi et pourquoi sont des panneaux indicateurs, qui balisent un voyage narratif de 30 ans".

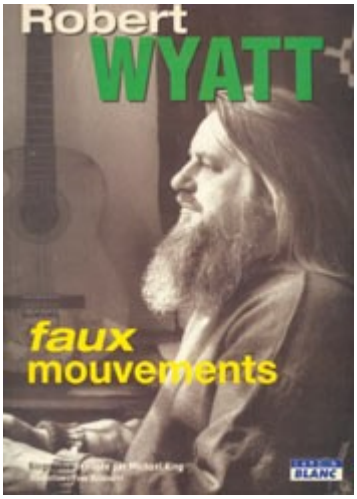
Suivant le fil chronologique, du 28 janvier 1945 - naissance de Robert Wyatt Ellidge - à 1997 (Shleep), l'ouvrage est surtout passionnant par sa description des premières rencontres musicales (Mike Ratledge à la chorale de l'école de Canterbury !...) et des premières aventures sonores.



Nous y découvrons la maison d'enfance remplie de toutes les musiques, les encouragements et le soutien des parents, l'attirance initiale vers les arts plastiques...

L'apprentissage de la trompette puis les premiers cours de batterie, les premiers concerts, les premiers groupes...

Habilement entrecoupée de nombreux extraits d'interviews de Robert Wyatt et de la plupart des musiciens et amis qui l'ont croisé un jour ou l'autre sur scène ou en studio, la biographie rend vivement compte de la créativité de l'époque.

Les concerts mythiques - Love Festival UFO, 14 Hour Technicolor Dream, la soirée Caroll Baker sur la Cote d'Azur avec un We Did It Again de plus d'une heure, la Fenêtre Rose au Palais des Sports de Paris ou la All-Night Rave au Roundhouse avec Pink Floyd Steel Band - , la tournée américaine avec Jimi Hendrix Experience, les multiples collaborations musicales, le départ de Soft Machine et la création de Matching Mole, l'enregistrement de The End Of An Ear, tous ces évènements sont fidèlement retracés par ceux-là mêmes qui les ont vécus. Jusqu'à cette soirée du 1er juin 1973 où "vin, whisky, Southern Comfort et ensuite la fenêtre" vont remettre les compteurs à zéro d'une aventure musicale qui aurait bien pu s'arrêter là.

De Rock Bottom à Shleep, la carrière solo mais pas solitaire de Robert Wyatt est très finement rapportée. L'ouvrage se termine par une discographie détaillée (une des sources d'information du présent site), compilée par le rédacteur en chef de la revue allemande Canterbury Nachrichten.

A noter que le livre comporte de très nombreuses photos (dont la plupart circulent aujourd'hui librement sur internet). La plus étonnante : Robert Wyatt, en fauteuil roulant, vendant le Morning Star en compagnie de Digby Jacks, délégué du Parti Communiste.

Wrong Movements a été traduit en français par Yves Balandret et a été publié aux éditions Camion Blanc en 1998 sous le titre Faux mouvements.

Une version italienne a également été publiée sous le titre Falsi Movementi, una storia di Robert Wyatt aux éditions Arcana, traduite par Alessandro Achilli.

La version japonaise parue en 1997 aux éditions Seirindo a été traduite par Narimasa Fujimori.

Advance Information Sheet

WRONG MOVEMENTS

A Robert Wyatt History

by Michael King

160 Pages (US letter size - over 100 photos)

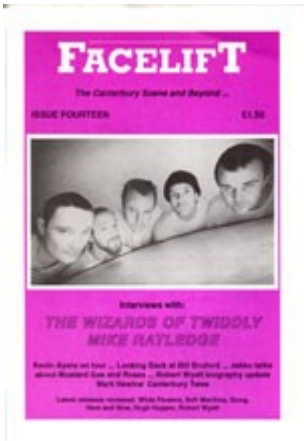
Paperback price: £14.95—ISBN: 0 946719 101

Publication date: April 1994

About the book

Robert Wyatt was a founding member of The Soft Machine, who along with Pink Floyd helped to transform the late sixties psychedelic scene in England into something more lasting. Through successive albums, Soft Machine soon moved toward a more jazz-based fusion with rock music, punctuated by Wyatt's distinctive drumming and vocals, attracting a massive following across Europe. After extensive touring, Wyatt left to pursue a solo career, but instead assembled Matching Mole who released two critically acclaimed LPs before disbanding prematurely.

In 1973, Wyatt fell from a third floor window during a party, leaving him paralysed from the waist downwards. From that day onwards he has concentrated his efforts into solo recordings, mixing simple and effective keyboard melody lines with poignant lyrics, often filled with personal and political references. The results have proved both haunting and reflective, even producing two chart hits – his 1974 re-working of "I'm a Believer", and the 1983 Falklands War indictment "Shipbuilding" written especially for him by Elvis Costello.



Michael King's meticulous biography pieces together a chronological account of Wyatt's 30 year career and is packed with previously unpublished archive material and rare photographs. Punctuated by commentary from Robert Waytt himself, as well as Alfreda Benge, Kevin Ayers, Daevid Allen, Hugh Hopper, Mike Ratledge, Keith Tippett, Carla Bley, Fred Frith and many others, Wrong Movements paints a fascinating portrait of a highly respected and individual musician.

About the author

Since 1976, Canadian Michael King has been an avid Robert Wyatt and Soft Machine archivist. This collection of material was started as an article for a fanzine but soon grew to book size proportions. The book was then compiled with the help of interviews conducted with Robert Wyatt himself, as well as all the other important contributors to his musical career. Michael King currently lives in Weston, Ontario with his wife and children.

For enquiries about review copies, features or articles based around the book, the acquisition of foreign rights, or distribution details: contact Mick Fish at SAF Publishing on 081 904 6263.

SAF Publishing, 12 Conway Gardens, Wembley, Middx. HA9 8TR. UK.

Dans sa quatorzième édition, la revue Facelift publie en juin 1995 sous la signature de Mike King More Wrong Moves Robert Wyatt biography update- quelques précisions biographiques qui courent de 1963 à 1981...

MORE WRONG MOVES

A Robert Wyatt biography update

by Mike King

First I would like to extend my thanks to you who have parted with hard earned culture cash for my labour of love 'Wrong Movements - A Robert Wyatt history' and the kind words for it. Books are certainly expensive these days and had this book been written by someone else I would have had to take a few CDs round to the local second-hand shop to buy one.

As fate had it, though, I undertook this rollercoaster ride of a lifetime and survived its inevitable derailments. Meaning errors, of which an almost embarrassing number appear in my book. There are no excuses, only reasons, but it sure was exhausting to construct and excavate on several levels simultaneously. Research itself involved hundreds of letters, phone calls, doors, false leads, ambiguities, friends, and almost collapsed in 1991.

It seemed I was facing a bottomless pit and could have researched forever, indeed drops of details still emerge, but SAF eventually put a lid on it - no more changes!

What follows is an update for additions and connections learned since the publication of 'Wrong Movements' in April 1994. Not included are the various misspellings of towns, names, punctuation errors etc - rather I've dealt only with event entries. Neither has any attempt been made to correct and add to Manfred Breß' International Discography. I'm not that tedious, and I'm tired. But yes, in fact the first Soft Machine album was issued in the United States on 8 track cassette format. OK, ready? Lights, camera, action!

Mike King

Robert Wyatt and translator Alessandro Achilli at the launch of the Italian translation of 'Wrong Movements', published by Arcana Editrice
Photo: Paolo Chang

Key

* amendment to original entry or additional information

∞ new entry

1963

*June 3 - Daevid Allen Trio, Marquee
Victor Schonfield's tape is labelled June 3, but Melody Maker's gig advert for 'Live New Departures' is Tuesday June 4th. (By the way, Victor Schonfield declined Soft Machine's invitation to manage the group's affairs in 1967. He thought they were too 'pop').

1966

*1 April Wilde Flowers at Toft's, Folkestone. In fact this gig flyer was published in 1967. Robert Wyatt had left the Wilde Flowers by this time.

*June 24 - Wilde Flowers, Margate
(This was Pye Hastings' first gig with the Wilde Flowers).

∞Autumn - Soft Machine demo recordings. The recordings and their details are lost but the group certainly cut demos for their management. Robert remembers a session that included Ron Rubin on double bass that 'must have been very early on because I didn't know that musicians had to be paid for their sessions'.

1967

*(That's Mark Ellidge holding the camera in the mirror in the Speakeasy photo. Note also Robert's trumpet on the stand.)

*March - unnamed collective, ICA, is March 19 (Sunday).

∞March 24 - London School of Economics

∞Spring - 'For Greenwich Theatre', Deptford Boxing Ring, Deptford (augmented by Gilli Smyth, poems/vocals).

∞April 8 - The Electric Poets, Roundhouse (supporting Pink Floyd)

Soft Machine 1969 or 1970: Hugh Hopper, Lyn Dobson, Elton Dean, Robert Wyatt, Mike Ratledge

*The St Tropez Town Square gig credited as August in fact took place on July 4th.

*December 5 - BBC Top Gear recording. A recently excavated recording confirms that 'Strangest Scene' was the original title of 'Lullabye Letter'. Robert doesn't play any piano on this session.

1968

*January 12 - Drury Lane Arts Lab included dancer Graiella Martinez, her last appearance with the group.

∞June or July - Roundhouse (?). Chris Cutler seems to recall seeing Soft Machine with Andy Summers in facial cast at the Roundhouse, but Barry King couldn't locate any Melody Maker gig advert. Andy couldn't recall any UK gig. Possible but unconfirmed.

1969

∞At some point before autumn the trio were recorded individually by soundman Bob Woolford in his sitting room; Hugh and Mike with bass and keyboard loops, Robert with echoplex. These tracks were mixed together with a gig tape by Bob and played at a multimedia event at the Roundhouse called 'Spaced'.

1970

*September - sessions for Tippett's 'Dedicated To You ...' LP. Robert Wyatt and Keith Tippett, voices on 'Five After Dawn'.

*October 19 - Anatomy of Pop filming includes individual interviews with all group members, and a performance of 'As If'.

1971

∞March (late) - Radio Bremen recording, Bremen. This newly found 'proper' session includes a remarkable bass/drum duet, and an unaccompanied scat vocal minus the usual echoplex treatment. Brilliant!

*November 11 - Kevin Coyne and Gong, Hammersmith Town Hall (delete November 13 entry - it was Louis Moholo drumming).

1972

*The February to March entry for Lol Coxhill, Toverbal, Maashuis is in fact September 14 at Paradiso, Amsterdam.

*The March 20 entry is for Kevin Ayers

*The March 20 entry for the Matching Mole ETV filming should read May 3.

*December Rockenstock TV - note that Pierre Lattes was the series producer.

1975

∞January 8 - Pacific Eardum, The Phoenix. Bob Bertles, Brian Smith (saxes); Big Jim Sullivan (guitar); Dave Macrae (keyboards); Bruce Lynch (bass); Tony Hicks (drums) augmented by Robert Wyatt (percussion) - second set only.

1976

*April - Gary Windo's 'Steam Radio Tapes' sessions. In fact Robert's vocal was recorded at his home as Britannia Row wasn't wheelchair accessible.

1981 (circa)

∞Robert also recorded with the punk group Oxy and the Morons, playing piano and singing on a track entitled 'War'. Further details unknown.

You've read the update ... now check out the book!

'Wrong Movements', the Robert Wyatt biography, is available direct from Facelift

Price £14.95

Additional postage/packing costs

free (UK)
£1 (Europe)
£1.50 (elsewhere - surface mail)
£2.50 (North America - airmail)
£3 (elsewhere - airmail)

Cheques/IMOs/Postal Orders should be made out to Phil Howitt. Foreign currency notes are sent at your own risk.

Send your order to Phil Howitt, Facelift Magazine, 39 Nicolas Road, Manchester M21 9LG, England

università agli studi di trento

Facoltà di Lettere, Aula 5 - CUC - Via S. Croce 65

DEDICATO A ROBERT WYATT

presentazione del libro di Mike King: Falsi movimenti - una storia di Robert Wyatt, Arcana editrice (novembre 1994), edizione italiana a cura di Alessandro Achilli, con proiezione di materiali video (1967 - 1991)

Il libro è la biografia di Robert Wyatt - uno dei fondatori dei Soft Machine, il complesso che insieme ai Pink Floyd contribuì a dare un'impronta duratura alla scena psichedelica inglese dei tardi anni '60 - con la cronologia completa di tutti i concerti e le registrazioni con i gruppi da lui fondati (Wilde Flowers, Soft Machine e Matching Mole), con altri artisti e complessi e come titolare. Trent'anni di carriera ricostruiti attraverso le testimonianze e i commenti del protagonista, di Elvis Costello, Fred Frith, Evan Parker, Carla Bley, Chris Cutler, Dave Stewart, Lol Coxhill, Julie e Keith Tippett, Daevid Allen, Gary Windo, Mike Ratledge e di moltissimi altri. Il volume ospita inoltre una discografia completa e dettagliata curata da Manfred Bress comprendente tutti gli LP, CD, EP e 45 giri come titolare, tutti quelli con Soft Machine e Matching Mole, tutte le collaborazioni e tutte le partecipazioni ad antologie e video. L'edizione italiana del libro - che si avvale degli aggiornamenti successivi alla pubblicazione dell'opera in lingua originale e delle precisazioni ricevute dallo stesso Wyatt - sarà presentata dal curatore Alessandro Achilli, redattore della prestigiosa rivista musiche e membro fondatore dell'associazione Mongezi Feza di cui Wyatt e Alfreda Benge sono presidenti onorari dall'87.
Nel corso della serata verranno proiettati numerosi materiali video - alcuni rarissimi - relativi a un arco temporale che va dalle esibizioni dei Soft Machine nel 1967 ai più recenti filmati di Dondestan.

giovedì 15 dicembre 1994

ORE 21.00